ABOUT EUROM

The European Observatory on Memories, based at the University of Barcelona’s Solidarity Foundation, is an international network established in 2012 dedicated to fostering dialogue on historical memory.

By building synergies between academia, institutions, cultural centers, and civil society, we aim to promote fundamental rights and values through respect for diversity.

Adding value to memory and gender perspectives through the traveling exhibition Pioneer Women of the European Union. (2023).

The projects and activities we run reflect on the history of struggles for freedom and democracy. Together with our partners, we address the complexities of historical and transnational memories, aiming to contribute to the creation of a more inclusive, tolerant, and solidaristic society.

NETWORK

Advocating for geographic plurality and social diversity, our network actively collaborates with universities, memory sites, museums, governments, and grassroots organizations to ensure that memory remains an integral part of Europe’s cultural and social fabric.

KEY INITIATIVES

Commemorations and Memorial Sites
Promoting and analyzing the role of commemorations and memorial sites in transmitting and reflecting on past struggles today.

Education and Training
Developing curriculum materials and running seminars and workshops for professionals, teachers, and students based on historical research to foster fundamental rights in the present.

Research and Debate
Supporting original research and publications that explore the memory of historical events and create spaces for discussion from a contemporary perspective.

Raising Awareness and Citizens’ Engagement
Contributing to the socialization of memory policies and encouraging citizens’ participation through conferences, exhibitions, and cultural events, raising awareness about the influence of the past on the present.
