Daniel Bohnert and Diana Schron goof off in class. 6. Sarah Kozinn, Talia Sherman, Rachel Schubert and JoAnna Hartzmark enjoy being by the river during the 7th grade trip. 7. Is Sarah Hurwitz being coy with Bryan Fastenberg?

The talented male cheerleaders prance around the gym floor in an exuberant display of school spirit.

Blue & Gold Day at PCDS is a time to show school spirit. The fun times included a volleyball game between the male captains of our various sports teams and our girl captains, an appearance of our hilarious male cheerleaders, a diving demonstration, cheers from our cheerleaders, and a scooter race in which our lower schoolers pushed our seniors across the gym floor in a desperate dash for the finish line.

Lindsay Tree is all decked out in school pride.

The Phoenix Country Day School experience is focused on developing a strong, traditional education. The adventure begins in the Lower School where students receive their foundation in the three R's: reading, writing, and arithmetic. Next, students move on to the Middle School where classes become more difficult to prepare its students for high school. In addition, music, and Latin ensure School scholars are well rounded. Finally, students arrive in the Upper School where they embark on an intensive college preparatory program. Challenging classes in six areas—English, mathematics, history, science, language, and arts—make Phoenix Country Day School graduates well prepared for any university. From pre-kindergarten through grade twelve, the primary focus of Phoenix Country Day School is academic excellence.

I'm pretty sure none of you ever thought that Music and Athletics could be on the same page. However, this year the yearbook staff decided to delve into the age old battle between music and athletics here at PCDS. Under the seemingly calm exterior of the campus there broils a fierce competition between music and athletics. But which is better, music or athletics? I this mystery and PCDS students from upper schools. One grader exclaimed, "Hit Though slightly my search. Lizzie Thompson, another sixth grader told me," Anyone can play sports but it takes talent to play music." I decided this was food for thought. Janelle Byas, a fourth grader informed me that, "Fourth graders' favorite sport is kickball." In the end however I decided that Erin Beresini had the sagest words of all: "Bands play at sports events; I mean, music and athletics work in harmony." In other words, can't we all just get along?

Sisters

Fantasy,
Frequent companion to loneliness
In the dungeons of the heart.
She comes and goes
As if there are no bars.
Sent by her sister,
Magic,
Mistress of the castle,
Sparkling presence
In all the rooms above.

Jim Lipovsky - Upper School Head

"Every guest in this Hall," said Dumbledore,... "will be welcomed back here at any time, should they wish to come. I say to you, once again—in the light of Lord Voldemort's return, we are only as strong as we are united, as weak as we are divided. Lord Voldemort's gift for spreading discord enmity is very great. We can fight it only by showing an equally strong bond of friendship and trust."

"Hi Ho, Hi Ho, It's off to work we go..."

*Barbara Heal -
Lower School Head*

"What is fantasy?" asked the teacher one day when the class was seated on the rug during storytime. "Does it mean anything special to you?"

"Fantasy isn't how you normally think," said one student. "It's something that happens to you. When you are still for a long time and stop thinking, your mind creates a new thought." "Characters change and life becomes unreal," said another student. "Kids in your mind do things you can only dream about. Objects don't have sharp edges or break easily. Life just seems to float along."

"Hmmm." said the teacher as she nods and understands.

Senior Dedication -

Ms. Thompson

From the first moment you stepped on campus, it became clear that PCDS would never be the same. The school was not only gaining an enlightening English teacher, but also a friend and a mentor. There is not one person, student and faculty alike, who is not affected by your sincere smile and sympathetic heart. You have advised us when we needed aid, listened to us when we needed an ear and comforted us when we needed a shoulder. You have been an inspiration for many, and we will not only miss your enthusiastic approach to teaching but also the down-to-earth way you make each and every one of us feel special. We would like to dedicate this year's yearbook to you, Ms. Thompson. Thank you for caring so much about every one of your students. You will always be in our hearts.

Book Fair

Books for Sale

3

Each year, the Lower School Library puts on a Book Fair for the Lower School students to gain experience in choosing books. Ranging from pre-kindergarten to fourth grade reading levels, the books represent a large range of genres. Taking time out from their classes, the grades individually visit the Fair, located in the Upper School's Madden Hall. By first previewing the collection with the class, the children may return with their parents to purchase the books. The Book Fair will hopefully inspire a lifetime of reading.

1. Jesse Shedd and Mark Iobst talk about what books they like the most. 2. Alice Masayeva ponders the intellectual stimulation she might receive if she choose the book Taxi Taxi. 3. Some many colors, so many words, my mind is spinning, thinks Andrew Opila. 4. Lizzy McGroder and Amanda Martori are making a list and checking it twice, to find out what books they like. 5. Interested in learning, Gino Picozzi checks out books on animals.

Kindergartners Evan Kolbet, Elana Leifer, Aaron Witt, and Alycia Lewis show their patriotism by singing "Take Me Out to the Ball Park."

Max Leonesio is ready to cast his ballot for the future of his country.

Election Day has always been thought of as a day for adults, 18+. But no longer. On November 7, 2000, the Lower School wanted to emphasize the importance of politics in our society, even for those 18 -. Students were able to cast their votes in our own PCDS election, George W. Bush winning the kindergarten. A brunch was served for their parents who were either on their way from or to the polls. Following the brunch, a musical program was performed. The little ones sang patriotic songs like "Take Me Out to the Ball Game," "Yankee Doodle Dandy," and the "Star-Spangled Banner." This celebration of our democratic government helped to show the children that learning and fun can always work together.

Halloween is the one time of year when people can wear incredibly strange clothing without being either locked away or viewed as strange. Here at PCDS we really get into the spirit of this idea.

Lower School students, teachers, and parents flock to school to show off just how crazy they can look. This page is dedicated to the tomfoolery we call Halloween at PCDS.

Halloween Fun Facts:

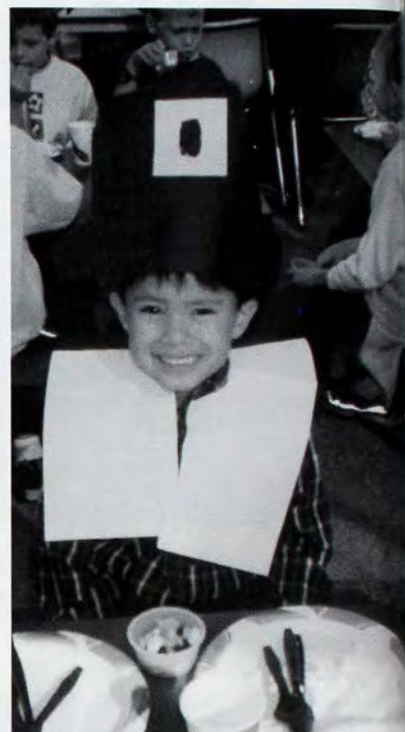

- Vanilla Ice was born on Halloween. Brrrr, scary.
- Mexico celebrates the Day of the Dead.
- "Trick or Treating" originated in Britain where beggars would get "soul cakes" in return for saying prayers for the dead.
- Black cats are associated with Halloween because of their supposed ability to sense spirits.
- Pumpkins come in orange (of course), white, green, red, and yellow.

Thanksgiving Feast

Go Water go Water!

Jake Ghelfi has finished his meal and is ready for dessert.

Gian-Reto Bonadurer is dressed for the feast.

"Would you like some popcorn?" asks Bailey Anderson.

Thirkill and Ben the Turkey bring the Lower School Thanksgiving holiday joy.

Thanksgiving day is celebrated in the Lower School each year by having all the Lower School students come together and enjoy a feast. Before the feast, each class prepares a delectable dish to be shared with other grades. For this special event, older students and younger students sit together as a community to share the meal.

Andrew Opila and Morgan Gilbard think feasting is a great way to learn about Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving is Chelsea Barker's favorite holiday.

Madeline Stern has just finished participating in the feast.

1. James Barranco prepares to take a dive. 2. Mrs. Cynthia Werth gives her son, Connor Werth a hug after his event. 3. Max Eller and Cole Goodyear discuss strategy. 4. A.J. MS & Life

Laura Bodell and Daniel Rollinger take turns looking at the sky.

The fifth grade trip to Astrocamp is a great experience for students to be involved with each other and the world around them. As the first class trip PCDS offers, Astrocamp in Idyllwild California allows the students a close knit area to study at the Desert Science Center and to get to know their classmates better. Astronomy is highly emphasized, with wide ranging activities that allow the students to be more involved. Astrocamp was a good introduction for fifth graders into the new world of Middle School.

Seventh Grade

Seventh graders swimming at Slide Rock.

The seventh grade trip is a bonding experience in northern Arizona. Learning teamwork and tolerance, much time is spent outdoors. Eight seniors accompany the class to play the role of counselor, mentor, and friend. The days were spent on ropes courses, hiking, canoeing, and team work activities. The nights were filled with skits, stories and time spent by the bon fire. Some favorite memories could be: watching the seniors bounce around on stage making fools of themselves, climbing a rock wall blind folded, or kitchen duty. Well, maybe not kitchen duty.

Middle School is a time for the exploration and discovery of academics. A student entering the fifth grade experiences for the first time advisor groups, changing teachers, and freedom between classes. Continuing through the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades, Middle Schoolers are not only exposed to subjects ranging from history to mathematics, but students also learn the notetaking and studying skills that they will need to succeed in their future academic endeavors. The Middle School years are a time for the new beginnings and discoveries that will help students further their education for years to come.

The lights get low, a few multi-colored ones appear, the music begins, there is a huge table of food with an ice sculpture, and you feel the butterflies in your stomach. Could this be some lame, made for TV movie? No, it would be your first dance. The 7th and 8th grade dance was held on November 17 in Madden Hall. This was a great opportunity for the two grades to socialize, eat, dance, and maybe learn a little about life. The girls were decked in glitter wear, while the boys hadn't seem to have changed since school that afternoon. New moves were born on the dance floor, while new twists were added to old ones. Whether experiencing that feeling of waiting to be asked to dance by your crush, or just letting it all loose in a big group, fun was had by all.

A black and white collage of numerous small photographs depicting various people in different settings, including portraits, group shots, and candid moments. The collage is decorated with dragonfly and leaf motifs. The photos show a mix of individuals and groups, some in formal or semi-formal attire, others in casual or outdoor settings. Notable elements include a large portrait of a woman with glasses in the top left, a group of people in a field, a person on a bicycle, a couple sitting together, a person reading, a person on a horse, a person in a kilt, and several smaller portraits of individuals. The collage is framed by decorative elements like dragonflies and leaves.

Often people attempt to live their lives backwards; they try to have more things or more money in order to do more of what they want so they will be happier. The way it actually works is in reverse. You must first be who you really are, then do what you need to do in order to have what you want.

Nansen saw the monks of the Eastern and Western halls fighting over a cat. He seized the cat and told the monks: "If any of you say a good word, you can save the cat." No one answered. So Nansen boldly cut the cat into two pieces. That evening Joshu returned and Nansen told him about this. Joshu removed his sandals and, placing them on his head, walked out. Nansen said: 'If you had been there, you could have saved the cat.'

Girls' soccer makes its debut as a varsity sport in the Fall 2000. Throughout the months, the team faced many challenging opponents. During the Camp Verde Tournament, defenseman Liz Foglesong was named as a member of the All-Tournament Team. The PCDS girls ended their season with a 2-5 record. Next year, with their newly gained experience, they will be a powerhouse in the 2A Conference.

The PCDS swim and dive teams both enjoyed an amazing season. For the first time, the girls, led by Captain Sarah Hurwitz, went undefeated in the dual meets. They later captured the title for the 4A Desert Sky Region Championships. The boys, under Captain Doug Loback, only lost one dual meet and placed third at Regionals. Michaela Skloven, a junior, dove to automatic All-American status at Regionals en route to her school record and victory. She finished fourth at States. Jennifer Lewkowitz broke the school record in the 100 fly on her way to a fifth-place finish in the state. Adam Lewkowitz won the 200 free and broke the school record at States. Jason Bodell also set school records in both the 200 IM and 100 free at States, and in the 100 back during the dual meets. Rebecca Allison, Tracy Brinkman, and Megan Bullock all placed at Regionals and achieved top-four status at states. The boy's relay of Jason Bodell, Adam Lewkowitz, Doug Loback, and Beau Kenworthy broke the school record in the 400 free relay. The girl's relay of Rebecca Allison, Tracy Brinkman, Jennifer Lewkowitz, and Erin Berensini broke the 200 free relay school record, and Megan Bullock substituted for Erin Berensini to break the 200 medley relay school record. These individuals' efforts led both teams to victory: the girl's team placed fourth and the boy's team placed eleventh in the 4A State Championships.

Becky McLaren, Lesley Silverthorn, Elizabeth Dias, and Laura Garity build the endurance necessary for the long games.

Girls Lacrosse enjoyed its second season this year, again finishing strong with help from returning seniors, Britnee Youngblood, Melanie Deutsch, and Sarah Hurwitz. Practicing during the week, with games on the weekend, the team showed a strong fan base and school-wide support. We look forward to seeing more extraordinary lacrosse from the PCDS girls.

The power of the PCDS Lacrosse team stems from the team's brute strength and force. Our team had some of the highest scores in the league, and our track record is astonishing. A PCDS game is always truly enjoyable to watch because of the passion and energy that the boys put into their playing. Due to the many returning seniors, including captains Jeff Sand, Sab Fabricius, and Greg Abdouch, the team was very strong. Lacrosse enjoyed an amazing year and we look forward to next year's season.

Bats, balls, sliding pads, and visors are the essential articles of clothing for any softball player. This year's softball team was composed of a mixture of returning players and new freshman. An experienced pitcher was part of the new crop that allowed for a successful season. The returning seniors were enthusiastic and eager to win.

The baseball team this year worked hard and strove for success. With three strong seniors and seasoned juniors paving the way for the underclassmen, the team knew that this would be a truly unique season. Under the steady coaching of Mr. Ellingson the team was able to meet and surpass their personal goals. This was truly a season the members of this team will not soon forget.

"The move from a structuralist account in which capital is understood to structure social relations in relatively homologous ways to a view of hegemony in which power relations are subject to repetition, convergence, and rearticulation brought the questions of temporality into the thinking of structure and from a form of Althusserian theory that takes structural totalities as theoretical objects to one in which the insights into the contingent possibility of structure inaugurate a renewed conception of hegemony as bound up with the contingent sites and strategies of the rearticulation of power."

*Lexie we love you and are so very proud of you,
MOM & DAD*

*And a woman who held a babe against her bosom said,
Speak to us of Children.*

And he said:

Your children are not your children.

They are the sons and daughters of Life's longing for itself.

They come through you but not from you,

And though they are with you, yet they belong not to you.

You may give them your love not your thoughts.

For they have their own thoughts.

You may house their bodies but not their souls,

For their souls dwell in the house of tomorrow, which you cannot visit, even in your dreams.

You may strive to be like them, but seek not to make them like you.

For life goes not backward nor tarries with yesterday.

You are the bows from which your children as living arrows are sent forth.

The archer sees the mark upon the path of the infinite, and He bends you with

His Might that His Arrows may go swift and far.

Let your bending in the archer's hand be for gladness;

For even as he loves the arrow that flies, so He loves also the bow that is stable.

The children in the grades
1-3 would really appreciate having our own basketball court. We do not get to play on the big kids court. Or we should be able to play on the big kids court when they are not there.

Your friend,

Fold up the maps and put away the globe.

If someone else had charted it, let them.

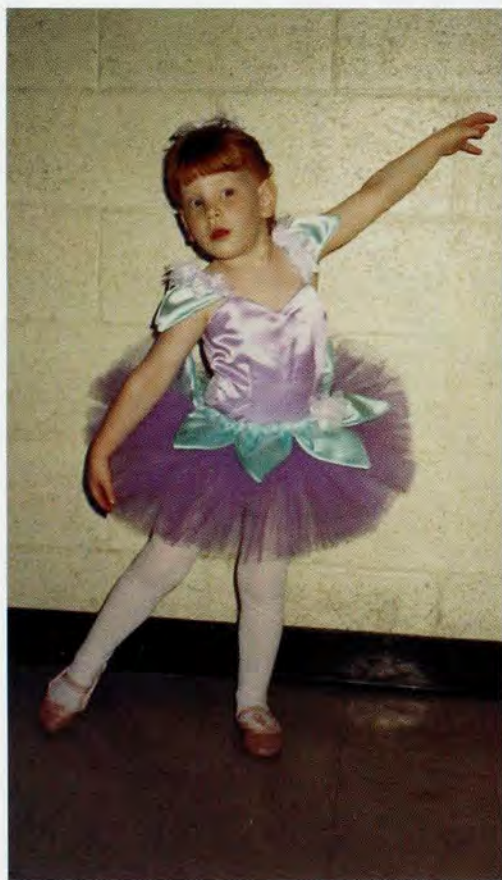

Start another drawing with whales at the bottom and cormorants at the top, and in between identify, if you can, the places you have not found yet on those other maps, the connections obvious only to you.

As you look through the 2001 Phoenician, please join me in thanking the many talented students who have made an enormous commitment to make this book as wonderful as possible.

This year the staff will be saying goodbye to two very talented young women. We hope that Michelle Hertzfeld and Kim Ruht are as successful with everything they attempt as they have been with the yearbook. Also, good luck to the new yearbook staff — Sophie Nye as senior editor, Clint Corcoran and Humberto Duarte as junior editors, and Roberto Morales as most valued photographer and photo editor for the second year. Each of the editors has shown his/her dedication by working very hard on the current book. In addition, there have been many other students who have worked on pages to help meet deadlines.

A special thank you to Nick Barranco who is responsible for the wonderful middle school sports copy, and to Gordan Krnjaic and Julie McReynolds for the graphics you see throughout the book. I'm sure you will all enjoy Julie's work on the dragons and Gordan's work on the sun and moon.
