Tips for Schmetz Needles

It is important to choose the correct needle for the project you are sewing. Choose needle size based on the type and weight of thread being used as well as the fabric that is being sewn. The goal is to have the needle slide easily through the fabric without damaging the fibers or creating too large a hole, and to carry the thread smoothly without damaging it when sewing. In general the finer the thread and the finer the fabric that is being sewn, the finer the needle should be. The smaller the number on the needle the finer the needle. Replacing your needle often keeps your machine in good working order and your seams looking great.

Maternity Bra Size Chart

To determine the right maternity nursing bra size:
Measure the chest right under the arm above the bust. All measurements should be taken with a snug tape. This measurement is the bra size, such as 32, 34 etc. If the measurement is an odd number go to the next larger bra size.

To determine the right cup size:
Measurement is taken at the fullest part of the bust. This measurement determines the cup size, such as A, B, C etc. Subtract the bra measurement from the bust measurement. The difference equals the cup size.

If the bust measures:

Less than 1½" larger than chest size	A cup
1½" to 2½" larger than chest size	B cup
2½" to 3½" larger than chest size	C cup
3½" to 4½" larger than chest size	D cup
4½" to 5½" larger than chest size	E cup
5½" to 6½" larger than chest size	F cup
6½" to 7½" larger than chest size	G cup

Guide to the Perfect Fit

Bras are cut to fit snugly and comfortably.
If properly fitted, you will never experience bulging or digging in.

How To Determine Your Bra Size:

1. Find band size. Measure around the chest, just under the bust and add 4–5". Always round off to an even number. For example, if you calculate 35", round to 36". To verify band size, measure under the arms right above the bust. This should be your band size.
2. Find cup size. Measure around the fuller part of the bust. Subtract the band size from this size. For each inch difference between the two, you have a cup size. For example, 37" around the bust minus 36" around the chest equals a 1" difference or cup size A. 2"—B cup, 3"—C cup, 4"—D cup, and 5"—DD cup.

Suit Pants Sizing

Measure your waist where you normally wear your pants. Round any partial inches up to the next full inch. Your pant size should equal your measurement. If you usually wear loose-fitting or relaxed fit pants, you will need to go up one pant size to get an equivalent fit for our suit pants.

Tips for Measuring for Suits

Measure at the fullest part of your chest keeping the tape snug but not tight. If your chest measurement is not an exact inch, round up to the next full inch.

Our suits are regular fit suits. If you have an athletic build (broad shoulders and upper arms), we advise going up one size from the suit size chart to allow sufficient room in the shoulders.

Our size charts reflect wearing the suit with the buttons closed. If you do not wear the suit buttoned, going down a size from the suit chart will often result in a better fit, but then it will be tight if you do choose to button it up.

The Swedish knit polyester fabric is a heavy, tightly-knit fabric, so it feels tighter than wool blend and polyester/rayon fabric. Our size charts take this into consideration for overall size, but please be aware that in other aspects, such as sleeve size, the Swedish knit suits also run tighter.

INTRODUCING

Our New look!

Since 1989, you've counted on us for good, old-fashioned value and service. While those things haven't changed, we decided it was time to update our look to reflect who we've grown to be: friendly people who provide fast service and a convenient way to shop. We still have the same great prices, products, and team who have been with you for over 35 years.

Like our children, we've just grown up a little.
