

BONCOEUR

PORTFOLIO 2026-27

Like an iceberg, the true strength of a vine lies beneath the surface. Every winter it's pruned back, ready for fresh growth as buds burst, leaves unfurl and a new vintage begins. Deep roots, forced through gravel and clay in search of water, draw minerals that shape each wine's unique sense of place. Our portfolio follows the same annual cycle. Strong foundations and long-standing relationships built over the years, each edition introduces carefully selected new wines alongside trusted favourites, ensuring our range continues to grow, evolve and flourish with every vintage.

WELCOME...

I am delighted to introduce our latest wine portfolio representing another exciting year of discovery. In this edition, we have introduced more than 20 new producers from Chablis, the Rhône Valley, Bordeaux, Alsace, Champagne, Sicily as well as Portugal, Hungary, Spain, South Africa and New Zealand. Our aim has always been to offer wines with genuine character, outstanding value and, above all, that all-important drinkability factor, which is too often overlooked in today's wine trade.

Portugal is somewhere we're particularly excited about. As more of our customers return from holidays having discovered its remarkable wines, there's no doubt it's becoming one of Europe's most exciting wine countries. Distinctive indigenous grape varieties, excellent quality, and incredible value; we believe Portugal today is where Italy was 20 years ago.

Putting this portfolio together is always a team effort, and I'd like to thank everyone at Bon Coeur for their passion, expertise, and commitment. From buying and logistics to customer service and deliveries, every member of the team plays a part in ensuring we provide a service we're proud to put our name to. A special thank you must go to Andrew Ray, whose enthusiasm and dedication throughout the year has helped strengthen relationships with our producers around the world, while uncovering exciting new wineries, hidden gems, and smart buying opportunities that allow us to continue to offer exceptional value for money.

How time flies, we've now been based at Moor Park for 11 years! It has become the heart of our business, allowing us to take advantage of on-site bond, offer greater efficiencies and improved availability, together with the personal service our customers have come to expect. If you're passing, do pop in. We're just five minutes from Scotch Corner (Junction 53 of the A1) and only two minutes from the A66. The kettle is always on, and it's a pleasure to welcome customers old and new.

A big thank you for your continued trust and support. Whether you've been with us for decades or have only recently discovered Bon Coeur, we're delighted to have you with us and share our passion for wine with you.

Here's to another year of great wine. Cheers!

WHY CHOOSE BON COEUR?

At Bon Coeur we believe buying wine should be a pleasure, not a gamble. With so much choice, and not enough guidance, it's hard to know what to buy and who to trust. We can help you!

We are a proudly independent, wholesale wine merchant with over 30 years of experience, offering carefully selected wines, honest advice, genuine pricing and a personal service you won't find at the supermarket or on an impersonal online platform.

Every bottle tells a story, and we want to be the ones who tell it. Over the past 32 years of travelling and tasting, we've built many long-lasting relationships with winemakers and producers across the globe. Our wine portfolio is an eclectic testament to these relationships, and the stories that go with them; each wine is chosen for quality, character and value, plus that elusive Bon Coeur drinkability factor.

We are a hands-on, enthusiastic team who pride ourselves on building real relationships with our customers, and we're honoured to have received numerous awards and positive testimonials to this over the years. We're always available to help, whether you're looking for something specific, pairing food with wine as well as planning a big celebratory event. We're just a phone call or an email away!

“Real people – excellent service. BCFW are a rare company in that they answer the phone and you get to speak to a real person. This was once the norm but now it rarely happens.”

– Paul R

By sourcing directly from most of our producers, we guarantee provenance and complete peace of mind. Whether you're laying down fine wine in our on-site bonded warehouse or enjoying everyday bottles at home, every case is handled with the utmost care by our dedicated team. From vineyard to cellar, and from store to door, quality and trust are at the heart of everything we do.

When you buy from a family-owned and run business like ours, you're supporting real people, not shareholders. Every order is genuinely appreciated, we want you to have the best possible wine experience, as it helps our independent business to grow, invest in our team and do what we love. We care about every bottle, every detail and every customer, it's what sets us apart.

WINE TRENDS 2026

INSIGHT TODAY. POUR TOMORROW.

Wine continues to evolve alongside the way we drink, dine and live. From a growing appetite for authenticity and discovery to a renewed focus on quality and provenance, the world of wine is constantly changing.

Here are five trends gaining momentum in 2026, and five that are steadily losing ground.

ON THE RISE

LESS, BUT BETTER...

Consumers are drinking less but choosing better; quality, provenance and the story behind the bottle matter more than ever as wine lovers look to make every occasion special.

LIGHTER STYLES & LOWER ALCOHOL

Freshness, elegance and balance are increasingly popular. Naturally lower alcohol wines, vibrant whites and lighter reds are finding favour with a new generation of drinkers.

EXPLORING BEYOND THE CLASSICS

Curiosity is driving discovery. Consumers are looking beyond traditional regions and familiar varieties, embracing exciting new origins and indigenous grapes that offer individuality, character, and value.

SUSTAINABILITY BECOMES AN EXPECTATION

Organic, regenerative and low-intervention practices are no longer just a point of difference; they are becoming the standard. There's more focus on understand how wines are made and the impact behind every bottle.

SPARKLING FOR EVERY DAY

Sparkling wine is moving beyond celebrations. From Champagne and English Sparkling to Crémant and various fizz from around the world, bubbles are increasingly enjoyed as an aperitif, alongside food, or simply as a moment to savour.

CHANGING TASTES

OVER-RELIANCE ON DISCOUNTING

The race to the bottom is losing appeal. Buyers are increasingly looking beyond price alone; recognising the true value of quality and authenticity.

STYLE OVER SUBSTANCE

Buying for the label rather than the liquid is fading. Today's drinkers are searching for genuine stories, character and wines that offer a sense of discovery instead of drinking big brands.

BIG, BOLD & OVER-OAKED WINES

Powerful, high-alcohol styles with heavy oak influence are losing favour as tastes shift towards fresh, balanced and food-friendly wines.

MAINSTREAM GRAPES

Classic grapes such as will always have their place, but curiosity is growing. Consumers are increasingly seeking out distinctive, native varieties and regions that offer something different.

STATUS SYMBOL

The days of buying wine purely for prestige are changing. Customers are choosing bottles for enjoyment, experience and connection rather than simply for recognition or investment potential.

“The beauty of wine lies in its ability to evolve. New generations, new regions, and new ideas continue to shape the way we discover and enjoy it. This ensures there is always another bottle waiting to be explored!”

For centuries, the world of wine has been shaped by a handful of iconic regions.

Bordeaux, Burgundy, Tuscany, Champagne, and Rioja have become household names, synonymous with quality, tradition, and prestige. However, the modern wine drinker is becoming increasingly curious; they're looking beyond familiar labels and regions in the search for authenticity, value, and wines that tell a story.

This shift has opened the door for a new generation of wine regions and producers to take centre stage. From historic areas being rediscovered, to emerging regions producing exceptional wines with a new perspective, some of the most exciting discoveries today are coming from places that may not always be the first names that spring to mind.

At the heart of our portfolio is a passion for finding these hidden gem wines that offer something different, whether that's a unique sense of place or great value. Our search often takes us beyond the obvious, following recommendations from trusted industry contacts, tasting extensively, and building relationships with producers who share our values.

Right on our doorstep, English sparkling wine has experienced remarkable growth over recent years, with the UK's cool climate and chalky soils proving to be ideal for producing traditional-method sparkling wines. While the category is still relatively young compared to Champagne, quality has improved dramatically, and English producers are now gaining international recognition.

One producer that stood out during our search was Exton Park, based in Hampshire. Their unique approach immediately caught our attention, particularly their focus on a 60-acre single vineyard site. By concentrating on one exceptional location, Exton Park can express the character of its land with remarkable precision and consistency.

What impressed us most was the balance between quality and value. English Sparkling Wine is often positioned at a premium price point; however, Exton Park delivers the refinement and complexity expected from the category, while remaining one of the best-value examples we've tasted. Plenty of pear, apple and tarte tatin and richer brioche overtones balanced by a delicate mousse and fine finish.

Their wines showcase everything that makes English sparkling exciting: elegance, freshness, and a strong connection to their surroundings. As the reputation of English wine continues to grow, Hampshire is a region we believe will become increasingly recognised on the world stage.

When many people think of Bordeaux, they immediately picture medium-bodied, age-worthy red wines from famous appellations and prestigious estates. While these wines have rightly earned their reputation, Bordeaux has another side that deserves more attention: its exceptional white wines.

During our En Primeur tastings, we discovered a selection of Bordeaux whites that challenged the traditional perception of the region. Wines such as G de Guiraud Blanc, Clos des Lunes 'Lune d'Argent' and Château Pique Caillou Blanc showcased a fresher, more modern expression of Bordeaux, highlighting another side of the region beyond its celebrated reds.

Made predominantly from Sauvignon Blanc and Sémillon, these wines combine vibrant freshness with the texture and complexity that Bordeaux is known for. Think lemon, peach and apricot underpinned by zippy acidity and abundance of white pepper spice on the finish. They offer character and excellent value for money and are often made by some of the region's more famous names!

Jamie discovered the estate while tasting their QMF Rosé Blush; the house pour at the prestigious Conrad Hotel in Quinta do Lago. The wine immediately captured their attention with its freshness, quality, and sheer drinkability factor. Full of summer berry fruit, bright acidity and mineral finish. What's not to love?

That initial discovery led to deeper research, with Andrew visiting the winery to see the operation first-hand. His visit confirmed what Jamie and Sam had first experienced in the glass: a producer with passion, ambition, and a commitment to producing authentic wines. We were delighted to secure UK exclusivity for Quinta da Mata Fidalga QMF Rosé Blush, allowing us to bring this wine to our customers and share a producer that may not yet be widely known, yet has all the qualities we look for in a partner.

Sicily has become one of Italy's most dynamic wine regions, attracting attention for its diverse landscapes, native grape varieties, and ability to produce wines with true personality and sense of place.

Our discovery of Birgi came through a trusted wine trade contact who shared a recommendation that quickly caught our attention. These introductions are often where some of the most exciting discoveries begin, through tried and trusted relationships built over decades.

We contacted them and found a producer that reflected many of the qualities we seek; authenticity, quality, and a strong connection to their region. A focus on native varieties was paramount and their Grillo, Catarratto, Nero d'Avola and Nerello Mascalese do not disappoint. Sicily is a region that continues to evolve, and one we believe is best discovered through Birgi.

The most exciting part of our wine journey is that there is always something new to discover. Established regions and producers will always have their place, however, the future of wine is being shaped by people who are challenging expectations, reviving forgotten areas, and creating wines that reflect a changing world.

Our role is to search beyond the obvious; finding producers with passion, character, and a story worth sharing. Because sometimes the next great wine discovery is hiding just beyond the classics...

These discoveries reminded us that even the world's most established wine regions can still offer surprises. Sometimes, looking beyond the classics doesn't mean travelling further afield, it can also be looking at familiar regions through a different lens.

Sherry is one of wine's most overlooked drinks categories. Often associated with a dusty bottle of Harvey's Bristol Cream tucked away in the family drinks cupboard at Christmas, it's been misunderstood for far too long. The reality is that Sherry offers incredible diversity, from fresh, elegant Finos to complex Amontillados and rich Olorosos, as well as sweet Pedro Ximénez.

Our buyer, Andrew, has long been an advocate for Sherry from his time living in Spain, and has a simple belief: people don't dislike Sherry, they just need to find the right style for them. Over the past five years, the category has seen a resurgence and is growing rapidly in popularity in the UK, with renewed interest from seasoned drinkers wanting premium fortified wines, as well as younger generations discovering artisanal fortified wines through craft cocktails.

As part of our commitment to championing exciting, characterful wines, we have revamped our Sherry (and Vermouth) range to include stalwart producers such as Lustau and Hidalgo as well as pioneers like Equipo Navazos. Their exceptional ranges showcase everything this historic region has to offer combined with a contemporary outlook, proving that Sherry deserves a place on your table far beyond the festive season.

Neighbouring Portugal has become one of Europe's most exciting wine producing countries, with consumers increasingly discovering its diverse regions and indigenous grape varieties. While areas such as the Douro and Vinho Verde have gained international recognition, Bairrada remains a region of huge potential.

Our journey to Quinta da Mata Fidalga began in a rather unexpected way during a summer holiday in the Algarve. Sam and Deciding to start a wine collection can be both exciting and overwhelming. Many clients ask “Where do I start?”. It can be a bit of a minefield, from understanding vintages and wine regions to deciding what to drink and what to lay down. At Bon Coeur we make this process simple, enjoyable and personal; a plan that reflects your tastes and goals.

Our experienced team is at the heart of what we do. We work closely with you, staying in touch, offering updates on your collection, market insights, exclusive fine wine releases and special wine collection club offers as well as invites to private tastings. Choose from either an annual or monthly subscription to suit your budget, and let us help you further understand wine and enjoy your wine collection journey.

Whether you’re collecting for pleasure, investment or future celebrations, our team led by Founder James Goodhart offers expert guidance on choosing the right wines. As you would expect, we focus on quality, provenance and long-term goals, from leading wine producers to rising stars, we are committed to bring you the very best in wine.

Most importantly, we’ll help you define a strategy that suits your budget and goals, then curate a bespoke pathway to achieve your wine collection. If you keep your collection in bond, you will be able to come and see your wines in situ in our on-site bonded warehouse, collect a few cases to drink from your collection and pick up some rosé for your house guests.

If you’re ready to start or simply want some advice on your current wine collection, do get in touch with James, or Ronald Buchanan; they’d love to help.

 It’s been so refreshing being able to work with Jamie and Ron, I now have a fully working wine collection, that’s a real reflection of myself. It’s such a pleasure sharing this with family and friends. Everyone is enjoying my new wine journey!

IN BOND STORAGE

Whether you are keeping wine as an investment or laying it down to drink; the way you store is paramount. The most important factors are to keep the wine at a constant temperature, in dry conditions with good relative humidity making sure it is secure. We are delighted to offer our clients wine storage services both In Bond and Duty Paid.

Our dedicated bonded wine warehouse is the perfect solution to your wine storage needs. Located at Moor Park, our purpose built, state-of-the-art, temperature-controlled warehouse is essential for fine wine storage. To support this core service, we have invested in a dedicated team to deliver all your storage requirements with both a personal and proactive approach.

If you would like to relocate your holdings to Moor Park from another bonded warehouse, please contact us for information on moving/consolidating your wines, our storage charges and services offered.

 I have been really impressed with the new fine wine storage facility at Moor Park it’s a real credit to you. I really enjoyed seeing my bonded wine in situ, it’s been a real help to consolidate my wine collection under one roof, thank you to the team for making the move go so smoothly and I look forward to collecting a few cases in person soon!

WINE LIFE WITH ANDREW RAY

Ask Andrew about wine and you'd better have time to sit down. Not because he'll bore you, quite the opposite; once he starts talking about a brilliant Burgundy producer or an underrated Spanish region, the conversation has a habit of running away with itself in the best possible way. As our Wine Buyer and in-house Educator, Andrew brings equal parts expertise and infectious enthusiasm to everything he does. This is his wine life. We think you're going to enjoy it.

Wine Epiphany

Tasting La Rioja Alta Viña Ardanza 2001 Reserva Especial with Winemaker Julio Sáenz at the estate. That was my wine epiphany; a total wow moment and the glass that set me on my vinous journey!

Word of Wine Wisdom

Always bring a better bottle than you think you'll need; no-one ever complains the wine is too good!

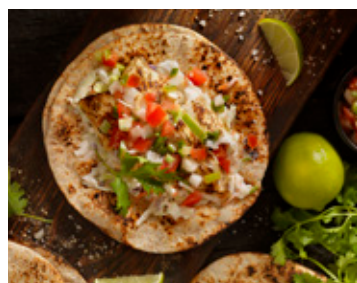

Perfect Wine Moment

Sharing a bottle of AF Gros Vosne-Romanée Aux Réas 1990 (my birth year!) with some good friends was a perfect wine moment. I love trying mature wines, especially from producers we deal with, it's a real learning journey. Seeing how the wine developed over the course of the evening, was a real treat.

Favourite Food Destination

San Sebastián in the Spanish Basque Country has been a long been a firm favourite of mine; however, I'd have to say now I'd head to the total opposite end of the country to Seville instead. Want to know why? Read our insider's guide on page 72.

A Match Made in Heaven

Kabinett Riesling and Mexican Baja Fish tacos. I love a good Riesling with its fresh, crisp acidity to cut through the fish and touch of residual sugar that balances the smoky, spicy chipotle sauce. Absurdly good.

Dinner Party Guest

The original TV Chef: Keith Floyd. His passion for food, wine, and travel from his series made me want to ultimately study languages, travel, and eat... and I think he'd have an interesting story or two to tell over a few glasses of wine!

Underrated Wine Country

I'd have to say Portugal. Although it's certainly becoming more popular, what's exciting is how many native grapes and styles of wine there are still to be discovered. Look no further than our new rosé from Barraida: QMF Blush!

French Country

SHOP

French Country offers a diverse range of fabulous quality wines at a great price. Let the famous 'Mistral' wind guide you from the Ardèche down toward Provence, where vineyards nestled along the coast bask in glorious sunshine reaching optimum ripeness. Further southwest you will discover the Languedoc-Roussillon; a historical coastal area which extends through the Pyrénées mountain range all the way to French Catalonia on the Spanish border.

This area is highly influenced by the Mediterranean Sea, where the cool sea breezes help regulate temperatures in the vineyard. There is a wide variety of both soils and grape varietals, which when combined, make French Country a very exciting area to discover.

DOMAINE DE MONTMARIN – LANGUEDOC

Domaine de Montmarin is owned by Philippe de Bertier and located amongst the rolling hills that run down to the Mediterranean in southern France. The Domaine covers around 350 hectares of land with over 120 hectares of planted vines. Charismatic and charming, Philippe makes exceptionally good and well-presented varietal Vin du Pays wines. We have a personal soft spot for Philippe's wines, having featured in our wine portfolio for over 20 years, praise indeed! Stylistically their Rosé could easily be mistaken for a Provence Rosé, their fresh whites and approachable red wines outperform many Vin de Pays wines of a higher price, like a loyal, old dog, not to be underestimated.

VIGNERONS ARDECHOIS – ARDÈCHE

Vignerons Ardechois is a pioneering cooperative in the southern Ardeche region of France. Founded in the 1960's, it is the culmination of 14 wineries, 6000-hectares of vines and many collaborating winemaking families. Situated between the Rhone Valley and the Cevennes Mountains, vines benefit from a Mediterranean climate with tempering diurnal range, producing vibrant and energetic wines. Their commitment to quality and sustainability (majority of vineyards HVE certified) has garnered many international awards. Now the next generation are embracing the old and introducing new winemaking techniques to produce good quality wines that stand out from the crowd.

WINE BUYER'S NOTE

This is the estates flagship wine coming from chalk and flint (silex) soils producing a wines with real aromatic finesse and intensity. Expect an abundance of zesty lemon citrus and crunchy green apple with a flinty overtone. Rounded almost creamy texture from the lees then gives way to racy acidity that provides impressive purity and tension and further citrus and tropical fruit. Lots of white pepper spice and flintiness on the long, linear finish.

DOMAINE HUBERT BROCHARD

Domaine Hubert Brochard produces classically styled Sancerre from their family-owned winery in Chavignol. Aimée Brochard inherited her father's vines in the early 1900s, growing grapes and raising goats to produce cheese with the help of her husband Hubert. The Domaine is now run by the fifth and sixth generation of Brochard's with 152 acres under vine across Sancerre, Pouilly-Fumé, and Vin de Pays du Val de Loire. Today, brothers Daniel, Jean-François, and Benoît Brochard run the estate with the help of Daniel's daughters, Caroline and Anne-Sophie, producing excellent wines that express their region's terroir.

Rhône Valley

Located in South-East France, the Rhône Valley stretches almost 150 miles from Vienne close to the Alps all the way to Nîmes in the south, near the Mediterranean Sea. Naturally, for a winemaking region of such size there are many climatic, geographical and geological differences from the steep-sloping, terraced hillsides of Cornas, Saint-Joseph, Hermitage and Crozes-Hermitage in the north to the flatter, pebble-dominated plains of Châteauneuf-du-Pape, Gigondas and Vacqueyras in the south.

From single varietal Syrah (a.k.a Shiraz) fine wines to a focus on specific blends made from Grenache, Cinsault, and Mourvèdre for reds as well as Viognier, Marsanne and Roussane for whites, we highly recommend re-visiting the Rhône Valley.

WHITE BURGUNDY

The heartland for White Burgundy lies in the Côte de Beaune, where interest has always been focused on the famous villages of Meursault, Chassagne-Montrachet, Puligny-Montrachet and Corton. In recent years as prices continue to rise, areas such as Saint-Aubin, Savigny-les-Beaune and Pernand-Vergelesses have improved both in status recognition and quality. Further south in the Mâconnais, Pouilly-Fuissé and Saint-Véran as well as Montagny in the Côte Chalonnaise, all offer great value for money and are definitely worth the detour to discover.

RED BURGUNDY

The emphasis for Red Burgundy is in the Côte de Nuits around the villages of Gevrey-Chambertin as well as Nuits-Saint-Georges and Corton. There is increasing popularity (and price) in both Chambolle-Musigny and Vosne-Romanée due to their charming and luscious nature. In addition, there is also heightened interest in the communes of Volnay, Pommard, Savigny-les-Beaune and Saint-Romain in the Côte de Beaune, which are becoming more attractive and fashionable. Don't overlook the Gamay based region of Beaujolais in the far south where villages such as Fleurie, Brouilly and Morgon seriously over-deliver in terms of value and quality.

CHABLIS

Chablis is geographically and climatically closer to Champagne than Burgundy, and as a result produces a leaner style of Chardonnay with usually less emphasis on oak. The combination of a cool climate as well as the famous Kimmeridgian limestone soil, creates a range of wine styles from fresh and pure Petit Chablis and Chablis to linear and precise Premier Cru and Grand Cru Chablis.

SAUMAIZE-MICHELIN (POUILLY-FUISSÉ)

Saumaize-Michelin was created in 1977, when Roger Saumaize received 4-hectares of vines in Vergisson (the heart of the Pouilly-Fuissé appellation). A year later in 1978, he fully took over his father's estate. Over the subsequent decades along with his wife Christine (whose maiden surname is Michelin, hence the winery name), they have naturally increased vineyard holdings throughout Mâcon, Saint-Véran, and Pouilly-Fuissé to its current holding of 9.5-hectares. The estate has been producing wines according to biodynamic principles since 2005, and as a result, the old vines (40 to 45 years old) are naturally low-yielding and disease-resistant, resulting in wines with increased complexity.

Wine critics and writers such as Neal Martin (Vinous), William Kelley (Wine Advocate), and Allen Meadows (Burghound) confidently place Saumaize-Michelin alongside iconic Pouilly-Fuissé producers such as Jean-Marie Guffens-Heynen and Daniel Barraud. We have been loyal supporters of Saumaize-Michelin for several years.

CÔTE DE BEAUNE

Famous for Meursault, Puligny-Montrachet and Chassagne-Montrachet as well as all the white Grand Cru vineyards of Le Montrachet and Corton Charlemagne but more importantly some of what we are describing as the 'Petits Villages' of Pernand-Vergelesses, Savigny-lès-Beaune, Saint-Romain, Saint-Aubin and Santenay to name a few. With the increasing demand for Fine Wine, these special relationships formed over many years are how we are able to offer our customers Burgundian hidden gems from the region. Corton is the only Grand Cru for the red, however, some believe that Pommard and Volnay should have some Grand Cru.

GÉRARD THOMAS (SAINT-AUBIN)

Gérard has been in control of the Domaine since 1982, and is now helped by the next generation and his two daughters; Isabelle and Anne-Sophie. He is without doubt one of the finest Saint-Aubin producers, where his Premier Cru 'Les Murgers des Dents de Chien' can easily rival the greatest wines from Meursault, Puligny as well as Chassagne-Montrachet. We actually believe that Gérard may be the best source of Côte de Beaune in the whole appellation.

CLAUDIE JOBARD (RULLY)

Claudie Jobard boasts a proud viticultural and vinicultural heritage as her mother, Laurence, was the head winemaker at Joseph Drouhin for many years, and her father, Roger, founded one of the region's top vine nurseries. Roger developed the family Domaine in the 1970s through buying and planting land in Rully, which has now come to fruition as most of the vines are over 40 years-old and are producing some excellent wines. Claudie took charge of the estate in 2002, after graduating from her oenology degree, and changed the direction of the Domaine by stopping selling to négociants, and instead started a new venture by bottling wines under her own name.

WINE BUYER'S NOTE

This Bourgogne is a wonderful wine from a single hectare plot of 80 to 100-year-old vines in Pommard on low-lying land below the Château. A concentrated, juicy and well-structured Pinot Noir crafted in homage to all the hardworking women at the Domaine, and aptly named after Claudie's maternal grandmother: Emily-Anne.

CAPUANO-FERRERI (SANTENAY)

Domaine Capuano-Ferreri is a fine 8-hectare estate with extensive holdings in both Santenay as well as Chassagne-Montrachet. The estate is run by John Capuano who increases production, when possible (to 12 hectares), with the purchasing of grapes via long-term contracts with trusted growers. The wines are all vinified in barrels at the magnificent cellars in the centre of Santenay and, until very recently, over two thirds of the production was sold purely in France. We are therefore delighted to include Domaine Capuano-Ferreri to our portfolio.

The Chardonnay for this Bourgogne Blanc is a combination of four parcels that total roughly 2-hectares from 75-year-old vines throughout Puligny-Montrachet and Meursault. Fresh and intense with zingy, vivid acidity that emphasises the seamless tension, purity, and poise. If tasted blind, it could easily be mistaken for a young Puligny-Montrachet!

JOSEPH PASCAL (PULIGNY-MONTRACHET)

A true family affair as the Domaine started in the 1950s when Jean Pascal (who worked at Domaine Leflaive at the time) started buying up parcels of land with his wife Céline. Later in 1970s, their son Jean-Luc joined them and formed Domaine Jean Pascal et Fils, followed by their son, Jean-Luc, and his wife Alexandra in the early 2000s. Fast-forward to today and the Pascal estate is now named after the next generation: Joseph Pascal. Their 15-hectares of vines makes them one of the larger properties in Puligny-Montrachet, however, there is no compromise on quality with the crop now being vinified and bottled at the Domaine.

Sylvain Bzikot's grandfather fled Poland and arrived in Burgundy just before the Second World War, and in time, steadily built up the Domaine in the post-war years when land was plentiful and cheap. Sylvain and his wife, Béatrice, now tend 14-hectares of vines in Puligny-Montrachet, including the Premier Cru sites 'Les Folatières' and 'Les Perrières', as well as the famous lieu-dit 'La Rousselle'. For a long time, most of the crop was sold in bulk to négociants, until Sylvain's arrival in the 1990s, when he took the decision to bottle under the name Domaine Bzikot Père et Fils. They also produce wines from grapes purchased and jointly managed from trusted, long-term contracted growers through their négociant label: Sylvain Bzikot.

WINE BUYER'S NOTE

This is one of our favourite Meursault Villages from Vincent, made up of three lieux-dits or specific parcels: 'Les Vireuils', 'Les Crotots' and 'Meix Chavaux'. The vines were planted in 1925, 1926, 1992, 1998 and 2001 so combine concentration and structure of the old vines with freshness and vibrant fruit of the younger ones. Expect aromas of lemon, white peach, and mandarin fused with delicate toasted oak spice. Luscious and seductive palate thanks to the creamy, rounded texture flowing into a similar citrus and white stone fruit core wrapped up by warming white pepper spice. All off-set by a delightful streak of mineral, oyster shell-infused acidity providing intensity and focus. A marvellous Meursault.

CÔTE DE NUITS

The Côte de Nuits forms the northern half of the famous Côte d'Or ('golden slope'), and stretches for roughly 20km from Dijon in the north to Corgoloin in the south. Pinot Noir is the main grape variety and crafts a vast range of styles from the elegant and refined Chambolle-Musigny and Vosne-Romanée, to the more structured and robust wines of Gevrey-Chambertin, Morey-St-Denis and Vougeot.

MAISON ROCHE DE BELLENE (BEAUNE)

Few names have shaped modern Burgundy quite like Nicolas Potel. The son of the legendary Gérard Potel, owner of Domaine de la Pousse d'Or in Volnay, winemaking was woven into Nicolas' life from an early age. Following Gérard's untimely death, he continued the family legacy before forging his own path; first establishing Domaine de Bellene in 2005, followed by the négociant arm, Maison Roche de Bellene in 2008. His philosophy was clear: to champion old-vine vineyards and produce authentic, terroir-driven Burgundies of exceptional purity via an enviable portfolio spanning the Côte d'Or's finest appellations. He earned worldwide acclaim for wines that combined precision, elegance and remarkable transparency of place and was widely regarded as one of Burgundy's most influential and respected winemakers, who sadly passed away a few years ago.

HOMAGE TO NICOLAS

Nicolas Potel was one of my winemaking heroes, and his passing last year was a profound loss for Burgundy and for everyone fortunate enough to know him. Over more than two decades, I had the privilege of knowing Nicolas in a professional then personal sense, seeing first-hand his unwavering pursuit of purity and finesse in crafting some of the region's most expressive wines. His influence on modern Burgundy is immeasurable. It is therefore a privilege to offer a small selection of his wines today; beautifully mature bottles that stand as a fitting tribute to an extraordinary winemaker and a remarkable friend. His spirit lives on in his wines.

AMBROISE (PREMEAUX-PRISSEY/NUITS-SAINT-GEORGES)

Bertrand Ambroise took over the Domaine from his father-in-law in 1987, working extensively and gradually expanding holdings to its current size of 17 hectares. The estate is now run by Bertrand's children, François and Ludivine, who have been developing the winery's organic philosophy and were certified by Ecocert in 2013.

François is a rising star having won the Côtes de Nuits Young Winemaker of the Year twice – in 2020 and 2022 – and is excelling in crafting refined, elegant wines. This Nuits-Saint-Georges 2022 is a no-brainer thanks to wonderful fruit purity, silky tannins and focused finish. Bravo!

Beaujolais lies to the south of Burgundy, covering 20,000+ hectares of vines between Mâcon and Lyon. It is predominantly planted with Gamay producing red wines from fresh, fruity and vibrant Beaujolais and Beaujolais villages, to more concentrated and complex wines from the Cru vineyards of Brouilly, Saint-Amour, Fleurie and Morgon.

Bordeaux

Thanks to its maritime climate, temperate winters and long, warm summers, Bordeaux is capable of producing some of the greatest wines and has often been referred to as the centre of the Fine Wine world. There is a wealth of diversity in terroir over the 120,000 hectares of vines divided by the Garonne and Dordogne rivers, where production is predominantly suited to red. Nevertheless, there are also fantastic whites from Entre-deux-Mers, as well as excellent sweet wines from Sauternes and Barsac that are both well worth discovering.

On the 'Right Bank' most of the wines are Merlot dominated in areas such as Saint-Émilion and Pomerol, who steal the headlines for their ripeness and approachability. However, appellations such as Sainte-Radegonde, Côte de Castillon, and Lalande-de-Pomerol can overdeliver in terms of quality and price.

On the 'Left Bank' wines are mainly Cabernet Sauvignon dominated blends with the addition of Merlot, Cabernet Franc and Petit Verdot. The communes of Saint-Estèphe, Pauillac, Saint-Julien, Margaux as well as Pessac-Léognan take centre stage though don't overlook Cru Bourgeois and Petits Châteaux properties, as they are sources of some of the best value Clarets.

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Gonzague de Lambert CHÂTEAU DE FERRAND

Describe yourself in three words

Passionate, bold, a man of terroir.

Wine is literally in your DNA as your family have owned Château de Sales in Pomerol since 1578. Did that heritage feel like a gift or a weight when you were growing up?

I see it as a true privilege, a gift. I had the opportunity to first watch my grandfather, then my father, devote themselves to the stewardship of this remarkable estate. Some of my most treasured childhood memories were shaped here, alongside my sisters and cousins. It was here that I discovered this profession and that learned humility in the face of nature. Above all, it was here that I discovered the joy of tasting wine and sharing it with family and friends. It has been an immense source of happiness.

You made the jump across the border to Saint-Émilion and Château de Ferrand, why?

Before that, I spent twelve years in Chile, from 2005 to 2017. I worked as a viticulture and winemaking consultant before teaming up with Patrick Valette to create Viña VIK. We planted nearly 300 hectares of vineyards, built a stunning winery following an architectural competition, and later opened a hotel in the middle of the vineyards. Today, VIK continues to grow and go from strength to strength. When I came back to France, I made the conscious decision not to join my family's estate. Then, in July 2017, I met Pauline and Philippe Chandon-Moët, that meeting convinced me to join de Ferrand and help them develop this wonderful estate.

Château de Ferrand sits on one of the highest points in Saint-Émilion at 100 metres above sea level, on a clay-limestone plateau in Saint-Hippolyte. How much does that unique terroir set you apart from your neighbours?

First, de Ferrand is a 42-hectare estate in one single block surrounding a beautiful 18th-century chartreuse. The vineyard benefits from a truly unique terroir on Saint-Émilion's limestone plateau, with a breeze that comes through every summer afternoon, bringing welcome freshness. The combination of clay and limestone gives the wines a real identity and a distinctive character. I often say that de Ferrand has the taste of its terroir; that's especially true for our 2025 vintage, where the limestone signature really comes through on the finish.

You've been steadily increasing Cabernet Franc to almost 30% of the vineyard. Is that a response to climate change, a stylistic choice, or both?

Above all, it's a technical choice. Cabernet Franc is a wonderful grape variety, especially when it's planted on soils that suit it perfectly, and that's exactly the case here at de Ferrand. The combination of Cabernet Franc, limestone soils, ideal exposure and a gentle slope that provides excellent drainage allows us to produce Cabernet Franc of remarkable finesse. It brings freshness, precision and elegance, complementing the velvety texture of the Merlot beautifully. I truly believe Cabernet Franc is a grape variety with a great future on our limestone soils.

The estate has been a sustainability pioneer in Saint-Émilion since 2012. What drove that commitment so early, and how much has the journey towards organic viticulture changed the wines?

Our commitment to protecting the environment has always been part of de Ferrand's identity. When Baron Bich bought the estate in 1978, one of his first decisions was to bury all the surrounding power lines to avoid any visual or noise pollution. Today, the estate is certified Terra Vitis, HVE 3 and ISO 14001. In 2021, we began our first trials in organic farming and have since been certified organic from the 2024 vintage. Converting to organic agriculture has enabled us to develop a deeper, more intimate knowledge of our vineyard. It involves an increased presence on the ground, which has prompted us to adopt a more precise, considered approach in both our daily work and our intervention decisions.

The estate was awarded Grand Cru Classé status in 2012. A classification that was hard won through serious investment and a complete transformation of the estate. What's the next step for the property?

Our leitmotiv has always been the quality of the wine. We continue to invest in the vineyard and in renewing our vines, because that's the foundation of making a great wine. We've also just completed the renovation of our winery facilities, giving us greater flexibility and precision in everything we do. Another key focus for us is building long-term relationships with our customers. We travel regularly to our export markets to meet with clients, host tastings and masterclasses, and introduce our wines directly to consumers. We also welcome more than 10,000 visitors to the estate every year, which is a wonderful opportunity to share what we do and create a direct connection with wine lovers.

Where do you love to eat in Saint-Émilion, Bordeaux, or anywhere in France?

Saint-Émilion offers a great selection of restaurants, but two of my favourite places are Caffe Cuisine in Branne, and Le Dépôt in Libourne. They both serve honest, flavourful food made with outstanding ingredients. And, of course, they each have an excellent wine list, which makes the experience even better!

Sparkling Wine

There are several methods for creating sparkling wines such as Tank, Transfer, Ancestral, and Traditional. The most well-known and appreciated is, of course, the Traditional Method (also referred to as Méthode Champenoise); thanks to its secondary fermentation and ageing in bottle creating rich and complex sparkling wines with a delicate mousse. Cava, Cap Classique, Crémant, Champagne, as well as some English Sparkling wines, are great examples of this style.

The Tank Method (also known as Charmat Method), on the other hand differs due to the secondary fermentation taking place in a large tank for a short amount of time. It is then bottled with no ageing to produce light, vibrant, and more fruit forward sparkling wines. Prosecco, Lambrusco, Asti, and some English Sparkling wines are brilliant examples of this category.

There's certainly a type of sparkling wine for everyone to enjoy; discover your new favourite today!

Situated in North-East of France some 90 miles east of Paris, the Champagne region boasts 34,300 hectares of vines tended by almost 16,000 growers! Unsurprisingly, with an area of such size there are two distinct climatic influences (oceanic and continental) as well as geological (chalk, marl, and limestone) as well as topographical variations (12-59% slope gradient) between the five main sub-zones of the Côte des Blancs, Côte de Sézanne, Montagne de Reims, Vallée de la Marne and the Aube, which each produce unique styles of Champagne.

The main grape varieties are, of course, Chardonnay, Pinot Noir, and Pinot Meunier with some smaller, artisan producers who use Pinot Blanc, Pinot Gris, Petit Meslier, and Arbane. All Champagne undergo the time and tested traditional method production, by which there are two fermentations; the first in tank, and the second in bottle, to create this classic fizz we all know and love. Whether you prefer Non-Vintage or Vintage, Rosé or Blanc de Blancs, or even Prestige Cuvée... there's a Champagne for everyone to enjoy!

JACQUES BONCOEUR – VILLE-SUR-ARCE

Our family Champagne, Jacques Boncoeur, was registered with the Champagne Board (CIVC) in 2001 and is produced exclusively for us by one of the leading co-operatives in the region. A blend of Pinot Noir and Chardonnay, hand-selected by our founder James Goodhart, is aged for a minimum of three years aging on lees (much more than the fifteen months AOC requirement) to ensure the perfect conditions to produce a complex, yet elegant Champagne. No surprise it's our best-selling Champagne, which has won many awards and received critical acclaim from acclaimed wine writers such as Joanna Simon and Jancis Robinson MW!

England

Wine grape cultivation in the UK goes back to Roman times, however, the cold, wet climate has always been a major hurdle to producing wines of significant quality. Thankfully, the English wine industry has undergone a sizeable revolution in the last fifty years, and can now proudly claim to be a global contender, particularly when it comes to Sparkling wine. The classic varietals of Pinot Noir, Pinot Meunier, and Chardonnay are used to create traditional method sparkling wines, made in the same way as those from Champagne. Good quality red, white and rose still wines are also crafted from Pinot Noir, Chardonnay, Sauvignon Blanc, and Pinot Gris, as well as lesser known varietals such as Sylvaner and Bacchus; England's alternative to Sauvignon Blanc!

The best vineyards in England are found in the southern counties including Kent, Sussex, Surrey, Hampshire, Dorset and Cornwall where the chalky, limestone-rich soils (similar to those in Chablis and Champagne), and the warming effect of the Gulf Stream help create a unique climate for grape growing. The recent succession of hot summers in Southern England has produced some stellar vintages, which have produced English wines that can now go toe to toe with many established countries in international competitions for both still, and sparkling wines. Rule Britannia!

NYETIMBER – WEST SUSSEX/HAMPSHIRE

Nyetimber is one of the leading English Sparkling wine producers who own 100% of their vineyards, some of which are the best sites in West Sussex and Hampshire. Their 152 hectares of vines are devoted exclusively to the three Champagne grape varieties: Chardonnay, Pinot Meunier and Pinot Noir and produce cuvees all made using the Traditional Method, just like in Champagne. They’ve been on a meteoric rise under Cherie Spriggs who was not only the first person outside of Champagne to be awarded Sparkling Winemaker of the Year, but also the first female winemaker to be honoured with the title! In 2025, Nyetimber achieved historic success, becoming the first non-Champagne producer to win the prestigious Champion Sparkling Wine trophy at the International Wine Challenge for their Blanc de Blancs 2016 Magnum.

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Cherie Spriggs NYETIMBER

If you had to describe yourself in just three words, what would they be, and why?

Striving for perfection.

What first sparked your interest in wine, and what was the journey that eventually led you to become Head Winemaker at Nyetimber?

My wine journey began with an undergraduate degree in biochemistry, followed by a master's degree at the Wine Research Centre in Vancouver and an oenology qualification from Adelaide University. I then spent years working across top wine regions in Australia, New Zealand, the USA and Canada.

Nyetimber first caught my eye in Jancis Robinson's World Atlas of Wine. When my father visited England, I asked him to bring back a bottle, and after tasting it, I was convinced of its potential. In 2007, my husband Brad and I contacted Nyetimber directly. As it happened, Eric Heerema was looking for winemakers, and we've been here ever since.

Nyetimber has become one of England's most celebrated sparkling wine producers. What do you believe makes them unique in the world of sparkling wine?

We hold ourselves to very high standards across all aspects of our winemaking, starting with our vineyards. We ensure that every site meets precise criteria: south-facing slopes, shelter from coastal weather and soils of either chalk or greensand. Each brings its own distinct character, with free-draining greensand lending a generous, rounded fruitiness and chalk producing grapes with a crystalline acidity, a pure, delicate floral note and elegant minerality. The cool climate of the South of England does the rest, bringing a wonderful crispness and clarity to every bottle.

Unlike many producers, we make our wines from 100% estate-owned grapes; we do not buy any fruit, nor do we sell any. This allows us to have control over each aspect of our winemaking, from grape to bottle. Our grapes are also meticulously picked by hand, and then pressed as quickly as possible during harvest. Finally, we age our wines for a minimum of three years on lees, which is longer than many Champagne brands.

All of these elements come together to ensure the highest possible quality of our sparkling wines.

Winemaking in England comes with its own set of challenges. What are the biggest obstacles you face each vintage, and how do you adapt to them?

The English climate is our greatest challenge, and no two vintages are ever the same. Warmer years have allowed us to harvest earlier, but some seasons demand much tougher decisions. In 2012, following the wettest June and coldest summer on record, we made the call not to harvest at all. The quality wasn't there, and for us, that is never negotiable.

This year has brought its own difficulties already, as we suffered from severe late spring frosts in May; meaning the buds were exposed just as the growing season was getting underway. This resulted in around a 30% loss of crops across our vineyard sites. When temperatures drop, we have to act fast, lighting bougies throughout the vineyard and running fans to keep the air moving and stop frost pockets from forming. However, there is a limit to how much this can mitigate the damage.

English sparkling wine has gained enormous international recognition. Where do you see the category heading over the next decade?

The category has come a long way, and I think the next decade will be really exciting. Quality is improving across the board, particularly at the prestige end. In 2025, our 1086 by Nyetimber 2010 took the top spot at the London Wine Fair's Battle of the Bubbles, beating the likes of Dom Perignon and Krug. This sort of recognition helps to change perceptions and as a result, we're even starting to see people choosing to invest in English prestige cuvées as collectors' items. The increasing number of accolades and the ageing ability of these wines helps to instil trust in their long-term potential.

What excites you most about the future of English wine, both for producers and consumers?

I'm very excited about the continued momentum of English Sparkling Wine as a category, and Nyetimber's role in shaping it.

There is still a lot of work to do to convert traditional Champagne drinkers, but it's a challenge we relish. In the UK, we work to do this by placing Nyetimber at the heart of English culture – with sponsorships such as England Rugby, British Cycling and the Lawn Tennis Association – as a way of reaching new audiences. These events allow us to connect with people who might not otherwise think to reach for an English Sparkling Wine, and that kind of discovery is what will drive the category forward.

For someone trying Nyetimber for the first time, which wine would you recommend, and why?

When most people try Nyetimber for the first time, they try our flagship wine – Classic Cuvee Multi-Vintage. This is a wine that we're hugely proud of; however, we really encourage people to sample the others in the range. My current recommendation is our Rosé Multi-Vintage, which we often describe as tasting like 'English summer in a glass'. This makes it the perfect choice for long, sunny afternoons outdoors, or for those reading this in autumn or winter, it is also a fantastic pairing for heartier dishes made with salmon, guinea fowl or brown crab.

After all your years in wine, is there a particular bottle, vintage, or moment at Nyetimber that still stands out as especially memorable?

Winning Sparkling Winemaker of the Year at the International Wine Challenge twice ranks among my proudest achievements. I first received the award in 2018, becoming the first woman and the first winner from outside France in the trophy's history, and won it again in 2025, remaining the only woman ever to have done so. That same year, our Blanc de Blancs 2016 Magnum was named Champion Sparkling Wine, the first wine from outside Champagne to claim the title in the competition's 34-year history.

GERMANY

Situated on the French-German border of north-eastern France, Alsace is governed by two natural boundaries; the Vosges mountains and the Rhine river. Gentle slopes and extensive, warm summers produce complex wines made from Pinot Blanc, Gewurztraminer and Riesling.

In neighbouring Germany, the Mosel is also dictated by a slightly more challenging terrain; steep slopes and close proximity to the river provide ideal conditions for dry to super-sweet Riesling (and everything in between!).

Further south in the underrated region of Pfalz, obsessive care and attention to detail results in fruity, easy-drinking and approachable wines.

IXSIR – BATROUN

The name IXSIR derives from 'Iksir', the Arabic term for 'Elixir', a word common to many languages that defines the purest form of all substances. The vision behind IXSIR is to showcase the best terroirs in Lebanon, many of which have been long forgotten. Cultivated with respect to sustainable agriculture, IXSIR's vineyards are spread throughout the Lebanese mountains on clay-calcareous and limestone soil, from Batroun to Jezzine, benefiting from the unique microclimates Lebanon has to offer.

WINE BUYER'S NOTE

Lebanon has been making wines for thousands of years and you'd be forgiven to think that grapes couldn't survive the baking heat of the midday sun! However, they can and even more so, they thrive in some of the highest mountain vineyards in the northern hemisphere. The result of the Grande Reserve Red is an abundance of dark black fruit with chocolate and spice undertones. It's worth noting that Bordeaux maestro, Hubert de Bouard, of Château Angélus fame is consultant and helps produce this exciting wine well-worth discovering!

MABIS BISCARDO – VENETO

Founded by Terenzio Biscardo in 1878, initially Biscardo was established as a Veronese wine trader before they turned their hand to production with Amarone and Recioto wines. Terenzio's son, Luigi, then took over the running of the business and thanks to his hard work and dedication, Biscardo soon became one of the most important producers in the Veneto region. The cutting-edge investments in winemaking and bottling areas lead to new markets opening up, including Italy, USA, England and then the rest of Europe. Today, heirs of the Biscardo family, Maurizio and Martino, run the winery and are following the path of research, quality and innovation.

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Alex Bianchini CIACCI PICCOLOMINI D'ARAGONA

How did you get started in wine? Was a career in wine always the plan, or did you get drawn in?

I've been working full-time since 2015, but it's something I've wanted to do since I was a kid.

What does it mean to carry on your grandfather Giuseppe's legacy?

His passion and foresight regarding this work are truly unique. Therefore, it's a true pleasure, and privilege, to continue his work. I have so many memories with him, and every day I try to treasure his teachings and implement these in our wines.

Who has influenced your winemaking style the most?

My dad, Paolo, has influenced me the most and allowed me to understand what our land has to offer us. I try to encapsulate the essence of Ciacci Piccolomini d'Aragona in every bottle!

What is the most rewarding part of your job?

The harvest! It's the most intense time of year, yet also the most beautiful part in my view. The culmination of a lot of hard work, but it's only half the job. It then continues in the cellar!

You're in the hottest part of Montalcino, so, how are you adapting to climate change?

By trying to do canopy management (green pruning) at the right time, tilling the soil when necessary to preserve water reserves, and using green manure mulching, which is an excellent technique to keep the soil moist and prevent water stress.

The estate has been certified organic since 2018, what drove that commitment? Was going organic a philosophical choice, a practical one, or both?

Both! Going organic requires a deeper connection with the land; both with the vine and the soil biology, allowing us to obtain a truly authentic and pure base material: our grapes.

Italy and Brunello in particular feel more popular than ever, why do you think that is?

I think Italy, and Brunello di Montalcino in particular, are becoming more popular as we're achieving high quality wines from 100% Sangiovese, that's been aged for 5 years before release. As a result, there's so many nuances depending on which side of the Montalcino territory it comes from. There's more to Brunello di Montalcino and people are understanding this more and getting excited about it. That's what makes Brunello an iconic wine.

Your tasting room is a shrine to cycling, how did cycling become such a central part of the estate's identity?

It's the family's other great passion. My dad and aunt created the bike museum, where we can bring together wine, cycling, and charity. A very similar ethos to Bon Coeur!

If you could do a collaboration with another winemaker, who would it be? And why

It's hard to name just one to be honest! I have exchanged lots of ideas with many colleagues in the wine industry, but personally, I'm fascinated by the Langhe and Burgundy regions.

Do you have a favourite trattoria, osteria or hidden gem in the area you'd recommend to visitors? Yes, Montalcino is famous for many typical osterias! They are all excellent. I really love traditional Tuscan cuisine, but I'm sorry the best restaurant is definitely my grandmother's!

Founded in 2005, Vilarnau is a Cava producer with an innovative philosophy. This is reflected in its intricate, bright and colourful bottle design, which is a nod to the famous Catalan architect Antoni Gaudí and the city of Barcelona. The winery is sleek and state of the art (designed by Catalan Painter and Sculptor, Joan Miró), and the vineyard lies at 250 metres above sea level where it enjoys a Mediterranean climate. Superb for celebrations, this modern Cava is set for a long history.

VIRGEN DEL GALIR – VALDEORRAS

Nestled in the dramatic hills of Valdeorras in Ourense (Galicia), Virgen del Galir has been at the forefront of showcasing the region's exceptional winemaking potential. A key part of that story is the Entoma vineyard, one of the estate's most distinctive sites, located near the village of Éntoma on steep slopes shaped by the Sil River valley. Here, poor slate- and quartz-rich soils, altitude and a marked Atlantic influence combine to create ideal conditions for producing wines of precision, freshness and mineral depth. Working with indigenous grape varieties such as Godello, the winery has earned a reputation as one of the pioneers of modern Valdeorras, crafting expressive and characterful wines that have received widespread international acclaim from leading critics, celebrated for their freshness, mineral complexity and remarkable elegance.

LUIS CAÑAS – RIOJA

Bodegas Luis Cañas has been at the heart of Rioja since 1928, however, it wasn't until 1970 when its contemporary story begins when they became the first Rioja Alavesa winemaker to bottle his young wine rather than sell it in bulk. This was a bold move at the time yet cemented their position as one of the most progressive in the region. Situated in Villabuena (Rioja Alavesa) and sheltered below the Sierra Cantabria, their vineyards are all old, small plots on chalky-clay soils, where Luis Cañas knows the local climate and terroir inside-out and demonstrates a real sense of pride and dedication of this to create these unique wines.

AN INSIDER'S GUIDE TO SEVILLE

There is a moment that comes to almost every first-time visitor to Seville. It arrives unexpectedly, usually somewhere around the second evening, standing at a bar counter with a cold glass of Fino in hand with the last of the daylight fading, realising why it's taken them until now to come. Seville is not merely a beautiful city. It's a city that has perfected the art of enjoying the small things in life and nowhere is that philosophy more visible than in its bars, bodegas, and restaurants from the first café con leche to the last copa de la noche.

A stone's throw from the Cathedral, the Morales family has been running Casa Morales since 1850, making it the oldest bar in the city still in the hands of its founding family. What began as a wine shop, where customers would arrive with their own vessels to be filled from great tinajas (clay jars), has evolved into one of the most atmospheric places to drink in Andalusia without ever losing touch with what it originally was. Those same clay jars still stand in the back room, now presiding over bar stools, marble tables and enthuses imbibers. The Sherries are still poured direct from barrel; the tapas are classic and ranges from simple cured meats and smoked cheeses to silken tortilla. The combination of a crisp Manzanilla poured alongside, remains one of the most perfect food and wine pairings in the city.

A few streets away, what appears to be from the outside, an ordinary grocery shop, lies one of Seville's best-kept secrets: Casa Moreno. This is the oldest surviving abacería in the city: a deli, provisions store and bar hybrid that was once a common institution yet sadly has now almost vanished. Walk past the shelves stacked with tinned goods, hanging charcuterie, and cheese wheels, and you'll find a tiny bar at the back with standing room only, where locals squeeze in for montaditos (bite size sandwiches) assembled from whatever the shop is selling: smoked sardines, Cabrales cheese with chorizo, jamón with good olive oil on toasted bread. The "kitchen" is famously nothing more than a toaster oven, yet the results are, somehow, rather extraordinary. Come here for the vibe as much as the food: stepping into Casa Moreno is, without exaggeration, like stepping through a portal back to 1940s Seville.

Not to be confused with the larger Bodeguita Antonio Romero group, Bodeguita Romero is the original and most characterful branch thanks to its lively, wood-panelled bar and focus on traditional Andalusian home cooking. The star of the show is, without a doubt, the pringá montadito: slow-braised pork and chorizo, fat-slicked and deeply savoury, heaped onto toasted bread bun. It's one of the best things you will eat in this city. The papas aliñas (Andalusian potato salad) are also a great shout, and the whole operation runs with the friendly efficiency of a family who know what they're doing. Tables on the footpath outside fill up quickly and the bar inside is raucous fun.

Stroll to the heart of the Santa Cruz neighbourhood (the old Jewish quarter) where a maze of whitewashed lanes and bougainvillea will lead you to Casa Román, which has been drawing Sevillanos (people from Seville) and well-informed visitors for generations. Like Casa Morales, it began as a grocer before becoming the well-loved tapas bar it is today. The setting is beautiful, particularly at the outdoor tables that spill into the quiet square. The cooking is authentic through the combination of simplicity and precision: great jamón ibérico, homemade croquetas, fresh seafood, as well as a wine list anchored in the undiscovered bodegas of the region. It's the type of bar where a solo traveller can sit for an hour or two over a few small plates and a few glasses of cold Fino, and feel entirely content.

Tucked into a small orange-tree-lined square just behind Las Setas, Seville's extraordinary mushroom-shaped urban canopy, Taberna Zurbarán is a more recent addition to the city's bodega culture, one that has quickly established itself as a firm local favourite. The interior is seriously impressive: renovated wooden beams, beautifully refurbished tiles, shelves lined with bottles, and a long bar with comfortable wooden stools. The menu is short and precise: croquetas, tortilla, solomillo al whisky (pork medallions in whisky sauce), as well as daily specials including chuletas de conejo (braised rabbit ribs) and mojama (cured tuna belly). When the orange trees blossom, their scent fills the air and tables are set outside in the square, it is, as those who have found it will tell you, about as good as a meal can get.

No guide to Seville would be complete without it, and no visit to Seville should omit it: El Rinconcillo. It has been open since 1670, making it the oldest bar in Spain and more than three centuries later, it remains in the hands of the family that has run it since 1858. The interior has barely changed: 17th century tiles from Triana, countless barrels of Sherry and mahogany counters where your bill is chalked up, has made this bar an institution. Simplicity is key and the best thing to order is a glass of Manzanilla, bone-dry and ice-cold, alongside a tapa of jamón ibérico to enjoy at the bar and immerse yourself in the city's history.

To understand where Seville's contemporary food scene is, look no further than Cañabota. This Michelin-starred seafood restaurant is run by chef Juanlu Fernández and the Guardiola brothers where the tasting menu changes with the seasons as well as the daily catch. This is cutting edge cooking in a bright, modern and inviting space with an open kitchen and grill at its core. Reservations must be made well in advance, I promise you won't regret it.

For a more low-key, neighbourhood seafood encounter then La Barra de Inchausti is the place to be. It fills up early with locals who know exactly what they're there for: a taste of Sanlúcar de Barrameda and the Inchausti brothers' home, in the city. So, think tortilla de camarones (thin prawn fritter), almejas al ajillo (garlicky clams) and polpo a la plancha (grilled octopus) and pulpillitas (fried small squid) to name but a few tasty morsels to tempt you. The wine list is modest but well-formed, and the atmosphere is busy, unpretentious, and warmly Spanish. This is exactly what a great seafood bar ought to feel like, so, arrive early or grab a glass of wine or beer, and accept that it will be worth the wait.

To eat as the Sevillanos eat, standing at a bar with a cold glass of Sherry or beer, moving from one place to the next as part of el tapeo, as the evening lengthens, not rushing, not over-planning is one of life's great pleasure. Let one place lead to another. Ask the barman what he recommends. Order the daily special. Accept the glass of something you don't recognise and see where it takes you.

Seville has been perfecting this art for years. All it asks is that you show up, slow down, and get stuck in.

We hope you enjoy our insider's guide to Seville. Scan the code for more insider's guides...

(Viñedos del) Contino is one of Rioja's pioneering single-estate producers, widely credited with helping to define the modern estate bottling concept in Spain. Founded in the 1970s as the first "château-style" winery in Rioja, it is centred around the historic La Hacienda de San Rafael estate in Laserna, where old-vine Tempranillo, Graciano, Mazuelo and Garnacha are cultivated on gravel-rich soils along a meander of the Ebro River. This unique vineyard focus allows Contino to craft wines that are both site-expressive and classically Rioja in character, combining structure, elegance and remarkable ageing potential. Today, the estate is especially celebrated for its refined Reserva and Gran Reserva wines, which consistently receive critical acclaim for their balance, depth, and finesse.

ADEGAMÃE - LISBOA

Founded in 2010 by the Alves family, AdegaMãe is located north of Lisbon, close to the Atlantic Ocean, and has quickly established itself as one of the region's leading producers, crafting wines that perfectly capture the freshness, minerality, and elegance of this unique coastal terroir. Acclaimed winemaker Diogo Lopes works alongside consultant and Portuguese superstar, Anselmo Mendes, making AdegaMãe a true pioneer of modern Portuguese wine. While international varieties play a supporting role, the estate has focused on championing indigenous grapes, proving their remarkable potential on the world stage. Award-winning and consistently innovative, AdegaMãe continues to redefine perceptions of both Lisboa, and Portuguese wines.

AN INSIDER'S GUIDE TO PORTO

There is a particular quality of light in Porto: golden and slightly dusty, the kind that makes azulejo tiles shimmer and cobblestones glow amber in the late afternoon sun. It settles over the Douro River in a way that feels almost theatrical, as if the city has been staging the same magnificent show for centuries. One of Europe's oldest cities, a port town (from where its name derives) that has been trading, building, singing, and drinking for centuries... And it is that last habit, the drinking, that gave it its most enduring gift to the world: Port.

Today, Porto's food and wine culture spans centuries and has never missed a beat. From simple cold draught beer to rare Tawny and Vintage Ports poured in snack bars that have been serving the same sandwich since the 1960s, as well as Michelin recommended restaurants and their thought-provoking tasting menus. Everything deserves your time and here is where to begin... Vamos!

Tucked near the Jardim de São Lázaro, Casa Guedes is the kind of place that ruins all other pork sandwiches for life. The house speciality is roasted pork leg packed into a crusty local roll and crowned with soft sheep's cheese and caramelised onion. It has been drawing queues of Tripeiros (nickname for people from Porto) and increasingly clued-up visitors for decades. The family recipe for the pernil (as the sandwich is known locally) is treated like a state secret; the result, is meat so yielding, tender and aromatic, that it barely needs dressing. Pair with a glass of Vinho Verde and settle in. This is not a place of ceremony, it's a place of ritual.

Since 1962, Gazela has occupied a tiny, crescent-countered space near the Teatro Nacional São João, serving its tasty invention: the cachorrinho. Literally a "little dog," this Porto-born riff on the hot dog involves a pressed and grilled mini baguette roll stuffed with sausage, melted cheese, and a piri-piri sauce of quietly ferocious heat. The late, great Anthony Bourdain made the pilgrimage here (a signed photo still hangs on the wall in his honour), yet the locals who pack the bar on weekday afternoons couldn't care less about the celebrity endorsement. They're here because nothing pairs better with a cold Super Bock beer on a warm Porto afternoon than a cachorrinho. Some pleasures are simply not improved upon.

No visit to Porto is complete without eating a Francesinha, and Lado B is where to have it. Porto's great contribution and finale to the canon of indulgent sandwiches: layers of cured meats and sausage between thick bread, blanketed in melted cheese, topped with a fried egg, and drowned in a spiced, beer-laced tomato sauce. This isn't a dish that does things by halves, and Lado B doesn't either. What sets it apart from the dozens of places serving Porto's most famous sandwich is a kitchen that takes it seriously: the sauce is rich and complex in the way that only comes from a recipe tended with genuine devotion, and the bread-to-filling ratio suggests someone has thought about it. Go hungry and then spend the afternoon walking along the riverside.

If the Francesinha is Porto's most theatrical dish, the pastel de nata is its most devilish one. That flaky pastry shell cradling a custard that is somehow simultaneously silky and scorched at the edges: it is one of the great gifts Portugal has given the world, and Fábrica de Nata does it with real conviction. The custard here is properly eggy and rich, as it should be! The pastry shatters in the way it should with real crunch. Best consumed standing at the counter, still warm, dusted with cinnamon alongside an espresso. Go twice: once in the morning before the city has fully woken, and once in the late afternoon because one just simply isn't enough.

Positioned on the upper level of the recently revitalised Mercado do Bolhão, Herdade 1980 occupies one of the most quietly spectacular dining rooms in the city; high ceilings, soaring windows flood the space with light, and impressive views down onto the market's stalls below. The kitchen celebrates the heritage of Portugal's regions with a contemporary hand; turning out dishes like braised oxtail croquettes, hand-dived scallops, as well as perfectly cooked steaks all paired with beautifully sourced Douro wines. This is a restaurant that has earned its reputation for excellent dining with a vibrant, energetic and charming vibe. Go and enjoy a long, lazy lunch or dinner. You won't regret it.

Venturing out of the city centre to Matosinhos, few places in Porto feel as unambiguously local as Dom Peixe. One of those neighbourhood dining rooms that appears to have been here forever, serving the best seafood: unpretentious, ingredient-led, and generous portions. Come for the clam rice, stay for the expertly grilled prawns and fresh fish, all paired perfectly with very good quality house wine, seemingly priced as if the owner is personally subsidising your afternoon.

Another local hotspot is a short drive towards the Maia neighbourhood near the airport, where O Fernando is the kind of restaurant that locals guard the way they guard a family recipe. The ex-libris of the house is cabrito assado (slow-roasted kid goat) and it arrives at the table with regal authority. The wine cellar here is genuinely worth exploring, stacked with bottles from small Douro and Minho producers who rarely find their way onto international lists. Go with time to linger, and if you're lucky enough, with someone who speaks Portuguese well enough to coax out a recommendation from the kitchen.

To understand where Porto's food culture is heading without losing sight of where it came from, Cozinha das Flores is the reservation to make. Chef Nuno Mendes, who earned his reputation in London before returning to reimagine the cuisine of his homeland, has created something in the historic centre that is making waves in the Portuguese food scene. The room is striking: an open kitchen, a horseshoe bar where the evening begins with cocktails and conversation, and a dining space that manages to feel both intimate and electric. The cooking draws on the deep pantry of northern Portugal with classics such as bacalhau, alheira, as well as the turnip nata with caviar that has become something of a signature, and rightly so. The wine list reflects the same philosophy: rooted in Portuguese terroir, full of small producers, and alive, with possibility for the adventurous imbibers.

Along Rua das Flores and down a side street is de Lima's, which if we are being honest, is where this journey begins and ends. Rafael de Lima has created something that feels both entirely of Porto, and entirely its own at the same time: a sleek, easy-going wine bar and tasting room where the emphasis is on small producers doing great things with Portuguese grapes, and where the atmosphere manages to be genuinely relaxed without sacrificing an ounce of care. The aesthetic is modern and inviting, the kind of space where you settle in for one glass and then inevitably rearrange your entire evening. Deli boards arrive with the kind of considered simplicity that lets the wine do the talking paired alongside fine cheeses, cured meats, small seasonal accompaniments chosen to complement rather than distract. Rafael and his teams' hospitality is the animating force: attentive, knowledgeable, warm in the way that only feels natural when someone is genuinely proud of what they are serving. This is not merely a wine bar to visit. It is, as they say here, your new home. Bem-vindo à casa!

Porto is not a city that needs to try very hard. Its beauty, its history, its food and its wine have all been in development for centuries. What makes it endlessly rewarding, for those who come with the right kind of patience, curiosity and sense of adventure, is the knowledge that the best of it is still being discovered: one glass, one sandwich, one perfectly spent afternoon at a time.

We hope you enjoy our insider's guide to Porto. Scan the code for more insider's guides...

The Listening Station is a celebration of the old, Australian 'listening stations' that used to track satellites across the empty, pitch-black sky of outback Australia in areas like Victoria. A great introduction to the brilliant wines of the region.

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Jeremy McKenzie ISABEL ESTATE

Describe yourself in three words.

Adventurous, Energetic, Personable

How did you get into the wine industry and become one of New Zealand's most decorated winemakers?

I grew up on a farm inland from the Waipara wine region (home of the famous Pegasus Bay label), worked in vineyards growing up and was a bit of a science freak. I did a gap year post school and played rugby in Blackrock college, Dublin, where I tasted some amazing wines from a friend's cellar and became intrigued. On return to NZ, I studied Biochemistry and Microbiology followed by a post-graduate degree in Forensic Science, then Viticulture & Oenology... clearly winemaking won!

Mike Tiller literally discovered Isabel Estate from the air. What makes this pocket of the Wairau Valley and Isabel Estate so special?

It is a special piece of dirt of which we are the kaitiaki or guardians of, a cooler site in the warm Wairau valley which is great for acidity retention, heavier clay-based soils and the ability to do gold standard wines across many varieties particularly Chardonnay.

Isabel Estate is one of only a handful of estates in the world that is 100% estate-grown, estate-made and estate-bottled. Why does that matter so much?

This is our key pillar and sets ourselves apart from many brands/labels where grapes are sourced from all over the region. It also tells a provenance story and proves how special the site is. The bottling side also means a low carbon footprint where wine goes to global markets direct from the estate. Isabel Estate is also part of Appellation Marlborough Wine; a key facet to our overarching provenance story

What are the biggest challenges you face as a winemaker in Marlborough; both at harvest time, and in terms of how the world perceives New Zealand wine?

I love the buzz and atmosphere at harvest. It's a critical time for sure, and one to get right, particularly with single vineyard wines as there is no outside material to blend in. The world perception of New Zealand wine is very key to the current drinkers, as well as new drinkers we want to come over to the category. That is the wines should reflect the terroir and the vibrant flavour profiles of aromatic grapes such as Sauvignon Blanc, and more serious and mineral driven Chardonnay and Pinot Noir with excellent oak use. Overall, my key objective is to make wine from the Marlborough region to be attractive and captivating to drink.

Marlborough Sauvignon Blanc obviously dominates the conversation, but what is your favourite varietal to work with?

I do love working with Sauvignon Blanc and its signature expression; however, my love is Chardonnay and probably what I'm best known for as a winemaker. The Isabel Estate site is fantastic for this variety and would have to say is the icon variety. Every year it delivers thanks to the fantastic 40-year-old vine stock giving great depth of profile, fruit density, and wines with a mineral-saline edge, which wine writers and customers enjoy alike.

Isabel Estate is on a journey towards organic certification. What drove that commitment, and how does working sustainably change the way you farm?

We have always farmed sustainably as it's important that we leave the vineyard in a better space for future generations. Transitioning specific blocks of the estate as we move forward has been a part of this, and we're currently just under half of the vineyard is organically farmed and Biogro certified. All the wines bottled off the estate are a combination of organic and sustainably farmed grapes. We also like to look at the vineyard from a holistic point of view with other areas such as community, responsible labour sourcing, cover crops, solar-renewable energy, and packaging recycling. A significant composting program which is a blend of our harvest grape skins, stalks, filtration medium, yeast lees, bentonite and bark vines is also an important part of what we try to do.

What is the future for wine in Marlborough?

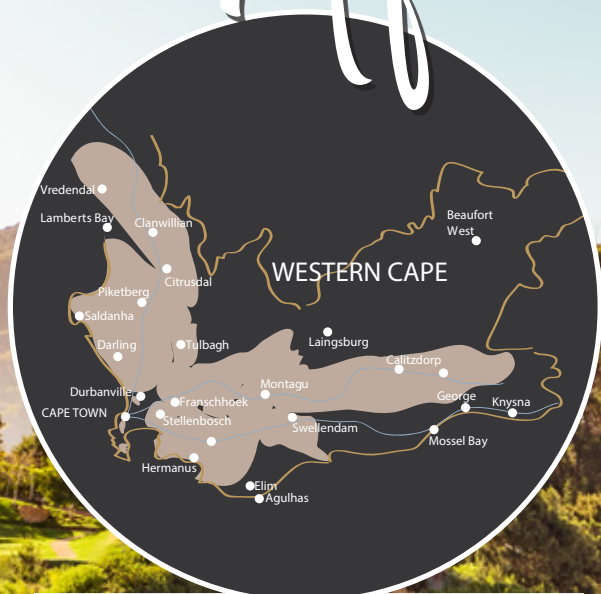

The future for Marlborough is solid and exciting as we navigate peoples drink habits and the current economic climate. There will still be a dominance from the Global success in Sauvignon Blanc as the best of these are world class, however, there is growing appeal for top-quality Chardonnay and Méthode Champenoise, which are gaining traction as customers look for value outside of the old world.

Any hidden gem restaurants in that customers shouldn't miss if they visit Marlborough?

I love going to some of the local restaurants with guests, friends or family. We love Arbor for a nice high end offering focused on fresh local produce, Franks for small sharing plates and good casual dining, or with the family we head to the Fancy Cow for nice pizza. Outside of that we like to host at Isabel Estate, and we'll cook Marlborough Manuka Smoked Salmon in our barrel smoker, or wild venison seared on the grill matched with older vintage wines from the cellar!

The hub of South Africa's wine production takes place in South-Western flank of the country known as the Western Cape. Here many regions bask in a Mediterranean climate with long, warm and sunny summers which are tempered by a cooling wind known as the 'Cape Doctor'.

From Franschhoek to Stellenbosch and Hemel-en-Aarde, the mountainous slopes and valleys are perfect for both grape growing and producing high quality wines. The country is mainly known for its iconic grape Pinotage (a Pinot Noir-Cinsault cross), however, great examples of Sauvignon Blanc, Chardonnay, Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot are waiting to be discovered. South Africa offers some of the best value wines available in the southern hemisphere.

MEET THE WINEMAKER

Matthew Day KLEIN CONSTANTIA

You grew up on a farm south of Johannesburg where your family were farmers. When did wine first capture your imagination, and when did you realise it was the career you wanted to pursue?

I've always wanted to be a farmer. I grew up on a farm south of Johannesburg where my mother and grandfather taught me everything about farming. I could drive a tractor before I could ride a bike. Wine came a little later. My first introduction to wine was a bottle of Rustenberg John X Merriman that really sparked my curiosity, this followed by a blind tasting of Chateaux Margaux 2001 changed my world. That combination of farming and wine led me to study Viticulture and Oenology at Stellenbosch. It was during my first internship at Meerlust that I realised I didn't just want to grow grapes, I wanted to make wine.

Can you briefly describe the winery and vineyards?

Klein Constantia is one of South Africa's most historic wine estates, with a winemaking heritage dating back to 1685 when Governor Simon van der Stel established his farm in Constantia. The estate became world-famous in the 18th and 19th centuries for iconic sweet wine of Constantia now referred to as the Vin de Constance at Klein Constantia.

We're incredibly fortunate to farm on the upper slopes of the Constantiaberg, on the foothills of Table Mountain, where decomposed granite and Table Mountain Sandstone soils combine with a cool maritime climate and the constant influence of False Bay to create an exceptional terroir. Every vineyard block has its own personality, so we farm and vinify each parcel individually. Our philosophy is to let the vineyards speak for themselves, producing wines that are a true expression of this unique place.

You've worked harvests in Saint-Émilion, the Barossa, Napa and Sancerre. What did each place teach you that you brought to Klein Constantia?

Every region and Winemaker that I have worked for have helped to shape the way I think about wine. Saint-Émilion taught me precision and respect for tradition. Napa showed me incredible attention to detail and an uncompromising pursuit of quality. The Barossa reinforced the importance of understanding vineyards and fruit, while Sancerre deepened my appreciation for Sauvignon Blanc and how transparently it expresses terroir. Rather than copying any one region, those experiences taught me to respect the unique identity of Klein Constantia.

Every vintage tells a different story. At what point during the growing season or even during harvest do you start to sense that you're working with something truly special?

It's never one moment. You build confidence throughout the season as you see how the vines respond to the weather and how evenly the fruit develops. During harvest you're tasting berries every day, walking the vineyards constantly and looking for balance rather than just sugar levels. The truly exceptional vintages are the ones where nature seems to do everything right and your job is simply not to get in the way.

Hubert de Bouard and Bruno Prats, two of Bordeaux's great names, are shareholders at Klein Constantia. How much has that Bordeaux influence shaped the wines, and where do you draw the line to ensure the wines remain unmistakably South African?

Having people like Hubert and Bruno involved is an enormous privilege because they bring decades of experience at the very highest level. They're incredibly supportive and challenge us to keep improving, but they've never wanted Klein Constantia to become a Bordeaux estate. Their biggest influence has been encouraging precision, attention to detail and long-term thinking. Ultimately, the wines must taste like Klein Constantia, because that's what makes them special.

South African wine has enjoyed an extraordinary rise in international recognition over the past two decades. From your perspective, what has driven that transformation, and where do you see the industry heading next?

I think we've become much more confident in our own identity. Twenty years ago, many producers looked overseas for inspiration, whereas today we're far more focused on expressing our own vineyards and our own regions. There's also been an enormous improvement in viticulture, site selection and understanding of terroir. South Africa offers incredible value and world-class wines, and I think the international market is finally recognising that.

When you're not making wine, where do you enjoy eating in and around Cape Town or the Constantia Valley? Any favourite hidden gems?

I don't get as much free time during harvest as I'd like, but I'm incredibly fortunate to live and work in Constantia, where we're spoiled for choice when it comes to great restaurants. That said, because I spend so much time visiting incredible fine dining restaurants through work, I prefer to keep things simple when I'm off the clock. My favourites are a good seafood restaurant by the beach, a great steak and chips, or a proper burger with my family.

I also love to cook, so my ideal day is having friends and family around at home for a traditional South African braai or a Sunday roast, with a few special bottles of wine to share. For me, that's what great food and wine are about: bringing people together.

CHILE

It's all about the Andes when it comes to climate and terroir in South America. The high-altitude vineyards of Mendoza in Argentina find the perfect balance between hot days and cool evenings to fully ripen grapes, whereas vines on the steep slopes in Colchagua Valley are tempered by the Arctic winds of the Humboldt Current. As a result of these unique conditions the wines are fresh, clean and fruit driven. Argentina's most famous grape without doubt is Malbec, however, don't be afraid to try Cabernet Sauvignon or give Torrontés a go.

If you want to be adventurous then cross the border into Chile and try their Sauvignon Blanc, Viognier, Carménère and Pinot Noir wines, they should not be missed!

USA

The world's fourth largest wine producer, the United States has a wine history dating back to the 1600s, when colonisation began in earnest. More or less every state produces wine, however, mostly in tiny proportions. Over 95% of the output is restricted to just four states: California, Oregon, Washington and New York. California then produces about 80% of that output, making it far and away the capital of wine in the United States.

There are a plethora of grapes to choose from with regulations being more lenient than other countries, though the intense, creamy Chardonnays of California are the most famous white export. Amongst the red wines, loud and proud Zinfandel is California's statement wine, along with Cabernet Sauvignon, which relishes the warm California sunshine as well as riper, more fleshy and rounded styles of Pinot Noir.

BRÄNNLAND – SWEDEN

Founded in 2010, Brännland Cider produces exceptional artisanal ice cider from a combination of orchards in Sweden; the winter apples are hand-picked in both their home county of Västerbotten on the Baltic seaboard, as well as from a specific, carefully selected grower in the heart of the Swedish apple country in the south. The production method is exactly the same as for ice wine, whereby apples are frozen during the depths of winter and thus concentrating the natural sugars and then in the Spring cider must is extracted (between 35-40 Brix), which is fermented slowly to create a wonderful, sweet yet balanced ice cider.

Fortified Wines

Fortified wines are some of the world's most historic, expressive and misunderstood wine styles, and they are ripe for rediscovery. Made by adding grape spirit to wine during or after fermentation, fortification creates wines of remarkable depth, stability and longevity, ranging from bone-dry aperitifs to intensely sweet, luxurious dessert wines. This diverse category spans iconic regions and styles: the sun-soaked, biologically and oxidatively aged Sherries of southern Spain; the rich, age-worthy Ports of Portugal; the endlessly complex, heat-aged wines of Madeira; the sweet, Grenache-based fortified wines of Rivesaltes in southern France; and the aromatic, botanical-infused world of Vermouth, originally from Turin.

What unites them is intensity, versatility and incredible food-pairing potential. From aperitif to digestif, cocktail to cellar-worthy vintage, fortified wines deliver flavour, value and complexity far beyond their reputation. For modern drinkers, they offer an exciting opportunity to rediscover heritage styles that are as relevant today as ever.

FORTIFIED WINES

SHERRY

Sherry is a fortified wine produced exclusively in the Sherry Triangle of southern Spain, centred between the towns of Jerez de la Frontera, Sanlúcar de Barrameda and El Puerto de Santa María. Renowned for its unique ageing methods, extraordinary diversity and exceptional value, Sherry ranges from bone-dry to lusciously sweet, making it one of the world's most versatile, complex and food-friendly styles of fortified wine. There's so much more to Sherry than the bottle of Bristol Cream tucked away in Granny's cupboard for Christmas!

FINO / MANZANILLA

Fino is the palest and driest style of Sherry, matured under a protective layer of yeast called flor, which shields the wine from oxidation while imparting delicate almond, bread dough and saline notes. It's light-bodied, crisp and refreshing, with vibrant acidity. Manzanilla is a Fino produced exclusively in Sanlúcar de Barrameda, where cooler, more humid conditions create a thicker flor, resulting in an even fresher, more saline and subtly chamomile-like character. Perfect with olives, almonds, jamón ibérico, as well as fresh seafood and sushi.

AMONTILLADO

Amontillado begins its life as a Fino, ageing under flor before the yeast naturally disappears or is removed, allowing further oxidative ageing. This dual maturation combines the freshness and delicacy of biological ageing with the richness and complexity of oxidation. The result is a dry, amber-coloured Sherry displaying aromas of toasted hazelnuts, caramel, dried herbs and spice. Medium-bodied with a long, savoury finish, Amontillado offers exceptional balance, elegance, depth and remarkable versatility. Excellent with mushroom dishes, roast poultry and aged, hard cheeses.

Lustau 'Los Arcos' Amontillado NV (75cl) NEW	£19.17	£23.00	18.5%

PALO CORTADO

Palo Cortado is one of the rarest and most intriguing Sherry styles, combining characteristics of both Amontillado and Oloroso. It begins ageing under flor but unexpectedly loses the yeast early, continuing its maturation oxidatively. The wine develops the aromatic finesse and elegance associated with Amontillado alongside the fuller body and richness typical of Oloroso. Dry, complex and silky, Palo Cortado displays notes of toasted nuts, citrus peel, spice, coffee and polished wood with remarkable persistence. Best paired with game birds, roast pork and mature cheese.

OLOROSO

Oloroso is a full-bodied Sherry aged entirely through oxidation without the protective influence of flor. This prolonged exposure to air deepens both colour and flavour, producing a rich mahogany wine with intense aromas of walnuts, leather, tobacco, dried fruits and warming spices. Although naturally dry, its concentration creates a rounded, velvety mouthfeel and impressive structure. Oloroso is powerful yet balanced, making it an excellent accompaniment to game, roasted meats, mature cheeses and hearty dishes.

MOSCATEL

Moscatel Sherry is made from Muscat grapes, often dried in the sun to concentrate natural sugars before vinification. It is a naturally sweet style characterised by expressive floral aromas alongside flavours of orange blossom, honey, apricot, peach, raisins and citrus peel. Compared with Pedro Ximénez, Moscatel is generally lighter in colour and body, with brighter acidity and a fresher, more aromatic profile. It pairs beautifully with fruit desserts, pastries and blue cheeses.

Lustau 'Emilín' Moscatel NV (37.5cl) NEW	£12.50	£15.00	17%

PEDRO XIMÉNEZ

Pedro Ximénez, often abbreviated to PX, is produced from grapes traditionally sun-dried after harvest to concentrate sugars before fermentation. The result is an intensely sweet, almost black Sherry with a luscious, syrup-like texture. Rich flavours of raisins, figs, dates, molasses, coffee, liquorice and dark chocolate dominate the palate, balanced by refreshing acidity that prevents cloying sweetness. Pedro Ximénez is enjoyed as a dessert wine or poured over vanilla ice cream for indulgence.

PORT

Port is a fortified wine produced exclusively in the Douro Valley in northern Portugal and matured in the historic wine lodges of Vila Nova de Gaia, opposite the city of Porto. Made by fortifying fermenting wine with grape spirit to preserve natural sweetness, it's celebrated for its richness, depth and longevity, with styles ranging from youthful Ruby to complex Tawny as well as age-worthy Vintage Ports.

WHITE

White Port is produced from traditional white grape varieties such as Malvasia Fina, Gouveio, Rabigato and Viosinho. It can range from dry to sweet, and the wines are typically aged in stainless steel or large oak casks to preserve freshness, and displays aromas of citrus, stone fruit, almonds and flowers. Light to medium-bodied with bright acidity, White Port is commonly served chilled over ice as an aperitif, or as the famous sundowner in Porto when mixed with tonic water. Richer aged examples develop honeyed, nutty complexity while retaining freshness and balance.

PINK

Pink Port is a modern style created by David Fonseca Guimaraens, by limiting skin contact during fermentation to produce a vibrant rosé colour while retaining fresh fruit character. It offers aromas and flavours of strawberries, raspberries, cherries and redcurrants with a light, refreshing sweetness. Intended to be drunk on release, rather than ageing, it's best served chilled over ice, or as a base for contemporary cocktails and summer spritzes.

TAWNY

Tawny Port is aged oxidatively in seasoned oak casks, gradually changing from deep ruby to amber brown as it develops greater complexity. Extended ageing softens the wine while creating flavours of toasted nuts, dried fruits, caramel, toffee and spice. Standard Tawny Ports are approachable and mellow, while aged expressions labelled 10, 20, 30 or 40-Year-Old offer increasing depth and elegance. Tawny Port is best served slightly chilled and pairs beautifully with nut-based desserts.

RUBY

Ruby Port is the youngest and fruitiest traditional style, aged for a relatively short period in large oak vats to minimise oxidation and preserve vibrant colour. Full-bodied and intensely fruity, it displays flavours of blackberries, plums, cherries and dark chocolate, supported by firm tannins and freshness. Designed for early drinking, Ruby Port offers bold, youthful character and excellent value. It pairs especially well with chocolate desserts, rich berry-based puddings and blue cheese.

LATE BOTTLED VINTAGE

Late Bottled Vintage (LBV) Port is produced from grapes harvested in a single vintage but aged in cask for four to six years before bottling. This extended maturation creates a wine that is more approachable than Vintage Port while retaining impressive concentration and structure. Rich flavours of black fruit, spice and chocolate combine with smooth tannins, making LBV a complex yet accessible style that is ready to drink upon release.

SINGLE QUINTA VINTAGE

Single Quinta Vintage Port is produced from the grapes of one individual estate in a single exceptional harvest. Often declared in years when a house does not release a classic Vintage Port, these wines reflect the unique character of their vineyard and growing season. Deeply concentrated and structured, they offer intense dark fruit, floral notes and spice with excellent ageing potential, gradually developing remarkable complexity over decades in bottle.

VINTAGE

Vintage Port represents the finest expression of the style, produced only in outstanding declared vintages from the best grapes of a single harvest. After just two years in cask, it is bottled to mature slowly for decades, developing extraordinary complexity. Powerful tannins, concentrated black fruit, and vibrant acidity provide exceptional longevity, while bottle ageing brings aromas of dried fruits, violets, cocoa, spice and cedar. It is regarded as Port's greatest and most collectible style.

MADEIRA

Madeira is a fortified wine produced on the Portuguese island of Madeira, located in the Atlantic Ocean. It is made by fortifying wine with grape spirit, followed a unique heating and ageing process called estufagem, which gives it extraordinary stability and complexity. The main grape varieties and styles are Sercial (dry), Verdelho (medium-dry), Boal (medium-sweet) and Malvasia/Malmsey (sweet). The remarkably high acidity balances the rich, complex and savoury flavours giving them incredible longevity, making it a fascinating discovery for Port drinkers seeking similarly complex fortified wines.

VERMOUTH

Vermouth is an aromatised, fortified wine traditionally flavoured with botanicals such as wormwood, herbs, spices and citrus peel. It originated in Turin, Italy in the late 18th century, where it was developed as an aperitif wine style. While classic Vermouth comes from Italy and France, our range from Bodegas Lustau in Jerez de la Frontera brings a Spanish Sherry base, adding nutty depth and richness. Typically enjoyed chilled or in cocktails like the Martini or Negroni, valued for its balance of sweetness, bitterness and aromatic complexity.

RIVESALTES

Rivesaltes is a fortified wine from the Rivesaltes appellation in the sun-drenched Roussillon region of southern France. Produced primarily from Grenache Noir, Grenache Blanc and Grenache Gris, it ranges from youthful, fruit-driven styles to long-aged Rivesaltes Ambré, Tuilé and Hors d'Âge, which develop complex flavours of dried fruits, nuts, caramel and spice. Thanks to their exceptional ageing potential, mature vintage Rivesaltes make outstanding birthday and anniversary gifts. Their richness, freshness and remarkable longevity will also appeal to lovers of aged Port and Madeira, offering another fascinating fortified wine to discover and enjoy.

MEET THE WINEMAKER

David Guimaraens TAYLOR'S, FONSECA & CROFT

Describe yourself in three words.

Curious, patient and optimistic.

Port wine teaches you that some of the best things in life cannot be rushed.

Patience is essential, curiosity keeps you learning, and optimism helps you through the inevitable challenges each vintage brings.

You literally grew up in the cellar. What has still managed to surprise you about this career?

I grew up surrounded by Vineyards and Ports, so I always knew it would be part of my life. What continues to surprise me is how every vintage still teaches you something new. Nature never repeats itself. No matter how much experience you have, every year presents different conditions, different decisions, and new lessons. That is one of the reasons why it never becomes routine.

Your father gave you a one-way ticket to Australia at nineteen. How much did that time shape the winemaker you became?

It shaped me enormously. Leaving home at that age taught me independence and gave me the opportunity to see winemaking from a completely different perspective. Australia was far more experimental than Europe at the time, and I learnt the value of questioning established practices while always respecting tradition. When I came back home, I brought back new ideas but also a greater appreciation for what makes the Douro and Port Wine unique.

You created Croft Pink, the world's first rosé Port. How did that idea come about?

It was a challenge received by CEO Adrian Bridge and then the idea came from asking a simple question: could we produce a Port with the freshness and fruit expression of a young rosé wine while remaining true to the character of Port? It required a different approach to extraction and vinification, but once we achieved the style we were looking for, we knew we had created something genuinely new. Looking back, it's rewarding to see how much it has helped broaden the appeal of Port. This project was developed with my team member Joana Furriel, who has worked at the company for over two decades.

White and Pink Port have introduced a new generation to the category. Was that always the intention?

Yes, although not at the expense of our traditions. Port has an extraordinary diversity of styles, and I felt that many consumers only knew a small part of what it had to offer.

White and Pink Port provide different ways of enjoying Port and often become the starting point for people who later discover Tawny, LBV and Vintage Ports. If they encourage more people to explore the category, then we've achieved exactly what we hoped.

Do you have a favourite style of Port?

That's rather like asking a parent to choose a favourite child. Each style has its own personality and its own occasion. Vintage Port remains the purest expression of a single harvest, while an old Tawny represents the extraordinary influence of time. Fortunately, I don't have to choose just one.

What is your favourite grape variety to work with in the Douro, and why?

One of the Douro's greatest strengths is its field blends. The complexity of many of our finest wines comes not from a single variety but from the interaction between many different grape varieties growing together. I have a special love for Touriga Francesa.

You and António Magalhães have built an award-winning sustainable vineyard model together, which is set to become the standard for environmentally responsible viticulture in the Douro Valley. What does truly sustainable viticulture look like in a mountainous region as demanding as the Douro?

Sustainability in the Douro is about much more than reducing inputs. It means protecting our soils, managing water carefully, encouraging biodiversity and ensuring that our vineyards remain productive for future generations. The Douro is a demanding landscape, with steep slopes and increasingly challenging climatic conditions, so every decision has long-term consequences. The work we've developed with António Magalhães has been based on understanding the vineyard as a complete ecosystem rather than simply a place where grapes are grown. It was a great privilege to work beside him for over 3 decades.

Where do you love to eat in Porto? Is there a hidden tasca or restaurant you'd recommend?

I'm fortunate that Porto has no shortage of excellent restaurants. I tend to enjoy places that focus on honest cooking and excellent ingredients rather than elaborate presentation. Some of my favourite meals are the simplest ones, especially when shared with family or friends over a good bottle of Port.

You're marooned on a desert island. What wine would you drink for the rest of your days? Does Port make the cut?

I'd certainly take Port. If I had to choose just one wine, it would probably be a mature Vintage Port. It continues to evolve in the glass, so every bottle tells a slightly different story. Besides, if you're going to be stranded on a desert island, you might as well have something worth looking forward to every evening.

LAKES DISTILLERY, ENGLAND

In 2013 Paul Currie identified the perfect place to build a distillery; an old, disused dairy farm five miles north-west of the popular tourist destination of Keswick and just one hundred and fifty yards from an excellent water supply. Thirteen years later, The Lakes Distillery is one of the flag bearers of English Vodka, Whisky, and Gin production thanks to their commitment to excellence ensuring that every bottle that they release, from their award-winning vodka to their limited edition Whiskymaker's Reserve series, is crafted with the utmost care and precision. Long fermentation and slow distillation build layers of flavour, combined with active ageing in ex-sherry casks and masterful blending create whiskies of remarkable complexity. The Lake Districts' exceptionally pure waters combine with the very best botanicals to create a precise and nuanced gin, while their prize-winning vodka is made with the finest British wheat bringing subtle sweetness and peppery heat.

Artisan Pantry

Great wine deserves great company, which is why we have carefully curated a selection of gourmet provisions that reflect the same values that guide our wine buying: quality, provenance, and authenticity.

From artisan producers and family-owned estates, discover exceptional olive oils from renowned wine producers, alongside hand-crafted crisps, premium nuts, olives, anchovies and savoury delicacies from some of Europe's most renowned producers. These are ingredients with a story, made by people who share our commitment to craftsmanship and flavour.

Whether enjoyed alongside a glass of Champagne, a crisp white or rosé, as well as a perfectly chilled Vermouth, our artisan pantry is designed to transform everyday moments into something special, bringing the spirit of the vineyard, the Mediterranean, and the aperitif hour straight to your table!

ARTISAN PANTRY

THE DRINKS BAKERY

Created in Scotland with the belief that great drinks deserve equally great accompaniments, The Drinks Bakery creates award-winning savoury biscuits specifically designed to complement wine, beer and spirits. Developed using carefully selected ingredients and expertly balanced flavours, each biscuit is crafted to enhance, rather than overpower, the drink it accompanies. Whether paired with Sherry, Port, Vermouth or fine wine, they offer a simple yet sophisticated way to elevate the tasting experience and make every glass even more enjoyable.

EXTRA VIRGIN OLIVE OIL

Extra virgin olive oil (EVOO) is a natural extension of our portfolio, celebrating the same principles that define great wine: terroir, craftsmanship and a deep connection to the land. Many of the world's leading wineries also cultivate olive groves, producing exceptional oils alongside their wines. Producers such as Herdade do Esporão (Alentejo) and Taylor's (Douro Valley) in Portugal, Zuccardi in Mendoza, and Bodegas RODA's Aubocassa estate in Mallorca, all showcase the same commitment to quality, provenance and meticulous production, making their olive oils a perfect complement to the wines they create.
