ART VIEW

FALL 2026

Dear members,

As we roll into autumn, I hope that you are enjoying the colorful foliage and cooler temperatures. There is a lot going on at the museum this season. If you haven't already, I encourage you to visit our newest special exhibition Free as they want to be: Artists Committed to Memory, an exhibition offering unique ways to think about the history of the Black American experience (learn more on page 4). We welcomed exhibition co-curator and featured artist Dr. Deborah Willis on October 22 and have scheduled numerous programs throughout the rest of the year to complement the exhibition (see the schedule on page 6).

From lectures, workshops, and special events to school tours and family programs, the museum continues to be a place for discovery and connection. I am particularly proud of the work of Athena Jones, Manager of Outreach & Access Programs, who earned the Emerging Museum Professionals award from the Southeastern Museums Conference, and Kris Bespalec, Manager of School & Family Programs, who won the gold award in Digital Education for the Hunter's America 250 Educator Guide (see page 10 for details).

We are looking forward to Spectrum 2026, the Hunter's signature two-night celebration and fundraiser (11/12 and 11/14), presented for over 25 years by First Horizon. We are grateful to this year's co-chairs, Lindsay and Jake Hill, the hard-working art selection committee chaired this year by Ashley and Daniel McCaul, and all of the sponsors who help us present Spectrum. Even if you are not able to attend Spectrum in person this year, you still can purchase art by bidding online for silent auction art or by submitting a sealed bid for live auction art. You also can contribute to the museum's paddle raise, providing critical support for the Hunter's educational programs and community initiatives throughout the year (read more about Spectrum on page 12).

Even while we are enjoying all that this fall has to offer, we are already looking ahead to an especially meaningful upcoming year for the Hunter. In 2027, we will celebrate our 75th anniversary—a milestone that not only gives us an opportunity to reflect on the museum's history but perhaps more importantly, to anticipate and plan for its future. We look forward to celebrating with you throughout the coming year.

In the meantime, please know how grateful we are for your support of the Hunter. Your membership and other financial support helps ensure that our museum remains a vibrant spot in our community for creativity, learning, and connection. We appreciate all that you do to sustain the Hunter and look forward to seeing you here soon.

THANK YOU, TODD WOMACK!

HUNTER BOARD CHAIR 2024 - 2026

Todd Womack, who just completed a two-year term as Chair of the Hunter Museum's Board of Trustees, has been connected to the Hunter for many years. In 2005, as Comunications Director for then Mayor Bob Corker, Todd had a front row seat during the City's 21st Century Waterfront development which included the addition of the museum's west wing and the construction of the Holmberg Bridge better linking Chattanooga's arts district with the rest of downtown. As the Hunter's Board Chair, Todd has worked to tie the museum with the community and has, among other initiatives, helped launch a master planning process to increase opportunities for the museum to connect more people to art.

Thank you, Todd, for your years of dedicated service to the Hunter and for your stellar leadership of the Board of Trustees over the last two years.

Free as they want to be

Artists Committed to Memory

The Hunter's newest special exhibition is Free as they want to be: Artists Committed to Memory, an exhibition of contemporary photography, video, and mixed-media work by some of the nation's most celebrated artists. The exhibition's title comes from a speech by writer James Baldwin, delivered in 1960 and later featured in his essay collection Nobody Knows My Name (1961).

Each artist in the exhibition draws on materials and memory from the past, including museum archives, familial lineages, and notable figures from American history, to address questions of private and public memory related to racism, segregation, and slavery. It also examines our relationship to place, including the land we walk on, the monuments in our public spaces, the comfort of our homes, and historical sites that shape regional identities.

We were pleased to welcome exhibition co-curator, world-renowned historical photographer, chair of the Department of Photography & Imaging at the Tisch School of the Arts at NYU, and McArthur Fellowship recipient Dr. Deborah Willis for an Art Wise talk about the exhibition and her career.

"Freedom is not something that anybody can be given; freedom is something people take, and people are as free as they want to be."

The historical reflections in the exhibition create a framework for honoring the history of the Black American experience and the ongoing fight for equality that many face, while also celebrating significant achievements in contemporary art through the voices of groundbreaking artists. By bringing the past into conversation with the present, artists such as Bisa Butler, Omar Victor Diop, Dawoud Bey, and Radcliffe Bailey offer insight into the connections between our nation's history and its future while keeping liberation at the forefront of our minds.

Free as they want to be: Artists Committed to Memory was curated by Cheryl Finley, Ph.D. and Deborah Willis, Ph.D. and originated as a FotoFocus exhibition at the National Underground Railroad Freedom Center, Cincinnati, Ohio on the occasion of the 2022 FotoFocus Biennial. The traveling exhibition is organized by Curatorial Exhibitions, Pasadena, California.

Daniel "Attaboy" Seifert, Upcycled Garden, Hunter Museum of American Art, 2026

"If you don't have fun, you fail" - Daniel "Attaboy" Seifert

Created by California artist Daniel "Attaboy" Seifert, Upcycled Garden is an installation composed of whimsical objects fashioned from discarded cardboard, wall papers and house paint. Designed specifically for the Hunter's east lounge, the project is both enchanting and thought provoking as it touches on serious themes— the debris of life, our overconsumption as a culture and the resulting impact on the environment.

Seifert first began fashioning the objects in the installation, a project that evolves each time it is installed in a new venue, during a difficult period in his life shaped by the loss of a family member, PTSD from an accident, and the stress of the Covid pandemic. Underneath the brightly painted, joyful blossoms are the cardboard boxes from Covid tests, prescriptions, and other everyday objects that form a type of daily diary.

Seifert began his career as a toy designer, an experience that continues to inform his artistic practice. In Upcycled Garden, his spirited approach invites visitors to play while encouraging reflection on what we discard, the stories those items carry, and the possibility of finding beauty and renewal in what is often overlooked.

Along with his wife, artist Annie Owens, Seifert is a co-founder of the extremely popular magazine, Hi-Fructose, focused on international contemporary art.

Upcycled Garden is organized by the Hunter Museum of American Art.

HUNTER STAFF RECOGNIZED WITH SEMC AWARDS

Hunter staff member Athena Jones was recently awarded the Emerging Museum Professional Award at the Southeastern Museums Conference (SEMC). Since joining the Hunter Museum in 2021, Athena has been an invaluable member of our team. As Manager of Outreach & Access Programs, she has developed initiatives that expand the museum's reach and create meaningful opportunities for young people. Her work includes outreach programs serving low-income youth at nine local community centers, partnerships with Title I schools, college fellowships, teen programs and volunteer opportunities, and the annual teen art exhibitions that provide students with the chance to showcase their work and compete for scholarships.

Kris Bespalec, the Hunter's Manager of School & Family Programs, also has made significant contributions to the Hunter's educational mission. Kris earned the gold award in the Digital Education category for the America 250 Educators Guide she created. A resource that helps educators connect American history with art, the guide facilitates art as a teaching tool and positions the Hunter as an educational partner for local and regional schools. The recognition celebrates Kris's work supporting teachers and inspiring students to explore our nation's history through the Hunter's collection.

Athena leading a tour of local fifth graders from the ArtsBuild Imagine! program.

Kris leading an interactive art-making activity for youth at monthly Sunday Studios.

Together, Athena and Kris exemplify the creativity, expertise, and dedication that make the Hunter's work possible. From expanding access to art across our community to developing innovative educational resources, Hunter staff are working to accomplish the museum's mission every day. We are proud of their achievements and the lasting impact they make by connecting people of all ages and backgrounds with art, learning, and new ideas.

PARTNER HIGHLIGHT: ARTSBUILD

ArtsBuild, a nonprofit dedicated to building stronger communities through the arts, invests in Chattanooga and Hamilton County's creative community by supporting arts organizations, arts education, and opportunities that connect people with the arts. As an ArtsBuild Community Arts Partner, the Hunter receives funding from ArtsBuild that helps sustain the museum's exhibitions, educational initiatives and community programming.

Additionally, through ArtsBuild's Imagine! program, which funds visits by elementary school students to local arts and cultural institutions, the Hunter each year welcomes area 5th grade students to explore museum galleries and experience original works of art, connecting classroom learning with creative discovery.

ArtsBuild's generous investment in the Hunter reflects our shared belief in the power of the arts to enrich lives, encourage creativity and bring people together. We are grateful to ArtsBuild and its donors who make this work possible, helping ensure that the arts remain an essential part of a vibrant Chattanooga community.

LOOKING AHEAD: THE HUNTER'S 75th ANNIVERSARY

In 2027, the Hunter will celebrate its 75th anniversary, marking seven and a half decades of connecting our community with the power of American art. We're packing our anniversary year with plenty of art, so be on the lookout for the below exhibitions and more!

SUPPORT THE HUNTER WITH AN ARTS PLATE

Did you know that choosing an arts specialty license plate is one of the easiest ways to support creativity across Tennessee? Each plate helps fund the Tennessee Arts Commission, which provides vital support to local art organizations—including the Hunter Museum. By simply swapping out your standard plate for an arts plate at your county clerk's office, you're not just updating your car—you're helping keep the arts thriving in our community. It's a small change that makes a big impact, and it lets you show your love for the arts everywhere you go!
