QUALITY PLAYGROUND

Comparison of good and poor quality play equipment
by Park Games Equipment (PGE)

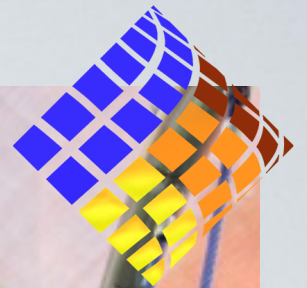

Park Games Equipment (M) Sdn Bhd
(329704-H)

NUMBER ONE SAFETY

Before anything else comes safety.
PGE is certified to EN1176
International Safety Standard by
TUV Nord and SUD of Germany.

Our children is are our treasure,
you want something safe for them.

VERTEX CURVE
EXAMPLE OF EXCEPTIONAL DESIGN,
QUALITY AND SAFETY

ROPES EQUIPMENT

Ropes are flexible, steel is solid - hence they alone provide a new and exciting dimension to play. Good quality ropes from Europe are not cheap so we keep the cost low by buy them in rolls and fabricating the structure ourselves.

PGE uses nylon ropes with steel core imported from Sweden, we use Hydraulic pressed solid aluminium or Nylon connectors.

Our competitors designs look like ropes but are usually just steel bars. Steel is cheap, ropes are not - its good to know what you're getting.

SPRINGS

Springs are a classic. They provide a rocking motion and are ridiculously fun. Good quality springs should have a large diameter and rod size but made from soft heat treated steel rods. This will make sure they are both soft and strong which translates to fun and durable.

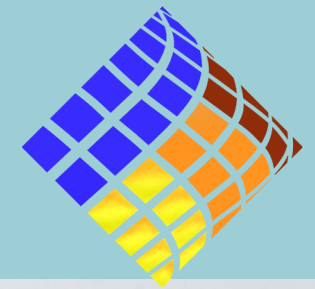

PGE uses APM springs with a 6-1/2" Outer diameter, 16" height and 5/8" thick rod.

Our competitors use... well... see for yourselves.

Even if they're using springs they are small and stiff, they are really no fun to play with.

BIGGER EQUIPMENT

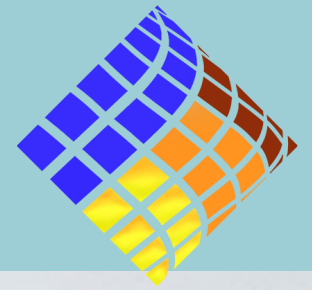

See the code in-front of our playground equipment? This is what it means - deck and pillar size.

VTX = 37" square decks, 4-1/2" Aluminium (not steel) pillars.

Some of our clients have begun to specify strictly to this specification. Why? because they realise that bigger equipment not only looks so much better, but is also safer and more fun.

EPDM FLOORING

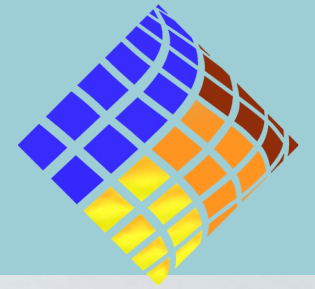

Most people realise this by now, EPDM flooring will cost half of the total playground and so this is precisely where they cut corners. The top colour layer is expensive while the black bottom layer much cheaper.

Thin colour layer means black worn patches around heavy traffic areas like under swings and slides. Short cut application means splitting at the colour joins. A real eye sore.

PGE always states the thickness of each layer clearly - 10mm EPDM (colour) 15mm SBR (black). And this we guarantee. We even agree to core the finished product FOC to verify this.

SAFE COMPONENTS

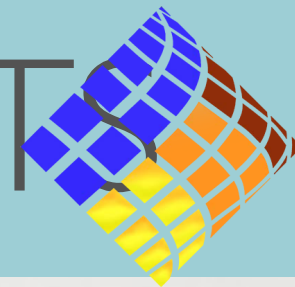

PGE is certified by to EN1176 International Safety Standards and certified by TUV of Germany, but some of this is simple logic. Our slides for example if standard compliant by having long enough landing area at the bottom and is not so steep.

Our competitors use cheap slides where they cut corners by making them shorter (hence steeper) and have a very short landing area.

Steep slides without enough landing means children land on their bums. Funny until someone breaks their tail bone.
