FINE LINENS

Chrysanthemum Revival Collection

June 2026

This season, Volga Linen revisits Chrysanthemum, a richly detailed archive print drawn from an 18th century Russian woodcut.

Reflecting the enduring appeal of historical pattern and craftsmanship, Chrysanthemum has been reimaged in two new colourways for this special collaboration with Fritz Porter. Developed by Design Director Becky La Roche, the new palette brings renewed depth and softness to one of Volga's most romantic archive prints.

Alongside Chrysanthemum, the collection introduces new additions to two of Volga's most established linens. Building on the success of Petite Kitezh, a new Flax/Ivory colourway offers a softer, more tonal interpretation of the weave, celebrating the natural beauty of linen. A new Celadon colourway joins the Mid Weight Laundered Linen collection, its gently washed finish bringing a relaxed and versatile quality suited to both upholstery and drapery.

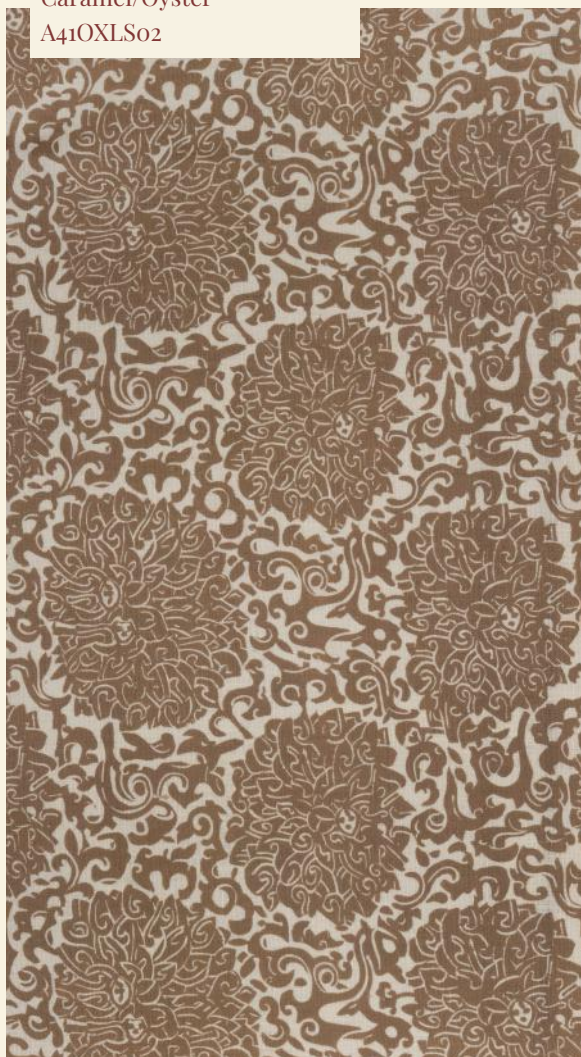

Together, these designs reflect a shared appreciation for heritage, craftsmanship and considered colour, bringing fresh perspective to some of Volga's most enduring fabrics.

‘On taking over the Volga Linen business in 2020, I was handed a portfolio of 17th and 18th century archive prints from Volga’s founder, Theresa Tollemache, originating from Russian woodcuts. At the time, Volga offered only a few of these archive prints in limited colour combinations, and so it was one of the first ranges that we revived to achieve a softer hand feel and higher Martindale for upholstery.

For this collaboration with Fritz Porter, we have taken colour direction from Becky, in a special collaboration to awaken the complex and highly romantic Chrysanthemum print.’

– Claire Fouché, Volga’s Owner & Creative Director.
