Happy AUGUST

I hope everyone had a nice and relaxing 4th of July Holiday! Brian and I drove up to a friend's house in Maine for the weekend. It was so nice to live a slower, peaceful life, if only for the weekend. I played a little cribbage (and won twice!), played a little cornhole, and only won because my partner was a great player!

The best part of the weekend was that I brought a few sewing supplies to my friend's neighbor, a 12-year-old young lady just learning to sew! She was so excited over a charm pack; she looked at every single fabric square, pointing out its uniqueness compared to the piece before. It sure was exciting to see the next generation enthralled in fabric; if only she knew it was the beginning of her 'stash.' :)

Seeing her face light up as she went through her gifts reminded me how important it is that we encourage the next generation to sew. Teach your grandkids, teach the neighbors, teach your friends.

Keep quilting alive!

Cheryl

TECH TALK

— with Brian —

Why Do I Need a Walking Foot?

Have you ever noticed when you're sewing that sometimes your stitches seem to bunch up or get small, or your fabric as the "Chicken Feet" wrinkles? This is caused by the machine not having enough grip on the fabric. This can all be avoided with a Walking Foot!

A walking foot can be referred to as a dual feed foot, IDT (Integrated Dual Technology), IDF (Integrated Dual Feed), Acufeed, etc. is an auxiliary foot that has its own set of feed dogs built in. The teeth on it grip fabric from the top and helps pull the layers evenly through the machine. The fabric is actively gripped and pulled by both the bottom and the top at the same time. This greatly decreases the chance of your fabric slipping and you will have consistent stitch lengths.

“The fabric is actively gripped and pulled by both the bottom and the top at the same time.”

Most machines grip the fabric by the bottom (when the feed dogs poke through the stitch plate to move your fabric forward) and is held in place by the presser foot. Sometimes the weight or size of the project can cause the fabric to slip, creating shorter stitches.

You will want to use a walking foot when you are quilting your quilt with fabric and batting. Working with heavier fabrics that need the extra push, or even a mix of fabrics at the same time, like adding tulle on top of cotton, adding a ruffle fabric to a flat fabric.

Some machines will have their walking built in, like the PFAFF brand that we sell. Other machines may require a separate purchase, or a particular model will have it included.

Stop in and see me and I will give you a demo of a built in walking foot in action!

A walking foot is your best friend!

Brian.
