I get asked all the time, generally from friends and family back east, what I think of Arizona now that we've lived here for a couple years. The truth is that I really wasn't sure what I was going to find when we moved, as I'd never been to Arizona before.

I guess I was fairly confident that I'd love the climate, and it didn't surprise me that the landscapes and sunsets were so beautiful. Certainly, the ability to spend so much time outdoors had obvious appeal.

But what really sets Arizona apart for me is the people—specifically, the diversity of experience and perspective that I see every day. That so many of us come from so many different cultures and walks of life makes living here profoundly meaningful, and always interesting.

And it's absolutely the case at PCDS. The uniqueness of each of our students is simply extraordinary. There's nothing cookie-cutter about those who walk the stage as seniors and graduate out into the world. They're all smart and all determined and all caring—but each in his or her own way.

I wish you, the Class of 2013, the best of fortunes as you embrace and celebrate the challenges and opportunities of your new adventures. May you all continue to explore your own differences, and seek out the differences in others.

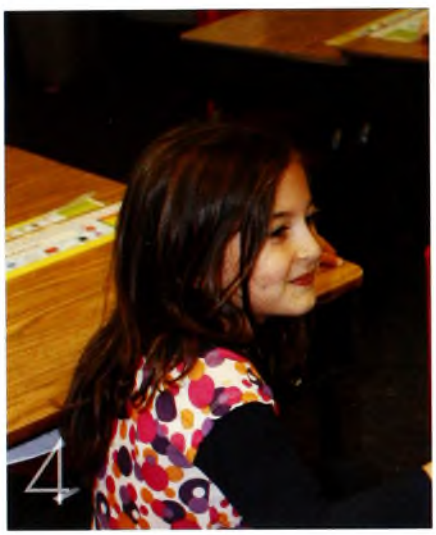
Life at PCDS



1. Are these high schoolers posing as a penny or the real Abe Lincoln?
2. PCDS is such a small school that even the Seniors hang out with Kindergarteners!
3. Ali Loretta edits her paper with joy because she knows college is on the horizon.
4. Ava Goodman turns to listen to her teacher like any amazing student would do.
5. Lauren Garvin types up her vocabulary and prepares to ace her quiz.
6. Some PCDS students are very intrigued with the sight of a yearbook photographer.

7. Jacob Singer does his best Heisman impression and sheds tackles on the recess field.

8. "Orange" you glad Ryan Goodman can yo-yo?

9. Rana Roudi can't help but smile as showstopper Kyle Money strikes his best pose.

10. Gabby Shacknai and Sydney Portigal prove that Junior year is full of happiness but a playful Rachael Stottlemyre begs to differ.

11. Aliya Orenstein and Olivia Ellegard smile because school is so much fun, or maybe it's just time for recess.

Life at PCDS

1

1. Ben Whitmore and Kyle Kinnie focus intently on their math books and recall information they'll need for their homework.
2. Sabrina Whitfill, Fallon Leyba, and Brianda Godoy enjoy the beautiful grassy knoll while working hard.
3. Pierce Swanson laughs to himself after Ms. Marks tells a joke in History.
4. Eric Cole tries an "Uncle Drew" crossover on his classmates at recess.
5. Olivia Vu paints a beautiful blue masterpiece that even Van Gogh would be impressed by.

4

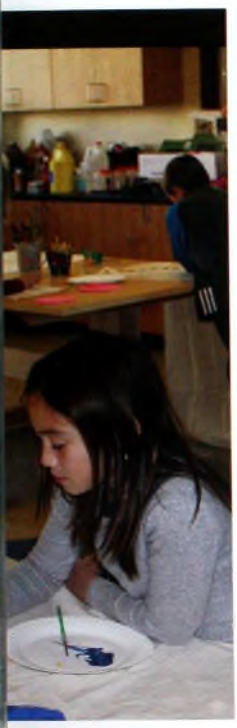
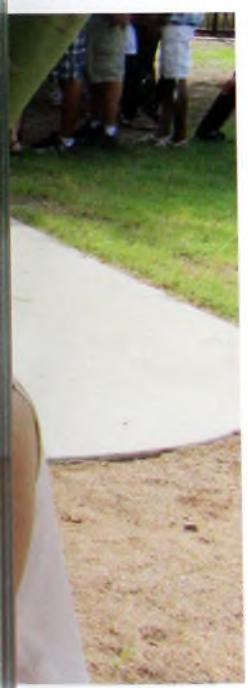
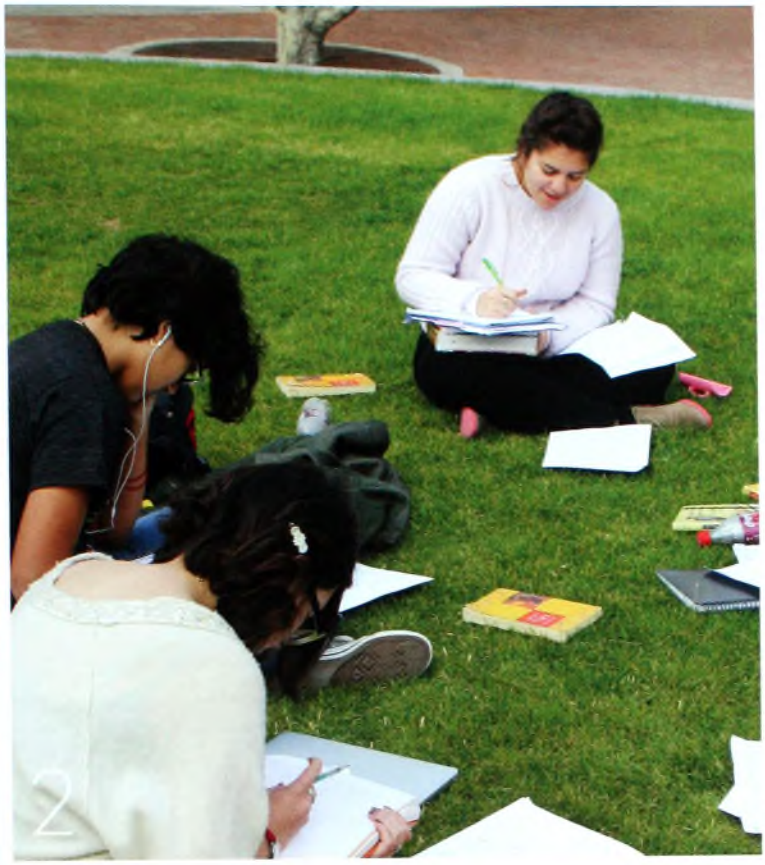
10

9



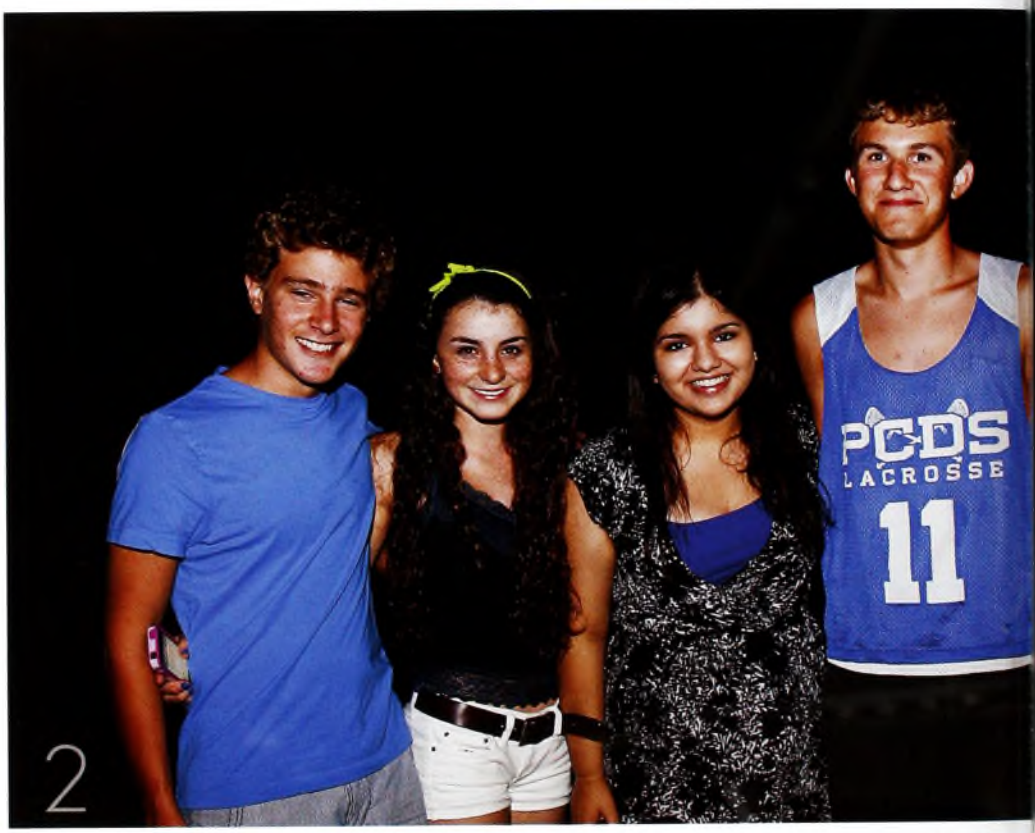




6. Lael Hill and Justine Money work together on a fun art project during the Kingergarten-4th Grade playtime.
7. He may be young but this lower-schooler sure knows how to look cool on his "motorcycle".
8. Clarisse Salazar and Lina Khan do some work on Make A Difference Day.
9. Taylor Money and Kate Pokorski passed their amazing fashion advice onto youngster Sam Novak who caught on quickly.

Blue & Gold Day

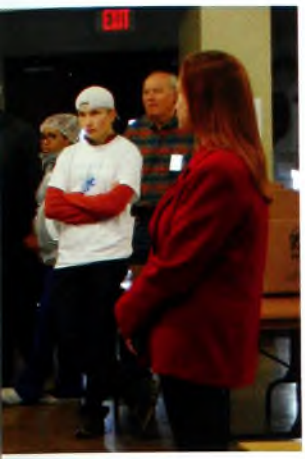
1. This face paint sure looks good but it'll be hard to get off the next morning!
2. Daniel Shuster, Karen Weiser, Lina Khan, and Aaron Cohen smile and bask in the beauty of photographer Amelia Montooth.
3. Katy Perry has nothing on these fireworks from Blue & Gold Night.
4. Rachel Cooper, Lexi Flader, Justine Money, and Claudie Sheridan take advantage of the perfect lighting from the fireworks and stop for a picture.
5. PCDS Cheer must be Egyptians; they know how to make pyramids!



6. Seniors Alex Sylvester and Taylor Money steal the show at Blue & Gold Day.
7. Lauren Hanneman thinks she's in a Ferrari but she's only going that fast thanks to her helpers.
8. Malia Susha sticks out her blue tongue thanks to a refreshing ice treat.
9. PCDS GETS CRAZY!
10. The annual Soccer vs Varsity volleyball game gets off to an emotional start with a craaazy cheer.

make a difference day

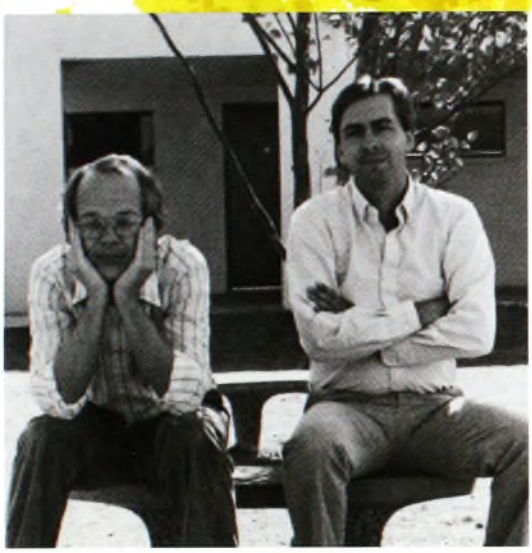
1. Upper School seniors look and listen to the interesting facts from "Stop Hunger Now" visitors.
2. Kendall Woodard and Maddie Stern organize food at their favorite food bank, luckily remembering to bring sweatshirts because its chilly.
3. Taylor Money flashes a thumbs-up to show his enthusiasm and long awaited answer to "You lift bro?".
4. Walker Tuton multi-tasks by texting & sorting food at the same time

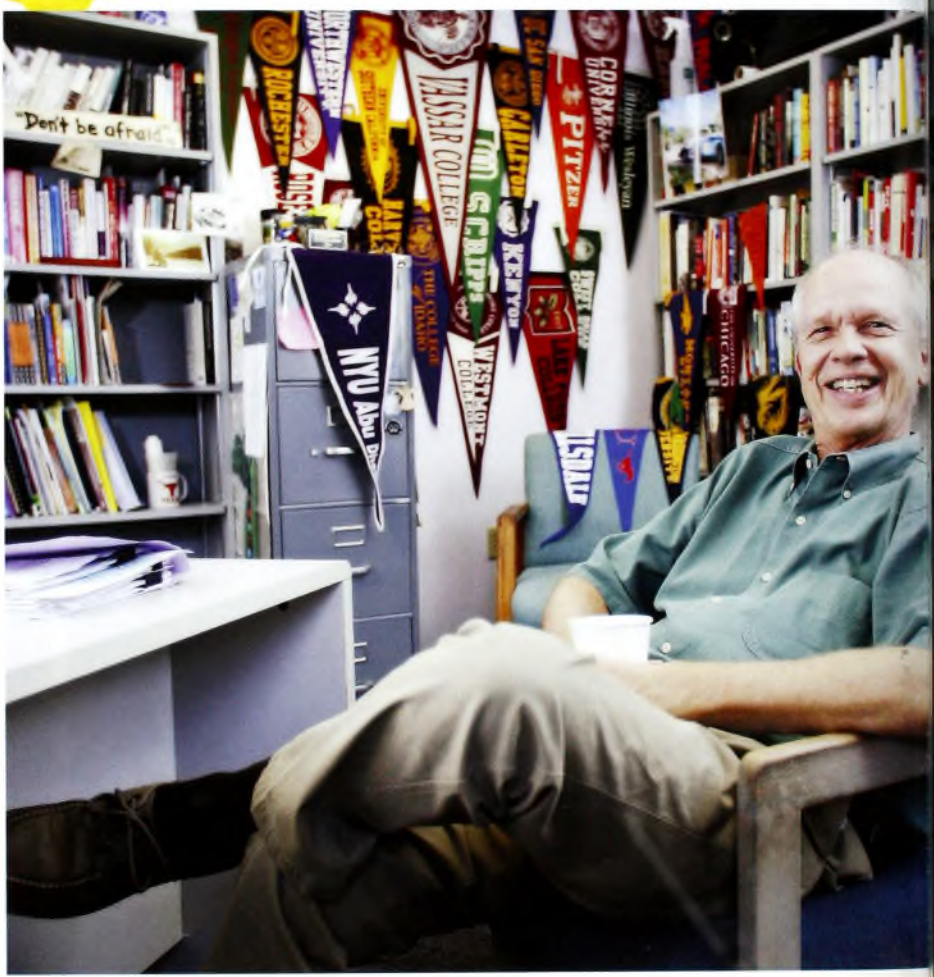


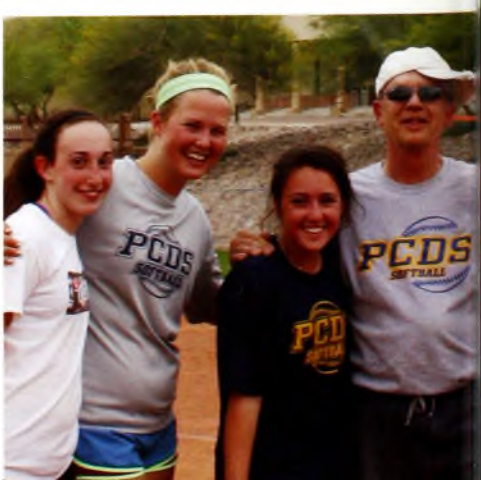
5. 7th graders make beautiful Valentine's cards with enough glitter to impress even Ke$ha.
6. Even young students help in any way by making cards for US soldiers.
7. Lexie Lewis and the Incredible Hulk (Alex Hosmar) move heavy bags of food into Burch Hall for the day's activities.
8. Andie Lou Hayden puts her Picasso-esque talent to work in a mural for the food bank.
9. Rainbows and hearts make the world go round.
10. Kather Hackett shows off a pillowcase he made with his friend.

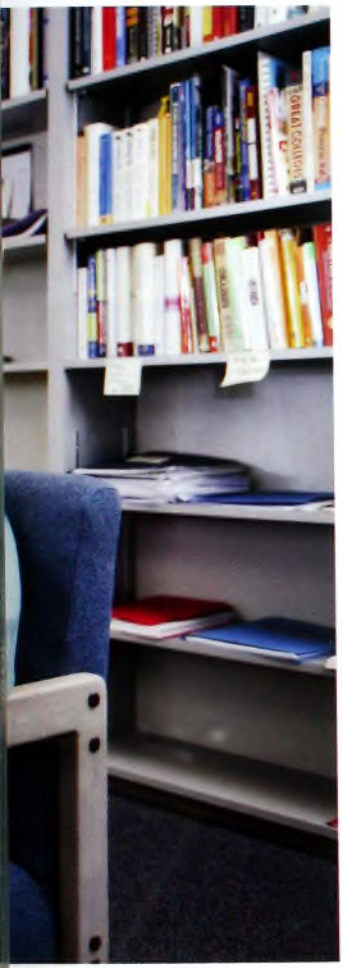
Dedicated to Mr. Schweikher

The man, the myth, the legend...









As freshman we can probably all remember walking into the quad for the first time and taking everything in all at once: the picnic tables, the loud students, and the intimidating teachers. Then there was Schweik: that short man sporting a PCDS baseball cap who seemed to know just about everyone. Most of us had heard of him before, but he was somewhat of a mystery to us all. We only really knew of him as the tough college counselor. Schweik is an incredible college counselor, to say the least, but he is so much more than that. Schweik is hard on us, often tells us what we do not want to hear, and brings us back to reality, but that is part of his charm. His door is always open and he is ready to talk to any of us about anything and everything. We have all felt that firm Schweik handshake and listened to one too many of his overly long rants throughout high school, but his wise words will remain with us even after we leave. Schweik is compassionate, kind, endearing, and funny, but that does not even begin to cover it. He has impacted all of us, even if sometimes we don't like to admit it.

Schweik, you are such an important figure on this campus and we do not know what we would do without you. You serve as a committed college counselor, an encouraging softball coach, an unbelievable mentor, but most importantly, you serve as a needed friend to so many of us, and for that we can never thank you enough. The Class of 2013 would like to dedicate this yearbook to you, in honor of how much we appreciate, respect, and admire you. We will never forget you, Schweik, and are truly grateful that we have gotten the chance to know someone as incredible as you. As you like to say, you are truly our "fave."

Cheers,

Lower School

This year has been one of incredible moments and inspiration. As I reflect back, I realize that our delightful hummingbirds have become an integral part of our Lower School community. When we stop to notice the hummingbirds, outside of the classrooms and throughout the garden, we see the beauty and the wonder that a single moment can hold. These brave little birds remind us that size is not a measure of courage, and they empower us to take risks and follow our curiosities. They teach us to savor our interactions with each other as they are fleeting, and most of all, they remind us to slow down so that we notice the joy that life offers to us each and every day. I am grateful to the extraordinary teachers and students who have embraced and guarded these moments. I believe these interactions embody the philosophy of our Lower School, one in which we value the education of the whole child, and I am so proud to be a part of this wonderful community.

Teachers' Farewell Messages

To the class of 2013...I wish you all the best as you move on to bigger things! I can't thank you all enough for the friendships and smiles you have brought to me over the years. To those of you that were around PCDS in the lower school....I have you to thank for being the pioneers of the fourth grade video production world! iMovie made its first appearance in the lab that year, and you produced the inaugural documentaries about Canyon de Chelly. I can honestly say, after viewing 100's of videos about Northern Arizona since that year.....yours were definitely.....the first!!!! Peace and harmony my friends!!(Fist raised)
- Mr. McKean

Congratulations, Seniors! It seems like it was just yesterday that we were watching you perform in the Lower School Swim Exhibition and Track and field day events. We wish you the best in your college careers and hope you will visit us soon!
- Mrs. Etheridge & Mr. Majeski

Dear Seniors,
As I sit and ponder the history surrounding your class in fourth grade, I wonder, as I am sure all of us have, where the time has gone. It seems like only yesterday we were in the original Lower School buildings with the famed "round building" planning our trip to Canyon de Chelly. With improvements on campus, I have missed seeing you pass by your old classrooms on your way to and from the dining hall. And now, suddenly, you are on your way to bigger and better things.
I feel privileged to have been a part of your growing years. Whether you were new to PCDS in fourth grade or a "lifer" adjusting to the increased academic requirements, you persevered and did what needed to be done to meet with success. I remember some of you who were quiet but left your mark with your sparkling personalities. You worked to take leadership roles in small groups or partnerships to achieve set goals and had sensitivity and compassion towards others on the playground and in the classroom, particularly speeches, like, "How to Make a Bulletin Board," and long term projects where you impersonated famous people such as Susan B. Anthony that displayed your creativity and your desire to give it your all stand out. And now, you are assuming the leadership roles among your peers.
It has been a pleasure to work with you, to see and hear of your growth academically, socially, and emotionally, and to be asked to take part in this, one of the last mementos of your life at PCDS. I wish you well in your future encounters, whatever they may be.
Best regards,
Mrs. Stiles

Mrs. Arguello

The Fourth Grade Dedicates this Page to Mrs. Arguello

I wanted to dedicate this year's yearbook to Mrs. Arguello because she always understands me. She never lets me down and I can always count on her. She makes sure we absolutely understand anything she teaches us. She is a really good teacher- actually no, she isn't- she is a really great teacher. I could never get through 4th grade without her. This is only her 2nd year at PCDS and it feels like she has been here all of her life because she is so great at this job. She is a special person and special teacher.
Thanks, Mrs. Arguello, for making this year great!

-Gwen Bindley

Life

1. The playground is a great place to make new friends, and these munchkins show off their friendship with a hug.
2. Kirtana Rooper smiles as the camera captures her and her creative project.
3. Ms. Tomlin shows her students a cool bubble.
4. Savannah Smith and Kayle Singer know that every friend needs a hug sometimes and proudly embrace one another.
5. Will Burnham gives a big smile for the camera during his science class with Mrs. Hall.
6. Aaron Bracher absorbes a lot of information in Mrs. Stiles class

7. Some children prefer to take recess more seriously and go panning for gold in the Arizona sand.

8. ALIENS HAVE INVADED THE CAMPUS, but some people think it's funny.

9. Emme Kate Hackett can't help but smile when some boys in her class tell jokes.

10. Mrs. Hall is quick to help point her students in the right direction with their experiment.

11. Miles Sabeeh is skilled with magic markers and shows off his incredible drawings.

Academics

1. Scissors are great for art projects, but make sure not to run with them!
2. Charlotte's Web is a phenomenal read, according to Ben Mulligan.
3. Ella Maffi practices her math facts with vibrant note cards.
4. Ms. Bruntz shows Nathan Nakaji what to do on the laptops in 1st grade.
5. Mr. Fielder's 4th grade class is a very focused and hard-working group.
6. Green is clearly the new black.

11. Matthew Linhart and Jaden Grossman take in the fresh air while doing math work in the Lower School Courtyard.

Art

1. Young artists at work, doin' their thang.
2. I wish I could play with some pipecleaners right now! Don't be surprised if Alarah Hochman's sculptures end up at the Met!
3. Asa Silverman is having a party with some blocks. He is on the road to engineering fame.
4. Some lovely, future Warhols in the making!
5. Looking fierce, ladies! Work that artwork.

Music

6. Whatever happened to musical chairs?
7. Dr. Giallella is really holding that class's attention. They look so interested! It must be the class after lunch.
8. It's sing-a-long time in music class! Sing it with me now!
9. Dr. Giallella is dancing like an Egyptian!
10. Square-dancing is a throwback to the western roots of Arizona.
11. These students are practicing a skill that they'll cherish forever. Kind of like cursive!

8. Ella Maffi and company happily pause during their visit to show the camera what a joyous day they are having.

Garden

After graduating from kinger-garden last year, these first graders took their "gardening" skills to a new level this year. They built and maintained their own garden with fruits, vegetables, and flowers. Hard work, gentle care, and a whole lot of watering led to a beautiful garden that the first graders and the rest of the lower school got to enjoy while at recess. They also appreciate the variety of tastes from their harvest.

1. Taylor Money and Sam Novak show off their J. Crew-esque modeling looks during a hangout.
2. Garron Rodgers, Matteo Armato, and India Grasso show that no matter your height, a smile's still big.
3. Trevor Kent and Melissa Greenberg pose with youngster Aarush Atmakuri and his favorite book during story time.
4. Rylie Lloyds is awestruck to be in the presence of Justin Bieber, but it's actually Scott Minard.
5. Katharine Currault and Quincy Rodin dissect the novel Gone With the Wind in the Upper School library.
6. Justin Corsillo, his tie-dye hat, Stephen Yuan, and Jaxson Bulloch keep warm in sweatshirts while sharing a sweet bonding moment.

Kindergarten Buddies

Middle School

We often speak of there being no PCDS "box" or "type" that our Middle School students have to fit into. We highly value and encourage difference in all that we do and who we are, in each of our students. "Be yourself and do your individual best" is the message sent to our students in the Middle School. The result is a community rich in independent thinking; unique, young people prepared for the next step in their education and their lives.

As the class of 2017 moves on to the next level of their education, we know they will continue this trek toward being the thoughtful and discerning individuals we have nurtured through their Middle School years.

Teachers' Farewell Messages

Congratulations to the fantastically talented, awesome, smart, good looking, funny, creative and original class of 2013! I'll never forget you! I hope you all keep in touch with me on Facebook and best of luck on all your future adventures. Love to you all!
- Ms. Marti de Anguera

Congratulations, Seniors!
You were a great class in fifth grade. You were creative, friendly, and always too chatty. We had a great trip to "Astrocamp" even though it was hard to get you to sleep at night, girls. I hope I have convinced you that "Books Can Open Doors" and to stop and ponder once in a while "Who Am I?" Be the best you can be and enjoy life's adventures.
- Mrs. Bippus:

You guys rocked fifth grade and have continued to do so. You were a class of mine that I will always remember. You had and have such personality and creativity. We had a blast at Astro Camp, lived through all the Lost at Sea papers, met Preppy the Prepositional Squirrel, crafted an imaginative Shadow Radio Play, and survived and thrived through the Magazine Project!!!!! As you head off to college, please remember my door is always open to you. Bring coffee though!
- Mr. E

Congratulations to the Class of 2013! I have so many fond memories of your 8th grade year, such as my talks with my wonderful advisees, India, Mariclare, Garron, Natasha, Colton and Zack; our fantastic trip to Catalina; Garron's wonderful Halloween costume that freaked me out with his head in a glass bubble; and Colton's 50's presentation as Elvis. Have a wonderful time in college and please come back and visit!
- Ms. Marks

Fall of your 6th grade year: I remember sitting in a parking lot in Blythe, California, waiting for a second bus to arrive. We ate, we had a dance-off, we waited, we ate more, we sat in Jack in the Box. Finally, the second half of the class appeared, climbing off the bus through a tunnel of classmates cheering and clapping. I like to remember your class at just that moment, welcoming each other back to the fold. Know that whenever you return to PCDS, there may not be a tunnel of us there to meet you, but we will welcome you back into the fold just the same, cheering and applauding your accomplishments. Congratulations and good luck!
- Ms. Olson

Mr. Cook

The Eighth Grade Dedicates this Page to Mr. Cook

"He has a cool goatee and is a weird teacher."
-Georgi Pregulman

"I like Mr. Cook because he's funny and he's really cool. He's not really an adult—he's like a child in an adult suit."
-Ally Thoits

The senior class would also like to take this oppertunity to thank you for your ever-present good humor, your genuine concern for your students and for a fashion sense that is clearly tie-mless. We feel truly fortunate to have had the opportunity to be taught by a teacher who showed us how vast the world truly is, but also gave us the insight into how traveling to other lands brings us all together. We will always benefit from your tremendous dedication to your profession and from the kind and generous way in which you have shared your life experiences with us. Thanks to you, we see the world not only through our mind's eye, but with our hearts as well.
- The Class of 2013

Life

1. Justin Racine doesn't let anyone score in his house, even during recess.
2. Ty Minor, Blake Brennan, Jakob Feng, and Malik Freeny share a moment with the camera even though Gage Bradford is too busy as he detects the sweet smell of learning in the PCDS air.
3. Adam Cherilla prepares to ascend the tether ball pole, embodying the same mountain-mastering energy of his father.
4. Zach Sarver kills two birds with one stone by waving to the camera and shading his face from the sun.
5. Fallon Flaherty, Tatum Dial, Ali Garvin, and Shannon Zhao have some fun in the Middle School quad.

6. Cody Kiltz, Andrew Hanneman, and Natalie Massimi display their snapbacks and swagger!
7. Are these PCDS sixth graders or the Los Angeles Lakers?
8. Aspen Pierson, Sophie Sells, and Meredith Grehan share mutual excitement for Ally Grounds's fashionable sleeve.
9. Lauren Garvin, Shannon Zhao, and Hannah Miraglia are filled with excitement that it's scarf-weather.
10. Meredith Grehan, Kobe Walker, and Emilie Canulla are at a loss for words when the Yearbook Paparazzi show up.
11. Michael Rosenthal plays so hard that vans and board shorts can't stop his skills.

Academics

1. Emma Sheridan inputs the quadratic formula into her TI-84.
2. Ms. Sterling está hablando a la clase (is talking to the class).
3. Graham Meyer and Zach Linhart begin their experiment on a chicken wing.
4. Sammy Dady fills out a study guide with ease.
5. Meredith Grehan contemplates the beneficial qualities of the fire extinguisher located next to her.

6. Brent Stein takes perfect notes in his perfect notebook with his perfect pencil in a perfect school.

7. Tyler Lodato reads "Roll of Thunder Hear My Cry" with great focus.

8. Sophia Sells and Daniel Blecker are intrigued by Ms. Mark's recount of her travels in Europe.

9. Matthew Stein knows geometry like the back of his hand!

10. Hannah Miraglia poses for the camera in her pretty pink shirt.

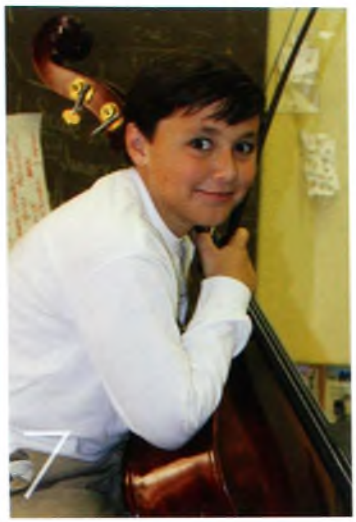
11. Studying is fun, complete with music and games in Mrs. Bernhardt's class!

12. 7th graders learn how to calculate the location of an earthquake's epicenter with Mr. Cook.

Art

1. Ariana Bista knows that an artist needs publicity to sell their work so she pauses working and poses for the camera.
2. Young artists use colored pencils to show off their love for fashion design.
3. Tay Barron makes sure her water-to-color ratio is correct before she begins creating her masterpiece.
4. Isabelle Partovi recreates a beautiful orange flower on her watercolor paper that will surely impresses Ms. Gaumer.
5. Ms. Gaumer helps Jared Novoa navigate the internet for some inspiration.

Music



6. Jakob Feng reads his sheet music and plays his instrument perfectly in class surrounded by other musical geniuses.

7. Michael Slate is very protective of his favorite instrument: the base.

8. Gray Pierson and Nikasha Patel warm up before band practice.

9. Ava Rossides makes sweet music with her cello as Ms. Fleming helps another student.

10. The tuba is an important piece of the band and only Mr. Steiner could handle such a big responsibility.

11. Hannah Miraglie can't wait to play the brand new music Ms. Fleming gave her to learn for the upcoming concert.

12. Alex Tam reads his music very quickly and impresses his friends and Ms. Fleming.

Fashion

7

6

1. That yellow really complements the brass section! It brings out their talent.
2. Malik Freeney is really excited. With a style like that, who wouldn't be?
3. Nike shoes rule the court. Don't you dare step on it without them.
4. Audrey Novoa got the pink memo! Whoever first mixed red with white sure knew what they were doing!
5. Bold patterns, bold attitudes.

12

6. These boys aren't taking any fashion risks—neutral grey, all the way!

7. Why so blue, Tommy Walton?

8. Jeans and Uggs—what else would you wear on a cold day?

9. Looks like they just walked off the runways of Paris. Or maybe New York.

10. Gabrielle Lee is a fan of the boldly printed scarf. We are, too!

11. Ms. McKean has more style than all of her students combined.

12. Emile Canulla + color blocking = fashion magic

13. BIG. BOLD. LETTERING.

14. Is that a male model? Because this middle schooler knows how to impress a crowd.

Electives

1. Caroline Wittekind surveys the robotic elective for a good yearbook picture.
2. The kids aren't afraid of getting messy in the baking elective!
3. Addison Wessel works his nimble fingers in the knitting elective.
4. Georgi Pregulman admires her beautiful snapshot in yearbook elective.
5. Lauren Kobley learns to master her gaming skills with Mr. Erikson.
6. Gonzalo Alvarado carefully crafts his airplane for flight.
7. You can feel the energy in the air during this game of Capture the Flag.
8. Ally Grounds has a good time putting the pieces together in model building.

9. Lilly Giller and Spencer Wand are too busy studying to spare a moment with our dedicated photo staff.

10. The Walk and Talk elective gets off to a good start.

11. Julia Odden and Mrs. Scott put all their love into their baked goods!

12. Annalise Bracher and Ben Steiner listen intently to Mr. Tomer in their elective.

13. Chris Mantooth cuts crazy cardboard carefully.

14. Mr. Cook throws an underhand pitch in his elective.

Play

What a show! Miracle in Mudville was a wonderful production held by the middle school students of Phoenix Country Day. This play portrayed the lives of two simple youngsters in the town of Mudville; an average town, with average people, and an average environment. After a re-occurrence of a deceased librarian, they twist time to go back and see their parents as kids where they discover the truth behind all of their parents' stories. I would describe this play as simple yet complete. Not many props were used, and the stage set was just sufficient to complete the play and to set the scene. The amazing actors, who set a picture in our minds of the average town, also show the kind of people that lived there. It was by far the best middle school production I have ever seen, these actors clearly practiced a lot and dedicated a chunk of their free time into memorizing their lines and learning how to move about the stage. There wasn't a single slip-up and they obviously knew what they were doing and how to run the show. I was honestly amazed by this production and it made me hungry for more of the play once I learned it was over. I would definitely go see this play again, and I hope these students put on another production. Hands down 2 thumbs up!

Written by Pejmon Noghrehchi

On a scale of "Strike Out" to "Grand Slam", I would give A Miracle In Mudville a "Home Run". The actors emitted an aura of happiness and the unmistakable energy of a PCDS student. Each actor commits to his or her role, and makes the play a huge success, enjoyable by any generation from student to grandparent. Ashcon Partovi, who plays the character of Casey Banks, does a phenomenal job of portraying the struggles of a child attempting to live up to his parents' expectations. Along this journey he finds out that his father, played by Luca Walsh, has reasons for being the way he is. Towards the end of the play, Casey has an epiphany that, in fact, he wants nothing more than to be like his father. Ashley Ong, who plays Esable, does a magnificent job of using exaggerated motions to add a certain amount of excitement to her character. Director Andrea Decker does a fantastic job of fielding a delightful roster of players, and coaching them round the bases. So go grab your peanuts and ball caps, and sit down on the bench to watch this wonderful play unfold...it's a smash hit!

Track & Field

1. Emma Strouse leaps beyond her wildest dreams in the long jump.
2. Bryton Neck loses in "Rock, Paper, Scissors" to world-famous Ryan Goodman in this first ever competition at Track & Field Day.
3. Jerry Hernandez glides easily over the bar and impresses Mrs. Huskey.
4. Michael Richman uses his Hercules-like muscles to shot-put and win points for his country.
5. Sweden has a flag, some hats, and lots of spirit which they hope will help them win!
6. Ari Sokolov does her best Lolo Jones impression but Lauren Garvin is quickly gaining on her.
7. Usain Bolt rounds the corner but is not even in the picture because these Middle Schoolers are too speedy.
8. The first annual indoor relay race was a huge success and Marc Fuller had the time of his life.
9. Zach Sarver had a healthy serving of "hops" for breakfast and long jumps like a champ.
10. Chaya Feng winds up her javelin throw.

Food Bank

1. Mira Marwah and Sofia Kirkland set up boxes so their classmates can fill them with food.
2. Rose Larkin, Maya Abou-Haidar, Carter Clemmensen, Carina Ho, and Ryan Goodman "can" do it!
3. Ms. McKean and DJ Hauben team up to fight hunger.
4. St. Mary's Food Bank was happy to have these seventh graders help and they were just as happy to be there.
5. Kati Dean and Jennifer Moore let the smiles unfold at the food bank.
6. Mrs. Ong and a group of girls smile with some self-encouragement.

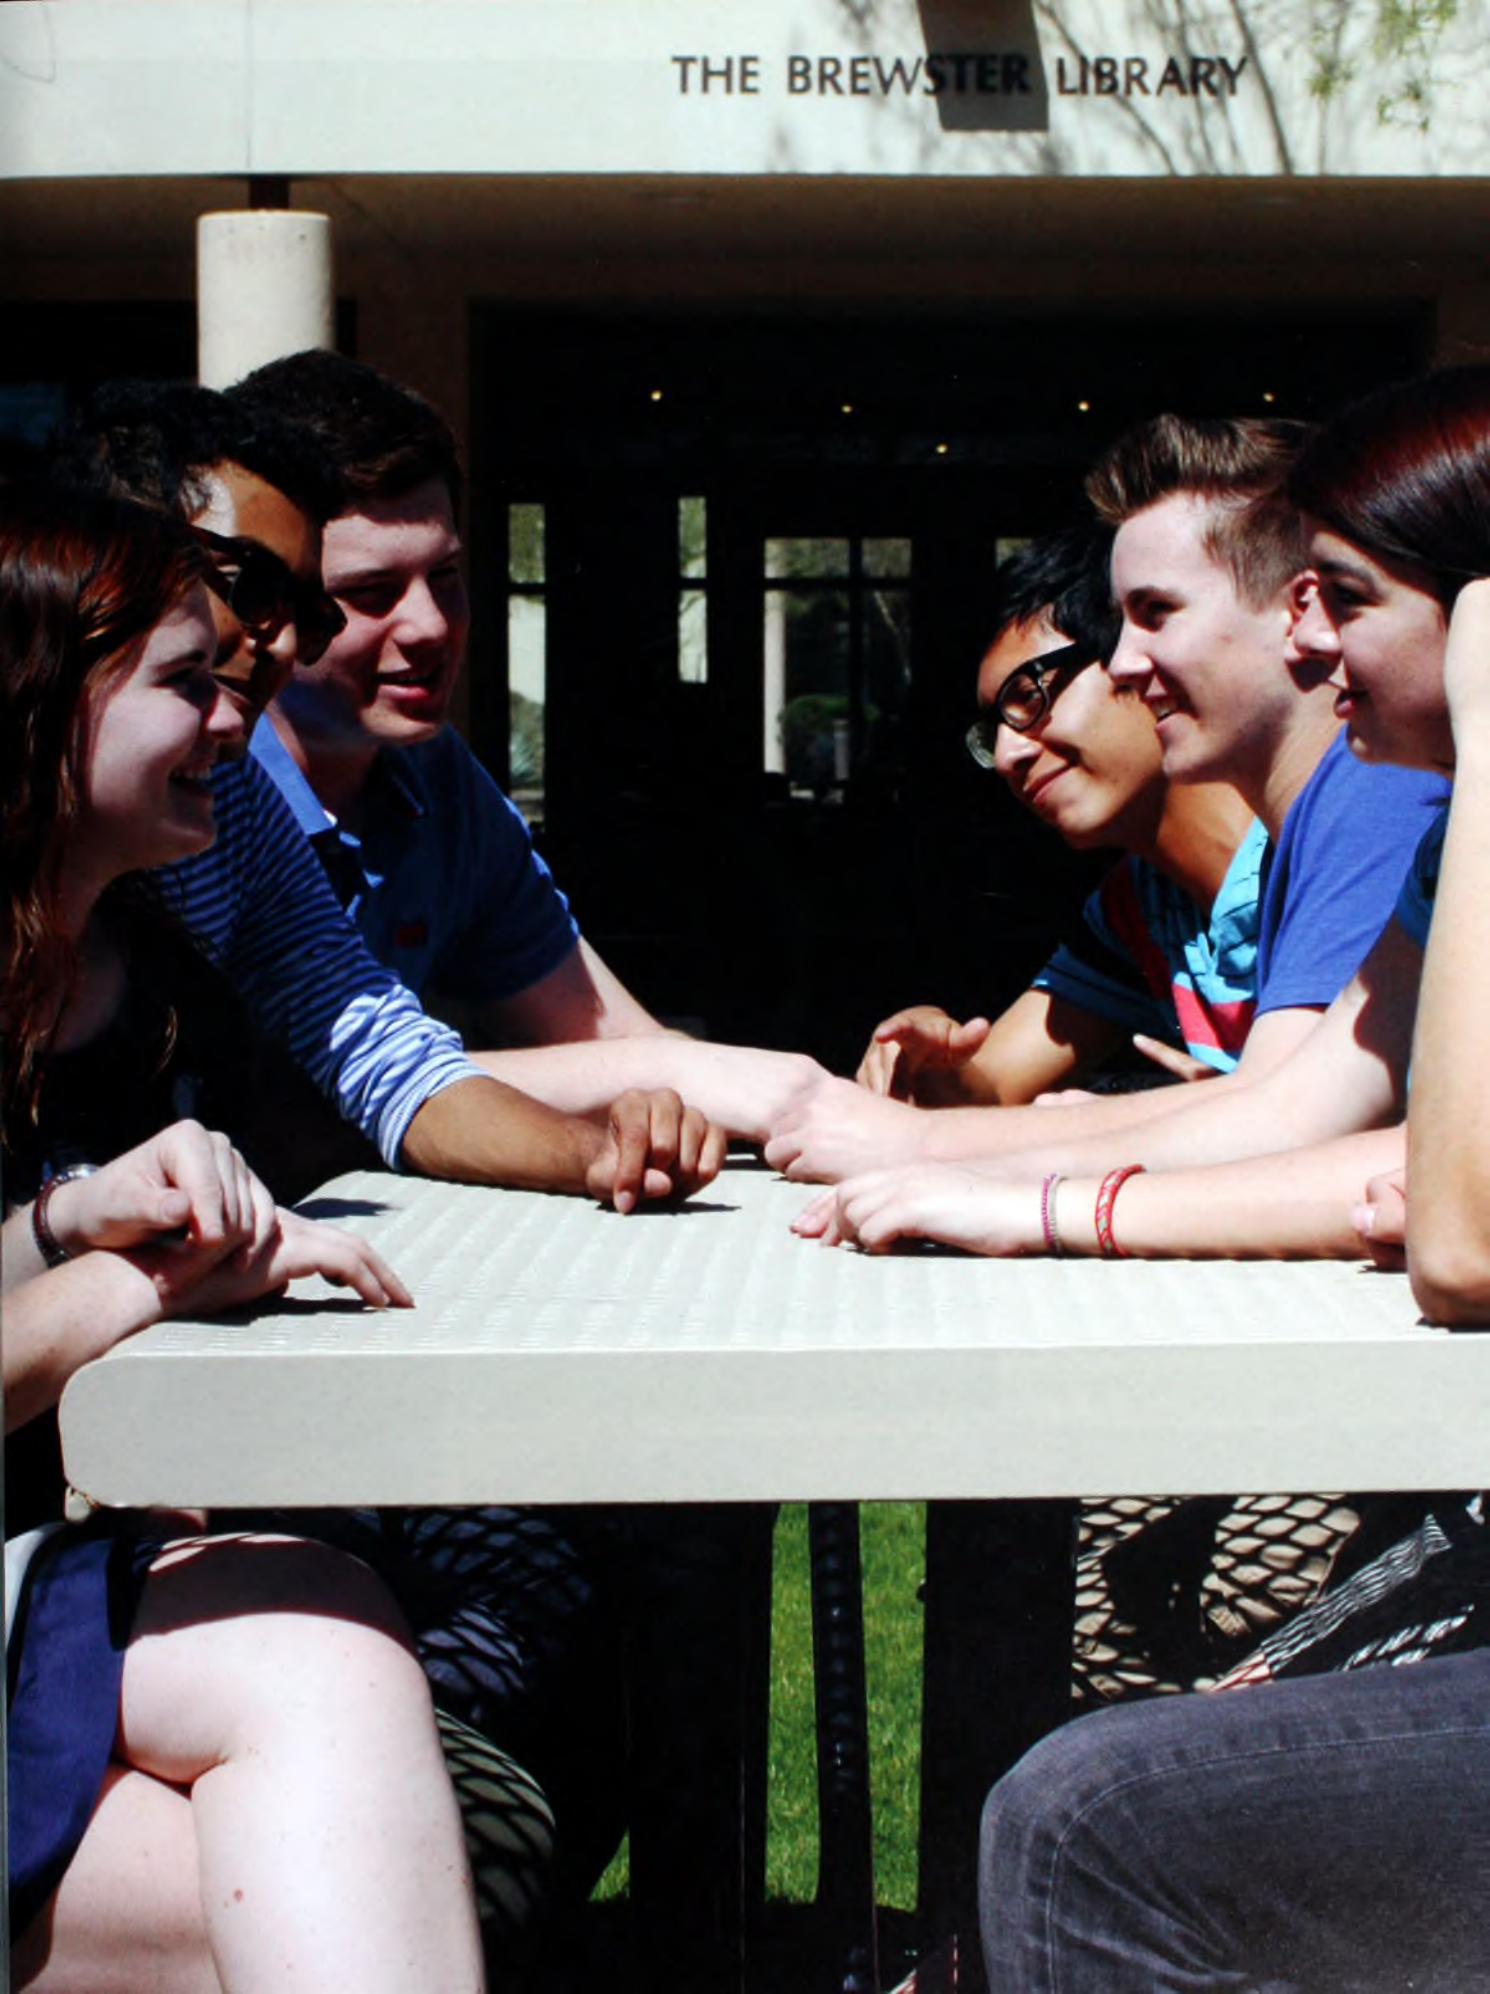
7. Mrs. Huskey and Sophia Bailey are glad to be helping out such a good cause and are definitely enjoying the holiday season and the festive gear that goes along with it.
8. Harrison Rooney wishes he were Santa Claus but settles for helping out the hungry and doing charity work.
9. Griffin Fletcher carries enough food for an entire family while his friends cheer in the background.

Upper School

As part of my job, I get the opportunity to talk about PCDS with perspective parents and students—a lot. Often the question arises, "What makes PCDS different?" Of course there a thousand easily identifiable traits that set this school apart from the rest, but I find myself coming back to a single idea: PCDS cultivates and celebrates the individual. We as a school are not trying to create a community of like-minded students with the same values, assets, or wardrobes. Instead, we see each student as having a singular voice, and our job is to give that voice clarity, strength, and confidence. In the end, I take great satisfaction that this chorus of individual voices inevitably finds a harmonious blend as students walk across the graduation stage in June.

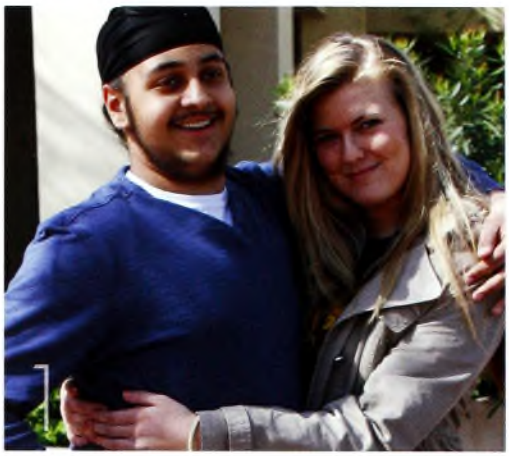
Congratulations to all and to the Class of 2013 in particular.

Mr. Phillips
Head of Upper School

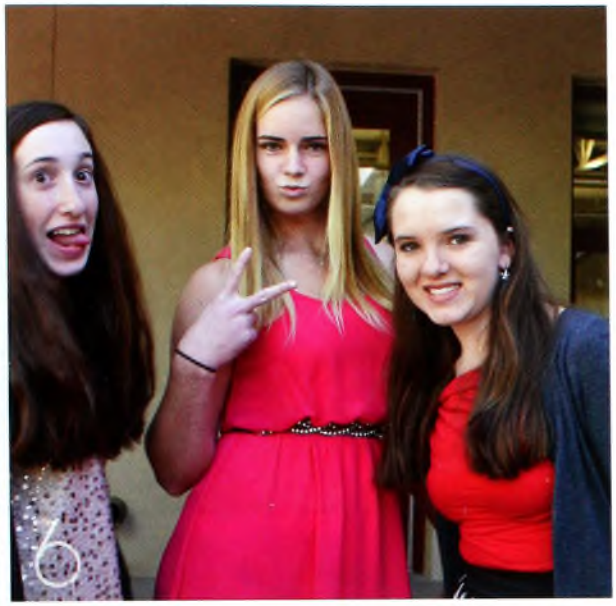


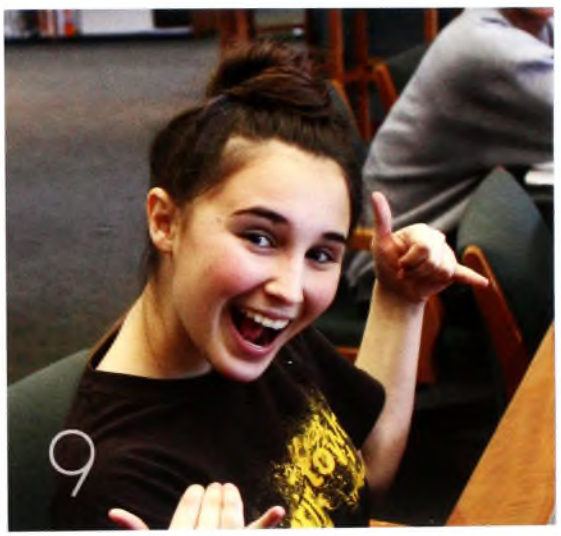
THE BREWSTER LIBRARY

Life



1. April Curci will find any moment to embrace Anhad Brar.
2. Saira Purewal enjoys the warmth of her scarf, which also leaves Jacie Wright speechless.
3. Parisa Noghrehchi, Jacob Feder, and Colton Siddle embrace their studies, while Andrew Hosmar embraces the camera.
4. Jillian Gilburne, Tara Dugel, and Alex Edson enjoy a moment in the quad while Ari Bradshaw enjoys supporting his friends.
5. Tiana Siragusa shares our appreciation for the coveted top lockers.





6. Caroline and Natalie Prieb glam for the cam as Elle Miraglia shows us her love for peace.

7. Sophie Arregoces, Natalie, and Sarah Humphrey all sit outside—where Freshmen belong.

8. Yash Muley, Matthew Rosenthal, and Sam Garvin show some bro-love, while Philip Lewis can't help but stand out with his good looks.

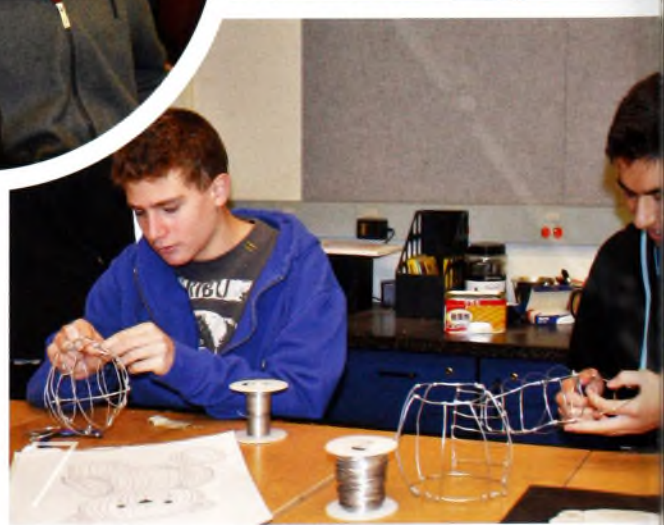
9. Melissa Greenberg invites us to "hang loose" with her and her bun.

10. Anna Bodney, Staley Lane, and Allison Winter show us their favorite sleeves.

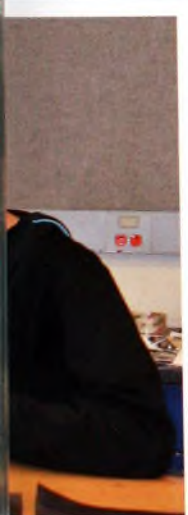
11. Iya Agha shows Erica Somota why she won "The Best Side Hug of the Year," and our photo staff was there to capture the moment.

Academics

1. Liam Rethore is mesmerized by Ms. Smith's beautiful presentation in Advanced Biology.
2. Saira Purewal and Alex Rigberg smile and pose with more work during their relaxing junior year.
3. Jesse Edwards chucks up the deuces in Hormel before Chemistry class.
4. A class of seniors is hard at work so this must be first semester.
5. Katharine Currault happily fills out college apps.



6. Dylan Hong, Nihaal Reddy, and Josh Muñoz smile in between finishing their papers for Ms. Decker.
7. Daniel Shuster and PJ Noghrehchi are hard at work under Ms. Strohacker's guidance.
8. Not even Oliver knows why he made this face but he knows the answer to Ms. Anderson's question in class.
9. Claire Martin uses flashcards to ace Dr. Allison's famous daily quizzes.



Music

1. Brass sure knows how to get a crowd into the swing of things.
2. Aashay Sanghvi hits the low note on his trombone.
3. Chelsea Wu reads her music and plays along with intense focus during her solo.
4. Phoebe Newton knows she is the best saxophone player in the world and she shows it as she jams out at the Jazz Band Concert.

5. Rae Aaron gets in touch with her nature side and paints a beautiful deer with colorful antlers.
6. Kyle Money gets deep into the dismantling of a laptop for his experimental materials art project.
7. Dominique Clancy shows her talent to the world with only a piece of paper and charcoal.
8. Mariclare Rethore pays close attention to details in her paintings.
9. Remi Edwards mixes the perfect color for the next addition to her project.

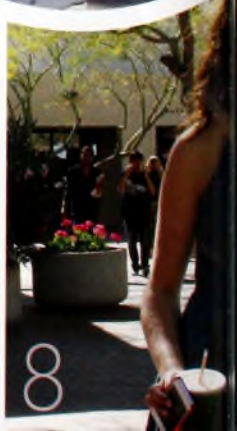
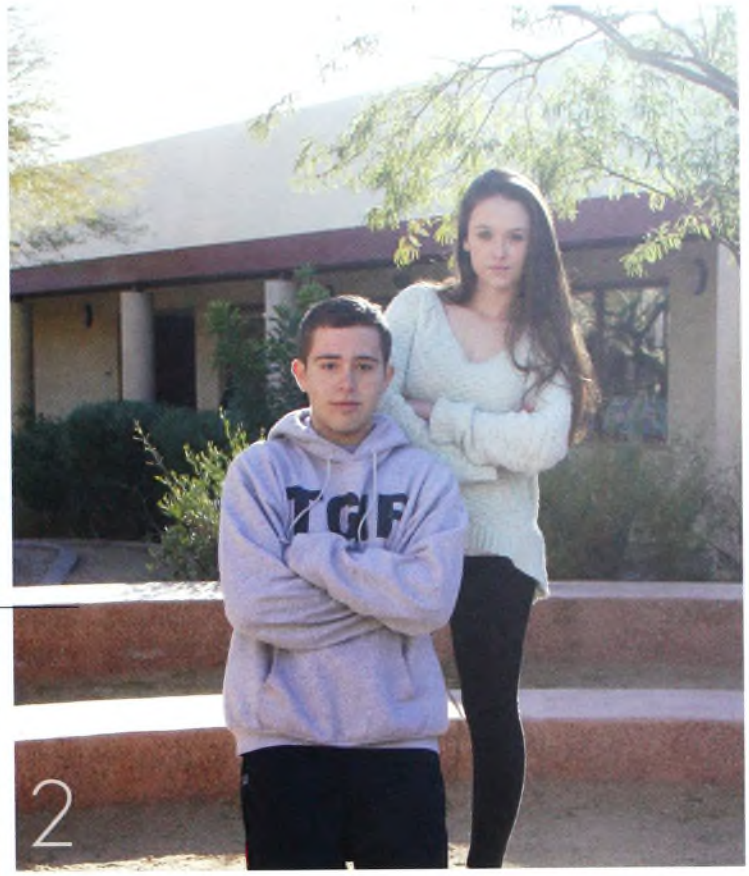
Fashion

1. Isabelle Brothers gives a cheerful look to the photographer in her spirit week attire - work that American flag girl!
2. Kyle Money and Amelia Montooth do a little modeling themselves in between taking beautiful yearbook pictures.
3. Justin Corsillo's tye-dye hat sure does look groovy, we wonder if he has a lava lamp too!
4. Olivia Pearson rocks her funky headband and big smile like its nobody's business.
5. Carson Krause knows his shirt is really mesmerizing, just like his poses.
6. Lauren Hanneman looks cozy in her blue beanie and PCDS sweatshirt. School spirit is always in style!
7. Sebastian Olea loves the spot light but he needs some Oakley shades because the hot Arizona sun is getting to him.





8. Emma Pappas always sports the hottest fashions from New York and Paris.
9. Lauren Hanneman and Taylor Shannon love their oversized bags and sunglasses ready to go off campus for some stylish Raising Canes.
10. Chris Puglisi's hats are one of a kind but that turtleneck sweater really tops off the fashionable ensemble and cements him as one of PCDS's best-dressed seniors.

Class of 2013

I am so proud of the way you have "done" school. Your hearts are full, your talent is undeniable, and your futures are wide open. Know that you are always welcome to return and use PCDS as your touchstone...it will help remind you are about who you were, where you came from and where you can go!

- Ms. Treadway

My first PCDS chapter is closing. Most of you were in 8th grade when I arrived. My first introduction - chaperoning Catalina and the LAX officer that returned Breana's purse. Then high school decisions - some eleventh hour, ahem, Sylvester. The rest of you applied for 9th grade. We met over awkward shadow days. We survived freshman trip - even road rash from running, rather sliding, to help Stenson. You're the class I know best. I've watched you gain confidence, kindness and more. My wish for you - follow your dreams, keep learning and growing and live a life to be proud of. My wish for me - to hear about everything that happens beyond our quad.

- Ms. Neal

Mr. Guthrie:

The Road goes ever on and on
Down from the door where it began.
Now far ahead the Road has gone,
And I must follow, if I can,
Pursuing it with eager feet,
Until it joins some larger way
Where many paths and errands meet.
And whither then? I cannot say
-JRR Tolkien

My favorite student activities (in no particular order) have always been jazz, drama, and sports, and the class of 2013 has given us all many memorable moments as leaders in all these venues. I thank you for the pleasure of watching you all display your particular talents.

- Colonel Coon

I will remember the class of 2013 for many things, but what stands out is the creativity that flowed through its collective veins, whether designing amazing Halloween costumes, writing heart-wrenching poetry, drawing profoundly inspiring art works, dazzling the community on the stage, or soloing in the smoky Jazz Cafe.

- Mr. Martin:

1. Selena Jacquez and Kaddie Stephens laugh because they get off-campus food and underclassmen don't.
2. Lauren Hanneman and Taylor Shannon balance sunglasses precariously on their heads.
3. India Grasso smiles with Dalia Grado who is proud to be part of the varsity basketball team.
4. Alex Sylvester points to the camera after his long-awaited senior speech.
5. Maddie Stern and Mariclare Rethore smile at the picnic table knowing they have gotten into college and their classmates must still await their letters.
6. Zach Wright is finally spotted smiling; the presence of Tulane-recruit Brandon Purcell must be making him giddy.
7. Maddie Stern, the camo pants, and Justin Corsillo reminisce of gross food they ate before they got off-campus privileges.
8. The sun is shining on Emma Pappas and April Curci, but have no fear, they have fashionable sunglasses to help!
9. Colton Siddle, Walker Tuton, Emily Schron, Claire Rose, Kate Pokorski, and former sophomore history teacher Cort Alcott smile for a photo.
10. Taylor Money eats a sandwich peacefully.

3. Alex Sylvester and April Curci crouch with Michaela before the annual First Friday celebration.
4. Old Man Edgar needs a cane to get around after receiving his senior gift after the game.
5. Claire Rose and Walker Tuton take a fast ninja second to smile for the camera before devouring their delicious LGO sushi.
6. Jacob Feder or James Bond? The world will never know.
7. Helen Dailey and Taylor Shannon spend some quality time with their favorite Kindergartener.
8. Arielle Lee and Jamie Bryan laugh at the peasant taking a photograph of these swimming superstars.
9. Selena Jacquez and Kassidy Tse love the time they spend with their Kindergarten buddy.
10. Adam and his senior buddy, Derek Chan, differ in style but both enjoy the entrance to the gym with similar vigor.
11. BEWARE: Only seniors are allowed to sit at the picnic tables in the quad.

9. Alex Sylvester and Colton Siddle have fun monkeying around.
10. The Lifers enjoy one final story with their favorite librarian, Mrs. Mac.

Time Warps

Nitya Agrawal entered a shock-induced coma shortly after discovering what the real world is like. Although she is still naturally awkward and frequently responds with the answer "...what?" after every question, she has proven to be successful as India's ambassador and is happily living with her husband, who is a famous Bollywood actor with two thumbs on one hand. Update: She is still legit-ya.

Gian-Reto Bonadurer moved back to Switzerland where he became a fashion designer for a new type of pants. "Dino-legs" are baggy to the knee and then tight to the ankles, creating a sensation of tiny legs, often worn by Gian during his teenage-years.

Jaimie Bryan has trouble keeping her head up these days due to her neck being weighed down by her 13 gold medals from the 2020, 2024, and 2028 Olympic Games. She has settled down, married a merman, and now teaches water aerobics in Sun City, AZ.

Megan Cathey has turned her love for cats and nail polish into a new trend—cat nail-polish! The line entitled "Purrfect Paws" gives kittens a chance to express themselves in their own ways and to coordinate with their cute sweaters.

Derek Chan became the Sunday-comics writer for the New York Times with his two characters "Herek & Delen," a series following the relationship of two high-school best friends getting into trouble.

Hannah Cianci changed her name to Hannuh to fit in with the European culture she is now surrounded by. She drives an Aston Martin Vantage and in her spare time, she's a world renowned stylist but still continues to own and run the biggest PR Fashion Label in Los Angeles.

Dominique Clancy is world-renowned for her new design looks—shirts that look like pants and pants that look like shirts. The new line is taking off in Siberia and New Zealand, coincidentally where Dominique splits her time. She has two Chihuahuas named Cycy and Nini.

Jessica Cohen married Scott Minard and that's it. She is now a world class chicken breeder who goes by the name Jess CoHen. She and Scott have 12 children, 24 cats, 36 grandchildren, and 48 happy years of marriage. She also dyed her hair a bronze-auburn.

Jordan Cohen is a successful doctor and lives with his beautiful wife. Mr. Cohen immediately made an impact at college, heading the Duke Leadership Committee, the Spirit Club of Duke, and the Duke University Movement for the Advancement of Duke Students. He currently lives with his wife (Duke University '18) and his two children, both of whom plan on attending Duke.

Melanie Cohen is the world's best lifeguard who works on the Santa Monica pier. When she is not busy teaching at UCLA on the art of score keeping, Melanie runs a rabbit-breeding business in Calabasas with her husband Zac Efron.

Justin Corsillo was a platinum rap artist for many years until he decided to cut his career short to pursue his love of hair dye and tie-dye clothing. He has a line of hair salons—specializing in tie-dye hair—in every major city.

April Curci is now in the Guinness Book of World Records as the only living human who has broken every bone in his or her body three times. She also gives out free ice cream from her vintage Astrovan all over the United States to children with broken bones and broken hearts.

Katharine Currault opened up a bakery in Georgetown, the same city where she attended business school, after graduating college in only three years. She married a businessman and had two kids, Kit & Kat.

Helen Dailey is a very successful paleontologist and is happily married to Benedict Cumberbatch. They live on their own private island where Helen has successfully brought back to life not only dinosaurs but also dragons whom she raises as her own babies in an attempt to persuade them all to convert to only eating pasta, like she does.

Whitney Fahnbulleh moved to San Francisco where she opened a store specializing in wigs and Japanese food called "There's Hair In My Rice." Her store recently won a 5-star rating from Zagat. She married long-time lover Jack Frost and is nowhere to be found. She is in the process of buying a mango and passion fruit plantation on the beaches of paradise.

Jacob Feder channeled his love for robotics and tennis into a robo-tennis-instructor named Better Than Feder. He also cured five forms of cancer before graduating medical school and lives in Hawaii with his three kids: Fault, Serve, and JR.

John P. Fernandes did not go on to become the President of the United States, but did become regional manager of Johnny Rockets and renamed it John's Rockets. He also joined a world class double dutch team that has gone on to claim five consecutive world titles.

Dalia Grado became an anger-management consultant for athletes and teaches them to channel their anger into Flamenco dancing, her second passion. She also coaches high-school girls basketball where her daughter is the All-State center currently being recruited to UConn.

India Grasso is the reigning America's Next Top Model: Petite Edition, which was coincidentally sponsored by Häagen-Dazs. She is also the face of Covergirl: Fun Size and hosts Extra! On NBC with Mario Lopez. India Grasso became an ultra sound technician until she met a very attractive male who took care of everything. With her new spare time she has become a world-known model.

Melissa Greenberg married a nice 4 foot 8 Jewish boy that she met at a hospital during her 6th year of college. They had two kids, and just opened a restaurant called Jew Chew which proudly sports a Jewish-friendly menu.

Lauren Hanneman managed to single-handedly become editor-in-chief of both Vogue and In the Zone, bypass Lana del Ray's Tumblr fame, and create a family with the once-famous Louis Tomlinson. They live in the boroughs of London with their three children and five wiener dogs.

Alex Hosmar runs a school in Peru where he also teaches a class on organization and campaigns for the Peruvian Republicans in his spare time. He settled down with a woman named La'Skreechia.

After successfully navigating his way through business school, Tyler Humphrey is a famous hair-stylist thanks to his now-patented style: "The Flow". His days consist of working in a hair salon perfecting "The Flow" on his customers and his 6 kids: Sam, Pam, Cam, Tam, Ma'am and Precious.

Selena Jacquez lived with Claire Myers for a solid three years before the "beep-beep-beep-beep-beep-beep!" got to her and she was forced to move into her longtime boyfriend Ryan Reynolds's ocean-side mansion at the last minute. She now stars in the 2025 revival of That's So Raven and spends some days grading US History APs, since she has so much experience with the course.

Trevor Kent now goes by the name Luke and was the first member of the all-male Packer's cheerleading squad. He and longtime friend Ms. Andersen Skype frequently reading and talking about The Aeniad.

Arielle Lee topped the pop charts with her single "Just Believe" featuring the one-and-only Justin Bieber. Her modeling career took off, and she is often referred to as a paler version of Tyra Banks.

Ali Loretta started a new trend where she dyes a strip of her purple hair back to brown, the opposite of what she used to do in high school. She also met her husband James Franco while studying at NYU and they now live in a private villa in Tuscany.

Scott Minard works for National Geographic as a photographer whose primary subject is pregnant mammals. In the off season, he resorts to photographing deodorant models from afar with his telephoto zoom lens. He also started a business that delivers food to wealthy private-school freshman in need of fast food.

Taylor Money is the world's first Rabbi with a Jew-fro. He invented a computer program in college and dropped out after selling it for 6 billion dollars. He currently lives in Scarsdale, NY, with his wife and two kids Louie and Louis. He coaches Middle School Dodge ball at PS 67.

After being awarded the prestigious Navy Cross, Jackson Murphy is now the Chief Scout Executive of The Boy Scouts of America and spends his weekends camping and teaching survival skills to the scouts. In the scouting world, he has gained the same reputation as Chuck Norris and he is skilled enough to start a fire with only 3 inches of dental floss and an a grape.

Jazmin Nido became the lavish CEO of a Korean-based MMORPG corporation that produces numerous role-playing games, many of which have received the Player's Choice Awards. She now spends her time in Korea relaxing and is frequently courted by many male Korean models who dance Cumbia to impress her.

Leila Noghrehchi now goes by Leila Noh, because after being underwater for too long during the 2016 Rio Olympics, she forgot how to spell her last name. She also created a new comb that straightens your hair as you comb through it.

Edgar Ocampo and Snooki joined forces to create the Snoodgar Poof, currently being used by many models on the runway and soccer players to head the ball with better control.

After Ryan Seacrest checked himself into rehab for severe celebrity obsession disorder, Emma Pappas took over at E! News as head broadcaster and producer. She currently resides in LA with her rock-star husband Joe Jonas while also having a summer home in the countryside of England where she brushes up on her cricket.

Olivia Pearson took her creative mind to a new level when she merged with a technology fashion company and now sells dresses that pick up brain signals and broadcast messages on your dress that shows your true opinions. "Oh No She Didn't!" is now Macy's best selling fashion line to date.

Kate Pokorski moved to Hollywood after college to follow her dreams of becoming Kristen Wiig. She currently co-hosts a daytime comedy sketch program called "My Life Is A Dance!"

Chris Puglisi made a name for himself on Broadway but then decided to take his life in a different direction by running for President of the United States. After his inauguration, Chris renamed the country Puglisia and annexed all of Southeast Asia.

Brandon Purcell finally got his chance at Tulane after the other two kickers mysteriously disappeared. He now plays professional football for the newly relocated Scarsdale Giants while still finding time to not wash his Hummer.

Mariclare Rethore owns a sushi restaurant with her Japanese chef husband Hirihoko called "Extra Ginger, Please!" in the Montana State Penitentiary. She has two kids, Hiriclare and Marihoko.

Breana Roberts took her love of cats to a new level when she adopted a lion from the grasslands of Kenya. She and the lion brush each other's hair and decided to get the same hair color—fiery red.

After failing to become a big time golfer, Henry Roden decided to run for Senator of Arizona and Florida simultaneously. He has gained the support of retired people in both states due to his stance on free applesauce.

Garron Rodgers is head of Imagineering at Disney Moon, the first extraterrestrial amusement park. He has also designed an oven for use in space that bakes only Rodgers's Cookies.

While studying astronomy at the University of Arizona, Patrick Rody was given the opportunity to be the first man to land on mars. He has since completed that accomplishment and refuses to come back down to his home planet. Bribery attempts have been made, but to date all have failed.

Philip Rody is a successful ichthyologist who has recently found a woman who shares the same passion for fish and aquatic plants as he does, bringing his quest in life to a happy ending. He has even opened up an Indian fast food chain on the side in order to support his obsession with Mango Lassi.

Claire Rose graduated and moved to Denver, Colorado, because she loves the high altitude. She trains chill dogs and teaches them how to ski and snowboard on the double black diamond runs.

Natascha Schippel became a famous child psychologist who dealt with bratty kids who actually thought they were in charge of their parents. She also invented a contraption that smashes 4 starbursts into one, which is the new pop culture trend.

Emily Schron grew three feet after high school and was an All-Star in the WNBA for 14 seasons. She retired to Jamaica where she continues to pursue her love of fashion and is in the midst of designing her first line called "It's Schron, Mon."

Taylor Shannon published a book about her diet called The Fast Food Lifestyle. It has helped millions of starving children nourish their bodies back to health.

Pauline Shongov is a famous artist who settled peacefully in a European city, where she regularly stands with her easel on the cobblestone streets, wearing a beret. She smiles as she creates her beautiful pieces of art and her beau, Matthew MacFadyen, comes to greet her.

In a technological breakthrough, Colton Siddle merged his Mustang and his plane into one vehicle. He now drives and flies in the same vehicle while traveling between Arizona and his man-cave (beard mandatory) in Montana.

Angelica Sisson continues to study Latin every day of her life, though she was slightly disappointed when her hip-hop/traditional Greek dance fitness classes didn't take off the way she wanted.

Kaddie Stephens and husband Harry Styles created a new line of hair ties made out of genuine horse hair, redefining the word 'pony tail.' A decade ago, she traveled to the land of the Houyhnhnms and, despite the desperate pleas of Harry over the past years, she refuses to come back to the human world.

Maddie Stern is busy performing the iconic role of the Phantom in The Phantom of the Opera. She married her understudy, Daniel Radcliffe, because she couldn't find another human with the same passion for the Phantom. In her collaboration with John Green, they both wrote The Fault in Looking for Arizona, which won a Pullitzer and a Nobel Peace Prize.

Jack Swett got injured in an off roading incident involving the Nissan Xtera Club of Chernobyl but pulled through and gives motivational speeches in his free time. His lifelong goal of being a millionaire is coming along with his new deodorant "Jack Don't Swett," slowly making its way to becoming FDA approved.

Alex Sylvester became the only player in the history of organized sports to be drafted in four separate leagues - Major League Baseball, Major League Soccer, the National Basketball Association, and (in a surprising turn of events) Major League Ping Pong. He is currently the commissioner of a new sport, Quaghofball, a fast-paced and extremely dangerous game.

Micah Travis rapped his way to the top of the iTunes charts where he fought Taylor Swift for the number one song of the year. After she lost, she wrote a critically acclaimed album by the name of "Cheater Cheater."

Kassidy Tse spends most of her days reenacting scenes from The Lord of the Rings. She, along with her personal Mr. Darcy, often spends her time in the forest talking to ants and eating lambs.

Walker Tuton enjoys spending time with her greyhounds while aboard the Greyhound public transportation service. One day she decided that blueberries would look way better red, and thus fruit-dying became a popular trend in the US.

Pallavi Wakharkar is chief editor for The Atlantic; under her control the magazine writes only in Latin and most of the articles feature the adventures of a world-class Indian volleyball player.

Kendall Woodard spends her time with her golden retriever, both living off the fortunes from her boutique "Urban Dogfitters," which specializes in the knit dog sweater and leash business.

Zach Wright dropped out of college to pursue his passion of whispering, which was cut off when Zach applied for an opening as an auctioneer. He now lurks in Las Vegas as a premier auctioneer and married show-stopper Britney Spears after she released her new hit single "Ooops I think Zach talked again!"

Steven Yuan is continuing to enjoy his time in the United States, and is constantly on the search for new "hot chicks". His innocent gang-like phrases haven't gotten him into trouble yet, but Ms. Ragsdale still fears for the worst. He is currently taking Spanish lessons and has finally figured out that "casa" is not a bad word.

Albert

1

Bringing pip-squeak to whole new level is Albert Von-Guinea Pig, or better known as "That tiny chirping noise that is distracting me during my Biology test." We all know Albert should have won the Most Changed Since Freshman Year, as he has matured into such a gentle-pig. He also would have been viable for the Most Likely to be Having a Bad Hair Day due to his unique rosette, which helped us in naming him after Albert Einstein. Through good times and bad, Albert has always been there for the PCDS students with his squeaks of love. Over the past years we've all learned to love Albert and his hankering for cilantro. We've trained him to recognize the rustling of a grocery bag as the sound of food—Pavlov would be proud to christen him as the first of "Pavlov's Guinea Pigs." According to a recent study, Albert has been named as the world's most well-fed guinea pig due to the large number of times different students decide to let him nibble on cherry tomatoes and lettuce. As a wonderful gesture of kindness in return, Albert has displayed his special acrobatic skill of pooping in his food bowl, demonstrating an astounding about of flexibility and precision. Scientists have already heralded this action as the defining factor of the next evolutionary generation of guinea pigs. How great these four years have been for PCDS and we plan to have many, many more with the pet who has surpassed all others as the real teacher's pet.

1. The rosette in Albert's hair resembles the same type of hair Scientist Albert Einstein once had, which is where our high school pet got his name.
2. Albert ponders the true meaning of life and his purpose on this planet.
3. Albert can't be bothered with photographers - he's too busy trying to decide which came first: the chicken or the egg.
4. Ho! Ho! Ho! Santa Albert's comin' to town...with cilantro!
5. Albert strikes a cute pose with his loving and caring owner, Ms. Smith.
6. Albert is used to the constant paparazzi but still loves to model in his luxurious cage.

I have many, many memories of this loving class, but I have two words that really stand out....Joshua Tree. I loved this trip, and I am probably one of only three or four people who did. So many fun and funny memories came from this week in the desert heat of California. The "long hike", bouldering, underground sea, rock climbing, sleeping under a tarp (not a tent), infinite stars, dehydration, injuries, no running water, toilets, soap...life was simple and good! You all stuck it out (no pun intended, Garron) and worked as a team. I was so proud of everyone. The goal was to learn how to leave your comfort zone, and you all did it with a sense of empowerment! Now, off you go again, new adventures, new sticking points, and new challenges to climb up and over. Good luck to each of you, leave your comfort zones and discover a life filled with passion!
- Ms. McKean

The past 4 years have flown by. It just seems like yesterday we were all at Catalina Island; I can still hear the complaints about the cold water. Eight of you helped this year's group of 8th graders through their trip. Many of you were also in my rocketry/snorkeling electives trying to blow up rockets but instead just losing them in the desert. I seem to remember a small fire or two we had to put out. A couple of you went on one of my sailing trips. They were wonderful, such fun sailing and exploring the Apostle Islands. Good luck in college.
- Mr. Crabb

Details
The theme "different by design" was chosen by the yearbook staff after a survey of the PCDS community. The cover was designed by Garron Rodgers and is printed on white linen material with a UV coating over the text. The "word mosaics" were created with Tagxedo and the water color textures were scanned and arranged in Adobe Photoshop CS6. Pages were submitted to Walsworth digitally and proofs were sent back to PCDS for corrections. 840 copies of the book were printed and made available to students, faculty, and staff.

Letter From the Editor

As four long years of yearbook draw to a close, I am left to reflect on the people, the process and the products we have produced. I have had my share of late nights, last-minute photo shoots and hundreds of hours in front of a computer screen. Even though each year begins with a familiar challenge—to create a book that the community will cherish for a lifetime, the tasks that fill the coming months are quite daunting—hundreds of pages to design.

Like many artists, I see this blank canvas as an inviting expanse—an opportunity to experiment with creativity. Designing a yearbook is a difficult task that includes bringing together the improbable qualities of creativity and timeliness. My creativity contends with rigid guidelines and a strict deadline. My creative side wants to let layout ideas come through raw inspiration, while my practical sense needs the pages done by Friday. These past four years I have learned to balance creativity with the discipline of punctuality. I hope this year's edition contains the perfect balance of art and utility: a yearbook that is beautiful, yet still fulfills its purpose of providing a snapshot of the 2012-2013 school years for generations to come.

I have worked with four different yearbook staffs. Each one has been distinctly different, with its own character and vibe. The Editor-in-Chief has to work with and within the personality of the team as a whole, keeping everyone organized and on track. Most often, it is both exasperating and exhilarating, with lifelong memories created along the way. From the spirited Emily Morazán, to the fashion-diva Shannon Manley, to the dedicated Lauren Chanen, I believe I have truly seen it all. In addition, when next August comes around, I am curious to see what my "label" as an Editor-in-Chief will be!

I would like to extend thanks to my wonderful yearbook staff. This yearbook is an expression of their dedication. I am truly thankful for the amazingly diverse collection of personalities and talents I have encountered this year. A special thanks to Kyle Money for his enthusiasm, zeal, and immense commitment. We could not have produced this yearbook without him. Next year as he takes the reins, I am confident that he will create an outstanding yearbook filled with humor and beautiful people. It has been a pleasure to go through this arduous process with all of you—a process that includes creativity, focus, humor, loss of sleep, encounters with Paradise Valley Police, take-out food and the giddiness that comes with late night deadline crunches.

As a reader of this book, I hope you enjoy and cherish the memories contained within for many years to come. Please find time to appreciate all the hard work invested in this yearbook. Each staff member brought his or her own talents and creativity to the project. The book was created by a team of unique individuals. A quote by Sam Haskins perfectly describes the feelings of any designer:

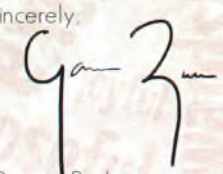
> "A photographer went to a socialite party in New York. As he entered the front door, the host said, 'I love your pictures—they're wonderful; you must have a fantastic camera.' He said nothing until dinner was finished, then: 'That was a wonderful dinner; you must have a terrific stove.'"

As it is with any creative process, it starts with the talents and gifts of individuals, with each person adding his or her own personal touch. Tools may make a job easier, but it is the artist who makes a difference.

Celebrate the artists you encounter in your life. If you do, I believe two lives will be enriched.

With these last words, my journey here at Phoenix Country Day School comes to a close. I would like to thank the school and the entire PCDS community for making the last 14 years absolutely amazing. As I now must say my official "goodbye," I do so with the hope that our friendships will last our whole lives through. Thank you.

Sincerely,



Garron Rodgers
Editor-in-Chief
