ALL YOURS.

Surrounded by the waters of Mantrap and Petite Lake

The modern history of Wonewok begins in the 1870s, when its virgin white pine forest was logged. But time was not the only attraction. Beautiful scenery, lakes and plentiful fish and game made the Park Rapids area a favorite with tourists. By the 1920s, the area had become so popular that an enterprising land development company acquired 200 acres of what is now Wonewok Conference Center. Later that decade, a Chicago industrialist named Fred A. Nachman became so enamored of the area's natural beauty that he purchased the property for a private retreat. As he built his stately lodge, he was unsparing in his attention to detail. Much of his legacy remains to the present day.

3M acquired the property in 1955 and remained an integral part of its history for the next 70 years.
