Welcome...

Welcome to the Phoenician! We are extremely proud to present this compilation of school, friends, and spirit in full and vibrant color. We hope this captures all the memories that you have shared with your peers, teachers, performers, and teammates.

From the kindergarteners to the departing seniors, from the faculty and coaches to the maintenance staff, from the parents to the Board of Trustees, everyone is an integral part of our PCDS community. This book is a collage of snapshots: all the images that represent the memorable moments that have made up this school year. We hope you enjoy this presentation of our days at PCDS.

OPENING Day ^{August 31} 2004

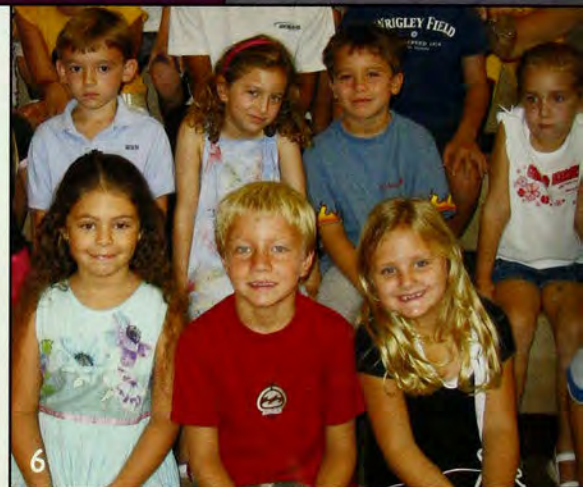

After three long months of summer vacation, every student is glad to come back to a familiar atmosphere amidst friends and teachers.

Students eagerly await Mr. Brewster's speech about the school community. New Lower School Head Mrs. Thommen was excited to escort Madison Bradford into the gym (1). The welcoming band plays in the background (2) as seniors Natasha Fazel, Prashanth Mahalingam, and Sofia Long lead the way for kindergarteners David Farca and Madison Bradford in the annual PCDS tradition of incoming students and departing seniors (3). Matt Kostrivas gives advice to a nervous Will Donovan about surviving kindergarten (4). Friends Sandy Theis, Jessie Baum, and Neel Khanuja pose for a picture after discussing their summers' events (5), Lower School students Kira Kirby, Wyatt Dial, and Alyssa Kaufman and their fellow classmates enjoy the Opening Day festivities and eagerly await the first bell (6).

Opening day introduces students to a new start. Let the journey begin!

Seniors Cassie Sonntag, Stephanie Furniss, and Dani Solomon pose as they prepare for their final year at PCDS (8).

In front of Dorrance Auditorium, Lower School teachers usher in kindergarteners on their first day of school (9).

Middle School students Alex Favier and Lizzy McGroder are all smiles as they chat about the upcoming school year at the Opening Day assembly (7).

Blue AND Gold Day

We may be small, but we are spirited! Blue and Gold Day is a chance for the Upper, Middle, and Lower Schools to unite and express our school spirit and pride. With our Jazz Band echoing through the gym and Mr. Brewster's trademark rollerblades, we celebrated what makes us the PCDS Eagles. In the morning we were wowed by our dive team. The boat regatta, the newest addition to the Blue and Gold Day festivities, demonstrated that seniors Sarah Watson and Cassie Sonntag knew their physics. In the gym, Mr. Burns served up a win for the Middle School faculty against the 7th- and 8th-grade volleyball team (1), but the Upper School faculty couldn't handle the heat of their students' spikes. Middle School students Brett Hennessy, Elliot Ginsburg, and Noah Bucon cheered and laughed (2) as Grady Wieger and Lizzie Thompson took part in the relay race (3). We recognized the Middle School sports teams, and the fall Upper School sports teams sat together in the front of the gym. Bryan McLaren and the guys' cheerleading squad (4) went head-to-head with Elaine Keightley and the girls' team (5). New Upper School counselor Mr. Dummer took on a new role as Thunder the Eagle (6). The rest of the day was marked by a celebratory mood, and after school, students came out to watch the Upper School boys' soccer team compete. Mr. Brewster's final Blue and Gold Day was certainly one to remember!

"Swimming Squirrels totally rock my world!!"

—Jeff Roberts

"It was great to see our sad little boat beat out all of the flashy ones."

—Sarah Watson

"Beau and Phil were incredibly entertaining."

—Abby Seadler

Ian Burke, Max Milisci, and Matthew Bohannon celebrate their teams (7) and excited Lower Schoolers have a close-up view of the action (8).

PCDS Student LIFE

We PCDS students are always busy doing something, from studying in the Upper School library with Kira Dillard (1) or digging sand in the Lower School playground during recess with Alex Heinritz (2). Seniors Danny and Jill enjoy a laid-back lunch on the comfortable steps of Dorrance Auditorium (3) while a group of Middle School friends show off the latest fashions on the basketball court (4). No matter what time of day, Chris Yee, McGarrett Sutherland, and Fowler Brown can be seen playing cards in the Student Center (5).

STYLES of 2004-2005

This year, styles ranged from John Kerry flip-flops to plastic yellow bracelets: PCDS students were proud to show off the unique fashions of 2004-2005. The influence of the 2004 Elections provided students with a chance to express their party affiliations. Senior Dani Solomon wore her John Kerry shirt as she petted the Democratic donkey (1). On the other side of the spectrum, sophomores Jay Lundeen and Jake Swokowski proudly flaunt their support for Dubya (2). The yellow Lance Armstrong Cancer Foundation bracelets caused a stir this summer, combining fashion and good deeds (3). Lower School students model this year's fashions near the playground (4). Beaded necklaces are in for Alex Favier, Tommy Quindlen, and Devin Ingersoll (5), while Middle School boys display their cutting-edge clothing choices (6). In the Upper School, Corey Wade and Anand Jayachandran are rocking their band shirts (7), while Beau Burrows, a member of Guys Who Bang on Things, rocks a basketball crowd (8).

Kyle Whisler and Anthony Dahkoshay express their creative side with their bright-pink backpacks.

The roller backpack posse of the Middle School lines up their luggage, while smiling SpongeBob dominates this line of backpacks in the Lower School.

PCDS FACULTY LIFE

In the classroom, in the cafeteria, or at a sporting event, the PCDS faculty can be seen teaching or chatting with one another and with students. It is not unusual to see Mr. Rowe lugging a bass down the Middle School hallway (1) or Mr. Dashnaw throwing a touchdown pass (2). Middle School teachers Mr. Burns, Mrs. Youngman, Mrs. Cherilla, and Ms. Treadway have an after-lunch discussion before the bell rings (3), and Mrs. Tom and Mrs. Ortiz are always there to support faculty and students (4). Down at the soccer field, Mr. Campbell, Mr. Schweikher, and Mr. Wieger take a break from the action (5). Teachers are always willing to lend a hand to their students or to stop for a quick chat about any subject whatsoever.

Mr. Flail and Mr. Kosower discuss the exploits of the Upper School tennis team.

5

Mrs. Cone and Middle School Librarian Mrs. Palmer enjoy lunch on the picnic tables.

Mr. Fielder tries out the comfortable Lower School classroom chairs.

Mr. Martin and Mr. Coon debate the best way to impart knowledge to their students.

DIVISION HEADS

MRS. THOMMEN
Head of Lower School

Looking through the camera's eye, we capture the moment . . .
"Smile and say cheese,"
or better yet, be in the moment, experience the feeling.
Let the camera tell your story for years to come.

Snapshots keep the memories
in our hearts alive.

MR. CRABB
Head of Middle School

MR. CAMPBELL
Head of Upper School

Moments frozen in time
Two friends in front of a familiar door
The team just after a match
The car that got you there.

Moments frozen in time
Sights and sounds and scented memories
Broken hearts—long after healed.
Victories spiced with losses—burns success.

Moments frozen in time
A moment here—
Several there—
A blending of the joy—
A Kodachrome of life.
Snapshots are our moments—frozen in time.

The world is in constant change.
Take those snapshots,
if only in your mind,
to remember how things were.

A TRIBUTE TO Galen Brewster

In the speech from the Head of the School that greets every PCDS student at the beginning of the year, there has been one oft-repeated theme: community. Indeed, that is the gift that Galen Brewster has given the school in his ten years as Head. He has brought parents, students, and teachers together during times of growth and change. His legacy to the school is undoubtable: he spearheaded the fundraising for the new Upper School, where the Brewster Library preserves his name; his vision for the use of technology as an educational tool will lead the school into the twenty-first century; under his tenure, the school expanded in faculty size and earned accolades for its dedication to academic excellence. The contributions he has made to the growth of the athletic program and the plans he has made for a complete new Lower School and enlarged Middle School will certainly continue to make PCDS the educational leader of the Southwest. Whether he is working behind the scenes or rollerblading through the gym, Mr. Brewster's presence can always be felt in our community, and his positive influence on the school will continue into the future.

Mr. Brewster, thank you for always lending us a helping hand. You will be greatly missed!

You have taught your PCDS students history, English, and Latin for nearly thirty years. You have been a mentor, advisor, and a leader by example. You have a kind heart and the rare ability to make everyone feel unique. Your caring, your warmth, your genuine presence, and your awareness of others' feelings and needs make you a valuable friend, colleague, and teacher. PCDS has been blessed by your presence, and we are grateful for the many gifts you have given us. We will miss you, and we wish you all the best.

LOWER school

Somewhere in a day of multiplication tables, playing on the swings, and chess club lies the foundation for a life of fun and learning. The PCDS Lower School is where it all starts: it is where friendships begin and young eyes are opened to the wide possibilities of everything from math to history. From the first steps as kindergarteners entering the gym with the seniors, to building relationships with the students of the Middle School, the Lower School students are an integral part of the PCDS community. From music performances to learning a new language, from addition and subtraction to recess on the playground, Lower School students are creating strong friendships, expanding their academic horizons, and participating in a variety of activities outside the classroom.

lower school ACTIVITIES

The Lower School places a strong emphasis on a well-balanced educational experience. Students are given the chance to engage in a wide variety of activities where they can learn new skills and make new friends. It is not uncommon to see a group of Lower School students playing a game of chess before class starts or to catch them in their Eagle or Brownie uniforms at school. In the midst of classroom learning, there is always the chance to learn in new ways and to mold lifelong friendships. There is never a dull or idle day in the life of a Lower School student; they are constantly learning and having fun.

ACADEMICS

Lower School students develop their skills, as Sam Garvin is demonstrating by studiously filling out his worksheet (1). While Mrs. Bruntz helps Mikaela Kaplan (2), Ally Grounds helps Grace Tuton add comments to the teacher's whiteboard (3). Olivia Swinford raises her hand to ask a very important question (4), while Stuart Henry, Rica Chan, and Brendan Morey learn about fossils from substitute Chad Kobold (5).

VISUAL and MUSIC

Mackenzie Cantor, Abraham Farooqui, and Sam Garvin play the xylophone while the rest of the first grade sings in a cultural event (7). Mrs. Ackley instructs her class on the art of working with papier-mâché (8).

The Lower School art and music departments enrich the lives of the students. Michael Richmann and Nicky Jones smile for the camera as they work on an art project (1), and enthusiastic first grade students reach for the box of markers so they can finally begin drawing (2). Jake Ghelfi, Cal Kendrick, Quinn Larkin, and Margaret Loncki learn to play the xylophone (3). Friends Hannah Johnson-Clague and Kevin Lynch experiment with black paint (4). Nathaniel Goodman busily creates a unique piece of art (5). Mrs. Cose-Giallella inspires Mrs. Moffett's pre-kindergarten class to sing the musical scale (6).

Lower School students often spend time with older students in order to gain a sense of community and make new friends. Middle School student Geri Hormel helps Gabriella Drumm paint a picture (1). In the room next door, Margo Casselman reads to Harrison Rooney and Stuart Rucker (2). Eighth grade student Arianna Rose helps Carina Ho play bingo (3). Navneet Khera, Ryan Wang, and Stuart Rucker work their way through a puzzle (4). Meanwhile, Scott Loncki helps Marc Fuller finish up a Halloween project sponsored by the fifth grade (5). Together, both groups can learn something from each other and gain insight into each other's world.

LOWER SCHOOL and THE COMMUNITY

Middle School students Jack Schwimmer, Amber Naumann, and Tori Hussey join Christopher Montooth and Reed Myers in building a train.

PCDS's youngest scholars are ready to share their own traditions, while enjoying those of others. The third grade sings holiday songs at a retirement home (1). The first grade students are costumed for Halloween (2). Hiding behind their pumpkins, the third grade celebrates Halloween in their own special way (3). At the annual Thanksgiving feast, the entire Lower School comes together to celebrate the holiday (4). Mr. Najafi and his daughter Olivia show off their gooey gingerbread house (5). The Lower School students sing some festive Thanksgiving songs (6).

HOLIDAYS

Mr. Farca and Dr. Gonzalez help David Farca and Alejandro Gonzalez carve their pumpkins (7), and Mrs. Rooney enjoys a dredel game with her son and friends (8).

In addition to developing their talents in the classroom, Lower School students are out and about participating in a wide variety of activities that enrich their ideas about art, culture, and life. Nicola Buskirk says, “Arrr, matey!” in her pirate costume on Pirate Day (1). Parker Whitfill shares Grandparents’ Day with his grandfather and his mom (2).

Olivia Ellegard and Sophie Ax decide which books to purchase at the book fair (3). The second grade students put on a play inspired by a visiting artist (4).

Mrs. Sainz captivates Lower School students as she explains her Native American heritage (5). Donning her traditional costume takes patience and dedication, as Mrs. Sainz demonstrates (6). Christopher Montooth and Charlotte Marcil have made the trek up to Madden Hall to look through the books on display (7). Harrison and Johnathan Rooney enjoy Grandparents' Day with their smiling grandmother (8).

EVENTS

CHESS CLUB

Clubs

The Passed Pawns chess club challenges the minds of students after school has ended. Arielle Lee maps out a strategy to outwit her opponent, as Lower School students practice the game with coaches and peers. Future Grand-Masters pose outside the cafeteria.

When the last bell has rung, many Lower School students remain at PCDS for their tennis lessons. Isabel Carter-Kahn gets in ready position on the court. Friends Tiana Siragusa and Raagini Kothur pose for the camera, and Coach Keever's tennis group makes a salute at the net.

AFTER SCHOOL TENNIS

AFTER SCHOOL SWIM

Under the warm Arizona sun, busy scholars take time off to spend some time in the pool. Whether posing for a picture or racing to the finish, Lower School students know how to keep cool.

Cub Scouts earn their badges of distinction through their community service outings, outdoor expeditions, and all-around character. PCDS Scouts pose for a picture in the Middle School courtyard, while a group of future rangers stand in line at camp.

CUB SCOUTS

Down at the pool, Lower School students show off their skills in the water. Johnathan Rooney takes a breath, touching the wall after finishing a race (1). Under the Arizona flag, Lower School girls pose after a day of swimming (2). Jasmin Lawrence, Francesca Pavone, and Morgan Schwartz cheer on their classmates (3). Alex Botto propels herself down the lane with her kickboard (4). Looking every bit an Olympic swimmer, Chris Mattinson plunges into the water to begin his race (5). Team members cry victory as their last relay member touches the wall (6).

SWIM EXHIBITION

TRACK and FIELD DAY

On Track and Field Day, Lower School athletes of all ages come together to compete and have fun. Spectators gather on the hill to watch the festivities (1). Alexandra Thoits and Emilie Canulla sprint in the 100-meter dash (2). Camille Rucker and Kate Werth are in the baton relay (3). Jack Larkin and Breanna Roberts position their class for a victory in the tug-of-war (4). Pierce Swanson and Marc Fuller leap over the hurdles (5).

Middle School

The Middle School serves as the bridge between the Lower and Upper Schools, and it is an ideal place for students to develop their growing minds and interests. A strong devotion to the community is demonstrated by community service outreach programs, such as the work done by eighth grade students at the United Methodist Outreach Ministry. The community of students is also emphasized, with two days a week given to morning meetings. Middle School snack time allows students to take a breather from their large plate of studies. Electives, such as bowling and calculator programming, let students develop interests beyond the classroom. The many after-school sports, including flag football, softball, and lacrosse, put Middle School students on a lifetime path of exercise and fun. The Middle School also means new freedoms and new responsibilities: lockers, more choice in schedules, and a growing commitment to service.

ACTIVITIES

The Middle School at PCDS is full of activities that enrich both the mind and the body. From model rocketry to computers, Middle School activities cover a wide spectrum of interests and subjects. On the athletic field, PCDS Middle School students can show their talents in sports—from flag football to volleyball—where sportsmanship and having fun are just as important as winning. A strong commitment to community service and to lending a helping hand reinforces the value PCDS places on giving back to the community. Students also get their first chance to participate in student government and to help with the production of the yearbook. In addition, social activities such as dances and movies are planned to give students time to enjoy each other's company. The Middle School offers a place for students to explore and build their interests outside of the classroom.

Nimra Khan pins to the board her own addition to the class project.

ACADEMICS

As the Middle School students leave the Lower School and get ready for the Upper School, they are hard at work building a well-rounded educational foundation that will prepare them to be the next generation of leaders and thinkers. Rhiannon Guffey pays attention to an important lesson in class (1). In a nearby room, friends Allison Sherman and Danica Greenberg work in the computer lab, where the use of technology is integrated into everyday studies (2). Sixth graders learn about the human body with Ms. de Anguera (3), while Arielle Nagle works diligently to complete her assignment (4). Drew Wilson studies outside on a nice day (5). Seventh graders work on their own to complete their assignments in study hall (6). The Middle School students have many opportunities to engage in challenging interdisciplinary studies and to hone their problem-solving and decision-making skills.

visual ART

From drawing to sculpting to painting and much more, the art program in the Middle School has something for everyone. As the seventh grade class is learning to carve with different materials (1), these students experiment with paint (2). Alex Juneja decorates a picture frame in the art room (3).

MUSIC

We certainly have many talented musicians in the Middle School: whether playing on the bass with Ryan Reisman (1), ringing the handbells with Adrian James and his classmates (2), or becoming accustomed to the electric guitar with Mayan Zeitlin (3), the Middle School students are certainly well-versed in all musical genres. Latina Vidolova practices her violin with her class (4), as Adam Lowe plays the blues on his saxophone (5). The entire ensemble practices in the music room for an upcoming performance (6).

Everyone enjoys some time off to hang out with friends or to show off a new outfit at the school dance. Four friends, Wyatt Rodgers, Samantha Bronfman, Tres White, and Hannah Keogh, come with beads and disco balls to light up the party (1), as Taylor Leonesio and Alex Hellyer take it more slowly and enjoy a nice song together (2). At the ice rink, Allison Sherman and Rhiannon Guffey enjoy spending an afternoon with their classmates (3), while back at school for dinner and a movie, Julia Najafi, Kylin Hamman, Meryl Woods, and their classmates smile for the camera before engaging in a pillow fight (4). Middle School students enjoy some food and music (5). Robbe Simon is having an awesome time at the ice rink (6)

Students help to organize and stack the boxes to be sent to troops (7). Chris Misner, Adam Grounds, Rachael Franks, Maddie Tuton, Kathleen Larkin, and Maddie Kasper collect food for another Middle School food drive (8).

Middle School ELECTIVES and ATHLETICS

After school ends on Friday, students have the opportunity to explore new interests, challenge their minds, and try out new activities. Students can learn how to build model rockets, relax while playing board games, cool off in the bowling alley, and go to new heights while rock climbing. Electives also offer an opportunity to get involved in athletics.

The 2004-2005 Middle School Athletic Year saw over 90% of Middle School students participating in the program. Each season brought excitement, learning, and fun to the Middle School. The main objective of the program is for students to become involved in athletics that will carry over to the Upper School and to a later time in life. Developing sportsmanship while "Pursuing Victory with Honor" is the foundation of the program.

Upper School

Across the bridge is another world known as the Upper School. Circled around the Upper School quad are an array of classrooms where students learn the humanities, arts, and sciences. At opposite ends of the quad, the Loback Student Center provides a hangout for students to eat, play ping-pong, and chat with friends, while the Brewster Library is an ideal place for scholars to study, read, or explore. The quad itself is a center of activity, often a host to the sounds of student musicians. The Upper School is united by a commitment to academics, an atmosphere of well-rounded activity inside and outside of school, and a dedication to community service. Whether inside a classroom, on the athletic field, or simply enjoying lunch on the grass, Upper School students have many opportunities to make high school the most amazing experience of their lives.

It has been a great pleasure and honor to serve as your freshman class president. It was a successful year for everyone: not only the fund raising from the car wash, but our hosted dance also surpassed my expectations. I enjoyed seeing the volunteerism during the Toys for Tots bake sale. I'd like to thank my fellow class officers for helping me throughout the year.

from the beginning...

With senior year, the culmination of our high school careers, we are greeted with new privileges and new responsibilities. Each traditional act that we take places us more firmly in the role of a senior and further along the path to graduation. The assistance we provide to the kindergarteners on the first day of school is a symbol of our new position as role models to them and to the entire school. We are PCDS's final products, and we have the responsibility to represent our school and community. Through our senior speeches, we are given the opportunity to do so. But the traditions of senior year include privileges that compensate for the higher expectations that are placed on us. We have finally been given the highly anticipated ability to go off campus, a distinguishing aspect of senior year. We have stepped into the year of senior pranks, senior gifts, senior ditch days, and the senior exemption from second-semester finals. And, at the end of this year, we will be able to appreciate our growth as students and scholars as we receive all of our work from our freshman-English class. Looking back assures us of what we have done; looking forward presents us with the infinity that we have yet to accomplish. Our senior year comes to a close as graduation approaches. Now it is time to look forward.

Senior Dedication: MR. PHILLIPS

"Humor is the only test of gravity, and gravity of humor; for a subject which will not bear raillery is suspicious, and a jest which will not bear serious examination is false wit."

—Aristotle

To many, history is mere dates and names. To anyone privileged enough to be a veteran of one of Mr. Phillips's classes, it is anything but. Mr. Phillips welcomed us into our first year of high school with a uniquely entertaining and humorous perspective on history: a perspective that kept our interest captive from the dawn of man to the end of the Renaissance. He taught us the skills that we would need for high school, but at the same time he taught us many far more valuable lessons: think for yourself, keep asking questions, never stop laughing. He was always more than just a teacher to us; even after our time with him as freshmen was over, his door was always open to us if we needed some advice, felt like playing a round of cards, or were just in the mood for some good music. The Senior Class would like to dedicate this yearbook to Mr. Phillips, who came to the Upper School the same year that we did, and thank him for setting the tone for our entire educational experience.

Callie Thompson, Dani Solomon, Kyle Whisler, and Prashanth Mahalingam watch a soccer game (8) as Alex Lee finishes off a ping-pong game in the Student Center (9). Justin Abbate shows off his pizza and coke for all of the jealous freshmen (10).

Oh, isn't life as a senior great! The ability to go off campus, the exemptions from second semester finals, and the possibility of eating fresh food in front of lower classmen—such as the giant burritos being enjoyed by Danny Curzon and Jill Tse (1)—all make senior year somewhat more agreeable amidst college applications, AP exams, and the notorious “senioritis.” Jasleen Khanuja and Brianna Eller finish some homework on a bench in the quad (2) as KC Lewis, Anne Slovin, and Elaine Keightley share some exciting college news (3). Cassie Sonntag, David Krumwiede, Dani Solomon, Mark Corey, Callie Thompson, Abby Bodell, and Monica Malhotra hang out on a bench in front of the computer lab (4). Later on, Will Alkhoury and Elaine Keightley show off some muscles in the Student Center (5), and Mark Corey, Jason Sanghi, and Tom Foglesong spend some spare time on the internet (6). Outside of the library, Andrew Seid, Monica Malhotra, Abby Bodell, and Stephanie Furniss enjoy their bagels and hot chocolate after the Thanksgiving Day assembly (7).

Upper School ACTIVITIES

The Upper School is made up of more than just books: it is a place where academics, athletics, the arts, and extracurriculars all come together in one palo-verde-lined quad. In one corner of the quad, Stephanie Furniss can be seen studying hard for her upcoming test while listening to the sounds of the expert musicians of the Upper School Jazz Band. Across the way in Madden Hall, one can find Mr. Wilkins and the Advanced Chemistry class discussing the fundamental particles of atoms, while the view of Sandy Theis, Caity Wilenchik, Emily Rector, and Jessie Baum leading the cross-country team in a sprint to the finish is a common sight. Kaity Tse and Sandy Weiss can be found working studiously on their art projects in Hormel, and Justin Abbate is spotted reciting poetry for a group of cheerleaders. From lacrosse to Latin, from Shakespeare to strings, Upper School students have got it all.

MATH and SCIENCE

Mr. Wilkins lectures the Advanced Chemistry class (4), and Katie Fish has a one-on-one study session in physics with Mr. Swinger (5). Ms. Smith's Advanced Biology class poses for a group picture (6) and Mrs. Mazzolini integrates the graphing calculator into her Algebra II lesson (7).

In AP Biology, Jason Sanghi and Raphael Bonghi perform a catalyst lab with toothpicks as Stephanie Papp performs the same lab blindfolded (1). In the library, Ivy Epstein settles down in the comfy chairs to study for an upcoming biology test (2), and Ms. Ellis instructs her Pre-Calculus AB/BC class on solving logarithmic functions (3).

Sophomore Michael Krumwiede is exploring significant figures in Advanced Chemistry (8), while in AP Biology, seniors Harteg Singh and John Kester are examining pill bugs (9).

Jennifer Papp, Ilian Valev, and Gary Gold take a test in Dr. Allison's class (1). Victoria Crase, Anthony Dahkoshay, and Chelsea Robbins finish up their work in Mr. Phillips's class (2). Carissa Seip studiously completes the answer to a question on a test (3).

In Mrs. Thompson's English III course, Emerson Reiter, Will Fielder, and Mrs. Thompson converse (5) opposite juniors Chris Yee and Kris Wielunski reading their novels (6).

HUMANITIES

Senior Daniel Eisenberg discusses the benefits and drawbacks of the American government with Mrs. Barranco (4). Friends Ross Nicholls and Catie Hodgson flip through their Western Civilization I book (9).

Seniors KC Lewis and Anne Slovin animatedly discuss the latest short story in AP English (7), and Dr. Allison ponders a tough daily-quizz question (8).

Katie Senzig and Michaela Flynn are laughing as they share their Spanish stories about a cute guy from Madrid (7).

In Latin, Fowler Brown is working studiously while Emerson Reiter stares ahead (4). Lizzy Jeans and her fellow classmates are greatly amused by Ms. Anderson's verb-tense timeline (5), and French I students Debi DeVries and Nina Warner finish the first drafts of their compositions (6).

LANGUAGES

Spanish students take in the new vocabulario that Señora Gilbert introduces (1), while across the quad Heather Maule-Ffinch and her French III class follow along with Madame Wielkoszewski's leçon (2).

In French I, department head Mrs. Hernandez is giving Destiny Huynh extra help with those verbes irréguliers (3).

Athletics

The 2004-2005 athletic year was filled with many exciting and rewarding moments. It was gratifying to observe our athletes compete, as you won with class and lost with dignity. Our program provides an important venue to learn life's lessons. The true test of the character of our athletes is in defeat. In victory and defeat, our athletes met the challenge and brought pride to the Phoenix Country Day community.

The 2004-2005 athletic year saw our state association, the Arizona Interscholastic Association, designate Phoenix Country Day as a "Pursuing Victory with Honor School of Distinction." This prestigious award recognizes our school program as one that embraces the qualities of trustworthiness, respect, responsibility, fairness, caring, and citizenship. When these values are the foundation, a student is preparing for success now and in the future.

As Director of Athletics, I am proud of each and every one of you for your success and the way you represented yourself and your school.

When you look back at the 2004-2005 athletic year, I hope you enjoyed your athletic experience as much as we enjoyed having you in the program. Best of luck to our seniors. Thank you for your time and dedication to the program!

women's VOLLEYBALL

PCDS Varsity Volleyball had an amazing season this year. We went 16-0 in regional play (a PCDS first) and for the second year running made it to the 2A State Championship game, taking second in Arizona. These girls are so dynamic and fun; much of the team's success was due to their spirit and friendship. Thank you, girls, for a fantastic season; there is no other group of girls with whom we would have preferred to share our senior season.

The swim and dive team had a very successful season. It was a small team, but what it lacked in size, it made up for in spirit and talent. Seven swimmers (Abby Bodell, Callie Thompson, Quinn de la Concepcion, Laura Bodell, Blake Lewkowitz, Andru Roysden, and Ben Cook) and four divers (Michaela Johnson-Clague, Kera McClelland, Tom Foglesong, and Drew Teer) qualified for the state championships. men's SOCCER

The senior-led soccer team, with the help of many underclassmen, did an outstanding job. It was unfortunate to lose in a close game against Grand Canyon in the first round of the state championship. On the year, the leading goal scorers were Justin Abbate and Emerson Reiter, with 10 goals each. The 2004-2005 Women's Soccer team was by far the best to date. We had a strong group of underclassmen, which will ensure a great future for the soccer team. The team had a great regular season and strong post-season run; we reached new levels of success this year. The departing seniors will be missed, but we are confident that the great coaching and talented underclassmen will carry the team for many years to come. Thanks for such a great season!

men's BASKETBALL

The 2004-2005 Men's Varsity Basketball team's season was nothing but a success. With nine seniors leading the charge, leadership was given from every different angle. Playing in the toughest region in the state (2A Metro), the Eagles held their own with all-around team play because of the stellar post work of Kyle Whistler, the "Dirk Nowitzki-esque" play of John Kester, the pure shooting of Matt Kostrivas, the strength of Alex Ashby, the floor leadership of Justin Abbate, the tenacity of Chase Bales, the determination of Josh Bronfman, the outspokenness of Andrew Bean, the hard work of Prashanth Mahalingham, the toughness of John Tierney, the laid-back attitude of Tracy Thomas, and the most solid 6th man in the region, John Wolfe. The entire men's team is very proud that we have made basketball games an exciting event to attend at PCDS.

women's BASKETBALL

The basketball team finished with a winning season despite our youth, winning five of the last six games, with Stephanie Furniss, the only senior, at our lead. We were able to find strength in each other, even though we faced some challenging times. Because basketball is one of three sports available to girls in the winter season, we had to give up the Junior Varsity team. Although we were sad to see it go, we all knew it would have been hard for most of the girls to have to double-up every game night. Led by three great coaches, we battled through the season and competed in two challenging tournaments. Thanks for a great season!

The girls on this team have really stepped it up this season, especially the new players. With the void from graduating seniors left to fill, the new players showed commitment and dedication in learning a new sport. Any sport can be overwhelming, but every girl rose and conquered each new challenge presented to her. Their hearts will ensure success for the seasons still to come. ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First and foremost, we would like to thank our yearbook advisor, Mr. Thommen, for all of his time and guidance. We are forever grateful for your patience and dedication. Despite being new to the school, you took on this daunting responsibility with enthusiasm. Between meeting us at school early on weekends and coming in during your vacations, we appreciate your unwavering commitment. Without you, we could have never created such a thorough, well-balanced, and colorful yearbook. Thanks!

We would also like to thank our Head of Upper School, Mr. Campbell, for his continuing support. Thanks also to Mr. Reese for his technical expertise, careful proofreading, and sound advice. Your encouragement kept us going; thanks for always listening to us when we needed to talk.

Without all of our photo contributors, this yearbook would not have been possible. We cannot express our gratitude enough to Nancy Crase for all of her wonderful pictures. Thanks so much for being so flexible with all of our crazy deadlines. We appreciate your taking the time to take the Senior class picture twice and cover school events. Most of all, the donation of your Upper School sports pictures has been crucial to the success of our sports pages. Thanks also to Mrs. Newman for her incredible Lower School pictures. Thank you for helping us meet our deadlines and helping us to represent the Lower School in a more balanced manner. The Athletic Department has also been an amazing resource. Thank you to Mrs. Kiltz, Mr. Kosower, and everyone in the Athletic Department for your help with the sports pages; we appreciate all the last minute identifications and organization of pictures that you so willingly did. Thanks also to Mr. Cherilla for taking so many of the Middle School team sports pictures. We are also grateful to Mrs. Treadway and her Middle School Yearbook Club. Thanks for helping us expand the Middle School section and thanks for all the photos you and your students contributed. Thanks also to Mrs. Risley and Mrs. Kolbet for their continuing contribution of photos.

Our student support was also critical to the success of this book. Thanks to Scott Griffen and Sandy Theis for their dedication. We couldn't have asked for more upbeat copy editors; your bilingual music and quirky personalities have made Saturday mornings entertaining. Thanks also to Ryan Gibbons for all of your pictures, advice, and company. You always are there to listen to our yearbook drama and bring us a Starbucks when we are in desperate need. You helped us come through in every crunch with your amazing photos. We would also like to thank Toby Seadler for taking the time on Saturdays to help lay out pages and give us creative design advice; your pictures have also been wonderful. Thanks also to Monica Malhotra for your pictures and helping us sell ad space. We would also like to thank Kira Dillard and Laura Reaherd for their contributions of time and effort. Additionally, we are grateful to KC Lewis, Jill Tse, and Upper School sports captains for their contributions to the text of this book.

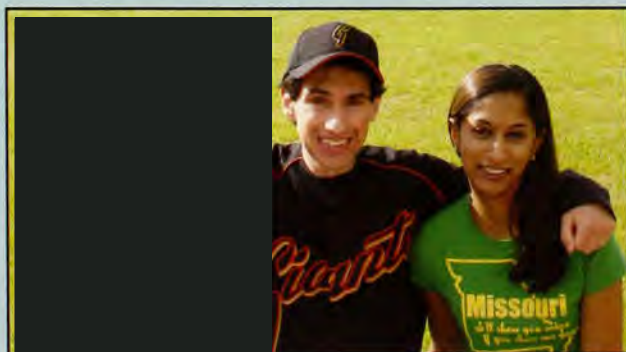

And finally thanks to everyone at Herff Jones for their flexibility, advice, and help. Thanks to Ali Vrtiska, our representative, for your commitment and understanding.

Every minute we spent in the making of this book (and there were many) was an amazing learning experience. We hope you enjoy this yearbook and thanks for everyone's help and support.

Bye now...

For Little H .

... your own persistent beat ...
... the voice of your mind ...

those that truly love you .

Alex Dru

Alex: You have evolved from an extremely chatty toddler and little boy into an intelligent, hardworking, outdoors-loving, NRA-supporting, semi-ripped young man who has a distinct opinion on every topic and a diabolically sly sense of humor. As you proceed through life, remember that the things that really matter are your health, your family, a mate whom you truly love, a job that you fully enjoy, and feelings of satisfaction and contentment when you hit the hay each night. I will be cheering for your success from the sidelines.
Love, Mom

Dear Abby,

You have brains in your head.

You have feet in your shoes.

You can steer yourself
any direction you choose.

You're on your own. And you know what you know.

And YOU are the girl who'll decide where to go.

We love you,

Mom, Dad, Jason,
Lindsay, and Laura

Our pride in what you have accomplishd is only exceeded by our excitement for your future.
We love you dear Stephanie.
Mom & Dad

Congratulations!
College is going to be totally awesome.
Love, Uncle Pat and Aunt Tori

Congratulations Stephanie,
How do you feel about expanding my room into yours?
Love, Jenny

Reward is equal to effort.
We are so proud of you.
Love, Nana & PopPop

Congratulations, Stephanie.
We are proud of you.

Congratulations Stephanie!
We are so proud of you and Your accomplishments.
Love, Lorene and Michael

As Langston Hughes said,
"Hold fast to dream, for if dreams die, life is like a broken winged bird that cannot fly."
As you take this next big step in your life, we wish for you love of a career, love of another, and love of a cause.
Congratulations. We are very proud of you.
Love, Aunt Ruthie and Uncle Phil

Darling Steph, what an exciting time for you! Congratulations on a job well done and oh-so-many loving good wishes for the next part of your life adventure.

If I Ran the World

words & music by John McCutcheon & Si Kahn

If I ran the world, everything would change
The food and toy stores would be free
With door to door delivery
Oh, what a party it would be
If I ran the world

If I ran the world each kid would have a bike
A swimming hole not far from home
A bedroom of their very own
No one would have to play alone
If I ran the world

If I ran the world all homework would be banned
Our school week would be just one day
And all the rest we'd have for play
I'd triple every teacher's pay
If I ran the world

If I ran the world there'd be no underwear
I'd never comb my hair
Peace would break out everywhere

If I ran the world each meal would have ice cream
The faucets would run juice and stuff
The tofu farms would have it rough
And everyone would have enough
If I ran the world

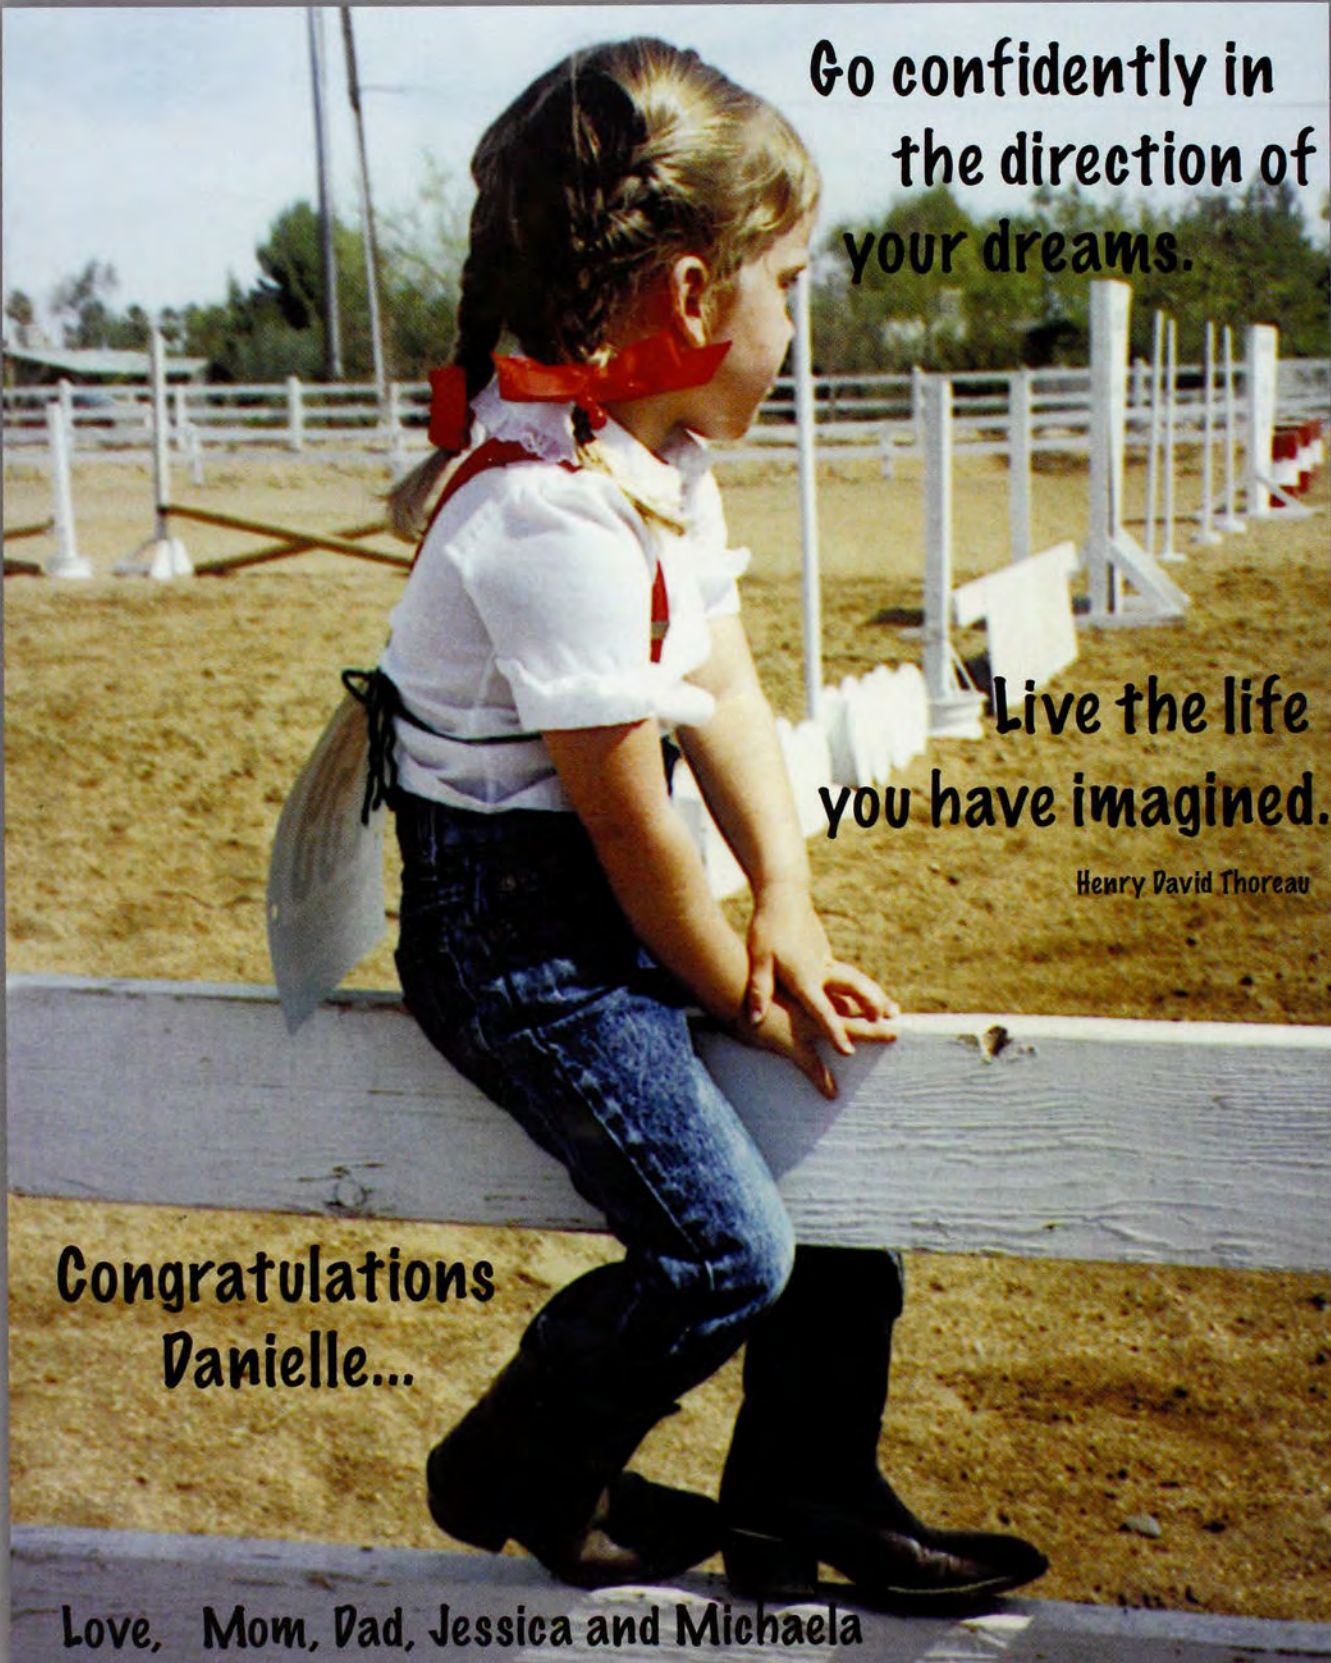

If I ran the world I'd never change my socks
My bedtime would be late at night
There'd always be a hallway light
Whatever's wrong I'd make it right
If I ran the world

Whatever's wrong we'd make it right
If we ran the world

On the road...

His promise to you Enshrouded with love, "Let this child of yours be blessed from above."

As viewers of a drama, about to unfold,
We watch you
revere in adventures untold.
To protect you from harm in the gentlest way, Daring not to lose even one precious day.
Care will be given
to love and to feed, Yet not stifle or deter your desire to breathe.

We'll always be there to support and hold, Realizing sometimes a child has to be bold.

Let us guide and protect,
yet not each decision make. But let this life choose the road to take.
We wish for you not our lives re-creation, But a nurtured path of your own designation.

Our promise to you is not anchored wealth. Your payment to us, Just be yourself.
We will give ourselves for a sturdy beginning, But the final race is yours for the winning.

Let not us, nor the world alter your goals.

Remember always, For whom the bell tolls.

Then your promise to us when you conquer all fears. To remember us fondly, through a smile of tears.

C- You are more than we could have ever hoped for... we are blessed with an awesome son. You are the joy of our lives.

-Mom & Dad

For our most sacred task will then be done, If we've prepared you to stand only as one.

Oh what a difference...

If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music he hears, however measured or far away.

-Thoreau

The greatest mistake you can make in life is to be continually fearing you will make one.

-Elbert Hubbard

The glory that goes with wealth and beauty is fleeting and fragile; Virtue is a possession glorious and eternal.

-Sallust

Rain of the clouds, It comes down to the Earth's ground for the flowers joy.

who were not first successful
children. -A. Chase

If Only You Could Be Me for a Moment...

Sometimes I wish you could step into my shoes for just a little while — to think what I think;
to see what I see;
to understand the confusion, the fear, the admiration, and the friendship I feel toward you — all at once.

If you were able to live inside my mind, even for a moment, you would see that my world is filled with so many responsibilities, yet so often my thoughts are of you.
You would see what joy
you've brought to my life.
You would see how much it means to me to be able to smile, to laugh, to feel good, to feel free, like a child —
just because of you.

If you had the chance to take the smallest glimpse inside of me, you would see gratitude and respect — respect not only for what you are making of yourself, but also for what you are helping me to be.
And you would see how much all of that means to me.

But the thing that would strike you most — if ever you had the chance to be me — would be all the love I feel for you.
And once you had felt it,
you would always remember it,
and you would understand that, although I am not always able to express it or to explain its depth or importance to me, it is always there... inside of me.

It's been an honor and joy being your parents,

Love,
Mom + Pop

From Start...

"I can put on my pants and button my shirt. When I learn to tie my shoes, I'm done."

... to Finish.

MATTHEW KOSTRIVAS

Matt:

We are so proud of the man you have become. You are such a blessing in our lives, and it is a privilege to have you as our son. As you move into a new season of your life, remember to choose wisely the path you take. Walk worthy in all you do.

We love you more than words can express, and will miss you greatly, but we will rejoice in watching you grow into the man God has created you to be. Always do what is right and God will take care of what is best for you.

Love you so much,

Mom & Dad

David

The world is at your doorstep.
Follow your dreams,
Realize your potential,
Believe in yourself,
And nothing will be beyond your reach.

What lies behind us and what lies before us are small matters compared to what lies within us.
—Emerson

You have filled our lives with joy and love. We are so proud of the man you have become and so excited for the journey ahead. We will always be your biggest fans.

Love,
Mom, Dad, and Michael

I Have A Dream:

I had a dream. My dream is that the homeless could build a house in those empty buildings downtown. This means that they can have a happy life now. I hope they could have a school and lots of food and that's my dream.

By Shannen Fish

Dear Shannen,

Turn your wishes into goals, your goals into reality, and your dreams will come true.
