THE HOOK

Tommy Perdu, son of the head of a crime family, finds himself on a mad run across the globe after being exposed to something he shouldn't have been exposed to. His life is in danger; the police are after him. Will his strength stand up to the challenge?

SYNOPSIS

After living his entire life in the shadow of his father, his older siblings, and the "family business," Tommy Perdu finally walked away, leaving behind his family, his past, and everything and everyone who might pull him back in. On the remote Thai island of Koh Phangan, Tommy finds the closest thing to peace he has ever had: sun, sea, and the illusion of a clean break. But no one can run forever, especially if they are part of the Perdu crime family.

When men in suits start asking questions he can't ignore, Tommy realizes his past has finally caught up to him. On the run once more, Tommy has only one choice to make: stay on the move forever—or confront the secret he's been hiding all along.

Half a world away, a warehouse explosion sends a young police sergeant and her commanding officer on the hunt for two rival crime families. Their covert investigation leads them to dirty money, dead undercover agents, and a conspiracy that runs deeper than they ever imagined, whose key lies in a young man currently on the run in exotic Southeast Asia... If they can get to him in time.
