Celebrating 50 Years

In 2026, the Long Beach Island Historical Association proudly celebrates its 50th anniversary. For half a century, we've worked to protect the island's heritage through exhibitions, education, and community programs. This golden milestone is a tribute to everyone who has helped keep LBI's history alive—and an invitation to celebrate with us all year long.

A Message from the President

From all of us at the LBI Historical Association, we wish you and your families a very happy and healthy 2026.

For nearly 50 years, the Long Beach Island Historical Museum has preserved the people, places, and events that define one of New Jersey's most distinctive coastal communities.

Conceived and built by residents concerned that the island's past was being lost to development, storms, and time, the LBIHA established the Museum dedicated to collecting, researching, and sharing LBI's history. Today, the Museum is housed in the former Holy Innocents Episcopal Church, an iconic 1882 landmark saved and repurposed as a home for the island's stories.

The Museum's exhibits chronicle centuries of island life—from early Native American presence and maritime traditions to shipwrecks, the U.S. Life-Saving Service, lost communities like Tucker's Island, and the growth of fishing villages, resorts, and family businesses. As physical reminders of the past disappear, the Museum safeguards the collective memory of the island.

To mark its 50th anniversary, the Museum will host a yearlong schedule of special programs and events, including:

- The launch of History Happens Here, the rebranded Speaker Series, Monday Night Talks, beginning January 21st,
- New virtual History Happy Hours start February 11,

Along with anniversary highlights such as:

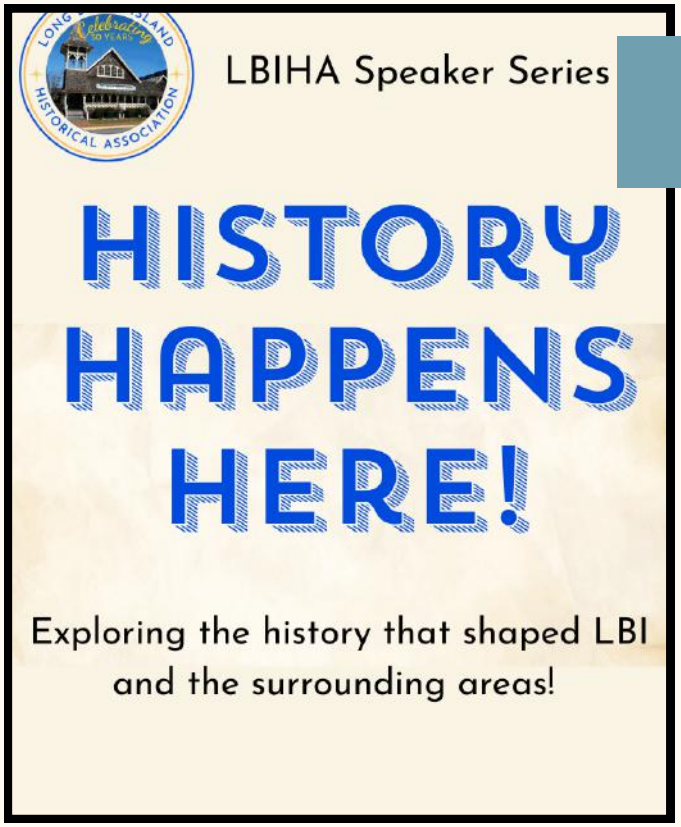

- The inaugural Golf Outing Fundraiser on May 4th,
- An Open House on May 30th, and
- A 1970s-themed dance party on July 5th,
- A Candlelight Concert on October 2nd.

What began as a grassroots effort has grown into a cultural cornerstone—ensuring the stories of Long Beach Island are preserved for generations to come. Our museum was built by the community for the community.

We look forward to welcoming you and your families to the museum this year, starting January 21st. We hope you will enjoy our programs. Please visit our website for details on these and other events.

Collection Spotlight

Behind the scenes, the Museum's Collections Care Committee has been bringing Long Beach Island's past to life—one artifact at a time. Throughout the winter months, the committee has been hard at work processing new acquisitions and refreshing Museum exhibits.

One recently completed exhibit highlights early Long Beach Island shops and merchants. Artifacts once displayed across several areas have been thoughtfully consolidated to tell a stronger, more cohesive story of island commerce. This engaging glimpse into early business life features Cranmer Nails, milk delivery on LBI, the Beach Haven Ice Company, and a detailed General Store model.

Enhancing the experience, the exhibit includes a QR code that allows visitors to listen to Joe Sprague, a lifelong LBI resident, discuss milk delivery on LBI, recorded in 1982 as part of the Museum's Porch Rocker Sessions. These original analog recordings are currently being converted to digital format to preserve them for future generations.

A second new exhibit, now nearing completion, focuses on military uniforms and artifacts. This growing collection complements local efforts to recognize the nation's upcoming 250th anniversary and features clothing, equipment, and personal items donated by LBI residents who served. Together, these exhibits reflect the Museum's ongoing commitment to preserving and sharing the stories of Long Beach Island and its people.

These exhibits are more than artifacts—they're the stories of our island and its people. History has never looked so good—come take a closer look!

Lily Myers-Cooke

Hello, my name is Lily Myers-Cooke. I' m originally from Los Angeles, California and before I moved to Long Beach Island I thought of New Jersey as New York' s ugly cousin. I didn ’t know anything about The Jersey Shore aside from a television show that need not be mentioned. My ignorance was vast. I arrived on Long Beach Island by chance and by love. And now it will forever hold a place in my heart. My fiancé was born and raised here. We first came in 2020 and did a pop-up shop, then eventually moved here in 2022 to open the business permanently. I currently own and operate Sunny in Surf City. We sell vintage clothing, records, art and our own line of clothing which we design and print on site.

My experience here has been a unique one, because I have never experienced this place as a vacation destination. I have been working and owning a business here since I arrived. An unusual privilege that provides a varied perspective. I was fascinated by Long Beach Island from the moment I got here. An 18 mile island off the coast of New Jersey? Even geographically it’ s bizarre!

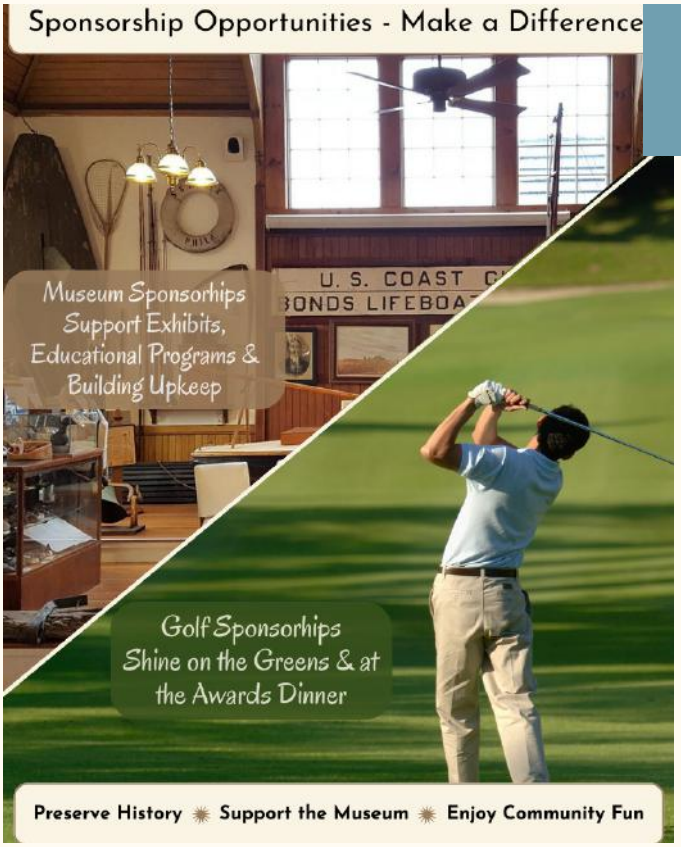

I started my first foray into the history of the island by going to the library and looking at the archives of old Sandpapers. Between the advertisements for bygone businesses, the articles and events that seemed out of step with what I currently lived in, I was fascinated. The rate of change here feels unprecedented. I loved talking to people who had families here for decades or were here when the houses didn ’t look quite so large. And that’ s what led me to The Long Beach Island Historical Museum.

My first visit was one of astonishment, It was easy to imagine children visiting on school trips and the friends I’d met on the island having memories of it. There was a distinct charm and I was smitten. Beach Haven has such a special lure for me because it feels closer to what I imagine the island was like in its Boardwalk days. Whenever the Summer business hours got to be too much, I’d ride my bike from Surf City to Beach Haven and usually stop at the museum.

On one of these days, I noticed a new exhibit and asked a woman (who I later got to know as Denise Cleveland, the president of the museum) about it. The exhibit was L.B.I. Voices, an exploration of stories and people from the island' s history. It seemed to be exactly my interest and I let her know that I would love to help if the need was there. From that point forward I started the process of archiving cassette tapes from a series the museum recorded in the 1970’ s-1980’ s called “The Porch Rocker Tapes. ” The voices of island patrons and historical figures recorded on the porch of the museum or in the home of the speaker. We have since digitized them and integrated some into the exhibits at the museum. And we hope to do more!

I’ ve loved my experience getting to know and become a part of the museum and I really hope that anyone who has any interest takes the time to come in. It gives back in spades.

Thank you, Lily!
