CHAIRMAN'S WELCOME

by Nick Cragg

Today we welcome Caldy RFC to Clifton Lane, for only their second ever visit. Back in March 2019, they arrived with most of their mini juniors, who were on tour at the end of their season, and they filled our ground with young people enjoying rugby on and off the pitch.

Our one visit to Paton Field, in 2018, was in bright autumn sunshine; with the return fixture this season in February, we may not be so lucky with the weather, but we know the hospitality will be warm and welcoming. We extend a very warm welcome to everyone from Caldy today; players, officials, supporters, and we hope they enjoy their day.

In addition to our guests from Caldy, all of whom will be kindly hosted by our VP's; we welcome our other visitors and their guests including Franco Ventura from McDonalds, Mick Appleyard from Map Services, Chris Hartley from CLH Accounting, Mike Priestley from FWD Motion, Peter Boardman from Boardman Wealth Management, Jon Ling from Jenkinson Insurance, Charlotte Webster from BTG, Ava Jones from The Money Group, Vicki Athey and Craig West - a very warm welcome to you all - I hope you have an excellent day with us.

The Coventry game gave us an exciting ending for our first Champ match, and I don't think anyone expected the same sort of tension against Bedford, especially when we had built up a healthy lead at half time. However, Bedford fought back strongly, and, from a winning position, we were looking at a draw as the clock ticked to full time, and just 2 points.

The Titans players had other ideas, even though the clock was well past 80 minutes. Back behind the touchline, the call came out to attack the ball, as the replacement kicker lined it up. Ben Cambriani was the first to get there and the video on Instagram of his charge-down has been viewed over one million times! By the time you read this, it could be considerably more.

Many players have become legends at Rotherham over the years for amazing kicking feats - Garry Law's kick at Doncaster, Mike Umaga's kick at Leeds, Lloyd Hayes drop goal last season. Ben Cambriani may just have added his name to that list, for stopping a kick to win us a game.

Next weekend we will be setting off on Sunday morning for our first Free to Air televised game down at The RAG, against our old friends, Richmond. Our circular Big Flag has to make the journey as well, to be part of the pre-match festivities.

Tonight we have been joined by The Willows School and Lotus School, as part of our community programme, to help our Youth Teams with the Guard of Honour and Big Flag. Some of our current playing squad work in both schools and we hope the students enjoy seeing their staff in a different environment.

The Free to Air coverage of Champ Rugby games by Blaze TV on a Sunday comes to Clifton Lane on November 1st, when we welcome Cornish Pirates. We hope you can join us for that new development of our season back in the Champ.

Enjoy the game tonight.

FROM THE COACHES DEN

by Harvey Biljon – Director of Rugby

We've had some incredible moments after just 3 games.

You look at how Coventry took off here in week 1 and I'm sure we all thought at 28-12 what direction is this going in? And somehow, we've come into the 83rd minute and claimed a victory because we've been able to hold them out defensively.

We then go away to the Champions and in parts we're in an arm wrestle and in other parts we're probably blown away with speed on that surface, and we've got to rightly take our medicine for our errors and mistakes.

Then we go into the game last week, where Bedford are a very good team; we had control of the game through 65 minutes and then as we know in this league, it's 2 or 3 moments and 20-odd points are scored – and then we go and get a charge down in front of the posts.

I think our messages at half time against Bedford were clear; it was a calm dressing room with a confidence of going into the second half and continuing to do what we were doing. At Champ level however, teams are not going to go away, they're going to play for 80-plus minutes, and we all see how quickly scores can happen.

For us it's recognising the difference between National 1 and the Champ. In Nat 1 you almost know when the game is won, whereas in the Champ you don't because teams are always fighting until the end to get a losing bonus point. They keep going beyond the 80-minute mark and so we must make sure we maintain our focus and stay on task until the final whistle.

It's crazy to think of the entertainment and rugby going on at Clifton Lane; it's just unreal.

I've been asked if I've ever been involved in a game before where a kick late on has been charged down. Well yes I have and believe it or not it was here! In 2011 I was coaching Cornish Pirates against Rotherham at Clifton Lane and Rob Cook was charged down by Peter Swatkins! That's the only other time I have been involved when that's happened in front of the posts.

Now we move on to Caldy; they are a team that keep the ball really well and are established in Champ. If you look at their games to date, they lost by 2 points to Hartpury on the opening weekend, they beat Blackheath in the final play of the game and they just missed out to Chinnor last week by 3 points.

They are going to give us a serious test, I don't think I would be wrong to say I think this is a game they will have targeted to come away from with points. So, we've got to be mindful that this is a team coming here that's picked-up points in the campaign and now wants to turn that into a W.

I think Caldy have a good balance to be fair; they're always going to be confrontational up front, and they could have an injection of loan players. We've seen Reuben Logan from Sale Sharks playing for them down at Blackheath; they've obviously got some good additions. You can see their scrum half, Nye Thomas, is clearly influencing things and they've always got wingers that know the way to the tryline. So, yes, I expect this to be another entertaining encounter at Clifton Lane.

We've rotated through the season, and we must rely on our whole squad. We've got a fair few injuries and we need to utilise the squad and keep people fresh. Competition for places is good, and the players are driving standards at training which is making selection tough.

I'm really looking forward to playing on a Friday night under the lights at Clifton Lane; I'm not sure what to expect to be honest. I think playing under the lights brings excitement and edge and it's going to be a new experience for us all and let's see how we go.

And finally, just to say a big thank you to our supporters for the noise they have brought this season and hopefully it will be more of the same this evening. The players will be giving their all to try and repay them with another performance that will hopefully be good enough to get a result.

Enjoy the game,

Harvey

Harvey Biljon – Director of Rugby

TODAYS OPPOSITION

Caldy was formed in 1924 as the Old Caldeians Rugby Club for past pupils of Calday Grange school.

The first pitch was on a field at Caldy Crossroads and the players changed in the Barn across the road at Croxtons Farm.

In 1928 Sir Alfred Paton, a benefactor of the school gifted Thurstaston Hill to the National Trust, with the proviso that the Rugby Club would have a pitch in perpetuity and the rest of the 20 acres to be used for the benefit of the youth of the area. The original pavilion was built in 1928 and is still the wooden core of the current building today.

MEMBERS SUPPORT

The first pitch was levelled by the members in the 1930's when volunteers slept in the clubhouse and in tents for the summer, and a trench for the electric cabling was dug by the boys from the school who were in detention. Much of the funds for the clubhouse were raised by donations and bazaars organised by the members and the school.

In 1951 Hoylake Cricket Club moved to Paton Field as tenants of the Rugby Club and are now an active part of the Cald Sports Club. In 1967 the club levelled the slope outside the clubhouse to provide a first-class 1st XV pitch at a cost of £7,000

Matthews (captain), front row: A. Bennett, R. O. Davis, W. Hanks, G. F. Farrell (captain), G. A. Brown, T. Birtall, P. C. Smith, seated: R. B. Flahman, K. C. Edwards.

CALDY RUGBY CLUB WAS FORMED

In 1968 the Club went open and became Cald Rugby Club. The club was an original member of the Giro bank North West league which was the forerunner of National Leagues. It had mixed success and in 1996 it was relegated into level 9 in the League pyramid. A more professional approach was taken; since 1996 the club have won 5 league titles and were runners up twice before being promoted into National 2 West in 2007.

Since then, Cald have been runners up twice to Nuneaton (there was no play off that year due to league restructuring) and in 2012 lost to Richmond in the playoff 20-13 after extra time. In 2017 Cald finally won the league, after losing the first game, went unbeaten for 28 games which is a club record, winning the title after a dramatic game with Sale 28-26 after being 23-3 down at half time.

NATIONAL 2 NORTH SUCCESS

After winning the National 2 North Cald were promoted to National 1 which meant they were in the top 40 clubs in the Country playing such illustrious Clubs as Blackheath, Rosslyn Park, Coventry, and Moseley. In the first season Cald remained in the league with some notable wins against Fylde, Blackheath, Moseley, and Rosslyn Park.

Unfortunately, in the following season Cald were relegated in the final minute of the final game losing 10-12 to Birmingham. However, the 1st XV showed great resilience and went through the following season unbeaten and secured promotion winning at Preston, unfortunately Covid intervened and prevented them from finishing the programme which would have broken all records for the club and National Leagues and were promoted back to National 1.

CHAMP RUGBY

Reaching the highest level in the club's history, the first team are now in their 5th season of competition in the RFU Champ Rugby, the second team continue their 6-year unbeaten run (over 100 games and counting) as defending champions of the Halbro Premier division, plus the third team supports the transition between a thriving minis/juniors and colts' sections into adult rugby.

INJURY UPDATE

by David Swift

Good evening and welcome to tonight's game against Caldy.

Saturday produced another win with more last-minute drama for the team. It also came at a cost to us in the medical department but more of that later!

Prior to the game as we were busy with the team, we received a great surprise - the Doctor from Bedford came to see us (that's not a surprise, it's what happens every game!). The surprise was that it was one of Chris' former GP trainees, Tom Gillham, who has moved to the Bedford area as a GP and is working with Bedford Blues. Tom had been down to a couple of games to spend time with us whilst still a GP trainee, so it was lovely to catch up with him. As well as being a great GP, before he retired Chris used to be responsible for the Yorkshire/Humber GP training scheme and hundreds of GP trainees have passed through his hands.

In terms of injuries Saturday created a few more challenges for us. Ali Mgijima had to undergo an HIA at half time and was not allowed to continue to play. He is now in the return-to-play protocol.

Alistair Donkor has a neck problem and was removed as a consequence of that - it's a pretty common injury for props.

Alfie Bell had to be removed from the field fairly early in the first half due to an impact to his shoulder and has damaged his acromio-clavicular joint (the AC joint!). We sent him for an X-Ray as he had developed a large step deformity, the X-Ray revealed no broken bones - which is good and confirmed the AC disruption.

What we are unsure of at the moment is the degree of disruption so Alfie will be seen by our shoulder expert David Potter to further investigate before we decide on the most appropriate course of action.

The AC joint is formed between the outer end of the clavicle (collar bone) and the acromion - a bony shelf above the shoulder joint on the end of the shoulder blade. The joint has very little by way of ligaments holding the clavicle in place - mainly one that comes from a lump of bone on the shoulder blade - the coracoid process which travels up to the under surface of the clavicle (the coraco-clavicular ligament).

If the ligament gets stressed, often by the shoulder hitting something - an opponent or the floor, it can become over stretched or torn completely and this allows the clavicle to 'slide upwards' leading to the so-called step deformity.

It is very common in rugby! We grade it as 1-3 or 1-6 whereby 3 or 6 is a complete tear and usually requires an operation to reconnect the two bones. Anything less is a 'rehabilitation only job'. By the time you read this we should know where we are and be able to predict more accurately how long Alfie will be absent.

In other news, Louis Guthrie has recovered well from his concussion, and Frankie Gascoigne is progressing really well after his groin operation and is in danger of having to return to training!

Enjoy Friday under the lights and let's hope we see another good, injury-free game of rugby

TEAM MATES

with JB Bruzulier

Who's the biggest wind-up merchant in the squad? Give them an inch, they'll take the mick.

Who takes the game way too seriously in training? It's not the World Cup final, mate.

Who's the worst passenger on away trips? Backseat driver, snacks everywhere, no filter.

Who would sell the whole squad out for a bag of chips? Loyalty has a price and it's low.

Who's most likely to fake an injury to skip a fitness test? Suddenly can't feel their hamstring.

Who's the last one out to training every session? Always 'just tying their laces' or conveniently late.

Most likely to forget their boots on game day? Or just always missing something.

Who's the undercover athlete - doesn't look fit, but runs all day?

Who's most likely to start a scrap (then walk away)? Bit of bark, not much bite.

Who's most likely to end up on reality TV? Love Island? Gladiators? Bake Off?

Has to be Jackson Barling

Ellis Thomas! Tackles people from behind in training

Matt Smith is boring and sits at the front

Rusty! He wines and dines with the coaches

Donks every time !!!!!

Travis Gordon straps his whole body

Donks any excuse

Diesel engine could go for days

Ben Cambriani

Changed now as John is all loved up, but I would say Ben Cambriani on the valleys

SUPPORTERS VIEWPOINT

with Tom Pollard

How do you solve a problem like Du'Plessis Kirifi? Now this name might be familiar to everyone, but I can almost guarantee his current predicament will be. The 29-year-old All Black has been described by a 'Key Leader and Player' at club level with Hurricanes, coach Clark Laidlaw, boasting how other players follow his lead.

He has captained the All Blacks XV with success and played in 8 tests under Scott Robertson for New Zealand. So far so good. Enter David Rennie in March 2026 as the new All Blacks Head Coach. Since then, Kirifi has been absent, not only from the team, but from the 34-man squad.

Searching through articles, there are several quotes from Rennie as to why this is. Some are definitive constructive criticism like, "I think post tackle is his point of difference, and the feedback we've given Dupes is around technique and trying to be a lot more flawless there."

Others tend to be much blunter, "Look, he's an excellent player. But if he was the best seven in the country in our opinion, we would have picked him."

Now plenty of outlets are quick to dig for personal fallouts between the two, but they have seemingly yet to find any. But I am still at a complete loss as to how a regularly selected, accomplished player can suddenly fall out of favour so hard that he doesn't make the 34-man squad even when two players have withdrawn through injury.

All sports seem to have similar stories. Is it personal? Is it a new coach asserting his authority? Is it a long-term vision that doesn't include a player like Kirifi? Or is it simply that David Rennie doesn't believe he is worthy of the spot?

On a lighter note, I was highly amused by Callum Sheedy heading the ball in the Cardiff vs Scarlets match this past weekend. A now viral clip that amused fans and apparently led to ridiculing from many of Sheedy's teammates.

There has been much debate about how legal the manoeuvre was, even leaving Nigel Owens undecided whether it should have been allowed.

It did however leave me looking at strange laws that Rugby had and I wanted to share a few of my favourites:

Before 1899 and the adoption of the modern scrum, Australian teams had 'Wing Forwards' which were involved in what we described as 'Private wrestling matches' as the game continued.

With the original game being much more highly dominated by the kicking game, it was once completely legal to kick the ball out of other players hands.

Finally, I found that a try wasn't even worth points. The 1845 rules of that game stated that once you had touched the ball down between the posts, players were allowed a 'Try' at the goal.

It's fascinating how much the game has developed into what we know it as today and to think why such rules were removed.

SUPPORTERS CLUB

with John O'Brien

Hello folks,

Are you like me, as I'm putting together my piece for the Friday night's fixture, still recovering from Saturday's topsy turvy game against old rivals Bedford.

I just couldn't help but sympathise with a totally gutted Mike Rayer, whose hand I warmly shook as his disbelief was palpable after Cambriani's charging down of Dufficy's attempted conversion at the death.

That resulted in their third defeat from three in this cauldron also known as The Champ.

Of course, I'm only too glad we came through after Bedford's incredible comeback from being totally outclassed in a terrific first half being 28-14 up at the break and then 40-19 during the second half.

We have to be far more clinical and realise that we can't rest on our laurels and believe it's in the bag before it definitely is and stop giving us all palpitations by taking your feet off the gas before the job's done.

Bedford are no mugs and they were always going to come back at us. No wonder the celebrations were loud and long. Cynical me sees it as a bit of a wake-up call. Well done boys. You played a blinder and thank you for providing the first half buffer that allowed us the narrowest of victories possible.

I had to go into the archives to look out one of my all-time favourite Rotherham players, Louis McGowan who after Sedgley Park, played for tonight's opponents Caldý Ravers. A Louis tale I might have mentioned before, was the one about Dave Gordon, owner of Gordon's coaches, buying a second-hand Liverpool team coach. When Louis, a mega Liverpool supporter, (as I am), found out he went round all the seats on the coach and said reverently, "I've now sat on Steven Gerrards seat."

Caldý tonight have not to be taken lightly folks. They've won one out of three games but only just losing by very small margins to Chinnor and Hartpury, and I can't emphasise enough, by very small margins indeed.

Let's not fool ourselves, we are not going to have an easy game this season by stepping up to the Champ. Wonder if we see Sam Dickinson supporting his brother JJ? Meanwhile the team we replaced, Cambridge have been massacred by Plymouth in a record breaking 102-0 loss. Plus, I've just watched Blackheath winning at home.

This'll be our first late evening game at the Lane and I'm wondering what sort of game we get under the lights. I would imagine there'll be some acclimatisation exercises so we're not at a disadvantage on the pitch. In the meantime, you have to wonder about crowd size, catering etc. I suppose this is all to accommodate Clubber live TV who film from the top level of the new tower installed on the 'cricket' side of the pitch. I'll have to tell Keith to bring an extra couple of layers, as I suppose it'll get fairly chilly late on.

Anyway, I'll finish off now with good luck to the lads and the usual battle cry of LETSENDOWMWINOWT.

Enjoy the evening and all the best as always,

John

LAWNS FARM

Our grandfather Alfred Edwin Ross originally purchased Lawns Farm in the 1940's and we are now in the third generation of farmers.

Lawns Farm is just under 200 acres of mainly dairy farming situated between Rotherham and Sheffield. We are a family farm with approximately 90 cows in milk, although our experimental nature has seen us breed Aberdeen Angus, Hereford and Belted Galloway cows.

A poultry hobby grew into a sizeable collection of chicken and duck varieties and then into commercial free range turkey and goose supply for the Christmas period.

Today we have a growing herd of pigs focusing on traditional old English breeds such as the British Lop and the Gloucestershire Old Spots.

Guy Williams:

HE'LL TELL YOU HOW IT IS

After the dramatic excitement in the last two home games against Coventry and then Bedford, what can we expect this evening? More of the same? And how will both teams adapt to playing under lights?

Who knows, but what I think is probably certain is that this clash in the Champ against Caldy from the Wirral will turn out to be another high scoring match.

The Merseyside club, who finished 11th in the Champ last season with nine wins in 26 league games, play attacking rugby as can be seen with their results before tonight's contest.

In the opening fixture, they lost at home - Paton Field - by only 42-40 to Hartpury. Caldy then took on newly promoted Blackheath and won by 28-24 in a tight match, again on a Friday night, at Well Hall in south-east London, and when they were back home for their third game, they lost, but only just, by 38-35 against Chinnor.

Although they have lost two games, it's too early in the Champ campaign to make any thorough judgement on any of the teams, but rest assured Caldy will be competitive, and as they like to play an enterprising style, the Rotherham defence will need to be at its best.

The coaching staff at Caldy, led by DOR Gareth

Davies and head coach, Chris Cairns, know how to inspire their squad, and after two narrow losses will be keen to cause an upset.

On a personal note, as a reporter for The Yorkshire Post and The Rugby Paper who chats to players for their opinions after games, I've been most impressed with those I've interviewed at Clifton Lane so far.

Last Saturday's hero, Ben Cambriani was most articulate talking about his astonishing charge-down which won the Bedford match, and in the first home game, I enjoyed hearing the views, well expressed, from Jackson Barling in the dressing room after the Coventry victory.

Another player I'd like to have a word with is second row John Okafor; I thought he was outstanding in the lineout against Bedford and I'm also sure that full back Isaac Shaw, and what a thrilling player he is, would make an interesting interview.

Bearing in mind the way the Champ fixture list looked after it was published...Rotherham's first three games being against genuine top sides, including the champions Worcester, the Titans' squad can be proud of their victories against Coventry and Bedford and must now be just as competitive against Caldy and then in the forthcoming matches against Richmond and Cornish Pirates.
