Witch's Brew Punch

A bubbling blend of citrus, pineapple and lime sherbet makes this bright green brew worthy of any Halloween gathering. No spell book required.

OCW Recipe Collection

Witch's Brew Punch

Ingredients

1 2-liter bottle lemon-lime soda, chilled
4 cups pineapple juice, chilled
1/3 cup fresh lime juice
1 48-ounce container lime sherbet
2 limes, thinly sliced
1 cup seedless black grapes, optional

Directions

1. Pour the lemon-lime soda, pineapple juice and lime juice into a large punch bowl. Stir gently.

2. Add the lime sherbet by large scoops.

3. Float the lime slices and black grapes on top.

4. Serve immediately while the punch is cold, sparkling and foamy.

OCW KITCHEN TIP

For a smoky presentation, place the punch bowl inside a larger cauldron and add dry ice and warm water only to the space surrounding the inner bowl. Never put dry ice directly into the punch or serving glasses, and never handle it with bare hands.

Recipe adapted from Witch's Brew Halloween Punch by SugarHero. Dry-ice guidance follows Allrecipes' Halloween punch safety instructions.

Digital Means More Than One Thing

By Anesa K. Chastain Jones - Advertising Insights with Anesa
Oklahoma's Choice Weekly

"Do you offer digital advertising?" It sounds like a simple question, but the answer deserves more than a yes.

Digital advertising can include an ad in an online publication, a placement on a website, an audio message or a social media post. Each reaches people in a different setting. Understanding those differences helps business owners make better decisions about where their advertising belongs and what their message needs to accomplish.

At Oklahoma's Choice Weekly, our new website brings several of those opportunities together while giving visitors more reasons to explore.

The Digital Edition: A Publication with More Possibilities

Our weekly digital edition presents Oklahoma's Choice Weekly as a complete publication. Readers can browse the issue, look through advertisements and discover businesses, auctions and offers along the way.

That reading experience matters. A person may open the edition for one particular ad and discover another business while browsing. Advertisers are part of a collection of content that readers can explore together.

We can also include video within the digital edition. That gives businesses an opportunity to show something that a still image and a few lines of copy may not fully explain. An equipment dealer could show a machine operating. An auctioneer could give readers a closer look at featured items. A local business could introduce its team, demonstrate a product or take viewers inside its location.

The video and the ad should work together. The ad provides the essential information, while the video adds a demonstration, explanation or personal introduction. Readers should still be able to understand the offer and find the contact information without watching the video.

For a business that already has useful video footage, this creates another place to put that content to work.

Website Placements: Advertising Where People Explore

Our website gives visitors another way to find information. They can browse classifieds, explore the Auction Directory or visit sections such as Farm & Ranch and Hunt OK. Recipes, community tributes and pages for Halloween, Thanksgiving and Christmas add other reasons to visit.

Website advertising places a business's message within that online environment. It is a separate opportunity from appearing in the weekly digital edition, even though readers can reach both through the same website.

When considering a website placement, business owners should ask where the ad will appear, how long it will run and where it will send someone who clicks. Those details help define the placement and guide the design.

The destination deserves attention, too. If an ad promotes a specific service or offer, the page it leads to should make that information easy to find. Someone interested enough to click should be able to quickly understand what to do next.

Audio Placements: Giving Your Message a Voice

Audio placements let people hear a business's message. That changes how the advertisement should be written.

A listener cannot scan a paragraph or study a graphic. An audio message needs a clear business name, a focused point and a simple action to remember. Trying to squeeze a long list of products, several phone numbers and multiple offers into one message can make the important information harder to retain.

Audio also brings tone and personality into the advertisement. The delivery can help communicate whether a business is welcoming, practical, energetic or professional. The wording and voice should suit the business and the people it wants to reach.

Social Media: An Introduction in the Feed

Social media promotion can introduce a business or offer while people browse their feeds. A useful post gives them a reason to pause, whether that is a featured item, an upcoming event or a service they may need.

It can also encourage people to explore the website or digital edition for more information. The post starts the conversation; the additional details help people decide whether to take the next step.

Choose the Format Around the Goal

Before choosing a digital placement, decide what a successful response would look like. More phone inquiries? Visitors to a specific page? Interest in an upcoming auction? Then make sure the advertisement tells people how to take that action.

Ask customers how they heard about your business and keep track of the inquiries that follow a campaign. Views and clicks can provide useful information, but calls, visits and sales help show how that attention connects to your business.

Explore oklahomaschoiceweekly.com to see what's available, and contact Oklahoma's Choice Weekly to discuss digital edition advertising, video opportunities, website placements and audio advertising. Knowing how each option works is the first step toward choosing a plan that fits your goals.

OCTOBER / BREAST CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

Every story matters.

For those in treatment. For those living beyond it.
For those living with metastatic breast cancer.
For the people we remember and the families beside them.

Awareness is a beginning. Action matters all year.

A pink ribbon can start a conversation. Let it lead to a screening appointment, a question about a change, or a practical offer of help. Breast cancer affects real people in our communities, and support should last beyond October.

01 / MAKE A SCREENING PLAN

Know when to go.

For women at average risk, the U.S. Preventive Services Task Force recommends a mammogram every two years from ages 40 through 74. Screening looks for cancer before symptoms appear. [1]

Your personal history, family history and other risk factors may call for a different plan. Ask your clinician when to begin, how often to screen and whether additional tests are appropriate. Discuss the benefits and possible downsides of screening. [1, 2]

Already noticed a change? Tell your clinician promptly. Do not wait for your next routine mammogram. [3]

02 / PAY ATTENTION TO CHANGES

Know your normal.

Contact a healthcare professional about a new or unusual breast change, including: [3]

- A lump in the breast or underarm; thickening or swelling.
- Skin dimpling, redness, irritation or flaking.
- A nipple that pulls inward, or discharge other than breast milk.
- A change in breast size or shape, or breast pain.

These changes can have causes other than cancer. Getting them checked is how you find out. Some breast cancers cause no symptoms. [3]

You do not have to do this alone.

Information. A ride. A meal. A listening ear. Support can take many forms.

03 / SHOW UP FOR SOMEONE

Make the offer specific.

Try “Can I bring dinner Tuesday?” or “Would a ride to your appointment help?” Listen without trying to fix every feeling. Follow their lead about visitors, updates and privacy. Keep checking in after the first rush of concern.

04 / TAKE THE NEXT STEP

Bring your questions.

Ask: When is my next mammogram due? Does my family history change my screening plan? What happens if a result needs follow-up? Write down your questions and make sure you know how and when you will receive results.
