Welcome to INTERNATIONAL Glamping BUSINESS

Welcome to the 2026 edition of our annual Suppliers Directory.

If there's one thing this industry makes clear, it's that good ideas only go so far without the right people to deliver them. The day-to-day reality of running or building a glamping site comes down to practical decisions: who you work with, what you invest in and how those choices hold up over time.

This directory is here to make those decisions a little easier. Whether you're starting from scratch, expanding, or simply looking to improve what you already have, it brings together suppliers who understand the demands of outdoor hospitality.

What's noticeable to us this year is how much the supplier landscape continues to shift. There's a stronger focus on durability, sustainability and design, but also on solutions that actually work in real operating conditions – not just on paper.

As ever, building strong businesses isn't about chasing trends for the sake of it – it's about finding reliable partners and making informed choices that support your vision long term.

Keep this one close... it's a useful resource to come back to!

GLAMPING EVOLVES INTO SCALABLE ASSET CLASS FOR EUROPEAN INVESTORS

Open-air hospitality is attracting increased institutional attention across Europe, driven by rising demand, premium average daily rates (ADR) and stronger operational metrics.

According to reporting by Terence Baker for CoStar News, the segment was a focal point at this year's Atlantic Ocean Hotel Investors' Summit in Madrid, where hospitality and investment professionals outlined how glamping is evolving from a niche offering into a more structured asset class.

Panelists noted that major hotel groups are establishing dedicated outdoor accommodation divisions, while private equity investors are entering the sector in search of yield, sustainability alignment and differentiated guest experiences. Philippe Rossini, portfolio manager for hospitality at Swiss Life Asset Managers, said the firm currently operates two funds focused on outdoor accommodation, including its Plein Air Invest private equity vehicle launched in 2023. The fund aims to reposition traditional campsites into higher-yielding glamping destinations, initially concentrating on France. Rossini highlighted the sector's environmental, social and governance (ESG) profile as a key factor in attracting both lenders and institutional investors.

Luis Amézola, associate director of real estate investment at Meridia, said his firm has built a portfolio of 16 outdoor accommodation assets across Spain and Portugal over the past five years. While some regions can generate extended seasonal demand, he described the business as highly seasonal, with up to 80% of gross operating profit concentrated in peak summer months. Across the sector, annual occupancy of 55% to 60% is typical, though ADR remains the primary performance driver.

Much of the sector's growth is being driven by the repositioning of existing campsites rather than new developments. However, regulation can present challenges. In France, stringent legislation has reduced available inventory and increased barriers to entry, while regional variation in Spain can complicate development requirements.

Operators are increasingly targeting shoulder seasons and corporate group business to stabilise revenue. Enhancements such as upgraded food and beverage, spa facilities and curated guest experiences are being used to lift ADR and broaden appeal. Despite risks including weather disruption and seasonality, investor appetite remains strong as the sector matures, supported by improved operational sophistication, clearer performance benchmarks and growing capital allocation.

AUTOCAMP ASHEVILLE DEBUTS AS HILTON PARTNERSHIP EXPANDS OUTDOOR HOSPITALITY REACH

AutoCamp welcomed its first guests this month to a new glamping resort situated along the French Broad River in Asheville, North Carolina. The property is located approximately 15 minutes from downtown Asheville and offers 67 distinct accommodations near Great Smoky Mountains National Park and the Blue Ridge Mountains.

This opening represents the latest expansion of an exclusive partnership between AutoCamp and Hilton. Guests can book stays through Hilton's reservation system or the Hilton Honors app, with nightly rates starting around $201 or approximately 70,000 points.

The resort features 55 custom-designed Airstreams, two classic cabins, four BaseCamp Suites, and six Bambi Suites. Each unit includes private fire pits and grills to blend traditional camping rituals with hotel-caliber comfort.

The 5,000-square-foot Clubhouse serves as the central hub, housing a dining concept called The Kitchen and a general store. Amenities also include an all-season outdoor plunge pool and electric vehicle charging stations.

Curated guest programming at the site includes sunrise yoga, culinary workshops, and guided mountain excursions. Through the Hilton partnership, Hilton Honors members can earn and redeem points while receiving on-property benefits like complimentary firewood and s'mores kits.

The expansion comes as major hospitality brands increasingly move into the outdoor segment. According to the Hilton 2026 Trends Report, surveyed travelers identified spending time in nature as a top motivator for leisure trips this year.

Other industry giants are also placing strategic bets on experiential lodging. Marriott launched an outdoors-focused collection last October, and Hyatt secured an exclusive partnership with Under Canvas in 2024.

Bobby Molinary, chief development officer for select brands at Marriott, noted that the outdoor hospitality space is a "really popular and growing space" with "a lot of interest." This mainstream validation suggests sustained investment and consumer demand for nature-focused experiences in the years ahead.

AUSTRALIAN OPERATOR NIGHTSKY LAUNCHES 45-TENT GLAMPING SITE IN CALIFORNIA

systems, linen and towel reuse programmes, and operational practices aimed at reducing single-use plastics and chemical cleaning products.

The site, located near the city of San Luis Obispo, will offer private eco-tents featuring king-sized beds, timber interiors, custom furnishings, artisan décor, mini refrigerators, ensuite bathrooms and private decks. Shared amenities will include a restaurant, communal fire pits and a wellness space offering yoga, meditation, sauna experiences and cold plunges.

Ahead of the tented accommodation launch, Nightsky opened its on-site restaurant, Marcerro, focused on seasonal, locally sourced coastal Californian cuisine.

Under the reported agreement, Nightsky will fully fund the development and pay rent to San Luis Obispo County through a revenue-sharing model. For the county, the project creates a new hospitality-driven income stream while adapting public recreational land in response to environmental pressures.

An Australian-founded outdoor hospitality company is set to introduce a new glamping concept at Dairy Creek Golf Course in San Luis Obispo, California, with a planned opening this summer.

Nightsky Camps will repurpose part of the county-owned course to develop 45 eco-tents on land formerly occupied by nine decommissioned holes. The holes were taken out of service due to ongoing water shortages, prompting the county to explore alternative uses that could generate revenue while reducing resource demand. Dairy Creek originally opened in 1997 as an 18-hole course before water constraints reduced its footprint.

The San Luis Obispo project marks Nightsky's first flagship hospitality development in the United States. Founded in Australia and now based in California, the company describes the scheme as regenerative in approach, with low-impact site planning designed to preserve the surrounding landscape.

According to local reports, the development will incorporate dark-sky-compliant lighting, water conservation

CABU TO OPEN £24M ECO-RESORT IN THE COTSWOLDS

Luxury cabin operator Cabu is set to expand its UK footprint with a £24 million eco-resort development in the Cotswolds. The new site, located in Langley on the former Marconi radio site, will comprise 51 timber cabins offering one-, two- and three-bedroom self-catered accommodation.

The company said the resort will operate year-round, providing high-quality short-term stays in a countryside setting.

The cabins will be arranged around a central hub building housing a spa and leisure facilities, including indoor and outdoor swimming pools. Planned wellness amenities include hot tubs, saunas, and a plunge bucket, while the indoor pool will feature floor-to-ceiling windows and lounge seating.

In addition to accommodation and spa facilities, the development will incorporate a shop, restaurant, two bars, and a studio events space. Cabu said the resort will focus on "low-adrenaline activities," positioning itself as a relaxed base for visitors exploring the wider Cotswolds area.

The location provides access to established tourism destinations including Bourton-on-the-Water, Stow-on-the-Wold and Burford.

The Cotswolds property will mark Cabu's third resort. The company currently operates Cabu by the Sea in Kent and Cabu by the Lakes in County Cavan, Ireland.

Cabu by the Sea is described as an intimate coastal retreat offering accommodation ranging from studio-style cabins for couples to larger three-bedroom units for families.

Cabu by the Lakes, located in Killykeen Forest Park, features log cabins and lake houses alongside a nature-focused spa incorporating forest bathing areas and a Japanese bath. At Cabu by the Lakes, a two-night stay for two guests in March is currently priced from £544.18, reflecting the brand's positioning within the premium short-break segment.

The Cotswolds expansion underlines continued investment in cabin-based, experience-led accommodation within established domestic tourism markets.

HERITAGE LIVING: BUILDING BEAUTIFUL SPACES AND MEANINGFUL BUSINESSES

If you had told me, Sarah Barlow, 30 years ago that I'd be designing luxury lodges for the international glamping market, I probably wouldn't have believed you.

My career began in retail marketing and business strategy – building brands, understanding customer behaviour and helping businesses grow sustainably. That commercial grounding still shapes everything I do today. It means I don't just see a lodge; I see a business model, a guest journey, a pricing strategy and a long-term asset.

Heritage Living Group grew from that mindset. Across our four specialist brands – Heritage Garden Studios, Heritage Lodges, Heritage Sports and Heritage Residences – we design and manufacture beautiful SIPs-constructed buildings built to full residential standards.

We produce a carefully curated range of luxury lodges for operators who want a proven, design-led solution. For those seeking something entirely unique, we create bespoke builds tailored to landscape, brand identity and target market. Every project is approached with the same philosophy: exceptional standards, no compromises.

As a family-led, award-winning business, we are incredibly proud of the quality we deliver. From high-performance SIPs panels to refined interior finishes, our buildings are engineered for durability, energy efficiency and year-round comfort. They are designed not just to look impressive — but to stand the test of time.

What truly differentiates us, however, is the added layer of consultancy I'm able to bring. My background allows me to support clients with glamping strategy and marketing guidance alongside the build itself — from viability and positioning to brand development and guest experience. In an increasingly competitive market, that clarity can make all the difference.

Glamping today is about far more than accommodation. It's about creating a destination with purpose, personality and profitability.

And for me, helping clients build that – both physically and commercially – is the most rewarding part of all.

The Value of Remarkable Experience

Bushtec crafts premium luxury tents that elevate outdoor environments into extraordinary guest experiences.

Blending sophisticated comfort, exceptional durability, and eco-conscious design, our structures are chosen by top glamping destinations around the globe.

unveils unified brand to deliver
'The Value of Remarkable Experience'

Bushtec, a pioneering force in tented camps and solutions, has announced a significant brand evolution, unifying its 55-year heritage as Canvas and Tent and a consortium of specialised brands under a singular Bushtec master brand. The unified Bushtec brand reinforces a commitment to quality, innovation, and client success, while introducing an expanded turnkey service model with a focus on hospitality.

The group has grown from its world-renowned Canvas and Tent manufacturing origins in South Africa to include global design and delivery capabilities for diverse clients - delivering over 1,000 camps in 83 countries across six continents. Using premium materials and minimal-impact foundations, Bushtec tents are engineered to perform flawlessly in the world's most extreme environments, from coastal deserts to alpine snowscapes.

Bushtec CEO Hans Hillebrand explains that the core belief driving the brand evolution is "The value of remarkable experience" - bringing years of expertise to bear to create uniquely differentiated, immersive guest destinations that are both unforgettable and financially sustainable.

"Our extensive market research showed that hospitality brands, owners and operators need to create one-of-a-kind experiences that will differentiate them. They're seeking partners who have the track record and experience to realise their vision," says Hillebrand. "We translate remarkable experiences into tangible value, ensuring our clients' projects can stand out and thrive in a competitive market. This focus empowers lodge owners, developers, and project managers to optimise occupancy, enhance stakeholder confidence, and secure long-term competitiveness."

Hillebrand says Bushtec is well-positioned to help clients maximise the opportunities offered by a new era of luxury tented hospitality. "What began as a novel approach to blending luxury with the great outdoors has evolved into an art form, redefining how guests connect with nature without compromising on comfort or sophistication. We've seen remarkable growth in demand for this form of experiential travel, particularly across Africa, North America and the Middle East, where every detail is crafted to deliver unforgettable moments close to nature."

Bushtec offers a seamless, integrated process from concept to camp. This comprehensive service portfolio includes initial site assessments, master planning, bespoke design and engineering, and in-house manufacturing at its over 500-strong facility in South Africa that is ISO 14001 and ISO 9001 certified. It extends to global logistics, expert installation, site commissioning, staff training, and full lifecycle maintenance and support.

"Luxury tents alone are only part of what turns beautiful locations into destinations of choice. Our ability to deliver a full concept to camp solution is a distinct advantage for our clients," says Frans Vermaas, Bushtec Hospitality Sales Director. "We manage every detail, from the initial architectural vision to the final operational handover, with the ability to deliver in remote and challenging locations. This allows our partners to focus on their primary goal: delivering a remarkable guest experience."

"The brand evolution unifies our legacy and is a clear signal of our future direction," says Hillebrand. "By unifying our extensive capabilities under the Bushtec master brand, we are solidifying our promise to clients: to be their trusted partner in creating remarkable experiences that yield exceptional returns."

Glamping Safari Tents hidden in the scenery of campsites; MORE-TENT deeply plough in the field of glamping, focusing on high-end glamping tents that with sturdy structures and exquisite appearance.

In a national AAA-level scenic area, we have meticulously crafted a five-diamond-level glamping campsite. This project covers an area of over 50 acres, with tents scattered across hillsides, fields, and forests, the sand colour fabrics and lightweight installation methods ensuring perfect integration with the natural landscape while protecting native vegetation.

As the gateway to the campsite, a 5x15 meter Triple-Peak Glamping Safari Tent was built as the reception centre and nestles on the mountainside. Glass walls are used for the Triple-Peak Glamping Safari Tent, which looks very grand, beautiful, and sophisticated, both aesthetics and practicality are considered. As it's a clear span structure, so the inside space can be flexibly divided into multi-functional areas for ticket check, rest, dining etc., meeting all one-stop reception needs.

For accommodation, MORE-TENT offers customized space solutions for different travel scenarios, including families, parent-child groups, couples, and solo travelers.

The 4.5 x 10 meter Hawaii Tents can realize various combinations and offer flexible and versatile spaces. Each tent features a double-layered cover, wooden flooring, silent sliding glass doors, curved viewing windows, and insulation cottons—all amenities typically found in star-rated hotels.

The spacious, pillar-free interior can be double combined to create family rooms or parent-child rooms. The tents also include an extended canopy and a private terrace, perfect for barbecues, gatherings, and stargazing, offering unobstructed views and excellent privacy.

MORE-TENT has been deeply involved in the cultural tourism glamping tent industry for many years. 6061/T6 aluminum alloy is used for the modular structure, and safety, stability and durability are guaranteed. It's adaptable to various operating models, both long-term and short-term. Tents are easily disassembled and repeatedly relocated and reassembled, unrestricted by location, season, or operating cycle.

With its professional design, stable quality, and comprehensive services, MORE-TENT has earned the favor and trust of numerous resort and campsite operators, which becomes a preferred partner for the creation and upgrading of glamping resorts in scenic areas.

HOW TRUDOMES is Redefining ROI in Glamping

At TruDomes, we see the same challenge echoed across the glamping sector – demand isn't the issue, delivery is.

Across the UK and Europe, operators are experiencing strong booking intent, rising guest expectations and growing investor interest. Yet too often, promising projects stall under the weight of long construction timelines, planning requirements and escalating build costs. The result is a widening gap between opportunity and execution, at a time when the UK staycation market continues to strengthen.

For operators looking to scale, speed-to-revenue has become one of the most critical metrics for success – and one that traditional development models struggle to support.

"We've worked with operators who initially planned to build cabins or lodges, only to face timelines stretching from 12 to 24 months before welcoming their first guests," says Louise Stone, Head of Sales at TruDomes. "During this period, they risk missing peak booking windows, absorbing material costs and tying up capital in developments."

At TruDomes, our modular dome structures are reshaping the conversation. We design and deliver engineered dome solutions that can be installed and guest-ready in a matter of weeks. For operators, this means that rather than planning years in advance, sites can respond to demand within a single season – unlocking revenue earlier and reducing exposure to market uncertainty.

This acceleration has a direct and measurable impact on return on investment. Earlier openings drive faster cash flow, while reduced groundwork and streamlined installation help control upfront costs. Just as importantly, our dome systems enable phased expansion. Operators can start with a smaller footprint, test pricing and occupancy and then scale in line with demand – minimising risk while maintaining flexibility.

However, the value of domes extends well beyond operational efficiency. As the glamping sector evolves, guests are no longer simply booking accommodation – they are investing in experiences. Design, immersion and emotional connection to the environment are now central to decision-making. This is where our domes consistently outperform more traditional structures.

With their panoramic form and distinctive visual identity, our domes naturally support high-value experiences such as stargazing, wellness retreats and immersive nature stays. At TruDomes, we combine structural durability with refined aesthetics, enabling operators to offer year-round stays without compromising comfort or visual appeal. This balance allows sites to confidently position themselves at the premium end of the market, supporting higher average daily rates and stronger overall profitability, Flexibility remains another key advantage. Unlike fixed builds, our modular domes can be repositioned, expanded or reconfigured as a site evolves. For operators navigating planning constraints or shifting guest expectations, this adaptability offers future-proofing that traditional models rarely provide.

As competition intensifies and the sector continues to develop, the ability to move quickly, manage costs and deliver standout experiences will define the next generation of successful glamping businesses.

From our perspective at TruDomes, modular domes are no longer an alternative – they are becoming a strategic asset. For operators looking to turn land into luxury accommodation in a matter of months, they represent a smarter, faster and more resilient way to grow.

TENTHOUSE STRUCTURES

New Tent Architecture Made for the Wild

As a global leader in luxury eco-resorts and outdoor living developments, Tenthouse® Structures has earned its reputation as a trusted partner for some of the most iconic projects in the industry. With a focus on sustainability, innovation, and immersive design, Tenthouse transforms wild landscapes into thriving destinations that resonate with both nature and guests alike.

A Mission Rooted in Sustainability and Innovation

- Lead the industry with sustainable, nature-inspired designs that enhance guest experiences.
- Set benchmarks in lightweight, low-impact construction tailored to the outdoor hospitality sector.
- Inspire change by fostering regenerative practices for eco-resorts globally.

"The wild drives our purpose, shapes our design, and leads us to a sustainable future," Brendan O'Molony explains.

A Partner for the Future of Hospitality

Specializing in bridging the gap between visionary design and practical execution, Tenthouse® offers a comprehensive, forward-thinking approach to tented property development:

Craftsmanship Meets Innovation: The Tenthouse® Difference

At the heart of Tenthouse® Structures is a mastery of tensile engineering and architectural innovation. Their bespoke textile architecture fuses technical precision with artistic vision, transforming properties into iconic destinations that command attention and sustain high demand.

Guided by biophilic principles, they integrate natural elements to blur the boundaries between indoors and outdoors, fostering an immersive connection to nature. Drawing on bionic design principles—using nature's efficiency and resilience as a blueprint for structural optimization—a Tenthouse® structure not only enhances guest comfort but also delivers superior performance and durability, even in the most challenging environments.

TURNKEY MASTERY: FROM CONCEPT TO COMPLETION

Tenthouse® Structures turnkey solutions are a seamless blend of design innovation and technical expertise. By leveraging cutting-edge tools and a deep understanding of lightweight tensile structures, they effectively streamline every stage of project development.

From the initial concept—where they analyse and account for site-specific challenges, environmental factors, and aesthetic aspirations—to meticulous design, engineering and on-site installation, their integrated approach minimizes risks and accelerates timelines. In addition, their use of modular construction technology allows for scalable, adaptable solutions that ensure your project launches efficiently, with precision and quality at every step.

ENDURING PARTNERSHIP: BUILT FOR LONG-TERM SUCCESS

Viewing every project as a long-term investment, and Tenthouse® Structures commitment extends far beyond the installation phase. Their engineering excellence ensures that each structure is built to withstand diverse climates and weather conditions, reducing maintenance needs and extending operational lifespans. Through comprehensive maintenance plans, warranties, and robust support services, they safeguard your property's performance, ensuring consistent guest satisfaction and operational efficiency.

Vision to Reality: NEW TENT ARCHITECTURE

With Tenthouse® Structures you partner with specialists that can transform your bold ideas into breathtaking realities, seamlessly blending innovation, craftsmanship, and technical expertise—ensuring your property stands out in a competitive market.

Landowners facing tightening margins from traditional land-based income streams are increasingly turning to glamping to diversify revenue, making the most of rural landscapes and unique locations to build profitable tourism businesses.

Data from Glampingstays, part of the Travel Chapter portfolio of brands, shows demand for high-quality rural accommodation continues to grow as holidaymakers seek unique stays in nature without sacrificing comfort.

The UK glamping market was worth an estimated £170m–£180m in 2024. It is forecast to reach £350m–£380m by 2032, says Joby Mussell, Chief Commercial Officer at Glampingstays.

“The market is expanding, driven by strong consumer demand for distinctive accommodation in rural locations,” said Joby. “Bookings across Travel Chapter properties, including those marketed through Glampingstays, are up by around 5% year-on-year.”

Strong returns and scalable investment

For landowners exploring diversification opportunities, glamping offers an accessible entry point into the tourism market. “If landowners get it right, glamping can generate strong returns with appealing profit margins,” Joby said.

Average earnings per glamping unit marketed through Travel Chapter in 2025 reached £19,494, with premium features such as hot tubs capable of boosting income potential significantly. Some glamping units are achieving double this amount and the model is also highly scalable.

“Landowners don’t have to commit to a large development from the start,” Joby explained. “Many begin with one or two units and scale up gradually as demand grows.”

In terms of accommodation type, shepherd’s huts remain the most popular type of glamping accommodation, followed by bespoke cabins and treehouses, with yurts and luxury safari tents also performing well.

Guest expectations continue to rise

While entry costs are relatively modest compared with traditional holiday accommodation, guest expectations are high.

“Visitors want the comforts they enjoy at home combined with a memorable outdoor experience,” said Joby.

Reliable Wi-Fi, private bathrooms, heating and fully equipped kitchens are now considered standard, while extras such as hot tubs, firepits and wood-burning stoves help properties stand out in a competitive market.

Location, flexibility and marketing

Location of course remains a key factor in determining returns. Rural properties in high-demand holiday destinations can outperform long-term rental income. But other factors can influence success.

Glampingstays’ data highlights features that can significantly improve performance. Properties with waterside views typically secure 33% more bookings and generate around 42% more revenue. Similarly, an open fire or wood burner can increase annual revenue by an average of 9% and bookings by 5%, while a hot tub can increase stays by up to 31%.

Short breaks are also an important driver of revenue, accounting for more than 60% of bookings made through Glampingstays. Allowing dogs and providing enclosed outdoor space can increase appeal further.

Effective marketing is essential too. Joby recommends investing in professional photography, maintaining an engaging website and ensuring properties are visible across social media and online travel platforms.

“For many landowners, managing marketing, pricing and bookings can be time-consuming,” he said. “Working with a holiday letting agency can help maximise visibility and attract the right guests.”

UNIQUE HIDEAWAYS

An Escape from Modern Life

With an ever-growing need to unplug from the fast-flowing, digitalised world, it's not surprising that glamping holidays are in demand. Leading the way for guest requirements is wellness; people want (and need) an escape from the intensity that modern life brings, with the opportunity to relieve the mental strain from always being on the go.

The art of simplicity

We intrinsically know that this peace is best found through immersion in nature, whether that's through squirrelling ourselves away in a treehouse or a hidden cabin in the woods, or taking a lungful of fresh sea air from a cliff-top eyrie while gazing at the horizon. Travellers are actively searching for off-grid escapes, drawn by the promise of no traffic noise, no light pollution and, often, no signal or WiFi. For guests used to the constant buzz of busy cities and digital life, the chance to stargaze, slow down and calm the nervous system has become a true luxury. It is often simplicity that guests value most: beautiful views to lose yourself in, fire pits to gather around and blissful outdoor bathing beneath the open sky – giving guests the space and setting for their own restorative rituals.

A luxury experience

And while getting back to nature is top priority, guests are still seeking that boutique hotel experience through the quality and uniqueness of their accommodation. Design-savvy guests are drawn to hideaways that are handcrafted and bespoke, often built or restored by the owners themselves using sustainable materials such as reclaimed or upcycled wood. Pair this with thoughtfully curated interiors that feel natural, characterful and visually striking, and you've created an escape that feels both luxurious and entirely one-of-a-kind.

The essentials

Optional extras have now shifted to key requirements for guests, such as outdoor bathing (hot tubs, saunas, and wood-fired baths), and tangible environmental accountability (such as rewilding on the land, native planting and renewable energy). Being dog-friendly also has a massive effect on potential bookings. Other USPs coming to the fore are those that bring us closer to nature, such as an outdoor kitchen, a telescope for stargazing and a fire pit.

The role of search

It's also worth considering how potential guests are now searching for their perfect getaway. With the development of AI and numerous social platforms, people are moving away from traditional searching techniques and are being inspired by what they find as they scroll videos, see what their friends repost, or by asking AI. As such, it's vitally important to build a distinct online presence through pictures and reels that are visually appealing and content that's strong on story and captivating details, so it stands out and is instantly attractive to algorithms.

Personal touches

With a shift from gift-giving to memory-making to celebrate special occasions, people are choosing to get away to commemorate milestones – from birthdays to anniversaries and babymoos to proposals – making it all the more important to make your glamping retreat as unique and memorable as possible. Including seemingly small extras (such as a wood fire built and ready to light, a hamper of local goodies on arrival, and a bottle of fizz waiting and cooled in the fridge), lifts a getaway into something truly memorable.

WOODPECKER TUBS

Handcrafted, Bespoke, Custom

Woodpecker Tubs are producers of bespoke, handcrafted and custom made hot tubs and saunas primarily, as well as delivering some bespoke accommodation units for all various customers and settings.

As a producer and manufacturer of bespoke, handcrafted products we are not limited to or controlled by the production of 'off the shelf' products, nor are we restricted by working solely as a reseller, ensuring that we are flexible in our approach and able to work with many clients whether that is in a B2B or B2C setting, or a combination of both.

Whatever your specific needs are, Woodpecker are able to meet and exceed them by having that flexible approach, leading to the creation of hot tubs, saunas and other accommodation products that provide you with the perfect accompaniment to your host settings.

In terms of our hot tub products, we are able to provide tubs for couples to use like our Ofuro tub, up to and including our larger tubs like the Monaco, Berlin and Munich tubs, that have spacious and sleek design principles, making them a real eye catching proposition for those who want to provide a very different product for their customers, friends and others.

With each of these wonderful hot tub choices, there are a wide range of options available to those who decide to choose Woodpecker. These options include wood choices like Scandinavian Spruce, Cedar, Thermo wood, or composite materials that look like wood, and can be the same or of similar colouration to the wood products themselves.

Here there is also the freedom to choose whether you have a wood fired heater of varying shapes and sizes, or the option to utilise electricity to warm up your tubs, providing an environmentally friendly way of heating them up.

Alongside our amazing hot tubs, there is also the added benefit of us being able to produce bespoke saunas for our customers. These can be a luxury barrel sauna, that has the ability to be made available for 2-4 people, up to, but exclusively for 10 or more people. The barrel sauna is one of our best sellers due to the fact it can be customised, so it has a panoramic window at the back, or half glass and half wood, or for those that want further privacy, they can have it with a fully wooden back.

Moreover, we are also proud to offer saunas like the Leaf sauna, the Cube, the Donatelo, or the London, which is our futuristic space saving sauna that comes with an electric heater and the most fabulous salt wall that allows you to drift off into a complete state of relaxation.

If you would like to know more about our products, how we can plan and support your needs, or even for some advice regarding the next steps in your journey, we would be only too happy to help you out. Because we aren't a reseller, the cost savings on our products reflect this – leading to you having a real value for money experience with Woodpecker Tubs.

CERTAINLY WOOD IS THE CERTAIN CHOICE

In the competitive world of glamping, every operational detail matters - especially the ones guests experience first-hand. A warming fire at dusk should feel effortless and magical, not complicated or time-consuming. For camping and glamping operators, the right firewood solution can unlock cost savings, increase profit margins and dramatically simplify day-to-day management.

Our firewood range has been developed specifically with trade customers in mind. Clear, easy-to-follow fire lighting instructions make guest handovers smoother and faster, reducing staff time spent explaining how to build and light a fire. When guests can achieve a perfect flame on the first attempt, you avoid late-evening support calls and enhance overall satisfaction.

Our KindleFlamers natural firelighters are a game-changer. They don't require any kindling, saving you the cost, storage space and logistics of supplying additional materials. Guests simply place a KindleFlamer with their logs and light it - no complicated steps, no frustration. That simplicity translates directly into labour savings and a better guest experience.

Pair them with Flaming Firewood - the ultimate camping firewood at a lower price point - and you have a high-performing, margin-friendly solution. They are exceptionally easy to light, burn reliably and offer strong visual appeal, making them ideal for resale as part of a fire bundle or welcome pack.

We also offer flexible purchasing options. Choose smaller, regular deliveries to manage cash flow and storage efficiently, or opt for larger shipments to reduce shipping costs and increase overall margin.

By reducing complexity, eliminating kindling, and offering dependable performance at a competitive price, our products turn firewood from a logistical headache into a profitable, easy-to-manage feature of your glamping business.

SALAMANDER: SMALL STOVES FOR YOUR GLAMPING SPACE

Tucked away in the rolling hills of Devon, UK, Salamander Stoves is a family-run business dedicated to crafting high-quality cast iron stoves for small spaces. Founded in 2009 by Mark and Gill, the company draws on over 15 years of experience working with antique and modern stoves. Each Salamander stove carries that heritage, blending timeless design with practical craftsmanship.

They have carefully designed small stoves that don't compromise on quality or performance. Their range of compact, multi-fuel stoves provides you with all the warmth, efficiency and character of a full-sized wood burner, without the large footprint. Designed to heat, cook and even provide hot water, these small but mighty stoves keep your space cosy, functional and full of charm all year round.

Every stove is hand-finished, fettled and inspected in their Devon workshop to ensure years of reliable service and lasting beauty.

Optional extras to customise your stove for your space

- Side boiler for heating water
- Rear or top flue exit to increase stovetop space
- Stove stand/log store
- Heatshields to significantly reduce safety clearances
- Stainless steel cooktop for cooking
- Coloured doors
- And much more

Salamander Stoves have a wide range of flue kits specifically designed for glamping installations. Whether you're fitting out a shepherd's hut, cabin, tiny home, van, bell tent or need more of a bespoke setup, their flue technicians are on hand to provide expert advice with a free bespoke flue consultancy.

It's down to the exceptional quality, solid build and compact size that thousands of Salamander Stoves have found a home in all sorts of glamping spaces across the world. A small wood burner brings more than just warmth; it adds a heart to your space, a glowing centrepiece that draws people in and makes your retreat inviting through every season. Bring a Salamander Stove into your glamping space and create a space your guests never want to leave!

E SSE stoves and range cookers deliver an unmatched combination of heritage, craftsmanship and performance.

Founded in 1854, ESSE is one the world's original stove makers. With over 170 years of expertise, they've earned a reputation for producing beautifully crafted appliances that are as hardworking as they are stunning to look at.

Their wood-fired Ironheart cook stove is a firm favourite in the glamping world and for good reason. Compact yet incredibly capable, it provides radiant heat, a graduated cooking hob, a baking oven and optional firebox grill, making it a genuine all-in-one solution for off-grid living. Large glass doors offer mesmerising views of the flames, adding that magical ambience guests travel for.

Despite their timeless, rustic aesthetic, ESSE stoves are Ecodesign Ready and achieve A-rated energy efficiency of over 77%, with the latest clean combustion technology built in.

ESSE: MASTER STOVE MAKERS SINCE 1854

ESSE's family of wood-fired cook stoves include the Lightheart, Bakeheart, Warmheart and Garden Stove models – all designed to be installed almost anywhere, accommodating logs up to 400mm in length and providing reliable heat for extended periods. Whether you're fitting out a shepherd's hut, a woodland cabin, a yurt or a remote bothy, there's an ESSE to suit.

Trusted by River Cottage HQ, Dumfries House and Kate Humble's Welsh farm retreat, ESSE stoves are chosen by people who care deeply about quality, sustainability and the joy of cooking with wood.

For glamping businesses that want to give guests an authentic, memorable experience gathered around a real fire, ESSE is the natural choice.

SUPA: COMMERCIAL HOT TUB MANAGEMENT

You Must Change the Water Between Guests. Here's How to Make It Work for You.

HSG 282 — the HSE's guidance on spa-pool water safety — is unambiguous: for hire and holiday let hot tubs, water must be completely drained and refilled between guest occupancies. It's not optional. It's a safety compliance obligation. For most operators, it's also the single biggest operational bottleneck they face.

Think about what that means in practice. Guests check out mid-morning. You drain 1,200 litres, refill from cold and sanitise — then try to reach a guest-ready 40°C before the next arrival. With a conventional electric heater, that reheat can take ten hours, longer still in winter. The maths don't work for a same-day turnaround. Operators face one of four outcomes: a delayed check-in, a lukewarm welcome, a refund or a one-star review.

Compliance Doesn't Have to Mean Compromise

SUPA Heater was built for exactly this problem. At 31kW, it heats or direct fills any hot tub from a cold to 40°C in around an hour, for approximately £5 in gas. HSG 282 compliance becomes a straightforward part of your changeover: drain, clean, refill, heat — done in time for your guests. It works with every tub you already own:

acrylic, wood-fired, inflatable etc. — year-round, even in freezing conditions.

For sites running multiple tubs, the shift is immediate. Changeovers become routine. Staff pressure drops. A hot tub that's consistently hot and demonstrably compliant commands a higher nightly rate — guests pay more for it, return for it and review their experience accordingly.

At £695 delivered inc. VAT, a two-year warranty, a Trustpilot score of 4.9 from 183 independent reviews, and ranked No.1 on Trustpilot in the FMCG category, SUPA Heater makes legal compliance commercially viable. Derry Green, chairman of the Glamping Industry Trade Association and familiar face from BBC's Dragon's Den, says it plainly: "I'd recommend SUPA to anyone in the outdoor hospitality space."

HSG 282 isn't going away. The only question is whether your heating solution makes compliance manageable and profitable — or whether it's costing you guests, reviews and revenue every single changeover.

Isolated retreat, underground and discreet

Reliable, flexible and neat waste water management solutions

A Saniflo lifting station can handle waste water from multiple structures on your caravan, camping or glamping site. Sited underground, you may not see Saniflo at work, but this range of powerful lifting stations gets the job done, pumping up, and along to mains drains, a septic tank or waste treatment plant.

The Saniflo team works with you; from site visits, installation training, technical assistance and first-class aftercare.

Submersible Pumps for flooded areas

The glamping sector operates pretty much all year round in the UK these days. However, the wet start to 2026 – marked by persistent rainfall and storms – has caused significant operational disruptions, surface flooding and saturated ground conditions for many businesses. This has made it difficult for accessing accommodation, maintaining landscaping and ensuring guest comfort. And, of course, you can hardly blame customers for cancelling bookings with the prospect of a soggy staycation.

Site operators are struggling against the elements, but there are ways to mitigate flooded areas and the Environment Agency is now highlighting the use of submersible pumps in the removal of excess water.

Saniflo solutions for floods

Saniflo is best known for being the inventor of the market leading range of Saniflo macerator pumps that discharge black waste from buildings that have no gravity solution. But, did you know that the company also has a huge portfolio of grey water, clearwater and submersible pumps? Designed using over 60 years of Saniflo pump manufacturing expertise, there is a solution for pretty much all water ingress situations.

For pumping water away from the interiors of glamping pods, shower blocks and small buildings a range of small portable submersible pumps can be used. This includes the Sanipuddle model that can drain water away right down to 1mm ensuring facilities are back up and running again quickly and reliably. Pump height is up to 7m and flow rate 5.5m³/h.

The Sanisub range provides slightly more power and flow rate and features automatic operation and the ability to remove particles between 10 and 20mm depending on model. A removable drain and float lock feature means all models can remove excess water down to 5mm. The Sanisub 800 Rainkit model features dual pumps and an aluminium frame, whilst the Sanisub steel is designed to lift away lightly contaminated water and is supplied with an emergency kit containing 15m drain hose with quick couplings and hose support, neatly stored in its own basket with cover.

Of course, clearing water from buildings is just one element of flood mitigation and outdoor areas arguably more problematic. The cast iron Sanipump ZPG 71 from Saniflo's commercial range is a powerful floodwater pump that can be installed directly in a pit, manhole or sump and has a motor that can run fully submerged for continuous operation in a water-filled environment. With free passage up to 40mm it can clear away large quantities of leafy/sandy and standing water into nearby drainage systems or other water courses. It can pump up 31m and has a maximum flow rate of 43m³/h and features both single-phase and three-phase options.

For fast flowing rainwater, the Sanipump SLD700 pumps up to 48m³/h and offers free passage of 50mm thanks to a high performance two-channel impeller. With single and three-phase options this versatile pump can be supplied with a base for installation into a manhole or a coupling.

The full range of submersible pumps, accessories and options can be found on Saniflo's website to ensure the best specification for the job in hand.

CPES: ELECTRICAL DISTRIBUTION SYSTEMS

In a sector where guest experience and operational efficiency must go hand in hand, robust electrical infrastructure is a necessity.

At CPES, we are proud to be market leaders in the design, manufacture and installation of electrical distribution systems for holiday parks, park homes and touring parks across the UK and Europe. With more than four decades of specialist experience, we understand the evolving demands of the leisure and glamping industry – from sustainability targets to smarter energy management.

What sets us apart is our fully bespoke, 360° design and build service. From sourcing high-quality components to manufacturing an extensive range of electrical distribution systems, every solution is tailored to your park's unique layout and operational goals. Our in-house design expertise and flexible production capabilities allow us to deliver systems that are not only compliant and efficient, but future-ready. A particularly hot topic across the industry is metering — and rightly so. As energy costs fluctuate and transparency becomes increasingly important, park operators need greater control. Our comprehensive metering portfolio ranges from read-only solutions for simple monitoring, through to fully integrated self-service pre-payment systems. Whether your priority is back-office accuracy or empowering guests with real-time usage visibility, we provide scalable options that align with your commercial model.

Quality and compliance remain central to everything we do. Our dedicated testing and certification department carries out periodic inspections to ensure systems remain safe, efficient and fully operational. All work is undertaken by qualified electricians and signed off by our NICEIC Qualifying Supervisors, giving you complete confidence and peace of mind.

At CPES, we don't simply supply products — we partner with you to power sustainable growth across your park.

COIR STORE: PREMIUM QUALITY COIR MATTING

Coir flooring products have been used for centuries due to their durability & longevity. Coir is naturally flame resistant. Nevertheless, all our products have been flammability tested & certified by UKAS to BS 5287:1998/BS 4790:1987.

Perfect for bell tents, yurts, tipis and geodesic domes, our range of half-moon mats are the ideal flooring solution to provide a luxury finish to any structure.

Constructed from 100% unbleached & natural Vycome yarns in a Panama weave, each half-moon is hemmed on the circumference edge and double machine-stitched. The mats are reversible weave with no latex backing and are available in 9 sizes from 3.6m to 7m diameter.

For marquees and bigger structures, we currently offer 2 specifications of matting; M4A4 & M2BV3. These are high quality Anjengo or Vycome yarns in Herringbone weave, and 100% Vycome yarns in a Panama weave. These mats are currently available in 9m, 10m and 12m lengths.

Our ethos at Coir Store is to ensure workers are paid fairly for the work they do. For this reason, we deal with a private supplier in India. The supplier obtains the coir yarns from one source, and then takes that to the village cooperatives for coconut matting production. Ultimately the benefits are felt by all in these small communities.

The aims and objectives of Coir Store are:

- To source and supply the highest quality coir products.
- Production workers are paid fairly for their contribution.
- Ensure each enquiry and transaction is dealt with in a fair manner.
- Dispatch orders at the earliest, and to resolve any problems quickly

We welcome early contact from customers so we can fully understand your requirements. This way we can offer advice and a variety of solutions to suit every situation. Coir Store provides free delivery on all orders within the UK mainland, and standard shipping throughout the British Isles and further afield if required.

KUBOTA FC SERIES

Versatile cut performance on large areas

Park Managers looking for a capable, versatile and economic solution to large area cut and collect need look no further than the Kubota FC Series.

These compact, out-front centre-collect mowers deliver exceptional cutting performance, comfort and efficient grass collection – perfect for busy sites and situations where clippings transfer should ideally be minimised.

Continued range expansion sees five models now making up the FC Series, with efficient and reliable engine options ranging from 22-50hp and rotary or flail deck options delivering versatility and the desired high-quality finish. A clean site is guaranteed after every pass thanks to the centre collect suction turbine, for fast and effective grass transfer to the hydraulic high-dump rear collector – ranging from 480 to 1300 litres depending on the model.

Besides the precise, fine-cut finish, operators can also enjoy class-leading features on the FC Series, including HTC™ hydrostatic traction control for safe operation and excellent traction in all conditions – all powered by a fuel-efficient Kubota engine which guarantees high productivity, with minimal noise and disruption.

Maintenance on the Kubota FC Series is also designed to be straight forward, with an easy access removable engine cover and mower deck service position providing quick and simple access to all of the mower's key components.

Protecting value for every hour you work

In addition to Kubota's standard 2-year warranty, the FC series mowers can be further protected with Kubota's flexible extended warranty- Kubota Care, offering up to 5 years extended warranty based on the hours used and is fully transferable when you come to sell.

For more information, visit Kubota's website or contact your local dealer today.
