THE 2026

Trailblazer AWARD

JENNIFER KELLER P.E.

Jennifer Keller was The Greater Houston Builders Association's (GHBA) third female president, serving in 2022. She helped the organization return to a more regular pace, even as she started her own homebuilding company – Hamilton Thomas Homes. She has truly served on every side of GHBA membership and in many capacities throughout the homebuilding and community development industry, all while supporting the next generation of professionals. As a student at Texas A&M who thought she would be pursuing aerospace engineering, Jennifer found her way to civil engineering and fell for the opportunity to solve problems closer to home. One of her most impactful projects as a young engineer at AECOM/Turner Collie and Braden was helping to mitigate a severe erosion issue near the Brazos River that threatened homes. She then joined KB Home where she served as Senior Vice President of Land Acquisition and Development, until moving to Land Tejas, where she served as President and Chief Operating Officer. After that, she went to William Lyon Homes as Division President, until she set out on her own and co-founded Hamilton Thomas Homes - acquired three years ago by Risewell Homes. Through it all – the move from Associate to Developer to Builder and beyond – her dedication to the Texas A&M Land Development Program and the GHBA has remained constant. As GHBA president, she oversaw the inaugural year of the Professional Women in Building Council, serving on the first "Ladies Who Lead" panel at the annual luncheon that is now a signature event. She also guided in a deeper commitment to trade education, with her introduction of the LAUNCH fund to help support student education through the Home Builders Institute Curriculum and provide pathways for those students to attend GHBA events and meetings to gain both industry exposure and job opportunities.
