The Palladiums of The North

Step back into Rotherham's social club heyday with Palladiums of the North — a two-year project celebrating the clubs, performers, music, memories and people that shaped local life from the 1950s to the 1990s.

From Saturday dancefloor nights and packed concert rooms to bingo nights, family celebrations and unforgettable live acts, Rotherham's social clubs were at the heart of community life. Palladiums of the North will celebrate these memories through oral histories recordings, photos, memorabilia, exhibitions, creative activities and events; culminating in an immersive installation at Clifton Park Museum and a grand finale performance event at Rotherham Show, created with local communities, performers and artists.

We're looking for stories, memories and photos!

We want to hear from former club-goers, performers, staff, families and anyone with memories of Rotherham's club culture. Whether you have a favourite story, an old photograph, a programme, membership card or poster tucked away, your memories can help preserve this important part of the borough's heritage. Anyone with stories to tell can get involved by emailing hello@fluxrotherham.org.uk, following Flux Rotherham on Facebook and Instagram, or signing up to the newsletter for the latest updates.

The project is a partnership between FLUX Rotherham, Rotherham Museums, Arts and Heritage and Rotherham Civic Theatre, made possible with The National Lottery Heritage Fund with thanks to National Lottery players.

More new artworks will be added to buildings across Rotherham Town Centre in October. Look up on High Street and Bridgegate to see if you can spot them!

In November, 19 portraits will emerge in Minster Gardens. Created by 9 young people from Rotherham who worked with artist Emily Ryalls to create a series of analogue photographic images celebrating and archiving some of the inspirational women who live and work in Rotherham.

Hope Brigade is WOW Global's powerful, ongoing photography exhibition series, celebrating women and non-binary people who are leading change across ten urgent global issues - from climate justice to conflict, education to healthcare.
