“THE DARK” AND “THE LIGHT”

Art, Interview, and Transcription by Norman, Alum and Staff Member
(Abbe Clubhouse)

“Life isn’t always gonna be straight, a straight road, there’s always gonna be bumps, there’s always gonna be something that’s impeding you from actually proceeding.

There’s always gonna be something that’s going to throw you down, that’s going to kick you, and just like throw you out the curb, and it’s really okay because as long as you just keep getting up, as long as you have that perseverance, that strength, that resilience to keep going.

Even if you have, even if the world is against you, you still have that power to just try to go against those norms, try and go against those things that are impeding you from succeeding otherwise. There is always more opportunities for me down the road in case something doesn’t land, but when I actually graduate.

There is, like always, something more to learn about myself and the world every day. And even if I don’t, even if I don’t appreciate what I have right now, even if there is stuff that makes me rethink about what I’ve done, I really want to appreciate that I’m still here in the moment, and there’s nothing really more incredible than just being on this earth with the people around me. With the friends and family that can support you each and every day, whether it’s through actions or words, it’s always an incredible feeling, just having them supporting you even if things don’t go your way, and I’m really, really thankful that I get to experience this stuff.”

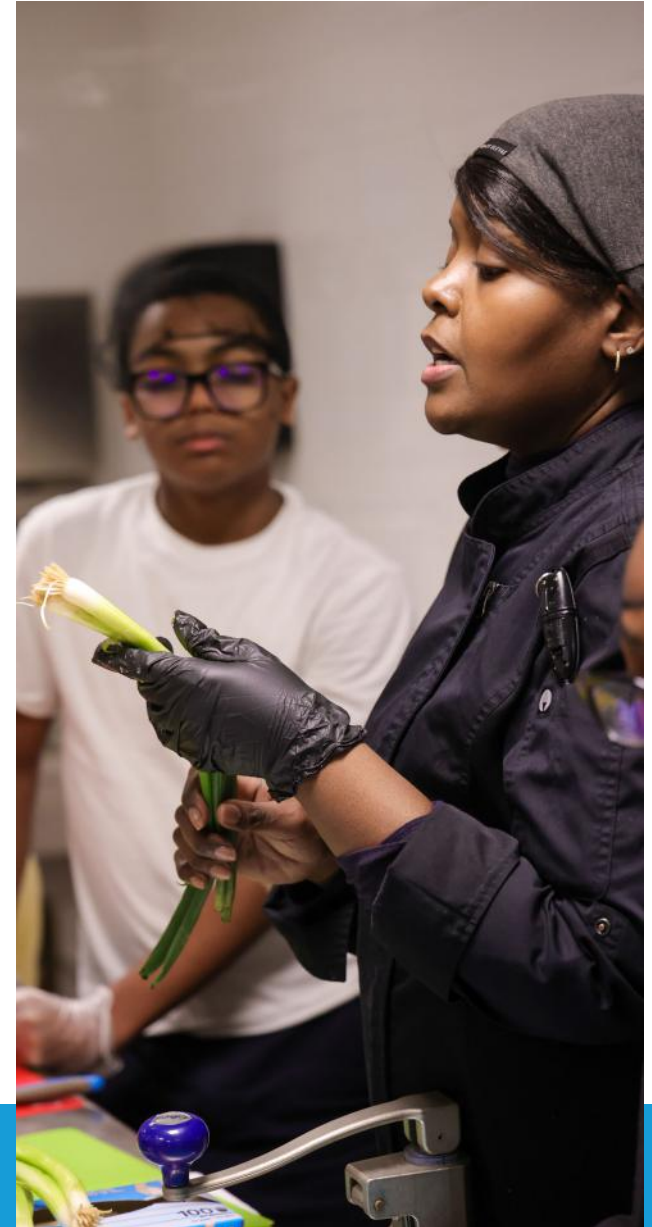

- Andres, Alum and Staff Member (Abbe Clubhouse)

“I wanted to make 2 pieces that directly contrasted one another, titled “The dark” and “The light”. The former portrays one of the darker moments of Andres’s past, his father’s deportation. The intentional decision to omit any bodies and faces, paired with the monochrome tone, makes the red light of the car seem all the colder and distant. While I made the latter piece with more vibrant colors and a smoother brush to brighten the moments he has with our friend group in the present, conveying the idea that despite the pain, hardship, and regret of the past, he can still look to the future with people by his side.”

- Norman

“I love coming to Boys’ Club. I love coming as much as I can. If I could come early, I would come early every day, 2:30 on the dot. If I could go every day, if I could go every time I was free, just play pool, play ping pong, be around my friends, eat, I would.” - Adriel, Teen Member (Tiger Clubhouse)

“Amazing people. You’ll never meet these types of people anywhere else in the world because Boys’ Club is like it brings you together and teaches you many lessons.” - Mason, Teen Member (Abbe Clubhouse)

"I feel comfortable in three places. My house, my grandma's house and here."
- Gianni, Junior Member (Tiger Clubhouse)

YOUTH COUNCIL DEBATE AND MAJOR AWARDS

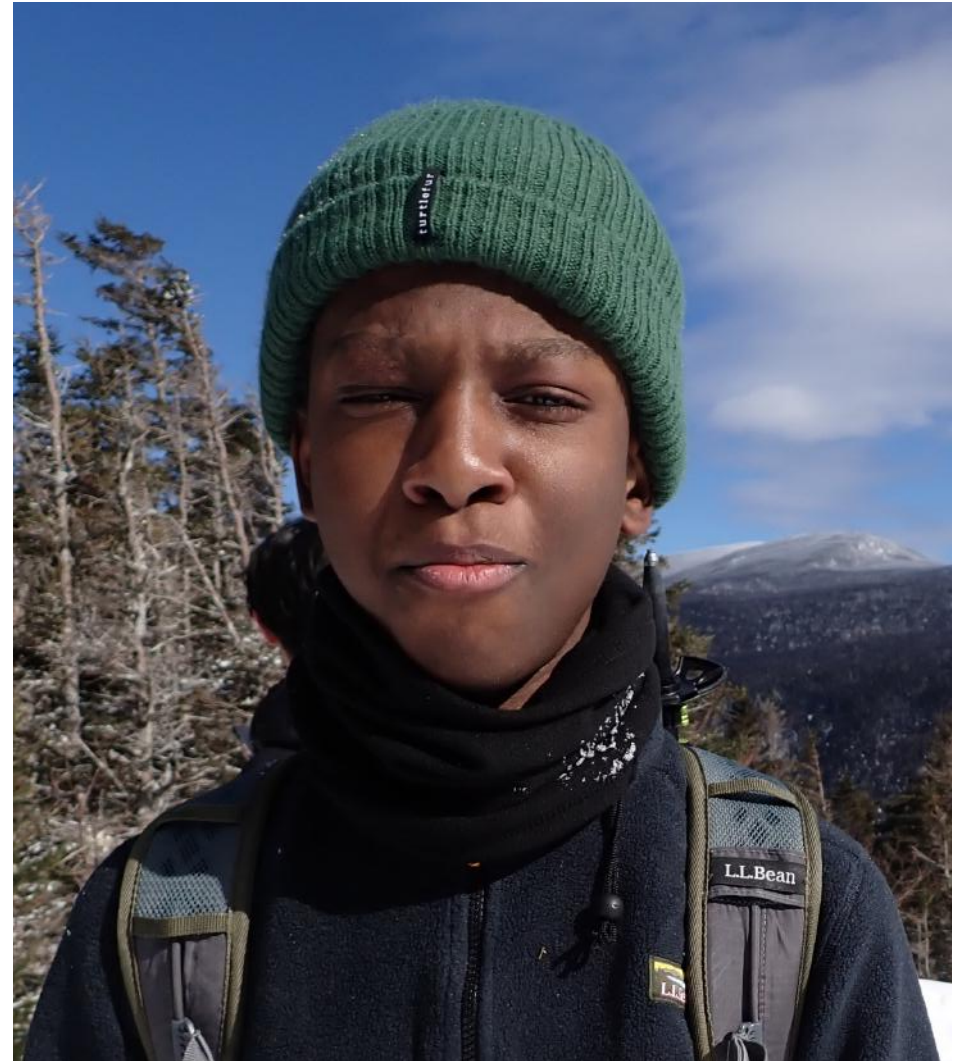

“I’ve been able to make many friends and through different programs such as gym, music and GRA (Game Room Association).” - Angel, Teen Member (Gerry Clubhouse)

TEEN DEPARTMENT

“Ever since I came to the Boys’ Club I did programs like the food bank, I did Project Coach, Project Teach, Project Build. Yeah, I just... I contribute a lot in the Boys’ Club.”

- Jayden, Alum and Staff Member (Gerry Clubhouse)

WINTER EXPLORATION

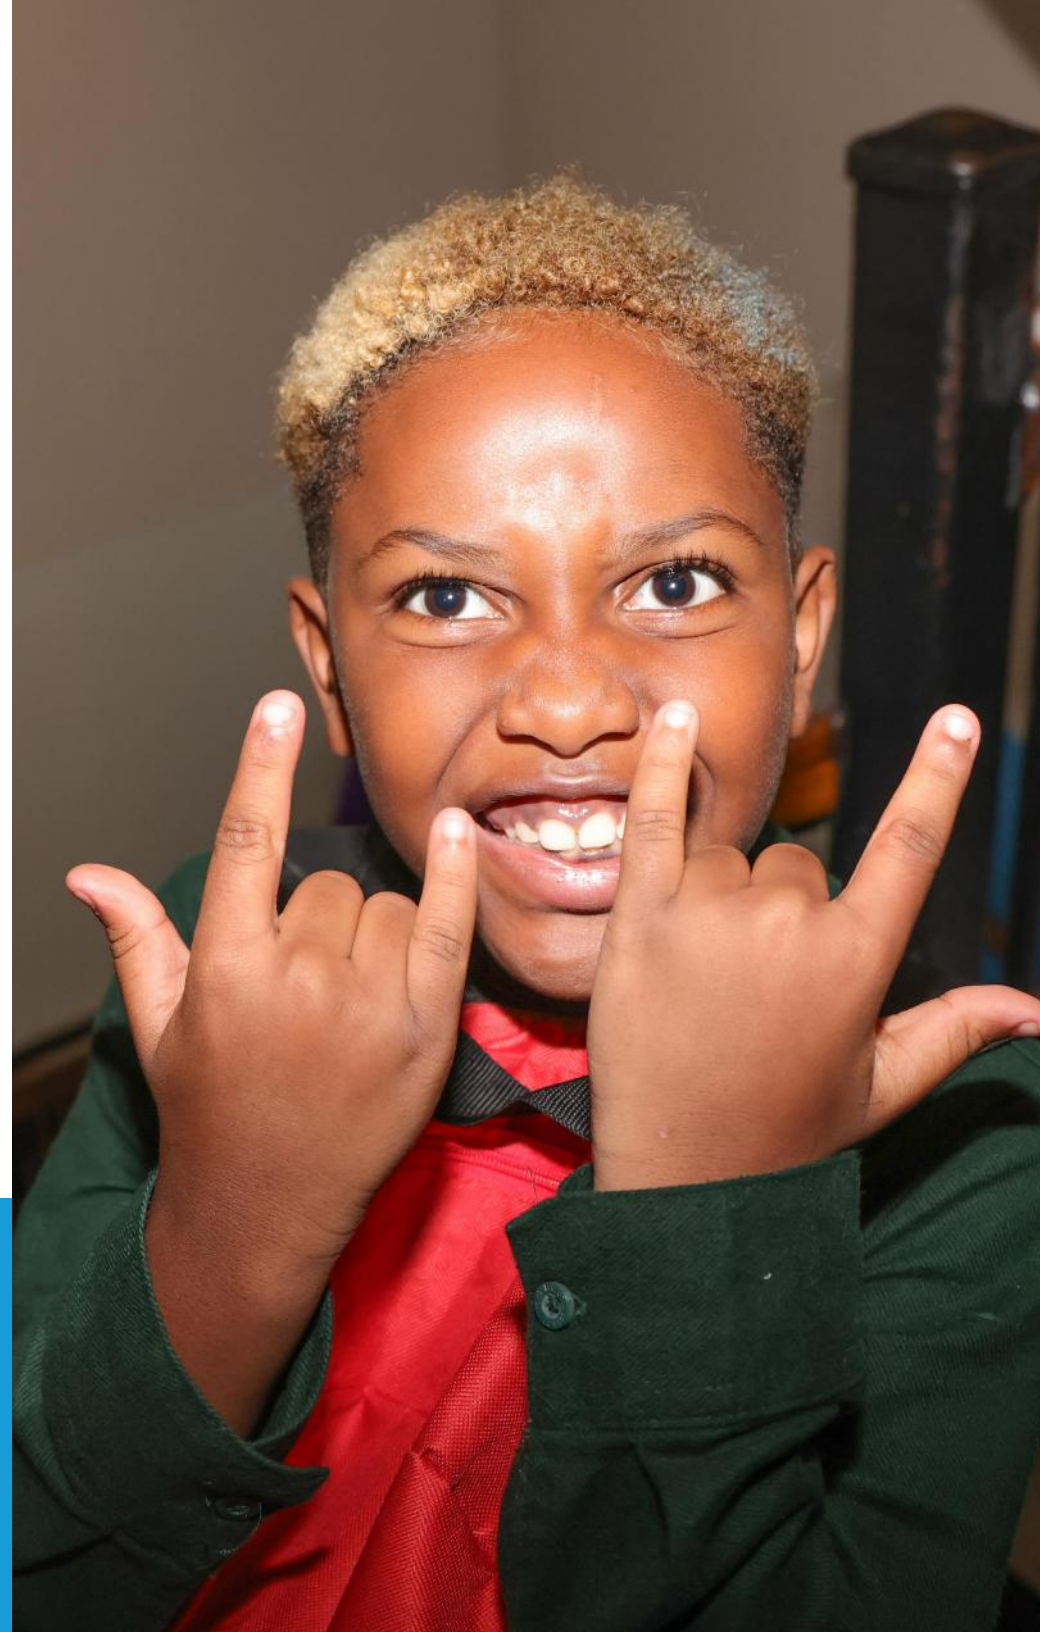

Members kicked off BCNY's wilderness and environmental programming with a winter exploration trip to the breathtaking White Mountains of New Hampshire with BCNY Camp Director, Seb Venuat and Devin Malbreaux, licensed psychotherapist and wilderness enthusiast. After a scenic drive north, members settled in at Appalachian Mountain Club's Mountain Lodge, where they prepared for an ascent to a remote mountain hut. Equipped with snowshoes and ice crampons, members hiked snowy and icy trails while carrying their belongings to the Zealand Falls Hut. Participants learned to prepare their own meals, stock a wood stove for heat, and melt snow for drinking water- all while taking in the serene beauty of the dark skies and the silence of the mountains.

JUNIOR DEPARTMENT

“They welcome all the boys here and then them doing that, I make friends off the bat.”

- Armani, Junior Member (Gerry Clubhouse)

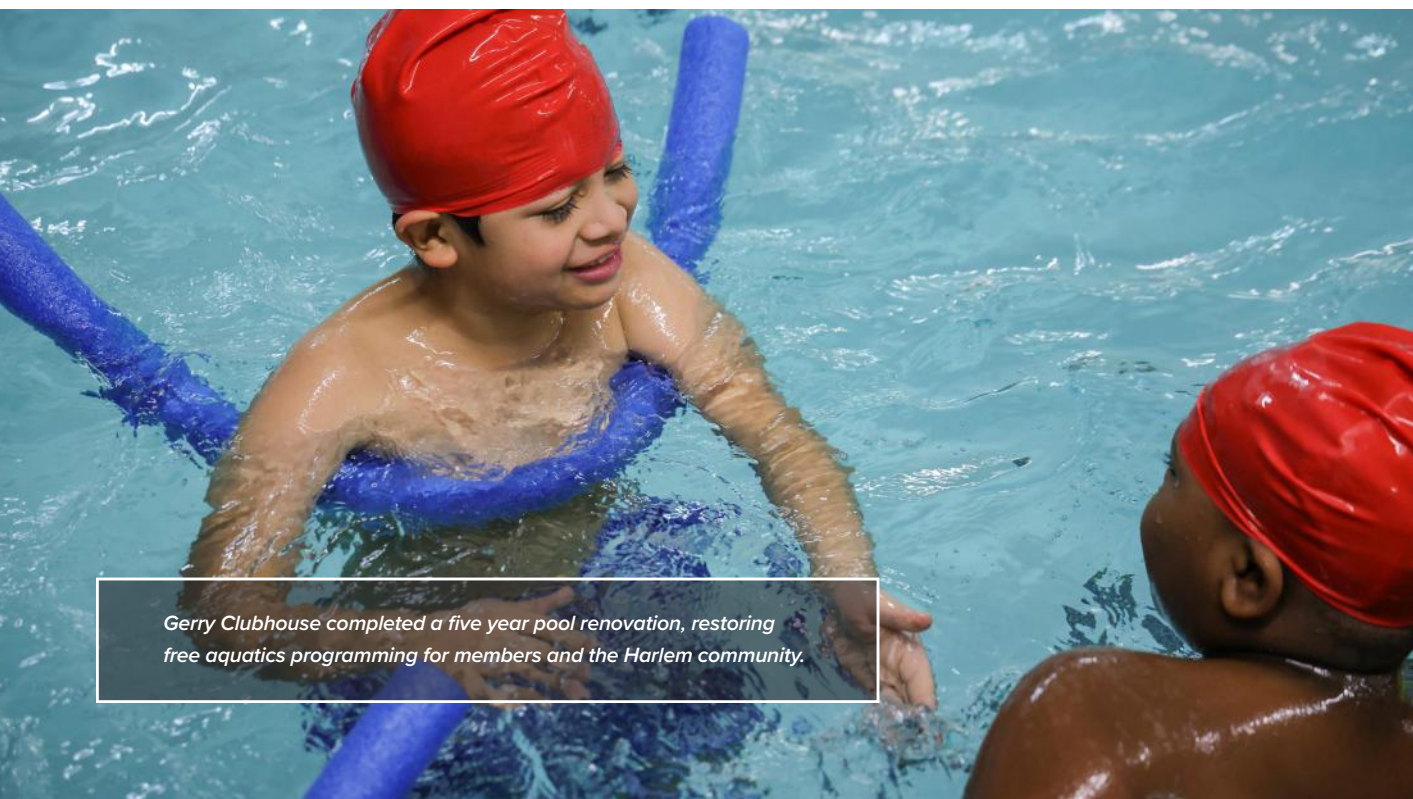

EXPLORER DEPARTMENT

“To belong at BCNY for me means to be loved.”
- Duquan, Explorer Member (Gerry Clubhouse)

EAST HARLEM POOL REOPENS!

“When I’m in the water, I feel like I’m a fish. You can do a lot of things in the water that you cannot do in reality.” - Raziel, Junior Member (Gerry Clubhouse)

Gerry Clubhouse completed a five year pool renovation, restoring free aquatics programming for members and the Harlem community.

GRANT AWARDED TO SUPPORT CHARACTER DEVELOPMENT AT CAMP

At Harriman Basecamp, campers build confidence, character, and healthy life skills through intentionally designed experiences. This 150 year commitment earned BCNY a Character at Camp grant from the American Camp Association to enhance activities, staff training, and camper support.

"I remember meeting new people, working with them as a team. The activities helped me connect with people and build confidence. It was a fun experience."

- Marvin, Teen Camper (Harriman Basecamp)

TIGER CLUBHOUSE OPENS IN MOTT HAVEN

Members from all BCNY clubhouses came together for our annual Jamboree at the recently opened Tiger Clubhouse, enjoying a day of games, friendly competition, and connection.

“BCNY has helped me feel welcome here because no matter if people are new or people are coming back, you still get treated the same and you still get treated like you’re family.” - Tristan, Teen Member (Tiger Clubhouse)

U.S. REP. GRACE MENG SECURES FEDERAL FUNDING TO EXPAND ABBE STEM PROGRAMS

“There’s some programs that I might’ve never gotten into if it wasn’t for Boys’ Club. Like before I was really big on building toys, Legos, anything else, and a lot with clay earlier on. But now, more recently I learned more about engineering and coding and that’s what I realized I really like.” - Elijah, Teen Member (Abbe Clubhouse)

PORTRAITS

A BCNY member since age six, Rayshawn now serves as a camp counselor at Harriman Basecamp. The BCNY alum and Esperanza Preparatory Academy graduate is currently studying Criminal Justice and Psychology at Herkimer County Community College.

INTERVIEW EXCERPT

Rayshawn, Alum and Staff Member (Gerry Clubhouse)

Interview conducted by Ashley, BCNY Staff Member since 2023

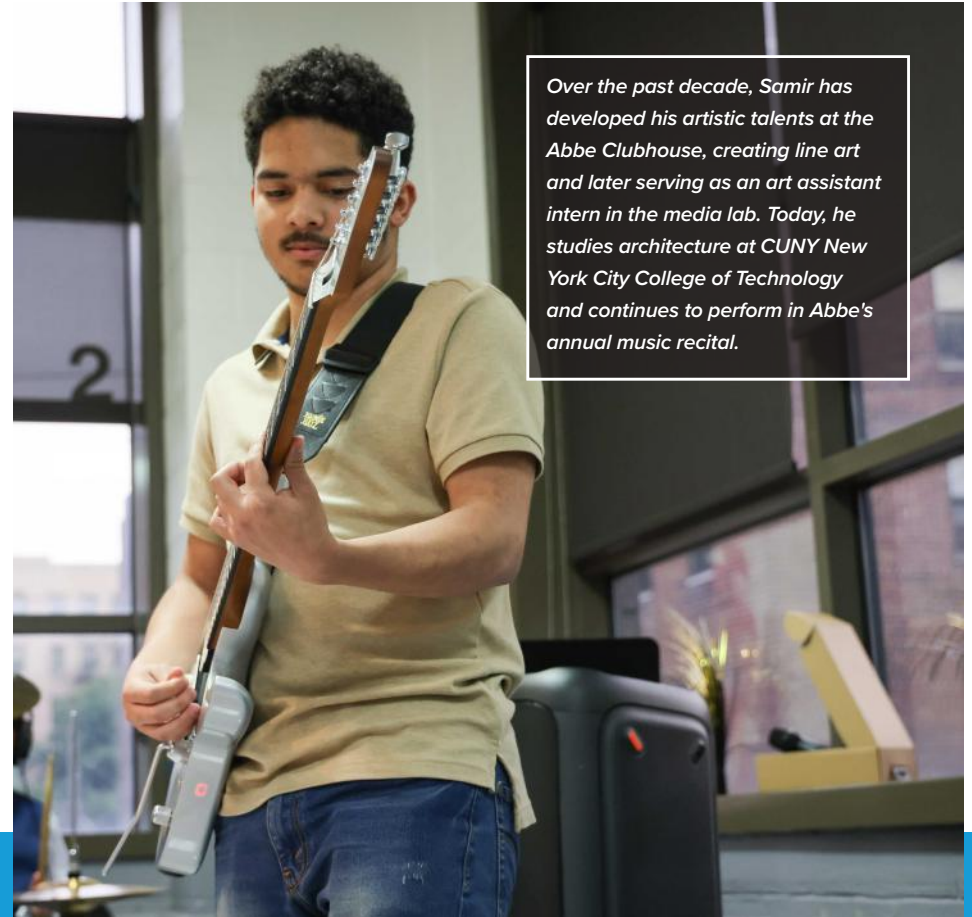

Ashley: What challenges did you overcome while at the Boys' Club?

Rayshawn: Definitely public speaking. I feel like Boys' Club definitely helped me with public speaking. The bunch of interviews that I had with the Boys' Club, but also the events that I went with the Boys' Club to. Public speaking and also just connecting well with others and just socializing more.

Ashley: Do you feel like there's anything anywhere in your community or any way with your friend group or any other areas that you contributed to as a member of the Boys' Club?

Rayshawn: I'd say leadership, my leadership skills. Definitely Boys' Club definitely contributed with my leadership skills 'cause I added that to my daily life throughout college. So throughout projects and stuff, I was mostly the guy researching stuff. So just leadership skills mostly.

Over the past decade, Samir has developed his artistic talents at the Abbe Clubhouse, creating line art and later serving as an art assistant intern in the media lab. Today, he studies architecture at CUNY New York City College of Technology and continues to perform in Abbe's annual music recital.

INTERVIEW EXCERPT

Samir, Alum (Abbe Clubhouse)

Interview conducted by Robyn, BCNY Staff Member since 2018, and Prospero, BCNY Staff Member since 2023

Robyn/Prospero: What did “diversity” look like to you growing up?

Samir: Having different backgrounds among all your peers. It’s always interesting hearing how different things are in your friends’ households or countries.

Robyn/Prospero: In what ways do you think NYC’s culture has shaped who you are?

Samir: Being used to culture is one. Adapting to the city’s culture. Being more docile than if I would’ve grown up in the Dominican Republic... My community was very close. Because my neighborhood was majority Asian, I grew closer to my hispanic neighbors as we were able to communicate easily.

Robyn/Prospero: How did you contribute or give back to your community?

Samir: The Boys’ Club allowed me to do things for my community like cleanup and showcasing art. Flushing is the only neighborhood I really connected with. As long as I lived in Flushing I was with the Boys’ Club contributing the same way. I did internships in the Explorer and Junior departments.

FROM HUMBLE BACKGROUNDS

Alaudin, Alum (Gerry Clubhouse)

Interview conducted by Kevin, Teen Member (Abbe Clubhouse)

Growing up in East Harlem, Alaudin found safety and comfort in hip-hop, since its raw energy connected to his feelings of rebellion. As a young person growing up in East Harlem, he sometimes struggled with his identity and where he fit in before eventually embracing his heritage. He hung out with graffiti artists, and through these experiences, he learned that anything is possible: “just because they don’t welcome you doesn’t mean you’re not welcome.”

He eventually joined The Boys’ Club of New York, which he described as a “safe place and a place of positivity.” Throughout his time at BCNY, Alaudin became an enthusiastic young man who never gave up and wanted to express himself to the world. He was influenced by the inclusive, exciting, and supportive community created by BCNY that fostered continuous improvement and growth. BCNY changed his negative view of isolation, introduced him into a community of friends, and shaped who he is today.

Alaudin began his career as a stand-up comedian performing in New York comedy clubs alongside comedians such as Chris Rock and Dave Chappelle. He moved to LA later and started showing interest in writing, particularly directing, because it provided him an opportunity to tell stories about himself, his unique journey through life, his Bangladeshi roots, and his upbringing in a diverse East Harlem community influenced by Puerto Rican, African American, and immigrant cultures. He continues to direct many productions on representation, such as In Search of Bengali Harlem (2022), which explores the “intertwined histories of South Asian Muslims, Puerto Ricans, and African Americans” through his parents, who were trying the best they could to support him.

BCNY alum, actor, and filmmaker Alaudin Ullah returned to the Boys' Club to speak with Project Comms members about filmmaking, the arts, and his experiences growing up in East Harlem. As a member of Gerry Clubhouse, then known as Jefferson Park ("JP"), Alaudin helped lead the 12-and-under team to the 1979 Ping Pong and Pool Championship, a victory that remains one of his fondest memories of the Club at just 11 years old.

BEYOND OUR DOORS

Kylerr, Alum (Harriman Clubhouse)

Written by Christian, Teen (Tiger Clubhouse)

Project Comms and Gerry members visited the [R]Evolution of Hip Hop exhibit powered by The Hip Hop Museum to explore the culture of Hip Hop from the 'Golden Era' (1986-1990). We met Kylerr Bucano, a BCNY alumnus, whose dad, Rocky Bucano, founded the Universal Hip Hop Museum.

Upon entering, we were struck by valuable artifacts like Coolio's bicycle and Slick Rick's throne from a photo shoot. Kylerr showed us a 3-minute video highlighting the Hip Hop scene with rappers from different parts of America, including N.W.A from the West Coast and LL Cool J from Queens, New York.

We then entered a dark rectangular room with an 80's music soundtrack and a stunning light show. Kylerr allowed us to explore the rest of the museum freely, where we saw a Run DMC concert on an old TV, a popular Fendi jacket made by Dapper Dan from that era, and special items from the late beatboxer/rapper Biz Markie, like his gold chain, a special treasure for jewelry fans like myself.

Towards the end of our tour, Project Comms members interviewed Kylerr, asking about the inspiration behind the museum and his experience as a member.

Some highlights of the interview were when Kylerr shared his take on the true essence of hip hop: culture, community and unity. To that end, Kylerr wanted us to know that "you can use this culture [hip hop] to create change". Rocky and Kylerr are doing just that. The new museum under construction across the street will have affordable housing in the floors above, proving they are men of their word.

Below is an excerpt from Kylerr's Interview with Nickolas, Alum (Abbe Clubhouse):

"In our future place called The Hip Hop Museum, there is going to be 55,000 sq ft where we showcase all parts of hip hop history. The exhibits is just going to be very technical, tech savvy, right, where we want people to feel engaged and feel like they're immersed into the story, right?

I could talk about hip hop all day long, but yeah, not a lot of people want to hear from a kid that has a young face, right? A guy that has a young face. They want to hear from people that actually live the time period. They want to hear from Slick Rick, hear his stories.

So, we've got to use a lot of technology to tell a lot of the hip hop people stories and have people feel like they're really getting firsthand knowledge from those people.

But you know, from what you have seen in this exhibit is just a small case of what you're going to expect, right? The TV's, the headphones, right, the the games, right. [We weren't] able to use the graffiti wall. But you know, people can take spray cans and start digitally spraying the gates, right?

And that's one thing that we want because, you know, when kids come, we don't want them to be bored at the museum, right? They usually get bored. But with our museum, we can have kids stay engaged throughout the whole experience and that's what we want."

Project Comms and Gerry members visited the [R]Evolution of Hip Hop exhibit powered by The Hip Hop Museum in the Bronx to explore the culture and history of Hip Hop's Golden Era (1986-1990). During the visit, members met BCNY alum Kylerr Bucano, who began attending BCNY in 2007, and his father, Rocky Bucano, founder of the Universal Hip Hop Museum.

MEMBER OUTCOMES

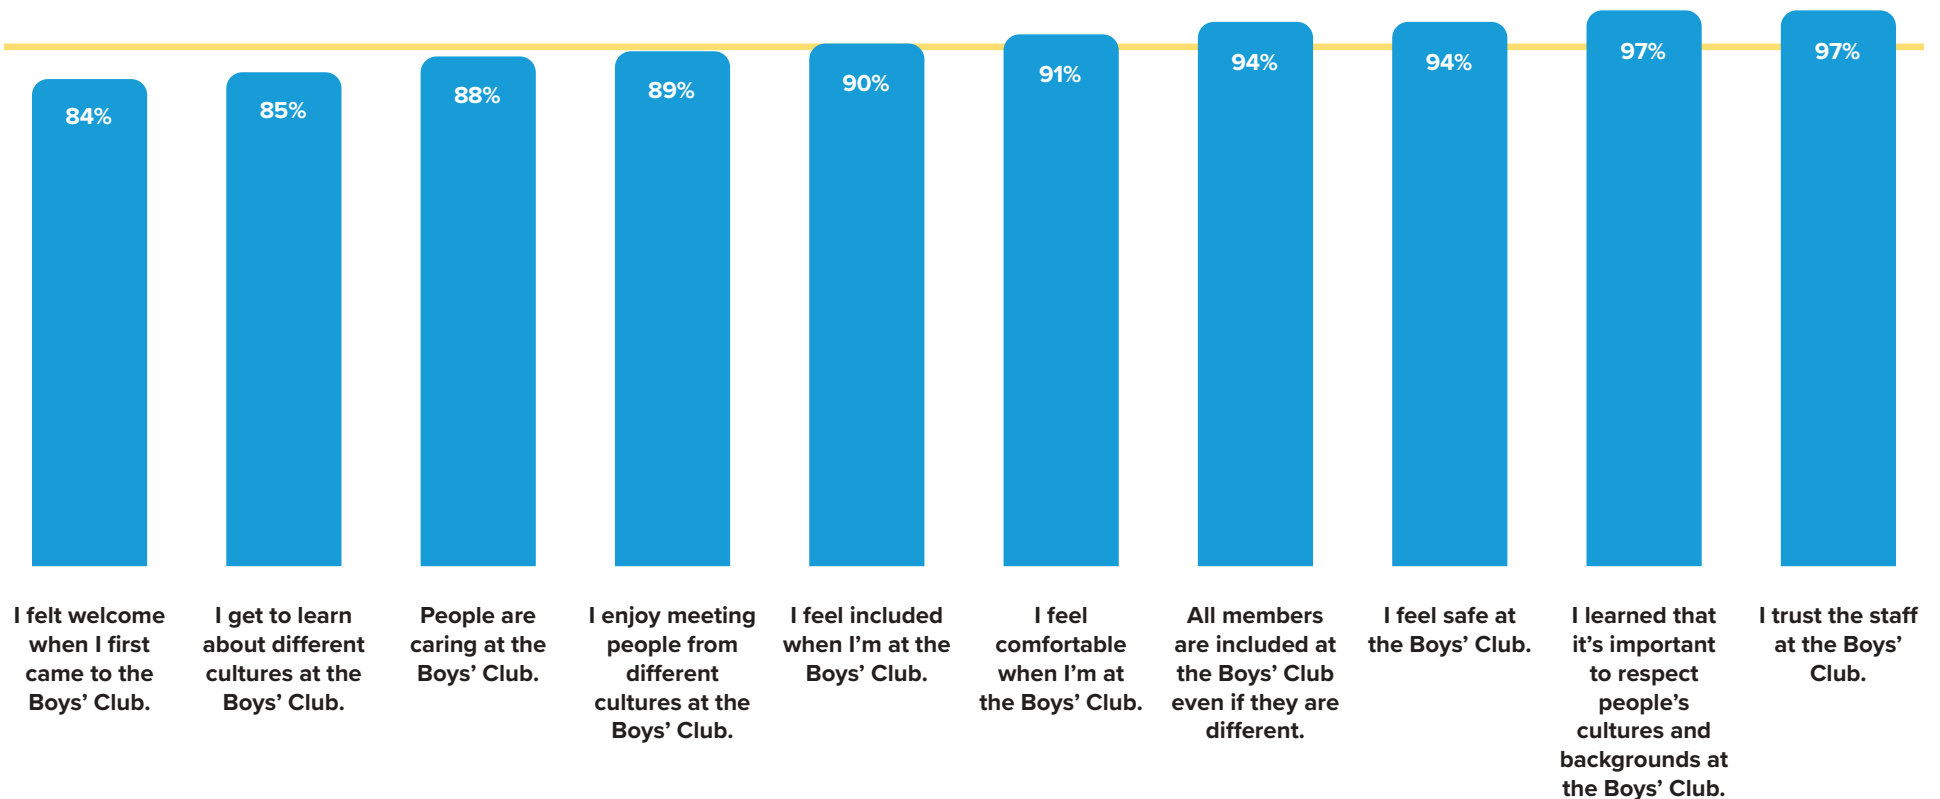

The following report presents findings from BCNY's annual Journey Evaluation. The themes explore member development of self, interpersonal skills, their engagement with the community and larger world, and preparing for the future.

THE JOURNEY SURVEY

Since piloting the Journey Framework in PY24, BCNY has gathered more than 120 member interviews and 700 member surveys.
