TO THE SEASON FINALE MOTORHOME & CAMPERVAN SHOW!

A VERY WARM welcome to our Motorhome & Campervan Show Season Finale!

I can't quite believe we're at the final show of the season already! It's been another fantastic year, and I'm so pleased you're here to help us round it off in style.

Whether you've joined us at several shows this year or this is your first, I hope you have a brilliant weekend. There's lots to see and do, so this Showguide is your handy companion for making the most of your visit.

If you're planning your day, head to our What's On page (12-13) for all the activities taking place around the show. And if you're staying with us, don't forget to check the Entertainment Line-Up on pages 4-5 so you don't miss any of the live acts we have lined up.

Of course, leave yourself plenty of time for a wander too! Chat to our exhibitors, explore the motorhomes and campervans on display and perhaps pick up a few ideas – or treats – for your next adventure.

Finally, a personal thank you from me and the whole team for supporting our shows this season. Seeing familiar faces returning throughout the year, alongside lots of new ones, is what makes these weekends so special.

Have a wonderful time, safe travels, and I hope we'll see you again next season.

Sally Dodds

Head of Events, Warners Shows
Part of the Out and About Live family

Once again, the end of this year's motorhome and campervan show season is celebrated with this Show Season Finale at the fantastic Lincoln Showground.

Don't forget, we also have the Malvern Caravan and Motorhome Show early next month (2 to 4 October).

In October, the team at Out and About Live will bring you all a new guide (free for MMM and Campervan subscribers) that details all the new motorhomes and campervans launched onto the market for the 2027 season. If you're on the hunt for a brand new 'van this is a must-read.

Then, just a month later in early November, the dates for all next year's outdoor shows will be released. Just head to outandaboutlive.co.uk/shows for more.

And then comes one of this year's highlights as, in early December, the Out and About Live judges will reveal the very best new motorhomes, campervans and caravans on the UK market when the 2027 Out & About Live Awards, which are sponsored by Safeguard, one of the UK's leading specialist insurance providers, are presented. You can have your say and vote for the Motorhome Dealer of the Year and Campervan Converter of the Year, as well as your favourite campsites across an expanded Campsite of the Year awards, which includes three new categories for 2027. Just head here – www.motorhome.ma/vote2027 – to make your vote count!

YOUR GUIDE TO WARRANTIES

SO, YOU'VE BOUGHT a motorhome. Exciting, right? But are you ready for the unexpected?

Touring, holidaying and travelling from place to place must be one of the most freeing feelings in the world. You can go wherever you want, whenever you want and the best part is you get to take your home with you too!

But, as with most good things in life, there can be a few bumps in the road. Hopefully, they're just potholes. But if they're not, there are a few scenarios you might want to be prepared for.

You're parked up somewhere beautiful. Snow tops the trees and a blanket of white surrounds your new motorhome. The chilly night air is the only thing standing between you and a perfectly cosy evening. No problem, that's what the heating is for, right? You switch it on. Nothing happens. Not exactly the cosy night you had planned.

And now there's question on your mind: how much is that going to cost to fix?

Or maybe you and your family are halfway to your destination. There have been no arguments, no traffic and nobody has asked, "Are we there yet?" for at least ten minutes (or maybe you've droned it out). Life is good. Then, an unexpected light appears on the dashboard. You squint at it. Is that... the engine light? Yes. Yes, it is... and it's red. Looks like you've broken down, far from home and far from your destination. Time to call for roadside assistance and recovery.

But once again, there's that dreaded question: how much is that going to cost to fix?

For the best chance at avoiding scenarios like these, ask these questions when purchasing your used motorhome:

- ✓ What's the service history?
- ✓ When was it last habitation checked?
- ✓ Are there any signs of damp?
- ✓ What are the most important systems to test?
- ✓ Has everything electrical been demonstrated?
- ✓ Are there any outstanding recalls?
- ✓ What paperwork should come with it?
- ✓ What protection could you put in place afterwards?

And finally, there's one more important question:

What happens when you drive it away?

Once that motorhome is yours, and the manufacturer's warranty is up you become financially responsible for mechanical and electrical breakdowns and unfortunately, they don't always come cheap.

That's where a Best4 Warranty can help.

Our warranties can provide cover for thousands of mechanical and electrical components, as well as habitation equipment such as your fridge, cooking appliances and heating system and if your motorhome is under 3.5 tonnes, roadside assistance and recovery is included too. So, if something does go wrong while you're out exploring, you're not left completely on your own.

All of our warranties are also regulated by the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA), giving you added reassurance when choosing protection for your motorhome.

NETFLIX & CHILL: OFF-GRID MOVIE NIGHT WITH MAX MCMURDO

Can you really recreate the perfect movie night from the back of a campervan – with no hook-up required?

Throughout the 2026 Warners Shows season, designer, upcycler, TV presenter and self-build specialist Max McMurdo has been getting hands-on with a series of live campervan projects, tackling practical self-build tasks and putting different ideas, products and technology to the test.

For the Season Finale, he's ending things in suitably relaxed style. Max and Motorhome Matt will be snuggling down under the blankets in the back of a campervan for an off-grid movie night – all in the name of serious product testing, of course!

They'll be creating their own outdoor cinema, using a projector powered by an Anker C2000 portable power station, while the new Pathway WiFi router takes care of the streaming. The aim is to see whether you can take the comforts of a night at home on the road, without relying on an electric hook-up.

As ever with Max, expect plenty of practical tips, hands-on experimentation and a few laughs along the way as he demonstrates what's possible when clever technology meets campervan life.

Will the batteries last? Will the WiFi behave? And, most importantly, can Motorhome Matt be trusted with the popcorn?

MOTORHOMES AND WINTER

Whether you're carrying on touring through the colder months or putting your motorhome away until spring, a little preparation now can help protect your 'van and keep you comfortable throughout winter.

WINTER MOTORHOMING HAS plenty going for it – fewer crowds, quieter roads and easier campsite bookings – but colder temperatures bring additional considerations, particularly when it comes to water, heating and power.

PROTECT YOUR WATER SYSTEM

When temperatures drop below freezing, your water system is particularly vulnerable. Frost can damage taps, shower heads, pumps, tanks and boilers, potentially leaving you with an expensive repair bill.

If you're laying up your motorhome, empty the fresh and waste water tanks and make sure the boiler frost drain valve is open or set to automatic. Pay particular attention to exposed pipework and underslung tanks.

If you're continuing to tour, tank insulation and heaters can offer extra protection. Electrically heated mats can be fitted externally to tanks, while exposed pipes can be combined with insulation and 12V pipe heaters. Just remember that heaters will place additional demands on your power supply when camping off-grid.

WHAT DOES GRADE 3 INSULATION MEAN?

Grade 3 doesn't mean your motorhome is completely winter-proof. Under the UK EN1645-1 standard, it means the vehicle's heating and insulation should maintain an internal temperature of 20°C when it's -15°C outside. Grade 2 achieves the same internal temperature when it's 0°C outside.

KEEP WARM – SAFELY

Heating can use a lot of energy during extended stays in cold weather, so electric hook-up can be particularly useful, with gas or diesel supplementing your supply where necessary.

Simple additions can make a noticeable difference to comfort. A good-quality external windscreen cover can help reduce condensation, while insulation around rooflights, pop-tops and wheel arches can help tackle cold spots.

Never block essential ventilation and never use your gas hob, oven or a charcoal barbecue to heat your motorhome.

WINTER TOP TIPS

- ✓ Use an external windscreen cover
- ✓ Protect exposed tanks and pipework
- ✓ Keep essential ventilation clear
- ✓ Monitor your leisure battery
- ✓ Check heating and frost-protection settings

POWER AND GAS

Cold weather reduces battery efficiency, making it particularly important to keep your batteries healthy. Plugging into the mains is ideal where possible, while a good battery-to-battery charging system can replenish power while you drive.

Don't rely too heavily on solar either. Shorter days and the lower winter sun mean panels won't perform as efficiently, while snow and ice can reduce output further.

For gas, propane is the better winter choice because butane stops gassing effectively as temperatures approach freezing. In snowy conditions, also check that external air intakes and exhaust vents for your heating and hot-water systems remain clear.

PUTTING YOUR MOTORHOME AWAY?

If your touring season is over, a few simple jobs can help keep your motorhome in good condition until spring.

Give the interior a thorough clean and remove food that could attract rodents. Switch off the fridge and leave its door slightly open to prevent mould, and encourage airflow by lifting mattresses and cushions and opening lower locker doors where appropriate. A dehumidifier or moisture absorber can also help combat condensation.

It's also worth giving seals and the toilet cassette some attention before storage. Chocking the wheels and leaving the handbrake off can help prevent brakes binding. If possible, take the motorhome for a decent drive periodically rather than simply starting the engine – this can help charge the batteries, air the vehicle and prevent mechanical components from seizing.

DRIVING THIS WINTER

For UK touring, start with the basics: top up with winter screenwash, check your radiator antifreeze and make sure your tyres are ready for colder conditions.

Winter tyres offer improved grip when temperatures fall below 7°C, while four-season tyres can provide a compromise for those who don't want to swap between two sets.

Heading into Europe? Winter tyre, snow chain and snow sock rules vary between countries and even regions, so always check the latest requirements for your route before travelling.

HEAR THE TALK

Want to know more? Hear from Motorhome Matt this weekend!

If this has got you thinking about getting your motorhome ready for the colder months, you can hear much more on the subject at the Avic Centre this Sunday at 2pm!

Join Motorhome Matt as he shares expert advice on preparing your motorhome for winter. Covering everything from protecting your water system and batteries to preventing damp, condensation and frost damage, the session will take you through the essential steps to help keep your vehicle in top condition during the colder months.

ENHANCING YOUR FOOD WITH RUBS

SEASONING IS THE cornerstone of great British outdoor cooking. Whether you are firing up a traditional charcoal kettle, a ceramic kamado, or a modern gas grill, the right application of herbs and spices defines the final result. Rubs serve two primary purposes: building a “bark” (the dark, flavourful crust) and enhancing the natural character of the meat.

DRY RUBS VS. WET RUBS

The choice between a dry or wet application depends largely on the cut of meat and your desired texture.

Dry Rubs

Composed entirely of dehydrated herbs and spices, dry rubs are ideal for “low and slow” smoking or indirect roasting.

Application - Sprinkle the mixture evenly or massage it into the muscle fibres.

The Results - Dry rubs are superior for creating a crisp, caramelised bark, particularly on pork shoulder or beef brisket.

Wet Rubs

These involve a liquid base—often olive oil, cider vinegar, or even English mustard—to create a thick paste. The advantage is that the moisture helps the seasoning adhere to leaner cuts and prevents the exterior from drying out during shorter cooking times. The oil content in a wet rub acts as a natural barrier, reducing the likelihood of the meat tearing on the grill grates.

BALANCING YOUR FLAVOURS

A successful rub should complement the meat rather than mask it. While many store-bought options are available, crafting your own allows for better control over salt and heat levels.

Foundation: Most rubs use smoked paprika for a rich mahogany colour and a mild earthy base.

Heat: While cayenne and chilli powder add kick, use them sparingly. The goal is a gentle warmth that sits at the back of the palate, not an overwhelming spice that ruins the meal.

Sugar: For British BBQ, a touch of dark brown sugar is excellent for caramelisation, though be cautious of high heat (above 150°C), as sugar can burn and become bitter.

APPLICATION TECHNIQUES

To achieve a professional standard, the timing and method of application are vital.

Use a Binder: If using a dry rub on a particularly smooth surface, apply a very thin layer of mustard or oil first. This “binder” helps the spices stick without affecting the final flavour.

Poultry Preparation: When seasoning chicken or turkey, the skin acts as a waterproof barrier. To truly infuse the meat, gently lift the skin and apply the rub directly onto the flesh.

Timing: For smaller items like steaks or chops, apply your seasoning at least an hour before cooking. For larger joints, such as a roasting joint or a whole bird, apply the rub the night before and leave it in the fridge. This allows the salt to penetrate deep into the tissue, acting as a “dry brine” that retains juices during the cook.

PRO TOP TIP

Always keep one hand for the meat and one “clean hand” for the spice shaker. This prevents cross-contamination and ensures your spice jars remain hygienic for future use.

FALL IN LOVE WITH FOOD AGAIN

FOOD IS ONE of the most fundamental relationships we have with the world around us. We eat several times a day, every day, for our entire lives. Yet we seem to have forgotten one of the most important pieces of information: food is fuel for the human body.

Think about how much engineering goes into keeping a motorhome running. We check the tyres, service the engine, replace the oil, keep the battery charged and make sure we're putting the right fuel in the tank. We understand that the quality of that fuel affects how the vehicle performs. Our bodies work in much the same way. Every meal provides the raw materials our cells need to produce energy, build and repair tissue, make hormones, support our immune system and keep our brains working properly.

Modern food culture has changed the way we think about this. We're surrounded by messages telling us that cooking takes too much time, that convenience is king and that there's a product for every occasion. You can now buy a drink designed to replace a meal, breakfast that comes from a packet and snacks engineered to be eaten wherever you happen to be. Food has become a secondary thought, a hassle even, that has to fit around life rather than something that helps create a healthy, energetic life.

At the same time, food has taken on a whole host of other roles. We eat to celebrate birthdays, holidays and milestones. We use food as a reward after an achievement or a difficult day. We reach for something sweet when we're bored, stressed or emotional. There's nothing wrong with enjoying food or celebrating with it; food is deeply woven into our social lives. The important part is remembering that enjoyment is only one piece of the picture.

Your body has nutritional requirements every single day. It needs protein to maintain muscle and repair tissue, essential fats for the brain and hormones, vitamins and minerals for thousands of biological processes, and a wide variety of nutrients to keep everything ticking along. These requirements don't disappear because you're busy, travelling or working remotely.

So seeing as it is the very thing that keeps us alive, we need to fall back in love with food!

It's empowering to know what your body needs and being able to provide it. Choosing fresh eggs for breakfast, preparing colourful seasonal produce, cooking a delicious steak or making a proper meal from scratch in your tiny motorhome kitchen is an act of self-respect. You're giving your body the raw materials it needs to take you through another day of adventures.

And food can be fun. It can be beautiful, delicious, seasonal, social and creative. Visit a local market when you're travelling. Pick up some regional produce. Cook outside. Try a new recipe. Learn what grows where you're staying. Make a meal from scratch and sit down to enjoy it (without watching a screen!) We have the incredible privilege of being alive, and every day we get the opportunity to nourish the body that allows us to experience this life.

So next time you're deciding what to eat, think beyond calories, itching that 'treat' urge or convenience. Ask yourself a much more interesting question: "What can I give my body today that will help it do its job brilliantly?"

Because food isn't simply something we consume. It's information, fuel and building material for the body carrying us through our lives.

And that body deserves some love.
