“My soul comes alive when I’m in France, that’s why I started ATOP to share my passion with others and so travelers can bring a little bit of France back to their homes.” - Lorie

Meet your Guide

"Food brings people together. This truth is like a glittering thread that runs from the beginning, binding me to all the people I love. When food is shared around the table, magical things happen. That's why I started ATOP, so I could share my love of food and France with you, and make a little magic!"- Lorie

As a teaching chef and founder of A Taste of Paris™ Culinary Excursions, I share my passion for French food and culture through cooking classes, television appearances, writing, and speaking engagements. My award-winning blog, Le Rapport, celebrates food, travel, and the joy of bringing people together around the table.

France's rich culinary heritage has captivated me for a lifetime. Over the years, I've had the privilege of cultivating friendships with talented French chefs, vintners, and food artisans. It's a joy to open those doors for travelers—sharing the hidden gems, cherished traditions, and unforgettable flavors that make France so special.

What I love most about the French way of life is the reverence for simple pleasures: a beautiful market, a perfectly ripe melon, a table set for friends, a bottle of wine opened without hurry. These moments linger in your memory long after the journey ends.

My love affair with France began many years ago, and the sights, flavors, and discoveries continue to draw me back. Each visit reveals something new to savor, and I can't wait to share that joy with you.

Let's explore Paris together.
