THE OLD AND THE NEW

P.C.D.S. "Nothing will ever be the same again... but let's be friends forever"

School life can be very demanding but it helps to know that you are never alone. Friends play a key role in school life; where would you be without them? Whether they help you study for a test or cheer you up after one, it is always reassuring to have them sharing your triumphs and defeats.

Some friendships at P.C.D.S. have spanned many years. Students who have been with each other since grade school form strong bonds that will last for years to come. "Friends are just extended family. If you treat them right their love will always be there for you," says Senior Karyn Takagi.

Friends also add fun to your school life. As Junior Ethan Gunning puts it, "Friends help you get through those Carl Sagan movies in science." Others just "listen to your complaints," remarks Junior Kerr Lordigyan, and as Mr. Coon says "it's no fun playing golf alone."

Basically, friends are just your good buddies. Without them your life could never be the same. Senior Maia Cryns sums it all up by saying, "Friends are special people that you can laugh with and cry with, and you know you can always be yourself around them."

A NEW Beginning '90

Whether you are a nervous freshman or an elated senior, you always have mixed emotions about the new year. "I was scared at first, but after I met a few people, I was really excited about the new year," said new Freshman Marla Meyer. While the freshmen are worrying about the beginning of their high school life, the seniors are starting to worry about ending it. This is the year for colleges, grades and thoughts of the future. "It's the most hectic year I've had so far. Worrying about college applications and grades makes this year seem very important," said Senior Laura Dingman.

The beginning of the '89-90 school year at PCDS saw some apprehensive freshmen, some unsure seniors, and many mixed emotions among the sophomores and juniors. By the end of the year PCDS will see some confident young men and women walking down the aisle in black robes, and some sophomores who are very sure about the year ahead.

A NEW

Although the lunch truck of old has been replaced by state-of-the-art snack machines, off-campus privileges are still the desire of many a hungry underclassman. Juniors can at least look forward to a second semester lunch period off-campus while seniors boast the ultimate freedom of unrestricted off-campus privileges.

Once students receive this freedom, they tend to quickly forget all the years of frustration. Most would certainly agree that off-campus, in the words of Senior Melissa D'A-mico, "makes lunch period a perfect time to get some good grub!" Whether it is "Jack", "Tokyo", "Taco", "Petite", "Reay's" or just a quick "run to 7", the large concentration of restaurants around P.C.D.S. makes off-campus a joy to the variety seeking senior.

A few lucky underclassmen have even been successful in winning the sympathy of seniors, who bring back food for their campus bound cohorts. Seniors also use this new freedom to perform such important tasks as "running errands and getting parts for my car", according to Senior Fred Ferguson.

For underclassmen it seems like a long wait. "It's a pain not having it," sighed Junior Kerr Lordigyan during first semester. Freshmen and sophomores have no drivers licenses and no off-campus privileges - a dual handicap. "I think they should give off-campus to everyone," says freshman Tanya Benatar. In the meantime, off-campus remains a cherished senior privilege.

THERE'S NOTHING

Hard work and studying are an integral part of PCDS life, whether the subject be Social Studies, Mathematics, Foreign Language, Science, Literature or the Arts. One cannot avoid studying; some have tried but soon regret it. Most resign themselves to the inevitable and try to devote themselves to their studies as demonstrated by the budding scholars pictured here.

The long held tradition of brain-baking (aka studying) is strangely apparent in the students of PCDS. The students of PCDS strive for excellence and set higher ambitions for themselves, but they always manage to find enough extracurricular time for lighter pursuits. Right, scholars?

LOOK

The current styles and trends of dressing are very evident at P.C.D.S. Not only is style a fashion statement but it also reflects diversity in the student body. There is always a wide variety of styles worn throughout the campus, ranging from the ultra-preppy look to the casual laid-back style.

The most common types of clothing worn around campus are the perfectly faded Levi's jeans accompanied by a T-shirt or sweater. College attire is not hard to find around the quad. One can almost always spot a favorite college insignia on the front of a T-shirt or sweatshirt.

Faculty often prefer to dress in a more conservative, preppy manner which includes neatly pressed oxfords, pleated wool pants or skirts and penny loafers with a coin included. Students however, are seen displaying the more contemporary and trendy styles. Brand name clothes purchased at specialty shops such as Bennetton, Esprit, and the Gap are also widely worn by P.C.D.S. trendies.

The general consensus among the students concerning style is that it is fairly casual and that there is no pressure to conform.

Mr. Jeff Stokes quoted his style as being, "A cross between casual elegance and funkiness."

Senior Pamela Schreiber referred to style as, "The external expression of your internal view."

It is evident that style is a part of daily life that is well represented at P.C.D.S.

The words "weekend" and "fun" always seem synonymous. Although rising early from bed to skip off to school is, for some, a joyous occasion, one cannot deny that the weekend is something to look forward to. "I would die without a weekend!" exclaims Junior Adi Krause.

After a long and tiring school week accompanied by the all too familiar late night study binges, a typical P.C.D.S. student longs for a weekend of sleep. However all this sleep doesn't stop people from having a good time. As sophomore, Gary Edlund states about his weekends, "I go tubing, I watch TV, and sometimes PARTY!!"

Other students talk on the phone and hang out in local shopping malls. Some spend their time just trying to keep up with their friend's lives. Senior Tracy Weiss explains, "I look forward to the weekends because it gives me a chance to catch up with people I don't get a chance to talk to during a normal school day."

Weekends are basically a time to have fun, relax, and ... study, but only if you absolutely have to! Freshman Marc Grayson pretty much sums it all up when he says, "Weekends Rock ... They do, man!"

A Renewed SPIRIT

Blue and Gold Day kicked off the 1989-90 school year with plenty of spirit and energy. Dressed in blue and gold, everyone cheered loudly for PCDS to win, until the sound echoed off the gym walls.

Varsity and Junior Varsity Cheerleaders, led the spirit, followed by competitions introduced by Head Coach Bob Kosower. The band played spirited music and the seniors won the annual cheer competition by a unanimous vote. Junior Beth Flores said she "liked the Seniors cheer" and thought "their blue and gold class T-shirts made them look great."

Spirit grew stronger through the day as most of our athletic teams went on to victory. Michelle Zinman, a sophomore, said, "There was even more spirit this year than last year."

A New Vision

Stefanie Bashore

by Margaret J. Madden, Head of School

Congratulations to the class of 1990 and, indeed, PCDS students in all divisions, for taking a "new look" at community and world needs and for responding to many of those needs. This concern of PCDS students for others less fortunate and for the quality of world, local and campus environments has been growing tremendously during the past few years. The attention to and funds raised during Octoberfest for the needs of the San Francisco earthquake victims is a marvelous example of thoughtful and generous student action.

It is exciting, too, to know that the Phoenix community is taking a new look at PCDS, prompted by growing public awareness of the successes of our students in academics, in the arts and in athletics. PCDS has a wonderfully talented student body. You, the class of 1990, through your care for the School and good leadership have contributed greatly to the growth and development of this fine educational community.

The science and math departments swept into the new year with programs revitalized by the addition of new teachers and new courses. Mr. Flanagan-Hyde began his PCDS teaching career as the Math Department head and upper level math instructor. LOOKING FOR HELP!

At one time or another, nearly every PCDS student turns to one of the counselors for support or advice. Both Mr. Paul Schweikher, college counselor, and Ms. Anne Salzmänn, school counselor, have been providing top-quality expert assistance to PCDS students for years. By senior year, everyone has met many times with "Schweik." Senior Paul Geantil said, "Mr. Schweikher brought light to my dismal college situation," and most seniors would agree with this to one degree or another.

As the coordinator of the Leadership Groups and the faculty sponsor of the Community Service Committee, Ms. Anne Salzmänn has established herself as an active part of the PCDS community. She was particularly excited about this year, which "started with enthusiasm, responsibility, and concern on the part of the seniors - and with the juniors pushing to start training!"

The concept of having no tests in classes such as English II and AP English would have seemed unbelievable even last year. Yet the English Department has made that switch this year, and according to students, it appears to be a success. "It's unique and it allows for more individuality," commented senior Sonia Abhyanker of her AP English class, taught by Department Head Mr. Coon. The changes include a major focus on writing and reading in enormous (but not impossible) quantity, keeping both a personal and a reading journal, and devoting class time to writing while listening to music. Both Mrs. Tankersley and Mr. Coon have been using this system and thus far appear to be very happy with the results. "I have found that students do much better quality writing when they are free to write about what they like. They enjoy it more and consequently write better," said a pleased Mr. Coon.

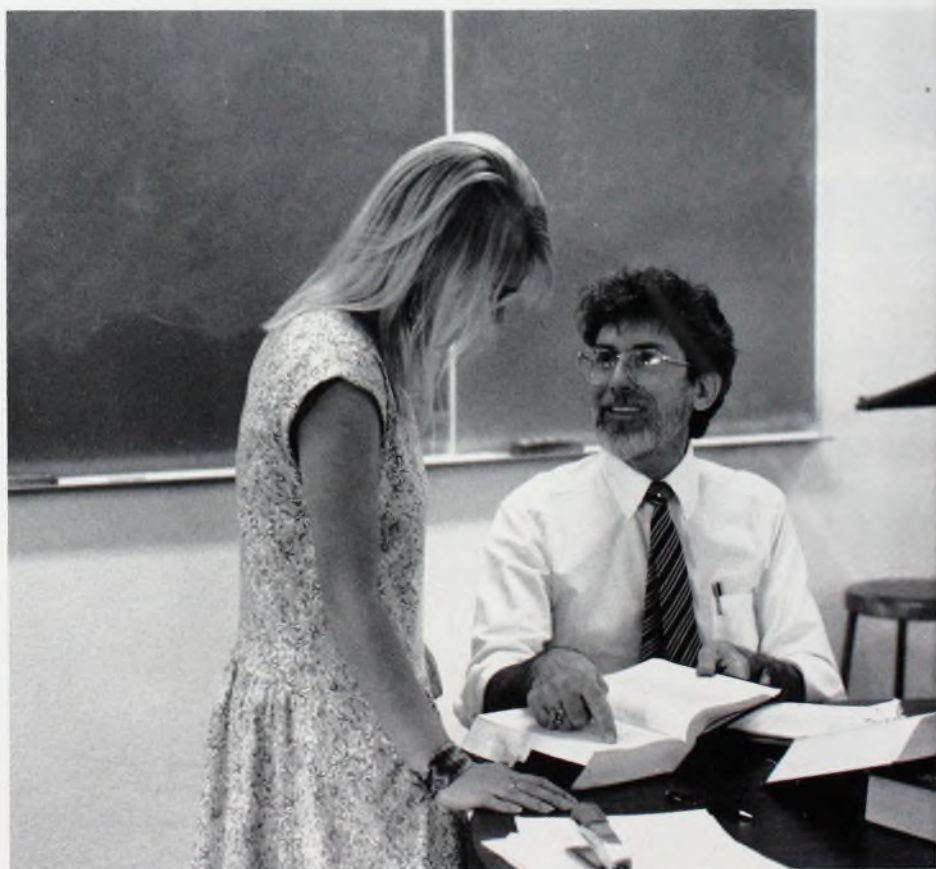

Stefanie Bashore

"Be patient, ladies, in a moment I will make the book rise off the table," exclaims Mr. Coon.

A Look Into The Past

The diverse courses and personalities within the History Department make social sciences an exciting field for "apprentice historians," to steal a term from history instructor Mr. Stokes. From the early days of Civilization I and II with Mr. Martin or department head Mr. Flail to the final experiences of AP classes, taught by Mr. Stokes and alter ego Mr. Schweikher, the journey through PCDS history classes is not easy. After all, it is not every class that might be taught by Mr. Dexter Morse, the head of the upper school, as American History is! However, it is, as senior Dina Brody put it, "one of PCDS's best departments. All the teachers get us motivated with their creativity and teaching styles."

Every PCDS student must take three years of foreign languages to graduate. Offering courses up to the AP level in both French and Spanish, the department has developed into an exceptional one. Department Chair Mr. James Bruning also teaches upper level Spanish courses while Madame Arlette Jacques handles the upper level French courses. Ms. Pamela Driggs and Mrs. Catherine Mount teach the lower level courses in these languages. Upper school librarian Mr. Harry Houle adds a whole new dimension to the department by instructing students in Latin. Although demanding, the three languages offered by PCDS give students the opportunity to experience a diversity of cultures and lifestyles.

Many students choose to take advantage of a selection of non-academic electives. These fall in three major categories - music, art, and physical education. Mrs. Susan Babini returned for her second year as the head of the music department. She and Mr. David Rowe have greatly led to new growth in instrumental music. Mrs. Brenda Schertenleib, aka "Shirt," joined the staff as the new chorus teacher. With new music requirements in the middle school, the PCDS music department appears to have a bright future. In art, department head Mr. James Cook and Mrs. Beth Zink offer a wide selection of classes, ranging from Drawing to Advanced Photography to Clay Studio among others. Not as much choice is available in "P.E.", where freshmen and sophomores are required to take classes both years, with no exemptions for varsity athletics as in the past.

You don't have to wait until you've entered Upper school to be on a CDS swim team. Like last year in the fall and spring students can participate in swimming after school 2-3 times a week.

The 8 week program begins with 1 week of tryouts where swimmers are divided into two groups. Students learn the four major strokes in the beginner group. They also do some lap work.

In the advance group swimmers do more laps as well as perfecting their strokes. Swimmers are also taught about water safety.

To experience competition there are 3 meets in the fall and spring. Mr. Dan Majeski, Coach of after school swimming provides a program for students in K-8 to excel individually, as a team, and to have fun.

UPPER SCHOOL

A New Start

The Class of '93 did not take the title "Freshmen" as an insult; they rather took it as a challenge. Instead of coming from the easy-going atmosphere of the middle school to the tough essay-a-week upper school and barely surviving the first quarter, they came through with flying colors, making them one of the brightest hopes for the future.

Their secret was making themselves heard in a number of areas instead of just watching. The Freshmen have made themselves felt not only in academic areas, but also in a number of extra-curricular activities, such as sports, clubs and campus life. The class of '93 has had a strong start, with three years remaining for them to make their mark on PCDS.

...No Longer New

Finally, Freshman year was over for the Class of 1992. The Sophomores really enjoyed the fact that there was a class behind them and they weren't on the bottom any more.

Since they were almost Juniors the Sophomores took on new responsibilities like getting their licences, taking PSAT's and having options for New Horizons. Sophomore year may be thought of as an easier year but this year's Sophomores had their work cut out for them. "I used to think Freshman year was hard before I took that math test," sighed a stressed out Sophomore.

Sometimes Sophomore year may be overlooked but this year's class sure stood out. Having the smallest class in the whole upper school, the Sophomores got to know each other well. With hard working class officers, their banking account is looking good for next year's prom. The class of 1992 is excited about the upcoming year and the privileges of becoming upperclassmen.

... Looking Towards the Top

Although not yet atop the highest of the four rungs of the school ladder, the Juniors finally enjoy their new label "upperclassmen." "As well as being harder, it's a whole lot more fun," exclaims Junior Class president Rick Daley, who, along with the majority of the class, finds that the mega-tons of hard work required of them doesn't seem to be so stressful when they look on the brighter side of the Junior year.

"Now we can all drive," says fellow Junior Rob Cohen. A new sense of freedom holds up the heads of the members of the Junior class and allows them to prance around campus with their car keys dangling from their fingers as if they have suddenly advanced into superiority. It all goes with the territory. Academically, many Juniors feel they have more variety in their classes because, as Tina McNeff states, "We can choose our own electives." However, although most enjoy the respect that goes along with being Juniors, some feel differently. Kim Cox admits, "We're finally upperclassmen, and yet we're still treated like lowerclassmen." Well, no matter what kind of treatment Juniors receive, one thing is certain - next year they will finally be on top.

To Mr. Rick Kidder:

The Senior Class of 1990 dedicates this yearbook to a man of many hats. From an avid golfer, to a member of the Harvard Porcillian Club, lover of Gilbert and Sullivan, Jethro Tull, and Roxy music, he is a man of great personality. A fine writer and teacher of advanced composition and British literature who could never stand for a dull moment in his classes. He is a friend to all of us and we would like to say "Thank you, Mr. Kidder!"

Looking to the Future

What is the truth and how do you know it when you have it?
 How do we really know anything? Is there an "I," a

Oh! you're in my heart

ORGANIZATIONS

SENATE

... Starting New Traditions

New President of the senate Tracy Weiss hoped in 89/90 to "bring back all the usual events, like Oktoberfest and the International Food Festival, as well as adding some unique ideas of our own, like the quad dance." The Senate also added a microwave oven along with several sandwich-vending machines in the concession area, as the old lunch truck days became distant memories.

The Senate kicked off the year with the annual Oktoberfest, complete with oompah music, ethnic food, and the fascinating sight of sophomore Jeanne Geantil stuffing over 100 Gummy Bears in her mouth on her way to a second place finish in the Gummy Bear Eating Contest. Several morning breakfasts were also hosted by the Senate, and by the end of first semester, plans were in place for dances in Burch Hall and the quad, the Quiz Bowl, Peoples' Choice Awards, International Food Festival, and other events.

Model U.N., perennially a popular club for PCDS upperclassmen, had to overcome some frustrating obstacles this year. Firstly, the club dropped from seventy members to twenty-six, due to the fact that two of its faculty sponsors, Messrs. Stokes and Schweikher, were no longer able to supervise their sections of it - they were too busy coordinating a new Debate Club.

Also, administrative problems in Tucson raised the question of whether this year's session would meet at all! Yet despite this, faculty sponsor Mr. Martin led a spirited group of delegates who wrote policy statements and resolutions on topics ranging from the depletion of the ozone layer to the economic rights of Third World Nations.

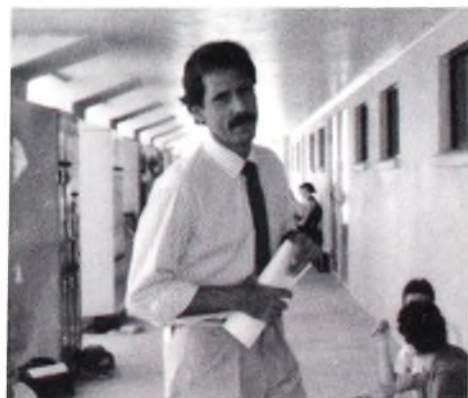

In the wake of the incredible revolts, both peaceful and violent, that have shaken China and Eastern Europe through this school year, senior Dina Brody, East German delegate, unveiled her "country's" response. "We're going to sit together with West Germany! Since the Berlin Wall came down in November, we are in effect one Germany." This session of Model U.N. looked to be a very interesting one indeed.

COMMUNITY SERVICE

... Looking to help

Community service is one of PCDS's largest and most popular clubs. Adi Krause, the club's president stated, "Our major goal for this year is to get as many students as possible involved with aiding the less fortunate."

This past Halloween club members cheered up many senior citizens by taking several children trick-or-treating through their retirement home. Club member Pinar Tashman said, "It was probably one of the most touching experiences I have ever had."

Other activities the club has been involved in are helping with the Tolstoy Foundation Refugee Christmas party, working at the Saint Vincent de Paul soup kitchen, and sponsoring a can food drive to benefit the homeless. The club also sponsored a year-long aluminum can recycling project which involved the entire school. The money earned from the recycling went to help an underprivileged family.

Environment Club

With the goals of making a difference, becoming informed, and just having fun, the Environmental Club has seen a successful first year at PCDS. The club provides a place for environmentally aware students to act on their beliefs by letter writing campaigns or, for those not so environmentally conscious, to learn through speakers or trips.

The protection of animal species is high on the list of concerns. The club uses all powers available to them to stop the use of animals for research, or the physical abuse that is afflicted by animal owners.

The club is also concerned with what is happening to the environment in many different countries. Whether it be the African rain forests or the ozone layer, you can be assured the club will be involved.

Of course the club only resorts to peaceful methods and has accomplished much in its first year. Everyone at PCDS has been affected by its existence, and in the years to come, it is obvious that it will be a success. Club co-leader Esther Marion ends by saying, "Even though we had a good time, we were able to educate and make a difference."

LEADERSHIP

... Helping Hands

Leadership gives many students the opportunity to learn about their peers and talk in confidentiality about their problems. It provides a support group and a place to make new friends.

This year several seniors were assigned leadership groups with middle school students. Freshmen, who often have a tough time adapting to a new school, get a chance to talk with others who are experiencing similar feelings.

Senior leaders can listen to their groups, and also express their own frustrations and worries. Seniors and freshmen often become much closer friends, which is an important part of going to a small school.

Those students who are juniors are in training to become senior leaders. They focus upon building stronger leadership skills.

Leadership is one of the very important parts of the PCDS social scene, beneficial to the entire PCDS community.

The newspaper has had another enjoyable and productive year. The eight page issues of news, features, sports and opinions distributed monthly are the finished product of many drafts.

The editorial staff Doug Matia, managing editor, Danielle Wallace, news, Jenny Bolyard, features, and Adam Spiegel, sports, headed by Jill Krafts, editor-in-chief and Pat Tankersley, faculty advisor, begin the process by brainstorming creative article ideas.

These ideas are passed on to the reporters who work diligently - interviewing, writing, re-writing, until the final draft is typeset. The layout staff then compose the graphics and photos supplied by Rachelle Stenhouse, photo editor and her staff, into the publication students, faculty and parents enjoy each month. by Danielle Wallace.

Law ethics discussed in assembly

Maricopa County's prosecuting attorney and public defender spoke on the ethical dilemmas of criminal law in an assembly on November 14.

Public defender Brian Bond, or "the guy supposed to get the guilty guy off" as he called himself, talked about the rules and regulations of a Maricopa County courtroom.

"Actually trying to bomb a case would be unethical," said Bond. "It's better to have a hundred guilty guys walk than to put one in bars."

The curtain rises, the curious murmur of the audience settles, and the play begins. This is a familiar scene to many young actors at PCDS. In the past few years, under the able direction of Dr. John Collins, and assisted by Mr. Bill McKinley, the drama club has made tremendous strides in its caliber of performance and discovery of newly found talent.

Besides the usual plays and the musical directed by teachers, there is a new twist to the club. For the first time in the history of drama at PCDS, students are directing their own plays. One of these student productions is entitled "Rest in Peace", a comedy directed by Freshmen Claudia Bashore and Rachel Kopiec.

For a change of scenery, Junior Kerr Lordygan is directing a heavy drama called "The Insanity of Mary Girard." Lastly, Junior Ethan Gunning is directing the Woody Allen farce "God."

Senior Dina Brody, active in two of the three productions, has this to say. "Allowing students to direct their own plays makes for a great experience and a broadening of horizons. I'm glad it can be done." Ethan Gunning adds, "I think that this is a very original idea of Dr. Collins', and it lets students be creative and have more say in what happens in the drama club."

YEARBOOK STAFF

The Yearbook is an enormously demanding activity. It takes about 1,000 manhours, all voluntary work by Upper School students. Meeting deadlines wins us a free twenty page supplement.

With this incentive, PCDS met all its deadlines last year for the first time. Even though the supplement, is extra work for the editors, as Seniors they are excited to have a unique opportunity to record some of the most important events in their high school career. These include Graduation and Prom.

Mrs. Pecelin, advisor, says, "The staff is magnificent at pulling out all the stops when necessary. Maia is a great editor who fosters commitment and teamwork."

One of the goals for the future is better coverage of Middle and Lower school activities, trying to overcome the logistical problems of operating "across the wash."

Yearbook memories include ten-hour Saturdays - orange juice and doughnuts - layout sheets, photos, page packets - music, laughter and the tap tap (stab stab by Joel) of the computer keys.

SPORTS

SWIMMING A NEW SPLASH

The P.C.D.S. swimmers, although small in number, continued to make a big splash during their season. Under the watchful eye of coach Mike Maczuga, the team practiced five days a week for two hours each day to stay fit for a winning season.

"Our team is much more solid this year which helps us a lot, especially because we are competing against teams which are more in our league," said second year swimmer Beth Flores.

The team's energy helped to increase the excitement and decrease the swimmers' times. Junior Jafi Lipson broke the P.C.D.S. school record for the 100 yard breaststroke. The women's team also set specific goals, such as aiming to break the school record in the 4 x 100 yard freestyle relay. Boys' captain Bill Pettitt and girls' captain Karyn Takagi showed excellent leadership and technical skills in winning the majority of their races this year and preparing themselves as the team for the divisional meet.

"We're definitely better than last year," said Natacha de-Beco, junior. "The people on the team make it fun to practice and compete." With this spirit, the team was prepared for the long trip to Yuma for the divisionals and possible state qualifications!

VOLLEYBALL RENEWED!

This new school year gave PCDS a volleyball team with a renewed spirit. Stacked with freshmen talent and spirit, the team worked hard to have a season to look back on with pride. "Although we did not have a winning season, the talent on the varsity team was greater than we've had in previous years," said Junior Lisa Brook.

Perhaps the best assets to the team this year were the Freshmen players. Many of the new players on the team this year were freshmen, and their talent was easily seen. These players make the future of volleyball at PCDS look bright. "This year's volleyball team played well together and had a lot of fun, but most importantly the underclassmen got a lot of experience," said senior captain Mollie Anderson.

The season was very successful, the Eagles winning their first league game in several years. With the freshman talent, the team has great potential and could soon record a winning season in years to come. Under the leadership of Coach Georgia Buelow, or "B," the Eagles have quickly become a team to make PCDS proud.

New Leadership Keeping the Old Tradition

Many changes are evident on the PCDS boys' varsity soccer team this year, but one thing has not changed - the tradition of excellence. Despite the loss of many starting seniors and the head coach from last year's state runner-ups, this year's team has been a definite success. They have won nine of their ten games and are looking toward the state championships.

The Eagles' prime offensive weapon, senior striker Bill DuMone, scored his hundredth goal as the Eagles outscored their opponents 30 to 5 in their nine victories. The offense provided a balanced, aggressive attack that helped lead the Eagles to success. Another key to this year's winning season was defense. The defense tightened after the early 5 to 3 overtime loss to Greenfields and shut out every other league member once, allowing only 5 goals in the other nine games. The whole team was characterized by great depth this year, and had evolved into a very physical group by the end of the regular season.

The combination of the leadership qualities of Coach Steve Reuter and this year's seniors helped contribute to the effort as well. However, no less than nine freshman were team members, so the future looks to hold good things in store for the PCDS boys' soccer program.

Our girls

Shoot Far!

Women's basketball at PCDS has improved tremendously this year. "Our team is a lot better and it is also bigger than last year," said starter Karyn Takagi. The team became more successful as the season progressed because of their good attitudes and spirit.

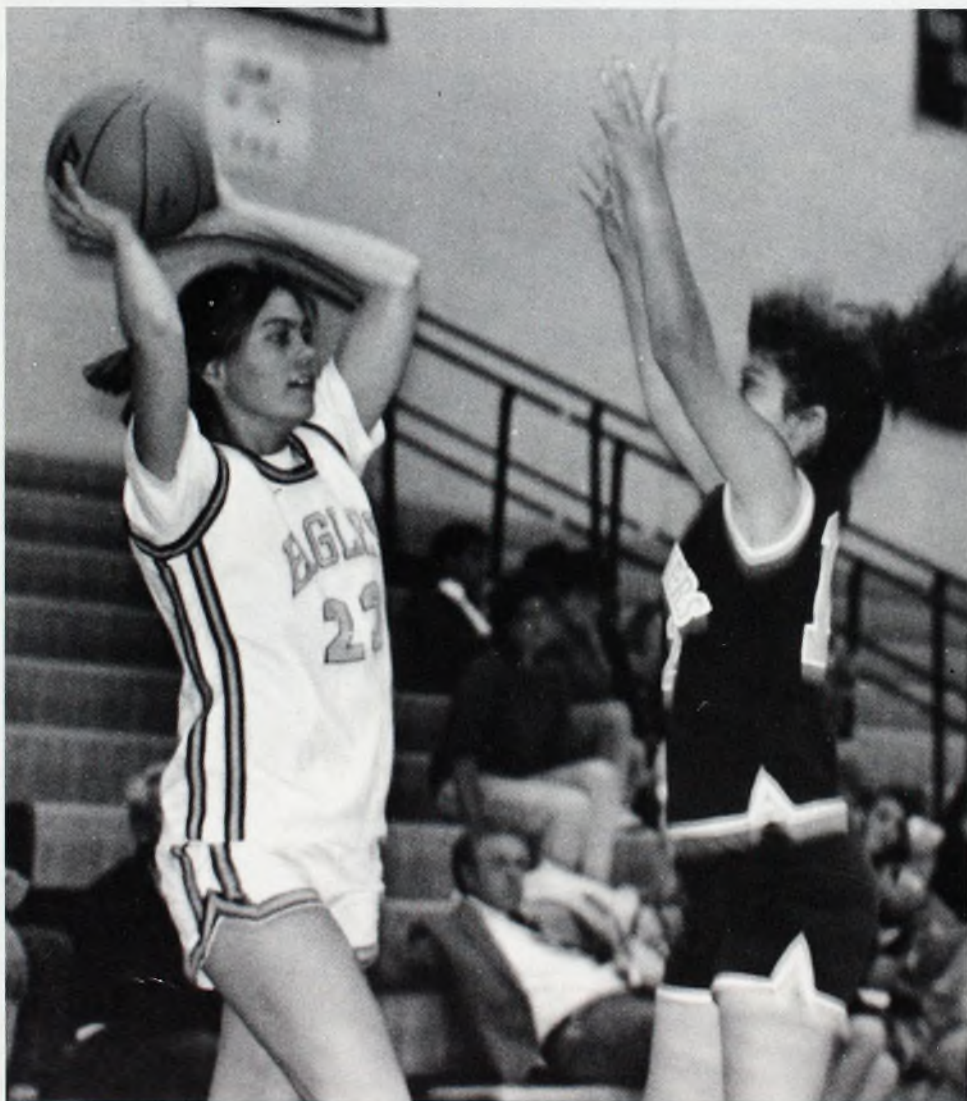

The team's coach, Mr. Morse feels, "We have a lot of enthusiasm, great effort and are improving every day." Mr. Morse is assisted by Mr. Cook. Together they have helped the players improve and become better athletes.

Having players from freshmen to seniors has provided variety. "The freshman and the older veterans fell together as a team and are competitively working towards the future." The freshmen have proved to be really valuable to the team. "High school basketball is so different from middle school. It is great to have the opportunity to play with older and more experienced players," says Valeska French.

The players in the Women's Varsity basketball team are not the only ones enjoying the season. "This year the games are the most exciting to watch in all of my four years of high school," said fan Scott Small.

Our guys Jump High!

Since the arrival of head coach Mr. Bob Hendrickson two and a half years ago, the men's Varsity basketball program has gone steadily uphill. This year's team proved no exception, winning more games than any other basketball team in recent school history.

Several milestones were passed over the year as well, as Coach Hendrickson recorded his five hundredth high school basketball coaching victory and senior guard Billy Dumone notched his one thousandth point. This standard of excellence carried over to the other players as well, with senior "big men" Aron Drayer and Scott Small crashing the boards well - Drayer even put the exclamation point on a victory at Orme with a "monster" dunk. Junior Greg Lehmann and senior Doug Matia hit well from the outside, Matia earning the nickname "Clutch" after a key three-pointer with two seconds left earned the Eagles a home victory against Northwest Community Christian. Add these contributions to the "sweet" moves and passes in Dumone's arsenal, and the result was an excellent season of which the Eagles can truly be proud.

Men's Junior Varsity Basketball flourished as well this year, as a freshman/sophomore-dominated team posted an impressive record. Standout players were sophomore high-scorer Jeff Matura and sophomore point guard Adam Spiegel, who led the Eagles to one of their strongest seasons in years. The future looks bright for the PCDS men's basketball program.

BASEBALL

Batting a Thousand

If you ever want to find a team with a lot of spirit and fun, the place to look is the PCDS men's baseball team. Although not achieving a winning season last year, this team works hard to represent the school. The team's spunk and enthusiasm makes them winners in any score book this school has ever seen.

The team is very excited and is working hard to prepare for the season ahead. "The loss of many seniors makes us aware that we have our work cut out for us if we're going to have a successful season," Paul Geantil said. The team especially needs to concentrate on their field work to ensure a strong team.

Although some of the older and more experienced players are gone, there is plenty fresh talent this year. Two Sophomores Adam Spiegel and Craig Stenhouse are returning to the team again this year and will be a terrific asset.

Even if the team does not do as well as they hope this year, the school can rest assured that they'll be back again next year better than ever. The spirit the men take out on the field with them is fantastic, and they have a great time doing what they love to do.

SOFTBALL

Slides Home

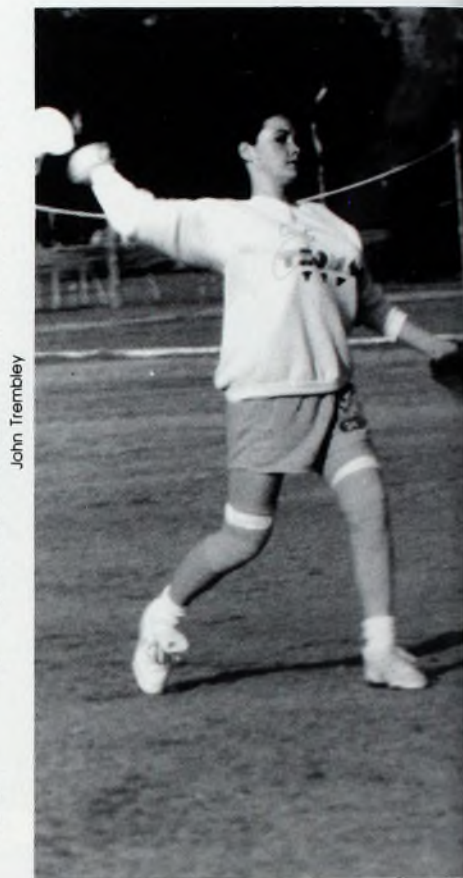

As spring came once again to the PCDS campus, it brought with it still more sunny weather, pollen and allergies, lazy days, and another exciting season of girls' softball. Practices started in late February for the fresh young team led by the sole returning seniors, Kristin Allison and Karyn Takagi. The girls were optimistic about the year ahead, knowing well they would have to work hard to succeed in their new league (Class C) behind a new pitcher, junior Lisa Brook. Mr. Paul Schweikher again returned as head coach of the team, added to his duties as a college counselor and history teacher.

As the practices got underway, it was quickly clear that these girls felt they could prove very competitive, perhaps making a run for the state tournament. Early frustrations were just as evident, however, as junior third baseman Beth Flores was sidelined just a week before the first game with a broken finger. Senior co-captain Karyn Takagi commented, "It just made me so mad! She was really an up-and-coming player. Now, the rest of us will have to pick up the slack and really work hard to make this season a success."

"And it's a swing-and-a-... hit!" Karyn Takagi connects with the top half of the softball, resulting in a ground ball. Swing level next time, Karyn!

Lisa Brook warms up her throwing arm as practice gets underway. As a pitcher, she must be careful not to "throw her arm out," to pitch complete games.

MEN'S TENNIS

Swings into Action

Coach Charles Flail has high hopes and expectations for his men's varsity tennis team. The team is playing much stronger this year and has the strong leadership and maturity needed for a successful season. Coach Flail has said that there is even the "potential for a couple of state championships."

Last year, the team won divisionals taking seven individuals to state. David Bojalad placed third, which was a great victory for the team. Coach Flail said that this year's team "has a year's experience. I should think that this year we won't lose any matches." Last year the team lost two games to St. Gregory. This year coach Flail is very optimistic about the team's future winnings.

With so called "stars" like Seniors John Peskoff and David Bojalad, the team will definitely meet its expectations when the season starts on March 6th. Upcoming underclassmen like Sophomore Gregg Dessen and Freshmen Jason Fox will also add to the team's strength.

This will be a positive season for Men's Tennis. The hard-working players all have good attitudes and there are no ego problems. All of this leads Coach Flail to boast, "I'll be shocked if we lose any!"

WOMEN'S TENNIS

Success lies ahead for the P.C.D.S. women's tennis team. Like last year's team this year's tennis team is sure to have a winning season. The team is being coached by Mr. Flail, assisted by Mrs. Mount. "There are plenty of students trying out for the team this year," said Mrs. Mount, "and there's no shortage of enthusiasm."

"We have freshmen with great potential that are willing to work hard," said Mr. Flail. Freshmen Kim Cotton appears to be very promising in practice. The team will need much success to measure up to last year's record.

In '89 we sent four players to divisionals and won states. This year winning veterans like Karen Levenberg and Gillian Price are returning to win again. Veteran Kim Davis feels "even though tennis is an individual sport we pull together as a team and reach our goals."

GOLF

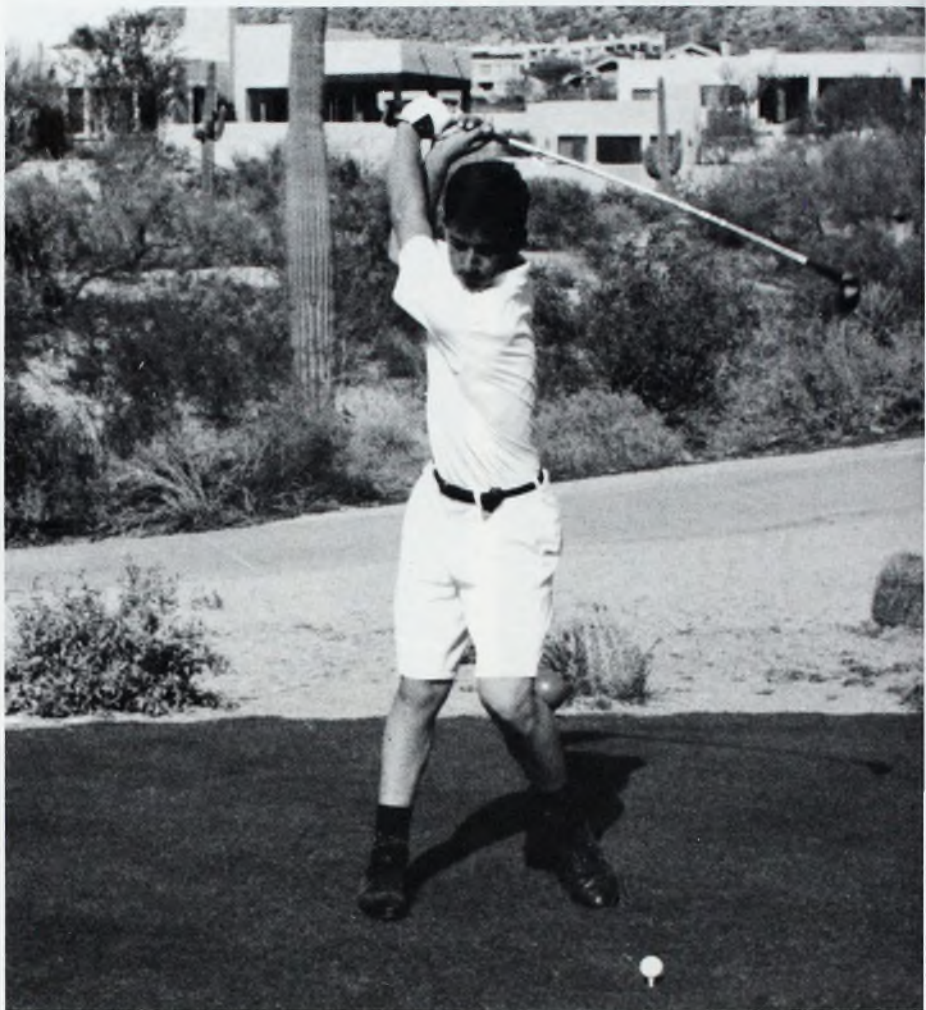

LOOK at those clubs!

The PCDS golf team coached by Dave Martin, is looking forward to a good season this year. The returning team, led by Brett Walton and Ari Plosker, is strong. "This year's team has lots of potential. The Freshmen will form a large portion of this year's team, and they should help improve it," said Coach Dave Martin. Brett Walton, last year's number one player, shoots in the lower forties for nine holes, and should provide excellent leadership for the inexperienced Freshmen. "The team hopes to improve upon last year's record," says Senior Ari Plosker.

After hours of hard work, the rewards came as the cheerleaders gave it their all as they cheered the CDS Men's Varsity Basketball team to a season record of fifteen wins and seven losses. The cheerleaders had a good time this year cheering for the student body as well. After two pep rallies, the cheerleading squad was confident that they would do well this year. Senior Paul Geantil "had fun, but wished there were more guys on the team." Junior and co-captain Lisa Brook said, "We had a really good time this year, and I encourage more people to try-out."

Together we shared a

We talked, we disagreed,
we shared personal hurts

My Home! in the old apple orchard,
You seemed like a mansion to me
In the days when I was a youngster
And living so happy and free.
'Twas there that our loved ones would gather,
And oh! the dear friends that we met,
The kind that you like to have near you,
The ones you will never forget.

So often I find myself dreaming,
And sometimes my eyes fill with tears;
I see my dear mother still waiting
To greet me, as in the past years.
Oh! memories dear ever linger,
Stay with me wherever I roam,
For it is so sweet to remember
The scenes of my dear childhood
