EYL program to support every child's learning adventure,
enhance educator knowledge and engage families.

The Early Years with Life Ed Qld

Life Ed Queensland's Early Years Learning Program is designed to help prepare every child to be ready for the world by supporting their learning and development to live a safe and healthy life. This play-based program has been designed to build healthy habits, safety, awareness and mental resilience in children aged 3–5 years.

Each module in the program is brought to life by expert educators through interactive sessions featuring engaging storytelling, lively music and songs, energetic active games, and hands-on learning experiences. Together, we're helping to set young children on a path to a bright, safe, and healthy future.

“The sessions are so interactive the children just aren't sitting there listening, they're moving around, they're answering questions, we're singing, having fun. Healthy Harold makes it even more exciting, the kids at Bonny Babes love and they just talk about him for days afterwards, and they continue to share what they've learnt through their sessions.”

A lasting impact for the Early Years

Early childhood educators often tell us that supporting children to understand and manage their emotions is one of the biggest needs in their classrooms.

Life Ed Qld's early learning program is designed with this in mind, giving young learners the chance to explore "big feelings" in a safe, gentle and engaging way.

Through age-appropriate and interactive lessons, children learn to recognise emotions, express how they feel, regulate their responses and build early skills in cooperation, friendship and problem-solving. These experiences help create calmer, more connected classrooms where children feel supported and confident in themselves.

By prioritising emotional literacy and wellbeing in the early years, the program helps children build strong foundations for their transition to big school.

Supporting children's social and emotional learning

All modules align with the National Quality Standards and Early Years Learning Framework, by supporting children's social, emotional, and physical development.

While keeping young learners smiling and engaged the Early Years program promotes emotional awareness, active play and positive relationships.

A brand new module supporting the transition to big school

Harold's Big School supports preschool children as they transition to "big school" by practising helpful classroom behaviours, promoting positive perspectives on change, assuring them that they will be supported and explores the concept of belonging.

The interactive session includes a new "big book" written and illustrated by an Australian creative team and built on recommendations from trusted education specialists and peak bodies. The lesson is built on shared storytelling, music and songs that help children learn about school transition and their wellbeing through the opportunity to engage in play-based, fun and hands on learning experiences.

It will address critical topics such as:

- Supporting big school transition
- Embracing change
- Encouraging independence
- Fostering belonging
- Practising positive classroom behaviours

My daughter came home and spoke about her feelings, it's OK to have big emotions, you can go to your friends and be safe and talk through rather than keeping them to herself. That's such an important lesson before they start school.
