The Myth of the Celestial Sisters

GODDESSES OF CITYSCAPE

Enter a realm where ancient myths and modern elegance converge. Our towering walls are adorned with panels depicting a series of Goddesses. Collectively known as the Celestial Sisters, they are ethereal beings who govern the night sky.

SELENA

GODDESS OF THE MOON

The eldest sister is the moon's keeper, guiding travelers and dreamers with her gentle light. She influences emotions, bringing a sense of calm and wonder to those who see her.

ASTRAEA

GODDESS OF THE STARS

Ruler of the stars, creates constellations that inspire creativity and imagination with her brilliant jewels in the sky, telling tales of love, adventure, and fate.

EOS

GODDESS OF THE DAWN

Symbolizes new beginnings by bringing the first light of dawn in shades of pink, gold, and violet. Her presence signifies renewal, instilling hope and optimism.

AURORA

Goddess of the AURORA BOREALIS

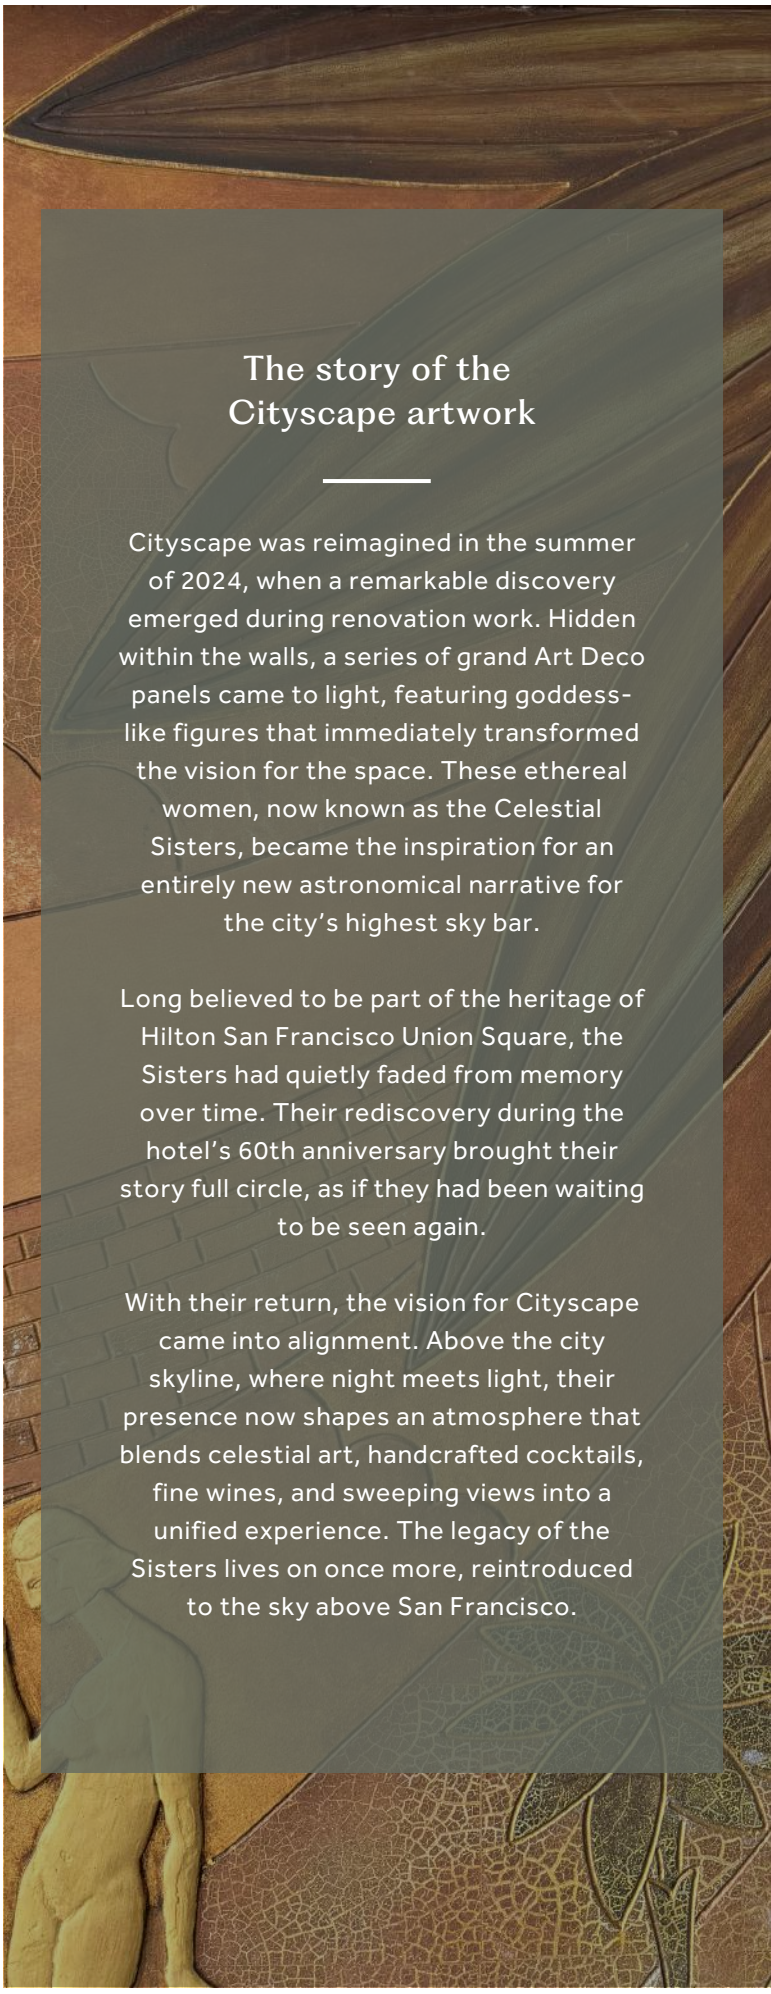

The mistress of the northern lights, captivating observers with her enchanting and wondrous display. She captures the hearts of those who look upon her.

NYX

GODDESS OF THE NIGHT

The youngest sister symbolizes the night, enveloping the world in mystery and magic. She possesses the power of dreams and desires, revealing night's secrets.

The story of the Cityscape artwork

Cityscape was reimagined in the summer of 2024, when a remarkable discovery emerged during renovation work. Hidden within the walls, a series of grand Art Deco panels came to light, featuring goddess-like figures that immediately transformed the vision for the space. These ethereal women, now known as the Celestial Sisters, became the inspiration for an entirely new astronomical narrative for the city's highest sky bar.

Long believed to be part of the heritage of Hilton San Francisco Union Square, the Sisters had quietly faded from memory over time. Their rediscovery during the hotel's 60th anniversary brought their story full circle, as if they had been waiting to be seen again.

With their return, the vision for Cityscape came into alignment. Above the city skyline, where night meets light, their presence now shapes an atmosphere that blends celestial art, handcrafted cocktails, fine wines, and sweeping views into a unified experience. The legacy of the Sisters lives on once more, reintroduced to the sky above San Francisco.
