WHY THE MONARCH? Our colors and logo mark are suggestive of the monarch butterfly, a symbol of migration, resilience, beauty, transformation and new creation.

FROM OUR EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

A Letter from Stephen Reeves

The founding of FaithWorks is a story of exclusion, creativity, inclusion, and faithfulness. In 2016 several Texas churches, recently expelled from their historic denominational home, sought a way to continue collaboration. Gratefully, leaders of the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship dared to envision something entirely new. Rather than simply recreating a competing denominational entity, they built a generously open fellowship with service and advocacy at its heart.

Since 2017 FaithWorks (formerly Fellowship Southwest) has sought to be an inclusive and welcoming network focused on what churches and Christians can accomplish together beyond the church walls. We focus on what unites us—a shared commitment to living out the second greatest commandment of loving our neighbors as we love ourselves.

By encouraging an active faith that puts love of our neighbor into practice, we've grown, supported, and are supported by a broad network of churches and Christians across theological, political, denominational, and racial lines. Barriers to participation are few and opportunities for shared action are many.

In the last year we have lived into our new name and mission statement. The following pages detail how your generosity has helped put our faith to work. Together, through bold advocacy and real impact we will continue creating a multiracial, cross-denominational network of Christians building God's beloved community together. In so doing, we'll remain faithful, thoughtful, courageous, and kind.

Stephen K. Reeves
Executive Director

IMMIGRATION & THE BORDER

We Stayed

A Steady Presence in a Changing Border

The border may no longer be making headlines, but the need is still very real. Since January 2025, life along the U.S.–Mexico border has changed dramatically. Policies have shifted, migration patterns have changed, and funding and organizations have come and gone. Through it all, FaithWorks stayed.

Migrant ministry continues to be necessary and important on the Mexican side of the border. Our Border Network helps families who cannot return to their home countries build new lives, obtaining residency, finding work and gaining job skills. Our partners continue to provide shelter, meals and humanitarian aid, all while demonstrating the love of Christ and sharing their faith.

Today, many of the greatest needs are inside the United States, where immigrant families face fear, enforcement and hunger. We adapted our immigration ministries accordingly. Our partners deliver meals to families too afraid to leave home, even to buy groceries, and shelter people recently released from detention as they travel to reunite with family. In the Rio Grande Valley, FaithWorks made food distributions accessible to the people and communities who need it most. From January through September, 501 families had access to healthy food in the RGV colonias.

Staying has built something harder to count: trust. Because we remain present, we can listen to what communities are experiencing, recognize changes quickly and respond. And we can share a compassionate, on-the-ground perspective with churches and advocates across the country, one rooted in people and relationships.

Those who care for others need care too. This year, FaithWorks brought our Border Network partners together in Cancún, Mexico, for rest, fellowship and connection. Thanks to our donors and a grant from our friends at the Hispanic Baptist Convention of Texas (Convención Bautista Hispana de Texas), these leaders were able to recharge, encourage one another and know they are not serving alone.

IMMIGRATION & THE BORDER

Responding to Families in Crisis

Compassion in Action Through the Knox Fund

A mother and her five children (one not pictured) who received emergency assistance through the Knox Fund while the father was in immigrant detention.

Their requests were simple and urgent: help meeting everyday needs during a deeply difficult time.

When a loved one is detained or deported, families face the ache of separation while caring for those still at home. One mother reached out for help feeding her children after the family's provider was detained. Another family struggled to buy groceries and pay bills without a loved one's income. Their requests were simple and urgent: help meeting everyday needs during a deeply difficult time.

Listening to trusted ministry partners, FaithWorks recognized a growing need for practical support. In August 2026, we began offering emergency grocery assistance through the Knox Fund: one-time support of up to $500 for families affected by the detention or deportation of a loved one.

In its first two months, the program provided $3,000 to six families through four referral partners, including FaithWorks' Border Network and Thriving Congregations Immigration Ministry churches, who know these families and walk with them through the process.

Families also asked for prayer, pastoral care, immigration legal resources and community connections. Those with loved ones in detention welcomed the possibility of a pastoral visit, a reminder of how much it matters to have someone walk alongside us in a crisis.

With funding for about two to three households each month, the Knox Fund provides timely help. Your support enables FaithWorks to respond with care, helping parents put food on the table as their families navigate separation and uncertainty.

Your generosity and our connections to national Latino Christian organizations even allowed FaithWorks to have an impact in Minneapolis during the ICE crackdown in January. We responded to that emergency by sending $1,000 from our Knox Fund to support impacted families and churches.

IMMIGRATION & THE BORDER

Equipping Churches to Welcome

Thriving Congregations Immigration Ministry (TCIM)

TCIM Cohort 2 at the Learning Conference, December 2025

The Thriving Congregations Immigration Ministry (TCIM) equips churches to establish or expand immigration ministries in their congregations and communities.

Each year, up to 10 churches join a two-year cohort designed to help them discern, develop and strengthen sustainable immigration ministries. Along the way, churches are equipped to respond to their communities' needs while deepening their own congregational life.

FaithWorks is now entering its third TCIM cohort, bringing the program to 25 participating churches in six states: Texas, California, North Carolina, New York, Ohio and Arkansas. This growing reach reflects churches' increasing desire to engage faithfully and intentionally in immigration ministry. This year, we received twice as many applications as we could fund.

What Thriving Congregations Are Saying

> "FaithWorks' investment has produced far more than another program or worship service. It helped create the conditions in which leadership could be recognized, a new pastor could be named, worship could take a culturally rooted form and two congregations could practice interdependence."
>
> John Garland, San Antonio Mennonite Church

> "The program has become a trusted entry point for families who were previously not engaged with the church. Through the support group, they have begun to connect with the wider congregation and explore other ministries and opportunities for growth."

IMMIGRATION & THE BORDER

Telling Stories That Must Be Heard

Jesus Was a Migrant

FaithWorks staff with Dr. Jemar Tisby and Jesus Was a Migrant director Lauren Vernea.

What began as a conversation about partnering with Dr. Jemar Tisby on our Racial Justice Advocates program became something much bigger.

As we prepared for a FaithWalk to the El Paso–Ciudad Juárez borderlands, Dr. Tisby, who was launching Tisby Media, asked to join us and explore creating a documentary. During the FaithWalk, he journeyed alongside our advocates to learn about the intersection of racial justice and immigration. There, he met two migrant families who shared their stories: the suffering they endured along the way and the reality of arriving at the border only to learn they could no longer seek asylum in the United States.

Their stories stayed with him and shaped Jesus Was a Migrant, a documentary exploring U.S. immigration policy, the history of immigration and its connections to racial injustice and white supremacy.

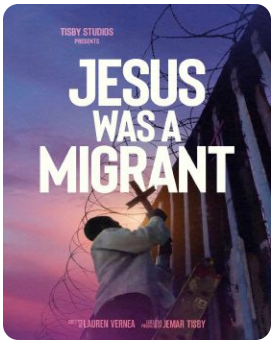

The Story Continues

Through screenings and conversations, Jesus Was a Migrant has become an important educational and outreach resource for FaithWorks. It helps churches, students, faith leaders and communities understand the realities of immigration, challenge harmful narratives and explore what our faith calls us to do in response. Through this collaboration, FaithWorks is reaching new audiences, building relationships and inviting more people to practice compassion and pursue justice.

ADVOCACY & RACIAL JUSTICE

Advocacy Rooted in Our Neighbors' Lives

Legislative Priorities

Over the last ten years, FaithWorks has shaped legislative priorities that reflect a commitment to dignity, justice and the common good. Our work has centered in the Texas Legislature, and with a growing number of congregations and partners in other states, we are translating these priorities into a broader strategy. Conversations in New Mexico, Oklahoma and Mississippi are already taking shape. Our priorities are shaped by listening to our neighbors and learning from their lived experiences.

Scan to read our full legislative priorities.

Our Legislative Priorities

IMMIGRATION
Dignity for every person, due process, keeping families together and in-state tuition for immigrant students

PUBLIC EDUCATION
Fully funded, equitable public schools, with public dollars kept in public institutions

HUNGER
Expanding food access and protecting SNAP for children, seniors and working families

CRIMINAL JUSTICE
Ending the death penalty, reforming cash bail and addressing racial disparities

PREDATORY LENDING
Strong consumer protections and local ordinances that stop debt-trap lending

RELIGIOUS LIBERTY
Freedom for people of all faiths and a clear separation of church and state

Advocacy is a team effort! In front of the Texas State Capitol in October, Stephen, Andy, and Cameron are pictured after a day of testifying and presenting at a press conference speaking in support of public education.

ADVOCACY & RACIAL JUSTICE

From Shared Learning to Faithful Action

Racial Justice Advocates

Bread for the World Advocacy Summit, Washington, D.C., June 2026

For applicants to FaithWorks' Racial Justice Advocates program, the call to justice is personal. Teachers described wanting their students to feel valued in the classroom and safe beyond it. Others named a responsibility to challenge systems that sustain their own privilege, or to honor those whose sacrifices opened doors for them. Across their responses, faith and relationships called them to speak and act.

The program offers a community in which to deepen that calling through study, listening and advocacy. Nine participants completed the pilot in the first half of 2026. After a fall 2025 border FaithWalk, they attended the February Compassion & Justice Conference and traveled to Washington, D.C., in June for Bread for the World's Hunger Summit and congressional meetings opposing the SAVE Act.

In August, eight participants representing eight congregations and organizations across Dallas–Fort Worth, San Antonio, Santa Fe and Albuquerque began the first full cohort. They completed Let's Talk Race's five-week Beginner's Guide to Race and the three-week Latin American Experience. Their learning continues with an October El Paso–Ciudad Juárez FaithWalk, Advocacy Day on March 2, 2027, and a shared racial justice experience in early 2027.

Your support sustains this work. As FaithWorks prepares for a second cohort in late summer 2027, we hope to broaden participation across races, ethnicities, communities and life experiences, so shared learning grows through every perspective participants bring.

Abby Villagrana, Mara Richards Bim, Cecilia Gutierrez, Keren Nuñez, Anyra Cano, Dr. Willie Gable, Dr. Andy Stoker

"It can feel lonely and hard to follow Jesus in this current season, when empathy and justice are both treated like heretical ideas in many church circles. This cohort is a place where you can bring your love for Jesus AND justice and talk about it with others who are walking the same road. There is a comfort in recognizing that the burden is not meant to be all on a single person's shoulders, but we are all in this together."

Sheila Joiner, Racial Justice Advocates Cohort 1

LEADERS & GATHERINGS

Walking Alongside Native Pastors

Learning Advocacy in Oklahoma

In Watonga, Oklahoma, Director of Advocacy Dr. Andy Stoker taught pastoral care and spiritual companioning to an interfaith group of 12 Native American pastors serving congregations in the Arapaho and Cheyenne regions of Western Oklahoma. The group, which includes Native American spiritual medicine practitioners as well as American Baptist, Alliance of Baptists, Southern Baptist, Mennonite and Cooperative Baptist pastors, has met for years to support one another.

Dr. Stoker was invited to share about FaithWorks when the need for credentialing arose, as these pastors seek recognition of their calling from state and tribal institutions. The course introduced trauma-informed pastoral care through a Family Systems lens, part of a wider collaboration with CBF Oklahoma and the Antioch Center at Central Seminary.

The Interfaith Pastors Group meets every month at the Lucky Star Casino in Watonga, Oklahoma. Dr. Stoker and the Romannose family listen to the community's hopes at the September meeting.

Rest for Those Who Pursue Justice

Come to the Well

A year after the 2024 elections, with so much work ahead and the weight of the past year already felt, it was time for Christian justice leaders to Come to the Well: to rest, be renewed and be filled for what was still to come.

On November 3–5, 2025, FaithWorks gathered 24 Christian justice leaders from across the country in Wimberley, Texas, for our first Come to the Well retreat. Pastors, advocates, authors and nonprofit leaders came together for a much-needed time of rest, fellowship, reflection and community.

Pursuing justice is sacred work, but it can also be exhausting. Thanks to our donors, we significantly reduced the cost of the retreat, making it possible for these leaders to step away, be encouraged and find strength for the work ahead.

> "I was glad when they said unto me, come let us help you rest. There is no stage, no training, no speakers, no presentations. Available: hiking trail, yoga, massages, spiritual direction, a chef with amazing intentional meals, a room with a view. The rules include: No meetings, nothing is mandatory. Included in the gift bag is a bracelet, with the instruction wear this when you just want to be (left alone)."

LEADERS & GATHERINGS

Coming Together for Compassion and Justice

Compassion & Justice Conference

Dr. Malcolm Foley delivers the keynote on racial justice.

On February 20–21, 2026, FaithWorks gathered churches, partners, advocates and community members at Riverbend Church in Austin for our Compassion & Justice Conference.

This year's conference focused on racial justice and its connection to FaithWorks' priorities. Speakers including Dr. Malcolm Foley, Robert P. Jones, Rev. Bethany Rivera Molinar, Agustín Quiles and Rev. Lori Tapia challenged and encouraged us to think more deeply about faith, racial justice and our responsibility to one another.

The gathering created space to build relationships, connect with others doing similar work and learn from leaders and organizations working directly in communities, strengthening the bonds between FaithWorks, our partners and all who share our commitment to compassion and justice.

The Compassion & Justice Conference returns in 2028 as a biennial gathering. Until then, revisit the recordings from the 2026 conference.

PARTNERSHIPS & PEOPLE

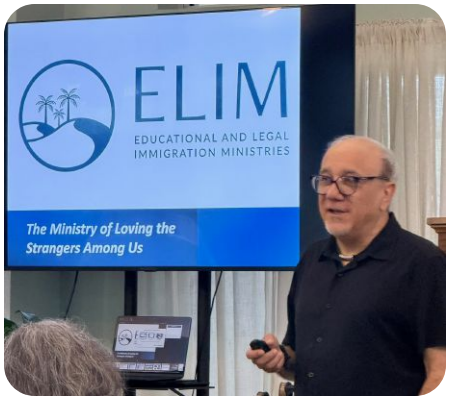

Finding Hope in an Era of Terror

Educational and Legal Immigration Ministries (ELIM)

Jesús and Elsa Romero have helped thousands of immigrants with legal services through Educational and Legal Immigration Ministries (ELIM). Their specialty is family-based immigration, and they have kept families together or reunited them through adjustments of status, consular processing, naturalization, DACA, fiancé visas and other forms of humanitarian relief. Thanks to the use of office spaces in Trinity Baptist Church and Woodland Church in San Antonio, clients are able to pay a fraction of what a private attorney would charge for the legal services they receive with ELIM.

Especially over the last two years, they have leaned on their faith and hope in a God who is present with us in the darkest of times. Their long days are shaped by the whims of the court as they guide people through an ever-changing immigration system that will determine the future of their lives.

FaithWorks is proud to be the parent organization for ELIM. Jesús writes regular reflections for the FaithWorks blog about what ELIM does for immigrants every day and the challenges they face. Through it all, they persevere because they are called to be the presence of Christ to our neighbors, no matter where they are from, the color of their skin, the language they speak or the status they hold.

ELIM Director Jesús Romero presents to faith leaders in San Antonio in April 2026.

FROM JESÚS ROMERO, "HOPE IN THE MIDST OF CHAOS"

On Monday, September 28, I received a message from the San Antonio Immigration Court that stunned me. One of my cases, originally scheduled for October 10, 2028, had been rescheduled for Friday, October 2, 2026.

You read that right: Friday, October 2, 2026.

The Department of Justice was giving me three and a half days to prepare to represent two Venezuelan teenagers, young special immigrant juveniles, in court.

I had already heard that the current administration was rescheduling hearings set far into the future. It certainly seemed designed to create chaos and confusion and make the immigration process even more difficult for immigrants.

Equipping the Next Generation

Summer Internships

Pastor Carlos Navarro of Iglesia Bautista West Brownsville alongside Aidan Link, who served as a FaithWorks Summer Intern in 2026.

FaithWorks' summer internship program invites college and graduate students to serve alongside experienced partners who offer hospitality and welcome to migrants. Interns gain hands-on experience in immigration policy and advocacy and join a growing network of emerging advocates, storytellers and witnesses to the faithful work of compassion and justice.

Over the past three years, FaithWorks has welcomed 11 summer interns whose impact extends far beyond their time with us. Interns are encouraged to bear witness to what they have experienced, share what they have learned and challenge narratives in their own communities, becoming voices for compassion and justice long after their summer ends.

We look forward to welcoming a new group of interns in 2027.
