NEWSLETTER

OCTOBER 2026

EDITOR'S NOTE

Welcome to the October edition of the Cross Ocean network newsletter. Today we are happy to announce three in-person events for 2027 and in just 9 days from now Lisa and I will be at Breakbulk Asia in Singapore with a booth in the media lounge in association with our sister publication Project Cargo Weekly. We are looking forward to meeting up with all the members who will attend.

What I shared last month as shipping line contacts has now been expanded to a permanent feature on the website and the mobile app (in beta). We call it Carrier Contacts. Contacts are regularly verified as still working at the shipping line, with job title and email checked, and only verified contacts are listed. Profile photos and LinkedIn links are included where available. We also indicate which carriers have been interviewed by

Project Cargo Weekly, including links to the interviews. We continue to host online one-to-one meetings on Wednesdays. They are fully booked for the rest of the year so I share below the schedule for the beginning of 2027

UPCOMING ONLINE ONE-TO-ONE MEETINGS

What does it take to move 240 modules across 210 trips? MFC Extreme Projects recently supported a data centre project in Ajman, managing the road transportation of prefabricated modules from Jebel Ali Industrial Area to the project site in Ajman. The scope covered 240 modules, ranging considerably in size and weight. The largest units measured 16.5 metres long, 3.7 metres wide and 4.21 metres high, with a gross weight of 53 tonnes. The longest modules extended beyond 17 metres in length MFC coordinated the required road permits and transport arrangements while managing the movement of the different modules in order so the site could offload in the correct order.

When lifting isn't an option, jacking and skidding can be the solution. Behind every successful project is a team that combines careful planning, technical expertise, and the ability to adapt when conditions change. When unexpected obstacles arise, innovative thinking and practical solutions help keep the project moving forward. Were proud of Silvasti's Silvasti specialists, who help customers move critical equipment safely and efficiently.
