There is a petrifying well {upon Meldon} called {the Black Well of Meldon}[25] whose water is so extreamely cold that a man (they say) can not hold his hand in it,[26] while you go [to] the doer. It lyes N.E. to Dufton church – that corner of the quier pointing to it – & it turns all the moss for 40 yards to stone, which is like to / Smithy-sinders \ or pumice / or rather sponges, but whitish in colour.[27]
There is another well beyond Hikeup Head at ½ a mile distance E. from that place, which they call Marle Well. It tastes of iron \ this would prove medicinal / & tinges the bankes & places adjoining with a rusty colour. As like […]}[28]

{Pretiouse stones; milstones; coale}
There are also good milstones got there at Milston Sike, above \ twice / 12 score [yards] from it \ & great store of free stone & flaggs. /
Also coale unwrought, which serves for lime kill[n]s; & great store of lead as got in these mountanes, and smelted at a miln near to the church a little above it.

[19] A way-cairn, appearing in Machell's MS in several forms including hurrock and harrock (Machell's representation of the letters 'u' and 'a' being identical much of the time).
[20] This is probably William Atkinson, schoolmaster at Dufton between 1664-65 and perpetual vicar of Morland from 1680/1; he died in 1721. CCED.
[21] Rundale Tarn.
[22] Millaley.
[23] 'When I was a boy' has been added in different ink.
[24] Otherwise known as Meldon Hill, Dufton.
[25] MS: 'There is a petrifying well on Meldon called petrifying. {There is a well called the Black Well of Meldon.}'
[26] Two unclear words here appear to read, 'I [...] sond times.'
[27] As this passage has been written next to a ragged margin and is partly overwritten, the transcription offered is tentative. Beneath the same passage there is an unfinished sentence: 'It is 4 miles from the [blank].'
[28] This is followed by approximately 32 words of well-scored-through text.

{Generall}
{In Browham the great tree – p[articulars] nature &c. & Harts horn tree in Whin fell; chimney piece in Hornby dineing roome.}[29]
Wild ducks nest at Crack at Snittlemire and at St Nicolas (mire). Bogg.
Raspberryes \ & hind berryes / at Scale Houses in Murton Demaine.[30]
Bleaberryes at Meal Fell.[31]
Temeberryes[32] in the spring head at the S. end of Flakebrigg by \ the / Murton-beck side.
Crackthorp: epithimum, golden globes, burd eene,[33] melilot[34] ~~hart,~~ add[er]stong[ue].[35]
(No elmes naturally in this county but I suppose it exottick.) Awme or witch hassel.[36]

Langton, J[oh]n Hill sayes, was a Lordship forfeited by rebellion: all the men hang'd: ~~the man~~ where Wright lived on his own doer cheekes. Dakers Roade.[37] The army came up to that moore but never crossd Eden.

[29] For the chimney piece at Hornby Hall, see I.444A (Brougham); see also, Michael Taylor, 'On some Manorial Halls in Westmorland', CW1, 04 (1880), 392-99.
[30] The hindberry is a northern name for the wild raspberry, cf. German 'himbeere'. OED.
[31] The blaeberry: the common name in Scotland and the north of England of the bilberry or whortleberry. OED.
[32] This word appears to read as 'temeberryes' but the actual berry has not been ascertained.
[33] Birds eye: the name of a plant. Used chiefly with reference to plants having flowers with a distinctive central marking; cf. eye. OED.
[34] Plants of the genus Melilotus, characterised by trifoliate leaves and long racemes of small flowers, usually yellow or white, which smell of newly mown hay when dry, and are sometimes grown as forage and green manure, and as bee plants; especially the yellow-flowered M. officinalis, the dried flowers of which were formerly used in making plasters, poultices, etc. OED.
[35] As 'hart' is placed next to adder's tongue (a fern) Machell might be referring to the hart's tongue fern, though 'hart's trefoil' is another form of melilot.
[36] Even before the ravages of Dutch Elm Disease, the English elm (genus ulmus) was more common in southern England and the Midlands than in the north. As the wychelm or witch hazel (ulmus glabra) is hardier, it has always been able to grow further north than other varieties. See Della Hooke, Trees in Anglo-Saxon England: Literature, Lore and Landscape (Woodbridge, 2010), 262-63.
[37] For more on this reference to Dacre's Raid (for example, 'The owner of Wrights house they say was hang'd on his own dooer post, & many more of them.'), see Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby Town and Parishes, I.341.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 13]

[I.496]

[Parish of Kirkby Stephen]

[Miscellaneous Notes and Queries]

[III.190]

A free school at K.
All pay noutgeld: query.
{An acre 22 broad & 11 scale long. Meadow 13. 4d; Arable [blank] Pasture 15.
Kirkby Stephen hath {Waif & stray afore their tenant, all but Weatby, where my Lord of Thannet.}
[III.221][1]
Query of Will. Barnard, a bonderman.[2]
~~Russendale. Hare birth~~

{Name}
The church dedicated to St Stephen giveth name to the town.
The parish of Kirkby Stephan takes its name from the towne where the church standeth.[3]

{Bounds} It is bounded on the [blank]
{Division; constablewicks} Within this large circumference are conteined
? Manner Sc. Kirkby Stephan, next [blank]
{School; church} locus ad Ecclesiam Stephani, which is [blank]
{Schoolhouse & masters}
{Vicaridge house; Incumbents} Near to this [blank] stands the vicaridge house.
Things remarkeable in the manner
Where [blank] free [blank] customary [blank]
{Rarityes of the manner}
{Lords & manner houses
{The Lords. The manner house & chief lord. The chief [blank]}
TP his armes & pedigree.

———————

[IV.529]

[1.] [How Kirkby Stephen became a Vicarage] e Registro de Wed'hal[4]

It seemeth that Kirkby Stephen and Morland were both Rectories \ till / in the time of Hugo Bishop of Karliol about the beginning of King Henry the 3rds reigne {anno 1220}. That Hugh Bishop of Karleol \ de assensu / gave & confirm'd them (de assensu capitali Karleolens' ecco),[5] {and the chapels thereto appertaneing, belonging together with all their appurtenences} to God & the church of St Maryes Yorke, & \ to / the monkes serveing God there, & \ to / their successors. To have and enjoy them to their owne proper use and behoofe for ever. Yet so that the church of Kirkeby Stephan – with its appertinences, was to be imployed to the proper uses of the moncks of Yorke, for the support of poore people, and strangers (Sc. peregrinorum) \ or pilgrims as some / which perhaps would rather have it translated); And the church of Morland with its appurtenances, to the proper use of the moncks of Wederhal (which is a cell of the said church of St Maryes Yorke) for their support. And that when

[1] Beneath the ink on this page there are pencilled notes relating to the dimensions of Kirkby Stephen church.
[2] 'Reference to Will Bernard of Kirkby Stephen as a 'bonderman', occurs on MS.III.181. Since the word, 'bonderman', was first noted in the nineteenth century, Machell probably meant 'bounder-man': a man who sets or marks out boundaries. OED.
[3] MS continues: '{Value}It is a vicaridge rated in the 1ᵗ fruits office at [blank] pay first [blank] tenth [blank] & synodals {Patrones} The patrones [blank] ~~The incumbents~~.'
[4] For these Wetheral Priory register entries, see J.E. Prescott (ed.), The Register of the Priory of Wetherhal, CWAAS Record Series I (London, 1897).
[5] 'With the assent of the bishop of Carlisle.'

these churches should become vacant by the death or removal of the rectors then in them of the said churches, who at that time were incumbents there; it should be lawful for the foresaid moncks to retaine them freely to their proper use; with\out/ the disturbance or contradiction of any one whatsoever […][6] Yet so that they should appoint therein suitable vicars (Vicarios idoneos nobis,[7] sayth he; et successoribus nostris presentandos);[8] yet so that they should place therein well qualified vicars to be presented to him and his successors – who should receive, each of them, out of the profits of their several churches for ever – C. shillings;[9] and be oblieged to take upon them the cure of soules from the hands of him & his successors and be oblieged et de spiritualibus [pro]videre.[10] Which, because it is an excellent piece & shews the stile of that Age it was writ {Circa anno 1220}, I thinke fit to subjoyne.

[IV.530]

Confirmatio (Hugonis) ep[iscop]i Karl[eolensis] Sup[er] Ecclesiis de Kirkeby Stephan et de Morland cum capellis ad eas pertin[entibus]
Hugo dei gratia Karl[eolensis] ep[is]c[opus] Omnibus Xti fidelibus has Literas inspecturis et audituris s[a]l[ute]m in d[omi]no.
Quoniam ex officio nobis injuncto subjectorum nostorum, et maxime religiosoru[m] tenem[entorum] utilitati providere Et eorum bona augere et confovere, Noscat universitas vestra quod nos divina ducti pietate, de assensu capitali Karl[eolensis] Ecclesiae, concedimus et presenti pagina confirmamus Deo et Ecclesiae Sanctae Mariae Ebor[ac]um, et monachis ibidem do[mino] servientibus, et in posterum servituris, Ecclesias de Kirkby Stephan et de Morland, cum omnibus capellis ad eas pertinentibus, et cum omnibus aliis pertinentiis suis in proprios usus ipsorum, habendas et possidendas in perpetuum. Ita Sc[iatis] Quod Ecclesia de Kirkeby Stephan cum suis pertinentiis cedat in usus proprios dictorum monachorum Eboracum ad sustentationem pauperum et peregrinorum. Et – Ecclesia de Morland cum suis pertinentiis in usus proprios monarchorum domus de Wederhale. Quae est Cella Ecclesiae Sanctae Mar[iae] Eboracum, ad eorum sustentationem.
Decedentibus vero, ut cedentibus parsonis et Rectoribus predictarum Ecc[lesi]arum, qui nunc in eis sunt constituti. Liceat praefatis monachis libere et sine alicujus contradictione ut impedimento eas sibi in usus proprios retinere.
Ita tamen quod in eis vicarios idoneos constituant nobis et successoribus nostris praesentandos qui

[IV.531]

{Circa annum 1220} de proventibus ipsarum C Solid[os] singuli ipsorum de singulis Ecclesiis praecipiant in perpetuum. Curamque animarum a nobis et successoribus n[ostris] percipere et de spiritualibus providere teneantur. Ut autem haec nostra consessio et confirmacio perpetue firmitatis robur obtineat, hoc praesens scriptum Sigilli n[ostri] inscriptione duximus commun[io]re. Hys testibus – domino J. Abbate de Fontibus. R. Decano; & magistro J, Romano Canon' Eboracum
Act xiij kal novembr'Anno Incarnationis Domini. M.CC.XX[0].[11]

[6] A line of largely illegible text follows here.
[7] 'Vicars suitable for us.'
[8] 'and who can be presented to our successors.'
[9] £5.
[10] 'Be obliged to provide for spiritual things also.'
[11] Confirmation of Hugo, Bishop of Carlisle, over the Churches of Kirkby Stephen and Morland, along with the chapels affiliated to them. Hugo, Bishop of Carlisle by grace of God, to all Christ's faithful who shall see or hear these Letters: greetings in the Lord. Since, through the office enjoined upon us to provide for the benefit of those subject to us and most especially the religious houses, and to increase and cherish their goods, know ye all that we, guided by divine mercy, with the full assent of the Church of Carlisle, grant and by this document confirm, to God and to the Church of St Mary at York and to the monks there who serve and who in future shall serve the Lord, the Churches of Kirkby Stephen and Morland, with all the chapels affiliated to them, and with all their other appurtenances, for their own uses, to have and to hold in perpetuity.Therefore know ye that the Church of Kirkby Stephen with its appurtenances is to give precedence for their own uses to the said monks at York for the maintenance of the poor and of travellers. And – the Church of Morland with its appurtenances, [likewise] for their own uses to the monks of the house of Wederhale, which is a daughter-house of the Church of St Mary at York, for their maintenance. And as they fall vacant, as the parsons and Rectors of the aforesaid

Thus, Kirkeby Stephan became a vicaridge,

[IV.531A & D]

{Cart. 28 or 31 as latelyer noted; fol. 19} and all the grants, collations & confirmations of churches, pensions, rents, possessions, procurations and other Benefits in the Diocess of Karleol. And specially the Confirmations of the churches of Kirkby Stephan & Morland made to the Abbot & Convent of St Maryes Yorke, as is conteined (in authenticis) in the authentic Grants of the venerable father Hugh Bishop of Karleol, are confirmed by Bishop Bartholomew, Prior of St Maryes Karleol and the convent of the said church. Hiis Testibus Magistrro A. de Kirkby tunc offic. Karliol; A. de Esptric Decano Cumberland; Odard clerico, S. Subpriore de Wederhale; et alijs.

[IV.531A]

Anno domini 1261, 44. Henry 3.
Pope Alexander iiij non[is] Julij, Pontificatus sui anno iij^{0} . About which time these forsaid grantes seeme to have bin made – granted by his Bull to the Abbat & Convent of St Maryes Yorke.[12] That in the churches & chappels which were canonically annexed to them for their proper use & wherein there were no taxed vicaridges, nor perpetual vicars had been instituted within the memory of man; but were served by their own chaplains – That they should continue to do so still; & That no vicaridges should be taxed out of them or perpetual vicars instituted into them against their wills ~~unless in small places~~ nonwithstanding any

[IV.532]

Indulgence Granted to any by the apostolic see, or hereafter to be granted of taxing \ perpetual vicaries & instituteing perpetual vicars / churches & chapels, which religious men have for their own proper use when in the precincts of their cityes or diocess; Or any Letters or Indulgences from the said See obtained or to be obtained (nisi eadem impetrande de Indulgentia hujusmodi plenam et expressam fecerint mentionem)[13] unless they make full & express mention of a Libre indulgence of obteineing the same {?} Which he concludes with a Comination against any one \ all those / that shal infringe the said Conformation, or boldy oppose it; That they shal incur the high indignation of Almighty God & of his Apostles St Peter & St Paul. Datum Anagnie iiij Non. Julij. Pontificatus ejus anno vi^{0}.[14]

But this notwithstanding, the Abbots of Yorke were stiffly opposed about the Taxation of the church of Appelby if I be not mistaken. But query if they were not anciently Taxed, and not within the verge of this Grant?

[III.211]

[2.] Kirkby Stephan Church, its dimensions & porches {July 4^{0}}

The church, dedicated to St Stephen, giveth name to the Towne – And is [a] large ~~building~~ \ but humble building / with a Lofty Tower of good astler worke[15] with a clock & [blank] Bells in it. The Body of the church \ in the midle ally / is about ~~35 yardes~~ \ ~~or 37~~ 37 / in length \ besides the Tower / with 2 Rowes of round pillars, 6 in a Row, round & plane of a midling size; and the 2 Iles are about churches who now are constituted in them retire, the aforesaid monks are to have licence, freely and without anyone's contradiction as an obstacle, to retain them for themselves for their own uses. In such a way, however, that they establish suitable vicars for presentation to us and our successors, who {about the year 1220} from their revenues are to receive, each of them from the individual churches, 100s in perpetuity. And they are to be bound to recognise and undertake the care of souls, from us and our successors. Moreover, so that this our grant and confirmation may forever have security and validity, we have made this present document more public by the impression of our seal. Witnesses were these: Lord J. Abbot of Fontes, R. the Deacon; & master J. Roman, Canon at York. Act 13, Kalends of November, in the Year of the Incarnation of our Lord, 1220.'

[12] 'In the year of the Lord 1261, 44. Henry 3. Pope Alexander IV on the 4th July, in the third year of his Pontificate. About which time these forsaid grantes seeme to have bin made - granted by his Bull …'

[13] '… unless in petitioning the same they make full and express mention of an indulgence of this kind.'

[14] 'Dated: at Anagnia, four days before the Nones of July in the sixth year of his Pontificate.' Anagnia is an ancient town south-east of Rome. The Nones of July was the seventh day of that month.

[15] 'Astler:' a former usage of the word 'ashlar'. 'Ashlar-work' consisted of masonry constructed of square hewn stones, as opposed to 'rubble-work'. OED .

35. & on the N. side Ile is a Quier projecting, which belongs to Smerdale Hall. {Long 6; broad 7: i.e. from S. to N.} The whol bredth of the body from one side to the other is [blank].
{In the 3rd window counting from the doer – at the top in one of the corners is a plane manch.}[16]
{Cliffords armes in the E. window midle light.}

{Hartley Quier}
The Quier is in length 15 passes or yards; In bredth 7? Haveing on South, Hartley Quier, which extends in Length from the screen or body of the church Eastward 9 and in Bredth 8 \ which lookes through one Arch onto the great Quier[17] / wher in[18] are 2 monuments, one under an Arch in the S. side wall, with Musgraves Armes on the pitch of the Tabling,[19] & \ a blew / marble Through (as they call them here) \ with Musgrave Armes upon the Edge of it / with this inscription [blank]
The other in the \ midle of the /screen which divides it from the Quier. Sc. a man in armour with a sword at his right side ~~& his dagger~~ on his left \ something like a broken spear or truncheon, / under his head an old fashon'd helmet[20] & a Lyon couchant at his feet, Laying upon a Table of stone erected like a through having sides of niched worke (this is all of Huen stone) & has bin \ long / taken for Sir Andrew Hartleys effigyes;[21] but ~~by~~ \ I have discover'd it / this Escutchion[22] on the hilt of his Dager. I discoved it to be one of the ~~Musgraves~~ {rather Clifford & Vipont} And above, on the Timber are Musgrave \ Armes / impald Clifford, & Musgraves armes impaleing {?} And in truth this may seem to have bin builded by som of the Musgraves upon their Accession to Hartley Castle.

[I.578][23]

In Hartleys Quier which is on the south side of the church:[24]

Hic. jacet. Ricardus Musgrave
Miles ~~Mus~~ Int Elizab* uxorem suam et + Thomam filium et + hæredem eorum qui obijt ix[0] die Mensis Novembris Anno Domini
M[0] CCCC[0] lxiiij[0]. Cujus animæ propitietor {?} amen.[25]

{Note. The g in Musgrave is like a Text a, without the transverse stroake: & so is the q. in qui.}

Figure 1.13.1. 'In Hartley's choir which is on the south side of the church'. I.578.

Under the rim or edge of the stone are 6 Annulets. Above the arch is Musgraves Armes: Sc. 6 annulets supported by a Lyon Seiant,[26] and a Pelican feeding her young ones. And on the side of the Table stone, which is marble, Musgrave Armes within a plane shield.

[16] 'Maunch': a charge representing a sleeve, esp. a medieval hanging sleeve.
[17] Chancel.
[18] In the Hartley quire.
[19] Or 'Tablings'.
[20] 'an old fasho\n'/d hel~~d met~~\ met'.
[21] See N&BI, 541, for a similar description.
[22] Here there is a tiny sketch of an escutcheon.
[23] This page contains pencilled text overwritten in ink, as if a note page had been worked up later. Not all the pencilled text has been recorded here as it is either too faint or placed too far into the page gutter.
[24] Written in pencil with the added comment, 'se p.290 or p.209.'
[25] 'Here lies Sir Richard Musgrave between Anna his wife and Thomas their son and heir, who died on 9 November 1464, on whose souls may God have mercy {?} Amen.' See N&BI, 541.
[26] 'Sejant': in a sitting posture; especially of a quadruped; sitting with the fore-legs upright. OED.

In the roofe are:[27]

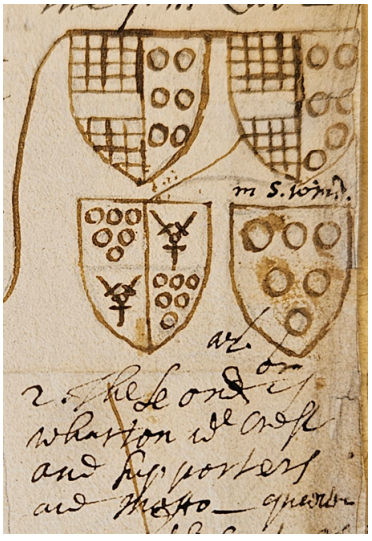

Figure 1.13.2. Coats of Arms. The top right is labelled, 'In S. Window'. The ground of the bottom-right shield is labelled 'Azure', the annulets, 'Or'. I.579.

On Lord Whartons Mon[ument]
1. At the W. end are 3 Coates of Armes: Sc. Wharton quartering $^{1}{}_{1}$} Thre Lyons rampant in chiefe & \ a quarterly coate; Sc. 3 Escallops in Bass†.
The second ‡.[28] The third as the second. 4th as the 1t. Then Wharton agane with an orle. Then the other.[29] Thirdly Bend. 4. A quarterly Coat with 3 garbes in the first quarter.
Fifthly a saltier in the undercourse. 6. A Bend between 6 martlets. 7. \ Or / a fret \ 2. / 8ly. \ Argent / 2 Lyons passant\ Gu[les.] / 9tly. \ Argent / a Lyon Rampant (Gu[les.])

[Machell's Notes: I.578 & III.222]
*{Tis Elizabeth in the Pedegree; see my book.}[30]
†{Note I think the escallops are rather ermins.}
‡{? What in the 2nd!} {2. The second is Wharton with crest and supporters and motto – quartering a quarterly Coat.[31]
1. Three Lyons rampant in chiefe, & 4 escallops in bass, 2. Quartering a Bend &c.
3. The third is Wharton quartering the same quarterly Coates […][32] Note that here ar onely 3 ~~escallops~~ \ ermins / impaleing a Coate of Quarters: Sc. 1. a Lyon Rampant; 2. 3 Bends. 3. a Chiefe and Saltier.[33] 4ly (in the Lower Course) on a fess 3 florrdelus;[34] 5. A Bend twixt six martlets.}
[III.222]: Query: monuments, inscriptions & armes above Hartley quier. In Lord Whartons. William Wharton of Mallerstang. Piper + walke.

[27] Here, Machell has drawn a distinct line leading to his sketch of four coats of arms, although the top right is labelled, 'in S. wind[ow].'
[28] Here there is a tiny descriptive sketch. An orle is a narrow bordure following the outline of a shield but not extending to its edge. OED.
[29] MS: '{?} ~~These Impaleing a Coate of' …~~ {?} ~~sc. 1. a Lyon Rampant; 2. another~~.' This scored-through text is barely legible.
[30] According to Nicolson & Burn, the inscription (which Machell seems to have found difficult to decipher, see Fig. 1.13.1) presented as 'Elizabetham': N&B1, 541.
[31] MS: 'quartering a quarterly Coat ~~of 3 Lyons Rampant in chief … d quartering a Bend~~.'
[32] A word here has perished.
[33] Saltire: see the English Glossary.
[34] Fleur de lys/lis. 1600s: flower de luce (plural, luces). OED.

[III.211]

{Wharton Quier}
On the opposite side is Wharton quier, much of the same bigness but divided by a screen under 2

[III.212]

Arches with a piller in the midle, in the center of which is placed a large Through with the Armes & Quarterings of Lord Whartons family on ends & sides of It {& round about the edge is this inscription} [blank].[35] And above on the table is [blank] Wharton[36] with his 2 Wives, one on the right hand & the other on [blank]. This monument also is \ but / of huen stone: materiam supe[rab]at opus.[37] And all about are[38] seates of wainscot, rale & ballasters, locked up; that I could take an exact account of it.[39] Beneath this Quier is a vault to Bury in and Tis said before the makeing of It, that they buryed under a great marble Through near the church doer; and there is this probability of it that on Edge of the Tab[l]e, about the midle of it, is an Escutchion with a manch upon it; which shews however, that it has belongd to som of Whartons.
Nor is it any derogation to them to be buried, since it shews their humility; & beside till of late it was not permitted to Bury in the church no not in the church yard.

[I.573][40]

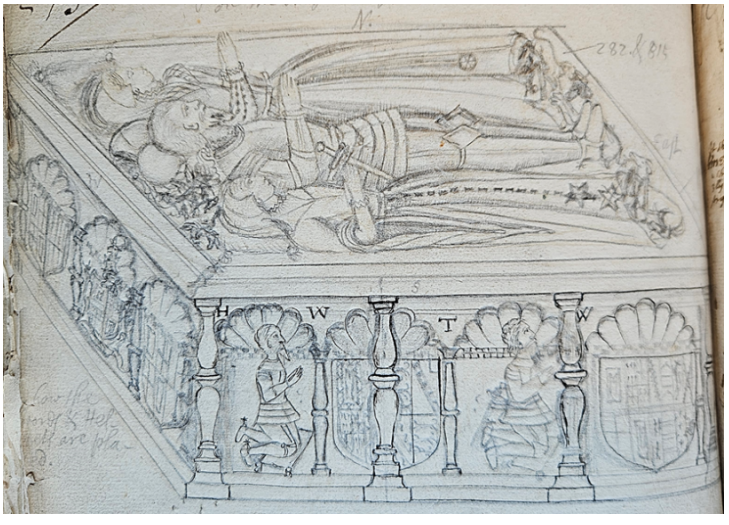

Figure 1.13.3. Wharton Tomb. 'In Wharton Quire which is on the N. side of the chancel. How the swords and helmets are planned.' I.573.[41]

[35] 'Thomas Whartonus jaceo hic, hic utraque conjux; Elionora suum hinc, hinc habet Anna locum. En tibi, terra, tuum, carnes ac ossa resume; In coelos animas, tu Deus alme, tuum.' See N&B1, 540.
[36] Thomas, first Lord Wharton: see N&B1, 540.
[37] Quotation taken from Ovid, Metamorphoses 2.5. The context is a description of the Palace of the Sun, which is made of precious metals, stone, ivory etc.; but when Vulcan engraved an image on the palace doors, 'materiam superabat opus': 'the work transcended the material.'
[38] MS: 'and'.
[39] Written as seen, although perhaps Machell meant 'that I could not take an exact account of it'.
[40] MS.I.572 contains a tiny drawing of a head, similar to the figures on the tomb on the Figure on I.573.
[41] The numbers 282 and 815 appear to the right of the drawing. Note the praying hands, which do not exist today, the arms having disappeared from the elbows down. In 1871, Rev. J.F. Hodgson described the tomb as 'pitifully mutilated', due, he thought, to a 'sudden and violent catastrophe such as the falling of the roof of the chapel', severing all the hands and forearms from the bodies: J.F. Hodgson, 'Kirkby Stephen Church' (read there in 1871), CW1, 4 (1880), 178-249, 206.

[I.574A][42]

In Wharton Quire, which is on the north side
A large Monument \ on / the Table of which (being 2 yards square) are 3 figures: of a man & 2 women at length*. This is supported \ with / VIII Ballisters, one at each corner & two & two on either side, S. & N.[43]

At the west end are 3 Coates of Arms, Sc.
I. Whartons with the Accession of the Bordure Invecked &c. Quartering a Quarterly-Coate, wherein the 1t \ [&] 3 / is 3 Ermins in Bass and 3 Lyons rampant in chief†. The 2 \ & 4 / Quarterly (Gules & Argent) a Bend \ Bendlet or fillet / Or &c. Then Wharton agane in the 3rd Quarter, & the Quarterly Coate \ agane / in the 4th. These (as Whartons \ quarterings /) impale another Coate of 9 quarters: 5/4: Sc.
1. (Azure within a Bordure Ingraled) a Lyon rampant (Or)‡.
2. (Gules within a Bordure ingraled) a Lyon rampant (Or).
3. A Bend sinister, bendy.
4. A quarterly Coate with 3 garbes {Gules, 3 garbes Or} in the 1t quarter?
5. (Gules), a saltier (Argent).
6. In the Lower Row (Argent) a Bend between VI martlets (Gules).

[Machell's Notes: I.574A & I.574]
*Sc. of Thomas the 1t Lord Wharton & his two wifes. About which is writ on the edges thereof begining at the west end: Thomas Whartonus.
†{It should have bin Ermin, in a chiefe Azure; 3 Lyons rampant Argent.}
‡{These are the Armes of Ann his 2nd wife: Sc. Ann the daughter of George Earl of Salop. Note. But they are in the ped[igree] Gules: a Lyon Rampant in bordure Or. Q. if not Bendy of 10 – as at Wharton Hall. fig. 3. This for dignityes sake is placed 1t – allthough the Armes of the 2nd wife – on a rafter at her head where she lyes on his left.}

[I.574]

7. (Or) a Frett (Gules).
8. (Argent) 2 Lyons passant (Gules).
9. (Argent) a Lyon Rampant (Gules).

II.

In the midle of this west-end is Wharton with its Quarterings as before; only differing in this: That here (in the Quarterly Coate which he Quarters) are 4 Ermins: whereas the others had only three. But both are errours \ in the Graver / for the field should be Ermin. This is also adorned with Crist & supporter (as in Bloomes Guillams which may be drawn out at any time)[44] and with the motto, which at Wharton hall appears to be this:

PIEA SVR EN FAYTS DARMYS {or LE SYR &c.}[45]

III.

Wharton with his Quarterings, as before (but with 3 Ermins only in the 1t quarter of the Quarterly Coate) impaling a Coate of 5 Quarters: Sc.
1. Argent. A Lyon Rampant S[able] (which is Stapletons); {The armes [of] Elionor, a 1t wife}; the [42] The text here is written in ink over text in pencil, now obscured.

[43] A second tomb of Wharton and his two wives is to be found in the village church at Healaugh near Selby in Yorkshire, where the manor house also belonged to the Whartons. Sir Thomas Wharton's will ordered his body to be buried at Healaugh but W.F. Hodgson argued that his actual resting place is the tomb in Kirkby Stephen Church, see Hodgson, 'Kirkby Stephen Church', 244-45.
[44] Richard Blome, A Display of Heraldry: manifesting a more easie access to the knowledge thereof than hath been hitherto published by any, through the benefit of method; whereunto it is now reduced by the study and industry of John Guillim, late Pursuivant at Arms. (5th edn. London, 1679).
[45] The motto is, 'PLEASUR EN FAYTS D'ARMYS': Pleasure in feats of Arms: see Edward Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes II (Kendal, 1889), 138.

sec[ond] wife of Wharton;[46] & the rest are the quarterings thereto belonging. {These I take\ are / to be the Lord \ Wharton / & his 2 wifes.[47] They [blank]}
2. Thre[e]-bends.
3. A Chiefe & Saltier.
4. (In the Lower Course) \ Argent / on a fess \ Azure / 3 floredeluces \ Or. /
5. Argent, a Bend, between 6 martlets \ Gules. /

[I.576]

On the S. side – supported with 4 ballisters whereof 2 are at the Corner – are 4 niches, & in the 1[t] an old man with a \ long / picked[48] forked beard in Armour & Sword, being The Lord Wharton kneeling upon a cushion in a praying posture – with his \ fetherd / helmet before him and above it, H.W. at each triangle.
2[d]. Whartons armes as before quartering a quarterly coate, of 3 Lyons Rampand and 3 ~~escallops~~ \ Ermins / in the first; Quarterly, a Bend in the second. The 3[rd] as second: the 4[th] as the first – impaleing a Quarterly Coate of three hounds […][49] courant in the first, a bend in the second: \ with a cant[on] in sinister point / a Bend charged with a crescent in the top between 6 martlets: \ the 3.[50] / The fourth as the first*.
3. An old Knight with a picked beard not so much forked, & a side helmet before him, above which is T.W.†.
4. Wharton (as before) impaleing a quarterly coate of 8.[51] The first being a bend: The second a fess between 2 cheverons: The 3[rd] a Lyon Rampant crowned. The 4[th] a saltier ingraled: The 5[th] 3 fishes: The sixth 3 barrs: The 7[th] powdered floredeluces: the 8[th] an eagle and childe.

The East End[52] hath 3 scalloped niches, over which a S[croll] in which is writ as followeth –

Figure 1.13.4. Wharton Tomb East End: detail. I.576.

GENS Whartona genus. Dat honores dextera victrix
In Scotos. Stapletona domus mihi quam dedit uxor
Elionora facit ter bina prole parentem.
Binam adimunt teneris. Binam iuvenilibus annis.
Fata mihi. Dat nomen avi mihi bina superstes.
Anna secunda uxor celebri est de Gente Salopum.[53]

[46] This phrase is unclear.
[47] This sentence is written very faintly in the margin.
[48] 'Picked': having a sharp point; spiked. OED.
[49] An interlineation here appears to be, 'or nigh', but it is unclear.
[50] 'In the third quarter.'
[51] Machell's no. 4 contains tiny sketches of five of the heraldic symbols mentioned in the passage.
[52] The east end of the tomb in Wharton's Quire.
[53] 'The Wharton family triumphs by its strong right arm against the Scots, and the house of Stapleton gave me my wife Elianor, who brought forth six children; two of them died young, two in youth; two survive me; Ann is my second wife from the famed family of Shropshire.' Quoted in N&B1, 541.

[Machell's Notes: I.576]

*{For Henry Wharton knight who marryed Jane the daughter & heir of Thomas Maleverer of Allerton – says my Pedigree – but makes him younger brother of Thomas Lord Wharton, & son of Thomas the 1ᵗ Lord Wharton.}

†{for Thomas Whartons eldest son (says my Pedigree) of Thomas the 1ᵗ Lord Wharton, by Elionora Stapleton his 1ᵗ wife; who maryed Ann the daughter of Rob. Ratclife of Sussex: Argent a Bend, graled Sable.}

[I.577]

On the north side [of this tomb]

Appear 4 Ballisters to support the great Table stone, one at each corner and 2 in the midle space betwixt them. Here ar 4 niches also and in the 1. a Coate quarterly: The 1ᵗ a fess fusilly. The 2ᵈ 3 Barrs with a Canton in chief point: Third as second: 4ᵗʰ as 1ᵗ {These must be the armes of Will. Pennington, who maried Johanna daughter of Thomas Lord Wharton} impaleing Wharton, quartering a quarterly coate as before. The 1ᵗ\ 3 / Lyons & \ 3 / Ermins*.

2. In the next [niche], a Gentlewoman praying versus orientem (as they are all)[54] with her booke open before her and above, in the triangles,[55] J.P. ~~which seems to be by her dress one of his wifes~~ for Johanna†.

3. In the Third [niche], 1ᵗ Musgrave ~~quartering~~ \ 2ⁿᵈ / a Quarterly Coate of 3 daggers in the first & 3 annulets in the second &c. {?} These must be the Armes of Sir Richard Musgrave, who maryed Agnes the 2ⁿᵈ daughter of Sir Thomas Wharton. Thirdly ~~Mus~~ the same quarterly coate agane; & 4ly a Cross flory impaleing Wharton, quartering the quarterly Coates (as before) of the Lyons & ~~escallops~~ Ermins &c.

4. [niche]. Another lady praying as before, haveing buttons downe her sleves in severall rows (the other haveing lace, and both, ruffs about their hands & necks). And above is A.M., perhaps for Agnes, the daughter of Thomas Lord Wharton‡ 38. Henry VIII [1546-47], married to Ri. Musgrave son of Will.[56]

About the stone on the Edge thereof begining at the west end is writ

{w. side}† THOMAS Whartonus Iaceo HIC. hic utraque conjuns
{s. side} Elionora suum hinc. hinc habet Anna locum
{e. side}[57] En tibi terra tuum. carnes ac ossa. Resume
{n. side} In coelos animas tu deus alme. tuum.[58]

On the Friese of the screne above the Ballasters are several plane manches as at fig. 3.

[Machell's Notes: I.577]

*N.B. A note that in all the Coates the Manch is charged upon a projecting piece invecked which stands higher than the Border.

†{Uxor William Pennington: see my Booke of Pedigrees}.

‡See M Ped[igree], (but the M.\ now / are not le[gible].

[I.580]

Opposite to this, under an Arch in the South wall of the said Quier

Under the Arch Betwixt the Chancel and Hartley quier; said to be Sir Andrew Hartcley, Earle of Carlile. X.[59]

---

[54] 'Facing east, as are they all.'

[55] Instead of writing text, Machell here inserted a triangle symbol.

[56] MS: 'And above is A.M., perhaps for ~~AgNus~~ {A.M. Agnes: the daughter of Thomas Lord Wharton, 38 Henry VIII} married to Ri. Musgrave son of Will.'

[57] In the margin here is a small sketch resembling a bow.

[58] [West side] 'Thomas Wharton here I lie and here my wife' [South side] 'Elianora has her place, as does Anna' [East side] 'See. Earth receive again these flesh and bones' [North side] 'Thou Lord gently receive these souls into thy heavens.' See N&B1, 540.

[59] The 'X' demonstrates disagreement. Both the cross and the passage that follows have been formed by a different hand, a reminder that later antiquaries consulted Machell's MS while it was housed in Carlisle Cathedral library. One possible contender is Bishop Lyttelton (bishop of Carlisle, 1762-68), who, for example, borrowed Machell's MSS Volumes 3, 4 and 6 between 31 July and 15 August, 1764. See CAC(C), DCHA/5/6/1/15. Library Register 1703-1873.

X. Harcla Earl of Carlisle was degraded from his Earldom & Knighthood & afterwards beheaded for High Treason. Tis not likely therefore that his sword would have been represented on his monument, much less his Coat of Armour on his Breast. In Heylins Help to History,[60] we have a coat of arms very different from this ascribed to Andrew Harcla: viz. Argent, a cross Gules with a martlett in a canton Sable.[61]

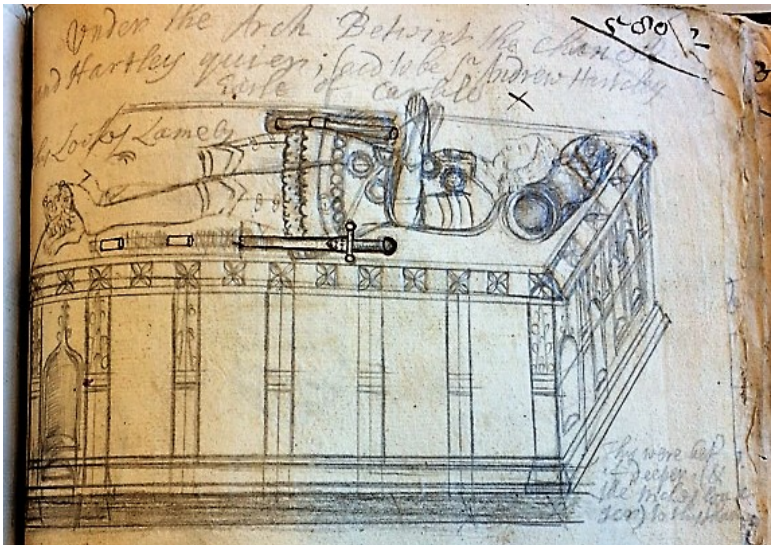

Figure 1.13.5. 'Said to be Sir Andrew Hartcley, Earle of Carlile'. 'X'. I.580.[62]

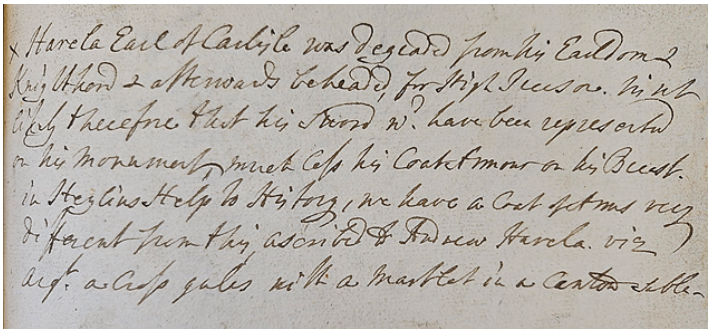

Figure 1.13.6. Example of the hand of a later writer who questioned the provenance of the monument above. I.580.

[60] Peter Heylyn (1599/1600-1662), historian, Anglican polemicist; supporter of Archbishop Laud: Ἡρωολογία Anglorum; or, A help to English history. Containing a succession of all the kings of England, the English, Saxons, and the Britons, the kings and princes of Wales; the kings and lords of Man, and the Isle of Wight. As also, of all the dukes, marquises, earls, and bishops thereof. With the descriptions of the places from whence they had their titles. Together with the names and ranks of the viscounts, barons, and baronets, of England, by Peter Heylyn, D.D. Prebendary of Westminster (1641).

[61] The other hand ceases here. From stylistic evidence, J.F. Hodgson assigned the tomb to Sir Richard Musgrave, d.1469. Traditionally, the occupant had killed the last wild boar on Wild-boar Fell, and, when the tomb was opened during the rebuilding of 1847, the tusk of a wild boar was found. Two bodies had been interred, but only one within a lead lining. Hodgson imagined the unwrapped figure to be Musgrave's wife. See J.F. Hodgson, 'Kirkby Stephen Church', 200-03.

[62] 'X' refers to comments made in pencil, below.

[Machell's Notes: I.580]

This looks lamely.[63]
This were better if deeper (& the niches longer).[64]

[I.582][65]

[Armorial Glass in Kirkby Stephen Church]

[Key]
In the quier
1. East window.
2. South window.
3. On Wharton Skreen.
4. South window in the church.
5. On the Northside the vestry enterance.

Over the steeple doer[66]
1. Clifford Lord of Westmorland.
2. Forsan Craven & Musgrave quarterly.[67]
3. [Blank] of Smardall hall.
4. Musgrave and Ward.
5. Wharton & [blank] for Salop. Perhaps for the 2nd wife but that it [is] a Lyon Rampant within a Bordure.

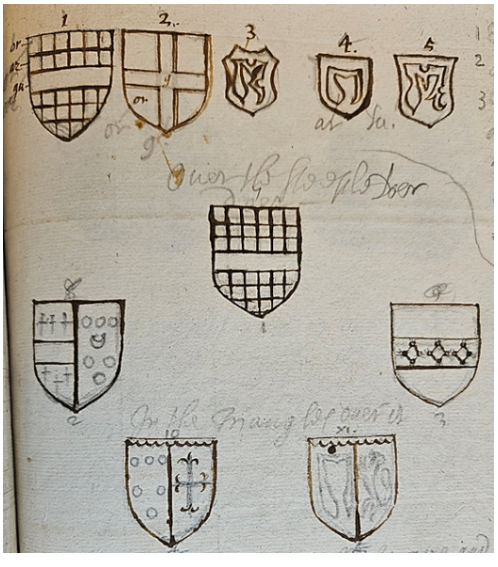

Figure 1.13.7. Armorial Glass in Kirkby Stephen Church. I.582.

[63] Written above Machell's unfinished sketch of the right leg. 'Lamely': 'in a lame manner; with halting steps or limbs; haltingly; imperfectly, defectively, inefficiently.' OED. Did Machell mean that his sketch of the limb was imperfectly drawn, or that the limb itself was defective? Presumably, the former.
[64] Pencilled comment relating to the bottom right of the monument. The last three words [not transcribed] are, 'to this […]'.
[65] MS.I.581 contains a sketch of an unattributed coat of arms (not shown here).
[66] The 'steeple' is the tower.
[67] This is an editorial suggestion, based on almost illegible material.

In the triangles over it[68]
This, by the impaleing of Musgrave and Ward, shows that the steple was built since that match, for about that time, which was in the Reigne of Henry 7.; or more likely in Henry the VIII time at the desolution of the Abbyes: And these gentlemen whos Armes are here placed were the builders or chiefe Benefactors to it.

_____

[III.221]

[3.] {Market}!

Kirkby Stephan with the manner affordes a market towne & the most considerable buildings It is a market towne by Grant &c. and conteineth in it [blank] families.

[I.569]

Roger (2 son of Robert de Clifford, Lord of the Honor of Ableby, who allso came to the same dignity after the decease of his Brother Lord Robert Clifford) in his Brothers life time, obteined of King Edward 3., 2 weekly marketts & 2 fares for the Town of Kirkby Stephan.[69]

[III.180][70]

The market (they say) was on Fridayes at Kirkby, till changed in Queen Elizabeths time to Monday.

[III.190]

Munday Market; Fair: Whitsunday & Luke.[71] A fair 2 dayes afore St Luke; another on St Luke; another every Whitsun Wednesday & Thorsday.[72] And for Thorsday, two dayes till St Luke. & generilly beasts all the year.[73]

[IV.537]

{Ad Kirkeby Stephen ad Reg. de Wederhal}[74]
{Anno Reg Regis Ed. XX^{0}. anno gre. 1291}Hugone de [blank] Cressingham clro Will. de Ormesby et alijs justiciarij Itinerantibus.}[75]

{Fol. 121 b.}
The Abbat of St Maryes Yorke was summond to answer to our Lord the King in a Quo warra[n]to habere clamat mercatum in Kirkby Stephan sine Licentia et voluntate D[omi]ni Regis et progenitorum suoru[m] Regum Anglie etc.[76] And the Abbat came by his attorney & sayd that he did not clame to have any mercat in the said village. And Thomas de Culwenne & the rest of Jury upon Enq[uiry], found for the Abbat: That he did \ never / not hold any mercat there nor receive any profit by the said marcat. Ideo q[uo]ad hoc ad p[re]sens inde sine die etc.[77]
But this action I suppose was wrong, laid upon a mistake of \ Kirkby Stephan for / Kirkby Lonesdale; where he held a marcat and cast the king in it at the same Assise, as may be seen in K. Loansd.
N.B. Here note the Assises were then after Michaelmas; I suppose because, being a leisure time & after the corn & hay was in, the people might better attend the judges at the generall session of Assise.

[68] See nos 4 and 5 above, Steeple Door.
[69] This is recorded in N&B1, 544; a footnote gives 'Dugdale MS' as the source.
[70] Material taken from a page of rough notes in Machell's Vol. III.
[71] St Luke's Day is 18 October.
[72] MS: 'Weds. Another every Whitsun Wednesday & Thorsday.'
[73] N&BI, 544, provides a clearer picture: 'And King James the first, by his charter [10 March, 3rd year of his reign] granted to George Earl of Cumberland (instead of the aforesaid market and fairs) one market on Monday in every week, and two fairs yearly: one on the Wednesday, Thursday and Friday after Whitsuntide, and the other on two days next before the feast of St Luke and on that feast day.'
[74] See Prescott (ed.), The Register of the Priory of Wetherhal.
[75] 'In the 20th year of the reign of Edward […] in the Gregorian year 1291, Hugh de Cressingha[m] being chancellor with de Ormesby and other circuit justices.' (Edward I reigned from 1272 to 1307).
[76] 'By what authority he claimed to hold a market in Kirby Stephem without a licence and at the will of the Lord King and his forefathers the Kings of England etc.'
[77] 'Therefore, this matter [was adjourned] thence for the moment, with no fixed date for resumption.'

[4.] Kirkby Stephen School

[III.179]

! A free school at Kirkby. Mr Rawlet late minister writ several books?[78]

[III.198]

Concerning Kirkby Stephen School 1676
Westmorland. Kirkby Stephens & Parish
These and the notes of Apleby school to be restored to T. Machell fellow of Queens College in Oxford.[79]

[III.195]

The Free Grammar School of Kirkby Stephen[80]
Founded by Thomas Lord Wharton Barron of Wharton the County of Westmerland as appears by the Letters Pattents made the 22th day of November in the eight yeare of Queene Elizabeth [1565]; by which letters pattent she gives power to the said Thomas Lord Wharton to settle the said schoole out of his Rectorey and impropriation of the parish of Kirkby Stephen; and the revenues of the said schoole to be 26li 6s 8d.,[81] paid, but the same to be sett and paid by the said Thomas Lord Wharton as he shall thinke fit to nominate and appoint as also to make fit and wholesome Statutes and Constitutons for the said Schoole as may be thought fit by the bishope of the diocese of Carlile.

And afterwards the said Thomas Lord Wharton vizt in the tenth year of the said Queene [1567-68] makes Constitutons and Statutes for the said schoole and appoints 12li in the \ yeare / to be paid yearely out of the said Rectory at Whitsontyd and Martinmas by eaquell porthens to the Schoolmaster for his wages and power to appoint and make choyce of one of his schollers for an Usher who shall have xxvjs viijd and paid him out of the said rectory and 6li 6s 8d a yeare to the poore of the Parish and Towne of Kirkby Stephen aforesaid and for repaier of the schoole and 6li 6s 8d to two schollers of the said schoole as exebitions to mentaine them at eather universetey of this Land. Two said schollers first to be chosen out of sutch schollars as are or was borne of the Lord Whartons lands and for want of sutch schollars then to two of the said schoole to be chosen by the Lord Wharton or the schoolmaster for the time being and no schollars to have the said Exhibition above the space of seven years*; nor aney Usher to continue above the space of the \ said / yeares.
But of late yeares things have been otherwise ordered and the former Constitutions not regarded but 20li a yeare paid to the Schoole master and nothing to the poore of the said parish or towne nor aney thing paid to aney schollars as an Exhibition at eather Universetey so that there hath beene for many yeares 6li 6s 8d paid detained by the now Lord Wharton and is at this day contrary to the letters pattent aforesaid for the letters patent settles 26li 6s 8d to be paid to the use of the School master and the poore of the parish and repayer of the School-house and no otherwise; and this to be paid to the Governors of the said Schoole and they to pay the same to the Schoole master and poore as sett downe by the said Lord Wharton in his Constitutions.

Scholmasters
The first was one Mr Edward Minyes borne at Castlehill neare Eadenbrough in Scottland who fled hether in the time of Edward the sixt for his religion, being then of the Reformation as appears by a writing I have by me, he being my great grandfather by my mother.
After him one Mr Hinth, but for the rest I finde nothing of them till 1622 that Mr Richard Barlow was elected School master.
Jan.1t 1629 Mr William Shaw elected.

---

[78] N&B1, 538: 'In 1673, John Rawlet, M.A. was instituted [to Kirkby Stephen parish] on a presentation by the same patron [Philip Lord Wharton]. This Mr Rawlet was author of a volume of divine poems; and of a book yet well known by the name of The Christian Monitor. His character as a most exemplary pious and good man remaineth to this day.' He was vicar from 1673 to 1680. CCED.
[79] Only the last sentence of this passage is in Machell's hand.
[80] 'A History of Kirkby Stephen Free Grammar School', written in 1676 using original documents and sent to Machell at Queen's College, Oxford, by George Fothergill, 'Clerk of the Peace of the County of Westmorland'.
[81] See N&B1, 542.

June the 28th 1630. Mr William Morland elected.
December 17th 1633. Mr William Williss elected who contained till the yeare 1674.
Now Mr Samuel Shaw who was elected 1675.[82]
I find little to be reported of any of them while School masters; onley the first eminent for knowledge in the Grammer and that he had great store of gentlemens sons his schollers out of Westmerland and the adjacent countreye whereof he tabled at least xx in his owne house.

Governors†
Sir Philip Musgrave of Hartley Castle, Baronett; Richard Musgrave Esq., his heire apparent; John Rawlett, now vicar of Kirkby Stephen;[83] Christopher Harrison, Vicar of Brough;[84] John Ardra, Rector of Musgrave; [85] Thomas Denton, Rector of Crosby Garret;[86] Robert Skaif of Winton, Gent.; and George Fothergill of Tarn-house, Gentleman.
No libraryes nor manuscripts belonging to the said Schoole, nor neare adjoyning that's publiq.[87]

This account I had from Mr George Fothergill clerk of the peace for the county of Westmorland. Turn over.[88]

[Machell's Notes: III.195]

*{exhibition for 7 years.}[89]
†{Alter the order.}

[III.197]

An Exhibition granted by Mr John Knewstubb[90] for two schollers in the Colledge of St John the Evangelest in Cambridge; [deed] dated the 7th of October 1623, betweene the said John Knewstubb of Cockfeild and John Garden of Mayland in Essex of the one p[ar]tie and the Master, Fellows and Schollers of the said Colledge on the other p[ar]tie; they give to the said Colledge an annuity of eleaven pounds yearely to be payed forth of certaine lands called Squires, Squeers or Squers in the parish and feilds of South Minster and Steeple in Essex, to be disposed on as followeth: twenty shillings yearely to the Colledge & 10li for the Exhibition of two poore Schollers commonly called Subsissers,[91] to either of them 5li; the one a Scholler borne and brought up in the parish of Kirkby Stephen and of Mr Knewstubbs name and kindred, next, of kindred only; and for lack of such, any other that hath beene of one whole yeare in the Schoole of Kirkby Stephen and for lack of such, any other to be taken forth of the Schoole of Appleby, the nomination of which scholler to be allwayes by the Vicar and Schoolmaster of Kirkby Stephen for the time being, in a letter subscribed with both their hands and sent to the Master and Felowes of the said Colledge and the said 5li to be paid yearely till the said Schollers be of the time and standing to take the degree of Master of Arts and shall be capeable or have for their better maintenance any Schollership in the said Colledge […][92] And the [82] According to CCED, Samuel Shaw was vicar of Kirkby Stephen from 1681 until his death in 1700. Another schoolmaster not mentioned by Fothergill was Robert Bulfield or Burfell, who was master from 1673-75, after which he became a schoolmaster in Carlisle. CCED.

[83] Vicar, 1673-81.
[84] Christopher Harrison was vicar of Brough, 1664-95.
[85] John Ardrey was rector of Musgrave, 1671-84. CCED.
[86] Thomas Denton was rector of Crosby Garrett, 1663-91. CCED.
[87] The style adopted suggests a response to Machell's questionnaire.
[88] This sentence is written in Machell's hand.
[89] The margin comment is in Machell's hand.
[90] N&B1: 'This John Knewstubb was born at Kirkby Stephen, fellow of St John's College [Cambridge] and rector of Cockfield, where he died in the year next after establishing these exhibitions.' Nicolson and Burn go on to list Knewstubb's publications and monumental inscription, N&BI, 543.
[91] 'Subsizers' or 'subsizars': At Cambridge University, this was an undergraduate receiving financial assistance from their college. Some colleges, including St John's, Trinity, and Emmanuel, distinguished between sizars and subsizars. Subsizars were not entitled to specific endowments, but were maintained by Fellow-Commoners and Fellows. Originally the subsizar was required to perform various domestic services within the college. The category eventually fell out of use, although not before the middle of the 20th century. OED.
[92] Here, some scored-through text (3cm) is illegible.

other 5[li] to a Scholler borne in the Parish of Cockfeild in Suffolk or else such of the Schoole of Sudbury, or else in Bury in the said Countey[93] with the like conditions for his kindred.[94]

[Machell's Notes: III.197]

{Exhibition 5[li] till 7 yrs.}[95]

[5. Kirkby Stephen Parish]

[I.496]

To Kirkby Stephen Church belong Kirkby Stephen. Hartley, Keyber,[96] and the Outsides: Mallerstang, Smardale, Souleby, Wateby, Wharton, Winton.

[I.568][97]

[A. Value.]

Winton anno 8 Ed.2. [1314-1315]

Est Ibidem unum Capitale messuagium &c.
There is there one manner house downe 19. Ed. 3.[98] worth per Annum	0: 1: 0
xxv Acres of Demane land, worth 6d per Acres Annual, S.e,[99]	2:10: 0
xx Acres of Demane me\a/dow, each worth per Annum 1s, su est	1: 0: 0
Hee (Sc. Robert de Clifford) hath allso there Foreland and wast which is worth by the yere	0: 5: 0
There allso free Tenents which pay per Annum	0: 6: 4 {ob q[a])
xxviij oxgangs of Land quor quod lib valet per Annum 5s, S.e	7: 0: 0 {7li}[100]
x messuages cotterall quor quod lib valet per Annum 1s, e.s.	0:10: 0
2 water Milne Burnt, quod valet per Annum	4: 0: 0
Ex Inq[uisition] Cap apud Apleby anno superdicto summa	xv[li], xij, 4d – ob q[a]
Vid Apleby

{8. Ed. 2. [1314-15]}

There is there One Messuage Capital or Mannor house which is worth per Annum	0: 1: 0

19. Ed. 3.

70 Acres (19.Ed. III) of Demane Land att 4d per Acre; valet per Annum	0:16: 8 {ac. 67}[101]
2 acres & ½ of medow quarum quelibet Acra,[102] valet per Annum 16d, sum est	0: 3: 4 {idem}[103]
A certaine marish[104] held by Henry de Warthecop quod valet per Annum	0: 8: 0
{pasture called Kirkbycorne} 36 oxgangs of Land quarum quelibet

[93] Bury St Edmunds.
[94] The contents of III.197 were copied almost verbatim by N&B; see text and acknowledgement in N&B1, 543: 'From an account in Mr Machell's collection, in the handwriting of Mr George Fothergill of Tarn-house, who was then one of the governors of the school.'
[95] Note in Machell's hand.
[96] Kaber.
[97] Also numbered p.22.
[98] 1345-46.
[99] 'Suum est.'
[100] The 0 in the shilling column has been heavily drawn to cover a numeral beneath, now illegible.
[101] 67 acres in the time of Edward III.
[102] 'Of which each is worth.'
[103] 'The same.'
[104] Marsh.

valet per Annum [blank] & sum est	9: 0: 0 {32}
x Messuages Coterellorum,[105] each worth per Annum 1s, et sum est	0:10: 0 {40 cott.}
1 water milne, et valet per Annum vi^{li}	6: 0: 0 {20s}

[Mallerstang] {Pendragon} {8. Ed. 2.}[1314-1315]

Allso there is there in the Vale of Mallerstang
One castle which is called Pendraggon ~~worth per Annum~~
1 vaccary, held by Andrew de Hartlay[106] & red[it][107] per Annum	0: 0: 6
6 vaccaryes more, which are worth per Annum 20s a piece, & sum est	6: 0: 0
Allso Joyst[108] there, is yerely worth 6^{li}	6: 0: 0
1 Turbarie ibidem. valet per Annum 6s 8d	0: 6: 8
Allso the pleas & perquisites of the Court amount yerely to	0:13: 3
Note Here Pendragon & Kirkby Stephen: sum est	xxix^{li}. xix$^{s.}$ vj^{d}.

(0[109] both under one [blank] But whether this be the whole or ½ dub
Ex eodem escheato {1. Ed. 3.}[110]

[III.222]

[B. Division.]

Constablewicks	Chaples	Gentlemens Houses
Mallerstang	Chaple	Pendraggon
Wharton & Neatby[111]	Wharton Hall	Wharton Hall
Kirkby Stephen	Church
Hartley	Castle	Castle
Soulby	0	0
Smardale	0	Hall
Wateby	A school
Winton	A school shut	Scaife
Keyber & the outsides	0	0
Q. Rookeby	0	0

[III.181]

[C.] The Bounder*

West-pit House to Water-Houses exclusively 10. It is bounded on the N. with Musgrave \ & part of Brough / parishes; on the East, with the remainder of Brough in Westm'land / ~~Ruma Kirk~~ & Bowes parish[112] in Yorkeshire; and on the S. with Grinton & Aiskar[113] parishes in the said county;[114] on the West with Gastil in the said County;[115] and Russendale & Crosby parishes in Westmorland, the Perambulation of which goeth thus:

Perambulation

[105] Cottars' houses.
[106] A blot covers the last letter.
[107] The return per annum.
[108] Agistment.
[109] The 0 is followed by a blot.
[110] 'From the same escheat.' Escheat: document relating to the lapsing of land to the Crown or to the lord of the manor, on the death of the owner intestate without heirs. OED.
[111] Nateby.
[112] MS: 'parish~~es~~'.
[113] Aysgarth.
[114] Marginalia here are partly obscured by the binding.
[115] Garsdale.

Begin at the foote of the river Below[116] where it enters Eden near to ~~Mr~~ Blands House, which is in Little Musgrave & a ¼ of a mile above the church. Thence \ E. / up the river till you com at the head of Heaning Wood[117] where Brough parish coms in {all the while divideing it from Musgrave parish}. \ Thence up the said river / till you com at the foote (of that water which runns under Buckle Bridge†.)[118] Thence S. up the said water till you com at Woofa Gill-head‡ where Potter-beck comes into it. Thence E. ~~till you~~ up Potter-beck till you \ com / at the foote of the hill calld Moulds by the said water. Thence S.E. to the top of the said hill, & so on by the coale-way to Westland Pit House, commonly calld the Hither Pit House, where Brough & Bowes & Grinton parish meet[119] (all this wile divideing it from Brough) {& thence S.} up then [blank]⸸.
Thence westward in a direct line to Browneber-Edge‖. \ And so / ~~thence~~ lineally to the \ the midle of the / Nine Standers on Caudber Edge;[120] thence S. on Caudber Edge till you com at \ an hurrock voc[atur][121] / Caudber ~~Standers~~ Standerd; thence W. down Lady Dike till you com at Lady Bog; & so on in a streight line to \ an hurrock of stones calld / Hollow-mill cross.

[Machell's Notes: III.181]

*Kirkby Stephen. Will. Bernard – a bo[u]nder-man.
†Called?[122]
‡{Query, as writ of Will. Shat.}[123]
⸸{Enquire of Robert Moss of Hĭggerscale.}[124]
‖Here Swadal clames to Brownbur Edge \ as Hewdal / and Winton clames to Wittsundale head, which is ½ a mile one into another.

[III.182][125]

(a.) Thence agane W. to a gray stone at a place calld Fells End; \ thence S. to Uldal gill head; / thence agane W. to an hurrock of stones on the top of Fells End; thence S. on Mallerstang Edge as heavens water divide to the top High Seat. This Swalldal clame.
(b.) Thence S. lineally from Uldal Gill head to High Seat Top. Thence as heaven water divides, to Hugh Morvils* Seat.Thence S. to a standard ½ a mile of; where Grinton \ Aiskar / & Kirkby parish \ meet / – all this while divideing it[126] \ from the said / Grinton ~~parish in~~ \ in the county of / Yorkeshire. Thence from the said Standard, lineall[y] descending \ W./ to Lile Helgil head (~~where Eden springs~~). Thence W. in a streight l[ine] to a stander of stones at the South end of ~~Litle Baughil~~ \ Swarth Fell / where Aiskar & Gastil \ & Russendale / meet (on ~~Baughel~~ \ Swarth Fell / Edge.) / Thence[127] to a place called Galloway-gate \ ~~where Gastil & Russendale meet~~. / Thence N.W. (by a streight line) to the S.

[116] River Belah.
[117] MS: 'Thence \ E. / up the river till you \ com / [3cm crossed through: illeg.] ~~and so up the water~~' at the head of Heaning Wood'. Haining Wood, see Smith, Place-Names 2, 61.
[118] In 1594, Sir Cuthbert Buckle, Lord Mayor of London and a native of Stainmore, left £20, 'to mending of highways between Mayden Castle and Bayllye Bridge.' This is the low road from Stainmore to Kaber and Belah Bridge. Buckle's Bridge is probably now called Oxenthwaite Bridge: Westmorland Place-Names.
[119] MS: 'where Bro ~~then directly~~ ugh & Bowes & Grinton parish meet'.
[120] The nine standards (standers) are a set of boundary markers on a hill (Nine Standards Rigg on Hartley Fell) between Winton and Hartley. Smith, Place-Names 2, 29.
[121] 'called.'
[122] Here, there is an unclear margin comment, 'Lo[r]d Ten[emen]t there'.
[123] Woofergill is on Stainmore, close to the river Belah, near High Ewebank: Smith, Place-Names 2, 60; OS Ref. NY 85349 09433.
[124] 'Heggerscale', Smith, Place-Names 2, 5.
[125] Machell used inverted commas to surround this text from the page top down to the place named as 'Dowfin Stye'. From this point, the text (except the last two lines marked (d.)) is scored through. This edition's transcription disregards all scoring-through here. The letters (a.), (b.), (d.), and the inverted commas, suggest that Machell was copying text written by his informants.
[126] Dividing the boundary.
[127] The direction (N.S.E or W.) is covered by a blot.

end of Wilbright Fell.[128] Thence (by the \ N. West / edge of the said fell) to an upping stone†[129] calld the Countiss-Mount \ on the nab / at the E. end of Wilbert-Fell†.[130]
[c.] Thence N. (over the edge of the said fell) to Whitewalls. Thence agane N. (by a streight line) to Dowfin Stye. Thence again \ N. / (lineally descending) to ~~Coalgill~~ \ Langil / -head. Thence N. down the old Cartway till you com at Tarnmire hole near Tarnhouse. Thence W. (~~by~~ down the Tarnmire Sike) to the till runs.
Thence N.W. (in a direct line) to Scandal Beck head, Thence agane N.W. down Scandal beck from the [blank].[131]
(d.) From S[ou]th Runnkeld N. in right line to the Build {a shield for sheep} on Astfell[132] Edge: Thence N.W. as heavenwater divides, to

[Machell's Notes: III.182]
*{Calld?} {H. was to finde out a hill out of which 3 rivers sprang – for his pen[ance]. & so sat down there. T.}[133]
†{These marks are right.}[134]
{Q. if Will Wallers of Stanemore at Swinstaywath has found an image of stone lately there.}

[III.189]

a little Hillock or Hurrock of stones called Hound-Tuft: thence N.W. (on the edge of Astfel) to Russendale High-parke-gate. Thence W. to Gerrards-cross in the parke wall. Thence W. (by the parke wall) to Smardale bridge where Ravenstondale Parish & Crosby Gerard meet. Thence down the river to ~~Soulby~~ \ Crosby/ miln*. Thence ~~west by the way~~ \ N.E. to Soulby mill / by the way down the said river† – & thence W. to Waterhouses[135] by the outring of Soulby Cow pasture til you com at Gallansy Yeat& so up the Lonen stil westward till you com at Waterhouses \ were Asbby parish coms in. / Thence N.W. to ~~Oglebrow~~ \ Ugly Brow,[136] / all along down Waterhouse beck till you com at Uglybrow where Musgrave parish comes in.
Thence N. to High-Hobkins house by Graskill Closes hedge & to Graskil House (belonging to Will. Robinson); thence N. by a streight line to Great Howgill Sike at the place where Apleby way crosses. Thence N. (down the said sike) to Low Hobkins house.[137] Thence \ N. / by ~~a streight line~~ the outside \ ring / of Low Hobkins grounds to a place called Dubber Dike, where a sike runneth out of this Parish. Thence N. (to the W. corner of) Musgrave Intack. Thence N. (by the ring dike of Musgrave Intak)[138] till you com at Sandrig Sike; then N.E. (by the same dike) till you com at the low end of Long Selmer, where that dike ends.
{Thence S.W. down Langil to Slapewath, Scandal beck; thence W. (down the said water) to Scandal-brig: Thence [by] Birkby Way to Terne-we\a/tho\a/ld: Thence S. ~~down the~~ (by a streight line) to the [128] Wild Boar Fell. Known also as Wilbrichfell; Wilberfell; Willbor-fell.

[129] Upping-stone: a horse-block, a mounting-stone. OED.
[130] Just below the summit of Hugh Seat are the remains of a stone pillar (the Lady's Pillar), inscribed with the characters, 'AP 1664': Anne Pembroke (Countess of Pembroke).
[131] This paragraph is scored through and placed within a rectangular box drawn strongly in ink.
[132] Ashfell.
[133] Hugh Seat is named after Sir Hugh de Morville, one of the four knights who murdered Thomas Beckett in Canterbury Catherdral in 1170. Sir Hugh, as Lord of Westmorland, was also the lord of the manor of Mallerstang. Hugh Seat is situated just above the source of the River Eden.
[134] Here the inverted commas end and the scoring-through begins, continuing to the page foot.
[135] MS: '~~Thence W. by the way \ N.E. to Soulby mill / down the said river~~ & thence W. to Waterhouses'.
[136] 'Ugly', from Old Norse 'uglu': owls.
[137] MS: 'Thence N. \ ~~up~~ / to ~~an house called~~ High-Hobkins House ~~by~~ by Graskill Closes hedge to ~~Apleby gate & so~~ to Graskil House (belonging to Will. Robinson); thence N. to ~~Low Hobkins house~~ by a streight line. ~~Thence N. down the sike~~ to Low Hobkins house.'
[138] A margin comment is obscured by the binding here.

Watersmoote[139] at Ingfoot Close, which belongs to Tern House; thence N. up the said water to Southaning Keld from whence it springs.}[140]

Thence \ S. / (by an hedge) to the N. corner of Hard Dales dike; thence N.E. by another dike to a mossy pasture called Sods.[141] Thence E. (by Noble dale Hedge) to Blands Yate. Thence E. by the out Hedge of Blands pasture to Eden. Thence N. down Eden to the foot of Below,[142] where we began.

[Machell's Notes; III.189 and III.194]

*{??} {w. Len. Wharton}[143]
†{~~Query of John Barnes of Soulby Arch~~[…][144] ~~Franke, John Harrison~~}
[III.194}! Query. William Waller of Swinesty near Brough for the bounds and an image of stone.
Query for Kirkby Stephan bound[er] at Soulby: of John Harrison or John Barnes, & do Winton fre[s]h!

[D. Hills, Fells and Pikes]

[III.180]

[Crocklam Castle][145]
On the N. side of the church, Crocklam Castle (a round hill) plane on the top, being about 1 acre of ground now held in tenancy under Apleby Castle. Tis ½ a mile S. by S. from the church.

[III.183]

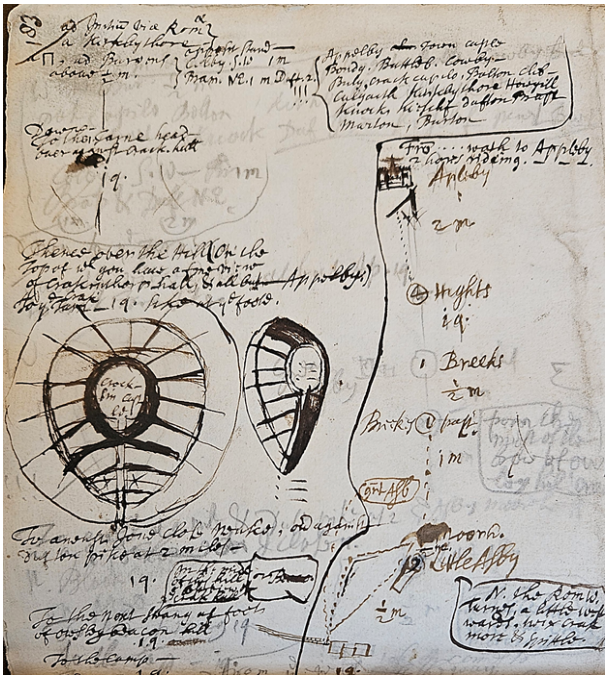

Figure 1.13.8. Crocklem Castle and the Roman Way. III.183.

[139] The beginning of this word is obscured by the binding.
[140] Machell placed this paragraph (another section of the bounder) in the margin here, though it is not obviously linked with the body text. As some of it is obscured, the transcription is not entirely secure.
[141] In the margin: 'to Sodds'.
[142] River Belah.
[143] Witness.
[144] The rest of the name is illegible.
[145] Croglam, Croklam or Croklenn Castle: earthwork with a circular embankment; see Smith, Place-Names 2, 9.

[III.188]

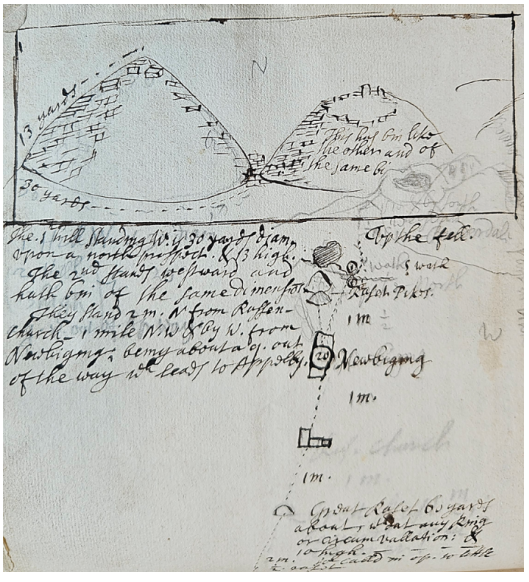

Figure 1.13.9. Fells and route map: Fells south and south-west from Rayseat. Wildboarfell, Bouderdale, Newbiggin, Great Raise. III.188.

The 1[t] hill standing W. is 30 yards diameter upon a north prospect & 13 [yards] high. The 2[nd] stands westward & hath bin of the same dimension. They stand 2 miles N from Russen[dale] Church,[146] 1m. N.W & by W. from Newbiging; being about a q[uarter] out of the way which leads to Appelby.

Up the fell

|

? wath

|

Raset Pikes

|

1 mile

|

20. Newbiging

|

1 mile

|

Russendale Church

|

1 mile

|

Great Raset 60 yard about without any ring or circumvallation; & 10 high – so called in opposition to Little Raset

|

2m ½

|

Kirkby Stephen

[146] Ravenstonedale Church.

A Prospect of the fells S. & S. West from Rasett[147]

Wilborefell; Weesdale[148] S.W. & by S.; Bowderdal S.W.

Figure 1.13.10. Wilborefell, A Prospect of the fell S. & S. West from Rasett Pikes. III.188.

[I.569]

When Wildbore Fell has \ got / a cap
Westmorland \ will have / a swat.[149]

Spoke concerneing a Cap of mist arriseing upon the top of the said mountaine, which by observation, betokens raine.

[III.179]

When Wilber Fell has a Cap –
Kirkby Stephan bewar of a Clap – Sc. wett

They observe here when Mallerstang Force yells upwards it will be raine – when down the river, fair – when in the midle, a breack or alteration of weather. Obser[ve]d at Wharton.

[III.190]

[6. Lordships]

In this parish are 7 or 8 [Lordships]

A. Kirkby Stephan

which has 2 Lords, keep 2 Courtes, both Leet & Barron, severally, so that it may be called 2 Lordships by decentabant,[150] Sc. Lord Thanet & Lord Wharton. And Sir Christopher Musgrave has some tenants there who answer at Hartley. To Lord Wharton, 2 freeholds: William Marshall & Franc[is] Blenkinsop. It is said that Marshall has privilege of wood in Flake[brigg], & deer in Whin[fell], & to keep a cuple of hounds.

[147] Rayseat.
[148] Weasdale.
[149] MS: 'Westmorland ~~beware of~~ \ will have / a swat.' 'Swat' is a Northern dialect name for 'a heavy fall'. OED.
[150] 'Suitably be called.'

B. Hartley

[Notes]
S.E. [ab Ecclesia] ¾. Freeholds, none. Tenants 8[d] fine purchased W. About 26.
{And de Harclay[151] tenuit H[artley] et Smardale, 8. Edward 2. [1314-15.]}
Helgilhow from Hartley E. ¼ mile II; Coate Garth, 2 single house N.E. 1 mile; Castle Demaine parke with deer; Court Baron; bounds.{Read freestone, coale, limestone.}[152]{Millstones.}

[Machell's Notes: III.190 & III.180]
Only speckled marble: query.
Houses in Kirkby. Waif & stray, Lord Thanet. Kirkby house to Lord Thanet.
[III.180] Kirkby [Additional Notes]
{There is many familyes – about 160.}
There is one Marshal a freehold[er] who has a grant from my Lord Thanets ancestours, which I would see {Q.?}
{Here was a capital messuage or manner house: 12. Edward 1. [1283-84] III V.5}
The Musgraves has but about 6 tenements exchanged for. One Ledells Tenement under purchased free[hold] of Sir Thomas Wharton in the ill times of Sir P. Musgrave.[153]
Lord Thanet: halfe the towne, a Court Baron customary \ XXIV. /
Lord Wharton: the remainder, a Court Leete, XVIII \ purchased by indenture to a 10d. fine. /
Memorandum: to enquire if they h[ear]d Lord Whartons tenants were ever free, by being [tenants of] Church lands, from answering in any other courts in the county.
Query of a religious house at Tinklar Hill, where tis sayd a market or general meteing of chapmen was formerly kept. T.?
Query of Bench – in my com pli of W.[154]

[III.233]

[Hartley Castle]

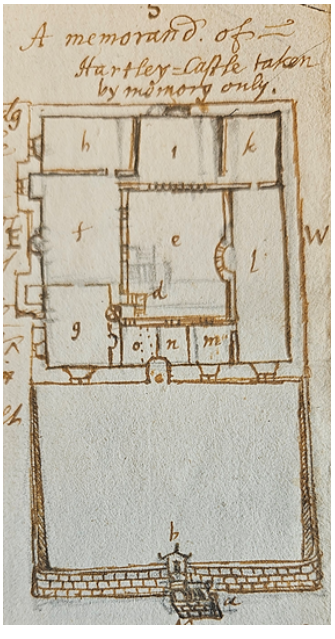

Figure 1.13.11. 'A Memorandum of Hartley Castle'. III.223.

[151] This phrase is written in tiny script, making its transcription unsafe.
[152] The rest of the phrase is obscured by the binding.
[153] See Machell's description of the fortunes of Sir Philip Musgrave during the Civil War and Cromwell's Protectorate on I.590, below. See also A. Marshall, 'Musgrave, Sir Philip, second baronet (1607-1678), royalist army officer and local politician'. ODNB.
[154] Written as seen.

A memorandum of Hartley-Castle taken by memory only.
a. The Enterance into the outer Court up by a Stair.
b. The Outer Court
c. The Enterance through an Arched Porch into an Inner Court or Quadrangle
d. The Stair (with Ballasters up to the Hall)
e. The Inner Court or Q.
f. The Hall, under which: g. The Buttery. The Kitchen marked g. Celler's &c.
h. The Chappel.
i. The Dineing Roome.
k. The withdrawing R.
l. The Gallery
m. n. o. Lod[g]ing Roomes.

{An august building}
Hartley Castle is a noble old building upon the edge of a fell and overlookeing the village of Hartley, the town of Kirkby Stephan and many other \ countrey / villages; with fair fields & meadows which lye thereabouts. And on the back side is Hartley-Parke, well replenished with dear, which extends itselfe up unto the fells which are exceeding \ rich / in lead mines, but it lies more frequently in bellyes than veines, which makes it more difficult to be discovered.[155]

[I.586]

Harclay Castle was the seat of the Hardclayes.

Michael de Hardclay. 6. or 9. of King John [1204, 1208]	}	Clifford
John de Hardclay. 13. of King John [1211-1212]	}
Michael de Hardclay, knight. Temp. Henry 3. [1216-1272]	} obsev'd è Cartis per T.M. vel Machell	Machell[156]
Michael de Hardclay. 22. Henry 3. [1237-1238]	}
Michael de Hardclay. 14. Edward 1. [1285-1286]	}	Blenkinsop

[I.584]

Nest of Howles as it were hatching
These stones were digged up out of the Lead mines in the Lordship of Hartley, with several of the same sort. In the upper part they very much resemble howles, both in the shape [and] colour, but the ground work is a contexture of Bright Spangling Long Stones some like Cristall, but some more dull with intermixture of yellow. Iam penes sunt Dominus Philip Musgrave apud Edenall in Cumberland ubi ipse vidi.[157] Here, nature has framed an \ ingenious / emblem how to get Riches; namely by Learning; for the Noctua, the Howle or Night-Bird sitting upon these pieces of spar, seemes to hatch Lead, and a wholly Belly of it was found in the place where these stones were taken.[158]

[155] See John F. Curwen, The Castles and Fortified Towers of Cumberland, Westmorland, and Lancashire North of the Sands, CWAAS Extra Series 13 (Kendal, 1913), 207-08.
[156] Observed by Thomas Machell in charters relating to either Clifford, Machell or Blenkinsop.
[157] 'These have long been in the custody of Sir Philip Musgrave at Edenhall in Cumberland, where I myself have seen them.'
[158] See Robert Plot, The Natural History of Oxford-shire: being an essay towards the natural history of England (1677). 'Plate 3. Stones relating to Air, or to the Watery Kingdom, no.7: an owl's head shape seen in flint.'

Figure 1.13.12. Stone 'howles'. Pencil and ink drawing. I.584.

[I.569B]

March 28 1694

1 – A stone of the colour and like of scales of a Tortoise – long – 8 – inches, broad 6 in ½; in weight [Blank] found on Hartley fell in the hollow parts around glistering seames.

2 – A strange Stags horne, curled like rock-worke & in the velvet head, as appeard by som pieces of skin plucked of, thick at the riseing of the brow antler xi inches in circumference high, following the process of bending – 26 inch onely – the brow Ankler branched out 6½ inch and was in circumference 9 inch & ½ and almost as thick at the end – thick above the branch of the brow ankler, xi inch in circumference The up[per] Ankler branchd 5 inch and in circumf. ix. thick above said Ankler x [inches], & about 9 under the Top Branch – where a point is cut of. Found about Wharton Hall – & now in cust[ody] of Dr. T[illars].

[Machell's Notes: I.569A] [159]

The horne & stone at Dr Tillars: The first – got of a man at Neatby. the 2 – at Hartley Fell.

[I.569C]

Figure 1.13.13. 'Stone like a tortoise; strange stags horn'. I.569C.

[159] Scrap page measuring 16cm x 21cm.

[III.190]

C. Mallerstang[160]

[Notes]
A chaple S. [Ecclesia] 3 miles. Free[holds] none. Arbitrary, about 50 or 60*. Lord Thanet. Pendragon demolishd by him about 1685. {Millstones.} No demaine. Court Baron at Snasefield. Corn at Mallerstang Foot. N. from the castle is one Tumulus of Stones but no gutter about it. A chaple. S. ¼ E. from castle. A well ½ mile E. the castle[161] cald Comekirk well cures the scratches or any itch: Len. Wharton.[162]

[III.192]

Mallerstang [has] a chaple where school is taught. The inscription over the school. Indowment of both, if any be bore. {No freeholds} A castle.

[II.480]

[Pendragon Castle]
It is supposed to have bin built in or before the time of Uter Pendragon, and this for those times a very elegant & well con[t]rived piece, being tower in castle and having a gallery quite \ all along / about the top of the castle. The windowes are so contrived on the highest romes, ~~as that you may escape~~ \ as to prevent / the danger of arrows; and the walls are att least 4 thicke, whose forme & plat is here represented. See my oblong pocket booke.[163]

[II.481]

[III.215][164]

The Bounder of Mallerstang
Ridd by the Right Hon. Thomas, Earle of Thanett Island &c.in his owne person the 17th day of September in the 36th yeare of the raigne of our Soveraigne Lord Charles Second &c. Anno' Domini 1684.
1. Beginning at Water yate Skarr.
2. Thence through Sopkeld otherwise Killingclose to a place where a crab tree formerly stood & was marked by Henry Lord Clifford, great grandfather to George, late Earle of Northumberland, as his Bounder, neare which place in the yeare of Our Lord 1651 when these bounders were ridd for the Right Honourable Ann, late Countess Dowager of Pembroke, stood an ash tree, which upon that occacon was marked with A.P. as a bounder marke.
3. Thence through Ash Bank (which is alsoe part of Sopkeld) where an house formerly was built, through which house the Bounder went.
4. Thence to the foot of Naitgill.
5. Thence up Naitgill by Ravenskarr to Kitchingill Foote.
6. Thence up Kitchingill to Tailebrigg Sike.
7. Thence up Tailebrigg Sike to the row of caves.
8. Thence to the Ginglinge cave.
9. Thence through Lamps mosse to a gray stone in Carelesse-Bank on the North-East of Fell end.
10. Thence to the ~~end the~~ \ lower / end of Seavyman in Ulgill Head.
11. Thence to the North end of High Seate.
12. Thence as Heaven Water deales to the South end of High Seate.
13. Thence over Little Sleddall Head to Gregory Chappell.
14. Thence alonge Gregory band to an hurrock of stones at Langill Head.

[III.216]

15. Thence to the hight of High Seate Morvell.
16. Thence as Heaven water deales to the Skarth of Skailes.

---

[160] MS: '3. ~~Pendragon~~ Mallerstang'.
[161] MS: 'a castle.'
[162] Several margin comments here, including a query related to the river Eden, are obscured by the binding.
[163] For Uter Pendragon see also, I.31-33. A fuller description of Pendragon Castle can be found at the end of a draft letter from Machell to Dr John Mill (Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, IV.82).
[164] This page is not in Machell's hand [It is possibly the neatest bounder description in all 6 volumes. Ed.]

17. Thence up Capell-May-Sike.
18. Thence downe Capell-May-Sike to Withow sike.
19. Thence to White Birke.
20. Thence up Stubbing rigg to Midle gill otherwise Smithygill Howe.
21. Thence up an hurrock of stones at the East end of Swarthfell called Swarthfell-Pike.
22. Thence to an hurrock of stones on Galloway Gates.
23. Thence as Heaven Water deales to Bland Stone.
24. Thence to an hurrock of stones on Scandall-Head.
25. Thence to the pike on Wildbore Fell.
26. Thence to the top of Mickle ark
27. Thence alonge Stony gate to Mere Pott.
28. Thence to the great cave in Greenelowhead.
29. Thence to the head of Fothergill beck.
30. Thence downe Fothergill Beck to Eden water.
31. Thence up Eden water to Wateryeate Skarr.[165]

[I.568]

The Forest of Mallerstang belongs to the Castle of Pendraggon in which castle are \ certane / edifices or buildings which cannot be extended by reason the cost on them bestowed exceeds the profit of the same. In the forrest are diverse vaccaries and other profitts of herb, which are in the hands of tenents att will and by the yeres att the Termes of St Martin & Pentecost: 30:0:0.
Notwithstanding in the yere 1333, Edward Baliol King of Scotland came from thence into Westm'land in a friendly manner to Robert Lord Clifford as before in the relation concerneing him wee have specifyed, and lodged with him in his Castles of Apleby Browham Brough and Pendraggon; yett some 3 yeres before the death of Robert Lord Clifford, which was Robert the 2nd in 1341, this Castle of Pendraggon in Mallerstang was Burned By Scotts who were of the contrary party to \ King / Edward aforesaid, in an Inroad \ which they / made ~~att that time~~ i[n]to Westm'land; from which time till of late it lay wast & desolate the very \ way / too it being become inaccessible by Coach or Carryage, or allmost by an Horseman till the Honorable Lady, the Lady Ann Clifford, Countess Douager of Dorsett Penbroke and Mongomery, of whom wee have so oft spoke for her many noble workes, tooke in hand to Repare it; {Kirkby Stephen pag. 1}[166]And the first man that past those strate,[167] was ~~Squire~~ \ Lancelott / Machell of \ Crakenthorp Esq., a man \ whose person & family and very name for the antiquity thereof, / highly beloved of the said Countesse; who in his owne person, with his draughts & servants brough[t] the first s[t]ik of Timber to repare of this castle.[168]

[I.569]

This Robert was the first Clifford who injoyed it in his proper right, for till then it belonged to his Great Aunt Idonea. And it is observable that as it was destroy'd in his time, being the first, so it was repared in her time, being the last of the name of The Cliffords that were owners hereof. And from the said year \ 13 / 41 it was not inhabited, till 1661; in which yere on the fourteenth of October The Lady Ann Clifford came with here family and lodged here for 3 or 4 nights; and has lived in it severall times since. It is a very neat building for a thing so ancient, the plattforme & front of which I have here presented [and inscribed as follows]

> To the honourable Ann Clifford. Countess, d[owager]of D[orset] P[embroke] & M[ontgomery], T.M. presenteth this draught & platforme of her Castle of Pendraggon.[169]

[165] A scored-through squiggle beneath the 'perambulation' text is possibly a mark to demonstrate that the bounder description had been examined.
[166] Part of this margin comment has perished.
[167] 'Strate', as in 'street': a paved road, especially a Roman road; a highway. OED.
[168] MS continues: '~~and it is observable That as it was~~'.
[169] The plan was not inserted.

[IV.37]

Multitude of Vaccaries

[In the mid-13th century Book of Knights Fees, the collectors say] that two natives in the manner of Kirby Stephan through poverty by reason of raseing there farm [rents] are departed & gone. Allso they say that the vale of Mallerstang is much decayd by the multitude of vaccaries and chiefly by the archery of Roger the Forrester & other archers of Lounsdale for default of the priors and want of custody. Item. Purprestures[170] have bin made in many places within the forests of the Marches through backdated permission from the Prior.

[III.179]

Of the River Eden [1.]

The River Eden springs at Hew Seat in Mallerstang Lordship. Runs \ W. to Mallerstang dale head / under Helgil Brig, so calld from the deepness of the channel between 2 great rock so near together that an horse may leap over it, so down E. to Mallerstang dale head. Thence N. on the West side of Pendragon Castle, which is moted, Let Uter Pendraggon &c. Thence through Wharton Parke, 6 score yards on the E. side of the Hall to Stenk\ereth / ~~and~~ (stone) bridge on the E*. Thence E. on the West side of Hartley Castle at 24 score distance. Thence westward from Force mil to Eden wood bridge near Kirkby. Thence (N.) under the vicaridge within 10 yards of it – ~~and near~~ \ on the / E. side the town to the Low-mill. Thence (N.) to the new (stone) bridge.

[Machell's Notes: III.179]

*{T. One Cowkernal[171] comes up every fasten-dayes-eve in the morning, & combes her head with a golden comb.}

[III.180][172]

Thence N. by turneings on the West of Winton, ¼ mile. And so N. \ leaveing Souldby ½ mile on the west / to Soulbeck foote \ in the West /which comes from Smerdale. Thence by turning N. to Heaing Foote where this parish begins.

The farther course of Eden [blank][173]

[III.213]

Of the River Eden [2.]

{[Informant] Ed. Addison who lived within 2 miles of HewSeat[174] at Birtil in Yorkeshire æt 22.}

This river springeth in an hill call'd HewSeat \ upon Mallerstang Fell / on the top of which is a small square mount to which you ascend by 7 or 8 stares, which is the bounder marke of the \ 2 / countyes {built by the C. P.}[175] And the spring head of Eden is about 5 or 6 score yards below the said mount in the West side of the said hill, which is Westmorland side. {On the S. West side that ward of Mallerstang.} And on the opposit side of this hill about the same distance from the said mount, & not above 60 yards apart one from another, as likewise from Eden, rise Eure & Swall;[176] the former of which runs down Wensedale, the latter down Swadale. {The fel on one side is called Mallerstang Fell, the other Sleddal Fell}

1. It runs westward from the springhead under Helgill brig \ 1 mile / into Mallerstang-gill \ Head ¾ [mile] / thence northward to Kirkby Stephen. Thence N.W. to Musgrave. Thence N.W. to Appleby &c.

[170] 'Purpresture': illegal enclosure of or encroachment upon land or property belonging to another; appropriation of land or property for private purposes, often retrospectively confirmed for payment. OED.

[171] Possibly a 'cauk' or 'caukrum': a frightful object; a scare-crow. See Joseph Wright, The English Dialect Dictionary 1 (London, 1898-1905), 544.

[172] On this page, inked text is interspersed with, and sometimes covers, text written in pencil. It has been transcribed only where legible. The pencilled text appears to have been an early draft.

[173] Presumably, Machell meant to continue the course of the Eden elsewhere.

[174] High Seat.

[175] Countess of Pembroke.

[176] Ure and Swale.

[At Mallerstang the river runs as follows]
{To the chaple 2 miles \ a st[one] brig / to Pendragon Castle 1 mile. Lammerset 1 mile. A wood bridge. Wharton Hall ½ mile a wood brig above. Stengthrith stone bridge. A mill 1 mile. 2 milns – Kirkby Bri[g] of wood 1 mile. New Bridge Stone ¼} {From Pendragon Castle to Kirkby 3 ~~length~~ miles.}

[Machell's Notes on Mallerstang: III.190 & 192]

Accident: Mrs Braithwhate, the wife of Captain Braithwhate, being under som melancolly, lept of the \ very / top of this castle at the W. corner, by which her back & thigh were broken and she dyed 3 dayes after.
[III.192]
A white slate & hewen [quarry] ¼ E. from the chaple.
Coale 1 mile S.W. at Wilbert Fell, and much {limestone. Lead at Bel.[177] ¾ N. \ & at / Birket N.W. ¾.}

D. Wharton (& Neatby)[178]

Free[holds] none. S. [ab Ecclesia] 1 mile. Tenements purchased to a 10[d] fine 80 years agoe of Sir Thomas Wharton, son of Lord Phillip and father of the present Lord Phillip {where Lammerset Hall also: an Hall of Lord Wharton East from Wharton}. \ Hall in a grove of trees, a chaple.[179] /

The Town: demolished by Wharton Hall \ L[ord] W[harton] / & the tenants dispersed to Wharton Dikes ½ mile S. & S.W. from the Hall. XVI ancient tenements & 4 cotts*. Court ~~leet &~~ Baron at Kirkby Wharton & Neatby. One free.[180] About 3 [freeholds] belonging to the Warcops. & there is an hill calld Barnard Hill†. A strong tower house with a doore barrd with iron & 24 I. & T.s upon [it] for names of desc[endants] in that family. The Dalstons of Dalston had [it] by marriage with an heiress thereof; & exchanged with Wharton for the tythe [of] Soulby, so now it is part of Wharton demaine.

[Wharton] Parke. Ash; no oakes but 2.

In Wharton Dikes 1688, where there are but 20 houses, 12 of them (women) are widdows. And in the said place there ~~are~~ \ were / heiresses in 1680. Eliz[abeth] Grasson[181] of W. D. ~~a woman~~ brought to bed of 3 children about 30 year since. {~~Hard birth~~.}

[Machell's Notes: III.190]

*Vide Item. Lammerset Hall, anciently an Hall and demaine of itself.
†Query of the name.[182]

[III.194]

L[ord] W[harton's] Injeniouse[183] coale works.
A new house built by him. Writ over the dooer:

Give me leave, when I may goe in;[184]
When I come forth free from all sin.
March 7[th]: this House was begun.
Ended December 6. L. \ W. / M.

with an hou[n]d & hare, for his love to hunting.

[177] Great Bell.
[178] Nateby.
[179] Marginalia here are obscured by the binding.
[180] Presumably, Nateby contained one freeholder.
[181] Grayson.
[182] Bermer Hill and Scar = Burnmye, Burnemoor. See Smith, Place-Names 2, 84.
[183] A word here is obscured by the binding.
[184] MS: 'I ~~when~~ I may goe in'.

Good houses
Lord Whartons. Lockwhate[185] at Neatby: Lord Whartons.
Scaifes & Shuts in Winton.[186]

[Machell's Notes: III.179]

{A chaple in Wharton Hall.}
{Thomas de Musgrave infra et held ½ R. anno viii Edward 2. with Great Musgrave, Morton and a pro part of Sandford: p. 63 M.V. Query of the other ½?}

[III.192]

In the parke as you goe from [Wharton] Hall towards Kirkby is a flat limestone with an hole in the midst like the impression of a mans shoe.
And at Stengthret[187] bridge in Neatby Liberty is a round deep hole in the limestone channel, like to [a] Ketle. No quarry (but limestone).
Old Mich, father of Lenerd – a great archer – shooting at 11 score, the adverse party threw in an arrow within a ¼ of the prick & he {came with one arrow towards 4 inches & so toke him out, & then with the other he tooke him out too & so up'd the game*.}

[Machell's Notes: III.192]

*{? N.B. query of John Wallar of Ewans in Winton.}

[III.202]

Wharton Hall

Key
a. The Gate house with a Tower above
b. The Slaughter.
c. [Blank]
d. The kitchen over which a Tower.
e. The Buttery
f. The Hall, to which you ascend by steps.
g. A Parlour or Bedchamber; a Study or Evidence Room.
h. The Dineing Room
i, k, Bedchambers. Over which a great Tower.
l. The Gallery: at the end of which is a Chappell.

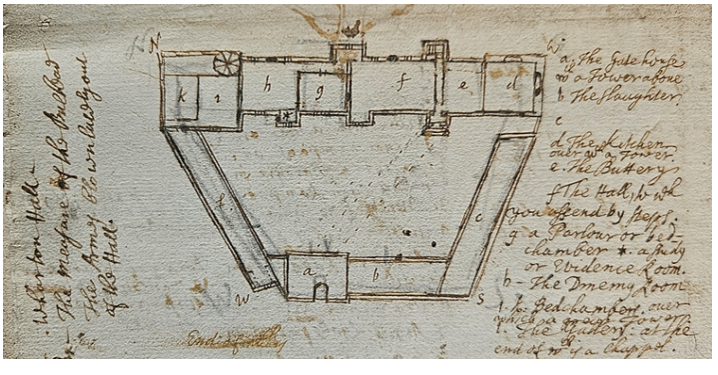

Figure 1.13.14. Plan of Wharton Hall. III.202.

[185] Lockthwaite.
[186] See III.185, below (Winton).
[187] Stenkrith.

[Machell's Notes III.202]

The measure of the Bulhead.
The armes blown lately out of the Hall.

[III.201][188]

[Armorial Glass in the Gallery]

[a. and b.] 2 windows on the East side

(a.)

Wharton impaleing a Quarterly Coate. Azure a manch Or, charged with anulet Sable. The 2. quarterly Sc. thus, the 1. obliterated but seems barry Azure & Argent; the second, Argent a chiefe with 3 bars* gemmews Or; the third as the second; the fourth as the first. The 3[r] quarter in the impale is as the second; the 4[th] as the first.

Figure 1.13.15. Machell's Figure (a.). III.201.

1.13.15.

(b.)

b. Quarterly of xi. The
1. Azure in a bordure engrailed[189] a Lyon rampant Or.
2. Gules in a bordure ingraled a Lyon rampant Or.
3. Bendy of 10 Gules & Argent {had it been a. & g., it were Talbot: see Guillam p. 277}.[190]
4. Gules, 3 garbes Or.
5. Azure, 5 ragged staves barwise Argent {Barry of 10 Argent & Azure. 12 martlets of the first: 3 2. 2. 2 & 1 Indented}.
6[th]. Or, a chiefe /\/\/\ Azure.
7. Argent 2 Lyons passant Gules.
8. Gules, a saltier Argent.
9. Argent, a bend between 6 martlets Gules.
10. Broke out & now a blank \ but / Or a fret Gules.
11. Argent a Lyon rampant Gules with tale reversed Gules.

[188] As much of this page was completed in pencil and then written in ink, some of the text was duplicated. Such duplications have not been transcribed.
[189] Machall drew a heraldic symbol here, meaning 'engrailed'.
[190] Richard Blome, Guillam's, A Display of Heraldry (1679).

Figure 1.13.16. Machell's Figure (b.). III.201.

This seemes the father of Lord Whartons wife. See at (d.) of the 2nd wife. {It is so of the 2nd wife, Georgius Comes Salopiæ.[191] See my booke of ped[igrees]: Wharton. But the field is there Gules.}[192]

(c.)

In the 3rd window an other coate set in a garter without a crownet.
Quarterly of V. The first quarter is quarterly, Sc. 1t. Vert a Lyon rampant Azure {!} (false heraldry);
2. The English armes \ uncoloured / within a bordure Ermin & Argent. 3rd Argent 3 fishes saliant Or;
the 4th barry of 5: Azure and Or.
The second [quarter] is Azure, a fess fusile Or.
{?}The 3rd barry of 6 Or (if not rather tenne) & Vert, a bend Gules.
The 4th 3 Lyons passant Argent and the field so too. Over all, a bend Azure.

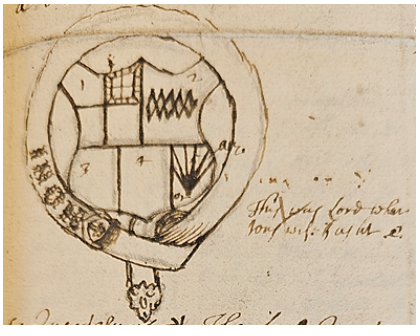

Figure 1.13.17. Machell's Figure (c.). III.201.

This was Lord Whartons wife as at e.?

(d.)

The window nex the chapel on the West side.
[Quarterly] The 1t Gules 3 Lyons passant gardant Or, with a file of 3 lambeaux Argent.
2. Gules between 6 croses {crosslets fichee? if Sharp} a bend Argent charged with a scutcheon of the Scots arms.
3. Checkey, Or & Azure.
4. Gules, a Lyon rampant Argent.

[191] George, Earl of Shrewsbury.
[192] Pencilled note in Machell's hand.

Figure 1.13.18. Machell's Figure (d.). III.201.

{This, I take it, belongs to the Howards, Dukes of Norfolk & Earles of Arundell. But Note the crosses fitchy &c. should be in the 1[t] quarter, for so they bear them now: see Bloms guide in Honour Civil & Military, f.32.}[193]

[III.203]

[Armorial Glass] in the Dining Room

In the Great window next the Court – upon a shield like that (a.) is a plane Manch:
And on another of the same fashon in the same window is an Impaled: c. Or, a fess fusile Azure which is quite contrary to that at (c.)

(e.)

The second window from the chapel on the west side
1. Whartons Armes with the accession of the Bordure \ invecked / Quartering a Quarterly coate: Sc. First, Ermin on a chief Azure 3 Lyons rampant Argent: Secondly, quarterly Gules & Argent, a bend Or. Third as Second; Fourth as first; which coate is born agane in the 3 & Whartons in the 4[th]; & these Impale~~ing~~ the ~~ten~~ \ 11 / Quarterly. As at (b.) in the foregoing page. Which is the Armes of the 2[nd] wife of T[homas] Lord Warton, with D[aughter of] L Comiti Salopice.[194]

Figure 1.13.19. Machell's Figure (e.). III.203.

(f.)

In the 3[rd] window is ~~Wharton~~ 1. A shield of the same fashion with that at (a.) but florished at both ends (as the other should be for it is defective) wherein are these (c.) Sc. Quarterly Sable: a plane manch by the name of Wharton. {?} Quartering the same coate as before at (e.) Sc. Ermin on a chief ~~Gules charged~~ \ Azure / 3 Lyons rampant Argent &c. Impaleing this coate: Sc. Argent a Lyon rampant[195] Sable charged on his brest with a mullet of five \ points / of the first {which is Stappeltons, his 1[t] wife.}

[193] Richard Blome, An Essay to Heraldry, in Two Parts. The First Containing ... the Body of Heraldry; the Second, Honour Civil and Military; Being a Treatise of the Nobility and Gentry of England ... The Whole Illustrated with ... Sculptures, Etc. (London, 1685).
[194] '… and daughter of the Earl of Shrewsbury.' See also, '(b.)'.
[195] Here, the MS has a small sketch.

(g.)

In the other Great (Dineing Room) Window

Cliffords coat quarterly of ix impaleing another quarterly of 6. In Clifford the 1ᵗ is checky Or & Azure a fess Gules. The 2nd Azure: 3 burneing chained bullets Or. 3. Vert. 3 flames Argent. 4. Gules 6 anulets Or. The 5th is quarterly Or & Gules in a bordure Argent & Azure. The 6. Sable a bend fleury Or. 7. Barry of 6 or & Azure, in a canton Gules[196] Or. 7. Or a cross Sable. 8. Argent on a chief indent Gules an annulet betwixt 2 mullets of 5 pointes Or.[197]

II. The coate impaled is quarterly of 6: the 1ᵗ Azure a tower Argent, having a cupole[198] above the battlement, 2. Barry of 8, Or & Gules, a crescent in chief of the second.

III. Gules 3 fishes palewise Argent.

IV. Sable a griffin rampant {? one foot up}[199] between 3 crosses Argent.

V. Sable 3 tents or rather towers with pyramidal tops ~~Argent~~ & a mullet of 5, in chief Argent.

{VI. Argent, a[200]Gules, chargd with 5 mullets of 5 pointes Or.}

The supporter: a dragon Gules with crooked tale & eagles feet, & a goat Argent. The crest, a dragon's head Gules out of a coronet Or, & on a wreath, a goat standing Argent – Armed Or.

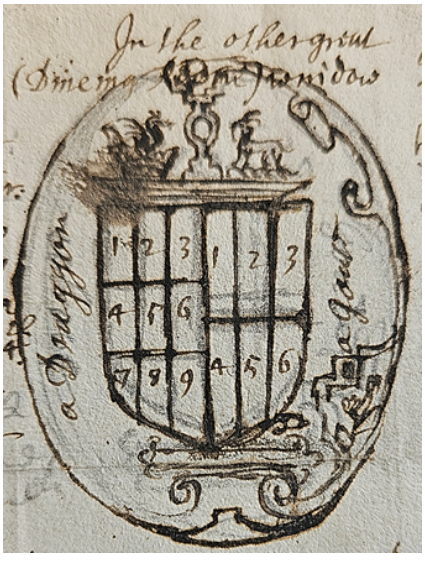

Figure 1.13.20. Machell's Figure (g.). III.203.

(h.)

In the midle light is Cliffords 9 quarterings. The supporters a dragon Gules & a wolfe waved Or, Argent & Azure. The crest a helmet on a coronet & above that a dragon Gules isueing out of a coronet Or.

(i.)

In the other light is Wharton with the bordure, quartering a quarterly c[oate]: Sc. Ermin on a chiefe Gules. 3 Lyons rampant &c. – as before – the III The same agane & the IIII Wharton. These quarterings of Wharton do impale Clifford with the 9 Quarterings as afore. The supporters a white Bul with a crown coller \ & armed / Or, & a read Draggon. 2 Crests in 2 Ovals: 1. A Bulls head errased Argent \ crown / collered & armed Or. 2. as before: Sc. a dragon out of a crown.

---

[196] Here Machell has drawn a cross crosslet.
[197] Machell has omitted no.10.
[198] Cupola.
[199] As it lies close to both sets of text, this comment could equally well refer to the foot of Coat (i).
[200] Here Machell has drawn a cross crosslet.

[III.205][201]

(l.)

In the great window, which looks out of the hall into the court.

There is Whartons armes with crest & mantle quartering a quarterly coat: Sc. Ermin on a chief Azure, 3 Lyon &c. as before. The manch is without any bordure; the mantle Argent & Gules; the crest on a wreath Argent and Azure, lying on an helmet; a Bulls head errased Argent, with a crown coller Or, topping and mane Sable. {This is Whartons Armes with the Quarterings before he was Lord.}

(m.)

In the first window on the opposit side next to the doer which leads to the dineing rome are three plane shields, the first Clifford, as here. II. Azure a manch Or. III. Azure a bend Or.

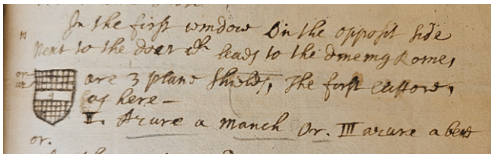

Figure 1.13.21. Plain shield, Clifford. III.205.

(n.)

In the next window on the other side the chimney, are 3 like the other: sc. 1. Gules, 6 Lyons rampant Argent; II Argent, a Lyon rampant Azure; III Azure fretty Argent.

(o.)

In the lesser window next the court have bin 3 (but now there remains 2 only.) The 1 is Gules, 3 cushons Ermin tassled Or. II [Blank]. III Azure a chief with 3 cheveronell brased Or.

(p.)

And in the end window has bin 3 alsoe: 1. Quarterly, Sc. First or a Lyon rampant, Azure; secondly Gules 3 fishes ~~III~~ Argent; third as second; 4th as first. II: gon. This, I am told, was the fishes single: per Len Wharton.[202] III: Quarterly: Sc. first Argent a bend Gules, charged with three garbes I thinke, of the first; the second I suppose has bin the same with the third; the third is verry. Sc. Argent & Azure.[203] ~~Azure & Argent counter compond~~.

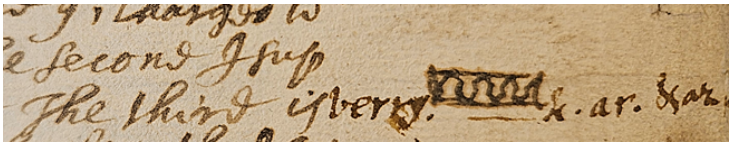

Figure 1.13.22. Image at foot of page after 'verry'. III.205.

The fourth I suppose as the first, but broken & gon.

[III.207]

In the parler are 6 coates: Sc. in the upper lights of the great window which looks into the court.

(q.)

{1553} Musgrave with Quarterings Impaleing Wharton with Quart[erings].

1. Musgrave Or, 6 anulets Or. 2. Stapleton ~~quartering Vipont~~ being 3 daggers Gules on a field Argent impaleing Vipont, which is on 6 anulets Gules. 2. 2. &c.

These impale Wharton with the bordure Or, charged with 9 saltiers of Lyons pawes Gules, which is in the 1ˢᵗ Quarter. {Query whether the bordure ingraled.} In the 2nd quarter is a quarterly coate: Sc. Ermin on a chief Gules &c., as before in the Gallery; the 3rd as second; 4th as first.

[201] On MS. III.205 is the sentence '{Memorandum: the gallery has on the plaster …1594.}', but some of the text has perished.

[202] Witness: Leonard Wharton.

[203] See Fig.1.13.22.

(r.)

The second shield is Wharton (quartering as before) with a file of 3 lambeaux impaleing this quarterly coat of 8: Sc.

I. Argent a bend ingraled Sable.
II. Or, a fess between 2 cheverons Gules.
III. Argent, within a border Azure, a Lyon rampant Sable crowned.
IIII. Argent a saltier ingraled Sable.
V. Gules, 3 fishes Argent {111}.
VI. Argent, 3 bars Gules.
VII. Or, pouderd with floredelices Sable. {calld (in short) Ermineis}
VIII. Argent, an eagle Sable with a childe proper in his clawes, in swaddling-clouts[204] Gules.

(s.)

The third shield is the Kings Armes, with a florish about them like a wreath, with an imperial crown on the top. & on the binders at either side of the wreath is writ DIEV EST MON DROIT. {the Kings Armes is also in the drawing Roome.}[205]

(t.)

The fourth is Wharton quartering the quarterly coat as before, with a Bear {rather a Lyon […]}[206] Gules in a net Or {?} for one supporter, & a Bul (as before) for the other; the mantle Argent & Gules & the crist, on a wreath Or & Gules a Bulls head &c. {& this motto underneath: -LESYR EN FAYTS DERMIS.}[207]

(v.)

The fifth is Wharton Quarterly as aforesaid – Impaleing a Quarterly coat of 4, whereof the 1. is a Lyon rampant Sable. The 2. is quarterly of 4: first, Argent a bend between 6 martlets Gules, the second Argent a fess Azure charged with 3 floerdelices Or &c.; III. Argent 2 bends Gules; the IIII as first!

(w.)

The VI is a quarterly coat: Sc. 1 Argent a fess fusilee Azure. II. Barry of 6 Argent & Gules, a canton of the second; the 3rd &c., impaleing Wharton Quartered with the Quarterly coate as before.

[III.208]

Figure 1.13.23. Wharton Hall Parlour. Musgrave Coat of Arms. III.207.

[204] Cumbrian dialect for cloths or clothes.
[205] 'God and my Right' is the motto of the reigning monarch.
[206] The word following 'Lyon' is very close to the page edge. It possibly reads as 'seiant'.
[207] The Wharton motto is, 'PLEASUR IN ACTS DARMYS': pleasure in acts of arms. See CFH, 362.

In the Study or Evidence Rome

(x.)

Carved in wood, the plane manch; a fret & chief impaleing Wharton; Cliffords armes & quartering. And in glass, Vert a Lyon rampant Azure with quarterings & garter as in the Gallery {false heraldry.}

Below Stairs

(y.)

In the great roome \ over against the grate / in a shield florish at both ends like that in the dineing rome, Musgrave impaleing the plane manch.

(z.)

Over the hall porch, the Armes have bin carved with the quarterings crist & supporters, mantle &c., but the Armes are washed out. The supporters here are a Lyon \ in a net / & a Bull {?} with a Long Tayle collered about his neck as they may be see in my Bloomes, Guillam. {&c.}[208]

Over the Great Gates on the outside of the House

Whartons Coat at large with saltiers of Lyons pawes in a border ing~~raled~~\vecked! / which I have not observed afore. {It is not so in Bloomes edition of Guillam. Query: ergo if in other coates within the house.} The coat is quarterly: I. The manch in a bordure &c. II. Quarterly, Sc. first Ermin – 3 Lyons rampant &c; secondly, 4 quarters with a bend on the second; III, As the second; IIII, as the first. The crist – on a wreath upon an helmet a Bulls head errased, with a crown coller. The supporters, a Lyon in a net & a collered Bull, the motto underneath (in florished letters) PIEA SVR \ EN. / FAYTS. D'ARMYS.[209] And, ANNO DNI.1559. But the building looks older by much.

[III.190]

E. Weatby[210]

[Notes]

W. [ab Ecclesia]1 mile. Most free[holders] purchased about '86, ix or 10. The rest arbitrary, about 4 or 5. It belongs to Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge, now Lord. No manner house but query of a castle on the E. of the town. And t[alk of] a market town before K[irkby Stephen]. vix credo[211] \ Hen. De Warthecop [had] ½ & Warthcop, 8. Edward 2. [1314-15].[212] / No boons. A free schoole. \ ½ Wateby held by Beauchamp. / Andreas de Harcla sen. Harcla et Smardale: 8. Edward 2. See MS Part III, pag. 27.

[I.496]

Half of that Lordship sometime in the possession of the Beachamps: vid. p. 33 col. 1 ad fine.[213]

[III.192]

[School]

Weatby a free school. The account of it is in som part of this paper.[214] Limestone only. The manner house seems to have bin a castle in the intack call'd Carny Castle at this day, an abbreviation of Carnaby, whom they say Lord Wharton took prisoner; formerly said to be the seat of one Torphin de Wateby {There are the vestigia of a little \ street or town / on the ridge of the hill between \ the schoole / & the village. They talke of it being a city or great towne.} Now xiv or xv families {of [208] Richard Blome, Guillam's, A Display of Heraldry (1679).

[209] 'Pleasure in acts of arms', see above.
[210] Waitby.
[211] 'I scarce believe it.'
[212] Three illegible abbreviated words here: omitted.
[213] There appears to be no reference to Waitby and the Beauchamps on p.33 of any of Machell's 6 volumes. MS. III.190 gives similar information in highly interlineated note-form. Legible words are, '5. Weatby. W. 1m. Most free. Purchased about '86. IX or 10. The rest arbitrary: about 4 or 5. It belong to Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge, now Lord. No manner house – but query of a castle on the E. of the Towne. And T. a market Towne before K. Vix credo. No bounes. A Free School.\ Hear de Waitbye cap. ten. & wurthe cap. 8. Edward … ½ Wateby held by Beauchamps.'
[214] Now placed together here on III.192 and III.194.

which all freehold, but one hath som tenant right, purchased fr[ee][215] of Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge about the year 1686. The demaine is divided amongst tenants. They say the demaines were free from suit in the sherifs Turn.}

[III.194]

Over the dooer of Wateby school, a pretty little building in a wald gardine[216] on a blew marble stone:

> THIS ~ SCHOOLE ~ BUILT ~ BY ~ Mr James Highmoore. Born in Waitbye > clothworker ~ in London for / the use of Waitby ~ & Smardale /
> ANNO ~ DOMINI ~ 1630

Mr William Howgil, the master, sayes there [is] xi^{li} per annum laid to it, out of 400^{li} & above, given by the founder for that use & the use of the poore widows of those places. 12 twopenny love[217] being ordered by his will to be distributed every Sunday to xii widows being 60 year of age & upwards.[218] It is called Waitby from its scituation in hollows 'll[219] by pooles & plashes of water. Soulby has water runns down the Town.[220]

[III.180]

[Torphin de Wateby]

Robert =
|
Torphin =
|
Hugo Gornegan = Maud fil Torphin
|
Hugo fils Gornegan

King John anno ejus 5^{0} [1203-1204] granted the wardship of Hugo the son of Gornegan & Richard ~~to~~ Sirninton, to Robert de Veteriponte. And Maud, the widow of Henry Jernegan, released her dower in Karthorp (near Tanfield in Yorkeshire) to the said Robert, who had the custody of her son by the said Kings grant. And this Maud was daughter of Torphin de Wateby granted all her lands in Westm'land to Robert de Veteriponte in the 8th of King John [1206-1207] & she was remarried to Hugo de Burgo, who likewise confirmed it, s.d.[221]
Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge circa anno 1686 sold 33 tenants free at Wateby,[222] as I have seen out of a court roll in Mr Dobson house.

[III.190]

F. Smerdale[223]

[Notes]
W. 2 miles; no free[holders] – arbitrary – X houses, formerly the said Warcops; now Sir John Dalstons of Dalston ut sup[ra]; an Hall & demaine. Boon plewing,[224] her[iot] shereing,[225] coales. Andrew de Harcla senior [had] Hartcla & Smardale in 8. Ed. II. [1314-1315]. Nothing but limestone.

[III.226]

Tenements: x. all arbitrary
There is a fine plane on the back side next the towne for a gardine or an other court.

---

[215] This word is partly obscured by the binding.
[216] MS: '\The ~~othe~~ side of the other / Over the dooer of Wateby school, a pretty little building in a wald gardine.' Here, Machell has drawn a sketch, ½cm square.
[217] Loaves of bread.
[218] Copied almost verbatim by N&B: see N&B1, 557. Highmoore becomes Highmore in N&B1.
[219] 'All'? 'Filled'?
[220] The word 'Town' is an editorial suggestion.
[221] 'In a deed without date.' See N&B1, 555, for an almost verbatim paragraph.
[222] Tenements as freeholds.
[223] Smardale.
[224] Ploughing.
[225] Customary shearing.

[III.221]

Smerdale belongd to one Warcop who had 3 daughters, one maryed to Bowes of Streettham, another to [Blank], another to Dalston.

[III.225]

[Smardale Hall]

Smardale [Hall] on an easy ascent pretty pleasant. Stands at the N.E. on the West side & fronts West. A large coat at the top of the tower, quite defaced but said to be Smardals whose heiress was maryed by Warcop.[226] {Maden Hare on the tower & at Wharton}

There has bin formerly a large coate of ~~armes be~~ armes betwene 2 Battlements on the Top of the tower fronting westwards, which was said to be the Smerdals whose Heiress was married into the family of the Warcops. \ & the Smerdals built the tower,[227] {the Warcops all the remainder of the house.} It[228] is now quite defaced through the violence of weather & injury of time, but seems to appear in the last quarter annulets [be]neath. Above, supported by the head of an angel, is this, probably Warcops.

Figure 1.13.24. Angel and Coat of Arms, 'probably Warcops'. III.225.

Agane under the ends of tableing ~~tableing above~~ which goes over the window. Cushons Ermin. Underneath the ends of the tableing, which goes over the window are the 2 coats also cut in stone This [Coat 2] is defaced but it appears like 3 cupps.

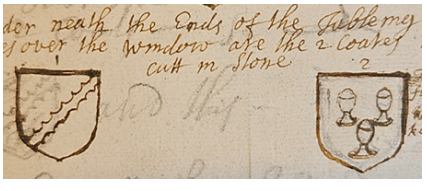

Figure 1.13.25. Coats of Arms. 'This is defaced but it appears like 3 cupps'. III.225.

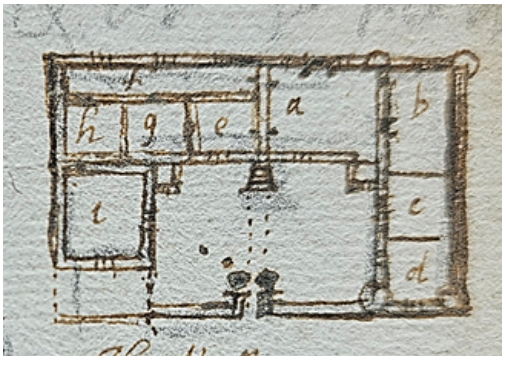

Figure 1.13.26. Plan of Smardale Hall. III.225.

[226] There is more pencilled text after this point, but it is illegible.
[227] MS: '& the Smerdals to built the tower.'
[228] The coat.

Key
a. The Hall.
b. The Dineing Roome
c. The withdrawing Room.
d. A Bed Chamber.
e. The Gallery
f. The Buttery
g.h. Lodgin Roomes
i. The old Tower.

[Armorial Glass]

In the hall (which is a lofty spruce litle roome with an arched cieling of plaster frett worke well wainnscotted with a 2 doored screenes to which you ascend on the outside by a pair of staires) are these coates of armes, painted in glass.

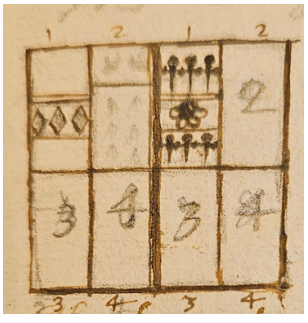

Figure 1.13.27. Armorial Glass in the Hall. III.225.

[Sinister Side]
I. Argent on a fess Gules, 3 cushons Ermin, tas[selled] Or. 2. Ermins palewise in 3 rows: on a chief Sable 2 bores heads coupd Argent. The 3[d] as the second. 4 as the first.
Impaling quarterly: Sc.
[Dexter Side]
I. Argent between 6 [cross-crosslets] Sable, a fess of the second charged with a cinqfoil of the first. The second Azure 3 Talbots ~~stored~~ gardent Argent. The three, Gules, 6 Lyons rampant Or. 2. 2. & 2. The 4[th] as the first in the Impaleing.

Figure 1.13.28. 'The same agane.' III.225.

In the Gallery End window 1620.
Dalstons coate quarterly of 6: Sc. I. Argent a cheveron ingraled Sable, 3 Hawkes heads erased proper i.e. brown, beaked Or.
II. is Argent a cross ingraled Vert between 4 anulets Sable.
III. Sable 3 coverd cups Argent.

IIII. Sable 3 cushons Ermin tass[elled] Or. The 7 Sable. 3 boares heads couped Argent langed Gules tusked Or.
V. Sable a cinqfoile Argent impaleing a quarterly coat of 4: 1. Argent a fess /\/\/\ between 3 cock heads errased Argent. 2. Within a bordure ingraled with a /\ betwene 3 escal[lops] Or. 3 as 2. 4 as 1. {Mantle Argent & Gules; Crists – an Hawkes head erased & a cock.}[229]

Figure I.13.29. Armorial Glass in the Gallery end window. III.225.

[III.190]

G. Soulby

[Notes]
N.W. [ab Ecclesia] 2 miles. 1 freehold, rest arbitrary: about 59 or 60 \ all but 2, which belong to Sir Dalston & answer at […][230] / [The rest] belong to Musgraves of Hartley time out of mind. Thomas de Hellebeck dimed de Souleby, 8. Edward 2. [1314-1315].[231] Noe demaine nor Hall but [there] has bin a chaple [during the time of] Sir Phil. Musgrave. No quarryes but [there is] limestone {Note. A well at Brough [in Soulby] cures the ague.}

[III.180]

The Tythe Barne of Souldby exchanged (with the owners of Smardale-Hall by Lord Whartons Ancestour) for Lammersit Hall in Wharton Parke. H. Raw.[232]

[III.194]

Soulby Chaple
(where never any before) built at the cost of Sir Phil. Musgrave in 1663, and endowed by him salvis indemnitate & privilegys matricis eatæ,[233] with 20^{li} per annum land in the Lordship of Soulby, & ten pound more lett out in the Town for the use of the Chappel in order to Repares.

[229] Some of the faint pencilled notes beneath and beside the text on this page have not been transcribed.
[230] The rest of the phrase is obscured by the binding.
[231] 'Dimed': to take a tenth part of, to tithe to the church or a temporal ruler. OED.
[232] Informant: Hugh Raw.
[233] 'Saving the interests and privileges of the mother-church.' See Carlisle Diocesan Bishops' Register: CAC(C). DRC1/4, 244-48.

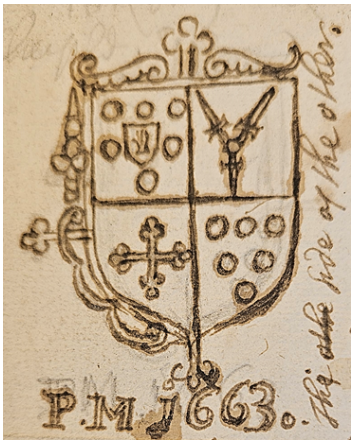

Figure 1.13.30. In Soulby Chapel. III.194.

[Soulby: Description]
It is a large \ irregular / village of about 60 families and has severall hansom fair houses in it. Has had an Hall South \ E. / from the chaple in the gro[u]nds calld Hall-Gards \ up and over / {the water[234] on the right hand as you goe to Kirkby. ~~Som~~ \ All / Sir Christophers tenants [as] chief Lord, but 2 to Smerdale to Sir William Dalston.}
And there are lands called the Demaine held now in Tennancy – But one freehold belonging to \ one / Unthanke, who has left 2 heiresses, all the rest Customary, some fine certain – purchased a good while agoe to an 8^{d} fine payable at the 1^{t} Lammas & Candlemans after it falls as by Indenture. The rest are fine Arbitrary.
It stands upon a fine level. Has wief & stray. And the river runs through it & sometimes overflowing the bankes […][235]

[I.496]

[Soulby Family]
Sulleby (now Soulby) gave name to an ancient family.
Henricus Sulleby, temp. Johannis[236] }
Robert de Sulleby Temp. Regis Johannis} ex Cartis Antiq. peres Comitatis Cumb. vel Blenkinsop[237]
Henricus de Sulleby 22. Henricus 3^{i}.[238] }
Gervasius de Sulleby 38. Henricus 3.[239] }

[I.497]

Sowelby is Anciently writ Sulleby, and that was ancient family of that name Lords of the place, 3 Generations of which were mention in one writeing, all the par[tic]ular writeing indeed which I have yett mett with concerneing them.

Henry de Suleby; Sir Richard de Suleby[240] Robert de Suleby
Robert de Suleby married Alice eldest daughter of Thomas de Helleb[eck] And because I am very much pleased with the Indenture of marriage between the said Robert which is so consise & full withal that it may either be a pattern or shame to the Clerkes in our days who spend so much time Inke and parchment with I know [not] how many impertinent Tautologies, and it is as followeth:

[234] A phrase here is obscured by the binding.
[235] The rest of this sentence is obscured by the binding. The river is Scandal Beck.
[236] 1199-1216.
[237] Document from the time of King John. 'From the ancient deeds in the possession of the Countess of Cumberland or Blenkinsop.'
[238] 1237-38.
[239] 1253-54.
[240] MS: 'Sir ~~Edward~~ \ Richard / de Suleby.'

Omnibus Xpi fidelibus ad quos hoc presens scriptum pervenerint Dominus Richard fil[ius] Henrici de Suleby salutem eternam in Domino Noveritis me concessise et dedisse, et hac mea presenti \ mea / carta confirmasse Roberto filio meo primogenito & Allicie fil[ie] Domini Thome de Hellebeck primogenite, in maritagio totam terram meam de Apilby cum pertinentijs quam habui vel quam habere potitus tam in Dominico quam in servicio tam in reditu homagij quam in omnibus alijs servitijs sine ullo retenemento. Tenendum et habendum eis et Heredibus suis in feodo et hereditate, de corpore eorum procreatis, libere quiete pacifice et integre cum omnibus libertatibus communibus et assi[gn]amentis ad predictam terram spiritu[ali]bus, de me in tota vita mea. Reddendo inde annuatim mihi pro omnibus servicijs ac[cust]o[mabil]ibus et demandis mihi tangentibus [...] [vj] sol[idos] & viij denari[os] Omnes vero prædicte Terre cum omnibus suis pertinentijs prefato Thome de Hellebeck et assignatis suis usque ad legitimam etatem predicti Roberti remanebunt. Et si contingat quod dictus Robertus infatus recesserit omnes predicte terre cum predictis homagijs et alijs servicijs prefate Allicie in tota vita sua remanebunt. Et si contingat quod dicta Allicia descesserit ante quam heredem cum predicto Roberto habuerit omnes predicte terre cum omnibus suis pertinentijs in manu prædicti Thome et assignatorum suorum, usque centum et decem marcas de predictis terris et tenementis perciperint, remaneant et omnis exitus predictarum Terrarum a principio quo habuit [saissinam] in predictis terris computatur dicto Thome et assignatis suis. Et si contingat quod Robertus decesserit antiquam de corpore suo cum dicta Allicia heredem percreaverit prefatus Thomas vel Allicia qualiscunque in predictis terris saissinus fuerit totam prefatam formam ut superscriptum est mi[hi] et heredibus meis annuatim persolvere debent usque ad termimum perfixum, et ego vero Ricardus et Heredes mei omnes predictas terras cum homagij redditibus & alijs servicijs predictis Thome et Allicie contra omnes gentes warantisabimus ac quietabimus \ per / predictam firmam. Et ut hec donatio et Concessio rata et stabilis permaneat, tam dictus Richardus quam dictus Thomas Sigilla sua his scriptis, subalternatione apposuerunt. Hijs Testibus Domino Willielmo de Daker Johanne de Morvill Thoma de Musegrave tunc vicecom[ite] westmarie persona de Crosseby Gerard Willielmo Roberto fratre suo. He[n]rico de Sandes[?] Willielmo de Wartcop, Willielmo de Soureby et alijs.[241]
✝ SECRETUM RICARDI[242]

[241] 'To all Christ's faithful to whom this present charter shall come, Lord Richard son of Henry of Suleby sends eternal greetings in the Lord. Know that I have granted and given and by this my present charter have confirmed to Robert my first-born son and to Alicia the first-born daughter of Lord Thomas of Hellebeck, in their marriage, to hold the whole of my estate of Apilby, with its appurtenances, which I have held or are under my control, as much in demesne as in service, as much in rendering of homage as in all other services, without any reservation. For them and their heirs born of their bodies to have and to hold in fee and inheritance, freely, quietly, peaceably and fully, with all common liberties and ecclesiastical appointments to the aforesaid estate that concern me during my whole lifetime, by rendering yearly to me [?] shillings and 8d for all the customary services and charges that appertain to me [...] Furthermore, all the aforesaid lands with all their appurtenances shall remain with the aforesaid Thomas of Hellebeck and his assigns until the coming of age of the aforesaid Robert. And if it should happen that the said Robert dies in childhood, all the aforesaid lands with the aforesaid homages and other services shall remain with the aforesaid Allicia for the whole of her life. And if it should happen that the aforesaid Allicia dies before she has had an heir with the aforesaid Robert, all the aforesaid lands with all their appurtenances shall remain in the hand of the aforesaid Thomas and his assigns, up to a limit of a value of 120 marks from the aforesaid lands and tenements, and all revenue of the aforesaid lands from the beginning when he had seisin in the aforesaid lands are reckoned to the said Thomas and his assigns. And if it should happen that Robert dies before he has produced an heir with the said Allicia, the aforesaid Thomas or Allicia, whichever has seisin in the aforesaid lands, must discharge yearly to me all the aforesaid agreement as written above, up to the fixed limit, and truly I, Richard, and my heirs, will guarantee to Thomas and Allicia against all people and will discharge all the aforesaid lands with rendering of homage and the other aforesaid services for the fixed payment. And so that this gift and grant may remain fixed and secure, both the said Richard and equally the said Thomas have placed their seals to this document, one after the other.
With these witnesses: Lord William of Dacre; John de Morvill; Thomas de Musgrave, then Earl of Westmorland; the parson of Crossby Gerard William; Robert his brother; Henry of Sandes; William of Wartcop; William of Soureby, and others.'

[242] Personal seal of Sir Richard de Suleby.

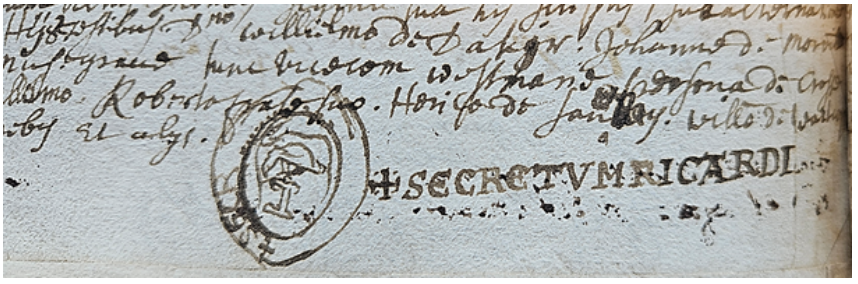

Figure 1.13.31. Seal of Sir Richard de Suleby. I.497.

[III.190]

H. Kaber

[Notes]
N.E. [ab Ecclesia] 2 miles; about 20 houses, most freehold. Lord of Thanet. \ 8. Edward 2 [1314-1315] Ten [held by] Alanus de Kabergh / No house; no demaine. Doukintre:[243] II freeholds II N.E. ab Ecclesia, Idem. {Free stone near the first. A free school. Founded 6 years ago by Thomas Waller of that Towne, & endowd with 8[li] per annum.}

[I.496]

The manner of Kaber in the 19. of Henry 7. [1503-1504]
As appears by inquisition [it] was then in the possession of Thomas son of Peter Roose held of the King in capete by Knights Service and 7s 8[d] rent Cornage to the King att Pasce & Michaelmas. & doeing service at the county court of Westm'land from moneth to moneth att the Kings Castle of Apleby: valet per Annum 8[li].
Peter dyed 8. of July, 15. Henry 7. [1500]. Thomas being then 24 years old. And Henry Lord Clifford tooke of Thomas after the death of Peter rent & other services by reason of the mannor aforesaid by affirming that Peter held the said mannor of him by Knights Service &c.[244] as in the forme of the inquisition e Blenkinsop de Helbeck on Burgh parish.

It seemes by Lord Cliffords answer to inquisition aforesaid, that Cabor and the other demanes mentioned in the Inquisition were not held of the King in Capite, but of Lord Clifford in Knights Service & by homage service & scutage; & he had the wardship & marriage[245] of minors, except they held some lands e[l]sewhere of the King in Capite, in which case their lands onely were seised as to the profits & Isues by the under or inferiour Lord, as ½ of Overton held by Lord Daker.

{Fulthorp of Caber 19. Henry 7. [1503-1504]]
This Caber was held as is declayred in my Lords reply before it came into the hands of Roos by One Alane Fulthorp 19. Henry 7. & Christofer his son after him. It should seme allso that John Mauchael held the same Lordship suceding John his father at the time of the takeing of this inquisition which was Anno 19. Henry 7. If there be not a mistake for Crakenthorpe which should be insteed of Cabergh. Yet if it be a mistake it is agane repeeted in my Lord Cliffords Answer {tis sure a mistake for Crakenthorpe payd that rent} yet he sayes that Thomas Roos injoyed the mannor of Cabergh, die Captionis ejusdem,[246] & ergo Fal[se].

{2. Henry 5. [1414-1415]} Thomas de Fulthorpe, brother of Sir William Fulthorp. quit clamd his Land Tenaments Ser[vice] in Kirby Superwyske. 2. Henry 5.

---

[243] Duckintree. The entry on Duckintree – closely written, blotted, interlineated – is insecure.
[244] MS: 'And Henry Lord Clifford tooke of Thomas after the death of Peter ~~tooke~~ rent & other services ~~of the forsaid Thomas~~ by reason of the mannor aforesaid by affirming, That Peter held the said mannor of him by Knights Service &c.'
[245] MS: 'warshaip & mar.'
[246] From the day of taking over.

The Countis of Cumberland holds land in Caber called Wadsons Lands, and does customarily give (as they say for the same tenure) a som[er][247] to Underbrough on the Ascension Day i.e. Hallow Thorsday, which \ any / yong men from any Country may run for, & he that comes 1st to it has the tree to him selfe, which [he] may sell or use as he thinks most fitting.

[III.179]

I. Heggerscale

[Notes]
3 miles East of Ecclesia. No hall nor demaine. About 8 h[ouses] Most of them freeholds & have also Tenent right. Lord Thanet. A corne mill. Wrensid[e] 4 miles ab Ecclesia. Same Tenure.

J. Rookeby

[Notes]
Rookeby & Rookeby Skarth. No hall nor demaine. East [ab Ecclesia] 2 miles. ~~About~~ \ 7 or / 8 houses. All freeholds with Tenant right also. Lord Thanet. And Read Yëat, E. ab Eccelsia 2 miles & ¼. Houses III as the other Tenure. Limestone. Red frestone. Coales bad.

[III.179]

[K.] Winton

[Notes]
N.E. ab Ecclesia 1 mile. Houses – about 60 {all but one} freeholds. ~~Lord~~ Earle of Thanet. Who answer at Brough. Sir Christopher Musgrave answer at Hartley. Sir William Dalstons answer at Smerdale. Lord Wharton {???}. Freeholds. There is a schoole.

[III.185]

[Winton: Description]
Winton is a well-builded village, haveing a quarry of \ good / huing stone at the East end thereof within 12 score yards distance (which quarry is also usefull for grindestones) and very good slate at Williamsons Gil, which is but 3 miles S.E. from the Towne; and yet their houses are most of them Thatched. There are betwixt 50 & 60 families within this village, of which there may be about 18 freeholders who allso hold other Tenant right \ lands, / ~~some of which pay a Quit Rent to Hartley Castle, na,ely a red rose~~ of which VI \ valluable / Sc. Robert Skafe, Willam Shutt {Richard Munkhouse, Thomas Morland, Thomas Tunstall & Robert William[son], who has a free Tenant under him. Som of the freeholders as partners in Wilkinsons Tenement at the high end of the S. side row, pay in their courtes a red rose quit \ rent / to Hartley Castle, namely a red rose?} But the most doe hold of Appelby Castle and pay Tenants Rent; which is so high that I thence conjecture they have bin first rased out of the demanes when the mannour house was pulld down & demollished. Which house, as it seemeth, hath stood in the upper end of the towne, i.e. the East end, for there are about X acres of land call'd the Hall Crofts, & XL acres calld the Hall Leeses now, and anciently possest by the Williamsons, freeholders in this Towne, which names doe shew them to have bin parcell of the demanes. And in a place which is called Horne Crofts, adjoyneing Hall Lees, carved ~~hewen~~ stones have bin diggd within memory of man, and / ~~as also~~ slates\ the last year were / ~~have bin also~~ got out of the ground as likewise several years before* which seam the Remanes of the old manner House. But now the Principal house in the Town, to which they give the name of an Hall for the goodness of it, is Mr Robert Skaifes sometimes

[Machell's Notes: III.185

*{Rob. Williamson: where?}[248]

[III.186]

Fellow of Queens College in Oxon & now Rector of Sparshold[249] \ in Barkeshire / being the Chiefe of that name.
2. The next is the house of Mr William Shut, and the third is:

[247] Summer tree: 'originally and chiefly Scottish; a high pole set up during festivals held in the summer, especially at midsummer'. ODNB.
[248] 'Witness: Rob. Williamson. Where was this?'
[249] This is 'Sparsholt'; see below: 'Mr Robert Skaife of Winton Hall \ Rector of Sparsholt'.

3. The school-house, built by his Unckle, Mr William Morland, \ as the chief Benefactor / principal promoter with assistance of the rest of the towne,[250] about 30 years since; in memory of which there is this Inscription ~~upon~~ over the Dooer.

W M
1659
{i.e. William Morland.}

It hath no Indowment, but they give their Schoolmaster 1^{s} per quarter for every scholar,[251] & his meat weakly from house to house.[252]

[Tenure]
The Customary Tenants doe belong to diverse [landowners]: namely to
1. Lord Wharton of Wharton Hall – about 5 or 6, who Answer at Kirkby [Stephen Manor Court] and pay a fine certaine by ancient purchase. (Mr Will. Shut inform[ant])
2. To Richard Burton of Brampton[253] Esq. – 2 or 3, who are Arbitrary Tenants.
3. To Mr John Lowson of Battlebrough in the Burrow of Appleby, about 2 or 3, who are Arbitrary also.
4. Sir [blank] Dalston of Smerdale &c. 2 or 3 Arbitrary.
5. Mr Robert Skaife of Winton Hall \ Rector of Sparsholt &c. / fower or five, Arbitrary.
6. But the chief Lord in this manner of Winton is The Earle of Thannet, Lord of Westm'land, & at whose Court in Brough Castle all the rest of the Tenants doe Suit & Service, being Arbitrary Tenants, & formerly Answered, but it was a great wrong, both there & at Kirkby.

[I.568]
{There are Scaifes now, men of no great account, yet the best of the name in these our days – the […] Warcop Tower being a younger brother. I find mention of one in Inq[uisition] Clifford; 31. Henry VI. [1452-1453]. Bart. Agreement with Apleby. One John Sc[aife] inter Armiger.}[254]

[L. Lammerside Notes][255]

[I.496]
I thinke Lammerset hal is in this parish, of which place I finde This [in ancient evidences]: Thomas Warcop de Lambersate Esq., forsan? temp. Richard 2.[256]

[I.586]
Lambersett hall was formerly a seat of the Warcops. Thomas de Warthcopp de Lambersete – a Juror in the Inquisitio de Matilda filia Beauchamp Relict Clifford 4. Henry 4. [1402-1403].[257]
Item. John de Lancaster de Brampton & John de Helton de Barton.
Thomas War~~th~~cop de Lamberset: 3. Edward 4. [1463-1464].
Vide plura in parochia de Warthcop.[258]

[III.199]

[7. Kirkby Stephen Families]

{Pickerings Machels Crakenthorps}
By Information of old Isbell Wharton of Wharton Dikes – aged 93 at Simon & Jude next ensueing,[259] in this year of Our Lord 1689.
Taken July 8 eodem anno per T.M.

[250] MS: 'Mr William Morland, \ as the chiefe Benefactor / principal promoter ~~with~~ with ~~whatever~~ assistance ~~he could raise in the neibourhood~~ of the rest of the towne'. N.B. Machell sometimes placed pricked lines under words and phrases under reconsideration.
[259] The Feast of St Simon and St Jude is on 28 October.

Hiltons	Mr Christopher Pickering of Threlkeld in Cumberland		One sister = to Machell of Crakenthorp who had =		Another to [Blank] Dalston of Castlethwaite in Graistock Cumberland			Another to Crakenthorp of Newbigin, whence the Crakenthorps
Rowland Skaife had also an estate in the Woulds of Yorkshire	A nat[ural] daughter Frances for whom he purchased the Lordship of Ormsheved and bestowed her therewith on Ciprian Hilton		One of his daughters maryed to Rowland Skaife of Blasterfield & of Winton, which he bought of one Hilton. He had Isue by Mistress Machel		Pickering Dalston | William who sold it to Williams[260] yet left a son now at London. = He afterwards maryed to his 2nd wife [daughter] of Mr Barton who sold Ormside-Hall by ~~whom have~~ had ~~sonns~~ | 2. Row-land | 2. Arthur ad Helbeck	1. Robert | Robert | Robert | 1. Robert now owner of land at Winton	Anna
Hartley 50li	Jane Skaife who was maryed to Hugh Hartley of Melbeck near Kirkby Stephen: an ancient family, by whom she had Isue 8 children: 4 sons & 4 daughters		Elianore, married to Francis Skaife, the younger brother of Miles of Ashby-Grange, who sold it to [blank] whence the Skaifes in Cumberland ~~Rob~~ ~~Arthur~~
Whartons	1. Rowland. s. prole	3. Hew s. prole	4. Robert obijt natas	2. Edward Hartley of Melbeck	1. Elizab--eth obijt in nupta	2. Annas maryed to Thomas Raw of [Blank]		Isabel maryed to Michael W. of Wharto-n Dikes	4. ?

[252] I.e. Whittlegate, explained by the Cumberland poet, Robert Anderson: 'In some parts of Cumberland [the school-master] not only receives quarter-pence, but is provided with victuals at the homes of his scholars, which he visits in succession. This whittle-gait (as it is called) subjects him however to the toil of travelling.' R. Anderson, Ballads in the Cumberland Dialect with Notes and a Glossary (Carlisle, 1805), 144.
[253] In Long Marton.
[254] 'One John Scaife is among the Esquires.'
[255] Lammerside.
[256] Lammerside Castle was rebuilt and strengthened in the 14th century to provide protection against Scots raiders. It is situated between Pendragon Castle and Wharton Hall, see Hyde & Pevsner, 511.
[257] 'Thomas de Warthcop of Lammerside was a juror in the inquisition on the death of Matilda, daughter of Beauchamp, relict of Clifford.'
[258] 'See more under the parish of Warcop.' (Part 1, Ch.23.)
[259] The Feast of St Simon and St Jude is on 28 October.
[260] As this name is placed very close to the binding, it could read as 'Williamson'.

Hugh Hartley of Melbeck | Hugh Raw, now of Kirkby | Lucy Mompl 1. Leonard maryed to [?] had isue Hugh = Mrs Barbara C

3. Robert	2. Edward	1. Hugh, the present heir of Melbeck, an Oxford scholler now liveing	Isabell = 1. To John Fetherston, a younger son of Sir Timothy of Kirkoswald in Cumberland 1. Wharton Fetherston | Wharton 2. Remary to Mr [Blank] Toping soljer, 1689

[III.210]

The Affinity & Consanguinity of the Scaifes, Hartleys & Whartons to The Machells of Crakenthorp & Hiltons of Ormside & Crakenthorpes of Newbiging.

It will not becom to boast of this family but I dar[e] aver, that there is not a Gentleman in Either County of any Antiquity that is not related to the Machells of Crakenthorp. He is not a gentleman that is not of kin to the Machells of Crakenthorp.

[I.588]

[Musgrave Pedigree]
{I have extracted a Pedigree hence; yett the notes may conduce to an historicall account of places. T.M.}

1. Thomas de Musgrave maryd [blank] and had Isue
   - i. Thomas.
   - ii. Richard, who maryed & had Isue ~~Richard &~~ Thomas. He maryed Hilary & had Land in Sandforth & Great Musgrave sine die.[261]

2. Thomas de Musgrave; \ son of Richard / maryed & had Isue {Edward 1.} [1272-1307]
   - i. Nicolas? purchased Lands in Soulby: 1. Edward 3. [1327-28] And had isue:[262]
   - ii. Dominus Robert de Musgrave (vixit 16. Edward 2.) [1322-23]) who was Quere son of Stuart; dyed 39. Henry 3. 1255.[263] So Mathew Parisse.[264] {His wifes name was Agnes, daughter of William E. Ferrars & Darby by whome he had Maybell.}[265]
     1. Richard. (2. of Edward 3.) [1328-29] to whom Robert conv[ey]ed Land in Soulby (17. Edward 2.) [1713-14] He had Robert (vixit 3. Edward 3.)
     2. Robert (16. & 17. of Edward 2.)

[261] MS. '1. ~~Thomas~~ \ Rech / ii. Thomas. Richard, who maryed & had Isue ~~Richard &~~ Thomas [blank] he maryed Hilary & had Land in Sandforth & great M.S. sine die.' 'Sine die': for a period of time with no fixed end. OED.
[262] MS. 'Nicolas? purchased Lands in Soulby: 1 Edward 3. And had isue … Nicolas de Musgrave maryed purchased Land in Soulby – 1 Ed. 3 & had issue.'
[263] This page is very jumbled. Machell has drawn curved lines to show which pedigree belongs to which person, but it is obvious that these particular dates do not fit together well.
[264] Matthew Paris (c.1200-1259), Chronica Majora, a universal history (in several parts) from the Creation to 1259. Bound with the third part is the Historia Anglorum (1250-55).
[265] MS: '{~~He had a daughter named Mable~~. His wife's name was Agnes, daughter of William E. Ferrars & Darby by whome he had Maybell.}'

3. John & Thomas & Edward (2. & 3. of Edward 3.) [1329-30].
6. Isabell, Christany & Johanna.
Robert de Musegrave conveyed Lands in Souleby to Richard his brother (17. Edward 2.) [1323-24]

3. Richard son of Nicolas maryd [blank] and by her he had Isue ~~Robert~~
1. Robert att full aige (10. Edward 3.)? [1336-37]
2. Thomas forsan Post Sir Thomas
3. Richard

4. Robert son of Richard maryed I thinke Johanna the daughter of Johanna Mountney after whose death he was to injoy Crosby Gerrard, Souleby & Little Musgrave; but in case he dyed \ without Isue / those lands should revert to the right heires of Johanna (10. Edward 3.) [1336-37]. She had lands in Crosby Overton, Little Musgrave & Souleby, & Kirkby Stephen (11. Edward 3.) [1337-38]. He was living 29. Edward 3. [1335-36].
1. Agnes, daughter to Robert & niece to Richard {?} to whome she conveys lands [at] Souleby (21. Edward 3.) [1347-48].
2. William.

5. William son of Johanna, marryed & had Isue
1. Thomas, who was ~~s. &~~ heire to Johanna.

6. Thomas de Musegrave, son of William & heir of Johanna (vixit 30. Edward 3.) [1356-57] granted Souleby & Kirkby Stephan to Thomas de Musegrave Chivalier (30. Edward 3. {Mort. 8. Richard 2. 1384.} He lived in [both] the 30th & 47 of Edward 3.[266] I finde mention of Isabell his wife in the 31. Edward 3. [1357-58] and in the 47. He is writt Lieutenant. He had Isue [blank] \ He marryed Margaret one of the daughters & coheires of Sir William Ros of Yelton Knight {and had Lands by her, viz. Haut […][267] Wisseld & Collawood that I thinke was M. de Musgrave. Vide in the Church.} He was Lord de Hartyl[268] Thomas sirnamed the Young.

7. Thomas de Musegrave the Younger married (?) Johanna the daughter of Sir Thomas de Musegrave who granted to him & herr \ & their heires / all his goods moveable & immoveable (Anno 3. Richard 2.)
1. Thomas.

[I.589][269]

8. Thomas de Musegrave (afterwards Sir Thomas) Lord of Harcla, marryed Mary the daughter of John Vaus, widow of Thomas Holland Earle of Huntington. She dyed the 16. of Richard 2. 1392. He dyed in 1409 in the [10th-11th] Henry 4. And after as I suppose Elizabeth dyed & one of the co-heires of Sir William Fits William (ii. Henry 4.) [1400-01].
1. Richard (vixit 11. Henry 4.) [1409-10].
2.? Thomas, who maryed Alice
3.? William to whom \ William / Lord Dacer Warden of the West March.

9. Richard de Musegrave \ after Sir Rich. / son of Thomas de Musegrave Knight Lord de Harcla, maryed Elizabeth the ~~daughter of~~ sister of Sir Edward Bethan de Bethan She dyed 12. of the Callends of Feb. 1419 (3. Henry 5.) He dyed 9 of November 1464 (5. Edward 4.)
? 1. Thomas \ son & heir, / who maryed & dyed durante vita patris.[270]
? 2. Henry, who maryed Mary, one of the daughters & heires of Stap[leton] ut infra.
? 3. William, to whome Lord Daker vid id supra (vixit 17. Henry 6.) [1438-39].

10. Thomas, son & heir of Sir Richard \ de / Musegrave Knight, maryed Johanna one of the daughters & Heires of William Stappleton & Margrett his wife and Henry de Musegrave maryed an other whose name was Marg[aret].
Thomas dyed, Jan. 3 1447 (26. Henry 6.) Johanna {sine die} was liveing a widow in the 34. Henry 6. [1455-56].

---

[266] 47 of Edward III = 1373-74.
[267] The rest of this word is blotted.
[268] The transcription of this word is insecure.
[269] The whole of this page has been lightly scored through.
[270] See the Latin Glossary.

? 1. William Musgrave Esq. (13. Edward 4.) [1473-74].
? 2. Richard
? 3. Nicolas brother, betwixt whome & S \ James / Robert) having […][271]
? 4. Cuthbert Musgrave (5 Henry).

[I.589]

11. Richard Musgrave Esq. had variance with the Bishop of Carlile for the patronage of Musgrave Church, 8. Henry 7. [1492-93]. He was knighted afterwards. That he was son of Thomas appeares out of my notes from the Heralds Office & that he had isue Jane, at forsan if Jane be interlined out of Blenkinsops Pedegree.

Edward: I meet with Edward Musgrave of Hartley Esq. and John Musgrave of Hartley Knight (7. Henry 7.) [1491-92].
Alexander (43. Henry 8.)?!! [272]
? Edward?
Jane
? John?
? Cuthbert?

12. Edward Musgrave of Hartley Esq. He lived in the 7th & so on to the 14th of Henry 7. [1491-99]. & so did Sir John. Query whether he was not a priest & brother to Edward {was living 33. Henry 8.} This Edward had variance with T.B[lenkinsop] about the Bounders of Musgrave & Helbeck fells 17. Henry 7. [1501-02]. This Edward, as appears by my Booke, married Joan daughter & co-heire of Sir Christopher Ward Knight (of Givendale ut puto)[273] and by her had Isue

1. William, after Sir William, who maryed Elizabeth the daughter of Sir Thomas Carwin, & had Isue Richard who maryed \ Ann / The daughter of Thomas Lord Wharton & had Isue Thomas, & Elianore who was maryed to Robert.
2. Edward, who dyed without Isue.
3. Simon, who after the decease of his nephews became h[eir].

[I.591][274]

4. Madalen (25. Henry 8.) [1533-34]. She was maryed to Thomas Blenkinsop of Helbeck, and had Isue by him, besides 5 daughters maryed to 5 Esqs. viz. to Mauchell of Crakanthorp, Pickering of Crosby [Blank][275]

13. Simon Musgrave 3 son of Sir Edward; And att lenth Sir Simon, uncle to the last Sir Richard succeeded to the anceant lands of his Ancestours: as next heire maile. He maryed Julian Elicar of the county of Yorke and by her had Isue 4 sonns and one daughter.

1. Christopher
2. Thomas, \ Captane of the Beauchastle, / who maryed: 1. Carnaby, widow of Witheringtone & mother to Sir Thomas. 2. A Scotchwoman \ There is one Thomas Musgrave now liveing at Beau[…][276]
3. Richard who maryed [Blank] of Norton Conyers the sister of Sir John Dalston of Dalston, had Isue Sir Thomas \ and Sir Richard / but now extinct except Simon […][277]
4. John, who maryed \ Mabel / the daughter & heire of M. of Haton and had Isue William & John, but the Estate settled of a younger brother, uncle to Mabel.
5. [Blank] who was maryed to Sir Nicholas Curwen of Workington.

---

[271] The rest of this sentence is obscured by the binding.
[272] Machell clearly acknowledged this as an impossible date. Henry VIII died in the 38th year of his reign, in January 1547.
[273] 'Ut puto': see the Latin Glossary.
[274] Also numbered p.3.
[275] A note on MS.I.579 reads: 'Maudlin Blenkinship daughter of Edward Musgrave of Hartley Esq. and \ great / Grandchilde to Lord Clifford & Lord Dakers, Had 5 daughters by Thomas Blenk. her Husband – maryed to 5 esquires – Machel of [blank]'.
[276] The rest of the sentence is obscured by the binding.
[277] MS: 'believeing wh[…] was son to Sir […]' The rest of the sentence is obscured by the binding.

14. Christopher son & heir of Sir Simon, maryed Jane the daughter of Sir Henry Curwen of Workington, & sister to Sir Nicholas, so that this was a dubble match. This Christopher dyed before his father, and lef Isue, son & 3 daughters.

1. Richard.
2. Julian, maryed to John Skelton of Armathwate Esq.[278]
3. Mary who dyed unmarryed.
4. Margarett who was maryed to Frances Whitfield of Whitfield (in Cumberland).

15. Richard Musgrave son & heir of Christopher att the aige of fowertene yeres, maryed Francis, the daughter of Philip Lord Wharton, By Fraunces, Daughter of Henry Clifford Earle of Cumberland, and Aunt to Henry Last Earl of Cumberland of That name of The Cliffords. This Richard was by King James Created Knight of the Bath, and afterwards Baronet viz.[279] He dyed att Naples in Italy about the aige of 81, & there he was buryed. He had Isue by her 1 son & 1 Daughter.

1. Philip \ then 7 yeres old /afterwards Sir Philip.
2. Mary who dyed unmaryed ætatis suæ 20.[280]

16. Sir Philip Musgrave Baronett, son & heir of Sir Richard about the 19 yere of his aige maryed Julian the youngest daughter of Sir Richard Hoton Knight of Goldsbrough in Yorkshire, being one of the Judges of the Common Pleas. He was Active and stiring in defence of his Prince King Charles the 1[t] in those Cruell unnatural and most bloody Civill Wars, and dureing the excile of King Charles suffered abundantly both in body and Estate, as indee[d] all the Gentrery in these parts did likewise: But after the restauration of King Charles 2 he was rewarded by being made Governour of the City of Carlisle (& Lieutenant of the 2 sister Countyes Westmorland & Cumberland) haveing allso other offices and imployment by which he retrieved his far spent Estate, & restored his family to a most florishing Condition: being yett liveing & Knight of the Shire for this County of Westmorland.[282] He had Isue by Julian his wife

[I.590][281]

1. Richard, who maryed Margarett, 1 of the daughters of Sir Thomas Harrison in the County of York Knight {By Margarett, one of the daughters of Conyers Lord Darcy, of Hornby Castle in Yorkshire} whose armes are Azure 3 demy Lyons Or; & by her had Isue
    1. Margaret, who dyed young.
    2. One son who dyed an infant.
    3. Mary.
2. Phillip, who dyed about 20 yeres of Aige att Paris in France & was buried att Share[n]ton a Protestant church.
3. Christopher Musgrave Captane of a Company in the City of Carlile; he maryed, 1. Mary one of the daughters & heires of Sir Andrew Cogan of Grenwich in the County of Kent; whose Armes are Gules 3 Laurell leaves slipped, and by her he had Isue
    1. Phillip.
    2. Christopher.
    3. Mary.

    This Christopher was afterwards Knighted in 1671 by King Charles the II[283] and maryed to his 2 wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir John Fra[n]klin & sister to Sir Richard of More Park in Hartfordshire, by whome he had Isue
    1. Richard, who dyed an Infant.
    2. John.
    3. Elizabeth.
4. William dyed about 1 yere old and was buryed att Edenall.

[278] Of Armathwaite Castle, Cumberland, see CFH, 309-10.
[279] Machell left two pecked lines here, for extra material, not given.
[280] 'In the 20th year of her age.'
[281] Also numbered p.4.
[282] See Sir Philip's will and inventory of his residences, CAC(C), PROB/1677/WINVX58.
[283] In the MS, Machell wrote, 'Charles the 1[t].'

[I.590A][284]

5. Simon: who was unfortunately drowned when swimming for divertisment & Recreation in the parish of Wicam, and was buryed in the church.[285]
6. Thomas,[286] brought up in Queens College at the University of Oxon where he tooke his degrees of Bat. & M. of Arts; and after he had bin severall yeres fellow of the said College was removed thence unto his own Country, being parson Great Salkeld & Archdeacon of Carlile. He marryed Mary an other of the daughters of Sir Thomas Harrison, whose elder sister was maryed to his eldest brother; He was maryed September 28, 1674.
7. Frances onely daughter to Sir Phillip was maryed to Edward Hutchinson \ Esq. / of Wicam Abby in the County of Yorke, whose Armes are Ermin, a Griffin Erect or Rap., and by him had Isue: Edward, Julian, Frances, Philip, Richard, William.

[I.590B]

Thomas Musgrave Lord of Hartley	(47. Edward 3.) [1373-74]
dyed –	(8. Richard 2.) [1384-85]
Edward Musgrave of Hartley Esq.	(7. Henry 7.) [1491-92]
? John Musgrave of Hartley Knight	(14. Henry 7.) [1498-99]
Sir Thomas Musgrave gives Mark 20	(3. Richard 2.) [1379-80] to Thomas Musgrave younger, his daughter Johanna.

[I.592]

[Machell's Notes from Flowers Visitation of Yorkshire (1564/68) and Brooke's Cataloge of Nobility (1616)]

[1.] Flowers Visitation of Yorkshire 1564 \ 1568.
From this Thomas & Johanna Stapleton descended these severall Family from the younger brothers.
3 Musgraves of Haton, from the 4th Brother, yet in being.
Musgrave of Penreth, from the 2nd Brother; extinct now for want \ male Isue. /
Musgraves of Crookedake from the 3d; extinct in an Heiress maryed to Sir John Balentine a Scotchman \ & / 2nd Brother there.
There was an award by the Duke of Glocester (20. Edward 4. [1480-81]).[287]
She is writ in her will Jane, anno 1540, wherein she bequeaths amongst other things, to every servant a whole yeres advance and what it woth takeing notice of, to Katherine Allyne her old servant a sufficient living for Terme of her life out of her own Lands at Gyvadall; & the said will is confirm'd by her husband.
Sir Edward & Sir William, father & son, exchanged Lands with Sir Thomas Wharton Knight. One of the King Councill & Gardian of the West Marishes of England in the 33. of Henry 8. [1541-42].
(Hugh Machell Crakanthorp Esq. was appointed an assistant to him \ by a special warrant / under the said Kings signet & signe manual.)[288]
Richard was at full aige (37. of Henry the 8. 1545), & entered upon his lands at Martinmas. He was maryed 38. ejusdem; dyed 10 of September (~~which 5 Hen 8~~) 1555 at Edenall & was buryed there.
2. & 3. Philip & Mary [1555-56], He maryed Agnes, for so she is called in Musgrave writeings – who was daughter to Thomas 1t Lord Wharton & had Thomas who dyed about the aige of 12 or 13. & Elionore maryed to Robert Bowes of Aske in the County of Yorke. Agnes his widow was afterwards maryed to Humphrey Musgrave, of the House of Haton.
[Blank] Marshes pay 100li for work don at Beaucastle (25. Henry 6.) [1446-47]). He had Isue, Richard borne in 1423 (2. of Henry 6.)

[284] Also numbered p.5.
[285] End of MS.I.590: 'Simon unfortunate druned when swimming for recreation.'
[286] The 5th son.
[287] The beginning of this sentence is obscured by the margin.
[288] 'Sign Manual': an autograph signature, especially that of the sovereign authenticating a document. OED.

[I.593]

[2.] In Brookes Cataloge of Nobility [1616][289]
I finde one Robert Musgros (if it be not a different name) son of Richard Lord Derhurst[290] who maryed Agnes daughter of William Earle Ferrars & Derby, by whome he had Isue Mabell, who was maryed to Henry Lord Stafford (è Record 26. Henry 3. [1241-42].)
In the 6. of Edward 3. [1331-32] some Lands [at] Souleby to Robert his son, & Rich. M. had 1. the manner of Souleby (6. Edward), which he conveyed to \ the Lady / Matilda Bedall. I thinke he marryed Johann Beaucham* Sc. 12. of Edward 3. [1338-39], & had Isue William who had Isue Thomas de Musegrave, who granted Souleby and Kirkby Stephan to Thomas de Musegrave Chivalier (Anno 30. Edward 3. [1356-57]).
Sir Thomas (17. Edward 3.) [1333-34]. He was, I thinke son of Richard.†

[Machell's Notes: I.593]
*Quaere? See if here be not a mistake, about the 2 Johannas: 1. wife to Richard & the other to Robert the son of Richard. And whether the 2. Thomas & Sir Thomas, were upon that account of 2 familyes; the one Great Musgrave & Hartley afterwards, the other Little Musgrave.
†Thomas & Nicolas: Brother Edward 1, and sons of Richard.
A free warrant from King Edward ~~2~~ \ 1. / (39. of his Reign in England. In France 19.)[291] Unto T.M. & his heires forever for the Lordships & Grounds of Musgrave Soulby & Crossby, that none should fowle or destroy game.
Sir Andrew Har[c]lay created Earle of Carlile 14. Edward 2. [1320-21]. Executed, 1322.
It is writt \ de / Mussegrave & \ de / Musegrave in writeings sans date.

[8. Things remarkable in] Kirkby Stephan Parish

[III.181]

{1688} \ 3 years since / there dyed an old woman at Blackskar in \ the Lordship of Stanemore. / This parish ab Ecclesia 4 miles N.E. Her name was [blank] Brunskill, who lived to 108.
At Coatgarth \ on Stanemore / in the parish of Kirkby & Lordship of ~~Brough~~ Winton \ ? / dyed one [blank] Morland, a widow, 4 years since, of 109. I saw her \ my selfe / when my Lord of Thanet rid the bounds: ætat 107.[292]

[III.190]

A quarry in Kirkby, Neatby & Wharton parish of white & read marble which endures fier well.

[III.193]

Mr Heugh Raw – informes me that in Dow-Mea on Kirkby fell 3 miles S. from the church, is found in the peat moss a great plenty of firr, insomuch that\ they / scarce can digg or grave for it.[293]

[III.194][294]

Story of a late conjurer in Kirkby.[295]

[289] Ralph Brooke (c.1553-1625), herald, A catalogue and succession of the kings, princes, dukes, marquesses, earles, and viscounts of this realme of England, since the Norman conquest, to this present yeare, 1619: together, with their armes, wiues, and children: the times of their deaths and burials, with many their memorable actions (1619). A subsequent volume (1622) addressed errors in the first edition.
[290] Perhaps, 'Deerhurst'.
[291] There are inaccuracies here. Edward I ruled for 35 years but Edward III ruled for 51 years. His 39th regnal year in England was 1365-66; his 19th regnal year in France (1358-59) was not his 39th regnal year in England; it was his 32nd regnal year in England.
[292] 'When she was aged 107.'
[293] Dig for peat or turf.
[294] This page has been divided into four parts, only one of them facing the reader; the others upside down or at right angles. They have been transcribed in their relevant quarters.
[295] A 'conjuror' was a wizard/witch: one who dealt in the black arts. Reginald Bainbridge, the learned schoolmaster at Appleby, was accused of this by some, see part 1. Ch.1. Parish and Town of Appleby, II.507.

! Query. Midwife: Isabel Pinder near Newbiging in Russendale.[296] Send to the minister to Soulby, Winton, Waller.[297]

[III.192]

Hither Pit, Winton: [A Frightening Tale]
In the libertyes in the Hither pit {about 6 years since} where they wrough[t] from on[e] shaft to another; as they wrought, they heard som thing ~~still~~ \ now & then / working before, picking is Its neer & ~~pullen down~~ \ huing coals. / ~~but sayes nothing till~~ One time the Tralers boyes which draged the coles to the ~~pit~~ \ shaft / mouth where candles smoke upon the side of the worke \ ings (c.), / saw something like a little woman coming out of the \ aforementioned / side wo[r]king (c.) with a candle in her hand, at which, they being very much affrighted, ~~they~~ shout out & cried[298] & came to the ~~pit~~ \ shaft / to be drawn up, & durst not stay one after another but came all up together. As soon as they were \ up, / Mr L. Wharton, \ the farmer of the pit, / ~~being at the Banke~~ being calld from the house by som at the pits who told him the[y] were crying & frigh[t]ed, came to the pit, where presently he heard a great \ shrill / shrike, like the voyce of a woman in a great fright; & the wo[r]kemen within {4 or 5 hewers, 5 trailers}, onely heard \ at the same time / a great rumbling noyse, upon which and the boyes not coming againe, they supposed that som had faln into the pit and so came to see. And Mr Wharton in the meantime ~~being~~ thinking that som of the workmen were killd, sent one Joyn Boyes into the pit, & there the workmen & he met together – & so they made haist to be wound up, one after another.

[III.191]

[III.192]

Figure 1.13.32. Small sketch of the Hither Pit. Letters a. to f. denote areas mentioned in the text. III.192.

Key to sketch
d. e: old shafts
a-e 100 yards.
f. Whitehold […] Shaft[299]

[III.191]

The next day, tho very unwillingly, they set upon their worke againe, but heard nor see nothing till \ about / 3 monthes after. {There 20 years but onely visible in a light.}

[296] This lady is mentioned in Part 1, Ch.21, Ravenstonedale, in connection with the birth of a hare to a female parishioner, Ellin Hardlow (see III.307). Though no one is openly blamed, the allusion is reminiscent of contemporaneous tales about healers. Midwives, like other women healers of the 17th century, were vulnerable to accusations of witchcraft. See Jessica Nelson, 'An examination of witches in the 17th century', National Archives, 8 April 2021, at https://blog.nationalarchives.gov.uk/an-examination-of-witches-in-the-17th-century.
[297] The name 'Waller' could refer to Machell's informant William Waller of Swinesty near Brough, see III.394, above.
[298] Crayed.
[299] Part of this name is obscured by the binding.

Then, workeing a drift to Whitehold-[…]-shaft, which was an old pit full of water, in order to getting the water out of, for ganeing the field that was 50 years drownd; When he came near the pit, the sp[irit] ~~wrought~~ \ seemed to {always wrought} on one side while he wrought the other {to prevent danger} wrought and rumbled to their great amazement{[It] tooke caps of, blew out candles all by single; seen by Rob who went ½ way with him} till at length he strikd through & cryed, the hole's mine – make a hole with the end of his pick, out which the water spouted over his head and presently stop'd agane, which he, supposeing might be don by som dirt & so made it bigger that he could put in his pick-shaft & his hand. ~~And~~ But he, when he found that he could feel the water by putting his hand into the body of it & \ yet / not make it run, he began to grow fearfull, & so came away with all the rest with him, rideing the shaft one after another. The Bankeman being last, thought som thing behinde gave a pat on his back, upon which he grew sick; & so continued for 24 hours.[300]

Then they went from the shaft d. to f., to see how it emtiyed, & it was gon, tho 5 fathom deep to the very mud; but while \ they / lookd on, the mud began to rowl & loyle, & so the pit \ filld / agane with water, {the other shaft (d.) bein cover'd with water \ also / up to the roofe.} And the next \ day / when they went to worke, it was all gon out of both shafts. Then they wrought for draneing another old shaft & it was sometimes workeing afore them, and when they came at the \ old / shaft & had let of the water, in rideing the shaft they found som dead bones like legs & arms bones.}

[III.179]

For a fortnight after,[301] it was heard some times to moane above ground about the pit house. & since that time it ceased, and hath not troubled the works ~~since~~. It went away with a fearful shrike, & frighted 2 familyes out of their sleepe.
Attested by L. Wharton. Joyn Boys of the workman that did.
Richard Bower of West Pit House, now living there.
It[em.] L. Wharton asserit.[302]

[300] An MS margin comment here gives, 'Som time seen before. Both thought one time her coates touched his back.' The text on this page is jumbled with interlineation and marginalia. The transcription aims to reproduce Machell's narrative as accurately as possible, given the difficulties.
[301] MS: '\ + and ~~after~~ /'
[302] 'L. Wharton declares likewise.'

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 14]

[Parishes of Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin]

[Machell's Initial Notes]

[I.335]

[Kirkby Thore]
It is divided into 3 Constablewicks, in each of which 2 C[onstablewicks are] part of the Hamlets: Sc. Kirkbythore & Hale (Grange of Hale) \ ~~where the~~ / & a place cald Spittle (built as tis thought of old for an harbour for pilgra[m]es & travallers).

Milburne & Grange, to which also belongs Kirkhouse, held in ten[ure] of the rector of K[irkbythore] an Gullom Holm – where there is an house or 2 held of Hougill Castle. Temple Sowerby, within which township & at a little distance is Acorn Banke – a pleasant seat lately erected – which is the chiefe place of Dalston of Westm'land, \ a young branch of the Dalstons of Dalston Hall in Cumberland, / who came from Uldale & placed themselves here, whose armes are [blank].

{The rectory}
{A manner in it selfe yet within several tenements, haveing tenements both her[e] and at Kirkhouse & Sowerby.

The Hall
An ancient seat of the Whartons but later to Mr Humphrey Wharton, Cou[n]sellor at Law, by purchase from his cosan & chiefe,[1] John Wharton Esq. who left 2 daughters ~~here maryed~~ Jane the [blank] maryed to Thomas, 2 son of John Dalston Esq. of Acorn Bank, & [Blank] maryed Anthony Hutton Esq., Justice of Peace in the county of Cumberland. His Arms are [blank]{!}

Chaples
[1.] Milb[urn] – anciently endowed, beside what was setled by the inhabitants at the 1st foundation with iiij markes per annum by Robert de Veteripont, son of Johus, to whom &c. was first granted anno [blank]; but which ex gratia are \ somwhat / augmented by the incumbent.
2. Sowerby, with iiij l[i] per annum[2] payable by the town augment[ed] ex gratia by the incumbent. {!}

[Machell's Notes: I.335A]
{Vicar of St Michael – val[ue] an[num] £20: 12: 9½: Episc. Carliol.
Rector, Newb[y] – £04: 14: 0: Mr Crak.}

[The Parish of Kirkby Thore]

[Presented by Thomas Machell in seven narrative drafts]

[I.508]

1. The Rectory or Vicarage: value & Patrone	5. Soyle, & products above & underground as: Wood, water, springs, mines of lead coale stones &c.	Subdivision from into Constablewick, Villages, Hamlets and Private Seats with the names of the Gentry who are owners of them, & their Armes
2. Incumbents since the Restaur[ation] of King: Ch. 2
3. Charityes	6. Things extraordinary in art & nature
4. Bon dayes[3]

[1] See reference to the Whartons as 'chiefe Lords' on I.769, below.
[2] £4 per annum.
[3] Boon days: see the English Glossary.

[I.744][4]

[Introductory Notes on Method]

{A Method for Westmorland General [and] Kirkby Thore parish […]}[5]
Mem[o]r[andum] – Sowerby Charter.[6]
1. de Fam. Macheloram p.1 in cartis affixis[7] is purely Topical relateing to the fam[ily] MS

	[Page]
Totales Libri[8]	2.	}
A Preface	4.	}
Method	5.	}
Of Westmorland in General	6.	}
& its Division into 2 Baronies		}
Of the Barony of Westmorland		}
Its division into ~~parishes Wards~~	7	}
Of the Parish of Kirkby Thore	10	}	Parvi puto nunc?[9]
Of Whelp Castle –		}
& the Catuli	5	}
The posterity of Car.	20.	}
Letter from Dr Mill	21. 22.	}
Fragments of Whelp Castle		}
where discovered	24.	}
A farther Discription of
Kirkby Thore Parish	a 28. ad finem.
Cum Indice.

[Narrative 1]

[Kirkbythore Church and Parish]

[I.768]

{This Church}
{Valuated}It is rated in the 1[t] Fruits Office at payeth the xth to the King – and to the bishop for Proc[urations] and Synodals.[10] And hath 2 Chappels appendant to it; Milburne and Sowerby, of which I shall speake in their proper places.

[I.745]

{Sowerby Chaple}
Norwest from the Church of Kirkbythore lyes the Chaple of Sowerby; which ~~has 2 L~~ appeares by the stones in the wall to have bin built out of Whelp Castle.

[I.768]

{The church is a pretty imbattled building with a comly tower \ and a great clock & bels* / dedicated to the service of God under the name of St Michael the Archangel. Tis well flagd & strawd \ & neatly adorned / on the inside \ & set / but with railes afor the ~~High~~ Altar, haveing a cup for balls: & a font

[4] The page is headed with the following scored-through text: '~~This Inscription Belongs to the Inscriptions Sent to Oxford An Account of them being taken out of it~~,' referring to inscriptions sent to Dr John Mill at Oxford (see Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence).
[5] There are several illegible words here.
[6] This list and its margin comments are written at right angles over text in red crayon; further text has been written over this, causing the 'finished' text to be barely legible in places.
[7] 'In the charters attached.'
[8] 'Totales libri': 'all books.'
[9] 'Now perhaps, of little account.'
[10] See the English Glossary.

whereof [there is][11] a dove appendant to the cover, with a running fountaine to baptize infants in when there is occasion. And the people are suitable in their uniformity.
There are & h[ave] bin since I can remem[ber], these things of note in & about it.
1. The quire.
2. B[…]s. & font.
3. Wharton Porch, where a chantery.
4. On the outside the vestry.
5. The banck side of the church.
6. On the top of the steeple which last shews when the steple was built, that som of the Whartons (the Lord or parson) were chief benefactours.
To this church ar 2 chap[els] belonging. de Qui~~bus~~.}[12]

{The Parsonage house} stands near the Church, almost contiguouse, at the Norwest corner, the new part of which was lately built by one Parson Lowther of the house of Ingleton in Craven in Yorkshire. And here in the dineing roome is a late device \ chimney / I have made to carry the ashes down by a funnel under the grate behind one of the wings of the hall chimney; where there is a doer like an oven mouth to take them out at leisure time.[13] \ I only mention for the good of others. / And by this means the sinders are saved with an iron grate above the funnels & the harth always clean.

{The Indowment. Tithe in kind or not?}
The Rectors receive tithe in kinde of all things in this pr[ec]inct but excepting milk; but in the chappelryes, they pay onely for their tithes.

{The Patronage} of this Church & Parsonage was anciently in the Kirkbythores, Lords of the Manner till [blank] de Kirkbythore son of Gamel &c. gave it freely to Robert de Veteripont from whom it descended to the Cliffords & so to the Tuftons Earles of Thanet and now Patrones thereof; And as it came to these noble familyes by the gift of a Gentleman of this Country so have they freely bestowed there presentations to it upon Gentlemens sons \ and persons of note / [as] may be seen by this succession†.

{Succession of R[ectors]!} Richard Evanwood, Abbot of Shap & Chaplain to King Henry 8.[14]
A Clifford.[15] T. M. Fellow of Queens College Oxford & of the Philosophical Society – Chaplain to King Charles 2 & member of the Convocation of York.}[16]

[11] Two words are illegible here.
[12] 'About which …' Machell did not finish his thoughts.
[13] MS: 'Where in the / And here in the dineing roome is a late device \ chimney – I have made / \ ~~worth mentioning~~ which I made, / to carry the Ashes ~~out of It~~ down by a funnel under the grate, behind one of the wings of the hall Chimney; where there is a doer like an oven mouth to take them out ~~once in year without ever troubling of the dineing roome~~ \ at leisure time'.
[14] 'Richard Evenwode was the last abbot; he signed the surrender under the name of Richard Baggot. However high the abbey may have stood during its early period; corrupt times had been fallen upon under the rule of its last abbot. Richard Evenwode was an absentee. He was rector of the rich living of Kirkby Thore to which he had been presented by his patron, Henry earl of Cumberland, under a contract, which, if legal then would not be now, to pay the previous rector a pension of £30 a-year on his resignation of the living. He also schemed the appropriation of this rich living to the abbey. The transaction was almost complete when the dissolution took place, after which he secured a pensionof £40 a-year: the remaining canons receiving pensions from £4 to £6 each.' This passage has been calendared from G.F. Weston 'The Præmonstratensian Abbey of St. Mary. Magdalene at Shap, Westmorland. Part I.—Historical', CWI, 10 (1899), 286-298, at 298. See Part 1, Ch.22, Shap, III.317-322; see also N&BI, 373-74.
[15] CCED lists clergy from 1568 but the name, Clifford, is absent
[16] Thomas Machell was appointed in 1677; he was rector until his death in 1698. CCED lists at least 10 clergymen at Kirkby Thore from 1568 until the year of Machell's appointment.

{Division}‡[17]
{Other Places in the Manner}
There are in this Lordship besides the village of Kirkbythore, a place calld the Spittel, an harbour perhaps for wayfareing men.[18] N.W. ab Ecclesia ½ a mile, a freehold estate (~~which belongs to Mr John Hall, now under-sherif of the County of Westmorland~~). And ~~another~~ a little Hamlet about N. or N. west; called Hale Grange which is part in the Lordship & Parish of Kirkbythore & part

[Machell's Notes: I.768]
*{A Great Bell, brought as they say from the Abby of Shap: which is not improbable R. Even[s]wood last Abbot of Shap & Chaplain to King Henry 8. been Rector here.}
†{Thus far is General but q. if it will not com in best near the Par[ish] of Kirkbythore.}
‡{Not well I think here but after the Bounder.}

[I.769]

in Newbiging, the Lordships & Parishes being there divided by the Black Sike;[19] that on this side payes all tithes in kinde to Kirkbythore & that on the other to \ Parish of Newbiging. /

{4. Halls or Manner Houses}

[i.] Burwen Hall
Burwen Hall at the East corner of the High Burwens, \ built I suppose before / where Whelp Castle stood; which differs little from a country house; but that it hath this Badge of Honour – on the North side of it.
[ii.] Wharton Hall
Kirkbythore Hall; otherwise calld Wharton Hall because the Whartons built all or most of it; as appears by these Armes on the outside of the cross ~~building~~ \ House / which is indeed the main part of the ~~Hall~~ building. And within it are these Coats of Armes.[20]
Both these places belong to the Whartons who are Lords of the Manner or \ rather / the chiefe Lords; for the \ family of / Crakenthorpes of Newbiging* & the \ Rectors or / Parsons of ~~the Parish~~ Kirkby as Lords of the Manner / have also their tenants & franchass[21] in it. And Crakenthorpe tenents doe suit and service & answer at Newbiging by ancient usage, tho they be of this Lordship †.

{5. The Descent \ Succession / of the Manner & men of note}
This Lordship hath descended & passed through severall familyes, ~~of the~~ \ tho the / Whartons \ of K. / have taken themselves to be the \ first proprietors of it / and this their chiefe house of that name beside; ~~and the Lord Wharton to be their~~ for Wharton Hall is the chief house from whence they [blank]. But it is a mistake, as their Armes ~~both~~ on the church & the Hall \ ends / doe ~~suffieiently~~ testify and the following pedigree will further evince. And besides, it is clear that this Lordship ~~was once with~~ has passed through severall familyes \ since the Norman Conquest, / as first the Kirkby Thores were owners of it; then the Collisans; then the Whartons. And the proprietor, Mr Humphrey Wharton \ of the manner of Gilling in Yorkshire / Baristar at Law, had it by purchase of ~~his cousin~~ John Wharton Esq. who had 3 daughters, and to raise their fortunes, cutt of the Intale & sold the Estate to the said Humphrey, being his relation, to the disinherison[22] of Philip his brother; which if his Ancestors had don so before him had never come to him. {The daughters were Jane; Ann.}

{Other things of note}
There is nothing more of remarque in this ~~manner~~ \ Lordship / but a Tumulus or 2 upon the High More, such as Sr Dugdal[23] called Berryes or Buryes; but wee – Burrows or Broughs, whence the word

[17] A sentence has been scored through here.
[18] See 'Spittlehouse', I.482, below.
[19] For 'sike', see the English Glossary.
[20] There are no images on this page.
[21] A form of 'franchise': 'freedom; exemption from servitude or subjection'. OED.
[22] Disinheritance.
[23] Sir William Dugdale.

Brow, where probably som batle was fought and the dead interd there, which is from the church a mile N. West – and as far S. East.
In Howgil Sike is a curious veine of Plaster Pa[ris] fit for statuaries, far too fine for ordinary.[24] {And som veines of go[o]d clay both blew & read, of which I suppose the bricks & urnes which are found at Whelp Castle had bin made.}

[Machell's Notes: I.769]

*{which extends almost to K[irkby] takeing in Whtaker[25] as I conjecture, sed q.}
†{Lands given to Holm. But an agreement with the Rectors that they should have the decimam garba[rum] – i.e. the Tithe}[26] decimas obtulerunt?????[27]
{Spittle House the descent]}
{Hale Hamlet, the desent.}
{6. The Pedegree & Armes of the Present Proprietor}

[I.770]

Milburne in Kirkbythore Parish[28]

{Milburn Chappel}
N. East from the Church about 2 miles is the Chappel of Milburn, a pretty large building – having 2 bells in it, one of which was lately give[n] by the Lady Bridget, relict of Sir Thomas Sandford of How[gill Castle].

{2. Indowment}
The Indowment – which belongs to the Chaplain or Reader – is utterly lost; nor can I finde any footesteps unless it may be this [blank] but since the late troubles it is discontinued & never like to be restored unless that great family shal of their good thinke fit to pay, so that the Rector hath nothing now but £5 per annum, which Rector of Kirkbythore who placeth him there of his own bounty {Patronage}, is pleasd to give him – Tho by the foundation of all Chapels of Ease the mother church should be kept indemnifyed. All this Chappelry payes tithe in kinde excepting for hay, for which they pay in a small prescription with their Easter Books.[29]

{Monuments}
In the Chappel is one Monumental Inscription of one of the ladyes of Howgill Castle, ingraven as folloeth on a piece of brass in Howgill portch[30] [blank] And in the Chappel yard is the figure of a monke in his habit; som of Shap Abby as I suppose, who were obliged to read prayers there \ for the / said sallary.

{The Divis[ions]}
To this Chapelry belongs
1[t]. The Hamlet of Kirkhouse, held in tenancy by rent & fine arbitrary of the Rectory & Rector of Kirkbythore.
2. The Hamlet of Gullom Holm.
3. The village of Milburne &
4. The village of Mill[burn] Grange, which are all held of Howgil [Castle] \ by the same ten[ure]. /

[24] The rest of this sentence is obscured by the binding.
[25] Whiteacre. 'v. hwīt, æcer'.Whitacre Crag is in Shap parish, Westmorland Place-Names. 'Sed q.': 'But query'.
[26] The 'decima garbarum' is the 'great tithe': the tithe of grain.
[27] 'They presented the tithes????' Machell questions this strongly. Perhaps he was amazed that the land holders had complied.
[28] MS: '~~Of the Chapel & Chapelry of~~ Milburne in Kirkbythore Parish.'
[29] See Machell's research in MS.V.279-87: 'Midsummer Easter booke for Kirkbythore 1607.' See also MS.V. 445-48, 'The Declaration of all Issews, Profits & Commodities coming & rising off the Parsonage of Kirkbythore in Rents, Tyths, Oblations, Wooll, Lamb, Hay, Corne & Grain and all other Spirituall duties, for one whole yeare, ending at the Feast of St Marke the Evangelist in the yeare of the Reigne of our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth Decimo Quinto {1573}.'
[30] Part of the church.

{Grainge}
This ground was [blank] and being under the same Covenant doth & hath alway payd tithe in kinde.}[31]

[I.771]

[Things of note]
{Green Castle} At the head of Grange Beck {E. from the chapel [blank] mile} near an place called Green Castle, which is a round fort with deep trenches about it on the south end of Dun Fell, was this Altar found – erected formerly by the Romans.

DEO SILVANO[32]

which confirmes the opinion of Sir Thomas Smith that our mountains were formerly clad with wood.[33]And West from thence is a place called Silveray-Band*, as if there had bin silver mines there – But however there are very rich lead mine which will turne to silver.

{A quary of read [stone]}
There are coles but of little use, the vaine being smal and very poore upon the same fell. But \ the Royalty of / these are in Appelby Castle as part of the ancient forrest of Milburne, & not in Howgil [Castle]. And if any desire the ancient Bounder of the forrest of Milburne [blank][34]

{Manner House}
The Manner House is Howgill Castle {East a cap. 1 mile} which I reduced[35] from an old darke[36] house to all the beauty which it now hath at the cost & desire of my dear kinsman Sir Richard Sandford, who was barbarously & cowardly stabd†. The walls were of old and are yet in som places. Neer to it a little West is Marbil Skar, a Roc of Plaster in that deep gill behind the h[ouse] which gives name to the place.

{The ped[igree}{Armes} {The Succession of Lands & Men of renoune}
This House & Manner were once in the hands of an ancient family called de Stutivil; then in the Lancasters; & then in a younger, Sc. a 4 brother of the Crakenthorpes of Newbigin, who married the Heiress & placed the Armes honoris ergo in the 1ᵗ Quarter; [37] and at last in the Sandfords who now possess it.

[Machell's Notes: I.771]
*{Silveray-Band. Memorandum: The story of the Toad. in a Letter to Mr Houghton, com by \ him to / the R.S.}[38]
†See in my letter to Mr Adam[s]: Concerneing the Parish of Kirkbythore}[39]

[31] This unclear line was squeezed onto the MS page foot.
[32] 'To the God Silvanus' [of the woodland].
[33] This reference might relate to the diplomat, Sir Thomas Smith (1513-1577), a former dean of Carlisle (see Machell's Preface, I.1616-17), secretary of state and supposed author of A Discourse of the Commonweal of this Realm of England (published posthumously in 1581); but although this volume discusses the pros and cons of enclosure, deforestation does not figure to any large extent. Another candidate (but with a different first name) is John Smith/Smyth (c.1607-1673) author of, England's improvement revived; plainly discovering the several ways of improving all sorts of waste and barren ground and of enriching all earths, with the natural quality of all lands; and the several weeds and plants which naturally thrive therein observed &c.; together with the manner of planting all sorts of timber trees and underwoods experienced in 30 years' practice. 6 vols (London, 1670). Machell quotes this particular author's work on trees in part of his Preface, 'Woods upon the fells' (I.69).
[34] The text breaks off here.
[35] Remodelled. Machell was responsible for the remodelling, see below, I.563-65.
[36] MS; 'drake.'
[37] 'And placed her Arms in the first quarter of the shield in her honour.'
[38] R.S.: Royal Society. There are two toad stories in this chapter; this one is entitled, 'Milburne in Kirkby Thore (1692). A Live Toad found in limstone spar 15 fathom deep', see I.541A, below.
[39] For Adams, see I.565, below, and see Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, I.512-523.

[Narrative 2]

Kirkbythore Parish

[I.548]

[Memoranda and Method]
{In this method I could speake of all my heads: 1. Church – Parsonage, Patrone; 2. Constablewicks & Lords[hips]; [3.] Gentlemens houses & Armes.}
Memorandum: to add an account amongst the extraordinary things of nature – in Cow-Sonsy[40] – her who lived to the age of 120 \ or 28. /
Double claw gilly floores at Shrovetide.
And at Crakanthorp, old \ Thomas / Walker 112; his wife 109.
{Crakanthorp} Great burr from C. woods;[41] building there when it was a wood.
Herinsews in Flakebrig: the Osprey in Dufton Wood; sparrow haukes.
Rasp-berryes at High Close by ~~in Sowerby~~ the side of Eden; belonging to Winderwath & ergo in the Parish of Cliburn.[42] Bleaberryes at [blank] on the fell.

{Kirky Thore. General}
Skarrots[43] at Howgill; hart grass: a sort of moss like to Buckshorne.[44] Maden hair at Argill Brigg in Brough {an amulet against the heart burn}.
Wild Ducks build on Traneberry Mire, which is a peat moss belonging to the Lord of the Manner & near to the Hall.
No Pheasant; no elme.

[III.79]

Maiden hare
Juneper berries
Scurvy gras[45]
Bleaberyes
Globes
Buckthorne undergrows Old Oake Trees.
Harts e\a/se
Ladys mantl
Wilde Time
Burd Een

[I.548]

To the General may be referd Q.C.O.[46] belonging to these 2 sister Countyes, which for knotty logicians, profound phi[losophers] & solemn Divines is not inferiour to any in England: in primi witness Crack[enthorpe …][47] & many Bishops of this last age.

{Generall Highways}
Michael Scot is said with the help of the Divel to have pavd twixt Lond[on] & Carlile, but a fiction.}

[40] See below, I.538-546.
[41] Named in John Gerard, The herball, or, Generall historie of plantes II (1595), 664, as the Great Burre Dock, Lesser Burre Dock or Clote Burre.
[42] The detached portion of Cliburn parish at Winderwath was transferred to Brougham CP in 1935: Cumbria County History Trust, 'Draft History of Cliburn', https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/township/cliburn; see also N&B1, 400.
[43] Possibly skirret or skerret, a form of parsnip; as in 'roasted potatoes, or boild skerrets are your onley lofty dishes', in G. Markham and L. Machin, Dumbe Knight (1608). OED.
[44] Buck's-horn: old name for various plants based on the shape of the leaf or the appearance of branches. OED.
[45] Scurvy grass: 'A cruciferous plant, Cochlearia officinalis, believed to possess anti-scorbutic properties.' A drink or 'ale' was made from it, as in, 'Scurvy-grass drink began to be frequently drunk in the mornings as physic-drinke'. OED.
[46] Perhaps, 'Qu coram nobis resident': 'which things remain before us'.
[47] Two words here are illegible.

[I.549]

A description of the Parish of Kirkbythore in Answer to Mr Adams, his Queryes,[48] which are as followeth

1. Whether it be a Rectory or Vicaridge what Rate, & who Patrone.
2. Incumbents since the Restoration of King Charles the 2[d]? {0}[49]
3. Charrityes? 0. In this Parish there is a Rent Charge laid on The Powes, a parcel of Mr W[harton's] demaines, of 5 markes per annum is distributed to som \ certain familyes: but being it is payable to the viccar / of Warcop & distributed by him & his c[urate], I refer you to a further accou[n]t of this charity there.[50]
4. Boundaries of the Parish with:
5. The nature of the soyle, with product above & underground as corn, hay, woods, waters, springs, mines, lead, coale, stones {interlaced, interspersed, impregnated}
6. Anything extraordinary in Art or Nature.
7. The division of the Parish (which he calls a subdivision)* into Constablewicks, Villages, Hamlets and private seates, with their names and the names of their owners with their Coates of Armes.

[Machell's Note: I.549]

*{It is parted into, subdivided, distributed. This divideth itself.}

[I.550]

{Concerneing the Parish of Kirkbythore {October 1686}

§1. {& the Patrone}
Kirkbythore is a Rectory rated in the First Fruits Office at 37 [li] 17[s] 8½[d],[51] the Patronage whereof is in the right honorable Thomas Earle of Thanet[52] by descent from his ancestours on the mothers side, the Viponts & Cliffords who were Lords successively of the Honor of Appelby & Barons of Westmorland. For Adam, the sone of Waldeve de Kirkbythore (who was son of Gamel son of Whelp the Lord of Whelp-Castle* (as I take it) at or before the Norman Conquest,[53] gave the advowson of Kirkbythore Church [to] Domino Roberto de Veteriponte, by deed without date† in which is mention of the 2 Chapells of Sowreby & ~~Myleburne~~, as members thereof; witness (inter alios)[54] Johanne Mauchell.

§2. Thomas Machell {Incumbent since the Restoration of King Charles 2.}
And one Thomas Machell (late-fellow of Queens College in Oxford, ~~&~~ Chaplain in Ordinary to King Charles the second, now {this 1[t] October 1686} fellow of the Philosophical Society in the said university) is the present Incumbent; being a second brother of the ancient family of the Machells of Crackanthorpe, the next Lordship adjoyneing‡; who are descended from the abovesaid John, & in all likelihood[55] (as may be collected for the affinity of their name & seat,[56] by ancient tradition & deeds without date which I have seen) from the aforesaid Whelp as the Common Ancestor both of the Machells & Kirkbythores, the former retaineing their ancient name with a mark of disfavour, perhaps from the Conqueror, as having opposd him in defence of their Countrey (for they were call'd Maulchiens \ Malchiels & Macha'els / & adher'd to that sirname as their greatest glory (stil holding \ [48] See Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, I.512-523.

[49] William Walker was the first incumbent listed in the parish register following the Restoration. Machell became rector after Walker's death (1677). CCED. Machell refused to acknowledge Walker's predecessor because he had 'bin imposd on the Parish by an High hand in Olivers time', see I.554.
[50] See I.528.
[51] For the First Fruits Office, see the English Glossary.
[52] This was Thomas Tufton, 6th earl (1644-1729), MP for Appleby in 1668. https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1660-1690/member/tufton-hon-thomas [53] MS: 'For Adam, the sone of Waldeve de Kirkbythore (who was son of Gamel son of Whelp the Lord of Whelp-Castle (as I take it) \ at or before the Norman / the Conquest ~~defended perhaps of the old Roman Cambi, as the Altar & Urns & Coynes digged up to this very day in the Rubbish of that ancient & Noble structure may seem to intimate~~'.
[54] 'Amongst others.'
[55] MS: '& in all probability\ likelihood /'.
[56] MS: '(as may be collected \ ~~I do recollect~~ /for the near / affinity of their name & seat…'

therewith / at the least by capitulation), the Lordship of Crakanthorpe idqe non per Drengagium, sed per nobile cornagis servicium sicut ipsi Normanni);[57] the latter changeing it & insteed thereof assumeing the sirname De Kirkbythore, which is long since extinct‡.[58] The name accordeth, for I have seen it written Mulwhelp. The lands which lie near\est / to \ Whelp Castle / lie on the south side fore the Demanes of Hall Malchaels ~~of Crakanthorp~~, as appears by this gift of them to the Priory of Carlile, mention'd in the foundacon charter. And that ancient monastery, which is publishd in Dugdalls Monasticon, and the medow (under it) \ on the S.E. / (which is supposed to have bin contiguouse till intercepted by the millrace), is calld Machells Ing to this very day.

[Machell's Notes: I.550]

*How calld of old.
†{Autograph est penes Comitem Thanet \ Baronem / Dominum de Westm'land apud Skipton vel Apilbeiae castra.}[59]
‡Malchenes, & in Latin, Mali Catuli, per chartas Antiquæ Machellorum Familiæ.
⸸Which ~~they held som time after; which~~ are long since extinct, the heiress being marryed \ as appear by their \ pedigree / to one of the Whertons (~~of Wharton Hall~~) whose descendants (~~al~~though the first Line be cutt of) are Lords of the Manner \ ~~of it~~ / to this very day.[60]

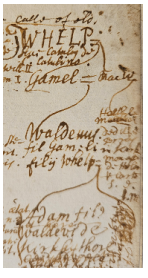

Figure 1.14.1. Sketch of the Whelp Descent. I.550.

[The Genealogies of the Whelps and English Royal Families Compared][61]

How calld of old.
{Temp[ore] William Conq[ueror] [1066-1087] vel ante.[62]	Whelp sive Catulus de C. Catulino.[63]
Temp[ore] Will. II. et Hen. I. [1087-1135]	Gamel = Mach. – Halth de Machael.
Temp[ore] Stephani Regis [1135-1154].	Waldevus fili[us] Gameli, filij Whelp – dedit terras in Kirk. Monast[erij] de Holm. Per carta[m] s[ine] d[ie] J.M.[64]
JM plenæ ætat[is] 25. Hen. 2.[65] quia jura[mentum]cum patri prestitit.[66] Debita autem conventio cum patri ne affidaverat adquietare monachis de Holm terras quasdam an[no] D[omini] 1179.[67]	Adam fil[ius]? \ et heres / Waldevi de Kirkbythore.}[68]

[57] 'And that not by drengage, but by the noble service of cornage, just as the Normans themselves'.
[58] MS: 'The latter changeing it ~~their Ancestours name~~; & insteed thereof assumeing the sirname De Kirkbythore ~~from this other Lordship which they longtime after; but now are extinct~~ {which is long since extinct}.'
[59] 'The autograph/signature is in the keeping of the Earl of Thanet, Lord (Baron) of Westmorland, at Skipton or Appleby Castle.'
[60] On I.151.
[61] The Latin text around and below this genealogy list (not transcribed) is jumbled in parts, but much of its content appears on I.530.
[62] 'In the time of William the Conqueror or before.'
[63] 'Whelp or Catulus of C. Catulinus.'
[64] 'Waldevus son of Gamel, son of Whelp – he gave lands to the Church of Holm Monastery. From an undated charter J.M.'
[65] 'JM being adult, 25. Henry 2.'
[66] 'Because he took an oath with his father.'
[67] 'Moreover, a covenant was contracted with his father not to swear to yield up certain lands to the monks of Holm, A.D. 1179.'
[68] 'Adam son? \ and heir / of Waldevus of Kirkbythore.'

[I.530]

This Adam seemeth to have bin at full age Anno Domini 1179: 25. Henry 2. (who was in the 3rd descent from the Conqueror); for then he una cum patre Waldevo debita conventione affidav[it] monachis de Holm Cultram illo & adquietare de quibusdam terris in Kirkbythore.[69] Ergo Whelp his great-grandfather, must be in (or before) the time of the Conqueror: Reg. de Holm Cultram.[70]

{William Conqueror – William and Henry – Stephen Maud – Henry 2. – Richard 1.}
{Whel[p] Gamel Waldeve Adam}

[I.551]

§3. [Other Incumbents of Kirkby Thore]

Other incumbents since the Restoration of King Charles the II there have not been any but William Walker, Master of Arts of Christs College in Cambridge & somtimes schoolmaster of Gigleswick in Yorkshire; a man skilld in physic, and wel deserveing in other respects if he had not bin imposd on the Parish by an High hand in Olivers time, instead of Mr Lancelot Lowther (~~a very brave Gentleman and~~ an eminent preacher) who was turn'd out of place ~~in the late Rebeliouse times~~ \ in those most dismall & rebelliouse times / for his ~~true~~ \ great / loyalty to King Charles the First & his fidelity to the Church of England.[71] And though it be beyond the due bounds & limits of this enquiry to add any more,[72] yet haveing a catalogue of severall other Rectors by me, I shall not scruple to make mention of them; being generally persons of good ranke & quality. For before Mr Lowther, was one Thomas Warcop Master of Arts: a younger brother of ~~a very good~~ \ an ancient family / in this County of Westm'land, \ tho now in decay / the chiefe of which is ~~Mr~~ Thomas Warcop of Colby \ Gentleman / Alderman of Apleby. Before whom if I be not mistaken, was one Mr Clifford; of the Cliffords of Apleby ~~Egth~~, Earles of Cumberland, Barons of Westmorland, & Patrones of this Parish.[73] And before ~~him~~ (tho I cannot say in immediate succession) was Richard Evenwood, somtime Chaplain to King Henry VIII & \ last / Abbot of Shap.[74] In Ed. 4ths time Mr Henry Wherton, a younger brother of Gilbert de Querton Lord of this manner (of the same blood which now Lord Wharton) was Rector here, & before him {who if I mistake not new modeld the church} in Henry VI time, Roger de Crakanthorp, of a very ancient & worthy family – The Crakanthorpes of Newbigin –who deriv'd that sirname from the Town of Crakenthorp, where they held certain lands, many hundreds of years since, of the Machells of Crakenthorp;[75] as appears by writeings ~~wh~~ I have seen without date; which they answered for till ~~Queen~~ X. Elizabeths Time [1567-1568], & possibly are a branch of that family called de Crakanthorp for distinctions sake.

---

[69] 'For then he, together with Waldeve his father, as part of his agreement, vowed to the monks of Holm Cultram that he would make over to them all his interest in certain lands in Kirkby Thore.'

[70] See F. Grainger and W.G. Collingwood (eds), The Register and Records of Holm Cultram, CWAAS Record Series VII (Kendal, 1929).

[71] Rev. Lancelot Lowther. The records are muddled, to say the least, because there were two Rev. Lancelot Lowthers in Carlisle Diocese at this time, resulting in conflicting biographies in CCED, OAD and Nicolson and Burn. B. Nightingale considered the matter fully and decided (but not confidently) on the following: 'A Lancelot Lowther was instituted to Kirkby Thore in 1629. The son of William of Ingleton, who was the 8th son of Sir Richard Lowther, he held Kirkby Thore in plurality with the rectory of Workington. When the Roundheads forced him to surrender one of these livings he chose to keep Kirkby Thore, where he was recorded as rector in 1654.' Machell was certain that Lancelot Lowther was sequestrated fom Kirkby Thore for his beliefs, yet Nightingale notes that he was able to move smoothly to the rectory of Long Marton, where he died in 1661, after which his wife petitioned Charles I for financial relief following his 'sufferings'. See Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 1*,* 1165-1169. The other Lancelot Lowther was the son of Christopher Lowther; he held the rectory of Addingham from 1646: Ejected of 1662, 1, 351-53.

[72] A margin comment, scored through at this point, repeats the previous sentence.

[73] Nicolson and Burn refer to Roger de Clifford as rector of Kirkby Thore in 1343 and 1345. Ralph de Brantingham was presented to the vacant rectory in right of Robert, son and heir of Robert Lord Clifford, then an infant and ward of Edward III: N&BI, 373.

[74] See 'Narrative I', I.768, above.

[75] The passage in the MS repeats itself in prolix fashion; an edited version is offered, above.

[I.552][76]

In the 48 yeare of Edward 3. [1374-1375], I finde William de Corbrig was Parson here. And \ I finde / before him in a writeing (sans date) one Mr Adam de Kirkbythore (official of Carlile)* who perhaps was son of the forenam'd Adam[77] who gave the Advowson of this church to the family of the Viponts. And these I have \ bin / the more willing to mention, to show how worthy & ~~indeed~~ truly generouse the Noble Patrones of this Parish have bin, who as they receiv'd the Donation at first by way of free gift from a Countrey Gentleman, soe have they been ready upon all occasions to bestow the same freely upon Gentlemens sons (& for defect, upon some other worthy & eminent persons) who liv'd in this Countrey; so that this may be called the Gentlemens Parsonage, as tis now the most noble & genteel preferment in the County of Westmorland, being much improved in many respects by the present Rector.[78]

But these Incumbents, having bin generally of \ very / good ~~ranke &~~ quality & liveing accordingly; has given occasion to \ a / shrewd \ reflection / remarque ~~which is almost grown up \ in / to a Proverb~~ {by way of comparison betwixt this Parsonage & that of Newbiging, which is but a small one} \ in / that there never was a Poore Parson of Newbigin ~~which is but very small preferment~~ nor a Rich one of Kirkbythore.[79]

§4. [Bounder][80]

It ~~This Parish~~ lyeth on the East side of the Great River Eden† {which divides it all along on the West from som part of the Parish of Milburne, the Forrest of Whinfell, & Bolton Field in the Parish of Morland. Sc. – from the foote of Blenkarne Beck below Eden Bridge up the said river to Old Troutbeck Foote near Machells Well 3m.}[81] On the south side it is bordered with the Lordship of Crakenthorp in the Parish of St Michaels ~~de~~ Apleby, (vulgo) \ commonly called / Bongate \ Par[ish] / from which 'tis divided by (with stones pitched up \ by the 2 gurges[82] / in the ancient channel of the River Troutbeck and also som part of that river) ~~from~~ \ Sc. from the place called / Old Troutbeck Foote where it has formerly run to Kirkbythore Bridge{within ½ mile & a quarter.}[83]

On the South-east & East[84] it boundes upon Marton & Dufton Parishes, being divided from them by Troutbeck aforesaid (from Kirkbythore Bridge {1m.} \ where we left of / ascending eastwards to Howgill-Sike Foote \ (1m.) / thence ascending by Howgil-Sike northwards {1m.} to Annet-Well \ Head / where it first springs \ 1m. / Thence by a Bow-line (towards the N.) to Nichorson Cross{½ m.} takeing in the hill where it hath stoode {½ m.}. Thence agane by a crooked line‡ to Swinside Head \ 1m. / (a pasture at Grange, now belonging to Howgil Castle). Thence

[Machell's Notes: I.552]

*Cui Will. Ma. Catulus \ Dom. / de Crak. Terras dem[ainias] s.d. \ [per] cartam / Testis apud cartam Adami filij Liolfi de Kirkbythore s.d. in Cartul[ario] de Holm C[ultram.}[85]

†{~~The fish of which hath time out of minde belonged to This Rectory, & soe doth stil~~ which payes Tythes to the P. haveing ever done so time out of minde.}

‡{A streight line ascending N. to the S. corner of Long Holme: ½. Thence by Longholme Dyke to Grange Beck at \ a place / Stank Head ½. {½? Query of this by Knock bounder: whether the same with Stank Head.}

---

[76] The following comment appears at the head of this page: '& this disp. I wish they w[ould] sh[ow] a bet[ter] or[i]g[in].' To what this refers is not known, though it might allude to the catalogue of rectors, first mentioned on I.551, above.

[77] MS: 'whom I take to \ perhaps was son / son of the forenam'd Adam ~~de Kirkbythore~~.'

[78] Another passage full of repetition, now removed; 'the present Rector', of course, was Thomas Machell.

[79] For Machell's financial problems, see 'A Narrative about a Chapel at Sowerby' below, from III.229.

[80] This is one of several versions of the bounder of Kirkby Thore; as all differ slightly, they merit comparison; see also 530B-32; 552-53A.

[81] MS continues: '§4. ~~To [blank] Parish is Bordered {3m. 2m.}~~'

[82] Gurges: whirlpools. OED.

[83] Another passage full of repetition, now edited out.

[84] An interlineation placed here is largely illegible.

[85] 'To whom William Malus Catulus, Lord of Crakenthorp, [gave] demesne lands \ [in] an undated deed / Evidence in a deed of Adam son of Liolfus of Kirkbythore, undated, in the Register of Holm Cultram.' See Grainger and Collingwood (eds), Register and Records of Holm Cultram.

[I.553]

{2m.½} by \ Swinsey-Beck or / Grange-Beck (otherwised called Burney-Beck) to \ Nuckerdale Head near a place / an Hill calld Green-Castle, where it takes its rise; \ 1. / Thence \ directly / by a settle or hollow (which takes in High Dunfell) \ on the outside the skirtes of [blank] to Dalesikehead 100 yards down it / to the head of Fell-Troutbeck Rill \ where Dalesike runes into it (1m.). / Thence, by the said rivillet till \ it / receives another call'd Moss Burne (3m.); & haveing don soe divides this Parish \ all along / on the East from \ the Parish of / Dufton {until you} descend to Trout-Beck-Foote where it enters the Teas.[86]

On the East & N.E. it is bounded with a place called Tine-Head in the Parish of Alstan \ ? / & County of Cumberland* (from which 'tis divided by the said River Tease: from Fell-Troutbeck-Foot up to Fall Cragg). \ & / here the Parish of Kirkland ~~first~~ begins, ~~which~~ \ and / hemms it in all along on the North side (as the utmost ~~Limit~~ \ Parish / of the Countye of Cumberland) \ & / from which tis divided by the said River Teas from Fall-Cragg aforesaid, to the ~~spring-head~~ \ place where it springs / at Cross-Fell Nooke†; \ & / thence by a settle call'd (as I take it) Blenkarne-Dale twixt \ the mountan / Cross Fell & The Lower-Dunfell to the springhead of Blenkarne-Beck {rogat L. Rob.}[87] Thence, by that river (excepting where its course hath bin altered) till it enters ~~into~~ Eden not far from the Bridge where I take in \ (designedly:) /

[§5.] The Parish of Newbiging

The parish of Newbiging, being of old (as I am informed) a Canton of this & passed off \ from it by a Legal Consent‡ / {within which circumference} for a certain Quit-Rent of Ten Groats per Annum with Altar service 2 dayes in the year at Kirkby Thore Church (a considerable rent in the dayes of old, when the whole Rectory of Kirkby Thore upon inquisition in the 8th year of Edward 2. was but valued \ return'd / at xx/iiij marcks).[88] But on the other hand, the Rectors of Newbiging clamed as \ their / due (when they came to assist at the Altar \ there /) to have a Dinner for themselves & their Doggs (a tradition of such undoubted credit that Mr Barrow late Incumbent of Newbiging, sent word to the Rector of Kirkby Thore that now is, upon his first enterance, that he ought him that homage, & would com & pay it;[89] but death prevented him while the other was absent in his year of Grace at Queens College in Oxford.[90]

[I.501]

{Old Mr Barrow Rector of Newbiggin, 2 dayes in the year, Easter & Michaelmas. & ~~he~~ was to receve from the Rector of K[irky Thore] when he did the said service, his Dinner – one Day dinner.} {Thomas Langhorn præter is to have Mr Barrow […] assist on an Easter Day.}[91]

---

[86] MS: '{until you} \ descend / com to Trout-Beck-Foote where it ~~takes~~ \ enters / the Teas ~~which~~ \ ~~springs not far hence, & enters the sea haveing passed Newcastle at T~~ /'

[87] MS: '… to the springhead of Blenkarne-Beck \ ~~which is / otherwise called Dunfell-Beck~~) {Ask L. Rob}.'

[88] 24 marks. A charter of Hugh de Temple Sowerby was witnessed by Walter, rector of Newbiggin. Walter appears in the Coram Rege Rolls in 1258–59, when an action was brought against him and one other person by Robert de Veteripont because 'they entered his park of Whinfell and there took stags and bucks without his leave'. John, son of Roger de Lancaster, by his will dated January, 1353/4, left a bequest to the church of St. Edmund de Newbiggin and Robert, rector of Newbiggin, was one of the witnesses. See J.F. Curwen, Later Records of North Westmorland (Kendal, 1932), 183-85.

[89] MS.I.554: 'In which boundary I have designedly taken in Newbigging \ on the north side the Parish / It being of old (as I am informed) a Canton of this & passed away [blank]'

[90] A margin comment originally placed at the top of I.554. According to CCED, Christopher Barrow was rector of Newbiggin from 1664 to 1680. The term, 'year of grace', refers to the career trajectory of Oxford fellows in Machell's time and beyond. Fellows were obliged to remain single during their tenure, but in most cases, those who married were allowed to remain as fellows for one year; their year of grace. See James E. Thorold Rogers, Education in Oxford (1861, Frankfurt, 2022), 249. Additionally, any fellow who inherited property or was appointed to a parish worth more than a certain value had to resign his post, usually after a year's grace: see Robin Darwall-Smith, 'The Problem of Georgian Oxford', Histories of Universities XXXV/I (Oxford, 2022), 17.

[91] 'Thomas Langhorn, præter, is to have Mr Barrow [two words illegible] assist on an Easter Day.' The only Thomas Langhorn in Carlisle diocese (known to CCED) was the perpetual vicar of Stanwix, who was also a minor canon of the cathedral; he died in 1614. CCED.

[Machell's Notes: I.553]

*{Query whether Tinehead in Alstan Moore be in Cumberland or in Northumberland. Ask w[hat] Tod?[92] & L. Robinson thinke. The Southwest of Tinehead is in Northumberland, the Norwest in Cumberland in Alstan Parish.}

†{Where ~~that great river~~ \ it first / springs & \ after many meanders & windeings / dischargeth itself into ocean beyond Newcastle at Tinmouth Shields.}

‡{[Quo] Warr[anto.]}

{There is another Beck called Dunfellbeck which springs betwixt the 2 Dunfells & runnes west twixt Milburne & MidleTong & is all in the Parish to Midletong Foote where it enters Blenkarne-Beck. In this Bounder I have designedly taken in QV,[93] the ~~smal~~ Parish of N[ewbiggin.]}

[I.553A]

[Conclusion of the Boundary]

& on the West it divides by the River Eden from som part of the Parish of Cliburn, Julian Bower in the Forrest of Whinfell & Boltonfield in the Parish of Morland: Sc. From the foote of Blenkarne Beck below Eden Bridge all along up the River to Old Beck-Foote near Machells Well, where we first began.

[I.554]

{§6.} Parish of Newbigging [continued]

And here I thinke fit to enter this caution that the parish of Newbiging, by its ancient Boundes, cannot extend so far on the more as the Right & Priviledge of that Lordship now doth; because they gained a considerable accession \ from off ~~K. Moore~~ / Kirkbythore More; by grant from the Cliffords many hundreds of years after that Lordship became a distinct & absolute Rectory, so that its limits upon the said moore are \ or should be / according to the ancient Bounds of that Lordship.

But to returne ~~agane~~ to my subject, Kirkbythore Parish:

{§7. Nature & top[ography] of the soyle, above & underground}

The soyle thereof is of several sortes;[94] in som partes read sand, in others yallow; here black mold, there brown; in som places gravel, in ~~& in~~ others clay, both read & blew: But for the ~~generally~~ \ most part it is very / fertile, especially for corne, which yeildeth best of any in the countrey.

[II.529]

Ad Howgil Castle: The oate stalke that was shown me att Howgill Castle was 2 yards & ½ long.

[I.554]

The \ high / moores & mountaines affordes good fuell & pasture for sheep,[95] which are generally sound; \ & / the lower for cattle {!!!} but the want of \ cow / pastures \ for the common sort / is the greatest defect, which by improvement might easily be helped. It hath bin formerly well replennished with wood, most part of the Parish being a Forrest old; but now there is little unless it bee in the Chapelry of Sowerby & the Lordship and Chapelry of Milburn,[96] which are \ far / remote from Kirkbythore Town (A wilfil wast makes a woeful want)[97] & the only fuel ~~which~~ they now have remaneing (excepting coals which they fetch from Hartside \ at 10 miles distance / are turfes & peates.

{Under §8.}

But yet in the mountains there are out-bursts of coales which might \ prove peradventure/ ~~be~~ of great use unto all the neighbour-hood; & of great advantage to the Lords of the Fees if they would but sinke for them; whilst in the mean time they \ lye neglected & / onely serve such \ poor / countrey people as can pick them out for burneing of Lime-Kil[n]s. {A good fuel; & are so likewise the breed & plenty of

[92] Unclear word.

[93] Quod vide: 'which see'.

[94] MS: 'The soyle ~~of~~ \ thereof / The Parish of Kirkbythore is of several sortes.'

[95] The pecked line demonstrates that Machell was in two minds about keeping this phrase but it reappears in §8. at the foot of I.554.

[96] MS: 'but now there is little, ~~I may say none at all except~~ \ unless it bee / in the Lordships of \ Chapelry of / Sowerby, & \ the Lordship {of Chap.} / Milburn'.

[97] A proverb first recorded in 1576, J. Speake (ed.), The Oxford Dictionary of Proverbs (Oxford, 2015), 346.

fowl. The high moore & mountaines aford good fowl which are called here black cock or gorr fowls, as likewise plovers both green & gray, & are a very sound pasture for sheep which seldom faile: & so likewise are the lower for cattle.}[98]

[I.555]

{§9. [Silver Mines]}
On these mountains allso there are silver mines, as som do imagin; being thereto induced partly by the names of certain places upon the Fells which are called Silveray & Silveray-Bands; partly by an old Rimeing Prophesie of Mother Shiptons (called here Gillemans Wife from her former husband as they relate)[99] who passing these mountains & taisting the waters which isued from them is said to have deliver'd these \ promising / verses:

> They that are awn'd to open Dun'fel sneck
> May measure out their silver in a Peck.

{Awned: i.e. appointed or permitted by good evidence.}
{Sneck: the latch of a dooer, with which it is shut & by which it may be opened, aluding here to riches shut up in the chambers of the earth.}
{A Peck is a measure here conteineing \ 4 or / 5 gallons, the former being called a Ryes Peck, & used for ~~the latter~~ measureing Rye \ & / Wheat, Beans & Pease, the latter a Bigg Peck with which they measure their Bigg or Barley, & all other sortes of corn or grane: 4 of each sort make an Apleby Bushel.}

{§10. [Lead Mines]}
Here are also lead mines which discover themselves in the […][100] bankes of the rivers ~~& sikes~~. But the most remarkable {?} is that below Dunfell at Silveray-Band: a very rich one now wraught under & farmed by the Marquess of Winchester of the Earle of Thanet as Lord of those Wastes, being within the Bounds in the forrest of Milburn.[101] {And if these Noble Persons would pay the tythe freely of what they get there, it would cross the old proverb, & make a rich Parson of Kirkby Thore.}[102]

{§11.} And in the very skirtes of the mountaines there is plenty of limestone; & freestone alsoe of \ a / readish colour, which this parish affordes in great abundance excepting \ only / ~~the Lordship of~~ in Kirkbythore \ Lordship / where there is ~~not any~~ \ none. / But that defect is supplyed by Nature (if Arte would put to her helping hand) \ as she hath don formerly / in a very large veine of curiouse blew-clay, like unto marle, near Parsons Close at the East-end of Kirkbythore Towne,[103] which would (I believe) make as good brick as any in the world; & likewise all sortes of earthen vessels: for I doe suppose that those ~~strong bodyed~~ \ curiouse / bricks which ~~are~~ \ the plow casteth up at the place calld the / ~~at High~~ Burwens (where Whelp Castle stood) with the urnes & pots which are found thereabouts; were ~~all~~ made of this clay.*

---

[98] MS: '{A good fuel; ~~good store as to fowles~~ & plovers both green & gray & are a very sound pasture for sheepe so likewise is the & breed plenty of fowl, which are called here, black cock or gorr fowls, as likewise plover green & gray rarity. The High moore & mountaines aford good fowl: gorr fowle; and plovers both green & gray, & are a very sound pasture for sheep which seldom faile: & so likewise are The Lower for cattle.}'
[99] Mother Shipton (floreat 1530) was a largely legendary prophetess and supposedly ugly witch from Knaresborough. An anonymous pamphlet, The Strange and Wonderful History of Mother Shipton (1686), explained that she was baptised by 'the Abbot of Beverley' as 'Ursula Soothtell' (in later versions 'Southiel' or 'Sonthiel') and at the age of twenty-four she married a carpenter from York named Toby Shipton: A. Kellett, 'Shipton, Mother'. ODNB.
[100] Some interlineated text (2cm) is illegible here.
[101] Several repeated sentences have been deleted from this passage.
[102] See above (I.552), Machell's wry comment that, 'there never was a Poore Parson of Newbigin … nor a Rich one of Kirkbythore.' For the intense frustrations felt by Machell on the subject of his income and its control, see below, III.231, onwards.
[103] MS: 'like unto Marle; \ [2] / at the east-end of Kirkbythore \ Towne / near \ [1] / Parsons Close'.

{§12.} Rivers and Springs

Besides these advantages,[104] this parish is also also extreamly well watered with rivers & springs, a great cause & argument of a fruitfull place. The former may be seen by the boundary of it, being almost incompass'd with rivers ~~of water~~ \ ~~which are~~ / well stored with fish \ especially troutes; / the latter is obviouse to every eye: there being not a Town nor Hamlet in the Parish that doth not afford a great many springs. But the most remarcable are these that follow:

[Machell's Notes: I.555]

*{N.B. For I do suppose that those ~~fine coloured~~ \ curiouse / bricks which the plow casteth up in Whelp Castle Ruines \ and made of this clay / & which may be counted among the rarityes of this County, not only because of their fine contexture colour & hardness, but allso because there are none \ other / found in Westm'land interlaced; nor never were except~~ing at~~ \ those / Mr Camden ~~speakes~~ at Apleby calld Brittish Brickes \ of / which I never yet was so happy as to meet with a sherd.}

[I.556]

i. Machells Well which springs in the very South point of this Parish at a place called Sowber, & runns into the ancient channel of Troutbeck near to the place where the 3 Lordships of Crakanthorp Bolton & Kirkbythore meet, as hath bin said, 3 several Parishes.[105] {This yeildes a most delicate and wholsom water; which hath bin successfully taken in Feavours, a small taist of vinegar being mixed \ there /with.}

ii. Hippocrene:[106] an ancient well lately discovered by the foote of an horse.[107] It is in the ~~very high street~~ \ Downe End / of Kirkbythore \ near / to the Bridge ~~end~~, & by the side of the \ great / Romane-Way which leadeth from Apleby to the City of Carlile*: in which was found urnes & several curiouse fine earthen vessels with greyhounds & other figures upon them; ~~with~~ the cusp of a spear; and sandalls whose soles were struck ful of nales & sow'd together, not with thread but \ with / leather; Most of which were \ carefully / preserv'd ~~&~~ design'd & discrib'd in a \ late / letter ~~writt~~ to Sir William Dugdall by the present Rector, which letter being printed \ (~~without his privacy~~) {for the rarity of it} not only at London, but at Oxford allso amongst their Philosophic Transactions.[108] I need say no more concerneing this fountaine: but that it is also near to ~~the~~ \ a / place where 3 Lordships meet (in 3 several Parishes); Sc. Crakanthorp Brampton & Kirkbythore.

iii. Dobkill-How Well: which is in the street call'd Wharton End, directly opposit to Kirkythore Hall & in the way to it;[109] concerneing

[Machell's Notes: I.556]

*{I have mentiond Paulinus in that relation,[110] è Speed p.171. There was another Bishop of Nola in St Augustine's time, p.277, §10.}[111]

---

[104] MS: '~~Besides all these helps~~ \ besides these advantages /'.

[105] MS: 'Crakanthorp Bolton, & Kirkbythore (~~in 3 several Parishes~~) meet ~~altogether~~ \ as hath bin said / 3 several Parishes.'

[106] Hippocrene: 'a spring on Mount Helicon: fountain of the horse, so called because it was fabled to have been produced by a stroke of Pegasus' hoof. The Hippocrene spring was sacred to the Muses; its waters were said to imbue the drinker with poetic inspiration'. OED.

[107] Machell described how this well gained its name in a letter to William Dugdale, 25 March 1684, and read out at the Oxford Philosophical Society the following month: 'Your love to Antiquity, and my Obligations to you are such, that I cannot omit to give you an Account of a strange Well, discovered here about a week since by the foot of an Horse which stumbled upon it; and therefore may be called the Fountain Hypocrene.' Philosophical Transactions 14, 158 (1684), 554-8 https://royalsocietypublishing.org/toc/rstl/1684/14/158.

[108] For more information on Machell's letter, see I.534; see also, Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, VI.200.

[109] The first part of this sentence was originally placed at the foot of I.556.

[110] See Machell's Preface, I.136.

[111] The reference to Paulinus, bishop of Nola (died c.422), is correct, see John Speed, The Historie of Great Britaine Under the Conquests of the Romans, Saxons, Danes and Normans… (London, 1611), 277; see also, 334-35. For Speed's references to Paulinus Suetonius, see Historie of Great Britaine …, 170, 197-99. Paulinus, which, and a place near the miln called Stack or Stake, which growes ~~excellent~~ \ very good / oates, they have that saying (as if Bacchus & Ceres had combin'd together to make the Town charming, delightful & pleasant):[112]

[I.557]

> No Kirkbythore hater can the village forsake
> If he taist Dobkil-water & a Banack of Stake.

{v. Potts-Well,[113] which springs on the North side of Kirkbythore thereof in a pasture call'd Potts, & seemes to proceed from som sort of mineral. It promiseth coale in the places adjacent, as som do believe,[114] and has bin accounted of singular vertue in cureing old sores.}

vi. Marble-Skar-Well, in the Chapelry of Milburne, near Howgil Castle, which hath 2 heads; the higher ~~one~~ whereof supplyes the Castle \ for their necessary uses / & lower is said to be good for sore eyes – & so likewise is:

vii. Lucyes-Well,[115] near Acorn Banke in the Chapelry of Sowerby; so calld from Mrs Lucy Dalston, late wife of the present John Dalston Esq. (& the last of the Fallowfields of Strickland in Westm'land) who used to visit it, & recom\m/end it to the blear eye'd Leahs, as good for their sight.[116]

I would mention no more, but that other 2 lye just in my way; Sc. Aplegarth Well at the North end of Sowerby, & The Strand at the South end;[117] the latter of which is excellent water; & both of 'em good (as all ~~for water~~ others are) for watering \ of / cattle and promoteing good Huswifery.

{Castrum Catuli. Ruin of Whelp}

Other ~~such~~ things within this Parish which deserve observation for their curiosity in Art or Nature† are Whelop Castle as Camden (see Camden [blank)[118] calls it in the Dictionary, Whealp,[119] or rather (as we being more surely taught out of ancient records)[120]
The main body of it has stood (as I guess from the ruines underground) in a place call'd the Burwens, on a riseing hill at the banke of Trout-beck & not far from Eden, having an easy ascent \ unto it / on every side; but a large champion prospect[121] with fair fields & meadows under its walls,

[Machell's Notes: I.557]

*{From ~~out~~ that ancient & long since honourable family.}
†{§13. not to mention what I have spoken \ before / concerneing Hypocrene, which justly requires to have a place here.}[122] secretary to St Ambrose, was encouraged by Augustine to write the 'Life of St Ambrose': see Michael J. Walsh, Dictionary of Christian Biography (London and New York, 2001), 959.

[112] MS: '\ ~~pleasant, charming~~ / ~~delightful and charming~~ delightfull and pleasant.'

[113] Machell has omitted iv, continuing on to v.

[114] MS: 'It promiseth Coale ~~as som do imagine~~ \ ~~as hath bin thought~~ / in the places adjacent; as som do believe,'

[115] MS: '~~Is~~ 7 Luceys-Well'.

[116] 'Blear-eye'd Leahs': See Genesis 29.17. The Wycliffe Bible (1394). 'But Lya was blere iyed, Rachel was of fair face, and semeli in siyt.' Other versions change 'blear-eyed' to 'tender-eyed.'

[117] The list of wells also appears in MS I.534 and I.556.

[118] Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637) describes the place as 'Whealop', 'Whellop' and 'Whellep', see 761.

[119] A small amount of interlineated text here is almost illegible.

[120] MS: 'or rather (as we ~~wel It~~ being more surely taught out of ancient Records) ~~And the Curiosityes which It yet doth afford~~).' See I.535 for another version which completes the sentence.

[121] For the meaning of 'champion country', see the English Glossary.

[122] There are many references to the fountain hypocrene in Machell's volumes, for example, see I.556, below; see also a letter from Machell to William Dugdale in Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, VI.200.

[I.558]

the like of which is not to be met with in the County of Westm'land: & has bin rendered yet more delightfull by the 2 famous forrests of Whinfel & Milnburne; this, on the North-east, & just at hand; that, on the West, at about a miles distance; both stored with wood & well replenished with Read-Deer & fallow; as the former continues to be, at this day.[123]

§14. The square inclosure called High-Burwens seems to have bin the area of it, conteineing VIII score yards in diameter; now plowed & cultivated: & the outer buildings \ mantle & gardines / to have run down along by the River Troutbeck at the least as far as the Fulling Milne,[124] {or rather over the Roman-Way, because on the other side of that Street when they dig'd the foundation of a little kill or dwelling house near to the bridge on the left hand as you goe towards Carlile,[125] they found vessels of brass, fine earthen ware also \ som of it mounted […] white and read,[126] / & a Bar as thick as any man's leg, but so tender'd with rust that it fell all in shivers:[127] which makes me suspect that it might \ there enter and / extend hither, & taken Hippocrene*. See §17.}
{Hence the Castle or outbuildings at least have runn along.} Thence \ it has gon up the West side of the said / ~~up the~~ Romane-Way call'd The Street (which leadeth to Carleol) about VIII score yards: & so up agane in a streight line to the West point of the foresaid area {all which circumference 9}. For in all these places the vestigia of it {have bin discovered by conduits \ underground / for water; fair pavements of floors;[128] & tiles & slate shut off from the house, with ~~had~~ iron nales in them, by which they ~~were~~ \ have chiefly / hung. But most of all by brick & stone walls, all underground,}[129] the brick ones they say (which is no vulgar observation) being a yard thick.

[Machell's Notes: I.558]

*{Let this a local description}. Hic steterit Catuli Regia celsa senis.[130] This will com in better after.[131]

[I.559]

Tho I must confess the impression in som looks rather like an excavation with repeated strokes[132] \ & desined for ornament, representing waves \ like that within which in Leenster is called Irish Stick.[133] / They are to be seen \ in the Hall, Church & Parsonage / almost in every house in the Towne, their Coyne \ stones / & Jaumes being generally of them; since for want of timber they left of the ancient Forrest work, & the stud walls were plasterd both on the inside & out as I am informed,[134] with a mixture of lime, gravel, sand & bricks, beaten small 3 inches in thickness, which is almost as hard as a pow.[135]

---

[123] See I.509 for a similar narrative.
[124] An asterisk (see '*') leads the reader up the page to text in the top right-hand margin.
[125] MS: 'when they dig'd the foundation of a little ~~kill (a dwelling house \ near~~ /) house near to the Bridge, ~~and~~ on the left hand as you goe towards Carlile'. See a similar sentence in a letter to John Mill in Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, IV.82.
[126] A tiny interlineated word here in this margin passage has been impossible to transcribe.
[127] 'Shivers': fragments, chips, splinters. OED.
[128] MS: 'Flowers'.
[129] MS: 'by walls \ which / underground, both \ by / Brick & stone \ walls all underground / {toomes,}'
[130] 'Here had stood the lofty realm of old Catulus.' Compare Ovid, Heroides 1. 'Letter from Penelope to Ulysses', 1.34: 'hic steterat Priami regia celsa senis.' 'Here stood the lofty realms of old Priam.'
[131] See also, Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, VI.248.
[132] MS: 'Tho \ I must confess / the impression / in some, \ in others / ~~seems~~ \ looks / rather like an excavation with repeated strokes.'
[133] Leinster, Ireland. Decorated 'wave mouldings' have been common from the time of the Ancient Greeks; see F.C. Brown, F.A. Bourn & Hermann V. von Holst, Study of the Orders (Chicago, 1906), 198.
[134] MS: '…they were left of \ the ancient / Forrest work \ ancient way / & betaken themselves ~~freed of their ancient as have betaken to stones, & left of the work and betaken themselves to build with stone tho never so mean ways of forest worke buildings; The only example~~ & The stud walls were plasterd both on the Inside & out ~~which remaneth of that sort being at the Hall~~.
[135] 'Pow' (pol, polle): the human head; the head of a sheep; a death's head; a skull, and applied to the corresponding part of inanimate objects, e.g. (1) the blunt or rounded part of an axe-head, hammer-head. Hence powie, a smith's hand-hammer; pow-axe: a pole-axe. See Dictionaries of the Scots Language, Online.

§15. The 4 Angles of this High Burwens, do look exactly {?} (as I have observed in other Romane fortifications) to the 4 Cardinal Pointes of ~~the~~ Heaven, Sc. E. W. N. & S.; One fair enterance being very discernible ~~by~~ \ betwixt / 2 houses (which stand a sloape, & seeme as it were, to give way unto It) ~~betwixt the~~ in oriente est iteo, directly northeast, & openeth ~~North & postern pointe towards Milburne Forrest~~ \ towards the Forrest of Milburn; & the other I thinke has bin opposite to It ~~faceing Schole Stret~~ \ in occasu Brumali;[136] / in the S.W. fronting & opening to the High, & perhaps there {has bin more ~~North & South~~ other 2 gates in the other 2 sides opposeing each other}. Near to the former of these 2 portes at the East corner \ angle / &c. and near to the latter, as it were directly opposite to it at 30 yards distance, was a subterraneaneous vault discovered at Coppins Hill which is in the upper end of that Street &c.*.

At the East Angle \ of this area / was lately found the figure of a woman down to the waist (more Romano) carved in stone. And likewise, an Altar about 30 yards from it, in the Low Burwens: but both defaced; the ruines whereof are preserved & kept at Crakenthorp Hall†.

Near the South Angle at Coppin Hill (in the High Street){near to the well which sprinketh[137] there} near the South Angle at Coppin Hill (in ~~Burwen~~ \ the High / Street), was lately discovered \ discovered not many years ago / a vault \ underground having water therein / full of water, with stairs down into it, a Doer at Each End & a shelf or seat made of huen stone on either side besett all with urnes {!} which I take to be a Roman Sepulchur; & a little below in Blackets Burwen, where they yett continually digg up huge stopes,[138] a chamber underground‡, the top of whose chimney did not extend \ entirely / to the surface of the earth; it have being buryed in the ruines. & in the window was a bottle of glass & a gold ring. Near the West corner (besides flagged floores which are \ were / here very common), a potful of Romane Coynes.

Machell's Notes: I.559

*{Here take in my Paper of the Vault.}[139]
†{Here the story of the Vault would com well in and possibly there have bin 2 gate more[140] opposed to ~~each other~~ \ 2 / on the other side.}
‡{Being all in order her[e] the chan[ne]l for water – hyppocrene. The kiln near to the bridge & mill. Hyppocrene & just be for that &c. §16.}[141]

[I.548]

In Blackets Burwen was found a whole roome steed under ground as being I suppose coverd with rubish – for the top of the chimney was underground. In ther in a window was a Glass bottle & a stone Ring,[142] the stone of which was sold to the Lapidaries for gold \ as I have bin told. / Also, a large Rowler of Stone, now at N. Halls, Milburne Chapple.[143]

[136] 'in occasu Brumali Africus' is the west-south-west wind: see Pliny the Elder, Natural History 2. 46, §119.
[137] Sprink: a body of water issuing from a source, Dictionaries of the Scots Language, Online.
[138] Stope: a step (as in a mine). OED.
[139] See Machell's 'Subterranean Passage found near the site of Whelp Castle', in Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, beginning at VI.281.
[140] Two interlineated words are illegible here.
[141] This margin-comment is unclear, therefore unsafe.
[142] See I.559.
[143] MS. continues, 'Milburn Chaple at whose font the solem & public administration [of] Private B[aptism] all set to be mentioned for which, tho it be no more than duty, yet perhaps is more than ordinary & [blank].'

Figure 1.14.2. ‘ Vault underground … at Coppin Hill’. I.548.

[I.557A][144]

The 4 Angles &c.
Near to the former of the 2 portes at the East angle of the said area was lately found the figure of a woman &c. – And near to the other supposed enterance (as it werr directly opposite to it) a subterraneous vault was discovered at Coppin Hill

[I.557B]

~~which is~~ \ a place / in the upper end of that Street which lyeth betwixt the Roman-Way & the High Burwens; & seemes to be commonly so called for Copped-Hill, \ as / ~~the place~~ being advanced to a more than ordinary heigh[t] and eminence in respect of the other end of the Street (tho much inferior to the foresaid area) by the ridge of this valt & the rubbish stones which were scattered about, the digg \ ~~seeking~~ / for which was an occasione of this \ fritening / discovery: – For while a laburour struck with a gavelock[145] betwixt 2 great stones (the lime giving way) it flew out of his hand; & they then heard it plunge into water beneath \ them; / which made them ~~more~~ earnest to dive \ farther / into it. And as I gather from those that were present & made use of the stones, the figure of it did resemble a truncke \ ~~wherin open ats end~~ / the lid whereof will describe the Arch ~~to you~~, & the sides the side walls &c. – see my Paper.[146] But to give a yet livelyer description ~~of it~~[147] I shall expose the idea of it naked to your view in this following figurre: where the earth is supposd taken ~~from it~~ \ quite away of – the carkass of stone only remaneing.

[I.560]

[§16.] So, the Romans gave a final farwell* never meaning to returne agane; burying part of their treasure in the Earth, whereof much hath bin found. Roman coynes were dig’d up \ in High-Burwens / about 40 years since, which they foolishly gave their children to play with; & so lost them all;[148] yet many have bin discovered ~~since~~ \ of late; / som of which \ are / in the possesion of the present Rector. There are also innumerable fragments of bricks, broken urnes & other fictilia[149] ~~which the Plow casteth up in all these Places, all~~ dispersed up & downe where Whelp Castle stood, all which doe loudly proclame it Romane. ~~Hic steterit Catuli Regia celsa senis~~’.

& the 2 Roman Wayes which meet at this Towne, the one calld The Street (which I have traisd from Royston[150] to ~~Careil~~ \ Carleol; / and the other called the Maden-Way which comes from \ Caer vorran by the Picts Wall 20 miles from hence / & terminates here &c.† \ may be recorded amongst the things extraordinary relateing to it / & bespeake \ opinion / it a place \ Town / of more than ordinary estimacon & traffique in the time of the Romans; as Camden affirmes it to have bin before ~~them the principle~~ in the time of the Brittans, by the name of Gallacum,[151] which was the Chiefe Towne of the Brigantes (i.e. ~~in Westm’land~~ of these 6 northern Countyes) which were the greatest people ~~at that~~

[144] See I.499 for identical text on Burwens, deleted from this page.
[145] ‘crow-bar’.
[146] Paper printed in the Oxford Philosophical Society Journal, see I.534.
[147] MS: ‘\ you yet a more m… [word obscured by the binding] /’.
[148] This remained in Machell’s memory, as he also mentioned it on I.499 and I.506, and in a letter to Dr Mill in Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, IV.80.
[149] ‘Fictilia’: earthenware; see the Latin Glossary.
[150] Royston is in North Hertfordshire.
[151] See Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 761E.

~~Time~~ in the British Ilandes; ~~Hic steterit Catuli Regia celsa senis~~ \ who did over spread on those northern countyes / partes which are now called by the names of ~~Lancashire Yorkshire Richmond Westm'land Cumberland & the Bishoprick of Durham~~ {Yorkshire, Bishoprick,[152] Lancashire, Westmorland, Cumberland & Northumberland}‡.

{Caer Vorran I suppose was builded by Var[r]onius, who was Præfect or Captain of the XX Legion called Valens Victrix, \ and from him / by the Britannes intitled Caer-Vorran. He incamped here ~~abouts~~, probably on Castrig, with Lucanis Præf. the Captain of the 2nd Legione called Augustus ~~Hi. cohort~~ whose soljers posibly paved this way. But then why the Maden-Way? Perhaps from those XI thous[and] virgins sent over with Ursula to be maryed with their countrymen in Amorica or Little Brit.[153] In f. XC see p.280.}[154]

Which things being considered, [it] may not [be] improbable that the proprietor of this ancient Castle (with the lands round about ~~it~~, whom the Saxons call'd Whelp \ in Latin, Catulus / might be a Branch of the old Romane Catuli, left here in trust with their British bands ~~where~~ when the Romans made their recess into Gaul, Anno Christ 443 \ in about the year 440, then destitute of aid, / there being but the space of \ about / 600 years \ (and many familyes have continued so long) / ~~from~~ betwixt their departure and the Norman Conquest \ Sc. 627 years / (dureing which time the Saxons who came in to aid the Britans & such of the Romans as were left behind) \ trusted with them / against the \ violent / incursions of the Picts & Scots, made themselves masters of al these nations, & altered the names both of men & places, as appears to this day‡.

[Machell's Notes: I.560]

*{Anno 395: into Italy under Suetonius after Honorius sent them a legion: Speed. 277.} {The 1t assay by Cæsar was in Anno Mundi 3873, ante Christ '54. From Cæsars invasion to the days of Valentinian the III wherein the Romans did quite abandon it, 500 years: p.278, p.2, Speed. Kingdoms & empires seldom exceed 500 years: Speed, p.278. 1. 2.}

†{Speed p.479, 6: Valentianian sent Gaslio of Ravenna, a most valiant man with a Regiment or Legion of soljers, who, after they queld the Scots & Picts, was recald; who taught them the use of their armour and weapons, and to strengthen their fortification & wall of turfs, which now they began to build with firm stones, 8 in thickness & 12 high &c.‡} {Quaere of this, for in Speedes Table – p.171– it is not added, but belongs to the Ottadini with other places in Scotland. Those he mentions are who inhabited the places which we now calle Lancashire Yorkshire Richmondshire Westmorland & Cumberland & The Bishoprick of Durham.} {! ! !}[155]

‡{Vortigern invaded 440; Hengist & Horsa [44]6.}

[I.561A][156]

Aur[elius] Alexander Severus Imp. XXVI Anno XLI 225, had a \ fam[ily] / councel amongst whom this triumvirate extraordinary: Catilius Severus vir omnium doctissimus; \ Ælius Severianus \ vir / omnium Sanctissimus; Quintilius Caius Marcellus omnium ~~optimus~~.[157]

---

[152] County Durham: see the English Glossary.

[153] Brittany.

[154] The story of St Ursula and her 11,000 virgins appears in several medieval writings, including Geoffrey of Monmouth, Historia Regum Britanniae (History of the Kings of Britain), c. 1136, and Jacobus de Voragine, Legenda Aurea: 'The Golden Legend' (Barcelona, 1494), Ch.153. For a modern edition, see de Voragine, Nickel and Rainer, Legenda Aurea (Ditzingen, 1988).

[155] Note Machell's reliance on John Speed's, Historie of Great Britaine Under the Conquests of the Romans, Saxons, Danes and Normans… (London, 1611). In Speed's table of ancient inhabitants (171), for example, the Brigantes are placed in Lancaster and the Ottadini in Northumberland, while spaces allotted to the inhabitants of Cumberland and Westmorland are empty. Machell's other references to Speed in these notes might also be questioned.

[156] Scrap page, approx. 9cm x 9cm, with interlineation difficult to disentangle from the body text and therefore insecure.

[157] The precise Latin wording here suggests that Machell might have used Isaac Casaubon's Historia Augusta (1603) as a source. A compilation of the works of several authors of late antiquity, the volume includes the Life of Severus Alexander by Aelius Lampridius, in which Catilius Severus is described as 'vir omnium doctissimus':

They lived under the command of the Romans till the 430 year after Xt* when the Roman Empire declineing was forced to call home their Garrisons, & having before exhausted the strength of this Kingdom left it a prey to the Picts – whereupon they [were] forced to crave aid of the Saxons & Angles near the confines of Denmark ~~to whom they became~~ \ who after they had chased / away their enemyes drove[158] the Britt[ains] or [those][159] who would not live under their laws, [into] corners & passes, & subjection.

[Machell's Notes: [I.561A]

{My Maps of England p.11. Xti 440.}

*{Will[iam] ingresses 1067, which was after it 400. 627 X.[160] The Romans persist 627 years.

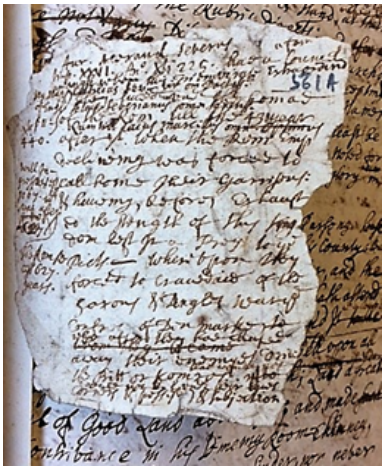

Figure 1.14.3. A scrap page, typical of those numbered in the 20th century when pasted into the volume. I.561A.

[I.561]

[§17.] [The name of Whelpdale]

{That might Catulus be changd into Whelp more Saxonico, & Castrum Catulinus. So that which before was called Catulus was now called Whelp. Castrum Catulinus: Whelp Castle. Abalaba: Apelby. Brovonacum: Browham.}

For tis then Aballaba was called Apelby, either from the plenty of apples, for being the place of appeals, or courses of Judicature – Verteræ Burgh, from being a Burrow. Brovoniacum, Burgham, not unlikely on the same occasion an Gallacum. Kirkbythore as it is at this day, from a Temple it seems here erected to the Honour & Worship of their god, Thor, i.e. Jupiter [which] into our Thorsday commeth. And \ has / perhaps the whol bottom of the County of Westmorland \ before the Conquest, might be \ was / called Whelpdale; from this ancient seat which seeme to have bin the ~~most noble place in it~~ \ comanding place of it / & the sirname of Whelpdale ~~may be described~~ \ might take its beginning / from their ancestours \ about the Conquest at some remarkable / living at some noted place \ in / of this valley {at the time of the Conquest}.

Quis autem res tam antiquas pro certo affirmare audet?[161]

---

the most learned of men (see 597). However, as Lampridius was much quoted, Machell could equally well have found his source elsewhere.

[158] MS: 'drive.'

[159] 'Those' replaces an illegible word.

[160] This information is repeated on the same page of the MS.

[161] 'But who ventures to pronounce for certain on matters so ancient?' Possibly this is intended to be a quotation from Livy, The History of Rome, Bk I.3.2, though the wording is slightly different. Obviously, the question struck a chord as Machell used it four times in his narrative sequences on Kirkby Thore.

[VI.622B]

[Letter to Machell from A. Smal[…] 11 June 1672][162]

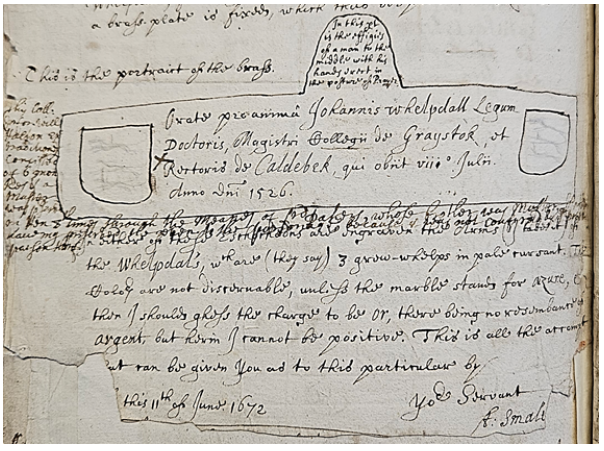

Figure 1.14.4. Letter to Machell from A. Smal[…], 1672. VI.222B.

Sir
I find that one Roger Whelpdale Provost of Queens College in Oxford was preferred to the Bishopriqs of Carlile about 250 years ago in the Reign of King Henry the 5th.[163] But no monument of him can be found in the Church; nor is it probable that he was interred there. Fo\u/r I never heard of any Bishop of Carlile stooped so low as to take up the Parsonage of Graystock, save only Bishop Robinson, successor to Bishop Whelpdale both in his provosts place & in his see.[164] That which your friend intends is (I suppose) a monument for another Whelpdale, for whose memory upon a fair marble in this Church a brass plate is fixed which thus bespeaks the Reading.
This is the portrait of the brass.
In this Pl[aque] is the effigies of a man to the middle with his hands Erect in the Posture of Prayer:

> Orate pro anima Johannis Whelpdall legum
> Doctoris, Magistri Collegii de Graystock, et > Rectoris de Caldebek, qui obiit viii[0] Julii
> Anno Domini 1526.[165]

[162] This page is torn; some text is missing. Although the signature seems to read 'F. Smal…', the writer is almost certainly Alanus Smalwood DD, rector of Greystoke, 1663-86. See CCED. The diagonal line in front of Smalwood's initial might suggest 'A', but this is conjectural.
[163] Roger Whelpdale was bishop of Carlisle from 1419 until his death in 1423. See David W.V. Weston, Carlisle Cathedral History (Carlisle, 2000), 142. Said to have been born of a Cumbrian gentry family near Penrith [see VI.662A, below] he was educated at Oxford, was a fellow of Balliol College before 1400, then successively fellow, chamberlain, treasurer, and in 1404, provost of Queen's College. He was senior proctor of the university in 1403–4. He was in London when he made his will, on 25 January 1423, and died there on 4 February following. It seems likely that he was interred in St Paul's Cathedral in London: Henry Summerson, 'Whelpdale, Roger (d.1423), bishop of Carlisle'. ODNB. The confusion over Whelpdale's burial place is shared by Thomas Fuller in The History of the Worthies of England (1662), known as 'Fuller's Worthies'; see later edn (London, 1811), Vol. 1, 23. Machell used 'Fuller's Worthies' regularly in his research.
[164] Henry Robinson (1551/2-1616), provost of Queen's College Oxford from 1581, bishop of Carlisle from 1598, was reputedly a native of Carlisle. An evangelical pastor, his ministry emphasised preaching. On receiving the living of Greystoke in commendam (i.e. a vacant benefice commended to a cleric until an incumbent was provided) in 1609, he preached regularly there, as seen in the churchwardens' notes. Bishop Robinson's monumental brasses (in Queen's College Oxford and in Carlisle cathedral), praise his part in the religious and secular life of the far north of England. See Margaret Clark, 'Robinson, Henry (1551/2–1616)'. ODNB.
[165] John Whelpdale LLD, died 8 July 1526, was master of the College of Greystoke and rector of Caldbeck.

In either of these eschucheons are engraven the Arms of the Whelpdals, which are (they say) 3 grow-whelps in pale currant. The colors are not discernable, unless the marble stands for Azure. & then I should ghess the charge to be Or, there being no resemb[l]ance of Argent, but herin I cannot be positive. This is all the accompt that can be given you and to this particular by Your Servant
A. Smal[wood]
this 11th of June 1672.

(Infor[mant] Will Halton ex-traditione) This College consisted of 6 monkes & a Master, was preservd in Henry 8th times through the meanes of Lord Dakers whose brother was Master,[166] having preserved the revenues[167] [of] the parsonage because it was not confirmd by the pope.[168]

[VI.622A]

Andrew Whelpdale Rector of Newnham in Hantshire & somtime fellow of Queens in Oxford, a younger son of [Blank] Whelpdall of Penrith & Skirsgill,[169] sayes that the Ancient Seate was Frenchfield, a little farme over against Buly Castle on Cumberland side, not far from Carleton; & that his Ancestour was 2nd brother to that house. (de quo quaere?)
But that estate in my time: Will. Whelpdall – an hatter in Penrith, & a very mad fellow.[170]

[I.561]

§18. What is now Modern

But now to pass from things which are buried in their own family ruines to what is now modern and near to descernable.[171]

[Parish Church]

The next ~~thing~~ \ place / here which deserve observation is the Parish \ Church, / which seems by \ the stones whereof it is builded in & roofed out / its walls to have bin builded out of Whelp Castles Ruines \ as most of the houses on this Town have bin. / Tis an hansom but elligant building[172] \ with a fair strong tower adornd with a clocke […].[173] /

---

166 Two words here are illegible.
167 This word could equally well be 'revents'. 'Revent': to sell again; to sell on. OED.
168 'When the legality of seizing the rectory and its profits on the king's behalf came to be reviewed in court, it was argued by the incumbent that … the church was indeed made collegiate, but it was by the pope's authority only; that they had no common seal, and therefore were not a legal corporation. As judgment was given against the king, the church continued rectorial and parochial … Lord Coke was of opinion that the king's title failed owing to the fact that the church was made collegiate by the pope's authority only, without the royal assent.' J. Wilson (ed.) A History of the County of Cumberland, 2. Victoria County History (London, 1905), 204-08. See also N&BII, 363.
169 John Whelpdale, 1611-64. See C. Roy Hudleston, 'Thomas Machell, his wife and children and his Whelpdale stepchildren', CW2, 70 (1970), 110-45: Appendix II (124-25) and Appendix IV (128).
170 From as early as the 17th century, 'as mad as a hatter' is thought to have referred to hat-makers suffering from mercury poisoning; see Ann M. Carlos and Frank D. Lewis, Commerce and a Frozen Sea: Native Americans and the European Fur Trade (Philadelphia, 2010), 22. The Anglo-Saxon word 'atter' meaning 'poison', is closely related to the name of a poisonous snake, the 'adder', suggesting that the saying might be much older. Machell was related to the Whelpdales, as noted, above.
171 MS: 'And \ but / now; is to pass ~~from these ancient matters~~ \ from things which are buried in their own family / ruines \ to what is now modern and near 2 descernable / to what is more modern.'
172 MS: 'Tis an hansom \ ~~structure without / brick structure~~ \ but / elligant building.'
173 A word obscured by the binding could be 'board'. MS.I.527A offers, 'But now to returne from things in their own ruines or rased out by the conquering swords to what is more moderne and more descernable. The next place here which deserves observation is the Parish Church, which seems by the stones whereof it is made {to have bin ~~builded~~ \ raised / out of Whelp Castle ruiness: 'Tis an hansom ~~structure~~ \ edifice / on the outside tho not very large, adorned with a well proportion'd Tower & a Clock whose hore-bord faceth the Town, which strikes on the Loudest Bell in this County ~~which~~ (called Great Tom).'

[I.561A]

An hansom structure and on the outside, though not the very large, haveing a well-proportion'd Tower which conteines the greatest best sounding bell in the County, called Great Tom, & a Clock on the outside of, whose hoore-board looks to the towne as [blank] But its greatest glory (as \ doth / best becometh the beauty of Holiness)[174] is on the inside, where the beauty of it (as doth becometh best the worship service of God), is on the inside[175] – where all things are neat and in very good order: the floores of the Church \ & Quire / well flaged; the seats (which are generally made of wainscot) and all other things thereto appertaineing, regular & uniform.

[I.561]

{Bason, laver, fountaine}

A dillicate Font where \ at the Rectors charge ~~of the personal cost of the Rector~~ which he [had][176] / made of huen stone, the designe of which to have a fountaine p\l/aying up in the bason and a dove appendant to the cover \ of it, / which (when it ascend by the help of a pully whose counterpoyse is hid in the steepel tower), will seem to stand hovering over the water – a Proper Emblem ~~of what is conveyed to m[an] kinde in Baptism~~ \ is in that Sacrament* {!!!}

{The counterpoise goes up in the steeple where it is not seen: a proper emblem of the Holy Ghosts descending upon & sanctifying of the baptismal water to the mystical washing away of sin.}[177]

The Quire is neatly both sealed & seated with very good wainscot & the Altar raled in with wreathed ballisters at the Rectors gift; where (instead of Balls) he hath placed Cupps which are very beautifull & noe less significant than of the Cup of blesing in that other Sacrament which is there administered thrice in the year.[178]

The Altar, also Pulpit & Organ-loft, are of very good workmanship, being curiousely carved. And here are Prayers on Wednesdays, Fridays & Satterday nights, every Holliday & Holiday eve; with Catekiseing \ on / every Sunday, unless prevented by important occasions.

[174] The treatment of this line from Psalm 96.9 (AVB) exhibits Machell's late-17th-century embrace of Archbishop William Laud's vision for the Church of England, see Kenneth Fincham and Nicholas Tyacke, Altars Restored: The Changing Face of English Religious Worship, 1547-c.1700 (Oxford, 2007), Ch.8.

[175] MS: 'The beauty of it (as doth \ becometh best / become the house \ service / \ worship / of God) is on the Inside'. Sentences such as this demonstrate Machell's experiments with alternative drafts.

[176] This word is obscured by the binding.

[177] 'The font, bearing Machell arms, was completed May 8th, 1688, as the register records. Along with the pulpit, communion table and rails of carved black oak, it was the gift of, 'the father of all Westmorland and Cumberland antiquaries, the Rev. Thomas Machell, who held this rectory from 1677 to 1698.' He was buried in the south side of the chancel. The pulpit bears the date 1631, which seems to indicate that Machell was a collector of pre-existing carved oak, rather than a designer of new work. Outside the rail surmounting the communion balusters runs an inscription, which in its present position reads thus: COLLEGII REG: OXON: SOCIUS. AN: R: CAROLI II XXXV: REG: MA: A SAC: ET I ECCLÆSIÆ DE KIRKBYTHORE D.D: THO MACHELL RECTOR.' See John Heelis, 'Kirkby Thore Church', CW1, 11 (1891), 314-22, at 319-20.

[178] MS: 'The Quire is neatly both sealed & seated with very good wainscot & the Altar raled in with wreathed ballisters at the Rector's gift ~~which also~~; where (instead of Balls) ~~upon the Pillasters~~ he hath placed Cupps; ~~upon the pillasters~~ which are very beautifull & noe less significant than of \ the cup of blesing in the other Sacrament, ~~which is there administered in the other sacrament~~ / That other sacrament which is there administered thrice in the year'.

Figure 1.14.5. Sketch of Kirkby Thore font cover with added scrap page. I.561.

[Machell's Notes: I.561]
*{See Whitsunday, Annuc[iation] & Public Baptism}

[I.562]

And no child was ever baptised privately in this Rectors time, but it was publicly brought to the church som Sunday following (if it liv'd so long) to be received into Christs flock after that solemne & religiouse manner which the Church of England hath thought fit to.[179] It be no more than duty doth strictly request, yet is fit to to mention for ex[ample's] sake, yet I fear (if other places were searched) it may pass for a rarety.[180]

[Machell's Notes: I.475-476]

This being found at Kirbythore, Enquire after the name of Shandos. He beareth Azure the Image of the Virgin Mary with her child in her arms, standing in the Sun. For bearing of these Arms great dissention did arise between Sir John Shandos an Englishman, and the Lord Claremount a Frenchman, they both bearing the same armes alike. After a challenge thereof made by the one to the other, it was tryed at the end of the battle of Poyctiers, where the Lord del Claremount was slaine & lost his banner by right of Armes: p. 79. 2. The Union of Honour.[181]

[179] Machell's insistence on obedience to canon law is notable in his parish registers: see R. Bower, 'Notes on the Kirkbythore Registers', CW1, 4 (1880), 372-86, 375. Machell's clear views on church baptism, seen in the passage above, were a response to the popularity of non-emergency private baptism. This was a debateable issue in 17th-century England, not only because of the growth of conconformity, but also because some wealthy families belonging to the Established Church had begun to favour private baptism. See Yudha Thianto Tjondrowardojo, 'Stories Baptismal Registers Told: Private Baptism in Seventeenth-Century England', History, 95, 2 (318) (April, 2010), 177-93.

[180] Further text continues in the margin as follows, MS: 'Prescribe \ all which / I ~~heartily~~ wish may not pass for rarityes, being no more than which duty requires; yet I all wh (though it be no more than duty, yet ~~perhaps it is more than~~\ extra /ordinary & fit to be mentioned for examples sake.' All of this has been lightly scored through. As the first part of this passage is blotted, its transcription is insecure.

[181] James Yorke, The Union of Honour (London, 1640), see 80 (b.).

Figure 1.14.6. Image of scroll. I.476.

The Armes in that book did not differ, save that the rayes here in this figure are direct & oblique, issuing immediately from about her, with a particular ray also about her head & about our Saviour, she standing in an half moon. But in the Escutcheon the rayes issue from an Ovall wherewith she is encompassed, & no rays are seen except of the Suns, & those all direct. And beside she has the a † in her hand. In this she has none.[182]

[I.563]

[Kirkbythore Hall][183]

The next Curiosity (if it may be so called) is at Kirkbythore Hall, where there is a piece of old forrest-worke building: a common thing once, when this \ part of the / country was full of good timber; but now (& in the ages to com) it may pass for ~~a Rarity~~ \ Rare / & therefore the rather ought to [be] mentioned because it shows us what manner of buildings was (for the most) use'd here of old: & prevents an objection which m~~ight~~\ay / be made against the 'Greatness of this Town \ & Apelby & other like whose ruines are not now to be found / ~~hereto~~ fore, & of others likewise by showing how easily they might be consumed (tho never so great) & reduced to ashes which the winde scattereth whersoever it listeth & yet leave~~s~~ no ruines or vestigia behind it,[184] which are not common in other countryes. {So London \ before the fire / Yorke, Apleby; & most of the townes in England \ whose ruines are not now to be found, formerly were paper buildings.[185] And Apleby, whose ruinouse heapes are scarce to be seen, undiscerneable.}[186]

Here \ at this Hall / is allso an Altar (dig'd up out of Whelp Castle ruines) which Sir William Dugdall hath taken notice of ~~in his visitation~~,[187] and therefore I need not say anything of it.[188]

{Near to this Hall, in \ a peatmoss / calld Traneberry Mire[189] wi[l]d duck doe frequently breed & brood. & on the \ high / moore is a sorte of wild folle call'd Black Cocks or Gors \ which are not common in other countries. / This is [the] Seat of Hum[phrey] Wharton of Gilling Esq. Barister at Law (by purchase from John Wharton, his Liefe[190] Late Lord of the manner, who dyed without any male Isue: \ Wharton / armes are Sable a manch Argent.[191]

---

[182] The MS does not contain this image. The description is reminiscent of Revelation 12:1, 'And there appeared a great wonder in heaven; a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve stars.' (AVB).
[183] For a history of Kirkby Thore Hall see Michael Waistell Taylor, 'Manorial Halls in Westmorland', CW1, 12 (1893), 24-27.
[184] MS: 'reduced to ashes which the winde bloweth \ scattereth / whersoever it listeth & \ yet / leave~~th~~\s/ no (ruines or) vestigia behind it.'
[185] 'Paper buildings': made of wood, easily burned.
[186] MS: 'and Apleby, whose ruinouse heapes are not \ scarce / to be seen undiscerneable.}'
[187] The next word (possibly 'writ') is blotted.
[188] An unfinished reference to 'Cowsonsy' has been deleted from this part of the MS; for the main narrative, see below, I.538 onwards.
[189] Traneby Mire. See Smith, Place-Names 2, 120.
[190] 'Lief': Beloved, dear, agreeable, acceptable, precious. OED.
[191] MS deleted: 'Here &c.': an unfinished sentence.

[Arts and Employments]

Yet before I leave of this Town, once famous for traid; I must \ will / observe \ to you that in this village (as if the Genij of the Place ha~~d~~s not left it & forsaken it utterly) there are above 30 Artes and Imployments present and practised at this very day. As first the \ most beautifull / incomparable Art of Arcetecture: which (amongst many others) the present \ Rector / hath ~~som~~ knowledge of – the Hildegastics[192] of these partes. \ See Fullers Chronicle p.102.[193] / He and one \ Christopher / Adison (borne in this Town and contemporary with him) being the first Introducers of Regular Building[194] into these ~~Northern~~ Parte. Hutton Hall in the County of Cumberland was alterd by Addison; Rose Castle in Cumberland, Cæsars Tower, Howgill Castle & Crackenthorp Hall in the County of Westm'land by Mr Machell; [196] & the Organ Loft in St Lawrences Apelby of The Dorrick order,[197] which has extraordinary fancy in it, the Guttae & Trigliphs being rendered musicall & the fluteings turnd into organ pipes, was designd by him, & the ~~work~~ \ Joyners / men taught to worke by the scale.}[198]

[I.564][195]

[VI.622K]

[Rose Castle, Cumberland]

A Platforme of Rose Castle in Cumberland wherein what is coloured read was found in repare by Bishop Stearne first Bishop of Carlisle after the returne of King Charles the 2[d] from his exile; whence he was translated to the episcopal See of Yorke. What is colour'd black was repaired by Bishop Stearne. What is gray were the old walls pull'd down by him in order to his repaires. And what remains white, were the old walls standing when Bishop Rainbow entered upon it.

Figure 1.14.7A. Machell's plan of Rose Castle post 1660. VI.662K.

[192] Here Machell is comparing himself with Hildegast, the Frankish polymath noted for improving his country's architecture: see Machell's Preface, I.145.
[193] Thomas Fuller, The history of the worthies of England … (1662). I find nothing helpful in Fuller's description of Cumberland and Westmorland, apart from his recognition of the excellence of Lady Anne Clifford's Hospital: see 1840 edn, Vol. 3, 310 (Ed.)
[194] Building in the classical manner, as opposed to traditional or vernacular architecture.
[195] See I.539, below, for comparison.
[196] Machell altered a part of Rose Castle for Thomas Smith, c.1684. See Part 3, Ch.3, VI.205.
[197] Influenced by Vitruvius, Andrea Palladio (1508-80) was an Italian Renaissance architect who promoted Classical architecture (including the Doric Order, the earliest and plainest Greek style). See The Four Books of Architecture (Venice, 1570). Book I was published in English in London in 1663. See the edition by Adolf K. Placzek (ed.), Andrea Palladio, The Four Books of Architecture (New York, 1965), Part 5.
[198] Triglyph: a member or ornament in the Doric order, consisting of a block or tablet with three vertical grooves or glyphs (strictly, two whole grooves, and a half-groove on each side), repeated at regular intervals along a frieze, usually one over each column, and one or two between every two columns. OED. For more on Machell's architectural skills, see John Rogan and Eric Birley, 'Thomas Machell the Antiquary', CW2, 55 (1955), 132-53, at 141 and 148. Their judgments go some way toward validating Machell's own opinion of his architectural skill: 'It is his versatility that stands out above all. He was an archaeologist of exceptionally wide interests and precision of mind, a more than competent architect in a period when the north of England was not well supplied with architects.'

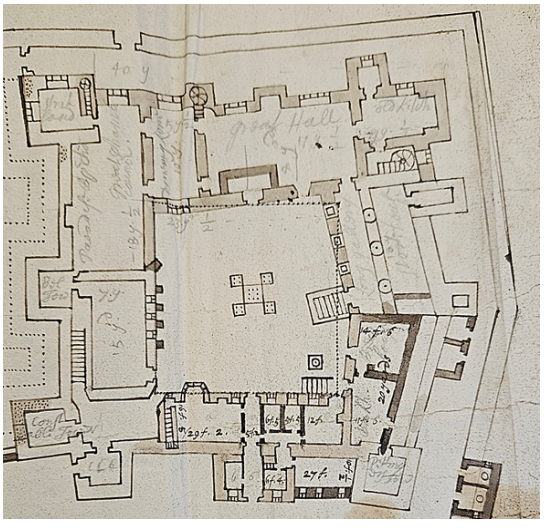

Figure 1.14.7B. Detail from Machell's plan of Rose Castle showing 'what is coloured read'. VI.662K.

[I.564]

The other Artes, Professions & Traides \ which are in this valley / I shall run over ~~by way~~ (for brevityes sake) by way of Alphabet – which are as followeth – namely that of a Baker, Basket Maker, Blacksmith, Bruer & Butcher. Carpenter, Clogger, Cobbler, Currier & Cooper. Joyner, Fuller, Glazier & Knitter. \ Lastmaker, Mason / Maltster,\ Mealman / Mercer, Midwife, Milnwright ~~&~~ Milner. Piper, ~~Schoolmaster, Schoolmistress, Shoemaker~~, Skinner ~~&~~ Spinner. {Spurrier} Tanner, Taylour, Thatcher, Waller, Weaver ~~&~~ Whitesmith \ & Wheelwright &c. \ To which wee may add tho out of course: a Schoolmaster & a School Dame; / which I thought fit to observe as a Rarety relateing to Artes, the like of which is scarce to be found \ through the kingdom of England / in a country village.

[Rarities in Art and Nature]

{Some things which ar Rare}
And here I cannot but take notice also of som little things which are Rare in Nature, which showes the benignity of the soyle & air. This present Rector had in his flore gardine not many years since, doubl gilliflores at Shrovetide.[199] And the last year in 1685, he had a Dazy which is \ was / 4 inch & ½ about in circumference, the diameter being 3 inch and ½ by the application of an inch rule.

{Now I shall pass to the Chapelry of Milburne}
{where in the way hard by [the] Hall wee meet with a rampart or fortification &c.}

[Howgill Castle]

The next thing remarquable is Howgill Castle in the Chapelry of Milburne,[200] being a great \ fair / building which standeth high \ in the eye of the Country / on the skirtes of the mountanes, and hath a large prospect \ in the view of all roades; 2 overlooking at most the whol C[ountry] / to the South & South-West; \ But / the other side, being shutt up with mountaines & a large \ great / grove of trees, \ afords none at all / wherein it standeth. The walls were formerly (& yet are) of prodigiouse thickness;[201] {the Picts Wall was but 8f.; this,10 and ½} And underneath which the Dwelling house \ all arched with stone / \ to which you ascended by / ~~a pair of stairs on the outside, were cellars & great~~ [199] The period before Lent in the Christian calendar.

[200] MS: 'The next thing remarquable is ~~this Parish~~ Howgill Castle in the Chapelry of Milburne ~~& also Remarquable~~.'
[201] MS: 'The walls were formerly (~~of them~~, ~~are~~ yet \ are /) of prodigiouse thickness.'

~~vaults all arched with stone~~; which was the old way of buildings in these partes, whilest they livd in continual feuds with ~~Scotland~~ \ the Scots. / & which served not only for the proper use which now they are put to, but to keep their horses & cattle secure in the times of invasion \ and to have them near them. / A method ~~which old~~ I could alwayes approve of in these northern climates as most warm & convenient & which saveth the cost of \ a great / many roofes in outhouses & stables: were it not for the unpleasant smells which the ordure & fewmes of cattle & horses are apt to send up to the higher roomes. But this Castle is now most successfully altered with much art & smale cost from an old & irregular piece of building to a \ very / ellegant ~~structure of the Ionicke & Dorrick Orders~~ & uniform structure, the front of which, being a Great Hall with a dineing Roome over it betwixt 2 stately Towers is adorn'd with a Portch & Belconys \ in the midst of the Dorick Orders / of ~~The Doric~~ & Ionic Orders: on either side which are 2 \ setts / rows of windows, double Transom, ~~which are finely~~ \ curiously / carved: \ with a per of windows in the roofe. And before them & at the top, with rails & ballasters instead of batlements. From the midst of the Hall you ascend up to the Dineing Rome by a spacious stair with a square pit or newell – the first hanging stair that I know of in the County of Westm'land.[202]

[I.565]

This was the Seat of the late (unfortunate but worthy Gentleman) Sir Richard Sandford \ Baronet / who was barbarously murthered at London in 1675, being stabed into his stomack \ & / thorow the midriff ~~&~~ to the back bone, ~~& wound on both sides~~ before he got time to draw his sword \ which yet he did intend to do when his caul was hanging out of the wound. / An tis now the inheritance of Sir Richard \ Sandford / his son & heir, who was borne (as 'tis said) about the same time that his father was slane\ by a L[ondon] Hector[203] in 1675 ere his sword was unsheathed, whom yet he resisted ~~such and~~ with undaunted courage & his caul hang out of his wound.[204]
He beares for his Armes: His armes are parted per cheveron, Sable & Ermin, 2 boares heads ~~couped~~, in chiefe ~~Argent~~, couped Argent {?}

[Acorn Bank]

The last but not the least to be noted is Acorne-Banke in the chapelry of Sowerby whose situation, is \ being / much like Howgil; \ but much more confined indeed / in a Gro[ve] but more sweat & pleasant; & \ in / as \ being / much as was 'tis nearer the heart of the Countrey, & ~~hath a full prospect of~~ \ lying exactly opposite to / The Forrest of Whinfel; which gives a great beauty & ornament to It. But that which is most to be noted here is a curiouse additional piece of building of a Parlour and Dineing-Room {so well contrived not a dooer, nor stair excepting \ one / but were all made serviceable – and that too might have bin useful, ~~if the directions had bin followed exactly; as they were given~~} the outside of which

[I.566]

~~all~~ [is] of \ red / free-stone,[205] well wrought & pollishd, & placed according to the Tuscan manner with excavation betwixt every course.[206] This is the seat of John Dalston Esqr, now of Millnrigg (tho his eldest son live[s] here at this time) and his Armes are [blank]

---

[202] MS: '{~~And you ascend by a spaciouse stair~~} & here and here was the first hanging stair that I know of in the County of Westm'land. \ From the midst of the Hall you ascend by a spacious stair. /{~~And here is a large \ fair / stare, by which you ascend from the midle of the Hall up to the dineing Rome – which was the first hanging stair \ of that sort / in Westmorland~~}To which you ascend, haveing passd through the Hall by a spacious…'.
[203] Ruffian.
[204] A margin comment repeats the narrative. For another description of the crime, see MS.I.540. The murder occurred on 8 September 1675; the murderers, Henry Symbal and William Jones, were executed; a printed account of the murder was published in 1680: See N&B1, 388.
[205] MS: 'freed-stone'.
[206] The Tuscan order of the five Classic orders of architecture is the simplest; it was delineated by Palladio (1508-1580) in The Four Books of Architecture (Venice, 1570). Machell admired Palladio, see above, I.564. Here, Machell appears to refer to Rusticated Tuscan Stonework, which is associated with stones cut with a deliberately rough surface and wide sunken joints between blocks. Interest in this building style has been associated with William Thackeray (*fl.*1670-82), mason and carpenter of Torpenhow, who, despite Machell's

[Flora]

I shall conclude \ this section of Rarityes within Art & Nature / with ~~this~~ observation which is rather general to the whol county than peculiar and proper to this parish alone: that ever in their medows, commons and wastes, they have such dilicate floores growing as are of the greatest esteem about London:[207] namely Panseyes or Hartsease, & Golden Globes, to which may be added \ as / a competitour with London-Pride, the Northern Bird Eye, which grows \ growing / with many floores on a stalke & is of a purple or rather pinke \ like / coulour with a speck of oringe or yallow in the midst{called here Lockeran Goldings because their leaves are contracting together like a padlock}, concerneing which (& The Merchy Golding \ Golden Globe /) they have this rime, saying:[208]

> Lougherty[209]-Goldings & Bonny Bird-eene,
> Are the finest flowers that ever were seen.

[I.566]

[Civil Government]

For the Civil Government of this Parish it is divided into 3 Contablewicks (Sc. K. Milb. & S.)

1. \ The Constablewick of / Kirkbythore, which consists of \ the Lordships of K, Sc. the Town & / som part of the Hamlet of Hale \ so far as is in K. / & the Lordship & Town of Kirkbythore; wherein \ herein / there is but one Gentlemans seat (besides the Parsonage), ~~which is~~ called Kirkbythore Hall; \ concerneing which I have said something [of] it, / which belongs to Humphrey Wharton Esqr. of Gilling in Yorkshir – whose Arm's are Sable a manch Argent.

2. Milburne, which conteineth \ in it whol / the Chapelry of Milburn, and consists of Kirkhouse (a small Lordship or Hamlet held of the Rector of Kirkbythore wherein the Chappel of Milburne standes); Gullom Holm (another small Hamlet), & of Milburn & Grange – 2 hansome villages; all which, (excepting Kirkhouse aforesaid) do appertaine the Castle of Howgill, \ which I have mention'd amongst the Raretyes which this Parish affords, / which is the seat of Sir Richard Sandford, a Minor, & Baronet – whose Arms are blazond parted per cheveron Sable & Ermine 2 boares \ heads in chiefe couped Argent. /

[I.567]

{And there also liveth in the Town of Milburne, Mr Lancelot Machel, 3 son of Lancelot Machel Esq. of Crakenthorp Hall; whose Armes are Sable 3 greyhounds courant Argent in pale langued memberd & armed Gules collar with a 5 pointed mulet for his distinction as a younger brother.}[210]

3. Sowerby, which consists of the Chapelry ~~&~~ Lordship of Sowerby; being \ all / but one Town \ & Lordship / the chief place whereof is Acorn Bank, ~~The only Gentlemans house in this~~ part, concerneing which I have spoken before – which is the seat of John Dalston Esq. \ sonn of John Dalston of Milrigg Esq. in the County of Cumberland, / sometime Burgess of Apleby, & ~~now Justice of the Peace~~ who was in both the Countyes of Westm'land & Cumberland, whose Armes are Argent a cheveron ingraled betwixt 3 dawes heads errased Sable.[211] claims to the title (see I.538, above) is regarded, by some, as the first architect of formal (Classical) building in Cumbria. See Blake Tyson, 'Some Cumbrian Builders, 1670-1780', CW2, 96 (1996), 161-66, 180.

FINIS

---

[207] MS: 'That \ ever / in \ their medows commons and wastes, they have \ grew such dilicate floores are of / such floores ~~growing~~, as are of the Greatest esteem about London'.

[208] A margin comment here offers: '{in praise of which in whose co[illeg.]}'.

[209] Machell has written, 'lockeran', in the margin here.

[210] MS: '& for distinction with a 5 pointed mulet for his distinction as a younger brother.' Lancelot was Thomas Machell's younger brother.

[211] For branches of the Dalston family see Francis Haswell, 'The Family of Dalston, CW2, 10 (1910), 201-70.

[Narrative 3]

The Parish of Kirkby Thore

[I.508]

[Method]

1. The Rectory or Vicarage: value & Patrone.	5. Soyle, & products above & underground as: wood watere springs mines of lead coale stones &c.	Subdivision from into Constablewick, Villages, Hamlets and private Seats with the names of the Gentry who are owners of them, & their Armes.
2. Incumbents since the Restaur[ation] of King: Ch. 2.
3. Charityes.	6. Things extraordinary in nature.
4. Bon days.

[I.500]

{Unde dict. !!}[212]
The Parish of Kirkbythore is so call'd from the \ Place / Town wherein the Church stands ~~which is~~ which word seems to be of Saxon original, taken from Kirk \ which signifyes / a church by a place, & Thore which \ was / one of their Gods, whence wee have our Thorsday & implyes as much as the place where the Temple of Thore was erected.[213]

{Before which, Sc. when the Romanes invaded Britain, it was calld Galla\c/um, being the chief of the Brigantes who were possessed of all those Countyes which are at this time known by the names of Yorkshire, L[ancashire], B[arony] W[estmorland] & Cumberland and the Bishoprick of Durham which W., E. and N.; & Newbigin, the Lordship on the North with \ Culgath with / part of Kirkland; on South and South-west with Whinfell in Browham and Bolton in Morland.}[214]

It is anciently writ Kirkbythor in writeings without date \ before dateing of writeings was in use, / and afterwards Kirkbythore. Now it \ is vulgarly / called Kirkbythure ~~vulgarly~~ \ but never writ soe. / It is in the Diocese of Carlile, Barony of Westm'land, & in the East Ward of the same.

[I.530][215]

Of Kirkbythore
Kirkbythore is a Rectory rated in the First-Fruits Office at $37^{li}\ 17^{s}\ 8^{d}\ ½$, the Patronage whereof is in the right honourable Thomas Earle of Thannet by descent from his Ancestors on the mothers side: the VIPONTS & CLIFFORDS, who were Lords successively of the Honour of Appelby & Barrons of Westm'land. For Adam the son of Waldeve de Kirkbythore, who was son of Gamel son of Whelp the Lord of Whelp Castle at or before the Norman [Conquest] gave the Advowson of Kirkbythore Church [to] Dominus Roberto Vetriponte by a deed without date*; in which is mention of the two Chappels of Sowreby & Milneburne as members thereof; witness (inter alias) Johanne Mauchell.[216]

---

[212] 'Unde dictum': 'whence it is said'.
[213] 'Village with a church', kirkju-bȳ. The affix (Thore, from the Old Norse Þórir) is doubtless the name of some early unidentified owner'. See Westmorland Place-Names.
[214] This margin passage is muddled, having been much overwritten and crossed through.
[215] Narrative text on I.530-I.541 was repeated by Machell in various degress of completeness in other drafts. See 550-69; 528-29; 530-530A; 500-501; 465-66; 504-05 (all Vol. 1).
[216] This paragraph has been written in Machell's neatest script. An earlier version (scored through once, as was Machell's habit when a draft had been superseded) appears on MS.I.333: 'Kirkbythore is a rectory \ rated in the 1st fruits office at £37 17s 8½d / the patronage whereof belongs to the right honourable Thomas, Earle of Thanet (as Lord of the Honour of Apleby and Baron of Westmorland) by descent from his ancestors \ on the mother's side / the Cliffords & Viponts; for Adam the son of Waldeve \ who was / ~~the~~ son of Gamel the son of Welp \ (who was Lord of Whelp Castle) / and the advowson of the said church – Dominus Roberto de Veteriponte {whose descent was married to Cliffords} by a deed S.D. in which is mention of the chapples of Sowreby & Milleburne as members thereof: witness inter alias Johne Mauchael'. Almost exactly the same material appears on I.530.

{Present Incumbent}[217]
And one Thomas Machell{late fellow of Queens College in Oxford; Chaplain in ordinary to King Charles the Second & now fellow of the Philosophical Society in the said University}is the present Incumbent, being a second brother of the ancient family of the Machells of Crakanthorpe (the next Lordship adjoyning) who are descended from the abovesaid John; & in all likelihood[218] \ probability / (as may be collected by the neare affinity of theire name & seate by ancient Tradition & by Deeds without date (which I have seen†) from the foresaid Whelp as the Common-Ancestour both of the Machells and Kirkbythores; the former retaining their ancient name with a mark of disfavour;[219] perhaps from the Conquerour as having oppos'd him in defence of their Countrey (for they were called Maulchiens, Malchaels & Macha'els‡. & adhered to that sirname as their greatest glory (still holding therewith the Lordship of Crakan Thorpe at the least by Capitulation) Idq[ue] non per Drengagium; sed per nobile Cornagij servitium, sicut ipsi Normanni),[220] the latter changeing \ it, / & instead thereof assuming the sirname De Kirkbythore, which are long since extinct, the Heiress being married (as appears by their pedegree) to one of the Whartons \ of Wittall / whose descendents (allthough the first line be cut of) are Lords of the Mannor to this very day.[221]

Other Incumbents since the restouration of King Charles the Second William Walker
There have not been any but William Walker, Master of Arts of Christs Colledge in Cambridge & sometimes Schoolmaster of Gigleswick in Yorkshire;[222] a man skilld in physick, and well deserving in other respects if he had not been imposd on the Parish by an High hand in Olivers time, instead of Mr Lancelot Lowther (an eminent preacher) who was turn'd out of place in those most dismall & rebellious times for his great loyalty to King Charles the first & his fidelity to the Church of England.[223]

[Machell's Notes: I.530]

*è Cart. Antiq. Machellorum familiæ.[224] †Ibidem.
‡Ibidem.

[I.535A]

[Testimonial. MA Degree. 1651.]
April 19 1651
Wee are content that Mr William Walker have a Testimint according to the usual forme for Masters in Arts.
S. Bills, R. Widdrington, J. L. Moze, Hu Bethel, Will. Owtram, G. Rust, J. Sedgwick, Dan Bull.
Christs College.

[I.531]

The late incumbent was Mr William Walker, Master of Artes of the same College \ Christs College / with H. More,[225] Cambridge \ April 19. 1651. / Who succeeded Mr Lancelot Lowther {of the [217] This heading appears on I.531.

[218] The pecked line suggests that Machell preferred his second choice, while allowing both to remain.
[219] The name means, 'bad dog'.
[220] 'And that not by drengage; but by the noble service of cornage, just like the Normans themselves.'
[221] Another version of this paragraph appears in MS.I.531. 'And Mr Thomas Machell A.M., late fellow of Queen's College in Oxford, & chaplane in ordinary to King Charles 2, now a fellow of the Philosophick Society of Oxford, is the present incumbent, descended (as is more than conjectured) for I saw very ancient deeds, which being a second brother of the ancient family of the Machells of Crakanthorp, descended (as is more than probable by deeds I have seen &c.) from the said Whelp \ Catulus alus / {Roger Malus Catulus} who seemes to have bin founder of this \ parish church [which] is dedicated to St Michel the archangel / chantry: the only lasting chantry in this parish. Unless wee esteem the skirts of the Donation of Halthe Machael &c.'.
[222] William Walker became chaplain to the bishop of Carlisle in 1665: see Bishop's Register, CAC(C), DRC1/4, 299.
[223] Lancelot Lowther, rector of Kirkby Thore (1629). For more, see Kirkby Thore Narrative 2, I.551, above.
[224] 'Noted in the Machells' ancient deeds.'
[225] Henry More was a student at Christ's College Cambridge from 1631 to 1639, thereafter becoming one of its fellows; see Richard Ward, The Life of The Learned and Pious Dr. Henry More, Late Fellow of Christ's College in Cambridge. To which are annex'd Dives of his Useful and Excellent Letters (London, 1710).

Lowthers of [Blank]} \ a worthy / turnd out by the rebels for his loyalty to King Charles I, & his fidelity to the Chuch of England. Who predecessor was Mr Thomas Warcop, ~~M.A~~. a gentleman of this country, of a very good family {tho now ~~obscure~~ \ in decay, / the chief of which, a Mr Thomas Warcop of Colby in Westmorland, Alderman of Apleby. And before him (tho ~~tis~~ not likely by immediate succession) was Richard Evenword, Abbot of Shap alias Hepp \ for so it is writ in ancient records / in this County ~~of Westm'land~~.

[I.530]

And though it be beyond the due limits of this enquiry to adde any more ~~other Incumbents~~; yet having a Catalogue of severall other Rectors by me*, I shall not scruple to make mention of them; being generally persons of good ranke \ note / & quality.[226] For before Mr Lowther was one Thomas Warcop Master of Arts,[227] a younger brother of an ancient family in this County of Westm'land tho now in decay; the chiefe of which is Thomas Warcop of Colby Gentleman Alderman of Appelby. Before

[Machell's Notes: I.530]

*è penes Rectorem.[228]

[I.531]

whom (tho I cannot say in immediate succession) was Richard Evennwood sometime Chaplaine to King Henry VIII & last Abbat of Shap*.
In ~~Henry~~ \ Edward / IV time Mr Henry Wherton a younger son of Gilbert de Querton, Lord of this Mannor (of the same blood with the now Lord Wharton) was Rector here†. And before him in Henry VI. time Roger de Crakanthorp‡ of a very ancient & worthy family – the Crakanthorps of Newbiggin, who deriv'd that sirname from the towne of Crakenthorp, where they held certain Lands many hundreds of years since of the Machells of Crakenthorp, as appears by writeings↓ ~~which~~ I have seen without date, & possibly are a branch of that family called de Crakenthorp for distinctions sake.

In the 48 yeare of Edward 3. [1374-1375], William de Corbrig‖ was Parson here. And I find before him in \ a / writeing (sans date) one Mr Adam de Kirkbythore¶, officiall of Carlile who perhaps was son of the forenam'd Adam, who gave the Advowson of this Church to the family of the Viponts. And these I have been the more willing to mention, to show how worthy & truly generouse the noble patrons of this parish have been, who as they receiv'd the Donation at first by way of free gift from a Country Gentleman; soe have they been ready upon all occasions to bestow the same freely upon Gentlemens sons (& for defect, upon some other worthy & eminent persons who livd in this Countrey). So that this may be called the Gentlemens parsonage, As tis now the most noble & Genteel preferment in the County of Westm'land, being much improved in many repects by the present Rector.

[Machell's Notes: I.531]

*è Cartis penes Rectorum.[229]
†è General prædicta.[230]
‡è Cart. Antiq. Machell.
↓Ibid.
‖è Coll. T.M.[231]
¶In Cart. Antiq. Mauchelel et enim Will. Ma-Catulus, Terras Quasdam de miset (per nomen Mr Adæ de Kirkbythore) s.d. [232] Qu. Tamen, If the official was not Kirkeby only?[233]

[226] Here, Machell has chosen one word over another, marking the discarded word with a pecked line.
[227] Thomas Warcop, instituted as rector in 1597; died in 1629. CCED.
[228] 'In the rector's keeping.'
[229] 'As shown by deeds in the rector's keeping.'
[230] 'From things aforesaid in general.'
[231] 'Thomas Machell's Collections.'
[232] 'Noted in the Machells' ancient deeds, without date, wherein William Malus-Catulus was lessor of certain lands in the name of Master Adam de Kirkbythore.'
[233] 'Query, however, if the official was not Kirkeby only.'

[I.333]

{Charitys}
{Per annum antient sallery from the inhabitants, 12 November, 3. Henry 7. [1487]. So payd to Rob. Hodgson 4s added by \ arbitratation / between former incumbent […][234] Rector ~~upon an arbitration~~ \ to be paid / out of his good will & Godly devotion.}

[I.528]

[Charities Continued][235]
There is a Rent-charge of 5 markes per Annum out of the Powes, a place in this Parish being of the demanes of Mr H. Wharton, Lord of the Manner of Kirkbythore, which is distributed to certain familyes in that Town & elsewhere according to the will of the Donor, who was one Mr Knipe, vicar of ~~Knipe~~ Warcop. But being intrusted with the vicar & churchwarden of the said Parish, & this haveing a very small interest in it, I shall refer you for a farther account ~~of~~ concerneing this matter to the Parish of Warcop.[236]

[I.501]

[Kirkby Thore Church]
The Church is commonly calld Kirkbythore but ~~seems to be~~ \ is / dedicated to St Michael the Arch-Angel, for on that day they keep there feasts,[237] though \ being a very much civilised people / without any games: ex informatione Lancelot Robinson de Kirkbythore, 1678, August 6.

[I.468]

In Kirkbythore Church[238]
In the midle ~~window~~ are Cliffords Armes as before wanting the Coat bordered Verre – supporters a draggon Gules and a leopard crowned & chaned Or. The crest is a draggon in a corronet (sed: Gules dragon, corronet Or). The mantle Argent dubled Gules – The motto DES OR MES.[239] On the right hand Or 6 annulletts Sable. Query. On the left: Argent a manch Sable.
On \ top of / the steeple the south side: Wharton impaleing Lancaster cutt in stone.
In the Quire wall: 1. Machells 2. Wharton & Machell; 3. Wharton & Lancaster 4. Clifton & Vipont – all in stone. & in the East Window the Paternal Coate of the Machells in glass – Item Whartons in glass.

[I.470][240]

In the Little Quire in the first point of the East window are Argent a maunch Gule[s] with a lobe of 3 points Vert. \ fil nat.[241] Max Thu[rl]keld de Mellerby. / In the midle point Argent a manch Sable. In the last Sable a manch Argent (Wharton) without distinction.
On the wall under the left corner of the window is this Coate: a fess between 3 water jugs, the field Vert.
8th. Barr\wise/ of 6 Or and Azure with a cantone in dexter charget with a † crosslet of the first.
9th. Tis parted per fess Gules and Argent two mullets in chiefe pierced of the field Or and an annulett of the same.

In the 2d window
The highest are Cliffords.
On the top of the 2d window.
1t is parted per cheveron Argent and Sable with 9 gutta's Or, 2 wreaths of 5 roses in chiefe propper.
2. Sable mullets of 5 Or with a border ingrailed[242] of the same.
In the 4. Cliffords.

---

[234] One word here is obscured by the binding.
[235] There are two small sketches (3cm x1cm and 1cm square) of windows here.
[236] See Part 1, Ch.23, Warcop, from I.315.
[237] 29 September.
[238] Ink has been superimposed over pencil on this page. Pencilled text is illegible apart from '1624', at the foot.
[239] Over the gatehouse of Skipton Castle, the motto is given as 'Desormais' = henceforth. See CFH, 66.
[240] This page has been written in ink superimposed on text written in pencil, now illegible.
[241] 'filius naturalis': illegitimate son.
[242] Here Machell repeats the 3-on-3 image, but reverses it.

In the 5th. 1t point, Sable a manch Argent (Wharton) with a martlet[243] for distinction. 2 point, Lancaster & Crackanthorpe with flore de luce.[244]
11. Window Top: 1. Sable a manch with martlett; the 2 matched with Lancaster.
{In the East End window, Machells Armes and the same in stone with the Races[245] also Machell & Wharton.}

[Machell's Notes: I.484}

Of the church: se for the Visitation in my Long booke. Dugdall allso has it in his visit of Westm'land 1664.

[I.465][246]

To Kirkbythore Church belong Kirkbythore, Hale, Temple Sowerby & Acorn Bank, Howgill Castle, Milburne & Grange,[247] \ & the Hamlet of Julian Bowr, / of which Howegil Castle [is] the Manner House, \ [&] the lenth of Kirkhouse with som ten[emen]ts; all parts belongs to the Rector of Kirkbythore. Milburne & Temple Sowerby are not Churches but Chaples, as is evident from the first conveyance of the Advousons thereof from ~~John~~ \ Adam / de Kirkythore to Robert de Veteripont \ in a Deed S.D. but about the 6t of King John [1204-05]. / Howbeit in regard of their great distance from the mother church they have liberty to bury &c. there \ which any bishop may at pleasure / conferr upon any chapple by consecratio – salva indemnitate matricis ecclesiæ – tamen non debent: see Cam[den], so that they may properly be called parochiall chappls or Chapples of Ease. S[ine] altea tamen &c.[248]

[Parish Value]

{Kirkby Thore}
Gleba Ecclesiæ Kirkbythore valet per annum 4s 0d. There is allso a wast[e] upon the more whose Herbage ~~Ling and Turbari~~ (Bruera)[249] Brouse and Turbary is worth:

By the yere, 13s 4d {Quaere: what rent nowtgeld}	0:13: 4
John le Bray holds one water mille valet per Annum	0: 8: 0
And he hold one waste near Marton church, which is called the Trostbanke, & is worth by the yere	0: 2: 0
And he has allso Joynts[250] & herbage on the mountane of Milburne which is worth by the yere	0: 13: 4
Allso Mr Henry le Barkley holds a close upon the wast[e] and it is worth by yere	0: 12: 0
John de Lancaster hold 1 close also there eodem mod[o] & valet \ per Annum	0: 10: 0
	Summa 2: 16: 8

This was held by Robert de Clifford sed an fuit ta[n]tu[m] demid[ium] quaere?[251]

{Temple Sowerby}
Idem Dominus Robertus had in the village of Temple Sowerby 1 messuage & 12 acres of land valet per annum 0: 12: 0, que fuerunt Templarior[um]? et obijt Seisitus, et valet per annum in omnibus exitibus:[252] 8: 0: 0

Summa 8:12: 0

[243] Martlet: the heraldic swallow: see the English Glossary.
[244] Fleur de lys.
[245] 'Race': a course, a line; e.g. in 1570, 'Of the auncient Mathematiciens, a line is called the race or course of a point'. OED.
[246] Also numbered p.19.
[247] MS: 'Kirkbythore ~~Grainge~~, \ Hale, Temple Sowerby & Acorn Bank, / Howgill Castle, Milburne, ~~Temple Sowerby~~ & Grange'.
[248] MS: 'altea': Machell probably meant 'altare', so that the text translates as, 'while preserving the immunity [i.e. rights] of the mother church; however, they ought not to: see Camden, so that they may properly be called parochial chappls or Chapples of Ease. Without an altar. however etc.'
[249] Bruery: heathland used for grazing. OED.
[250] Joynts: portion. OED.
[251] '... but check whether half was as great as this?'
[252] 'The same Lord Robert had in the village of Temple Sowerby 1 messuage & 12 acres of land worth 12 shillings annually, which belonged to the Templars. And he died possessed [Sc. of this?], and it is worth annually in all its profits 8. 0. 0.'

{Omnes rectores & capellani Arcidiaconis su[n]t subjecti tam in morum connectione quae in ecclesiarum visitatione denom[inatarum] abstante exceptione quae facta fuis[se] proponitur de antecessoribus nostris Baldwine & Huberto occasione capellaru[m] \ de Harkintun & Lamheth quas / {ipsi in præjudicium cant. ecclesiæ construere nitebantur +}[253]

These are all out of the inquisition taken at Apleby Monday next after the feast of St Bartholmew the Apostle[254] in the 8. yere of Edward 2. [1314-1315.] The contents whereof are comprised and may be fo[u]nd in their order if looke in that yere: 1. In St Lawrence Parish Apleby; 2. in Brough under Stanemore; 3. In Sowerby eadem parochial; 4. In Winton in parochial de Kirkbythore; 5. Kirkby Stephen; 6. Langeton infra parochial St Michael de Apleby; 7. Meburne Regis in parochia de Morland; 8. Broughton in ista parochial; 9. Kirkbythore & Sowerby sicut hic.[255]
Et sum[mus] extent[us] Totius Rotuli eccept[ione] feod[orum] & advoc[antiarum] Ecclesiarum est,[256]
C \xx/iiij – \xii/vij – lib. viij & v[d]? {?}

[I.466]

Roger de Clifford was seised \ in his demane as of foe[257] / of certane tenements in Temple Sowerby the day he dyed as his escheats by annulling or makeing voyd of the Templers; which tenements he (thence forward) held of Our Lord the King in Capite by Knights Service, and there are there 16 oxgangs of Land in the hands of the tenents att will, and pay yerely at the feast of Pentecost & St Michael: 3: 4: 0
Allso 8 cotages: which pay yerely att the said feasts 1: 0: 0
There is allso 1 watermill worth yerely 4: 0: 0
Pleas & perquisites of the Court worth yerely 0: 6: 8
Roger Clifford Knight dyed not seised of any \ other / Knights foes in Westmorland; but of the Advowsans of Kirkbythore, Murton and Browham, rated by the yere of the New Tax*.

Kirkbythore	C[s]	}
Murton	50[s]	}†
Browham	5 marcks	}

[Parochial Chapels]

{Milburne Chapple}
In Milnburne Chapple there are not any Coates of Armes in the windows, tho the glass hath bin formerly painted; neither are there any monuments excepting this one in the Sandfords Quire:

> SACRVM MEMORIÆ Annæ Sandford uxoris Richardi | Sandford de Howgil Castle Armigeri Quæ in vita | sua honestè pie qs vixit priumsqus fecit finem stetitqus | Circa 38 Annos uxor ejusdem Richardi et habuit | 18 liberos obytq? vicessimo nono die mensis Januarij | Anno Domini 1605 atatis suæ circa 58 annis‡.[258]

[253] 'All the rectors and chaplains of the Archdeacon are subordinate, as much in the conforming of their customs as in the visitation of the churches mentioned above, allowing for an exception which it is suggested had been made by our ancestors Baldwin and Hubert on account of the chapels of Harkintun and Lambeth which they themselves were striving to construct, to the detriment of the church at Canterbury.' Machell is referring to Archbishop Baldwin (1185-90) and his successor, Hubert Walter (1193-1205), who encountered opposition to building projects at Haddington and Lambeth, see 'Colleges: College of Lambeth', in H.E. Malden (ed.), A History of the County of Surrey Vol. 2 (London, 1967), 127.
[254] 24th August.
[255] 'Kirkbythore & Sowerby the same as here.'
[256] 'And the entire extent of the whole roll apart from fees and advowsons of churches is'
[257] 'Fee'. Machell understood 'fee' as derived from 'foedus': a contract or agreement; thus, he often wrote 'foe' when discussing fees, e.g. 'knights' foes.' The derivation of 'fee' is also said to be the Saxon 'fee' (cattle or goods of any kind): in Low Latin, 'feudum'. See H.J. Todd (ed.), A Dictionary of the English Language by Samuel Johnson; with numerous corrections … (London, 1818), FEC-FEE.
[258] 'Sacred to the memory of Anne Sandford the wife of Richard / Sandford of Howgill Castle Esquire who in her lifetime / lived honourably and devoutly. / She was the said Richard's wife for 38 years and bore him / 18 children. She died on 29 January / A.D. 1605 aged about 58 years. /'

{In Milburne Quire}

Here allso lyes buryed Mr Hugh Machell, 4th[259] son of Hugh Machell of Crackenthorp Esq. {who dyed [blank] but without any monument}.

[Machell's Notes: I.466]

*What new Taxe?
†How is this? {K[irkbythore] in those days worth 2 of Murton, which I cannot understand how it could be, unless The Lead mines payd their Tythes to it.}
‡Note that it is \ all / writ in the great character which [I] have in the beginning, & the long strokes are limits of every line, but there are none of them in the Inscription.

[I.498]

{To which I shall by reason of add, both because off affinity & consanguines, the Armes of Mr L. Machell of Milburne aforesaid 3 son of Lancelot Machell Esq. lately deceased; the which are Sable 3 greyhounds courant in pale Argent collard Or. L. membr. – & armd Gules – with a mullet.}

[I.485]

[Temple Sowerby]

{Sowerby: commonly called} Temple Sowerby, ~~\ or / Sowerby Templariorum~~ not from the \ Temple or / Church \ standing there, / for it is but a chapel appendent to the church of Kirkbythore; But \ from / the Templars, a sort of Religiouse Knights of old, to whom a great part of the Towne did belong, whence it was called for distinctions sake from another Towne of this name on Brough Parish: Sowerby Templariorum, & Temple Sowerby \ as it is to this day. /

These Templars had 900 manners or Lordships belonging them, whereof this was one; & succeded the Order of St Johns of Jerusalem who far exceeded them in their Endowments (which perhaps was a cause of their \ ruin & / overthrow.) {?}

[I.482]

Spittlehouse

{è Lib. voc. Marmora Oxoniensia Edit. Oxon 1676, p.26 & 27 per ex MS de Rebus at Hospitallarios Spectantibus. Xti1446.}[260]

The Templars formerly whilst they ~~stood~~ \ continued / and Hospitallers after them, did formerly enjoy in all their houses the extraordinary priviledge of an Asylum (which Houses were commonly called Spittel houses). And in the 4th year of Henry IV [1402-1403] in the moneth of July one John Gore was arraigned for felony before William Hankeford and William Shrene – Judges at Whinchester – who pleaded that the Court was ousted of jurisdiction in his Case – because haveing fled for the said felony to a priviledged place of the Prior and Brothers of the Hospital of St John of Jerusalem in England called Spittal House, in Burghton (quae quidem domus privilegiata existit sicut ceteræ domus ejusdem privilegiatæ existunt)[261] he \ was / fetched from thence by the Constable and others against his will. And William of Wakefield, Proctor of Hospitallers, alledged for them and on his behalf that the said house was formerly the Templars; And the Priviledge granted to them by Pope Inocent[262] & to the Hospitallers by Pope Urban II[263] doth absolutely forbid (under the penalty of an anathema not to be [259] 4th has been written over 2nd or 3rd.

[260] 'On [various] matters but regarding the Hospitallers. A.D. 1446.' The book is by Humphrey Prideaux, entitled, Marmora Oxoniensia ex Arundellianis, Seldenianis, aliisque conflata recensuit & perpetuo commentario explicavit (Oxford, 1676). The Arundel Marbles are a collection of ancient Græco-Roman marble sculptures of subjects such as Cicero and Eros, housed in Oxford. Amassed in the early 17th century, they were displayed in Arundel House, where they inspired Humphrey Prideaux's book, which is a catalogue of this collection and others. Spittlehouse is indeed discussed on pages 26-27; Machell translated text from these pages to form his following paragraph.
[261] '…which is, indeed, a Privileged house, just as other houses of the same [order] are Privileged.'
[262] Both the Knights Templar and the Knights Hospitaller were military orders of great wealth and power, thus incurring the jealousy of rulers. The Knights Templar order was dissolved between 1307 and 1312. See Keith Bate, M. Barber and R. Horrox (eds), The Templars. Selected sources translated and annotated (Manchester, 2002), 59-65.
[263] The Knights Hospitaller movement began quietly in Jerusalem shortly after 1070, but grew quickly. In 1113 Pope Paschal II (1099-1118) awarded the order papal protection and privileges. After the Templars were repeald) that any should lay violent hands upon such men as fled their for saifty or upon their goods within the precinct of their houses; & that the Templars, & ~~Hospitallers~~ after them the Hospitallers also, from the time of the first granting thereof till that time present, allwayes injoyd & used the same; that if any guilty of felony or any other crime whatsoever should fle unto any of their houses, they should \ there / obteine an inviolable peace as if they had fled to the Holy Church itself – which things being put upon the Inquest were found to be so. And by the advice of the Kings Judges of both Benches his Sergeants at Law & others of Kings skilful Counsel, it was adjuged that the Hospitallers ought to enjoy the said priviledge, & that Gore should be restored to the said place againe. & he is restored by the Sherif of the County. And such an one I take this Spittle House to have bin {tho I have no authority for it} being so near unto Sowerby, which borrows part of its name from the Templars; and did all or most of it belong unto them. And after that Order was desolved, which was in [blank], and Hospitallers succeded them some few years after in their Lands and imunityes, I suppose this Spittle House has bin builded, tho it be in the Lordship of Kirkbythore & not in Sowerby. {This however is referrable to Temple Sowerby by good Authority.}

[I.483]

[I.484]

The Pows, Inges, are so called from Pow (an ancient word yet used in Lancashire) for a beck or rivilet \ whence our vulgar word poole / & Ing which signifyes a bottom-meadow. So that importes as much as – the meadows by the water sides. There is a Romane forte \ almost trenched about / on the E. end of Milburne Fell, which is called Green Castle from the verdure of it*, opposite to which on Knock Fell Eastwards is an Hurrock of stones called Watch Currock.

[Machell's Note: I.483]

*I would see it nearer than I have don.

[I.486]

ad general in Westmorland. Howgil Castle. Lancaster. Sandford
[Notes on Manors and Descents]

[I.484]

{Man. de Milnburne; Howgil Castle.}
The manner of Milneburne.
Finde Lancasters at Howgil Anno 1^0 Rich[ardus] 2. [1377-1378] (è cart apud Crackanthorp.)

Wharton of Kirkythore
Henricus de Querton test.[264] at an evidence of Sir Thomas) 17. Edward 3. [1333-1334].
Barwise. 17. Edward 3. But after which of the family I know not.
Thomas Wharton Esq. test. 34. Henry 6. (but whether of this?) 34. Henry 6. [1455-1456].
Gilbert Wharton of Kirkbythore; Collector (with others) Henry 7. of the subsidie for King Henry the 6. or the 7. See more at Wharton in Kirkby Stephen Parish.

{Lancaster of Howgil}
Miscellanea lib.10. p.78, penes Mr Sheldon:

Robert Crackenthorpe
= Elizabeth \ 2^{nd} / d. & coheires dissolved, their assets were awarded to the Hospitallers, though it is unclear whether the Templars' fortune ever reached them: see Helen Nicholson, The Knights Hospitaller (Woodbridge, 2001), 1-16, 48.

[264] 'Witness'.

D[omin]i Johannis Lancaster de Rydall militis et habuit in partem suam maneriu[m] de Mylneburne[265]	{Mylburn}
Johannes Crackanthorpe de Helgill in Com west. Edward 4. = filia
Ambrose Crackanthorp de Helgill obijt s.p.	Anthonius Crackanthorpe obijt 11. Henry 8. [1519-1520]

Willielmus de Corbrig parsona ecclesiæ de Kirkbythore anno 48. Edward: è Carta Apud Skipton This must be Edward 3. for no other Edward reigned so long.[266]

[I.488]

{Proofes}

[Sandford]
Sir Walter de Sandford of [Blank] in Westmerland Knight anno 15. Edward 2. [1321-1322] served that year in Parliament for the County of W. {Extract[um] e MS nominum diversorum Militum et Baronettorum;[267] ad Lit. S. {Pg. 94.}
Sir Robert de Sandford of [blank] in W., Knight anno 16. Edward II [1622-1623], was likewaise Parliament man for that County.

{Isue}
The 16. [1322-23] & 19. [1325-1326] of Edward 2. & son I presume of the said Walter.
Sir William Sandford of Askham in Westmorland Knight (son of Edmund who was younger brother of William who purchased Askham & left it to his said brother Edmund, whose Isue male have ever since injoyd it) was probably related to the said Sir Robert and Sir Walter; & had Isue Robert, who had Isue:

MS. A.41		Thomas = who maryed Hutton of Hutton John in Cumberland, who had Isue
	3. Richard 2 [1379-80]	1. Thomas = who had Isue John = And he Thomas = father of the now William Sandford of Askham Esq.
2. Sir Richard Sandford of Hougil ut infra	1.Sir Thomas Sandford of Howgil Castle in West. Knight, anno [blank]. He was son & heire of Richard, who was 3 brother of Thomas S. of Askham, who maryed Hutton, & he dyed without Isue[268]
MS. A.4. et MS. E.30.	Sir Richard Sandford of Howgil Castle Knight, anno 21. of King James the First [1623-1624], was younger brother of Sir Thomas aforesaid & High Sheriff of Cumberland in the said year = who had Isue
MS. A.41.	Sir Thomas Sandford of Howgil, Baronet August 12 XVII (Car.1.[1641-1642] = no.346) who had Isue

[265] 'Robert Crakenthorpe = Elizabeth 2nd daughter and coheiress of Lord John Lancaster of Rydall, Knight, and he/she? had for his/her? part the manor of Mylneburne.' [It is unclear who the subject of 'habuit' is. Is it Robert, or is it Elizabeth, and was Mylnburn her inheritance, or her dowry?]
[266] 48th year of Edward III: 1374-75.
[267] 'Taken from a manuscript of the names of various Knights and Baronets.'
[268] Here Machell placed a sketch of a skull.

MS. A.41.	Sir Richard Sandford of Howgil Baronet &
MS. A.41.	who had Isue Sir Richard now a minor, anno [blank]

[I.489]

[de Lancaster]
{MS. N.47; MS. A.368, 412, 418} Sir John de Lancaster Knight, anno 10. Henry 4! [1408-1409] was son and heire of John, who was eldest son of Sir William.
{MS. A.57, 58, 124, 140; DB.421; MS. p.36, 74} Sir William de Lancaster, Knight, anno Henry I. who probably (by [becoming] Governer of Lancaster Castle) did first assume by the Kings Licence the sirname of Lancaster & was also stiled Baron of Kendal in Westm'land: was before that called de Tailbois; being the son & heire of Gilbert, who was eldest son of Ketel (The Curwens) of Workington (being descended as som thinke from the second son) who was son & heire of Elthred, who was eldest son of John Tailbois.
{MS. A.142} Sir William Lancaster Knight anno [blank] Henry 3.[269] stiled William de Lancaster the 3[d] & Baron of Kendal, was son & heire of William above. {N.B.} Sir William de Lancaster Knight anno Henry 3. stiled William 3 and Baron of Kendal, was son & heire of Helewise, daughter & heire of Sir William next aforsaid.
{MS. H.58, 365, 401, 418} Sir Roger de Lancaster Knight anno [blank] Henry 3. was brother to Sir William next abovsaid by the halfe blood; & he had granted to him & his heires the Manner & Forrest of Rydel in Westm'land (which he held in Capite), the Manners of Barton Paterdale &c. in the same County, and the Manner of Ulverston &c. in Lancashire where he was High Sherif anno 49. of Henry 3. [1264-1265].
{MS. A.58 365 366. Db 423 – MS. E.34, MS p.77} Sir Jo[hn] de Lancaster Knight anno [blank] Edward I. He was son & heire of Sir Roger aforesaid, & Lord of Rydel &c. which were granted to his father. Summond as a Peere to Parliament from the 25. Edward I. until the 3. of Edward 2. inclusive [1296-1310], he dyed without Isue male Anno 8. Edward 3. [1314-1315], leaveing the Manner & Forrest of Rud[270] unto Anora his wife for her life; the remainder to John de Lancaster of Howgil Castle in Westm'land & his heires – the next heire male of this family.
{MS. A.58. 365 367 MS D. 79} Sir Jo[hn] de Lancaster Knight, 4. Edward 3. [1330-1331], son & heire of William who was younger brother of Sir John abovesaid, was Lord of Rydell Howgil &c.
Sir William de Lancaster Knight anno [blank] Edward 3. son & heire of Sir [blank]

[I.490]

To sift out the truth of this following relation & separate what is authentic in it from what is doubtfull or false, see Lancaster & Sandford m[anuscripts] in Kirkbythore; Sandford in Ascam. {ex informatione Johis Stabley Sept. 18. 1691.}

{Howgill} {Crakenthorp}
Anthony Crakenthorp next akin to A[m]brose Crakenthorp de Howgil had only 3 daughters: Ann, Mary & Cicily.
1. Ann had Howgil for her part and maryed = Mr Thomas Sandford (whom he sayes he knew & that he wore a bib in his old age) and had Isue Richard, after made Baronet = widow \ of [Blank] / Pen[ington] he thinks, whose daughter Pudsey maryed {It must be Richard for Thomas Sandford of Howgil to whom Richard succeed was his elder brother & both sons of Richard; & they could not have it by succession; but of the inheritance a patre vel a matre.}[271]
2. Mary had (sed queris) Newbiging for her propart;[272] and maryed an Crackanthorp. Hee sayes that Banke-Hall also belongd to them, being at that time 5 free tenements of the Manner of Skirwith & that [269] Henry III reigned from 1216 to 1272.

[270] Rydal.
[271] Father or mother.
[272] 'Pro partibus Liberandis' is an ancient writ for the partition of lands between co-heirs, Giles Jacob, A New Law Dictionary (London, 5th edn, 1744), PR.

the 3 sisters set at stoolle ball on Kirkland green[273] & being won by Mary, so it came to the Crakenthorpes of Newbiging.
3. Cicily had Skirwa\i/th Lown –? I thinke, & Parson-Close for her propart:
{It came to the Fleminges by purchase – being bought of Hut[ton] of Hutton hall by the \ great / grandmother of The Sir Daniel = & Monkhall in Cumberland, whose father was William F. = Alice Kirkland.

|
Daniel Fleming = Isabel Brathwait.
|
Sir Daniel = Fletcher.}

[4.] And Mary = \ Mr / Thomas Midleton of Barnard Castle \ Midleton Hall opposite to Brig Streat. / St Nicholas Apleby Bolton & Skirwith Tithes. Meale Arkes at Carlile.[274] Mr Tholded[275] \ of Stanford / married his daughter; \ he had 500li per Annum in Westm'land & Cumberland. /

{Stavley of Rippon-Parke}
Hee had 4 or 5 sons & 2 or 3 daughters, Sc. one married to = Bellingham of Levins; another, Henry Staveley of Grange = 1. John of Grange. Ann daughter of Thomas.
{Query of Mr Carlton[276] for Lord Stavely of Denton Castle in Yorkshire.}

{Skirwith}
John at Skirwith {unde forsan these Staveley.}

[I.492]

{Hutton in the Forrest}
Purchased by Sir Richard Fletcher, grandfather to this Sir George, 1611.[277]

{Carleton}
{Ashby Parish, Bellingham, Gathorne}

[I.494]

{ad Lancaster: MS. F. 92; A. 145, 367} Sir William Knight 5^0 Richard 2. [1381-1382] was son & heire Sir William next aforesaid.
{MS. N.17; MS. A.168 412 418} Sir John de Lancaster Knight anno 10. Henry 4. [1408-1409] son & heire of John, who was eldest son of Sir William next abovesaid. He dyed before the 21. of Henry 6. [1442-1443], for then his Estate was divided amongst his 4 daughters & coheires.
Sir Thomas le Fleming of Cunningston Hall in Com. Lanc. Knight, haveing maryed Isabel, 1^t of the [blank], the Manner & Forrests of Rydal fel to him, where he & his heires males ever lived except sometimes at Cunningston Hall the more ancient seat of that family.

[I.528]

[Bounders]

[Bounder One]
Noe-thus, he sayes:
This Parish lyeth on the East side of the Great River Eden, which divides all along on the West from ~~som part of~~ \ a place calld Winderwarth[278] in / the Parish of Cliburn \ ~~& from~~ from / the forrest of Whinfel & \ from / Bolton Field in the Parish of Morland; beginning at the foote of Blenkarne-Beck below Eden Bridge, & thence ascending to Old-Troutbeck Foote (near Machells Well) where it hath [273] A ball-game similar to cricket, in which the batsman stands in front of a stool which the bowler tries to hit. A popular game in the north of England, in the past it was often played by girls. See Joseph Strutt, The Sports and Pastimes of the People of England (London, 1876), 165-66.

[274] A meal ark is a large wooden bin or hutch for storing meal. OED.
[275] The transcription of this name is insecure.
[276] Carleton: steward to Lord Thanet, see below, V.449.
[277] 'This Sir George', was Sir George Fletcher (1633-1700) of Hutton-in-the-Forest, MP for Cumberland from 1661 to 1700; Sheriff of Cumberland in 1657/8 and 1679/80: see https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1660-1690/member/fletcher-sir-george-1633-1700.
[278] Winderwath.

formerly run into Eden. Thence on the S. \ it is bounded / with the Lordship of Crakanthorp in the Parish of St Michaels Apelby (commonly called Bongate Parish) \ and divided from it / by stones pitched up in the old beck steed till you com at Troutbeck, & so by that river up to[279]

[I.529]

{Kirkbythore bridge, where the Romane Way ~~striketh~~ \ intersecteth / ~~thorow~~ the river, near the fountain Hypocreen \ & / where the Three Lordships of Kirkbythore, ~~Bongate~~ \ Crakanthorp / & Brampton meet.[280] Hence again on the S. SE. & East it is environed with Long Marton Parish & divided from it by the said River Troutbeck, ascending Eastward betwixt the Low Burwens (or skirts of Whelp Castle & Machells Ing) to Howgil Sike Foote \ where the Lordships of Kirkbythore Brampton & Marton meet all together. / Thence by Howgil Sike ascending N. to Annet Well Head where it first springs*. Thence by a Bow-line towards the N. to Nichorson †, takeing in the Hill where it hath stoode.

Thence by certaine & well known boundaryes divideing it from the Lordships of Merton & som part of Knock till you com at a place called Swinside-Head. Thence by Grange Beck to Nuckerdale Head near a place called Green Castle, otherwise called Burney-beck, ascending N.E. where it \ first / takes its rise. Thence by a Settle (or Hollow \ place /) which takes in High Dun-Fell to Dale-Sike-Head ~~which is~~ (called by som, Fell Troutbeck Head) \ which is / not distant above \ the space of an / 100 yards from Burney Beck Head. Thence by this Fell Troutbeck (so called for distinctions sake from the other Troutbeck which wee spoke of before),[281] descend N.E. to Moss-burne Foote \ a little Rill which comes ~~there~~ into Trout[beck] / where the Lordships of Milburn, Knock & Dufton meet alltogether. & ~~Hence thus far~~ \ all this while / it is compassed with \ Long / Marton Parish. Thence it is bounded on the E. \ side thereof / with the Great Lordship & Parish of Dufton, ~~&~~ \ being / divided from it by \ the foresaid / Fell Troutbeck ~~aforesaid~~ till it runns into Teas. Thence agane on the East & N.E. with a place called Tinehead som of which (if I be not mistaken) lyes in Northumberland & som in Cumberland & in the Parish of Alston: being divided from \ them / by the River Teas ascending &c. to a place calld Fal-Cragg – where the Parish of Kirkby Stephan & Kirkland meet \ all / together; & hence it is bounded on the north side thereof with the Parish of Kirkland {in the County of Cumberland?} & divided from it by Teas aforesaid,[282] ascending W. to Crossfell Nooke where ~~this great river~~ \ it first / springs ~~which carryes ships at Newcastle & Tinmouth but here maybe stopd with an Hat Crown~~. Thence by a settle called Blenkarn Dale twixt the Lower Dunfell & the High mountain Crossfel (~~commonly called Blenkarne Dale because it is the Bound of that Lordship~~) to the spring head of ~~Dunbeck~~ ~~commonly called~~ \ Dunbeck on / Blenkarne Beck. Thence by the said Beck \ descending Westward as it runns / all along by the coastes of Cumberland) till it ~~runns into~~ \ enters / Eden \ near to the Bridge / where wee first began.

[Machell's Notes: I.529]

*Quaere: of Stanke Head, if not the same.

[I.531]

[Bounder Two]

This Parish lieth on the East side of the great River Eden which divides it all along on the West from a place called Winderwarth in the Parish of Cliburn, from the forest of Whinfell & from Bolton Field in the Parish of Morland; beginning at the foote of Blenkarne Beck below Eden-bridge & thence ascending to Old Troutbeck Foot (near Machells Well) where it hath formerly run into Eden. Thence (on the South) it is bounded with the Lordship of Crakanthorp in the Parish of St Michaels Appleby commonly called Bongate Parish, & divided from it by stones* pitched up in the old Beckstead, till [279] The rest of MS.I.528 contains two scored-through drafts (not transcribed) relating to the bounder; these are presented as a 'fair copy' on I.529.

[280] MS: '& Brampton meet ~~in Kirkbythore, Bongate & Longmarton Parishes, with the last of which It is Invironed on the S. & south-east~~.'

[281] MS: '(~~which is~~ so called ~~for distinction that it may be~~ for distinctions sake ~~ed~~ from the other \ Troutbeck / which wee spoke of before).'

[282] MS: '& hence ~~in the 2 parish~~ ~~Lordship~~ {it is bounded} on the north ~~It is bounded by~~ \ side thereof / with the Parish of Kirkland {in the County of Cumberland?} & divided from it by ~~The~~ Teas aforesaid,' you come at Troutbeck; & soe by that river up to Kirkbythore Bridge where the Roman Way in\ter/secteth the river near the fountaine Hypocreen, & where the three Lordships of Kirkbythore, Crakanthorp & Brampton meet. Thence again ~~by~~ \ on / the South, South-east, & East it is environd with Longmarton Parish & divided from it by the fair river Troutbeck ascending eastwards (betwixt the Low Burwens – or skirts of Whelp Castle – & Machells Ing) to Howgill Sike foot where the Lordships of Kirkbythore, Brampton & Longmarton meet alltogether. Thence by Howgill Sike, ascending \ north / to Annetwell Head where it first springs; thence by a Bowline towards the North to Nichorson Cross, takeing in the hill where it hath stood; thence by certain & well known boundaryes which

[Machell's Notes: I.531]

*But note here: that there is a place beyond the said Boundare which payeth Tythe to Kirkbythore by ancient prescription time out of minde.

[I.532]

divides it from the Lordship[s] of Marton & Knock till you come att a place called Swinside-Head. Thence by Grange Beck – otherwise called Burney Beck – ascending North-east to Nuckerdale Head, neare a place called Green Castle where it first takes its rise. Thence by a settle (or hollow place) which takes in High Dun-fell to Dalesike Head (called by some Fell Troutbeck Head) which is not distant above the space of 100 yards from Burney Beck Head. Thence by this Fell Troutbeck (soe called for distinctions sake from the other Troutbeck which we spoke of before) descending North-east to Mossburne Foote (a little Rill which comes into Troutbeck) where the Lordships of Milburne, Knock & Dufton meet altogether; all this while it is encompass'd with Longmarton Parish. Thence it is bounded on the East side thereof with the great Lordship & Parish of Dufton, being divided from it by the foresaid Felltroutbeck till it runs into Teas. Thence again on the East & North-east with a place called Tine-Head, some \ part / of which* lies in Northumberland & some in Cumberland in the Parish of Alstan, being divided from them by the river Teas; ascending North to a place called Fall-Cragg where the Parishes of Kirkbythore, Alstan, & Kirkland meet altogether. \ & / hence it is bounded on the North side thereof with the Parish of Kirkland in the County of Cumberland & divided from it by Teas aforesaid, ascending West to Crossefell Nooke where it first springs. Thence by a settle called Blenkarn Dale twixt the Lower Dunfell & the high mountain Crossefell to the spring head of ~~Dun Beck~~ Blenkarne Beck. Thence by the said Beck (descending westwards as it runs all along by the coasts of Cumberland) till it enters Eden neare to the Bridge ~~where we first began~~; where I take in (designedly) the Parish of Newbiggin; being of old (as I am informed) a Canton of this, & passed of[f] for a certain Quit Rent of ten groats per annum with Altar Service 2 dayes in the yeare att Kirkbythore Church. But on the other hand, the Rectors of Newbiggin claimed as theire due (when they came to assist at the altar there) to have a dinner for themselves & their doggs! A tradition of such undoubted credit that Mr Barrow late incumbent of Newbiggin, sent word to the Rector of Kirkbythore that now is,[283] upon his first entrance; that he ought[284] him that Homage,[285] & would come & pay it; but death prevented him while the other was absent in his yeare of Grace att Queens College in Oxford.[286]

And here I thinke fit to enter this Caution, that the Parish of Newbiging by its ancient bounds cannot extend soe fare on the Moore ~~of Kirkbythore~~ as the Right & Priveledges of that Lordship now doth; because they gained a considerable accession from off Kirkbythore Moore by grant from the Cliffords after that Lordship became a distinct & absolute Rectory; soe that its limits upon the said Moore are or should be according to the ancient bounds of that Lordship.

[Machell's Notes: I.532]

*(if I be not mistaken) {Quaere of this?}

---

[283] The first mention of a church at Newbiggin appears in a charter of Hugh de Temple Sowerby (1258-59) witnessed by Walter, rector of Newbiggin: Curwen, Later Records, 183-85; see also I.553, above.

[284] Owed.

[285] MS: 'that he ought him that ~~he ought him that~~ Homage.'

[286] The text here refers to Thomas Machell. A simpler version of this narrative appears on MS.I.505. See also I.553, above.

[Highways and Bridges]

[I.548]

{Generall Highways}
Michael Scot is said with the help of the Divel to have pavd twixt Lond[on] & Carlile, but a fiction.}

[I.464]

{Kirkbythore Bridge}
There was anciently a bridge at Kirkythore built of wood, pons public,[287] continued (as Sir Francis Drakes ship did, with many reparations) since the Romaines were here;[288] for it is the passage of the Roman Way. In 1676 this bridge wall [was] built with freestone very fair & handsom. But fell in winter 1677 by violence of the water. I had an account concerneing its fall February 7th 1677/8.[289] Shortly after, it was rebuilded as it now standeth.

[I.474]

The building of Sowerby Bridge 1575.[290]

[I.471-473]

{Westm'land} Elizabeth regni, 1575.[291]
The fre grante and benevolence granted towards the buyldyng of Temple Sowrebye brege, by the gentilmen and freeholders whos names here after particularlye ensuyth.

{Easte Warde}	{Mydell Warde}	{Weste Warde}	{Lonisdayll Warde}	{Kendayll Warde}
Syr Symonde Musgrave knyghte	Rychard Lowther Ar. xl. s[292]	Syr Henry Curwen Knight	John Meddelton Ar.	Thomas Bonytyn Ar
Thomas Warcope Ar[miger]	Lancelot Pyckryng Ar.	George Salkeld Ar.	Rychard Myddelton gen.	[?]m Bellyngham Ar
Henry Crakanthorpe Ar[miger] xl. s	Rycharde Cleburne Ar.	Edward Lanchester Ar.	Thomas Warde gen.	James Layburn, Ar
Humfray Musgrave, Ar.[293] xl. s	Thomas Fallafeld Ar.	Rycharde Dudlay Ar. xxvi. s viij d[294]	George Mansare gen.	Rychard Duckat Ar
John Wharton, Ar.	Thomas Wybare Ar.	Maystras Sandfurthe	Wyllm [Blank]	Wylliam Gylpynge gen. for his house at Sokbrege

[287] A public bridge.
[288] MS: '~~which I believe to have~~ continued (as \ Sir Francis / Drakes ship ~~did~~ with many repa reparations) since the Romaines were \ here /.' The sea-captain and destroyer of the Spanish Armada, Sir Francis Drake, was involved in many raids and voyages of exploration. He circumnavigated the world between 1577 and 1580, and went on expeditions, for example to the West Indies between 1585 and 1586. This activity led to ship repair and even scuttling amid heavy fighting. Mary Frear Keeler, Sir Francis Drake's West-Indian Voyage 1585-86 (Farnham, 1981), 31, 36, 38, 62, 72, 105, 160, 283-85.
[289] This would have occurred soon after Machell had become Rector of Kirkby Thore.
[290] The following subscription list for the building of Temple Sowerby Bridge is not in Machell's hand.
[291] 1575 = the 18th year of Queen Elizabeth's reign. Much of this title has perished. The whole document (now paginated I.471-I.473) has been greatly repaired; some words and figures are missing.
[292] 's' throughout this table = shillings.
[293] Hidden by repair to the volume; the amounts (if any) given beside the next six names are unclear.
[294] 26s 8d.

Richard Sandferth, gen.	Thomas Byrkebecke, g.	George Hudson, gen.	Xtofer Mayr g.	James Harryngton gen.
[Ed]munde Dudlay, gen.	[Edmu]nd Slyngesbre, gent.	Maystras Th[?]	Edwarde Baynbrege, gent	Roberte Bendlayte Ar
Hughe Machell, gen.	[Nichol]as Brovann[295]	Wylliam Hutton of [B]oullay, gent.		Rowland Philepson gen.
John Southait, gen.	Thomas Byllynghame gen.			Wyllm Philepson gen.
Cuthberte Barton gen.	Ambros Lanchester gen.			Walter Chamber gen.
Androo Helton gen. x. s	Anthoni Warton gen.			Rychard Bryskell gen.
Thomas Helton, gent. vi. s viij d[296]	Fra[n]ce[s] Warcope g.			Randall Wasshyngton, ge.
Lancelote Boste, g.	John Crakanthorpe gen.	.		Rychard Tunstall gen.
Mylys Skayf, gen. vi. s viij d	John Rygge gen.			Wyllm Bayteman gen.
Anthoni Knype, gen.	Henry Backhouse gen. Iiij. s			Lancelot Dockray gen.
Edwarde Warcope, gen iij d[297]	George Backhouse gen.			[Jo]hn Collyngson gen.
James Warcope, g.	Thomas Birde yoman			Thomas Sleddell gen.
Hugh Warcope, gent.	Rychard Nevyson yoman			James Strykland gen.
Bartholymew Helton, g.	John Blamyer yo			Gylbert Wylson gen.
Barnabe Machell, g. 1d	Wylliam Robyson yo			Steven Feld, gent.
Edwarde Boste, g. iv. s	Alexander Gowlyng, yoman			Steven Bamonteson, ~~gen~~ \ yom. /
John Hartlay, g.	Henry Lowys			Wyll Foxe yoman
Mylis Baynbrege g.				Cristofor Haskregge yo.

[295] Brougham.
[296] 6s 8d.
[297] The amount of shillings is obscured by a piece of paper pasted to the page.

John Baynbrege, senior, g.	v. s	Oswalde Bethom yoman
John Baynbreg Junior, g	v. s
Ranalde Hartlay g.
Robert Skafe, yoman	v. s
John Smyth
Henry Shawe yoman
Jenken Bell yoman
Wylliam Halle yoman
John Dobson yo	Iij. s iiij d

[III.261]

The Roman Way from Kirkbythore Bridge to Brough Town End

It goeth from Kirkbythore bridge in a streight line S.E.

	Miles & ½	Quarters & ½
1. To a Dikestead in Machels Banke, where the Roman urnes & ashes were found	0	1 q.
To the know or pitch of the hill	0	1 q.
To Maiden Hold, which stands directly like Appelby Tower E. W. N. & S.
To the Roman camp which flankes the way at about 20 yards distant from it: the fower corner if I may so call them (being rebated), standing directly East, W. N. & S. And opposite to the West corner of it stands Boldton Chapel at ½ a mile distance; & Marton church som what more from the East corner. Near this place I measur'd the way to be 7 yards broad.	0	1 q.
The camp is about 11 score in length.	0	½ q.
Thence to the riseing of Owsley .	0	½ q.
Thence up the hill to over against Beacon on Owsley where you have a fair view of Crakenthorp Hall to the front; and at a distance if you looke about you may see Buly Castle, Howgil Castle & many other places.	0	½ q.
Thence to Annest Johny Close Neuke	0	½ q.
Thence down the hill to the turnpike	0	1 q.
Thence to the top of the Banke End (which is over against Crakenthorp Hall at ½ a mile distance) (Opposite to which on the other hand is the West end of Brampton, above ½ a mile distant.)	0	1 q.
Thence to White Burwens, an irregular fort on the North E. side of the way about 20 yards distant from it, where ye see Appelby, Buly, Hougil Castles, Crakenthorp Hall & many other places, being a stately prospect.	0	1 q.

[III.259]

Thence to the gallows.	½	0

Thence down to Annetwell St (Philip Machell)
in Battleburgh Head at a ¼ distance.	0	½ q.
Thence down to the way which leads to Slape Stones.	0	½ q.
Thence to the way which leads down to Bongate
& Howgate Foote.	0	½ q.
Thence to the yeat of Bong[ate] moore (opposite to which is
Appelby Castle at ½ a mile.	0	½ q.
Thence to the Tarne Head hill, where there are 3 little hillocks, 2 on the N. East side, and 1 on the S.W.
like burying places.	0	1 q.
Opposite to these on the N.E. side is Marton about 2 miles distance, which you hardly can see;
and Langton in the same condition, ½ a mile of.
Hence to Couplan Beck bridge	½	0 where Aske com from the East into it. But \ C B /[298] it com there from the North. Beyond the said beck & sike, 40 yards from the high way has \ bin / a round tower.
Thence up to Sandford Thorne where you see on the S. West side,	0	1 q.
Ormside church and Little Orme som what South from there at a mile distance. And on the other side 2 miles distant under the fell stands the town of Hilton.
Thence \ down /to the broken caseway over against	0	1 q.
New Hall (at a quarter distance)
Thence to the ring of stones 20 yards on the N.E. side	½	~~0~~ of this Roman Way, opposite to which on the same side \ but invisible / is Overton, 1 mile ½, and Sandford on the other side: mile ½.
Thence in score yards off, is a burg of earth, & 2 more 40 yards beyond that

[III.260]

where \ 2 of / adjoyne the way on N.W. side.
{?}& so down to Sandy Sike	0	1
{1} Thence up the next hill till you com at the descent there of [blank]	0	1 q.
{?} Thence down to the little sik[e] where the way seemeth to have runn	0	½ streight along through the meadow, where it is lost till you come upon Warcop Moore & follow the road which turns out a little through a lane {over against Wharton Hall: qts[299] 1.q.} on the N.E. side till you come at Milbeck. .	0	1
Thence the way incline a little till you com at a sike.[300]	0	1
Thence up to the yeat;	0	½
Here you may see the towne & tower.
Thence to the next yeat	0	1 q.
but it goes through the dike 20 yards on the N. East side.
Thence to the next yeat, another	0	1 q.
but it runs through the pasture neates[301] 49 yards N.E. from the yeat.	0	1
Thence to the water which crosses the way, opposite to which lyes	0	1 q.
Flitholm on the S.W. (at ½ mile distance). And Thence to Bulleston Sike (opposite to which stands Helbeck Hall	0	½ q. at 1 mile \ or / ½ N. East from here.

[298] Coupland Beck.
[299] A shortened form of 'quarters'.
[300] MS: 'Thence, ~~a little incline~~ \ the way incline a little / till you comat ~~the pasture yeat~~ a sike.' For 'sike' see the English Glossary.
[301] Cattle pasture. OED.

From Bulleston Sike to the Castle-way about 6 score yards, & thence to to the N. of Market Brough. In all: 0 1
N. the way turns a little S. from Warcop Milbeck to the pasture yeat. Thence agane S.E. till you come at Helbeck Water where it makes an obtuse angle, turning more southerly than before.
[…][302] is about 1 q. long. II 11½

[I.464]

[Antiquities]

Kirkbythore 1686. December 16 about 40 years since, an \ earthen / potfull of Romane Coines found behinde Micell Bensons house (& several behinde Howsons & Blecket Burwen); in the Gards – walls & flags; behinde Thomas Soulbyes – flags got in the midle of his croft stones in the Loning on the left hand by Stanebrig;[303] stones in the midle of Jacksons Croft & Loaneing. It had gon along the midle the Croft by the Square of Burwens.[304]

{Reformatio errorum laudabilis}[305]
Præsertim cum talis exemptio potius fuerit velamen malitiae quam libertas, & audaciam frequentius præstitet delinque[n]di. Exordium post salutationem sic incipit. Sicut ea quae rationabiliter provisa fuerint & statuta Robur obtinere debent perpetuæ firmitatis, sic si q[uae] sint contra rationis tramitem attemptata, digna correctione conve[n]iu[n]t emendari.[306]

[I.485]

[Spittlemore]
There is a so[r]t of a Round Intrenchment upon the moore called Spittlemore; somewhat inclind to a Triangle Curvilinear, & much of the Forme with that which is ~~upon~~ betwixt Brampton & Crakanthorp; but that it has not a [blank]. It is about 86 yards in Diameter and hath been enterance in at the East point & another at the West, with flankes (ergo out works) \ one / to the S. round to W. extending thro North, which branch to the N.E. \ which points to the rise. / The figure is thus:

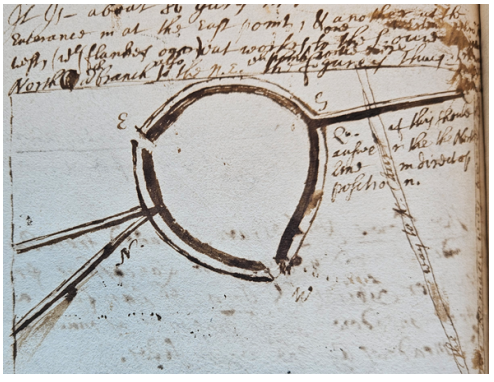

Figure 1.14.8. 'Earthworks; The road to K. church; The Romane Way towards Apleby'. I.485.

[302] An abbreviated word here appears to be 'Pno'.
[303] Loning/lonning: a lane. William Rollinson, Cumbrian Dictionary of Dialect, Tradition and Folklore (Otley, 1997).
[304] A margin comment here offers, '{Tr. a row of shops twix Stanebrigs & the water – from father to son.}'
[305] 'The amendment of errors is praiseworthy.'
[306] 'Especially when such exemption has been more of a pretext for bad character than a freedom, and too often has lent boldness to wrongdoing. Thus, after the greeting, does the preface begin. Just as those things which have been reasonably foreseen & ought, being established, to possess the strength of enduring stability, so if any have been attempted contrary to the path of reason, they are fit to be set right by well deserved correction.'

[Machell's Note: I.485]
*Query if this should answer the north line in direct opposition.

[I.509]

[High Burwens Roman Fort]
{§1.} The like of which is not to be met with in the county of Westm'land: & has bin rendered yet more delightfull by the 2 famouse Forests of Whinfell & Milburne. This on the \ N. / East and just at hand; that on the West at about a mile distance: both stored with wood & well replenished with reade \ dere / fallow-~~deere~~, as the former continues to be at this day. The square calld High Burwens whose 4 angles point directly E. W. N. and South,[307] as I have observed other Roman fortifications to have don, seemes to have bin the area of it, conteineing 8 score yardes in diameter now plowd & cultivated; & the outer buildings to have run down by the river at the least as far as the bridge & fulling mill by Troutbeck, thence to the Roman Way so call'd The Street bout 8 score yards[308] – & so up agane in a streight line to the square of the area: {See §6.}[309]

{§3.} For in all these places the vestigia of it have bin discovered by walls & pavements & coines; a vault with altars, brick, urnes & other fictilia.[310] The 4 angles of this High Burwens do point exactly (as I have observ'd in other Romane fortifications) to the 4 cardinal points of Heaven \ Sc. E. W. N. & S. & the 2 doers have bin as I take – exactly opposite one to another. / And at the East angle was lately found the figure of woman, downe to the ~~paps~~ \ waist / more Romane, carved in stone; and likewise an Altar about 30 yards from it \ in the Low Burwens / but both defaced; the ruines whereof are preserved & kept at Crakanthorp Hall.[311]
{At the South Angle (where Coppin Hill & Burwen Street) was lately discovered a vault with stairs into – & a doer at each end, having &c. \ a shelfe or seates on either [side] beset all with urnes. / At the West were beside several floores – flags – there was a pot full of Roman Coynes found [see] § 5.}[312]

\ §4. /And here both brick & stone. The brick ones they say (which is no vulgar observation) being a yard thick & so solderd with lime that it is impossible to ~~get them out whole~~ \ to sever them from it / without breaking in pieces: And the stones (of which the other are made) so prodigiously great & som of them huen with such monstrouse stroakes that it gives us occasion to admire \ their strength / rather than imitate their \ manner of / building. I have seen som taken out of a sinke \ ~~or channel for water~~ / which have served in length for the jawms of a dooer, & som of about a foote in thickness which seemed struck thorow with an hueing ax at one single blow. Tho in others it looks more like ~~continued~~ excavation about 40 yeares since &c. See §5.[313]

---

[307] MS: 'High Burwens, \ whose 4 angles ~~doe point direct whereof~~ / to point directly E. W. N. and South.'
[308] MS: '& the outer buildings to \ have gon / ran down \ ~~along~~ by the river at the least as far as the bridge & fulling mill / by Troutbeck ~~as far as the Romane Way,~~ \ thence to the Roman Way ~~towards Carelile~~ is so call'd The Street ~~up which Street is gon~~{!!!} about 8 score yards.'
[309] In the MS., the whole of §1. is underlined.
[310] MS: 'the figure of a woman coines \ a vault with / ~~bricks, urnes~~ \ & / altars, brick, urnes & other fictilia \ * / the figure of a woman * / \ ~~If they have not bin rather streets leading to~~'. Most of the next sentence is obscured by the binding but refers to 'lime' set 'almost as hard as a qu[ern] stone.'
[311] Similar text has been added to the margin of I.498. MS: 'Down to the paps ~~from the pe~~ more Roman lately found, the figure of a woman. ~~Hic steterit Catuli~~ All which do loudly proclame it Romane. ~~Hic steterit Catuli regia celsa senis~~. And The 2 Roman wayes which meet ~~here~~ \ at this J[unction] / ~~together~~, the one calld the Street which I have travelled the other calld […] Carlile Way, the latter of which terminateing ending [… The later called […] by them. The Maiden way calld Gallani & \ […] / do seem to confirme it & bespeak it a place in the Time of Rom[ans] of more than ordinary estimacon & traffique – as Camden affirmes it to have bin; the chefe \ or principle / towne of Brigantes before [several words struck through] the Invasion. These things considered it is not improbable.'
[312] Here, two sets of margin notes are written too close to the binding to be fully legible.
[313] An identical passage to §5 (MS I.537B.) has been deleted from this edition. Similar information is given at the foot of MS I.506 (placed here in this footnote for comparison): 'So prodigiously great, & som of them huen with such monstrouse strokes (as may be seen by the parts of their \ by the pointes & striation / that it gives us occasion \ at once / both to admire both their strength & art, their strength of nature. \ to admire their quality

[I.499]

& the repeated stroakes are designd for ornament representing ~~waves~~ rock worke, or rather waves, which I shall leave to the judgment of others.{!!!}They are to be seen in the Church, Hall & P[arish], which almost make in every house of the towne the\r/ coynes & jawms[314] out of W[help] Castle; being for the most common of them being generally builded of them,[315] since they have taken the method of building with \ coble / stone insteed of forest worke – which was the common way of olde, such as yet to be seen at Wharton Hall; and a piece of it is yet to be seen at in K[irkby Thore] Hall.[316]

{§5.} A potfull of Romane coyns were found here about 40 years since; which they foolishly gave their children to play with \ and so were all lost. / And since that, a vault was discovered in Burwen Street at Coppin Hill just afore the place where I suppose they entered the Castle \ in figure above[317] / which had water in it; a stare down into it, with a doer at each end, an a shelfe or seat on either side made of huen stone on which were placed two rows of urnes.

{§6} For in all these places the vestigia of it have bin discover'd
– by vaults under ground, both of brick and stone {see §4.} & so semented with lime being a yard thick (which is no vulgare Remarque).
– by conduits for water.
– tiles of slate which had bin fastend with Iron nails in them.
– fair pavements of floores.
– by a vault with a dooer in either end & stairs down into it; having \ a / shelfe \ or / an bench \ of stone on \ each / side sett about with urnes.
– and the vaults & altars – with Roman coynes, bricks \ which here have bin found dyged up. /

{§7.} Innumerable fragments of bricks & urnes & other fictilia, now dispersed about, which the plow casteth up every year – still to be seen – which almost cover the face of the Earth, do loudly proclame it a Romane building.[318]

[I.527B][319]

As also, by \ Coynes* / Altars & Urnes, with other fictilia daly found here aboutes (many whereof are preservd by the Rector) & in particular a silver one of Julia \ Ingenius / ~~Augusta~~ \ Augustus his daughter, / who lived before the Birth of Our Saviour.) All which do loudly ~~proclame~~ proclame it Romane ~~and bespeak this Towne~~ and the 2 Romane Wayes doe confirme the same; & bespeak this Town to have bin a place of more than ordinary esteem & traffique in the times of the Romanes, as Camden affirmes it to have bin before them (by the name of Gallagum) in the time of the Brittaines;[320] for it was the Chief Place of the Brigantes (i.e. to say, of all those territories which now are divided both […] / I have seen som stones which only served on the sides of a sinke to convey the [blank] from the castle – 6 foot long \ as have served single for as monuments; / and other \ of a older / digg up but 2 yeares; each of which made [blank] cartfull when broken in pieces. I have seen som \ taken out of ditches from the castle / with all one length – served for jawnes of an ancient doer; & som \ of about a foot in thickness / which seem to be struck through a stone of about a foote & one single stroake with an huers ax{!} tho in others they appeard as ornaments {representing waved worke once in the Hall Chimney}.'

---

[314] Door jambs.

[315] MS from this point: '…~~since from forest worke, they have changed to stone buildings to build with stone ever since they ch[anged] their method of building, since for want of timber they have changd theyr method of former building Insteed of forest worke such as is yet to be seen at the~~…'

[316] MS: 'a […] which was the common way of olde, such as yet to be seen at Wharton Hall […] and a piece of it is yet to be seen at in K. Hall.'

[317] There is no illustration on this page.

[318] Sections 5, 6 and 7 have been amended; repeated passages have been deleted. See MS.I.499.

[319] '~~Are not only by these, but~~ as also by Coynes, Altars, & urnes (with other fictilia) ~~all which do~~ loudly proclame it Romane. And the 2 Roman wayes which meet at this ~~town~~ \ Place / \ Town / ~~seem to Confirme It, & bespeak It a Town. The Maden Way way & the Kings Street on High Street, the former of which doth Terminate here may {so was borne} seeme to confirme~~' This passage also appears on I.535.

[320] 'If I might without prejudice to the Judges of antiquitie, I would say it were Gallagum mentioned by Ptolemee, which Antonine nameth Gallatum…', see Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 761D.

into 5 shires \ Countyes / calld by the names, of Westm'land, Cumberland, Yorkshire, Lancashire & the Bishoprick of Durham). These greatest people in this British Iland.

[Machell's Notes: I.527C][321]

*Som of which are hereabout daly found, & som of them now preservd by the present Rector – who has one of Antoninus Pius.[322] And another of Julia, daughter of Augustus – who reigned when Our Saviour Christ was or before Christ was borne – besides many others. Put this in the margin.

[I.528]

I was informed Feb. 3. 1686 by John Langhorn, Joyner & carpenter, that [he] has seen walls of brick in Bleckatt Burwens up by the water side about 16 inch broad, after this form at f[igure] v. [below] so soldered with lime that they [blank] And that he was 26 years of age when he observed them.
{Also of a Pretiouse stone sold per block to Mr Dalston?}[323]
I have drawne another forme pectinatus,[324] which will make a wa[ll] of the same sort of bricks in a narrow compas.And both seem to me to be as excellent as they are strange, having never read nor heard of the like. The Cunei[325] in round Towers but not square.

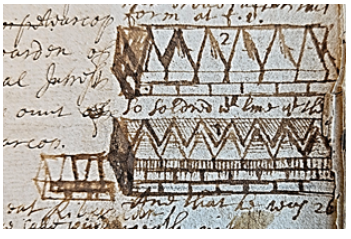

Figure 1.14.9. 'Forme pectinatus'. I.528.

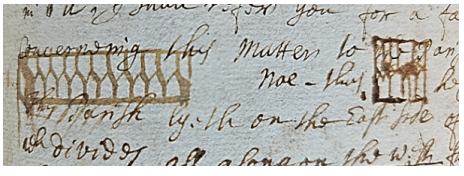

Figure 1.14.10. 'a & b; 'f.v.': examples of Machell's sketches. I.528.

[I.527A]

Which things being considered, it may not be improbable that the Proprietour of this ancient Castle with the lands round about, whom the Saxons calld Whelp, might be a Branch of the old Romane Catuli left here in trust with som British bands when they made their \ last / recess into \ Italy / their own Country; It being but about 600 years (and many Familys have continued so long) betwixt their departure & the Norman Conquest: Dureing which time the Saxons, who came in to aide the Brittans (& such of the Romaines as wee may suppose were left behind \ either / by reason of ~~their~~ marrage or otherwise) against the incursions \ violence / of the Picts & Scots, made themselves masters of all these nations; Altering the names both of men & places to their owne Country fashon; as appears to this day. Thus might Catulus by an easy & natural transmutation be chang'd into Whelp, & Castram [321] This page was originally the right-hand side of I.527B but has been numbered separately by a modern archivist. How the two parts became estranged is not known.

[322] MS: 'Dayly fou / som of which \ are / here about daly found, & som of them now preservd by the present Rector – who has one of Antoninus Pius, & ~~another of Julia Augustus \ d. of Augustus / his daughter, who reigned before the Birth of Our Saviour, besides many others~~.'
[323] There is a sketch of a stone in the MS here, ¾ cm at its widest point.
[324] 'Pectinated': having narrow projections or divisions set closely in a row like the teeth of a comb. OED.
[325] 'Wedges': see Machell's drawing, Fig. 1.14.9.

Catulinum into Whelp Castle; as the old Aballaba was \ by them / chang'd into Apelby, & \ as / Brovonacum \ was turnd / into Browham. And, perhaps, this \ whole / Bottom of Westm'land might (before the Conquest) be called Whelpdale from this ancient \ seat / which seemes to have bin the commanding place of it. And the sirname of Whelpdale be assumed hence from their Ancestours liveing (about the Conquest) at som remaquable place in this valley: Quis autem &c.[326]

[Kirkbythore: In Nature and in Art]

[I.501]

The soyl is mixed: in some place \ red /clay, in som red sand, in some gravel, & som places a black mould. It affordes quarreyes of huen stone & limestone \ in the Lordship of M[ilburn], / though at a great distance from it. / Tis most part arable and ~~pretty~~ \ very / fertill, \ especially for […] about Kirkbythore, / but little woodland excepting \ the Lordship of Milburn & The Lordship of Sowerby at Acorn Banke, the Howgil ~~Lordship~~. The fuel it affords is turves & peat \ for the most part; as likewise peat at the fell sides, but \ their / coals fetch'd from \ Hartside at / markets {or Apleby} ~~& wood from Whinfell~~.
{Juniper!!!}[327]

{A[328] general custome of the ~~Parish~~ County.}
Att midsummer: rush bearing and garland[s], hollyes in bonefires, & midsummer eve a bonefire.

[I.548]

[Note on the name Burwens]
Note that \ all which circumference & several parcels conteined therein [are] calld by the / general, North of Burwens, and take \ their / particular denominality from their several owners. All the places described at sect[ion] [blank] are calld Burwens & take several & particular names from the several persons who now doe injoy them – as […][329] Burwens, Stabligs Bur[wens] […][330]and so opposite Bensens Berwens & Soulbyes Burwens &c.

[I.506]

[High Burwens]
In nature there is a place calld the High Burwens, a square inclosure of, thought to be the area of Whelp Castle, which is by nature a \ most / sweet situation, being betwixt the rivers of Troutbek & Eden, \ on the bankes of, not far from / \ neare upon a long hill / & betwixt 2 forrests of Whinfell & Milburne.[331] Composed about with Champion Groundes on every side, glades aford a delicate prospect in the very heart as it were of the Country, which was the site of Whelop Castle as Camden calls it,[332] but Whelp, as wee, being more suerly instructed out of ancient records.[333]

Note. Here are hereabout vast walls \ Hic steterit Catuli Regia celsa senis[334] / both of brick & stone discoverd under ground, the brick which is wonderfull above a yard \ thick / & so semented to gether with lime thach that I could nevere meet with a whol one there.

---

[326] MS: 'And the sirname of Whelpdale, ~~may probably seeme to \ have / bin~~ \ be assumed/ assumed \ hence / from their Ancestours liveing (about the Conquest) at \ som / Remaquable place in this valley. But who ventures to pronounce for certain on matters so ancient?'
[327] In the MS, this memo is placed in the margin of the following page.
[328] 23 June.
[329] Possibly, 'Jacksons', but the word is unclear.
[330] Unclear words.
[331] This complicated sentence demonstrates Machell's use of alternatives as he worked to describe the site of Whelp Castle. Words that have been scored through in the MS have been allowed to remain here, as no version of the sentence makes perfect sense without them. The word 'long' is an insecure transcription.
[332] Camden gives the spelling as 'Whealop-Castle' and 'Whellop', and, in the margin of the page, 'Whellep': see Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 761.
[333] MS: 'Composed about with Champion Groundes on every side \ glades aford a delicate prospect / in the very heart as it were of the Country ~~Bottom of Westmorland~~ which was the site of Whelop Castle as Camden, calls \ it, / but Whelp, as wee, being ~~right~~ more suerly \ instructed taugh / out of \ ancient / records.'
[334] 'Here will have stood the lofty realm of old Catulus.' An oft-repeated claim based on Ovid, Heroides 1. 'Letter from Penelope to Ulysses'. See I.558, above; see also I.509, below.

{!!!} A pott full of Roman coynes ~~have bin found~~ \ were here found / about 40 yeares, which they foolishly gave ther children to play with. 2 altars lately \ dug; / inumerable fragments of broken urnes \ an other of excellent fictilia[335] / ~~all which bespeake the building of Ancient Rome~~. Since that, a vault \ was discover / under ground \ in the midst of Castle Street / with a stare into it that we are chief to admire theirat[336] a doer at each end \ having shelves on either side / ~~with~~ seates on the sides set with Urnes, all which do loudly proclame them Roman. […][337] Hic steterit Castri Catuli Regia.[338] High as they call it.

And the Romane Wayes: the Street and Maden Way, end at this place, at this Towne meeting together, & the last entry here \ in this Town / do seem to confirme it, & bespeak it a Towne in the times the Romanes of more than ordinary esteem & accompt, estimation & traffique.

Hic steterit Catuli Regia celsa senis. Altar, coines, urnes; besides those sandal discoverd in the fontane Hypocreen, & the ~~fontane~~ \ well / itselfe, which are printed in the Oxford Transactions[339] – may be recounted as extraordinary. & of Later Times, som pieces of building: 1ᵗ. The Church, which on the inside &c. The foundation, of tower, flags, of body, on pavement. 2. Howgil Castle, the walls whereof were lately alterd. 3. The parlour & dineing roome at Acorn Banke.

[I.507]

{S.W. G[ate]}
Near the South angle or rather betwixt it and the principle gate […][340] was lately discovered in the High Street a vault underground in figure oblong & arched over; which having water therein with a dooer at each end with stairs to descend by into it & a shelfe or seat (on either side) made of huen stone & set round with urnes.[341]

[I.509]

Hic steterit Catuli Regia celsa senis {!!!}[342]
\ Which / these things considered; it is not improbable that the 1. Proprietor {!!!} of this Ancient Castle \ with the lands circumjacent / whom the Saxons call'd Whelp (in Latine Catulus) might be ~~descended~~ \ a branche from the old Romane Catuli* 'left here in trust ~~amongst therc~~ \ with their bands / British when the Romanes made their recess \ into Italy; / it being but the space of [blank] years, betwixt their departure and Norman Conquest. Which is no extraordinary duration of ~~a family~~ \ time / if wee compare things past with the present.[343] And perhaps the whol Bottom of Westmorland ought \ from hence / ~~thence~~ be called Vallis Catulnia, ~~from this chief seat in it~~; and the Whelpdales deserve \ assume / their \ ancient / sirname \ de Valle Catulnia from ~~liveing~~ their ancestours living at some remarquable \ place in this vala / habitation therein. Quis autem rem, tam antiquas, pro certo affirmare audet.[344] The like of which is not to be found in the County of Westm'land & has bin rendered yet

[335] 'Earthenware.'
[336] Several words here are obscured by the binding.
[337] There is interlineation here, but it is illegible.
[338] 'Here will have stood the lofty realm of Catulus.'
[339] See Part 3, Ch, 3, Roman Antiquities.
[340] An interlineation here is illegible.
[341] MS: 'which having \ water in / water therein: \ with / a dooer at each end, \ with / ~~with~~ stairs ~~down~~ {to descend by} into it, & a shelfe or seat (on either side) made of huen stone & set round with urnes, besett all \ round / with urnes which had water in it, a dooer at each end with stairs to descend by and a shelfe or seat on either side beset all with urnes.' A line has been drawn through this paragraph but, although it repeats what has gone before, it is easier to read than the same material in a previous paragraph (MS: I.507).
[342] 'Here will have stood the lofty realm of old Catulus.' Yet another of several repetitions of the phrase comparing the lofty realms of Priam to Whelp Castle (see above). Perhaps the three exclamation marks at the end of this iteration suggest that Machell was aware of the irony in the comparison; alternatively, they serve to exhibit his family pride.
[343] Interlineation of 5cm is illegible here.
[344] 'Quis autem res tam antiquas pro certo affirmare audet?' = 'But who ventures to pronounce for certain on matters so ancient?' A favourite saying of Machell's; possibly a slightly different wording of a passage in Livy, History of the Romans, Bk I.3.2.

more delightful & pleasant by the 2 large woody forrests of Milburne & Whinfel: that at equal distance on the East & the other on the West at about half a mile from it; both full of wood & replenished with read dear & fallow; as the latter continueth in as to this very day. The like of which is not to be found in the ~~Bottom~~ \ County / of Westmorland & has bin rendered \ yet / more delightful & pleasant by the 2 \ large / woody forrests of Milburne & Whinfel ~~and on~~ \ that at equal distance / on the East & the other on the West at about a mile distance \ about half a mile from it / ~~&~~ both \ full of wood & / replenished with read dear & fallow; as the ~~same~~ \ latter / continueth\ in as / to this very day.

~~There is a Place~~ \ The Square[345] / calld the High Burwens \seems to have bin the area of it, conteineing ~~about~~ 6 score yards in diameter now plowd & cultivated, which is full of broken \ urnes, / bricks & slates, & which that have bin[346] of lime ~~allmost~~ as hard \ almost as a qu[ern] stone it selfe Hic steterit &c. / The angles of it \ thereof as I have observd all Rom[an] fortifications have don, / doe point \ looked / directly ~~East~~ to the 4 cardinal Pointes of the World. & at the East corner was lately found the head of a woman (more Romane to below the paps) ~~carved in~~ \ [an] image of a roman cut in silver†,[347]& likewise an Altar about thirty yards from it, both which are now at Crakanthorp Hall.[348]

[Machell's Notes: I.509]

*{Who had long bin true to Romanes Intrest – dureing which time The Saxons who cam in to aide the Britanes, and such of the Romanes as were set amongst them, against the \ valore[349] of / Picts and made themselves at lenth masters of both.}

[I.530A]

[Narrative 4]

Of Kirkbythore Parish or Kirkbythure[350]

This Parish taketh denomination from Kirkbythore \ where the church stands / (~~so it is writt in all ancient records)~~, which word seems to be of Saxon original, taken from Kirk, ~~which~~ signifying a church, by a place, & Thor which was one of the Saxon gods whence wee have the word Thorsday and implies as much as the Place where the Templ of Thor was erected. And this Thor was the same with \ the great god / Jupiter amongst the Romanes, \ by whom when they first invaded Britain, / in whose time this Towne was called Gallagum, a place of no […][351] {But now a Temple is erected therein to the Great God Jehovah which is in honour of the Arch Angel ~~St~~ called St Michael, and is a Rectory.}

[I.530B]

At which time the Romanes subdued the Brttaines, but before the Saxona in the time of the Romanes & Brittaines, it was Gallatum or Wallatum – perhaps from Livius Gallus or Wallus {? or from Galli or Walli, the names of the Britt.} of whom wee read that Asclæpiodotus Duke of Cornwall prevailed \ in fight / against Alectus & him; and when he had slain him, threw him into a brooke, from then thence called Wallus Brooke & now Wallbrooke. This Asclæpiodotus was \ afterwards / said to be pronounced King of the Britaines & to have bin slane by one Coel Earle of Colchester, who succeed[ed] him circa anno Christ 262: Chron. Temp. p.494.[352] {This was in the time of Di[o]clesian [&] Max[i]m[ian]us q[uo]d Ide[m] de hoc [Sc. tempore] et ante.}[353]

---

[345] MS. Machell drew a square shape here.
[346] Some text is obscured by the binding here.
[347] The subject continues on I.527A.
[348] A complicated paragraph comprising much reordering and scoring-through.
[349] Insecure transcription of this interlineated word.
[350] In the MS, 'or Kirkbythure' has been scored through.
[351] The rest of this sentence has perished.
[352] Asclepiodotus appears in medieval British legend as a native king of Britain. Geoffrey of Monmouth's Chronicle, History of the Kings of Britain (1136) portrays him as a Duke of Cornwall who was raised to the kingship of Britain (c.296) in opposition to Allectus, a Roman who oppressed the people.
[353] 'This was in the time of Dioclesian [&] Maximian which [was] the same thing from this and before.' Perhaps Machell is referring to the fact that Diocletian, who was proclaimed emperor in 284, took Maximian as co-emperor in 286; thereafter Diocletian ruled the western empire, Maximian the eastern empire. (From 293 two

[I.533]

§. But to returne to Kirkbythore Parish.
The soyle thereof is of severall sorts: In some parts read-sand, in others yellow, here black mold, there browne; in some places gravell, in others clay both read & blew. But for the most part it is very fertill, especially for corn, which yieldeth best of any in the Countrey. The high moores & mountains affords good fuell & pasture for sheep, which are generally sound; and the lower for cattle. But the want of \ cow / pastures for the common sort is the greatest defect, which by improvement might easily be helped.[354] It hath bin formerly well replenished with wood, most part of the Parish being a forrest of old: But now there is little, unlesse it be in the \ 2 / Chapplerys of Sowerby & the chappelry of Milburne, which are fare remote from Kirkbythore Towne; & the only fuell which they now have {remaining} (excepting coales, which they fetch \ are fetched / from Hartside, att 10 miles distance) are turfes, & peates. But yet in the mountains there are out-bursts of coals which might prove of great use unto all the neighbourhood & of great advantage to the Lords of the Fees if they would sinke for them; whilest in the meane time they lie neglected, & only serve such poor countrey people as can pick them out thence for burning of Lime Kilns.

In these mountaines alsoe there are silver mines, as some doe imagine; being thereto induced partly by the names of certain places upon the fells which are called Silveray & Silvery-Bands, \ & / partly by an old rimeing prophecy of Mother Shiptons[355] (whom they call here Gillemans wife from her former husband as they relate) who, passing these mountains & tasteing the water which issued from them; is said to have delivered these verses:

> They that are awn'd to open Dunfell-sneck*
> May measure out theire silver in a peck†.

Here are alsoe lead mines, which discover themselves in the bankes of the rivers, but the most remarkable is that below Dunfell att Silveray-Band,[356] a very rich one; now wrought & farmed by the Marquess of Winchester of the Earle of Thannett as Lords of those Wastes in the forrest of Milburne.[357] And in the very skirts of the mountaines there is plenty of limestones, & freestone alsoe of a reddish couler, which this Parish affords in great abundance, excepting \ only in / Kirkbythore Lordship only where there there is not any. But that defect is supplied by nature (if Art would put to her helping hand as she hath formerly done)[358] in a very large veine of curiouse blew clay like unto marle, neare Parsons Close at the East end of Kirkbythore Towne; which would (I believe) make as good brick as any in the world; and likewise all sorts of earthen vessels: for I doe suppose that those curiouse bricks which the plow casteth up at the place called Burwens where Whelp Castle stood, with the urnes & pots which are found thereabouts, were made of this clay.
Besides these advantages:
§. This Parish is alsoe extreamly well watered with rivers and springs, a great Cause & Argument of a fruitfull place. The former may be seen by the Boundary of it, being almost incompass'd with rivers \ of water / well storr'd with fish, especially troutes

[Machell's Notes: I.533]
*The latch of a dooer with which it is shut: alludeing here to riches shut up in the chambers of the Earth.
†A measure here conteineing 5 gallons.[359] further delegates were appointed, so that the whole empire was divided into quarters, under the 'Tetrarchy'.) The words 'et ante' perhaps refer to the two years when Diocletian was sole emperor.

---

[354] By 'improvement', Machell probably meant 'enclosure'.
[355] She is said to have lived at Knaresborough near Harrogate in Yorkshire.
[356] Silverband.
[357] Farm: a fixed yearly amount paid by a tenant in money or in kind (especially in grain) as rent for the use of land or property, or as tax; an amount received as revenue for letting or subletting land or property. historical after the 18th century. OED.
[358] The numerals 2 and 1 have been placed over the last two words to show that they should be read: 'done formerly'.
[359] For more on Mother Shipton, see I.555.

[I.534]

{which hath given name to the River call'd Troutbeck}
The latter is obviouse to every eye; there being not a Towne nor Hamlet in the Parish that doth not afford a great many springs. But the most remarkable are those that follow:

Machells Well, which springs in the very south point of this Parish att a place called Sowber, & runs into the ancient Channel of Troutbeck, neare to the place where the three Lordships of Crakanthorp, Bolton & Kirkbythore \ meet / as hath been said. This yields a most delicate & wholesome water, which hath \ been / successfully taken in feavers, a small taste of vinegar being mixed therewith.

Hyppocreene, an Ancient well, lately discovered by the foot of an horse. It is in the ~~verge~~ downe end of Kirkbythore, neare \ to / the Bridge, & by the side of the great Romane Way which leadeth from Appleby to the city of Carlile. In which was found urnes & severall curiouse fine earthen vessels, with greyhounds & other figures upon them; the cusp of a speare; & sandalls whose soles were struck full of nales & sow'd together, not with thread but with leather; most of which were carefully preserved, design'd & describ'd in a late letter to Sir William Dugdall by the present Rector, which letter being printed not only att London but at Oxford alsoe amongst their Philosophicall Transactions* I need say noe more concerning this fountaine: but that it is alsoe neare to a place where three Lordships meet (in three severall Parishes) Sc. Crakanthorp, Brampton & Kirkbythore.

Dobkill-How Well, which is in the Street call'd Wharton End directly opposite to Kirkbythore Hall, & in the way to it, concerning which & a place neare the Miln called Stack or Stake (which growes very good oates) they have a saying, as if Bacchus & Ceres had combind together to make the towne delightfull & pleasant

> Noe Kirkbythore hater can the village forsake
> If he tastes Dobkill water & a Bannock off Stake.

Pots-Well, which springs on the North side of Kirkbythore in a pasture call'd Potts & seems to proceed from some sort of minerall. It promiseth coale in the places adjacent as some doe believe; & has been accounted of singular virtue in cuering old sores.

Marble-Skar-Well in the Chappelry of Milburne near Howgill Castle; which hath two heads \ or springs / the higher whereof supplieth the castle for necessary uses,[360] and the lower is said to be good for sore eyes. – And soe likewise is

Lucies-Well, near Acorn-Banke in the Chappelry of Sowerby, soe called from Mrs Lucie Dalston (late wife of the present John Dalston Esq. & the last of the Fallowfields), who used to visit it & recommend it to the blear eyed Leahs as good for theire sight.[361]

[Machell's Notes: I.534]
*{Philosophical Transactions April 20 1684 p.555. A letter from Mr Thomas Machel of Kirkbythore in Westm'land to Sir W. D. March 25 1684, concerneing som Antiquities found there.}[362]

[I.535][363]

[Rarityes in Nature & Arte]

[360] Machell redesigned Howgill Castle for William Sandford; see a description of this in Howard Colvin, A biographical dictionary of British architects, 1600-1840 (London, 1978), 531-32.
[361] For the 'blear eyed Leahs', see I.557, above.
[362] Philosophical Transactions 14, 158 (1684), 554-8, https://royalsocietypublishing.org/toc/rstl/1684/14/158; See also Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities.
[363] On this page of the MS there are pencilled comments, now illegible, and a sketch similar to those on I.528.

[I.534]

{which hath given name to the River call'd Troutbeck}
The latter is obviouse to every eye; there being not a Towne nor Hamlet in the Parish that doth not afford a great many springs. But the most remarkable are those that follow:

Machells Well, which springs in the very south point of this Parish att a place called Sowber, & runs into the ancient Channel of Troutbeck, neare to the place where the three Lordships of Crakanthorp, Bolton & Kirkbythore \ meet / as hath been said. This yields a most delicate & wholesome water, which hath \ been / successfully taken in feavers, a small taste of vinegar being mixed therewith.

Hyppocreene, an Ancient well, lately discovered by the foot of an horse. It is in the ~~verge~~ downe end of Kirkbythore, neare \ to / the Bridge, & by the side of the great Romane Way which leadeth from Appleby to the city of Carlile. In which was found urnes & severall curiouse fine earthen vessels, with greyhounds & other figures upon them; the cusp of a speare; & sandalls whose soles were struck full of nales & sow'd together, not with thread but with leather; most of which were carefully preserved, design'd & describ'd in a late letter to Sir William Dugdall by the present Rector, which letter being printed not only att London but at Oxford alsoe amongst their Philosophicall Transactions* I need say noe more concerning this fountaine: but that it is alsoe neare to a place where three Lordships meet (in three severall Parishes) Sc. Crakanthorp, Brampton & Kirkbythore.

Dobkill-How Well, which is in the Street call'd Wharton End directly opposite to Kirkbythore Hall, & in the way to it, concerning which & a place neare the Miln called Stack or Stake (which growes very good oates) they have a saying, as if Bacchus & Ceres had combind together to make the towne delightfull & pleasant

> Noe Kirkbythore hater can the village forsake
> If he tastes Dobkill water & a Bannock off Stake.

Pots-Well, which springs on the North side of Kirkbythore in a pasture call'd Potts & seems to proceed from some sort of minerall. It promiseth coale in the places adjacent as some doe believe; & has been accounted of singular virtue in cuering old sores.

Marble-Skar-Well in the Chappelry of Milburne near Howgill Castle; which hath two heads \ or springs / the higher whereof supplieth the castle for necessary uses,[360] and the lower is said to be good for sore eyes. – And soe likewise is

Lucies-Well, near Acorn-Banke in the Chappelry of Sowerby, soe called from Mrs Lucie Dalston (late wife of the present John Dalston Esq. & the last of the Fallowfields), who used to visit it & recommend it to the blear eyed Leahs as good for theire sight.[361]

[Machell's Notes: I.534]
*{Philosophical Transactions April 20 1684 p.555. A letter from Mr Thomas Machel of Kirkbythore in Westm'land to Sir W. D. March 25 1684, concerneing som Antiquities found there.}[362]

[I.535][363]

[Rarityes in Nature & Arte]

[360] Machell redesigned Howgill Castle for William Sandford; see a description of this in Howard Colvin, A biographical dictionary of British architects, 1600-1840 (London, 1978), 531-32.
[361] For the 'blear eyed Leahs', see I.557, above.
[362] Philosophical Transactions 14, 158 (1684), 554-8, https://royalsocietypublishing.org/toc/rstl/1684/14/158; See also Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities.
[363] On this page of the MS there are pencilled comments, now illegible, and a sketch similar to those on I.528.

Caervorran in / Northumberland \ neare the Picts Wall / & terminates here); both \ which / may be recorded amongst things extraordinary relateing to Art, doe confirme the same & bespeak this Towne to have been a place of more then ordinary esteem & traffique in the time of the Romanes; And Camden affirmes it to have been ~~called by the~~ \ called / then (by the name of Gallagum) in the time of the Brittaines.[370] For it was the chief place of the Brigantes (that is to say, of all those territories which now are divided into v. ~~shires~~ \ Countyes / called by the names of Westm'land, Cumberland, Yorkshire, Lancashire & the Bishoprick of Durham) & they the most numerous & flourishing people of all the Brittaines.) Which things being considered, it may not be improbable that the proprietor of this ancient Castle with the lands round about, whom the Saxons calld Whelp, might be a branch of the old Romane Catuli left here in trust with some Brittish bands when they made their last recesse [I.536] into Italy, it being but about 6oo years (& many families have continued soe long) betwixt their departure & the Norman Conquest; dureing which time the Saxons who came in to aide the Brittaines (& such of the Romanes as we may suppose were left behind either by reason of their marriage or other wise) against the incursions of the Picts & Scots, made themselves masters of all these nations, altering the names both of men & places to their owne Country fashion; as appears to this day.
Thus might Catulus (by an easy & natural transmutation \ or translation rather /) be changed into Whelp, & Castrum Catulinum into Whelp Castle, as the old Aballaba was by them changed into Apelby, & as Brovonacum was turnd into Brougham.[371] And perhaps, this Bottom of Westm'land might \ also / (before the Conquest) be called Whelpdale, from this ancient seat, which seems to have been the commanding place of it: And the sirname of Whelpdale may probably seem to have been assumed from their ancestours living (about the Conquest) at some remarkable place in this valley
Quis autem res tam Antiquas pro certo affirmare audet?[372]

But now to returne from things which are buried in their owne ruines (or eased out by the conquering swords), to which is more modern & more discernible.

{2.} [Parish Church]
The next place here which deserves observation is the Parish Church, which seems by the stones whereof it is made, to have been ~~rased~~ \ builded / out of Whelp Castle ruines. 'Tis an handsome structure on the outside tho not very large, adorned with a well-proportioned Tower & a clock (whose hour-board fronteth \ towards / the Towne) which strikes on the loudest bell in this County (called Great Tom)*. But its greatest bea\u/ty & ornament is (as doth best becom holiness) on the inside, where all things are neate – the floors of the Church and Quire well flagg'd; the seates (which are general made of wainscot) & all other things thereto appertaining regular & uniforme; [a] delicate font made of huen stone at the Rectors charge, wherein he designes to have a fountaine playing up in the bason & a dove appendant to the cover of it, which (when it ascends by the help of a pully whose counterpoise is hid in the steeple) will seem to stand hovering over the water – a proper emblem of the Holy Ghosts descending-upon & sanctifying the baptismall water to the mystycall washing away of sin.[373] The Quire is neatly both sealed[374] & seated with very good wainscot, the Altar rail'd in with wreathed Ballisters (the Rectors gift alsoe), where instead of Balls upon the pillasters he hath placed Cupps which are noe lesse signifficant \ than the former emblem, representing to us / the cup-of-[370] See Camden: 'But tract of time hath quite out-worne the old name, and it is at this day Whealop-Castle. If I might without prejudice to the Judges of antiquitie, I would say it were Gallagum mentioned by Ptolemee, which Antonine nameth Gallatum, the distance of journies accord so well, and the name doth not altogether gainsay. For what words the Britons began with Gall, the English turned into Wall.' Camden, Britannia tr. Holland, 1637, 761E.

[371] MS: '& as Brovonacum ~~inter textæ~~ \ ~~was changed into~~ / \ was turnd into / Brougham.' The Roman site of Brougham has been traditionally named 'Brovacum' and 'Brovoniacum': see Samuel Timms, The Family Topographer: a compendious account of the anciemt state of the counties of England, VI, Northern Circuit (London, 1837), 3.
[372] Repetition of, 'But who ventures to pronounce for certain on matters so ancient?'
[373] The font is still extant; it bears the date 1688 and Machell's arms. Hyde & Pevsner suggest that the carving was done by Edward Addison: Hyde and Pevsner, 473.
[374] It has a ceiling.

blessing in the other ~~great~~ Sacrament \ of the Lords Supper / which is there administer'd.[375] The Altar, alsoe Pulpit & organ-loft are of very good workmanship, being curiously carved.[376] And here are prayers on Wednesdays, Fridayes & Saturday nights, every Holyday & Holyday-eve, with Catechising on every Sunday unlesse prevented by important occasions. And as the materiall Church (or fabrick) deserves observation for its uniformity, soe likewise the reall Church (or people) doe deserve commendations for their conformity.

[Machell's Notes: I.536]

*Memorandum, found.

[I.537]

For they ~~all~~ \ generally / kneel & stand, repeat & answer at their devotions as the Rubrick directs. And for dissenters from the Church of England, there are not any (in all this great Parish) excepting one family, which consists of two persons whose names & persuasion I shall not mention, least being affected with this singularity & noted for it, they should thence take occasion to glory in what is truly their shame.[377]

{3} [Parsonage House]

The third thing of note is the Parsonage house,[378] which is one of the fairest in all this Countrey, but oweth its beauty to the late Mr Lowther[379] & the present Rector, the latter of which hath altered it all from top to bottom & conjoyn'd it with a small Court ~~in~~to the Church, which may serve the house instead of a Chapple upon all occasions; adorn'd it with an orchard & olitory-garden;[380] laid a great deale of glebe land about it; and made a contrivance in his dining-room chimney that they waste not one cinder, nor never carry \ any / ashes out of it; an invention therefore worthy observation because it may be of singular use in all other places where they burn coale. It is done by a funnel under the grate, which goes downe (in the figure of a cone invers'd) behind the corner of the hall-chimney: haveing a searcher (of small iron-barrs) at the top of it to divide the cinders from the ashes, and a door of stone at the bottom (like an ovens mouth) to take them out at once in a yeare, which in the meane time is close daubed \ up / & stopp'd to prevent \ the / inconvenience which would thence arise by the stoaring up of the dust & ashes at the Hall fireside {incommoding his family by the hall fire.}[381]

He hath alsoe contriv'd an octagonall deske with a small writeing table running beneath it, by means whereof he can consult many authors at once without moving his foot, & compare them together with a turne of his hand*.[382]

---

[375] The altar rails are still extant, with an inscription declaring Machell's gift, dated Caroli II 35, i.e.1684; see Hyde & Pevsner (473), who suggest that the blocked-up windows in the chancel were originally inserted by Machell but that his insertion appears to have weakened the structure, Hyde & Pevsner, 473.

[376] The pulpit (1631) predates Machell.

[377] The information (scored through) also appears on MS.I.562. MS: 'And as the material church (or fabric) doth deserve commendations for its uniformity, so \ likewise / the Real Church (or people) doe deserve commendations for their conformity (which by Gods assistance the present Rector hath brought them up to). They all knele & stand \ repeat & answ[er] / at their devotions, as the Rubric directs; And [there] are not any Discenters from the Church of England (in all this great Parish) excepting 2{!} ~~(which are both of a family)~~, 2 persons whose names & perswation I shal not mention, least (being affected with this singularity & noted for it) they should thence take occasion to glory in what is most truly their shame.' Machell's attitude is typical of a 17th-century Church of England rector, and most of the local gentry agreed with him. See Peter Lucas on Sir Daniel Fleming and Sirs Philip and Christopher Musgrave, in, The Rise of the Quakers: Revaluing the place of Preston Patrick in the early movement (Kirkby Lonsdale, 2017), 165-6.

[378] In 1703 William Nicolson regarded the rectory as 'in the best repair of any in the Diocese', see Nicolson, Misc. Accts, 28.

[379] Rev. Lancelot Lowther, rector of Kirkby Thore from 1629. For details see Kirkby Thore, Narrative 2, I.551, above.

[380] A kitchen or herb garden.

[381] This margin comment also appears on I.563. There are two almost identical passages elsewhere in the MS (I.508 and I.562); see also a draft of the material on I.768.

[382] The asterisk leads to more text on Machell's study furniture on I.562.

[I.562]

{*Also, A Reading Desk in his study, which, being octagonal, by turneing it round wil bring 8 folios or 16 folios to hand to examine at and quot of, to aprise ascending.}

[I.563]

Figure 1.14.11. Study desk. I.563.

1. The Writeing Deske.
2. The Turneing Desk for Bookes with pin-holes in the standing post to advance or settle it.[383]

Figure 1.14.12. Dining-room chimney 'contrivance' and study desk. 1.562.

[383] Similar material appears on MS I.537: 'He hath also contrived in his Study or Library an octagonal deske and a writeing table which standeth under it; whereby he can consult many authors & compare them together by a turn with his hand.'

And in his gardine which his study looks into, \ which being a piece of ground ornamented (forced),[384] doth show the benignity of the air & soyle to be extraordinary.

[I.537]

And as Art (in this place), so Nature alsoe hath sported herselfe; having gratified him with two rare productions: a dasie, four-inch and an half in circumference but the last yeare; & severall gilly flowers full blowne at Shrovetide about two yeares before, without any help of stercoration[385] \ or dunging, / or other improvement; which shows the benignity of the aire & soile to be more in this County than has been reported by other authors.

[I.563]

{Pine Trees placed in the midst of his grass plats; but being else where in the country, I shal not ent[er] them.}

[I.537]

{§4.} [Kirkby Thore Hall]

The next Curiosity (if it may be soe called) is att Kirkbythore Hall, where there is a piece of old forrest worke building – a common thing once when this part of the Country was full of good timber. But now (& in the ages to come) it may passe for a rarity, and therefore the rather ought to be mentioned because it shows us what manner of buildings was (for the most) used here of old, & prevents an objection which may be made against the greatnesse of this Towne \ & Apelby / & others alsoe (whose ruines are not now to be found) by showing how easily they might be consum'd (tho never soe great) & reduced to ashes (which the wind scattereth wheresoever it listeth,[386] & yet leaves noe ~~Ruines or~~ \ ruines / vestigia behind it). Here is alsoe an Altar (digg'd up at Whelp Castle) which Sir William Dugdale hath taken notice of & therefore I need not say any thing of it.

[I.538][387]

[Cow-Sonsy]

But amongst these old things at Kirkbythore I cannot forbeare to give an account (as a thing which is not common in nature) of the great age & wit of a certain Alewife who lived in this Towne at Coppin Hill, in perfect understanding & strength till she was one hundred & twenty yeares old: some say, one hundred & twenty-eight. {Testament Thomas Soulby a very honest & sensible person; also, John Hill, & common fame say that she lived to 128.}

She frequently travail'd to London on foote \ & could thread a needle to her dying day. / {Her father (they say) lived to an 140 & she thought that she should have livd as long.}

Her name was Sanderson \ K. Smith / {? If not Katherine Smith, so says Criss, her made} But in a by name, to please themselves & vex her withall, they call'd her Cow-sonsy; which signifies a good Lucky-beast but deprived of that which should be at once its Armes & ornament (namely the hornes): tho perhaps they alluded to her want of haire in her extreame old age; for they call them cowd alsoe whose haire is come of, by Art or Accident.

But she revenged herselfe upon one man; who (coming with a great many friends to drinke at her house; & being deformed with a wen on his forehead, yet had the face to play upon her &c.) call'd her Cow-sonsy; to whom she replyed, it was better to be Cow'd & sonsy than Horn'd & unlucky; which was a severe reflection upon him, not only in respect of the wen which grew on his forehead, but some other excrescences, which (as it was said) his wife gave occasion to bud in that place. She liv'd to [be] a proverb; for now we say (of those that are old, & not likely to die in our thanke) I thinke he'el be as old as Cow-sonsy, with which I thought once to have concluded my observations concerning this place.

[384] 'Forced': of plants, a crop, etc. Made to bear, or produced, out of the proper season. Alternatively, fortified, made strong against attack. OED. This is interesting, as Machell goes on to say that his plot was not dressed with manure or other improvement.

[385] Dressing with manure.

[386] See AVB: John 3:8.

[387] As versions on MS I.564 and MS.I.146 tell the same tale, they have been deleted from this edition.

[I.545A]

The Old Song of Cow Sonsy[388]

[I.545D]

1. Cowsonsy was a dainety dame.
All Kirkbythore can tell the same.
At Coppin Hill she once did dwell,
And there she brewd Good Ale to sell.

[I.545A]

2. Where som Good fellows met together
~~It~~ Twas John Sanderson brought them thither.
There was Will Parcivel & John Nansy,
That came to drink with old Cow-sonsy.[389]

3. Ned Willan was their at that time
When they as thus did make this rime
Let us be merry every one
Cow Soncys to her chamber gone.

4. Mic~~hael~~ Atkinson ~~he began to~~ \ there / laught
& said Nedd Addinson should goe daft.
\ But / strike up Piper & play us a strake[390]
To dance it for Cowsoncy sake.

5. Sais Cow you are much given to scorn,
I'le dance your strake my self to morn.
& soe she did as her son did say
She danced it in the break of day.

[I.545C]

6. [First line perished] born
With an hair codpiss set before
& ever she cryes O Siss & Jock,
Ist not well danced without a smock.

7. Siss & Jock lay in the same room
& swore that she had neatly done.
To dance again she up did start
And thundered out a Rousing fart.

8. This fart did Siss & Jock soe fray,
They durst noe longer sleep that day,
But up with speed they both did high,
& swore it thundered in the sky.

---

[388] I.545A initially gives a truncated version of the first two verses: 1. Cow Sonsy is A dainety / She doth her guests / O'eth Copin Hill she / & their she brewed. 2. We are good fellows met together / here John Sanderson brought us hither / heres Will Persavell & John Nancy/ is cos med to drink with old Cowsancy.' Roughly pencilled alterations to the poem have not been transcribed. The song appears on both sides of two small scraps of paper, originally one sheet, now numbered I.545 A to D. The verses are written as follows: 1-2: I.545D; 2-5: I. 545A; 7-10: I.545C; unnumbered: I.545B and C. Verses on I.545D appear to be in a different hand from the rest but most text is in Machell's hand. The narrative which names Cow-Sonsy as Sanderson first occurs on I.538.

[389] Another version is given here: MS: '2. We are good fellows met together; here John Sanderson brought us hither; heres Will Persavell & John Nancy; is comed to drink with old Cowsoncy'.

[390] To blow a horn; to make a start. OED.

9. This suddain chance made Cow think shame;
She thought herself she was to blame,
& earnestly did Jock intreat
That he must needs her counsell keep.

10. But Jock did like a scurvy lad, he told his father all he heard.
His father in a merry vain,
Told it to the next he met again.

[I.545B]

Now of my rime I make an end.
Noe harm at all I did intend.
I spent but ten-pence, that was all,
When I did her Cowsoncy call.
Finis.[391]

Dame Topock said they did her wrong,
She was not mentioned in the song.
She could dance as well as her sister Cow,
For anything that she did know.
She danced about till she did stink,
Her only son was Captain Spink.

[I.538]

[Arts & Imployments]
Yet before I take leave of this Ancient Towne once famous for trades, I must observe to you that in this village (as if the Genij of the place had not left, it & forsaken it utterly) there are above 30 Artes & Imployments professed & practised at this very day. As first, the most Beautiful Art of Architecture, which (amongst many other) the present Rector hath some knowledge off, he & one Addison (borne in this towne & contemporary with him) being the first introducers of regular building into these parts.[392] Hutton Hall in the County of Cumberland was altered by Addison;[393] Rose Castle in Cumberland, Caesars Tower,[394] Howgill Castle & Crakanthorp Hall in the County of Westm'land by Mr Machell.[395]

---

[391] Clearly not quite finished, for an addition appears below.
[392] Comment on Machell as architect has not necessarily taken him at face value. For instance, 'Revd Thomas Machell misled posterity by his claim to have introduced "regular" building to Cumbria. While William Thackeray (fl. 1670-82), mason and carpenter of Torpenhow, has now taken over that important role, it is possible that further research might discover an earlier builder to wrest it from him' – see Blake Tyson, 'Some Cumbrian Builders, 1670-1780', 180. See also Hyde & Pevsner on the church at Kirkby Thore: 'Thomas Machell … may have put in the large square windows in the chancel: blocked now, having visually weakened the structure.' It is also suggested that Edward Addison might have carved the font: Hyde & Pevsner, 473.
[393] The East Front of Hutton-in-the-Forest [not Hutton Hall, Penrith] was built c.1680 by Edward Addison (1656-1705), almost certainly to the design of William Talman, architect of Lowther Castle where Addison was clerk of works. https://hutton-in-the-forest.co.uk. See also Hyde & Pevsner on Hutton-in-the-Forest. [It] 'is an object lesson on how the [17th] century moved from Jacobean to Baroque without seriously going classical.' Hyde & Pevsner, 415.
[394] Part of Appleby Castle.
[395] E. Bellasis noted that Thomas Machell, 'was naturally inclined to the art of drawing, a great lover of antiquities and not only skilfull in the liberal arts but mechanical also, his judgement was such that all sorts of ingenious tradesmen w[oul]d say it was a pity that he had not been of each of their professions.' He also quotes the Hill MSS, IV.132: Machell 'was a passionate admirer and promoter of the pseudo classic and Palladian architecture'. See 'Machell of Crackenthorpe', CW1, 8 (1886). 416-67, at 445-46 and 447n. More recently, Machell has featured in Howard Colvin's Biographical Dictionary of British Architects 1600-1840, in which he is credited with the design of the east range at Appleby Castle of 1686-8, 'in a handsome classical style', as well as the 'regularisation' of Howgill Castle for William Sandford and improvements elsewhere. See H. Colvin, A Biographical Dictionary of British Architects 1600-1840 (3rd edn, Newhaven, 1995), 631-32. [I should like to thank Dr Edward Impey for introducing me to Colvin's work, Ed.]

Organ Loft. St Lawrence Appleby[396]
And the organ loft in St Lawrence Appleby of the dorrick order (which has extraordinary fancy in it, the guttæ & triglyphs[397] being renderd musicall & the flutings turn'd into organ pipes) was designed by him, & the ~~joyoneres~~ \ joyners / taught how to worke by the scale.

[I.548]

Organ & Organ Loft: where the Triglyphs or Apolloos lyers are elegantly turned into {Panonick Organs & the guttæ or bells into the ends of wind instrument, the fluteings into Organ pipe appositely significantly into the extremityes or endes of winde pipes} which are incomparable if they had follow'd the directions exactly.[398]

[I.538]

But neglect […][399] {The worke is thereby rendered more mean than it ought to be.}[400]

[I.539]

The other Artes professions & trades which are in this village
I shall run over (for brevities sake) by way of alphabet, which are as followeth – namely that of a Baker, Basket-maker, Blacksmith, Bruer, Butcher, Carpenter, Clogger, Cobbler, Currier, Cooper, Joyner, Fisher, \ Fuller, / Glazier, Knitter, Last Maker, Mason, Malster, Mealman, Mercer, Midwife, Milnwright, Milner, Piper, Shoemaker, Skinner, Spinner, Tanner, Taylor, Thatcher, Waller, Weaver, Whitesmith & Wheelwright; to which we may adde tho out off course (because not fit \ proper / to be mix'd with the rabble) a schoolmaster & schooldame, which I thought fit to observe as a rarity relateing to Artes, the like ~~of~~ whereof is scarce to be found through the Kingdom of England \ in a countrey village. /

[Howgill Castle]
The next remarkable place in this Parish is Howgill Castle in the Chapelry of Milburne, being a faire building which standeth high on the skirts of the mountaines in the eye of the Countrey & hath a large prospect to the South & South-west, but the other side being shut up with mountains & a great grove of trees wherein it standeth. The walls were formerly (& som yet are) of prodigious thickness – to wit 10 foote & ½ in breth, (which exceeds the dimension of The Picts Wall, for it was only eight \ or nine foot /); & underneath the dwelling house (to which \ they / ascended by stairs on the outside) were vaults & cellers arched over with stone, which was the old way of building in these partes whilst they liv'd in continual feuds with the Scots & served not only to the proper use which now they are putt to, but to keepe their horses & cattle secure in the time of invasion. A method which I would alwayes approve of in these northern climats (as most warm & convenient; & frugal \ allso / withal, as saveing the cost of a great many roofes in out-houses & stables) were it not for the unpleasant smells which the ordure & fewmes of cattle & horses are apt to send up to the higher rooms. But this castle is now [396] For the organ at St Lawrence, Appleby, and Machell's part in its purchase and installation, see Arnold Mathews, 'St Lawrence's Church, Appleby', CW1, 8 (1886), 396-403. For example, 'Copies of a correspondence are preserved between Dean Smith and Hugh and Thomas Machell, the one of Crackenthorpe Hall, mayor of Appleby, the other rector of Kirkby Thore (the antiquary); by which it appears that the gift of this "old organ" from the cathedral was made at the solicitation of the brothers Machell ; — that the expenses of putting it up were borne by subscription among the mayor and aldermen ;— and that by particular request of Dr. Smith, it was set up in the church during the mayoralty of Hugh Machell in 1683.' (p. 402). 'In another letter Thomas Machell was advised to have "the posts in new wood, thrown and coloured, which may be had with a reabore," (whatever that may be.) It is believed that those very posts may still he seen in a yard in Appleby, now (alas !) supporting only a waterbutt.' (p. 403). The significance of this gift in terms of Tory/Laudian politics is explored by Michael A. Mullett, Patronage, Power and Politics in Appleby in the Era of Lady Anne Clifford, 1649-1689, CWAAS Tract Series 25 (Kendal, 2015), 85-88.

[397] For the meaning of triglyphs, see Kirkby Thore Narrative 2, I.538, above.
[398] I.548 contains a series of notes, mostly relating to aspects of Kirkby Thore parish. Its passage on St Lawrence Organ loft is jumbled and repetitive but has been transcribed here in readable form.
[399] An illegible pencilled note in the MS margin follows here, but see the following sentence for the probable meaning.
[400] This sentence takes the form of a pencilled note above the main text of I.539, following the word 'neglect' and the illegible note on the previous page.

successfully altered (with much Art & smal cost) from an old & irregular piece of building to a very elligant & uniform structure;[401] the front of which being a great Hall with a dineing room over it 'twixt two stately Towers, is adorn'd in the middest with a porch of the Dorrick & a Bellcony of the Ionick order, 'on each side \ of which are / two rowes of windowes double transom curiously carved, & at the top ~~of all~~ \ there / is raile & ballisters instead of battlements.[402] You ascend (having pass'd through the midst of the Hall) by a large hanging stair with a square pit or newell which lands at the dineing rome; and it was the first of that sort in Westm'land. And within this chapelry a quarry of red [blank][403]

[Acorn Bank]
The last but not the least to be noted is Acorn Banke in the chappelry of Sowerby, whose situation is much like Howgil in a groave of trees under an hill, & tho more confined yet more pleasing \ & / dilicate, as being more neare to the heart of the Countrey & directly opposite to the Forrest of Whinfell, which gives a great beauty & ornament to it. But that which is most to be noted here is a curiouse additionall piece of building of a parlour & dineing room, the outside of which is of red free-stone, well wrought & polish'd & plac'd (according to the Tuscan manner) with excavations betwixt every course;[404] with which I conclude this section of Raritye in Nature & Arte.[405]

[I.540]

[Further 'Raritye in Nature']

[I.541A]

Milburne in Kirkby Thore (1692). A Live Toad found in limstone spar 15 fathom deep.
May 30. 1692. Thomas Blemire of Apelby butcher, informeth and offereth to depose the same upon oath, that working in the lead mines at Silveray Band \ on Milburne Fell / in the Parish of Kirkbythore, & haveing sunk 15 fathom deepe, they found in a rock spar (which they clave with a wedge & a great iron mell) a live toad, the place wherein she lodged being a round hole in which he could turne his \ double'd / hand. The said Thomas struck in the mell, & Ed. Threlkeld of Dufton \ now living / held the wedge. But as soon as she was carried up {in the kible to open aer, she dyed. This is True & I will swear it. Tho: Blamiere.}[406]

[I.541B]

! Ad Milburn a toad 15 fathom deepe.
{Eye witness of it: Tho. Shelding, Stuart;[407] Rowland Hall; Will Porter, dead; & 9 or 10 more.}
See a let[er] of it to Mr Houghton at Numb. 5.

[I.544A]

[Strange Birds]
Kirkbythore: Mr Charles Dalston informes that he had a white sparrow taken at Ackorn Bank mill \ when he was a boy / {April 1672 info capta: Charles Dalston ætat 26}[408] And that there was a crow taken at Ackorn Bank, haveing iiij feet, the skin whereof hung in the hall for many years after, when he was a stripling!

---

[401] Altered by Machell and Edward Addison, see Hyde & Pevsner, 523; see also, Colvin, *Biographical Dictionary of British Architect*s (1995 edn), 631-32.
[402] For more on the architecture, see Hyde and Pevsner, 522-23; John F. Curwen, The Castles And Fortified Towers Of Cumberland, Westmorland And Lancashire North-of-the-Sands, CWAAS Extra Series 13 (Kendal, 1913), 281-283; see also Denis R. Perriam and John Robinson, The Medieval Fortified Buildings of Cumbria, CWAAS Extra Series 29 (Kendal, 1998).
[403] The sentence ends abruptly here, but in the margin is a much-faded pencilled comment which begins, 'which Southern people call more improper by the name of…' The rest of the comment is illegible.
[404] In the 1670s, John Dalston chose William Thackeray, builder, of Torpenhow, to extend the building, Hyde & Pevsner, 633.
[405] But see pages below.
[406] Signed by Thomas Blamire; the list of eyewitnesses is on I.541B.
[407] Steward.
[408] Information given by the captor: Charles Dalston, aged 26.

Of a white sparrow – a crow with 4 legs, & [blank] [409]
Quaere of a magpie of strange colours at Johnby: T. D. {T. Dalston 50.}

[I.547]

Memorandum: On May Day 1687, being Sunday, in goeing to Sowerby Chaple, I saw in Moore Acres in Kirkbythore field, a raven menalled[410] or speckd with white both on the body, wings & tale, the speckes being about as big as a pea.

[I.548]

[Other Rarities]
At K[irkby Thore] Parson[age] last year, a dasy 1 inch and a half in diameter which [was] 4 inches & ½ about.
The barr of Iron & other things found, in digging – the little house on the left hand as you goe to Penrith.

Figure 1.14.13. 'The little house on the left as you goe to Penrith'. I.548.

[I.540]

§. [Civil Government]
For the civill government of this Parish, it is divided into three Constablewicks: Kirkbythore, Milburne & Temple Sowerby.

[1.] Kirkbythore consisteth of the Lordship or Towne of Kirkbythore with som part of Hale; wherein there is but one Gentlemans seat (besides the Rectory) call'd Kirkbythore Hall; which belongs to Hum[phrey] Wharton Esq. of Gilling in Yorkshire, whose Armes are Sable a manch Argent.

2. Milburne, which conteineth in it the Chappelry of Milburne; & consists of Kirkhouse (a smal Lordship or Hamlett held of the Rectory of Kirkbythore) where the Chapel standeth; Gullom Holm (an other smal Hamlet); & Milburn & Grange (2 handsom villages) which are all belonging to Howgil Castle – the seat of Sir Richard Sandford Baronet; who was borne (as 'tis said) in the very same hour his father was [murdered]. Thence in 1675 our valiant Gent dyed, being barbarously stabed ~~in 1675~~ by a London Hector[411] (in 1675) ere his sword was unsheathed, whom yet he opposed[412] with undaunted courage, even after his caul came out at the wound.[413] He bears for his Arms, parted per chevron Sable & Ermine, 2 boars' heads in chiefe couped Argent.[414]

[409] This information is repeated on MS I.544B.
[410] Menil or meanel: adjective relating to a spotted, speckled or dappled animal. OED.
[411] Hector: 'a swaggering fellow; a swash-buckler; a braggart, blusterer, bully. Frequent in the second half of the 17th century; specifically, a set of disorderly young men who infested the streets of London. OED. The original Hector was the eldest son of King Priam of Troy, see Homer's Illiad.
[412] MS: 'resisted \ opposed /.' Another instance in which Machell allowed an alternative to remain while underlining another with a pecked line. This transcription has chosen the interlineated word.
[413] Sandford was killed in Whitefriars on 8 Sept. 1675, by Henry Symbal and William Jones, who were executed shortly afterwards: See John Burke, Sir Bernard Burke, Bernard Burke, A Genealogical and Heraldic History of the Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies of England, Ireland and Scotland (London, 1838), 467.
[414] Similar text appears on MS.I.507: 'This was the seat of the late unfortunate \ but worthy / Sir Richard, who barbarously slane (by 2 Ruffians) at London where he faught with the pudding hanging out of his belly …'

{L.M.}[415] \ Unto which I shall add the Arms of Mr Lancelot Machell of Milburn ~~aforesaid~~ (third son of Lancelot Machell Esq. \ of Crakanthorp Hall Kirkbythore, lately deceas'd /). The which are, Sable; three greyhounds in paile courant, Argent; coller'd Or with a mullet in chiefe for distinctions sake of a younger Brother. /

3. Sowerby: which consists of that Chappelry, being one entire Lordship, the chiefe place whereof is Acorn-Banke, the Seat of Christopher son of John Dalston of Milnrigg Esq.[416] somtime Burgess of Apleby,[417] whose Arms are Argent a cheveron ingraled between 3 dawes heads errased Sable armed Or; & for distinction of a second house, a cresant charged upon the cheveron.

FINIS

[Narrative 5]

Of Kirkbythore Parish

[I.754]

{§1.} The chiefe Town of this Parish wherein the Church standeth, is Kirkby Thore, near to the conflux of Troutbeck & Eden.

{Name olim}[418]

It is called Gallagum*[419] and \ by som / Gallatum quasi \ Vallatum / Vallo Cinctum,[420] though wee do not now finde the least example of a Trench about it, but at the Burwens (or old Castle-Stead) which Camden calls Wheallop,[421] that there may be som ~~comfort in the sound of the words~~ \ harmony twixt it and Gallatum, the name of the Town. /

{§ 2.} {Whelp Castle}

But wee (with all due respect and reverence to so grave an Author – and upon better grounds) do with the vulgar call it Whelp Castle; which he comes very near in his merginal note (where he puts down things in their natural sounds) for he calls it Whellep!!† Which is a large square fortification nobely seated in a plane Champion countrey on every side,[422] wherein these rem[ains] of Roman Antiquityes have bin discovered.

When once the Romanes had made themselves masters of this Towne‡ (in order to which wee finde they had severall Campes & Retrenchements; as may be seen on Crakenthorpe Moore, S. from hence about a mile; at Brant Crooke in Marton-Field S.E. from hence about the same distance; and on the Hale More, almost as far North),[423] they made it a Collony and fixed a standing Quarter here for their Horse-Guards. As \ may / appear from \ this Inscription upon / ~~of~~ stone lately digd up without of the foundations of a Romane Temple, as wee suppose ~~This inscription ph o~~ (for it had bin compassed about with pillars) whereof this was one of the many p[l]inths: DEO ALA –⸸ As also from ~~a~~ \ the / Paved Casway \ now / calld Maiden Way, leading from hence to Caerverron on the Picts Wall (where the foote were ingarrisond) to facilitate & hasten their march unto the frontiers upon all occasions. And upon some glorious expedition in which they have had, another ~~Altar~~ was erected, found about [415] Machell was referring to his father, Lancelot Machell (c.1617-81), and his brother (also named Lancelot), see Hudleston, 'Thomas Machell, his wife and children and his Whelpdale stepchildren', 110-44. See also Angus Winchester, 'Machell, Thomas (bap. 1647, d. 1698), antiquary. ODNB.

---

[416] Millrigg, near Culgaith. The house was built in 1597 by the Birbeck family. The Dalstons of Acorn Bank purchased it in 1661. A datestone of 1669 records its refurbishment: Hyde & Pevsner, 318.

[417] A note on a scrap page (I.535B) gives the following. MS: 'The seat of X D. Esq., the son & heire of J. D. Esq., who was a member of the 1 Parliament of King Charles for the Burrow of Apelby. Machell.'

[418] 'Once named.'

[419] This word was written as 'Gallatum', but then corrected to 'Gallagum' using heavier ink, see Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 761.D.

[420] '…as if walled, or surrounded by a wall.'

[421] In Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 761.

[422] For 'champion', see the English Glossary.

[423] MS: 'in Marton-Field, ~~another Camp which is a mile also~~ S.E. from hence; ~~&~~ about the same distance. And ~~other one~~ on the Hale More, almost \ as far / as much North).'

the same time.[424] Fortuna, which had bin a Plinth to one of those Columns (whereof there were many) surrounding the Temple. As also from a paved casway 10 DEI FORT Sp.[425]

[Machell's Notes: I.754]

*{Gallagum Ptolemæi, q[uo]d Antonino Gallatum. suffragante Intineraria distantia, nec prorsus reclamante nomine; quae enim a Gall Brittanni inceperunt, in Wal Converterunt Angli. Sic Galloru[m] Wallingford et val sever – wall sever &c. dixerunt.}[426]
{Camden sic scribet – Flumen Eden, "fertur in Occasum – per Kikbythuer, sub quo magna Rudera velusti Oppidi visuntur."}[427]
†ut: see a letter to Adams.[428]
‡{The manner of these Romane Buildings I shall farther discribe at Plumpton in Cumberland, when I come to speake of that Place;[429] for their I descovered the fairest footsteps of the way and method of placeing their fabrics (such is mor[e] Graecorum)[430] from the foundations which yet are apparent.}
⸸{Found in 169 – at [?] & now in my Cast. but ded[icated] to Crakenthorp Hall. Add DEO ALÆ.}
{Whellep} Romanique numi subinde eruuntur Wheallep Castle Hodie Nuncupant (in Margine) Whellep ... nota scribuntur [nomina?], si per Antiquitatis præt[erita] rem liceat dicerem esse."'[431]

[I.754A]

[The Circuit of Gallatum][432]
{!!!} Now, as to the precincts of this ancient town; if I were to trace it out by guess of it I should begin at the Tithe Barne & thence pursue the Rampiare & Ditch till it come at the settle in Parsons Croft. Thence Southwards down the said settle towards the Hall till you [come] to Dob Kill well in Allan Mire. Thence down the current of the said well to the River Troutbeck. Thence \ Westward / down the river to the Romane Way, Bridg[e]s & hippocrene. – And a little below that, turneing N. by old T. Stead till it turns agane Eastwards at the foote of Water Man Crof[t]; Thence directly North up the current

[424] MS: 'And upon some g~~ood~~ \lorious expedition in which they have ~~happy expedition they~~ had another ~~Altar~~ was erected, found about the same time.'
[425] The sentence following reads, MS: '{And may very well be […] to this place, being the only place of rest, which is to touche them.}', but, as it has been written in pencil and overwritten in faded brown ink, this is an unsafe transcription.
[426] This is a direct quotation from Camden, Britannia (1607 edn). It translates as, 'The Gallagum of Ptolemy, which to Antoninus was Gallatum, a name supporting and not directly contradicting the distant links; for what [words] the Britons began with 'Gall', the English converted into 'Wal'. Thus, they called Galldriu[m] Wallingford, and Valsever Wallsever etc.' See also Holland (1637 edn), 761D.
[427] 'Camden writes thus: "the River Eden flows westward – through Kirkbythore, under which can be seen great building stones, as if of a town."' Camden's Latin is as follows, 'Intento hinc cursu in occasum aestivum fertur fluvius per Buley castrum episcopi Carleolensis et Kirkby Thore, sub quo magna rudera vetusti opidi visuntur …' Machell's quotations from Camden's Latin occasionally only approximate to Camden's text.
[428] See Part 3, Ch.2: 'Correspondence with John Adams, cartographer. 1686/7.'
[429] Plumpton (between Penrith and Carlisle on the A6 road) is the site of the Roman camp Voreda or 'Old Penrith'. Machell mentioned Plumpton in Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities,VI.245, IV.82; in Part 1, Ch.6, Brough, I.401 and I.417; and on MS.IV.76A.
[430] A word placed between 'such' and 'is' is unclear but the comment appears to mean, 'In the manner of the Greeks'. A note written along the left margin of I.745A asks, 'Query Where should this come in?'
[431] 'And Roman coins are recovered from under there. Today they name it Wheallep Castle.' (In the margin, 'Whelllep') '... known [names?] are written, if, with the passing of Antiquity, I may be allowed to say it.' Again, the Latin presented in Machell's notes only approximates to Camden's text in Britannia. See Camden, Britannia (1607 edn).
[432] I.745A and I.745B are scrap note pages, 9cm x 20cm., with text written in several directions across and along each page. A note written along the left margin of I.745A, asks, 'Query. Where should this come in?' [a question that might well have been asked by this oft-perplexed editor. The hand appears to be that of William Nicolson but the sentiment is one that I share. Ed.]

[I.754B]

of Kelke to Stean Brig; & so agane Northwards up Kelk Meadow \ Bottom / to Slan Flatt. So on Northwards down Haneing, & about the Coste of Little Hall to Kirk – Ing – Runnet[h].[433] Thence \ Sc. / up Kirk to the Tithe Barne. This I should take to be the circuit of Gallatum.[434]

[Machell's Notes: I.745A and I.745B]]

{There is a short account of Roman Inscriptions in my [blank] and which I read thus: Forta valla (sive vallati N[omen] sacru[m]),[435] wherein ~~the N of the Ancient T is light touched~~ there seemeth to be a light touch of the Old Gallatum.}[436]

{I had not known that Honourable person – Roger Machell, at least no[t] so much as I know of him \ now / but from Roger Head in the High Demaine, being the only thing here that reteineth his memory: and what is published of him in [blank]}

[Narrative 6]

[Further Notes on the descents of the Machells, the Kirkbythores and the Catuli]

[I.508]

Ad Crakanthorp; et deus \ tam / patriae quam paterni domus o[r]namenta[437]

3[0] Ed. 2. [1309-1310]	John de Kirkbythore Partes de Kirkbythore	Thomas Mauchel	Robert de Newbiggin
3[0] Ed. 2.	John de Kirkbythore Ten[t] m. de Kirkbythore	Thomas Machell ten. Crakanthorp	Robert de Newbiggin tenet Newbiggin
43 Ed. 3 [1369-1370]	John de Kirkbythore Ten[t] M de Kirkbythore	John Mauchael tenet m. de Crak.	William de Crakanthorp, ten. m. de Newbiggin Johes (de) Crakanthorp & de Newby
10. Henry 5th {!} He reigned but 9.[438]	Johes de Kirkbythore, m. de Kirkbythore	John Machell m. de Crakanthorp	{Joh. Crak. Esq. Rec[eiver] and stuart for R.3. In MS5, p.84.

Out of the pedigree Gilbertus de Wherton

Joan fil William Collynson de Kirkbythore 2. Henry 4. [1400-1401]	Obijt 14. Hen. VI = Johanna, relicta et superstes 15. Hen. 6. [1436-1437]	=Johannam fil. et heredem [blank] Kirkby [blank] de Kirkbythore	I doe believe that Gilbert de Querton maryed the heiress of John de Kirkbythore: It agrees so well with the inquisitions – John de Kirkbythore being seised thereof in the last of Henry 5th, & she left a widow, Anno 16. H. VI. [1437-1438]
Henry 4. reigned 12 years after:[439] Hen. 5. 9.[440]	Scribitur Joanna fil William Collynson de Kirkythore, 2 Hen. 4 ~~et fill~~ abbi Joana fil. et hær. Kirkby de Kirkbythore
Hen. VI. [1422-1461]	Et Johanna fil. et haer. of Kirkby of Kirkbythore, relict et superstes, 15. Henry VI. [1436-1437]	= John Wherton de Kirkbythore, 18. and 20. Hen. [1439-1442]

[Machell's Notes 'de Kirkbythore'. I.484] [441]

Walderi de Kirkbythore

---

[433] This word is partly obscured by the binding.
[434] MS 'Gallagum' (the 'g' has been overwritten with 't' to form 'Gallatum'.)
[435] 'The name of the walled [Sc. town]'.
[436] Machell here seems to say that 'Gallatum' sounds similar to 'Vallatum'.
[437] 'At Crakanthorp: and God is as much the embellishment of the fatherland as of a father's house.'
[438] Henry V died in the 10th year of his reign, in 1422.
[439] Henry IV reigned from 1399 to 1413.
[440] The 9th year of Henry V was 1421/22.
[441] Taken from a short set of notes on MS.I.484.

|
Mr Ada[m] fil[ius] Walderi de Kirkbythore 6^0 Joh. [1204-1205] ut supponitur è MS carta Com. Pemb.}[442]
|
Gilbert de Kirkbythore: 14. of Edward I. [1285-1286]
|
John de Kirkbythore: 43. of Edward 3. [1369-1370] è cart penes Mr Blenkinsop.[443]

[I.544B]

The Ancient family of the Machell of Crakenthorp {are} in all likelihood (as may be collected the near affinity of their name & seate by ancient tradition & deeds without date which I have) descended from the foresaid Whelp as the common ancestour both of Machells & Kirkbythores*; the former reteineing their ancient NAME, with a marke of disfavour, perhaps from the Conquerour \ as haveing opposed him in defence of their country; / for they were call'd Malchens, Malchaells & Machells, & adhered to that name of their greatest glorie, still holding there with the Lordship of Crakenthorp \ at the least by Capitulation / Idq[u]e non per Drengagium sed per nobile cornagij servicium sicut ipsi NORMANNI;[444] the latter changeing it & instead thereof assumeing the sirname de Kirkbythore {which is long since extinct.} But however it was, this is most certaine that the Machells of Crakanthorp have [blank]

Machell's Notes: I.544B]

*Speak of Whelp of Whelp Castle; sayeth what to say hon[oura]bly.

[I.757]

[Narrative 7]

The Shorter Way for the General History (the other being more fit for a Private Booke of the Family) is this that follows

The Castle at this end being called Whelp Castle, & the Gill at the other end under Caer Verron bein[g] called Glen-Whelp, so that Whelp is the same with the English Saxons that Catulus was amongst the Romans. But upon their recess and \ the others […][445] / they chang'd the names thereof of places & persons into their own language;[446] whence the ancient Abalaba was called Appelby; Bælineum, Balineum; Bravoniacum as Browham; & thus Gallagum, of which wee are treating, was called Kirkbythore.

And there was one Whelp \ Vir / Lord of this place about the time of the Norman Conquest \ as we find / which if Camden had know he would not believed, since [Whelp] quite eclipsed the ~~Ancient~~ old name of the Towne.[447]

{The Family of Catuli with Cæsar}

For the Catuli were an ancient, famous and florishing family amongst the Romans, of which there were no less than 5 Consuls, and one of them – a \ most / famous oratour before Tullies time – was Quintus Luctatius Catulus, brother to Caius Julius Cæsar[448] who first entered Brittaine and alterd his sirname into \ that of / Cæsar upon an extraordinary occasion que Cæsus ex utero matris fuerit, from being cut out of his mothers \ womb.[449] / But his nephew Augustus, who was call'd Cæsar also \ and at a greater distance from then / had a Greyhound stamped \ upon / the reverse of his coynes & ~~medals~~; a Proper Emblem of his original \ descent at being descended of the Roman Catuli. /

---

[442] '…as may be supposed from a MS document of the Countess of Pembroke.'
[443] 'From a charter in the possession of Mr Blenkinsop.'
[444] 'And this not through drengage but through the noble service of cornage, like the Normans themselves.'
[445] This word is illegible.
[446] MS: 'they chang'd ~~to the~~ the names thereof of places & persons into ~~other names of~~ their own language.'
[447] This paragraph is followed by '~~§4.~~', struck through.
[448] MS: '~~And (That~~ was Quintus Luctatius Catulus (~~of which sir names most of them were~~) brother to Caius Julius Cæsar'.
[449] See below: I.758.

{And} Note ut Catulus was with the Romans, the same was Whelp with the English Saxons, who succeeded them here & changd the names of persons and places into their own language; whence Gallatum was cald Kirkbythore from their \ Saxon God / Great God \ Thor whose Temple was here / which they worshiped here. And a famous one it should seem to have bin which gave name to the place \ since it quite traduced / and quite obliterated the ancient name of it. This Thor was worship[ped] after this manner. But the Castle they called Whelp Castle, as it is to this day. And there was one Whelp &c.[450]

[Machell's Notes: I.757]

{Write in this paper Referrenda}[451]

[I.758]

{And the Catuli were famous with them \ 5 consuls / Cæsar himselfe who 1[t] entered Brit. being one of that House. But he changed his Sir name into that of Cæsar, ab eventu quodam Extraord[inario] (ab utero matris Cæsus fuerit)[452] from being cut out of his mothers womb.[453] And Augustus his nephew (who continued the sir name of Cæsar) also had a greyhound stampd upon his Coyn, a proper Emblem.}[454]

[I.756]

August[us] Cæsars haveing a Greyhound upon his Coyn.

Augustus Cæsar, Nephew to Q[uintus] Luctatius Catulus, the Brother of Julius, had a Greyhound stampe: all Confirmations that som of the Catuli were here before him and might now […][455] Which is not a thing to be wonder'd at – for the Rom[ans] certainely were not exhausted but they left som men of Note to lead the Brittaines & defend the frontiers, who intermaryed & continued amongst them. {Rex Scot. 1135.}[456]

[I.758]

§3. [The Maiden Way]

{This maiden of which I now spoke calld Maiden Great & Maiden Gall in deed without date – goes directly N. over the m[ountains] from K[irkby Thore] to a fort cald Caer Verron near the Picts Wall.} And Though there be An old wifes fable of a Westmorlands Gentlemans who \ ~~liv'd Hear / in this Country~~, \ that / making This \ casway / way for the love a maide That lived in Northumberland: who would not have him when he had don't until he could set It up on end. ~~Yet~~ (leaveing such storys with their relaters) I do conclude It {to be a worke of} The Romes, and \ that it was either / Don by Varronius because his name~~s~~ is not onely \ preservd / in the Fort of Caer Verron \ by the Picts Wall whither it leads / but inscribed allso upon a Read Rock near to this place called Crawdundale in the Parish of Newbiging. By which it should seem that Varronius \ rught[457] / caus'd this ~~name~~ \ way / to be made.[458] {Where at a Little […][459] House I found this ~~inscription~~ fragment of an Inscription, the Insc. being burn'd out by use as the stone behind the fire.}

[450] See the first part of I.757; the phrase also occurs on I.761-2; twice on I.767.
[451] With regard to the term, 'Referrenda', the title on the previous page, I.756, is, 'Referrenda. Kendal Barony. Gallana Anglie opidum nunc Killenton near Kendal in Westm'land', but the page is otherwise empty.
[452] '.... from an extraordinary occurrence (he was cut from his mother's womb.)'
[453] The name 'Caesar' is from 'caesaries' meaning 'red-haired'.
[454] See MS.I.757for a similar paragraph.
[455] The rest of the sentence has perished.
[456] The king of Scotland in 1135 was David I (1124-1153). Pasted here is a scrap of paper containing notes which have been included in this edition elsewhere. The paper is torn, suggesting a longer text.
[457] 'wrought'.
[458] For analysis of this inscription, see Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, VI.193-97.
[459] This word is blotted. It begins with 'D' and appears to have 'ing' at the end, although even this is partly obscured by the binding.

Figure 1.14.14. Inscription. I.758.

§4. Or \ else / perhaps, som of The Catuli might be concernd in this negotiation*, since the castle \ which ~~standeth~~ stood / at this end of the casway \ ~~was by the Saxons~~ / is called Whelp-Castle \ q. castrum Catulina. / And the Gill by Caer Verron\ the way under Caer Verron / at the other end of it is called Glen-Whelp†.
The 1. that I meet with of this \ ancient / name in the \ Romane / History, was called C. Luctatius Catulus; And was Consul of Rome with A. Posthumus Albinus, anno ~~Urbis cond. 511 & anno~~ mundi 3723 \ et Urbis conditie 511‡ / of whom tis related or rather of Quintus Luctatius Catulus⸸, Consul of Rome with Manlius Actius the next year following, that with 300 Roman ships he vanquished 600 of the Carthaginians, with Amilcar their admiral,[460] & 15 of his original {2. Anno mundi 3724.}

[Machell's Notes: I.758]
*Or perhaps som of the Catuli might have an hand in it.
†And from this Glen Whelp might possibly arise the name of Whelpdel} {Eutropius. 1.2} {for Whelp is the same with the English Saxons as that Catulus was amongst the Romans.} {See Glen in Ray & Skinner}[461]
‡Convallis Catuli Anno Mundi 3723 {Eutropius p.2.}[462]
⸸Take which you please, the mistake is not great nor much material.

[I.759]
at the Ægêan Isles 'twix Cicily and Affrica. And so put an end to the 1ˢᵗ Punic-War. A man of no less mercy than valour; for at their intreaty he granted them Peace upon the condition that they should quit all that part of Spain which lyes beyond Iberis, and surrender unto him the Isles \ of Sardinia & / of Cicily, which was don accordingly.

The next was Quintus Luctatius Catulus,[463] brother to C. Julius Cæsar,[464] whose mother Popilia was prima pro rostris laudata mulier apud Romanos*.[465] & although Cæsar {who tooke the name Cæsar ab eventu quodam extraordinario q[uod] cæsus ab utro matris fuerit[466] being cut out of his mothers womb.} And although Cæsar changd {his name and began a new family, yet Augustus his nephew, as remembering the House from which he sprang, had a Greyhound stamped upon his Coyn.†}[467]

[460] Hamilcar Barca.
[461] John Ray, Collection of English Words (1674) 2nd edn, enlarged (1691) [the first dialect dictionary in a European language: see https://academic.oup.com/book/9269]; Stephen Skinner, Etymologicon Linguae Anglicanae (1671).
[462] Eutropius (fl. CE 363–387), Breviarium Historiae Romanae (Summary of Roman History).
[463] Quintus Lutatius Catulus: Roman politician, died 61/60 BC: https://www.britannica.com/biography.
[464] MS: 'The next was Quintus Luctatius Catulus, Brother to C. Julius Cæsar {~~who tooke the name Caesar ab eventum quodam extrao. from being cut out of his mothers womb~~} (who ~~I treated before~~)'.
[465] '… the first woman among the Romans to be lauded from the public platform.'
[466] 'From an extraordinary occurrence, that he was cut from his mother's womb.'
[467] A small amount of this text is missing; much is squeezed into the margin, some of it crossed through.

This Catulus was a famous Orator before Tullies time;[468] of whom he writes (as of one of his masters) in his 2 Booke de Oratore {Cicero de Orat. L.2. p.177},[469] and brings in Antonius speakeing thus of Him, "Confidentius loquor qu[ando] Catulus auditor accessit: cuj non solum NOS, Latini sermonis; sed \ etiam / GRÆCI ipsi, solent Linguæ \ suæ / subtilitatem elegantiamque Concedere."[470] Where he calls him Senex Quintus Catulus; and so he might well, being Consul of Rome with Caius Manlius when Cicero was but VI years of age, anno mundi 3864, urbis conditæ, 652.[471] And the next year following he was Proconsul (Caius Marius, & Marcus Aquilius being Consul at that Time) when he, with Marius vanquis'd the Cimbers. Ubi Catulus felicius pugnavit, sayes Eutropius.[472] But after this, upon a sedition ariseing in the City, Marius

[Machell's Notes: I.759]

*{q. whether it will com in better here, or before.}
†{see Leighs Accedence of Arm[orie].}[473]

[I.760]

(being then in greater Authority and perhaps not well pleased with his Noble Character) commands him to dye, the citizens intercedeing invane; and caus'd him to be stifled in bed with hot burneing coals. But his death was after revenged by Sulla,[474] who slew Marius Junior. Concerneing which Lucan writeth thus: Quid sanguine Manes Placatos referam Catuli?[475]

{Popularity}
But Catulus his son was so much esteem'd of amongst the ROMANES that when Sylla was dead and he recommended great Pompey unto them as their onely General; asking them if they would continue (In uno Magno Pompeio omnia reponere)[476] to put all their trust in great Pompey alone? They all cryed out with one consent saying, In Te O Catule*! In Thee O Catullus. He was Consul of ROME with Marcus Lepidus Anno m. 3888, urbis conditæ 676. And subdued Lepidus when he went about to revive the ashes and blow up the sparks of the late Civil Wars after Syllas death: Yet \ he / would ~~he~~ not Triumph in the Blood of his \ own / Countrymen, ~~but returned home~~ \ and therefore caused /a small sword only \ to be / caryed before him \ at his returne, / resembling rather a Mourner than Conquerour. He was contemporary with Tullius Cicero, and saved the Capitol when ~~It was~~ set on fier. And left this noble character after him that, 'He was a man of no less Integrity, than of gravity, and of Authority amongst his Citizens.'

[Machell's Note: I.760]

*{Valer. Maximus p.389.}[477]

[I.761]

Lastly, \ one / Sextus Ælius Catulus was Consul of ROME with Caius Sensius Saturninus in the VI year after CHRISTS nativity, which was Anno Mundi 3968 & urbus conditæ 756.

[468] Marcus Tullius Cicero.
[469] Cicero (106-43 BC), author of De Oratore.
[470] '"I speak with more confidence whenever Catulus has approached to listen: not only do we acknowledge his subtlety and elegance in the Latin language, but so do the Greeks themselves in their own tongue."'
[471] 'The year following the foundation of Rome.' [The official Roman chronology.]
[472] Eutropius, Breviarium Historiae Romanae.
[473] Gerard Leigh, The Accedence of Armorie (1563).
[474] Lucius Cornelius Sulla, 138-78 BC.
[475] 'Why should I mention the departed Shades of Catulus, appeased by blood?' Lucan (Marcus Annaeus Lucanus, 39-65 AD), Pharsalia, or, De Bello Civili (On the Civil War).
[476] 'To place everything in one man, Pompey the Great.'
[477] Valerius Maximus was a Latin writer and author of a collection of historical anecdotes: Factorum ac dictorum memorabilium libri IX (Nine books of memorable deeds and sayings), also known as De factis dictisque memorabilibus or Facta et dicta memorabilia.

Now, what Catulus was with the Romans, the same was WHELP with the English Saxons who succeded them here till the Norman Conquest ~~for about~~ and changed all the names of ~~Cityes &~~ places \ & persons / (or at least most of them) into their Own Language: so making use of the Roman Temple which I spoke of before; or (perhaps) erecting a new one here to \ the honour of / their great God Thor~~e~~ (whence we have the word Thorsday) they called the Town adjacent thereto Kirkbythore;[478] but the castle wherein wee suppose it had stoode by {Castrum Catulinum} they called Whelp-Castle as it is to this day.[479]

[I.762]

Now, as Catulus was with the Romans, the same was Whelp with the English Saxons – so this castle might be called Whelp Castle from som of the Catuli by whom it was built; and by whom perhaps the way might be made.[480]

§5. And there yet rem[ained] one of the Catuli whom the Saxons calld Whelp, Lord of this place and parts adjacent (vir magni nominis et Authoritatis)[481] about the time of the Norman Invasion. But wee cannot sup[pose] It ~~builded~~ \ erected / by him, being a Romane structure & long before his time; but rather by som of the Romane Catuli, from \ whom / he \ might spring / may seeme to have bin descended; for there was but 626 yeares \ and many familyes have lasted so long / betwixt the recess of the Roman Armyes ~~who doubtless left to in men of note to instruct lead the Brit~~ and the Norman Conquest \ invasion / […][482] and doubtless when the [Romans] build the Picts Wall, put the Brittaines to defend it.[483]
{The Brittons to defend themselves, and doubtless when they left their colonyes they would put them in a defensive posture and leave some trusty Rom[an] to head them, who settled & intermarried amongst them.}[484]
But for ~~what was~~ things that were before the Conquest wee are much in the Darke*, as Sir William Dugdal himselfe doth planely confess;[485] (and for my \ own / part I must \ freely / declare) that I never \ yet / saw, an Original Evidence, ~~whither~~ in the Tower or ~~anywhere~~ \ elsewhere / that I could be assurd was the ~~afore the Conq~~ \ beyond that date / ~~w the Conquest~~, which makes me conjecture \ conclude / That the Normans took care to call in ~~& cancell~~ all former Deeds Charters & Evidences, to the End That all holding of Them, It might make their government more suer & absolute. \ to ~~destroy them~~ all when they alterd the government & make oer still more firm & secure. /

§6. This Whelp \ or Catulus as / it should seem, had Isue 2 son, for the \ very / name doth witness \ ~~repeates the~~ / \ proclameth / the one; and this Descent \ which I have subjoyned / will evince the others, Haeth & Gamel; whereof the former being removd \ from hence / was called Le Maschael – & Malus Catullus† q[uo]d instar ferocissimi in hostes sevijt.[486] The others of in mane peaceable temper, continued here \ a name less injourious races imply called Gamel, son of Whelp & C. / who at last assumed the sirname of Kirkbythore‡.[487]

---

[478] MS following: '~~as tis writ to this day And the Maga …within Latin~~'.
[479] A similar paragraph to that of §5, placed here in the MS, has been deleted from this edition. An additional margin note, '{N.B. The ringstone found with a man upon it, hideing his head as it were in the […] with a […] at his foote; as like wise the pot sherd found in the well […]}', is too close to the body text to allow accurate transcription.
[480] MS: A similar sentence appears on I.767.
[481] 'A man of great reputation and authority.'
[482] This is followed by 7cm of illegible text.
[483] MS: 'and doubtless ~~the Remnants~~ when they build ~~Walyes (even in those dayes have besides~~ the Picts Wall put the Brittaines to defend ~~the land~~ it.'
[484] Another MS margin comment reads: '{The hard task of def[ending] themselves & secureing the frontier. The Roman \ Emperor / would not leave them defenceless without som men of note \ & qu. / to lead and instruct them & [blank]}'
[485] MS: '\ doth planely / doth confess.'
[486] '... because he raged against the enemy like the fiercest of men.'
[487] MS: '~~& by the pane of Gamel~~ son of Whelp & C. who at last assumed the sirname of Kirkbythore' [followed by 2cm of illegible text].

{ad Crak[enthorpe] Mal.}
That the Mul, Mau or Malus is beyond dispute of Norman imposition; & a note of hostile & invi[n]cible \ valour / courage⸸, and affixd to the names of persons of the greatest quality amongst the Normanes. So: Malgenes, Maugerns, Malus Gerus – Gerus itselfe being a common name, as in the Deed of W. Malus Cat[ul]us, so the[y] olim calld the Best and Bravest: in[fra] malia[m] Terram Geri.[488]

[Machell's Notes: I.762]

*~~I could never meete with any \ original / Evidence~~, {only King Edward the Confessor Ch. and that is an extract of an original.}
†{which I have seen (in the evidence of booke of the family of Crakanthorp) translated.}
‡{And see this more large in my Booke of Rom[an] inscription.}
⸸{Malpus locus inaccessibilis – Malcheal Cat[ulus] Invincibilis Catulus.}[489]

[I.763]

{Catulus vulgo Whelp = dictus}

1. Haltheus = Eva
Ma – Catulus = Lat.
Sive[490]
Mal – Whelp [=] Saxon
Malchene [=] Gal.
Le Ma\u/lchael [=] Norm.
{Whose descendants were soon hereafter sealed with a figure \ fierce dog / (or som such creature) with a forked tail in a rappid rampant & ravenous posture.} {Leaping as it were, upon his prey.}[491]

{Try and examine if they will fall righ[t]}	Willelmus Ma-Catulus	Umfridas Macatulus et Malchal dictus	Alexand.
	Galfridas Macatulus
	Willelmus Machael [fil Galf. Mc]	Thomas Malchael fil Galf. Mc	Henricus	Alexand.
Roger Malus Catulus Dom[ini] custodis mag[num] Ang[liae] sigill[um] but vice-[?] dictus	Alexander Mauchall, Miles	= Domine Dolata de hereditate Johannis
	Johes Mauchel, fil Alex.

[488] '... as in the Deed of W. Malus Cat[ul]us – so they once calld the Best and Bravest within the land of the Mali, "Geri".'
[489] 'Malpus: an inaccessible place – Malcheal Catulus: Catulus the invincible.'
[490] 'Or.'
[491] On MS.I.767, a scribbled, faded, pencilled note appears to read: 'A signet of a dog at his foote and the […] I trust as ensigne'.

[I.372A]

M[ANU] ROG[ERI] MAL[I] CAT[ULI] [DOM[INI] CUSTODIS MAG[NUM] ANG[LIAE] SIG[ILLUM] [492]

Figure 1.14.15. The Great Seal of England, kept by Roger Malus Catulus. I.372.

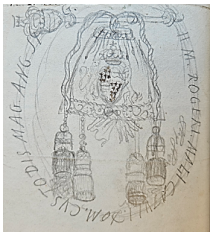

Figure 1.15.16. The Great Seal turned through 180 degrees. I.372.

[I.763]

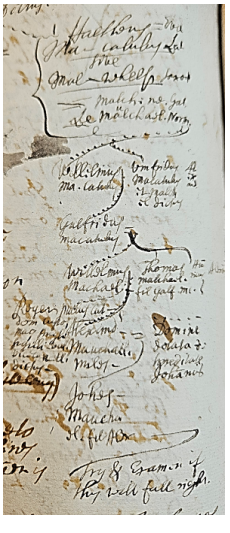

Figure 1.14.17. Machell descent. I.763

[492] 'The great seal of England, by the hand of the Lord Keeper, Roger Malus Catulus'. When turned through 180 degrees the image clearly shows a royal emblem with orb and crown, supported by lion and unicorn, with other emblems on the coat of arms, all suspended from a sceptre by four ropes with tassels. 'Because the tassel was commanded by God to be worn on the borders of all Jewish garments, it became not only an emblem of Christianity but also one of authority, repute and majesty': https://www.heraldryclipart.com/symbolism/t.html.

2. Gamel, the son of Whelp who have Isue = Whealdeve, who had Isue ~~Gil~~b. Gibert, who first assu[m]ed the local Sirname of de Kirkbythore, according to the Norman fashion.
I once thought the Machells had com'd in with the Conquerour ~~& bin and deseended of those Lords that eame in with the Conquest~~, there being a notable city in Flanders and an ancient barony belonging thereto called Machellen,[493] now corruptly Malines. i.e. the city of Machell, as Antwerpen is the city of Antwerp. But ancient Tradition will have it otherwise, that they are descended of Whelp of Whelp Castle; and upon the desolution thereof; whether it has bin thus or soe I dar not determin, quis enim rem tam antiqua[m] pro certo affi[r]me affiimare audit,[494] removed to Crackenthorp, another Lordship belonging unto them.[495] But there is this confirmation of it, that I finde them antiently writ Mali Catuli in deeds without date, which by their character (being the same with Domesday Booke) may seem nere the Conquest. And the reason why the epithe[ton] Mal was added to Catulus, is thought to be the same with that of destroying the Castles: being of the opposition made against the Conqueror {as those who adhered to King Charles I in the late Civil Warrs were called maulignants on the like occasion – in which they gloried.}

But the Castle was ruined: And out of its ruines (as planely appear yet by the stones & the hewing of them) \ exactly like to those since dug up / were builde the Church, the Old West Tower in the Parsonage House with the 2 Halls, the Chappel at Sowerby, and all the coynes for the most part of the H[o]uses & Barnes in Kirkbythore. For the Town, wee suppose, standing so near the forest of M[ilburn] was for the most part forrest-building, as som part of Wharton Hall yet remaineth.

[I.767][496]

ad Machell
So that Malus Catulus is the same in effect with the old Roman name Luctatius Catulus; for that is described as a Luctando cum hostibus[497] \ from fluency with them.[498] / Thus, a Malo hostibus inferendo,[499] from Mauling their enemyes – which are very agreeable.[500] And as the old Romans had ther 3 name so gave Hee.

{!} For there was one Whelp, Lord of this place about the [time of the Norman Conquest][501] from whom; or rather from some of his Ancestours (for it was built long before his time) we may boldly conclude it was called Whelp Castle.

Now \ what / Catulus was with the Romans, the same was Whelp with the English Saxons; who calld it Whelp Castle. And there was one Whelp, Lord of this place and the Parts adjacents (vir magni nominis et Authoritatis)[502] about the time of the Norman Conquest. But wee cannot suppose it erected by him, being a worke of the Romanes, ~~and~~ long before that time his days; but rather by some of the Roman Catuli, of \ whom / perhaps he might be descended, for it was but 600 years and Many familyes have lasted \ continued / so Long upon the same place; Betwixt the Recess of the Romane forces & the coming in of William the Conqueror \ Norman Conquest / &c.– ut §. Quis autem res tam antiquas &c.[503]

[IV.10]

[Final Word on the Machells, the Catuli and Whelp Castle]
It is a received tradition that they came from the Catuli; which family tis thought resided at Whelop or Whelp Castle which may seem to have had its name from the owner as Catuli Castrum, which being [493] Mechelen, in the province of Antwerp.

[494] 'For who dares to assert such an ancient matter with confidence and certainty?'
[495] MS: '\ removed to Cr., another Lordship belonging unto them / were translated to Crakenthorp.'
[496] Also numbered p.26.
[497] 'For that is described as "striving with the enemy."'
[498] Some words here are obscured by the binding.
[499] 'Thus a "savage attack on the enemy."'
[500] Machell opines that the two phrases agree linguistically.
[501] Some words here are obscured by the binding.
[502] 'A man of great fame and authority.'
[503] 'Quis autem res tam Antiquas pro certo affirmare audet?' 'But who ventures to pronounce for certain on matters so ancient?' Machell hedges his bets once more, see I.509.

turned into English is Whelp Castle, and malus, though a bad word, yet added for honour. The house stood on those fields which are now ploughed land twixt the highway to Carlile from Appleby and the larger part of Kirkby Thore called the Burwens. Most of the houses there are built out of the ruins of it and I myself have seen hewn stone of an incredible bigness diggd up there within these few years, of which you have mention in my Tract of Places.[504]

[III]

[The Parish of Newbiggin]

[I.567]

[Linking paragraph from information on Kirkbythore]
{Next to this Parish on the N. side as has bin say'd,[505] lyeth the Parish & Lordship of Newbiging whose very site, as well as Tradition, bespeaks it as a Canton & member of this: tho long since cutt of I make no doubt, in a legall method and for a sufficient consideration; so that tis now a Distinct ~~Rectory~~ \ Parish / & such I finde that above 140 years since it was the Grange of Hale in a Deed.}

1. Next to the parish of Kirkbythore on the northside (as has bin said) lyes the Parish of Newbiging which tho it seem to be a member and Canton of the \ This / other; yet it is and has bin a distinct ~~rectory~~ \ parish / (~~paying~~ \ payeing / the homage wee spoke of before)[506] ~~many hundreds of years~~ Examp. \ time out of mined above 140 years & perhaps much longer. But so long for certane; because I finde in the XXXV year of King Henry VIII [1543-1544] the Grange of Haile is said to be in the Parish of K & N. It is rated in the First Fruits Office at 4^{l}. 14. 0.; being one of the smalest in all the County;[507] yet they boast that there never was a Poore Parson of N. nor a Rich one of K;[508] which, if it be true must be attributed to generosity of Kirkby Thore Rectors whose gentlemen lived accordingly, & the frugality of the c[urate] ther, who. [blank] & not to satiety,[509] as som would have it.

2. The present Rector is one Mr Dawson, bred up a Chaplaine at Temple Sowerby \ under the Rector of Kirkbythore / in Kirbythore Parish: a very honest & regular man.[510] & before him was one Mr Barrow who was very famous for teaching Arithmatic.[511] The Patronage of it & the Corne Tythe (paying out {only a certane} sum of money) are vested in the Lord of the manner*.

[Machell's Notes: I.567]
*{Cart. Penes Richard Crakanthorp de Newb. An dat Aug. 28 XXV[512] of Henry VIII e Hale \ Gr[ange.] / It is mentioned there to lye in the Parishes of K. and Newbiging: see All the Book.[513]
[VI.186D] {Newbiging East Ward. The Church & Hall visited by Dugdale.}[514]

[504] The 'tract of places' is presumably text describing parishes, which forms the largest part of this edition.
[505] Next to Kirkbythore.
[506] See I.532-53 (Kirkbythore).
[507] For the First Fruits Office, see the English Glossary.
[508] MS: 'It is rated in the First Fruits Office at 4^{o}. 14. 0. being one of the smalest in the \ all / County ~~of Westmorland~~; ~~&~~ yet they boast ~~of it affirme \ ing the fact~~ / That there never was a Poore Parson of N. nor a Rich one of K.' See above, I.552.
[509] MS. 'satatety'.
[510] Thomas Dawson: schoolmaster of Orton (1666); ordained deacon (1670); curate of Temple Sowerby (1670); schoolmaster of Temple Sowerby (1680); rector of Newbiggin (1681-98); died 1698. CCED.
[511] See I.624.
[512] Partly perished; the date could be XXXV, as above.
[513] Illegible last few words; the edge of the margin has perished.
[514] This note has been taken from MS.VI.186D.

[I.567A]

The Bounds of Newbiging Parish

3. The Parish of Newbiging is bounded on the North with Kirkland Parish in Cumberland, being divided from it by Blenkarne Beck from \ the place where it enters / Bramry[515] Pasture \ the place where it enters / descending W. \ to the Demane hedge of / Ackeron Banke[516] {down Craw[dun]dale to Newbiging Miln & so on} Thence on \ the / W. S. ~~S.W.~~ S.E. & N.[517] it is hem'd in \ on every side / with Kirkbythore Parish & divided from it by the \ out \ most / hedge of Acorn Banke demane to Holtsey Dike Nooke, where it meets with Hale Sike. Thence by Hale Sike ascending Eastwards till you com at the place where it enters Potts Pasture. Thence by Hale \ Dike / Hedge & Blacklees \ Dike / Hedge ~~till you com at the place called~~ \ to / Cowgill Foote {Ancient, if it be a not a solicisime to call it so}. Thence by the settle of the said Gill \ intersecting the Maiden Way / (which crosseth the famous Maiden Way describeing a St Andrews X)[518] to Kirkhouse Mill. Thence by Lile-Beck ascending E. to a place calld Bull Meadow in Milburne Field. Thence by The Ri\n/g Dike or outmost hedge of the said field (which [hedge] is \ alwayes[519] / maintained by Newbiging men), to Bramry Dike Nooke. Thence by Bramry Dike till you com at the River where we began.[520] {Within which circumference the soyle is [blank]}

[I.567B]

[Alternative description of part of the Bounder]
Thence on the S. & S.E. by K. P. by Hale Sike or Potts Sike, from the said Corner of Holtsey Wood, ascending Eastwards & \ almost / to Potts Yeat. Thence agane with K[irkby] Moore on the E. from which tis divided by an hedge or dike – up to Hale – & thence by Blacklees Dike till you come at a place calld Cow-gill Foote. Thence by Cow-gill (a settle which sometimes runns with water \ & crosses the Maidens / till you com almost to Milburne \ Kirkhouse / Mill. Thence by Lile Beck ascending Eastwards to a Place calld Bull Meadow which is in Milburne Field. Thence by Milburne Ring[521] & thence by Bramry Dike by B.[522]

Very good corne, moehay[523] & pasture.[524]
It hath bin formerly \ well / replenished with wood but ~~Then~~ now there is little ~~but~~ \ excepting only / in the New Parke: which often is ~~ash~~ birch and oake. But here is great plenty of quality huen stone of a red \ brickish / coll[our] which is digg in 2 Quarryes – the one at the corner of the New Parke whence I suppose most of the stones in the Hall have bin ~~taken~~ conveyed – the other at a Rock in Crawdundale whence the stones of Whelp Castle seemes to have comd, where there is ~~yett a~~ \ to be seen / old Romane Inscription – which Camden hath taken notice of \ expolyshd[525] / in his Britannia. Sc. as followeth [blank][526]

---

[515] 'Bramery': Smith, Place-Names 2, 126.
[516] Acorn Bank.
[517] These compass points are unclear, much of the text has been scored through or altered.
[518] Shape of St Andrew's cross: a saltire, like the letter X.
[519] There follows an illegible word, which was thought to suit the subject better than 'maintained', as demonstrated by Machell's use of a pecked line.
[520] The next passage has been deleted as it is repeated on the following page.
[521] Word partly perished, probably 'dike'.
[522] The page has perished here. There is a sketch of part of the parish boundary walk in the left-hand margin.
[523] Mowhay: OED gives the meaning as 'A yard or enclosure containing mows; a stack yard.' However, the context here appears to be of a mown hay-crop.
[524] Two further lines of text have been almost obscured by the binding; MS: ' … the last but Tenants hands scarce ~~excepting~~ \ save / in \ amongst the / ~~the hands~~ \ tenants hands / ~~of the Lord of~~ the…'
[525] Perhaps, 'exposited': to reveal, exhibit, show clearly; to expound. OED.
[526] Camden's transcription was given to him by Reginald Bainbrig, headmaster of Appleby School, as follows--- 'VΛRONIVS/ ----ECTVS LEG. XX. V. V./----ΛEL. LVCΛNVS/----P. LEG. II. ΛVG. C. That is to say … Varronius Præfectus legionis vicesimæ valentis victricis ... Ælius Lucanus Præfectus Legionis Secundæ Augustæ, castrametati sunt … Varromium captaine of the xx. Legion valens Victrix…'

6. This is a place at unity in itself and admitts no division, being one town one ~~Lordship~~ Constablewick one Lordship; & in it only one \ ~~having in it~~ / Hall [or] Gentlemans Seat in [the] Parish.{A good old fashond building, with Turrets & Battlements – The seat of Richard Crakanthorp Esq. \ who original I have builded[527] here; / a very worthy & sober Gentleman and a ~~very~~ good Churchman who seldom absents him selfe from Prayers which they have 3ce a week, Sc. on Wed & Friday, Eucharist; Matins: Sunday, Wednesday & Friday \ secundum usu[m] Ecclesiæ Marie / de K.}[528]

[I. 624][529]

Newbiggin Parish

[Author: Rev. Christopher Barrow, Parson of Newbiggin]

1677

Newbiggin soe writt in Ancient Record is a Parish consisting of the Towneship of Newbiggin and of part of the hamlet of Haile; It is within the Diocese of Carlile and in the East Ward of the Bottome of Westmorland. It is bounden South and West with the Lordships of Kirkbythore and Temple Sowerbie, on the East with Milburne and on the North with the Lordship of Culgath.

At the North end of the Towne runs a little beck which descends from the high mountaine Crosfell. This beck from its first riseing untill its fall into the river Eden divides the twoe counties Westmorland and Cumberland. Upon the Rocks in the banks of this beck in a place called Cradundle neare Newbiggin were formerlie seene characters and ancient inscriptions which are now defaced saveing one which has certaine letters and characters scarcelie to be discerned; but I suppose Camdin makes mention of them in his Britania.[530]

The forme of it is for the most parte oblong, and is in Circumference about three myles; the qualitie of the soyle in generall is a Redish clay not verie fertall, it consists much of arable land and pasture ground. It hath noe mynes or quarries but of stone, no fewell but what they gett upon the moores.

Item: Coles from Hartside.[531]

The Church is called the Church of St Edmund, dedicated as is supposed to that Saint. It hath neither Spire nor Steeple and but twoe litle bells, It is a Parsonage but the meanest in Westmorland or as is verilie thought, in all the North.[532] The tythe corne belongs to the Lord of the mannor by the prescription under the yearelie rent of ix^{li} \ vj^{s} / and viii^{d}[533] and in horse grasse to the Parson of the Parish. The gleebe land is verie small indeed, and the Parsonage \ house / a thatched one; it stands at the north west end of the Towne neare to the church.

The mannor house is in the north end of the Towne close by the beck; it is the seate of that ancient and worthie familie of the Crakanthorpps Lords of the Mannor and patrons of the Church.

Cetera ignore.[534]

Per me Christo. Barrowe Rectorem ibidem.[535]

[I.626][536]

Newbigging Parish [Notes][537]

Newbigging church belongs Newbigging. It is called Ecclesia St Edmundi de Newbiggin in an evidence, penes Lancelotu[m] Machel de Crakanthorp dated 1375 49 Edward 3.

---

[527] One word is illegible here.

[528] 'Following the use of the Church of St Mary of Kirkbythore'.

[529] Written in another hand, apart from the title. The author was Rev. Christopher Barrow, see I.567. CCED notes that Barrow was rector of Newbiggin from 1664 to 1680; he would have been alive to answer Machell's queries, sent during the 1670s.

[530] Clearly, Barrow had decided to leave secondary-source research to Machell.

[531] In Machell's hand.

[532] See Machell on the comparative wealth of Kirkbythore and Newbiggin incumbents: I.567.

[533] £9 6s 8d.

[534] 'The rest [of the information requested] I do not know.'

[535] 'By me, Christopher Barrow, rector there.' The word 'Crawdundle' is written in pencil in another hand near the foot of the page; for Crawdundle and Varronius, see III. 283.

[536] Also numbered p.29.

[537] The notes are in Machell's hand.

This place gave name to an ancient family:
Johannes de Newbigging, circa 6. Johanis [1204-05])
Robert de Newbigging, 14. Edward 1. [1285-1286]) T.M. e Cartis Antiq.[538]
It passed to the Crakanthorpes after by marrying an Heiress {Emma, the daughter of Robert de Newbigging.} I finde mentioned in evidences as witnesses & otherwise John de Crakenthorp vicecom. Westm. 21. Richard 2 [1397-1398]. Carte de Berwise, penes Mr Blenkinsop 21 R. 2.[539]
One John de Crackenthorpe the younger was Receiver to the Lady Elizabeth (Piercy) widdow of John Lord Clifford, of her proffites in Westmorland è cavit \ Comi / 5^0 Henry 6.[540]

[Mr Barrow's Cat, Dick.]
There is a most memorable story concerneing a cat in this parish*.
One Mr Barrow an ancient gentleman \ & Rector here / famous for teaching the Art of Arithmatick,[541] was a lover of cats and had 2 which he kept \ about him: / one calld Thom \ or Dick – if not 3 / the other Jeffrey ~~of which~~ \ & Sc. Dick, / being more bold than welcom \ one time / with his masters Trencher, receved a sharp rebuke for insolence \ being knockd of the board / which he tooke so ill that he appeard noe \ more ~~for som dayes after~~ in his presence for 2 or 3 dayes / but came at last under the Table with somthing in his mouth which they tooke for a mouse (not regarding it \ 2 / much) \ But / he lep up with it behinde his masters Chare & drop'd in his Tankerd which he usually kept in an hole of the Chimney \ to drinke when he pleased; / which being discovered \ som espying, / ~~when~~ they ~~searched what it was~~ \ looked what it was & / it proved a \ great / toade, ~~which som doe imagin to be don in malice; & for this the cat lost his life~~ \ and because it was judged to be an act of the cat of propense mallise,[542] they condem'd him to dye, and chopd of his head. /

Art.
There is a \ small / rock by the \ on the left side the / river, a little above the miln at a place call'd Cawdundale, wherin wee yet finde in fair & deep caracters but uneven lines this Inscription. VERONIVS &c. which I have explaned in K[irkbythore],[543] speakeing there of the Campe which lyes near Hale: I thinke in this parish. And on the moore above it which belongs to Nubiging called [blank] is a large round trench

[Machell's Notes: I.626]

*{Query of Rowly Hodgson?}

[I.627]

which may seeme to have bin one of the Brittish fortifications out of which Var[r]onius ~~seems to have put the~~ (enca[m]ping at the other place) may seem to have chas'd them & so left that Inscription as a memorial to after ages: But these[544] places seemeth since to have bin translated into sheepfoldes or Leckes[545] for milking there ewes, which hath bin in practice hereabouts in the memory of man.[546] & the people payd a prescription rate in the Easter books; iiij^d a score, as I have bin informed by Christopher[547] Teasdale of Kirkhouse near Milburne for the Milke Tythe of them.

[538] 'Thomas Machell – from ancient deeds.'
[539] 'In a Barwis deed at Mr Blenkinsops.'
[540] 'From a copy deed of 1426-27.'
[541] Rev. Christopher Barrow, rector, 1664-1680. Barrow was followed by Thomas Dawson in 1681 (CCED). Machell portrays Barrow here as an ancient, historical figure but he used him as an informant in the 1670s, see I.567A (above).
[542] 'Intentional malice', see Richard Burn, The Justice of the Peace, and Parish Officer, Vol. 2 (1780), 490.
[543] See above, III.283.
[544] MS: 'this'.
[545] The meanings of 'leck' are many and various but as Machell linked the word to sheepfolds, a leck here may mean: 'an assembly area where animals carry on display and courtship behaviour', c.f. Swedish 'lekställe: mating ground'. Merriam-Webster Dictionary, Online.
[546] MS: '~~was~~ \ hath bin / in practice ~~in these~~ hereabouts ~~som 60 years~~, in the memory of man:'
[547] MS: 'Xt'.

[I.620][548]

Ad Newbiggin [Hall]

My Cosan Crakinthorpe de Newbiggin have in their dineing roome 23 matches[549] direct & indirect, som whereof are amongst my paper of Armes. That Hall was built Anno Dom. J. Xti, 1539.[550]

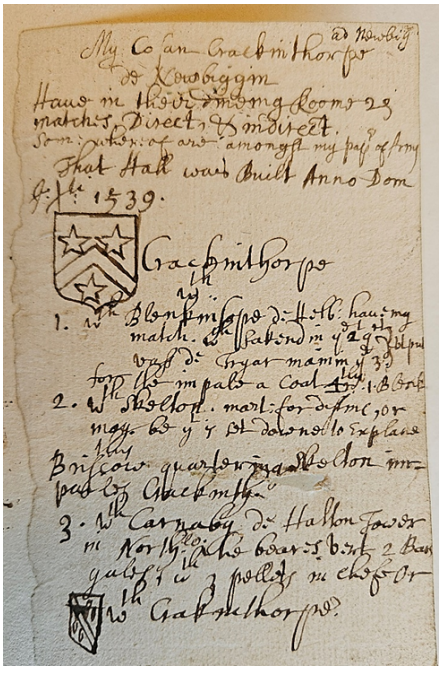

Figure 1.14.18. Crackenthorpe Hall Coats of Arms. I.620.

Crackenthorpe with:
1. Blenkinsope de Helbeck haveing match with Savend in the 2[d] quarter, Voss de Tryarmain in the 3[d.] for they impale a Coat quarterly 1 Blenkinsop. {ut put[o]}[551]
2. With Skelton, marte for distinction, or may be that is set downe to explane this: Briscow quartering Skelton impales Crackinthorp.
3. With Carnaby de Halton Tower in Northumberland; he beares Vert 2 bars Gules, with 3 pellets in chefe Or[552] with Crackinthorpe.

[Machell's Notes and Illustrations: I.649A]

In Newbiggin Hall. {House builded 1539}
In the dineing roome [Arms of] 23 matches direct & indirect.
[top left shield] G[ules] 3 annulets Or [foot] Vert.
[top right shield] G[ules] lyon Or.
[shield 2] † is Vert, bottom Argent. Sawkeld of Rosgill.

[548] This page is headed 'Musgrave P. &'. The text reads, 'ad for townes', pag[es] sequent.' The rest of the page is blank, but a scrap page 7cm x 12cm has been pasted onto it. The contents contain information on Newbiggin.
[549] Matches: marriage alliances.
[550] Here Machell drew a small sketch of a coat of arms, headed, 'Crackinthorpe'.
[551] 'So I think.'
[552] In the MS here, is a tiny sketch of a coat of arms.

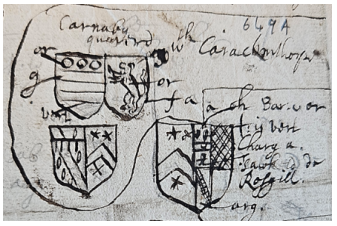

Figure 1.14.19. Newbiggin Hall. 'Carnaby quarterd with Crackenthorpe'. Arms of Salkeld of Rosgill. I.649A.

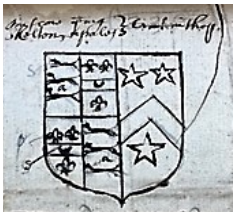

Figure 1.14.20. Newbiggin Hall. Brisco quartering Skelton impaling Crackenthorpe. I.649A.

Figure 1.14.21. Newbiggin Hall. Crackenthorpe: fleur-de-lys Or; Bird Or on ground Gules. I.649A.

Figure 1.14.22. Newbiggin Hall. 'Warcop' Argent on Sable, fess Argent. I.649A.

Figure 1.14.23. Newbiggin Hall. Argent a bend chequy Or and Gules. I.649A.

[I.649B]

My Drin[553] Coin was found at Scitter beck – by Cockermouth.

[553] Uncertain shortened word; possibly a form of the word for a Roman coin, 'denarius'.

[III.283]

{Ad Newbiging} [at Crawdundle]
On the upper rock

LEG II AVG XXIΛ/
{i.e. LEG 2 Aug. or XXI Aug. 20. But the A is not struck through}[554]

On the lower rock at Crawdundell, Sep. 19. 1690.[555]

C. VΛRRONIVS.
ESSVS . LEG XXVV
AEL . LVCANVS
R . LEG II AVG Ç Î

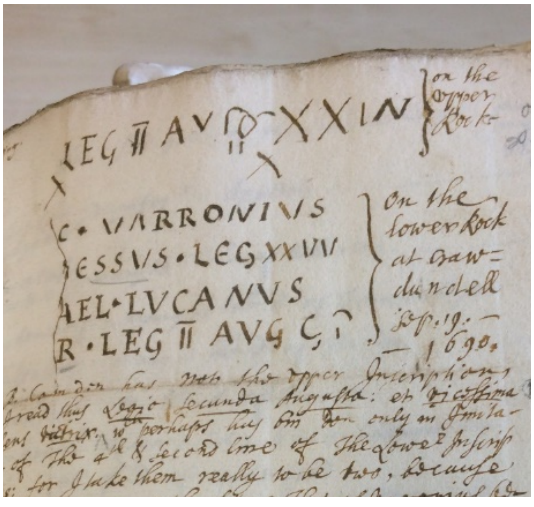

Figure 1.14.24. 'On the lower rock at Crawdundell. Sep.19.1690'. III.283.[556]

[554] The XXI Legion Augusta was never deployed in Britain and the number that reads as 20 is very unclear. If, however, we read Camden's transcription, given to him by Reginald Bainbrigg, headmaster of Appleby School, the inscription appears to be '----VΛRONIVS/ ----ECTVS LEG. XX. V. V./----ΛEL. LVCΛNVS/----P. LEG. II. ΛVG. C. That is to say … Varronius Præfectus legionis vicesimæ valeriae victricis ... Ælius Lucanus Præfectus Legionis Secundæ Augustæ, castra metati sunt … Varronius captaine of the XX. Legion Valeria Victrix…' Apparently misreading the inscription, Machell has read XX. V. V. as XXI, misinterpreting the letters that follow. See above, fn.526.

[555] See N&B1, 371: 'Upon the rocks at a place called Crawdundale in this parish, were formerly found characters and ancient inscriptions, all of which are now obliterated, and mouldered away by length of time. Mr Camden takes notice of one, the former part whereof was not legible, but in the other part was to be seen the name of Varronius commander of the 20th legion; and another, in which was the name of Ælius Lucanus commander of the 2nd legion. The 20th legion, he says, was quartered at Deva, now called West-Chester; and the 2nd legion was quartered at Isca, now Caerleon, in Wales; and might be drawn into these parts, for the defence thereof. The exact time hereof is not easily to be set down; yet in order to the pointing out the very time, Mr Camden observes, that there was to be seen in a rock near adjoining, in capital letters, the name of Cneius Octavius Cotta, consul (CN. OCT. COT. COSS.) yet in all the consular rolls he owns he could meet with no such name. … One might be tempted to conclude that some part thereof might be owing to strength of imagination. It is a soft. mouldering stone. And if an inscription which was legible in Camden's time, is not now at all to be found; it seemeth as unlikely that an inscription made (372) in the Roman times should continue in the days of Camden. And it is not impossible, but that the whole might be the work of the ingraver who cut the inscription over the hall door, or the amusement of some labourer at a vacant hour in quarrying stones in the rock there.'

[556] Note the wavy vertical line on the left of the inscription on Figure 1.14.24, drawn to demonstrate that only the right-hand side of the inscription can be seen.

N.B. Camden has not the upper Inscriptions which I read thus:

Legio Secunda Augusta et vicessima valens victrix
{or I. AV [blank] XXI. AV}[557]

Which perhaps has bin done only in imitation of the 4th & second line of the lower Inscriptions; for I take them really to be two because of the difference of the letters; that of Var[r]onius being \ a /more antique, & unellegant \ letter / as may be seen by compareing V. A. R. IV, E. L. & G.; for Camden observes that \ within this iland / from the time of Severus till Gordian and afterwards, the letter A[558] was always writ ~~within this iland without~~ in the Romane Inscriptions without ~~the~~ transverse or coupling-stroake.[559] And so it is in that of Var\r/onius, but otherwise in that of Lucanus? That of Varronius, Camden reads thus: Varonius præfectus legionis vicessinæ valentis victricis.[560] But the word p\ræ/fectus or –ectus (however the alteration came) is not visible now, but planely essus.
That of Lucanus he reads in this manner: Ælius Lucanus præfectus legionis secundæ Augustæ, castra metati fuit – or som suchlike thing.[561] {but you see the ct}.[562]
For the legio vicissima valens victrix {the twentyeth valent conquering legion} which quartered at Deva (now called Westchester), and the legia 2da Augusta, which quartered at Isca, now Ca\e/rleon in Wales, being called against the enemy in these parts, may seeme to have made their station here & to have pitched their standing tents. See this confirmd at Kirkbythore*.
{As to the Time which he thinks is decipherd in these capital letters CN. OCJ. COJ. COSS; placed as he tells us on a neighbouring rock (which pair of Consuls are not to be found in the books of the Fasti,[563] & therefore the letters seeme to be useless as to that effect),[564] I can say nothing of it, neither have I yet met with that Inscription or will any other but what engravd upon the upper rock, as which, see above.}[565]

[Machell's Notes: III.283]

*{Which might very well be; but besides this, I reason to think that the Romanes used to leave Inscriptions upon rocks that furnished for the stone which wee finde yield them stone for their public building.}

[III.285]

[The Crackenthorpes]

The Pedigree of the Crackenthorpes*
Robert Lord Dapifer[566] de Appleby, Lord of Newbigging†.
Lawrence Crakenthorp (Temp. H. 2.)‡ = maryed the daughter of Wharton.⸸
John Crakenthorp = maryed the daughter of Blennerhasset.
John Crakenthorp = maryed the daughter of Barton.
Thomas Crakenthorp = maryed the daughter of Vaux.
Robert Crakenthorp = (temp. Ed. 2. & Ed. 3. ~~Lib. Nigro~~) Agnes the daughter of Wakerfield.

[557] AUGUSTA.
[558] Three pencilled interlineated words here are illegible.
[559] Camden gives the inscription in full. As Machell suggests, he observes that 'from Severan unto Gordian and afterwards, the letter A. in all the inscriptions of that age, everie where in this Iland, wanteth the overthwart little line or stroke, and is made thus, Λ.' Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 762.
[560] 'Varronius, Commander of the 20th Legion, strong and victorious.'
[561] The writer of the inscription must have included the conjunction 'et' (or similar word meaning 'and'), since the verb 'metati sunt' is plural, the subjects being Varronius and Lucanus. The intended reading is, 'C. Varronius Commander of the XX legion Valens Victrix and Aelius Lucanus, Commander of the Second Augustan Legion marked out this camp'.
[562] Margin comment beside, 'or some such thing'.
[563] Fasti: 'A calendar or calendars, indicating the days on which business could be lawfully transacted, and the festivals, games, historical anniversaries, etc., celebrated on each day of the year. Also: an official chronicle or chronological list of consuls, magistrates, triumphs, etc.'. OED.
[564] In ancient Rome, years were named after pairs of consuls.
[565] Pencilled marginalia here are damaged, thus illegible.
[566] 'Dapifer': the official title of a steward in a medieval English nobleman's household.

Robert Crakenthorp (temp. Ed. 3. Libro Nigro)[567] = Emma the daughter of Threlkeld.
William Crakenthorp = the daughter of Grimston.
Jo. Crakenthorp = the daughter of Brisco 13. Richard 2. [1389-90].
Jo. Crakenthorp = Blenkow & dyed 14. Hen. 6. [1435-36] Lib. Nigro.
William Crakenthorp \ his brother / = the daughter of Sandford & dyed 17. Hen. 6. [1438-39] Ibid.
Jo[hn] Crakenthorp = Elizabeth daughter of Leyburne‖.
Jo[hn] Crakenthorp = Isabel daughter of Musgrave. He made the rental the 12. of Hen. 8. [1520-21].
Christopher Crakenthorp = the daughter of Blen~~ner~~kinsop of Helbeck Temp. Hen. 8. & had Isue Henry his son & heire. And John Crakenthorp of Strickland.
Henry Crakenthorp of Newbiging Esq. maryed = 1. Dalston, = 2. Sandford, = 3. Carnaby, = 4. Winifrid, sister of Sir Christopher Pickering, Knight, by whom he had Isue = Christopher; William, a parson; Richard; Henry; Ann, maryed first to John Pennington of Seaton, secondly to Sir Richard Sandford of Howgil Castle; Francis, maryed to Lathes {Lathes of Lathes near [Blank] in Cumberland and of Dalehead}; Winifrid, maryed to Sir Richard Fletcher of Hutton.
Christopher Crakenthorp Esq. the eldest son of Henry maryed Mary daughter of Sir James Bellingham of Levins, Knight. And had Isue Henry maryed to Fetherston who dyed s[ine] prole;[568] Richard; Frances; Isabel; Dorathy, maryed to John Philipson of Calgarth Esq.; & Elizabeth maryed to Birbeck of Orton. {Examined.}[569]

[Machell's Notes: III.285]

*{Out of Sir Daniel Flemings MS in folio MS A. p.105.}
† {This I take to be of the sirname of Newbiging. M[emorandum]}
‡ No.
⸸{M[emorandum] This can scarce be.}
‖ {Mem[orandum] Sir Robert Crackenthorp of NK. 5. of Hen. 5. [1417-1418]}

———————

[III.287]

Richard Crakanthorp aforesaid Esq. = maryed, first, Mary, the daughter of Sir Christopher Dalston of Ackorn Bank, Knight; secondly, Lettice, daughter of Lougher of Parton in Staffordshire and relict of Thomas Denton of Warnel Esq. By his first wife he had Isue Henry who dyed young; Christopher, John, Thomas & William, Mary & Barbara. And by his second wife he had George, James, Richard, Francis and Lettice.
Christopher C~~h~~rakanthorp (dict.)[570] Esq. obijt March 31 1669 = maryed Ann, the daughter of Robert Rawlinson of Cark Esq., & by her had Isue Richard, Robert, Christopher & Mary.[571]

The Crakenthorps of Little Strickland
John Crakenthorp of Strickland, Gent (who was second son of Christopher Crakenthorp & Mrs Blenkinsop, Tem. H. 8. TM)[572] = maryed Mabel, daughter of [blank] Cowper, & had isue Christopher; Richard (a doctor & famous scholar); George, a parson; & Anthony who has Isue John and Christopher: which Christopher has Isue Barnerd, now of Newbiging.
Christopher Crakenthorp, son of John = maryed Barbara, daughter of [blank] Ward of Yorkshire, and had Isue Richard; Thoma[s]; Frances, m. to Petty, who had Isue by him; Ann maryed to William Aray of Shap, who had Isue Richard, John, Barbara, Ann, Isabel, Dorathy, Mary and Margaret.
Richard Crakenthorp, son of Christopher aforesaid = maryed Elizabeth Fairer \ of Warcop Tower / & had Isue Christopher; Ann, maryed to John Wharton of Kirkbythore Esq.; Grace, maryed to Watson; Barbra, maryed to Winter; Elizabeth; & Mary to Adam Thwat.
{Christopher Crakenthorp, son of Richard maryed Jane, daughter of Andrew Hudleston of Hutton John Esq. and had Isue Richard, Andrew, William, Jane, Ann.}
{Richard Crakenthorp, son of Christopher [blank]}

[567] 'See the black book.'
[568] 'Sine prole': childless.
[569] Examined for accuracy.
[570] 'Aforesaid.'
[571] For the Rawlinson descent (from the reign of Henry VII) and intermarriage with the Crackenthorpes, see Thomas West, The Antiquities of Furness (Ulverston, new edn, 1805), 317-20.
[572] TM: Machell's initials.

Examined.

[III.288]

{Mr Rawlinsons note who made this extract: MS A. Fleming. At p.106}[573]
I do not finde the name of Crakenthorp in any deed before William Crakenthorp in the time of Ed. 3. But I finde Alexander Crackenthorp, a younger son of Mauchael (or Malus Catulus), Lord of Crakenthorp, 12. Ed. 3. [1338-1339]* from whom it is probable the name came to the Lords of Newbiging by marriage, Mr Crakenthorp having ancient lands in Crakenthorp, lately sold†.
And before Edw. the 3. time they were stiled only as thus, viz. Lawrence, son of Rob., Domin. de Newbiging; John, son of Lawrence, Dom de Newbiging; and not by the name of Crakenthorp till Ed. 3. time‡.
I doe take it that the original grant of Newbiging was either from Walden, son of Gamel or from Gamel, son of Whelp, to Robert, Dapifer[574] de Appelby, which grant Waldeve confirm'd by Deed to Lawrence⸸. Or else from Mowbra, Earl of Westmorland‖.

Over Newbiging Hall door, cut in stone

> Christopher Crakenthorp men did me call > {!} who in my time did build this hall {?}
> and framed it as you may see.
> In one thousand five hundred thirty & three.

The new Tower is said to have bin builded by Henry Crakenthorp, who had 4 wives.
Examined by Sir Daniel Fleming & TM.

[Machell's Notes: III.288]
*{It is long before, S.D. and in the same hand with Doomsday Book, TM.}[575]
†{So, see […], in which apeareth not much mistaken save in the Time; for that with Bro of Mauchael was long before K. Ed. 3., there being these descents betwixt {William fil William, fil Alexander de Crakenthorp} and this, who was first concerned at Newbiging, le Alexander de Crakenthorp.}[576]
‡No Sir. Newbiging ~~TM~~ continued in the \ sir / name of the Newbigings till about this time, that Robert the son of Robert de Crakanthorp maryed Emma the daughter of Robert de Newbiging.}
⸸{It may be so. He was son of Gamel, son of Whelp, Lord of Kirkbythore, and, as it seems by this, of Newbiging […]}[577]
‖T.M. No Sir. Mowbray was indeed Earle of Northumberland but never of Westm'land.[578]
All these notes & pedegrees were in the proper hand writeing of Robert Rawlinson Esq., from whom Sir Daniel Fleming had them. N.B. But there are many mistakes to my knowledge \ in them / which may hereafter be corrected by me, Tho. Machell.

[IV]

[Difficulties]

[Thomas Machell, the Chapel at Temple Sowerby and the Dalstons of Acorn Bank][579]

[573] Robert Rawlinson of Cark Hall, lawyer, JP and royalist sympathiser, who died in 1665, aged 55. See West, Antiquities of Furness, 319.
[574] 'Steward.'
[575] Machell remarks here that, though undated [S.D.], the deed was written long before 12. Edward III [1338-1339], as the hand has similarities to the writing in Domesday Book.
[576] The binding is very tight here; the marginalia are difficult to read; thus the the transcription is questionable.
[577] The last word is unclear.
[578] This is the second, 'No Sir', interjection on this page, as Machell disagrees with 'Mr Rawlinsons note who made this extract: MS A. Fleming at p.106'; see also his criticism at the foot of III.288.
[579] See William Nicolson's 1703 view of the difficulties at Temple Sowerby in Misc Accts: 'At the Institution of the present Rector (Mr Wickins) a Tripartite Indenture was executed by the Patron (Lord Thanet), the Ordinary and himself; whereby £25 was allowed as a standing salary for ever to the curate of Sowerby… so that the Parson's Revenue is now less (by a round Subtraction of £50) than it was formerly. The late Bishop, Dr Smith,

[III.242]

A Narrative about a Chapel at Sowerby[580]

[III.229][581]

June 5 1697
A NARRATIVE OF
The Matter in Contest
About
THE CHAPEL OF SOWERBY within the Parish of
KIRKBY-THORE
in Westmorland
TO The Right Honorable
THOMAS
Earle of Thanett
PATRONE of the said
Parish-Church
T. M. R[ector]

[A. Correspondence 1.]

[Letter from Thomas Machell to Lord Thanet, 5 June 1697]

[III.231][582]

My Lord
It is from the Honourable Peers of this Realm that men expect justice and finde it too without partiality and therefore appeales are made unto them ~~when they think themselves injurd by other judges~~ \ from other judicatures. / And truly for my part I had and yet have that assurance in your Lordships goodness (so eminently zealous of doing what is right unto all) that I thinke you would doe not wrong unto any if your Lordship were truly informed of matters: soe that one who is not in your Lordships favour may yet expect justice, if not mercy from you.
{A promise of the patrone.}
And therefore when your Lordship told me (you had been informed) that I did not allow sufficient maintenance to my curate at Sowerby {a false informacon grounded upon a vulgar error} which was a great reflection upon me having 3 places as your Lordship was pleased to call them, I craved leave to tell you that your Lordship was misinformed \ in the matter / for I had but one place, and being Resident within my parish, was Curate my selfe. That I was not under any just-obligation to finde them a minister at my own charge, it being but a chapple within my parish. And that if he had not sufficient maintenance (tho perhaps I was able to prove the contrary) the fault was in the towne, not in promis'd me that he would never agree to any such proposal; but on a letter from the Archbishop of York… he changed his thoughts, and comply'd… My Lord Thanet tells me that his Under-Sheriff … pretends to shew an old Conveyance in a Testament in Sowerby, whereby the Rector is farther obliged to repair the Quire part of that Chapple. Mr Machell would never own any such Obligation; nor can it now be thought reasonable since the whole Tyth of that Hamlet will not always pay the Curate his £25. However, the East End of the Chapple is now ready to drop down; and I cannot yet foresee on whom the Charge will fall…' Nicolson, Misc. Accts, 29.

[580] This is the title Machell gave to his narrative, the nature of which was to demonstrate his financial and other difficulties relating to Temple Sowerby Chapel. See William Nicolson, above; see also Paul Barker, 'The Reverend Thomas Machell's complaint: July 2d.1690', CW2, 89 (1989), 279-81.

[581] Pages III.229-58, are of a uniform size but are almost 2cm shorter than the other pages in Volume III, demonstrating the binding of different sets of papers into the MS.

[582] The underscoring and margin comments are presented in different ink. As the letters are copies of the originals, it appears that Machell did this to highlight his main points and grievances. In this edition, Machell's margin comments have been utilised as sub-headings.

me; for chappels are to maintain their owne chaplaines at their own proper cost. And Your Lordship may please to remember that I told you further there was an old salary of 5^{li} 5^{s} 5^{d} or thereabouts due from the towne (called priests wages) which they had withdrawn and misapplied since I came to this place, reducing the same to lesse than 30^{s} per annum. And now, they thinking to take an advantage of your Lordships proneness to works of piety, & of my unhappiness in being out of your Lordships favour, indeavour to force me (by your Lordships \ greatest influence / over me) to make restitution for the wrong they have done. To which your Lordship was pleased to reply that you would assist me in recovering of it.

And thereupon I told Your Lordship I would shew you such things next time I came as should give your Honour satisfaction in all these particulars. And if I did not make it out that there was such a sallary due from the towne I would allow what Your Lordship thought fit to impose upon me. But in the meantime, your Lordship was pleased to come to Sowerby, where when the Sheriff suggested to Your Honour that the sallary I insisted upon was for a school master & not for a minister, I appealed to their own Register booke in their own custody whether it was not still called Priests Wages, Church Wages and Curates Wages. And Your

[III.232]

Lordship was soe just in the matter as to call for the booke and carry it with you to be examined by your Lordships Chaplaine.[583]

{A conditional promiss of the incumbent grounded upon the former promiss} {the Grand Query proposed}[584]

But when I came to waite upon your Honour with some hopes of redress, I found your Lordship was soe full of business that you could not have leisure to stay till your Chaplain came out of town, that he might be examined as to what he had met with, much less to consider (with due deliberation) what was laid before you on my behalf. But of ~~the~~ \ your / piety which they ~~would have had~~ make noe small advantage off) would have had me consent without more adoe to allow the curates 10^{li} per annum: to which I demurrd till Your Lordship should have consulted your Chaplaine & be better informed where the fault lay. And when your Lordship had discoursed him about it, the causes being of ecclesiasticall cognizance & depending much on the Canon Law (which Your Lordship does not pretend to) you were pleased to tell me when I came to take leave, that you did not understand the matter and would therefore remit it unto the Bishop (to whom I will freely submit myself as the most proper judge within his own diocese.) And will enter in bond (if the town or Mr Sheriff for them will doe the like) to stand to his Lordships determination both as touching the Sallary & Reparation of the said Chappel (if they be not satisfied with what I have \ already / proposed concerning the latter: Sc. whether or how farr the same doth belong to them or to me! And whether the chapelry or I am in fault, if the Reader have not sufficient maintenance.[585]

For truly (my Lord) (however I may be represented) it has been a very great trouble to me; as Your Lordships Chaplaine may inform you from severall letters I have formerly writ upon that occasion & which I have shewed him; that having long since provided materialls, I could not have liberty to repare the said Chappel upon any faire terms, nor get the salary thereto belonging restored and secured as it ought to have been because they pretended to be exempt from all Episcopall Jurisdiction. Soe that if I should have presented them for it, they would not have appeared at all, but at their own Court where the parties are Judges and where I could expect noe redress. But if they referr the cause to the Bishop & bind themselves to it and his judgment, the controversie may be determined by consent of both parties without much expence of bringing their priviledge into dispute.

[III.233]

In order to which I begg of your Lordship (since your Honour was pleased to offer your assistance in it) that the Register-booke of Temple Sowerby, to which I appealed for the matter of fact, may be secured in your Evidence roome at Appleby Castle; and that you would order & direct Mr Carleton[586] to call for an Evidence at Temple Sowerby (having 3 seales appendent) about the maintaining and hiring a Chaplaine in the time of King Henry the 7th, which is fit to be kept with your Lordships writings concerning the Rectory of Kirkbythore, if it can be had, and may be found either in the hands of John Parker of Temple Sowerby or some other person to whom Mr Sheriff (I suppose) can direct; if it be not their interest to conceale it rather, which two things being of unquestionable truth and authoritie, will plainly discover that the Chapplery was obliged heretofore to maintain their own Chaplane, & I could wish them in Your Lordships custody, lest they be injur'd or put out of the way, when there shall be occasion thereof at a reference, or at a commision for pious uses, as Your Lordship shall please to direct, which I hope you will doe with all possible speed, lest in the interim the Chapel should fall, which I should be heartily sorry for.

[583] Lord Thanet's chaplain was Rev. John Grandorge, son of Christopher, of Irby, Yorks, paup. St. Edmund Hall, matric. 16 July, 1687 aged 17; B.A. 1691, M.A. 1693-4; B.D. from Magdalen Coll. 1706; D.D. 1708; rector of Hartfield, Sussex, 1698, and of Ashurst, 1707; prebendary of Canterbury 1713; chaplain to the Earl of Thanet; died 17 Jan., 1729, aged 60. OAD.

[584] More margin comments written by Machell.

[585] For the meaning of the term 'reader', see the English Glossary.

In the mean time I freely confess & agree with your Lordship, that if I were bound to find them a curate at my own proper Charge (as your Lordship supposes); and I did not allow him a competent maintenance, I were much to be blamed and did not deserve your Lordships favour. But then (on the contrary) if Chapelries are to maintaine their own Chaplaines at their own proper cost, without the least diminution or damage of the rights & profits of the mother-Church. And if the Inhabitants of the said Chapplerie misimploy or diminish the ancient sallary which belong'd to their Chaplaines without the knowledge or assent of the minister of the mother Church; if he gives more, and they give less then they ought to doe, then the fault (I conceive) of the want of maintenance is on their side and not on his. And truly, My Lord, I can see noe reason but the want of Right information, why any minister should be censur'd & deem'd an ill man (which is my sad fate) for not allowing a sufficient maintenance where he ought to give none ~~at all~~; much lesse why I should make amends ~~rather~~ for what the inhabitants of Temple Sowerby very unjustly (& indeed sacreligiously)[587] have taken away, as the Sheriff ~~and~~ himselfe hath som time Confessed.

[III.234]

{Testament: Mr Watson, formerly Reader of Sowerby, now curate of Bondgate.}

[III.235]

{Canon Law}
And for the truth of all these matters, I refer my selfe to what Your Lordships Chaplaine hath seen with his own eyes, not only concerning chappells in generalls both in the Canon-law and elsewhere but of this Sowerby in particular in their Register-Booke & some other papers which I would willingly have shewen your Lordship according to promises if it had been your pleasure to looke upon them or to heare them read.
And if your Lordship, in your journey to Skipton (which I wish may be prosperous) shall happen to \ lodge at / Kendal or Kirkby, in both which parishes are diverse ancient (but ill-indowed) chappells, your Lordship may find (upon enquiry) a great many instances of what I assert: that chappells ought to be endow'd & repair'd as they were built "sine juris prejujudicio alieni" (without any injuries to another mans might), or "salva indemnitate matricis ecclesiæ" (the mother church being kept indemnified). For truly (my Lord) it is not lawfull to build (much lesse to consecrate) any chappell but under these covenants & considerations: as the canon-law sheweth.

{de Capella de Berwis in parochia St Lawrencis de Apelby}
And I have an authentick original testament (with a large seale appendant) concerning the building of an ancient chappell within this Diocess now fallen to the ground) which confirms the said law to have been practicable here amongst us as further sheweth that the Chaplaines in all succeeding ages were bound to take an oath of fidelity unto the minister of the parish church "de conservando matricem ecclesiam in omnibus ipsam contingentibus totaliter indempem". i.e. of keeping the mother church in all things whatsoever ~~indemnified~~ thereunto appertaining, wholly indemnified. Soe that Your Lordship plainly see it was never intended that a parish church should be charged with maintenance for any chappell. But the same was fixed upon the Inhabitants for whose ease it was built.

[586] Steward to Lord Thanet, see below: V.449.
[587] Transcribed as seen.

[III.234]

{Note. This was not included in that which was sent.}
And the Canon Law enters this caveat against it, where chapels \ are / founded for a community (as it seemeth to be in the case before us) cavebunt enim hi, ut injuriose veteribus[588] Ecclesijs de jure Parochiali nequaquam exsistant; ~~& gives this Reason (which is common to all)~~ i.e. They must take special care that they be not injuriouse to the mother churches in reference to their Parochial Rights. And gives this Reason (which is common to all),

[III.235]

'nec enim quod? eis ob nietatem indulgetur, ad aliorum injuriam fecti debet'. For it is not meet that what (in pure piety) is indulged for their ease, should become a burthen and \ or / dis-ease unto others. And now My Lord (having shewen you this much) I hope Your Lordship as you are Patron will thinke it your province (upon 2^{d} thoughts) to patronize & defend the just rights of the Church

[III.236]

Parochiall which is your Lordships, from the unjust incroachments of the sub-parochiall (or Chappels of ease) which cannot properly be called yours, and will be lesse soe when once indowed (which God forbid) out of the Rectory, which Your Lordship may see is provided against not only by sanctions of the Canon Law but by an oath alsoe; and which I make bold to remind you of, lest Your Lordships piety should be prevail\e/d on to bring a Rent-charge upon my successors by the cunning & crafty insinuations of those who will not stick at any thing for their own advantage*.
But before you doe soe (for I know you will not doe an ill thing et id tantum possumus quod jure possumus),[589] your Lordship might doe well to enquire of those who are versed in the Ecclesiasticall law, how farr a patrone has power to dispose of the rights of his Church?
But what (my Lord) if after all this there be noe cause at all of complaint, as to the matter of fact? What if I really (whilest I thinke my selfe oblieged to do nothing \ att all /) have made the place better vijs et modis[590] than what your Lordship (whilest you supposed me to be under some legall-obligation of maintaining a curate) would have required? Surely, then, there is more in the matter then Your Lordship perceives.[591]

[Machell's Notes: III.236]

{*For they can present agane when they please, tho they suffer the rectors to do it at present because they have made it not worth acceptance but for his augmentation and kindness.}

[III.236A][592]

And certainly, My Lord, to give a young man the Chapel of Sowerby with its ancient sallary (though he gets little of it:) 2^{li} per Annum of my own, as an Augmentation thereunto; the benefit of teaching a School, with meat, drinke & lodgeing, and 20^{s}, besides other gratuities, for teaching my children; and good education which is better than all \ this, / though I should not boast of it but that they have compelld me to glorie. {I have bred up iiij or v notable minister under me, & som have quited preferment of 10 & 20^{li} per annum to com to this place, which could not be for the sake of the town & what they get there.}[593] Certainly, these must be much better for him than X^{li} per annum. But this I have don: And do it at present. But I doe it Ex gratia and not ex debito,[594] lest I draw a Rent-charge upon my successors.

[III.237]

And this I take to be the true reason of this grand complaint. For the Sherriff would have a good swingeing sallary \ now that theirs is gon / charged on the rectory per fas aut nefas,[595] & settled upon this Chappell of Sowerby, which he hopes to effect by the grand interest he has in Your Lordship & striking now while the iron is hot. And when that is done he can bring the Chaplaine (whose sallary will be noe more precariouse) to his own beck \ and being the factotum amongst the neighbourhood, [588] MS: 'veteriribus'.

[589] 'And we can only do what we lawfully do.'
[590] 'In ways and means.'
[591] A margin comment here forms a query in Latin but as some of it has perished it has not been transcribed.
[592] Scrap page, 20cm by 11½cm, numbered and placed within the volume but not bound into it.
[593] Another margin comment on this page cites a series of page numbers, but they are unclear.
[594] 'Voluntarily, and not from compulsion.'
[595] 'By what is proper or improper' = 'by any means, regardless of legality or ethics.'

can / appoint him too when he has a mind,[596] by vertue of the forementioned evidence in the time of King Henry the 7. And another instance in the Register-booke \ of Temple Sowerby / whereby it appears \ that / they hired \ as well as maintained / their own Chaplane; and soe may make him teach \ schoole / at ~~Temple~~ Sowerby. And then the Rector of Kirkbythore, who (if this be done must pay all the salary) could not have the benefit of having his children taught at home but must send them thither, which would be a very great hardship upon him but well for the Sheriff and all his posterity. And if he can but gaine this one point of your Lordship and me, he has done a great worke, and will not need to aske any more. But I hope your Lordship will give me leave to dispose of my own as I have a mind; for charity ought to be free and not forced. & set the saddle upon the right horse, causing them to make restitution who have done the injury; for \ Your Lordship may see / it is not my fault, if the Reader have not sufficient maintenance.[597]

FINIS T.M.

[III.239][598]

[Letter from Thomas Machell to John Grandorge, chaplain to Lord Thanet, 5 June 1697]

Kirkby Thore
June 5th 1697
Sir
I would have waited upon my Lord som part of his journey but that it was not his Lordships pleasure, & therefore sent the papers inclosed upon Friday morning. But his Lordship (it seams) was gon so early that my man came too late & so brought them back, which I was heartily sorry for. Pray Sir, be so kinde as to give 'em his Lordship with my most humble service, and tell him farther that Temple-Sowerby will restore the Priests-Wages which they have unjustly taken away (& which Mr Sheriff can doe if he pleaseth with a word of his mouth). I will add unto it on his Lordships account (if he be not convinced of the illegality of the demand) whatsoever in reason can be expected from
Your most humble servant
Tho: Machell

Pray Sir, peruse & correct the ~~narrative~~ \ inclosed, which was sent in haist / and let me know what his Lordship sayes to it. Give my service to Dr Mill when you come to Oxford and forget former quarrels.[599] Remember me likewise to honest Will Sherwin[600], and let me hear \ from you / whether he receivd my directions or noe about som arreares of rent at Highworth,[601] which are due to me from one Widow Dring[602] near the Highcross; and if he have, what is don in that manner.

[596] 12cm of text has been scored through here.
[597] The letter seems to have first ended after the word 'injury'; the rest is in larger script, apart for the interlineation: 'your Lordship may see'. The sense towards the end of the letter is of rising indignation, with a calmer ending.
[598] This is Machell's covering note to Grandorge, sent with his letter to Lord Thanet. John Grandorge, then aged 27, was chaplain to Lord Thanet, who had ordered him to enquire into Temple Sowerby chapel rights: see III.232. Grandorge's reply appears on III.418A/B.
[599] Dr Mill was principal of Grandorge's old college, St Edmund Hall, between 1685 and 1707. He was the son of Thomas Mill of Shap, and entered as a plebeian into Queen's College on 14 Nov., 1661, aged 16 (as Milne). B.A. 1666; M.A. 1669; B.D. 1680; D.D. 1681 (as Mill). Machell had sent Mill his article on Roman inscriptions five years previously, see Part 3. Ch.3: Roman Antiquities; see also correspondence which enlarges on the relationship between Machell and Mill in Part 3. Ch.2; see also OAD.
[600] William Sherwin was at that time vicar of Headington, Oxford: son of William, of Oxford city, pleb. Magdalen Coll., matric.1683, aged 14; B.A. 1687; fellow Merton Coll. 1688; M.A. 1691; vicar of Headington, 1693; rector of Collingbourne Ducis, Wilts, 1700; canon of Chichester 1703, until his death on 14 May, 1735, see OAD.
[601] A town in north Wiltshire near Swindon.
[602] Or 'Drines'.

[III.418A]

[Letter from John Grandorge to Thomas Machell, 5 July 1697]

For the Reverend Mr Machel
Rector of Kirkbythore near Appleby in Westmorland

[III.418B]

Lincoln College[603]
July 5th 1697
Reverend Sir
I received yours with the papers relating to Temple Sowerby and acquainted my Lord therewith at Skipton Castle, who was pleased to have them perused by a clergyman, viz. Mr Pemberton of Bradford in Yorkshire, for he was at that time to wait upon his Lordship, and (considering the character he has in those parts and the good opinion my Lord has of him) I thought I could not serve you better than in moving that he might examine the case and give his thoughts to my Lord: who told me, after all was over, that he thought things were at a stand, and nothing at present could be done except it should be immediately left to the Bishop and the deed with three seals brought to light; which when my Lord pleases to take notice of after my return into Kent I will take care to acquaint you with it, for I fancy his Lordships business was so great in Craven that Mr Pemberton would scarce, since I came away, meddle any more in it; but if he has, and to any purpose, I will as soon as I can inform myself give you an account thereof.
Since I came hither I was with Mr Sherwin about your business, who tells me that it is a thing so much out of his way that he cannot possibly think of serving you in it, and that some time since \ he / mentioned as much to Mr Adkinson or Mr Waugh of Queens and thought that they had given you to understand as much. So that as far as I can perceive you must rather commit it to the care of some attorney or friend near the place, or here as you are acquainted, for Mr Sherwin is a man of so much business that it must not be expected from him. I am
Sir
Your most humble servant
John Grandorge

[III.243][604]

[B. Machell's Evidence]

[B.1.]

Observations and Queries concerning the Register of the Chappel of Temple Sowerby in the Parish of Kirkbythore

1. Query: Where is the parchment register mention'd in page 128. Whether this account as it is here be given up to & ingrossed by the Bishop or Chancellour \ see ibid. The Chancellour sayes he hath one of X^{t} Bar.[605] / {Note. Mr Dawson.}[606]
2. Query: Whether it be not brought to the Parish Church once in year & ingross'd there, or if it ought not to be soe? {Mr Dawson.}
3. Memorandum: to have what is material transcrib'd, & attested (for what is therein contein'd) to be a true copy.

Ad pag. 2.
{1631} 1. Note the 1^{t} page seems to be an order for the Readers wages to [be] levyed upon the Inhabitants; with several receipts, according to that agreement. Query if Mr Dawson could ever read it. The thing should seem to have bin writ in 1630 or however in 1631: see pag. 2. {Mr Dawson 1630, 1631.}

[603] Oxford.
[604] Also numbered p.1.
[605] Answer to Machell's query by Christopher Barrow.
[606] For Thomas Dawson, rector of Newbiggin (1681-98), former curate/schoolmaster at Temple Sowerby, see Newbiggin (above), I.567.

2. An agreement between the church-wardens of Temple-Sowerby Church with the rest of the neighbours and John Brice for annual repairs of the windows: p.2. {(2.) v. p.2. 1618. 1631. 1609/10.} p.9. Anno Domini 1618 (I wonder at this, because the second page is 1631 – but if what is writ upon the first leaf may have bin inserted afterwards so that the Register doth truly begin at page the 3rd in 1609.) Note that the family of the Dalstons who came but lately into the parish have endeavord to draw to themselves the right of the Rector in appointing his own Reader by getting a poor ignorant man to subscribe to this forme at pag. 9th: I. Michael &c.[607]

[III.244]

{!! Note.} I Michael Wilkinson, Clerke, do hereby acknowledge that I am hired to serve the Cure at Temple-Sowerby Church until All Hallow Day next coming,[608] & no longer, unless I can hereafter gain the consent & good likeing of Sir Christopher Dalston, Knight, and the greater number of my parishioners in the town of Temple-Sowerby, in witness thereof I have hereunto sett my hand the 21 Day of December 1618.[609]

{1618. p.1} Memorandum: that som way be thought on to have this publiquely revoked & cancell'd; if it be injuriouse to the church. Note: he calls it a \ Cure / church; & calls them his parishioners & submits himselfe to the approbation &c. Maybe they have rented the tythes and bin obliged by the bargain to finde a Reader.

N.B. The ~~neigh~~ Church (or rather Chapel Wardens) are to finde Communion-Booke,[610] Bible, Book of Homilyes,[611] pulpet cloth & table-cloth.[612] See a receit of them by Micael Wilkinson, 1618. p.9.

Query: What is meant by the old stock, new stock, marke? What by his house? An non.[613] George Parker? What the jury has to doe with the church affairs and where? Item of the stock anciently belonging to his house, see page 24, 25, 26.

{1638.} A note of the church-stock in (as I take it) 1638. under 3 heads or stiles: Sc. stock anciently belonging to his house: old stock: new stock, see p.25, 26.

{1640.} A note of the old/new church stock for 3s the pound and the pledges for new security (as I suppose) in 1640. pag. 29.

[III.245][614]

{?! Note.} Memorandum Mr John Dalston of Acorne Banke & Mr William Walker Rector of Kirkby Thure, did grant & appoint a seat (or stall) in the Quire of Temple-Sowerby Church for the use of Christopher Lowson, John Bleamire and Robert Hodgson, in lieu of another seat which Mr Dalston had of them: 1662. See pag. 38.

Query: what did Mr Dalston had to doe with the quire, being no patrone. 2. Whether he & Mr Walker could make this order (excepting only for Mr Walkers life) without the consent of the patrone & Ordnarye.[615] Item: when Mr Dalston built & his quire and with whose consent?

{1617. 1664. 1622.} A note of old/new stock Feb. 15. 1664. at 3 [s] & 2 [s] \ 1617. p.97, 98, 99 / \ 1622. p.101 / Query: what is meant by marke? See page 49, 95.

---

[607] References to members of the Dalston family appear more than 20 times throughout this chapter, but without comment. This section describes Machell's side of his distressing rift with John and Christopher Dalston, which centred on the patronage, finances and oversight of the chapel at Temple Sowerby. Machell's forbearance to comment adversely within his official 'history' is at variance with the negative remarks, veiled or otherwise, he often visited on his peers.

[608] 1. November.

[609] One Michael Wilkinson was curate at Barton (Patterdale Chapel) from 1606 to 1608; another Michael Wilkinson was ordained at Rose Castle, Carlisle, in 1618. See CCED. No other records are available from CCED.

[610] Book of Common Prayer.

[611] Homily: a religious discourse addressed to a congregation; a sermon; especially a practical discourse with a view to the spiritual edification of the hearers. In the Church of England specially applied to the discourses contained in the Books of Homilies published in 1547, 1563 (with additions up to 1571) for use in parish churches. OED. See also http://www.anglicanlibrary.org/homilies/. Machell refers to the 'homily desk' in Part 2, Ch.3ix, Staveley, II.113.

[612] Altar cloth.

[613] 'Is it not.'

[614] Also numbered p.3.

[615] 'Without consent of the bishop.'

Memorandum: that the Jury of Temple Sowerby doe finde that John Stable hath 2li the poor-stock, belonging to the town which was due at Candlemas last and to be paid at Candlemas next, paying 4s for the same to the poor of the foresaid town. Witness our hands: John Gowling, George Pa[r]ker &c. p.49, 95 (anno 1662.)
Query: Where and by whom this Court was held? How this comes under their jurisdiction? What is meant by Poor-stock, & how it differs from Church stock?
Memorandum: The Jury aforesaid doth unanimously agree that if any having the

[III.246]

Church-stock doe not pay it or ingaige security for it, paying the consideration that the Churchwardens & other officers doe proceed to levy it by way of distress[616] within 14 dayes after the quarter dayes. Provided if the Church-wardens, the Baliff and other officers appointed by the Church-wardens then being doe omit the prosecution of this their office, that they shall be able to answer the Court holden at the worshipfull John Dalstons Esq. at Acorn Bank, for their neglect: p.50.

Feb. 15. 1666.

{1666.} Memorandum: The Jurors of Temple-Sowerby do finde John Stable to have 2li of the Poore stock, for which he is to pay 6s at the Feast of St Thomas before Christmas next,[617] which he is in arrearages. And every yeare dureing the term he hath it, he is to pay 1s 6d per pound at the Purification of Our Blessed Virgin (commonly call'd Candle-mas Day)[618] into the hands of the Church-wardens to be distributed according to their prudent direction: John Gowling, Edward Cale &c.
An account of the dues belonging to the Curate of Temple-Sowerby. Robert Brockell, curate: see page. 56 \ 93. / I do not understand it, but it seems to be 1: 5: 0½ per quarter.
Item at All Saints 1664.[619] Lammas quarter 1664.[620] see page 86, 87.
{!!! Note.} Arrearages due to Thomas Barnet, Curate, at Candlemas 1665. p.100. Item for the Church-stock May the 4th 1662. A particular note of quarterage due to the Curate; in all 1:6s: 4 qu. \ see p.114. / Item in 1661. \ p.115; / 1660. \ p.116; / 1659. \ p.117; / 1658. \ p.118; / 1657. May 1, \ p.119 /}
A note

[III.247][621]

of the Church-stock (old/new/marks: 2s & 3s per pound), page 88, 89, 95.
Thomas Barnet, Curate of Temple-Sowerby, May 29 1665. p.99.
Due to Mr Walker for Easter Reckonings p.92. And to his curate ibidem. {Note.}
Query: What for gardens; tythe-hay; more-spot; communicants. Foales? Calves? Lams. Chese or other tythes.
{1661. 1665. 1622.} Thomas Lumley, Curate, 1661. pag.100. Thomas Barnet Curate 1663. p. ibid, & June 12. 1665. p.105. A Note of Church-stock in 1662.
The 17. day of October 1624. {Note.}it is agreed before Sir Christopher Dalston Knight an William Teasdall & John Pattison, that Robert Gowlings house and garth, and one Rig of his lying on the mooreland near the leaning ditch shall be charged with 26s viijd of the church-stock, and if the said Robert Gowling shall sell the said Rigg, that then 1li of the purchase of the said Rigg to be paid to the Church; & the other vjs viijd remain to the house & garth of the said Robert Gowling or his assignes: Robert Gowling marke p.103.
{1662.} A Note of the Church-stock old/new in 162. (pro 1662. ut opinor)[622] Richard Fawell being then Church-warden.
A Note of the Church-stock old/new, 3s & 2s per li 1657. alledgeing that the one pound is of the Church-stock. Memorandum: I could never get more of Rowland Lowes than 15d a quarter & 5s per annum.

[616] Distraint.
[617] 21 December, the traditional day for giving to the poor.
[618] Candlemas day is 2 February.
[619] All Saints Quarter begins in November.
[620] Lammas: the Feast of First Fruits, 1 August.
[621] Also numbered p.5.
[622] 'As I think'. Machell was of the opinion that this date was 1662.

[III.248]

A Note of Church-Stock in 1655. old, new &c., p.108.
I received ~~nothing~~ of Mr Lough no tyth hay-silver since Mr Walker came to Kirkby Thure: Thomas Lumley, p.112.
If therefore, prescription be here pretended, it is forfait: T.M.

Rents 13^{s} & 4^{d}

	Li	s	d
Mr Dalston, for the White-Stones:	0	5	0
Mr Christopher Lough, for the Acres Close	0	3	4
Robert Pattison att present, for an house and ground, of which his brother John Pattison is the heire	0	4	8
George Parker, for Moorelands Close	0	4	0
{1675.} Henry Jackson, for one house that he bought of John Pattinson, belonging to the Rectory of Kirkby-Thore, purchased with 4^{d} rent in 1675.	0	0	4

This last 4^{d} was that I suppose which Mr Walker was so long afindeing. T. M.

Tythe hay-silver, as it was set down by the Jury at Acorne-Banke {I never finde any mention of till this time.}

[III.248-49][623]

	Li.	s.	d.	Ob.[624]	Qu.[625]
John Pattison			2	ob
John Atkinson			2	ob
Daltons House			2	ob
Christopher Lowson			2	ob
John Lowis & Thos Spooner		3
Richard Loweis		3
Stables House			2	ob
*George Parker			4	ob
*Robert Pattison			1
*John Stable			4	ob
Stephensons House		3	0
*William Teasdal			1		qu.
John Bleamire			2	ob
George Haron			2	ob
*Mr Lough			2		qu.
Fargus Thomson			1		qu.
Thomas Fawset & John Gowling
Sowerby House			3
Mr Dalston pro Sanwath			3
Acorn Bank demeisne		5
*John Gowling			4	ob
*Robert Teasdal			2		qu.
Robert Hodgson			2	ob
Thomas Teasdall			2	ob
Mr Hall			4	ob
Mr Hall pro Moore Spot			6
Parson Closes which usually hath bin received with the Easter Reckonings of those who	2	0	0

[623] The asterisks on these pages were placed here either by Machell or some other person; they have nothing to do with this edition's choice of symbols for delineating Machell's textual notes.
[624] ½d.
[625] Farthing (¼d.)

collect moneys for his more-farme and Whin-silver {?}[626]

{1665.} Receiv'd of Edward Cale 2[s] for the Parsons Close Anno Domini 1665. è pag.112-113:
A Note of Church-stock quarterly May 10, 1656. another, 1655. another, 1654. another, 1653.

A True Note of the old Church-stock 3[s] per pound, being perfected the 2[nd] day of Feb. 1651. In all

	Li.	s.	d.
	8	5	0
Item: a note of the old bem.	14	10	4
Both together	22	15	4	È pag. 125, 126.

A particular note of the church-stock quarterly in 1652.[627]

{1639.} Anno Domini 1639.
Church-wardens John Hall and Edward Cale: burials, wedings & Christenings as they are in the Parchment Register-Booke.

Imprimis receiv'd of 29 houses.		vi[s] & ij[d]
Item: dispurs'd for bread & wine at two severall times.		3[s] & 6[d]	0: vij[s] 0d
Item: for washing the surplices & table-cloth.		ii[d]
Layd forth to John Bryce for upholding the church window.	xij[d]
For delivering a note of our Register-Booke	ij[d]

[III.250][628]

Receiv'd of the Church-stock [Blank]
whereof wee have paid to Sir Edward ~~2vs~~ 26[s]. So there remaineth overplus vj[s] xiiij[d], whereof (laid) out three shillings & 2[d] to make up for bread & wine, and the rest being 3[s] & 4[d], wee do pay to the next Churchwardens and wee do also deliver the next churchwardens one silver bowle, one Communion Booke, one Bible, one Homily Booke, one Table-cloth, one surplice and one flagon. (All this at p.128.)

Receiv'd of Robert Pattison for a burial	3[s] 4[d]
Laid forth to John Brash, glazier	12[d]
Item: For a pair of bell strings	15[d]
Item, Thomas Pattison, for his fathers burial	3s 4[d]
Item: Laid forth when wee tooke our oaths at Apelby[629]	8[d]

{Note.} Item: Receiv'd more than Sir Edwards wages for 3 quarters, 9[d] in the quarter, & for one quarter, 6[d]. p.129.
{Note.} (All Saints quarter 1650. (it seems to be for curates wages)
{1628.} The accounts of the church-wardens John Pattison & John Browne for the year of Our Lord God 1628.
{Note.} Gathered for the Preasts-wages quarterly, John Pattison, 6[d], John Atkinson, 15[d] &c. pag.142.
{1632.} 1632. a Note of the new Church-stock

[III.251][630]

A True Count of John Brown & [blank] Pattison, church-wardens for the Year of Our Lord 167 (for 1667)
{N[ote] That was in Sir Christopher Dalstons time vide infra[631] and may be in \ 1620. or / 1621. for 1622. follows.}
Imprimis collected of all that hath the Church-stock according to the rate & custom.

[626] Machell has questioned this. Whins (gorse) were used by farmers as livestock bedding. As such they were a crop like any other. https://www.dailypost.co.uk/news/local-news/farmers-return-gorse-cutting-help-2683219
[627] Machell underscored this text to separate it from the text below.
[628] Also numbered p.8.
[629] Oaths of allegiance and supremacy of the Church of England.
[630] Also numbered p.9.
[631] 'See below.'

{Note.} Out of which wee have paid the Curate all for one year, & xl^{s} which the Parson did pay, and wee finde 3^{s} 8^{d} remaining to the next church-wardens to be set forward to the use of the Church {Curate, not the master, for the proof being but 40s. See below 19s, where the letters stand an in a ranke. See also p.139!!!}
And William Teasdall younger, Thomas Walker, Thomas Atkinson, Andrew Stephenson payd nothing.
Item: receiv'd of xxx viij houses, every one, for bread & wine, whereof wee dispurs'd ij^{s} x^{d}. And iiij^{d} remain to the next Church-Wardens. And Thomas Walker & Andrew Stephenson payed nothing.
Item: for repareing of the Church of xxx […] houses vj^{d} a piece, which is xix^{s} and [blank][632]
Thomas Walker is nothing. {!}

Out of which sum wee have dispurs'd for the [blank]		viij^{d}
for a Register		6^{d}
For limeing the church,	vj^{s}	viij^{d} {q? ubi}[633]
for lyme carrage	xij^{d}
for slate	viij^{d}
for [blank]		iij^{d}
for hair		ij^{d}
for (spelks)[634] and strings	xij^{d}

which is xvij^{s} & j^{d}, out of the which remaine ij^{s} v^{d} {pag. 132}

Item: Receiv'd for Prisners & Soljers money {these are sesses for lame Soljers & Prisners} of one & thirty \ xxx / houses, ij^{d} an house, which is in all v^{s} & ij^{d}, and there remaneth vj^{d} to the next Church-wardens; and John Dalton, John Lowis younger, Thomas Atkinson & Thomas Walker payed nothing. {forsan quia paupers}[635]
Receiv'd of Sir Christopher Dalston Knight for Christopher Phillips burial in the church, iij^{s} & iiij^{d}.
Receiv'd for a tree, xxiij^{d}, out of which payd 8^{d} for the lodging of 3 travellers, which were to be lodged in the Churches account: È pag.~~132~~ 133.[636]

[III.252]

Anno 1621.
The account of Richard Stable and Robert Parker (it seems writ by the hand of Michael Wilkinson. Compare with pag. 9)
Receiv'd by George Parker & his fellow, xij^{d} whereof layd out by us to maintaine the church wages: viij^{d}. And wee received for prisoner money ij^{d} overplus, which wee dispursed for washing the surplice and wee deliver to our successors Richard S [blank] & his fellow:
Item: we deliver to them one silver cup with a covering, one hand-bell and one order in [blank] made & agreed upon with a [blank] within Temple-Sowerby {È pag. 133.}

The Account of Richard Fawell, Churchwarden Anno 1622.

Imprimis receiv'd of xxvj tenents at iij^{d} a piece	vj^{s}	vj^{d}
Item: of vij cottagers at ij^{d} a piece		xiiij^{d}
John Dalton, William Sowerby, Thomas Walker,			paid
Robert Gowling younger, Hugh Baxter			nothing
Item: of Richard Stable & his fellow late churchwardens		v^{d}
Item: of xxx viij houses, every one j^{d} for bread & wine	iij^{S}	v^{d}
Item: of John Pattisons wives[637] burial in the church	iij^{s}	iij^{d}

& Dispurs'd:

[632] 38 houses would yield 19s at 6d per house.
[633] Query, when?
[634] Thin strips of wood. Splinters are locally called 'spelks'.
[635] 'Perhaps because they were paupers.'
[636] Taken from p.133.
[637] His wife's burial.

for mayson work	5^{s}
for lyme		vij^{d}
for leading stone		vj^{d}
att the visitation[638] at Apleby		x^{d}
for mending the glass-windows		xj^{d}	{È p.135}
Item: for a General Chapter at Browham		j^{d}
Item: for washing the Surplice & Table-cloth		ij^{d}
For a Court entering for Alexander Gowling		ij^{d}
& deliver up* 3 bookes, a silver cup, an hand-bell			{È p.136}

It seems there was no Church-stock then. Query de curates wages. Anon church wages supra.[639]

[III.253][640]

The Account of William Teasdall, churchwarden as above 1623.

First collected by me of 28 tenents 2^{d} a piece for repareing the church-leads: it comes to	iiij^{s}	viij^{d}
Whereof dispurs'd to a plummer	3^{s}	6^{d}
More dispurs'd for bell strings		viij^{d}
More at the General Chapter		iiij^{d}
To John Lowis for service to the plummer		iiij^{d}
More laid out for Bread & Wine		iij^{d}
		&c.

In calce paginæ[641] receiv'd of Robert Dalton iij^{li} of his church stock, which I deliver'd to John Hall
Writ to supply the defect {p.137}
More of the Church-wardens spared of Sir Edwards wages: xij^{d}; and deliver'd as before to the next Church-wardens {p.138}

The account of Humphrey Gowling & Thomas Haron:
Church-wardens, collected by us 1624.

For old arrearages for Prisners and Soljers money	x^{s}
Whereof dispurs'd to the Heigh Constable for the same	ix^{s}	iiij^{d}
Item: Laid out at the Visitation		xij^{d}
Item: At the General Chapter[642]		iiij^{d}
Laid vj^{d} more than wee receiv'd
Item: iiij^{s} of the Church-stock Haron had besides his Old stock
{1^{t} mention of Church stock but presupposing it}
Payd iij^{s} iij^{d} for Roger Stable {p.138}

[III.253-4]

Church-wardens 1625.
William Teasdal junior, Robert Gowling senior

Receiv'd of John Pattison xx^{s}, which was given by Richard Stable ~~at his~~ desceased, to the use of the Church: pay as above the xxxi^{t} day of July 1625.
1625. Item: Receiv'd of John Lowson, the sum of	xx^{s}

[638] An ecclesiastical visit to examine the state of a diocese, parish, religious institution, etc.; a visit paid by a bishop or archdeacon [chancellor of the diocese in the case of Carlisle Diocese]; a meeting or gathering of persons concerned in such a visit. OED.
[639] 'Are not these the church wages, above?'
[640] Also numbered p.11.
[641] 'At the foot of the page.'
[642] Presumbly, this is a deanery meeting [?]

Ould Church-stock
~~Laid out of this so receiv'd to William … old stock~~ ~~xx~~
Receiv'd of John Hill for the Ould Church-stock xx^{s}
[&] of the new stock xl$^{s.}$
Receiv'd of Annas Sowerby Ould stock xx^{s}
Laid out of this so receiv'd: xx^{s}
To William [Blank] ~~ould stock~~ xx^{s}
[Blank] Hodgson ~~ould stock~~ xx^{s}
Michael Hodgson surety
[Blank] Teasdall iiij^{li} xx^{s} is of the Ould stock (the rest of the new)

{p.139} Anno Dom. 1627. Ould stock after iiij^{s} the pound. And other money for ij^{s} {p.140.}

1629.
John Pattison, John Atkinson junior: Church-wardens.
Wee receiv'd at the last church-wardens hands ij^{s}
{Note.} Laid out by us in charges ij^{s} &[643]
{!} Item: spared of the church-wadges ii^{s}
Deliver'd by us to the next Churchwardens,
Richard Fawel & Robert Dalton vj^{s} vii^{d}

[p.]141. 1628.
The Account of the Church-wardens John Pattison & John Brown for the year of Our Lord God 1628.
{Note.} gather'd for the Preast Wages quarterly
John Pattison 6^{d} &c.
John Atkinson xv^{d} &c.{p.142-143}

All Saints Quarter 1650. p.141.

[III.255][644]

Item: wee deliver'd to the next Church-wardens; a Bible, a Nomine Booke {for homily},[645] a Booke of Common Prayer, with surpleths and Table-cloth, ut suppleat[ur][646] p.144. in capite.[647]
A Note of the New Church-stock 1632. {p.144}
A Note of church-stock for Candlemas quarter 1649. {p.146}
A particular note of the Church-stock Candlemas {p.148}
Receiv'd more than Sir Edwards wages iij^{s} for iij quarters, & 9^{d} for one quarter, which wee tooke 1^{s} j^{d} for Bread & Wine, & wee spared 2^{s}.
Laid forth to the plummer for mending the church leads v^{s}
Glasier xij^{d}
Laid forth at Apleby when wee tooke oathes viij^{d}
Item: at one visitation ix^{d}
Item: at the last General Chapter iiij^{s}
Bell string for washing surplice & table-cloth &c. {p.149 ultim.}[648]
Chappel ought to be & originally was endow'd by those who build them; and not withstanding them they ought to repare to the parish church. They are chappels of ease, not of idleness. Not church. Quia[649] no presentation nor induction to them as churches but onely as apurtenances & chappells.

[III.256]

2. If churches I have no title to them for I am no[t] qualify'd to hold 3 churches nor yet 2. But they are chappells:

[643] The rest of this line is obscured by the binding.
[644] Also numbered p.13.
[645] A book of scriptural openings such as, 'In the name of the Father', used for sermons and discourses addressed to congregations.
[646] 'As should be supplied.'
[647] At head of p.144.
[648] Ultim: 'last entries.'
[649] 'Because.'

1. Because so they are mentioned to be in an Evidence penes Honorablem Venerab. Johes Tufton, Armig[er], wherein Adam de Kirkbythore grants the advowsan thereof to Robert de Veteripont, anno 4^0 vel 5^0 Johannes [1203-1204].
2. Because the inducti to this day runs cum Capellis de Milburne & Sowerby.[650]

Object

They are call'd Churches, & the overseers of them, Churchwardens.

Answer

That make nothing against Evidence. People are apt to miscall chappells & confound them with churches, so the High Field at Crakenthorp is call'd the Kirkbankes, & yet the place where the chappell stood, the Chappel Garth; and the well near adjoyneing, Chappell well.

Object

But they bury, Christen & mary there: ergo a church.

Answer

Tho they doe so, this makes it not church but onely a chappell of ease; for this may be don by consecration to any chaple, as in colleges; & the Bishop of

[III.257]

Carlile is now about to make Raughton Chappel one of this nature: so l[…]ng chappel.[651]

Query

Who to repare the quires in chappells. What obligation to preach? Once in the month.
What sortes of tythes due?
What fees for christening, churchings, burying, marriages?

Memorandum: Mr Dalston pretends[652] prescription for tythe calves in his demeisne 10 groates a calfe, sed de hac q.[653] For:
1. Mr Dawson, Reader, sayes Mr Walker declared that he would \ not / stand with him for it because he was a Gentleman; and one of whom he receiv'd ~~many~~ \ his / dinner when he preached there.
2. The demaisne is of short continuance being tenanted lands given to the Lord for freeing[654] the other halfe {But he sayes they are not}. And besides, since the division,[655] many of the tenements have been purchased and so added lately to the demaisne. Now, if the tenents were lyable to pay in kinde, why not the Lord who injoys those tenements.
3. Kirkbythore, Hougil & Grainge, which are far more ancient, pay calves in kinde: why, then, not this?

Machell's Notes: [III.258]

Though Temple-Sowerby pretend an exemption from the Bishops Court, yet tis evident from the Register that the church wardens as they call them there, have frequently appear'd and bin sworn at Apleby.[656]
My Lady Sandford pretends that Grainge is only to pay 5^{li} and no tythe corne in kinde but [blank] now living has led tythe corne from of the place. Her ground is because twas chantery land but so was som at Apleby.
Memorandum: There is one place my Lady Sandford holds for which the prescription money was not paid: ergo forfait. Query: Mr Hall.

---

[650] 'Because the induction to this day is for the parish with its chapels of Milburn and Sowerby.'
[651] One word here is unclear. Raughton Head chapel was rebuilt before 1678 and re-consecrated by Bishop Rainbow on that date: Hyde & Pevsner, 583.
[652] Claims.
[653] 'But on this matter, I question.'
[654] Enfranchising.
[655] 'Division': enclosure of common land, often by private arrangement, much of it in the seventeenth century. See J.R. Wordie, 'The Chronology of English Enclosure 1500-1914', The Economic History Review 2, Vol. XXXVI, 4, (Nov. 1983), 483-505.
[656] Temple Sowerby held the status of a probate peculiar. 'Certain parishes, manors and liberties were exempt from the jurisdiction of the bishop and archdeacon in whose diocese and archdeaconry they were situated. They were subject to the probate jurisdiction of others when a testator had goods in more than one diocese of the northern province or in more than one jurisdiction (e.g. goods in both a peculiar of Dean and Chapter and in the jurisdiction of the archbishop). Then, the Prerogative Court of York had the right to grant probate. See Borthwick Institute. https://www.york.ac.uk/borthwick/holdings/guides/research-guides/probate-courts/

Temple Sowerby & Milburne \ pretend to / prescriptions for hay, but Kirkbythore payes all in kinde.
The whole quire with all the seats under the organ belong to the rector of Kirkbythore.
Enquire the day of paying prescriptions.

[V. 289]

[B.2.]

A true and perfect Abstract out of an old Register Book of Temple Sowerby In the County of Westm'land[657]

The first page of which book hath the number 1. upon it, but part of the said page cannot be read but towards the latter end thereof it hath these words:
Receivd of John Stable Anno Domini 1646. &c.; and the last page of the said Book hath this number 149. upon it, besides other things inscribd.
1. In page 97. 98. and 99. a note of the Church Stock in the year of our Lord God 1617.
Uxor Pattinson – xiijs iiijd. The whole township is set down.

2. In page the 9th.
I, Michael Wilkinson, Clerke, do hereby declare that I am hyred to serve the C[ure] at Temple-Sowerby Church until All Hallow Day next coming, & no longer, unless [I] can hereafter gain the consent & good lykeing of Sir Christopher Dalston, knight {N.B.} and the greater number of my parishioners within the town of Temple-Sowerby, in witness thereof I have hereunto sett my hand the 21th Day of December 1618.
Michael Wilkinson
Witnesses: John Lowson, William Gouling

3. In page 134. Anno 1621

The Accompt of Richard Stable and Robert Parker received by George Parker and his fellow	12d
Whereof laid out by us to maintaine the Church wadges	6d
And we receivd for Prisoner Money {N.B.}	2d overplus
Disbursd for washing the surplice &c.	[Blank]
we deliver to our successors Richard [Blank] and his fellow (&c.)	[Blank]

4. In page 135.
The accomt of Richard Fawell Church warden both receivd and laid forth in the year of Our Lord God 1622 as followeth

First. Receivd of 26 tenants 3d apiece	6s	6d
Item. Receivd of 7 cottagers 2d apiece		14d
John Dalton &c. paid nothing
Item. Received of Richard Stable and his fellow late Church wardens		5d
Item. Received of 38 houses every one a penny for bread and wine	3s	5d
of which summe he laid out 2d more then that came to	3s	5d

Anno Domini 1623. In page 137 and 138.
5. The accompt of William Teasdale Church warden as above.

First. Collected per me of 28 tenants 2d apeice for repairing the Church Leads comes to	4s	8d
Whereof disbursed to a plummer	3s	6d
More disbursd to Bellstrings		8d
More at the generall Chapter		4d

More of the Churchwardens spared of Sir Edwards wages 12d and delivered as before to the next Church wardens	12d

[657] This section contains a mixture of Roman and Arabic numerals. Here, for simplicity, Arabic numerals are used throughout.

[V.290]

In page 139.
6. Churchwardens Anno 1625.
William Teasdale junior, Robert Gowlin[g] senior
Receiv'd of John Pattison xx^{s}, which was given by Richard Stable deceased, to the use of the Church paid as above the 31th day of July 1625.
Receiv'd of John Lowson, the sum of xx^{s} Ould Church-stock.
Receiv'd of John Hall xxs of the Ould Church-stock, & xl^{s} of the new-stock.
Receiv'd of Annas Sowerby xx^{s} of the Ould stock .

In page 140. Anno Domini 1627.
7. John Hall and Edward [Blank} Church wardens.
Receivd by us at the hands of William Teasdale junior the [sum] of foure pound whereof xxs of the old stock after iij^{s} the pound and iij^{li} for ij^{s} the pound.
Delivered to Thomas Haron William Gowling pledge new Stock.
Item. To Edward Stable iij^{li} viz. of the Old Stock xx^{s}.
Item. xl^{s} of the new stock.
And the said Edward Stable doth lie in pawn for the same one Rood[658] of his [land] next unto George Parker.

8. In page 142.
The account of the Churchwardens John Pattyson and John Brown year of our Lord God 1628.
{N.B.} Gathered for the Preasts Wages [this] quarter.

John Pattison		6d
John Atkinson		20d
John Dalton		6d
Robert Dalton	2s	9d
John Lowson	2s	0d
John Lowes		6d
William Gale		3d
Rowland Lowes	2s	6d
Richard Lowes		3d
Edward Stable	2s	6d
George Parker		6d
William Newman		3d
Robert Parker		15d
Richard Stable house		6d
Richard Fawell		6d
William Stephenson		6d
[Blank] Teasdell		6d
[Blank] Blemar		12d
Thomas Haron		12d	The said Thomas 6 pence at Sent Ellennors Quarter[659]
Humfrey Gowling		6d
William Teasdall the elder	6d
William Teasdall junior		3d
Elizabeth Browne		3d
Robert Gowling senior		12d
William Gowling		6d
Michel Hodgson		21d
Elizabeth Sowerby		6d
[Blank] Teasdell		3d
Christofer Dalston		6d
[Blank] Hale		6d
[Blank] Pattyson senior		3d
[Blank] Browne		6d

[658] One rood = ¼ acre.
[659] The feast day of St Eleanor, aka St Helen, is 18 August.

[Blank] Grainger	3d
[Blank] Cole	}
Elizabeth Smith	} paid nothing
[Blank] Gowling	}

[V.291]

In page 141.
9. Received by the said Churchwardens 40s of William Stephenson of the Old Stock whereof delivered the same 40^{s} to John Lowson Anno 1629.

John Pattinson junior, John Atkinson Churchwardens.

Wee received at the last churchwardens hands	2s
Laid out by us in charges	2s 10d
{N.B.} Item. Spared of the churchwages	2s

In page 128.
Anno Domini 1639.
10. Church wardens John Hall, Edward Caile.
Buryills weddings and Christnings as they are in the parchment Register Booke.
The account of the said Churchwardens for their year.
Imprimis. Received &c.
Item. Received of Cycily Lowson of the old stock xx$^{s.}$ at Lammas 1639.
The same letten then to John Robinson xxs unto May-day then next after, paying to the next Churchwardens.
Item. Received at All Saints of Thomas Pattinson for Robert Parker of the new stock xls the which was letten at the same time to Robert Dalton xx^{s}.
Item. To Robert Hodgson and John Speight the other xx$^{s.}$
Item. Received for the Church stock this year [blank] Whereof we have paid to Sir Edward {N.B.} xxvi$^{s.}$, so there remaineth overplus, vi^{s} & vi. Whereof we [laid] out three shillings 2$^{d.}$ to make up for bread and wine & the rest being iij^{s} and iiij^{d} we do pay unto the next Church wardens.

11. in page 129 Anno Domini 1642.
Churchwardens John Atkinson and John Pattyson.
Laid out for bread and wine two several times, vis iiiij^{d}.
{N.B.} Item. Received more then Sir Edwards wages for 3 quarters 9^{d} in the quarter and for one quarter vi^{d}.

12. In page 112.
I received of Mr Lough no Tythe Hay Silver since Mr Walker came to Kirkbythore [signed] Thomas Lumley.

13. in page 108 1655.
{N.B.} A note of the Church stock old and new [let for] 3^{s} per pound and 2^{s} per pound together with the old marks.

	Old Stock	New stock	Old Mark	Yearly	Quarterly
	li	li	s. d.	s. d.	s. d.
Mr John Hall	2	4	13. 04	16. 0	4. 0
John Pattinson	0	0	13. 04	2. 0	0. 6
John Atkinson	0	0	13. 04	2. 0	0. 6
Margaret Dalton	1	3s 4d	13. 04	5. 4	1. 4
Christopher Lowson	0	0	13. 04	2. 0	0. 6
John Lowes	0	0	13. 04	2. 0	0. 6
Thomas Spooner	0	0	0 0	1. 0	0. 3
Rowland Lowes	1. 6s. 8d	0	13. 04	5. 8	1. 5

[V.292]

Memorandum that I never could get more of Rowland Lowes then 5^{s} a year [he] alleging that the 1^{li} he has is of the new stock.

Lancelot Lowes For which stock he has pledged his Acre on Moorlands which was formerly bought of Edward Stable.	0	1. 10s. 0d.	0	3s 0d	9d
Widow Lowes	0	0	0	1s 0d	3d
Richard Stable	0	1. 0s. 0d	13. 4	4s 0d	1s 0d
[Blank] Parker	0	15s 0d	13. 4	3s 6d	10½d
[Blank] Pattinson for houses	6s 8d	0	0	2s 6d	6d
[Blank] Stable	6s 8d	2. 2s 1d	13. 4	2s 0d	6d
Richard Fawcett	0	0	13. 4	2s 0d	6d
[Blank] Fawells houses	0	0	13. 4	2s od	6d
[Blank] Fawcett	0	10s 0d	0	1s 0d	3d

Memorandum that John Gowling gent. had one pound of the New Stock and lett William Fawcett have halfe of it.

William Teasdale	0	£1 0s 0d	13. 4	4s 0d	1s 0d
John Bleamire	0	£1 0s 0d	13. 4	4s 0d	1s 0d
John Ions House	0	4s 0d	13. 4	2s 0d	7d
John Gowling	0	10s 0d	13. 4	3s 0d	9d
Mr Christopher Lough	0	£2 0s 0d	13. 4	6s 0d	1s 6d
Robert Teasdale	0	0	0	1s 0d	3d
Fergus Thompson	0	10s 0d	0	2s 0d	6d
Thomas Fawcett Jun	10s 0d	0	0	2s 6d	7½d
Jennet Gowling	0	0	13. 4	2s 0d	6d
Robert Hodgson	13s 4d	£1 0s 0d	13. 4	6s 0d	1s 6d
John Speights house	0	0	13. 4	2s 0d	6d
George Haron	10s 0d	0	13. 4 & the house he is in	3s 6d	10d
Edward Cale	0	0	0	1s od	3d
Robert Pattinson	15s 0d	15s 0d	0	3s 9d	11d
Edward Mayson	0	0	13. 4	2s 0d	6d
John Walker	0	0	0	1s 0d	3d
John Gowling	0	0	0	1s od	3d

14. In pages 56 and 57

An exact account of the dues belonging to the Curate of Temple Sowerby

	Old Stock	New Stock	Old Mark	The Quarter
John Pattinson	0	0	6d	6d
John Atkinson	0	£1 0s 0d	6d	1s 6d
John Dalton	0	0	6d	6d
Christopher Lowson	0	0	6d	6d
John Lowis	0	0	6d	6d
Richard Lowis	0	0	6d	6d
Widow Ion	4s 0d	0	6d	6d
George Parker cum f.	0	15s 0d	6d	10½ d
Mrs Barnet	0	0	3d	3d
Alice Thompson	0	0	3d	3d
John Stable	6s 8d	£2 2s 1d	6d	8d

[V.293]

Thomas Fawell	0	7s 1d	6d	2s 5d
William Teasdale	13s 4d	£4 6s 8d	6d	2s 5d
Mr Gowling	0	0	6d	6d
James Haron	0	£1 0s 0d	6d	1s 0d
George Haron	10s 0d	£2 0s 0d	6d	1s.10d
Mr Lough	0	£2 0s 0d	3d	1s. 3d
Robert Teasdale	0	0	3d	3d
John Bleamire	0	£1 0s 0d	6d	1s. 0d
Thomas Lowson	0	0	6d	6d
Richard Lowson	0	0	6d	6d
Thomas Fawcet	£1 0s 0d	0	0	6d
Thomas Spooner	0	0	3d	3d
Henry Gowling	5s 0d	5s 0d	6d	9d
Robert Hodgson	0	0	6d	6d
William Hodgson	0	0	6d	6d
Mr Hall	£6 0s 0d	0	6d	4s. 6d
Edward Caile	0	0	3d	[Blank]
John Speight	0	0	3d	3d
John Walker	0	0	3d	3d
Jo. Gowling carpenter	0	13s 4d	6s 3d	7d
Robert Brockell, Curate

15. In page 119. N.B. May the 1t. 1657. Quarter Wages

[Column 1]		[Column 2]		[Column 3]
John Pattinson	6d	Widow Stable	6d	Jo. Gowling	3d
John Atkinson	6d	George Parker	6d	Mr Loughs house	6d
Vidua Dalton	8d ob	Item. Pro Jo. Gowling	6d	Item [Blank]	1s 0d
Christopher Lowes	3d	Item. Pro himself	4½d	Robert Teasdale	3d
Christopher Lowson behind in 1d	6d	Item. Pro Robert Pattinson	3d	Fargus Thompson	6d
John Lowes	6d	Item. Pro William Hodgson	3d	Thomas Fawcett	7½d
Thomas Fawell	2d	John Stable	1s 9d ob	James Gowling	6d
Thomas Spooner	3d	Richard Fawell	6d	Robert Hodgson	1s 6d
Rowland Lowes	1s 3d	Item. [Blank]	3d	A.M. paid	6d
Vidua Lowes	3d	William Teasdale	1s 6d	George Haron	10½d
Lancelot Lowes	9d	John Bleamire	1s 0d	Mr John Hall	3s 6d
		John Ion	6d and 1d	Robert Pattinson	11¼d
				Alice Thompson	3d
				Edward Caile	9d
				John Walker	3d
				Edward Mayson	6d
				John Gowling (behind in 9d)	3d
				James Haron

16. In pages 106. and 107. there appeareth another note of the said Church Stock taken the 16th of November Anno Domini 1657.
17. In page 118. N.B. May the 4th 1658.
Quarters wages mentioned with small alteracon of names and summes divided & crossed out
18. In page 117 May the 4th 1659.
The like names, with some small alteracon of names and summes divided & crossed out.
19. In page 116, May the 4th 1660.
The like names with some small alteracon of names and summes.
20. In page 115, May 4th 1661.
The like names with some small alteracons of names and summes.

[V.294]

21. In page 114. May 4th 1662. Quarter Wages. N.B.

[Column 1]		[Column 2]		[Column 3]
John Pattinson	6d	Richard Fawell	6d	Robert Hodgson	6d
John Atkinson	6d	Thomas Fawell	2d	Richard Lowson	6d
Christopher Lowson	6d	William Fawcet	6d	Sowerby House	6d
Vidua Dalton		Item. For himself	3d	Mr John Hall	3s 6d
John Lowes	6d	William Teasdale	3s 2d	John Speight	3d
Thomas Spooner	3d	John Blamire	1s 0d	Robert Pattinson of Woods	11¼d
Lancelot Lowes	9d	George Haron	10½d	Edward Caile	9d
Stables houses	6d	Item. John Ion	1d	John Walker	3d
George Parker	6d	John Gowling	3d	Browne houses	6d
Item. [Blank]	4½d	James Haron	3d	John Gowling	3d
Item. Pro Jo Gowling	6d	William Hodgson	3d	Item. For himself	4d
Robert Pattinson	3d	Mr Lough	1s 0d
[Blank] Gowling	3d	Fargus Thompson	6d
John Stable	1s 9½d	Thomas Fawcet	7½d
		Jannet Gowling	6d
					11s 4½d
				In all:	£1. 6s 4½d
				Robert Teasdale	3d

22. {N.B.} In page 38. 1662. Memorandum that Mr John Dalston of Acorn Banke and Mr William Walker Rector of Kirkbythore did grant and appoint a seat for stall in [Blank] of Temple Sowerby Church for the [blank] of Christopher Lowson, John Bleamire, Robert Hodgson, in lieu of another seat which Mr Dalston had of them.

23. In page 110. May the 4th 1662. Robert Hodgson paid in 1^{li} of the new Stock and 13s 4d of the old Stock, which was received by William Teasdale who is to pay for it accordingly. I say received of the Churchwardens John Pattinson and John Stable and delivered to the said William Teasdale.

24. {N.B.} In page 87. La[mmas] Quarter [16]64. The like names as formerly in ’62. with some small alteracon of names and summes.

25. {N.B.} In page 86. All Saints ’65. The like names with some small alterations of names and summes. {N.B.} Arrearages due to T. Barnet at Candlemas ’65.

	s.	d.
John Atkinson	4	0	received 2s 6d
Widow Dalton	1	0
John Dal[ton]	1	0
[Blank] Stable		6 ½
James Haron		6
William Teasdale	3	2
John Bleamire	6	0	received 5s 0d
George Haron	5	0
Thomas Fawcet	1	2 ½
William Hodgson	1	6
Mr Hall	12	6
Mr Lough	2	0
Richard Lowes		6
Robert Willison		6
Henry Gowling		6
John Walker		9
John Gow[ling] carpenter	1	9

For his son	1	6

26. {N.B.}in page 111. Arrearages due at Lammas '65. for Churchstock.

	s.	d .
John Atkinson	3	6
Widow Dalton		6
John Dalton		3
Richard Lowes		4
George Parker	1	10 ½
George Haron	1	3
Thomas Fawcett	1	7 ½
Jen: Gowling	1	0
Robert Hodgson		3
John Stable	5	3
Thomas Fawell	3	10
James Haron		3
William Teasdale		4
John Bleamire	4	0
William Hodgson		6
E. Caile		9
Jo: Speight	1	0
William Fawcet	2	6

27. In page 113.
Tithe Hay Silver as it was set down by the Jury.

	s.	d.
John Pattinson		2 ½
John Atkinson		2 ½
Daltons houses		2 ½
Christopher Lowson		2 ½
John Lowes	3	0
And Thomas Spooner
Richard Lowes	3	0
Stables house		2 ½
George Parker		4 ½
Robert Pattinson	1	0
John Stable		4 ½
Stephensons house	3	0
William Teasdale	1	0
John Gowling		4 ½
Mr Lough	2	0 ¼
Robert Teasdale	2	0 ¼
Fargus Thompson	1	0 ¼
Thomas Fawcet and Jen: Gowling	[Blank]
Robert Hodgson		2 ½
Thomas Teasdale		2 ½
Sowerby House	3	0
Mr Hall		4 ½
Mr Dalston of Sanwath {N.B.}	3	0
Acorn Bank Demane	5	0
Mr Hall for Moorfoot {N.B.}	1	6
John Blamire		2 ½
George Haron		2 ½

Parsons Close: 2s, which usually hath bin received with the Easter Reckonings of those that collect moneys for Moor Farm and Whinsilver.
Received of Edward Caaile 2^{s} for the Parsons Close Anno Domini 1665.

28. In page 104 and 105. There appeareth another note of the said Church Stock.

29. In page 149, being the last of the said Booke.
Churchwardens names rent out.[660]
First, received (&c.)
{N.B.} Item. Received more then Sir Edwards wages 3^{s} for three quarters and 9^{d} for one quarter [from] which we took 1^{s} 9^{d} for bread and wine and we spared 2 shillings.

30. In page 132.
A true count of John Browne and [Blank] Pattinson Churchwardens for the year of our Lord God 167[blank]
{N.B.} Imprimis. Collected of all that hath the Church Stock every quarter according to the rate and custome out of which we have paid the Curate all for one year &c. xl^{s}, which the parson did pay and we finde 3^{s} vii^{d} remaining; the next Churchwardens to be sett forward to the use of the Church and William Teasdale the younger, Thomas Walker, Thomas Atkinson and Andrew Stephenson pay nothing.

[V.296]

Item. Received of xxxviij houses, every one [blank] for bread and wine [Blank]
Whereof we disbursed ij^{s} x^{d} and iiij^{d} remaining [to] the next Churchwardens; and Thomas Walker and Andrew Stephenson paye nothing.
Item. For repairing the Church [received] of x – houses vi^{d} apeace which is xix^{s} & Thomas Walker is nothing. Out of th[is] summe we have despursed for the [Blank] viij$^{d.}$ for a Register vj^{d}, for lime the Church vj^{s} viij^{d}, for lime carriage xii^{d}, for slate viii^{d}, [blank] iiij^{d}, for hayre 2^{d}, for spe – strings xij^{d}. Which is xvij^{s} j^{d}, out of which remain ij^{s} v^{d}.

Item. Received of John Hall and John Teasdale being the last Churchwardens	4s 0d
Item. Received of Alexander Gowling of the Old Church Stock	16s 8d
{N.B.} Item. Received of Sir Christopher Dalston Knight for Christopher Phillips burial in the Church	3s 4d
And for Jane Pattinson daughter of [Blank] Pattinson the like, which is	6s 9d

{N.B.} The which we have delivered to John Dalton to bear wages for to the use of the Church.

[V.298-299]

[B.3.]

A true and perfect abstract out of an old Register Book of Temple Sowerby in the County of Westm'land

The first page if this book hath the number (1) upon it but part of the said page cannot be read, but towards the latter end thereof it hath these words:
"Received of John Stable Anno Domini 164[blank] and the last page of the said Book hath this number (149) upon it besides other things inscribed."

In page 135 and 136
a. The account of Richard Fawell, Church warden, both received and laid in the year of Our Lord 1622. as followeth.

Imprimis. Received of 26 Tenants 3d apiece	6s 6d
Item. Received of 7 cottagers 2d apiece	14d
Item. &c. John Dalton &c.	paid nothing laid by the said Church wardens as followeth:
Imprimis, laid forth for mason work	5s 0d
{N.B.} Item. At the Visitation at Appleby	10d
{N.B.} Item. At a General Chapter at Brougham	1d
Item. For a Court-entering for Alexander Gowlyng	2d

[660] The churchwardens' names were torn out.

In page 137 Anno Domini 1623.
b. The account of William Teasdale Church warden as above:
Imprimis, collected &c.
Thereof disbursed &c.
{N.B.} More at the General Chapter 4d

In page 138. 1624
c. The account of Humfrey Gowlyng and Thomas Haron, Church wardens collected by us &c
{N.B.} Item. Laid out at the Visitation (&c.)
Item. At the General Chapter

In page 128 Anno Domini 1639
d. Church wardens John Hall and Edward Caile
Burials, weddings and Christenings as they are in the parchment Register Book
The Account of the said Church wardens
Imprimis. Received (&c.)
Item. Disbursed (&c.)
and for delivering a note of our Register Book 2d

In page 129 Anno Domini 1642
e. Church wardens John Atkinson and John Pattinson
The Account of the said Church wardens for this year:
Item. Received (&c.)
Laid forth (&c.)
{N.B.} Item. Laid forth when we took our Oaths at Appleby 8d

In page 149, the last of the book. f. Church wardens names rent out
Imprimis received (&c.)
Item. Laid forth at Appleby when we took our oaths 8d
Item. At one Visitation 9d
Item. At the General Chapter 4d

This is a true copy, witness our hands the 15th day of August Anno Domini 1678.
John Pattinson.
Jonathan Greene.

The words written above as copy agree in every respect with the same books shown me by the Revd Thomas Machell, Rector of Kirkby Thore in the Diocese of Carlisle, and were transcribed at his bidding on his authority as above. Collated per me, Henry Pattinson (signed) Notary Public in Carlisle as deputed in the kingdom.

[V.454][661]

[B.4.]

Rectory of Kirkby Thore[662]

The Declaration of all Issues Profits and Commodities coming and arising of the Parsonage there, in Tithes, Oblations,[663] wool, lamb, hay. Grain and all other spiritual duties for one whole year ending at [661] A collection of pages on tithes.

[662] Part of a sequence on MS.V.445-59, in which the 1573 extract was bound in front of that of 1572. In this edition the spelling and punctuation have been modernised.
[663] Oblation: the presentation of money, goods, property, etc., to the Church for use in God's service, especially for the maintenance of ministers, services, religious communities, etc., or for the relief of the poor; (also) a donation or bequest of property for such a purpose; a customary offering made on a particular occasion, especially at the Eucharist.

the Feast of St Mark the Evangelist in the year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth 1572.

In rents and farms of the glebe lands paid by the tenants there	3	9	4
In the price of 48 stones of tithe wool at 4s 10d the stone	11	4	0
In the price of 111 tithe lambs at 1s 6d the piece	9	16	6
In the price of 33 tithe lambs at Howgill at 1s 4d the piece	2	4	0
In the price of one Tithe calf rated at 2s 0d	0	2	0
In the price of 88 hens at 3d the piece	1	2	0
In the value of the hay of the glebe land	2	4	0
In the value of the tithe hay	0	13	4
In the value of the tithe hay letter	1	3	0
NB In the value of the churchyard at Sowerby	0	1	0
In the value of the oblations at Kirkby Thore this year	1	1	8½
In the value of the broken tithes there this year	2	3	7
In the value of marriages, churchings and burials there	0	3	7½
In the value of Oblations at Temple Sowerby	0	14	8½
In the value of broken tithes there	1	3	3
In the value of marriages, churchings and burials there	0	1	0½
In the value of oblations at Milburn this year	0	16	0½
In the Value of marriages, burials, mortuaries and churchings there	0	8	3
In the value of broken tithes there this year	2	11	0½
In the value of one pension coming forth of the Parsonage of Newbiggin due yearly to be paid at the Parsonage	0	3	0
In the value of 240 eggs at 12 the penny	0	1	11½
In the value of 26 tithe geese at 6d the piece	0	13	0
In the value of 4 tithe pigs at 6d the piece	0	2	0
NB In the value of tithe hemp and line	0	3	4

[455]

NB in the value of the tithe of Temple Sowerby mill for multure of all the grain there yearly	0	3	4
NB in the value of the tithe multure[664] of the Corn Mill of Milburn this year	0	1	0

Glebe Lands

In the price of the wheat of the glebe lands	Nil
In the price of the rye 5 quarters and 6 bushels, at 2s 6d the bushel	5	15	0
In the price of 7 bushels of peas at 2s 0d the bushel	0	14	0
In the price of barley, 9 quarters and 4 bushels at 2s 6d the bushel sold	9	10	0
In the price of oats, 12 quarters and 6 bushels at 1s 4d the bushel	6	16	0
In the price of rye straw, 72 threaves at 3d the threave[665]	0	18	0
In the price of barley straw 220 threaves at 1d the threave	0	18	4
In the price of oat straw, 240 threaves at 2d the threave	2	0	0
In the price of peas-straw, 18 threaves at 2d the threave	0	3	0

Kirkby Thore

In the price of wheat, 6 bushels at 3s 8d the bushel	1	2	0
In the price of rye this year, 6 quarters at 3s 0d the bushel	7	4	0
In the price of peas, 4 bushels at 2s 0d the bushel	0	8	0
In the price of barley, 14 quarters and 1 bushel at 2s 8d the bushel	15	1	4
In the price of oats, 14 quarters 3 bushels at 1s 4d the bushel	7	13	4
In the price of wheat straw 12 threaves, 1d the threave	0	1	0
In the price of rye straw 55 threaves at 3d the threave	0	13	9
In the price of bigg straw, 213 threaves at 1d the threave	1	1	1
In the price of oat straw, 190 threaves at 2d the threave	1	15	0

Temple Sowerby

[664] Multure, see the English Glossary.

[665] A threave or thrave: two shocks or stooks of corn (or pulse), generally containing twelve sheaves each, but varying in different localities; hence used as a measure of straw, fodder, etc.. OED.

In the price of wheat there	nothing
In the price of rye, 2 quarters at 2s 8d the bushel	2	2	8
In the price of peas, 11 pecks at 2s 0d the bushel	0	5	6
In the price of barley, 7 quarters and 7 bushels, at 2s 6d the bushel	7	17	6
In the price of oats there, 6 quarters, 2 bushels at 1s 4d the bushel	3	6	8
				[V.456]
In the price of peas, all the straw there this year, nothing, because the tenants there had it for leading the tithe-corn, threshing winnowing and reparation of the Tithe Barn	Nil
Milburn
In wheat there, nothing	Nil
In the price of rye, 4 quarters 2 bushels at 2s 8d the bushel	4	10	8
In the price of peas, nothing	0	0	0
In the price of bigg, 7 quarters 3 bushels at 2s 6d the bushel	7	7	6
In the price of oats, 9 quarters and 1 bushel, at 1s 4d the bushel	4	17	4
In the price of straw there, besides leading, mowing, threshing, winnowing and reparations of the Tithe Barn, is letter for 6s 8d	0	6	8
In the price of the tithe corn of Howgill	1	6	8
The whole sum of the aforesaid year	136	5	0½
Whereof paid for serving the cure at Kirkby Thore £6 18s 4d [and] to Sir John Spedding, curate at Milburn £4 13s 4d	11	11	8
NB Also paid for bread and wine for serving the whole parish for receiving cross in the year	1	0	0
NB Also paid at Appleby the 14 of August to Sir Robert Pearson Dean of Westmorland for Visitation money 19s and 8d and for senaidge {synod} 4s 0d and for the Curate 4d	1	4	0
NB Also paid to Roger Warcop for rent called nowtgeld	0	1	4
Also paid in necessary expenses in collection of tithe wool and lamb within the parish this year	0	2	2
Also in the fee or wages of the proctor there this year	10	0	0
Also paid to Edward Richardson and his son, for helping to get the tithe hay	0	5	0
Also paid to workmen in harvest for helping to mow, lead threshing, winnowing and dighting within the barns of Kirkby Thore this year	3	4	4
				[V.457]
Also paid for the reparation of the Parsonage with slate lime, wood and other necessaries, as locks, keys, theaking the barns and others	2	6	8
Also paid for scouring and laying of the hedges about the orchard and the Long Garth	0	8	4
Also for shearing the corn on the glebeland this year	2	9	2
Also paid for the first part of the subsidy for the Parson as appeareth by Acquittance thereof	3	8	3½
Also paid to the Parson as appeareth by acquittance	10	0	0
Also paid for the Tenths of the same Parsonage	3	15	9½
Also delivered unto Hugh Warcopp for following the suit at York upon one letter from Ranold Hartlay	1	10	0
Also paid for a servant for his board wages after 1s 8d a week for one whole year	4	6	8
Also paid unto him for his wages	0	16	0
Also paid unto him a livery price	0	10	0
Also paid to one for driving the plough	1	5	0
Also, for filling the coupe, harrowing and scaling dung	0	4	0
Also hay eaten with the oxen that ploughed the glebe land and the horses that harrowed	2	4	0
NB Also rye straw delivered to Appleby to Raynold Hartlay

for theaking at the castle, 44 threaves, at 3d the threave	0	11	0
Also, rye straw theaked at Kirkby Thore this year, 20 threaves at 3d the threave		5	0
Also spent with the oxen, oat straw 362 threaves at 2d the threave	3	10	0
Corn sown at Kirkby Thore of the glebe land this year
rye 16 bushels 2 pecks at 2s 6d a bushel	2	1	3
Also, in haver sown 4 quarters and a half at 1s 4d the bushel	2	8	0
Also, in peas 6 pecks at 2s 0d the bushel	0	3	0
Also, in bigg, 2 quarters at 2s 6d the bushel	2	0	0
Total of payments	63	10	8¼
And thus, is owing	72	14	4¼

[V.458]

Acquittances referred to in the foresaid Accounts, and tacked to the foot of the Roll are as followeth:

Received the 18. day of October £3. 8s. 3½d. 1571. of Mr Humphrey Musgrave farmer of the Parsonage of Kirkby Thore for the first part of the subsidy of the said parsonage £3 8s 3½d. due to the Queens Majesty the first day of October last before the date hereof. In witness of the same I have subscribed my name the day and year abovesaid. And received for half year senage 2s od. per me Robert Pearson Dean of Westmorland.

On the 17th January in the 14th year of the reign of Elizabeth [1572] Queen of England, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith &c.
Received the day and year above-written of Humphrey Musgrave Esq. by the hands of Reginald Hartlay in part of payment of a reckoning for the Parsonage and Rectory of Kirkby Thore, the sum of ten pounds. In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my seal and subscribed my name the day and year first above written.
per me Robert Warcoppe.[666]
Sealed and delivered in the presence of Mr William Musgrave William Middleton Henry Lomm.

Kirkby Thore Rect[ory] 22. January in the 14th year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth of England &c. [1572].
Received three pounds fifteen shillings ninepence halfpenny farthing £3 15s 9 ¾d for the tenths of the said Rectory due to the Queens Majesty at Christmas last past &c.
Received per me Jo: Barness.

[V.459]

Acquittances Referred to in the foresaid Accounts and pinned to the foot of the Roll as followeth:
7th October in the 14th year of the Reign of Elizabeth Queen of England &c. [1571-1572].
Received £3. 8s. 3½d. for the second part of the subsidy due unto the Queens Majesty the first day of this October now past past for the Rectory of Kirkby Thore &c. £3. 8s. 3½d.
Received per me Jo: Barness.

At Rose [Castle] 12th March 1572.
Received of Reynold Parkin servant to Mr Register of Carlisle for the tenths of the Parsonage of Kirkby Thore within the Diocese of Carlisle due at Christmas last past the sum of three pounds fifteen shillings ninepence halfpenny farthing. £3. 15s. ¾d.
Received per me Jo: Barness.

The Acquittances are pinned to the Roll.
7th October in the 14th year of the reign of Elizabeth Queen of England &c.
Received £3. 8s. 3 ½ d. for the second part of the subsidy due unto the Queens Majesty the first day of this October now last past for the Rectory of Kirkby Thore &c. £3. 8s. 3 ½ d.
Received per me Jo: Barness.

[666] Here, there is a seal.

[V.445]

[B.5.}

Rectory of Kirkby Thore

The Declaration of all Issues, Profits and Commodities coming and rising off the Parsonage of Kirkby Thore in Rents, Tithes, Oblations, Wool, Lamb, Hay, Corn, and Grain, an all other Spiritual Duties for one whole year ending at the Feast of St Mark the Evangelist in the fifteenth year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lady Queen Elizabeth [25 April 1573.]

N.B. Imprimis. In rents and farms of the glebe lands by the tenants there	3. 9. 4
Item. In the price of 32 stones of tithe wool at 5s 0d the stone	8. 0. 0
N.B. Item. In the price of 64 tithe skins	0. 18. 0
Item. In the price of 57 lambs at 1s 4d the piece	3. 16. 0
Item. In the price of 23 tithe lambs at Howgill at 1s 4d the piece	1. 10. 7
Note the price. Item. In the price of one tithe calf	0. 2. 0
Note, not Dem; note price: Item. In the price of 88 hens at 3d the piece	1. 2. 0
Item. In the value of the hay coming and growing of the glebe land	2. 4. 0
N.B. Item. In the value of the tithe hay letter to divers persons	1. 3. 0
N.B. Item. In the value of the tithe hay in my own hands	0. 13. 4
N.B. Item. In the value of hay in Temple Sowerby Churchyard	0. 1. 0
Item. In the value of oblations of Kirkby Thore	1. 2. 2½
Item. In the value of broken tithes there	1. 18. 1
Item. In the value of weddings, churchings and burials there	0. 3. 4½
Item. In the value of oblations of Temple Sowerby	0. 13. 6
Item. In the value of broken tithes there	1. 0. 0½
Item. In the value of weddings, churchings and burials there	0. 1. 0
Item. In the value of oblations at Milburn	0. 16. 8
Mill. Item. In the value of broken tithes there, with 1s 0d for the Mill	2. 12.10
Item. In the value of churchings, weddings and burials there	0. 4. 1½
N.B. Item. In the value of one pension coming forth of the parish of Newbiggin and is yearly paid to Kirkby Thore	0. 3. 0.
Item. In the value of 200 tithe eggs, at 12 eggs the penny	0. 1. 8
Item. In the value of 24 geese at 5d the piece	0. 10.0
Item. In the value of hemp and line within the parish	0. 3. 4
Item. In the value of 3 tithe pigs at 6d the piece	0. 1. 6
Mill N.B. Item. In the value of the tithe of Temple Sowerby Corn Mill	0. 3. 4
The Sum £32. 14s. 0d

[V.446]

Glebe Land

Imprimis. In the price of tithe tithe wheat this year	Nil
Item. In the value of rye, 5 quarters 2 ½ bushels, sold at 3s 2d the bushel	6. 13. 0
Item. In the value of peas 6 bushels at 2s 0d the bushel	0. 12. 0
Item. In the value of barley, 13 quarters and 7 bushels at 2s 8d the bushel	14 16. 0
viii B[ushels] Item. In the value of oats, 13 quarters 4 bushels, at 1s 6d the bushel	8. 2. 0
Item. In the value of 50 threave of rye straw, at 3d the threave	0. 12. 6
Item. In the price of barley straw, 200 threave at 1d the threave	1. 0. 0
Item. In the price of haver straw, 152 threaves at 2d the threave	1. 5. 4
Item. In the price of peas straw, 12 threaves at 2d the threave	0. 2. 0
The Sum £33. 2s. 10d

Kirkby Thore

Imprimis. In the value of wheat, 2 bushels at 3s 8d the bushel	0. 11. 0
Item. In the value of rye, 4 quarter and 3 bushels at 3s 2d the bushel	5. 10.10
Item. In the value of peas 5 bushels at 2s 0d the bushel	0. 10. 0
Item. In the value of barley at 2s 8d the bushel	13. 6. 8
Item. In the value of oats, 16 quarters 4 ½ bushels, at 1s 4d the bushel	9. 18.10
Item. In the value of wheat straw, 10 threaves at 1d the threave	0. 0.10
Item. In the value of rye straw, 63 threaves at 2d the threave	0. 10. 6
Item. In the value of barley straw, 220 threaves, at id the threave	0. 18. 4
Item. In the value of oat straw, 192 threaves at 1 ½ d the threave	1. 4. 0

{Note price of length and not in short}
Item. In the price of peas straw, 10 threaves at 1d the threave 0. 0.10

The Sum £32. 11. 9d[667]

Temple Sowerby

Imprimis. In the value of wheat there this year	Nil
Item. In the value of rye, 3 bushels a4 3s 4d the bushel	0. 10. 0
Item. In the value of peas, 6 pecks at 2s 0d the bushel	0. 3. 0
Item. In the value of barley, 6 quarters 1 bushel at 2s 8d the bushel	6. 10. 8
Item. In the value of oats, 6 quarters 4 bushels at 1s 6d the bushel	3. 18. 0
N.B. Item. In the value and price of all the straw, nothing; for the tenants had the same [in return] for threshing and leading the corn	Nil

The Sum £11. 1s. 8d

[V.447]

Milburn

Imprimis. In the value of wheat this year	Nil
Item. In the value of rye, 6 ½ bushels at 3s 4d the bushel	1. 1. 8
Item. In the value of peas this year	Nil
Item. In the value and price of barley, 8 quarters 2 bushels at 2s 8d the bushel	8. 16. 0
Item. In the price of oats, 8 quarters at 1s 6d the bushel	4. 16. 0
Item. In the price of all the straw there, besides leading, mowing, threshing and winnowing	0. 6. 8

The Sum £15. 0s. 4d.

Howgill

Imprimis. In the value of the tithe corn at Howgill	1. 6. 8.

The Sum £1. 6s. 8d.

Total Sum £125. 17s. 3d.

Whereof paid for serving of the cure at Kirkby Thore	6.13. 4
N.B. Item. Paid for serving of the cure at Milburn	4.13. 4
N.B. Item. Paid for bread and wine for serving the whole parish 3 times in the year	1. 2. 0
Item. Paid to Roger Warcopp for nowt-geld	0. 1. 4
Item. Paid for necessary expenses in collecting the tithes within the parish this year	0. 2. 4
Item. Paid for the fee of the Proctor, and wages	10. 0. 0
{Cross} Item. Paid for bread and drink that the parish had in the Cross Week[668]	0. 1. 8
Item. Paid for helping to get the tithe hay	0. 5. 0
Item. Paid to workmen in harvest for helping to lead corn, for mowing, threshing and dighting	3. 13. 0
Item. Paid for the reparations of the parsonage about the house	1. 6. 8
Item. Paid for making hedge about the fields	0. 3. 0
Item. Paid for weeding of corn of the glebe land	2. 8. 6
Item. Paid for the second part of the subsidy as appeareth by the acquittance	3. 8. 3½
Item. Paid for the tenth of the same Parsonage as appeareth by the acquittance	3.15. 9½
Item. Paid for the senage of the same Parsonage	0. 4. 0

[V.448]

Item. Paid for Proctor expenses	0. 3. 1
Item. Paid for a servant that was kept at Kirkby Thore for meat, drink and wage	5.12. 8
Item. Paid for one for driving the plough that ploughed the glebe land	1. 8. 0
Item. Paid for driving the plough in rye seed-time	0. 4. 2
Item. Paid for helping to fill dung in the cowpe	0. 2. 0
Item. Paid for scaling dung and harrowing	0. 2. 0
Item. Paid for hay spent with oxen and horse that occupied the glebe land	0. 4. 0
Item. In rye straw that theaked the house at Kirkby Thore, 40 threaves at 3d the threave	0.10. 0
{?} Item. Spent with the oxen in oat straw 280 threaves at 2d the threave	2.13. 4

[667] Machell notes here, MS., 'N. price at length & not in short.'

[668] The Feast Day of the exaltation of the Holy Cross takes place on the 14 September (27 September in the Julian Calendar). Anglicans call it Holy Cross Day. It is sometimes known as Holy Rood Day. See the Common Worship Calendar (2000).

Item. Spent in bigg straw 156 threaves at 1d the threave	0.14. 8
Item. Corn sown at Kirkby Thore upon the glebe this year in wheat 10 pecks at 3s 8d the bushel	0.11. 8
Item. Rye sown, 15 bushels at 3s 4d the bushel	2.10. 0
Item. Peas sown, 2 bushels at 2s 0d the bushel	0. 4. 0
Item. Oats sown, 4 ½ quarters at 1s 6d the bushel	2.14. 0
Item. Bigg sown, 17 bushels at 2s 8d the bushel	2. 5. 4
Summa Totalis £52. 1s.6d
Soe remaining to be paid £73.15s.9d.

The Roll is Indorsed on the Back, Anno Domini 1573. Kirkbythore

[V.449]

[C. Correspondence 2.]

[Letter to [Thomas] Carleton concerning the foregoing Rolls][669]

July 2nd 1698

Mr Carleton

I thank you for the Rolls you showed me at Appleby of the issues and profits of Kirkby Thore Rectory in the 14. and 15. of Queen Elizabeth A.D. 1572. 1573. and of the disbursements which were then paid out of the same; by which it appears:

1. That the old rents and farms of the Glebe Lands (which I take to be fineable Rents) were per Annum, 3. 9. 4.

But now they are only iii^{li} & viij^{s}, i.e.

In Kirkby Thore	1. 4. 1
In Milburn Chapelry (i.e. at Kirkhouse)	1. 10. 7
In Sowerby Chapelry	0. 13. 4

In all: £3. 8s. 0d.

{1s. 4d old Rent lost}

Soe that one Shilling and fourpence is somewhere concealed of the old Rent, which I do not know \ how / to discover: for I had not soe much as one scrap of paper of my predecessor (Mr William Walker) which belong'd to the Rectory; whose easinesse has create me a great deale of trouble, and whose kindness (I feare) to old Mr Dalston (who gave him a Parsonage) has given occasion to some incroachments upon the Church*.

{Mortuariss lost in Sowerby}[670] {Sowerby Chancell wholly invaded}

For (not to mention the losse of mortuariss in Temple Sowerby which sprang from hence, for all the parish has without doubt been of one piece) I find they disposed of seats in the Chancel about 30 years since (without consent of Patron or Bishop) which young Mr Dalston does now insist on: And \ which / might I suppose be justifiable during the life of the said Incumbent (for the Rector pro tempore[671] may dispose), but I think no farther. However, they have advanced soe farre upon this concession, that I have not soe much as a place for my servant or Parish Clerke within the said Chancell; nor indeed soe much room as to kneel at the Altar when I officiate: and yet they expect that I should repaire the said Chancell for them at my own proper cost. Concerning which I alwayes made them this modest proposal (which my Lord of Thanet approved of, and so did the Chancelor of York before him) That if they would quit their pretensions to it, soe that none might sit there but by the consent of me and my [669] This letter was written 4½ months before Machell's death on 11 November 1698. 'Mr Carleton' was frequently mentioned by Machell in relation to Appleby Castle (see above, III.233) Thomas Carleton (1660-1731), of an Appleby family, was steward at Appleby Castle for Lord Thanet from c.1690. The Red House (No. 30), Boroughgate, Appleby, was built for him in 1717: https://britishlistedbuildings.co.uk/101146473-the-red-house-appleby-in-westmorland. For more on this letter and the reasons for it, see Barker, 'The Reverend Thomas Machell's complaint', 279-81.

[670] Mortuary: a customary gift, formerly claimed by the incumbent of a parish from the estate of a deceased parishioner; (also) this type of gift. OED.

[671] 'For the time being.'

successors, I would repaire it; or if they would repaire it I would quit mine; because they pretend the Chapple is too little for them.
My Lord was pleased to order Mr Sheriffe to Acquaint my cousin Mr Christopher Dalston with this proposal; who declared himselfe willing to Release his pretensions to the said Chancell in the hearing of my brother Hugh Machell, and \ of / Mr Sheriff, who doubtlesse acquainted My Lord with his Answer. In order to which I drew an Instrument and shewd it to you.[672]

[V.450]

But he dyed somewhat suddainly before we could have an opportunity of sealing the same. But now the young Gentleman will yield to nothing, soe that I feare the Chapelle must fall; for tho I offered him to give leave that his pew (which is soe thrust out of his Quire that it possesses one-third of the Chancell) should stand soe far in it as the Altar service and uniformity could possibly allow of; provided he would repaire soe much of it: he scornes the proposall, and will not reccede one Inch from his Right as he pleases to call it, tho the altar thereby is shut out of its place.[673]

{5s 0d finable rent attempted to be turned into freehold in Sowerby}
Nor will he rest here and be content with taking from me that part of the Chapple which he calls mine (Sc. the Chancell), but goes about to disinherit the Church of its ancient indowments by converting 5s 0d of the foresaid ancient finable rent into a free-rent, for under that notion he tenders it to me and bids me prove that his ancestors ever paid any fine to Mr Walker or any other, which is impossible for me to doe: but this I can prove, that it is parcell of the foresaid Marke Rent and that other parts of it have been fined to me since I became Rector of Kirkbythore, which I hope is enough. However, I have Assessed my fines and demanded 18 years Rent in arreare, and given him notice, as you may see by the papers inclosed: But I have no witnesses that Applegarth is part of the Tenement (tho it be mentioned in the Admittance) but only by heare say, from father to son: quere therefore if it be safe to mention the same. And if it be not; whether I should not Admitt him (de Novo) to White Stones only of the said yearly rent (which the whole Jury has agreed to) {Query?} and thereupon give him fresh notice.

{Multure Tithe of Sowerby Mill lost}
Secondly. By the said Rolls it appears that 3s 4d was formerly paid to the Rectory of Kirkbythore, as the value of the Tythe of Temple Sowerby Mill for moultor of all the Grain there yearly. This is now lost; for what was paid in Mr Walkers time I cannot tell anything or nothing; and not only That; but all other dues (excepting only Tythe Corne and some wooll) have been detained from me this 18 year. And now the Executors of Mr Dalston are not willing to pay it. And the Heire (you will see by the papers inclosed) will not pay me one Groate without compulsion; and I am not able to contest it with him for he threatens to spend 500^{li} before he consent to pay me one farthing except the 5^{s} as a free Rent as is aforesaid, and that without paying any arrears.

[V.451]

{Salary of Sowerby Chapel lately imposed upon the Rector}
3. Lastly it appears by the Disbursements in the said Rolls that there was not \ then / one farthing payd out of the Rectory of Kirkbythore towards the maintenance of the Chaplain of Sowerby.
Soe that what is charged upon it since, is by Incroachment, and condiscension of the former Incumbents, which one would thinke should not bind his successors: which note should be Added (as a confirmation) to what I formerly writt to My Lord upon this subject. And soe much for Sowerby

{Newbiggin Pension} {Of 3s Acquittances lost}

[672] For more on Machell's problems with 'old Mr Dalston', see Barker, 'The Reverend Thomas Machell's complaint', 279-81.
[673] This was not a rare occurrence. As late as 1816, a similar situation was noted at Walton in Cumberland, where the patron had 'shortened the Chancel one half … there is no way to the communion table but by his seat and all who take the sacrament must kneel in it.' See Jane Platt (ed.), The Diocese of Carlisle 1814-1855: Chancellor Walter Fletcher's 'Diocesan Book' with additional material from Bishop Percy's parish notebooks (Woodbridge, 2015), 100.

There is alsoe Charged in the said Rolls amongst the profits of Kirkbythore Rectory, 'In the Value of one Pension coming forth of the Parish of Newbiggin as it is yearly paid to Kirkby Thore, iij^{s},' which I have demanded but never received, having noe living witnesse to prove the payment before my time. Soe this I suppose will alsoe be lost (amongst many other dues I could mention) unlesse My Lord interpose his authority by sending either you, or some other, to enquire into them and make demands of them; which will Terrifie more than anything I can doe; for as long as they thinke that I am out of his Lordships favour, they will not much care what wrong they do \ to / me; and thus the Parsonage must suffer at Last.
I would gladly have My Lords advice; and know his pleasure what he would have me doe in these matters; and how farre he will please to Interpose his Ius patronatûs.[674] For if he is willing to let them passe, I shall doe soe too, who am
Your very affectionate Servant
Thomas Machell

[P.S.] I doe intend to agree with Sir Richard: as soon as ever he comes in the Countrey, having lost and expended as much in defending the Rights of my Church as would have purchased the Inheritance \ forever / of the Tythes I contend for. But say nothing of it.

[V.452A]

[The receipt for the loan of the Rolls above]
14 January 1697.
Then had borrowed and received by me Mr William Burton, Chaplain to Mr Thomas Machell \ Rector / of Kirkbythure, out of the Evidence Room at Appleby Castle two paper Rolls being accounts of the Rectory of Kirkbythure aforesaid for the 14 and 15 years of Queen Elizabeth: Which Rolls I doe hereby covenant & promise to return Safe & Intire to Mr Carleton to & for the use of the Right honorable Thomas Earl of Thanet within ten Days next ensueing, Wittnesse my Hand the Day and Year abovesaid.
William Burton
Test.[675] Richard Monkhouse

[674] 'Right as Patron.'
[675] Witness.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 15]

[Parish of Lowther]

[III.40]

[Initial Notes and Queries]

1. How many villages, towns or hamlets, single houses, and how from the church, E. W. N. S.
2. In each area.[1]

i. How many families.
[ii.] How many free, Customary, fine cert[ain] or Arbitrary.[2]

Things remarkable in art:
1. As gentlemens houses, church, chaples, antiquities ~~&c.~~
2. In nature: as herbs, springs, mines.
3. Who Lord or Lords of the manner.

Bounder: 1. Wilkinson; John Crags of Parkeside.[3]

[III.34A]

[River Lowther]
See the cource of the river from Shap.

[I.596]

{Lowther Church & Lowther Hall [were] visited by Mr Dugdall. You may meet with all the Armes and what else is remarkeable in his Visit[ation] of Westm'land 1664, in the Heralds College, London;[4] which may save me a Labour of drawing them, for if any man have a minde to print a booke out of these Notes, the Gentlemen of that office,[5] as they have bin extraordinarie Civil to me, will not to be unkinde to him. & I doe Conjure him to present them with a Booke for their Library in my behalfe, tho unknowne by name.

{Hackthorp also belongs to the Lowthers, where it is said an spirit walked not many years since, which ~~somtimes~~ appeared in ~~the shape~~ diverse shapes, of a Colt, an Ass a Buck &c. {He began to pirchase 5 year agoe – & got al but Newtons in 3 years space}.[6] Inf. J. Wib[ergh] Jan. 27 1686. Memorandum. The Strange Robery.

———————

[III.37][7]

Lowther Parish Part 1.

It is a Rectory, rated in the First Fruits Office at £5 6s 2½d,[8] the tenths of which is 2:10: 8^{d} $3q^{a}$,[9] and payeth \ yearly to / the bishop for ~~yearly~~ procurations & synodals, 0:4:0*.
The patrone is Sir John Lowther of Lowther.

---

[1] MS: 'In each ~~instans many Lords~~ \ area.' /
[2] A Fine was an amount paid for admission to a lease but distinguished from any rent to be paid under it; a Fine Certain was a fixed sum. ODNB.
[3] These were Machell's bounder informants.
[4] See Joseph Foster (ed.), Pedigrees Recorded at the Heralds' Visitations of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmorland made by Richard St George, Norroy, King of Arms in 1615 and by William Dugdale, Norroy, King of Arms in 1666 (Carlisle and Kendal, 1891), 84-85. Dugdale recorded the pedigrees in 1664 and 1665.
[5] The Heralds' Office.
[6] Presumably, Machell is referring to information about Sir John Lowther, given to him by J. Wybergh.
[7] This page has been added to at different times, using at least four different shades of ink.
[8] The 'Valor Ecclesiasticus', 1535, gives £25 7s 2½d, see John F. Curwen, 'Parishes (East Ward) St Michael, Lowther', The Later Records Relating to North Westmorland or the Barony of Appleby, CWAAS Record Series 8 (Kendal, 1932), 325-34.
[9] £2 10s 8¾d.

{Bounder}
It is bounded on the E. with Whinfel Forest in the parish of Browham; on the S.W., Morland; on the west with Askam divided with the river Lowther; on the north, with Clifton.

{Division into Constablewicks}
It is divided into 2 Constablewicks: Sc. Lowther, Hackthorp & Whale for the one; & Melkinthorp for the other.

{Lordships}
And conteineth in it {2 Lordships}: 1. Lowther; 2. Hackthorp†.

{Site}‡
There is a place calld Castle steeds, a round fortification which may be supposed to have bin cast up by Loather, sometimes King of the Scots; & to have imparted his name to the town which was build hard by it;[10] which, after the Conquest, according to the custom of those dayes, gave name to the family which is now calld Lother, for they were ancient writt de Lowther, their name.[11] This village stood twixt the hill & church but now is removed, and better built, to the top of the hill.[12]

[Machell's Notes: III.37 & III.41B]
*{R. Threlkeld. Pension 6s 8d to the Dean and Chapter.}[13]
†{q. of W. Atkinson.}[14]
‡{Site?} They talke [of] a place on the N.W. side of the Hall a little above the Bridge called Castle Steeds at the end of the avenue which runns from the Rectors house. {& there is rud stone at the steps by the new parsonage.}[15]
[III.41B]. Castlesteed. Whether Lowthair (King of Scotland?) might not come here in time of war as erect this fort in defence of himself & his fol[lowers?[16]

[III.45]

[Ancient Site]
A round fortification above the rock at Lowther on the left hand of the new road, 22 [paces] diam. single rampire, calld Castle Stead. The same area with that at Yanewath, but have only one single ditch & an inner rampire.[17]

[III.37]

{Church}
Lowther Church visited per Sir William Dugdal, that take the dim[ensions].[18]
Bells &c. 1 bell; 3 pillers on either side the south octagon; the N. circular with carved capitals […][19] extending to the Cupilo. It is in lenth [blank], from the W. end to the Cupilo or Cross Ile, 14; broad 14 passes. The Cross Ile long 6, broad 16 [passes]; the quire long 8, broad 5 [passes]. The altar, 3 steps, with Rale & Ballaster, wainscoted with cedar Rale high, & a cedar screen or tympanum behind it, the [10] Lowther was named from the river Lowther (Lauder, Luder, Lawther etc.) see Smith, Place-Names 2, 182. See also, N&BI, 428: 'The name is British, and signifies clear water.'

[11] The rest of this sentence has perished. The spelling of 'Lowther'/ 'Lother', is exactly as Machell wrote it.
[12] In the MS here there is a 1cm square sketch of a structure, with points of the compass added. The village was removed c.1682 by Sir John Lowther, see Hyde & Pevsner, 508.
[13] Richard Threlkeld matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, in 1664; BA 1668; rector of Lowther, 1676-95. CCED.
[14] William Atkinson was one of Machell's informants; see numerous references throughout this chapter..
[15] Rud/rudd: a soft red stone used in the north for marking sheep or colouring steps, floors etc. Joseph Wright, The English Dialect Dictionary (London, 1898-1905), 5, 175.
[16] There was no king of the Scots, nor of the Picts, named Lothair/Lowthair. One Lothair I (795-855) was Holy Roman emperor (840-855). Lothair II (835-869) was the king of Lotharingia (Lorraine) from 855. See https://www.britannica.com/biography/Lothar-I.
[17] All the text on this page is contained within a single scrap measuring 4½cm x 11½cm, pasted onto the page.
[18] Dugdale's visit is dated 24 March 1664. See Foster (ed.), Pedigrees, 84.
[19] A line of struck-through illegible text, here, amounts to 6cm.

Table Ewe inlaid. (A Large flaggin with the Lowthers armes, mantle &c. Cross & 2 chalices given by Sir John & Lady.) {All in silver & gilt.}
Ministers. Lowther, Teasdal, Smyth, & Richard Threlkeld present.[20]

[Lowther Family History]

[I.594]

{ad Lowther} out of a Booke of Knights penes D. Dan. Fleming.}[21]
Sir Geffrey de Lowther of Lowther, Knight anno 5^0 Henry III [1220-21]. He entered as som thinke (after he was Knighted) into Holy-Orders, Magister being placed before his name: MS A^0 70.}[22]
Sir Hugh de Lowther of Lowther aforesaid Knight anno [blank]. He was son of the said Sir Jeffrey de Lowther, Attorney General anno 20. Edward 1. [1291-92] & summon'd by the Kings writt to be at the Parliament holden at Northampton Anno [blank] Edward 2. {Bl. verbo waif Pb 132. Dn 58.}
Sir Hugh &c. Eldest son of the said Hugh &c. {MS A.70; MS C. 59; Do 40; MS C. 59. MS J 43; MS P 37, 38. Gms A. 142, 143, 149; C. &c. fol 47.}

Figure 1.15.1. Lowther Arms 1687 (Or, 6 annulets Sable). III.41B.

{ad Cumber[land]}
Sir William de Osmolderlow (or Osmotherley) of [Blank] in Cumberland, Knight, anno 5. Henry 6. [1426-27]. He was descended from the Osmundeleri Lanc. whose ancestours being a younger son or Brother of Sir John le Fleming, Grandson of Sir Michael and liveing at Osmotherlaw in Lancashire, assumed that sirname, as usually younger Brothers then did from the place of their habit[ation]: {MS B. 45, 46, 77, 78; MS C. 3, 37, 38, 57, 62.}

{ad Cumberland et Appelby Castle}
Sir Hugh Morvil of Brough on the Sands in Cumberland Knight anno [blank] Henry 2. He was one of the 4 Knights who killd Thomas Beckett – Archbishop of Canterbury.[23] He left Daughters his heires.

———————

[20] Clergy at Lowther from 1610 were Christopher Lowther (1610-57), William Smith (1664-76) and Richard Threlkeld (see above). CCED.
[21] Fleming Papers. For Sir Daniel Fleming's Research Notes, see CAC(C), D /Lons/L/12/2/1: Vol. A. Pedigree of Families connected with Lowther.
[22] Liber A. f.70 = Book A., folio 70 of the Fleming research notes. See D /Lons/L/12/2/1: the Lowther pedigree, 1220-1 to 1697.
[23] Thomas Becket was murdered on 29 December 1170.

[I.596]

{Familia de Lowther}
Their Armes are Or 6 Anuletts Sable; for confirmation or proofe of which beareing I have seen the impression of a Seale of the Lowthers with Annulets (apud Cartam[24] penes Thomas Sandford de Askham, Armiger),[25] 35[0] Edward III [1361-62].

[I.725C]

? Gleed Sir John of Lowther dub[ito][26]

Sir Christopher = Frances Lancaster

Sir John now L. = Jane, daughter of Sir Thomas Lee whose mother being a widow was maryed to old Sir John Lowther of Lowther

Frances. Maryed to Richard Lamplugh of Ribton in Cumberland

[Sir John Lowther 1655-1700]
Sir John Lowther of Lowther s[econd] Baronet, was borne at Hackthorp Hall A.D [blank] Educated at Queens College in Oxford, whence he went to Travail in France, where he became an Accomplished Gentleman. [27]
When King James the 2, being a Papist, came to the Crown & was driveing furiousely to bring over the Kingdom to the Romish persuation by discourageing the Church of England – for which he set up an High Court of Justice C. L.[28] – and incourageing not only the papists but all sortes of phanatticks[29] with places of Trust; calling in Charters & granting new ones by which the \ firm / Churchmen wer all laid aside & new ones at pleasure put in their steds; Garisons put into the Houses of P[arliament]; the Peanall Laws struck at with open face; & writts of sum[mons]. After all things were thus prepared for a new Parliament, to confirme all things as the King would have them, the Prince of Orange came into England with a smal Army of about 12 thousand, yet found so many friends that he gained the Crown without a Battle; of which number was Sir John Lowther, who boldly seised a ship load of Armes,[30] which were sent by King James for Ireland – beying yet in the Throne: – & was very Active, after King James was slipd into France, in Rase the Cou[n]try by a Posse Com[itatus],[31] for suppressing the Irish Conflagration (as was pretended),[32] \ of which I was so fermly persuaded that I

[I.598]

[24] MS: 'C~~h~~artam.'
[25] 'In a deed in the custody of Thomas Sandford of Askham Esq., 1361-1362.'
[26] Machell questions the soubriquet, 'gleed'. He thinks it doubtful. The meaning of 'gleed' is to have a cast in one or both eyes; to be squint-eyed. OED. Sir John was also referred to as 'glaucus', see III.34A. For a further (negative) meaning of 'gleed', as applied to Sir John, see Part 1, Ch.11, Crosby Ravensworth, III.176.
[27] Sir John Lowther, 2nd baronet (1642-1706),
[28] From c.1570 the Crown used the English Court of High Commission to check heresy and enforce official forms of worship. It was abolished in 1641, but in 1686 James instituted 'The Commissioners in/for Causes Ecclesiastical', seen as a revival of the old Court of High Commission. It was discontinued in 1688, and abolished in the Bill of Rights, see Frank L. Cross, Elizabeth A. Livingstone (eds), The Oxford Dictionary of the Christian Church (3rd edn, Oxford, 2005), 772.
[29] Dissenters.
[30] On 9 December 1688, Sir John Lowther heard that a ship moored at Workington (base of the Roman Catholic, Henry Curwen) contained a cargo of 500 muskets with bayonets and ammunition, taken from Carlisle Castle to be sent to James II's forces in Ireland. Lowther and his supporter, Andrew Hudleston, took a number of their tenants to Workington, overpowered the ship's crew, and impounded the arms. Through this action, Lowther allied himself with those who were desirous of gaining office in a new Protestant government. See Michael A. Mullett, Carlisle in Revolution and Restoration, c.1648-1688, CWAAS Tract Series 30 (Kendal, 2022), 148.
[31] Raising the county as a Posse Comitatus: the legal power of sheriffs and other officials to summon armed citizens to keep the peace: see David B. Kopel, 'The Posse Comitatus and the Office of Sheriff: armed citizens summoned to the aid of law enforcement', Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology, 104 (4), 1973, 761.
[32] Here, Machell shows his commitment to Sir John Lowther and the Protestant cause amid anti-Catholic rumour relating to the Irish. On 26 November 1688, Sir John Lowther proposed calling out the militia to seize Carlisle for the Prince of Orange. Instead, his political opponents, Sir George Fletcher and Sir Christopher Musgrave, went my selfe; / not to aid the P[rince] nor of the K[ing] – but to supp. those R[ebels] by stat[ute] who were burneing the K[ing] as the publecens said};[33] for which purpose he marched & headed the Countrey as far as Kirkby Lonsdale in Westm'land, a manner which he had lately purchased. Whereupon he was made Viscount Lonsdal in May 96, after he had bin som considerable time Vice-Chamberlain of his Majestyes Household & ~~one of~~ a Privy-Counsell, which latter had bin conferd by King William immediately after the Revolution.[34]

[Development of Lowther village]

Lowther was a little village ~~of that name~~, which gave name to the Parish & the family of the Lowthers. It consisted of an Hall, the Church & 17 Houses \ Tenements & Cotts. / \ Parsonage house & scoole […][35] / All which were purchas'd off \ or ~~exchanged~~ \ by the / now Sir John Lowther, from the Respective Tennants \ at honest rates /& pulld down & demolished to inlarge his \ deere parke / demanes.' & ~~because they were in the front of his house~~ [to] better the Prospect of his house, about the year 1682*. He built a Bridge there in 1684† at ~~cost~~ the Countreys cost.[36]

The Commons were divided twixt him & Bird of Browham & The Lordship of Clifton;[37] the 2 former of which livd like Lords of themselves‡, i.e. without any Tenants about them.
He puld down a great part of his H[ouse]. After he had pulld down The Town, he likewise pulld down the parsonage house, which was a very mean one, & built a better, (not) in its steed but near the River; & commuted the Tythes &c. Lastly, he altered al the old house, which he had left standing, much for the better in 1685. & lastly pulld down all or

[Machell's Notes: I.596]
*Query of Mr ~~Atkinson~~ \ Threlkeld / & Mr William Atkinson; as also the number of the houses {?}
†{?}
‡{wrong.}

[I.597]

most of the Church & rebuilt it agane in a better forme, 1686, with a Cupilo over the steple, which standeth in the midst of the church. [He] raled in & wainscoted the Altier place, & inriched the same with Noble communion plate.[38] recruited 3,000 men to guard the area against King James's demobilised Irish soldiers, during a national 'Irish panic' sweeping England in mid-December, 1688. See Mullett, Carlisle in Revolution and Restoration, 147. When he was obstructed by local rivals, Lowther appealed to Lord Danby to help take the Carlisle garrison. His request was denied, with the consequence that the town surrendered to Musgrave but Danby reportedly assured Lowther that he would be appointed governor of Carlisle. This promise was kept early in 1689; Lowther was also named as vice-chamberlain and appointed lord lieutenant of Cumberland and Westmorland. See https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1690-1715/member/lowther-sir-john-1655-1700.

_____

[33] This refers to the burning of King James's effigy, as the press [publecens/publicists] reported. Machell remarked that he felt he should step in, not as an Orange man, but to maintain law and order. 'P' refers to the Prince of Orange rather than 'Parliament', as parliament was not then sitting, having been dissolved by proclamation in 1687. See Robert Beddard, A Kingdom without a King: The Journal of the Provisional Government in the Revolution of 1688 (Oxford, 1988), 197; see also London Gazette. 30 June 1687, 1.

[34] A shorter version of Lowther's career at this point appears on MS.I.597: 'Upon the Revolution, he (haveing boldly seised a ship load of Armes going for Ireland in the declineing of King James 2) was made Vice Chamberlaine to King William & Queen Mary, and a Privy Councellour. & in Anno Domini 1696 – the latter end of March – when the Parliament riss, of which he was a notable member, he was created Lord Viscount Lonsdale.' Note the discrepancy in the two passages between the month (March or May) in which Lowther was made Viscount Lonsdale, see J.V. Beckett,' Lowther, John, first Viscount Lonsdale (1655-1700)'. ODNB.

[35] Repetition of the number of tenants, deleted in this edition.

[36] At the cost of the county. It was a public bridge.

[37] Enclosure by private agreement of the landowners.

[38] See the Consecration Deed (1666) in the Bishops' Register: CAC(C), DRC1/4, 407.

[III.41A][39]

Figure 1.15.2. West end of Lowther Church, sketched on the reverse of a letter. III.41A.

[III.41]

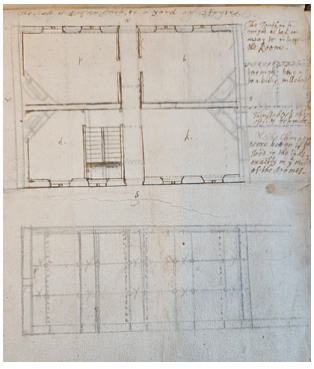

Figure 1.15.3. Lowther Church. III.41.

[III. 34]

The Platforme of Lowther Parsonage, May 17 [16]90.

The scale is ¼ of an inch to a yard or 3 foote.

[39] This page was previously used for rough pencilled notes, which are just visible, though virtually illegible. They appear to describe the church, as in the notes on III.37. The reverse forms part of a letter, partially transcribed on III.41B. The subject concerned appears to have been given 30 shillings a month… and that's the most we can do for him'. It goes on to mention that, 'the misery… of the Irish … is very great'.

[h.] The part[ition] in h. might be taken away to inlarge the roome.
(2.) Here might be a buttery.	Here [might be] a milke house.
Then [there might be] stables & other offices behind.
Note. The chimneys were better if they stood in the ends exactly in the mid[dle] of the Roomes.

Figure 1.15.4. 'Platforme of Lowther Parsonage'. III.34.

[III.37]

[The Town of Lowther]
The town of Lowther, which stood betwixt the church and the Hall, conteined formerly, xvii family [as follows]
Begin about the Hall on the west side of it, about 200 yrds \ above. /
1. Richard Wilkinson; \ 1. Anenst him,[40] Christopher Ritson.
2. John Wilk[inson] of Dale. Anest the Hal behind the Crofts James Wilk[inson] of Penfold.
3. John Workman {near the Hall; John Wilk behind it.} 3. Richard Stephenson below the out court.
4. Lancaster.
5. Chappelhowe.
6. Mary Ritson, a cot.
7. Robert Lowther.
8. Hugh Newton \ yet standing. /
9. (200 yards o[f]f) the Rectory.

The other side.
Over against Hew Newtons,
2. Margaret Ritson; 2. John ~~Tompson~~ \ Hutchinson / against Rob. Lowthers.
3. Rob. Thomson against Chappelhows.
4. Francis Harison: a cot. over against Chappelhows.

Then a wall to the orchard.
Now only 2:
Wid[ow] Wilkinsons: now sold to Sir John, and Workmans (not down), now sold to him – & Hew Newtons: unsold. & a new parsonedge house.
{?} There is a row of new houses from the school to the manufacture?

A manifacture, shoomaker & lace maker.
A public stonebrids to Askam. A private stone brids to Yanewath per Sir John, 1694.
At Lowther, a Parke on the south side, replete with deer.
Gravel in the field twixt Church & Hall.
Lowther Moore. T[enants] 6. All arbitrary.

[Machell's Notes: III.37]
Memorandum: Lowther Church & Hall were visited by Sir William Dugdall; ergo an account of the Monuments or Arms, at least, may be had in his Visit[ation] of Westmorland in the Heralds Office.
{Living: Mr Atkinson.} {Understanding men. Mr William Atkinson.}[41]

[40] Anenst, as in, 'Anent': in line with; alongside, beside; even or level with.' OED.
[41] Understanding men: men of intellect; intelligence (OED), therefore, useful as Machell's informants. William Atkinson (died 1721) was perpetual vicar of Morland from 1680/1. He had been schoolmaster at Dufton

{By Lowther out the west runs [the river] Lowther bout a bow shot.}
? \ Sir / Richard Lowther, Warden of the Marches. {So of the west.}
{Descent of the manner: 20. Ed.1. [1291-1292] One Hugh de Lowther Sequitur pro dom[ino] Rege. Blunt Nomo Lexicon sub verb. waifs.}[42]

[I.598]

House[s] Demolished & the Lands purchased or exchangd per Sir John Lowther
{infomt Jo. Wiber. 27 Jan. 1686/7}

On the right hand.[43]
1. Rob. Tomson 4li
2. Fran. Harrison 8s
3. John Hutchinson 5li
4. Will. Rutson 1li or a marke

On the left hand from the Hall.
1. Rich. Stephenson a cot.
2. [Blank]
3. [Blank]
4. Christ Rutson 1li per Annum
5. Rob. Lowther 12li per Annum
6. Hugh Newton would not 10li
7. The parsonage house Removd.

Item: beyond the Hall – southwards – twixt the Hall & gardine as you goe for Kendal.

On the right hand.
1. Rich. Wilkinson per Annum 8li

On the left hand.
1. John Wilkinson per Annum 8li
2. Jo. Warkeman farm[er] to Christopher Rutson 3li
3. Jo. Wilkinson senior about 8li
4. Christoph Rutson 8
5. [Blank]
6. ~~Jo. Crag of said Park foote~~ there![44] between 1664 and 1665 (CCED); he gave Machell advice on the Dufton parish boundary in 1686: see Part 1, Ch.12, Dufton, III.160.

[42] Machell was referring to Thomas Blount's, Nomo-Lexikon, A Law-dictionary and Glossary: Interpreting Such Difficult and Obscure Words and Terms, as are Found Either in Our Common Or Statute, Ancient Or Modern, Laws. With References to the Several Statutes, Records, Registers, Charters, Ancient Deeds, Manuscripts, and Law-books, Wherein the Words and Terms are Used (1670). Under 'waif' Blount writes as follows: 'Waifs, Things lost and Estrays must, by the Lord of the Franchise where they are found, be caused to be cried and published in Markets and Churches near about, else the year and day does not run to the prejudice of him that lost the M. Briton. cap. 17. Plac. coram Joh. de Berewel & Sociis suis Justic. Itin. apud Salop. in Octab [8th/7th day after the feast of] Sancti Michaelis. 20 Ed. 1. Rot. 29. in Dorso … Et Hugo de Lowther qui sequitur pro Domino Rege dicit quod Wayf est quoddam grossum de Corona, ita Coronae Domini Regis annexum, quod nullus eo gaudere possit, nisi inde habeat speciale War|rantum] a Domino Rege vel antecessoribus suis concessum.' [Translated as] 'And Hugh Lowther, arguing on behalf of the Lord King, says that a waif is something included in Crown possession, belonging to the current monarch in such a way that nobody can have enjoyment of it unless he has a royal warrant specially granted by the Lord King or his ancestors.' See also, 'waif' in the English Glossary.

[43] The village would have been laid out in this way before demolition.

[44] Perhaps the deletion was unnecessary, as John Crag was: 'there'.

[III.37]

[Lowther School]
{A scholl at Lowther by Richard Lowther; 10li per annum; free.}[45]

[III.45]

[School Inscription]
Hanc scholam erexerunt Johanes Lowther miles Barronettus Richardus Lowther armiger et Johanes Teasdale ecclesiæ rector anno salutis 1640 regis Caroli 16.[46]

[III.37]

{Hall and other Gentlemens Houses}*

The Hall
The Hall stands a little S.E. from the church \ on an hill /.
The Parsonage S. west in a bottom. \ The Parsonage stand at the S.E. corner of the church yard.[47] /

[Machell's Notes: III.37]
*Hall? The Hall visited per Dugdall; yet take the scenography & situation.

[III.34A]

It is seated on the side of an hill {a bow-shot south of the village}, having a pleasant prospect to Whinfel and a good part of the country. The windows double tra[nsome]s; 2 storyes compleat, beside the garrets. Over the court doer are placed these armes, which belong to the Lowthers, the now owners thereof.

Figure 1.15.5. Lowther Arms. III.34A.

It is reported to have com'd to them in the Rebel[lion]-time, the 1[t] of that [family] being Sir John Lowther, sirnamed Glaucus*. Here was the present Sir John Lowther borne: one of His Majestyes – K.W.3[48] – most honourable Privy Council, & Governor of Carleol.

[Machell's Notes: III.34A]
*But of this qu.? And also, whose it was before.[49]

[45] A Free School.
[46] 'This school was erected by Sir John Lowther, Knight and Baronet, Richard Lowther Esq. and John Teasdale Rector of the Church, in the year of our Salvation 1640, and of the 16th year of the reign of King Charles.' John Teasdale was rector of Lowther, 1613-56. See Curwen, Later Records, 325-34; see also, N&B1, 439.
[47] Machell appears to be referring to the old parsonage here.
[48] King William III. William and Mary assumed the throne in 1689.
[49] 'Glaucus': glaucoma, or glaucosis, a fault in the eye when the Crystalline Humour is chang'd into a grey or sky-colour [Glaucus is Greek for grey-green]; also, blindness from glaucoma. OED. See also 'gleed', III.725c, above.

[III.42, 43]

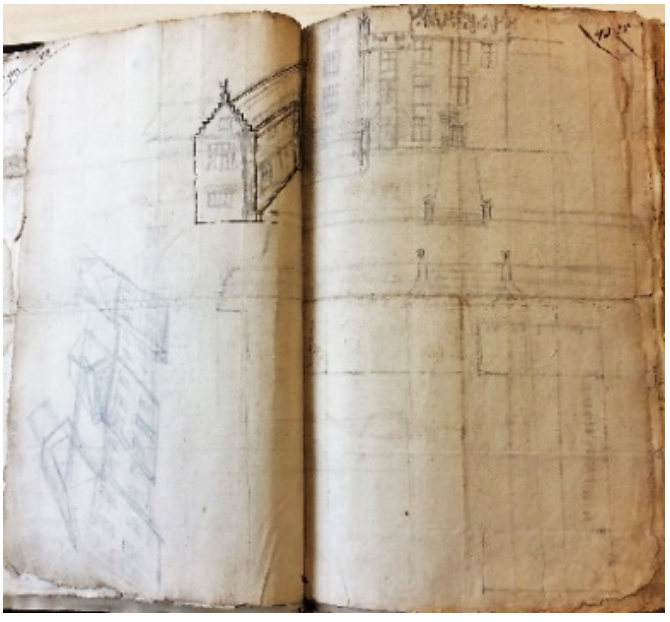

Figure 1.15.6. Lowther Hall. III.42-43.

[III.45]

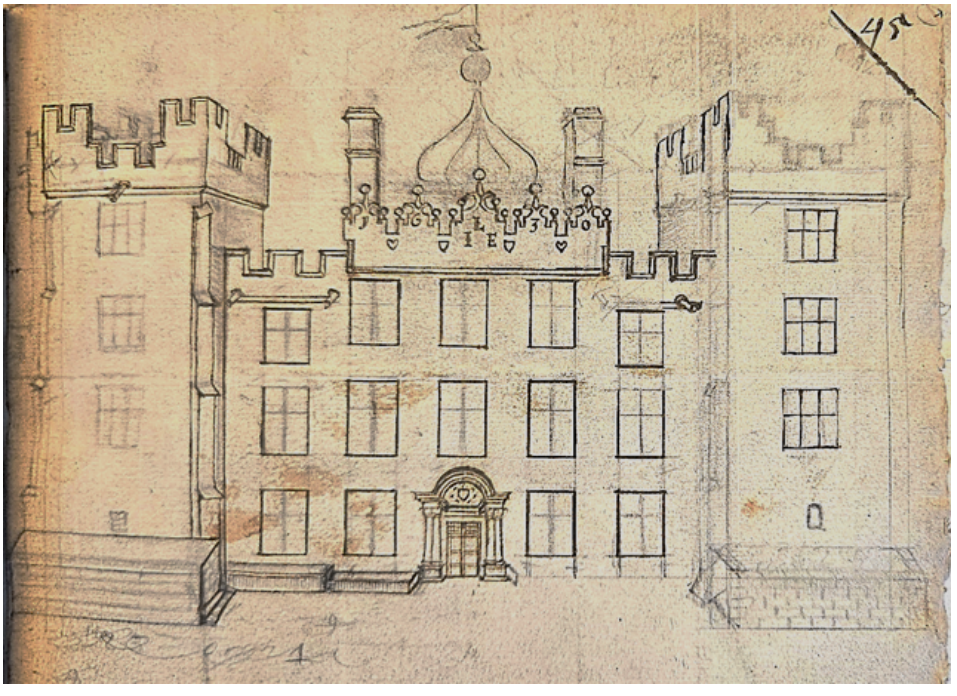

Figure 1.15.7. Lowther Hall. III.45.

[III.47]

Gallery – 8 broad without.
Stable ends 8 outsid & turne[50] 6.
End \ front / broad outside 20.

[III.48]

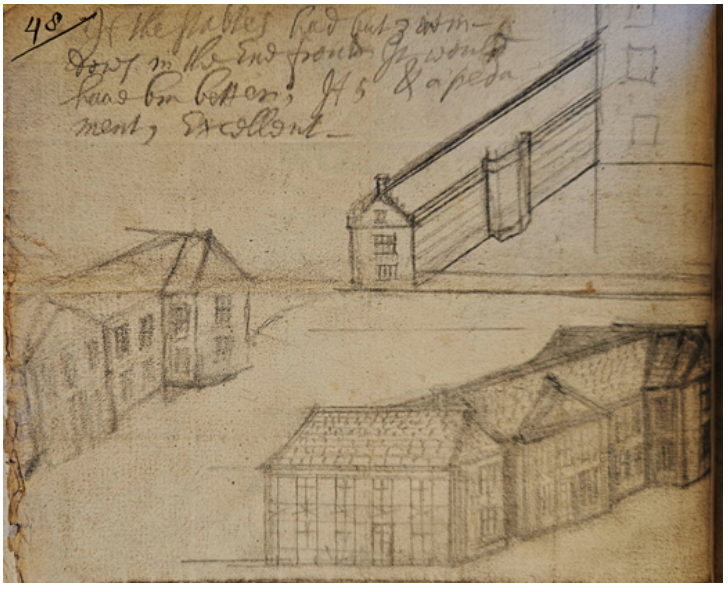

Figure 1.15.8. At Lowther Hall. III.48.

If the stables had but three windows in the end front, it would have bin better; if 5 & a pedament, excellent –

[III.49]

[Details relating to the sketches above]
Walkes 8 yards broad
The outer court on the outside: twice 37 broad & to the stable end, 19; the stable end, 20.
The front of the stables, 1ˢᵗ projecture 9 \ the returne 6 / to the midle of the stable & court 15 &c.
The stables wide on the inside, in all 7 passes; of which the walke 2 & ½, stall 3½, manger with boxes and racks, 1 pass.[51]
The Gallery on the outside in breadth, 8; in [blank] length, of which in the court.
The front of the dwelling house: The Tower, 11; thence to the midle of the hall door, 9. &c. As much more on the other side.

[III.51][52]

[Sketch Notes]
Lowther parish west-wards.
Lowther Parish.
Qu: for a draught of the new house.

[50] Unclear word.
[51] This could equally well read, '2 pass'.
[52] After the heading, 'on Lowther', the page is empty, apart from a pasted scrap-page, the reverse of which demonstrates that its contents were written in another hand on part of a letter dated 1689.

[III.35]

Lowther Parish Part 2.

[Perambulation]

A quo[53]	medium[54]	ad quem[55]
Askham Bridge twixt Askham & Lowther	From the new parsonage house over against Ascom Hall, directly northwards down the River Lowther	till you com at Clifton fits dike near Clifton Wells
Thence S.E.	up the outside of Buckholm dike	to Skelholm dike
Thence N.E.	down the said dike	to TranefatNooke
Thence S.E. & E.	along a gill	till you com at an house cal'd Noonhow Nëun how / along ~~the said dike~~ Trainfat dike to Hackthorp Field
Thence N.	along Hackthorp dike	to Waterfall Brigg
Thence N.	down Hackthorp-beck	till you com at Menkinthorp Hall
Thence N.	along the hedge by the south side of the short wood	to an house called Howcarld
Thence N.E.	by the outside of Melkinthorp Field Dike	till you com at Sandwath
Thence S.	by Melkinthorp Field dike	to Cliburne beck
Thence S.W.	up the said beck to Menkinthorp Hall and so on	to Waterfal Bridge near to Hackthorp Hall?
Thence S.E.	up the said beck	to Thrimby Poole
Thence S.W.	from the head of the said pool on the outside of Lowther Old Park	till you come at Whale more Head
Thence W.	by Whale Field dikes	to Whalebeck Head
Thence westward	down Whale Beck	to the river Lowther
Thence no[rth]wards	down the said river by Jonee Crags house	to where wee began

June 14 1692: This is a true bounder of Lowther parish: John Crag.[56]

[Machell's Notes: III.35]

Cliburne Beck springs at Sleddale Foote; thence on the south side of Shap; thence twixt Little [Strick]land & Thrimby; thence on the east side of Hackthorp ½ q; thence N.W. of Great Strickland ½; thence twixt

[53] Whence.
[54] Route.
[55] Whither.
[56] The signature is in a different hand from the rest of the sentence; it is presumably that of John Crag, the man who was 'there', on I.598 (above), Machell's bounder informant (see III.40).

Menkinthorpe and Great Strickland hall; thence turning W. & S. side of Cliburne; thence at Cliburne Mill, into Livennet.
{Q. Where the becks spring from &c.}
{Bridges: Clib. Brig, St[one]; Faw Brig, St[one; Hackthorp [Brig], w[ood.]}
Hackthorp Hall. Stricklands? Won at cards or dice.[57]
Whale – a m[anor]. Hugo de Whaile.
Ex inform. Johannis Cragg.

[III.39]

{Hackthorp}
S.E. [of the church] a mile.13 or 14 [families]. The Hall at the S. end. 1 freehold: Rich[ard] Willan. Valu[e] [blank]]. The rest arbitrary to Sir John Lowther. A parke at the S. end, desparked. The now Sir John Lowther borne there; \ bred at Queens College in Oxon; / Lord Lieutenant of the Countyes of Westmorland & Cumberland, being custos rotulorum[58] in the former and Vice-Chamberlain of [blank][59] & a Privy Councellour.

[III.34A]

In Hackthorp, 3 Bowshots S. wards from the Hall, is the appearance of an old Towne, & they call the grounds, Ald-Gards. Gleed[60] Sir John got it in Rebellion times. Over the court gate in a plane shield, Lowther Arms.

[I.598]

[Whale and Whalemoor]
[Whale.] {A little S.W. ab Ecclesia 1 mile. families, 9 or 10; Whale is in the Lordship of Lowther, a Little Hamlet of about 10 houses, all customary Tenants. 6 Tenements, 4 Cots.
Whale more. 5. All custom[ary] {to Sir John Lowther}. Item: Whale more.[61] 5 houses, of which 4 Tenements, 1 Cot.

[III.39]

An horse race used to be kept on Whale More, a runne 4 miles. Begun & left of[f] per Sir John Lowther.

[I.598]

Lowther Dikes
5 Tenements & 2 Cotts.

[III.39]

{Melkinthorp}
A little more easterly, 2 miles [from the church]. Families, 15 or 16. Freehold 1. underv[alue] Simon Pattison. The rest arbitrary to Sir John. Strickland Beck S. of it.

[III.34A]

Melkinthorpe Hall
In vide Melkinthorpe hall, as I remember thus.

[57] In c.1361-62, Sir Thomas de Stirkland held the hall under the barons of Kendal. It was bought by the Lowther family in 1535. The house noted by Machell was built in the early years of James I: see Michael Waistell Taylor, The Old Manorial Halls of Westmorland and Cumberland, CWAAS Extra Series 8 (Kendal, 1892), 95, 97. There is no mention here, or in N&BI (441-42), of its having been won by gambling.
[58] 'Keeper of the Rolls': the principal Justice of the Peace of a county, who has nominal custody of the records of the commission of the peace. The function is usually fulfilled by the Lord Lieutenant.
[59] He was vice-chamberlain of the king's household.
[60] Another reference to 'gleed', see I.725C, above; see also 'glaucus': III.34A. For a further (negative) meaning of the word 'gleed', as applied to Sir John Lowther, see Part 1, Ch.11, Crosby Ravensworth, III.176.
[61] Whalemoor.

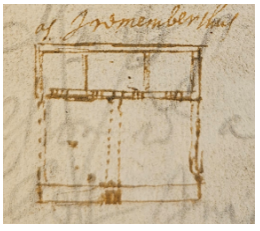

Figure 1.15.9. Sketch plan of Melkinthorpe Hall. III.34A.

[III.37]

{Curiosityes in Art or Nature}

{Blew slate from Mosedale in Shap; red from Pen Fell.}
{Marble quarryes near the river twixt Lowther Hall & Askam pulld down. Freestone whiteish red in the banke above it.}
{All the Parish limestone.}
{A fish pond S[outh] end of the parke, 1 mile, replen[ished] with pikes, troutes & redy ducks.}

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 16]

[Parish of Long Marton]

[Machell's Initial Notes]

[I.602][1]

Merton: from a mere or pond at the north end of the Town. {Or rather Martin, a Sancto Martino nisi ei ob nominem Eccles[iae] after[wards] Dedicatus Honor manerio orato.}[2]

[I.606]

To Marton church belongs Longmarton, Brampton, Knock.

[I.607]

The Parish of Long Marton containes in it 3 Lordships: Sc. the Lordship of Longmarton, the Lordship of Brampton & the Lordship of Knock. And \ besides these / one Gentlemans house lately built called Brampton hall.

[IV.36]

Ad Merton Parke[3]

19th of Edward II. [1325-1326.][4]

Marton it seems being a manner did then belong to John de Veteripont or his heir, for we suppose dead before the Inquisition was taken. Concerneing this they say that certain Berciaria of 4 score feet in bigness[5] were alienated by the Prior, and the Parke destroyed by dogs & nets & want of inclosure. It seems this place has bin plentifull of sheep & replenishd til then with deer. That the little Vivary or storepond is destroyd but there is taken from thence as much as can be taken by laying a long net without use at sea 30 or 40 fa[thoms] long & the Great Vivary is much impoverishd of great fish. It seems that there were 2 fishponds here; maybe the Tarn & the parsons[6] pond, except there be som in the Parke. There is a place called Docka tarn in the Parke behind Hollin Hill & another at Croft Foot.

[I.603]

[Notes on Tumuli]

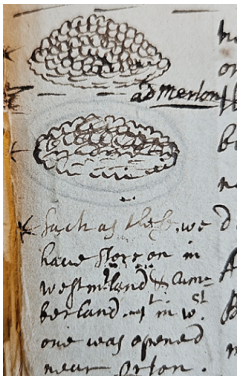

Figure 1.16.1. Margin detail: images of tumuli. I.603.

[1] 'Or rather Martin, from St Martin, unless, because of the name of the church, it was an honour conferred upon it afterwards, with the consent of the manor.'
[2] The church is dedicated to St Margaret and St James, N&BI, 359.
[3] This heading has been transferred from MS.I.603.
[4] The text relates to comments on Machell's research in pipe rolls, begun on the previous page.
[5] Bercaria, berciaria: sheep folds. See, for example, Richard Britnell (ed.), Durham Priory Manorial Accounts, 1277-1310 (Woodbridge, 2015), 293.
[6] MS. 'persons.'

{*Such as these we have store in Westmorland & Cumberland. 1ᵗ in Westmorland, one was opened near Orton, & in Marton Parke are 2 trenched about. There are allso some near Lowther Bridge. And in Cumberland, very many in Lazonby fields.}

{S. H. Blunt, p.36}[7]
The Philippick fields must needs be the Campaigne[8] betweene Thermopilæ and Philippolis, being about 40 or 50 miles long; for according to tradition of diverse there inhabiting, and all Concordance of storyes, it was built from that City by Philip & thence had its denomination. They are famous for the Roman Civill wars, there decided in two Battle; The 1ᵗ between Cæsar & Pompey and the other between Augustus and Marke Antony, against Brutus and Cassius: The plane, but that it is a Valley, much resembles O[u]r Downes of Marlborough*, where the Saxons, as tis thought had a great Battle; for just in that manner there yett remained the heaps where the slane were buryed, and good part of the trenches: The two Battles were fought 16 or 18 mls asunder, as appeares by the sepulchres and the trenches; Cæsars was next the Hill, the other nearer Philippolis, which for want of Other Authority I conjectured thus: First in Cæsars Battle there dyed but 15 thousand 200; In the Other allmost twice as many. This proportion is made good in the heaps, those towards Philippolis being greater and much more in number than the other: Then Cæsar writes that after Pompey and the main of his Army was fled, a residue not yett dispursd retired to a Hill 6 miles of which had a river run under it; This squares right with a Hill on the south side of Pota\r/zeek, a little towne between the 2 camps; ~~and little towne~~, but for this circumstance not worthy speakeing on consisting of about 4000 houses. Further on Eastwards, upon the same plane are the monuments of Brutus and Cassius his defeature. The Tumuli are many; some great some smale, more or less close together, as the slaughter hapnd, & reach at least 8 or 9 miles in both in lenth extending as it seems & […][9] did towards Philippolis, now Phil[ibee.]

[Machell's Notes: I.603]
*{See Dugdall Warwickshire in verbo Low in Knight Low.}

[I.601A][10]

[The Church]

Figure 1.16.2. Arms 'in Martin Church window'. I.601A.

[7] The following passage was copied almost verbatim from Henry Blunt, A Voyage into the Levant. A Briefe Relation of a Journey lately performed by Master Henry Blunt Gentleman from England by the way of Venice, into Dalmatia, Sclavonia, Bosnah, Hungary, Macedonia, Thessaly, Thrace, Rhodes and Egypt, unto Gran Cairo: With particular observations concerning the moderne condition of the Turkes, and other people under that Empire (1636), 35-37.
[8] Champion country: a large expanse of open country, as distinct from mountains and woods; see the English Glossary.
[9] Words here have perished.
[10] A page measuring 15cm x 20cm, containing a fine drawing of a coat of arms. An unfinished pencil sketch of a coat of arms may be found close to this one on MS.I.601.

These Arms are in Martin Church window in Westm'land.[11] To whome they belong I am alltogether ignorant. The Blackbird (for such I take them to be) in dexter point seemes misplaced, according to Leigh Gerrads rule.[12] Luskin, Mayor of London, b[ore] Gules on a cheveron Argent between 3 falkons volant Or, 3 escalops Sable.

[Machell's Notes: I.601A]

{This is the nearest beareing that I meet with: Repertorye[13] G15 ~~fol~~ p.244.[14] Herald College. Lovekins arms.}

[Notes in another hand: I.601A]

{He is called in some Lists, Lovekin, in others, Lewkin, & was Mayor in 1348, 1358, 1365, 6.}[15]
{Lovekins arms are emblazoned 3 rising eagles in some Lists of Mayors.}[16]

[I.606]

§1. The church stands in the fealdes of Brampton att a considerable distance from any of the villages that belong to it {may be tis dedicate to St Martin but it takes it name from Long Marton where the parsonage house is, & the place to which it is nearest situate.}
Concerneing its founder I know nothing, but there is a Tradition about the building of it; that it was first designed to have stood at Long Marton upon the Hill by the parsonage house and that severall attempts were made of erecting it there but all in vaine, for ~~as often~~ what they built up o'th day was Cast downe o'th night; which I lieave to Relators, & Rather believe that it was placed there for the better satisfaction of the Town of Brampton, being a Great part of the parish, & yett not to[o] near that, least Knock should be att too great a distance. The Patronage of it is in the Hands of the Barons of Westm'land, & so was the Lordship of Longmarton & Knock of old.
There are not any monuments remaneing within \ it now / and onely these escutchions which I here present you.

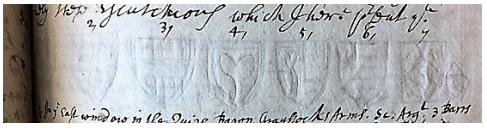

Figure 1.16.3. Faded pencil sketches of escutcheons in the windows of Long Marton Church. I.606.

In the East window in the Quire.
1. Baron Graystocks Arms: Sc. Argent 3 Barrs Azure, overall 3 Chappletts of Roses in triangle Gules.
2. Dakers.
3. In the s\o/uthside window next to the Aultar an Ancient scutchions for the Cliffords Armes, Barons of Westm'land: Sc. Cheque Or & Vert (soe it is there but it should be Azure) a fess Gules.
4.[17] In the North window of the quire, 1. Lancasters, Sc. Argent 2 Barrs Gules, on a canton of the 2nd a mullet – 4. Lancaster in pale, Sc. Sable a manch Argent.[18]

[11] See I.606, section 5, below.
[12] Machell was referring to The Accidence of Armorie, by Gerard Legh/Leigh (London, 1563, & later editions). Leigh was a member of the College of Heralds.
[13] Repertory: repository or catalogue. OED.
[14] The College of Arms was founded in 1484; it creates and maintains official registers of coats of arms and pedigrees. https://www.college-of-arms.gov.uk/.
[15] Sir John Lovekyn was a London fishmonger who was four times Lord Mayor of London (in 1348, 1358, 1365 and 1366): C. Welch, & R. Axworthy, 'Lovekyn, John (d. 1368), merchant and lord mayor of London'. ODNB.
[16] These comments (a later attempt at detecting the ownership of the coat of arms see Figure 1.16.2) are not in Machell's hand but could be in the hand of either Bishop Charles Lyttelton or William Nicolson, both of whom amended parts of Machell's text (see Part 3, Ch.1, Directions for those who shall undertake to finish the Antiquities of Westmorland). Sir John Lovekyn was a member of the family which endowed the chapel of Kingston Grammar School in the 14th century. The school coat of arms is that of the Lovekyn family and is similar to Machell's sketch, see https://www.kgs.org.uk.
[17] MS: Numbered '5.'
[18] MS: Numbered '4. Lancaster in pale. ~~d by Wharton~~ Sc. Sable a manch Ar.'

5. In the little quire on the South side of the pulpit, Argent on a Cheveron between 3 Blackbirds Sable 3 annulets ar[gent].[19]

[I.607]

All in the North quire window.
4. Wharton: Sc. Sable a manch Argent.
5. Wharton Impaleing Lancaster: Sc. Argent & Gules.
6. Lancaster single.
7. In the little South Quire beyond the pulpit.
8. Sir Thomas Burtons of Brampton.[20]
{They may all be seen in libro oblongo miscellaneor MS}[21]

[I.609]

[Machell's notes on the Lancaster, Brampton and Morvil Families]

John de Lancaster de Brampton, a Juror in the Inquisition de Matilda Beauchamp Relicta [blank] Clifford 4. Henry 4. [1402-03].
[Blank] de Lancaster [blank] 33. Henry 6. [1434-35].

{Brampton a name}
Thomas de Brampton ante 11. Henry 3. [1226-27] in cartis Alic è lib. Oblong.[22]

{Morvil}
I finde the Morvils (An ancient family in the north) som of them to have lived att Brampton, but where or in what Quality I know not.
William de Morvil qui vixit 8. et 13. John [1206-07, 1211-12].
Walterus de Morvil de Brampton {!} Temp. John [1199-1216].
\ Walter de Morvil. 11. Henry 3. [1226-27] successit W. /
John de Morevil. 22. Henry 3. [1237-38].
John de Morvil. 36. Henry 3. [1251-52].
Robert de Morvil vicom. Temp. Henry 3. [1216-72].
Robert de Morevil. 14. Edward 1. [1285-86].
The Antiquity of the name will appear from these instances: but what there relation are, I confess myself ignorant.

[I.606][23]

{Brampton; Lancaster}
13. Henry 8. [1521-22] Edward Lancaster of Brampton, Gentleman, had 2 messuags, 24 Ac[res] of Land, 4 Acres of medow, with common of pasture for beasts without number belonging thereto; with common of Turbaries, common of esto\v/ers, common of piscaries, & the 4th part of the mill in the Towne & field of Melkanthorp; which he sold unto William Lancaster, son & heir of Christopher Lancaster of Deepdale for xx markes{?}[24] which he held by the gift of his father & Brother for Term of life. And he was allso obliged to promise his Elder Brothers release of Clame to those lands, and grant the revertion for ever more to the said William.

[I.607]

{Brampton Lordship}

Brampton so called from [Blank] was formerly an entire Lordship of itselfe, haveing Dufton on the East, Crakenthorpe on the West, Longmarton on the North, & Lancton & Bongate on the South. The village is seated in a fruitfull but sandy soyle, have a River running all along the skirts of it on the East side, & is accommodated with a water mill close att hand. The common is well stored with Lyme [19] The last (perished) word could also be 'Azure'.

[20] See below.
[21] 'They may all be seen in the oblong book, Miscellaneous MS.'
[22] In the deeds of Alic. In the Oblong Book.
[23] Also numbered p.24.
[24] 'xx' is partly obscured by the binding. Whatever the sum, Machell seems to have questioned it.

stone,[25] & affordes Good Cattle for their pasture; upon which a Race is usually run every St [Blank] day for [blank]. ~~And~~ This more or common is divided on the west with the great Romane Way, & upon the very skirts of it is a Round trench or fortification &c. called White Burwens, the out workes of which runn downe in to Crakenthorpe More; which I take to be British, & made \ in defence of Kirkbythore Gallatu[m] / to oppose the Romanes when they first came into Westm'land, incampeing upon Stanemore. Se the figure of it.

[I.610]

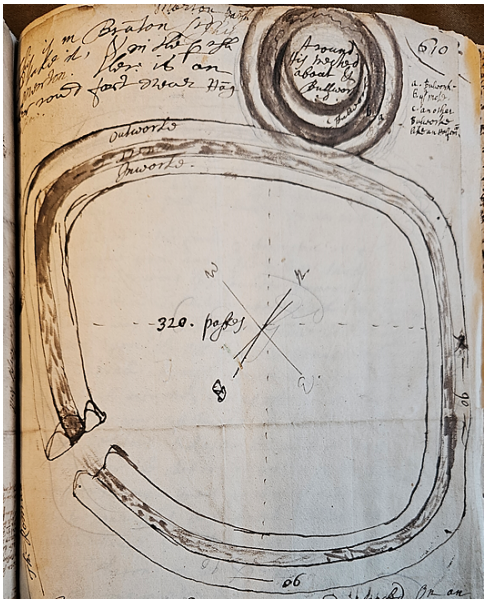

Figure 1.16.4. White Burwens..'a. Bulwork; b. the mote; c. another Bulworke like an halfemoon'. I.610.

This is in Brampton Lordship I take it; & in the parish of Merton there is an other round fort near Ha[n]ging Shaw. This is called White Burwens; and is p[l]aced on an High hill att the corner of Mr Machells Grassing, hard by the Roman-way on the left hand[26] as you goe to Kirkbythore. And att Kirkbythore, where Old Whelp Castle formerly stood, the place is called Burwins to this day; where there was lately an House called Burwens hall, belonging to the Crakan[t]horps, to whome a 3^{d} of Tenements in Kirkbythore doe belong. And the Common called Sowerby Moore in which the Inhabitants have a privaledge by reason of a certane sum of money payd yerely to the Crakanthorps of Newbigging. The Outworkes of this (if not the whol body) is in Crakanthorp & Bongate Parish.

[I.607]

(There is another roundworke on the side of the Banke towards Brampton field, vid. [blank] \ There is likewise another Round forte near Hangingshaw†. And allso a place called Castrig, vide [blank]. It is not well knowne att this day where the manner house stoode,[27] but it was Anciently the seate of [blank]. In [blank] Time it belongd to the Lancasters‡; which ~~family &~~ was extinct \ they say / in 3 daughters, coheires, whereof the eldest was maryed to Birbeck of Hornby with part of the Ten[ements]; another to Backhouse of Morland (~~with~~ another part);[28] and another with the Powes (a piece of ground which layes along by the water side from the field end beneath the church to

[25] MS: 'The common ~~which joine to the Common of Crackenthorpe~~ is well stored with Lyme stone.'
[26] MS: 'on the left on the left hand.'
[27] The manor house of Brampton.
[28] For the marriage of Dorothy, daughter of George Backhouse, to John Skelton of High House, Cumberland, see Joseph Foster (ed.), Pedigrees Recorded at the Heralds' Visitations of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmorland made by Richard St George, Norroy, King of Arms in 1615 and by William Dugdale, Norroy, King of Arms in 1666 (Carlisle and Kendal, 1891), 126.

Kirkbythore Bridge)[29] to Mr Wharton of Kirkbythore, to which family the Powes now belongs, 1664. Upon which account I suppose the Armes of Wharton impaleing Lancaster were putt up in the Church window, & the same armes are cutt in stone upon the Battlement of Kirkbythore Steple↓. If wee may believe the

[Machell's Notes I.607]

*{vide in Cap. de Barton.}[30]
†q. whether in this parish.
‡Descended from a younger son of Lancasters of Socbridge {è Ped. Birbeck in Visitat West. per Dugdall 1664.}[31]
↓{Lancasters there 33. Henry 6. [1454-55] è C. apud Crak.}[32] {I mete with Agnes de Lancaster 37. Henry [1252-53], but of what place I know 0. Se Sockbridge in Barton parish & Howgil in Kirkbythore.}

[I.608][33]

enterance[34] which the Birbecks (who maryed one of the Heiresses) have made in Dugdall, it hapen'd to be extinct about the end of Queen Elizabeth*; and peradventure about the Time that the Birbecks matched with the Cliffords. For the Cliffords doe now possess that partition of Tenements which the Birbecks held; & they possess Hor[n]by, partly (may be) upon consideration of the marriage dowry; and partly in exchange for the said Tenements†. As for the Demaisne, tis divided allso into 3 partitions and now in the hands of Christopher Dobson, Robert Richardson, and Ann Walker, widow (1664); knowne by the name of the Demaisne Lands.

[Brampton Hall]

But before I lieve Brampton I must take notice of a very fair house, which (because there is no other) now bears the name of Brampton Hall, placed on the east side at the Highest [point] of the village, with faire gardens att about a mile distance from the Church & 2 from Apleby – the market & shire towne.[35] It was built by [blank] Burton who was descended, as I am inform'd,[36] from Pierce Burton of Bishop-Burton in the County of Yorke; a Gentleman of about 40^{li} land per Annum, & related as it should seeme from their Armes ~~to the~~ (which are Argent a Bend[37] Sable) to the Burtons of Kens[l]ey, in Com Ebor‡. But their Original (as to this county) was from ~~Parson~~ Burton, parson of this parish,[38] a most welthy man & noble housekeper whose grandchild Mr Thomas Burton, was the great stay & support of the Loyal Party during the Tyranny of Oliver Cromwell, being then Knight of the Shire & seemingly a Roundhead, that he might be more capeable of doeing the Cavaliers a greater kindness;[39] and in a word behaved himselfe so well that he was Knighted by King Charles the Second after his Returne to the Crowne from banishment.[40] What more may be said of this famly take briefly in the following pedigre.[41]

---

[29] Meadow Powes: a field in the parish of Kirkby Thore, see Smith, Place-Names 2, 120.
[30] 'See the chapter on Barton.'
[31] From the Birkbeck pedigree made by Dugdale on 22 March 1664: see Foster (ed.), Pedigrees, 12.
[32] 'According to a document at Crackenthorpe.'
[33] At the foot of this page is written, 'p.3 of Marton'.
[34] Entry.
[35] MS: '~~It was built by [Blank] Burton~~ placed on the east side, at the Highest of the village with faire gardens, att about a mile distance from the Church \ & 2 from Apleby, the market & shire towne. /'
[36] MS: 'It was built by [blank] Burton whose ~~by three~~ \ was / ~~seeme to be~~ descended \ as I am inform'd. /'
[37] Here Machell drew a symbol to represent a heraldic bend.
[38] Richard Burton LLD, rector of Long Marton (1598-c.1608); rector of Ormside (1606-35). Richard Burton, rector of Dufton (1625-26), was probably his son: Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 2, 1147-48.
[39] MS: 'that he might ~~the better sup~~ be \ more / capeable of doeing the Cavaliers a greater kindness.'
[40] Thomas Burton (fl.1656-68) wrote a diary in which he recorded his political career. See J. T. Rutt (ed*.), Diary of Thomas Burton*, 4 vols. (London, 1828). Machell wrote more kindly of Burton than of other so-called trimmers, despite the fact that Burton became MP for Westmorland in the Second Protectorate Parliament (1656-8). Cromwell's government accused him of disaffection, but he was among the Westmorland ejectors and in 1657 acquired a portion of the manor of Brough, sequestered from the recusant Blenkinsop family (a 'business' mentioned in the diary). Burton sat in Richard Cromwell's parliament (27 January to 22 April 1659). He then officially changed his affiliation to Charles II, after which he gained the honours that Machell cited here. I. Roots, 'Burton, Thomas (fl. 1656-1661), diarist'. ODNB.
[41] No pedigree was added.

[Machell's Notes: I.608]

*{See p.6, Visit. West. 1664. But there is no such thing in Whartons \ enterance,[42] / so that I suppose twas longer agoe (? Quaere ideo.[43])

†{?} (sed de his Quaere.)[44]

‡Se Flowers Visitation of Yorkshire 1564, wher 4 descents of Burton of Kens[l]ey named. I thinke Burtons is one of those corrupt ped[igrees] and it is to be noted of the Heralds that Wallop of Hantshire beares the same Coate.[45]

[Knock]

[III.162A]

Knock stands E. & W. At the E. end are iiij Tenements thought to have bin Knock gill hall, the being thee fashion of a ditch & Rampiere about the ground whereon; and the other Lands which belongs unto them extend themselves as far as Knock gill; and are yet calld the Demain Landes. There is also a place calld Chaple Fut, where it is said Knock Chaple stood – parish Dufton church.

[I.605][46]

The Lordship of Knock [Bounder]

On the North with Milburne in K[irkbythore] parish, \ being divided from it by a streight line / from Dumbalraise where Knock & Milburne & Martin Lordships meet, \ ascending / to the standing stean on Oaketree Hill (½ a m.); thence by a Dike steed to Casay flat Side, & so on by Caseflat dike Top to a Lane called Outgang-End as you go in to Grange, ¼. \ Thence / by ~~Lan~~ a dike on the out side Lang-holm to a place calld Stank head, ½. Thence up Grange Beck \ N. East / to Nu\c/kerdale head near unto Green Castle. 5 \ m. / \ where it springeth. /

Thence by a settle to Dale Sike head (100 yards); thence \ E. / down Dale Sike to Fell Troutbeck head* where Dale Sike runs into (1 mile).[47] Thence down Trout Beck \ N.E. / to Moss Burne Foot (3m.) where it meets \ in a Point / with Dufton parish – from which tis divided on the East by Mosburne aforesaid†, to the spring head (3 mile). Thence in a streight line \ S. / over the moss to Swindale head (3m.) Thence (by Swindale Beck) S.W. to Knoc Gill head, 4 \ m.[48] / Thence to Chaple Wath \ 1m. / where you pass the water twixt ~~Marton~~ \ Knock / & Dufton \ near Dufton Kirk / where 3 Lordships meet – Knock, Dufton & M[arton]. Then on ~~the S &~~ S[outh] with Long Marton – from which tis divided by ~~Mar~~ Knock field Dike to Hund-hill, 1m. Thence by a streight line to standing stean on Ebrun Thorne, ¾. Thence by a streight line to Dunbulraise, ½ a mile‡.

On the Top of Knock fell towards the west end is an Hurrock of stones which is called Watch Currack. No Bounder – It is opposite to Greene Castle.

[Machell's Notes: I.605]

*{5 mile but Sanderson says 2.}

†{Towan sayes by Mosburn to Over Harth 1½. Thence in a [blank] W. 1½. Thence by a [blank] to –Swindale beck head, 1m. is just one jump.}

‡Qu. of Marton parisheners & Grange.

{Sanderson says that Grange hath Common without Casaflat dike. Q. ergo of T. Westm'land.}

{Qu. Grange & Dufton.}

{There are Great store of Transparent blew stones of an azure colour digd out of the Grouves. Mr Hall & his shepherd.}

[42] See Foster (ed.) Pedigrees, 141-43.

[43] 'Therefore, look further.'

[44] 'But on this, look further.'

[45] See C.B. Norcliffe (ed.), The Visitation of Yorkshire in the years 1563 and 1564 made by William Flower Esquire, Norroy, King of Arms (Harleian Soc. XVI, London, 188), Pedigree of Rychard Burton of Kensley, 46.

[46] This page was bound upside down; at some point it was repaired and some words are illegible.

[47] MS: 'where \ Dale Sike / ~~it~~ runs into ~~Trout Beck~~ (1 mile).'

[48] MS: 'Thence (by Swindale Beck) S.W. to Knoc ~~Town~~ \ Gill / head, 4 \ m. /'

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 17]

[Parish of Morland]

[III.269]

There are 8 villages & Lordships in the parish.
{Morland, Bolton, Kings Meaburn, Newby, Great Strickland, Little Strickland, Slegill, Thrimby}[1]

[III.263][2]

It is a vicaridge, rated in the First Fruits Offices at 11: 18: 0, the tenths ~~of which is~~ 1: 3: 9½ farthing;[3] and it payeth to the Bishop for procurations \ 4^{s} 4^{d}* / & synodalls \ 4^{s} / & hath in glebe thereto belonging [blank].[4]
The patrones of it are the Dean & Chapter of Carleol, who presented Mr \ William / Atkinson, the present incumbent;[5] who hath in glebe lands about \ 30 or / 40 acres, \ Sc. in / Briggals VI acres[6] and hath Tythe in kind ~~& prescription~~ \ in the garthes of Morland & Bolton. Tythe hempe & line in the same Townes / allso in the fields. 10 Groates for hay at Trantra[ms]. A \ small / prescription for it ~~the rectory remaneing in the Dean & Chapter~~, at Thrimby;[7] tithe hay in kinde at Slegill, & a 3rd at Little Strickland, the Dean & Chapter having the rentes ~~therefore payable to the vicar at Little Strickland~~. Wool & lamb in kinde through the parish.[8]

{Division}
It is divided into 8 Constablewicks: Sc. 1. Morland; 2. Kings! Meaburne; 3. Newby; 4. Sleagil; 5. Little Strickland; 6. Thrimby; 7. Great Strickland; 8. Bolton. And into [blank] Lordships†.

[Bounder][9]
The parish of Morland, so called (as other are generally) from the town where ~~it~~ the parish church standeth, is bounded on East with Kirkbythore & Bondgate parishes, from which tis divided ~~from~~ \ by / the River Eden; on the South East with St Laurence Appleby‡. Thence up the outside of Leaseclose,[10] takeing it in & the whol Lordship of Meaburn Regis. Thence up to {Drivivers yeat with a long tabb;[11] on the South with Crosby Ravensworth parish, being divided from it by Lile Beck till it enters Livennit. Thence up Livennet to Regill Rales; thence by an hedge called Turnbank Dike to Regill Mask End. Thence \ by an hedge / up the Mask Side to Aughtwood Gill in Threeplands. Thence up the Gill to Pluverigs wherewith Shap parish meets, which hemms it in on the S., being divided from it by stones &}[12] line markes, to a place called Brunns, ~~a quarter of a mile~~ near Shap Towne End.

---

[1] MS.III.612 provides a similar narrative.
[2] As this page has undergone partial repair, causing some illegibility, three sets of marginalia have been omitted.
[3] £1 3s 9¾d.
[4] The Court of First Fruits and Tenths was established in 1540 to collect from clerical benefices certain moneys that had previously been sent to Rome. First fruits were the first year's profits owed by the new holder of a benefice; tenths were 10 percent of the annual income, due each year: https://www.britannica.com. The Office of First Fruits and Tenths, and its successor, the Office of the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty, administered the income from clerical taxation following the Reformation: https://discovery.nationalarchives.gov.uk.
[5] William Atkinson was presented to Morland in 1680/1; he died in 1721. He was schoolmaster at Dufton between 1664 and 1665 (CCED) and gave Machell advice on the Dufton parish boundary in 1686: see Part 1, Ch.12, Dufton, III.160.
[6] The text is very jumbled here but appears to continue, 'Mr Atkinson will give [blank].'
[7] MS: 'A \ small / prescription for it ~~the rectory remaneing in the Dean & Chapter~~, at Thrimby.'
[8] This passage has been crammed into a tiny space and is much scored through.
[9] In a note on MS III.270, Machell wrote, 'Morland Parish: Query for a bounder; more perfect account.'
[10] Lees Close.
[11] 'Tabb': in Cornish dialect, a tab or tabbun is a piece of turf, see F.W.P. Jago, The Ancient Language, and the Dialect of Cornwall (Truro, 1882). In Midlands dialect, a tab[b] is the tongue of a shoe or boot. Tab is also interchangeable with 'tag': an appendage; the tail-end. OED.
[12] A mended tear in the paper has made the next word too faint to decipher.

[It is bounded] on the West with Bamton \ ~~& Lons~~ / parishes, being[13] divided by ~~Bank~~ [Blank]; on the North W. with Lowther parish by Gunner Keld Watter (or Melkinthorp beck) till it runns into Cliburn beck⸸. On the North with Cliburn parish, from which tis divided by Cliburne beck till it enters Eaden near Gillian Bower[14] over against Sowerby.

[Machell's Notes: III.263]

*?
†{? Q. families in each freehold.}
‡ From which, query of Henry Dent of Meaburn if it be not divided from Sweetmilk Sike from the river up to Buly Castle.
⸸ Sed query?
{The townes & Lordships}[15]{1 dedication; 2 descriptions by pillars; steple, bell, repares, monuments, Armes in number. What familyes in belonging.}
{What remarkeable in nature. Birds, fishes, in the mines.}[16]

[III.612]

Townships

[1. Morland]

Church
Morland, where the church standeth, being a fair large building in the manner of a † with 2 rows of pillars, 3 in a row, & tower steple with a \ leaden / spire or broach upon it,[17] and in good repare. No armes nor monuments in it, but a label of brass on the tomb stone of Vicar Blithe,[18] with this Inscription [blank].
There are herein besides, the vicaridge house, in whose window is the Armes of Vicar Burton quartering [blank][19]

[IV.494A]

{ad Morland. Reg. de Wed.}[20]
{Fol. 23a.} Walter Bishop of Carlile was at variance with Abbat & Convent of Yorke; as I take it, about the moncks of Wederhal not expending the profits of Morland Church within the diocess: whereupon he excommunicatd som of the moncks: But on Munday next after the feast of St Agatha,[21] it was composed in Alverton church by delegates appointed in formation as followeth: Sc. That all the goods of the Church of Morland & other churches of the house of Wederhal granted to their use within the Diocess of Karliol should be expended in the house of Wederhal, & should not be by their authority transferred from thence to any other persons or places but should goe to the use of the monks that were perpetual resident there. Saveing to the said Abbat & Convent out of the said Churches their ancient & accustomed pensions. And they were farther to promiss and grant to the said Bishop. That when the House of Wederhal should chance to be destitute of a Prior, the said Abbat & Convent would present to the said Bishop & to his successors a monck fitly qualified to preside over the House of Wederhal, who shal doe Canonical Obedience to them, & receive the Cure of Soules

[13] MS: 'been.'
[14] Presumably, Julian Bower. There is a field near Morland called Julian Flatts: see Westmorland Place-Names.
[15] This margin comment is: (a) partly perished, and (b) partly obscured by the binding.
[16] Several words here are obscured by the binding.
[17] Broach: a church spire, see W. Papworth, Gwilt's Encyclopaedia of Architecture (1867), iii. 959: 'The most frequent spire is that called a broach when it does not rise from within parapets, but is carried up on four of its sides from the top of the square tower. OED.
[18] John Blyth, vicar of Morland, died in 1563. CCED.
[19] Presumably this is Pearse Burton, who entered Queen's College, Oxford, 'serviens' in 1650. CCED. According to Nightingale, he was instituted to Morland in 1654 and died in 1667/8, 'much lamented' after serving 13 years in the parish. Nightingale comments that he was probably the son of Richard Burton, rector of Dufton; he was baptised in Dufton in 1632. Pearse Burton remained in place during the Interregnum and after the Restoration: Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 2, 1181-4.
[20] 'Information about Morland taken from the Register of Wetheral Priory.'
[21] The Feast of St Agatha is on 15 February.

from their hands: And shall never be removed in their whole life from the administration of the said house, without a just & reasonable cause, to be shewen to the Bishop sine strepitu judiciali.[22]

[IV.494B]

And on the Other Hand, it was agreed that those moncks whom the Bishope said he had excommunicated should goe privately to him & beg the benefit of Absolution; & that he should restore to the Prior of Wederall his sequestration which he had caus'd to be made upon Morland Church without contradiction or delay. And induct him into the corporal possession of the said church.

{Robert Bishop of Karliol}
This Robert (successor to the said Walter in the Sea of Karliol […], haveing seen & considered, confirmed the said agreement.[23]

[IV.495]

[Capella de With]
Collocatio[24] Capel Sancte Marie in Lewyth […] parochia de Morland A.D. 1405
[Register of Wetheral Priory] folio 146B.[25] {It seemeth to have bin an hermitage.}
About 19 years {1424} after [this collocatio], a difference arose between the Prior of Wetheral to whom the fruits of the parish church of Morland did of old appertane, saveing a Portion for the vicar, et Dominus Johannem Richemont, perpetual vicar of the said church {vicar de Morland not de Richmond!}

[IV.496]

concerneing the receiveing & takeing of oblations in the chapel of Wythe, in honour of the Blessed Virgin Mary, erected & builded within the bound & limits of the said church of Morland. & concerneing the title right & possession of ½ an acre of land lying upon Litel Aynesbergh & butting upon the Common Banke within the territory of the said vill which had long bin disputed & controverted but was then composed by the mediation of William by divine permission Abbat of St Maryes at Yorke, to whose decree (in alto et Busso: from top to bottom} they were bound to submit. Who ordered \ after examon[ation] of many witness, & sight of evidences / that:
The Prior of Wederhall, should have \ & enjoy all / the oblations & halfe acre of land peacably & quietly without any disturbance from the said vicar; saveing always to the said vicar \ that if the said Abbat / could finde any real composition in the Archives of his Monastery, which he faithfully promised to search & seeke after when he could be at leisure, by which it might appear that the oblations offered in the said chaple did belong unto him, the said vicar of Morland, that he would deliver him a true copy of it, & then it should be lawfull for him to receive the said offerings as is promised, & use them according to his own discretion, notwithstanding the foresaid Agreement. And that if any difference should arise for the future betwixt the said partyes, they should refer it to 2 Learned Lawyers (i[ll]os viros in jure egregie et profunde instructos),[26] who, if they could not make an Agreement, the said Prior & Vicar should stand to the order of the said Abbat without any farther process at law. To which the said Prior & Vicar consented, et fide sua media concordarunt: &c. – Data et acta fuit h[ac] in Ecclesia parochiali de Moreland predicta anno ab Incarnatione Domini secundum cursu[m] et computationem Eccl[esi]æ Anglicanæ M0CCCC0 vicessimo quarto, mart[i]ria p[ro]p[ri]æ vc vij0 mensis Julij die xva. Presentibus inter alios William de Crakanthorp Senescallo Prioratus nostri de Wederhal, et alijs.[27]

[22] 'Without any legal formality.'
[23] For this agreement, see MS.IV.494B.
[24] 'Collocatio': putting together; setting up; placing.
[25] See the Latin text of this Collocatio deed on MS.IV.495.
[26] '2 Learned Lawyers (those men who are exceptionally and profoundly learned in law)…'
[27] 'To which the said Prior & Vicar consented, and made an agreement with a sworn oath etc. It was given and enacted in this parish Church of Moreland aforesaid, in the fourteen hundredth and twenty-fourth year from the Lord's Incarnation, according to the reckoning and calculation of the Anglican Church, the five hundred and seventh from the martyr-foundation of their own, on the fifteenth day of the month of July. Present among others William of Crakanthorp, Steward of our Priory of Wederhal, and others.'

[III.612]

[Gentlemen's houses]
[1.] The Broad Fauld belonging to the Backhouses, being tenement held of the Dean & Chapter & 13^{li} per annum freehold called The Wood Wooding & the Ashes: long enjoyed by that name.
[2.] The Low Hall, alias Powdonat, an hansom little house belonging formerly (as they say) to the Musgraves, who are said to have \ had / a 3^{d} of the Lordship, & the Deane & Chapter the other 2; But did belong in the memory of man to one Henry Backouse, who had isue, ~~John~~ George, who sold it to one Mr ~~James~~ Farer who[se] wife was maryed to one Charles Kiplin; which Charles sold it to one Mr Adamson, and he to John Routlege, and he sold it to Mr William Atkinson, who now injoyes it freehold.
[3.] Other freeholde
Robert Backhouse 8^{li} per annum; William Lambert of Kemplees 11^{li}; Henry Licot of Yeatelands; Thomas Robinson of Akey-Yeat; & R. Jackson of Morland. And other small freehold under value.

[I.613]

[Backhouse Family]
There is a Family of Backhouses taken to be very Ancient. The Armes belonging to this name – of which there be severall yet in the south of England – are [see illustration below]. And the Crest an Eagle volant Or, desplayd \ vert / with a serpen wave proper Inflexing its head and tayle towards the Eagle.

Figure 1.17.1. Backhouse Arms. I.613.

[I.611B-I.612][28]

Ex Inquisitione post mortem Lanceloti Backouse capt[a] apud \ Temple / Sowerby 4^{0} May 35^{0} Elizabeth Coram Johanne Scenas Armig[ero] Escheat dicte Reginæ.

Medietas manerij Morland cum pertin[entijs] ac etiam Bosc[us] et sub-Bosc[us] Com[itatus] vocat[us] Morland wood continent[es] per estimac[i]o[n]em Quinqueginta acras Terræ plus minus tent[ae] per Lancelotum Backhouse gener[osus] per feofamentu[m] Joh[ann]is Sowthaick Armigeri: Ac etiam {Joh[ann]is Sowthait} una pasture vocata wood house end-close Cont[inens] i ac[ram] terræ: una parcella Prati Juxta dict[am] Clausura[m] una Acrea Arabilis et Prati vocat[a] Stanelands de Quibus obijt Seisitus in Man[nerio] de Morland et de Brampton; Ac etiam de 3a parte unius messuagij et obijt seisitus unius Cottagij in Dufton. quarum Brampton et Dufton habuit per Chartam Indentatam Bigetae Bachouse viduæ dat[am] 20 Feb: 3^{0} et 4^{0} Phill[ipi] et Mariæ factam Edwardo Birkbeck de Hornby Generoso et Joh[ann]i Back house Clerico. Heredibus et Assignatis suis ad usum Dictæ Briget[ae] pro Termino vitæ. Post ad uso usum – Henrici Backhouse et post Hæred[ibus] masc[uline], ad usum Gilberti Bac[khouse] alter[ius] fill[ij] et Heredibus masc[[uline], pro def[ectu] ad usum Anthon[ij] Bac[khouse] alter[ius] fill[ij] et Hered[ibus] masc[[uline] Rectorum haeredum Dict[ae] Brig[etae] pro Defect[u] Ad usum Rectorum hæredum Dict[ae] Brig[etae] Jurati dicunt Quod Predict[a] medietas man[erij] de Morland et cætera premissa in Morland præfatus Lancelotus Bac[khouse] tenuit tempore mortis suæ de Dom[ina] Regina in Capite. Viz per servici[a] vicessimæ partis unius feodi Militis et valet per An[num] in omnibus exitibus ultra Reprisas 22s.
{Man[erium] Morland Tent[um] de Rege per servic[ium] Mil[itare]] 20 pars feodi Militis}
{Man[erium] Brampton Tent[um] de man[erio] de Dufton}

[28] Page measuring 23cm x 27cm, consisting of one sheet glued onto pages on either side of the gutter. The top right of the sheet holds a reference code in another hand.

P[re]dict[am] 3 part[em] manerij de Brampton et caetera p[re]missa cum suis pertinentijs in Dufton praefatus Lancelotus Bac[khouse] tenuit de Dom[ina] Regina ut de man[erio] su[o] de Dufton per fidelitatem sectae curiae, et Reddend[o] Inde Ann[ua]t[i]m ad Festum Sancti Andreae Apost[olici] 1/3 Libri de piperis 1/3 duorum denariorum pro tertia parte libri de cumino; et 1/3 duorum solid[orum] pro omnibus servicijs etc. et valet in omnibus 3li-10s-0d ^{d}.[29]
{De sus Lanc. Backhouse obijt seistus 29. Septem. 34. Eliz. [1592]: et Robertus B. Frater et hæres ætatis 21. Annorum et 40. dierum.}[30]

Ambrosius Lancaster de Brampton Armiger =
_____|
|
Brigeta Lancaster Nupta3^{0} et 4^{0} Phili et Mariæ [1556-57] = Robert of Backhouse defunct superstes, Henricus Backhous. Gilbertus B. Antho. Backhouse.

Filius et haer.[31]
|
Lancelotus Bachouse de[32] Robertus Bac.[33]
Man' de Morland et 3^{a} parte man' de Brampton

[I.612][34]

[2. Sleagill]

I take Slegill to be an hamlett of Newby in the parish of Morland. It belonged to the Blenkinsopes of Helbeck till sold of by Mr Thomas Blenkinsop about the yere [blank] to [blank]. They had 16 tenements in this hamlett, which payd finable rent 5^{li} 12^{s} 2^{d}.
I finde Slegil anciently an Hamlet of the vilage of Newby; yett it was a Lordship & here was a manner house which was the Seat many yeres agoe of the Family of the Slegills. For I finde Adam son of Robert de Slegill [conveyed] certane Lands in Dominico Suo in Territorio de Slegil:[35] to William Prodome of Newby for the service he had don him, to him & his heirs forever.

[29] [Lancelot Backhouse died owning] 'half of the manor of Morland with its appurtenances and also the wood and underwood called Morland Wood containing by estimation 50 acres of land be it more or less, held by Lancelot Backhouse, Gent. by the freehold conveyance of John Southaite Esq. and also one pasture called Woodend Close containing one acre of land, one parcel of meadow next to the said close, one acre of arable and meadow called Stanelands: of all of which he died possessed in the Manor of Morland and of Brampton. And also a third part of one house and one cottage in Dufton, which estate in Brampton and Dufton he held by deed of indenture by Bridget Backhouse, widow, dated 2 February 3 and 4 Philip and Mary (1556-1557) to Edmund Birkbeck of Hornby, Gent. And the Rev. John Backhouse, their heirs and assigns, to the use of the said Bridget for her lifetime, and after that to the use of Henry Backhouse and his male heirs, to the use of Gilbert Backhouse his second son and his male heirs, to the use of Anthony Backhouse his other son and his male heirs, and failing these to the use of the right heirs of the said Bridget. The jurors say that she said half of the Manor of Morland was held by the said Lancelot Backhouse at the time of his death, from our lady the Queen as tenant in chief by service of one-twentieth of a knight's fee, and its annual net value is 22s 0d. The said one third of the Manor of Brampton and the other premises with their appurtenances in Dufton were held by the said Lancelot Backhouse from our lady the Queen as of her Manor of Dufton by fealty of suit of court, and by rent of one third of a pound of cumin, and one third of 2s 0d for all services, payable on the Feast-Day of St Andrew the Apostle [30 Nov.] yearly; and is worth in total £3 10s 0d.'
[30] 'The said Lancelot Backhouse died possessed, 29 September 34. Elizabeth [1592], and Robert Backhouse his brother and heir, was then of the age of 21years and 40days.'
[31] 'Son and heir.'
[32] An interlineated Latin sentence here is illegible.
[33] 'Ambrose Lancaster of Brampton Esq. married Bridget. She was widowed in 1556-1557 and later married Robert Backhouse and had children: Henry, Gilbert and Anthony. Henry's children were Lancelot of Morland and Brampton, and Robert.'
[34] Also numbered p.26.
[35] '…in his demesne in the territories of Sleagill.'

[I.614][36]

[Families: Notes]
Slegill Robertus had isue Adam; and [Adam] by Xtian had John: 4. Edward 3. [1330-31].
Prodome: Will Prodome de Sclegill h[ad] issue: Will & Adam. Will son of Will, 1320.
John Prodom & Johan his wife.
Windesor. Will de Wyndesore de Morland. & I read of one of that Sirname Thomas de Morland who held Land \ as Tennant /of Gilbert de Sclegill.

[Slegill Family][37]
Sclegil. Robert de Sclegill had Isue, Adam, who marryed Xtian \ 13. Edward 1. [1284-85] / an[d] had Isue John, 4. Edward 3. [1330-31]. ~~Adam 15. Edward 3.~~ 12. \ Gilbert, Senesc[hal] Westm'land.[38] / Adam de Sclegill, 45. Edward 3. [1371-72].

[III.612]

Robert de Slegil had isue Adam [who] m. Christiana.\ s.d. / Will. de Wyndesore \ junior / a witness.
Gi[l]bert de Slegill gave to Adam the son of Robert de Slegille ~~gave~~ 2 oxgangs \ & 3 acres / of Land in the Lordship of Slegill by a deed s.d., paying to him & his heires 9[d] att the faere of St Lawrence of Apleby and doeing foreigne ser[vice], so much as belongs to so much. Witness: Sir Thomas de Lowther, Willielmo de Goldrington, Alano de Berwise, John de Barnes,[39] Stephano de Neuby.
Adam the son of Robert de Slegill granted to John de ~~Staffelld~~ Staffolld & also his wife and their heires his manner of Sclegill with all apurtenances ut in moris et marisiis &c. in wardis relevijs et eschettis et cum servicio 2[d] et una sagitta Barbellata a Roberto le spencer pro terra sua in Slegil et cum servicio unius Bacine Zinzibris; annu[u]s Reditus a Willielmo Prodhom. Testibus Robert le Engleys, John de Rossegill Richardo de Musegra militibus.[40]
These Slegils had in their seale a grahund takeing an Hare.
John de Slegil 19. Edward 2. [1325-26], gave some medow and waste in Slegil Field to Robert de Botiler & Alice his wife (f[orsan] his sister).

[IV.523]

{Fol. 111; Cart. 238 Regis. Wed.}
Mary the relict of Gilbert de Sclegil in his power & lawfull viduity granted, remised & forever quitted clame to God & St Mary & the Abbat of St Mary York & monks serveing God in the said Abby, all her right to clame which she had in mess[u]age with the appurtenances in Sclegile which Gilbert de Sclegile gave them &c. Hijs Testibus – Domini Michael de {Harrcle; Domino Tho. De Derwentwatrerl Domino Will. de Stirkeland militibus; Roberto de Warthwick, Walter de Windeson, Willo filio ejus, adam de Haverrington, Stephano ad Porta et alijs.

[I.614]

[Prodome de Sclegill]
Will. Prodome de Sclegill.
Will (& Adam) son of Will. 1320.
John m. Johanna 9. Edward 2. [1315-1316].[41]
Will Prodhom \ Preudhom / 4. Edward 3. [1330-1331].
Richard Prodhom 43. Edward 3. [1369-70] convey Slegill L[a]nds[42] to John de Kirkbythore.
John Purdhome a witness 36 Edward 3 [1362-63].

The Prodoms had in Slegil 2 messuages, 4 Oxgangs ~~of Land~~ sexaginta et octadecem Acr[as] Terrae, 24 Acras prati: 3 acras Bosci In Slegill Hamletto de Neuby[43] and some Acres more, as appear by a

[36] Also numbered p.27.
[37] See also MS.IV.523.
[38] Gilbert, Steward of Westmorland.
[39] Or possibly, 'Barwes'.
[40] 'In moor and marsh &c. In wards, reliefs and escheats, and by service of two pence and one barbed arrow by Robert le Spencer for his land in Sleagill, and by service of one basin of ginger as annual rent from William Prodhom; witness Robert le Engleys, John de Rossegill, Richard de Musgrave, Knights.'
[41] 9. Edward II. might be incorrectly transcribed; the regnal year is blotted.
[42] Or possibly 'Lordship'.
[43] '60 and 18 acres of arable land, 24 acres of meadow, 3 acres of woodland in Sleagill, a hamlet of Newby.'

lease for life of John and Johan Prodom of the said Lands to William Prodom 9. Edward 2. [1315-16], which Lands Will. Prodom gave Mr John Prodom & Johane, 9. Edward 2.
Richard Prodham, 43. Edward 3. [1369-70], passed his Lands to John de Kir\k/bythore. Adam de Slegil gave possession as attorn[e]y.
Will de Newby s.d.

Barwys de Slegill
1. Alane son of Alane de Barwis s.d.
2. John
3. Hugo de Barwys son of John. 28. Edward 3. [1354-55]; he maryed Margaret: John Tom. Rob.
4. John son of Hugo [blank] 36. Edward 3. [1362-63].
(Margaret Barwise of Fishburn 7. Henry 6.) [1428-29] .
5. Richard m. Margaret d[aughter of] John de Kirkbythore 3. Henry 5. [1415-16].
Richard B. 21. Richard 2. [1397-98]
10. Edward 4. [1470-71] the Blenkinsop[s] had Title.

Alan de Berwis gave to Alen his son & his heirs of his lawfully espoused wife all his Lands with the Apurtenances and free services which he had in Slegil; paying to him & his heires a penny silver per Annum rent & doeing forrane service tantum quaestum.[44] [Witness] T. Thomas de Musgrave tunc vice com. Westmorland.[45]
Anno 5. Edward 1. se Apleby. Hugo de Berwys, 36. Edward 3. of Slegill. Hugh the son of John de Berwis, 28. Edward 3. de Slegil.[46]

[I.615]

[3. Meburne Lordship]

There are Towne which bear the name of Meaberne. I read of one Rowland Thornburrough de Meubône Esq., which I take to Meaborne, but whether \ Kings or / Mauds which in Morland parish I cannot tell. I thinke was in the time of King Richard the 2nd but am not certaine.

[I.613]

There are diverse places of this name: 2 in Westmorland. Kings Meburne, which I take this to be R[egi]s.) and Mauds Meburne, which is in Crosby Ravensworth parish. And I fear that Milburne is sometimes so ~~called~~ writt, which bredeth some confusion. It is Meburne Regis.

{8. Edward 2. [1314-15]} Est Ibidem unum Messuagem Capitale &c.[47]

There is one manner house which is worth per Annum	0: 2: 0
C \xx/iiij Acres of Land,[48] qu\el Ac., valet per Annum 4d et suma est	3: 1: 4
x acres of [blank] the Herbage of which is per Annum	0: 1: 0
xxij Acres of medow, quelib. valet per Annum 14d et summa est	1: 5: 8
2 Free Tenements, which pay per Annum	0: 8: 0
44 Oxgangs of Land, each worth 5s per Annum, & summa est	11: 0: 0
42 messuages coterell,[49] worth per Annum 1s apiece, summa est	0:16: 0

[44] 'As needed.'
[45] 'Witness, Thomas de Musgrave then Sheriff of Westmorland.'
[46] 'In the 5th year of King Edward I [1276-77] see Appleby. See also Hugh de Berwys 36. Edward III. [1362-63] of Sleagill, Hugh the son of John de Berwys 28. Edward III. [1354-55] of Sleagill.'
[47] Capital messuage: see the English Glossary.
[48] 180, i.e. 100 and 4-score acres: see L. C. Hector, The Handwriting of English Documents (London, 1958), 40.
[49] 'The houses of cottagers.'

Note. Here is a mistake, for either there are but 32 messuages at 6^{d} per messuage which was the usuall rate at these Times or else the sum should be 42 shillings.
1 water mil, worth per Annum 3^{li} 6^{s}: 19. Edward 3. [1345-36].
Allso pleas and perquisites of Court, worth there 0: 5: 8

Summa 22^{li} 13^{s} 0

Dub. An de toto vel demadio?[50]
vid in Ap[pleby] anno 8. Ed. 2. [1314-15].
N[ote.] The mill must be the rest.

{1. Edward 3.}
The \ herbage of / Manner house att Meburne was extended as appeares by Inquisition, 1. Edward 3. [1327-28] att 3 shillings; but 217 Acres of demane Land by reason of the destruction which the Scotts had made – layd waste & untilled for want of Tenents – and was not worth anything save only in Herbage.[51]

[I.613]

[4. Manner de Newby][52]

There were of the sirname of Newby remaining in the time of King James,[53] of whome I finde mention amongst the writeing of the Sledalls, penes Lancelotam \ ~~Machell~~ / de Crakanthorp &c. Armigerum.[54] ([Also] Alexander de Newby with Sir Thomas de Helbeck and Thomas de Musegrave Vicecom West' testes s.d. Sed per Thomas Musg. Vicecom. Anno 36. Henry 3. [1251-52].)[55]
See an Account of Newby & Nevinsons in the beginning of this booke.[56]

[I.155]

{1. Nomen Unde?}[57]
Newby \ is a Saxon word & / may be rendered ~~in Latin~~: Novus Locus,[58] for the name implyeth no more than a new place: How be it in all antient evidences that I have mett with it, is still writt Newby notwithstanding that they were in Latin \ take in the 7.8 head here: here is nothing rem[embered] &c. /

{2. Appurtenentia}[59]
It conteines in it, besides the village it gives name to, the Lordship & [blank] and has anciently belonged \ if I may so conjecture / to a family of that name; for there were of the Newbies till of late yeres differsed in this country \ viz. in the reign of King James the 1st / {of whome is mention in Sleddals writeing, penes Lancelotus Mautcel de Crakenthorp, Armiger, but there being many places of that name, I dar not affirm their ~~pr~~ relation to this place more than another} who are \ always / writt in Latin ~~writeing~~, de Newby, & therefore \ seem to / ~~must needs~~ take their sirname \ of Newby / from hence, as many other familyes have don from the place of their residence. \ Yet there are places so calld, that might give name to such & such family. /

3. Incoli Antiqui cum Insignijs[60]
Howbeit in after times it was conveyed from family to family ~~for~~, and in 23. of Henry 8. I finde it belonged to one George Vernon of Nether Hadden in Derbyshire Esq., of whome Richard Nevinson

[50] 'Dubious. Is this the whole or the half [of the total]?'
[51] Herbage: grazing.
[52] This title has been removed from MS.I.155.
[53] James I. 1603-1625.
[54] 'In the possession of Lancelot de Crackenthorpe Esq.'
[55] 'Witness in an undated deed with Sir Thomas de Hellebeck and Thomas de Musgrave, Sheriff of Westmorland. But see Thomas Musgrave Sheriff, 26. Henry III.'
[56] For deeds relating to Newby, see MS.IV.503-07.
[57] 'Name whence?'
[58] 'New place.'
[59] 'Things belonging.'
[60] 'Inhabitants from an earlier age with their emblems.'

of Kemplees, yeoman, farmed one messuage in Nuby of the Stones, together with a wood called Neuby-Wood, & a parcel of ground called Forty Penny Farmold; which were afterwards taken out of his hands & lett in farm to Robert Cliburn & Isabel his wife, anno 32. of Henry 8. [1540-41] for 20 yeres, by the said George (who sealed with a bores head errased.)[61]
{And the name of Vernon is not a stranger to this country, for in the 15. of Edward 1. one Isabell Vernon, who quartered Hartley, & I thinke Skelton, & whose armes were frette with a canton in the textual point) was a sharer in Henry Harclays lands, Sc. Crakenthorp writings.}

{4. Incoli moderni cum Insig. et genealogia.}[62]
And about that time, one Thomas Andlay writt \ a letter / to my Lord of Cumberland[63] on the behalf of \ the said / Richard Nevinson, desireing him that through his means \ & assistance / the poor man might be secured from the perill & danger of Edmund Cliburne, his friends and adhere[n]ts. But in the 4. and 5. of Philip and Mary [1557-58], I finde Richard Nevinson of Newby Stones, yeoman, \ which was the same man possessed

[Machell's Notes: I.155]
N.B. This [page] must be corrected (because not exact) according to Method.

[I.156]
of \ a certaine / lands \ & / tenements rents & services in Newby \ Stones / which he intaled on Richard his \ 1. / son & his heires male, or for defect on Stephen \ his 2. / and his heires male, & for defect of heires male of Stephen, upon the […][64] heires of the foresaid Richard Thomas Sandford de \ of / Askome, & Thomas Blenkinsop de \ of / Helbeck Esqs, being feofees in trust for execution thereof. \ ~~there is nothing &c.~~ / From this Richard N. is desended Mr John Nevinson of Newby \ aforesaid / now liveing, as will ~~more planely~~ appear from the following Pedigree;[65] and the armes they preten to are Argent a cheveron charged with a mullet of 5 between 3 eaglett displays […][66] Azure. In Dugdal visit[ation]. Sed non prob.[67]

[I.614]
[Further evidence concerning the Nevinson Family]
3. Henry 8. [1511-12]. Richard Nevinson of Kemplees yeoman, in contest with Rowland Rigg. He farmed a messuage in Nuby in the Stones in the County of Westm'land, of George Vernon of Nether Haddon in Derbyshire Esq., together with a wood called Newby Wood and a parcel of ground caled the Forty Penny Farmald, which were ~~lett by~~ taken out of his hands and left to Rob. Cliburne & Isabell his wife Anno 32. Henry 8. [1540-41] for 28 yeres by the said George Vernon Esq., who sealed with a Bores head errased.

And I finde one Thomas Audelay write to my Lord of Cumberland in behalfe of Sir Richard Nevinson whome he compasionatly termd a pore man more than once: and desired that through his means he may be freed from the dang[er] of one Edmund Laburne, his friends and Adherents.
But in the 4. & 5. of Philip & Mary [1557-58] I finde Richard Nevinson of Newby Stones, yeoman, possessed of Lands Tenements Rents & Services in Newby, which he Intales upon Richard his son & his Heires male. Or for defect on Stephen his son & his heires male. Or for the defect upon R.T. Sandforde de Ascome & Richard de Hellebeck, feofes in trust. He had a daughter called Marion married to Rowland Robinson of Newby.

[Machell's Notes: I.612]
{N!} I wonder that I meet not with Newby amongst the manners in Cliffords evidences.

---

[61] MS: 'which were \ afterwards ~~his han~~ / taken out of his hands & lett \ in farm ~~hld~~ / to Robert Cliburn & Isabel, his wife, anno 32. of Henry 8. for ~~the terme~~ of 20 yeres, by the said George ~~Vernot Esq.~~ (who sealed ~~his grant~~ with a bore's head errased).'
[62] 'Modern inhabitants with their emblems and descent.'
[63] Henry Clifford, second earl of Cumberland, 1517-1570.
[64] Unclear word.
[65] See below.
[66] The last word of this sentence is obscured by the binding.
[67] 'But not probable.' See another version of this information below, I.614.

[I.156]

Nevinson de Nuby

5. Insignia in col. modem			Richard Nevinson of Kemplees: 23. Henry 8. obijt circa 4. & 5. Philip & Marie		The crest a leopard passa[n]t
	2. Stephen, to whom the estate of Nuby was to descend for defect of isue male of Richard, his brother		1. Richard Nevinson of Newby, eldest son and heire to Richard		Marian, maryed to Rowland Robinson of Newby in 3. & 4. of Phil. and Mary
6. Genealogia incol. modern ?	2. Jane maryed to Richard Bowerbanke of [blank]		1. Richard Nevinson de Newby ~~qui novum edificium struxit: vocat Newby Hall~~	{Mayplate daughter of one of the prebends of Carlil. Another to Kirkbride}	N.B. 2. First generations proa[v]ed out of evidences in the custody of Mr Frances Blenkinsop sup[er] of Brough. The other by information of the present aige.
8. Locus Capitalis[68] that milia tria distat ab Ecclesia1 mille et amplius[69]	2. Stephen never maryed: was sirna[m]ed 'The Long' for his taleness of stature		Edward Nevinson de Newby, justitiarius pacis qui Nuby in dedificium struxit circa 1645[70]	= Susan, daughter of Sir Christopher Dalston of Acorn Banke	3. Ann, maryed to Thomas, 2nd sonn of Sir Christopher Dalston de Acorn, & had isue
	3. Richard, Mercator apud Kendal[71]	2. Ann, maryed to Mr Hugh Machel of Crak. Hall eldest son of L.M. Esq.	1. John Nevinson de Newby generosus[72]	= maryed Elizabeth Garth of Heedbur'	4. Edward, an apprentice to a vintner at London	5. Margaret, maryed to Walton, tanner in Pen[rith]

7. Loci et res notatu digniores in manerio[73] The manner house, as aperes, fore one built by R.N., 1645, 2 miles ab ecclesia. There is nothing that I know of remarkable in this Lordship but that it lyes all upon a slape limestone,[74] especially in the street of Newby, whence it is called Newby Stones, and coales that not of the best sort are gott.

[68] 'Main seat that is three miles and more distant from the church.'
[69] 'Distant from the church 1 mile and more.'
[70] 'Edward Nevinson de Newby, justice of the peace, who built a hall at Nuby, circa 1645.'
[71] 'Merchant at Kendal.'
[72] 'Gentleman.'
[73] 'Places and points noteworthy in the manor.'
[74] 'Slape' can mean slippery or smooth. OED.

IV.509]

[5. Strickland]

Strickland Chapel

Strickland Chappel was a chantery founded by Sir Walter de Stirkeland, salva jure jurando matricis ecclesie de Morland indemnitate,[75] about the time of King Richard 1. For Sir William de Stirkeland great-grandchilde of the foresaid Sir Walter, confirmed the gift of his great grandfather Deo et Sancta Marie et Abbi Sancta Marie, Ebor'[76] & to the monks of Wederhal & St Beeys of Coupland – anno 1292, Sc. 2 of Ed. 1. And I will transcribe the original charter for the excellency of it, because it shews what dependence all chappels have, or should have, on their mother churches.[77]

[Machell's Notes: IV.509]

Qu. Whether it be the same with that which is lately repared & indowed by Mr Fletcher, 'twixt Little Strickland & Thrimby.[78]

{No. It seemeth to be in Magna Stirkeland per cartam Willielmi infra & to be serted in Curia de Styrkel ut infra in 2^0 carta; i.e. in the courtyard or fold.}

[III.263A]

[Melkinthorpe Hall, the Manor House of Great Strickland]

Ad Morland Parish March 18 1688/9

Armes in Melkinthorp Hall, being the manner house of Great Strickland.

Figure 1.17.2. Arms at Melkinthorpe Hall. III.263A.

In the Nursery painted 1. Azure. 2 Argent. 3 Argent. 4 as the 1.
The first is in the nursery painted on the wall, and is the Armes of Musgrave Quartering Ward & Stapleton.
2. In the closset of the said nursery, being a rude essay by the same hand, of the Fallowfields Armes and to each of these are 2 rabbets for the supporters.
3. Upon a wooden chimney piece in the Parlour, being the Armes of Dalston of Ackorn Banke impaleing Fallowfield by reason of a match with that family. Note, there ar 2 crists, the 1. a daws head ariseing through a crownet from of a wreath; 2. a boares head couped.

[75] 'Saving the rights of the mother-church of Morland by indemnity.'
[76] 'To God and St Mary and the Abbey of St Mary at York.'
[77] See 'Charters in the Register of Wetheral Priory relating to Walter Strickland', below, IV.509.
[78] Thomas Fletcher, a lawyer, was responsible for the restoration of the chapel. The commemorative stone is dated 1695 but the restoration seems to have taken place in 1681. See 'Strickland, Little', in An Inventory of the Historical Monuments in Westmorland (London, 1936), 221-22.

[Machell's Notes: III.263B]

{Melkinthorpe Hall commonly calld: but properly Great Strickland Hall.}

{Query for an account of rare herbes in Westmorland from Mr Dalston, & my booke of Cristianography by Paget,[79] which he had from Mr Fletcher.}[80]

[I.615]

[Strickland Families]

Walter de Strickland. West' 11. Henry 3. [1226-27]. Se more in the Barony de Kendal.[81]

Richard Crackanthorp.

{Strickland} Parvy[82] gave life as I have bin informd to that famous & learned & Ingenious writer Dr Richard Crakanthorp who writ [blank] &c.[83]

[I.265]

[Crackenthorpe of Little Strickland Pedigree.] March 6 1688/9 by Grace Watson[84]

? 1. Richard Crakenthorp of Newbiging Esq.	2. Christopher Crakenthorp of Little Strickland, gentleman. Tooke to wife =	[Blank] the daughter of [blank] Salkeld of Rosgil Esq. & had issue
2. Thomas obijt sine prole	Richard Crakenthorp of Little Strickland, gentleman, who marryed =	Elizabeth, daughter of [blank] Farer of Crosby Ravenwath, by whom he had	Ann = wife of Will Vary of Shap		Barbara maryed to [blank] Petty of Kaber
	Christopher Crakenthorp of Little Strickland, Gentleman, who tooke to wife =	Jane, daughter of Andrew Hudleston of Hutton John Esq. & had isue	Ann, maryed to John Wharton of Kirkby -thor Esq.	Grace = John Watson of Deepa bridge near Kendal	Barbara = to [1.] Winter of Morland; [2.] idem to [Blank] Hudson	Mary maryed to one Adam Thwait of Russen-dale.
Andrew Crakenthorpe	1. Richard Crakenthorp of Little Strickland, Gentleman, who maryed	[Blank]

[I.615]

{Fallowfield of Strickland}

Fallowfields lived sometime at Strickland juxt Melkinthorpe, who tooke their names from Fallowfield ~~in~~ town so called in Northumberland \ not far from Hexham / on this side the Picts Wall near upon the midle thereof. They had bin \ sometime / majors of Appleby, as is usuall with the gentry of best repute in this Country. & their Armes were upon one of the pillers in the Butterhouse att Appleby, with the [79] Ephraim Pagit, (c.1575-April 1647*) Christianographie, or, a Description of the Sundrie Sorts of Christians in the World* (1635).

[80] Thomas Fletcher, lawyer, of Little Strickland. See Part 1, Ch.5, Barton, I.678.

[81] See Stricklands of Sizergh etc. in Part 2, Ch.7, Heversham, from II.163.

[82] Little Strickland.

[83] Richard Crakanthorpe (bap.1568, d.1624), Church of England clergyman and logician, was born at Little Strickland and baptised at Morland, the second son of John Crakanthorpe and Mabel Cowper. According to Anthony Wood, he was admitted aged sixteen to Queen's College, Oxford, as a 'poor serving child, then a tabardar', in 1583 (Wood, Ath. Oxon., 2.361). At Queen's he came under the influence of the puritan John Reynolds, whom he described as 'a walking library of all learning and all knowledge' (Defensio ecclesia Anglicanae, 494). He proceeded B.Th. in 1597 and fellow in 1598. Anthony Wood remarked that Crakanthorpe, 'being a noted preacher, and a profound disputant in divinity … was admired by all great men, and held in veneration, especially by the puritanical party, he being himself a zealot among them.' (Wood, Ath. Oxon., 2.361). Such was his reputation for preaching that in 1600 he was selected to convert Catholic prisoners in York Castle. Renowned as a teacher, he was unusual in leaving traces of his teaching methods (Queen's College, Oxford, library, MS.196). See A. Cambers, 'Crakanthorpe, Richard'. ODNB.

[84] Grace Watson nee Crackenthorp, who married John Watson of Deepa bridge, Kendal. See pedigree, I.265.

late addition of a Bores head in a Canton? The last of this Family was Lucy the daughter of Richard Fallowfield Esq.; who was maryed to John Dalston of Acornebanke Esq. to whose fortunes she brought (all things considered) an accession of 6 or 7000 pounds, & was mother of one or two and twenty children by him, but most of them dyed. Both she and her husband are now living, 1675. And Christopher their eldest son maryed to Mary the sister of Sir George Fletcher & has Isue by her.

[IV.509]

[Charters in the Register of Wetheral Priory relating to Walter Strickland]

{Carta 213 Folio 100}[85]

Omnibus Xti fidelibus ad quorum noticiam presens scriptum. Walterus de Styrkeland miles eternam in D[omi]no Salutem.

Noveritis me promisisse pro me et heredibus meis indem\p/nitatem matricis eccle[siæ] de Moreland in Omnibus, pro Cantaria habenda in Capella mea qua[m] habeo in Curia mea de Stirkelaund, qua[m] cantaria[m] tam R Abbas et conventus S[an]c[t]e Marie Ebor[aci] Patroni ejusdem Ecclesiæ, quam Michael tunc temporis Vicarius ejusdem – mihi concesserunt. Ita quod Capellanus meus, quicumq[ue] pro tempore deserviet illi capellae, jurabit fidelitatem et obedientia[m] vicario matricis Ecclesiæ de Morelaund & Rectoribus ejusdem Eccle[siæ] qui pro tempore fuerint, et illis præsentabitur, et per eos in capella serviet. Ita tamen q[uo]d ego et heredes mei tam capellae, quam capellanis, in omnibus competenter providemus.

Iurabit autem Capellanus meus, in Capella mea ministrans, quod nullum p[ar]ochianorum de Morlaund, nec aliquem extraneum, recipiet ad confessionem, vel ad alia divina officia, vel sacramenta, in prejudicium Matricis Ecclesiæ de Morlaund, et Rectorum ejusdem q[ui]que tempore fuerint.

[IV.510]

Et quod Omnis Oblationis obventiones qualescumque fuerint, et undecumq[ue] provenierint, fideliter et integre sine aliqua detentione Matrici Eccle[siæ] persolvet, et fidelis tam matrici Eccle[siæ] p[ræ]dictae quam Rectoribus ejusdem in Omnibus existet.

Preterea, ego Walterus Juravi, pro me et heredibus meis, quod sicut prædictum est, nullum p[ar]ochianoru[m] vel aliorum p[er]mittam admitti ad divina officia, vel oblationes vel obventiones a capellano meo ibidem detineri.

Preterea juravi pro me et heredibus quod fideliter p[er]solvemus Matrici Ecclesiæ omnes decimas domus meae, tam majores qua[m] minores, tam animalium qua[m] servientiu[m]

Preterea juravi quod ego et uxor mea cum familia mea debitis et consuetis solempnitatibus, sc. die Natali, Purific[ationis], Resurrectionis, et Assumptionis, cum debitis et consuetis oblationibus, et obventionibus, Matrice[m] Ecclesia[m]prædicta[m] visitabimus.

Preterea juravi pro me et heredibus meis quod si ego vel heredes mei, vel cap[e]llanus noster aliquando contra aliquem articulum in hoc scripto insertum, in aliquo excesserimus, & post p[ri]mam admonitionem competenter non satisfecerimus super prædicto excessu, licebit rectoribus vel vicarijs Matricis Eccle[siæ] qui pro tempore fuerint, me, et capellanu[m] meum, per sententiam Excom[m]unicationis sive suspensionis in me et capellanu[m] meu[m], et etia[m] in capella[m] mea[m] ferenda[m], omni appellac[i]one et cavillac[i]one, sive quolibet juris remedio remotis, ad condignam compellere satisfactionem.

Juravi etiam pro me, et pro dictis heredibus meis q[uo]d nunquam aliquid impetrabimus contra matricem Ecclesia[m] quo minus hoc præsens scriptu[m] ratum et stabile permaneat in perpetuum. Q[uo]d si aliquo casu impetratum fuerit, auctoritate præsentis scripti, irritum sit et inane

[IV.511]

Insuper autem, præter predictam Iuratoriam cautionem, per sigillum meum huic scripto appositum me et heredes meos ad omnia suprascripta fideliter observanda in perpetuum obligavi.

Hijs Testibus: Radulpho Priore; Magistro G Archid[iacono]; D[omi]no W. offic[iali] karliolensi; Ric[ard]o Brun T[home] fil[io]; Johannis tunc vicecomitibus Cumberland et Westmarie; {!} Michaele et Waltero vicarijs de Appelb[y] et de Morlaund; Rob[er]to de Castelkairoc; Thom[a] De Louther; [85] These and other charters relating to Morland in MS.IV.490A-523, were transcribed by Machell [and others] from those in the Register of Wetheral Priory. Machell praised the excellence of the first, see above.

Ada[m] de Slegyle; Steph[an]o et Rob[er]to de Newby; Thoma de Aslachby; Ricard[o] Overstrang'; et alijs multis.[86]

[Machell's Note on the Charter above]

This R. Abbas mentioned in the Beginning of the Carta must either be Rob. in the time of King Richard 1 & King John, his brother; or Richard Abbat in the Time of King Henry I.
The Sheriffs names will help me nothing, for the[y] begin only in the catal[ogue] from the Time of Henry 2. There is one Thomas de Clifford, & Rob. de Brun – Sheriffs of W. Cumberland, Anno 1^0, 2^0 Edward 3 {?} But this will not do. See ergo the confirm. Chart.

[IV.511]

{Cart. 214. Folio 101. 15 or 16 Henry 3.}

The same Sir Walter Stirkeland Knight, gave to the Church of St Mary Yorke and to the Prior & Monks of Wederhal iiii acres of Land in the Territory of Stirkeland, Sc. ii Acres & one Rod, & X. perches (1 Rodum et 2 Preacas) in Alderderiding et V. Rodas from the Towne head towards the West. & they abut upon Leyreberch; & 1. Rod & ½ upon Ulfangeberch, & ½ a Rod under Sheretofts &c. in pure & perpetual Alms &c. with all Commons, Liberties & Easement &c. Sc. so much as may belong unto so much ground excepting only his owne proper wood; & That it may be lawful to him & & his heires to till that Land when it is divided betwene him, the said Walter, & Roger son of Waldeve, non-obstante ista carta. And that the corne growing upon the premises & another ½ acre which Sygerit a widow gave unto them, should be ground multer free at his miln of Stirkeland, with warrantis contra omnes hom[ines].[87]

---

[86] 'To all the faithful in Christ to whom this present writing comes, Walter of Strickland, Knight, send eternal greetings in the Lord. You know that I have promised, on behalf of myself and my heirs, the endorsement of the mother church of Moreland in all matters, for holding a chantry in the chapel which I have in my court in Strickland, which chantry both R. the Abbot and House of Saint Mary of York, patrons of that church, and likewise Michael, at that time its Vicar, granted to me. It shall be in such a way that the chaplain, whoever at that time shall officiate at that chapel, shall swear loyalty and obedience to the Vicar of the mother church of Moreland and the Rectors of that church, whoever they are at the time, and he shall be presented to them and shall officiate through them in the chapel. It shall be in such a way, however, that I and my heirs shall make suitable provision in all matters, for the chapel as for the Chaplains. Moreover, my Chaplain, ministering in my chapel, shall receive none of the parishioners of Morland, nor any outsider, to confession or to other divine offices or sacraments to the detriment of the mother church of Morland and its Rectors, whoever they shall be at the time. Also, that he shall discharge the payments from every offering, of whatever kind they shall be, and wherever they shall come from, faithfully and honestly, without retaining any, to the mother church, and shall be true both to the aforesaid mother church and likewise to its Rectors in all things.
Moreover, I Walter have sworn, on behalf of myself and my heirs, that, just as it has been said earlier, I shall allow none of the parishioners or other people to be admitted to divine offices, nor for payments or offerings to be kept by my Chaplain there. Moreover, I have sworn, on behalf of myself and my heirs, that we shall faithfully pay the mother church all the tithes of my house, both the greater and the lesser, of animals and equally of those who do service. Moreover, I have sworn that I and my wife, along with my family, will visit upon the aforesaid mother church the due and customary offerings and payments. Moreover, I have sworn, on behalf of myself and my heirs, that if I or my heirs or our Chaplain at any time, in any way, transgress against any clause included in this document and, after a first admonition, fail to make proper atonement for the aforesaid transgression, the Rectors or Vicars of the mother church who are incumbent at the time shall have licence to compel me and my Chaplain to deserved penance, through sentence of Excommunication or Suspension against me or my Chaplain and applied even against my chapel, without any appeal or objection or any legal remedy at all. I have sworn also on behalf of myself and my said heirs, that we shall never make any claim against the mother church that would prevent this present document remaining fixed and valid in perpetuity. But if in any event a claim shall be made, by the authority of the present document it should be invalid and vain. Moreover, besides the aforesaid solemn oath, by my seal attached to this document I have bound myself and my heirs to everything written above to be faithfully observed forever.
Witnesses: Radulph the Prior; Master G the Archdeacon; Lord W, officiating at Carlisle; Richard Brun son of Thomas; the Johns who were then sheriffs of Cumberland and Westmorland (!); Michael and Walter, Vicars of Appleby and Morland; Robert of Castle Carrock; Thomas of Lowther; Adam of Slegill; Stephen and Robert of Newby; Thomas of Aslachby; Richard of Overstang; and many others.'

[87] Literally, 'with guarantees against all men' (i.e. with guarantees that no man may gainsay these provisions).

Hiis Testibus: Walter de Stirk. Mil; Radulpho Priore; Magistro [?] Archid; Domino W. offic' Parl; Rico Brun' & Thom fil Johanis vicecomitis de Cumberland et de Wesm'landia; Robo de Casteljairoc fre' suo [Sc Walteri]; Ada[m] filio freo; Walter decano Westm'landie; Michele vicario de Morlaund; Johe filio William; Thoma de Louther; Tho Strancigena; Adaa[m] & Rob filiis suis; Hug; Francis […]; Ada[m] de Slegill; Stepho. et Rob. de Newby.

[IV.513]

{Cart 215 fol. 201b.}
Willielmus de Stirkeland miles doth confirm & grant to God & St Mary & the abbat of St Maryes at Yorke & monks of Wederhal, & of St Beys in Coupland, all the lands that they then had of the gift & concession of Sir Walter de Stirkeland his great grandfather, & all other his ancestors in the village & territory of Great Stikeland* and doth quit clame unto al the said premises, which he \ or his h. / might have by any manner of way. Exceptis o[b]v[entientibus] [?] om[ni]b[u]s et Beneficijs addend[is] &c. – Datum apud Appilby in Westm'land die Iovis IX[a] post festum Sancti Wylfridi Archiepiscopi anno gre[goriano] m°, cc°, nonaginta secundo. {1292. 20. Ed. I.} Et An[n]° R[egni] Regis Eduardi vicesimo. [88]
Hijs Testibus: Michael de Hartclay; Thoma de Derwentwater; Hugone de Multon' militibus; Rob[er]to de Warthwic; Will[iam]o de Wyndsover', Will[iam]o fil[io] ejus; Ada[m] de Haierigton'; et multis alijs.

[Machell's Notes: IV.513]

*{This show it to be Stirkeland Magna.}

[IV.512]

The Descendants of Sir Walter Stirkeland from the foresaid Charters

Walter de Styrkeland Miles =
|
Adam fil Walteri =
|
Robertus de Strikeland Miles =
|
Willus de Stirkeland Miles 1292: 20. Ed. I.

Forsan sorore[m] Roberti. De Castelkairoc[89] inde frat[er] dict[us] int[er] testes

Note also – There then was a Deane of the Denary of Westm'land q? What the Rural Deanes were? See Godolphin.[90]

[6. Thrimby]

[IV.519]

Thrinneby
The name of this Towne, and of the family which tooke their name from it, was anciently written \ Turneby / Thrinneby; Thrineby & Thyrneby: contractly[91] now Thrimby.

{Willielmus de Thrinneby}
|
Johanes de Thrineby = Alicia, forsan e com Salopiæ}[92]

[88] 'With the exception of all payments [?] and benefits to be added etc. Dated at Appelby in Westmorland the ninth day after the feast of Saint Wilfred Archbishop in the Gregorian year 1292 and in the twentieth year of the reign of King Edward.'
[89] 'Perhaps the sister of Robert of Castel Kairoc. Thence the said brother among the witnesses.'
[90] John Godolphin (1617-1678), Repertorium canonicum, or, an abridgment of the ecclesiastical laws of this realm, consistent with the temporal wherein the most material points relating to such persons and things, as come within the cognizance thereof, are succinctly treated (1678). Machell studied Godolphin's volumes while staying at Rose Castle. See Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, II.367, where Machell writes to the bishop's secretary because, 'I left your Godolphin's 2 volumes in my chamber at Rose: & I fear the Extract which I made out of them (my man neglecting to put up that paper amongst my other things) might be left there also…'
[91] 'Contractly': a form of 'contractively'. OED.
[92] 'Perhaps from the county of Shropshire.'

{Fol. 102b. Carta 217.}[93]
II. And John the son of William de Thrinneby, \ granted, / gave & confirmed Deo et Ecclesiae St Mary Ebor[aci]. Et Ecclesiae S[anctae] Trinitatis et Sancti Constantini de Weddhal & monachis &c. A certain parcel \ part / of land of his toft of Thrinneby, conteineing fower pertches & ½ in breath. & vj in Length, with a grange scituated thereupon (tenend[um] in pa[ce] etc. adeo libere integre & quiete sicut aliqua terra liberius et quietius alicui domui religionis poterit dari vel concedi)[94] \ & / free from moulter, with free ingress & egress through his own croft \ when his / after the corne was inded. With general warranty et omnes homines.
Hiis Testibus: Thoma de Musegrave t[un]c vic[ario] Westmer[iae]; Domino Walter[o] Vicari[o] St Michael de Appelby t[un]c Decano; Dom[in]is Joh[ann]e de Morevill & Rob[erto] de Stirkland militibus; Ric[ard]o de Aquila vir[o] de Moreland; Domino Nicho[la] Rectore Ecclesiæ de Cliburne; Hugone Capellano; Gilb[erto] de Slegyle; Rob[ert]o Francissco; et Hug[one] de Tylia et alijs.

[Machell's Notes on the Pedigree and Charter above]
1. N.B. This Robert de Stirkeland, may probably be son of Adam & grandchild of Walter in the foregoing pedigree.
2. N.B. As to the date; if it be so; this was before the 20. Ed. 1. [1291-1292], for William de Stirkeland, great grand to Walter, was living then.
3. As to Tho. de Musgraves being sheriff of Westmorland. I finde one of that name neare 50 years after, Sc. the 16. & 17. Ed. 3. [1342-1344] But there might be another Thomas before. The best way to finde out this difficulty is to have recourse to confirmatio charters {?}[95] Qu? Ideo.[96]

[IV.520]

{Thirneby; cart 220, fol. 104}[97]
There were also lands in Thrimby, belonging to the Priory or Convent of Watton. And a difference ariseing betwene them and the rectors of the church of Morland, concerneing theire deteineing of certaine tithes as well as their lands which were farmed out, as of those which were in their own hands, in prejudice of the privilege granted by the Apostolic See. (1) For the heareing \ & decideing / of which, A. Abbat of Melsa H. Prior of Bridlington, & Mr R. de Longyngton mere delegated (a sum'pontifice) by the popes appointment. In whose presence this composition was in the conclusion amicably made. Sc. – That the foresaid Convent of Watton should pay for the future to the rectors of Morland the tythe of all their Corne within the said parish without any exaction or reteinure as well \ both / of their lands let & \ valett / to be let; or by what title soever held, or to be held for the future by them in the parish of Morland.
Except one carucate of land which they hold in Demaine in Thirneby. For the tythes of which they were to pay to the church of Morland and the rectors, one marc of silver yearly – halfe at Easter & halfe at Martinmas.
And the proctors of the House of Watton (whom they had autherised on this behalf) by the content of the said Convent, & the rectors of the church of Morland by the consent of the Abbat & Convent of St Maryes Yorke, swore each other upon the Evangelists, that this should be firmely observed forever. And the delegates confirmed this agreement by affixing their seales, together with the Seale of the Convent of Watton.
N.B. it is an excellent well pen'd composition, & worthy trans[cription].

[93] An extract from a deed concerning a dispute with the Convent of Watton over land at Thrimby. For other charters from the Register of Wetheral Priory relating to Thrimby, see MS.IV.517-19.
[94] '…thereupon (to be held in peace etc. as freely, fully and peaceably as any land can be freely and peaceably given or granted to any religious house).'
[95] 'Confirmation of the Charters'. The term – Confirmatio Chartarum – is applied specifically to the confirmation of Magna Charta and the Charter of the Forests by Edward I in 1297. OED.
[96] 'Query, therefore.'
[97] Another of Machell's deeds, copied from the Register of Wetheral Priory.

Bewley Castle
Beauly Castle might probably, ere I turne to the Bishops, gave name to family [Blank][98] whose arms are Argent a cheveron betweene 3 rookes head erased Sable beaked Gules. Lib. Arm. Penes J.T. p.126.[99]

[IV.521]

[7. Meburn Regis]

Mem[orandum] quae finalis Concordia cora[m] Judicibus com[m]uniter dicitur finis factus Carta Joh[ann]is de Ravensby de quadam placea in Meaburn Regis ubi Grangia sita est.[100]

{Fol. 110 b.; Cart. 237}[101]
Wherein John, the son of Walter de Ravensby, caritatis intuitu et pro salute animarum antecessorum et successorum suorum) gave, granted & confirmed, in pura[m] &c. to God & the Abbot of St Maryes Yorke, & the moncs of St Trinity & St Constantine of Wederhal – one place (unam placeam) in the end of his croft which he held of the Bishop of Karliol in Meburn Regis (versus aquilonem de longitudine quinquies viginti et 12 pedum. Ab aquilone v[er]sus austrum infra fossatas cum fossatis ad utrumque capud, {!} Et de Latudine ad Capud versus aquilonem quinquaginta duorum pedum; et de latitudine versus austrum septuaginta duorum pedum infra fossatas cum fossatis ex utraque parte).[102] Free from al secular service & exaction in puer & perpetual almes forever. And for that the said Abbat of St Mary Yorke and the moncs of Wederal had received him & the souls of his ancestor & his successors into their prayers. He & his heires did therefore warrant the said pece of land with all the libertyes & easements contra omnes Gentes in perpetuum &c. Hiis Testibus {Dominis Roberto de Ravenswithe, Tho. Derwentwater, militibus; Johe de Helton; Robo de Slegille; Allno le Butifer; Waltero de Boulton, Hugone de Colleby et alijs.}

[III.267]

[8. ad Bolton]

[Wybergh of Bolton Pedigree]

Geffray Wyber, a second brother of the Wybers of Clifton, bought that ancient freehold which is called Bolton Hall, with other tenements and som tenants there; & maryed	=	Briget, the onely childe of Robert Teasdale of Dufton & Sowerby, who is said to have given her her weight in silver nomine dotis.[103]
{vixit circit? 70 annores}[104] Thomas Wyber of Bolton, temp. C. I; sold it to his fathers sister, Mrs Dor[othy] Halton, relict of Mr Miles Halton of Graystock who was steward there to the [blank] and tooke to wife one	=	Katherine Wilson, daughter of [blank] By whom he had [blank]
Mr Geffray Wyber, an attorney at law of [blank] in London, who plac'd himself there and maryed	=	Isabel, one of the daughters of Mr [Blank] Patrickson of [Blank] in the county of Cumberland.

[98] Family of Bewley.
[99] 'Book of Arms at the house of J.T., p.126.' See MS.IV.497, where Machell inferred that Bewley Castle was in Appleby parish. This had been an object of disputation but by 1777 it was agreed that Bewley Castle should be part of Morland. N&BI, 456.
[100] 'Memorandum of the final concord [made] before the judges which is generally agreed [to be] the boundary, in a deed of John of Ravensby concerning a certain place in Meaburn Regis where the Grange is situated.'
[101] From Machell's deed collection, copied from the Register of Wetheral Priory.
[102] 'For the sake of charity and for the salvation of the souls of his ancestors and his successors gave etc. ... [a place with measurements of] five times twenty and twelve feet towards the north; from north to south within the ditches, including the ditches at each end; and in breadth to the northward end fifty-two feet; and in breadth southward seventy-two feet within the ditches including the ditches on each side.'
[103] 'By way of a dowry.'
[104] 'He lived about 70 years.'

[I.615]

Name of Bolton:
Arnold de Bolton
William son of Arnold de B[olton]
Testis cum Tho. de Hellebeck & Tho. de Museg. Vicecom s.d. circa 36. Henry 3. [1251-1252]. tunc enim \ M. / vicecomes.[105]

[I. 595]

Bolton Chapel in Westm'land[106]
Porch: lef[t] \ side / a man with a mell right h[and]; an Ax left.[107]
Back doere: 2 Horsemen, one with a Colour,[108] combating, & an Inscription.[109]
E. window: 2 Coates:
1. Argent 3 Bars Gules; on a canton of the 2 a cnq[110] of the 1^{t}.[111]
2. Argent a Br.[112] Ingraled \ & / charged with an half moon of the first; in Chief an escalop of the 2nd.[113]
In the church y[ard] [an effigy of] a woman at length.[114]

[I.612]

Bolton Hall
Bolton Hall is now possesed by one Halton. I meat with one bishop of that name amo[n]sgst \ Blenkinsops writeing (de Ellergill), \ and finde Thomas de Halton a witness to a deed / 34. Edward 3. [1360-1361], but whether he be any thing related to or descended from either I know not.

[I.615]

Bolton Ouse Fauld. See Good: Antiq. Jew in fine Cap. 4 Liberi 5 cedere de statu ad fam. Mach[ell].[115]

---

[105] 'A witness with Thomas de Hellebeck and Thomas de Musgrave, sheriff, undated, c.36 Henry III. For there was then a Musgrave sheriff.' Machell does not name a Musgrave in his list of sheriffs in the reign of Henry III, identifying only Veteripontes and Cliffords: see the Catalogue of Sheriffs in Part 1, Machell's Preface, from VI.593.

[106] Two deeds (1326) relating to Brampton have been recorded on MS.IV.497-501. Sadly, Machell wrote at the end of the second deed, 'Time & ill-usage has defac'd the rest, being only 2 lines, and in halfe at best.'

[107] In 1926, this figure was described as follows: 'The left one bears a figure, with a hammer in one hand and an axe in the other; while the right one has a strange figure with wings, perhaps an angel.' See T.A. Carmichael, 'Bolton Church', CW2, 27 (1927), 188-94, at 190.

[108] A flag.

[109] Described by Carmichael as, 'On the north side of the church, over what was a Norman doorway (now a window), is a stone slab built into the wall, commemorating a tournament. The age of this stone is told by the curious kite-shaped shields and lances which the knights carry. They were peculiar to the time of Henry II (1154-1189). The slab is of red sandstone, 26 by 162 inches, roughly chiselled but deeply cut, having a frame in high relief round the picture. Adjoining this slab is another (on the right), apparently the companion to it, built into the wall, measuring 21 by 132 inches and bearing an inscription in uncial letters, hitherto unexplained.' Carmichael, 'Bolton Church', 189.

[110] Cinquefoil.

[111] For a description of this particular coat of arms see CFH, 'Derwentwater', 90.

[112] Abbreviated word. Possibly 'bordure'.

[113] Carmichael gives the history of one of the windows, as follows, 'The little round-headed window, over the priest's door, contains some ancient glass, representing a shield (turned upside down) with the arms of Radcliff (Ratcliff) and Derwentwater. The Derwentwaters, from the time of King John (1199-1216), held the manor of Bolton, while the ancestors of Sir John de Derwentwater (about 1326) founded the chantry in this church; hence the presence of the arms aforesaid. The Ratcliffs succeeded the Derwentwaters as lords of the manor of Bolton.' Carmichael, 'Bolton Church', 192.

[114] This was described in 1926 as, 'Upright against the wall on … the south side of the church is placed the stone effigy of a lady with hands clasped on the breast; the details of the dress seem to point to the time of Edward III (1327-1377). The pillowstone indicates that the original position was horizontal, not vertical, and very probably rested in the chancel on a raised altar-tomb.' Carmichael, 'Bolton Church', 189-90.

[115] Thomas Good (1609/10-1678), Church of England clergyman and Master of Balliol, Oxford, published only one volume, Firmianus and Dubitantius; certain dialogues concerning Atheism, Infidelity, Popery, and other Heresies and Schismes that trouble the peace of the Church and are destructive of primitive piety (1674): J. Jones, 'Good, Thomas (1609/10-1678)'. ODNB. Why Machell might have associated Thomas Good's work on heresy with the inhabitants of Bolton Ouse Fauld is worthy of further study.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 18]

[Parish of Musgrave]

[III.271]

This parish is bounded from the North to the E. with \ ~~a part~~ / Rumakirk parish in Yorkshire* \ and from E. to South[1] with the parish of Brough; from S. to West with part of Kirkby [Stephen] & part \ of Crosby [Garrett]; / from West to N. with Warcop parish.

[III.282]

Musgrave
S.E. from Appelby 5m.
S.W. from Brough 1m.
N. a Kirkby 2m.
N. a Kendal 16m.
N. ab Orton 10m.

[III.279][2]

{Great Musgrave}[3]
Great Musgrave lyeth East from Little Musgrave on the other side of the River Eden, being distant from it about ½ a quarter of a mile, & the lordships ar joined \ together / by a wooden[4] bridge near to the church, which standeth humbly at the skirt of an hill wheron the towne is built.[5] It is slated over & has small bells which hang in a tympanum. On the North side of it is an old Hall house, which belongs to one Spencer.

[I.622]

[Musgrave Church and Parish]

[To] Musgrave church belongs Musgrave Great, Flithome, [Lang]rig.

[III.273]

The church is a little one, having 2 little bells hanging in a timpanum; the body being in length 12 yards, & the quire 8, & both of a bredth. Sc. about 4 yards and an halfe. On the south side of the body of the church is a fair quier, having an arched doer to enter into it, & another arch, which gives light into the church, under which, I suppose, som ancient monument hath formerly layde \ stood. /

[III.279]

{Parsonage}
The parsonage house stands E. thereof about 30 yards distant,[6] there being but a passage from the Town to the bridge which divides the church yard from the Parsonage fold. It is a strong house, & pleasantly scituate, having curious walkes (~~near it~~) on the other side Eden, & woods on this.

[Hall Crofts 1.][7]
And the like advantage of situation has another great house on the N. side & nearer the church, which belongs to one Spencer. It is the farest house in the Towne, & I am apt to thinke it has formerly bin the Hall sold of with other lands in freehold or \ otherwise / passd of in tenancy (as ~~other~~ \ diverse / lands were at Brough & Winton on the like occasion) upon the Musgraves removeing to Hartley. For tho there be a place near the miln which is called Hall Crofts, where Sir Christopher now is building an house & where I once was of opinion that the Hall might have stood, I am now rather inducd to believe that the said crofts have taken their name from one Hall, a tenant, of whom som part of them were purchased, than from their having belong'd to the Hall or manner house of ancient demaine.

---

[1] MS: ' \ and ~~part of Trough Warcop~~ / from E. to South ...'
[2] This page reworks I.163 margin, III.271 and III.273.
[3] Little Musgrave lies in Crosby Garrett parish: see III.163-64.
[4] MS; 'woned.'
[5] MS: '~~This village is scituate on the top of an hill att the skirt of~~ which standeth ~~the church~~ \ humbly / at the skirt of an hill wheron the towne is built.'
[6] A note on MS.III.272 offers, '{The parsonage house 40 yards W. ab Ecclesia: a good house on the banke of Eden, & pleasantly situated.}' Note the slight difference in distance from the church in these two passages.
[7] The texts, Hall Crofts 1. and 2., offer different narratives relating to Hall Crofts.

[III.273]

[Hall Crofts 2.]
[The arched door at the church] is now used in common for the parishoners, but seemeth formerly, when there was a manner house here, to have belongd to the Lord of the Manner, which is thought to have stood a[t] a place near to the milne called Hall Crofts, wher Sir Christopher Musgrave is now building an house upon 4 tenements purchased by his father; but there being one Hall, the owner of som at least of those crofts makes the thing dubiouse. Yet it might be so still, for the first of that family might take his name, John de Auly,[8] from he being possesd of the Hall in tenency.

[III.273]

[Church: Quire]
In the quier is a through of \ blewish / gray marble, with the figure of a shaven monke grav'd in brass, in his robes & coape, holding up his hands in a praying posture, & this Inscription over his brest betwixt the 2 shoulders. REPO &c. –i.e. Reposita ē ħ spes. Mea in sinu meo*.[9] And in 4 roundells, one at each corner, the upper part of an angel, with this label: IHU i.e. Jesu Mercy. & on the left side, Mercy Jesu. And in brass under his feet, this Inscription: ORATE &c. id est Orate pro anima m[agist]ri Thomæ Oudo quondam re[c]tor[is] [blank] domi[norum] epi[scopi] et Archdiaconi Carl[iolensis] officialis qui obijt XXII […].[10]

[Machell's Notes: III.273]

*{In the register when he was rector.}

[III.272]

This Oudo, it seems sometimes rector here, was official, both to the bishop of the Diocess & to the Arch-Deacon. By which it appears the Arch-Deacon then had som jurisdiction, however it came to be lost afterwards; for An Official to a Bishop is a Bishops Commissary, which differs from a Chancellour who hat[h] a General Jurisdiction in being restrained to som certaine places & som certaine causes according to the Bishops limitation; whence the law calls them officiales forraneos; quasi astricti cuidem foro Diocesios Vicariatim,[11] they being to exercise their authority in such remote places from the Bishops consistory, as that his Chancellour can not without too great a prejudice call his subjects to it. Or in such places as are the Bishops Peculiars, & exempt from the Archdeacons jurisdiction*.

[Machell's Notes: III.272]

*{Godolph[in] Reper[torium], Cap.10, §1.;[12] out of Ridleys VI, W. Part 2, Cap.2, p.3} {a. Gloss[ary] in Chem. de Rescript.}[13]
{The canon \ canon 127 / sayes no person may be an Official or Commissary under the age of 26. He may be a Dr or Batchelor of Divinity (or by the 21. Henry 8. [1529-30], a Doctor of the Civil Law) or at the least a Master of Arts or Batchelor of Law.}

[III.273]

[Church Windows]
In the East window \ light / a man in armour with a Brown circot & sword hanging before: hilt Or; handl Argent; belt & scabberd Blew; his helmet round like a cap, beset with a bordure Sable, studed with cross crosletts Or; on his right hand an hawke; On his left a shield 3 inch½: Argent, Or. [14]
{In the 3rd light, Or, between 4 Besants {?} Sable charged with 4 cross crosslets, & plane cross Argent.}

---

[8] Aula = hall.
[9] 'reposita est haec spes mea in sinu meo': 'my hope reposes in my breast', (AVB), Job, Ch.19, v.26-27.
[10] 'Pray for the soul of Master Thomas Oudo, once rector … officer of the Bishop and Archdeacon of Carlisle, who died on 22 [...]' See N&B1, 588.
[11] 'Officials from outside; as if restricted to a certain sphere of jurisdiction, deputising for Diocesan.'
[12] John Godolphin (1617-78), Repertorium canonicum, or, an abridgment of the ecclesiastical laws of this realm, consistent with the temporal wherein the most material points relating to such persons and things, as come within the cognizance thereof, are succinctly treated (1678); for Machell's reliance on Godolphin, see Part 1, Ch.17, Morland, IV.512; see also Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, II.367.
[13] Sir Thomas Ridley, A View of the Civile and Ecclesiastical Law (London, 1607). 'Rescript': a copy; rewrite. OED. 'Chem' is followed by a blot.
[14] There follow 2 sketches of coats of arms, the first labelled, '3 inch½', the second, 'in the third light'.

Figure 1.18.1. Musgrave Church. East Window Images. III.273.

[III.275]

In the S. window next the body of the church in the E. angle [are the following shields][15]

Figure 1.18.2. Musgrave Church. South Window Images. III.275.

1. Argent a fess Gules, charged with 3 cushion Ermin tassled Or.
2. Gules – 6 annulets Or. Musgraves. In the midle space between the 2 lights.
3. In the top of the 2nd light. Argent, a cross Gules, charged with [blank] O Azure.

[III.277]

[Permission for the alteration of the Tithe Barn, Musgrave Rectory]

'Whereas the Right Reverend Father in God Thomas by divine permission Lord Bishop of Carlisle hath authorised and appointed me Thomas Machell Rector of Kirkby Thore in the County of Westm'land, to view the defects of a certaine Tithe-Barne at the rectory of Musgrave in the said county, & grant such order for altering and rebuilding the same as to me that seem meet: I, having viewed and considered the same, do hereby permit the Reverend Mr Christopher Thorneton, Rector thereof, to pull down & rebuild the Tythe-barne aforesaid;[16] provided he make it 22 yards long betwixt the gabels, and mount the side-walls 10 quarters high above the floore on the inside thereof, & under the sparrs which are fixed to the principals for supporting the Ealing.[17]

Given under my hand & seal this 16th March at Musgrave aforesaid, in the year of Our Lord 1688/9.

Thomas Machell.'[18]

{A True Copy.}

[Machell's Tithe-Barn Notes: III.276]

An estimate of the contents of the Barn

6 quarters high, 5 yards broad.

34 – to XX 11.[19]

Deduct 12 yards.

Once over 18 square, so XII over about II score yards & 6 score.

In all 17 score.

Ad […][20] High I yard.

Which is over – 5 yard.

---

[15] MS. 'In the S. window next the body of the church in the E. angle ~~oppos~~.'

[16] Christopher Thornton, son of John, gent., of Dent; attended Sedbergh School; sizar (aged 19) at Magdalene, Cambridge, from 1672; B.A. 1675-6; M.A. 1679. Rector of Great Musgrave, 1684-1720. Buried there 5. Feb. 1719-20. CCED.

[17] An ealing or iling was a dubbing, or lean-to, of a barn. See an investigation into the Tudor meaning of the word in Notes and Queries, Vol. 11, Series VIII (12 July, 1913), 29.

[18] Here Machell has sketched a circle to mark the place of the seal in the original document.

[19] Eleven score.

[20] Here follows an unclear word.

22[21]
x5. Sc. 10.

[III.163][22]

[Hall Garth Demesne]
At Great Musgrave there is a place called Hall Garth which is a demesne land.

Per Acre	Arable	A Noble
	Pasture
	Medow	15 or 20s.

A days mowing an Acre & plow by computation

Musgrave Parish. The Perambulation.

[III.271]

Begining ~~at Lowgil beck foot where it enters Eden~~ at Eden Clint, 1 mile N.W. from the church; thence \ N. / from the side of the River Eden up the west dike of Eden Flat, till you com at the houses on Henvever-Hill, which are in this parish.
{Burtergill}

Thence N. E. by dikes & merestones throw Low-gil beck & the High Street, \ at the E. end of Brough hill in the parish of Warcop, / til you com at Burtergil Houses \ which are in / Warcop parish \ also. / Thence N. (up Musgrave peat lonen) to Midle-Fell Thorne; thence N. (in a streight line) till you come at \ to an hurrock of stones called / Rëaven St\e/anes; thence E. lineally to \ the N. end of / Green Turpluck? {N.~~ end~~ of Warcop ~~Green Turpluck spring~~}*

{To Hare-Crag Fauld: a sheep fold}
Thence N.E. in a direct line to Hare-Crag-Fauld, which is a sheepfold call'd by that name. Thence N.E. in a streight line to Crevy Pot; thence N.E. in a direct line to the Read Seal in Force beck \ where Warcop ends & Rumakirk begins. / Thence S. by a streight line to the top of Heürds; thence lineally towards the S. till you com at Tarne-House. Thence S. by a direct line to the Cloven Stean on the north side \ of / Hard-Ro\a/ds. Thence S. up the said Road, to \ an hurrock of stones on / Johnson-Skar. Thence lineally to \ an hurrock &c. / the top of Browne-bur; thence S. in a direct line to an hurrock of stones on Ke\a/y-Skar top.

[III.272]

Thence S. by a streight line to Netle Pot-Scroggs,[23] where Lowgil beck springs. Thence S. downe Low-gil beck Sike, alias Woodend Sike, to \ High / Low-gil beck Yeat; thence S.W. down Lowgill beck to Lowgill Ing Dike; ~~Thorny Mire Dike~~; Thence S. down the said dike to Parcy (wood) brigg. Thence S. down Thorney-mire Dike to Swindal beck. Thence south by hedges & certaine well known land-marks divideing the fields till you com [to] Below-beck near the S.E. corner of Henin wood.[24] Thence W. down the said beck to the River Eden. Thence N. down ~~Eden~~ the said river by the church & parsonage till you com at the Clint where wee began†.
Per Ed. Bousfield & Mr Christopher Thornton.

[Machell's Notes: III.271 and III.276]

*? {Warcop?}
[III.276]
Musgrave parish: Thomas Wallot, bounder.[25]

[21] 22 yards long between the gables. Therefore, 1 chain long.
[22] Also on this page of the MS: 'Frances Scot of Sebram known to Mr Thomas Denton, son of Richard \ Denton of Greenfoot / and Ann Mason in Cumberland descended of [Denton of] Warnal.' '{Richard Granger testamento Denton.}'
[23] Potte: a pit or hole, see Smith, Place-Names 2, 62. Scroggs: stunted bushes, brushwood or underwood. OED.
[24] Haining Wood.
[25] This unclear phrase appears in the margin at right angles to the body text and extremely close to the binding.

[III.280]

[Families and Tenants]

Fam[ilies] [Blank]; Freehold [Blank]
The rest are Arbitrary, under Sir Christopher Musgrave; all save one, who holds of & payes to the Rectory – a Noble [in] rent, with an arbitrary fine upon the alienation or upon the death of the parson or tenant*.

[Machell's Notes: III.280, 281, 282]

*{Infor. Mr Thorneton, who had 30s fine of the present tenant, tho he offered him at first but 1d.}
[III.281]
See of Musgrave in Brough parish.
[III.282][26]
A Cap[ut] of; q[uery] er[g]o an Hall. X.[27]

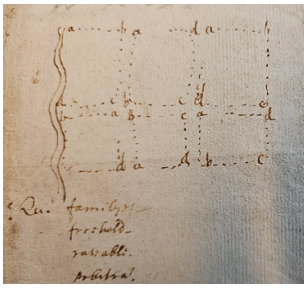

Figure 1.18.3. Sketch containing six square plots: 3 above 3, each labelled a, b, c, d. III.282.

? Query: familyes, freehold, rateable, arbitrary? Mos: how far of.
! If \ this family / the family of Musgrave had given name to the villages & not the villages to them – their ancestor would have bin writ Le Musgrave, no[t] de Musgrave. So of Lowther, Wharton and al names taken from places after anciently writ with de prefixd to them. Query if [the name comes] from a sort of men planted here who first taught the countrey the use of peates & graveing of mosses.[28]

[Birds]

[III.163]

In great Musgrave parish, in the Healin wood, great store of herrinsues build.[29]

[III.281]

Hawkes & Ospreys in Great Musgrave.

[26] This page also contains an unexplained diagram of squares containing the letters a, b, c and d: one on each corner of each square, see Fig. 1.18.3.
[27] 'Head of, query, therefore a Hall.' This is followed by a cross to suggest that the unnamed building could not be designated as a hall. Unlike the rest of the page, the passage is written roughly in pencil, and may even not belong to the series of notes.
[28] Graving: to dig, form by digging; now rare except in dialect, e.g. to grave peat(s), to grave turf. OED.
[29] Herrinsues: herons.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 19]

[Parish of Ormside]

[I.634][1]

Ormside P[arish]

To Ormside belongs Ormside great, Ormside little.
Tis Anciently writ Ormsheved and gave name to a family, Sc. Hugh de Ormesheved test. apud Cart. Berwyse penes Mr Blenkinsop, 17. Edward 3. [1343-1344].[2]

[III.291]

[Bounder of] Ormside Parish Feb. 28. 1688/9. Thos.[3]
It is bounded on the N. with St Lawrence and part of St Michaels, Appelby; on the E. with Warcop parish; on the S. with part of Warcop & Ashby parish; & on the west with St Lawrence, Appelby, the procession or perambulation being as followeth:

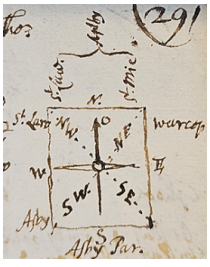

Figure 1.19.1. Ormside Parish Bounder. III.291.

1. \ They / begin at Stainmore Sike Foote, where it runns into Eden. Thence Eastward (up the River Eden) to Cowpland Beck foote, where Bondgate parish ends & Warcop begineth.[4] Thence agane up Eden S.E. to a woody banke calld Thrucklebanke, at the dike foote. Thence S. (up the said dike, takeing in Thrucklebanke) to an house call'd Rotmorehead. Thence S.W. (up an old dike-stead) to Horngil bottom dike {Biggabanke}. Thence S.W. (up Horngil dike) to Slikarstack House, \ where Warcop parish ends & Ashby begins. / Thence W. (by the outside of Crawhill hedge) till you com at Watergil-sike. Thence W. (up the outside of Breken-foot wall, which belongs to Breeks \ in this parish /) till you com to Goodal-hill. Thence westward by an hedge till you com at Asby-Mill. Then N.W. down Ashby-beck, till you com at Rutter-mill \ where Asby parish [ends] & Appleby coms in. / Thence agane N.W. til you com at Rutter wall Neük. Thence N. up Rutter-wall, till you com at Bread-mer-sike; thence N. down the said sike till you come at Stanemore-gill-head. Thence N. downe the outside of Stanemoregill hedge till you com at \ to a yeat c~~alld~~ / Luckenflat Newke. Thence N. downe Stanemoregill Sike aliis Gilbeck to the sike foot where it runns into Eden & where you began. {[Informant] Thomas Yair.}

{Division}
In this parish there are 2 Lordships. Sc. Great Ormside & Little Ormside, which are both but one Constablewick; Great Ormside pleasantly scit\u/ated on the S. side of the River Eden, & having a current of water which \ springs at the head / [and] runns downe the towne, \ being / very \ commodious, / beneficial to all the inhabitants.

---

[1] Also numbered p.32; it contains only the heading 'Ormside'.
[2] 'Witness to a deed of Berewyse at Mr Blenkinsop's. 17. Edward III.'
[3] Thomas Yair, who gave Machell the bounder information.
[4] MS: '{~~To Thrucklebanke~~}1. \ They / begin at Stainmore Sike Foote, where it runns into Eden. Thence Eastward (up the River Eden) to~~o woody banke call'd Trucklebanke~~ Cowpland Beck foote, where Bondgate parish ends & Warcop begineth.'

[I.634]

[I. Great Ormside]

[The Church]
N.W from Ap[pleby] 1 mile.

[III.291]

The church stands opposite to the Hall on the top of a mount, being a ve\ne/rable structure for its sea\m/ing antiquity, yet humble & low.

[III.292]

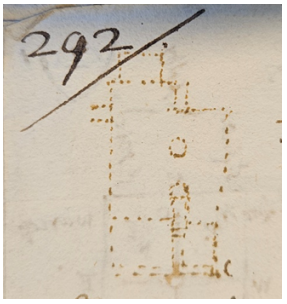

Figure 1.19.2. Sketch plan of Ormside Church. III.292.

It has ~~but 2~~ a tower steeple of the lowest size, with 2 little bells. It is in length 9½ & in breadth 5½, the quire long 10½, broad 6. The steeple has bin added to the body of the church but long agoe, for it seems as ancient as the church.[5] {It has 1 comly round pillar with 2 round arches which \ tho low yet / looke very strong, & beautiful enough, but short of Crosby.[6] Behinde this is placd Hilton Porch, which they call so from the Lord of the manner, where lyes the body of Sir Christopher Picker[ing] under a through with this inscription on a label of brass.

[I.646B]

Figure 1.19.3. Brass at Ormside Church. Sir Christopher Pickering. I.646B.

[5] Machell's hunch was correct. The nave and chancel were erected in the late 11th century; the defensive west tower was built c.1200, although the bell-cote predates the tower. See Hyde & Pevsner, 557-58.
[6] Crosby Garrett.

[I.648]

In the first and Lesser Brass is this inscription:

Lo Here Interr'd lyes underneath this stone
True wisdom, ver[t]ue, Justice, al in one

Sir Christopher Pickering Knight, who after he had / been 5 times High-Sherif of Cumberland / dyed 14 of January Anno Domini 1620 aetatis suae 76.[7]

In the second and larger Brass, which was added since upon the Death of Mr Ciprian Hilton, this:

Interr'd within this could urn here lyes
This Countryes loss, but heavens Eternal prise:
Cyprian Hilton of Ormside for renowned fame
He may be Justly stiled the glory of his name
Pious, Prudent, Charitable and Just
And trewly valiant too. Now Here
Hee's clad in dust.
Deceased December 22
In the year of[8]

[III.392]

There hath bin formerly a north wing or Ile, but tis now contracted to a single quier behinde one arch. On the N. side the quier is a vestery with a whispering hole.

[I.634]

N[orth] a whispering place out of the vestery into the chancel; for confession as I suppose.[9]
A strong but Low Steple with flat Batlements. Bells in it. Built as an addition to the Church but very ancient.

[III.292]

[Ormside Hall]
The Hall is a tower house & good old building with a fine gardine on the back side of it, an a well that springs out under the kitchen, of excellent water, both \ for / taist & clearness. It is the manner house of this Lordship, and now belongeth to Ciprian Hilton of Ormside Esquire.

[I.634]

The Hall repared & much Bett[ered] by Mr Cyprian Hilton, circ. Anno 16~~85~~. 86-87, 88.

[III.292]

[The Height]
There is in this town, beside the Hall & parsonage house, about 20 families, and an hamlet called The Height, so nam'd for the high scit\u/ation of it), ~~conteineing 4 more~~ about a mile of[f], directly southward, conteineing 4 houses. \ W[h]ere excellent hewing & walling & flaggs stones are easily got, so[me] of which are as white as chalke. /

[7] 'At the age of 76.' Sir Christopher Pickering was High Sheriff of Cumberland on four occasions (1590, 1601, 1607, 1611), see CFH, 262. He became MP for Cumberland in 1597, deputy warden of the west march in 1601 and a commissioner for the borders in 1608. See 'Pickering, Christopher 1556-1621.' History of Parliament Online. His natural daughter, Frances, married as her second husband, Cyprian Hilton: see III.392.

[8] The rest is obscured by the binding but the monument itself reads, 'in the year of our Lord, 1652.' A later inscription in this church is to Cyprian Hilton, died 27 December 1693, but as Machell does not mention it, he probably visited the church prior to this date. For these inscriptions see Edward Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes: being the heraldry, epitaphs, and other inscriptions in the thirty-two ancient parish churches and churchyards of that county, 2 (Kendal, 1888) 224; see also N&BI, 516.

[9] A hole through which one whispers, as into the Roman Catholic confessional; see the 'A prospect of the ruins of Godstowe Abbey', in John Stevens, The History of the Ancient Abbeys, Monasteries, Hospitals, Cathedral and Collegiate Churches; being two additional volumes to Sir William Dugdale's Monasticon Anglicanum, Vol. I (London, 1722), facing 532.

[Breekes][10]
And a single hall-house, which is calld Breekes, about a ¼ of a mile farther south: a freehold estate, formerly sold of the Demane by Thomas Barton Esq. to his brother, William who (by Ann \ his wife / the daughter of Mr Ubanke of Appelby) had Isue Robert, who maryed Ann Barton, the daughter of Mr Barton of Kirkby Hill in the county of Yorke and had Isue Robert, s. prole,[11] & Thomas, an attorney now living; besides 2 daughters. Robert the father sold it to Mr John Patteson, an attorney of Penrith,[12] the now owner of it \ who has almost finished. /

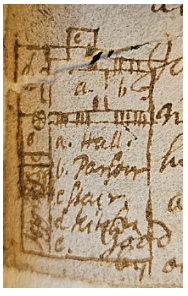

Figure 1.19.4. Margin sketch plan of Breeks or Breaks Hall. III.293A.

[III.293A]

[Breaks Hall]
Breakes[13] is a fair house now almost finished. Built by John Patteson, an attorney at law. 3 stories high with 5 windows or appertures. \ Each course / in the front. Good white stone, & flaggs hard by on the Heights.

{Freeholds}
Besides him,[14] there are 8 or nine freeholds, having bought themselves free, and som others that are under value. The rest are arbitrary, & all answer court at the manner house.

{Descent}
Great Ormside formerly belongd to one Sir Christopher (~~who was 5 times High sheriff of Cumberland~~) \ who bought it [from] Thomas Barton Esq. obijt 14 January 1620? ~~who never marryed~~. And never marrying, bestowed it on Frances his natural daughter married [to] Mr John Dudley of Dufton, who had a demane there and came of Dudleys of Yeanwath hall; who dyed without \ any / Isue by her; who remarried to Ciprian Hilton of Burton & Hilton Esq. {circa 70 years since. Who had Isue Christopher, who maryed Mistress Barbara Brathwaite of Warcop & had Isue Ciprian, now lord thereof.}

[III.293B]

[Antiquities found at Ormside]
Found on Sunday 2 of November 1689, behinde Ormside church in the River Eden on the side next the church. Drawn Dec. 5, 1689.

[10] Breaks Hall.
[11] 'Sine prole': without issue.
[12] John Patteson died in 1705. CFH, 255.
[13] Brec, Brekis, Breakes: land broken up for cultivation. See Smith, Place-Names 2, 89.
[14] John Patteson.

Figure 1.19.5. Finds from the River Eden at Ormside. III.293.

[Key]
a. A thuribulum or censer, as I gather from the form of it and the 3 loopehols. It has bin guilded and is in height 3 inches; in diameter more than 5. Ergo in circumference [blank]. It is of brass.
b. An ~~plane~~ euare of plane brass, about 7 inch high, wide at the mouth near 3 inches, the belly in circumference 13.
c. A brazen morter, high 3 inch & ½, the diameter at top 4 inch & ½; at the bottom, 3 inch.
d. A pewter bason, in depth 3 inch, in diameter 8 and a quarter; at the brim, one.
f. A cullender of the like size.
e. A small pewter florepot, in height 6 inches & the belly in circumference 10, the mouth in diameter 2 inch & ½. \ Of which there were 2. /
There were also a case of brazen weights & 2;[15] 2 brazen candlesticks: a less and greater; 2 pewter candlesticks: a less & a greater; 2 pewter flaggons*: a less & greater; several plates of pewter†; a small lead [vessel] for boyleing meat, which weighed 2 stone & 10 lb.

[Machell's Notes: III.293B]
*On the great flaggon handle: F.D. for Frances Dudley who was married to Ciprian Hilton.
†Upon a platter S. \ H. / F.; on another, S^{t}. M.
{5 li.
100 boards 7 yards long, 6 broad, 3 high
6 li
From Brough far to much}

[III.293]

II. Little Ormside

The other Lordship is Little Ormside {S.E. ab Ecclesia ½ mile} where there is neither Hall nor demaine. It stands on the west side of Horngill-beck, which springs in little Ashby, and consists of about 9 or ten families, VI of which are freeholds votable.[16] The rest are arbitrary & som of them have som parcells of freehold. They answer court at Gathorn Hall, their Lord being Allan Bellingham Esq. who[se] chief seat is Leavins. The freehold tenants purchased their freedom from one of the Salkelds, who also had 2 tenents ~~whom~~ under him in Great Ormside ~~Lordship~~ \ Town, / whom he also sold free. And therefore I guess that Little Ormside did belong to the Salkelds ere the Bellinghams had it.

[Notes on Things Remarkable in Nature and in Art]

In Great Ormside
Freestone white quarrye S.W. from the church ½ a mile towards Ashby. \ Query: if not that on The Heights / out of which they thinke Apleby Castle was built – The read quarry a little above it.
Has no waife & stray.
In the Eastward, 1 demaine.
A fine cross in the N. end.

[15] Transcribed as written.
[16] Having the right to vote. OED. After finding that elections increasingly involved voters of 'low estate', a statute of 1429 decreed that only freemen who owned freehold land (that is, not leased from the land's owner) worth 40 shillings had the vote. See 'the 40-shilling franchise' in https://www.parliament.uk.

Lile Ormside
Truglebanke[17] Closes, sparrow hawkes; wild ducks in Hobloc Close near the beginning of the Bounder.

{In Art}
A good house at Breekes.
{ad Warcop, Mr Ciprian Hilton?}The story of William Wharton, now of Mallerstang, led from Piper † in Warcop parish to Cautley Spout in Russendale on the edge of Yorkeshire near the houses calld Cautleythwaite: Fell End Angle.
{ad Bondgate?} Query the story Anthony Stephenson of Hilton Dikes, concerneing a man led out of Bishop[ric] thither by an apparition in the shape of a bleu dog? [18]
Query of John Hill: of Crakenthorps walke.

[17] Trickle Banks.
[18] Machell wondered whether to place the first story in Part 1, Ch.23, Warcop, and the other in the section on Bondgate in Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby Town and Parishes.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 20]

[Parish of Orton]

[III.295]

This parish takes its name from Orton, the principle place where the church standeth. It is a vicaridge in the diocess of Karleol and in the ~~west~~ \ E. / Ward of the ancient Barony or Bottom of Westmorland. {Church 6 miles S. from Appleby & 10 N.\E./ from Kendal.}

[Bounder]

{N[orth]}
It is bounded on the N. with Crosby Ravenswith and Asby parishes. Beginning at Bousfield How (an hill by Penrith road which leads from Kendal);[1] thence, by a streight line Eastwards to Prid-hurrock[2] upon Orton Scar; thence by a direct line E. to Howgatefoot where Ashby parish comes in; thence by a streight line over Castlehow bottom till you com at the \ head of / Grabbergill.[3] Thence to Midle Busk ~~near~~ \ in / Lile Ashby-hause*.

{E[ast]}
On the East, with another part of Asby parish, from the said Midle Buske by the peat way to the midle of Sunbiging \ tarn / where 3 parishes meet. Sc. Orton having ½, & Crosby ~~Ga~~ \ Garret / Asby the other halfe of it†. Thence to the […][4] \ mere / stones called Meer Slack, where Russendale parish comes in; from which tis divided by a streight line S.E. to Hauskew-wood Neük‡. Thence down the nether side of Street Close to Bouder Dale beck foot S.E. from the church in the low end of Russendale,[5] where it enters Leun. Thence up the said beck to Bouderdale Head where it first springs, divideing it from Russendale; thence on the [Blank] with Setber↓;[6] from the said place ~~to the~~ by the ridge of the fells to the markes of Cables in Langdale fells \ as Heaven Water deales. / Thence agane as Heaven Water, to a steän that lyes in Blakethwaite Bottom; thence by a direct lyne to the Black Force in Ka\r/rigill watter.[7] Thence down the said water till it run into Leun‖.

{W[est]}
On the west with Kendal parish; from the said place, up the Leün till you com at Burrow Water Foot, so up the said water to the higher Burrow brig. Thence by Penrith way to Deming Dub. {Thence N.E. by the way which leads to Sawter wath. Thence in a direct [line] N.E. to Bousfield.}
On West with Kendal and Shap beginning at Low Burrow Bridge; so up[8] […] to Deming Dubb. Thence in a direct line West to the Cloven Stone on Stakely. Thence in a streight line E. to Gibson hill. Thence S. Eastward to Scout Green; \ 3 houses / thence down Birkbeck to Overskales. Thence up Sprokeld Sike, to Penrith highway where it springs. Thence {N.E. by the way which heads to Sawter Wath.}[9] Thence in a direct N.E. to Bousfield¶.

---

[1] MS: 'Beginning ~~at Crookdale House at a house place called Deming Dubs (an house so called) At Scar Top near Lingy Law hill. Thence as in the Bounder of Crosby, till you com at \ Howgate / Midle Busk in Lile Asbyhause~~. Beginning at ~~Howgate~~ Bousfield How (an hill by Penrith road which leads from Kendal).'
[2] Possibly 'Pind', or 'Pinde': hill, See Smith, Place-Names 2, 78.
[3] It is possible that Machell scored through the 'r' in this word.
[4] Here is an unclear word or symbol.
[5] MS: 'Thence down the nether side of Street Close to Bouder ~~beck foot to Bounder Foot~~ Dale beck foot \ beck / S.E. \ from the church / in the low end of Russendale.' Russendale (Ravenesdal, Raustandal(e), Ranestandale, Raunstandale, Rastendale, Rasstayndale and other variants) is now known as Ravenstonedale (valley of the raven stone) see Westmorland Place-Names.
[6] Probably 'Selsmire' or 'Selmire', see Smith, Place-Names 2, 48.
[7] For 'Black Force', see Smith, Place-Names 2, 53.
[8] Here, the page foot has perished; one line of text is illegible, apart from the words, 'to High'.
[9] Probably, 'Salterwath', see Smith, Place-Names 2, 47.

[Machell's Notes: III.295]

*{Jo. Teby of Sunbiging. Jon War of Rus[sendale]}
†{Query if Russendale claimd none of this tarn.}
‡{Query? Right sayes Mr Procter.}
⸸{?}
‖{John Hewthwaite of Kelleth.}
¶{W. Kenyon, Oliver Thornbur, […]}[10]

[Orton Church and Bells]

[I.637]

John Bartholemew Prior of Carlile Confirm'd Orton in Westmorland (in the Time of Bishop Hugh) to the Prior of Cuinstead.[11] MS Cumb. part 1[t,] p.48, §3.[12]

[I.638]

To Orton Church belongs Orton, Bretherdale, Langdale, Raisebeck, Tebay.

[III.299]

The church is dedicated to All Saints & called Allhallows {on which day their feast was kept}[13] and is a fair Building made of white huen-stone, having a Tall Steple (yet not so high as it should according to agreement, ~~for~~ for they say its dimensions were to be taken from Kirkby Stephens.) There ~~are~~ \ is a clock in it; / Bells ~~it~~ pretty large & tunable, which are said to com from the Abby of Shap at its desolution, the greatest being caryed to Kirk[by]thore. And hereupon the Steple was built about 80 years since; before which time they shew a pit at the S.W. corner of the churchyard, over which they [the bells] hung in frames upon the ground \ with an hovel above them / & tis reported that they made a greater noyse in that place than they doe in the Steeple.

[I.638][14]

The Bells at Overton[15] which are 4 in number were made att Nottingham by John Wolley Bellfonder, for which he had in consideration of Carrier and all, 76[li] sterling: by the Hands of T. Blenk[insop], Lancelot Lancaster, [Lanc]elot Lowther of the County of Westm'land Esqs. John Thornburrow, Rowland Thornburrow & Oliver Crosland yeomen, in the name of all the parishoners. The Base bell being to be like in Sound to the 3[d] Bell of the Abby of Shap, & the other 3 Solem & Swete, consonant thereunto, ~~&~~ as appear from ~~the~~ \ an / Indenture dated the 4 of April, 21. Henry 8. [1530].

[III.299]

[Orton Church]
It much resembles the church of Crosby To which they report (but on what grounds I know not) it once belonged as an Appendant Chapple. Only tis, the pillars ~~fewer~~ thicker, the arches fewer, & the church Lower. It conteines in Length the body of it \ al of / 30 yards; the Quier Twelve; in all 42 yards. The Bredth of the body, have[ing] 2 Iles & 2 Rows of pillers, is about 19 yards.[16] But the North Side Ile seemes to be ad[d]ed at the same time that the Steple was built. Or, however, after the other part. And the whole is lately put in repere, painted & Bea\u/tifyed by Mr Kenyon[17] & his parishoners.
There is only one monument ~~in the~~ which is in the quire, a through (as wee call them) in the South Side \ thereof, / erected under a Low & mean Arch, suitable to \ the materials of it / for it is ~~of no more but~~ ruff stone & no way beautifyed. Yet I make no q[uestion] it has bin for a Priest or som man of account. The church is on a Hill \ side / & there has bin an handsom walke as it yet appears about the churchyard, at the E. End of which is a Close calld Priors Garth belonging to the vicaridge, wherein is [10] The end of this list is obscured by the binding but could read as, 'Mr Birbeck … Constable'.

[11] Conishead.
[12] Machell cited his copy of John Denton's MS 'History of Cumberland', part of his collection of documents bound into VI.146-76 (not transcribed). For the actual text, see Angus J.L. Winchester (ed.), John Denton's 'History of Cumberland, CWAAS Record Series 20 (Woodbridge, 2010), 90.
[13] All Hallows/All Saints feast day is 1 November.
[14] Also numbered p.33.
[15] Overton = ancient name (e.g. 13th century) of Orton, see III.300, below. See also, Smith, Place-Names 2, 42.
[16] A note on MS.I.650 offers, '{Orton. Church. 2 rows of pillars, 3 of each side}'
[17] Roger Kenyon appointed in 1663 (CCED); died in 1703 aged 85; married for 60 years. His wife survived him. N&BI, 484.

som appearance of Ruines,[18] which make them suppose a Priory [and] a close. But it was onely som little cells belonging to the Priory of Connishead, concerneing which there was som dispute in the year 1311 twixt the Prior [and] Convent of the said Priory. & the […] Convent of […][19]
The parish is a viccaridge, Rated in the First Fruits Office at [blank].[20] The Impropriation & patronage is in the parishoners, purchased by them about 80 years since.[21] It hath wool & Lamb in kind; Hemp & line 1d. Tythe Geese, \ chickes / ~~& poltry~~ & Grise.[22]

The vicaridge house is East from the church about 10 yards, & hath a rill of water running ~~und~~ before it. […] a Beacon […][23]

[I.650]

{Oreton Parish}[24]
He [George Fothergill] once stood to be vicar of Orton & prejuditious parish gave [it] to another far inferiour to him for learneing.

[18] MS: 'at the E. end ~~Qu ut chaples~~ of which is a Close calld ~~Monkflase~~ \ Priors Garth belonging to the vicaridge wherein \ is som / appearance of ruines…'
[19] The page ends here; almost all text has perished. On the dispute, John Curwen wrote: 'But there was also a chapel here appropriated to Whitby, for in 1310, William prior of Conyngesheved, Richard de Gosefeld canon of that house, and others, were charged with entering the abbot of Whitby's Chapel at Overton, co. Westmorland, carrying away his goods, and assaulting his monks, men and servants. Cal. Pat. Rolls, 1310, p. 255.' J.F. Curwen, The Later Records of North Westmorland or the Barony of Appleby, CWAAS Record Series 8 (Kendal, 1932), 195-213.
[20] Curwen quotes the 'Valor Ecclesiasticus', 1535, in which the gross value was then £17 7s 4d. See Curwen, Later Records, 195-213.
[21] B. Nightingale noted an occurrence after the advowson had been bought by the parishioners. Quoting from the Orton Parish Chest, he wrote, 'On the death of Mr. Corney in 1643, Edward Birkbeck the elder of Orton, William Thomson of Cotflatt and Robert Whithead of the Park, being parishioners but not feofees, took upon them-selves to drawe or cause to be drawne a representation, to which they set or caused to be sett, the hands of divers parishioners without theire knowledge privety or consent, whereby [Alexander] Fetherston-haugh, who was chaplaine to Sir Henry Strahn (?) the elder, in service with the parliament [the parliamentary army] was presented and thereupon got induction [institution] without the consent of the feofees who had chosen another minister, George Fothergill. This action caused great strife and confusion in the parish and forced the parishioners and feofees to be at great charge and trouble with keeping out of the Church the said Fetherstonhaugh, who came in a forceable manner with Robert Whithead and divers others and did break open the Church door to take possession thereof, insomuch that the feofees and the parish were forced to watch the Church … for the space of nine weeks or there-abouts, and the minister who then officiated there was forced to preache in the Churchyard for Six Sabath days together, leaste the said Fetherstonhaugh should after the breaking of the doore, men-taine and continue his possession therein, which did not only occasion Expense to the sum of one hundredth pounds or upwards, but also did endanger the losse of the advowson contrary to all right and equatie and to the losse and damage of the parish to the vallew of six hundreth pounds.' Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 2, 1203. See also N&BI, 483-84.
[22] Grice are pigs. The Commonwealth Survey of 1657 lists the tithes as, 'Wool and lamb and other small tithes worth by the year £58, and likewise the glebe land which is worth by the year £4': Curwen, Later Records, 195-213.
[23] The page foot has perished here.
[24] Much of the text on this page is scored through, viz. MS: ~~'Ravenstonedale Parish The church has belonging to it Ravenstondale~~ […] 3 Angels [angles].' The sentence transcribed appears to allude to Machell's previous bald account of the purchase of the Orton parish advowson, see Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 2, 1203, above. George Fothergill (vicar chosen by the feoffees) was born in Westmorland, educated at Sedbergh School, and attended St John's, Cambridge, from 1623: B.A. 1627-8; M.A. 1631. He was Vicar of Pontefract, 1641; Vicar of Orton, 1643-63; Rector of Warsop, Notts., 1663-83. He died Aug. 23, 1683, see Cambridge Alumni at Ancestry.co.uk. Nicolson and Richard noted that Fothergill was ejected in 1662 for not complying with the Act of Uniformity. He conformed soon afterwards and was presented to the living of Warsop in 1663. He was followed at Orton by Roger Kenyon: N&BI, 484.

[Orton: Constablewicks]

Constablewicks	Chapels	Gentlemens Houses
Orton	0	Mr Petteyes
Rasebeck
Tebay
Langdale
Bretherdale

[III.302]

[Orton Lordship: Freeholds]

There are some freeholds in it, but most undervalue.
1. ~~Roun~~ Tybay: about XVIII [houses] where there is a free school ab Ecclesia 1 mile ½ S.
2. Rounthwate: S. 2 miles; about X houses, where query of a well which emits ore, colours the sand & the teeth of the sheep which are inclined to feed there about,[25] of a golden […][26]
3. Burrowbrigs: S. 3 miles; II houses.
4. Gasegill-Row: about VIII or IX houses; S.E. 2 miles.
[5.] Ellergill: II; 2 miles S.E.
They pass by surrender in court. The customary tenants here have 3^{d} till they mary, but otherwise not.[27]

[I.638]

[Orton: Land Ownership and Descent]

The Blenkinsops of Hellbeck were possessed in this parish of Overton in an ancient Estate of 29 messuages & halfe the \ water / mill ~~in Coteflat, Gasegilbar~~ with certane lands in the Hamlet of Raisebeck, Stonebigging, Raysegil Hall, Coatflat, Gasegill, Tebay, Ellergill, Langdall & Stack Bridge (alias Flakebridge), holding by Soccage & fealty and the yerely rent of one grain of Cloves (gariophili);[28] sed de quo Ignor.[29]

The Lordship of Raisebeck conteined in it, as appears from a survey take about the yere 1626:

1. Sunbigging in which 8 Tenants	)
2. Raisebeck in which 12 Tenants	)
3. Skarside in which 3 Tenants	)
4. Chapple 1 Tenant	) All fineable Rent
5. Coatflat 6 Tenants	)
6. Raisegill Hall 4 Tenants	)
7. Kellett 5 Tenants	)
8. Coatflat Mill 40^{s}	)

And the whole fineable rent in the Lordship of Raisebeck was $13^{li}\ 11^{s}\ 0^{d}$, besides a Multer farme that was due but not fineable,[30] & a running Grissome.[31] These belonged all to the Blenkinsops in 1626, since which time they were sold by T.B. Esq.

[I.641]

These lands which the Blenkinsops held in Overton seme to me to have formerly belonged to one Adam de Heniscastre. for T. de Helebeck, as you may se in the pedigre, had the same by Avicia his wife who

[25] MS: 'sheep which are in^{cl} feed there about.'
[26] The last word is obscured by the binding; presumably it is 'hue', or 'colour'.
[27] 'The customary tenants have thirds until they marry.' Thirds: the third of the personal property of a deceased husband allowed to his widow. Also, the third of his real property to which his widow might be legally entitled for her life. OED.
[28] 'Gariophili' or 'gariofle': a clove. OED.
[29] 'But of this I know no more.'
[30] 'Multure'. Tenants compelled to use the lord's mill and to pay him toll for it. A 'farm' is a lease of it.
[31] 'Gressam': an entry payment when entering on a tenancy. OED.

was daughter to Hene\s/castre. Certane lands at Sunbigin, Rasebeck, Keldeth,[32] Coatflat, which have the fulling mill there, was given in dower with Isabell 2nd daughter of Thomas & Avicia, to Patritius de Kastle Carrok; Howbeit whether for want of Isue or how otherwise I know not, they reverted upon the Blenkinsops, for that family held them till of late yeres: The Boundary whereof ran in this manner–

S[i]cut quoddam siketum inter Overton et Raysebeck descendit per medium Free[ermire] descendend[o] in le Bibeck & itatem per medium le Bibeck descendit et Ita per medium Tybay ascendit usq[ue] le Scoddigate de Hanster, Sc [perished] irdalbeck descendit in Tybay, et ita ascend[it] per rectas metas et divisas inter Raven Ranstindall Cross[e]bygr. et Parvam Askeby et praedictam hamletta[m] in praedicta villa de Overton usq[ue] altum del Sker & Ita sequendo altum del Sker per rectas metas et divisas inter Magnam Askeby et grangiam ejusdem et p[r]edictam Hamlettam usq[ue] le Hundehow & Ita descendendo del Hundehow per pronpinquiorem via[m] in predictum siketum descendendo per medium Freeremire. [Blank] salvis tamen Nobis etc. witness T[estibus] Dns Michaele de Harclas & Johan[n]e de Rossegil militibus Johan[n]e de Helton R[i]ch[ard]o de Wartcop Henrico de Warthecopp Alano de Keldelyth, Roberto filio Thome de Langdal et alijs.[33]

[I.638]

½ of the manner of Overton, 19. Henry 7. [1503-04] was in the possession of Thomas Daker, Lord Daker, son & heir of Hum[phrey] Lord Dacre,[34] which is held of the king in Capite by Knights Service paying 2s 6d rent for Cornage & doeing service ~~at the~~ ad Com. dicti domini regis Westm'land de mense in mensem apud castrum Domini Regis de Apleby. & the said ½ valet per Annum, 10li.[35]
And Thomas ~~Blenkinsop~~ \ Beauchamp / was then seised of in his demane as of fee, halfe the manner of Wateby* & Overton, which is held of the King in Capite by Knights Service & rent to the King for Cornage, 11 shillings \ XIs 1d. / & unius denerij & by doeing service &c. & \ that the halfes of the said manner / valet per annum 10li.[36]
And that Henry Clifford Knight, affirme the said Halfes to be holden of him by Knights Service. {The Cliffords made noe pretence to Dakers estate.}

Thomas ~~Blenkinsop~~ \ Beauchamp, / father of this Thomas, dyed seised of the sam ½, 1t of May, 10. Edward 4. [1470]. And Thomas Beauchamp his son & heire, being then above the aige of 33 yeres, had & received the increase & profits of The foresaid Manner from the Time of his fathers death \ and had & received the same from the time of the takeing of the said inquisition, and did possess the same manner until then; and that Henry Clifford Knight by affirmeing the foresaid ½s of the foresaid manners to be held of him by Knights Service, received the rents and services of the forsaid medeityes[37] of the foresaid Thomas Beauchamp, the sonn. But by what title they knew not.

[Machell's Notes: I.638 and I.639]

*Wateby is in Kirkby Stephen parish.
[I.639]

[32] 'Kelleth' or 'Keldelith': 'slope with a spring', see Smith, Place-Names 2, 43. Nicolson and Burn differ from Smith: '…two Saxon words, 'keld' which signifies a well or spring, and 'lyth' which signifies light or soft: N&B1, 485-86.
[33] 'It descends like a syke between Overton and Raysebeck through the middle of Freemire, descending into le Bibeck and so it descends through the middle of le Bibeck and so it ascends through the middle of Tybay as far as the Scoddigate of Hanster […] descends into Tybay, and so ascends through the right markers and boundaries between Ranstridall, Crossbyg[arrett] and Little Askeby and the aforesaid hamlet in the aforesaid vill of Overton as far as the heights of Sker and so following the heights of Sker along the right markers and boundaries between Great Askeby and its grange and the aforesaid hamlet as far as le Hundehow and so descending from le Hundehow along the nearer road to the aforesaid syke descending through the middle of Freeremire [Blank] Apart from us, however, the witnesses are Lords Michael de Harclas and John de Rossegil, Knights; John de Helton, Richard de Wartcop, Henry de Warthcopp, Alan de Keldelyth, Robert son of Thomas de Langdale, and others.'
[34] Machell rarely spelled 'Dacre' in this way, usually referring to 'Lord Daker', but see the note on I.639.
[35] 'At the court of the said King at Westmorland from month to month at the King's castle of Appleby. And the said half is worth £10 per annum.'
[36] 'unius denarij' = 'of one penny', i.e. cornage of 11 shillings & one penny.
[37] Moieties: halves.

Rent belonging to Ga\y/segill Hall, as appear from a Rental taken the 30. Henry 8. [1538-39] ~~Att~~ out of Raysebec, Sonbyngyng[38] \ & / Cottflatte: in all 12^{li} 18. 3.
33. Henry 6. [1454-55]. It is writ the manner of Rasegill Hall with the whole Lordship, but then the lands & Tenements in Overton Teby seem dist[…][39]
I finde Margaret de Dacre dame de Gildesland in a Fre[nch] writeing in the 16. Edward 3. [1287-88]. But before that [Blank] was Lord of Gils[land] as then may [be seen] amongst the Barwises [records] in Apleby.

[III.300]

[Lordships]

There are 4 lordships: Orton, Tebey & \ hamlets / Langdale & Bretherdale.

I. Orton

Orton\ well Scituate in a Bottom on Springs. /Anciently Overto[n] from its Scituation from Apleby, being over the Fell. {Apleby road comes by this town to Kendal, with bridges convenient.} It is a market Town, they say, by Ancient charter*, their market day Wednessday, anciently Friday, and they have a fair the Friday afore Whitsuntide, and after that each fortnight market day till midsommer. Their Acres are by Estimation, & should be 7 yards broad & 7 score long: Value per annum, ar[able] 10s; med[ow] 10.[40] past[ure] 0.

In Orton: The Church, Vicaridge, School.
The Tenants are Generally freehold, about six score, who purchased themselves of my Lord Arrundell as Chief Lord,[41] & the Blenkinsops of Helbeck as ~~mean~~ a Co-partner, at 60 years purchase, about 70 years since. {An court of Arundell.}They [pay] nout geld to Apleby Castle 5^{s} 1^{d} in the Town of Orton Some pay fineable rents to others \ that paid the purchase / that could not purchase themselves to be free, Sc. 4: to Mr Birke, Oliver Whitehead, George Fothergil & Thomas Birbeck. They have a Court Barron, Leet? kept in any place of the Lordship that the Steward appoints. No manner house in memory of man†.

There also belong to Orton manner:
1. S\c/arside. IV [houses]\ ½ mile E. / an hamlet.
2. Rasebeck. XII [houses] \ 1-mile E. /
3. Sunbiging hamlet. \VI [houses] \ 1 mile ½ E. /
4. Kelleth. VIII [houses] \ 2 miles S.E. /[42]
5. Rayne. Houses \ II. 1 mile ½ S.E. /
6. Rasegil-Hall. \ 1 mile S.E. II [houses] /
7. Coatflat. V [houses] \ Mr Birke / 1m. S.
Bousfield.VI [houses] \ ¼ N.W. /
Parke. IV [houses] \ ¼ N.W. /
Scales. \ 2 miles S.W. / IV [houses] Most of them freeholds.[43]

[Machell's Notes III.300]

*{? Mr Birbeck.}
†{No toll.}

[38] Sunbiggin.
[39] The word are obscured by the binding.
[40] No denomination of coin given.
[41] As the tenant purchase had occurred 'about 70 years since', it is probable that the then Earl of Arundel was Thomas Howard, 14th earl (1585-1646). This Thomas Howard had commercial interests in the north; his mother was Anne Dacre, daughter and coheir of Thomas, Lord Dacre. See R. Smuts, 'Howard, Thomas, fourteenth earl of Arundel, fourth earl of Surrey, and first earl of Norfolk (1585-1646), art collector and politician'. ODNB.
[42] Marginalia here, relating to Kelleth, are obscured by the binding.
[43] Roman numerals represent the number of tenements.

[I.640]

{Hall; Petty}[44]
Here is an House lately built, finer than the rest, & ergo called an Hall, tho that be proper to manner houses only, and so used originally. It is the dwelling of a good substanshall & honest familie of the Pettyes (freeholders? there). There is a pedigre (& very fair one & of many descents) sign'd by Mr Dugdall (but I have heard himselfe complaine of his rashness in dooing of it) which deduceth them from one Sir Oates Petit Knight: Lord of Ardever in Cornwall, whose Coat was Argent; a Lyon Rampant, Gules; Langed & membered Azure, with a Pheon in dexter point (as I remember of the 2nd). Mr Petty of ~~Lincolns~~ \ the / Inner Temple has the pedigree & is of the same familie with the Pettyes of Oreton; for they of Oreton came lately from about Skipton in Yorkeshire, where this Petty was borne.[45]

[I.641]

{Sunbiging}
In Sunbiging, T[homas] B[lenkinsop] had 3 ~~Messuag[es]~~ & 3 oxgangs of Land: ped. Henry 5.[46]

II. Tebay

[III.301]

Tybay: S. ab Ecclesia 1 mile ½.

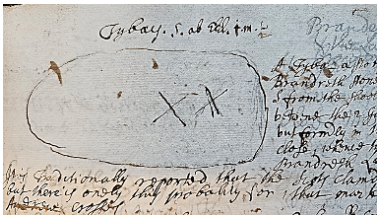

Figure 1.20.1. Brandreth Stone. III.301.

Brandereth Stone[47]
At Tybay a stone called Brandreth Stone[48] \ about / 6 score yards S. from the s[c]hool, in the hedge between the 2 Gallober Closes[49] but formerly in the farther close, whence the lands are Brandreth Lands. It is Traditionally reported that the Scots clamd thus far, but there is onely this probality: for that [the] markes are 2 St Andrew crosses.

[III.298][50]

[Tebay School]

Westmoreland
Tibay in Orton parish
For his honourable friend
Mr Jackson, Schoolmaster at Appleby, this.

[44] Sometimes referred to as Orton Old Hall, or as 'Petty Hall'.
[45] John Curwen described this hall as 'a low two storeyed building. Over the front door appear the initials and date: G.B. 1604 M.B., commemorating the rebuilding by George Birkbeck. In the 17th century the Hall was purchased by the Petty family. A panel over a fireplace bears the Petty arms, disallowed by Dugdale, viz.: three castles with a pair of compasses, together with the initials and date C.M.P. 1689,' Curwen, Later Records, 195-213.
[46] 'In a pedigree of Henry V's reign.' It is instructive that there is no mention in this chapter of one of Sunbiggin's famous sons, the Quaker, George Whitehead (1637-1724). See Nigel Smith, 'Whitehead, George (1637–1724), Quaker leader and writer. ODNB.
[47] Ink superimposes pencil in notes, here. After 'Brandereth Stone & the lands', the rest of the line is illegible.
[48] 'Brandreth Stone': 'a granite boulder set against a field-wall, 500 yards N.N.W. of the modern church, is about 3¾ft. by 2½ft. It has no indications of working except a small rough cross on one corner. There are said to have been two crosses; the stone was reputed to have been a boundary-stone between the English and Scots.' British History Online, An Inventory of the Historical Monuments in Westmorland (London, 1936), 225-26.
[49] In Tebay. 'Gallaber' (now 'Galloper'), see Smith, Place-Names 2, 52.
[50] This page is made from the addressed and sealed page of a letter written by Roger Kenyon, incumbent at Orton.

In answer to query, Aug. 16, 1673.
Sept. 13, 1673

This free school of Tibey in the parish of ~~Oveton~~ \ Orton /and Countie of Westm'land founded there in the yere of Our Lord 1672. Mr Rob[ert] Adamson born of the sayde parish the foundre thereof \ endowing it / qualifying it with about 13[li] per annum forever. The first and present schoolmaister there Mr Robinson. The Feofies appointed for tyme being for the right ordering and governing this sayd schoole:[51]
Rog. Kenyon, cleric[52]
Mr Tho. Birbeck[53]
William Adamson[54]
Tho. Denison[55]
Rob. Wilson[56]
Jo. Thornborow[57]
Tho. Atkinson, Dr
Tho. Crosbie
Sir, Yr servant and cordiall well-wisher
Rog. Kenyon[58]

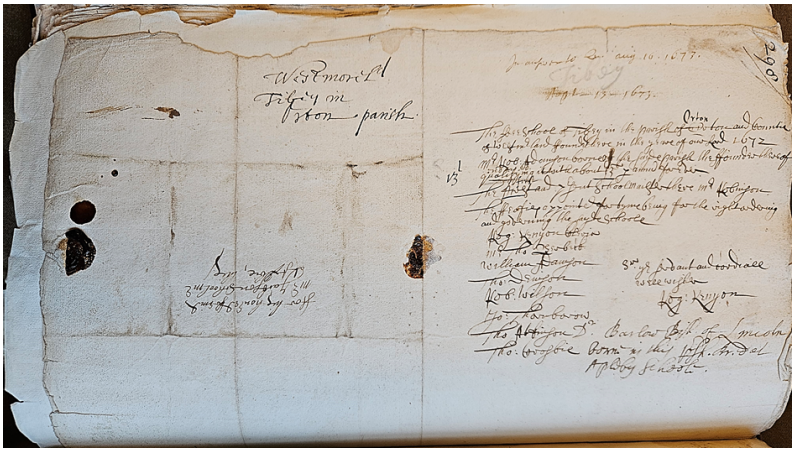

Figure 1.20.2. Letter, 1673. III.298.

[51] Tebay School was 'founded and endowed by Robert Adamson on 30 April, 1672. He gave certain houses and 24 acres of land called "Ormandie Biggin" and "Blackett Bottom," in the manor of Grayrigg for the maintenance of a schoolmaster. He stipulated that all his relations and friends, all inhabitants of Roundthwaite, all poor people in the parish of Orton, all foreigners whatsoever and all contributors to the school should have their children taught free.' Curwen, Later Records, 195-213.
[52] Roger Kennion/Kenion/Kenyon: incumbent at Orton from 1663 until his death in 1704. CCED.
[53] Two men named Thomas Birbeck are named in the Orton Town 1669-1672 Hearth Tax Roll, Lay Subsidy 195, n. 73: Curwen, Later Records, 195-213.
[54] William Adamson is named in the Tebay 1669-1672 Hearth Tax Roll, Lay Subsidy 195, n. 73, Curwen, Later Records, 195-213.
[55] Two men named Thomas Dennison/Dennyson are named in the Birkbeck Fells 1669-1672 Hearth Tax Roll, Lay Subsidy 195, n. 73, Curwen, Later Records, 195-213.
[56] Robert Wilson is named in the Bretherdale 1669-1672 Hearth Tax Roll, Lay Subsidy 195, n. 73: Curwen, *Later Records,*195-213.
[57] The name John Thornborrow appears in the Langdale and Raisbeck Hearth Tax Roll, Lay Subsidy 195, n. 73: Curwen, Later Records, 195-213.
[58] Sent by Roger Kenyon (perpetual vicar of Orton. CCED) to Mr Jackson, schoolmaster at Appleby. Jackson acted as Machell's informant in 1673.

[Machell's Note: III.300]
Barlow, Bishop of Lincoln, born in this parish, bred at Apleby schoole.[59]

[III.301]
Over the school, which is 2 stories high with convenient Romes above for a Schoolmaster, is this Inscription.

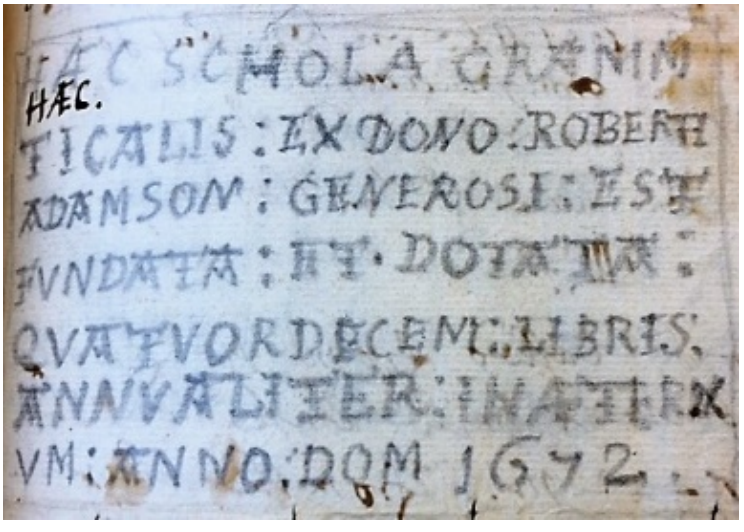

Figure 1.20.3. Inscription, Tebay School. III.301.

HÆC SCHOLA GRAMM
TICALIS: EX DONO. ROBERTI
ADAMSON: GENEROSI: EST
FUNDATA: ET. DOTA PA:
QUATVOR DECEM. LIBRIS:
ANNUALITER: IN ÆTERN
VM: ANNO. DOM 1672[60]

Adamson, born in Roundthwate, indowed it, But it was built by the Inhabitants of Orton parish, Mr Kennion, the Vicar, labouring in it for a Subscription; & those who subscribed and their posterity & the founders Kindred are free, the rest not.[61] The 1ˢᵗ schoolmaster was Edward Robinson,[62] succed[ed] by Mr William Noble, the present Schoolmaster.[63]

[Castlehow]
About the same distance directly N. in a place called Castle Gre[en] is part of a Round Mount with a Trench on the outside and hollow in the midle, which is calld Castlehow, the Remainder being worn away by Violent Incursions of the River Leun. And there is another Hill calld Castlehow near Greenholm about halfe \ mile / west from hence, on the S. West of the River Beck near to the place where it enters Leün. But hath no appearance of Trench about it. Castlehow seames a mou[n]t of war, [59] This comment is in Machell's hand. For Machell's treatment of Thomas Barlow, see I.639 and I.642A, below.

[60] 'This Grammar school is founded from the gift of Robert Adamson, gentleman, and endowed with fourteen pounds a year for ever, in the year of our Lord 1672.'
[61] See above, III.298, 'Tebay School'.
[62] Edward Robinson appears in the Orton Parish School records in 1675, and at Warcop Parish School in 1680. CCED.
[63] William Noble is listed as schoolmaster from 4 June 1680 to 13 May 1708. CCED.

and there 2 great mountanes, one calld Jeffrey Burrow,[64] S. of Rownthwate, and the other, Lords Seat in Lan[g]dale Lordship. But on what occasion it is not know.
Here is no manner house nor never any footsteps of one in the memory of man.[65] It is held of Lord Wharton, by fineable rent; much of it purchased to an 8^{d} fine, but som arbitrary, & it payes nout geld to Appleby Castle.[66] It is in the East Ward & Barony of Westm'land. No bounds. Court Baron is kept at Gasegill, but ancient[ly] at Greenh[olm].

[I.641]

[Ellergill]
A Tenement called Ellergill in the Hamlet of Gasegill in the village of Tybay, belong'd 2. Henry 5. [1414-15] to Thomas de Apleby vid. Apleby,[67] & was enfoeffed upon him & his wife. Att Apleby Anno superdicto. William Mauchell inter alias.[68]
Ellergill notwithstanding should seem to have bin a Lordship, for there was Capitale Messuagium [i.e.] a manner house, 10. Edward 2. [1316-17]. And a family of that name. For William the son of Th[…][69] de Ellergill made over the same to Richard de Blenkinsop & Isabel his wife*, with all his lands and medows with there appurtenances there. And allso the Homage & Service of Richard, son of Robert de Gasegil, i.e. all the clame & right which he had to all the lands & Tenements, wards & relieves which might fall to him in the same paying to the Lords of the Fee xxii^{d} pro Omnibus servis.[70] [Witnesses] Robert le Engleys, Robert de Askeby, John de Rossegill militis, Henry de Warthcop Vic. West.,[71] William de Helton, Henry de Ha[…][72] Thomas filio de Robert de Langdal (Keldelyth gave name to a family William de Keldelayth) And Richard the son of Robert Gasegill, conveyd to the foresaid Richard de Blenkinsop all his houses toftes lands & Tenements cum pertinentijs[73] in Ellergill.

1. Edward 1. [1272-73]: John de Ellergill had Isue
William de Ellergill

\ Keldellyt. 1. Ed. 1. /
Alan de Kellet [had Issue]
William de Kellett

Robert de Langdale

Richard de Gasegil [had Issue]
Robert de Gasegil. 10. Edward 2. [1281-82]

Lang gill?
This place & parish is honoured \ as Appleby School / with the birth of Dr Thomas Barlow somtimes Provost of Q[ueen's] College in Oxford &c. whose picture [is on the facing page].[74]

[64] 'Gefferyes Hill' or 'Jeffrey's Mount', see Smith, Place-Names 2, 53.
[65] Footsteps = foundations.
[66] Nout geld: a toll on cattle.
[67] 'See my chapter on Appleby'. The information does not appear in Machell's chapter on Appleby.
[68] 'In the year above said, witnessed by William Mauchell amongst others.'
[69] The name is obscured by the binding.
[70] 'For all services.' Some text here is obscured by the binding.
[71] 'Sheriff of Westmorland.'
[72] Blotted word; perhaps 'Haverington.'
[73] 'With their appurtenances.'
[74] See I.642A. Thomas Barlow (1608/9-1691), bishop of Lincoln, was born at Long-Gill, Orton, son of Richard Barlow (d. 1637). He was educated at Appleby grammar school. He matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, in 1625, aged sixteen, later becoming a Taberder. He graduated BA in 1630 and MA in 1633, when he was also elected fellow of Queen's. See John Spurr, 'Barlow, Thomas (1608/9-1691)'. ODNB.

[Machell's Notes: I.641]
*Not[e] that there is no more to be gathered from Helbecks conv[eyance] than this. But this may be added, that they used the same seale as an in fal. Argent.)[75]

[III.302]

III. Langdale

Langdale: so called from the length thereof, being above 4 mile lonke[76] on the S. side of Leun: 2 miles S.E. from the church.

{Freeholds}
It is a lordship, belong to my Lord Wharton. 5 or 6 freeholds & som under vallue; the rest: som arbitrary & som fine certaine. Testibus Oliver Thornburrow.

{Rarities.}
More game.
No ox-geld paid that he knows on.[77]

{Descent}
Nothing.

{Hamlets 4.}

[1. Langdale]
{Low end of Langdale is an ancient hall-house pleasantly scituated. It lies upon the beck side near unto […][78] Leun, said to have bin the hall or manner-house, and so indeed it appears to be, both by the window in the W. end of [it] being castle-wise [and] from the arched timber. Belonged to one Langdale lost at Co[…][79] now Oliver Thornburs.}

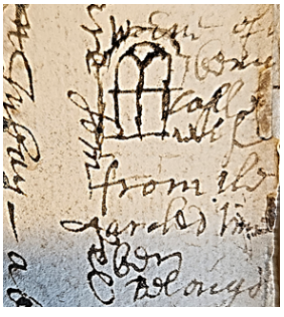

Figure 1.20.4. Ancient Hall house with window 'castle-wise'. III.302.

[I.640]
There are many places which bear this name, & ergo I shal not deduce the original of Sir Marmaduke Langdale from [the]nce, because I know well he nor his ancestors had never title here: And I shall take occasion from the pla[ce] here to insert his pedigre, in regard he had a [tit]le from this County being Lor[d] Westmorland*.

[Machell's Notes: I.640]
*See my Little booke of Familiyes & places.

[75] The meaning of 'in fal argent' or 'in ful Argent', is unclear. An infula is a heraldic symbol signifying a cap, as in 'Argent, an infula embowed at the end gules, turned up in form of a hat': https://www.heraldsnet.org/saitou/parker/Jpglossa.htm.
[76] 'Long.'
[77] Otherwise known as nout-geld (see the English Glossary).
[78] Words here have perished.
[79] Some of this margin sentence has perished; some is unclear.

Memorandum. There is [an] excellent pedigree (as I remember) in a visitation of [the] Shires penès Mr Knight juxta Novum Exchange, in […]am Yard[80] {which he promist to give with all his books to St Johns in Cambridge.} I have this account allso out of Flower Visitation of Yorkshire 1563. Vide etiam in Libro and MS Genealog.[81]

[III.302]

2. Coatgill. IIII houses 2 miles ½ S.E. from the church.
3. Flakebridge. IIII [houses] 2 miles ½ S.E.
4. Lang gill.

1 single house, the lands of which are some free, some fineable \ & has a mill there belonging unto it. / It is said one of the Lords bestowed it on a Barlow that was his servant, and her[e] was Born the learned Dr Barlow, Fellow and after Provost of Queens, and now Bishop of Lincoln – who did not read the Declaration – nor injoyne it [on] his clerge; only dispersd it, as James Birke his Steward assured his friends in Letters from Bucsden.[82]

[I.639]

[Oreton. Thomas Barlow, Bishop of Lincoln]

In this parish was born \ of mean parents / T.B.[83] Provost of Queens College in Oxford. He had his first Education at Appleby School whence he came to Oxon and there improved himselfe so much that he got the repute of one of the most learned men of that Aige his excellence consisting in Controvert Divinity. He was translated from the Provostship to the Bishoprick of Lincoln, reconting from his Consecration on the 27 of June 1675.

He had many good qualityes, but Courted Fame so much that he would doe anything allmost to cheat the world into a good opinion of him, being not in the least coveteouse of money but shamefully gready of common reputation and popular applause; one that could rub of[f] any shame with a few fawneing words and fair pretences full of promises, but very barren & empty in performance {a man whose deed consists all together in words & Liberality in promises; for when he hath said, he hath don, & you gett no more}. He was in crafty witt subtill enough; in speach pleaseing, in entertainments liberal, & beloved of all but those that knew him; \ to his friends treacherous, to his foes Irreconcileable. / Thus, he was before Consecration. God make him better for the Time to come*.[84]

[Machell's Notes: I.649]

*{Tho this be true I will not allow of it; Charity covers a multitude of faults.}

---

[80] 'Near the New Exchange.' The name of the yard is obscured by the binding. In V.2C Machell wrote, 'I sent you a letter (since my notes) & desired you to consult a little booke in 4^0 call'd the Visitation of Cumberland and Northumberland, which Mr Knight has, who is the kings chirugion, & lives behind the New Exchange.' Mr Knight was the king's surgeon.

[81] 'See likewise in [my] book and MS of genealogy.'

[82] In his later years (even while bishop of Lincoln) Thomas Barlow lived in Buckden, Huntingdonshire. While Machell's criticism of Barlow in the paragraph below is swingeing, the point he is making here relates to Barlow's attitude to the (1687-88) Declaration of Indulgence (greatly opposed by many Anglicans because it granted tolerance to various Christian denominations), see Scott Sowerby, Making Toleration: The Repealers and the Glorious Revolution (Cambridge, Mass. 2013), 171. When the bishops were told by James II that they should order the Declaration of Indulgence to be read from all the pulpits in their dioceses, Barlow's response was to equivocate – knowing that such equivocation left room for clergy NOT to read it. A letter to one of his clergy dated 29 May 1688 remarks that, 'whether you should, or should not read them, is a question of that difficulty, in the circumstance we now are, that you can't expect that I should so hastily answer it'. He would not seek to persuade or dissuade the writer. 'Only this I shall advise, that, after serious consideration, you find that you cannot read it, but reluctante vel dubitante conscientia, in that case, to read it will be your sin, and you to blame for doing it.' See John Spurr, 'Barlow, Thomas (1608/9-1691). ODNB. It was behaviour such as this that persuaded Machell that Barlow was a no more than a casuist.

[83] Thomas Barlow.

[84] Gibson's extended edition of Camden's Britannia (to which Machell contributed the additional Westmorland section) alludes only briefly to Barlow: 'The river Lune rising a little above Russendale, runs by Lang-gill, where Dr Barlow late Bishop of Lincoln was born, in April 1607.' See Camden's Britannia newly translated into English, with large additions and improvements; publish'd by Edmund Gibson (London, 1695), 'Additions to Westmorland', 811-12.

[I.642A][85]

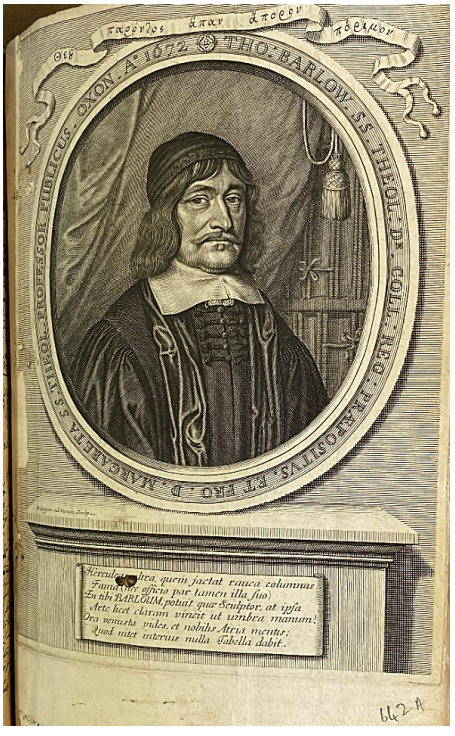

Figure 1.20.5. Engraving. Portrait of Thomas Barlow D.D.
Provost of The Queen's College and Lady Margaret Professor of Divinity, Oxford, in the year 1672. I.642A.

[Legend]

THO BARLOW SS THEOL DR COLL REG PRAEPOSITUS ET PRO D MARGARETA SS THEOL PROFESSOR PUBLICUS OXON AO 1672
THOMAS BARLOW SANCTISSIMAE(?) THEOLOGIAE DOCTOR COLLEGII REGINAE PRAEPOSITUS ET PRO DOMINA MARGARETA SANCTISSIMAE THEOLOGIAE PROFESSOR PUBLICUS OXONIENSIS ANNO 1672[86]

[Verses]

Herculeas quem jactat ultra rauca columnas
Fama (nec officio par tamen illa suo)
En tibi BARLOUM, potuit quae Sculptor, at ipsa
Arte licet claram vincit ut umbra manum!
Ora Venusta vides, et nobilis Atria mentis;
Quod nitet interius nulla Tabella dabit.[87]

[III.303]

[85] This page consists of a copy of David Loggan's engraving (27cm x 17cm) of Thomas Barlow, bound into this part of Machell's MS. The original (240mm x 171mm) was created in 1672. It is displayed in the National Portrait Gallery; see its website online. The Greek text above Barlow's head translates as, 'God being present, everything impossible [is] possible.' The pagination at the foot on the right is 20th century.
[86] 'Thomas Barlow Doctor of Sacred Theology, Provost of The Queen's College, and Lady Margaret Public Professor of Sacred Theology at Oxford in the year 1672.'
[87] 'Behold before you the man whose reputation Fame (though not equal to her task) loudly broadcasts beyond the Pillars of Hercules: BARLOW, such as the sculptor could render him. Yet in the very work he overshadows the artist's hand, illustrious though that be! You see a gracious visage, and the portals of a noble mind; what shines within no image will portray.' Compare with Machell's wry conclusions on I.639, above.

IIII. Bretherdale

The Lordship of Bretherdale: so called, they say, because of 3 bretheren to whom it belongd*.
It has 2 villages or hamlet:
1. Bretherdale. 3 miles S.W. from the church; about XI house; excellent churchmen for freq[uenting] the church & paying their tythes.
2. Dalehead. 3 miles &c. S.W [ab Ecclesia]; about V. houses and som other stragling houses.
No freeholds: customary tenants, arbitrary under my Lord Wharton. But tis said to have belong'd to Byland Abby† or som other religiouse place & so had priviledge of Sanctuary, & keeps Court Leet & Baron at Robert Brinslesses, being Baly[88] at the Dale Foote. They [take] up waif & strayes for Lord Wharton her[e]. They pay nout geld to Apleby Castle‡. Blew rag'd slate: 3 miles S.W. Store of small ash, birkes[89] & underwood. And peets. Som tenants there belong to Crosby Ravensworth but the fines of both Lords I am not assied of.[90]

[Machell's Notes: III.303]

*[Witness] T.
†{?}
‡{Query of George Wilson of Bretherdale.}

[I.406]

[V.] Raisbeck

Raysebeck in the county of Apleby.[91] XXXIII. Henry VIII. [1541-42]. Blenkinsops.
T.B. in his will, amongst his other gifts to religious societyes, Anno 1536. gave 6s 8d to the fryars of Apleby. Month-mynde was a monthly commemoration on which a Trental of mass[92] was sung for the soule of the dead: 37. Henry 8. [1545-46].

[III.205]

[Things remarkable in Orton Parish]

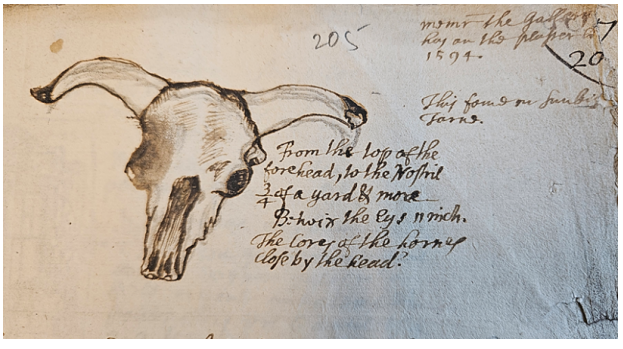

Figure 1.20.6. 'Found in Sunbiging Tarne'. III.205.

This found in Sunbiging Tarne. From the top of the forehead, to the Nostril ¾ of a yard & more – Betwix the eys 11 inch. The cores of the hornes close by the head?

[88] Bailiff.
[89] Ash and birch trees.
[90] Perhaps, 'apprised'.
[91] In the Barony of Appleby.
[92] A 'month's mind' is a requiem mass celebrated circa one month after a person's death in memory of the deceased. Trental: a set of thirty requiem masses, said on the same day or on different days; also, the payment made for this. OED.

[III.300]

At Fribigins,[93] 1mile E. from the church, a spring which turnes or breakes milk into a curd.

An horse rase at Beck, 1 mile ½, which is 3 mile turn stoope,[94] every Michaelmas Day for a Flag[on] &c. Given by the neighbourhood.

[III.474A]

There is a well \ on the moore / in a place called ~~on the moore~~ Crosslack, 3 quarters [of a mile] south from the church & within a bowshot of Coatflat, which springs in a bog & is coverd over with a blew skin. The taist differs little from common water, but that it is a little brackish. It is said to cuer soer legs & that it would colour silver like brass, the latter of which I tried to effect but it would not performe it; whether the season of the year was over, it being in October, or the report be false, I would to be farther enquireing.

[III.302]

[Rarities in Nature in Orton Parish]

The River Leun has troutes & som salmon. No limestone in the lordship, which is strange.
Daker hens in this & Orton, like a ~~partridge~~ 2[d] chicken of a blackish brown with white feathers in the wing, and each much like one. In winter they feed in the diches; in sommer in the corne. They have feet like an hen but somthing webd & are amphibious.[95]

[III.300]

Sunbigin Tarn: trouts & eales in great store.
The whol Lordship upon a limestone.\ \Blew /slate at the head of Bretherdale 2 miles W. from the church.
Oker in Orton Skar ½ mile E.[96] {Orton S\k/arr for twice 12 s[c]ore[97] the Glittering clints,[98] being stones that have holes of about a foot more or less, & deep beyond view.} In the S[k]arr are Dotterells, & great store of Moore Game on the Commons \ Lings /. Fine haut land.[99]

[I.639]

[Orton Customs]

They have \ a/ Custom in this parish on the 12[th] Eve, which they call the seeking of the flower in the well; which is performed in this manner:
The mades in the parish dress up a Baby of Cloutes,[100] which they are to hide by some spring well in the parish; & the men, seeking it, if they doe not finde it befor 12 a Clock, are to treat the maides; if they doe, the maides treat them.

[I.640][101]

Allso they use Rush bearing, the maids tyeing [a la]rge nosegay att each corner of the sheet; which [the] young boys ~~can~~ \ endeavour to / snatch away from them ere they gett into the Church; & the made[s] strive to secure them; which if they doe they sett [them] up in the place where their household sit [as a] trophy upon a great victorie.
The former of these Customes is in imitation [of] the Sages seeking Our Saviour,[102] like as the Holly allso, which is not so practicable in this place. And the other has relation to St Johns being in the wilderness & prepareing the way of Our Saviour, making the paths straight. [Testator] L. Blenkinsop.

---

[93] Frere Biggins. According to Nicolson and Burn, 'Below Frerebiggins there is a place called Frere-mire and there is a parcel of turbary called Frere-moss which probably received their names from having belonged to the Friars: see N&B1, 482.
[94] A stoop is a marker post. OED. Thus, a turn stoop shows where to turn back to the start.
[95] The daker-hen is a corncrake. OED.
[96] Presumably ochre: natural earthy material or clay, rich in iron oxides; ochre varies in colour from light yellow to deep orange-red or brown. OED.
[97] Unclear text.
[98] Clints: hard or flinty rocks, projecting on the side of a hill or river, or in the bed of a stream. OED.
[99] Haut: upland. OED.
[100] Clout: cloth, see William Rollinson, Dictionary of Cumbrian Dialect, Tradition and Folklore (Otley, 1997), 33.
[101] Because parts of this page have been damaged and repaired, some words are now lost.
[102] See Part 1, Ch.6, Brough, I.171.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 21]

[Parish of Ravenstonedale]

[I.652]

Ravenstonedale Parish, so calld from the dale wherein the church standes doth comprehend in it Ravenstonedale, which is divided into 3 angles.[1]

[III.305]

{1. Division}

Russendale, anciently ~~&~~ writ Ravstonedale, is but one Lordship, divided in 4 angles. 8 score familyes.

1. Russendale Town \ stands / S.E. 7 from Appelby; Kendale is S. west from it about 14 miles & Sedber S.E. from it 7; Kirk[by Stephen] N. from it, 3 miles. Above XX houses.

2. Newbiging.[2] 1mile N.W. from the church: a little village, well watred. Tarn House: a gentlemans house.[3] Tennant right, about XVI, and other stragling houses. At Tranny Hill House at the far end of Newbiging was born the President of St Johns in Cambridge[4] about 10 year agoe: Thomas Fothergil, a countrymans son, who f[ounded] the school.[5] There is an hamlet near, a little N., calld Brownbur \ or rigg / or som such like, in the way from Kirkby Stephen to Kendal.[6]

A mile & ½ N.W. from Newbigin, the left hand of the way to Appleby

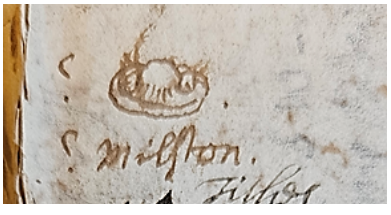

Figure 1.21.1. Sketch of a feature 'a mile & ½ N.W. from Newbigin, the left hand of the way to Appleby'. III.305.

[1] A geographical 'angle' is point of land; a cape, a promontory. Also, more generally (without reference to shape), an outlying region or district of a country, city, etc.; a remote or outlying spot; any section of a larger region. OED. Ravenstonedale had four angles or constablewicks: Town Angle, Fell End Angle, Newbiggen Angle and Bowderdale Angle, see III.305 & III.310, below. See also W. Nicholls, The History and Traditions of Ravenstonedale, Westmorland (Manchester, 1877), 52.

[2] Newbiggin-on-Lune.

[3] Owned by the Fothergills.

[4] MS: 'C~~h~~ambrid.'

[5] The Fothergill family's fame was summed up by Clement Jones in A Tour in Westmorland (1948). 'No record of Ravenstonedale would be complete without mention of the Fothergill family … Fothergills have been resident here for four centuries, and many of them have risen to distinction. In the reign of Henry VIII, Sir William Fothergill was standard bearer to his neighbour Sir Thomas Wharton at the battle of Sollum [Solway] Moss [1542]. George Fothergill of Tarn House, who died in 1681, was Clerk of the Peace for Westmorland. Thomas Fothergill of Brownber, who founded the endowed school at Ravenstonedale c.1688, was master of St. John's College, Cambridge … The Fothergills were large landowners and had three separate estates in the parish - Tarn House, Brownber and Lockholme.' Clement Jones, A Tour in Westmorland (Kendal, 1948), Ch.6.

[6] Brownber. It is interesting that Machell did not appear to recognise the name, as it is given in the answers to his queries on III.310. It is instructive that Machell also failed to mention a famous resident of Brownber: Elizabeth Gaunt, the Baptist daughter of Anthony Fothergill, who was the last woman in England to be burned at the stake (in 1685, at Tyburn), having been implicated in the Rye House Plot to murder Charles II and his brother, James: see Melinda Zook, Protestantism, Politics and Women in Britain, 1660-1714 (Basingstoke, 2013), 50-54.

3. Bouderdale. 1 mile &c. W.; stragling houses: about XXX. Leun springs hear, above half a mile distant from Lang\ gill*/ where Bishop Barlow was born.

4. Fell End Angl. 2 \ or 3 / miles S.E.†.

[2. The Church]

The church is an old \ conventual Church / Building,[7] 30 yards long from the Steeple exclusively to the east end of the Quire, & 12 yards broad, with a row of 3 substant[ial] round pillar & 4 arches just in the midle. On the south side of the Altar is a piece allotted by dispensation of Bishop Potter for teaching \ a / School.[8] {The Steeple low, & bro[ad] which makes it seem the low[er]. 3 good bells in it: pretty tunable (a Gallery) & clock.}
And on the N. side has bin a large Quadrangle, the inner court being 20 yards square, as may yet be seen \ by the Ruines, / the bredth of the rooms about 6 or 7 yards, with vaultes underneath them, som of which are yet very visible, next to the Quier, with ribed arches. & a doer appears on the outside of the church, where they have had an enterance.[9]

{Dedication?}
{The Prior & Convent of the monastery of Watton in the Diocess of York ordinis de Sempyngham,[10] who had possession of & shewd their Title to the church there to John Bishop of Carliol, whereupon he absolved them a[b] impetitione officij 1^{0} Jan[ua[ry. Cause 4^{0} Halt[on], p.357 […]}[11]

A spatiouse piece of plane level ground behind these ruines is calld the Orchard. Over the water on the East side of it, som houses & closes called the Waincards, \ forsan Wain-gards Closes, / and over the way, on the W. side of it, 2 large pieces of ground \ Closes / calld the Colt Parke; and beyond this a bridge which is called Cowhouse Bridge; above

[7] Conventual: of or belonging to a religious convent. OED.
[8] Barnaby Potter DD (bap. 1577, d. 1642), bishop of Carlisle, son of Thomas Potter, mercer and alderman of Kendal, Westmorland. He graduated BA from Queen's College, Oxford, 1599, proceeded MA 1602, and was elected fellow in 1604. In 1616 he was elected provost by the fellows of Queen's, which post he held for 10 years. A persistent Calvinist, he was nevertheless liked by Charles I, who appointed him chief almoner to the Crown in 1628. He was consecrated bishop of Carlisle in 1629, but resided much of the time in the South of England. See A. Hegarty, 'Potter, Barnaby (bap. 1577, d. 1642), bishop of Carlisle'. ODNB.
[9] There is a Latin phrase in the margin here: 'Dominus religiosus, …ue mannerij' but it is too close to the gutter to be read accurately.
[10] 'Of the Order of Sempringham.' The Order of Sempringham (Gilbertine Order of Canons Regular) had its origin in 1131 when St Gilbert of Sempringham (1085-1189) left the household of the bishop of Lincoln to return to serve the parish church of Sempringham, of which he was rector. The only completely English religious order, it closed during the Dissolution of the Monasteries. The life of St. Gilbert is recorded in Dugdale's Monasticon. VII, 5-29, but the original source for all accounts is the Vita, written shortly after Gilbert's death in 1189 by a canon of Sempringham and presented to the Pope along with accounts of miracles so that Gilbert might be declared a saint, which he was in 1202. The Vita was probably exaggerated to emphasise the obstacles that Gilbert overcame to be worthy of sainthood. See a Latin version through the BL Online, and an English translation in Raymonde Foreville and Gillian Keir (eds), The Book of St Gilbert (Oxford, 1997.) I owe much of this information to the generosity of Jackie Wedd of Ravenstonedale Parish History Group (author of Ravenstonedale and the Gilbertines, forthcoming), for which I thank her.
[11] The page has perished here; the text is unclear. The date (possibly 1327) is too indistinct to quote with certainty. 'Impetitio' is a Latin legal term which means 'action to establish claim, or interference with title', see R.E. Latham, Revised Medieval Word-List from British and Irish Sources (Oxford, 1989: 1st edn, 1965), 237. Disputes between the see of Carlisle and the priory (under the priory of Watton, Yorkshire) occurred during the late 13th century, when the bishop of Carlisle absolved the priory of Watton of an accusation of interference: 'ab impetitione officii'. See the Deed, 'magistri de Sempyngham', in W.N. Thompson (ed.), Register of John de Halton (London, 1913), 211-12. The bishop of Carlisle concerned was Robert de Chause (Chauncy: bishop of Carlisle c.1258-78) but the deed was recorded in Bishop Halton's Register (1292 to 1324), see CAC(C), DRC/1/1. See also P. Turnbull and D. Walsh, 'Monastic Ruins at Ravenstonedale', CW2, 92 (1992), 67-76, at 67.

[Machell's Notes: III.305]

*{?}
†{Orton Bound[er]} Query the course.

[III.306]

and beneath the which bridge are to be got large blew marble-stones – which will rise of great Length & Breadth for grave stones – in the Town End beck which runns by E. end of the church. And there is another beck calld Caudbeck where they may be got also out of the river. {N.B. The lower bridge at Mallerstang Town is all of marbell, & so most part of that angle.}

[III.308]

[Presentation]
Russendale, a Peculiar.[12]
Lord Wharton: Lord; Bishop: patrone; parson: vicar. No institution nor induction.

[III.306]

{Nominatio Incumbentis}[13]
Know all men by these presents that I, Philip Lord Wharton, Baron of Wharton in the county of Westm'land, do hereby constitute, authorise and appoint Anthony Proctor Clerke,[14] to be Curate of the church of Ravenstonedale in the said county of Westm'land. And to officiate there, & to take & make probat of wills, & exercise all rights & jurisdictions, & to receive all profits of the curate or curacy there belonging, dureing my pleasure.
Given under my hand & seal at Arms the 24 day of June in the 25 year of the Reigne of Our Sovereign Lord Charles 2, by the Grace of God, of England, Scotland, France & Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith &c. Anno q' Dom' 1673.
P. Wharton.[15]

{Tithes}
Corn, woll, lamb &c. in kinde, and money for hay; due to Lord Wharton \ some time. / 420 lambs, 21 calves per annum. 30 li per annum corne. Hay under 20 li for half annum. The costs, he has settled more on the minister of Russendale, but not taken effect. Threshfield near Skipton 12^{li} per annum exhib[ition].

[III.308]

Glebe
One Green gave 2 acres the orchard.[16] One Chamberlin ~~the money that purchased the Orchard~~ \ ~~2 acres~~ / {2 acre ½, & ½ \ r[ood] /} 6^{li} per annum, for which he payes old rent but no fine. {Both of this parish.} His predecessor Mr \ Thomas / Dodshun,[17] had 20[li]; & so Mr Procter till Mart[inmas] [16]88, now 8^{li}, surplice fees & prob[ates] of will by right.

[12] 'Russendale Peculiar' appears at right angles to the text on this page. A 'Peculiar' is an ecclesiastical district (usually a parish) outside the jurisdiction of archbishop, bishop or archdeacon. Peculiars were entitled to hold their own courts and before 1858 they proved wills of people who owned property in their respective districts. See Giles Jacob, A New Law Dictionary (London, 2nd edn, 1732), PE.
[13] Text of the deed of appointment of the curate of Ravenstonedale by the patron, Philip, Lord Wharton.
[14] For Anthony Procter's answers to Machell's queries, see below, III.309-11.
[15] The MS depicts Lord Wharton's seal here, but it is too close to the gutter to be reproduced clearly.
[16] MS: '1 Green gave 2 acres the orchard.'
[17] Thomas Dodgson was ordained deacon in 1624. He appears in Ravenstonedale parish records of in 1628 and 1636; he was was buried in 1672/3. Anthony Procter was curate of Ravenstonedale from c.1673; he became rector of Dean in Cumberland in 1689. In his early career he seems to have been a nonconformist and it is instructive that he was appointed to Ravenstonedale by Lord Wharton. See R.W. Metcalfe, The Ravenstonedale Parish Registers (Kendal, 1894), Vol. III, Introduction, v-vii. In a biography of Wharton, Bryan Dale opined that although Wharton was a puritan, he was not necessarily Presbyterian in the strict sense, being drawn to Protestant Dissenters generally, including Independents and others. For example, in the Westminster Assembly of Divines, Wharton acted with the Independents in opposition to the Presbyterians. See Bryan Dale, The Good Lord Wharton (London, 1906), 130.

[3. Other Buildings of note]

[Tarn House]
The best house in this angle and the whol parish is Tern House, belonging to the Fothergills, with a neat & uniform hall, & the only slated house in the Lordship, there being no slates to be had in the parish.
These Armes are over the tower at Tern House, and the letters underneath them: G. F. – I. F. 1664.[18]

Figure 1.21.2: Tern [Tarn] House. Coats of Arms. III.306.

[Key]
1.
2.
3.
4. The same as the 3rd.
5.

[Machell's Notes: III.306 and III.307]
Query of Mr Shaw: what fellowships in St John's College Cambridge belonging to Westm'land or if confined to any particular place or school there: Mr Calvert, schoolmaster.[19]
{Query of William Wharton of Mallerstang: his strange passage from Piper Cross to Cautley-Spoote in Russendale.}
[III.307] {Feb. 26 1688/9} {Mr Proctor, Rector of Mallerstang; [Testator:] George Haton of Wharton.}

[III.308]

[Meeting House]
In Russendale Town, S. ab Ecclesia ½ a quarter of a mile, near the midle of ~~it is~~ the East Row stands ~~a meeting house, being~~ an house lately purchased & put in repare by Philip, Lord Wharton & his discenting tenants in 1691 \ for a meeting house which is / vastly distant from the church but not far from the alehouse.[20] A man was slane \ at the repareing of it / by a piece of timber, so that its [18] Dated 1664 on a door lintel. Marginalia here provide two pencilled sketches with initials G.F. & I.F. (George Fothergill and his wife Julian).

[19] James Calvert: deacon 1685; priested 1689; master of Ravenstonedale Free Grammar School, 1684-89. Possibly a graduate of Pembroke College, Cambridge (entered 1682, BA 1683-84). See CCED, & Cambridge Alumni Online at Ancestry.com.
[20] Philip, fourth Baron Wharton (1613-1696), the prominent parliamentarian and nonconformist, enabled Christopher Jackson (ejected from Crosby Garrett church after the Act of Uniformity) to build a meeting house at Ravenstonedale in 1662. Lord Wharton then bequeathed £100 in trust to purchase land in the dale to provide an income for him and his successors. Wharton Hall, approximately four miles from Ravenstonedale village, was a rendezvous for the ejected ministers in the district, who presumably preached in the meeting-house: see Nicholls, Ravenstonedale, 47, 119; see also S. Kelsey, 'Wharton, Philip, fourth Baron Wharton, politician'. ODNB.

foundation, like that of old Roome,[21] was not without blood. Thus, the Lord Wharton continue in blindness – in hunc usque.[22]

4. {The Parke}

{A parke with high wall, 10 feet high, ½ a mile long, ½ mile broad; [valued at]100^{li} per annum; never stocked with deer.}[23]

[III.307]

They tell a story here (& confirm it in the Lordship of Wharton by general tradition) that one old Wharton toke the town field to make the parke on, & ~~put~~ \ gave / the tenants ~~of to~~ \ land in / other part of the common.[24] And when it was walled, rideing to see it & going over Asfell on a vere fair, sunshineing day, he complained it was misty, that he could not see, & were struck blinde so that he could never see it, but rid to the wall & struck upon it with his stick, & so never saw it. {There has bin about the parke very high walls}. A very foolish tale.[25]

And that he had a footman called Gerrard, who was to run the bounder of Russendale \ twixt sun & sun / and began at the place where the cross stands on Parke wall, N. from Russendale about a mile from it; and came within the time, but being \ far / spent, he came so near as to throw his staff to the place where he began, & there fell down dead; upon which occasion that cross was erected and is called by the name Gerrard Cross to this very day*.

{Parke in fables}

A gentleman hunting with hounds in Newbiging Field, found an hare in Russendale Parke an ran her / E. unto the Lee lands, where a woman was skaleing mould hills.[26] & they, running in amongst the hounds to catch the hare, it lept into the woman's skirt [and] got into her lap; and he, comeing in, tooke it from her & carried it home, not know[ing] her to be with childe.[27] But the woman was afterwards ~~brought in bed of~~ \ delivered of / an hare {Partus Leporarius[28]}, the foote part like an hare foot, part like a child; nor known whether male or female, but went longer than ordinary by 8 or 9 weeks. About 26 years agoe. {Ellin Hardlow. Of Nether. 1^{t} bir[th], 6 children after.}[29]

[5. Hills and Fells]

{Raset Norwest Angle} {White limestone stones}

At Raset Pike[30] – a hill somewhat resembling the roof of an house – which lyes from the church 2 mile & ½ N. & in Appelby Way†, one Thomas Scaife of Crosby Garret, having dreamed of tresure ~~found~~ hid in that hill, he got som neighbours to goe along with \ him, / & digging several hoales therein, he found a stone coffin made with 3 stones like to a sheep trough \ & another laid over / wherein were ashes & \ som / boanes of a man, like the links of a man's back, & som round ends of

---

[21] Ancient Rome.

[22] 'Right up to this moment.' Wharton died in 1696, see n. above.

[23] The deer park was created by the first Lord Wharton in 1560: see Mark Blackett-Ord, 'Lord Wharton's deer-park walls', CW2, 86 (1986), 133-39, at 133. For the manner in which it was enclosed, see also Nicholls, Ravenstonedale, 24-27. The wall was nine feet high.

[24] Nicholls remarks, 'Many of the honest yeomen were uprooted to secure the park, for at that time it was the most thickly populated part of the parish, and they were compelled to be satisfied with parcels of land widely separated from each other and to live in a very precarious way … In reading the old records, I have been impressed with the fact that the appropriation of the land was a sore trial.' Nicholls, Ravenstonedale, 27.

[25] This sentence was written in a different hand, probably that of William Nicolson. See the Editor's Introduction; see also Adam Fox, 'Vernacular Culture and Popular Customs in Early Modern England: Evidence from Thomas Machell's Westmorland', Cultural and Social History 3 (2012), 329-47, at 343.

[26] 'Skaling' mole hills: scattering or dispersing them. OED.

[27] MS: 'A gentleman hunting with ~~greyhound~~ \ hounds / in Newbiging Field \ found an hare in Russendale P[ark]e an ran her / E. ~~of the hare~~ unto the Lee lands, where a ~~man &~~ woman were Skaleing mould hills, & they running in amongst the hounds to take \ catch / the hare, it ~~lept into the woman's skirt~~ \ got into her lap / and he, comeing in, tooke it from her & carried it home, not know her to be with childe.'

[28] 'Delivery of a hare.'

[29] Another related margin comment has mostly perished.

[30] Rayseat Pike.

b[one] not reduced to ashes, which, when they broake them, they were somewhat reddish within. The coffin was all white within as if it had bin don over with plaster, and the ashes were white‡.[31]

[Machell's Notes: III.307]

*[Testators] {George Haton, Len Wharton.}
†{?}
‡Seen & relate by George Haton, Wharton.

[III.308]

{Great Raset}
There is an hill in this parish, called Great Raset, which is in circumference about 60 yards, & is called Great for distinctions sake from Little Raset, which lyeth from it N.W. ½ a mile & is onely a bounder marker. For at this Little Raset (if I mistake not?) the Lordship of Smardale which lyeth north of it, the Lordship of Kirk[by Stephen] & Wateby on the east, & the Lordship of Wharton, which is E. & South E., all meet together *.

[Wild Boar Fell]
{Dowfin sty: a lingy place.}
A wild boar. A dog dowfin.[32]
Wilbright-Fell, the Countis seat. She made a chape[l] of huen stone there; now pulled down.
The place at Chapple was at Newbiging, at a place calld Chapple, but a barn built of the stones.

[6. Things remarkable in the Parish]

{Lapis Igneis}[33]
John Hunters man of Bowberhead, going to fother the cattle on a snowy morning, saw something like a coate of fier lying near the cowhouse, which for fear ~~of~~ that mischief might be don by it, hasted to put ~~it~~ out. But when he came at it ~~he~~ found it to be a stone of the bigness and shape of a goose egg, but transparent & representing diverse coulours to the eyes when he held it betwixt him & the light. But when it lay at a distance in a window or any darke roome, it shined like fier†.

Molae trusatiles[34] in a gill a mile S. of Russendale – a little milston worn out – a kanke[35] by the water. Firr rootes also, about 9 yards spred, & oake in the mosses.

[Machell's Query: III.308]

*Query the whether at the great [or] Little Raset.
†{Mr Waller. Query farther of Mr Waller, who inform'd him; for I have enquired at Bowber and they know nothing of it} Tis said that old Mr Fothergill saw it, but how it was lost I cannot tell. Query: of John Hunter.
Query of a bulls head found in a peat moss at Russendale; yet to be seen at Wharton Hall.[36]

———————

III.305

{Customs & Privileges}
A childe, 7. set tenant.[37]
A man dying & leaveing a minor (under 16); if it dye afore 16 tis infant forfeit.
If a man die without Isue & make no will, tis forfeit.

[31] For descriptions of remains found on Rayseat see III.309, below; see also Nicholls, Ravenstonedale, 106.
[32] Dauphine Stye. The mountain at the head of Ravenstonedale 'bears the name of Wild-boar Fell, and is 2,323 feet high. The name is supposed to be derived from the wild boars which used to abound there; and in confirmation of this there is a road just under the summit called Dauphine Stye.' Nicholls, Ravenstonedale, 104.
[33] 'Firestone.'
[34] Hand (push, pull) grain-mills.
[35] Possibly 'cank' or 'cankstone': a hard, ferruginous sandstone. OED. Termed also a 'useless mix of rotten stone found in quarries' by Joseph Wright, The English Dialect Dictionary (London, 1898-1905), I, 505.
[36] Cf. Part 1, Chapter 20, Orton, III.205.
[37] Unclear numeral.

They may have a jury of assent & consent to end any differences betwixt 2 tennants: summoned and sworn by balif.}[38]

[III.309][39]

[7. Machell's Ravenstonedale Parish Questionnaire answered by Anthony Prockter, curate, and George Fothergill]

An Answer to the First Querie

{1. Ratio Nom[in]us}[40]
The parish commonly called Russendaile is (and anciently haith beene) written Ravenstondaile. There is a stone in a place of that parish called Scanda, having the print of a raven's foot upon it, and a hill adjoyning to it called Ravens Seate-hill, from which it's said the parish haith taken its name.

{2. Perambulatis; boundes}
The parish is a peculiar within the Diocess of Carlile and bounded as followeth, vizt. Begining at a place called Bouderdaile south west, and as the watter of Bouderdaile runns till it comes into the watter of Tebey and by or through Asancions and so to Blatarne;[41] thence unto Rassett[42] (wheare a great many dead mens bones have beene digged out of two round hills) where severall tomes[43] of a rude fashon doth appeare and ~~great~~ bones (both men's skulls and other bones) found of an extrordinarie strength and greatness.[44] \ It / doth appear the bodeys have not beene buried east and west but round about each Hill the heads all lying upwards towards the hill tops {N.B. ad Rassett} and as far as haith beene discovered their hands have been laide upon there brests.[45] There remains noe tradition \ or tract[46] / what the place haith beene. The hills are in form of a piramid or some thing ressembling a sugerlofe (onley broder cas[t]en at the basses). And so along to Couling-Stones adjoyning upon the parish of Crossby Garret upon the North; from thence to Sceat becke, and so into Smardaile becke, till it come at Smardaile-Flatt; and from that, till it come on the highest place on Asfell,[47] and so to Tarnewath hole adjoyning upon the parish of Kirkby Stephen upon the East; from thence (as Kirkby Stephen Way goes) till it comes at Scandaile-watter and up that watter as it assendeth unto a pathway that goes to Mallerstang-Scarth, and then on the top of Will-brough or Wildbore Fell, and so on to the head of the watter of Uldaile; and as that watter runns till it comes into the watter of Rathay upon the South, which devids it from the parish of Sedbergh and also which \ it / divides Westm'rland from Yorkeshire; and so to betwixt Walkingham and Keldon and so \ to / the head of Bouderdaile where wee begane.[48]

Answer to the Second Querie

{3. Figura}[49]
The forme of it is ovell, or oblong; and it is about 5 miles in length from Rathay[50] bridg to Bouderdaile-foote; and in bredth from Asfell upon the North-east, to the bacside of Greene-bell upon the South-west, about two miles and a halfe.

---

[38] Ravenstonedale was a parochial peculiar; it made its own probate rules; see fn.12.
[39] This page is Curate Proctor's answer to Machell's set of queries, therefore not in Machell's hand. It was countersigned by George Fothergill, a leading inhabitant.
[40] Meaning of the place-name.
[41] Asancions [Ascensions] is unclear.
[42] Rayseat. NY693084.
[43] 'tombs'.
[44] See Nicholls, Ravenstonedale, 106.
[45] For this description, see also Camden, Britannia (Gough edn,1789), 162: 'At Rasate in Ravenstonedale parish, not far from Sunbiggin tarn, are two tumuli, in which have been found many skeletons laid round about the hills, with the heads all lying upwards towards the hill top, and the hands on the breasts.'
[46] These interlineated words are unclear.
[47] Ash Fell.
[48] Question marks appear in the left-hand margin relating to text from 'Mallerstang-scarth' to 'from Yorkshire'.
[49] The shape of the parish.
[50] The text has perished here, but the word appears to be 'Rath/Roth' followed by 'ay' = Rathay/Rothay.

Answer to the 3 Querie

{3. Solum}[51]

The soyle is of severall sorts, and the worth accordingly, but for most that upon a lime ston, and in some places yields lead oare, marle of severall ~~cabels~~ colours, and fullers earth. The soyle in genrall more apt for medow and pasture then corne. Peats and turfe for fyring good store; about a mil[e]s[52] distance from it, sevrall villages or hamlets.

[III.310]

Answer to the 4th and 5th Queries

{4. Dedicatio}

The church is said to be dedicatted to St Oswould, \ and is / but antient bulding covred with lead, \ haveing / one row of pillars, a square steeple, ~~and have~~ \ with / 3 bells \ in it. It was / indowed, as it seames by some evidence without date, by one Thorfin or Thorphinus, son of Robert, the son of Copsus.[53]

{Copsuss
|
Robert
|
Thorphin}[54]

And the whole parish made a sanctuary and, confirmed by Pope Celestine 2th,[55] and Honorius the 3d,[56] who also mad it tyth free*, ~~and~~ belonged to the abbey of Watton. This sanctuary extended to the bounds of the whole parish† and was indowed with a great many freedoms and privileges extraordinary, the most whereof \ are / now extinct.[57]

{6. Delatio et?}[58]

The whole rectory is an impropriation belonging to the Lord Wharton, who allows the Curate \ a stipend / of 20li per annum and the surplice fees and fees of the Peculiar, amounting to about 5li per [51] Latin: 'ground'.

[52] Unclear word.
[53] Interlineation to this point is in Machell's hand, editing Procter's text.
[54] In Machell's hand. According to Nicholls, 'Documentary evidence shows that in the year 1336 the manor of Ravenstonedale, with the advowson, was given by one Torphin to the Priory of Watton, of the order of Sempringham. Burns and Nicholson … say, "The tenor of Torphin's grant, including the manor, with the advowson appendent, is set forth in an account given to the Rev. Thomas Machel by Mr. Anthony Prockter, curate of Ravenstonedale, and Mr. George Fothergill of Tarn house, as also in a manuscript, written in the year 1645, by Anthony Fothergill, of Trannahill, great grandfather of the late Mr. Anthony Fothergill, of Brownber, whose account was taken from an office copy of the charter of donation remaining amongst the evidences in the tower or palace of the late abbey of St. Mary, without the walls of York; which tower was blown up with gunpowder by Oliver Cromwell in the year 1644, and this, with many other valuable charters belonging to the religious houses, was thereby destroyed and lost. The said charter was in English as follows: Know all men present, and to come, that I, Torphin, son of Robert, son of Copsus, have given, and by this my charter confirmed to God and the blessed virgin, and all the holy men serving God in the monastery of Watton, all the whole vill. of Ravenstonedale, with that part of the vill. called Newbiggin, with the boundaries and limits thereof, as well without the vill. as within; that is to say, from the head of Beversdale, as the water of Beversdale runs, till it comes into the water of Tebey; and from thence by Hanscus to the Blea Tarn; and from thence into Rasett, and so to Couling stones, and from Couling stones to Skeat beck runs into Smerdale beck; and so by Smerdale beck till it comes to Smerdale flatt, and from thence till it come to the highest place on Ash Fell; and so to Tarnwarth hole; and from Tarnwarth hole, as Kirkby way goes, till it come at Scandal water, and so going up that water into a path-way that goes to Mallerstang scarth; and then on the top of Wild-boar Fell to the head of the water of Ulnedale; and as the water of Ulnedale runes till it comes into the water of Rothay, and as the water of Rothay runs till it come betwixt Washingham and Keldon, and from thence to the head of Beversdale."' Nicholls, Ravenstonedale, 17-18; N&B1, 518.
[55] Pope, 1143-44.
[56] Pope, 1216-27.
[57] The privilege of sanctuary was abolished in criminal cases in 21. James I. c.28 §7 (1625): OED.
[58] Delatio: 'grant/stipend'.

annum. The vallue of the whole tythe is about 120^{li} per annum and haith belonged to the Lord Whartons family ever since the desolution of Abbeys.
There is also belonging to the curats maintenance 5^{li} and given by \ Mr / George Fothergill of Tarnhouse inn Ravensondaile and charged pon his customary rents of his mannor of Bleaytarne in the parish of Warcop. Also, a parcell of ground adjoyning to the back-side of the church, called the Orchard, given by Anthony Fothergill of Tranyhill[59] and one Bovell and others in Ravenstondaile to the church ther. And also 2 acres scituate on a hill called Haber in Ravenstondaile Towne Field, and halfe an acre in a place called Muffell-Gill given to the church forever by one William Chamberlain of Waingarths.[60]

6th Querie answered

{Domus rect.}[61]
There is a Curat's house near the church in the northend of the towne of Ravenstondaile, which house is thatched with stray,[62] in tollarable repayer; and one barne latley builded near to the watter called Scandall, three miles distant from the market of Kirkby Stephen. There is a parke within the said parish, belonging to the Lord Wharton, inclossed with a fayer stone wall neare 4 yards high, a mill adjoyning to it. The whole parish is but one mannor and houlden of the Lords Wharton, who haith priveleg of keeping Court Leet and Court Barron \ & probat of wills. / Ther is also adjoyning to the backside of the church, some vaults and ruiens of out buildings, which \ as / tis said did belong the Sanctuary.

Chapter 2th Querie 7th

{Divisio}
The lord haith wafieffes, strays, fellons goods and customary finable rents, but no Aincent Mannor house. The parish is devided into 4 constablewicks (commonly called angles). There is a free school belonging to the said parish, lately erected and endowed by Mr Thomas Fothergill, lately President of St John's Coledg in Cambridge (who was borne at Brownber in the said parish) and others of his name and kindred, the stipend amounting to 20^{li} per annum and upwards, which tooke its beginning the 8th day of January Anno Domini 1676, and Mr John Metcalfe, the present schoolmaster, was presented to the same by Mr Fothergill abovesaid.

[Machell's Notes: III.310]
*{? This is not so for they pay […] in kinde … moneys for hay. TM. See my other notes.[63]
†I doubt of this. It might […] the church & Religious house adjoyneing}[64]

[III.311]

{? Notatu dignum motu}[65]
There is a spring or well at the north end of Nubigin Town[66] in the said parish, formerly called St Helen's well (whear an ould chappell is said to have stood) that ebs and flowes every day; and another about halfe a quarter of a mile from Tarnhouse on the west side in the said parish, of a bituminous tast, which haith beene found medicinable for several sores and diseasses.
There is also a tarne or lough at Ravenstondale Towne head, that haith store of perches and eles in it. It is said to be 7 fathoms deep.

[59] Trannahill.
[60] In 1651, a case brought before Ravenstonedale Peculiar Court concerned William Chamberlain, who had left his tenement to his son Stephen on condition that he paid £60 out of it towards the maintenance of the minister. This money was to be invested in a way that Stephen Chamberlain and the jurors thought fit, which was in land in Hober and Mufflegill; the Lord's rent on it was to be 2s per annum. It was later alleged that Stephen Chamberlain had retained one rood (¼ acre) from the minister, the Rev. Mr Dodson., whereupon the jury, deciding against Stephen Chamberlain, requested him to yield the rood: Nicholls, Ravenstonedale, 56.
[61] Rectory house.
[62] Scottish: 'strai, stray'; English dialect: 'strey' = straw. OED.
[63] This margin comment is partly obscured by the binding.
[64] This comment is partly obscured by the binding. The binding is particularly stiff here.
[65] 'Worthy of note in its motion?' This question was posed by Machell in the margin.
[66] Newbiggin-on-Lune.

It's likewise said the precincts of this parish is free from all veniomus stinging or bitting creaturs.[67] There are in the High Street leeding from Kirkby Stephen to Sedbergh (near Rathay bridg), maney Great Stoons sett in a circle, and by some called one of King Arthurs Round tables.

In all the rest[68] wherein we are silent, you may take it for granted wee had nothing to say pertinent or warrantable.
Anthony Prockter, Curatt
George Fothergill, ~~Clerke of P~~

[III.312][69]

8. [Notes on] Ravenstonedale Parish; brought to me at Xmas 1679[70]

Q. The mon[ument] in the church. Stone. John Hunter (80) of Brownber Head.
Birth.[71] Isabel Pinder Near Newbiging. Raset.[72]
? Lapis Igneus.[73] Jon Hunter of Bowerbanke.
? Partus Leporarius[74] Isabel Pinder near Raset & Newbiging.

Ravensheved:
Ravens stone?
Ravensworth?

Raset
Raset, 60 yeare about, calld Great Raset in opposition to another (½ a mile N.W. from hence) calld Little Raset. At this the Lordship of Smerdale on the North; Wateby \ & / K. on the East; Wharton E. & S.E.[75]

[67] A mark of sanctity: cf. St Patrick.
[68] Referring to other queries.
[69] This page is the reverse of a page of Proctor's answers, later used by Machell when scribbling his responses.
[70] This page is headed 'Antiquities of Ravenstonedale 1677', in Proctor's hand, but instead was used for Machell's notes. Additionally, there is a pencilled draft description of Ravenstonedale Meeting House, not transcribed because it appears in ink on III.308, [71] MS: 'John Hunter (80) of Brownber Head. Birth …? for John Hunter of Brownb~~anke~~\ err /'. See III.308.
[72] Isabel Pinder. For another reference to this lady – 'Isabel Pinder, midwife, near Rasset and Newbiggin' – see Part 1, Ch.13, Kirkby Stephen, 'Story of a late conjurer in Kirkby', III.194.
[73] 'Firestone.' See III.308.
[74] 'Delivery [birth] of a hare.' See III.307.
[75] This sentence is written faintly in pencil and crossed through. One word is very unclear.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 22]

[Parish of Shap]

[III.313]

[Notes on] Shap. Parish. Abby.

The Parish of Shap, anciently Hep from the plenty of \ heps alias / choupes growing in that place;[1] {or rather from the Saxon Chepan or Chep: a market}[2] is bounded on the E. [blank]; on the west [blank].[3] To Shap Church belongs Shap, Hardendale, Rosegill, Sleddall, Waistall, Mardale and Shap Abby.

[Division, ab Ecclesia]
The Lordship of Shap; Manner of Sleddale \ S.W. 1 mile & ½; / Thorneship hamlet ½ a mile {?}; Keld \ hamlet ½ a mile. /

[Fair]
The 1[t] fair at Shap was the 23 of September 1687.[4]

[Town of Shap. Dr John Mill]
The town of Shap gave life to the learned Dr John Miln, somtimes fellow of Q[ueen's] Coll. in Oxford \ Prebendary of ~~Chi~~ Exeter / & Chaplain in Ordinary to K. Charles the 2[nd] & afterward Principle of \ St / Edmon[d] Hall \ Oxon, & Parson of Bletchington near O[xford].[5] He maryed Pric[i]la,[6] one of the daughters of Sir Edward Palmer of [Blank] Baronet about the beginning of April 1684, who dyed within a year, and left him a good estate in money but not any Isue.

[III.313]

[The Church]

The steple \ is towerwise / within 4 passes square, having a clock & 3 bells in it,[7] \ but the battlements, both of it & the church, {so exceeding low that the des[…]}[8]
The body of the church is in length 16 paces, broad 12, with a row of 3 smal round piller, 2 pillasters, & betwixt them 5 halfe round arches. And at the end of the S[outh] Ile is a large pew called Resgil Quier \ & / in the E. window of the same quier is a piece [of] broken but late painted glass, the remainder or fragment of a coate of armes: namely: On the Crist of an Helmet, a Semidragon Vert isuing out of a wreath Argent & Vert*. & something like the paw of a Drag[on] seemes to have bin in the Scutchion also. The pavement is with irregular limestone: Rep[air] indif[ferent].

---

[1] Choop, Choup, Chupe: the fruit of the wild briar, or dog-rose. Dictionaries of the Scots Language. Online.
[2] This margin comment is written in a different (possibly18th-century) hand.
[3] Shap: hēap 'heap, pile', might denote 'a heap of stones', from the ruins of an important megalithic monument, a stone circle, which lies on the main road up Shap Fell a mile south of the town, and a line of stones, amongst which are Goggleby Stone and Thunder Stone. 'The change of hēap or hēp to Yhep, Yhap and then to Shap, arises from stress-shifting in the diphthong and the substitution of Sh - for Hy': see Westmorland Place-Names.
[4] 'A charter for a market and 3 annual fairs (23 & 24 April, 1 & 2 August, 17 & 18 September) was obtained on 24 June 1687, by Philip Lord Wharton, and on 14 December 1687, Lord Wharton, in consideration of one year's customary rent paid by the tenants, granted freedom from toll to them and their heirs.' N&B1, 477.
[5] John Mill was rector of Bletchingdon near Kidlington in Oxfordshire from 1682 to 1707. Oxford Record: Mill, Queen's Coll., matric. 14 Nov. 1661, aged 16 (as Milne); BA 1666, MA 1669, BD 1680, DD 1681, as Mill; principal St Edmund Hall 1685-1707; biblical critic 'known as Dr Mill'; chaplain to Thomas Lamplugh, bishop of Exeter, and minor canon 1677; chaplain in ordinary to Charles II; canon of Canterbury 1704; died 23 June 1707. CCED.
[6] Priscilla. See Machell's correspondence with Mill: 'Dr Mil about his marriage with Priscilla the daughter of Sir Edward Palmer', in Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, I.313B.
[7] In the MS, this sentence is repeated.
[8] The margin comment comes to an abrupt halt here.

The Quier is l[ength] 10; broad 6. The East […][9] window stands irregular to the N. side & not in the midle, & has 3 lights in it – in the 2 first of which are these coates of arms. [1st] Argent, Gules.

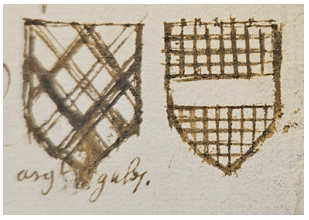

Figure 1.22.1. Shap Church. Coats of arms. III.313.

[Machell's Notes: III.313 and III.315}

*(Q. if not Lowther? Non.)
[III.315] [10]
b.12}
l. 16} round pillars x3
l. 16}
b. 6} steple 4 sq. 3 bells, clock
east windo[w] 3 lights to the N. side.
In the [first coat of arms] Argent & Gules.
In the [blank] Clifford.
Rosgil Quier: in the end of the Ro are helmet with a Semidragon Vert isuing out of a wreath Argent & Vert.

[Shap Abbey]

[I.312A][11]

The seal of Shap (and Shap Abbey) impressd, is to be found in a green box with a draw lid in the Evidence Chest at Apalby.

[I.165]

Ad Shap Abby: Sigillum Commune \ mon / beate Mariae Magdal. De Hepp. Penes Lancelotum Mauchel de Crakenthrop Armiger. Appensum Literis. Testim. Thome Sawleman clerici.[12]

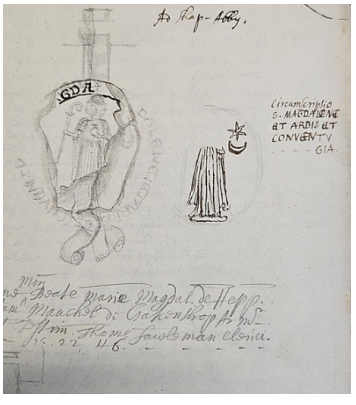

Figure 1.22.2. Seal 'Ad Shap Abbey'. I.165.

[9] There are 2cm of illegible text here.
[10] A page of pencilled notes, gathered for the information on III.313.
[11] A small slip of paper pasted to a letter cover; text possibly written in another hand.
[12] 'In relation to Shap Abbey, the common seal of the monastery of the Blessed Mary Magdalen of Shap. In the possession of Lancelot Machell of Crackenthorpe, Esquire; compared with the letters in the testimony of Thomas Sawleman, cleric.'

[Bells]
The quantity of the bells att Shap Abby may be guessed att from Overton bells, the greatest whereof was but consonant to the 3rd bell att Shap. But as to number of them I know not anything.

[I.185]

[Abbot of Shap]
The Abbot of Shap was I finde usually writ Lord Abbot. He kept 5 horses in his stable, as appear from an inventory which I have seen.

[I.312]

{Advowsons of Shap Abby; Tur. Lond.}
It appear by inquisition (in bundello escaet de anno 18 Edward 3) that the Advousans of the Abby of Hepp, together with the churches of Kirkbythore, Marton & Browham, did belong to Robert de Clifford.at: 1444 i.e. 22. H. 6.

[I.311]

[Foundation of Shap Abbey]
I suppose that Shap Abby as well as other places was allmost demolished in the time of King Edward the 2. [1307-1327]. And Robert de Clifford, bestowing on it the advousan of Warthcop, was looked upon as the Founder. For upon the back of that parchment roll in Scipton Castle, elsewhere spoke of, which was an Inquisition bearing date 43 Edward 3 [1369-1370], is this remarke:
'Anno Domini MCCCxiiii in vigelia Sancti Johannis Baptistæ quæ tunc Dominica dies erat, in crastino Commissum est prœlium Inter Regem Angliæ et Regem Scotiæ quo prœlio Dominus comes Glouĉinæ, et Robertus de Clifford et alij nobiles quam plures interfecti sunt & comes de Hertford et comes de, et ~~comes~~ [blank] et Dominus Johannes de Ferrars et multi alij magnates capti sunt. Sicque Rex Scotiæ (viz.) Dominus Robertus Bruce in Bello prævaluit & Rex Angliæ dectus Edwardus devictus est, cum partibus vix evasus. Iste Roburtus contulit nobis ecclesiam de Warthcop Anno Domini MDDDvi et erat filius Rogeri Clifford junioris, fundator hujius monasterij et reputatur (frosan pro) Reparator. {Vide Gospatricius, sed nescio an quid ad rombum Præfatio MS fol. 54. Answer nihil iste enim fuit filius Maldred (ut ibi apparet) hic filius Orms.'}[13]
But it was founded (long before this time) by Thomas, {cald Mack} the son of Gospatric, the sone of Ormes,[14] and was rated at the desolution, 166: 10^{s}: 6^{d} ob. [see] Speed.[15] I have an inventory of goods in Carta Machellorum*.

[Gospatrik, earl of Cumberland]
A little after William was crownd (which was in 1066)[16] and had re\c/onciled himself to the Kentish men, [Gospatrick, earl of Cumberland] was one of those \ great ones / which [William] tooke along with him into Normandy to secure peace in England†.

[13] 'In the year 1314, which in that year was a Sunday, on the following day was joined a battle between the King of England and the King of Scotland, in which were slain the Earl of Gloucester, Robert de Clifford and very many others of the nobility, and the Earl of Hertford and the Earl of [Blank], and Lord John de Ferrers and many other powerful men were captured, so that the King of Scotland (to wit, the Lord Robert Bruce) prevailed in this war, and the King of England (the said Edward) was overcome, and with difficulty escaped with his party. This Robert [De Clifford] gave us Warcop Church in the Year of Our Lord 1306 and was the son of Roger Clifford the younger, founder of this Monastery and thought to be its restorer (perhaps). {But I do not know whether the Preface of MS Folio 54 is anything to the point. Answer. No! For the one was the son of Maldred (as there appears); the other, the son of Orms.}' [The battle was Bannockburn].
[14] Dugdale's Monasticon epitomises information relating to the foundation. 'This Priory (of the Order of Premonstratenses) was first founded in honour of St. Mary Magdalen at Preston, by Thomas Son of Gospatric, and by him endow'd with divers Lands; among other things he gave the Canons here as much Wood as they would take out of his Woods, and to grind at his Mill toll-free. The said Thomas gave them also Pasture in and about Swindale, for sixty Cows, twenty Mares, five hundred Sheep, &c. With other Possessions in the Territory of the Town of Heppe where this Convent was new erected. Confirm'd by Robert de Veteriponte. Valued at 154li. 17s. 7d. ob. per Annum.' See Dugdale, Monasticon, 594-95.
[15] £166 [MS: 1~~0~~66] 10s 6½d. See Speed, Historie, Book 9, Chap.21, 'A Catalogue of the Religious Houses, Colledges and Hospitals sometimes in England & Wales': Westmorland.
[16] This date appears to have been added later.

[Machell's Notes: I.312]

*{Tamen dubito – vide in cartis de Hep collect è Dugdal Monasticon, et in collect meis Shap p. – è Registro de Wed[derhal]. P.1b et 14a.}[17]

This monastery, seated near to the river Lowther (alias Sleddall), was founded by Thomas the son of Gospatrik, the son of Orms, where there is a fountain or spring that ebbs and flows many times a day: S[peed] & Ca[mden]. {Orms = Gospatrick. Temp. Conq[uest].[18] = Thomas}

†Speede p.416 ~~cap 2~~ §9, in his Account of W[illiam] C[onqueror] circa anno 1606.[19]

Vocatur monasterium Beatæ Mariæ Magdelenæ de Hepp, in carta penès Lancelotium Machel armigerium ubi etiam videre è sigillum commune istius monasterii, sed paulisper an fractum. Dat. 1444 (Cur. 22. Henry 6.) vide in hoc libro St Lawrence, Apleby.[20]

[Machell's Collection of Shap Abbey Charters, some copied from Dugdale's Monasticon][21]

[VI.307][22]

Prioratus de Heppe in agro Westmorlandensi Carta fundationis eju\s/dem jmo apud Preston*.[23]

{e Dugdale, Monasticon Anglicanum 2. P.594. This is onely epitomiz'd.}

Thomas filius Gospatricis dedit et concessit et hac praesenti carta sua confirmavit Deo et Sanctae Mariæ Magdalenæ et Canonicis de Preston, qui sunt de ordine Præmonstratensi, in liberam, puram, et perpetuam elemosynam, pro Salute animæ suæ, et sponsæ suæ et omnium Antecessorum suorum, unam portionem terræ suæ in Preston in Kendale, ad faciendum quandam mansionem Canonicorum (viz.) totum dominicum parcu[m] meu[m] subtus Lackslot[24] et in Lackslot usq[ue] viam quæ venit de Prestonuthreedas inde sequendo viam de Holme; et ita sequendo viam de Holme usq[ue] ad Sicum, quæ venit de Hasaldmire; et per ipsum Sicum usq' aqua[m], quæ est divisa inter duas Prestonas, & ita ascendendo usq' ad prænominatam via[m] de Lackslot.

---

[17] 'I doubt this, however: see in the Shap charters extracted from Dugdale's Monasticon and in my collections from the Register of Wetheral [Priory].'

[18] Here, several words have been crossed through and awarded a question mark. The words 'Temp Conq[uest]' have been added in different ink.

[19] The passage quoted by Machell appears to be this: 'All things established for Englands securitie, and subjection now to the Normans; hee ordained his halfe brother by the surer side, Odo Bishop of Bayeux (whom he created Earle of Kent), and his cosen William-Fitz-Osburne (by him made Earle of Hereford), to bee Governours in his absence over the Realme; and in the Lent following sailed into Normandy, leading with him many pledges for their fidelity, besides other Nobles, especially such as he feared to be too potent; amongst whom, Stigand the Archbishop of Canterbury, the two great Earles Edwin and Morcar, Edgar surnamed Etheling, Fretherik Abbot of S. Albans, Agelnothus Abbot of Glastenbury, Waltheof the sonne of the warlike Siward Earle of Northumberland, Roger Earle of Hertford, Rainulph Earle of Cambridge, and Gospatricke Earle of Cumberland, were the men of greatest note.' See Speed, Historie, Book 9, 416.

[20] 'It was called the Monastery of the Blessed Mary Magdalen of Shap: see deed in the custody of Lancelot Machell Esq., where one can also see the common seal of that house, but only in small pieces; dated 1444 (22. Henry VI.). See in this book, St Lawrence Appleby.'

[21] Not one of this collection of charters is in Machell's hand. There is no known original charter, although the cartulary of the abbey was at Naworth Castle in the possession of Lord William Howard, when, in June 1638, Roger Dodsworth made copies of 59 charters. His manuscripts are now in the Bodleian Library, Oxford (MSS. Dodsw. 1-76, 78-115, 116-20, 120B, 121-61). Copies of the Shap charters are in Dugdale, Monasticon, and in N&BI, 469-71. In addition to the Dodsworth copies there are approximately a dozen abbey charters, or copies thereof, in the Lowther Papers (for example, DLONS/L/5/1/33/1,3), some of which were transcribed and translated by Frederick Ragg, and printed in CWAAS Transactions. For example, 'Two Documents relating to Shap Abbey', CW2, 9 (1909), 271-281; 'Shap and Rosgill and some of the Early Owners', CW2, 14 (1914), 1-63; 'De Culwen', CW2, 14 (1914), 343-427. A distillation of these sources written by Harry Hawkins, 'Records of Shap Abbey', remains unpublished in book form but is available in Pdf at harry.hawkins68@btinternet.com. I am very grateful to Harry Hawkins for this and much else, Ed.

[22] Also numbered p.1.

[23] 'Priory of Shap in the land of Westmorland. Foundation Charter of the same, though kept at Preston.'

[24] Insecure transcription. There is a field near Shap named 'Langesclac', but no other name listed in Westmorland Place-Names (either in the Preston area near Kendal, or in Shap rural), fits this particular word formation.

Præterea dedit eis tota' terra' subtus viam de Nathsudden usq[ue] Stainbridge usq' ad Brackenthwait, sicut Sylvas dividit & planum, et ita usq' ad terram Richardi filij Siguth, et sic ad viam quæ venit de Stainbridge usq' ad divisam de Farleton; id est totam terram quæ fuit Michalis filij Helenæ, et ita sequendo divisam de Farletone usq' in divisam inter duas Prestonas†, & ita ascendendo usq' ad praedictam viam de Wathsudden, excepto dimidio prato de Miresbrigge, & decem acras apud Siggelthwait ad salu[te]m eoru[m]. Et totam terra[m] de Sursu[m] Wathsudden silicet ubi Capella fuit infirmorum habebunt etiam de bosco suo, quantum voluerint capere, & nunc habuerint, sine visu forestarioru[m] suorum et cortices lignoru[m] quæ praeciduerint ipsoru[m] erunt. Concessit etiam eis libera[m] communiam infra metas de Preston, cu[m] omnibus alijs assiamentis & libertatibus quæ pertinent ad predicta[m] villam de Preston, in bosco & in plano, in vijis & in semitis, et in aquis et in molendinis, et pasturam porcorum suoru[m], sive plenagioru[m], & decimam panagij mei. Et molent et molendinu[m] meu[m] sine multura, quando venerint, et tam[?] Mezca fuerit evacuata; Et equu[m] proprium habuerint molendinarium, / ad meu[m] molendinu[m] cessabunt hominu[m] p[rae]nominatum, / volo quod p[rae]dicti canonici habeant & teneant eam in pace et plenarie et honorifice, in libera[m], pura[m] et perpetua[m] Elemosynam, sine omni seculari servitio consuitudine et exactione. Et ipse et hæredes sui warantizabunt eis hanc donantionem contra omnes homines imperpetuu[m]. His testibus &c.[25]

[Machell's Notes: VI.307]

*{Vel exemplari penes Jacobi Bellingham […] durat. This at Preston: a friary or Priory as I sup[pose], belonging to the other.}[26]

†{forsan sic vocat Preston Ulfred & Preston Patric quer. Tamen.}[27]

[25] (Translation, mainly taken from H. Hawkins, 'Records of Shap Abbey', 46, including a comment on a corrupt section of the Latin text): 'Thomas son of Gospatric has given and granted and by this present charter confirmed to God and to St Mary Magdalen and to the canons at Preston who are of the Premonstratensian Order in free, pure and perpetual alms for the salvation of his soul and those of his wife and of all his ancestors one part of his land in Preston in Kendale for making a house of canons, namely: all my demesne park below Lackslot and in Lackslot as far as the road which comes from Prestonuthreedas [Preston Richard?], and then following the road as far as the road which comes from Holme, and so following the road from Holme as far as the stream which comes from Hasaldmire, and by the same stream as far as the water which is the boundary between the two Prestons, and so going up as far as the afore-named road from Lackslot. Moreover I have given them all the land below the road from Wath Sutton as far as Stainbridge, and all the land from Stainbridge as far as Brackenthwait as it separates the woodland and the open country, and so as far as the land of Richard son of Sigith, and so to the road which comes from Stainbridge as far as the boundary of Farletone, that is, the whole of the land which belonged to Michael son of Helen, and so following the boundary of Farletone as far as the boundary between the two Prestons, and so going up as far as the aforesaid road from Wath Sutton, except for half the meadow at Miresbrigge and ten acres at Siggethwait for their welfare, and all the land above Wath Sutton, that is, where there was a chapel for the sick. They shall also have from my woodland as much as they wish to take and now shall have without the permission of my foresters, and the bark of the trees which they have cut shall be theirs. I also grant them free common within the boundaries of Preston, in woodland and in open country, in the roads and the paths, and in waters and mills, and pasture for their pigs or pannage, and the tithe of my pannage. And they shall grind at my mill without paying multure whenever they come and the hopper is empty, and they shall have their own mill-horse at my mill* […] I wish that the aforesaid canons should have and hold this [land] in peace and in full and honourably, in free, pure and perpetual alms, free of all secular service, custom and exaction. And he himself and his heirs will guarantee this gift to them against all men forever. These being witnesses, etc.'

'*… [The text here from "et equum …" to "… prenominatum" is corrupt. Possibly "equum" (horse) has been read for an original "quum" (= "cum", when) and the following words have been modified to fit this sense, though "cessabunt hominum prenominatum" makes no sense as it stands. Since the mill was fairly certainly a water-mill the use of a "mill-horse" seems strange. Perhaps the original sense was, "… and when they have their own milling at my mill, other men will cease in favour of the aforesaid". This requires only minor changes to the endings of the words in the text, and these endings were usually indicated only by superscript or subscript signs that were easily misunderstood.'

[26] 'Or in a copy in the possession of James Bellingham ... it survives. This at Preston: a friary or Priory as I sup[pose], belonging to the other.'

[27] 'Perhaps by this he means Preston Ulfred and Preston Patric – but check.'

[III.317][28]

Convenc[i]o: Inter Chr[ist]oferu[m] Curwen milite[m], et Hugo[n]e[m] Salkeld: 7. H6. 1428 { p[er] Tho: fil[ium] Gospatr[icij]}[29]

Universis sanctae matris Ecclesiæ filijs, presentibus et futuris, cartam istam visuris vel audituris, Thomas filius Cospatricij sempieternam in domino Salutem: Noverit universitas vestra, me dedisse, concessisse, et hac mea praesenti carta confirmasse Deo et ecclesiae beatæ Mariæ Magdalenæ de valle Magdalenae, et canonicis Premonstratensis ordinis ibidem Deo servientibus, totam terram quae fuit Karl, scilicet per has divisas: de vado de Karlewath, ascendendo per Lowther apud Austrum, usque ad Langeschabeck, et sic ascendendo per Langeschabeck, usque ad semitam quae venit de Kendall, et sequendo semitam illam versus Aquilonem, usque dum veniat ad Stanirase iuxta Rafland,[30] et ita per semitam illam usque ad Rasatt, et sic descendendo extra nemus, usque ad magnum lapidem ubi homines solebant facere Lestablie, et ita descendendo usque in Lowther, et sic ascendendo per Lowther, et ultra, usque ad divisas de Rossegill penes orientem, de longo in longum, apud Austrum per supercilium montis de Creskeld et sic, usque ad Almebanke. Preterea, dedi eis vallum cum Bruhuto in orientali parte contra ecclesiam suam, tendens in longum per supercilium montis usque ad domum quae fuit quondam Willielmi King: et ita usque ad terram quae fuit Matthei de Hepp, et sic descendendo versus occidentem usque ad predictum vadum de Karlewath. Dedi etiam eis communem pasturam cum hominibus meis qui manent in Rasatt, et pasturam in Thanibord, et in Swindall ex utraque parte, usque ad supercilium montis desuper Briberh, et ex altera parte de Swindall, ultra Theniheved, ex utraque parte, ubi voluerint, et usque in Sleddall, per ita et eo amplius quod animalia sua cum voluerint et opus fuerit, possint die et nocte, infra dictam pasturam moram facere, et ad abbatiam, et ad vaccariam suam, cum necesse fuerit, ire, et redire, cum libero introitu et exitu. Hanc praedictam pasturam dedi eis et concessi, scilicet, vaccis sexaginta, et equabus sylvestribus viginti, et quinque centum ovibus, cum sequela trium annorum, et quinque carucatis boum. Praeterea dedi eis Trubarram, et Peteram, et Quarreram, ubicunque invenire poterint in territorio villae de Hepp, et viam liberam eundo et redeundo ad turbariam et peteram et ad Quarreram praedictam, et ad Abbathiam suam: Dedi etiam eis licentiam capere neccesaria, ad abbathiam suam, in bosco meo, ad aedificandum, et Comburendum, et Claudendum, ubi melius voluerint, et invenire potuerint, et cetera necessaria, sine visu Forestariorum, cum omnibus Communibus, aysimentis, et libertatibus predictae villae de Hepp pertinentibus; haec omnia supradicta dedi Deo et praedictis Canonicis, habenda et tenenda, in puram, liberam, et perpetuam elemosinam, pro salute animae meae, et sponsae meae Gretiae, et heredum meorum, et omnium antecessorum et successorum meorum. Et ego et heredes mei warrantisabimus omnia supradicta predictis Canonicis, totia omnes gentes imperpetuum. Hiis testibus etc. – 2. Dugd[ale] Mon[asticon], 594.[31]

---

[28] This charter was also copied by another hand on MS.VI.307, 309.

[29] 'Agreement between Christopher Curwen, Knight, and Hugo Salkeld. 7. H6. 1428. {Made through Thomas son of Gospatric}'. A grant made on the removal of the monastery to Shap from Preston in Kendale; see also N&BI, 470.

[30] There is a tumulus there, known as 'Stainraise in Ralphland': John F Curwen, 'Parishes (West Ward): St Michael, Shap', The Later Records Relating to North Westmorland or the Barony of Appleby, CWAAS Record Series 8 (Kendal, 1932), 358-76.

[31] '{[In] Covenant between Christopher Curwen, Knight, and Hugo Salkeld, 7. H6: 1428: Charter of foundation of the monastery of Shap by Thomas son of Gospatrick.}' "To all the children of holy mother church, present and future, who shall see or hear this charter, Thomas son of Gospatrick gives eternal greeting in the Lord. Your company shall know that I have given, granted and by this my present charter confirmed to God and to the church of the blessed Mary Magdalene of the vale of Magdalene, and to the canons of the Premonstratensian order who serve God there, all the land that was Karl, that is to say, along these boundaries: from the ford at Karlwath, ascending by [the river] Lowther on the south, as far as Langeschabeck [now Lanshaw Hill] and so ascending by Langeschabeck as far as the track that comes from Kendall, and following that track towards the north right till it reaches Stanirase next to Rafland [now Ralfland] and so along that track as far as Rasatt [now Rayside], and so descending outside the wood as far as the great stone where men were accustomed to perform Lestabilie, and thus descending right down to the Lowther, and so ascending along the Lowther and beyond, as far as the boundaries of Rosgill on the east side, lengthwise to the south over the crest of the hill of Creskelde Sike [a field in Shap parish] as far as Almebanke [now Elmbank]. Moreover, I have given to them the boundary-wall with a hedge on the eastern side, opposite their church, extending lengthwise over the crest of the hill as far as the house that once belonged to William Kinge: and so as far as the land that belonged to Matthew of Hepp,

[IV.76A]

{Shap, Culwen, Lowther}
The Baliwick of the forrestry of Shap \ with pasture & the tenements & forest being formerly given to Thomas de Preston of Shap \ & his heires / by Sir Gilbert de Culwen, was made over to Hugh de Lowther, Lord of Lowther, 23. Ed. 3. [1349-1350]. Witnesses, Thom. De Strickland, Thom. Le Engleys, Willielmus de Threlkeld militibus, Johe de Harrington de Thrimby, John de Harrington de Saldecotis, Roberto de Buteler & Henry de Culndale, Johe de Bradley & alij.

[Machell's Notes: [IV.76A]
N.B., I take this Culwen who \ 1st / gave this gift, to be the same name with Curwen nowe. {It is so.} & their ancestors were the founders of Shap Abbey for [they have] the same Armes, & for a controversy about 18. Hen. 8. [1526-1527] about 3 messuages in Shap between John Curwen Esq., late of Caton in Lancashire, & the Abby of Shap, whereof 2. wer adjudgd, by the arbitrator, to Curwen, & 1. to the monastry.

[III.318]

{Carta fact[a] monachis de bella landa} {Not in Burn}[32]
Eboracensi Archiepiscopo totique Cap[ito]l[i]o S[anct]i Petri et o[mn]ibus S[anc]te ecclesie filijs Thomas fil[ius] Gospatricii salutem. Sciatis me dedisse et hac mea Carta confirmasse deo et sa[nc]tae Mariae de Bellanda tota[m] illa[m] p[ar]tem terre mee de Hepp que inter has divisas continetur: A Slegeterna us[que] Turneterna[m], et inde us[que] Blaterna[m], sursum p[er] sicum, us[que] ad Capud eiusdem sici, et inde p[er] divisas, quas ego cu[m] monachis p[er]ambulavi, ex occidentali p[ar]te de Tringefell p[er] fundu[m] de Langesclac, us[que] ad vadu[m] de Thornbec et inde us[que] ad fossa[m], in qua alba spina statt : et inde ex occidentali p[ar]te de Wrainsedre, us[que] ad occidente[m] p[ar]tem de heppeshaw : et inde us[que] ad p[ro]pinquiore[m] semit[am] ex oriente de withcastelgila et p[er] semita[m] illam us[que] blabec, et sic sursum p[er] blabec us[que] ad viridem plateam, ultra scaturiginem de Blabec : et inde sicut aqua cadit de Musseto inter Wacedalia et Sleddalia, us[que] Ierlesett ita q[uo]d Ierleseta erit monachor[um], et inde p[er] ciliu[m] de Ierlesleta us[que] ad Capud de haropes [Harrop Pike] et greneopes [Grenopes], quamdiu vallis durat versus Le West, us[que] ad magna[m] rochera[m], et inde p[er] ciliu[m] mont[is] us[que] ad Capud sup[er]ius de Borhra, us[que] ad via[m] magna[m] que venit de Kendala versus westmerland, et p[er] eande[m] via[m] us[que] Wascedala bec, subtus wascedala terna, et deorsum p[er] wascedala bec[k?], us[que] ad Capud inferius de wascedala bec. Et inde per divisas, quas p[er]ambulavi inter Hepp, et Crossby, us[que] ad Caldegata, e p[er] Caldegata[m] versus Le Northe, us[que] ad magnu[m] lapide[m] que[m] ostendi eis metam et inde p[er] magnos lapides in fundo vall[is] us[que] Slegileternam. Hanc donacione[m] eis dono, et confirmo, in pura[m] et p[er]petua[m] elemosina[m] soluta[m] p[ro]pria[m], et quieta[m], ab o[m]ni terreno servicio, et exactione seculari libera[m] a me, et ab he[re]dibus meis et omnibus alijs he[re]dibus cu[m] omnibus que inter has divisas continentur in terra, and so descending towards the west, as far as the aforesaid ford of Karlewath. I have given to them also common pasture along with my people who remain in Rasatt and pasture in Thanibord [now Tailbert], and in Swindall [now Swindale] on either side, as far as the crest of the hill above Briberh [now Binbarh, a field in Shap Parish] and on the other side of Swindall, beyond Theniheved [now Thengeheved, a field in Shap parish] on either side, wherever they wish and right into Sleddall [now Wet Sleddale] and even further, on the understanding that they may be able, by day and night, to let their beasts linger within the said pasture when they wish and as need be, and to go and return between the abbey and their vaccary when necessary with free entry and exit. I have given to them this pasture aforesaid and indeed I have made a concession for sixty cattle and twenty fell-pony mares and five hundred sheep, along with their offspring of three years, and five teams of oxen. Moreover, I have given to them turbary rights and peat rights and quarrying rights wherever they are able to find them in the lands of the village of Hepp, and free passage for going and returning to the aforesaid turbary, peat and quarry, and to their abbey. I have given to them also licence to take what is needful for their abbey in my woodland for purpose of building, for fuel, and for enclosure, wherever they choose and are able to find it, and other necessities, without supervision by my foresters, with all the common rights, easements, and liberties pertaining to the aforesaid village of Hepp. All of the above I have given to God and to the aforesaid canons, to have and to hold, in full, free and perpetual charity, for the salvation of my soul and that of my wife Gretia, and the souls of my heirs and of all my ancestors and successors. Both I and my heirs will guarantee all the above to the aforesaid canons, against all men, forever. Witnesses as follows etc." 'See Dugdale, Mon[asticon], 2, 594.' [See also N&BI, 471.]

---

[32] A pencilled note in an unknown hand, written after the publication of N&B 1 & 2. in 1777.

et aqua, in bosco, et plano, in vijs, et semitis, in pascuis et pasturis, et o[mn]ibus alijs aisiament[is], et libertatibus, cum feris et avibus, sine o[m]ni detentamento ad faciendu[m] inde quicque voluerint imp[er]p[etuu]m: [....] hec etiam dedi eisde[m] mo[n]achis Communia[m] pasture in Withcastelgila inter semita[m], et magna[m] via[m] que transit [.....] Kendala, ad Capud de West de Withcastelgela, et liber et exitus et introitus illic sibi, et averijs suis, us[que] ad pastura[m] sua[m] et ita q[uo]d inter has p[re]d[ic]tas vias, nec ego, nec he[re]des mei, sed nec monachi edificabimus, sed inter nos Communes Remanebunt: dedi etiam eisde[m] mo[n]achis, Maneriu[m], et cetera aisiamenta ad illum locum necessaria per totu[m] boscu[m] meu[m] de Ragerthescoch imp[er]p[etuu[m]. hanc donac[i]on[em] feci eis p[ro] salute a[n]i[m]e mee, et patris, et matris mee, et omni[um] antecess[orum] meorum, et he[re]du[m]. Et ego, et he[re]des mei, hanc donac[i]onem manutenebimus illis et warrantisabimus [....] eos heredes imp[er]p[etuu]m. Et si aliquando eveniet q[uo]d non possi[mu]s ego vel here]des mei donac[i]o[n]em ista[m] illis warrantisare, dabimus eis esiament[um] ad valencia[m], et omnia aisiamenta in terrura de Hepp antequam disseisiont[em]: his testibus Rob[ert]o Decano Eboracensi, widone m[a]g[ist]ro scholar[um], Geraldo Canonico, Meinardo, Stephano de Roma, Canonicis, Ric[ard]o Noblet, Alano, Capellanis Nigello de Molbrai, Rogero de Damill, Alano, et Adam filijs Gospatricij, Murda[n]o Decano, Vmfrido Makaell.[33]

[VI.309, 311]

Carta Roberti de Veteriponte de sede & loco vallis Magdalenæ

{ex registro Abb. de Hepp, nuper penes Dominus William Howard de Naworth. Ibid. p.595.}[34]

---

[33] 'Charter made for the monks of Byland.'

"To the Archbishop of York and the entire Chapter of St Peter and all the sons of the Holy church, Thomas son of Gospatrick send greetings. Know that I have given to God and St Mary of Byland, and have confirmed by this my charter, all that part of my land of Shap which is contained within these boundaries: From Slegil Tarn to Turne Tarn, and from there as far as Blea Tarn, up the syke as far as the head of the syke, and from there along the boundaries which I walked with the monks, from the western side of Tringfell along the bottom of Langesclac as far as the ford of Thorny Beck and from there to the ditch in which stands a white thorn-tree. From there, from the western side of Wreynsethe as far as the western side of Shapshaw; and then to the nearer path coming from the east from Wichcastel Gile, and along that path to Blea Beck, and so upwards along Blea Beck to the green level beyond the springs of Blea Beck. From there, as the water falls from the Moss between Wasdale and Sleddale as far as Yarlside [Earl's Seat], in such manner that Yarlside shall belong to the monks, and from there along the brow of Yarlside up to the head of Harrop Pike and Grenopes, as far as the valley extends towards the west, up to the great rock. From there along the brow of the hill of Yarlside to the upper head of Borren Crag as far as the high road that comes from Kendal towards Westmorland, and along that road to Wasdale Beck below Wasdale tarn, and then below Wasdale Beck as far as the lower head of Wasdale Beck. From there along the boundaries which I walked between Shap and Crossby as far as Caldegate and along Caldegate towards the North, as far as the great stone which I indicated to them as a marker, and from there, by the great stones in the valley bottom, up to Slegil Tarn. [...] This gift I give to them and I confirm it, in full and perpetual charity, to possess peaceably without imposition, free from tenant service and from civil dues on my part and on the part of my heirs and all other heirs, along with everything included within these bounds, in the earth and water, in woods and fields, in roads and paths, in grassings and pastures, and all other easements and liberties, along with the beasts and birds, without any restriction, to do there whatever they wish, in perpetuity: and this also I have given to these same monks, namely common of pasture in Wichcastel Gile between the path and the highway that crosses from [...] Kendal to the head of the west of Wichcastel Gile, with free exit and entrance there for them and their beasts to their pasture, and in such a way that neither I, nor my heirs, nor yet the monks, shall build between the aforesaid roads, but they shall remain common between us. I have given also to these same monks a manor, and the other easements necessary for that place through the whole of my woodland of Ragerthescoch in perpetuity. This gift I have made them for the salvation of my soul, and that of my father and my mother and all my ancestors and heirs. And I and my heirs shall hold to this gift for them, and we shall guarantee [...] those heirs in perpetuity. And if ever it shall happen that we are not able, I or my heirs, to safeguard this gift for them, we shall give them compensation to its value, and all easements in the land of Shap before the dispossession.

Witnesses: Robert, Deacon of York; Wido, master of the school; Canon Gerard; the Canons Meinard and Stephanus of Rome; the Chaplains Richard Noblet and Alan; Nigel de Mobrai; Roger de Damill; Alan and Adam, sons of Gospatrick; Deacon Murdanus; Umfrid Makaell."

[34] This epitome is taken from Dugdale's Monasticon. It is also reproduced in N&BI, though with some differences in tenses and spelling, see N&BI, 471-72.

Robertus de Veteriponte dedit & confirmavit deo & beatæ Mariæ Magdalenæ, de valle Magdalenæ &c. Sedem & locum prædictæ vallis Magdalenæ in territorio villæ de Hepp cum omnibus pertinentijs et rebus suis, quæ continentur in Cartis Thomae filij Gospatricij et in Cartis Thomae filij Thomae, filij sui, quas de p[re]dictis om[ni]bus habent: Et totam villam de Renegill cum o[mni]b[u]s pertinentijs suis (etc) sicut etia{m de Maulds Meab[urn]} carta Matildis matris meae, et confirmatio Hugonis fratris mei, quas inde habent, melius testantur. Dedit etiam dictis Ecclesiae et Canonicis, villa[m] tota[m] Grangia de Milleburne, sicut Monachi de Holmo, melius eandem villam, aliquando tenuerunt, cum Grangia vocata fuit, cum om[ni]b[u]s pertinen[tij]s alijs et rebus etc. Quam villam Nicholaus de Stuttevill sibi dedit et confirmavit sua charta, qua[m] cartam habet, et p[re]dictis canonicis dedit (&c.) Dedit etiam dictis Canonicis omnes decimas sibi pertinentes omnium molendinorum suorum, de tota Westmeria, et omnes decimas novationis bestiarum, quae captae erunt, de caetero, in om[ni]b[u]s forestis suis in Westmeria, per se, vel per homines suos, de domo, vel de Manerijs suis, sive per arcus sive per canes (etc.). Testibus Gilberto filio Rogeri, filij Reinfredi*; Wydone de Hellbec; Willielmo filio Ranulphi; Eudone de Bellocampo, tunc Vicecomite Westmarie; Henerico de Redeman, Seneschallo de Kendall; Radulpho Daincurt; Anselmo de Furnesio; Henerico de Cundall; Willielmo de Morvilla; Willielmo Anglico; Willielmo de Thirneby; Johanne de Hardela; Alano Pincerna; Waltero de Meaburn. data apud Cliburne Anno decimo tertio Regis Johannis octavo Kal: Maij die Sabati.[35]

[Machell's Notes: VI.311]

*A \ great / family in or about Kendall. See my collections out of the Records in the Tower p.4. 5. 6.

[IV.32]

[Gift of part of Knock to Shap Abbey]

'I John de Veteripont, have given to the Canons of Shap one piece of my demesne land in the field of Knocksalcock; witnessed by Thomas the son of John then my Sheriff, Geoffrey de Neovile, Henry de Suleby, Robert de Hellebeck.'[36] It seems Knock did anciently belong to Viponts & from them it came with other Lands by marriage to the Cliffords

[IV.38]

Robert de Veteripont dyed about the 12th year of Henry III [1227-1228]. John de Veteripont his son & heir, dyed about the 26 year of Henry III [1241-1242], buryed as is supposd at Shap; leaveing his son a ward who continued so some years, being committed to the care & custody of the Prior of Carliol, as appears before, out of the Inquisition. His son was Robert.[37]

[35] 'Robert de Veteripont gave and confirmed to God and the Blessed Mary Magdalen of the Valley of Magdalen etc. the seat and place of the aforesaid Valley of Magdalen in the territory of the vill of Hepp with all appurtenances and matters which are contained in the charters of Thomas son of Gospatrick and in the charters of Thomas son of Thomas, his son, which they hold of all the aforesaid. And the whole vill of Renegill with all its appurtenances (etc.) just as also the charter of my mother Matilda {of Maulds Meaburn}, and the confirmation of my brother Hugo, which they hold from there, surely testify. He also gave to the Church and Canons the whole vill of the Grange of Millburn, just as the Monks of Holm at one time surely held that same vill, when it was called Grange, with all appurtenances and other matters etc. This vill Nicholaus of Stuttvill gave to himself and confirmed by his charter, which charter he holds and has given to the aforesaid canons (etc.). He also gave to the aforesaid Canons all the tithes relating to himself from all his mills in the whole of Westmorland, and all the tithes of the re-stocking of the beasts which should be caught, from the remainder, in all his forests in Westmorland, by him or by his men, at home or in his manors, whether by the bow or by dogs (etc.). Witnesses: Gilbert son of Roger son of Reinfred; Wydo of Hellebeck; William son of Ranulph; Eudo of Beauchamp, at that time earl of Westmaria; Henry of Redeman, Steward of Kendall; Radulph Daincurt; Anselm of Furness; Henry of Cundall; William of Morvill; William English; William of Thirneby; John of Hardale; Alan Pincerna; Walter of Meaburn. Issued at Cliburn in the thirteenth year of King John, on the eighth of the month of May, Saturday.'

[36] Translated from Machell's original Latin text.

[37] This particular passage (bound into Volume IV) has been epitomised in this edition.

[III.322]

Carta Rob[er]ti de Egglesfeld[38]

Rob[ertus] de Egglesfeld omnibus amicis suis et ho[min]ibus terrae suae tam [?] quam [?], salute[m]. Sciatis me dedisse et concedisse et hac p[re]senti carta confirmasse Dolphino filio Gilmichaelis de Egglesfeld una[m] carucata[m] terrae in Egglesfeld cu[m] om[n]ib[u]s p[er]tinentijs in bosco in plano in p[as]c[u]is in pasturis in om[n]ib[u]s ais[amentis] et lib[er]tatib[u]s p[er]tinentib[u]s ad eandem terra[m] tenendam de me et h[er]edibus meis [libere] et q[ui]ete annuati[m] reddendo xij den[arios], sex ad pentecosten et sex ad fest[u]m s[an]cti marti[ni] p[ro] om[n]i servicio q[uo]d ad me p[er]tinet excepto q[uo]d medietas h[uiu]s carucatae dabit mult[uram] et faciet opus molini et altera medietas lib[er]a erit et soluta ab op[er]is molini multura et dom[inu]s eius molebit ad molin[um] meu[m] sine multura. Set si p[ro]no[m]i[n]at dolphinus ut h[er]edes eius alieni ext[ra] dom[um] sua[m] comoda[verint] sive aliq[uo] alio mo[do] tradiderit de illa dimidia carucatae q[ua]m lib[er]am tenet ab op[er]e molini et mult[ur]a, quere[n]t ei molinu[m] ubicunque volueri[n]t. Et hac autem donac[i]one ut rata sit et stabilis p[re]vibat[us] dolph[inus] dedit mi et sol[vit] et absolute dimisit mi et he[redibus] meis ip[s]e et heredes eius q[ui]cq[ui]d iuris ut siq[ui]d iuris clamav[er]int ut undique heredes debueri[n]t in aliq[ua] alia t[er]ra in Egglesf[eld], quare volo et p[er]cipio ut sepedictus Dolph[inus] et h[er]edes ei[u]s h[abe]ant et teneant p[re]fata[m] terram de me et h[er]edibus [meis] [in] feodo et h[er]editate lib[er]e et q[ui]ete et honorifice p[er] p[re]d[i]c[tu]m servici[um] faciendo forinsec[um] serviciu[m] quantum p[er]tinet ad unam carucata[m] terre

Hijs testibus: Armo de [?] tu[n]c senesc[allo], pat[r]icio] brun, Ricardo de Merton, Simone de Ros, Joh[ann]e de Dene, Gerardo de Bramthait, Thoma M[a]rescaldo, Th[oma] de [?], Walt[er]o fil[io] Trotan, Ketello fil[io] Ald[er]j et Michaele f[rat]re eius, Walt[er]o cl[er]ico cu[m] multis alijs.[39]

[38] Written in an unknown hand and part of Machell's Shap Abbey collection. As it relates to Robert Eaglesfield's possessions in Cumberland, it is unclear why it was placed here. Eaglesfield founded Machell's alma mater, Queen's College, Oxford, as related by Sir Daniel Fleming: 'Egglesfield gave name to an ancient family of which was Robert de Egglesfield chaplain to Queen Philippa wife of Ed. III who founded upon his own ground Queen College in Oxford recommending the patronage thereof to his Lady the Queen and the succeeding Queens of England, endowing it with revenues for the maintenance of a provost and twelve fellows.' See G.F. Duckett (ed.) A Description of the County of Cumberland taken in the year 1671 by Daniel Fleming, CWAAS Tract Series I (London & Kendal, 1882), 11. Machell refers to the founding of Queen's College elsewhere in his volumes; see, for instance, his Preface, I.748.

[39] 'Robert of Eaglesfield sends greeting to his friends and to all men [...] of his land. Know that I have given and granted and by this present charter confirmed to Dolphin son of Gilmichael of Eaglesfield one carucate of land in Eaglesfield with all its appurtenances in woodland in field in grassings in pastures in all easements and liberties belonging to this same land, to hold from me and my heirs freely and peaceably, by rendering yearly 12 denarii, 6 at Pentecost and 6 at the festival of Saint Martin, in return for all service which pertains to me, except that: half of this carucate shall give payment and shall do the work of the mill and the other half shall be free and released from payment of the work of the mill and its lord shall grind corn at my mill without payment. But if Dolphin declares that his heirs from outside his own house shall profit or if in any other manner he hands over from that half of the carucate which he holds free from the work of the mill and from payment, they shall seek a mill wherever they wish. And so that, by this gift, it may be authorised and fixed, the aforegoing Dolphin has given to me and paid and entirely surrendered, to me and my heirs, whatever rights, or if any rights, he himself and his heirs shall claim, as his heirs from anywhere are owing in any other land in Eaglesfield; wherefore I wish and order that the oft-mentioned Dolphin and his heirs should have and hold the aforesaid land of me and my heirs in fee and inheritance, freely and peaceably and honourably by the aforesaid service, by doing foreign service as far as pertains to one carucate of land.Witnesses: Armo of [?], at that time steward; Patrick Brown; Richard of Merton; Simon of Ros; John of Dene; Gerard of Bramthwaite; Thomas Marescald; Thomas of [?]; Walter son of Trotan; Ketell son of Alder and Michael his brother; Walter the cleric; with many others.'

[I.312]

[Standing Stones near Shap Abbey]

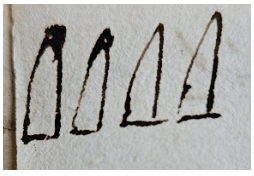

Figure 1.22.3. Standing Stones, 'near to Shap Abbey'. I.312.

Jacob sometimes dwelling about the Tower Eder {Ender puto?}[40] (which stands 7 miles south off \ from / Jerusalem) buryed Rachel his wife about a quarter of a mile distant from the place, and for a monument pitched 12 stones upright upon her grave*. And we have one not much unlike this near to Shap abby, where it is thought som notable act of atchievment has bin don; for theire are huge stones in forme of pyramids, some 9 foot high and 14 foote in lenth thick rainged for a mile directly in a row and equally distant, which might seem to have bin pitched there purposely in memory thereof; but what the act was is not knowne but quite worne out \ of minde / by the injoury of time†.

[Machell's Notes: III.312]

*{!} Itin. Script. de Bethlehem p.422.[41]
†Speed & Camden.[42] {See the explication of this: MS of Cumb[erland], part 1st, pag.2.} Memorandum to draw them.

[III.313]

Shap Abby [buildings]
N.W. \ 1 mile / in a little blinde gill \ not worth the name of a vally / on the west side of the River L[owther] where the tower & East End \ of the [abbey] Church / are standing, and a […][43] little farme house, which has bin formerly som of the Offices; a mill & 2 bridges: the higher, wood, and the lower, stone; having one arch, just below the ruines of an old bridge somewhat nearer the abby; the pillar whereof in the midle of the water is yet remaining. & hence assends a lane N. east which leads to an house called Grange House, which belongd to the abby & is not distant ½ a mile from it.

[40] 'Ender, perhaps.'
[41] 'Itinerary written from Bethlehem, p.422.' Many pilgrims and travellers to the Holy Land wrote travelogues/itineraries, one of which, written in AD 333 and printed in 1538, was eventually added to the Antonine Itinerary. Other itineraries include that of Bishop Arculf (AD 700): '… the tomb of Rachel, rudely built of stones, without any ornament, presenting externally the form of a pyramid.' Benjamin of Tudela (AD 1163) described Rachel's monument as '… the monument which points out the grave of Rachel. This monument is constructed of eleven stones, equal to the number of children of Jacob'. Sir John Maundville (AD 1322): 'From Jerusalem to Bethlehem it is but two miles … And in that way is the tomb of Rachel, the mother of Joseph the patriarch, who died immediately after she was delivered of her son Benjamin; and there she was buried by Jacob her husband, and he caused twelve great stones to be placed over her in token that she had borne twelve children* (*two children … but by them she had twelve grandchildren).' See Thomas Wright (ed.) Early Travels in Palestine (London, 1848), ix, 6, 86, 164.
[42] 'Hard by Shape, in times past Hepe, a little monasterie built by Thomas the sonne of Gospatrick, sonne of Orms … there be huge stones in forme of Pyramides, some 9 foot high, and fourteene foot thick, ranged directly as it were in a row, for a mile in length, with equall distance almost betweene: which may seeme to have beene pitched and erected for to continue the memoriall of some act there atchieved; but what the same was, by the injurie of time it is quite forgotten.' See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 762; see also N&B1, 477; and see James Simpson (vicar of Shap), 'The Antiquities of Shap in the county of Westmorland', Archaeological Journal 18 (1861), 25-38.
[43] Text measuring 1½cm is illegible at this point.

[IV.vii]

[Dissolution of Shap Abbey]

[Addition 1. Anno 30 Henry 8 A.D. 1540.][44]
[Commissioners' preliminaries for the Dissolution of Shap Abbey &c.]
Our duties in most humble wise to your Lordship premised, pleaseth it the same to be advertised that upon Friday being the 9th day of this instant month of January we did repair to the King's Highness's town of Carlisle whereas the Warden with other the gentlemen of those parts did meet us in two miles without the town, garnished and accompanied with a goodly sight of horsemen and spears; and the mayor with his brethren the Aldermen did also very worshipfully entertain us both with their behaviour and presents also. And all the Borders in those parts are in very good order and quietness insomuch that in that behalf we are so bold as to make report of the same to your Lordship. We have also in executing the King's Highness's Commission, there entertained the Prior according to your commandment by the contents of your letter directed unto us in his favour, as we trust he will report unto you; and we have fully put into execution the Commission directed unto us of all other the monasteries in Yorkshire, Westmorland, Cumberland and the Bishopric of Durham; the Monastery of Shap only excepted, whither we do intend to repair upon Tuesday next ensuing, and from thence towards Westchester and from thence to Shrewsbury; and so to Wenlock, which is the last House in our Commission; and thence straight to London, and we think that it will be about the beginning of Lent before that we come thither; at which time we shall declare unto your Lordship all our proceedings, with which we trust that your Lordship will be contented. And thus Our Lord ever preserve Your Lordship in much honour.
At Carlisle the 12th day of January.
By Your Lordship's command, Walter Hendle, Richard Layton, Thomas Legh, Richard Watkins
Unto the Right Honorable my Lord Privy Seal be these d[elivere]d.

[Addition 2.]
Rymer, Tom. XIV, p. 663 et 668. Fœdera.[45]
Omnibus &c. Richardus Baggot Abbas Monasterii Beatæ Mariæ Magdalenæ de Heppa, alias Shappe Ordinis Præmonstratensium in Com Westmerl. & ejusdem loci Conventus Salutem in Domino sempiternam. Noveritis &c. In quorum Testimonium Nos præfati Abbas & Conventus huic præsenti scripto nostro Nomina nostra manibus propriis subscripsimus, Sigillumque nostrum Commune apposuimus. Dat. In Domo nostra Capitulari decimo Quarto die mensis Januarii, Anno Regni prædicti Invictissimi Principis & Domini nostri Regis Henrici Octavi Tricesimo primo. Et memorandum quod Die & Anno prædictis venerunt prædicti Abbas & Conventus in Domo sua Capitulari apud Heppa prædictam, coram Richardo Layton uno Clericorum Cancellariæ dicti Domini Regis, & Recognoverunt Scriptum prædictum ac omnia & singula in eodem contenta in forma prædicta.[46]

---

[44] Though added to the MS after Machell's death, these two extracts have been allowed to remain here as useful additions to Machell's own Shap Abbey collection.
[45] Extract from Thomas Rymer, Fœdera, Vol. 14 (London, 1712). During the early 18th century many official documents were officially transcribed and published in Thomas Rymer's Fœdera. Volume 1 was published in November 1704; further volumes appeared at regular intervals: Volume 14 was published in 1712, see A. Sherbo, 'Rymer, Thomas (1642/3-1713). ODNB. As the extract could not have been added before Volume 14's publication in 1712, this suggests the earliest possible date for the first binding of Machell's volumes; yet Nicolson had written and dated his 'Introduction' to Machell's Volume I in the flyleaf of the bound volume on 10 August 1711 (see Editor's Introduction). Perhaps the Foedera extract was added later, in a rebinding exercise, or perhaps the difference in dating might be explained by the change from the Julian to the Gregorian calendar. Although this was made officially in 1752, many 17th-century writers had already adopted it.
[46] 'To all etc. Richard Baggot, Abbot of the Monastery of the Blessed Mary Magdalen of Hepp, also called Shap, of the Order of the Premonstratensians in the county of Westmorland, and the Members of this House of the same place, send eternal greetings in the Lord: You know etc. To the testimony of which we the aforesaid Abbot and Members of the House, have subscribed our names in our own hands in this our present document, and we have affixed our common seal. Dated: In our Chapter House on the fourteenth day of the month of January, in the thirty-first year of the reign of the aforesaid most invincible Prince and our Lord King Henry VIII. And it should be noted that on the day and in the year aforesaid, the aforesaid Abbot and Members of the House came, in their own Chapter House at Shap aforesaid, in the presence of Richard Layton one of the clerics

[IV.76A]

[Machell's Notes on the last Abbot of Shap Abbey]

Kirkbythuer. 31. Hen. 8. [1539-1540]
I finde Mr Richard Bagget otherwise Evenwood, parson of Kirkbythure. ~~Maybe it is as Mr Harrison said~~. He was abbot & parson & [in] his time it was given appropriate to the abbey, salva vicaria,[47] by Henry Earl of Cumberland, the true & undoubted Patron, with the consent of the King Hen. 8. He tooke care to procure [it] to himselfe during his life nat[ural] but providence prevented its being a vicaria by dessolution of abbys.

[III.319] [48]

Articles of instrument from the Abbott of Shapp to Thome Jolye
Concerninge the apparacion[49] of Kyrkby Thore.[50]

Inprimis. The said abbot doth send to the same Thomes iiij deids unseald concerning the same apparacion.
Item. His other instrument sealed by the jentylmen, Church wardens & other of the saide parishinge in the name of the whole parishinge
Item. To remembere my Lord of Cumberlande for sealinge of his deide of grant under the seal of his armes for your going up.
Item. To remember my said Lord (forsomiche as my lorde bishop of Carliell comith nott down) to write a loving letter for sealing of his deide & for the redy expedicon & settinge forwardz of such busynis as appertanyth to him in that behalf.
Item. A like letter to Mr William Hogyll, Archidiaconery of Carliell, for the sealing of such wrytyngs as belongith to his office.
Item. To remember all other writings nott yit maide nor sealed eyther[51] by the Kings highness my Lorde of Cantorbury, or any other necessary or regnisit to be hade in the premisses
Item. I do sende you by my servant this berer the residue of the fyne to the King's hig[h]nis for the same Kyrkbithore, x^{li}.
Item. I do send you over & beside the said fyne with this same berer for dispachinge other chargiezs as sealing of wrytyngs with other necessariez appertaining your discrecon to be payede & laide down appon a rackonyng thereof to be made by you of the same 10^{li}.
Item. That you remembere to thanke Mr Hughes for his payns heretofor taking in these premiss & desyer him of his goode continuance in the same & according to Mr Blenkansops premiss & that he shall have such a nagge as I truste shall content him to be delyvrde at such tyme as you thinke goode to sende for the same.
Item. Desireinge you to remembere a promise to be obteyned that I may have & perceive the frutts of the sam Kyrkbithore duringe my lif nat\ ur /al in discharge of my pensione.
Per me Ricard. Abbote.

---

of the Chancery of the said Lord King, and acknowledged the aforesaid document and the contents in it, all and singular, in the form aforesaid.'

[47] 'Excepting only the vicarage.'

[48] This page is written in an unknown hand.

[49] 'Appropriation.'

[50] For this text see N&BI, 373-74, where it is quoted verbatim without citing Machell as a source. These are instructions from Richard Evenwode, Abbot of Shap (after 1526, Rector of Kirkby Thore), to his agent. The appropriation was on the verge of completion when the Abbey was dissolved in 1540.

[51] Here there is an interlineated 'T' with a rising and falling wedge on either side, written in yet another hand, but with no obvious relation to the text.

[VI.310]

See in my collection out of the Registry of Wederhall[52]

= Matilda de Veteriponte
|
Robertus de Veteriponte anno 13. regis Johannis [1211-1212]

Ivo de Veteriponte

Gospatricius
|
Thomas filius Gospatricij =
|
Thomas fil = Thomæ files sui circa 13. regis Johannis
~~Thomas filius Tho~~

Grecia uxor ejus

[VI.370]

Registrum de Wetherhal \ Priory / nuper penes Mr Howard de Na[worth] Registrum Abbatiæ de Hep – penes Mr Howard p.2 \ pa. hujus 23 / p. Cartularium de Lanercost – penes Mr Will. Howard 14.[53]

Index

A-G[54]

H. Hep Abby p. 2. When or by whom founded uncertain, but supposed to be by Tho. Son of Gosp. Bec. Rob. de Vet. Confirmed the suite of it and all other things which was concerned in the Ch. of Tho. Son of Gosp. & Thomas, son of Thomas, his son. 13^0 Johan, ergo founded 3 generations before, as I suppose. There was one Mettheus de Hep mentioned in the boundary (p.2. Col.1) is said before it to have \ had / lands there […] & the monks themselves had lands there also before the Ch. of T. fil. Gosp. Contra suam, wherefore I say it is uncertain.

I-Q [Blank]

R. Religiouse Houses in Westm'land: The Abby of Shap, p.2, coll.2. The Priory of Preston, Ibid, Col.1. Mem. also, a Priory at Apelby; & see my collection Cart. Crak. Query also if they did not belong to Whetherall.

Shap, see Hepp

T-V[55]

Westm'land & Cumberland: see Religiouse Houses therein, their dedications, foundations, orders & values at the desolution. Speed. Sub Titilo Carliol p.288; Westm'land, 199.[56]
X-Y [Blank]

[I.311]

[Rosgill]

I finde Thomas Salkeld junior, Lord of Rosgill, 8. Edward 4. [1468-1469] in a deed of 12 acres of land in Ormesheved, together with a tenement by William Bryce to ~~his~~ Thomas Salkeld senior. Witnesses inter alios William Salkeld, Roger Salkeld 1st. Richard Redman Abat of Shap, J. Brystbeck.

[52] MS.IV.407 to IV.532.
[53] Some of these page numbers are obscured by the margin; thus they are insecure.
[54] Left blank.
[55] Left blank.
[56] See 'Catalogus Religiosarum Ædium ex Anglico Ioannis Speed, Latinus', in N. Harpsfield and E. Campion, (ed. R. Gibbon), Historia Anglicana Ecclesiastica (Marcus Wyon, Douai 1622), 750 (Carliol), 776 (Westmorlandia).

Cristianis, wife of Hugh de Salkeld had a son called Hugh, who had Rosgill by deed of his mother, & I thinke this after the date of the form[er], tho sine die, for I finde Ormesheved mention'd therein […][57] Gilbert, the son of Gilbert Culwenne, Knight (I will not be soe ridiculous as to / derive this from Conran King of Scots (p.35 MS 1st part) released & quit clamd to the Abbat & Convent of ~~Shap~~ Hepp, all the right which he had in all lands & tenements in Shap, which he had the gift & infeofment of Hugh de Lowther, Knight, in the vill. of Shap. Viz. which, the said Hugh, he had of Thomas de Preston, dated apud Hep de temp. 34. Edward 3. [1360-1361].

[I.188]

{Culwen}
Gilbert the son of Gilbert de Culwenne Knight, released clame in some Tenements in Shapp &c. 34. Edward 3.and sealed with a frett & chiefe charged with a crescent. This I take to be the same as Curwen & descend from Gospatricus.

[I.311]

Figure 1.22.4. Gilbert Culwen, sigillum. I.311.

[Machell's Notes on Rosgill: I.311; I.313]
If Rossegill be in Shap Parish, memorandum that I finde John de Rossegill witness to a deed with Sir Michael Hardclay, who livd about the 20th (as I take it) of Henry 3rd [1235-36], for he was father to Sir Andrew. [I.313][58]
Rossgil I finde writt \ Rosegil, temp. Henry 3. [1216-1272] / Roskeld in the 5. Edward 4. [1465-1466] Sc. Salkeld nuper de Roskeld.[59] Query: when Salkeld left it & whether there be a spring, well or keld adjoyning? The manner belongd to Patritius the son of Thomas &c. vide ante in manerio de Bampton,[60] Sub Tit. Knype. Ubi sigillum ipsius occurrit.[61] One of the name de Rosgil in hoc libro.[62] Family de Rosegill, John de Rosegill K[nigh]t, Temp. Henry 3. [1216-1272].

[57] As the paper here has perished, one word is illegible.
[58] Also numbered p.38.
[59] 'Salkeld, lately of Roskeld.'
[60] 'See above, in manor of Bampton.' See Part 1, Ch.4, Bampton, I.369.
[61] 'Where his seal occurs.'
[62] 'In this book.'

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 23]

[Parish of Warcop]

[I.315][1]

To Warcop belongs
1. Warcop, Bleatarne, Burton, Sandford.
Isabel, widow of Roger de Clifford, obteined licence from King Edward 1.18. [1289-1290] to bestow the advousans of Warcop upon the Abbot & Convent of Shap (de Hep) in fre Almes after the Statute of Mortmane.[2] Hiltons, I thinke, were at Burton Anno Edward 1. 21. [1292-1293], for the indenture whereby the wardship of Johan, daughter & heir of William de Sulleby was committed to John de Helton & Agnes his wife, was dated there. Hilton of Burton & Hilton, se p.3. Cr. 1.

Name of Warcop
Warcop (anciently Warthecop) has given name to a family in this County whose Armes allude to the name, as tis of later yeares falcely writ Warcop & storye (which I lieve to others) of the Ancestor being cup-bearer to William the Conqueror.
William de Warthcop test. 27. Henry 3. [1242-1243], vide Lamberset in Kirkby Stephen.[3]
Thomas de Warthcop of Lambersete, vide 4. Henry 4. [1402-1403].
Thomas Warthcop de Lamberset: 3. Edward 4. [1463-1464].

[I.586]

[Lammerside Hall]
Lambersette Hall was formerly a seat of the Warcops. Thomas de Warthecop de Lambersete, a juror in the Inquisition de Matilda filia Beauchamp relict Clifford. 4. Hen. 4.
Item. John de Lancaster de Brampton & John de Helton de Burton.
Thomas Warthcop de Lamberset – 3. Ed. 4.

{Burton}
Burton gave name to an ancient family.
Afterward it came to the Heltons. Family of Helton: John de Helton de Burton, juror in inquisitione de Matilda Beauchamp, relict [...] Clifford. 4. Henry 4. [1402-1403].
{See \ more / in Bongate parish & Ormside parish.}

{Sandford}
This place gave name to an ancient family:
Robert de Sandeford temp. Johannis Regis Angliæ [1199-1216], Willielmus ejus filius.[4]
Thomas de Sandford. 15. King John [1213-1214].
Richard de Sandford. 14. of King Edward I. [1285-1286]*

[Machell's Notes: I.315]
*(è cartis antiquis penes Comitissa Cumb[erland]., vel Blenk[insop], vel utrisque.)[5]

[I.317]

The Roman Way

{☞The Romane Way which leads towards Apleby}
{The Romane Way towards Brough ☜}[6]

Castle near Coupland Beck Bridge

[1] Also numbered p.39.
[2] For the statutes of Mortmain, see the English Glossary.
[3] Lammerside: see 'Lammerside Notes' in Part 1, Ch.13, Kirkby Stephen, I.486, I.596.
[4] 'William, Robert's son.'
[5] 'From ancient deeds in the possession of the Countess of Cumberland, or Blenkinsop, or both.'
[6] In the MS, this heading is placed vertically down the page.

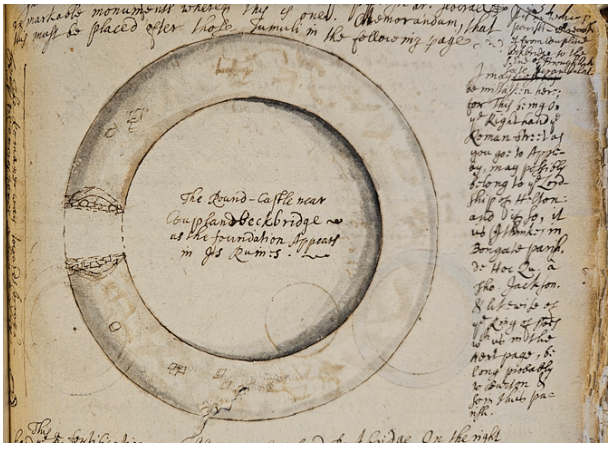

Figure 1.23.1. 'The Round-Castle near Coupland Beckbridge as the foundation Appears in Its Ruines' I.317.[7]

In the Lordship of Sandford in Warcop Parish* are severall remarkable monuments, whereof this is one†. This a Fortification or Castle near Coupland Beck bridge on the right hand \ the Roman Way as you goe towards Apleby / the diameter whereof within the walls is 40 passes[8] and the breadth of the walls, if the rubbish upon the ruines thereof hathe not considerably contributed therunto, 10 yards; so that the whole circumference must bee about 9 score passes. There have bin a great many cart loads of stone lately digged out of the foundations there of a read colour for the most part and very strongly cemented with lime and sand‡.

Over against this but nearer to the Bridge & water close by the Romane Way, is a square which I take to be the vestigia of an Hospitall with the Garden thereto belonging, for I have rett in old writeings of one hereabouts.[9]

The whole platt is about 30 passes within the hedges, which have bin duble-diked so that the whole extent thereof has bin much about 6 score passes within the hedges. The House has stood nearer towards the Roman Way, on which side ther has bin onely a court wall before it without any hedges. And ther have bin great store of sheep folds hereabouts all along from the Hospitall up the hill close by the edge of the Romane Way.

[Machell's Notes: I.317]

*{It is in Warcop parish, which reaches from Coupland Beckbridge to the south end of Brough High […][10] See Sc. Perambulat[ion]. I may ~~perhaps~~ be mistaken here; for this being on the right hand the Roman Street as you go to Appleby may possibly belong to the Lordship of Helton, and if so, it is I thinkes in Bongate Parish: de Hoc. Q. à Thomas Jackson;[11] & likewise of the ring of stones which is in the next page, belong probably to Burton, & so in this Parish.}

†Memorandum: that this must be placed after those tumuli in the following page.

‡March 15, 1688. I saw stones diged up cemented with lime ~~T.M~~.

[I.318]

Near to Sandford field corner after you are over the little Brooke and has mounted the hill, on your lef-hand close to Romane Way are 3 or 4 Tumuli whereof 2 are large ones, and the other which lay betwixt them are very much \ defaced, / one of them being scarce disernable now to be of that sort. The 1st is 4 score & eleven passes about, measuring in the midle of the Trench, and therfor the circumference must be more by the out side the Trench, but not very much, for the Trench is not above one passe broade; the 2nd not above 40. The 3rd being disfigured I tooke not much notise of, but the 4, which is highest, is in circumference 4 score & 6 and the distance twixt this & the 1st is 54 passes.

[7] Note that the tear at the bottom of this sketch represents damage done to the paper, not a deliberate mark.
[8] For 'passes', see the English Glossary.
[9] Whether 'seen writ' or 'read', the meaning is still clear.
[10] The page has perished here.
[11] 'About this, query of Thomas Jackson.'

The figure with these tumuli is the same with those I showed in Marton Parish; onely they differ in this: That these are wholly of the earth and the other are of cobbles & pible stones.[12]

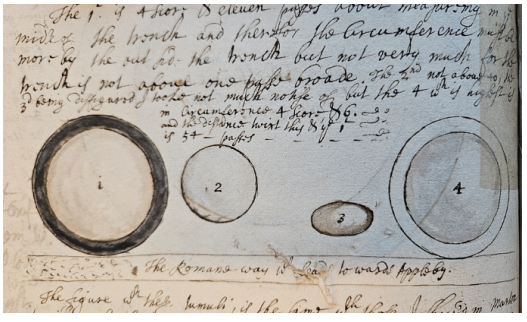

Figure 1.23.2. Warcop tumuli and 'the Romane Way which leads towards Appleby'. I.318.

About 6 score passes from the 4th tumulus is an other monument \ on the right hand the way at a little distance over about 2 yards / of orbicular forme also;[13] but is onely a ring made of earth and stones a little surmounting the level it is reared upon, and there are pitched severall great stones allmost att equall distance, and some agane of a lesser sise are placed betwixt them after this manner following:

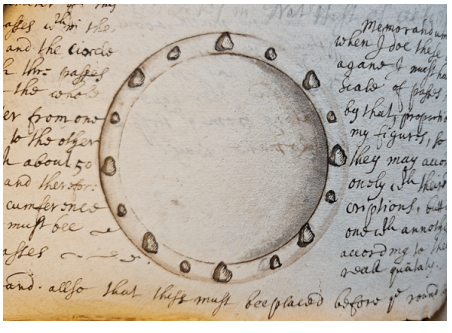

Figure 1.23.3. 'A ring made of earth and stones'. I.318.

The diameter of this is 24 passes within the circle, and the circle in bredth three passes so that the whole diameter from one out side to the other is much about 50 passes: and therefore, the circumference of it must be 150 passes.

[Machell's Notes: I.318]

Memorandum: that when I doe these over agane I must have a scale of passes, and by that proportion all my figures so that they may accord not onely with their discriptions, butt allso one with annother according to their real quantity.

Memorandum allso that these must bee placed before the round castle.

[I.322]

[Warcop Hall]

The Hall is a ~~very~~ sweat seat very much improved with gardens & orchards by Mr Richard Brathwate.[14] There is a grove beyond the houses & gardens about 12 score distant, with a fish pond att the end thereof.

[12] Pible or pibel: (middle English) pebble stone. OED.

[13] Orbicular: round; circular.

[14] MS: '~~that [in…us] Gentleman~~ Mr Richard Brathwate'. The unclear word is possibly 'ingenious', as Machell regularly used it as a compliment when he deemed individuals inventive.

[I.319]

In the dineing roome att Warcop Hall are these coats of arms.

Figure 1.23.4. Coats of arms at Warcop Hall. I.319.

Upon the 1st is a rude helmet & over that, upon a wreath, a grahund couchant collered with a line from the coller surrounding his body. And under-neath, the motto CVM SPE AC ML: ME TV in a kind of long scrowle; & under-neath that these letters S^{r}T^{B}E, for Sir Thomas Brathwate & his lady.
This coat of the Brathwates is wrong don through the ignorance of the workman, for the armes are crosletts upon a cheveron \ & the grahound couchant. / Sir Thomas B. marryed the daughter of Sir John Dalston of Dalston,[15] which Sir John marryed a Warcop, whereupon they had Smardal Hall &c. \ where the Dalstons sometime lived / & hereupon it is that Warcops Armes are here inserted – not for any match with the Brathwates*. The Brathwates of Burneshide are of a younger house, for Richard of Burneshide was younger brother to Sir Thomas. Both ~~sons of Thomas Brathwate~~ \ forsan of Robert ut infra / sic. inform. Richard Brathwate.[16]
The 2nd is Sir Thomas Dakers his coate, of Abbey of Lanercost, and was put up here I suppose upon his marrying a Brathwate, daughter to Sir Thomas.[17]

[Machell's Notes: I.319]

*Note: To ancient arms there belongeth no crest; in that grant of a crest by Edmond, Knight Norroy dated 22 of November in 34th of Queen Elizabeth 1591, in which he grants to their ancient armes (which were Gules on a cheveron Argent 3 cross croslets fitche Sable, to which he added as followeth:
To Thomas Brathwate of Warcop in the County of Westm'land, Gentleman, son & heire of Robert Brathwate of Ambleside in the county aforesaid, Gentleman: which Robert was the son of Richard Brathwate in the said county, Gentleman; who was descended of an ancient house & family long time bearing Armes, that is to say i.e. Gules &c. have granted unto the said Thomas Brathwate, Gentleman, to his said ancient arms by way of or increase – upon a helme on a Torse,[18] white & black, a grayhound couchant Argent, his coller & line Gules mantled Gules, dubled Argent. But noe devise, tho I meet with one after put up in the dineing roome.

[Warcop Church]

[III.327]

The \ body of the / church: long 19 passes \ broad 12 / having one Ile with 2 pillars & 3 arches. ~~The~~ \ and 2 / portches opposite; that on the S. belonging formerly to Warcop Tower, but now the People by the permission of Mr Fother[gill], late owner thereof, who gave them leave to place their seates there upon the condition of repareing it. The other on the N. side belongs to the House of Burton within this Parish and the Chancel is Long – 13 passes – & in breadth 6. So, the whol Length is XXXII passes or [15] Sir John Dalston of Dalston Hall, 2nd baronet (1639-1711), Sheriff of Cumberland 1686: See CFH, 83.

[16] 'Perhaps of Robert, as above. Information from Richard Braithwate.'
[17] MS: 'his coate of Abber Lennarcost and was put up here I suppose upon his marrying a Brathwate, daughter to Sir Thomas.' Presumably this was Lanercost Abbey, as c.1630 Henry Dacre of Lanercost married Dorothy Brathwaite of Warcop; Henry Dacre was knighted c. December 1633: see Henry Summerson, 'Dacre Family 1542-1716'. ODNB.
[18] Torse: a wreath; a twisted roll of fabric laid around the top of the helmet and the base of the crest. See A.C. Fox-Davies, A Complete Guide to Heraldry (New York, 1978), 402-06.

yards; the whol Breadth across about XX broad with these porch[es] ex transverso,[19] being built in manner of a †. And at the west end is a Timpanum[20] with 3 little bells hanging in this wise, which is very pleasant & delightful to loke upon in passing the road. There is maden hare on the church walls.[21]

Figure 1.23.5. Church bells, Warcop. III.327.

[I.320]

Warcop church has had [in] it windows of painted glass but they are now utterly defaced, there being only remaining: In the West End 2 windows whereof take this account:
The 1st, which is next the porch, has 3 lights toward the top of 1st, an Escutchion in a plane Roundell Black and white, in which are 3 Horse shoes. This I take not to be any coate because there are no proper colours, the field and charge being both of a colour, i.e. Argent; But onely a fancy for some benefactor, perhaps a smith who has bin at the cost with glase[22] that window;[23] \ except it be for Warcop for they bare 6. S. in a field Argent, 3 peradventure formerly, as Viponts & Hellebecks did.

Figure 1.23.6. Four coats of arms in Warcop Church windows. I.320.

In the 2nd, which is a faire great one, are 3 lights, and in the tops thereof 3 Coats Armes holden by Angells. In the midst Warcop impaleing [blank], and on the right hand Musgraves. On the left hand Threlkeld with a mullet for distinction, impaled by[24] the:
1. Azure, 6 annulets Or.
2. Per pale: 1. Sable 3 cups Argent; 2nd. Sable 3 haukes.
3. Argent a manche Gules upon a mullet of the 1st. This is impaled.

[19] Crosswise.
[20] Timpanum or tympanum: the area enclosed by a pediment, whether triangular or circular, often adorned with sculpture. OED.
[21] Similar information about the church (written in pencil in note form) is given on MS.III.327: not transcribed.
[22] Glazing.
[23] Horseshoes are fairly common heraldic symbols; see Fox-Davies, Heraldry, 202.
[24] Here there is a small sketch of a coat of arms, almost obscured by the binding.

[Hiltons Quire]
In Hiltons quire, which is on the north side of the church, is a through with a marble upon it whereon has bin 2 Escutchions in brasse & Bras inscription of some buried there \ but lost. / W[e]st side severall gravestone carved in the old fashon with cross & rose towards the head. On the outside above the window this:

Figure 1.23.7. Nevill Coat of Arms, Warcop Church. I.320.

which I take to be Nevill, Earle of Westmorland.
There are 2 little bells belonging to this church.[25]

Parsonage House
The ~~parsonage~~ \ vicaredg / house has bin moted about with all the garden, orchards, barne &c. in an oblo[n]g figure, and some can ~~yet~~ remember a drawbridge to have bin at the gate.[26] Over the doore of the right side is IHS, i.e. Jhesus hom. Salvator.[27] Un the other side, is great M for Maria.[28] The present vicar: Mr Crow.[29]

[Chapels]
To this church has belonged the chaple of Sandford and of Bleatarne: inform[ant] Mr Crow, vicario.

In this parish were 4 villages: Warcop, Sandford, Burton, Bleatarne; 6 Gentlemens Seats & one abby, the stones whereof some would make us believe built Hartley Castle.

[I.321]

In Warcop
A fair bridge near the tower \ over Eden, / & a mile near the hall upon the little beck, the Castle, the ancient seat of the Earles of Westmorland*.
? 3. The Hall, the seat of the Brathwate of Warcop; their armes [blank]
? 2. The Tower, the seat of the Warcops of Warcop anciently, now of Fairer. The arms [blank]

Sandford
In Sandford \ a chaple. / New Hall by the mireside: an old house now being in the possesion of the Warcops.

[25] Machell's error; there are three, as his sketch on III.327 shows.
[26] See N&B1, 602, for similar text.
[27] IHS: Iesus Hominum Salvator - Jesus, Saviour of men.
[28] MS: 'On the other side great is M. for Maria.'
[29] Charles Crow, vicar of Warcop, 1663-82. CCED.

One Hall, now demolished, in the midle of the towne; anciently the seat of the Sandfords \ to which family it gave that sir name above 300 yeres.[30] / The Lordship is now turned into freehold, sold by Andrew Wharton, part whereof belongs to Richard Brathwate of Warcop Esq.[31]

[VI.462A][32]

Memorandum: A horse rase at Sandford More, where the forrest of Coppland[33] was formerly, which belongs to Ap[leby], for a plate, att the cost of the major[34] of the towne. It is to be delivered in Apleby to him that wins it. This horse rase, upon the Wednesday before Whit Sunday.

[I.321]

Burton

Att Burton, one Hall belonging the Hiltons of Hilton, Burton & Ormside.

Bleatarne

\ Chaple / There is one Mr Midleton lives there. The towne is a lordship & belongs now to Mr George Fothergill of Tarnehouse in Russendall.[35] Her[e] they say has bin a Abby†. It is supposed, or at least pretended, to have belonged to Byland Abby in Yorkshire \ near Thirske / Informante: Richard Brathwate, Armig[er]. As to the particular fam[ilies] vid [blank]

[Machell's Notes: I:321]

*Query? Their armes.
†sed de hoc q. plura.[36]

[I.336]

An annuity of 8li per annum paid out of a place calld Burton Powes to the Power[37] of Warcop minister; church rates of Warcop Parish of 5 marke*.

The Castle

The Castle at Warcop has conteined above an acre of land, and some part of the walls which I have seen digged five passes broad of fair hune stone wrought with a broad pick & well cemented with lime & sand.[38] It is now a tenement payd 4s 6d fineable rent to Mr Brathwate. The house, most of it built out of it, & many of a huen stone remane in the hedge wall; and they say Kirkby church tower was built of stones fetched from hence, and that this was the Seat of the Earles of Westm'land: temp. Henry 8. Mr Brathwate, Mr Farer etia[m] informa[nte].[39]

---

[30] The seat of the Sandfords, later of Askham Hall. Edmund Sandford (historian of the Cumberland gentry) was Machell's contemporary; a copy of his small book (1675), is bound up in Volume 6 of Machell's History (VI.539-67), as 'A Cursory Relation of all the Antiquities and Familyes in Cumb'land', though Machell does not appear to have known that Sandford was the author. William Nicolson rectified this situation by adding a note in the Index to Volume 6: 'Mr. Edmund Sandford, Great Uncle to W Sandford, Esq., the present proprietor of the House of Askham, and Chief of the name 1709.' See the published text in R.S. Ferguson's scholarly edition, A Cursory Relation of all the Antiquities & Familyes in Cumberland by Edmund Sandford, circa, 1675, CWAAS Tract Series 4 (Kendal, 1890).

[31] MS: 'In Sandford, 2. \ a chaple / one Hall now demolished in the midle of the towne, anciently the seat of the Sandfords \ to which family it gave that sir name above 300 yeres. / The lordship is now turned into freehold sold by Andrew Wharton, part whereof belongs to Richard Brathwate of Warcop Esq. now being 2. New Hall by the mireside an old house \ 2 / in the now \ 1 / in possesion of the Warcops.' Machell clearly decided to reorder his paragraph by numbering where he wanted his sentences to be placed.

[32] Also numbered p.101. This page is torn at the foot.

[33] There are two words here, one superimposed over the other.

[34] Major = mayor.

[35] Ravenstonedale, see Part 1, Ch.21, Ravenstonedale: III.308. See also N&B1, 616.

[36] 'But about this, more information is required.'

[37] To the poor? Or to the use of the minister?

[38] Repeated in N&B1, 606, which reports: 'Mr Machel says that he had seen some of the walls dug up, which were fifteen-foot-thick, and of fair hewn stone, well cemented with lime and sand.'

[39] MS: 'This was the Seat of the ~~Nevills~~ Earles of Westm'land: Mr Brathwate, Mr Farer etia[m] informa[nte]., temp. Henry 8', translates as, 'This was the seat of the earles of Westmorland in the time of Henry VIII; Mr Brathwate; Mr Farer also gave information.'

Warcop Hall was purchased to the Brathwates & dem[ained] with tenents from Sir Simon Musgrave,[40] Lord Philip Wharton[41] & Sir John Lowther,[42] Joint Lords, as I suppose, by marriage.

[Machell's Notes: I.336]

*But nothing to those.

[I.322]

Warcop Tower

The tower I suppose to have bin built either by Lowther or Musgrave upon the division of the Lordship & marriage of 3 coheires (ut puto),[43] for there are above the midle window in the front thereof these 2 coates which tho they be not impaled yet I take the one to be husband and the other wife. But because both Musgraves & Lowthers bear 6 annuletts and there are no colours to distinguish them by \ upon the stonework / I know not which family to fix it upon. But for the 2nd coate it is certanely Warcops, and one Edward Warcop liveing there in my time. It is onely a freehold estate now, whatever it has bin formerly, and does sute & service at the Court Baron of Mr Brathwate who has allso som tennants yet in Sandford, and soe has Mr Burton.

Figure 1.23.8. Warcop Tower window. Coats of arms. I.322.

[Machell's Notes: I.322, 324A & 325]

Query? What fineable rent Warcop.
{Parish of Warcop. Memorandum: to see stones on Sandford more and to mention the horse rase & hospital if there.}

Figure 1.23.9. Margin sketch beside a description of Thomas Warcop of Colby. I.333.

[40] Sir Simon Musgrave (1579?-1658), of Fairbank.
[41] Philip Lord Wharton (1613-96), Westmorland's leading puritan baron: see Part 1, Ch.21, Ravenstonedale. See also G. F. Trevallyn Jones, Saw-pit Wharton: The Political Career from 1640 to 1691 of Philip, Fourth Lord Wharton (Sydney, 1967).
[42] Sir John Lowther II (1605-75).
[43] 'As I think'.

[Further Notes: I.333 & III.326B]
{Memorandum: to see the account of Bongate, Apleby}
{Wheatfloor, white of egg & will joyn pot.}
{Boundarys, see my paper}
[III.326B]
Mr Thomas Burton Chancelour of Carleol 1581.
Mr Knipes will kept at Warcop.

[III.326B]

[Warcop School]

February 8. 1640.
John Simpson of Sandforth[44] by his last will & testament bearing date as above said doth give a legacy of 5s per annum to be paid every other year to the schoolmaster of Warcop, & in case there be no schoolmaster there, it to go to the schoolmaster of Crosby. The same is to be paid by Barthol[omew] Scaife & Robert Peart[45] both of Sandforth, & to be paid to the church-wardens.

[III.326D][46]

Ad {Warcop school founded. {Crosby-Garret school.}[47]

[III.327]

Warcop Parish {Petrified Shokles}[48]

There is a cave in Midlefell {North-east from the church at 1½ m. distance} found by Mr Hough Raw of Kirkby [Stephen] in sinked \ ing / a shaft for lead-ore, after he had sunke 12 fathom deepe – in lengthe 20 yards, in breadth 5 or 6 yards, about 7 foote high – a flat celing with ~~shockells of~~ petrified shokles*, som as thick as a mans legg, which stood like pillars on a round bassis upon the ground; others of the like, the thickness of mans arme; som like a staff; som like candles; som like a tobacco-pipe; & other shorter like shockells of ice so thick that a man could not pass betwixt them, but they broke like ice.[49] There was a lime stone above it & a peat moss hardby, & out of a \ black / cranny came a drop of water which had framed the condensed and petrified liquor into the forme & bigness of ~~a~~ glass bottle~~s~~, 4 being larger than quart bottles, others less, the necks about 1-inch ¼, with an hollow at the top where the water passed, like the mouth of a bottle. These were as hard as flint stone. Mr Raw thought the workemen had got bottles there & was strangely surprised when he went to ciese on them & could not remove them from the ground.

[Notes: III.327]

*{They were masses of stalactites.}[50]

[III.329]

[Burton and Burton Hall]

Burton, so calld from the plenty of birches* that gro there aboutes, is a smale hamlet at the skirt of Romanfell, consisting \ only / of 3 or 4 houses which lye~~s~~ dispersedly and are customary tenants to Burton Hall, an old ruinous building \ on the E side of [blank] sike or beck / which fronteth southwards & hath but a narrow & confined prospect, impeded by a barne which standeth opposite to the court gate. The main of the house is a great Hall & ~~drawing room~~ parlour, and above them, a dineing roome & drawing rome. At the east end is a ruined chappell adjoyning to the house, and at the

[44] Sandford.
[45] 'Peart' is unclear; the name could well be 'Grant'.
[46] Reverse of III.326B.
[47] See Crosby Garrett: III.165, 166, 166A.
[48] 'Shokle'. '1500s schokle, (1600s sheckle), a lump of ice; an icicle. Scottish and northern, now rare'. OED.
[49] In the margin at this point is a fairly illegible note, which appears to read, '[?] N. there bottles} enters 6 ascend to hall.'
[50] 'This margin comment was added later in another hand; it appears, from various examples in the volumes, to be Bishop Lyttleton's.

west an additional building by Mr Thomas Hilton in 1622, as appears by those figures under the water table of the upper story;[51] & also these letter $I^{H}M$ for John & Mary Hilton: & this coat of arms.

Figure 1.23.10. Coat of Arms at Burton Hall. III.329.

There is nothing more remarquable in or about the house but this coate of armes in glass, in the \ great window of the / dineing roome.

Figure 1.23.11. Coat of arms in the great window of the dining room at Burton Hall. III.329.

The blazon:
1. Sable: a fess Argent between 2 saltiers in chiefe & 3 annulets in Bass, Or.
2. Argent: 3 wings [blank] Gules.
3. Azure: a bend Argent between 6 martlets, Or.
Under it – John Hylton and Mary his wife.

An this other [is] on ~~south west~~ the highest stone of the S. West angle of the great window, wherein the oblong is but a lacuna, or piece left unfinished by the carver.

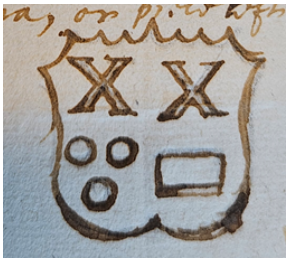

Figure 1.23.12. Detail on 'the highest stone of the S.W. angle of the great window' of Burton Hall. III.329.

[51] 'Water table': a drip moulding, i.e. a horizontal projecting ledge or moulding with a sloping top, set along the side of a wall to throw off rain. OED.

This Burton Hall is the ancient seat of the Hiltons ~~of Ormside Esq~~; and now belongs to Ciprian Hilton of Ormside Esq. by descent from his ancestours.
The Owners
1.Hilton of Burton, 2., 3.

[Machell's Notes: III.329]

*{? of burrs.}

[III.326A]

[Landholding]
1. In Warcop, fam[ilies] 52, of which freehold 4. Lords: Mr Brath[waite] & Vicar. 4. 1 hall, 1T[enement].
2. In Burton ½ mile N[orth ab Ecclesia]. Fam[ilies] 12.
3. Of which freehold 2. Lords: Mr Hilton.
4. In Sand[ford] W[est ab Ecclesia] ½. Fam[ilies] 31. Freeholds 19; and Lords: Mr Wharton. Apleby school 2?
5. Bleatarn S.W[est ab Ecclesia] 1 [mile]. Fam[ilies] 22. Freeholds 7. Lords: Sir Christopher Musgrave. Gentlemens houses 3.
In Sandford Lord Wharton 1 tenement; Mr Burton 5 tenements.

[Machell's Notes: III.326C] [52]
Query: How many familyes; number of free[holders]

[The Bounder]

[III.336A][53]

[1.]
From Greskelde or Grasgil all along down the water call'd Ormside beck, adjoining to the parish of Asby 'till it comes to a place called Crooks; from thence down the said water thro' Horngil & from the north corner thereof in a direct line on the east side of a hill call'd Brackenber by an old mound or dyke, & so thro' Thricklebanks to Peter-Wood adjoining to the river Eden; bounded all along by the parish of Ormside.

[III.338][54]

[2.]
For his most honoured friend Mr Thomas Machell
At Kirbethure
These.

[III.337][55]

Sir
After my servise presented unto you, these are to aquainte you that acordinge to my promise I have done my indevor to gitt you this abstracte of Warcop parishe. Sir if I may any further be serviseable to you, you may frely command him who is yours to serve you.
Nicho[las] Harrison.

A Perfect Bounder of Warcope Parishe
Beginning on the North with Bongate Parish from which tis divided from Cowplanbeck, from the foote where it runs into Eden, you ascend CB[56] where it runs into Eden, to George-gill-sike foot all the way to Umfregd Heade & so up the Storth-Sike & through Lowgill banke;[57] thence in a dyrecte

[52] Scrap page measuring 4½cm x 2cm: possibly the smallest page in Machell's MS.
[53] Scrap page measuring 8cm x 21cm; written on lined paper in a hand resembling that of a second bounder provider, see foot of III.337.
[54] Address sheet of the letter from Nicholas Harrison.
[55] Boundary text written and signed by Nicholas Harrison, with annotations in Machell's hand.
[56] This is Machell's text, apparently correcting Harrison's first line which reads, MS 'Beginning at Cowplanbecke foote'.
[57] Machell's text corrects that of Harrison in this paragraph. MS: '\ Beginning on the North with Bongate Parish from which tis divided from Cowplanbeck / from the foote ~~adjoyning to Bongate parish~~ where it runs into Eden, you ascend CB adjoyning with Eden \ where it runs into Eden / you ~~by George~~ \ to George-gill-sike / on the N.

line up Wastergill to the top of Romanfell; & so over Romanfell to Swindaille-Fauldes; then descends \ downe to Sisegill foote; thence ascends up Sisegill (in a dyrecte line) to \ currock / top of the littell fell; thence in a dyrecte line ~~from lile fell~~ through Phillops-read-mose* on the north of it, to Arnside Boore,[58] adjoyninge all this way to Bongate parish \ on the north of it. / And so from thence easteward up the Mickell Fellend to a curack \ of stones / on the sunn-side of the Mickellfell and there adjoynes on the east side with Rumachurch {Rumakirk} parishe \ in the county of York / {on the S. with Musgrave parish.} And from thence descends downe southward in a dyrecte line by the Haire-Crage to a sealle-tree[59] neare Force-becke & adjoyning on the sunn side to Musgrave parish;[60] and from thence forward (in a dyrecte line) to the Raven-Crage; & from thence ~~decending downeward~~ (in a dyrecte line) to a thorne-tree ~~in~~ growing in a crage in Midellfell Side; & from thence descend ~~downward~~ to a house calld Towansons house in a dyrecte line, & all the way adjoyneing to Musgrave parish; & from thence† to the South end of Broughhill; & from thence in a dyrecte line westward to the A[le] house of one Steadmans. And from thence (in a dyrecte line) by a burtere-tree[61] in the Sand Field[62] to Eden; & from thence in a dyrecte line over Eden to a wathe upon Bleatarne-Maske called Sandwath adjoyninge to‡ \ Soulbe parish on the south side⸸. / And from thence in a dyrecte line westward to a place called Horngill adjoyning on the west to Ormside parish; & from thence in a dyrecte line northward to a place called Blacksike foote‖ adjoyninge to Eden. And so ~~eastwards~~ downe Eden all the way to Coppelenbeck-foot ~~in a dyrecte line~~ where we began.

[Machell's Notes: III.337]

*{?}
†(by what)
‡Adjoining to the parish of Crosby Garret on the south side; & from Sandwath to Grasegill, where it adjoins to the parish of Kirkby Stephen; from thence down the rivulet ~~to Horngill~~ where it adjoins to the parish of Asby, to Horngill; from Horngill, adjoining on the west to Ormside parish, to a place called Black Sike, adjoining S[E] to the river Eden, & so down Eden all the way to Coppelenbeck foot, where we began.[63]
⸸On the S. Soulby. No parish}
‖Query foote? {which runs down into Eden?}

Curruck, commonly called Hurruck, from Hurles, which signifies to throw and ruck or rick, a stack, heape or cock of hay, which it resembles. {From leading in a cart or waine.}[64]

On the top of Brough fair-hill are 2 or 3 tumuli upon one of which the fair is wont to be proclaimed. And it is somewhat odd that Brough fair should be kept so remote from the town of Brough, being [blank]? miles distant & in another parish: Sc. in Warcop.

[III.339]

Blea-Tarn

Blea-Tarn is an hamlet rather than a village, the houses lying confusedly scattered, which are in number about XXII: 22, of which ~~they~~ are[65] freeholds VII, the rest arbitrary to Sir Christopher ~~& North East~~ with Bongate parish from which tis divided by Cowplan beck from the foote; thence up George Gill Sike \ ~~adjoyning to Bongate parish all the way~~ to Umfregd Heade & so up the Storth-Sike & through Lowgill banke.' The body text above attempts to offer an accurate version of this difficult passage.

[58] Boore? There is a field in Warcop known as 'Boron Brow': see Westmorland Place-Names. Alternatively, in Dictionaries of the Scots Language, Online, a 'bour' is an elder tree, a dwelling place, an inn. OED suggests a boar, but see below, fn.61.

[59] Sealle tree. Old English 'sealh' or 'sallow': a willow tree. OED.

[60] Sun side: the side of a place or object which receives or tends to receive the most sunlight. OED.

[61] Possibly the 'borra' or 'bour' tree (Dictionaries of the Scots Language Online); 'bour' or 'burtree'. OED. All are Scots or Northern English words for the 'elder tree'.

[62] A field in Warcop called 'Sand Pen' is noted in Westmorland Place-Names.

[63] Another version of the latter part of the bounder, not in Machell's hand and not in the hand of Nicholas Harrison, who provided the bounder information from the top of III.337 (excluding Machell's interventions and interlineations).

[64] Currack or Currock: a pair of open wooden or wicker frames slung pannier-wise on each side of a horse, for carrying a load of corn, hay, or other bulky material. OED.

[65] Some text (4cm) has been crossed through here and is therefore illegible.

Musgrave of Hartley Castle,[66] purchased lately of Mr George Fothergil of [blank] in Russendale, whose familyes you have an account of in Hartley & Russendal, as their fixed seates.
This place is seated (for the most part of it) on the sunny side of a banke, betwixt which and the common or pasture adjoyning, is a ~~wetish~~ \ wet / bottom, standing sometimes of the year with water in manner of Tarne, whence it may seem to be called Blea-Tarne.

[Machell's Notes: III.336]

Blatern – Musgrave
Chapel
Common i.e. Musgrave

[III.333]

[County Court ruling relating to common pasture at Bleatarn and Musgrave belonging to Byland Abbey in Yorkshire] From a copy taken by Mr George Fothergill of Tarn House.[67]

Hec compositio facta est inter Thorphinum filium Roberti et Robertum filium Petri et Monarchos de Beghland et Wallenum de Wardcop et Rob[ertum filium fidis. De calumnia quam Robertus filius Petri habuit de Communi pasture inter Blaternam & Musegrava. Quod pro pace ista remanebit Roberto filio Petri in proprium octoginta due acre terre. Scilicet a spina super Hobergham in transversam del Sijc Subtus Manrebergha usque ad ductum versus Musegravam. Et a predicta Spina totum remanebit Monachis in proprium versus grangiam et usque ad ductum juxta Capellam per divisas quas fecerunt et perambulaverunt; et averie Roberti Musegrave nunquam infra has divisas intrabunt nec Averie Monachorum infra proprium Roberti. Robertus etiam habebit unum exitum averijs de Musegrava super Manrebergham inter culturam Monachorum et vallem subtus Hobergham. A divisis quas fecerint et perambulaverint juxta pratum. Et inde habebit Robertus Communem pasturam usque ad vivarium et inde usque ad viam Super Cressekelde que vadit versus Appelb et usque ad quadradriam, et inde usque ad caput vivarij per divisas quas perambulaverunt et fecerunt. Totum hoc erit in Communam pasturam averijs de Musegrava, et averijs Monachorum . Sed monachi arabunt culturam juxta fossatum molendini usque ad vivarium, sicut perambulaverunt et divisas fecerunt. Et habebunt culturam suam super Maurebergh & pratum in proprium sicut habuerunt ante istam compositionem, et nichil amplius ibi

[III.334]

Arabunt. Et Averie de Musegrava in his locis nunquam intrabunt. Et Thorphinus et Robertus coram conprovincialibus affidaverunt quod ipsi et heredes eorum tenebunt hanc compositionem fideliter et sine malo ingenio in perpetuum. Sed si contigerit quod Averie de Musegrava intrent in proprium Monachorum dabunt unum denarium pro 20 averijs secundum consuetudinem Provincie Similiter dabunt monachi si averie eorum intrent proprium Roberti. Hec compositio facta fuit in Curia Domini Regis apud Appelby coram Williellmo filio Huei ballivo, et Murdaco decano, et Thoma de Hellebec, et Thoma filio Gospatricij, et Roberto de Kabergh, et Johanne Tailleboys, et Conano de Aske, et Williellmo de Ascheby, et Richardo Anglico, et Henrico de Cund[le], et Stephano de Tyrnaby, et Rogero Winkenel, & Roberto filio Richardi, et Williellmo de Lather, et Thoma fratre ejus; et Huberto Clerico, Michaele de Harclay, et Waltero filio ejus, & ceteris probis hominibus qui tunc fuerunt ibi presentes.[68]

[66] Hartley Castle was the chief seat of the Musgraves before the marriage of Thomas Musgrave (d. before 1467) to Joan (born c.1414), elder daughter and co-heir of William Stapleton of Edenhall. See CFH, 237, 322-23.
[67] This sentence was originally placed on the following page.
[68] [Not in Machell's hand] Translation of the agreement of Thorfinn and others with the monks of Byland Abbey and others (see also N&B1, 615-16): 'This peace-settlement was made between Thorphin the son of Robert and Robert the son of Peter, and the monks of Byland and Wallen de Warcop and Robert son of Fidis, concerning the ill-feeling suffered by Robert the son of Peter relating to the common pasture between Bleatarn and Musgrave. It is agreed that Robert the son of Peter shall have for his own use 82 acres of arable land, viz. from the thorn-tree above Hobergh, across the sike below Maurebergh, as far as the water course leading towards Musgrave; and from the said thorn-tree towards the Grange, and to the water-course near the chapel, all shall be the monks' property, by the boundaries which they have made and walked; and the draught beasts of Robert Musgrave shall never enter this land, nor those of the monks enter the private land of the said Robert. And Robert shall have one outlet for the draught beasts of Musgrave upon Maurebergh between the monks' cultivated ground and the valley below Hobergh, by the bounds which they will have made and walked next to the meadowland. And Robert shall have common of pasture thence as far as the fish-pond and thence up the road above Cresskeld which goes towards Appleby, thence to where the four roads meet, and thence to the head of the fish-pond by the bounds which they have walked and made. All this shall be in the common pasture for the draught animals of Musgrave and of the monks. But the monks shall plough the farmland near the mill-ditch as far as the fish-pond, on the bounds that they have walked and made; and they shall continue to have as their private property their farmland above Maurebergh, and the meadow just as they had before the making of this agreement, and they shall not extend their ploughland there; and the draught animals of Musgrave shall never enter these places. And Thorphin and Robert have sworn their oath in the presence of the district's inhabitants, to uphold this agreement faithfully, they and their heirs, without evil intent, for ever. But if it should happen that the draught animals of Musgrave should enter the monks' private land they will give one penny for 20 draught animals according to the custom of the district. Likewise, the monks will give [the same] if their own draught animals intrude into Robert's land. This agreement was made in the Court of Our Lord the King at Appleby in the presence of William the son of Hugh the Bailiff, Murdo the deacon, Thomas de Hellebec, Thomas son of Gospatric, Robert de Kabergh, John Tailleboys, Conan de Aske, William de Ascheby, Richard English, Henry de Cundale, Stephen de Tyrnaby, Roger Winkenel, Robert son of Richard, William de Lathes, Thomas his brother, Hubert the Clerk, Michael de Harclay, Walter his brother and other honest men then present.'

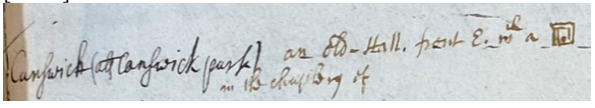
Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 1]

[II.1]

Pars 4ª. MS.
Collect[iones] Antiq[us] Comitatus Westmarie
{T.M. Vol. II}

sive



tract. specialis de Baronia de Kendall.

Commonly called The Baronie for distinctio[n] from the Bottome of Westmorland

[1. Villare Alphabeticum relating to the Barony of Kendal]

[II.3]

[A.] Index. Paroch. Manner houses marked xx.[1]

Town or Place. Barony. Ward \ et locorum. /	Parish	Lordship
⊙Ambleside. Part in Windermer & part in Applethwayte	in the parish of Gresmere Windermere	payd
⊙Burnashed	Kendal
1[t] to Bur: til Ed. 2., then to Belling. till Hen.8. vide notes on the ped.[2] Then to Machel. Then to Brathwate
⊙Bethom. To the Bethoms […][3]	Bethom
⊙Barbon in	K. Loansdal
⊙Brigstere	Kendal
⊙Burton. A market town & parish	Burton
⊙Cunswick (alias Cunswick park)	Kendal an old hall. Front E. with a gatehouse.[4] In the chapelry of [blank]

Figure 2.1.1. 'Cunswick, an old Hall.' II.3.
⊙Chapellon (no Chapple. Ith Ing? Holme. Mr Phill[ipson]	? Kendal
~~Claperiet in the~~ map pro
⊙Clapper-yeat	Gresmer
(Mr Phil.) at Windermer Head near Am[b]leside
⊙Crosthwaite	Heversham
⊙Crossecrake	Kendal
Casterton	K. Lonsdal
⊙Crooke (alias, nuper, Thwatterden hall)	Kendal
⊙Cowgarth or Calgarth	Windermer
St Catherines	Windermer
an old demol[ished] Chaple near W[indermere]
Dockeray, an Hall house at the N. end of K.	Kendal
⊙Delake
	Kendal

[1] Manor houses do not appear to have been marked with 'xx' here, though some of the text is obscured by the binding. Machell's other symbols, such as ⊙ and 0, denoting size of settlement, have been reproduced as Machell drew them, together with further symbols such as 'x' and '#'. See another experimental approach to recording settlement in Machell's Preface, I.41A.

[2] 'See notes on the pedigree.'

[3] There is an illegible sentence here.

[4] Note the tiny image. The gatehouse is all that is left of the 17th-century hall and its earlier buildings. For Cunswick Hall, see Jeremy R. Robinson and Kevin Grice, 'Cunswick Hall: An archaeological and historical survey of a Lakeland manor', CW3, 18 (2018), 149-68.

Delaker
Farleton	Burton
Firbanke alijs Frithbanke	Kendal
Fawset
Forresthall (~~dub an non in Baron de Apleby Mr Phil~~)	Kendall
Grayrigg	Kendal
Gresmere (vulgo Grosmer Mr Ph.) a village & parish	Gresmire

[II.4]

Halling hall	Kendall
Hay
Hayfell, a common belonging to the corporation of Kendal	Kendal
Hutton ith' Hay, a village	Kendal
Haverbrake (alijs Dallan Tower nup[e]r)	Bethom
Heversham village & parish	Heversham
Hellsington village ad Helston Leathes	Kendal
Helston Leathes
? Hinkaster vil.
Holme, village & parke belongs to Peston, \ oth' manner /	Burton
? Holmesvales
~~Howhar (in Lane puto~~)
Hutton new vil.	Kendal
Hutton Old vil Parke opinor[5]
Hutton Roofe – Hall
X Hutton Ith' Hay supra. Ham.
Hugill vil. in Ing Chapelry in	Kendal
⊙Kendall - a Market Town & Parish
Kendal Castle
Kirkland by Kendal vil. At the S. End.
Kentmere – a Chapelry Hall & Hamlet in	Kendal
Kent Flu
Kettle – forsan Strickland Kettel
Killington – Vil. & Chap. & Hall in	Kendal
Kirkby Loansdale – a market T[own] & Parish	Kirkbyloa[n]sdale
St Katherines, a chap. near Cawgarth in	Windermer
Langdale (~~an in Kend?~~) great & little in	Gresmer
0L~~anrigg~~ or Lambrig vil & parke	Kendal
Leavins hal or Upper Leavins h[all]). Nether Leavins hall to Preston oth[er] manner {not vill but manner house}	Heversham
Long-Sleddall vide Sled.	Kendall
Leaun flu
Loansdale – Dale in the S. part of Kendal Barony	Kirkby Loansdale
Loughrigg in	Gresmer
Lupton Lordship	Kirkby Loansdale

[II.5]

Mansergh	K. Loansdale
0Meathop (or Methop)	Heversham P.
⊙Midleton manner – vill	Kirkbylonsd.
Millthorpe (v[u]lga \Mil/Throp)	Heversham
Natland Vil. \ Natland forrest /	Kendall
Neather ~~Stanley~~ (pro Staveley x) Vill. vid Staveley & Upper Staveley a vill: a vill. & Chap. formerly a manner!	Kendall
New Hutton vill –
~~Ova~~ map. (pro Owva \8va /) a Marish & Hamlet	Hersham
Parkes how many?
Patton Village and Hall	Kendal
Preston (Patrick)	?
⊙Preston (Richard) query an in Bethom vel Kendall (Chapple)

[5] 'Opinor': as I think.

Q.
Rydall	Gresmer
⊙ Sellside (or Selsed-hall) Ham. & Chapple in	Kend.
Sidghwick or Seggeswick village	Kend.
Sisergh, an Hal or Manner – Siser fellside an Ham.
St Catherines (vide Cather.) near Caugarth Hall	Wind'mer
? Skeelmere. ~~Hall & Hamlet~~ pro Skelsmere Hall	~~Kendal~~ R.

[II.6]

⊙ Sledall Vill. Sledall Long (vid. Long Sl.) village	Kendall
⊙ Staveley (Over) (Nether & hall) formerly a market.	Kendall
Staveley Chaple
Skelmirgh (& Skelsmerhal) vil. ad Labourn	Kendal
Ska\w/(l)thwayte Rigg. Ham.	Kendal
Strickland Vil.	Kendal
Stricland Rog[e]r. Ham.	Kendal
Stainton & vill. ~~& demaisne~~	Heversh.
Sellett hall & demaisne	Hershom
Troutbeck	Windermer
Undermilnb[e]ck (~~et Overmel.~~) alijs under Milbeck	Windermer
Under Barrow (from Barowfell a vill –)	Kendall
\ barrow ie brow, contra[6] of burrow
⊙ Witherslack vil. In	[Blank]
⊙ Whinfell vil or Hamlet	Kendal
⊙ Watland forsan per Natland	Wind'mer
⊙ Windermere – a Lakeside Parish – Windermerwat[e]r a lake 10 miles long)	Wind'mer
Winstar Chapple in	K?
~~⊙ Whinfell~~

[II.7]

Index nominum[7]

A Bateman
Bellingham
Beck
Bethom
Brathwayte
Bradley
Briggs
Byndlose
Carus
Chamber
Curwen
Duckett
Fisher
Fleming
Gilpin
Guy
Godsave
Harrington sive antique Haverington for ad Bar[ony] De Kend.
J
K
Labourne
Lancaster

[6] This word is unclear but is probably a shortened form of 'contraction'.
[7] 'Index of names.'

Langdale?
Leauins.
Midleton

[II.8]

N
O
Phillipson
Preston – of Biggins hall Westm'd. 4 descents. Heralds office visit. Durham p.16.
Q Readman
Rosse
Sandes
Sedgewick
Sleddall?
Strikland
Stockdal
Thornburrow
V
Winsor
~~Woulston~~
Willson

[II.354]

{!!! Methodas} et de Baronia de Kend. In Genere
e Referenda e Lib Sir Dan. Fleming[8]

[II.356]

The Barony of Kendal And Division thereof
Into Kendal Ward and Loansdal Ward

Anno Domino 1692

[Miscellaneous Notes relating to the Barony of Kendal]
In describing of Chappelry consider How they ly, that you may proceed in som orderly method – either Round or Lengthway.
In describing of Places – give 1[t] Their site & beareing; 2. What they have bin of old: 3. What they are now. With The places of note, tenure & Customs.
And also the same with the Coate marked 3. And for the Crist a Demy-Horse with a Ducal Crownet Coller – Az[ure] belonging to Bindlose.[9]

[II.1][10]

A O from Windermer

x.1. Kentmere	p.43
x.2. \ Long / Sleddal)	p.41
3. Selside	p.39	0:0:6
1. St Johns ruin in Skelsmer	p.5	0:0:2
2. Burneside	p.31	0:6:2

[8] Here Machell demonstrates his dependence on Sir Daniel Fleming's research library.
[9] Written on a small scrap of paper (11cm x 6cm), attached to the foot of II.356.
[10] In the MS, most of these notes are written around the edge of the title-page of the 'Barony of Kendal' section, at the beginning of Volume II.

Laid at Hooke nose[11]
3. Staveley p.51 0:0:2^{d} & 6^{d}
4. Ings p.53 2^{d}.
Windermer given Tho. 2^{s}.6 & 1^{d} ob, & 1^{d}.

{Old Peter Birket of Hugill by Ing Chappel says that Cawgar[t]h was formerly the Birkets of which he has seen deeds.}

1. Natland. Mr. Wilson yeoman (Sheph[erd) olderly hooke nose.)[12]
2. Maidenhead.
3. Hutton. Mr. Nicholson good like Mr Edmondson. Dawson down locked (Th. Strikland) at the Brig end.
4. Kirkby. L. at Mr Briges. Mr Hen[ry] Denton wifes. Mr Applegarth will.}[13]

N.B.

Mr Robert Phillipson of Cawgarth informed mee that there are 2 Foes[14] in the Barony of Kendall, Sc. the Marquess foe, & Richmond foe; under which foes all there lands thereabout are held. He told mee also, of a particular exemption which the people in his parish have from being cited to Richmond; they being to make there appearance att the spirituall court at Kendall. {Charta penes Mr Phillipson.} Of these things I was inform'd by him at London. March 1675/6.[15] Sed de his quaere plura? [16]
vix creditur a T. Dixon.[17]

{Stone moss makes corke for dying; an ill purple. Made out of old oake trees; a brown. Wooddus i.e. wood wast; yallow.}

[II.2]

Worth of Land
{Under Barrow} Att Underbarrow in the parish of Kendal, there is meadow called Grigs-medows worth 50s per annu[m] an acre; & belongs to tennent.
Measure of land see in Gresmere – page 1^{t} there.

[11] The phrase, 'hook nose', is written twice on this page, even though Machell seems to be describing two different men. The phrase appears again in Machell's narrative on the Chapelry of Burneside, in a description of his informant there. 'N.B. Tho. Dennison of Lo\w/thwate late Balif: Hook nosed, my kinde & ingeniouse Landlord & informer' [II.91]. This would be the 'hook nose' at whose house he 'laid', as told here on II.1. The phrase is indicative of Machell's interest in physical details of appearance.
[12] Machell met Mr Wilson ('a courteous gentleman') at Natland, during his 'Itinerary' or tour of the Barony of Kendal in 1692: see Part 2, Ch.10, Itinerary, II.382.
[13] Machell listed three points but wrote four. As they are all difficult to decipher, the transcription cannot be accepted as completely accurate.
[14] A version of 'fee', from the Latin 'feodem' and Middle English, 'fe, feo, fey'; the term – either fee or foe –is used by Machell in relation to feudal landholding and obligation: see the English Glossary.
[15] Notes relating to Machell's visits to London are scattered throughout the volumes. He worked on ancient deeds relating to Cumberland and Westmorland in the Tower of London and elsewhere from at least 1674 to the time he finally left Oxford for his rectory at Kirkby Thore: see the footnote below. See also Part 3, Ch.2, Machell's Correspondence; and the Editor's Introduction.
[16] 'But make further inquiries about this?'
[17] 'T. Dixon's information is scarcely credible.' Thomas Dixon was a contemporary of Machell at Queen's College, Oxford. Son of Thomas Dixon of Windermere, he matriculated, 1664-5, aged 15; B.A. 1669; M.A. 1672-3; B.D. 1682, OAD. In a letter to Daniel Fleming, 5 November 1677, Dixon remarked, 'I suppose you have heard that Mr Machell is upon his year of grace, having got Kirkby Thure in the north. I have taken in his friend Mr Nanson of Appleby in his room.' See Maxwell Lyte, Stanley Hughes Le Fleming, James Arthur Bennett and Richard Ward (eds), The Manuscripts of S.H. le Fleming Esq. of Rydal Hall (London, 1890), 139. Philip Nanson, son of Robert of Appleby, went to Queen's College Oxford; matriculated 1665 aged 18; B.A. 1669-70; M.A. 1673; fellow 1674; rector of Dogmersfield Hants, 1680, OAD. Prior to 1680, the rector was Andrew Whelpdale (died 1678/9), whose widow, Elizabeth, presented Nanson to the living. In 1680, Elizabeth married Thomas Machell and left Hampshire for Kirkby Thore. See C. Roy Hudleston, 'Thomas Machell, his wife and children and his Whelpdale stepchildren', CW2, 70 (1970), 110-45, at 116.

Measure of Corn. Value
A bushel at Kendal is 20 Gallon. At Oxon but 8. Kirby Loansdale – 24 Gallon.
Measure of Hay. Value
About Kendall the measure by trusses. A trusse is an horseload – 30 stone more or lesse.
There is land by the river side twixt Kendal & Kirkbyloansdal which will bring forth corne for 3 or 4 yeares. & when they fallow it shall bring forth hay the very next year. An acre brought forth 26 bushel of Big the 1[t] year;[18] and the next year 30 truss of hay.

[II.11]

[3. Correspondence relating to Machell's Research at Kendal]

[Letter to Thomas Machell from his relation, John Thwaites of Appleby.]

Dear Cosen
My kind respects salute you. I have endeavourd to satisfie your desires to give you an account of the Charter of Carlisle (a.) & Kendall & their Immunityes,[19] but cannot prevaile therein.[20] In a paper inclosed, I have given you an account of ours, and an answeare from Thomas Jackson of Dufton to one of your Queries: All your frends here are in good health. My wife & daughter doe present ther love & service to you, and soe doth,

[Machell's Notes: II.11]
{a. I know not when its Charter was granted but Henry 1. made it an episcopal sea. Write Mr Edmondson about Carlile.}[21]
{Referate ad Kendal}[22] Memorandum. It was Emma Tyson a bakers wife in Kendal who hindered her husband when he was redy to shoot the King, for which she is to be had in everlasting remembrance. A relation of which intent when the King was passed through the Towne, came to his & Prince Ruperts eare; where upon the Prince would have the Towne have sufferrd as much for this disloyalty as Appleby formerly had don for its fidelity to Kings of England. But the king sayd noe, it should not be burned, all should not suffer for one mans sake & bes[ee]ched God to forgive him.[23]

[18] Big[g] = barley.
[19] Earlier Crown grants of a market and fair were confirmed by Elizabeth I's charter of incorporation in 1575, and by Charles I's charter of 1636, giving Kendal the right to name an alderman as mayor. A new charter was granted in December 1684, giving the Crown increased powers over the corporation in line with Tory policies: C.B. Phillips, 'The Corporation of Kendal under Charles II', Northern History 31 (1995), 157-77, at 171. See also Cornelius Nicholson, The Annals of Kendal: being a historical and descriptive account of Kendal and the Neighbourhood: with biographical sketches of many eminent personages connected with the town (London and Kendal, 2nd edn, 1861 [1st edition, 1832]), Ch.5: The Corporation.
[20] In some parishes, Machell experienced difficulty in securing information. In a letter to Daniel Fleming, 1 August 1677, he wished that all were as ready to assist him as was Fleming. 'Many are cold. If this continues I shall have to retire from the whole enterprise.' See Lyte, Hughes et al (eds), The Manuscripts of S.H. le Fleming Esq. of Rydal Hall, 139.
[21] According to R.S. Ferguson, the first two Carlisle charters (Henry II and Henry III) were burnt, leaving the city with no title deeds. These charters were followed by others: in 1293, 1316 and 1353. Ferguson lists 11 subsequent charters from the reign of Richard II to that of James I. Charles I's charter of 1638, known as the 'governing charter', set out how the city was to be governed. Such charters had generally expanded Carlisle's powers of self-governance, but in 1664 Charles II's amendment to his father's charter exemplified the Crown's effort to increase royal control of borough personnel after the Commonwealth era by requiring officers to take the oath of obedience and supremacy, and the town clerk and recorder to be approved by the Crown. Thwaites probably wished to see this particular charter; the tenor of the letter suggests a period in the early 1670s when Machell was beginning his research. See R.S. Ferguson and W. Nanson (eds), Some Municipal Records of the City of Carlisle, CWAAS Extra Series, 4 (Carlisle, 1887), Ch. I: The Corporation and Charters. See also Michael Mullett, Carlisle in Revolution and Restoration, c.1648-1688, CWAAS Tract Series 30 (Kendal, 2022), 11-14. For the surrender and re-grant of this charter in 1684, giving the Crown powers of removal and appointment of corporation personnel, subsequently allowing James in 1688 to eject opponents of his toleration policies and install supporters, see Mullett, Carlisle in Revolution, 97-117.
[22] 'Keep this for the Kendal section.'
[23] In 1651, Charles II and his Scottish army stopped to rest at Kendal on their route south to the Battle of Worcester. Regarding Emma Tyson, local tradition has it that 'when Charles II marched his army into the town … a baker named Tyson attempted to assassinate him.' See the Westmorland Gazette,

{Kendal gives Title to the Eldest son of the Duke of Espernon[24] in France; who is called Duke of Candalle: Out of a Geographical Dictionary Translated out of Mounsier du Val, London 1678.[25]
But query if no such place as Candalle in the Kingdom of France. Qu. also which the Duke of Yorkes children by Chancellor Hides D[aughter] was Duke of Kendal, of the Heralds. Qu. also of the Duke of Cumberland.}[26]

[II.14]

[Letter to Thomas Machell in an unknown hand.]

Mr Thomas Machell
One of the Fellows in Queenes Coll
This.
In the 1ᵗ year of R[ichard]1. [1189-1190], in consideration of 60 marks payd to the K. by this Gilbert was acquitted for himselfe & his heires from a certaine Tribute called neatigeld,[27] which he used to pay out of his lands of Westmorland & K[endal] (note the destinction), & from suit to the County Court, Hundred Court, & Titheing. Likewise, from Aid to the Sherif & all his Bailiffs &c. Dugdale Baronage (1.Vol.?) p.422.[28] But it seems this would not hold for William the son of Gilbert.

This descent there	Ivo Talboys = Ethered = Ketell Gilbert = William = who probably as governor of Lancaster Castle did first assume the sʳname of Lancaster.	Gundred wid. of Roger Earle of Warwick, daughter to William, 2 Earle of Warren	Temp. Stephen
	|	|
	William de Lancaster fil. Et heres = 2. Helewise de Stutevil fil	[Blank] d. marryed to Richard de Morevil
A charter from suit of Com. Court	Gilbert = filius Rogeri Fitz Remfride. 1. R.1. [1189-90] & anno	Helewise de Lancaster – T[emp]R.1.

https://www.thewestmorlandgazette.co.uk/news/18291644.nostalgia-famous-visitors-kendal-centuries. This appears to be true, but the rest of Machell's tale has been embroidered, for, according to Roger Bingham, 'Charles II came through in 1651 but by that time Rupert was in exile…' Roger Bingham, Kendal, A Social History (Milnthorpe, 1995), 353.

[24] Épernon.

[25] Pierre Duval (1618-83), A Geographical Dictionary, In which are Described the most Eminent Countreys, Towns, Ports, Seas, Streights, and Rivers in the whole World. Very Useful for the Understanding of the Modern Histories (Paris, 1651; 1st English edn, 1662; 3rd edn, 1678).

[26] James II married twice; first to Anne Hyde, daughter of Edward Hyde, duke of Clarendon. Anne produced eight children, only two of whom (both female) survived infancy. Of the male children, the third, Charles (1666-1667) was created Duke of Kendal, but lived only 10 months. J. Miller, 'Anne [née Anne Hyde], duchess of York (1637-1671), first wife of James II'. ODNB.

[27] Neat/nowt/neot geld: see the English Glossary.

[28] Written in Dugdale's Baronage as, 'This Gilbert in 1. Ric. 1. in consideration of sixty marks of Silver, then paid to the King, was acquitted for himself and his heirs, from a certain Tribute called Nutegeld, which he did use to pay out of his Lands in Westmorland, and Kendall; Also, from suit to the County-Court, Hundred-Court, and Tithing. Likewise, from Aid to the Sheriff, and all his Bailiffs. And moreover obtained a Grant of Free-Forest in Westmorland, Kendale, and Furnesse in as ample manner, as William de Lancaster Son of Gilbert … enjoyed the same; and by those very Bounds: Also, that Forest which King Richard had granted to him and his Heirs in Kendale, with six pounds Land … and that whatsoever was wast in the Woods of Westmorland, and Kendale, in the time of the before-specified William de Lancaster, the Son of Gilbert, should continue so still.' Dugdale, Baronage, Book I, 421.

ejus[dem] obtend a grant durante bene placito Regis of the custody of the Hon. of Lancaster. Obijt 4^0 Hen. 3. [1219-20][29]

1. William = filius Gilberti – vulgo W de Lancasters. Anno 4^0 ad 30. Hen.3.[30] In which year he had the custo[dy] of that Honour of Lancaster to his trust S.P.[31] So his Lands descended to his next Heires, Peter de Brus & Walter de Lindesey.	Agnes de Brus	2. Roger brother | Helewise de Lan--caster maryed to Peter de Brus	Alice maryed = to Walter de Lindesay

[II.9][32]

[4.] The Barony of Kendall*

[Written in another hand, with Introduction and Notes by Machell]

It is devided into two Wards or hundereths, which is kno\wne/ by the name of Kendall Ward and Lonsdall Ward, to which there is to either of them one High Constable and to Kendall Ward 39 Petty Constables, and to Lonsdall ward 12. vizt.

Kendall Ward

Gresmire	Kentmire	Greyrigge	Beathom or Farleton
Langdall	Long Sleddall	Lamb rigge	Milthroppe Hev[er]sham
Rydall & Loughrigg	Over Staveley	Docker	& Hav[er]bracke
Ambleside	Neither Staveley	Skelsmergh & Patton	Hincaster
Troutebecke	Underbarro\w/	Strickland Roger & Kettle	Leavens
Applethwaite	Crosthw[ai]te & Lyth	Scalthwatrigg	Stainton
Undermilne becke	Witherslack Meathopp	Hay & Hutton ith' Hay	Sidgewike
Crook	Ova[33]	New Hutton	Natland
Hugill	Fawcett Forest	Old Hutton & Holmscales	Helsington
	Whinfell & Selside	Preston Patrick	Kirkland
		Preston Richard

Lonsdall Ward

Killington	Midleton	Kirkby Lonsdale	Lupton
Firbanke	Barbon	Hutton roofe	Burton
Dillicar	Mansergh	Casterton	Holme

Parish Church viz.
Gresmire chapels of ease, two.
Windermire, one church of ease called Troutbecke Church.[34]
Kirkby Kendall, Thirteene Chappells of ease.

[29] 'And in the same year, obtained a grant during good pleasure of the king, of the custody of the Honour of Lancaster. He died 4. Henry 3.'
[30] 'In the 4th to the 30th year of Henry III.' 1219-46.
[31] He died without issue.
[32] Tabulation in this page is in another hand but it was headed and annotated by Machell. The page, 35cm x 30cm, forms a large folded sheet inserted into the volume vertically and read crossways. The text then continues to II.11.
[33] Ulpha.
[34] MS: 'Windermire, one church of ease called Troutbecke Church. Windermire, one church of ease called Troutbecke Church.'

Heversham, one church of ease called Crosthwaite Church.
Beathome, one church of ease called Wither[slack] church which church was given by Doctor Borrike[35] Deane of Pauls and consecrated by Bish\ope /~~Phipps~~ Wilkins late bishop of Chester in the yeare 167[?][36] – ask Mr Dixon.[37]
Burton chapel, none.

{Markett Townes}
As for the towne of Kirkby Kendall, it is the Eminent towne of this Barrony, both for resort of people as alsoe for trade, the manufacture whereof (which is the main cause) is a sort of woollen cloth commonly called and knowne by the name of Kendall Cottons,[38] by which the whole Parrish hath beene formerly imployed with makeinge thereof. And now of late the ingenuitie of the people hath sett up and found out a trade of makeinge a sort of stuffes which is called Kendall druggetts, which brings in money, very great store, to which is added to trade of Knitinge of Gerses[39] stockins which at this time doth keepe a great many children at worke†.

Kirkby Kendale – 2 fairs in the yeare.
Ambleside – 2 fairs in the yeare.
Burton – 2 fairs in the yeare.
Kirkby Lonsdall – 2 fairs in the yeare.
Milthroppe \ noe Markett / onely one faire which is kept upon the first day of May constantly.

[Machell's Notes: II.9]
*{vid. MS. T.M. part 5. p.11[a]. 13[b]. 23[a]. 37.}
†{p. 71.}

[II.10B]

[Rivers and Bridges in Kendal Barony]
You have in this Barrony two very fine large and wholesome Rivers which are called Kent & Loyne. And as for Kent it derives its name for Kent meare (of which I shall let you know hereafter). It hath two other smale rivers which cums into it about a mile above Kendal aforesaid, vizt. Mint and Spritt. And in the river of Spritt there are very great water fall which is called Garnett watter fall, by which the people doth commonly take notice when as sounds thereof is heard downe wards, that towards Kendall, they \ know / that it will be faire weather.

And in Kent, beneath Kendall about three myles, there is another such water fale which is called the \ force / and when as the sound thereof is heard topwards then they expect to […][40]
[It takes] it name from the place of it[s] spring until it coms into the sea which is below Milthropp. Upon which river stands
A. eleaven corne milns, vizt: at Burneshead two; at Kendall two; at Helsington Laths two; at Hawes one; at Lakerige two; and Force two.

[35] Witherslack's original church (St Mary's) was destroyed in the Civil Wars. In his will, John Barwick (dean of St Paul's, London, died 1664) left money to provide a burial place in Witherslack, the village of his birth, as a means of avoiding difficulties when funeral corteges were obliged to cross the estuary to the mother church in Beetham. The new church (a chapel of ease to Beetham) was consecrated in 1671. Hyde & Pevsner, 696. N&BI, 232.
[36] John Wilkins, bishop of Chester, 1668-72. See J. Henry, 'Wilkins, John (1614-1672), theologian and natural philosopher'. ODNB.
[37] Presumably this is Thomas Dixon, see above, II.1.
[38] That is, woollens.
[39] 'Gersey' or jersey or jarnsey: Wool which has been combed and is ready for spinning, used especially in reference to the knitting of stockings and other worsted articles. OED.
[40] A repair in the MS here has resulted in 13cm of largely illegible text.

[B.] And over the said river is 9 bridges. Vizt. […][41] Barly Brigge,[42] Boulston Brigge, Burneshead Brigge, Stramondgate Brigge, Neither Brigg,[43] Millne brigge,[44] Hawes Brigg, Fforce Brigge[45] and Leavenes brigge.

And for the river Loyne it hath its beginning or spring from a place in the bottome of Westm'land called Birkbeck fells. The towne of Kirkby Lonsdall stands upon it and Lancaster; at which place or there abouts it goes into the sea. And over it is 7 briggs, vizt. Streight brigge, High Loynes brigge, Firbanck brigge, Low Loynes brigg, Murthwate brigge, Kirkby brigge & Lancaster brigge; but Lancaster brigg is within said county of Lancaster.

[II.10C][46]

{Kendall Ward}

Manner houses	Demesnes	Parkes & Forrests
Kentmire	one	one
Staveley	one	one
	Troutbecke parke
Rydall hall	one
Conswicke	one	one
	Witherslacke parke
Syzer	one	one
	Brigstere parke
	Lakerigge parke
	Natland parke
Leavens	one	one
Forrest	one	one forrest
Burneshead	one	one parke called Cowhunhead
Skelsmergh	one	one
Grayrigge	one	one forrest
Docker Demesne	one parke
Lambe rige	Parke onely
Preston	one
Bethome Hall	one

{Loansdal Ward}

Manner houses	Demesnes	Parkes & Forrests
Killinton Hall	one	one
	Dillicar Parke
Midleton Hall	one	one
Casterton	one
Burton	–	–
	Holme Parke

{Halls}
Bigins Hall, Underly Hall, Ambleside Hall, Calgarth Hall, and Crooke Hall.

[People]
Wee looke upon these to be Anciently[47] of good family in this barony. Vizt. Midleton of Midleton, Layburne of Skelsmergh, Strickland of Sizer, Gilpin of Kentmire – which is now gone out of the name. Bellingham of Forrest, Phillipson of Calgarth, Brathwaite of Burneshead.

[41] Here is one illegible crossed-through word.
[42] Barley Bridge at Staveley.
[43] Nether Bridge.
[44] Now, Miller Bridge.
[45] Force Bridge, Sedgwick.
[46] This page is in the same hand as that in the previous page.
[47] This word is unclear.

The Commonaltie of this barony is a people very well bred and goes very hansome and decently in their apparel; brings up their children very well in soe much that very many of them is fit for the universitie before the[y] leave schoole.

[Meres]
This Barrony of Kendall of ours have fouer meares or standing waters. Vizt. Winder-Meare, in which is a fish which is called Chares which is said there is not the like of them in England; this watter or meare is in length seaven miles or there abouts and about a mile broad; Which said watter hath beene of late frozen over soe strongly that the inhabitants have led timber over it with draughts of eight beast a peece in.[48]

[II.10D]
There [is also] Kentmire meare or watter which has very great store of trouts in it; alsoe Langdall watter & Gresmire watter. In the Barrony about: Langdale, Loughrigge, Ambleside, Troutebecke, Ridall; and there about is mount[ains], in which places the[y] keepe very many sheepe. We have in and about Kendall good store of arable grounds, and in Lonsdale ward there is more; for the most there is pasture and arable; they breede there very good cattell.

[Beacons]
{For Beacons wee have onely three; that [is] Whinfell, Kendall & Fareleton. Wee \ have / some salt made with us at a place, Meathopp.}[49]

[5. Notes on Baronial Families]

N.B. Ivo Talebose held lands in Norfolk. Tempus Conquest Williel[mus] Talebose [held lands] in Lincoleshire.
Azeline uxor Tailgebosch[50] in Boching hamshire.
Johannes Tailebois witness to a deed sans date of Will[iam] Mauchael of Crackenthorp; testis item Robertus, fol. Copsie.[51]

È MS Cumberland part 1, p.19, §2.
William de Lancaster was a great Baron: & a great commander under King Henry the 2nd in the wars against David King of Scots, & Earle Henry his son in Cumberland & the parts thereabouts; And helped the recover[y] the Countyes of Northumberland & Cumberland from the Scots which King Stephen had given them.

See in the pedigree of the Barrons of Brough on the Sands in Cumberland – tis said that Richard de Morvil, a 2 brother, maryed the daughter of William de Lancaster proxima 16. Henry 2. [1169-1170]. If this was Helewisia, Reyn-feyd maryed her a widow when she was at least 55 years of aige – Query ergo if he had not 2 daughter. Hew Morvil, nephew of this Richard, maryed one Helewish, with whom he had Kirkoswald & Lastrigby – But she is sirnam'd de Stutevil. Se the pedigree of Stut.[52]

[II.15][53]
That Barony of Kendal was given to (a.)[54] Ivan Tayleboys Earle of Anjou (by William the Conq.) who was the 1t Baron of Kendall ~~which~~ I read of; which Ivo~~n~~ had isue (b.) Eldred, who had isue Ketellus, to whome William Meschens gave (for services) Kelton-Salter, Workinton & Salterby, not long after the Conquest; which were ~~as I take it~~ in the Barony of Eggermont or Cowpland in Cumberland. And William the son of Gilbert de Lancaster who was (c.) lineally descended (i.e. by the mothers side)

[48] A team of eight oxen.
[49] Whinfell is in the Barony of Westmorland; for a fuller list of beacons see Machell's Preface, II.454.
[50] MS: 'Ta~~lebois~~ilgebosch.'
[51] 'Witnessed in the same way by Robertus in the book of Copsie.'
[52] Machell's notes on baronial families on II.10D are in his own hand; the rest of the page is in another hand, the owner of which appears to be the informant who provided answers to Machell's queries.
[53] Also numbered p.11.
[54] Machell's own numbering system for notes: see 'Machell's Notes' at the foot of this page.

from this Ivo Taleboys, held the said barony in the 11 year (d.) of Henry son of King John (i.e. Henry the 3[d]) [1226-1227], att which time there was som difference betwixt him & Robert de Veteripont Lord of Honour of Appleby & Baron of Westmorland, about sute of court att \ the County Court / Apleby, which \ William / de Lancaster Baron of Kendal denyed to pay; but ~~they aggred upon~~ an \ aggrement was made / betwixt them at Apleby in (e.) Quindensis S[ti] Hillary;[55] wherby the said William stood oblieged to doe sute &c. in the County Court of Robert de Veteripont, by himselfe or his stuard*.
Martin Patishill, John de Sauul,[56] Will de Insuela, Richard Duckett: Justitiarijs (intelligo itinerantibus enim 4[r] fore solebant.)[57]

This William had a daughter & heire whose name was Helwisia, maryed to Gilbert fils Reynfed some years before this, Sc. anno 8[0]. regni Johannis† [1206-1207]; and was (as is expressed in an Evidence dated die Sancti Hillaris, undecimo Hen. 1. (pro 3[1] procul dub[i]o na[m] eadem est carta ni fallor)[58] the son of Gilbert, the son of Roger, the son of Kenefrid (Kenefrid di filus). But not withstanding this heiress, I finde one William de Lancaster descended possibly of an uncle to this William, possesed of the Barony of Kendal in the reign of (g.) King Ed. 1. \ Hen. 3: the same man may be, / as appears out of the Booke of Knights Foes in Westmorland mentioning allso Roger de Lancaster de Baronia de Kendal, & Walter de Lancaster de eadem;[59] the particular whereof I shall here insert because it shows planely how & by whome the Knights foes in this county were held & how many of them.
And thus, it is Walterus de Strickland & Robertus de Hellebeck: collectores reditus computati de auxillio assiso, et collectione, in hac comitatu Reddunt Computum &c.[60] They give an account of 8 markes for 4 foes, of John de Veteripont, for his Barony of Westmorland (this was in the second place) & of 4 markes of 2 foes of William de Lancaster for his Barony of Kendall. And of 2 markes of one foe of Ralph de Aincourt, and this must be all the same, William injoying his lands during his life tho Helwisia was his daughter & heire ‡.

[Machell's Notes: II.15]

{(a.) 2 Lib carta MS penes Comit Penb.}[61]
{(b.) MS Liber Antiquit. Cumberland: c.d.e.f.}[62]
(g.) x é inquisition post mortem Willielmi de Lancaster Talber fits Reyfeyd} {! x}
*{It must be in the reign of Hen. 3. for John de Veteripont dyed about the 26. of Hen. 3.}
†{See Sir Daniels book 57. MS A, & Dug[dale's] Baronagium. Will. 3. de Lancaster in lib. Feodum militum in scaccario sub custod. Rememoratoris Regis.}[63]
‡ {Inde forsan distinctio feodum}[64]

{Ivo Taleboys=
Eldred ~~Tal~~. =
Ketellus ~~Taleboys~~}
{Ketefridus = ?
Rogerus = ?
Gilbertus =
Willelmus de Lancaster vixit temp Hen. filis Joh. sc. 3[1]
= Helwisia m. to Gilbert fits Reynsed 8[0] Johanis}

[55] 'In the fifteen days after St Hilary's Day'. St Hilary's Feast-day is held on the Sunday nearest to the 13 January each year.
[56] Unclear word.
[57] 'Justiciaries (I assume itinerant, as there were four of them).' Machell includes an unclear Latin word in this phrase.
[58] '(As is expressed in an evidence dated St Hilary's Day, 11. Henry I. ([erroneously] for III.): 13 Jan. 1226-27, beyond doubt, for it is the same document, unless I am mistaken).'
[59] 'of the same'.
[60] 'Collectors of the revenue calculated for aid of the assizes, and collection in this county.'
[61] 'See the 'Book of Deeds' in the custody of the Countess of Pembroke'.
[62] 'See a manuscript, Book of Antiquities in Cumberland, c, d, e, f'.
[63] 'In the Book of Knights' Fees in the Exchequer in the custody of the King's Remembrancer.'
[64] 'Hence, perhaps, the distinction of the fees.'

{See more of the name of Tayleboys pag.7, part 5æ MS Westmorland.}[65]

[I.171]

Thomas Taylboys of Hurworth, his seale: had Westlaton by deed of Alice Blount the daughter of Warrin de Wassington, 5. Richard 2nd [1381-82], which I thinke came to the \ Wil. / Threlk. of Mel. \ Esq. / about the 16. of Henry 6. [1437-38], who conveyd them to Rookeby of Northum[berland] Esq.

[II.16]

And Patrick the son of Thomas de Baronia de Kendall {i.e. Patricius de Cullewen qui vixit temp Henry 3. & Ed. 1.}. And 4s for the 10th part & 20th part of one foe of Roger de Lancaster de eadem. And of 16d &c.*. (May be som lands about Midleton) For his grandfather Gospatric son of Orms changed Midleton in Loansdal, with which William de Lancaster, for Workington in Cumberland; & tis not unlikely that he had other lands in the Barony of Kendal. Whence it appeared that in the Bottom or Barony of Westmorland are conteined 4 Knights foes. In the Barony of Kendal in all 3 with 18, 20th parts; and one tenth of a Knights foe†. But of these, 2 foes only ~~entre~~ [in the] \ hands of the / Barony; the rest parcelled out in little cantons as hath bin showne. And that wee may the better understand the quantity of these estates it may here be not amisse to reminde you of the meaning of a Knight foe (wich is so much), vide in progress notes in Spelmans Glossarie,[66] & Blounts Law Dictionarie.[67]

[Machell's Notes: II.16]

*vide pag.23. MS Antiq. West. Part 5.
†Inde forsan distinctio feodum Marquess Richmo[n]d.[68]
The [blank] came to the Roses concerneing whom see MS. Cumb. Part 2. p.3.
Par[r] of Kendal. See the pedigrees.[69]

Lancashire Road

1. Natland
2. Crosscrake S. & by E.
3. Hutton
4. Burton. Preston church in Burton
5. Kirkby Loansdell
6. Beathom
7. Dallan Tower Mr Bankes at Kirklands
8. H[e]v[er]sham.
9. Leavins
10. Sisars

Cockermouth Road

1. Burnashed & Hall
2. Staveley church
3. Ings church.

Kentmere

Penrith Road

1. Selsside
2. Skelsmire & Hall

Selside Hall
Sleddal
Kentmer
Ambleside
Gresmere

3. Windermer

Winstar Chap.

[65] This note appears on MS.I.171.
[66] Henry Spelman, Glossarium Archaiologicum (1626, completed by William Dugdale 1664). For 'fee' or 'foe', see the English Glossary.
[67] Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexikon, A Law-Dictionary and Glossary: Interpreting Such Difficult and Obscure Words and Terms, as are Found Either in Our Common Or Statute, Ancient Or Modern, Laws. With References to the Several Statutes, Records, Registers, Charters, Ancient Deeds, Manuscripts, and Law-books, Wherein the Words and Terms are Used (1670).
[68] 'Hence perhaps the distinction of the fees, the Marquess fee and the Richmond fee.'
[69] On MS.V.125-26.

[II.17] [70]

6. Parish of Kendal [Things of Note]

Kendal from Kent dirives its name,
And Kent from Kentmere springing fountain came.
{Poet Brathwat} [71]

It hath on the E. \ Orton, / Sedb., & Kirkby. S. {Kirkby, Burton, Heversham; W. Heverham & Windermer; N. Windermer & Gresmer.}

[Church]
Payes – Tenths. IX li od money.[72] Query of Synodals.
It is appropriated to Trin[ity] Colledge in Cam[bridge] by exchange of colledge lands as tis saied? Which K. H. 8. And they have all the advowsons of the vicar.

{An old Rithme}
{Henricus Octavus
Tooke more than he gave us.} [73]

There are in the precincts of the mother church, the town of Kendal, ~~which payes~~ the tenancy whereof is distributed amongst diverse Lords: The Queens – Graham – \ Mr / Topham of Aglethorp near Bolton Castle in Yorkshire. {Ephraim Sandford, Jack Aglionby} They pay no fines in Kendal but only their annual rents calld the Lords Rent.

{Things of Note}
1. Dockeray Hall – Cald Stean \ in the midst of the town instead of a cross.[74] / An house near it in the West Row; now converted to a dwelling house called St Anns ~~Ha~~ Chapple; & which by its windows & fabric seems to have bin one. {Trad[ition} Mr Shepherd.} & Another stood at the Bank head upon an Hill call'd Chaple hill – pulld down by the now Richard Weshtor who bought the Close – q. of Stephen Rowlandson.}

The hospital & library – Allhallow Chap. now converted to a dwelling.

Castle How Hill – a mount on the ~~edge~~ \ west side /of a square fort, as it should seem by the bulworkes \ & trench / which yet do appeare upon the north of the Bowling Fell. \ I can see no signes of a Roman forte.

---

[70] A note-page on which Machell has written his 'music' expenses. 'Music: 1s expend. 1s 6d; more 6d; more 10s.'
[71] Richard Brathwaite of Burneside (1587/8-1673): see Part 2, Ch.3i, Burneside, II.93; see also Part 2, Ch.9, Windermere, II.319, II.339.
[72] Od[d] money: possibly a surplus over a definite sum of money: additional, extra; e.g. from 1657, in Misc. Sc. Hist. Soc. VII. 14, '3 pund sterlinge and som od munie'. OED.
[73] Quoted by Adam Fox as an example of a 17th-century historical aide memoire: Fox, Oral and Literate Culture in England, 1500-1700 (Oxford, 2000), 26. The rhyme is said to have been coined at Eton College after an exchange of lands during the Reformation, during which Eton narrowly escaped being closed down but in return lost St James's Priory in London to Henry VIII: see the Aylesbury News, 19 July 1856; see also M.R. James, Eton and the King's Recollections, mostly trivial, 1875-1925 (Hastings, 2017), Ch.24. In 1858 James Payn referred to it as 'a monkish couplet' when discussing the Reformation and the monks of Furness Abbey: James Payn, Furness Abbey and its Neighbourhood (Windermere and London, 1858), 23.
[74] Cald Stean: 'The Town's Cross, or Market Cross, stood opposite the covered market, an obstruction in the street. There remains a remnant of it in a stone at the corner, vulgarly called "Cold Stone", where the charters [etc.] were usually proclaimed. Cold stone is a corruption of "call stone"; an appendage common to most ancient towns; all public matters were "called" there, prior to the institution of "bellman".' See Nicholson, Annals of Kendal, 127.

{It might be a battery against the Castle since Gunns were invented – & there were pieces of Musket Barrell found therein.[75] They have hills somthing like this at K[irkby Lons]dal & Setber (which they say were made against Scottish invasions) called Castlehows to[o]. But no signe any castles there. They could not wall the town, rather the}[76]

The Castle & Castle Parkes, of which the upper & nether graveships are a part, are in the proper præcincts of the mother church.

Familyes, Kendal: People all freeholds.

Strickland Gate		119
Kendal Highgate		090
Stramongate		091 {in all 300}
Kirkland	about	85 Blindbeck – mentiond in Kirkland.
Kendal Parke at Upper Grave		03
Nethergrave		04
Helsington W. & b[y] S.1m.		31
New Hutton E. & by S.1m ½.		26}
Old Hutton E. & by S. 2m.		38}as Hutton Chaple
Hutton ith Hay 1m. E.		35}

[In Nature]
{Bleaberryes which [they] call here Bilberryes. Raspberryes common. Curranberryes in gardens.[77]
Crone Berryes browne, as big as strawberryes.}[78]
Trout – Taken with angle by Mr George Sedgewick? 16?
Betwixt Watercrooke & the bridge, an ell long.
Lizards – as long as a Tob[acco]-pipe – black?

[II.19][79]

[Notes on Kendal Parishes]

In the Barony of Kendal are 6 parishes, besides Kirkby Loansdale which I take to be in the Barony allso? {It is.} Sc.
V. 1. Kendal (commonly called Kirkby Kendall).[80]
R. 2. Windermere (which pay a pension to the vicar of Kendal having been chapels olim). I have it but?
R. 3. Gresmer. I have it but q. Ambleside.
V. 4. Kirkby Loansdale. Slender. View the ch[urch].
V. 5. Burton. Done. I have it. I have viewd.
V. 6. Bethome.
V. 7. Heversham.
? Query: if Warton Church in Kendale – mention'd inter Recorda: {see my MS. VI. p.70}
[Answer.] It is in Lancashire, 10m. from Kendal (only mistaken to be in Kendal because it belongs to the Barony of Kendal as I suppose).
{They come to Kendal to chose Crowner[81] for that side the fell.}

[Notes on Kendal Church]

{When the feast or wake kept [?]}

[75] See II.369C.
[76] The rest of this sentence (at the page edge) has perished.
[77] Possibly, the currant bush, as in a 1649 'Survey of the Manor of Wimbledon': 'The borders of which grass plots are coran trees'. OED.
[78] Possibly, the croneberry (cranberry) bush: a dwarf shrub, Vaccinium Oxycoccos, a native of Britain. OED.
[79] Also numbered p.13.
[80] V. = Vicarage; R. = Rectory.
[81] Coroner.

The church is dedicate to [Blank][82] & is commonly known by the name of Kendal Church from the towne adjoining; but the houses thereaboute separated by Blind Beck (a little rivulet which runs but sometimes) ~~and~~ are of a distinct jurisdiction. By whome the church was founded I have not yet learn'd, but they say there was a chaple before the church was built [which] stood N. West from the church ~~& distant from it~~ near the head of Well Sike in Kirkland; allso from which ~~chaple~~ \ place / there is a lane which leades to the great street called Cappelane from the said Cappela.\ But this, I take it, has rather bin the / Chappel of som Religious House.
{No. Som private chaple for mi[…],[83] this being a P[arish] church.}

The church is very spaciouse, having 2 Iles on each side the body thereof & such like in the ~~Quire~~, \ Chancel / where they obteine the name Quires.[84] And the utmost on the south side is called Lord Parrs, the inner on the same, Strickland; the utmost on the north side, Bellinghams, & the inner on the same is called \ the / Alldermans \ Quire / because the Aldermen satt there \ as they do yet, / before it ~~was made~~ \ became / a Maior Towne.[85] \ Monuments, see in Dugdalls Visit[ation] 1664.[86] / The Patrone hereof is Trinity Coll. In Cambridge, to which place it is impropriate, & they present a vicar to it.[87]

{The vicaridge house is within 10 yards of [the] church, adjoyneing the church yard wall on the S. side near the S.W. corner of the church.}
{The school house stands a little without the N. side wall of the church yard near the N.W. corner of the church.}
{Church monuments and armes: see in my bundell.}[88]

[II.14]

The rus[h]bearing is on St James day;[89] yet some thinke it is called Trinity Ch[urch.]
In Kirkland in K[endal], dead mens bones [at] a place cald St Maryes; covered with the rubbish.

[II.19]

Kendal Parish: Chap[els] of Ease[90]
~~The par~~ It has 13 Chaples of Ease belonging to it: Sc.
1. Natland distant about a mile \ S. & by East.[91] / }
2. Crosscrake – about two S.E. & by East. } with both in a row
3. Hutton Caple – about 2 & ½ \ E. / inclineing to the S. /
IIII. Underbarrow – about 2 miles & ½ \ W. /
V. Crook Chaple 3 miles distant \ W. /
VI. Staveley 4 miles distant \ N.W. /
VII. Inges-Chaple 5 miles distant \ N.W. /

[II.20]

VIII. Kentmire Chaple – 7 miles distant \ N. West & by N.}
VIIII. Sleddal Chaple 7 miles distant? \ N. / {Mr Farrington?}[92]

---

[82] Kendal parish church is dedicated to the Holy Trinity.
[83] This word has perished.
[84] Kendal Church is one of the broadest in England, having five aisles. It is the largest church in Cumbria: Hyde & Pevsner, 428.
[85] Kendal was granted a mayor in 1636, see https://www.kendaltowncouncil.gov.uk/heritage.
[86] See Joseph Foster, Pedigrees recorded at the Heralds' Visitations of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmorland made by Richard St George, Norroy, King of Arms in 1615, and by William Dugdale, Norroy, King of Arms in 1666 (Carlisle and Kendal, 1891).
[87] For another version of this comment, see II.17, above.
[88] See in Part 2, Ch.2, Kendal Town.
[89] 25 July.
[90] For a history of the Kendal chapelries, see John Hodgkinson. The Greater Parish of Kendal, 1553-2002 during the patronage of Trinity College Cambridge (Kendal, 2002), Ch.4.
[91] MS: '\ (~~X) ab ecclesia S. & by East~~ /.'
[92] 'Mr Farrington' was one of Machell's informants; In Machell's Itinerary (Part 2, Ch.10, II.389) Farrington was the school-master at Kendal; in his chapter on Burneside chapelry (Part 2, Ch.3i, II.91) Farrington was the curate of Burneside chapel.

X. Burniside 2 miles (½) North-West? \ by North. /
XI. Skelsmir~~e~~ 3 miles distant N.\ St Johns Chapel whereby Milbeck springs, now demolished. /
XII. Grarig Chapple 4 miles distant \ N.E. / {25 l[ong], 7 broad}.[93]
~~XII~~ (Preston Chaple \ in Burton / about 4 & ½ \ S. / East).
XIII. ~~Delaker~~ \ Selside / Chap. 3 miles distant \ N.E. from Kendal 5.[94]
XIV. Winster Ch. VIIIm. ab Ecclesia W.

Concerning all which we shall speake in their proper places.
{Q. Mr Farrington nos 9. & 12.} (Query: if one at Hutton roof, 7m. from Kendal near K. Loansd.}

[Lordships]

Sc. Bounde in this parish of Kendal are 14 Lordships.
1. Kirkland by Kendal \ so called / has a court kept once in the year, at a common hal or courthouse where the tenants doe suit & service & are not finable at the death of the Lord. They belong to Bellingham of Leavins \ Col. Ja. Graham; 4^{r} Baronny, the Queen ¾; / but I cannot finde that there is any demaisne or manner house. The soyle is a limestone but there is no Common belonging to the place.

[Places remarkable]

1. Abbats Hall, which formerly belongd the Phillipsons of Crooke \ now to Ch. Wilson, tanner, & has anciently bin a place for ~~som Abbots~~ residence \ of som monks; / query? whether the Abat of Shap \ or York / had any thing to do here.
2. The Anckerress \ N. W. a bow shot / where the Well Sike springes \ which runs down Kirkland / and semes by its name to have bin a place of Ancorites.
3. A Courthouse, about 8 score 2 stone casts N.
[4.] The Town Jaol, ~~where they kept thieves debter & vagabonds & till they can conveniently be removed to Apleby~~, is the Court Lofts, the Town Court over against it, by Cald Stean in the heart[95] of the T[owne].

[Villages, gentlemen's houses and manors]

Brigstear. This place being out of the Maiors Liberty is much resorted to by tradesmen that are not free of the Towne: who therefore give good rents for their house & set up here.

Blindbeck which divides it from the T[own], is remarkable in this: that it never runns in a shower though the raine falls 3 day. But after it ceaseth, the current bursts out like a torrent & continues sometimes 2 or 3 d[ays] ~~raines~~ \ according to the continuance of the Ranes; & is an infallible prognostication to the inhabitants, when its begin to flow, of fair weather ensuing.[96]

{Manners}
1. Kirkland
2. Burnised
3. Kentmere
4. Crooke
5. Grarig: Dugd. & F.[97]
6. Preston?
7. Sisers

[93] Probably, paces.
[94] The distance appears to be 3 miles, as the numeral '3' on the same line overwrites the numeral '5'.
[95] Machell has placed a symbol here, shaped like a heart.
[96] Machell breaks off his description of the fourteen Lordships here, returning to it later in the narrative.
[97] Machell is referring to two of his sources: 1. Dugdale, probably Baronagium; and 2. a manuscript of an Inquisition (MS.TM 4) in his family collection. See Machell's Notes, on II.357.

Gentlemans House:
1. Helston Leathes[98]
2. Crooke[99]
4. Tranthwate
5. Staveley &
6. Cunswick
7. Kentmere
8. Burnished
9. Skelsmegh hall
10. Grarig
11. Preston
12. Spittle H.
13. Docker H.
14. Whitehal }
15. Blackhal } in Kendal
16. Sleddal Hall by Kendal att Stramongate Bridge
17. Forest Hal
18. Halling Hall
Selside Hall

[II.22][100]

[7. Barony of Kendal: Introductory Narrative]

Locorum.[101] Virorum.[102]

The more southerly part of Westm'land is called the Barony of Kendal and vulgarly the Barony only. It lies betwene the river of Lone or Leün & the lake \ Water / of Windermere; fertill enough in the Bottoms & valleys; but elswhere full of rocky mountanes which yet afford good pasture for sheep; but has noe ~~any~~ mines\ in it / that I hear of.

It takes its name, sayes the learned Camden, from the River Kan quasi Vallis ad Kanum;[103] which I could willingly assent to ~~him in~~ if \ being this countryman[104] / I did not know the name of that river to be Kent & the place \ calld / Kentmere ~~from~~ \ out of / which it ~~descendeth~~ \ cometh / whence the Bottom groundes on each side the river is called Kent-dale, & for smoothness, Ken-dale. I could indeed have wished it otherwise, for the sake of Concangij – an old Brittish people whom he sought long after and at first placed here;[105] ~~a notion that author was once~~ \ being very fond of \ the notion at first / & would have bin more so, had he discovered those noble remains of \ a / Romane Station which I ~~found~~ \ met with / at Water Crooke, & yet want a name for ~~since he has thought for the place then elsewhere, Sc. 1~~[t] \ But afterwards he translated them ~~to the Cangii~~ hence / into Somersetshire by Ochy-hole, where several townes \ seem to / carry in them the name of that people as Canings, Cannington, Cangton, Winicanton &c.

Haulton. And then of Chesher, somewhere about Haulton ~~by the~~ not far from the sea which lyes towards Ireland, there being a leaden inscription discover'd with CEANG upon it. But as he hath don, so I leave every man to make his conjecture whether those or this was the ancient seat of the Concangijs.

[Machell's Notes: II.22; II.357]

[98] Helsington Laithes.
[99] Machell omitted no. 3.
[100] Also numbered p.15 and arranged in three columns. For earlier drafts see I.43A, 44A, 44B, 44C: all scribbled on scraps of paper. Each draft eulogised the north, which Machell regarded as superior to the south of England.
[101] Places.
[102] People.
[103] As if 'valley sloping to Kan'. See Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 759C.
[104] 'Being a man of this county'.
[105] Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 759F.

{See the places agane – there is something of joyning with the Brigantes. But at the last he fixes them in the C[ounty].}[106]
[II.357]
I must begin the History of the Barony of Kendal from Dugdal Baronagium & my Inq. MS TM 4.
And note upon Will[iam] de Lancasters buying of Nutegeld, & \ Suit of / Court – was null & voyd & Agreed Wast' – see MS TM. 4. Kendal.
Then the note of the mariage, afixd to the following page, of the coheires &c.

[II.358]

{1. In General}

{Bounder}
The more Southerly, but more mountainous Part of the County of Westmorland,[107] is the Barony of Kendal; which is divided from the Barony of Westmorland commonly called the Bottom of Westmorland by a Ridge of Mountaines \ as heaven water deales / from Glenkwen Beck in the West, by Kirkstan in the head of Hartsop \ Dale / and so on South East till you com at Burrow beck; which divides them agane till it Runns into Leün, on the East Side of W. This Part is commonly calld the Barony, for Distinctions Sake from the Bottom of Westm'land; & Kendall Barony from the Castle of Kendal which is Caput Baroniæ or the Chiefe Seat there, of which all the rest may seeme to have holden*.

{What it affordes}
{Few or no mines, little corne but plenty of pasture for sheep on the m[ountains] & for cattle in the Dales! And is much inriched by the Kendal Trade which hath bin the Rise of diverse good families.}
{N[ote.] Few Roman fortif[ications] in it; only at Ambleside & Watercrooke & perhaps at Loansdale. For these mountainous parts they left to Brittanes: & only had these for little Garisons to keep the country in subjection.}

{Cap. Mess.}[108]
This Castle is situated on the East-side of the river Kent, just over against the Town of Kendall. {It is moated about with very deep Trenches & is situate on a fine round hill}[109] which stands on the West Side, having a pleasant and delightful prospect of the Town with the water & meadow, though confined with the Mountaines on the E. & W.; and was heretofore so surrounded with Trees standing in the midest of a Parke, that no part of the House but a single Turret could bee seen afar off. But now there is neither Wood nor Deere. And the very Castle is become a Ruin;[110] which has bin the seate of som noble familyes & wherein the famous Queen Katherine was born, the 6 & last [wife] of K. Henry the 8., being the daughter of Sir Thomas Par, & sister to William Marquess of Northampton – whom the said King maryed at Windsor Castle in 1543,[111] being then the Relict John Lord Latimer &c.†.

---

[106] Machell was correct in finding Camden's understanding of the Concangii faulty: see Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 759F. He placed them in Somerset (231) and then, quoting Ptolemy and Tacitus, in Cheshire (43, 611). Tacitus seems to have been the original source for Machell's query relating to Concangii involvement with the Brigantes: see Britannia tr. Holland, 611E.
[107] Here, in a rare occurrence, Machell spells the word in full as 'Westmorland'.
[108] Capitale Messuagium: chief house on an estate; mansion-house of a manor.
[109] MS: 'The castle ~~is situate~~\ stands upon a Round Hill in the midst of a Parke, ~~facing~~ & hath an easy ascent of that to which it is fronted / on the East-side of the River Kent, just over against the Town of Kendal. {~~It is moated~~ about with very deep trenches (~~an fronts to~~)}.'
[110] MS: 'having a pleasant ~~prospect but somewhat somewhat confined~~ \ and delightful prospect of the / Town of Kendal with the water & m[eadow] ~~confined both of water & meadow and of the Town~~ \ though confined with the Mountaines on the E. & W. / and was hertofore so surrounded with ~~wood~~ \ Trees / ~~It~~ standing in the midest of a Parke; that no part of the House, but a single \ Turret / could bee seen ~~for It from~~ afar off; But now [Blank] ~~But there are neither Trees nor Deere~~ \ now / But now There is neither wood nor Deere, ~~now~~ And the very Castle is become a Ruin.'
[111] MS: 'T~~his Anciently held~~ which has bin the seate of som noble familyes & wherein ~~Queen Katherine~~ \ the famous Queen Katherine was born / the 6 & last of K. Henry the 8 ~~was borne~~ being the d[aughter] of Sir Thomas Par, & sister to William Marquess of Northampton – whom the said King maryed, ~~in her viduity being wife (to John) Nevil Lord Latimer~~ at Windsor Castle in 1543.'

[Machell's Notes: II.358]

*{? See Camden in Lancashire de Furness.}
†See Speed p. 105. 6.[112] {Consider whether better here; or in the Parish of Kendal to speake of the Barons.}
{Descent. John Nevil.}[113]

[II.359B]

[Dockray Hall Coat of Arms]
In Plaster over the Hall chimney at Dokeray. The supporters are 2 Cat a Mounts.[114] The Bearing 0 if not broken of.
N[ote] There the same with Crist and Supporters neatly cut in stone, in a side wal versus orientem.[115]
It is said once to have belongd the Dockerayes whose Armes these were – after to the Swainesons; & thence to the Brathwates of Burnishead; & by vertue of a m[arriage] from them, is now in the hands of Sir John Otway*.

Figure 2.1.2. 'In Plaster over the Hall chimney' at Dockray Hall. 'R \ W / S. 1621.' II.359B.

[Machell's Notes: II.359B]

*Q. if not to the Weshtons by R \ W /S.[116]

[II.360][117]

Ad Richmond foe*
Anno reg 22 whose D[aughter] Margaret was married unto Edmund E[arl]of Richmond: who had the said Lands (which Bedford enjoyd) granted unto him by Act of Parliament. 33. Hen. 6. [1454-1455].
1. Jo Be[d]ford (son of John of Gaunt) was made E[arl] of Somerset, & had Isue John Duke of Somerset; whose d[aughter] Margaret Countess of Richmond & mother to Kg Hen. 7. held these Lands dureing his Reigne; & was wife to Staneley E[arl] of Darby.
{John of Gaunt
|
Jo[hn] Be[d]ford E[arl] of Somerset
|
Jo[hn] E[arl] of Somerset

[112] Speed, Historie.
[113] John Neville, 3rd Baron Latimer (1493-1543), married Katherine Parr as his third wife in 1534, previously having married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Edward Musgrave of Hartley and Edenhall. See Machell's scored-through text in a footnote above. See also Keith Dockray, 'Neville, John, third Baron Latimer (1493-1543), nobleman'. ODNB.
[114] Wild cats.
[115] 'In a side wall facing east.'
[116] For Sir John Otway, see Part 2, Ch.3iii, Hutton, II.87; see also Part 2, Chap.4, Beetham, II.278.
[117] Scrap of paper approx. 18½cm square added during a rebinding; damaged along the right-hand edge.

Margaret C. of Richmond}

ad Killington.	Tho. De Pickering went to Killington Hamlett &c. 3. Ed. 2. MS. A. 129 Sir Daniels.[118]
ad Windermer	St Mary Holm: 6li per Annum out of Richmond fee. To the Stuart 5li, Land Sergiant 10li, sometimes of Troutbeck fees 43s. Richmond Borwick Bowbear of Troutbeck: 3: 1: 6d.
Crooke	Simon de Gripe tenet iiij partem Hamletts de Crooke in […][119] + servicium 5s 11d ad Cornagium;[120] et Reddit per pa[s]ture 6s per Annum.[121]
Ad Marquess fee	X?[122] Phillipson of Calgarth Esq. was made Recei[ver][…][123] of the \ Rents of the / Lands granted in farme to Sir William Parr (who was made Marq. of Northampton by King Ed. 6. & had these Lands granted unto him). He was attainted 1^{0} Mariæ & dyed without Isue, save of Ann his sister & heire who was married to William Herbert E. of Penbrooke & after Earle of Huntingdon, who had onely Isue – Elizabeth maryed to Ch. Somerset 1^{t} Earle of Worcestershire w[h]ose […][124] posterity held the Castle & Parke till of late years, that was sold to Sir Frances Anderton of Lostock in Lunedal Baronet.

[Machell's Notes: II.360]

*Sir Daniel MS A.\ p. / 129 – Kg. Hen. 6. (after the death of John Duke of Bedford) gave them to John Duke of Somerset. Bring in before this my Inquisition de Kendal (MS. 5.) p.62. §1.

[II.361]

The Tenants of Great Langdale appear at the Queens Court Baron in Grasmere: And there are no Freehold Lands but som of Mr Leonard Bensons of Elterwater water which House is in Basebrowne.[125]

[II.362]

[8.] [Notes]To make out the hist[ory]of the Descent of this Barony

1. Camden – County.[126]
2. My Inq. MS Antiq. West. pt 5. John Duke of Bed[ford] held a moyity[127] of the manner of Kirkby (in Kendal not Loansdale) by the service of one Knights fee which lately belongd to Dame Philippa Sc. Duchess of Ireland, wife to Rob de Vere, E. of Ox. & Duke of Ireland, but divorced from him for lack of children.[128]

~~The other parts in severall others there mentioned. This is done in the margin.~~[129]

[II.361]

De Lancaster.

Gulielmus filius ~~Reinfridi~~ Gilberti filij Reinfridi = Helevisia ~~de Lane~~ Agnetam de Bruise
Obij[t] sine pr[ole]

[118] A manuscript belonging to Sir Daniel Fleming.
[119] The following word has perished.
[120] Cornage: see the English Glossary.
[121] 'Reddit': renders; gives back.
[122] Christopher.
[123] The paper at the margin is damaged; the unfinished date 14[…] occurs here; also, the numeral, 27.
[124] The damaged edge of the page here contains 'his son - - ton in – q. wh[at] of Sir'.
[125] This paragraph has been crossed through.
[126] This word is unclear.
[127] Moiety: a small or lesser share, portion, or quantity (see the English Glossary).
[128] Repeated below at the page foot.
[129] There is a note here in red pencil, overwritten in ink, which appears to read, 'referr ending'.

Qua ra[ti]one 3es sorores dicti Guelielmi
1. Helevesia duxit Petrum de Brus seniorem
2. Alicia duxit Gulielmum de Lindsey
3. Sarota duxit Alanum de Multon[130]

Petrus de Brus Senior, genuit Petru[m] et iiij filias
Petrus Junior obijt s[ine] p[role] {Petrus de Brus 2[us] obijt A.D 1267.}
Prima soror \ Petri / \ Margareta / duxit Robertum de Wark {Sc. Rossum}
2[a] Sc. Agnes duxit Walt Fauconbrige \ berge /
3[a] Lucia – Marmaducum de Threng.
4[a] Ladarnia – dom[inum] Joh[ann]em de Staveley alias de Bellaragum. sive Bolton*{sed de hiis, & see Camd. Brit.}[131]

[II.362]

{M[anor] de Winandermer Casterton et ½ M[anor] de K[irkby] Kendal were in Ed. 3., who gave them for Term of Life to Johanna the wife of John de Coupland. The reversion to Ingelram de Coucy E. of Bedford & Isabel his wife, the said Kings Sister, & to their heires Esc de Anno 49. Ed. 3. [1375-76]. In the 6. year of K. Hen. 6. [1427-28] ~~Lord~~ John Duke of Bedford (who was 3. Son of K. Hen. the 4[th], brother to K. Hen. 5[th], Uncle to K. Hen. 6. the whole time he was Regent) & Regent of France in the time of his Nephew, K. Hen. 6., Duke of Anjou ~~& and other Places~~}, and amongst other titles, Earle of Kendale &Vicount Beamont; held the moity of the Manner of Kirkby Kendal (not that in Loansdal) with all its app[urtences] & members, by the Service of one Knights fee. Ex. Inq. Capt. Ad Apalby Temp. H. 6. See my MS of Antiq. of Westmorland pt. 5, belonging to Dame Philippa Duchess of Ireland, wife to Rob de Vere Earle of Oxford and Duke of Ireland, from whom she was divorced for lack of children.[132]

Their other moyity was had as followeth – Sc.
1. Thomas Parr, Son & Heir of Joh. Parr deceased \ held of the King in capite / ¼ Manner of K[irby Kendal] per serv. ¼ of one Knights fee, & this sometimes belongd to Tho. Ross Knight.
2. Tho. Lumley, ward to the King, son & heir of John Lumley Knight deceased, \ held of the King in capite / the moyity of all those Lands & Tenements &c. in Kendal, which sometimes belongd to Tho. De Thyvenge, parson of the church of Bethom, 1 serv. ¼ of a Knights fee. & is parcell of the ~~fore~~ said Manner.
3. Walter Pennardine Knt. &c. John Elerkar held \ of the King in capite / the other moyity of the said Thomas Th~~o~~yvinges \ Lands / per serv. ⅛ of a Kt fee parcell of the same Manner.
4. Tho. Stapleton, ward to the Kg & son of Brian Stapleton diseasd, held \ of the K. in capite / Kentmer in Kendal, parcel of the said Manner per serv. ¼ feodi militis.[133]
5. John Lancaster Knt (? ward to the King) \ held of him in capite / Rydal in Kendale, Parcell of the said Manner per serv. ¼ feodi militis.
6. Tho. Strikland Kt. held of the aforesaid Thomas Lumley ⅓ part of a Knights fee in Helsington, Haversham, Burton, Longher, Whale, Hacthorp & Strickland-Ketilke.
(And there are no more Knights fees or parcels of Kts fees within Westm'land – but the iij Knights fees in the Bottom of W.)

---

[130] 'De Lancaster. William son of Gilbert son of Reinfrid = Helevisia de Lane Agnes de Bruise
He died without issue. For which reason three sisters of the said William: 1. Helevesia married Peter de Brus senior. 2. Alicia married William de Lindsey. 3. Sarota married Alan de Multon.'

[131] 'Peter de Brus the Elder, was father to Peter and four daughters. Peter the Younger died without issue {Peter de Brus the Second died A.D 1267.} The first sister \ of Peter / \ Margareta / married Robert de Wark {Sc. Rossus}. The second, that is Agnes, married Walter Fauconbrige \ berge /. The third, Lucia – Marmaduke de Threng. The fourth, Ladarnia – Lord John de Staveley alias de Bellaragum. or Bolton {but of these, see Camden's. Britannia}.'

[132] MS: 'See my MS of Antiq. of Westmorland pt 5 ~~which tells us also that it~~ lately ~~belongd~~ belonging to Dame Philippa Duchess of Ireland, ~~who was~~ wife to Rob de Vere Earle of Oxford and Duke of Ireland, from \ whom / she was divorced for lack of ~~Isu~~ children.'

[133] 'Knight's Fee.'

This was in the Time of H. 6. who (after the Death of John Duke of Bedford) gave Bedfords moyity to John Duke of Somerset, Anno Regni Ejus 22^0 [1443-44];[134] who Daughter Margaret being maryed to Edmund Earle of Richmond, he had the said Lands leised upon him by Act of Parl[iament]. & the said Margaret Countess of Richmond, daughter of Jo[hanna] Duchess of Somerset (son of John Bedford,[135] son of John of Gaunt) & mother to Kg H. 7. held the said Lands dureing his Reigne; whence they came to be called R[ichmond] fees.

II.365[136]

Out of a copy of an Inq[uisition] penes Dom[inum] Danielem Fleming militem. Ex Bundello Escheatore de Anno 49. Ed. 3. No. 29.
Die Sab[bati] prox[imo] post festum Corp[oris] Xt. Joh[ann]e Savill Escheatore – per Sacramentum Thomæ de Redeman, Rogeri de Levens, Rolandi de Thornburg. Joh[ann]is de Chambre de Kendal, Rob[er]t[i] de Docura. Rich[ard]i Carous Will[ielm]i Dannis Rich[ard]i Walker Will[ielm]i de Gilpin, Rogeri de Strickland, Henrici de Griype et Joh[ann]is de Strickland.[137]

{Manerium de Wynandermer valet 144 li.}
{Johanna, quæ f[uit] uxor Joh[ann]is de Coupeland} tenuit ad terminum vitæ suæ in concessione Domini Regis[138] […] cum membris et pertine[n]tys suis – Sc. Hamletta (a) de Langden! Loughrigge Grismer, Hamelside Troutbeck Applethwate Crosthwate, Strickland Kett. (b) et Hoton (c); et {M[anerium] de Casterton, m[anerium] de Ki[r]kby in Kendal} cum pertinentys. Ac etiam medietatem cum pertinent[ijs]. Revertione inde (post mortem prædictæ Johannæ) Domino Ingelramo de Coucy Comiti Bedfordiæ et Isabellæ uxori ejus, fil[io] Dicti Domini Regis et heredibus &c.[139]

{a. ergo those are but hamlets, & members of the manner of Winandermer.
b. forsan Ketell.
c. Not Hoton Roof, for that is below.}
{N.B.} Extenta foedorum militum quae fuit uxor[is] Joh[ann]is de Coupland defunct[i] ad Terminum vitæ. Iidem Juratores dicunt sup[er] sacramentum suum Quod –[140]

{Manerium de Bethom}
Radulphus de Bethom […] Tenuit de eadem Johanna manerium de Bethome cum pertinentijs per homagium et fidelitatem et servicium, 32s per Annum, ut de manerio suo de Kirkeby in Kendal.[141] & (T.M.) Note she had but ½ of the said manor of which these & the rest are members.

{Nicholas de Haverington} {Manerium de Farleton}
Tenuit de Rad[ulph]o de Bethome manerium de Farleton &c. per Homagium et fidelitatem et [134] MS: 'This was in the Time of H. 6. ~~(& the copy out of which I tooke this Inq. was examind in the Enq. – but I have neglected the particular dates~~) who (after the Death of John Duke of Bedford) gave Bedfords moyity to John Duke of Somerset Anno Regni Ejus 22^0.'

[135] Part of this word is blotted; its transcription is unsafe.
[136] A note in William Nicolson's hand at the top of II.363 urges the reader to begin the Inquisition at II.365.
[137] 'Out of a copy of an Inq[uisition] in the possession of Lord Daniel Fleming Knight. From an Escheator's bundle of the year 49. Edward 3. no. 29: On the Saturday next after the feast of Corpus Christi, John Savill being Escheator – on the oath of Thomas de Redeman, Roger de Levens, Roland de Thornburg, John de Chambre de Kendal, Robert de Docwra, Richard Carous, William Dannis, Richard Walker, William de Gilpin, Roger de Strickland, Henry de Griype and John de Strickland.' Escheator: see the English Glossary.
[138] The following word is too blotted to be legible.
[139] '{The Manor of Windermere is worth £144}{Johanna, who was wife of John de Coupeland} held at the end of her life by grant of the Lord King with their parts and appurtenances – Sc. the Hamlets (a) of Langden (!) Loughrigge Grismer, Hamelside Troutbeck Appelthwaite Crosthwaite, Strickland Kett. (b) also Hoton (c) also {the Manor of Casterton, manor of Ki[r]kby in Kendal} with their appurtenances. And also a moiety with appurtenances by reversion thence (after the death of the aforesaid Johanna) to Lord Ingelramus de Coucy, Earl of Bedford, with Isabella his wife, son of the said Lord King, and to his heirs etc.'
[140] '{N.B.} Value of the knights' fees which belonged to the wife of John of Coupland deceased at the end of her life. The same jurors say on their oath that [blank].'
[141] '{Manor of Bethom} Radulph of Bethom [...] He held of the same Johanna the manor of Bethom with its appurtenances by homage, loyalty and service at 32s a year, like his manor of Kirkby in Kendal.'

servicium, ij merc. per Annum; ut de manerio suo de Bethome et Idem Radulphus ultra de Eadem Johanna [blank]? per Idem Servicium.[142]

{Will[ielm]us Windesore}
Tenuit de prædicta Joh[ann]a {manerium de Haversham Morland et Grarigge}? Per homagium et fidelitatem et per servicium, 13s 4d per annum ut de manerio suo prædicto de Kirkby-Kendal.[143]

{Mattheus de Redman} {manerium de Levens et Lupton}
Tenuit de prædicta Joh[ann]a (per hom[agium] et f[idelitatem] et ser[vicium] ij merc) ut de manerio suo prædicto.[144]

{Tho: Adamson} {Tenementa in Midleton}
Tenuit diversa Tenementa in Midleton de prædicta Joh[ann]a per h[omagium] et fid[elitatem] et per servic[ium] iiij Solid per Annum ut de ma[nerio] suo prædicto.[145]

{Radulphus Lasells}{manerium de Barburne 30s 7d}
Tenuit de Eadem &c. per hom[agium] et fid[elitatem] et serv[icium] 8d ut de manerio suo prædicto.[146]

{Hugo de Moresby} {manerium de Hoton Roof}
Tenuit de Eadem &c. per hom[agium] fid[elitatem] et serv[icium] 8s per Annum ut de manerio suo de praedicto.[147]

{Tho. de Redman?} {diversa tenementa in Kirkslack per Annum (ubi?) }
T[enuit] de Eadem, diversa tenementa in Kirkslack ut de hereditate de Sturnel, per hom[agium] fid[elitatem] et servicium, 3s 4[d] ut de manerio suo prædicto.[148]

[II.363]

{Willi[elm]us de Boardale. Man[or] Inter Hartsop & Martindale}
Tenuit de Eadem diversa Tenementa ut de m[aneri]o suo predicto sub. Villa de Kirkby 16d.[149]

{Simon de Heversham}
Tenuit diversa Tenementa &c. in Hoton Roofe per hom[agium] fid[elitatem] et servic[ium] 3s 4d ut de man[erio] suo de Kirkby.[150]

---

[142] '{Nicholas de Haverington} {Manor of Farleton} He held of Radulph of Bethom the manor of Farleton etc. by homage, loyalty and service, at 2 marks a year; like his manor of Bethom, and the same Radulph, his overlord, of the same Johanna [Blank]? by the same service.'
[143] '{William Windesore} He held of the aforesaid Johanna {the manor of Haversham Morland and Grarigge}? by homage, loyalty and service, at 13s 4d a year, like his aforesaid manor of Kirkby-Kendal.'
[144] '{Matthew de Redman} {the manor of Levens and Lupton} He held [it] of the aforesaid Johanna (by homage, loyalty and service, at 2 marks), like his aforesaid manor.'
[145] '{Thomas Adamson} {Tenements in Midleton}. He held various tenements in Midleton of the aforesaid Johanna by homage, loyalty and service at 4 shillings a year, like his aforesaid manor.'
[146] '{Radulph Lasells} {the manor of Barburne 30s 7d} He held [it] of the same [lady] etc. by homage, loyalty and service at 8d, like his aforesaid manor.'
[147] '{Hugo de Moresby} {manor of Hoton Roof} He held [it] of the same [lady] etc. by homage, loyalty and service at 8s a year, like his aforesaid manor.'
[148] '{Thomas de Redman?} {various tenements in Kirkslack per year (where?)}He held of the same [lady] various tenements in Kirkslack, as of inheritance of Sturnel, by homage, loyalty and service at 3s 4d, like his aforesaid manor.'
[149] '{William of Boardale. Man[or] between Hartsop & Martindale.} He held of the same [lady] various tenements, like his aforesaid manor at the town of Kirkby, at 16d.'
[150] '{Simon of Heversham} He held various tenements etc. in Hoton Roof by homage, loyalty and service, at 3s 4d, like his manor of Kirkby.'

{Prior de Watton et Johanna de Haverington} {Man[erium] de Thornby}[151]
There is Thornton near Ingleton which holds of Kendal.}
Tenuêrunt de Ead[em] Per hom[agium] fid[elitatem] et serv[icium] 5 merc per Annum, ut de ma[nerio] suo de Kirkb [y]
{Matthew de Redman} {med[ietatem] villæ de Quinfell et diversa tenement[a] in Selsa.}[152]

Tenuit medietatem villæ de Quinfell et diversa ten[emen]ta in Selsat[153] per hom[agium] fid[elitatem] Et serv[icium] viijs 2d per Annum ut de m[anerio] suo de Kirkby {med[ietatem] villæ de Quinfell et diversa Tenementa in Selsa[t] per Hom[agium] et fid[elitatem] et servic[ium] viijs 2d per Annum ut de ma[nerio] suo de Kirkby {Margareta quae fuit = uxor Rog[er]i de Lancastre} {Diversa Tenementa in Bravandesdale forsan pro Ravensdale. There is Bannerdale}
Tenuit de Eadem, ut de man[erio] suo de Kirkby per hom[agium] fid[elitatem] et service[ium] 7s per Annum.[154]

{Rob[er]tus de Bellingham}
Tenuit Diversa Tenementa in Strickland de Eadem Joha? Ut de ma[nerio] suo de Kirkby per hom[agium] fid[elitatem] et servic[ium] viijs per annum.[155]

{Rob[er]tus de Strickland}
T[enuit] Diversa Ten[emen]ta in Strickland Ketell per fid[elitatem] et servic[ium] 8d per Annum.[156]

{Rob[er]tus de Docura}
Tenuit de Eadem, diversa Tenementa in{Kirkby in Kendal}ut de m[anerio] suo de Kirkby per fid[elitatem] et serv[icium] 7s.[157]

{Adam Thorstarson}
Tenuit unum Tenementum in{Strikland Kettell}de Eadem, ut de m[anerio] suo de ~~Kendal~~ Wynandermer per fid[elitatem] et servic[ium] XXd per An[num].[158]

{Gresemer (Chapel)}
Item dicunt q[uo]d Eadem Johana obijt seisita ad Terminum vitæ suæ ut prædictum est de advocatione Capellæ de Gresemer quæ Taxatur ad Xli. Et de Avocatione Capellæ de Wynandermer quæ Taxatur a[d] Cls.[159]

---

[151] '{The Prior of Watton and Johanna of Haverington} {Manor of Thornby}'. The Priory of Watton in the East Riding of Yorkshire was founded in 1150, see Michael Stephenson, The Gilbertine Priory of Watton, Borthwick Paper 116 (York, 2009).
[152] 'They held of the same [lady] by homage, loyalty and service at 5 marks a year, like the manor of Kirkby {Matthew de Redman} a moiety of the town of Winfell and various tenements in Selsat ...' The last word here is obscured by the binding.
[153] Selside, Kendal: historical name, Selesat(e); see Westmorland Place-Names, Selside Hall.
[154] 'He held a moiety of the town of Winfell and various tenements in Selsat by homage, loyalty and service at 8s 2d a year, like his manor of Kirkby {a moiety of the town of Winfell and various tenements in Selsa[t] by homage, loyalty and service at 8s 2d a year, like his manor of Kirkby {Margaret who was wife of Roger de Lancaster}{various tenements in Bravandesdale perhaps for Ravensdale. There is Bannerdale}'
[155] '{Robert de Bellingham} He held various tenements in Strickland of the same Joha[na] like his manor of Kirkby by homage, loyalty and service at 8s a year.'
[156] '{Robert de Strickland} He held various tenements in Strickland Ketell by loyalty and service at 8d a year.'
[157] '{Robert de Docwra} {Kirkby in Kendal} He held of the same [lady] various tenements, like his manor of Kirkby, by loyalty and service, at 7s.'
[158] '{Adam Thorstarson} {Strickland Kettell} He held one tenement of the same [lady], like his manor of Kendal Wynandermer by loyalty and service at 20d a year.'
[159] '{Gresemer (Chapel)} Likewise they say that the same Johana died possessed at the end of her life as said previously of the advowson of the Chapel of Gresemer which is assessed at £10. Also of the advowson of the Chapel of Windermere which is assessed at 150s.' The amount (150s) is unclear.

Et de Advocatione Capellæ de St Mary Holm (Chapel) infra Lacum de Winandermer, quæ nihil valet quia terra de Qua prædicta Capella: fuit Antiquo Tempore seisita est in manum Domi[ni] et jacet, ~~et jacet~~ infra Parcum del' Calvegarth {Therefore Windermer is part of et in Calvgarth parke – [er]go nihil.}[160]

Reversio omnium praedictorum Ingelramo de Coucy Com[iti] Bedford, et Isabell[ae] uxori ejusdem et Heredibus de Corporibus eorundem exeunt[ibus] totaliter spectant Ex concessione Domi[ni] Regis sicut patet per cartam sua[m] In cujus rei Testimonium Juratorum prædict[orum] sigilla sua apposuimus.[161]

Examd per D[ominu]m Dan[ielum] Fleming. Convenit cum Recordo – Gulielmus Ryley. 6^0 Aug. 1692.[162]

[II.366][163]

And of the aforesaid Thomas Parr

Of the said Thomas (who as it first seems had Kendal Castle with the Parke adjoyneing) descended Sir Thomas Parr of Kendal in the time of King Henry viij. who had isue Sir William Parr, & Katherine \ as after Q[ueen] / Par, \ the / 6^{th} & last wife of King Henry viij, whom \ is said / they ~~suppose~~ boast to have bin borne in this place.

The 14. of May in 27. year of Hen. 8. [1535] Christopher Philipson of Calgarth Esq. \ of whom is descended Sir Christopher Phil. of C. / was made Receiver of the \ Rents / of those Lands ~~hereabouts~~ which were granted in farme to Sir William Parr (but what they were I have not ~~s. or~~ heared) \ who was made Lord Parr,[164] say Hollines,[165] translation by K.H.8. {MS A. p.129 penes Dom Dan. Fleming militem};[166] who being created Marquess of Northampton (Southampton sayes Speed)[167] by King Ed. 6. had the said Lands Granted \ unto / him – ~~but being both attainted in the 1st of Queen Mary & dying without Isue~~.[168]And from this William as I suppose came the Marquess fee in contradiction to the Richmond foe, which are the 2 honors in K. Barony. ~~This William~~ He was attainted, Mariæ, & dyed without isue, leaveing Ann his sister and Heire, who was maryed to \ the / Lord Will Herbert \ then / Earle of Penbrooke & after of Huntington, \ by / whom \ he had / isue onely one daughter \ named / Elizabeth, who was ~~given in mariage to~~ \ wife of / Ch. Somerset first Earle of Worcester &c., In [160] 'Also of the advowson of the Chapel of St Mary Holm (Chapel) within Windermere Lake, which has no value because the land of this aforesaid Chapel was of old possessed and in the hand of the Lord and lies within the Park of Calvegarth {Therefore Windermer is part of and in Calvgarth park –therefore nothing.}'

[161] 'The reversion of all the aforesaid belongs to Ingelramus de Coucy Earl of Bedford and to Isabella his wife and to the heirs that issue of their bodies, by grant of the Lord King as is clear through his charter. As testimony of the aforesaid jurors in which matter we have appended their seals.'

[162] 'Examined by Lord Daniel Fleming. It agrees with the Record – William Ryley. 6^0 Aug. 1692.'

[163] A page of notes, many altered or extended. Some text overwrites previous text written in pencil. The second and third paragraphs have been scored through; interlineations have been added in both pencil and ink. Accordingly, some words are illegible.

[164] Above this phrase is an illegible pencilled comment.

[165] Machell was referring to Raphael Holinshed, Chronicles, the firste volume of the chronicles of England, Scotlande, and Irelande conteyning the description and chronicles of England, from the first inhabiting unto the conquest : the description and chronicles of Scotland, from the first original of the Scottes nation till the yeare of our Lorde 1571 : the description and chronicles of Yrelande, likewise from the first originall of that nation untill the yeare 1571 / faithfully gathered and set forth by Raphaell Holinshed. (London, 1577; enlarged 1587).

[166] MS. A. was held in Sir Daniel Fleming's extensive and well-catalogued library/muniment room. As Fleming explained in the third person in his memoirs, 'MS. A. This is a large Manuscript in Folio, bound up in White Velume, with MS. A. writ in the first Page thereof, containing divers Pedigrees &c with Rentals and other Memoires collected out of the Evidence belonging unto Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal Knight.' See Scott Sowerby and Noah McCormack, The Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal Hall from 1633 to 1688, CWAAS Record Series 23 (Kendal, 2021), Appendix B, 344-46.

[167] Speed, Historie.

[168] There are pencilled corrections above the crossed-through words, but they are illegible.

whose posterity the castle & parke have \ still / ~~continued~~ (till of late years) continued, that ~~It~~ \ then / was sold to Sir Fran. Anderton of Lostock in Lancashire {who now holds the same, sayes Dugdal.}[169] But the ~~Barony~~ Title of Baron ended the line of the Lancasters \ then Mr Camden affirmes that thither devolved from / the Rosses upon the Parrs in the Barony of Kendal;[170] (from ~~the Ba~~ / Dugdal. Baronagium p.423 at §2 the line of this will […][171])

[Herbert Silver]
I finde there was a sort of duty to the Sheriff of Westmorland from the Barony Kendal & Loansdal Ward calld HERBERT-Silver, which it seemeth being left unlevyed in the time of K.H.8. by Sir Roger Bellingham, then Sh. of W;[172] whereupon King H. ~~Hen the 8th~~ isued out a Special Præcipe vel mandate, order, p[re]script in the 14. year of his Reigne [1522-23],[173] on the Behalfe of Hen. Lord Clifford for the payment thereof; which Henry allso let to farme to Sir Thomas Parr in the 3 year of the said Kings Reigne, the profits of his Shrivalty \ of Westm'land arriseing / in the Barony of Kendall for iiij li per Annum. See MS T.M. V. Antiq. West. p.62.[174]
But this \ Herbert Silver / cannot take name from the Lord William Herbert as ~~some there~~ payable out of the Lands \ which he held, / because it was not leised \ there / till the 1t of Queen Mary. Query if it be not Halbert Silver or Harbour Silver?

[II.368][175]

Of the Marquess & Richmond foe

{General Custom of Richmond & Marquess f.}
{The Tenants of Barony & Lordship of Kendal to pay fines certain, Sc. for 2 years old Rent upon ~~death~~ \ change / of the Lord by death; & 3 years old Rent upon change of the Tenant by death or alienation. Except Ambleside and Troutbeck which pay but 1. years rent upon change of Lord by death; 2 years Rent upon change of Tenant by death or alienation}

Nota – out of the Decree (penes Domini Danielem Fleming Militem[176] out of MS F. which I would peruse for the freehold estates – & to finde out the True exteant of the Barony) made in the Court of Chancery Inter Sir John Walter Knight Attorney General of ~~the most~~ the most excellent Prince Charles Complanant, & Gawen Brathwate & others the Tenants of the Barony & Lordship of the Kendal Defendents Inrolld in the said Court. Begining thus –
"Whereas on the 28th of October 1619. Sir John Walter &c. for the sum 2700 li.
That the eldest sister &c. ut supra – That the eldest daughter/ sister/cosan inherrits without copartnershipp – in Tenancy to pay for their several Tenements several certain yerely Rents and fines certain,[177] i.e. every of them: 2 years old Rent only for a fine upon change of the Lord by death, and 3 years old rent only for a fine upon change of every Tenant by death or allienation; except the Tenants of the Townes of Ambleside & Troutbeck, who are to pay fine certaine likewise, viz. every of them 1 years Rent only upon change of Lord by death; & 2 years Rent (upon change of Tenant by death or alienation) for a fine.

[169] A crossed-through interlineation here states, 'Dugdal says that'.
[170] Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 759, D-E: 'By … Peter Brus his daughter, the sister and heire of Peter Brus the third, came this Barony to the Rosses of Werke, and from them by right of inheritance this possession was devolved upon the Parres, of whom Sir William Parr was made Lord Par by King Henry the eighth.'
[171] Some blotted words here are illegible.
[172] MS: 'HERBERT-Silver ~~which it seems, which it seems was left~~ which being left [illeg.] unlevied \ in the time of K.H.8. / by Sir Roger Bellingham, ~~when UnderSherrif~~ \ then Sh. of W. /'
[173] 'A special Praecipe'. The meaning of "Praecipe" is given in the three English synonyms Machell then offers: 'mandate, order, prescript.'
[174] A reference to Machell's library of manuscripts.
[175] This is a page of notes, many of which have been altered or extended. Some of the text overwrites previous text written in pencil
[176] 'Knight' from Latin, 'miles'.
[177] 'Fine Certain': a fixed sum. See the English Glossary.

{The Custom of Widdowhood & Heriots General in these foes – Richmond & Marquess foes.}
And upon the death of every Tenant dying siesed of a Tenement, leaveing a widow behind him, An Heriot, for which she is to enjoy her Husbands Customary Estates dureing her widowhood only. Decreed on Thorsday 4. of November Anno Jac. $1^{\cdot}$ 17^{0} [1618].
The Prince, then Lord of the Barony i.e. of the Marquess & Richmond foe thereon, who was to Receive of his said Tenants such Heriots, Suites of Court, dutyes & services as is therein specified & being Subject to such other Customs as have bin used in the said manners.

[II.370]

[9.] The Division of the Bar[ony]

This Barony of Kendall for the distribution of Civil justice is divided into 2 Wards \ or Hundreds,[178] / Sc. Kendale Ward & Kirkby Ward, which have 2 High Constables – Sc. one in each of them and these of Kendal Ward.

1. Of Kendal Ward & the Parishes in It
Kendal Ward ~~is~~ so called from the Chiefe dale of that corpus of the said Dales,[179] Sleddale, Windermer, Grarigg &c.[180] And is divided into Parishes. Sc.

1. Kendal	a Vic[arage]
4. Windermer	a Rec[tory]
5. Gresmer	a Rec.
2. Beathom	a Vic.
3. Hersham	a Vic.
6. Burton & Loansdall	both Vic.

In which there are 39 Constablewicks being confu[se]dly intermix'd in several parishes, which I shall therefore not mention;[181] & so proceed to speake particularly of the Respectives Parishes with the manners &Townships conteined in them.

[Machell's Notes: II.370]

[Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction]
{As to Ecclesiastical jurisdiction \ it apear / is all within the Diocess of Chester, but for in 2 Denaryes: Sc. Kendal & Lonesdal: And accordingly, it is divided \ for the better diff[erence] / into 2 Wards of the same names: Sc. Kendal-Ward & Kirkby W.} {Qu. if Loansdal be a distinct Denary from that of Kendal. [It is] so in Adams Villare.}[182]
Qu. of Kendal it selfe, if not a distinct Constablewick from that of Natland.
{I am of opinion, that before the Town of Kendal [k]new great Trade, & by that means made the Neighbourhood populous – it was no bigger in effect than Loansdall Ward. But since that time it has bin deforested & so well peopled that it had many chaples, & 2 of those chaples now converted into parish churches. Put them in order as they fall in Parishes & chap[els]. as in Loansdal Ward,} that I may proceed to speake of those respective parishes. And of Kendal.[183]

[178] MS: 'This Barony of Kendall ~~for~~ the ~~better~~ distribution of \ Civil / justice ~~in both kindes~~, Is Divided Into 2 Wards \ or Hundreds. /'
[179] MS: 'Kendal Ward ~~is~~ so called from ~~the Towne of Kendale, the chiefe Place in It and of the whol Barony~~ \ the Chiefe dale of that corpus / of the said Dales.' The word 'corpus' is unclear.
[180] Here, Machell added marginalia but then corrected himself: '{& forrest like ground, store moores & mountains – No not soe for wee speake of the Barony \ ward / only & it[s] division.}'
[181] MS: '\In / which ~~are subdivided into~~ \ there are / 39 Constablewicks being confu[se]dly intermix'd in several parishes ~~which I shall content myself to mention & so~~ which I shall therefore not mention.'
[182] John Adams, Index Villaris, or, an alphabetical table of all cities, market-tons, parishes, villages, private seats in England and Wales (London, 1680, reprinted with additions, 1690 and 1700).
[183] The last sentence is preceded by seven lines of text, crossed through. A table of parishes has been started here. It contains the names, 'Kirkland Kendal, Helsington, Natland, Sedgewick, Stainton, Levins'; but although the table is numbered 1 to 29, it is otherwise blank.

[II.372]

[2.] Of the Parish of Kendal & the Chapelryes & Manners there

The parish of Kendall is a large tract of ground, and hath bin larger; for it formerly conteined in it also both Gresmer & Windermer which are now distinct Parishes & the only Rectoryes in the Barony of Kendal, paying yet to the Vicars of Kendal an Annual Quit Rent – 1 marke per Annum every Easter.

{Bounder}
But the Parish of Kendal as it now lyeth, is Bounded on the N. with [Blank]

[Chapels]
To this church and belonging within which Libertyes are conteined XIV Chapels. Sc.
1. Kentmer at the head of the River
2. Chapel I'th Ing upon a Beck that runs into Kent
3. Staveley (upon another?)
4. Burnaside; at the meeting of Kent & Sled.
5. Sleddal up the River
6. Selstrad near the River Sled.
7. Skelsmer – down near the Riv. Sleddal
8. Grayrig up Grang-beck from Grarig by a road through Kendal to 9.
9. Hutton. Thence by Milthrop Roade to
10. Cros-crake. Thence by Kendal Road to
11. Natland. Thence by Windermer Road to
12. St Katherines Under Barrow. Thence by the same to
13. Crooke Chapel – Thence to a sort of dependant ch[apel].
14. Winstar chapel (near) adjoyneing to which is Windermer Parish – One of Those Rectoryes which depend upon Kendal (as having bin formerly a chapel unto it. In which has bin

1. St Maryes \ !!! /chapel; thence up the lake to
2. St Catherines; thence up the River Trout[beck] to
3. Jesus Chapel,[184] which adjoynes upon Ambleside, part of which is in this parish Under Stock, & part in Gresmer Parish –The other Rectory which belongd to Kendal Church heretofore as one of her chapells but the d[aughter] is now afore the mother. It hath appertaineing:
1. Up the water Rothey, Gresmer Ch.; thence down.
2. Ambleside. Thence up Roathey [to] Lang dale.

[II.373]

So down Windermer into the Sea, or where it meets with Kent Sands – to the Parish of Bethom.
Thence up the water to Heversham Parish – correpte[185] Hersham – which hath ? fam[ilies].
Chapels: both parochial: 1. Witherslack up Winstar. 2. Up a mos to Crosthwaite*.

And so much of Kendal Ward. Now wee will proceed to speake of Kirkby [Lonsdale] Ward – which lyes on the East Side of the Barony of Kendal.

[Machell's Notes: II.373]

*Memorandum – to place it in the map.

[184] For Jesus Church at Troutbeck, see Hyde & Pevsner, 640.
[185] 'Shortly', 'briefly'.

[II.374]

[3.] Of Loansdale Ward[186]

Loansdal Ward \ which is Loansdale of the River Loane / so called from the Chief dale in it & thus of Loan, which springs.
Kirkby Ward is so called of the Town of K.[187] being the Chiefe Place in it, lying distant from Kendal [blank] miles South East*.

This Ward is divided into 2 Parishes onely, and those not very great ones. Sc.
1. Kirkby Loansdale
2. Burton

And those subdivided for Administration of Civill Justice into XII Constablewicks. Sc.
1. Kirkby Loansdal }
2. Delakar[188] }
3. Firbanke }
4. Killington }
5. Midleton } in Kirkby Loansdal Parish
6. Barborne }
7. Manserge }
8. Casterton }
9. Hutton Roofe }
10. Lupton }

11. Burton } In Burton Parish
12. Holme }

Which I shall speake of more particularly under their Respective Parishes, & 1ᵗ of Loansdal.

{Ad Kendal}
And the reason why Kendal Ward is so \ much / greater, may possibly be that it was formerly most of it forrest, uninhabited.[189] And being disforrested since the division into wardes & now growne more populous, whereas it had but 3 Parishes formerly, now it hath 5, with a number of Chappels belonging unto it.}

[Machell's Notes: II.374 & II.375]

*(Describe the Town so placed at, which stands on the banke of the River Loune in the Road towards London)
{non –} And {This is much the better ground. & better may [blank]}

[II.375][190]
If I might not com under his Bo[…][191]
I would not com under his Belt.

[186] MS: 'Of ~~Kirkby~~ \ Loansdale / Ward.'
[187] Kirkby Lonsdale.
[188] Dillicar.
[189] This is followed by approximately nine illegible words, thoroughly crossed through.
[190] This page is empty, apart from the presence of a small rectangular scrap of paper (5½cm x 3cm) affixed to the centre.
[191] The last word of the first line of this proverb is heavily blotted; just conceivably it might begin with 'Pre' for 'Presence', or if 'Bo' it could be 'Board'.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 2]

Kendal Town

[II.23][1]

Platform of Kendal

Figure 2.2.1. John Speed's Map of Kendal, scale about 2.5 miles to 1 inch. From Speed's Theatrum Imperii Magnae Britanniae (1611-12). II. 23.[2]

[Kendal Castle Notes]
Castle – from the gate NND to the turret SSO – 70 yards.
The buildings (a) are on the wrong side of the Castle yard.

[II.26]

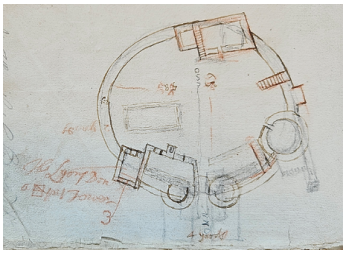

Figure 2.2.2. Machell's Plan of Kendal Castle. Detail. II.26.

[1] This page contains a print of John Speed's illustration of Kendal Castle (plus a key). A number of faint pencilled notes on local descents (such as Parr) below it, have not been transcribed.
[2] For a coloured version of this map, see The Armitt Library: ALMC2008.14.5, or, The Counties of Britain: a Tudor Atlas by John Speed (London, 1988), 182-83.

{Thomas Smith Shoomaker}
Ditch 5
Advance 5
.
.
.
. 17

[II.27]

[Notes on the Town of Kendal]

{A most famous Town for its Industry and the Wollen Trade.}[3]

[II.10B]

The said towne of Kirkby Kendall is seated upon the west side of the river Kent with a very faire old and very ancient castle on the east side thereof; which said Castle belongs to the Lord Parr of Ragland in Wales,[4] whose anchestors was borne here.

[II.27]

[Description of Kendal, taken largely from Camden's Britannia]
On the western Banke of this River standeth Kendal, or rather, as it is anciently writ – Kirkby in Kendal. i.e. Ecclesia in Valle ad Kent.[5] Which consists of 2 streets considerably long, intersecting each other – Lanificij gloria & industria ita præcellens, ut eo nomine sit celeberrimum[6]– so excelling for industrie & the woollen \ trade / that in this respect it is most famous. For the inhabitants \ thereof do / vend their cottons into most parts of England. And for the better incouragement whereof, Queen Elizabeth ~~1ᵗ of an~~ made ~~this laborious & thriveing Town~~ It a Corporation. And afterwards King Charles the 1ᵗ for \ Its / the Better Government and Regulation made it a Maior Town &c.[7]

[Machell's Notes: II.27]

*The church stands as is described before.[8]
Corne paid: some in kinde, some Meal Silv[er.][9]
Hay: som in kinde &c. Hay Silver.

[II.10A][10]

[Kendal Corporation]

The government of this Corporacon was formerly by an alderman, twelve brethren, one recorder, two serjants at mace & twenty foure burgesses & three constables. But now, since the yeare 1636, it is governed by a maior {Mʳ Thomas Sleddall first maior} a recorder, twelve aldermen (whereof the two senior[11] aldermen are justices of the peace within the same), one towne clerke, one sword bearer, two serjants at mace, two chamberlains, three constables, twenty burgesses or common counsel men. The maior is elected every yeare forth of the said aldermen, upon Monday before Michaelmas day, and sworne the Monday after. They have within themselves seseions quarterly, three weeke courts and tryalls common[12] every 9 or 12 weeke; which court will carry noe more but 20li. As alsoe the Court Right and Bylaw Court which they keepe accordingly twice every yeare.[13]

[3] Another note reads, {Kendal Church gives […]to Kirkby in Kendale ~~Town~~}; some of the words are unclear.
[4] Raglan, Monmouthshire.
[5] 'The church in the valley of the river Kent'.
[6] Camden's description of Kendal, Britannia (1587), 518. Machell gives the translation. The next sentence also quotes Camden, see Britannia tr. Holland, 759.
[7] 'Regulation' = of Kendal's cloth manufacture.
[8] Information on Kendal church is given throughout Volume II. See below.
[9] Meal-silver: see the English Glossary.
[10] The text on this page is not in Machell's hand.
[11] The page has creased here; a word, which could be 'senior', is unclear.
[12] Court of Common Pleas: see N&B1, 68.
[13] For Kendal Corporation's Royal Charters, 1575 and 1636, see N&B1, 68; and see Part 2, Ch.1, Barony of Kendal, II.11.

[II.250]

Fairbanke mayor of K. 1693.

[II.27]

[Sandes Hospital]

There is in this Town a Pretty Library founded by – Mr Sandes – in his Hospital.

[II.26]

[1. Hospital Notes]
8 Widdows 1 sh[illing]
East of the Castlehow hill
Library. Schoolmaster.

[2. Sandes: Arms]
He had no Armes when this was built; but afterwards made use of Sandes – his Coate of Armes of Hawkeside – a practise too frequ[ent] & which ought to be punished. & Mr Sandes, thinke to get som thing of him for this usurpation, reminde him of this; telling that he had used [blank][14]

Figure 2.2.3. Kendal Hospital. Arms. II.26.

[II.27]

He was a man of accute wit, {as may appear from the Answer he gave to Mr Sandes of Hawkside in Lancashire;[15] questioning him for assumeing[16] a Coat of Armes on a Seale; being Armes to which he had no manner of Title (being but meanly descended), for which he told him he could bring him in Trouble,[17] \ thinkeing / thereby to bring suit to a comp.[18] 'Thou shalt never trouble me nor thyselfe,' replyed old Sandes about such a matter; 'for as for thy Armes, I leave the[e] them to get thy living \ by; / & for thy Coate, I would not be in it for 100 li.'}[19]

[II.31]

[Machell's Queries: sent out to his informants]

{Kendal – Qu. of Mr Farrington}[20]
In the East window of the Quier called Parrs; what colour are the water-budgets.[21]

[14] The text ends abruptly here but takes up the narrative again. below, II.27.
[15] Hawkshead.
[16] This word has partly perished.
[17] In trouble with the heralds at the Heralds' Office.
[18] Perhaps, 'compertorium': a judicial inquest in the civil law, by delegates or commissioners, to find out and relate the truth of a cause. Jacob's New Law Dictionary: CO.
[19] The following page [II.29] contains only one sentence, 'Kendal Parish: see more in my Itinerary.' Machell was referring to his tour of the Barony of Kendal, in 1692, see Part 2, Ch.10.
[20] For Farrington, see Part 2 Ch.3i, Burneside, II.91.
[21] Water budget: a bottle in which soldiers formerly fetched water to their camp. In heraldry it was also called a water bouget and represented a pair of water bags suspended on a yoke. OED.

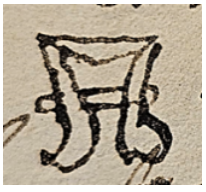

Figure 2.2.4. Water-Budget. II.31.

And what colour the field? – In the Coate inversed? Q. also, if the same Coate be not in the 4th Quarter. And if the 2nd quarter be not in a bord[ure]. {N. Those at Sizerge has no Bordure.}
What Armes are on Judge Nichols Monument in the said quier; Scratch them out as well as you can with a pen, & send me them, with their proper Colours?

{Upper Levins. Mr Guy – or – Mr Webster}[22]
What Colour are the Bores Heads in Sandfords Armes the 4th Course in the End window?
Are there any more Coates of Armes in the House, than those in the Lower Hall, The upper Hall & parlour dineing Roome. And if there be can you finde what are called Becks Arms which are lost out of the 6th Course in the Bow-window which is in the Dineing Roome?[23]

{Under Levins – Mr Webster}[24]
Qu. whether Prestons Armes in the 1t Impaleing of the 4th Coate of Armes in the Dineing Roome window, have a Crescent in Chiefe; as well as the other Impaled with it?
And if Preston impaleing Curwen be not in the Hall window as well as Dineing Roome.
Allso. In what place or Roome is the Coate of Preston impaleing Bradley, & what are the Colours in Bradleys Armes ther?

{Hersham School – Mr Green}[25]
The Armes & monuments
Is not Kings Exhibition in Q[ueen's] College.
The vertues of the medicinal well; who & when cured by it & of what diseases.
How far distant ab Ecclesia E.W.N.S.?

[II.30]

[Kendal Church]

Figure 2.2.5. View of Kendal Church from the west; small sketch 4cm x 4cm, pasted onto II.30.[26]

[22] For Henry Guy of Watercrook, see Part 2, Ch.3vii, Natland; see also Eric Birley, 'The Guys of Kendal and Watercrook' CW2, 58 (1958), 94-104. For 'Mr T. Webster', see Part 2, Ch.7, Heversham, and Machell's Itinerary, Part 2, Ch.10, II.389.
[23] Beck, later Alcock-Beck, see CFH, 383. One 'Thomas Alcock Beck' (1795–1846) was the author of Annales Furnesienses (London, 1844).
[24] For Under (or Nether) Levens, see Part 2, Ch.7, Heversham, II.163.
[25] Green was the master of Heversham School, see Part 2, Ch.7, Heversham, II.169; II.174.
[26] Written in ink over pencil.

[II.39]

Kendal Church
8 Pillars in a row, of which 4 rowes.
51 Long; 36 Broad.
5 Large Bells.[27]

[Kendal Church Monuments]

[II.14]

Before the high Altar
Under the Comm[union] rale

> PATER ROBERTUS DAWSON Episcopus / Clonefertensis et Ducensis Hibernicus. Qui obijt die Decima tertia / Ap - / Rilis – 1643.[28]

Upon a piece of Brass one foote long affixed to an old marbel stone, which lyes in the midle as you ascend up to the Altar: HIC IACE.[29]

[II.35]

[Quires]
These are: Lady, Alderman, High, Lord Parr quier*.

In the Castle Quier, Vulgo' Parr's
In the East window of the said Quier Is this Quarterly Coate of Armes Inversed.

Figure 2.2.6. Parr's Quire. II.35.

On the North Side is the following Monument, all of Gray-Marble. [with coats of arms 1. 2. 3. 4.]

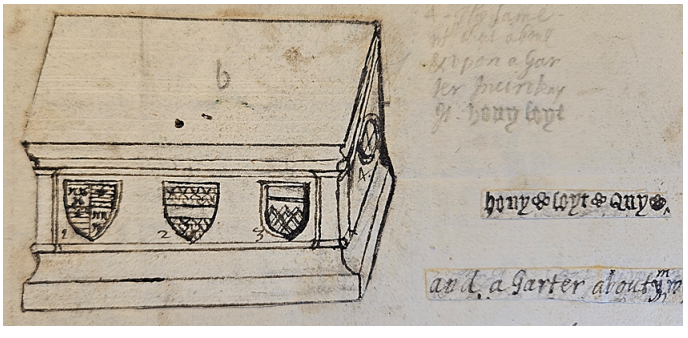

Figure 2.2.7. Monument, north side of Parr's Quire. II.35.

4. The same with that above. And upon a Garter incircling it. hony coyt

[27] MS. II.33 gives the same information: '4 rows of viij pillars \ each; / Long 51, Broad 36; Bells 5 large,' In this version the length was originally 50 but was overwritten to become 51.
[28] 'Father Robert Dawson, bishop of Clonfert and a duke in Ireland, who died 13 April 1643.'
[29] Part of 'here lies'.

And a garter about them with HONY. COYT. QUY.

And near unto it, in the N.E. corner, is a Black Marble Monument set up in the Wall which gives an Account of: Sr Augustine Nicholis[30] of Faxton in Northampton-shire Knight (2nd son of Thomas Nicholis Esq.); who was of the Midle-Temple London and Reader there in the last of Queen ELISABETH, of whom He Received his Writt of Serjiant at Law. & was afterwards Sergiant to Prince Henry & the Queen, his mother.[31] And \ one / of His Majesties Justices of Common-Pleas and Keeper of the Broad-Seal to Prince CHARLES; who having bin a Reverend & Just Judge IV years; fell under the heavy burthen of it here (at Kendal) sitting then Justice of Assize. Anno Domini 1616. 3^0 August XIV^0 Regis JACOBI [1616-17] & 77 ætatis."[32] On which are these Arms:
[On the left-hand coat:] virtute non vi.[33]

Figure 2.2.8. Part of the monument of Sir Augustine Nicholls of Faxton. II.35.

[Machell's Notes: II.35]
*1a. Mr Farrington. Write for the Colours of the Sheld & Waterbudget.}

[II.36]

In Sizergh Quire commonly called Stricklands Quire which lyes betwixt Parrs and the High Altar on the South Side, there is in the East window a Fragment, i.e. a Quarter of a Coate of Arms, misplaced through the Glaziers ignorance, as if inversed, which I have here rectifyed.

Figure 2.2.9. In Sizergh or Strickland's Quire. II.36.

Upon an Alabaster Stone[34] set in a wooden Post on the N. Side of the Lady Quire near the foote of Bellingham Tomb.
1. Ermin & Gules.
2. Argent on a c~~rown~~ charged with b. gl.; a + of the 1^t.
3. Argent. Gules. Argent.
4. Or. & Argent.

[30] For the English judge, Sir Augustine Nicolls/Nicholls (1559-1616), see W. Prest, 'Nicolls, Sir Augustine'. ODNB; see also N&BII, 76.
[31] Anne of Denmark (1574-1619) was wife to James I (VI of Scotland). Their first surviving son, Henry, born 1594, died in 1612. See M. Meikle & H. Payne, 'Anne [Anna, Anne of Denmark] (1574-1619). ODNB.
[32] 'And 77 years of age.'
[33] 'By virtue not violence.' In the margin here, written in faded pencil and mostly perished, is the following, '{Qu. of the Ke[perished] if true see these Antiq. For They are wrong h[perished]}'
[34] MS: 'Upon an Stone[2] Alabaster[1],' The numbers indicate that the writer wished to reverse the word order.

5. Argent. Sab[le.] Gules.
6. Argent. G[ules.] Argent.[35]

[II.36A]

1. At the Spring, or footing of the Arch 'twixt Parrs and Stricklands-Quier, at the End next the East, are these Coates of Armes in stone; whereof the second is defaced by setting up the Screen or Partition.

Figure 2.2.10. Between Parr's and Strickland's quire. 3 coats of arms in stone, one defaced. II.36A.

2. On the N. side of the said Quier is a Gray-Marble Tombe supported with Hewne Stone.

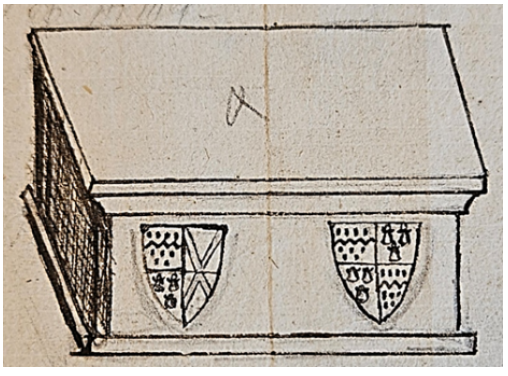

Figure 2.2.11. 'North side of the quire: gray marble tomb supported with Hewne Stone.' II.36A.

[II.359A]

In Stricklands-Quire, which lyes betwixt Parrs and the High Altar, there is a Monument like to the former,[36] of a Gray Marble but \ also / supported with Hewen-Stone. On the side of which are these Coates of Armes:

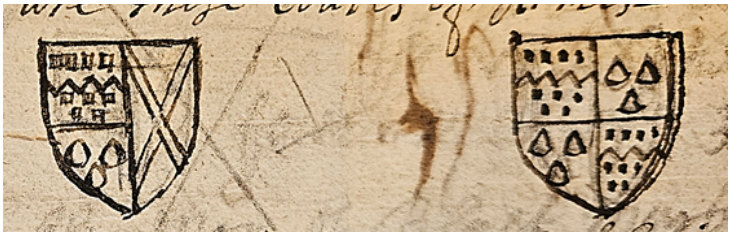

Figure 2.2.12. Coats of Arms. II.359A.

3. A dilicate Table Monument of Curiouse Black Marble inlaid with white, stands under the window; being supported with 4 speckled Pillars. And having beneath it the Figure of a Childe in Alabaster wrap'd in his shroud; & above (on the Table) this following Inscription:

[35] This paragraph has been cut out of a piece of paper, 7cm x 6½cm, pasted onto this page.
[36] This probably refers to the same monument; the coats of arms are the same, although the sentences were written on two different pages of notes: II.359A and II.36A.

Gualterus filius natu maximus Thomæ Strickland de Sizerge Militis. Obijt 20. Sept. 1653.[37]

And at the corner is this Coate of Arms.

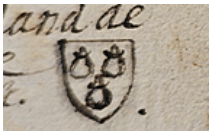

Figure 2.2.13. 'And at the corner is this Coate of Arms'. II.36A.

[II.36B][38]

Of Goods & Chatells

To ~~pd~~ a deed of gift \ of goods & chatels / 20 April – 21. Ed. 3. [1347] of Will. de Strickland to Will. de Crakenthorpe. This seal is appendant; which is not much unlike this in Strick[land's] Quire; ergo this Seale may seeme to have bin the antient Coate – & that in after times they have varyed from it by the errour or ignorance of painter or carver! {An see at in a Roundel upon the nale ad Ellerkar.}[39] The scallops I take to be the Coat of Armes of som other family resideing at Sisiers before the Stricklands, who heiress being mary[ed] by Strickland he might thence be oblieged to assume these Armes – as in the case of Lucy &c. Those who lived near to fisheryes often tooke the escallop of Dacres &c.

Figure 2.2.14. Seal to a deed of gift, 21. Ed. III. 'which is not much unlike this in Strickland's Quire'. II.36B.

[II.37]

In the High Quier: vulgo' Bel[linghams]

(c.)

[37] 'Walter, the eldest son of Sir Thomas Strickland of Sizergh, knight, who died on 29 September 1653.' According to Bellasis, the date is 1656: see Edward Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes: being the Heraldry, Epitaphs, and other Inscriptions, in the Thirty-two Ancient Parish Churches and Churchyards of that County, Vol. II. (Kendal, 1889), 62, for the complete inscription. Machell omitted the inscription around the edge of the top slab, which Bellasis gives as, 'This pure refined structure does containe / Natures compleatest peece where every graine / Waits for a glorious union and appeares / Shrind in Parentall Sighs and Marble teares.'

[38] Text here is written on the reverse of a sealed letter paper.

[39] This information does not appear on accounts concerning Ellerkar (in Crackenthorpe Lordship) elsewhere.

(d.)

(e.)

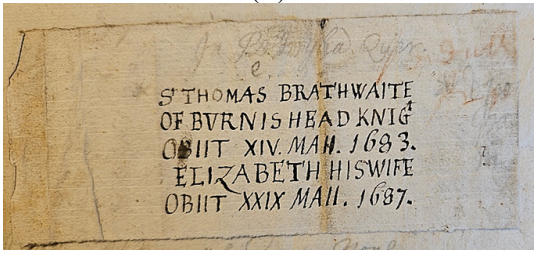

Figure 2.2.15. Pasted images of monument and inscriptions, c., d. and e. II.37.

(c.) In the Lady-Quier. On the S. Side, a Gray Marble Stone formerly inlaid with Brass & susteined with Hewn-Stone.

(d.) [Coat of Arms and Inscription]

[Arms]
2. Argent on a Chief chargd with 4. g. a + of the 1^t.[40]
3. Argent. Gules. Argent.
4. Or. Argent.
5. Argent.
6. Argent. Gules. Argent.[41]

Inscription*

On earth three \ score / & ten years spent or nigh thereabouts. This Lyffe changed | Dame Thomasin Thorn
burgh hence went | Heavenly
Joyes to joy expected | wife to Sir William Thornburgh, knight | whilst on earth he was

[40] Written faintly in pencil, and unclear.
[41] Written faintly in pencil ,and unclear; the last word could be ‘Azure’ or ‘Argent’.

remaynynge | Sir Robert
Bellingham Gentle Knight |
Hir father was; with whom,
Ending | she desired, sepult
ed to be | As here Hir corps,
hir hope fruing[42] underlyeth
as youe may see | Hir Spirit with the blessed beying the elevent[43]

(e.) In Bellingham Quiere

SR THOMAS BRATHWAITE
OF BURNISHEAD KNIG^{T}
OBIIT XIV. MAII. 1683.[44]
ELIZABETH HIS WIFE
OBIIT XXIX MAII. 1687.

In the Aldermens Quier. None.

[Machell's Notes II.38]

*{I had as good draw the mo[45] about this inscription.}
In the Lady Quier
This Quire was rebuilded by [Blank]
1. Armes in the windows if any.
2. Thornburgh monument & Armes.
3. Brathwaite Monument.

[II.39]

High Quier
On a white marble Monument set up in the wall at the Vestery doore, is this inscription.

Figure 2.2.16. Marble monument near the vestry door. II.39.

[42] Bellasis interprets this as 'serving': see Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes I, 66.
[43] According to Bellasis, the inscription continues, 'the eleventhe of August she expired a yeare of Christ on thowsand fyve hundreth eightie too this world she left (there of not loth) almightie God hir sowle receave to hevenly blis she humblye craved.' Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes I, 66. See also the pedigree of Thornburrow of Selside, Part 2, Ch.3viii, II.404.
[44] Bellasis gave his age at death: 'et ætatis suae LXVI.' Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes I, 11.
[45] The monument.

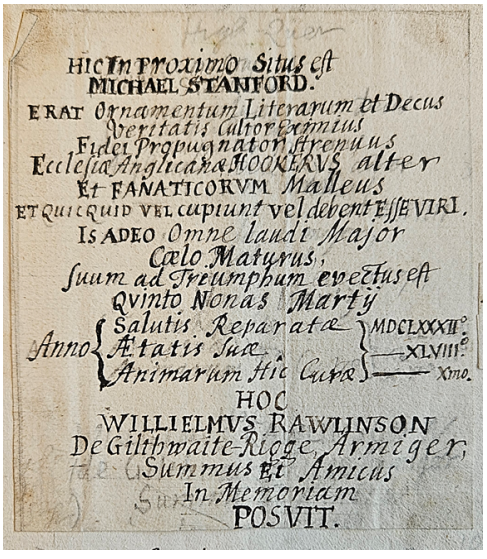

Figure 2.2.17. Memorial to Michael Stanford. II.39.

Hic in proximo situs est
MICHAEL STANFORD
Erat Ornamentum Literarum et Decus
Veritatis Cultor Eximius
Fidei propugnator strenuuus
Ecclesiæ Anglicanæ HOOKERUS[46] alter
Et FANATICORUM Malleus
ET QUICQUID VEL capiunt vel debent Esse VIRI
Is ADEO Omne laudi Major
Coelo Maturus,
Suum ad Triumphum evectus est.
Quinto Nonas Martij

Anno {Salutis Reparatæ } MDCLXXXII^{0}
{Ætatis Suæ } XLVIII^{0}
{Animarum Hic Curæ } Xm^{0}.

HOC
WILLIELMUS RAWLINSON
De Gilthwaite-Rigge, Armiger,
Summus Ei Amicus
In Memoriam
POSUIT.[47]

[46] Richard Hooker (1554-1601) author of, Of The Laws of Ecclesiastical Polity, 8 vols (1594-1648).
[47] 'Near this spot lies MICHAEL STANFORD. He was an adornment and glory of Literature, a distinguished follower of Truth, a vigorous protagonist of Faith, a second Hooker in the Church of England, and a hammer of FANATICS, and one who was whatever men wish or ought to be. He was borne up to his triumph in Heaven in due time, already far honoured, on the 6 March in the year of our Redemption 1682, in the 68th year of his age, and the 10th year of his cure of souls here. This monument was placed here to the Memory of his greatest friend, by WILLIAM RAWLINSON of Gilthwaite Rigg, Esquire.'

{[Arms] a gorge[48] or waterbudget.}

[Thomas Sandes]
In the Body of the Church, upon the iiijth Pillar in the second North-Side Alley, is a very fair monument made of white marble with som black veines upon it, in memory of Mr Tho. Sands who founded the Hospital & Library in Kendal. Being a \ very / fit emblem of his life; which though the Author of his Epitaph has don what he can to make it all white, yet diverse black strokes & staines were found in it; for he got his welth by Sequestration;[49] and had no Armes but what hee tooke up against the King, tho his monument is adorn'd with the Arms of the Sandses of Cartmel to whom he had not any relation. Yet to give him his due he did many good & charitable Acts: Had it not bin ~~because they were~~ don with ill-gotten goods \ for which cause / I shal take no more notice of him. But that he dyed A.D. MDCLXXXI. Aetat Suæ LXXI. Died in 1681, aged 71.

[II.39A]
G[ules] a fess charged with 3 Escallops a. betwene 3 [lozenges] Pierced of the field within a bordure Or charged with ooo Gules.

[II.40]
There is also in the Body of the Church hard by, upon a plane Grave Stone in memory of a worthy Gentleman who sometimes served the Countess of Penbroke.

MR GEORGE SEDGWICK OF COLLINFIELD
1685. ÆTATIS 67.

[Machell's Query: II.40]

Q. for Mr Guyes on Brass.[50]

[II.41][51]
[Dr Hay]
Dr. Haius[52] {He tooke the sirname Gray from a Brother in Law of that name who designed to make him his heire}.

Figure 2.2.18. Seal detail. University of St Andrews. II.41.

[48] Gorge? 'G. Legh, Accedens of Armory (1597), 103: He beareth Sanguine, a Gorge, Argent. Thoughe this seeme unlikely to be a water-budget, yet hath it long time bin so taken, and so blazed, and neuer of anie other fashion, then ye see in this escocheon.' Thus, a gorge appears to look like a water budget. OED.
[49] Sequestration (in law): the appropriation of the income of a property in order to satisfy claims against the owner; especially ecclesiastical; a writ diverting the income of a benefice to the advantage of the creditors of the incumbent; a writ of Chancery empowering commissioners or a sheriff to seize the property of the person against whom it is directed. OED. In 1643, Parliament set up a Sequestration Committee in every county to confiscate the estates of Royalists who fought against Parliament. Gavin Robinson, Horses, People and Parliament in the English Civil War: Extracting Resources and Constructing Allegiance (London, 2012, 2nd edn, 2016), 100.
[50] Machell was seeking the epitaph of William Guy of Watercrook, thrice mayor of Kendal, who died in 1683 aged 84: see Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes II, 27; see also N&BI, 78-79.
[51] Paper 7cm x 18cm, cut from another source and pasted onto the page. Contains a seal.
[52] Dr Hay.

Dr Haius in Artibus m[agister …] was Doctoratus Medicinæ Gradû auctus et ornatus; made Dr in Phys[ic] in the University of St Andrews in Scotland in 1683.[53] Ex chirographo dat Andreanopli X^0 K. Octorbris anno Æ C. M.DC.LXXXIII;[54] the original of which under the seal of the said university, I saw at Kendal 25º July, 1692.

This family was rased from the valour & conduct of one Haius & \ his / 2 sons, who by their Personal Valour, tho but husbandmen then, were the occasion of a great victory over the Danes at Loncarty near St Johnstons; for which they \ were / advanced into the Nobility, endowed with lands which som of the name enjoy som parcells of till this day.[55] And has given for their Armes, Argent 3 escutchons field Gules, p.183. {Quæ insignia (sayes Buchanan) hoc opinor indicant salutem publicam trium hominum singulari in prœlio vi[r]tute fuisse defensam.}[56] {Initio R[egni]temp. Kennethi 3^{t} qui obijt anno DCCCC. XCIIII.}[57]

[Machell's Notes: II.42]

Kendal: charters, marcet, fair.

See Marc[et] in Parchm[ent Book].

{Kendal Charter: see more in the Parchment Book. Mr Farringtons? Sp[r]int}

[II.43][58]

Kendal. Kirkby in Kendalia

{1. Charter of the Free Burgers of Kendal}

"Petrus de Brus tertus. Confirmes liberis burgensibus suis partis suæ de Kirkeby in Kendalia omnes libertates et liberas consuetudines quas habuerint de dono Willielmus de Lancastria avunculi sui sicut carta ejus testatur. Tenendas &c. integre et in pace in perpetuum sine contraditione sui vel heredum suorum, with warrantis." Testibus: {Domino Gilberto de Lanc.; Lamb[er]to de Langtona; Adame de Henecaster; Alano filio Delfini; Rogero de Brunolvisheved;[59] / Randulf de Pattona; Johe de Kentemere; Toma de Howijs; Nicilao de Lee, clericus; & multis alijs."}[60]

{2. The Seal ut Brus his Charter}

The seal is green wax, 2 inch & ½ diameter, having a man on horseback with a sword in his right hand & a shild upon his breast, on which there appears to me a lyon rampant, & is writ about SIGILL … … O C … DERCI.

{3. Fairs & Markets}

They have weekely a Satterday merkat & 2 fairs per annum: Sc. 25 April \ being / St Mark; 28 of

---

[53] 'Dr Hay Master of Arts [words blotted] was made a Dr of Medicine, elevated and decorated in the profession, made Dr in Physic.'

[54] 'Seen in a chirograph deed dated at St Andrews, 10 days before the kalends of October, 22 September AD 1683.' A chirograph deed is a medieval document written in duplicate or triplicate on a piece of parchment with the Latin word chirographum written across the middle, then cut through to separate the parts. OED.

[55] For the Hay family's involvement in the battle of Luncarty (c.990), see The New Statistical Account of Scotland by the Ministers of the Respective Parishes: Vol. X Perth (Edinburgh and London, 1845), 174-75, quoting the author, George Buchanan, for whom see below.

[56] 'Which insignia (says Buchanan) show I think that the safety of the realm was due to the signal excellence in battle of three men'. George Buchanan (1506-1582), Rerum Scoticarum historia (1582), translated by J. Fraser in 1690 as The History of Scotland … Faithfully rendered into English (British Library). Buchanan was Scotland's foremost humanist scholar of the period. ODNB.

[57] [The family was extant] 'at the beginning of the reign of Kenneth III. He died in 994.'

[58] An unclear pencilled note appears on this page: MS. 'Mr Far[r]ington. Saint Nicholas [two words illeg.] in Felside ab Ecclesia N.W. 2 bowshots.'

[59] MS: 'Rogero de Burrol \ Bruno /sheved … Brunolvisheved'.

[60] 'Peter de Brus the third confirms to his free burgesses of his part of Kirkby in Kendal all the liberties and free customs which they should hold by gift of his uncle William de Lancaster, as William's charter testifies. To hold etc. undiminished and in peace for ever without interruption from him or his heirs, with warranty. Witnessed by Gilbert, Lord de Lancaster, Lambert de Langton, Adam de Hencaster, Alan the son of Delfin, Roger de Burneside [?] Randolf de Patton, John de Kentemere, Thomas de Howys, Nicholas de Lee (cleric) and many others.'

October being St Simon & Jude. And their forthnight dayes continue ~~from St Marks Day throughout the year~~ \ betwixt them. /

{4.[61] Pretended Charter & priv[ileges]}
The[y] talke of another more antient charter from John of Gaunt[62] ~~but nore not so kinde as to let me see it~~;[63] and say they have power by their later charters to acknowledge stat[ute] merchant,[64] & to keep a Quarter Sessions within themselves distinct from the County; the Maior, Recorder & 2 senior Aldermen being Justices of Peace by virtue \ there/of; and that they pay a Charter Rent (as tis vulgarly called) to Mr Topham of Aglethorp in [Blank][65] which was purchased out of the Crown. But (haveing not seen their Authority for any more of their Charters) I can only relate these things upon here say.}[66]

{5. Their Trade}
Their trade consists of \ 1. / Kendal-cog-ware, alias cottons; \ & 2. / of Lindsey woolses[67] or Kendal stuffs, which are otherwise \ called / Kidderminsters from being sold there; & \ 3. / of stockens, which be lately comdup. And all these wares are sent upon to London every weeke by 4 Kendal carryers, which set out from thence every Monday by turnes.[68]

[II.46]

Charity

[1.] [Letter to Thomas Machell from Thomas Gilpin]

To Mr Maitchell
Kirbe Thuer
Present

[II.45][69]

{Ad Kendal town puto et fam. Gilpenandi}[70]

Skelsmirgh Hale: Sep.

Hon. Sr
Your delegent enquirie after antient remarkable passages heare; I remember that a predecessor of ours cald Nicholas Gilpin (Stuard to Mr Alan Belingham purchaser of Leavens) toke a loane[71] of the said Mr Belingham, of certaine Lords Rent belonging to the chapel of St Ann in Kendall, the yearly rent of $3^{£}$ 7^{s} 8^{d}, for the tearme of 1000 years at the price of 30 years purchas. & by his last will dated in 1561 leaves it to 2 Gilpins the nearest of his kinrid; & at their death to apoynt other two of the nearest of their kinrid ~~and name~~ to distribute it to the poore in Kendall, the nearest of the kinrid, and name at their discretion; which dole hath continued ever since from ancestor to heire; and none comed into my hand & Robert Gilpin my brother (none in Kendall) & if you please to place this amongst the rest of your great paines & to let me know if this comes to your hand it wil be a great keinds to Sir

[61] MS: '3'.
[62] John of Gaunt, duke of Aquitaine and duke of Lancaster, styled King of Castile and León (1340-1399), prince and steward of England, was the fourth son of Edward III (1312-1377) and his wife, Philippa of Hainault. See S. Walker, John, duke of Aquitaine and duke of Lancaster'. ODNB.
[63] For Kendal councillors' reluctance, see John Thwaites to Machell, Part 2, Ch.1, B. of Kendal, II.11.
[64] 'Statute merchant': bond of record acknowledged before the chief magistrate of a trading town, by which a creditor has the power of seizing a debtor's lands in case of default. Cf. statute staple: a bond of record, acknowledged before the mayor of the staple, by which a creditor has the power of seizing a debtor's lands in case of default. OED.
[65] For the Tophams of Aglethorpe in Coverham in the Honour of Richmond, see Dugdale, Visitation of Yorkshire (Clay edition, Vol. 3, 1919), 448-49.
[66] See fn.63, above. Machell and his informants appear to have found difficulty in gaining information from councillors.
[67] Linsey-woolsey was originally a textile material woven from a mixture of wool and flax (linen). OED.
[68] See N&BI, 66, for a list of 354 weekly pack-horse carriers.
[69] II.45 is a small page, 15cm x 18cm, comprising a letter.
[70] Machell marked the letter on II.45 with this heading, translated as, 'Kendal town perhaps Gilpin family'.
[71] Loan: gift or grant from a superior; obsolete term. OED.

Your obliged servant
Thomas Gilpin.[72]

[II.47] [73]

[2.] Foundation of Kendal Hospital

This Indenture made the 6[d] of September in the Two & Twentieth yeare of the Reign of our Soverainge Lord Charles the 2[d] [1670] by grace of God King of England Scottland France & Ireland defender of the Faith, between Thomas Sandes of Kirby Kendal in the County of Westmorland Gentleman of the one party; And the Major & Aldermen & Burgesses of the Borough of Kirby in Kendal in the said County of Westmorland on the other party. Witnesseth that whereas the said Tho. Sandes hath gained a considerable share of his temporall Estate by bying & selling of Woollen Cottons commonly called Kendal Cottons & by his frequent trading therein & being mindfull to set apart one convenient dwelling house within the Burrough of Kirby Kendal aforesaid for the use of 8 power widdowes womin successively for ever for to exercise Spin\in/g & Carding of woule & weaveing of Rawe peeces of cloth for cottons, called Kendal Cottons aforesaid; And also for the use of one Schoolmaster forever, There to read & say prayers constantly morning & evening in the said house befor the said Widdowes, & also there to watch & instruct, power chil[dren] until prepared for the Free Schoole of Kirby Kendall aforsaid or elsewhere; And being also mindfull to setle certaine Landes Revenues & hereditaments hereafter mentined, expressed for the better manytenance & subsistence of the forsaid persons & to & for the use heareafter in the presents mentined & declared. This Indenture therefore wittnesseth that the said Tho Sandes for the consideration aforesaid \ & in consideration / of the speci\all/ trust & confidence that he the said Tho. Sandes, hath & Reposeth in the said Major, A[ldermen] & Burg[esses] & there sucesersours & for diverse other good causes & considerations here unto moveing, Hath given sold & concined & conveyed:

[II.49]

And by there presents, doth for himself & his heires give granted & Enfeoffed sold consined & conv eyed, unto the said Major, Al[dermen]: & Burr[gesses]: & there sucessours for ever, al that Burgage & house messuage & Tenement, two Gardens & one Croft \ with the appurtenances / scituate lying & being upon the West sid[e] of one gate or street called Highgat within Kirby Kendall aforesaid, now or late in the Tenuer or occupation of the said Tho. Sandes his Assignes or Ass[ociates]. Being of the Antient Yearly Rent of sixteen shilling all that messuage & Tenement Lands Closes Grou[nd] with the appurtenances scituate lying & being in Skelsmerge in said County of Westmorland commonly called Edgerbank, And the Moyetis\ & / one half of all the messuage & tenement apurtanance lying & being at Wasdallhead in the said County holde of Christopher Crackenthropp Esq. of the yearly Rent in the whole of nine shillings eleven pence latly by the said Thomas Sandes purch. To him & his heires of Tho. Gilpine of Barkergarth within Houldernesse in the County of York, one other messu[age] & tenament with apurtenances lying within Strickland Roger in the County of Westmorland aforesaid; att a place there called Baxton-Holme, together with one fulen Milen thereunto, which he the said Tho. Sandes purched to him & his heires of one Peter Colinson. And also one Close of Arable medow there unto adjoyning with appurtenances commonly called Kettle Croft, likewise also purchased by him the said Tho. Sandes to him & his heires forever of Ed. Holme & James Atkinson. All which [72] Thomas Gilpin of Skelsmergh Hall acted as Machell's Skelsmergh informant: see II.119-20. Machell wrote a short note relating to the substance of Gilpin's letter in his Itinerary: 'To refer Gilpins charity to [Blank]': Part 2, Ch.10, II.414. Thomas Gilpin was referring to a charity known as Gilpin's Rents, 1561. William Gilpin, steward to Alan Bellingham of Levens, purchased from him rents belonging to the Chapel of St Anne, of £3 7s. 8d. a year, at thirty years' purchase; and by his will, dated 1561, bequeathed the same to two Gilpins: 'the nearest of his kindred, successively to distribute the same to the poor in Kendal, of his name and family for ever.' Apparently the documentary evidence relating to this charity went missing but the rents were regularly collected and distributed until 1804. See Cornelius Nicholson, The Annals of Kendal: being a historical and descriptive account of Kendal and the Neighbourhood with biographical sketches of many eminent personages connected with the town (London and Kendal, 2nd edn, 1861), 211-12.

[73] II.47-65: copy of the foundation deed of Kendal hospital, written in another hand with interlineation by Machell. A few words of the deed (crossed-through in the MS) have been omitted from this edition. For another Kendal charity see I.342A.

messuage Landes & Tenements are now in the tenure \ & / posesion of him the said Tho. Sandes his Assignes farmers & Tenaments together also with all houses, Edifices,

[II.51]

Buildings Barnes Stables Orchards Gardens Landes medowes pastures Crofts Curtlags Comons of pasture Turbary Mores Moses Hedges fences ditches woodes and the ground & soyle thereof provledges, Advantages Emoluments Members Jurisdictions & apurtances whatsoever, unto the said Burgess-house messuage & tenement in Kendall afor\said / \ the / said messuage & tenement called Edge bank said messuage Tenement of Barton-Holme, & the said Close called Kettle Croft. The said fulen milen and the said Moyety of messuage Tenement of Wastdall head. and to all & to every the before granted premises with \ the appurtenances / or to any of them belonging, lying or in any wise apurtaning. And al the estate right Tytle Interest use possesons clame & demandes whatsoever of him the said Tho. Sandes, of, in, or to the same evry or any of them with all, Evidences Excerpts Muniments & writtings which he hath or may lawfully come by touc\hing / & conferring of the same, And all those goods \ Utensills of house / hold stufe Husbandry-geare of him, the said Tho. Sandes, being & remaining about the said Burgage house, messuage & Tenement \ mentioned / inn a Schedule to these presents annexed, To have & to hold of the said Burgage house & tenement two Gard[ens] & one Croft within Kirby Kendall afor said, the messuage & tenement with the appurtences called Edge-banke, the moyety of the said tenement on Wastdall head; The said Messuage & Tenement with the appurtenances lying att Barton Holme; with the fulen milne thereto belonging, the said Close called Kettle Croft, And all & singler premises with apurtenences thereby, granted barganed & sold or to be hearein or heareby granted & sold with there or evry of there right or members & appurtenances whatsoever, unto the said Major Alder[men] Burgesses there sucessors \ to / the use & behoofe of them & there \ sucessors / for ever.

[II.53]

Neverthelese, upon special trust & confidence \ & / the intent that all the Rents Issues & profits of all & singler the houses in Landes, Tenaments & [here]diments & other premises with apurtenances, before heareby granted & bargained is sold & shall for ever heareafter from time to time, & truly & faithfully be distributed & Imployed by the said Major Al[dermen] Bur[gesses] & there sucessors forever. To & for of Reparacion & Continuance of the said Burgage \ & other Houses / belonging unto all & singular that be foregranted premisses & paying such asesments as shal be due \ & imposed upon the same / other then are to be payed by the sevrall Leases thereof; And for & towards the maintenance of the said power widowes & Schoole Master of and in that said Burgage for the time being at all times heareafter & from time to time, forever according to the true \ intent & meaning / of the said Tho. Sandes & the Tenor & purport heareafter, in these presen\te/ specified, And to no other Trust considerate, intent purpose Imployment whatsoever. And the said Tho. Sandes doth hereby manifest, publish & it is fuly & absolutely bye the said partyes to there presents condescended into agreed upon, for themselves & for heires of the said Tho. Sandes, And the sucessers is the said Major & Aldermen & Burgesses by these presents; & the true intent & meaning of them \ & of / there presents \ is /in maner & form following. That is to say thear shal be 8 power widdowes wom[en] of the age of fifty two yeares \ or upwards / who have been of a good \ carriage / reputation, also bene exercised in carding or spining of woole & weaving of Raw peces \ of cloth / to be fited & prepared for cottons, aforesaid; chosen out of the \ places / Townes & Hamletts heareafter mentined, That is to say, 3 of 8 wid[ows] to be chosen out of Strickland-gate within the Burrow of Kirby Kendal & 3 other of the said 8 wid[ows] to be chosen out of Stramengate & Highgate in the same \ Burrow / & one other of the said 8 wid[ows]out of the Hamlett of Strick[land] Roger & Strickland Kettle within the Burrow \ of K[endal] / & one other of the 8 wid[ows] out of Skelmerge & Paton in the same Burrow & the like proportion to the places aforesaid for ever heareafter

[II.55]

\ shall be / observed & kept, in chosing any one or more of the said wid[ows] upon the vacancy of the former; provided that if at any time \ when / occasion requires, there cannot be had is chosen if like proportion \ of widdows / out of the places \ aforesaid / as before is specified & intended. \ Then / said number of the 8 wid[ows] shal be made up out of the foresaid places Tow[ns] stre[ets] Ham[lets] in l[ike] \ respect / proportion \ to the aforesaid / as neare as may be, which election \ is now already made by the said T.S. / And it is intended & meant that the power of election shall be in the Tho. Sandes during his life, And after his decease there orders ensuing shal for ever heareafter be observed,

& kept by the Major, Aldermen & Burgesses \ & there sucessors / of any vacancyes, shall nominate duble the number of the widows which are to be chosen out of the place Towns & Streets & Hamletts respecting unto the said Major, Aldermen & Burgesses & \ there / sucessors And that out of the number so nominated & proposed as aforesaid shal chose & elect the said wid[ows] & so many of them as shal make up the said number of wid[ows] 8; & for want of such nomination of the said overseares of the power of the places, that then the said Major Senior Al[dermen] Viccar & Schoolemaster for the time being or the major part of them (whereof the major to be one) shall according their best discretion choose & elect the widowes according to the true meaning of these presents, & every widow hereafter to be chosen shal within a month after the death \ departure or deprivation / or if other of any of the said 8 wid[ows] & there sucessors, And the said 8 wid[ows] elected by the said Trustees & there sucessoures \ shall have assiyned them by the Trustees / convenient Rome & places in that said Burgess house which shall \ hereafter / be called an house of Manufacture for carding & spinning of woule,

[II.57]

\ working, weaving and / making of Raw peces, as aforesaid \ & for their habitation / and also the said 2 gardens to be equaly devided amongst them \ for to manure improve sow & use to their own best / advantage & that the said Romes & gardens \ & the profits thereof / to goe the 8 wid[ows] & there sucessors for ever for the intents aforesaid. And the said 8 wid[ows] \ & their sucessors / evry Saturday morn in evry week for \ ever / have payd them 12 \ pence / a week of lawful English money by the said Trustees & their sucessors by such persons as they shall apoynt out of the Rent Issues & profits of be foregranted, \ Premisses / towards there mantenance & for the better encuragment of them in the work of manufacture, And also shall \ hereafter / have payed them yearly evry year forever upon the Eve of the feast of the Assention of our Lord & Saviour Jesus Christ & upon the Eve of the feast of Penticost 8 pence more against ether feast to make up there \ severall / allowance fouer Markes apece (per annum); And that also that evry widow shall have brought them yearly forever in that week next befor the Nativity of our Lord & Saviour Jesus Christ by the Lessees \ & / under Tenants thereof theire Assigne or Assign\es / of the said Messuage Landes & Tenament appurtenances scituate lying & being in Skelsmerge & Strickland Roger aforesaid: One good horse-load of wood, & unto the Schoole Master (there, for the time being) & his successors, fouer good horse load of wood. Two whereof to be feuel for his \ own / chamber, & two whereof to be for feuel for the Library of ~~well disposed~~ \ where the Bookes of / peple there ~~they may~~ \ to / be placed; \ viz. / 8 loades of wood \ thereof / to be brought by the tenant or farmer of the lands in Skelsmerge, & the other \ 4 / by Tenants in Strickland Roger, And that the said Schoole Master & his sucessors shall att least evry quarter of any yeare bestow twel[ve] pence in peats, to be for fewell in the said great Rome for Airing that said Rome & for beter keeping \ of / the Books there in place & \ due to be placed / from harme, And that weekly allowances of 12p which shal grow due from the time of death \ departure or / deprivation of any of those wid[ows] aforesaid until the election of the other \ widow / in her or there place or stead, shal goe & accrue to the use of the suceding widows respectively to be elected there \ as / aforesaid, And the said Tho. Sandes doth \ hereby / manifest \ & / declare his minde to be, & it is fully & absolutely by all the said partyes to these presents, condescended unto \ & / agreed upon \ for themselves & their heires & / there sucessours by these presents, And is the true intent & meaning of them & of these presents in maner & firme following \ viz. / That they shall have \ but one / a fit & neat person both for learneing & good maners chosen by the said Sandes during his life, & afterwards by the Major Senior Aldermen Viccar & Schoole Master for the time \ being / or the major part of them \ whereof the maior to be one, / to Read & say prayers unto the said wid[ows] in the said Burgess house evry day for ever att such \ at such times & seasons as in a Table of Order hereunto annexed is set down. /[74] And to teatch children there, in good Literature, until they be fitted for the Free Schoole of Kendalle, or else where. And the aforesaid Tho. Sandes dureing his life & the said Major senior Aldermen Viccar & Schoole Master for the time being or the major part of them. Whereof the major for the time being to be one, [74] Much of this interlineated sentence is blotted.

[II.59]

[II.61]

shall after the death of the said Tho. Sandes forever hearafter elect ever[y] other Schoole Master of the like Qualification aforesaid within one month after the death, departure or deprivation of the former Schoole master or as sone as conveniently they can; the said Schoole Master & his sucessours to be elected as aforesaid shall have the benefit of one convenient place within the said Burgess house for to teatch, in which shall be called by the name of a Schoole house; And the benefit & use of one Chamber adjoyning to the said Schoole house for his and there habitation, And that the said Schoole Master shal have & his sucessours shall have the Custody & keeping of the Library erected in the same house & shal keep the same decently & the Bookes there \ put / shal preserve as well as he can \ from / inbezelment & Coruption & shal be careful all the orders both relating to himselfe & the said widows (which shall apeare in a Table of Orders hearunto annexed) And all other Orders heareafter to be made touching the said house & the government thereof by the said Thomas Sandes during his life and or by the said Trustees & there sucessours after his death well & truly from time to time; & att all times forever, to be observed keept. And that also the said Schoole Master & his sucessours shall have to his & there owne use & benefit the Remainder of all the Rents Issues Revenues & profits yearly & evry year for ever of all the before heareby granted premises after the weekly allowances \ & / all other if before heareby mentined Alowances for the said wido[ws] the Rent or Rents due to the respective Lord or Lordes out of all the before heareby granted premises the Reparation of the Burgage house;

[II.63]

And the Rest of the house belonging unto all and singler if before hearby granted premises, & such assesments as shall be due for & inposed upon if same (other then such as the under Ten\n/ants or Leases of the Landes & Tenaments in Strickland Roger & Skelsmerge by these presents granted & mentined now are or hearafter shall be bound to Repare & pay \ when / need requireth,) are first discharged & reducted; And that from & after the time the death, departure & deprivation of the former Schoole Master, the said Trustee & there sucessours or such \ person or / persons whom they shall nominate & appoynt shall pay or cause to be paied out of the yearly Revenues & profits of the before granted premises, The said weekly allowances & other the before hearby mentined allowance\es / unto the said wid[ows] according to the proportion in maner hearin before specified. And to see the houses aforesaid kept in good repaire, And it is fuly condescended unto and agreed upon by the said parties to there presents, And the true intent & meaning of them \ & / of these presents is, that it shal not be lawful at any time or times heareafter to the aforesaid Trustees[or] theire successours to charg convey imploy or convert the said Land or Tenaments premises with the appurtenances or any part thereof or the Rente, Issues & profits thereof, or of any part thereof, to any other use intent or purpose whatsoever therat befor hearein is specified & declared, And further it is \ fully / agred upon by all the said parties to these presents, And it is the full intent & meaning thereof that it shal & may be lawful for the said Tho. Sandes during his life & after his decease, for the said Trustees & those sucessours the maior part of them from time to time as they shal thinke meet) to make new Orders for the better Government of the said house Library & Widowes

[II.65]

& Schoole Master & there & his succcessours. Provided always & it is the true intent & meaning of these presents, that it shall & may be lawful to & for the said Tho. Sandes & his assignes at all tymes heareafter & from time to time during his life, to cut down take & carry away all such Timber & trees & other woodes whatsoever growing, upon any part of the before granted premises he shall thinke fit, with free Egress & Regress for taking & carrying away the same, Any thinge hearein contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstandinge.

In Witnesse whereof to the other side of these present Indentures remaineinge with the said Tho. Sandes; The said Major Aldermen & Burgesses have caused the seal of the said Corporation to be heare unto put the day & the yeare first above written. Anno Do. 1670.
Sealed with the Towne Seale & delivered by Thomas Fisher Esq. then Major, for & on the behalf of himselfe &c. in the presence of us, vizt:
William Brownsword
Thomas Jackson
James S. Simpson

Stephen Birkett
George Holme
Richard Appleby

[Machell's Notes: II.66]

The foundation of Kendall hospital with the library.
See the Gassendus de libra et Asse Romana.[75] Dr Gray.[76]
See the B. of pedegrees.

The [shield upon the] hospital at Kendal
S
T K
1661[77]

[II.67]

Constitutions & Order Table Observed in the Hospital

Every sister:
To hold her place onely during pure viduity[78] & exciser spinning & carding & making of raw whites (sine impedimento legali).[79] Not to be absent all night out of the house without the like cause – and to be 2ce at prayers every day (except Sunday & holidays when they shal goe to church) to hear divine service read by the schoolmaster without like cause to be allowd of by the said Reader and to behave her selfe decently & reverently \ otherwise. / For the 3[rd] offence in any of these cases (after 2ce admonition given by the founder or feoffees in trust \ she is / to be deprived.

Item. That none of them fall out with or abuse one another but be assistant both in sickness & health, nor shal lock or open one anothers dooers without consent but in case of great danger.
Item. By turns to cleanse the streat & backside of the house every week. & every one to cleanse their owne dooers. Nor no uncleanness by them or the Master, Sc. subpoena deprivationis[80] after 2ce admonition & to husband \ dress / \ cultivate / their gardnes every year upon pain of forfeiture: to the most careful \ widow / by the judgmente of the persons aforesaid.

Item. That they have no reteine[rs] unless one in som case of necessity & that a female to allowd of when they are sick by the said partyes upon pain of deprivation; if not removed within a fortnight after notice give by &c.

Item. The fore dooer not to be opened till 6 a clock in the morning betwixt the 11th March & Michael[mas] nor stand open betwixt that spacke after 7 a night. And from Michaelmas till the 11th of March – not to be opened before the day breake, nor unshut after the day is gon; unless upon extraordinary occasion at the discretion of the schoolmaster subpoena deprivationis.

[II.68]

Item. That the schoolmaster & his successors be payd afore hand half a years rent for distributeing to the widows accord[ing] to the grant, for which at his first enterance he shall give good security to the said persons to distribute the salary. And that what remains with him over & above not disposed of as it ought to bee, shal be deliverd to the said persons to be deliverd in case of a vacancy to the succeeding schoolmaster to be distributed according to the donors intent.
And what shall in charity be given to ~~any of~~ the said widdows joyntly shall be deposited in the Poore mans box in the said house & divided without partiality amongst them \ & the schoolmaster / on Xt

[75] Pierre Gassendi (Petrus Gassendus), 1592-1655; philosopher and scientist. Machell was referring to the weight of Roman coinage. Gassendi's attempt to ascertain the value of the Roman libra using a congius (a measure for liquids containing the eighth part of a Roman amphora, or about seven pints. OED), is described in Antoine-Yves Goguet, The Origin of Laws, Arts and Sciences, and their progress among the most ancient nations Vol. III (Edinburgh, 1775), 252-53.
[76] Dr Gray: Dr Haius. See II.41, above.
[77] In the MS, this is placed within a shield.
[78] Widowhood.
[79] 'Without legal impediment.'
[80] 'Upon pain of deprivation.'

Eve, & the eve of Penticost. & 6d per Quarter to \ be / deteined out of their salary towards bying of \ blew / gownes for Sundays & holliday; & what is awanting to be made up by the schoolmaster & Reader [with] forth of the overplus, of the revenues and rents isueing out the lands – which at the departure of any of them is to goe to her successor.
The schoolmaster carefully to reade divine service 2ce every day in the schoolhouse \ sine impedimento legali[81] / at 7 in the morne & 5 in the evening twixt Easter & Mich[aelmas] & at 9 in the m. & 3 in the Evening from thence til Easter except Sundays & holydays when he & they are to goe to church. & to instruct them in the Principles of Religion & holy living & shall (& to) teach poore boys gratis to write & read, to keep the\ booke[s] in the / library & a catalogue of them – & suffer men of quality to have free accesse to, & study \ & peruse / any booke therein, & register the names of succeeding benefactors.

[II.69]

Item. To inform of any offence don by any of the wid[dows] & keep the manufacture in good repare, & the messuages belonging thereto, which the under tenants are not bound to repare, & pay the wid[dows] their sallarys – and the chiefe lords of these lands their rents, & such Sesses as shall fall due for him.
And these orders \ to be read (I sup[pose]) / to the widdows monthly; & if he offend against the said orders he shuld be punished according to the merit of ~~his~~ \ each /offence, \ or / by Deprivation by the judgement of the said Mr Sands and after his Death the major part of the feofees.

Item. For Strickland Roger, St. Ketle, Skelsmerge & Patton (whence the lands lye which belong to this Hospital) when occasion shal be of Electing a wid[dow] forth of the said places – if there be not in them a \ widdow / qualified according to the orders of the house / the trustees may choose ~~out~~ \ forth / of ~~either~~ \ any of these / places, a single woman aged above 50 of good demeanure & reputation, & that worketh wool &c. ~~&~~ \ who is / not to mary. Subpoena deprivationis.

Item. That the apparel, beding & household-stuf of any ~~widow~~ \ person /dying within the said H[ospital] (or so much as possibly can be spared by the next of kin) shall remane to the successor or so much \ of them / as such person shal need – she paying for them as the rest of the widows shall appoint & judge fit.

[II.71]

Kendal Castle

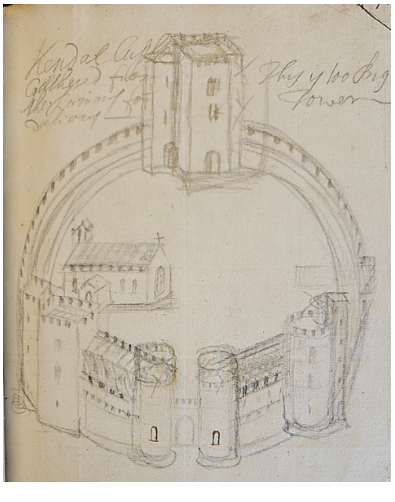

Figure 2.2.19. Kendal Castle. II.71.

[81] 'Without legal impediment.'

Gathered from the Ruines Foundations. This is too big a Tower.[82]

[II.75][83]

This place has been honoured by give Title both to D[ukes] E[arls] & Barones.
The Duke of K. was the fowerth son of James Duke of York, afterwards King of England.[84]

> Cambridge is Dead & Kendals Rideing Post.
> What fitter sacrifice for Denham[s] ghost.[85]

{Spoken upon occasion of som injury don De[n]ham even unto death*.}

The Earles were 3.
Sc. 1. John Duke of Bed[ford`] was by his br[other] King Henry the Vth made Earl of Kendal.[86]
2. John Duke of Som[er]set.[87]
& 3. John de Foix (of that illustrious family of the Foxes[88] of France) who King Henry the VI advanced to that honour for his faithful service in the French wars. Whence perhaps it is that som of this family yet in France are called de Candalia.

{Kendal Castle. Caput Baroniæ}[89]
These were only titular but the barons were purely her owne†; the \ 1[t] / of which is said to have bin Ivo Talbois – whose descendent William, by the consent of King Henry 2. called him selfe Will[iam] de Lancaster. Whose nece & heiress married Gilbert the son of Roger the son of Reinfrid. By whose daughter (the son of William being dead) the inheritance passed to Peter Brus Lord of Skelton, & Will[iam] Lindesay – from whom by the mothers side Ingelramus, Lord of Couscy in France, is said to be descended, by the account which we meet with in the History of Furness Abby. {See in the Inq[uisition] This Ingelramus maryed King Ed. the [blank] d[aughter] & was to have part of Kendal.} But by the daughter of Peter Brus, this Barony came to the Rosses of Werke; and by them the Honour lay

[Machell's Notes: II.75]

*de q. qu[ery]?}[90]

---

[82] Machell's comment on his sketch of Kendal castle.
[83] Also numbered p.19.
[84] The Duke of Kendal (1666-67), third son of James II and his wife, Anne Hyde, died aged only 10 months.
[85] This epigram was written by the poet Andrew Marvell (1621-1678), see G.A. Aitken (ed.), Satires of Andrew Marvell, sometime Member of Parliament for Hull (London and New York, 1892), 62. Marvell disliked the Earl of Clarendon and his son-in-law, the Duke of York; the lines were published after the death of the Duke of York's infant son (the Duke of Kendal) in May 1667, and during the grave illness of another young son (the Duke of Cambridge, who died in June 1667). The 'ghost' was that of Lady Denham (wife of Sir John Denham (1614/15-1669), surveyor general of the works), with whom the Duke of York was having an affair. When she was said to have been poisoned by drinking a cup of adulterated chocolate, Marvell accused the Duchess of York of the crime (though John Aubrey claimed that she was poisoned by the Countess of Rochester). See an account in the Spectator, 15 February 1873, 210. The Duchess of York was said to be haunted by the ghost of Lady Denham, and is rumoured to have bitten off part of her tongue in fear during the ghost's visitation. See Brendan O. Hehir, Harmony from Discords: A Life of Sir John Denham (Berkeley and Los Angeles, 1968), 207.
[86] John of Lancaster (1389-1435) was the third son of Henry IV. On 16 May 1414, he was created Duke of Bedford and Earl of Kendal, and on 24 November, Earl of Richmond. See J. Stratford, J., 'John [John of Lancaster], duke of Bedford (1389-1435), regent of France'. ODNB.
[87] John Beaufort (1401-1444), duke of Somerset, won favour from Henry VI, who saw him as a surrogate leader of the 'royal' army in France and awarded him the Barony of Kendal with lands to the value of £400 per annum. See G. Harriss, 'Beaufort, John, duke of Somerset, magnate and soldier'. ODNB.
[88] MS: 'Fuxes'. Jean de Foix (c.1415-1485), knight of the garter, was Captal (ruler) de Buch in Gascony; he was made first Earl of Kendal (Gallicised into 'Comte de Candalle') for services to Henry VI in France during the Hundred Years' War. See Douglas Richardson, Plantagenet Ancestry: A Study In Colonial And Medieval Families (Baltimore, 2nd edn, 2011), 284.
[89] 'Chief seat of the barony.'
[90] 'Of which, query.'

†{e Camdeno ni fallor.}[91]

[II.77][92]

in the Right of Inheritance, the Honour descended upon the Parrs whose Castle opposite to the town (the River Kent running betweene them) was grown old & decayd in Camdens time: & nothing now, but the carcass of it, is to be seen.[93] This castle is the Caput Baroniæ which has descended &c. ut ante.[94] And of this house was Katherine Par Queen of England, the 3 & last wife to King Henry the VIII.

Kendal Castle ~~now~~ \ was lately / in the hand of Sir Charles Anderton of Lostock in Lancashire.[95] Purchased of Lord Herbert, Marquess of Westm'land,[96] with the Parkelands adjoyneing thereto ? of George Walker of Kirkland Ralf*.[97]

The Marquess of Westm'land is now Duke of Burford.[98] [Informant] Mr Shepherd.[99]

{Church}

A large church with ~~an H~~ 4 r[ows] of pillars viij in a range – 3 of which make up the chancel which has consisted of iiij heretofore. An high steple with 5 noble bells†.

{Dedication}

The greatest bell is called St Michael {ergo the church‡. The rush bearing is St James⸸, & on that day they set up their poll.

{Beacon}

On the top of Dobfrier - on the W. side of the town: blewish gray-marble there for grave stones. All there Porise limestone.[100] No freestone nearer than Hutton Roofe. Blew slate from Kentmer & Ambleside. Gravel.

[Machell's Notes: II.77]

*?

†Mon[uments] & monumentall inscriptions, see in my papers – as also the length and breadth.

‡So, at Apalby: their greatest bell was calld St Lawrence. Which was lately cast into the least. Send to see the inscription about it?}

⸸ideo q.[101]

Q? of Mr Joseph Dawson, when and where the swallows!

---

[91] 'Out of Camden, unless I am mistaken.' Machell is correct: see Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 759D-E.

[92] II.77 is also numbered p.21.

[93] 'As for the Castle, the ancient Seat of these Lords, standing over against the towne, it runneth to decay through age and neglect.' Camden, *Britanni*a tr. Holland (1637), 759E.

[94] 'As before.'

[95] Sir Charles Anderton, 2nd Baronet, was born in 1657, the son of Sir Francis Anderton, 1st Baronet, and Elizabeth Somerset. He succeeded as the 2nd Baronet of Lostock, Lancashire on 9 February 1678 and died on 30 December 1691. http://www.thepeerage.com/p12319.htm.

[96] There were close familial relations between the Parrs and the Herberts. Anne Herbert née Parr (c.1515-1552), countess of Pembroke, was the second daughter and youngest surviving child of Sir Thomas Parr (1478-1517) and Maud Green (1492-1531). Her elder siblings were Katherine (Queen of England) and William Parr (Marquess of Northampton). Sometime after November 1537, Anne married William Herbert (1506/7-1570), second son of Richard Herbert (d.1510) of Ewyas, Wales, a gentleman usher to Henry VII. Within months of the marriage of Henry VIII and Katherine Parr, William Herbert received a knighthood, and, with Anne, was granted estates in Wiltshire. The Herbert star was to rise. In 1551 Herbert was made lord lieutenant of Wales, and next day was promoted to Earl of Pembroke. See N. Sil, 'Herbert, William, first earl of Pembroke (1506/7-1570).' ODNB. See also, S. James, 'Herbert [née Parr], Anne (c. 1515-1552), countess of Pembroke. ODNB.

[97] The transcription, 'Ralf', is insecure.

[98] On 18 September 1691, the Hon Sir Vere Fane (1645-93) of Apethorpe, Northamptonshire, and Mereworth, Kent, succeeded his half-brother, Charles (1635-1691), as fourth earl of Westmorland, http://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1690-1715/member/fane-hon-sir-vere-1645-93. His father, Mildmay (1602-1666), was the first of the family to be styled Lord Burghersh. See S. Wright, 'Fane, Mildmay, second earl of Westmorland (1602-1666)'. ODNB.

[99] For 'Mr Shepherd', see Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, I.525-26.

[100] Porous limestone.

[101] 'For this reason, query.'

[II.369B]

[Civil War at Kendal, 1646][102]
And in the breakeing out of the Civil War circa Anno 1646 – when the soldjers cast a Trench upon the Top of the Mound \ at Kendal, / they found in the earth som broken pieces of Musquet Barrells which confirmes my opinion that it was cast up as a Mount or Battery against the Castle.[103]

Figure 2.2.20. Mound at Kendal. II.369C.

[II.122]

[Machell's Checklists][104]

See in Kendal
X Docker Hall which q? & John the Philos!
? Mr Farringtons Narrative about the Sprint River.
X Thornbur Arms.
X Inscription Dr Gray.
Si[?][105] write.
Most knowing men.
q. Strange Aciden[t]s by Thunder or any curiosityes.
? Epitaph ad Hersham. Mr Green farmer.
X Families in the Chapels of Kendal.
The Method from Hersham or Bemol[106]– consider curiosityes before descents of Manner is the Better way.
X Mr Mayor Church Benefactor.
Fam[ilies] in the chaples of Kendal.
Hospital Monuments.
Bensons House Adjoyneing the wall.

Figure 2.2.21. Kendal Church. 'In Strickland, quier window'. II.122.

[102] This date appears historically incorrect because the First Civil War began in 1642. The numeral '6' has been created by heavy overwriting of some other digit. The reason for this is unclear.
[103] Roger Bingham suggests that the event Machell described here probably took place in the autumn of 1643, Roger Bingham, Kendal, A Social History (Milnthorpe, 1995, reprinted 1996), 354.
[104] This note page has been used as a check list; many of the entries have a cross beside them. X appears to denote a task completed.
[105] Unclear word.
[106] Unclear, shortened word. Bethom (Beetham)?

	X Kendal Church – p.12. 13	4^s 6^d & 4^s & 2^s
Lancashire Road	X Natland p.23	4
	X Crosscrake p.25	0: 1^s 6^d
	X Hutton Ch. p.27	0: 2^s 6^d
	X Preston Church in Burton p.2
	- ~~Christopher~~[107] ~~Hopkings at Holm~~	0: 2^s 6^d
	X Levins & 10 Sizars. Ibid.

Item.
K. Loansdal \ in Bundello / Bethom \ in Bund. / \ Dallan Tower /Hersham. Crosthwate in Bundello.[108]

Cockermouth Road	Burniside 31
	Staveley p.51.
	Ings p.53
	Ambleside in Gresmire p.33
	Windermere \ parish & in Bundello / p.35
	X Crooke Church p.37 a. b.
	X Winstar – Winstardale
Penrith Road	Selside Chapl. 39.
	Longsleddal q? Ch. – 41.
	Kentmer Chap. p.43.
Apalby Road	Grarig p. 45. Lamrig & in Bundell
	Underbarrow 47. a. b.
	Ings Chaple p.49} Ings & Hugill
	Witherslack p.22. P.

Guide – 0: 5: 0 &

Dokar & Dillikar Referend p.47
Skalethwate Rigg Ref. p.49
Skelsmergh & Patton p.51.

[II.77]

So much for Kendal. Now to chapples which are in this parish.

[107] MS: Xt.
[108] In bundello: 'in a bundle.'

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 3i. Parish of Kendal: Burneside]

Burnaside Chapel & Hall

[II.91][1]

Initial Notes
Burnaside Chapel & Hall, 2m. ab Ecclesia N.W. & by N.
Fam[ilies]. Strickland Roger [&] Strickland Kettle} 72.
In Casting Lotts, those that get the worse (in this Barony) say the[y] have got Kettleside – But if it relates to this place is not known.

[Burneside Chapel]

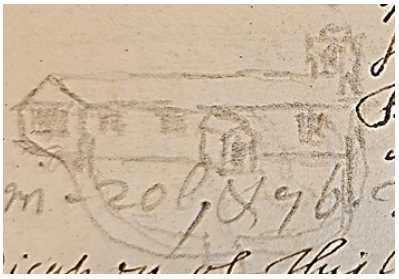

Figure 2.3i.1. Pencil sketch of Burneside Chapel. II.91.

Within, 20 L[ong], & 7 b[road]. Tis boarded & in pretty good Re[pair]

1. Dedication
The Dedication of this chapel is not known, nor can it be discovered. Q. of the churchwardens in the chest. There is a well, now calld the millers, formerly St Oldswalds[2] well {a Capella 30 yards N.E. but the bell is St Gregory. Ed. Tovey Schoolmaster – no salary – has his vic[tuals] and get 30 per Annum.}[3]

[2. Places in the Chapelry]
There is the foundation of a chapel scarcely discoverable at a Place called Chaple le Wood[4] near Hundhow – a Capella 1m. N.W. & from the Hall 1m. W. \ There is Tenant right house, formerly called Strickland now Godmond Hall, near unto it, which has an Old Tower.
Both side of the cappelry are calld Strickland, yet when they are particularly mentiond, that on the S. Side is calld Strickland Keattal, that on the N. Strickland Rogeras. But when you speake of the Chapelry it is calld by one name, Burnaside Chapelry.

[3. Endowment]
The Chaplin is Mr Alex. Farington (Schoolmaster of Kendal. It hath noe house belonging it but an Ancient Sallary of about 6 li per Annum, q[uery]of Mr Farrington.)[5] Antiently, 20 nobles, lay'd upon the Chaplery by seates ~~in the quire~~.[6]
Burnsite seat 10s.

---

[1] Also numbered p.31. a margin comment in Machell's hand states, MS. 'N.B. See Staveley Chapel in the parish of Kendal & mem[orandum] the elaf skin.'
[2] The church is dedicated to St Oswald.
[3] '30' is unaccompanied by any information on its value.
[4] Chapeltree Wood: Smith, Place-Names 1, 158.
[5] Alexander Farington, born c.1660, son of Lawrence Farington of Preston; graduated Oxford BA 1680; headmaster of Kendal Grammar School aged 21 in 1681 until after 1691; vicar of Penrith from 1695 until his death in 1699. CCED; see also OAD, although both fail to record Farington having been chaplain at Burneside.
[6] A noble was worth 6s 8d (a third of a pound).

[2.] The next seat ~~9s & […]~~
3. 1 & 6 an house.[7]
Next xvi[d]. Next 14[d]. Next 10. & so on to the lowest seates, which are 4[d] a seate for man & wife.

The people has the Recommendation and the vicar the Approbation of a Chaplain. But they give a voluntary augmentation for Preaching & 5 markes per Annum out of Lands in Stavely, given by Mr Rob. Kitchen, Alderman of Bristol, for a preaching minister; for defect to a Decon; for [defect] to a School; for def[ect] to the poore: \ a / tradition.
{Sir Barthol. Jennings, in Memory – a Reader only.}

[4. Tithes]
For Corne they pay Meale Silver to the farmers under Trinity College, being Sir John Otway;[8] Hay Silver to the Vicar with their Easter Reconinges & all other smal Tithes.[9] Wool in kinde to Rectory. For a Tithe Lamb, a prescription of 14d – (5 is 7d and 6 is 1s.)[10]

[The Chapelry]

{5. Bounds}*
It is Bounded on the E. with ~~Grarig divided~~ Skelsmegh – by the Bounder there taken; on the S. with the precincts of the mo[ther[church to the Lib[erties] of Kendallà from which tis divided by Acke End Sike; on the west with Underbarrow (?) divided by Caple rig†; on the N. with Crooke & Long Sleddall.

Machell's Notes: [II.91]

{*N.B. Tho. Dennison of Lo\w/thwate late Balif: Hook nosed, my kinde & ingeniouse Landlord & informer.}

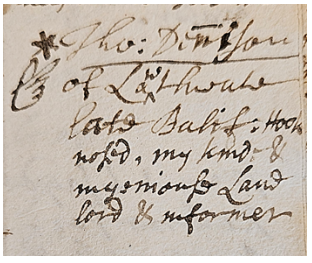

Figure 2.3i.2. Thomas Dennison. 'Hook nosed, my kinde & ingeniouse Landlord & informer.' II.91.

[II.92]

{Lords of the Marquess foe & Richmond foe, Lumley foe.}[11]
He[12] sayes the last of the Lancasters, Baron[s] of Kendal, had Isue 4 daughters (the Booke shews their names), whereof one dyed unmaryed. The other 3 were: one of them maryed to the Duke of Richmond, & those that held under him were calld Richmond foe.[13] Another to the Marquess of [7] The numerals here are unclear.

[8] For Sir John Otway see Part 2, Ch.4, Beetham, II.278.
[9] Meal-silver: see the English Glossary,
[10] In the margin here, Machell listed more headings which he incorporated into text on II.92-94.
[11] William II de Lancaster (d.1184) left a daughter, Helwise, who married Gilbert Fitz-Reinfred. Their son, William, assumed his mother's name, de Lancaster, but failed to produce an heir, so in 1246 the barony descended through his sisters to his nephews, Peter de Brus (d.1272) and Walter de Lindsay (d.1271). The Lindsay half of the barony became known as the Richmond Fee, while the Brus share was further divided to become the Marquis and Lumley Fees. See Sarah Rose, 'The Barony of Kendal', CW3, 15 (2015), 45-56.
[12] Presumably, Thomas Dennison.
[13] In 1531/2, John, Lord Lumley, agreed with Henry VIII to exchange his part of the barony for land in the South. Henry granted the Lumley lands to his natural son, Henry Fitzroy, duke of Richmond. See Rose, 'Barony of Kendal', CW3, 48.

Northampton (forsan Par), and those under him were calld Marquess foe.[14] The third was maryed to the Lord Lumley and those under him were calld Lumley foe, which last was in Bellingham & is now in Mr Graham.[15] Being quarter Barron.
The other 3 are in the Crowne – whereof 2 partes were calld Richmond foe, & the 3 – Marquess foe*.

{Manner Houses and Halls}
There are in this Chaplery = 1. Burneshead. 2. And the Queen \ Dowager / has some Tennants in Strickland Roge[r], & som in Kettle†.

Manner of Burnaside

{Tenants}
The Tennants are generally Customary, Arbitrary & Heriotable: Excepting 4 or 5? that have long agoe purchased themselves to a Fine Certane.[16] {The boones purchased of[f] to a certane sum of money calld Service Money.} ~~And~~ Sir Christ. Phillipson ~~was~~ is called as a freehold[er] of this manner, perhaps for Helsfell; & Mr Strickland for Garnet House. None keeps any Courtes but Mr Brathwate, who keeps a Court Baron at Burnshead Hall. The Queens Tennants which hold 11 or 12 Tenements in Strickland Roger, being Marquess foe, appear at Kendall.

[Machell's Notes: II.92]
{*He has a Booke of it. Richmond Foe. Memorandum: Tis said Katherine Par [was] Borne in Staveley Park; her mother being taken ill a hunt[ing]. Inform[ant] Capt. Leonard Airay.}[17]
{† Strickland Kettle is said to be so calld from an hollow place below the Bridge ~~a~~ near that side of the water.}

[II.94]

{Burnaside Boones}
They pay Hens & Capons to Burn-hall: There were Bellinghams, the ancient Tenants; Knipes & Batemans, which 2 last ran into Bellingham agane; & are now Grahams. Test. Ch. Phil[lipson].[18]

[II.93]

[Burneside Hall]
The Manner House is B[urneside] Hall where the Courtes are kept: which formerly belongd to Sir Roger Bellingham who had a son calld Robert who lived at Milhow by Burnaside hall, where 3 ladyes, his daughters, were borne – amongst whome tis said the Estate was divided. \ This is Tradition only. / ~~Afterwards~~ \ The Ped[igree] sayes in, / it was in the Machells [possession] in the Time of Queen Mary, as the people talke of it yet †.
{2 Pond[s] afore the gate with a bridge betwixt, & 2 Ilands with 2 Plane Trees. Stored with Tench Trout & Eale.} {More game[19] but scarce on Potter fell.}

[14] On the death of Thomas de Ros, the fee passed to the Parr family through the marriage of his granddaughter, Elizabeth de Ros (d.1395) to Sir William Parr (d.1404). The Marquis fee descended through four generations before coming to William Parr (d.1571), brother of Queen Katherine Parr, who was created Baron Parr in 1539, earl of Essex in 1543, and marquess of Northampton in 1547. This division of the barony obtained its name from the last title. See Rose, 'Barony of Kendal', CW3, 48.
[15] The de Thweng family owned land in Kendal Barony in the 14th century. At the death of the last male de Thweng (1374), it passed to three female heirs, then to a grandson, Robert de Lumley, and then to his brother Ralph (1383). This portion of Kendal Barony became known as the Lumley fee. It was purchased piecemeal by the Bellingham family. In 1689, Alan Bellingham (d.1693) sold it to Colonel James Grahme (d.1730). See Rose, 'Barony of Kendal', CW3, 47-48.
[16] Paid a lump sum for the property. For 'fine certain', 'heriotable' etc., see the English Glossary.
[17] Katherine Parr was born either at Great Kimble, Buckinghamshire, or Blackfriars, London. See S. James, 'Katherine [Kateryn, Catherine] [née Katherine Parr] (1512-1548), queen of England and Ireland, sixth consort of Henry VIII'. ODNB.
[18] 'Witnessed by Christopher Phillipson'.
[19] Moor-game birds: grouse, particularly the red grouse. See F.T. Buckland, Birds and Bird Life (London, 1863), 81-89.

[Helsfell Hall]
There is another Hall cald Helsfell Hall: An Ancient freehold – Long in the Phillipsons {All the Free Holds & the Lords of Bur[neside] pay Free Rent to the Queen circa 30.}

{Waifes}
{The Queens Balif take up all except in the dem[aine] of Burnashed.}

[II.94]

[Strickland Roger and Strickland Kettle]
All the freehold in Strickland Roger was formerly given by Robert de Mustel to Gi[l]bert de Lancaster for his homage & Service, paying 4^{s} viii^{d} Rent yearely to Lord Gilbert son of Rogeri. And then it was only calld Strickland, without the distinction (from a copy of the Deed).

[II.93][20]

And Halfe a Duszen in Strikland Kettle or thereabouts, being Crown Tenant & of Richmond foe, appear there also: being Customary Tenants & Heriotable, but at Fine Certane. Sc. 3 years old Rent on the Death or Alienation of \ every / Tenant. ~~&~~ \ Rent / upon the Kings Death onely double the ~~right~~ Rent. And these have belongd to the Crowne ever since the Rebellion in Queen Elizabeth Time?[21]
Mr Bellingham had, & Mr Graham now has, 4 Tenants in Strikland Roger; & som in Strickland Ketle. who are Customary Arbitrary & Heriotable, but free from bonds. And these appear at Crooke beyond Staveley at som of the Tenants houses ther where the Lord doth appoint.

[Machell's Notes: II.93]
{(Ambleside Ch[urch] – a Gresmer 2 m ½ N.W.) See Gresmer in my paper – & memorandum, it payes a portion to Kendal there.}
† Query if Fitswilliam never had it for he was owner of Cowan Parke \ Head / \ A[nswer]. / It was Purchased by Mr. Thomas Brathwate a Lawyer. Who has Isue:
1. Thomas to whom he gave Warcop.
2. Rich[ard] \ the Poet / to whome he gave Burnishead. which Richard had Isue Sir Thomas Brathwate who had Isue Thomas Brathwate Esq. the present proprietor.
Poet Brathwate q. what books he writ.[22]

[II.94]

The River (Spri[n]t) from Sleddall ends ¼ m. S.E. from the Chappel, dischargeing itselfe into Kenet ther.

[Bridges]

[Sprint]
Wadshow
Chap-Brig. A wood bridge had below […] abov.[23]
Bitchill Brig.
Another [of] wood, called Brigend.
Another of wood calld Dalend-Brig.[24]
Another below calld Garnet brig: Garnet Stang
W. Sprint.

{Kent}
S. Stram[on]gate: stone
Milbrig W. Kendal
Netherb[rig] stone
Haes-brig by Sisar: stone
Forcebrig: stone
Levins b[rig].: stone
All these last:[25] Kent.

[20] Also numbered p.33.
[21] Machell was referring to 'Dacre's Raid' (1569), a result of Leonard Dacre's 'double dealings' with government and rebels during the Rising of the North. See R. S. Ferguson A History of Cumberland (London, 1890), 249-50; see also Machell Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby Town and Parishes, I.341, III.55.
[22] Originally placed on MS II.94. For the poems of Richard Brathwaite (born Burneshead Hall, second surviving son of Thomas Brathwaite, barrister, and Dorothy Bindloss), see J. Sanders, 'Brathwaite, Richard (1587/8-1673), poet and writer'. ODNB. Sanders argues that although Brathwaite's works became unfashionable, his 'œuvre is evidence of a gentleman's literary activity in the 17th century as well as of particular approaches to social and political issues.' See also Machell, Part 2, Ch.9, Windermere, II.319, II.339.
[23] Text is crammed into the gutter of the page here; some words are unclear.
[24] Dale End bridge.
[25] From Stramongate onwards.

{Curiosities in Art, Nature}

On Potter Fell at a place calld Laythwate (an even piece of ground) are 2 Round Cirques of Stone about a Yard above ~~ground~~ the surface of the Earth and a~~bout~~ an Arrow shot distant from one another.

{? A calfe in Underbarrow 6 years agoe, would have sucked with each mouth; which they kild.}

Robert Hodgson the informants former \ servant / is above 100 years of age; & mowed & \ sheard / reaped the last year; & goes a foote to Kendal market.

{Limestone plenty in Strickland Kettle but none in Roger. Rags & Rag slate.}

Cowan Head Parke, had formerly dear as is reported; & there yet remanes the walls of an old lodge. Clean marts & wildcats. The wood demolished all but Rammell – i.e. Garding or Rise.[26]

They digd for Lead at Potter-Fell, but found none but a little white spar.

{Great store of Crevesses in Ackeron beck which comes from Potter Fell to Bowston bridge. Trouts & eales.}[27]

{Sledall. Store of peat & wood. Som Juniper – Laurels & Bayes. Raspberryes. Ble[berryes] a[nd] som straw[berrye]s.}

[26] Rammell? Longsleddale has Ramslack Gill, a ramm = hollow. Smith, Place-Names 1, 163.
[27] Crevis or crevice: the crayfish. OED.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 3ii. Parish of Kendal. Crook and Winster]

[II.99][1]

Crooke Chappel in Kendall
15 Oct. 91

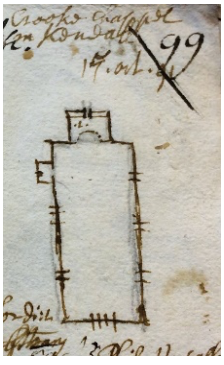

Figure 2.3ii.1. Plan of Crook Chapel. II.91.

{A Curvitate forsan montium circum ambientium}[2]

Crooke Chapl. W. from K. 4 miles. 20 yards long – is 7 broad – a Tower with 1 Bell. In neat repare excepting the floore. Qu. if they bury &c.

Bounded on the S. with Underbarrow; the \ W. / with Windermer Parish; on the N. with Stavely in Kendal; on the E. with Strik[land] chapelry.[3]

{Sall[ary] 3li per Annum – at a Certane Rent from every house. But the Quakers making ill payment,[4] he only receives about 40s – a small subsist[ence] where 4li is p[ai]d for diet.
{Mr Dennison a pretty neat young man & writes a good hand.}

There [are] 2 hamletts in it. One called Crooke,[5] where the Tenants are Arbitrary. It belongs to Mr Graham. Queen none: nor Sir Ch?[6] And another cald Winstar – distance a Capella 1 mile ½ West. The Tenants mostly belongs to John Phil[ipson] of Calg[ar]th.

{Crooke Hall}

{Phil[ipson's] Hall cald Crooke Hall may seem to have bin the manner house in. And it hath som Tenements belonging unto it; but they all appear ~~to inda~~ \ at / Mr Grahams being lately purchased of Mr Bellingham. And this is the Seat of Sir Christopher Phil[ipson].} Sir Christopher Phillipson informeth me that Crooke Hall was formerly called Thwatterden, of which, & to whom it belongd, see more at Windermer in the Account of the family of Phillipsons.[7]

---

[1] This page was written using several shades of ink; it was clearly added to several times.
[2] Crook is so called, 'possibly from lying within the curve of the surrounding mountains.'
[3] Burneside.
[4] That is, refusing to pay tithes.
[5] MS: '~~But~~ One ~~Hamlet~~ called Crooke.'
[6] Sir Christopher Philipson (1646-1709) of Crook Hall; elected to Parliament for Westmorland in 1679; defeated in 1681 and 1685; knighted by Charles II in May 1681; died in debt due to straitened circumstances. He was the last male of the Philipson line at Crook Hall. See Scott Sowerby and Noah McCormack (eds), The Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal Hall from 1633 to1688, CWAAS Record Series 23 (Kendal, 2021), 450.
[7] See Windermere Parish, II.309A-312, 323, 330-334, 338-339, 343. For another account of the Philipsons, see E.W. Brunskill, 'A Westmorland Family: Fortunes of the Philipsons', published as a series of three articles in the Westmorland Gazette, 3 September 1927, 24 September 1927, 1 October 1927.

And to this Hall there are yet belonging 14 Customary Tenants – arbitrary & heriotable – who pay Boones also – as shearing &c. – to Sir Christopher Phillipson [in] person {ipse dixit.}[8]

{Gent. Houses}
Crooke Hall – Sir Christopher Phillipson. No more freeholds.
{Qu?} q. what freeholds in Crooke: how many fam[ilies]? Winstar: how many fam[ilies]? In all 34 fam[ilies].[9]
Which customary tenants – to whom. Where they Answer?
What Manner House, Hall or Castle in Winstar – none.[10]

{Rarityes in Nature}
One Robert Browne of this place lived to 120 yeares of age; of which all the neighbourhood & Sir Thomas Brathwate his selfe \ being curiouse in these things / was satisfied by undenyable circumstances which the man could Remember. He was buried about 20 years ab anno Dom.1672.

[II.97][11]

[Further Notes]

In Kendal [parish]. Fam[ilies] in both – 34.

Crooke Chappel I have, & they talk [of] Winstar-Chappel being an Appendage to it*.
Both Crooke & this has but one chapel-warden, & these pay the Sallary, 4li: 15s: 0d., of which 12s per Annum is in Land; and one Mr \ Rich. / Dixon clames the chaple yard†.
13s per Annum in Stock. The rest is [charged] at so much an house, som paying 12 some 9s, according to a ancient Booke which they have amongst the[m]; now in custody of Richard Grisedal \ now / Curate there.[12]

The Chappelry
The Chappelry Recommends & the Vicar of Kendal Approves of the Chaplain there. And part of the Hamlet of Cartmel Fell \ in Lanc[ashire] / payes to the Chaplain but is not in the Lordship of Winstar, nor Parish of Kendal, but in the Chapelry; it being only for Ease of the neighbourhood, which pay all their dues to the respective Parishes.

Figure 2.3ii.2. Winster Chapel. II.97.

{Winstar Chap[el]
15 [long] 8 [broad]; 1 Bell; a large steple.[13] {About 30 year since the stones fell upon Sunday morning. And som of the stones fell upon ~~Agnes~~ Ann Comston. But she was not harmed.}

[8] 'As he says himself.'
[9] This phrase, written in pencil, is Machell's answer to his question, after due enquiry.
[10] This word is written in pencil – another answer to a query.
[11] Also numbered p.37.
[12] Richard Grisedale: ordained deacon; curate and schoolmaster at Crook Chapel (1692-1733). CCED.
[13] MS: '1 Bell – a large ~~with the~~ steple.'

[School]
6d per quarter of all the chap[elry]. For teaching of the rest, 12d or as they can agree & so doe farmers.}

[House?]
The House is Cawgath in Windermer Parish, a Capella 3m. N., where they pay Boone\s/‡.[14] Each Tenement One. Rents Fines & Heriots. But have a Court Barron kept at Winster in any [house] which the Stuart appointes. Ergo no manor house.

{Bounded}
It is bounded on the E. ~~S. & N.~~ with Crook Chaple[ry] \ in Kendal / to the repare of which it has payed of late⸸, & from which tis divided by the Bounds of the Lordship; on the ~~SW &~~ S.E. & S with Crosthwate in Hersham, divided by the B[oundary] of the Lordship; on the S. West with Cartmel fell Chaple[ry] from which tis divided by the River Winstar which divides the County yet so that Hight of Cartmell[15] payes sallary to it – & belong to the chaple but neither to the Parish nor County; on the West with the Highe End of Cartmel fel; on the N. with Windermer parish||.

{Mr Rich. Dixon & the Schoolmaster, Informers}

[Machell's Notes: II.97]

*q[uery]? How.
† de quo qu?[16]
‡ Shearing & Capons.
⸸{no but a gift given?}
|| {Forsan High End being near adjacent payes to the salary & have rights in the chappl.}

[14] MS: '? The ~~Manner~~ House is Cawgath \ in Windermer Parish a Capella 3m. N. a Capella / where they ~~appear, &~~ pay Boone & Capons.'
[15] 'Cartmel Height': Cartmell Fell's high ground and its inhabitants.
[16] 'On what grounds?'

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 3iii. Parish of Kendal: Old and New Hutton]

[Old and New Hutton]

[Initial Notes]
2m. E. Ecclesia inclining S.
{Ex[penses]: 0:0:3 more.}[1]

Families
Old Hutton 38.[2]
New Hutton 26, a Capella E. ½ m. Hutton ith Hay 35,[3] a Capella ¼ m. N.W.
No freeholds. These 2[4] belong to the Church. Both Queens tenants pay rent heriot; best land good.
Fine 3 pl[…][5] upon death of Queen.

Tithe: Meal silv[er];[6] no hay.
& Holm Scale 14; in Burton parish but in the chappelry & Constablewick of Old Hutton ratio.[7]

[Chapels and] Scholl Endowment
The mother churches are kept indemnify.[8]

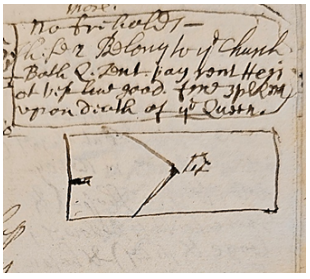

Figure 2.3iii.1. Hutton Chapel. II.87.

Rushbearing – on St James day.
One Bell.
In the Chapleyard ~~at~~ \ near / the West End of the chaple Mr Henry Bateman of Bleas[9] within this chapelry gave Floddenhill to it – worth about 6 or 7 per Annum.[10] And every house payes a proportion according to their Estates, amount to above 5li per Annum, which is the Ancient Sallary time immemorial.

A chappel, at St Sunnendayes Water, W. Capella ¼ [known] onely by tradition. And one ~~at~~ \ near / Hutton a little beyond the Bridge End – And an old stone house has belongd to the chaple with freestone windows & Iron bars with great plankes. {James \ Dawson / has seen the timber on it.}[11]
Bou[n]ds

[1] This appears to be a note of expenses made during Machell's Itinerary; see also Part 2, Ch.3vii, Natland, II.79.
[2] This number has overwritten '26'.
[3] Hutton i' th' Hay: a hay was an enclosed space; enclosure; park. From Old Engish hege or haga. OED.
[4] New Hutton and Hutton ith Hay.
[5] Unclear word.
[6] See the English Glossary.
[7] By reason (of its proximity).
[8] Indemnified against loss of dues from the chapelries, which were semi-autonomous entities.
[9] Bleaze Hall.
[10] Flodding hill, also Floddenhill, was glebe-land. A field in the parish of Kendal is called Flodder; there is also a Flodder beck. See Smith, Place-Names 1, 128. As Machell's 'r' often resembles his 'n', this word could be either Flodden or Flodder.
[11] James Dawson was the miller whose ingenious machinery captivated Machell, see below, II.88.

On the East side Killington Chappel; on the S. to Preston Ch[apel] in Burton; on \ S. & / West Crosscrake; North, Grarig chapelry.

The Lordship of Hutton
The Lordship of Hutton onely consisting of Old Hutton & Holm Scale.
Tythe Corne – None but Tithe Meal Silver 7 or 8^{d} for 10li per Annum. No hay nor Hay Silver. Payable to Trinity College & leasd by Sir John Otway.[12] But wool in kinde & xiiij^{d} a Lamb to the Vicar.

Hall & Gentlemens houses
A place on the Com[mon] called White, N. a Capella ½. But no ap[pearance] of any building – But there is a House calld the Town House a Capella ¼ N. which is supposd from the name to have bin the Manner – & now it belongs to Mr Pricket.[13]

[A Lightning Strike]
In ~~Cockhead~~ \ Cocklehead[14] / pasture a Capella 1m. N.E. – where they get Peates or Turfe – 10 years agoe – \ an houre / after a Great Thunderclap & a shower, a streame of lightning came unperceiveably upon 3 men, a woman & a Dog (but seen by others), which struck one man Dead – Rich[ard] Whitehead – & a Dog dead. & the 2 men & woman were struck astonishd as dead; & when the[y] came to them selfes, they found them selves burnd in a wonderful manner. The womans feete at the toe \ underneath / & the heal were burnd with the stockings – the shews being unharmed – And their clothes were burned as with tobacko ashes or pale shot. There came out of the wounds \ of the womans toes / like White Sand – Agnas Gilpin, cur[e]d by Mrs Bateman, being the party informed of this; in presence of diverse witness who remember the Accident.[15]

[II. 88]

[Becks and Tarns]
Cockhead beck comes from the peat moss by Beathom Hall on the N. of it, & so to Milthrop Sands. St Sundayes runs by Bleas-Hall at the W. side of – & to Milthrop.[16]
Hud-Ridding-Tarne [17] \ a Capella ½ m. E. / b[readth] – 200. l[ength] – 200. Pikes, troutes, which [fetch] 1d & 2d a piece – like charrs. Eales. Tench lately put in.
Lang-Tarn a Capella 1m. N.E. l[ength] 200 – b[readth] 100. The same except Tench – Many pikes & large – som a yard long.

[12] Sir John Otway: c.1620-1693. 1st son of Roger Otway of Birkside Hall, Middleton, Westmorland by his 2nd wife Anne, daughter of John Mayer, headmaster of Sedbergh School. Educated at Sedbergh 1631-36; St. John's, Camb., adm. 3 June 1636, aged 16, BA 1640, MA 1643; Gray's Inn 1638; fellow of St. John's, Camb. 1640-3. Otway's ancestors (Visitation of Yorkshire, 1664), had been settled at Middleton for four generations. Though Otway was born at Birkside Hall, his father acquired Ingmire Hall, which became the family residence. Otway embraced an academic career but in 1643 after rejecting the Covenant he was expelled from his fellowship. He served with the royalist forces in the first Civil War, after which he qualified as a barrister and succeeded in living down his Cavalier record so well that the Rump made him a J.P. and a militia commissioner. As an intimate friend of the royalist agent Dr John Barwick on the one hand, and the brother-in-law of two roundhead colonels on the other, he rendered important services in winning over George Monck and the Irish brigade to the Restoration. See History of Parliament, Online. See also Part 2, Ch.4, Beetham, II.278.
[13] Prickett: a lawyer and governor of Hutton School, see Machell's Itinerary, Part 2 Ch.10, II.387. Alan Prickett Esq. of Natland Hall is listed as a recorder of Kendal in 1673, see Cornelius Nicholson, The Annals of Kendal: being a historical and descriptive account of Kendal and the Neighbourhood with biographical sketches of many eminent personages connected with the town (London and Kendal, 2nd edn, 1861), 176, 287. See also AWL, 239.
[14] Cocklea Wood and Cocklehead are referenced in Smith, Place-Names I, 127.
[15] For another version, see Machell's Itinerary, Part 2, Ch.10, II.383.
[16] St Sunday's Beck (OS Grid: SD545885) runs into Stainton Beck. Near Milnthorpe, Stainton Beck joins Peasey Beck to form the River Bela. https://co-curate.ncl.ac.uk/stainton-beck-st-sundays-beck/.
[17] Hoodridding, see Westmorland Place-Names.

~~Lill~~ Toft Tarne – a Capella ½ E. l[ength] 150[18] – b[readth] ½ as much. Trout Eales & no pikes. & Cocland water has the same fish.
Ponds.

[In Nature]
Martes of both sortes.
Raspberryes in abundance all over.
\ No / limestone – Blew hard walling stone. Gravel.

[Mill]
{!!! A Mil at Brig End – E.? from the Chap. – 1m. Preast Mill – A most ingenious Mill which does not only grinde on the inside but turns 3 grindestones in the Cog-hole, which is a shop – (& there he has his Bellows, forge & Stiddy[19]) – & has an engine for ~~grindeing~~ Boare of Gunns.} & Rasor-Grindstone & Glazeing wheal.
{In the ~~Low~~ \ High / Mill is a Sweap or Horse, which being made with long Polls & Running on an Axel Tree, takes up a load of corne, as shut of horseback & pulls it up to the Hopper; where opening the poake,[20] it runns in of it selfe and is discharged into the Arke of the Low Mill which receives the meal. And there they have a dressing cive[21] which moves by the wheale & water as of it selfe. And for meldar,[22] a pipe to Discharge unto the outside where a Hoval 2 coll[ecting] fann[s].}[23]
Per James Dawson {Born at Preston nere by the Chaple-cock. […]}[24]

[Bateman of Blease Hall]
They were all in Tenancy, Rent Fine Heriot & dues, but purchased themselves free \ above / 60 years since, to a foe farm as they call it – paying their ancient Rent only. Purchased of Mr Vaughan of Derwen near Yorke, there being no freeholds before. There were 4 purchasers that cheated the tenants – Reserving these Rents to themselves; & within a few years, X or so – they fell into Decay – & now there is not one of those names to be found or heard of. But they sold of[f] the Rent, which was Resold – and at length came into the hands of Roger Bateman of Bleas Hall. Yet they do not Esteem him Lord of the Manner.

Mr Hen[ry] benefactor to the chapel = d. of Mr Rawlinson of [Blank][25]
|
Roger B[ateman] = Knipe. Broughton.
|
Mr Hen[ry] B. = Mrs Allison {1w[ife] Mr Hen. Bateman. 2 wife.}
= Mrs Standard
|
Jane

{Bleas Hall ½ a mile S.W. a Capella., on the Banke of St Sun[day's Beck]: a little house before the purchase.}

[18] 150 superimposes 200: perhaps 200 was an earlier estimate.
[19] A 'stiddy' is an anvil: Dictionaries of the Scots Language, Online.
[20] A bag, as in 'poke', formerly used as a measure of quantity, varying according to the quality and nature of the commodity. OED.
[21] A sieve, for sifting any dry material, liquid, etc., also specifically for separating the finer from the coarser grains of some loose material: Dictionaries of the Scots Language, Online.
[22] Meldar or melder: the quantity of corn taken to a mill by a customer to be ground at one time, Dictionaries of the Scots Language, Online.
[23] A hovel was a receptacle for grain; fans were winnowing devices. OED.
[24] The rest is obscured by the binding but the words might be, 'watches' and 'joyner'. The passage radiates Machell's enthusiasm for all things mechanical; see references to his study desk, his font-cover, his family nick-name: 'Thomas the contriver', and much more in Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.537, I.561, I.563; Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, III.82.
[25] In the MS here, one other pedigree was attempted, but crossed through.

[Old Hutton School]

[II.88B] [26]

Westmorland, Old Hutton
To Mr Jackson Cheif Master of the Free School at Applebie
These

[II.88A]

Old Hutton School

Sir
Upon the Reseipt of yours & Mr Wase's paper;[27] upon enquiry I found that our School writeings were in Mr Stanfords hand of Kendall, who at that very juncture of time was gone a journey to London, so that I could not possibly give you an exact account till his Return, then upon examination we found something disputable who should be the right governours, for though we had them by our writeings particularly appointed & named, yet the death of some, & others that are become concern'd in paying the school wage (who cannot be properly governours) put us to some trouble in giving you the precise number; but now though all Mr Wase's introgatories are not Answerable, yet as many as are, you have truly given in as follows by Sept. 16. 76.
Yours to serve you to's power
Edm. Lodge.

1. The Free Grammer School of Old Hutton in Westmorland founded Anno 1613.[28]
2. The founder: Edward Miller of K. Kendall yeoman.
3. Endowed by his last will with 20li a year.
4. The present schoolmaster Edmund Lodge.
5. The governours. Allan Prickett Esquire, Roger Bateman, Henry Wilson Gent, Robert Robinson, William Speight, Thomas Robinson, Mathew Mitchell, John Gathorn, James Dawson, James Beck yeoman. Nicholson.[29]

[II.88]

[Further Brief Notes]
There is a woman here called Margaret Whitefield above 100. & many live long.
{A journeyman for 40d. & 59d. worke.}
{Killington has it fee simple.}

[II.89]

Preston Ch. a Burton 3m½ N. & N.E. See Mr Tim Bankes at Crooklands.
Kirkby Loansd. See 8 E. & 6. S.
The papers Mr Briggs.
Bethom vide p. [blank]
6m. S. & 6. W.
Mr Jackson Dallem Towers.
Hersham 4m. a Kendal S.
Mr Farmer.
Levins.
Sizars.

[26] Letter (1676) to Richard Jackson, Appleby schoolmaster, from Edmund Lodge, relating to Old Hutton School.
[27] Christopher Wase's Westmorland Schools Survey (issued from 1673) was contemporaneous with Machell's research. See P.J. Wallis, 'Westmorland schools about 1676: Christopher Wase's Survey', CW2, 67 (1967), 168.
[28] This text is not in Edmund Lodge's hand; the writer was probably the recipient, Jackson.
[29] This name was added in Machell's hand. Nicholson was the curate and schoolmaster at Hutton, see Machell's Itinerary, Part 2, Ch.10, II.382.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[II.121][1]

[Chapter 3iv. Parish of Kendal: Ings and Hugill]

Ing-Chappel

{Ings & Hugill}

35 [families]
There is a Ruine of an old Chapl. Calld St Anns \ at / Gers garth, i.e. grass yard: a Capella ¼ N.W.
{Mr Robi[n]son Curate - I was not in this Chapel; neither was he at home.}[2]

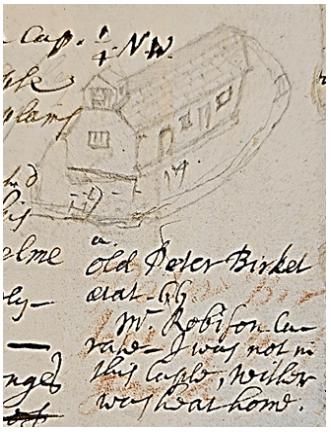

Figure 2.3iv.1. Chapel at Ings. II.121.

[II.121]
It is an Appendant to Stavely chapl where the people have Seates, Christen & Bury, & pay something to the Chaplains Sallary. It was not known by what name it was Dedicated but their Rush bearing formerly was on St James his day.[3] The Bell was given 15 years agoe by Mr Helme of Totron alijs Higher fair banke; \ ½ of / which was lately Mr Gayes – & is now sold to Mr Robinson the curate. The House ~~ner~~ \ adjoyneing / the chapl yard on the West belongs the chaplaine (or curate) & an Ancient Sallary was 7 nobles[4] \ 2: 6: 8 / of which every house payes a proportion on, greater or less according to their seates; which sallary was Augmented with 5 markes per Annum, pay'd yearly at Michaelmas by the Kings or Queens Auditors, and 12li per Annum given by Mr (Rowland) Wilson of \ the Low Hall in / Grass Garth, where he was borne,[5] & who first Advanced the familyes of the Wilsons. This was given towards the maintaineing a Free School at the Ings, in consideration of which he teaching all the chapelry free; without any Quarterpence.[6] But of strangers, he has as they can agree. They pay their corne [tithe] in Meal Silver[7] to Sir[8] the farmer \ or farmers / under Trinity Colledge in Camb[ridge] They pay Hay Silver with their Easter Reckonings to the Vicar = Wool in kinde to the Rector; & for Lam[b] – a prescription of 14d for every Tithe Lamb.

---

[1] Also numbered ~~p.49~~ [crossed through] and p.53.
[2] Written in ink over red crayon. Machell often used red crayon when out and about. As he related, when he visited Ings chapel, the curate was not at home, so he could not gain the information he needed. He returned the following year to complete his task.
[3] 25 July.
[4] MS: 'Ancient Sallary ~~of 5 marke per Annum~~ was 7 nobles.'
[5] For a fuller but slightly contradictory narrative, see below, II.413.
[6] See N&B1,140.
[7] See the English Glossary..
[8] In the MS, this word is encircled but no name is given.

{Manner}
There [are] 3 Lords that keep each a Court Baron at their Tenants House – Sc. 1. The King or Queen. 2. Collonell Graham of Levins. & 3. Mr Bra\thwates/ of Burnaside.

{Tenur}
de 1[0].[9] The Kings Free Holdes \ are /
Peter Birket of the House in Grassgarth next to St Anns Chapl (who say all the Hamlet belongd to his Ancestors, de quo que.?[10]) {Old Peter Birket ætat 66.} Roger Harrison – who holds a Tenement in Ruston. {An house at the high end of Garth – east from St Anns about 40 yards, which belongs to Mr Crisp of Low Hall, who had them both by his \ grand / mother – who was Brave[11] Wilsons daughter.} The rest of the Kings tenants are Customary: at Fine Certaine, Sc. ~~2d fine rent~~ \ years rent at / death of the Lord & 3 yeares Rent upon death or alienations, & heriotable.

2. Mr Grahams Tenants are Customary \ at / Fine Arbitrary & Heriotable. Purchasd of Bellinghams.

3. Mr Brathwates are Customary &c. Not known of whom purchased.

The Sh[eriff] Has W[aif] & St[ray]: Q. of Lords.[12]

[II.413]

[Text added in late March 1693]

Since this, I visited it in the End of March 1693. And it a good handsom chapl well seated & in Good Repare. All which was don. & the chapel itselfe they say builded by one Rowland Wilson, a Poore boy in this ~~Parish~~ \ Hamlet / who went into the S[outh] to try his fortune, & when he came at London had nothing left but a Groat in his Pocket; yet afterwards came \ rise / to a Great Estate, by the Blac[k]well hall traid, as som \ doe / Report.[13] & disposd of much of it to Piouse uses – for \ he / built (or at least Repar'd) & endowed this chapel in th' Inges, setting upon it for Reading prayers & Teaching School there, most part of the Tenement calld Low-hall which he builded himself. As appears from som sentence writ on the wall in the Best Chamber, where with much adoe I made out these lines, which shew that he was a labourer at first in the County of Kent.

> Thys hous was buylded by me Rowland Wilson Laborer into Kente
> As God had appointed my life to be Spent.
> Being of the age of XX …

By this I hopd to have found out his age – there being som lime daubd over the figures – But (alas) it had broke out before, so that it could not be retrievd agane. & by this it should seem he was only a Labourer. Tis said that when he had builded this house he dined in this Roome all the neighbourhood in a most sumptuouse [manner] haveing wine of all sorts. & that he would not (such was his humility) sit down amongst them, but stood at their backs to serve & wait on them. Thus, God Exalteth the humble & meeke.

[9] 'Concerning the first'.
[10] 'Concerning which, enquire'.
[11] This word appears to be 'Brave'. Presumably, this was Rowland Wilson, see below.
[12] For the Sheriff of Westmorland's claim for waif and stray, see Part 2, Ch.3ix, Staveley, II.414.
[13] Blackwell Hall in the City of London was the centre for the English wool and cloth trade from the middle ages until the 19th century; cloth manufacturers and clothiers from provincial England brought their material to Blackwell Hall to sell to merchants and drapers: see N. Bateman, 'From rags to riches; the wool cloth trade and Blackwell Hall, c 1450-1790: a brief survey', Post-medieval Archaeology 38.1 (Museum of London Archaeology, 2004), 1-15.

[II.428]

March 29 1693

Coat-how; Low-hall

~~Thys \ hous / was byelded by Mr Rowland Wylson labourer in Kente as God has appointed my life to be spente being of the age of ȝȝ~~

[II.413A]

{Insert at Vol. 2 p. 413.}[14]

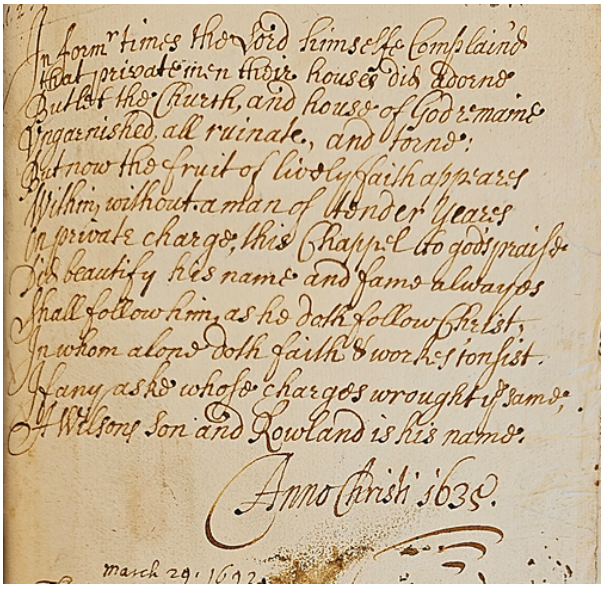

Figure 2.3iv.2. Lines on Rowland Wilson, copied by James Robinson, chaplain. II.413A.

In former times the Lord himself complain'd that private men their houses did adorne
But let the Church, and house of God remaine
Ungarnished all ruinate, and torne:
But now the fruit of lively faith appeares
Within, without, a man of tender yeares
On private charge, this Chappel to God's praise
Did beautify his name and fame always
Shall follow him, as he doth follow Christ,
In whom alone doth faith & works consist.
If any aske whose charges wrought ye same;
A Wilsons Son and Rowland is his name.
Anno Christi 1635.[15]

March 29 1693[16]

These verses were formerly writ on the place where the Kings Armes now stand betwixt the chancel & body of the chapel; but being obliterated had bin utterly lost, but that they were preserved by [14] Written later in a different hand. For discussion on when the volumes were bound, see Editor's Introduction.

[15] This poem was written by James Robinson, chaplain. He is recorded curate at Staveley Chapel from 1676 to 1701, and curate at Hugill Chapel, where he was also schoolmaster, from 1701 to 1712. CCED.
[16] The handwriting from this point is Machell's.

Mr James Robinson now chaplain there, who writ them \ down / from the mouth of ~~one of the Inhabitants~~ \ a neighbour / who had got them memoriter[17] when he was a boy.[18]

[II.414]

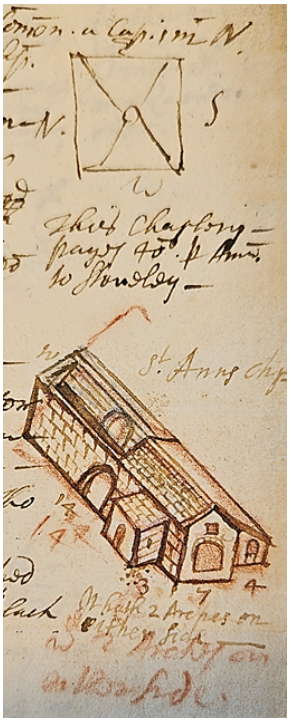

Figure 2.3iv.3. St Ann's Chapel Ings from the south-east; sketch in red pencil and ink. II.414.

[Notes on] Ings Chapel and Chapelry]

It hath 2 Arches on either side.
{This chapelry payes 40s per Annum to Staveley.}
{Custom}
The wid[ows] have the 3[19] of the Personal Estate – and all the tenant right land of her Husbands dureing pure viduity.
{Manner Houses}
None that are known of.
They teach the School at the Chappel Ith Ings.
No hall but Low hall that bears that name. A pond at Low Hall in Mr Wilsons time.
{Bounds}
It is bounded on the E. with Sleddal chapelry. And divided from it South with Staveley Chapelry; from which it is divided by the Bounder of Staveley. On the West with Windermer parish; from which tis divided at Broad gates – a Tenement in Hugill; on the North with Kentmere – divided ~~they know not how~~ by Kentmer Parke ~~parke~~ \ wall. /

[Things of Note]
An heape of stone called White Rayes upon Hugil Common, a Capella 1m. N.
Raspberryes.

[17] 'By heart.'
[18] Traces of further text appear at the foot of the page, but the words have been removed by cutting during the shaping of the paper.
[19] Third.

Limestone none, but fetched 4 miles on Horseback. Ragg enough – Black blew slate – of Rag – a Capella ½ E. at Ruston.

[Things General]
24 li per Annum.
A vi[n]tner gave 190000 li. For […][20] Abby of St Martins in Kent.[21] Had but 4d in his Pocket when he came at London – Lost in a Guiney Ship 7000;[22] & by Sir Thomas Fairfax 7000 lent money.[23]
Qu. of another St Anns in Kendal Town?
To refer Gilpins charity to [Blank][24]

[II.437A]

[Further Queries]

March Ult[25] 1693 coming from Ridall q[uery] Rothydale
Query of a place in Cartmel called Ulverston or Ouston (memorandum: the river Ouse, Ousepit; & a place called Ulsthwate near Ubarrow in Sleddal, or near Kentmer Hall, where the Knipes – Sir Daniel Fleming.

[20] Unclear word.
[21] St Martin's, Canterbury, became a parish church after the dissolution of the monasteries. Possibly, Machell was referring to St Martin's Priory, Dover. In the dissolution events of the autumn of 1535 the Priory was closed; the lands passed to the Archbishop of Canterbury and were leased to various tenants. https://www.dover-kent.co.uk/st_martins_priory.html.
[22] A Guinea Ship: From the 17th to the 19th centuries, slave ships were specially built or converted for the purpose of human trafficking to and from the Guinea coast in West Africa. See John Atkins, A Voyage to Guinea, Brasil and the West Indies, 2nd edn (London, 1737), 176-80.
[23] Sir Thomas Fairfax, 3rd Baron Fairfax (1612-1671), born in Denton, Yorkshire. Commander-in-chief of the Parliamentary army during the Civil Wars. https://www.britannica.com/biography/Thomas-Fairfax-3rd-Baron-Fairfax-of-Cameron.
[24] See Gilpin's letter to Machell, Part 2, Ch.2, Kendal Town, II.45, 47.
[25] 31 March.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 3v. Parish of Kendal: Kentmere]

[Kentmere]

[II.105][1]

{Fam[ilies] 31.}

[Kentmere] Chapel

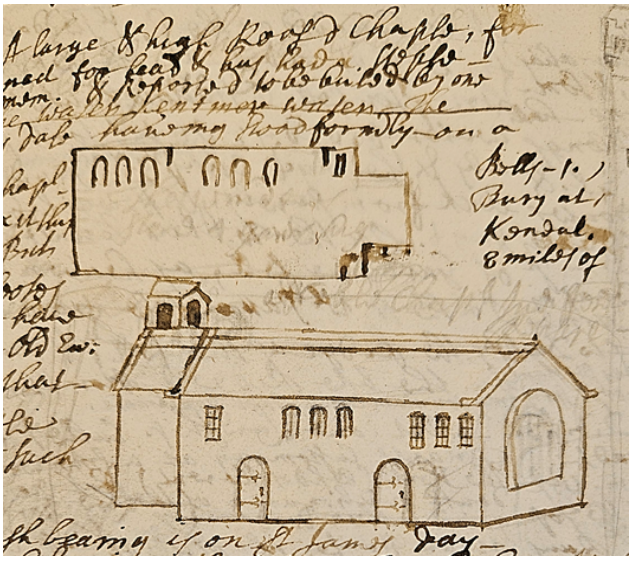

Figure 2.3v.1. Kentmere Chapel. II.105.

Long on the outside 32. b[readth] 12.
A large & high roofd Chaple, formerly designed for lead & has had a steple – but non in mem[ory] – & reported to be builded by one Aray of this dale, haveing stood formerly on a place calld Chapl how betwixt this & the Hall. But this Chapl lookes so ancient, haveing allso an old ewe tree in it, that there is little ground for such reports.
Bells – 1.
Bury at Kendal 8 miles of[f].
The windows stand 4 yards high!
Their Rush bearing is on St James day.[2]

[Reader's Salary; Tithes]
No house belonging to the Reader – but he has the Chaple, the Yard, & a Sallary of 6^{li} per Annum, at 1s every noble Rent. Called by the name of Sallary. The Inhabitants recommend the Reader & the Vicar approves. They pay meal money to the College for their Corne; & Hay Silver to the Vicar for hay;[3] & wool in kinde to the College.[4] But Lamb per 4d a Tithe lamb &c. 1d a sheep for all sold after Candlemas.

---

[1] Also numbered p.43.
[2] 25 July.
[3] Meal and hay silver: see the English Glossary.
[4] The Parish of Kendal was under the patronage of Trinity College, Cambridge. See the plaque outside the parish church, which states, 'In 1553 Queen Mary gave the living to Trinity College, Cambridge.' See also John Hodgkinson, The Greater Parish of Kendal, 1553-2002, During the Patronage of Trinity College Cambridge (Levens, 2002).

Kentmere Hall

Fig 2.3v.2. Kentmere Hall. Ab Ecclesia Kendal 8m. N.W & by N. II.105.

The Hall is an old building with a Antique Tower standing under a mo[n]strouse craggy mountaine yards from the house, out of which Kentmer water springs.[5] This Hall belongd to 2 Sisters. Sir Christopher bought ½ of Mrs Copley of Hawkside Hall. Mr Carus of Sellet near Kirkby Loansdall has the other in marriage with Judah Nicholson.[6]

At Kentmer Hall in the Hall window: Fide non Fraude

[Key]
1. Or [&] G[ules]
2. Arme & gauntlet Argent.
[Helm] Or & Sab[le]
3. [Plumes} G[ules] A[rgent] g. a. g.
Shield [chevron] Erm[ine] [3 bores heads] G[ules] Erm[ine]
[motto] FIDE NON FRAVDE

It is reported that the 1t Gilpin was a Scotchman, who comeing into Sleddal and killing a wilde-boare there, \ others say in Gilpinbeck which tooke name from thence, / the King bestowd Kentmer hall upon Him*, and that they were great commanders against the Scots. [The hall receives] 42li Rent per Annum†.

.

Figure 2.3v.3.'Kentmer Hall; in the Hall window'. II.105.

[5] A scored-through comment near the beginning of II.105 states: '~~They call the water Kentmere Water~~.'
[6] See Judith Nicholson on the page below.

[Machell's Notes: II.105]

*In Skel[s]mer re T. Gilpin Informant.[7]
†Informers. Stephen Cowpathwate a countryman. John Grisdale Chaplane or Curate.

[II.106]

[The Manor]

{The mere}
{Kentmere Water – alias Braid Watter, & sometimes the Tarne – hath a Boate. It belongs to the Hall – L[ength] ¼ l[eague][8] & 200 Broad – Troutes & Gray Troutes? ~~Pike~~ Eales & Tenches. It hath store of Swans in winter: 37 at a time. Great Store of w[ild] Duck.}

{Kendal from Kent dirives its name.
And Kent from Kentmere's springing fountains came.
Brathwate}[9]

{Kent has 2 Heads – one little one ½ m. west from the Hall in the top of the Clints which runs on the West End of the H[all]. The Other Chiefe head 3 miles North a Capella at a place calld Grove head & Stephens Cross Grove where it may run thro a q't pot.[10] Thence S. to Kentmere (3m.¼) Thence S. to Stavely & Strickland &c.}

{Templehurst [Park]}

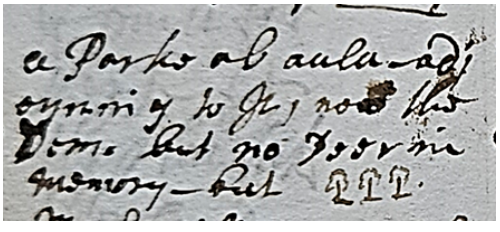

Figure 2.3v.4. 'No Deer in memory - but trees'. II.106.

{A Parke ab aula adjoyning to it,[11] now the Dem[esne] but no Deer in memory – but trees.[12] Marle in ground 2ce 12 sc[ore] N.W a Capella.[13] White clay. No, it will not melt.}
{Limestone all over. Blew Slate 2m. N. a Capella. 1[d] a stone & 16[d] a load. Very fine.}

{! No Orchards \ no / Juniper! Bleaberryes & Straw berryes. Peats with[in] ½ a m. plenty.}

[Bounds]
It is bounded on the E. with Sleddall chapelry fro[m] which it is div[id]ed by the ridges of Green Quarter fell & Hallowbanke as heaven water divides. On the South Side with Stavly & the Ings chapelryes, divided by Black beck from Stavely, & Howgil Ford from the Ings. On the W. It is [7] Thomas Gilpin of Skelsmergh Hall. See his letter to Machell relating to Gilpin's Rents of 1561: Part 2. Ch.2, Kendal Town, II.45. For the Gilpin family, originally of Kentmere Hall, see Machell's Itinerary: Part 2, Ch.10, II.400.

[8] A league was 3 miles.
[9] This rhyme first appears in Part 2. Ch.1, Barony of Kendal, II.17. The poet was Richard Brathwate of Burneside (1587/8-1673), see Part 2. Ch.3i, Burneside, II.93.
[10] Quart pot.
[11] 'A park extends from the hall adjoining to it.'
[12] Here, Machell has drawn a symbol consisting of three deciduous trees, see Figure 2.3v.4.'No Deer in memory – but trees'. II.106.
[13] Twice 12 score = 480 [yards] north-west of the chapel.

bounded with the Top of Garburne fell, as heaven water divides. On the N. with Patterdale, from which tis divided by the ridge of the fell; & Mardall in Shap by the like Ridges. Noe Hurrocks.

Division [Lordship]
[It has] but one Lordship calld Kentmere – The Tenants customary at a Fine Certain of double the Rent (besides the Rent) but none they say upon death or alienation of the Lord, nor no consent requird to their Deeds. They keep Court Barron at an house of Mr Fishers purchased of T […][14] – pay no Bownes – but heriots, Sc. the best quick[15] – & if none, a competent summ as required.[16]

[II.105]

The Tenants sold to Fisher of Stean Bank green near Kendal.

[II.106]

It was purchased by the Fishers of Stean banke green[17] (as tis said) of Sir John Lowther, called the Gleed[18] – Sc. This Sir Johns great grandfather – & by them? of the Stapletons of Templehurst in Yorkshire (Tr. old men);[19] & so is now in Mr John Shepherd sometimes scholar of Queens College in Oxford.[20]

[Airay and Gilpin Families]

{D. Ayray Provost of Queens, borne at Long houses a Capella ¼ m. S. Gave for a monthly sermon 40li per Annum.}[21]
Oliver Gilpin[22] is reported to be borne at Laythait in Stricland Roger, which place ~~in memory~~ belongd to the Gilpins – But ~~old Barnard~~ old Barnard Gilpin the famous Preacher in Hen[ry] the 8th Time &c. is said to have bin born at this Hall.}[23]

The Hall & Demaine was Anciently in the Gilpins, yet is reported to have bin Tenancy & sold to a Free Rent of [£]10 per Annum payable to the Lord of the Soyle, dischargd from Heriots & all other dutyes.[24]
It passed from Xt[opher] Gilpin, to Nathaniel Nicholson of Hawkside Hall,[25] who daughter he had maryed – from whom it came to his eldest son Daniel – who mary Bridget daughter of Mr Pennington of Seaton– & had only 2 daughter:
[1.] Beatrix maryed to \ 2 attorneys / 1[st] to a younger son of / Mr Sands of Grathwate whose child died: afterwards into Mr John Copley a younger brother of Gosphath near Eggermont – by whom she had – 1. a girle. 2. John. But sold her part to Sir Xt[opher] Philipson. circa 1692.

---

[14] The rest of the word is obscured by the binding.
[15] As in 'alive'.
[16] 'They pay no boons but they do pay heriots'.
[17] Stainbank Green, see Smith, Place-Names 1, 121-22.
[18] Gleed: having a cast in one or both eyes; squint-eyed. OED. For another possible (negative) meaning as applied to Sir John Lowther, see Part 1. Ch.11, Crosby Ravensworth, III.176.
[19] Traditional lore, remembered by the old men of the chapelry.
[20] The only documented John Shepherd at Queen's College, Oxford, took his MA in 1575; however, a Robert Shepheard, son of Christopher of Kentmere, took his BA at Queen's in 1674-75, OAD.
[21] Henry Airay (c.1558-60-1616), an eminent defender of evangelical Calvinism in Oxford, was born, probably at Kentmere, the son of William Airay (d. 1596?) who was either the brother-in-law or a favoured servant of Bernard Gilpin (1517-1583), the Apostle of the North; so-called for his notable preaching and charitable activities. At Queen's College, Oxford, Airay was mentored by Henry Robinson (bishop of Carlisle from 1598) who, in 1599, ensured that Airay would follow him as provost of Queen's. By his will, proved 1616, Airay left land in Garsington to the college; £40 to support the schoolmaster of Kendal; £40 for a preacher in Kentmere chapel; a gilt bowl of 30 ounces to his successors in the provostship; his books to the college, and a number of lesser legacies. See A. Hegarty, 'Airay, Henry (1558/60-1616), college head'. ODNB.
[22] MS: '~~Barnard~~ \ Oliver / Gilpil'.
[23] Oliver Gilpin was the fourth son of William Gilpin, who lived during the reign of Edward IV. [1461-1483]. For this and the Gilpin family pedigree, see N&BI, 136-37.
[24] The Lord of the manor is the Lord of the Soil of the manor of common right. See J.H. Thomas, A Systematic Arrangement of Lord Coke's First Institute of the Laws of England…Vol. 3 (Philadelphia, 1836), 458.
[25] See AWL, 216.

[2.] The other heiress was Judith Nicholson m. to Mr George Carus of [Blank] & had 7 or 8 ch[ildren] Boys & girles.

[II.107][26]

[General Notes]
Apalby Road Grarig Church.

Fam[ilies]	Grarig	41.
	Whinfell	34.
	Lamrig (parke)	21. q. if in this chapelry.

[26] Also numbered p.45.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[II.103][1]

[Chapter 3vi. Parish of Kendal: Longsleddale]

Long Sleddall Chapel? & Hall?

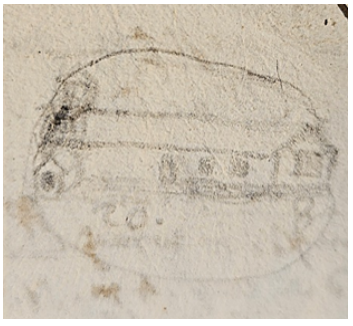

Figure 2.3vi.1. Longsleddale Chapel. II.103.

A fine little Dale wooded on both sides with young trees.
{Fam[ilies] 39.}

[Chapel]
L[ength] 20; b[readth] 8. Bell 1.[2] Good repare all but seats & flags. Their rushbearing is on St James his day.[3]

{Tithes}
For Tithe Corne they pay Meal Silver[4] – everyone a particular sum according to the Ancient Booke – which is due to the College: Sir John Otway Leasor.[5]
Hay money is payed to the vicar with all small tithes.
Wool in kinde: every 10th flees \ to the Coll[ege.] /[6] iiij is 2d.
V. is ½s.
6 is 1s.
vii. is xii ob[7]
So on ob[8] advance to 10.
Lamb: a prescription of 14d. A Tithe lam – half a L[amb]. And so for od[d] ones, as \ is / of wool.
[Informants] {a. Jonathan Haton chaplaine}[9] b. Xt[opher] Tod.

{House & Sallary} {Out of the B[ook]}[10]
There is no House belongs to the Curate but in former time times there was one on the back side of the Chappl. The ancient Sallary is 5li per Annum known by the name of Sallary. ~~According to the~~ [Chapel goers pay] accord to their forms in the Chaple, the 1 forme being 3s; the 2nd, 2s viijd; the 3d, 2s & 4d; the 4, 1s 10d; the 5., 1s viijd; 6., 1s 5d. (They Generally Cottagers) as 1s 1d – sits as they will.

[1] Also numbered p.41.
[2] Notes written in red pencil.
[3] 25 July.
[4] See the English Glossary.
[5] For Sir John Otway, see Part 2, Ch.3iii, Hutton, II.87; see also Part 2, Ch.4, Beetham, II.278.
[6] Trinity College, Cambridge: the patron.
[7] Presumably, 12½d.
[8] Presumably, ½d increase each time up to 10.
[9] Jonathan Hayton was curate at Longsleddale (1682-1691) and schoolmaster there (1682). CCED.
[10] The Easter Book.

{Patron}
The Hamlet Recommends & the Vicar of Kendal approves.

{Boundes}
This Chappelry is Bounded on the E. with Selside Chaplry; from which tis divided by the top of Hallfell & Whiteside; on the S. with Strickland Roger in Burneside Chapl (Kendal), from which tis divided by the top of Potter fell as Evenwater[11] divides. On the West it is adjoyned with Stavely & Kentmer, from which it is separated by ~~a Wall~~ the outside of Gowderbarrow wall, & from Kentmere by the outside of Cockley fell wall. On the North it is Bounded by Mardell belonging to Thornthwate, divided by the tops of the Mountaines to the Standing Stone on the top of Gate Scarth{q. in what parish.}[12]

[II.104]

{Division into Manners &c.}

{Sleddall}
There ~~are~~ \ is / in this Chappelry but one Entire Lordship called Long Sleddall, wherein the Tenants are generally Customary, Arbitrary & Heriotable: Excepting 2 that are at Fine Certane paying only double their Rent, Sc. Kilstone & Tenterhow.[13] And 3 freeholds, Sc. Moorthwates, Dale End & Nether house – a Capella 1m.½ S.

{Customs}
Noe Boones,[14] being formerly cut of[f] for lack of being furnished with a Bul a Bore & stone Horse.[15] The wifes have all that their husbands dyed tenants of, dureing celibacy.[16]

{Lords}*
The Lords of this Manner were anciently the Thornburrows – sold by them to Sir James Bellingham of Upper Levines: And some, Sc. 5, were the Harringtons of Woolakes in Cumberland.[17] But Bellingham only kept Court Barron here. An Allane (the son of James, the son [of] Alane of Gathorne, son of Sir James the purchaser) sold his Tenements & Royallty to Collonell James Graham.[18] And Harrington has his Tenements still, who neither appear by himselfe nor his Tenants. \ The Kings has som Right in Tenement of Sadgill, and appear at Sta[…];[19] and also Graham.[20] / No Manner house[21] belongs to Mr Graham, nor no Demane Lands except Iron-craw {vulgò Arn [11] 'Heaven water', a watershed; see the English Glossary.

[12] The site of the margin comment is close to a reference to Mardale.
[13] For 'arbitrary', 'customary' and 'heriotable', see the English Glossary.
[14] Boons and boon-days: see the English Glossary.
[15] 'A bul, a bore and stone horse'. In Scots, a 'stane hors' is a male horse: uncastrated, entire. See Dictionaries of the Scots Language, Online. All three here are male animals, needed for mating. If the tenants were not paying boons for the reason stated, it sounds as though it was the lord of the manor's responsibility to provide these male animals (bull, pig and horse) for use by the community (the 'parish bull' is a known example), and the boons were paid in recognition of this. My thanks to Angus Winchester for this suggestion.
[16] In their widowhood until remarriage.
[17] Wooloaks, or Woolakes, at Hesket-in-the-Forest near Penrith: see A.M. Armstrong, A. Mawer, F.M. Stenton & Bruce Dickins, The Place-Names of Cumberland 1 (Cambridge, 1950), 204-05.
[18] MS: '~~By Alan, son of~~; And some ~~them~~ Sc. 5 were the Harringtons of Woolakes in Cumberland – But Bellingham only kept Court Barron here. (~~who~~) an Allane (the son of James ~~of Gathorne~~ the son Alane of Gathorne son of Sir James the purchaser – sold his Tenants & Royalty to Collonell James Graham.'
[19] This word is obscured by the binding but is probably 'Staveley'.
[20] Written at right angles to the rest of the text. James Grahme (Graham) (1650-1730) of Levens was the second son of Sir George Grahme, baronet (c.1624-1658), of Netherby, Cumberland, and his wife, Lady Mary Johnston. A favourite of James II, James Grahme held posts at the royal court. He bought Levens for £24,000 in 1688, after which he was involved in several Jacobite plots. He was MP (for Carlisle, then Appleby, then Westmorland) between 1685 and 1727. See E. Cruickshanks, 'Grahme, James, courtier and politician'. ODNB. See also, Michael Mullett, Carlisle in Revolution and Restoration, c. 1648-1688, CWAAS Tract Series 30 (Kendal, 2022), 143-44.
[21] MS: '~~Manner House~~ No Manner house.'

Craw}[22] may be thought soe, being mostly forrest ground – a Capella N. 1m. & ½ above Little London.[23]
There is another place call'd EwBarrow Hall†, with free lands thereto belonging – which tis said payes 1s per Annum to the Crown. And belongs Mr Harrington, the Lord of those Tenants above specified: But neither these nor Iron Craw lands being tax'd with Dem[esne] in the Booke of Rates, wee know not well by what name to call them. I[24] never Remember waife & stray taken up by any. But the Chief Manor House is Selside Hall, where they formerly did suit & service till the Tenements were sold, the Demane being Reserved to Mr Thornburrow.[25]

[Rivers]
{Sleddal Beck alias Spret[26] Springes in Wrang Dale head, a Capella 4m. N.W. Thence S. on the West End the Chaple [and] Eubarrow Hall – Thence S.[27] on the East of Burniside Hall. & ½ a mile below in Heg Holme it enters Kent.}

[In Nature]
{Store of Clean Marts & fowle; foxes too many. Wild cats = plenty.
Skettles \ Water:[28]/ a standing pool, l. & b. 200, a Capella N.W. 2m. Pikes – Eales, perches or Bass.
Great store of moore game.
Some swans. An Airy[29] of Spar[row] H[awks] at Hall Wood by Ewbarrow.
No Juniper? Nor orchards.
Raspberryes near the Chapl. Bleab[erries] Str[awberries] {Memorandum: Whorlehow,[30] a woody hill} {Som Free Stone near Stockdale alias Little London.
Plenty of Lime Stone being like wad before burning.}[31] 4 or 6 inches thick & more. Broader than a table, a fine blew, ergo marble.
{Fine Blew Slate} Wrangdale, a Capella 4m.
Plenty of peat but not near.

[Machell's Notes II.104]

*q[uery] of Laburnes ¼ Lords[hip]}
†{An ancient Tower, the walls 2 yards thick. Given to a Godson by the ~~Laburnes~~ \ Harringtons[32] / and so not forfeited with Harrington Estate being in a childe.[33]}

[22] Ancrow Brow: Smith, Place-Names 1, 160-61.
[23] Stockdale in Longsleddale was also known as Little London, or Li'le Lunnon: See William Parson and William White, History, Directory, and Gazetteer, of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmorland, with that Part of the Lake District in Lancashire, forming the Lordships of Furness and Cartmel (Leeds, 1829), 652.
[24] This letter could be 'I' (possibly Machell's informant) or 'T' (Testators/witnesses); the letter is unclear.
[25] The last three words here were added in pencil. Thornburrow [?] has been shortened to 'Thub'.
[26] Sprint.
[27] This letter is unclear.
[28] Skeggles Water?
[29] Aerie or eyrie: the nest of a bird of prey, especially that of an eagle on a mountain; more widely, a nest of any large bird, especially one that nests high on cliffs or in tall trees. OED.
[30] Whirl Howe. In 1577 it was called 'Wharlehowemyer, meaning a circular mound, this being a small tumulus near the Sprint at grid 83–485053': Smith, Place-Names 1,164.
[31] 'Wad' is plumbago or black lead.
[32] Unclear word: blotted.
[33] The estates of minors were subject to the Court of Wards and Liveries: https://www.nationalarchives.gov.uk/help-with-your-research/research-guides/land-inheritance-court-of-wards-liveries-1540-1645.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 3vii. Parish of Kendal. Natland and Watercrook]

[II.79]

Natland Chaple

(See som Notes of Watercrooke)

{Natland July Friday after the fast, 1692}[1]

{Ex[penses]: 0:7. More: 0:0:6.}[2]

Initial Notes
1 mile \ ¼ / ab Ecclesia S. & by East.
{!} Fam[ilies] 33. Buly sayes but 30.
{?} Ward. Kendal Ward – & \ so / all the parish.[3]

[II.81]

{Natland Chappelry in Kendal. This 17.[4] Oct. 91}

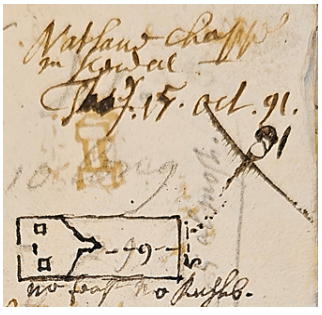

Figure 2.3vii.1. Natland Chapel. II.81.

10 long, 5 almost [broad]
No feast, no rushb[earing]} {? What salary, how raised, who presents.}

[II.79]

{Chaple}
Long 9, broad almost 5.[5]

[1] National fasts were held in England from Tudor times. Fasts were intended to win God's favour and avert divine judgement by staging days of mortification and prayer. An annual calendar of fasts and thanksgivings was established at the Restoration, after which the English were required to gather in their churches three times a year on the anniversary of significant occasions in the country's history. On 30 January they fasted to atone for the execution of Charles I in 1649. On 29 May they gave thanks for the return of Charles II in 1660. 0n 5 November they celebrated the discovery of the 1605 Gunpowder Plot. These occasions provided opportunity for mass propaganda, and after 1688 they were adapted to carry a Williamite message. In 1689, after the start of the war with France, it was decided that a public fast be held on 5 June to secure God's blessing on England's armies. In 1690 a royal proclamation ordered that a fast be held on the third Wednesday in every month for the duration of William's war in Ireland. Monthly fasting was revived in 1691 to cover summer campaigning against France. Fasts were held on the third Wednesday of each month from April to October 1691. Monthly fasts were repeated in 1692 between April and October; in 1693 fasts began in May and the day was moved to the second Wednesday in each month. See Anthony M. Claydon, Courtly Reformation: Williamite Propaganda after the Glorious Revolution in England (A thesis submitted for the PhD, London University, 1993), 105-06, 111.
[2] Expenses incurred during Machell's Itinerary in July 1692.
[3] Two notes on Watercrook are contained on this page: 'See som notes of Watercrook' and '{Papers}'.
[4] '7' appears to have been superimposed on '5'.
[5] Note the slight difference in chapel length.

1 Little Bell.
No chaple yard now nor formerly.
A School somes times Taught \ in the chapel / but no Sallary.
There was a chappel formerly which was faln into decay – to repareing of which Miles Troughton of Kendal – a Burgess Cordwender[6] – gave 3. Who only had one Close calld Yorkfield.
5 years since it was repard – this 1692. And som now Liveing can Remember prayers & Seates in the o[l]d chaple and prayers Read their by their Schoolmaster, having 4rge[7] of the P[arish] nothing a Vic[arage].

[Manor]
No court service.
Tythe ~~hay &~~ Corne in Kinde in dry Stooke. No Hay – nor nought for it.
Peates at Sinderbarrow 3m. west a Capella.
Iron tis thought in Helm or Natland fell ½ q. of m. a Capella E.

[Seals]

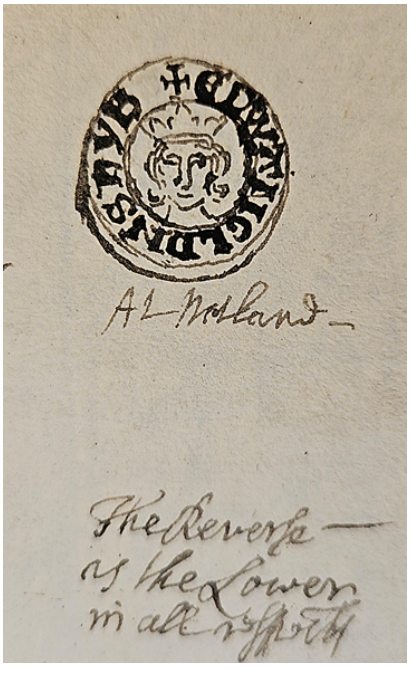

Figure 2.3vii.2. 'At Natland, the reverse as the lower in all respects.' II.79.

[6] Another form of the word, 'cordwainer': a shoemaker. OED.
[7] Quarterage of the parish: a payment made quarterly [by parishioners]. OED. It is similar to 'Quarter-pence', a payment by parents towards the schoolmaster's salary. For example, 'The parson, with the parish-officers, as assessors, were, on the appointment of each new master, to fix the rate of quarter-pence, which was to be not less than 2d. nor more than 4d. per week', this quotation taken from a speech by Lord Brougham in Parliament, 28 June 1820. See Hansard, 'The Education of the Poor' (Volume 2), column 77. https://hansard.parliament.uk/Commons/1820-06-28/debates/7d773019-40a4-4b69-9808-cae8fe59798c/EducationOfThePoor.

Figure 2.3vii.3. 'Found at Broadflat S. a Capella 12 score, in May 91.' II.79.[8]

[II.80]

Figure 2.3vii.4. 'Found near Mr Guyes ¼ m. N. a Capella. 16 years since.' II.80.[9]

[II.81]

{Natland Chappelry}
is bounded on the N. with the mother church of Kendal from which it is distant about 1 mile; on the E. with Hutton Chappell; on the South with Hersham parish; on the West with Underbarrow chapelry in this parish of Kendal. It is but one hamlet constable wick & Lordship ~~wich of~~ \ consisting / of about 30 families* & one entire manor ~~the tenements of which~~ \ in which / there is a parke yet remaneing, tho long since disparked, of about 80 acres ~~of ground~~ walled 6 quarters high,[10] which I looke upon as [8] Placed underneath the second seal sketch.

[9] Henry Guy of Watercrook: see Eric Birley, 'The Guys of Kendal and Watercrook' CW2, 58 (1958), 94-104.
[10] A quarter is 9 inches, i.e. a quarter of a yard: https://www.kylesconverter.com/length/quarters-to-inches.

the ~~Maner House de~~ manner, the tennants of which being all customary ~~and heriotable and~~ \ the land was heriotable & the tenants / paying to their lord an abitrary fine, & for want of a manner house ~~amongst them made their~~ appearing at Sisars. and paying all ~~their~~ dues & dutyes as bondes: reaping, plowing, harrowing, mowing, bounder-dutyes, pout hens & the like ~~to Sisar Hall~~ till they bought themselves free of Sir Thomas Strickland[11] ~~60~~ \ 16 / years since at 60 years purchase;[12] so that now they are freehold[er]s \ new freeholders / {Sc. 16 ab anno 1691.}[13]

[Machell's Notes: II.81 and II.82]

*{3 held yet in tenancy under Mr Pricket; purchase of Sir Thomas}[14]

{They call their gravel which they mix with sand, sammell.}[15]

{Swinefoot clawes dryed & powdered (Mr Thomas Shepherd seman). Take for the stone.}[16]

[Watercrook]

[II.82]

{My journey from Watercrook}

West 1 q[uarte]r [mile] – Helston Leaths Hall (Note about a mile from the one fell to the other) Fertil at Kendal and banky, except N.E. end of the towne where the plane is above ½ a mile \ almost a mile / and here at Watercrooke where there is a pretty pice of plane ground[17] on which the Romanes may seem to have incamped 1[t] and afterwards to have built a colony.) Thence up the fell Bradleyfield. Thence down Barrow Fell to Underbarrow \ a pike of / rocks & wood, and on the right hand Harringtons of Witherslacke. Thence over an other lesser fell to Crosthwaite. Thence over the pow to [Blank] and so back to Crosthwaite Chapel. So back N.W. [to] Underbarrow Chapel: Ew,[18] well, juniper. Thence N. to Crooke \ chaple – seates:[19] Sir Xtopher Phillip[son].[20] / Thence East or S.E. to Kendal; thence S. to Watercrook.

[II.81]

[Watercrook. Narrative 1.]

The most remarquable place for antiquity that I finde in this, is at Watercrooke[21] {a Capella circa ½ m. and as much S. from Kendal church; which situation as it should seem the Roman soldiers having observed, tooke advantage of it, and placed a fort or station here}* ergo a piece of good land as most in this Barony, and a sweet situation which takes its name from the \ River / Kent almost surrounding it like \ after the manner of / an horse-shooe, as the River Eden doth som part of Appelby; which the Romans ~~takeing~~ \ ~~offering~~ /~~advantage~~ observing this sweet situation and advantagiouse crooke of the water ~~of~~ have ~~thought fit to~~ sat down and ~~placed themselves here~~ due builded a colony (the main fort (of which vide*) rather than in that larger plane which is at the N.E. end of Kendall.)

---

[11] Sir Thomas Strickland (1621-1694) of Sizergh (MP for Westmorland in 1661) and his wife, Winifred Strickland, née Trentham (1645-1725), were Roman Catholic Royalists who fled to France following the collapse of King James II's regime: see J. Callow, 'Strickland, Thomas John Francis (c. 1682-1740), Roman Catholic bishop of Namur and diplomatist'. ODNB.

[12] '60 years' purchase': sold at 60 times their annual rent as customary tenants, see George Miller, On Fairness and Efficiency: the privatisation of the public income during the past millennium (Bristol, 2000), 230.

[13] A note on MS.II.82 underlines this: '{Tenants of Natland now free.}'

[14] Originally placed on MS.II.82. See Part 2, Ch.3iii, Hutton, II.87, for more on Pricket, a lawyer; see also Machell's Itinerary, Part 2, Ch.10, II.387. For the Pricket pedigree, see AWL, 239.

[15] 'Sammel: hard loamy gravel', William Rollinson, Cumbrian Dictionary of Dialect, Tradition and Folklore (Otley, 1997), 140.

[16] A remedy for kidney stones etc. 'The stone: a hard morbid concretion in the body, esp. in the kidney or urinary bladder, or in the gallbladder'. OED.

[17] MS: 'glound'.

[18] Yew tree.

[19] Unclear word.

[20] Sir Christopher Philipson (1646-1709) of Crook Hall was deputy lieutenant of Westmorland. See Part 2 Ch.3ii: Crooke, II.99.

[21] MS: '~~And amongst these tenements there is one~~ The most remarquable place for antiquity that I finde in this is at ~~place of neck & called~~ Watercrooke.'

{Urnes a fathom about at Watercrook}
For that it has bin a Roman colony, station or hold, appears from several fragments of Ro[man] brick, \ part of / which was stampd with the tread of a Lyons paw. And Urnes, and earthen potts with romane floore potts, one of which had this broken inscription: SILLA forsan pro Drusilla; and Roman plaster upon the walls, which were facd on both sides & run with cement and stones and Rubish in the midle – Artificial stone of a great sise.

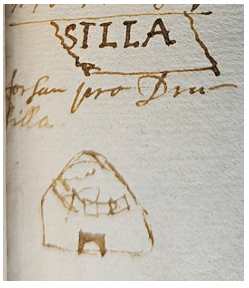

Figure 2.3vii.5. 'A piece of a pot with this broken inscription', and an 'oven' at Watercrook. II.81.

An oven underground, being build with bricking tile on the inside and being cupled into another, run over with cement ½ foot thick. I think the bottom paved with Br[ick] a foote broad & 3 inch thick

[Machell's Notes: II.81]

*{Q. Different. Colonia et Statio}[22]

[II.82]
som of which [bricks] were stampd with a Lyons pawe \ of which I saw one; / a floore of stone flags supported with collums made of art-ficiall stone & set upon an underfloore of Romane cement made with pounced Brick,[23] which I take to have bin som sort of sepulcher. ~~with this inscription thrown down & coverd with 3 other~~.

{Wall}
There were also in the walls great coines[24] of artificial stone as well of huen stone, which were in length [blank] in breadth [blank] in depth [blank] and are now in the N. corner of the granary end. The walls were about 3 foote thick: huen on the outsides but fild up in the midle with rubbish cem[ent] and unhuen stone; and the partician walls were plastered with three coates: the 1^{t} course cement 3 i[nch], the midle finer \ 2 in. / & the outmost finest of all about 1 inch well mixd with brick. Great stones at the oven mouth.

{Floore}
1. Roman cement floore
2. Pillars cast of Artificial Stone
3. Flaggs laid upon & supported by them.
4. Floores he sayes agane.
Then another roome with a Rom[an] floore layd in three course. The 1^{t}, cement of lime & sand with som pounced brick about 9 in[ch]. Then a course of Gr[a]vel & pebbles, about 4 [inch]. Then a course of true Rom[an] cement with great store of pounded brick in it, about 3 [inch]. In all 16 inches.

{Sinke}
And from hence went a sinke of the same like materials, being good Romane cem[en]t which held water in it as it were stone.

[22] See II.83.
[23] Pounced brick: Powdered brick. OED.
[24] Quoins.

{Repositories}
And from that, turning square a trough or spout made of hewnstone, \ in the second course / to another roome where was discovered a ~~course~~ \ row / of Ovens as they doe termed them: but were only Holes with mouthes like to Ovens, divided by a thin brick betwixt them, & stood in the form of a cimicircle, which I take \ to have bin / to be rather Repositories for the urnes and monuments of the disceased, though there was nothing att all remain'd in them. I saw there were also several \ fragments / urnes and \ earthen / plattens, amongst was one had written there \ SILLA / But before ~~these things~~ all this that hath \ bin / mentioned, there were diged up These Things or Remarqable [blank]

[II.83]

[Watercrook. Narrative 2.]

N.B. Query of Tim Bankes of Crookelands, Steward of Courtes in the Barrony. Master of Arts.[25]

At Mr H. Guyes[26] of Watercrooke, which is S. from the church about ½ a mile, there are the fou[n]dations of \ an / an old Rom[an] fort as may be discovered by a Great Bulwarke (where the markes of the Trenches do yet appear) 7 score yards square, wherein the foundations of houses are found in great abundance, which wee may conclude were demolished \ destroyd / by fier from the black / sooty colour of the mold casten up within these pr[e]cinct of the Fort, which is contrary to the Soyle of that Country.

It Standeth in a field call'd the Crooke, conteineing viii Acres \ about 60 yards from the dwelling house / and beside the Artificial Strength of it, is surrounded with water on every side except the South E., whence it is called Water Crooke.[27]
The Angles of this Fortification are rounded of[f] (more Romano than I have observed in other places \ at Kirkby Thore, Crackenthorpe & the Pi[cts] Wal /) and diagonal lines being drawn through the Square will point directly to the East, W. N. & S. so that the sides are S. East \ & / N. West; N. East \ & / South West.

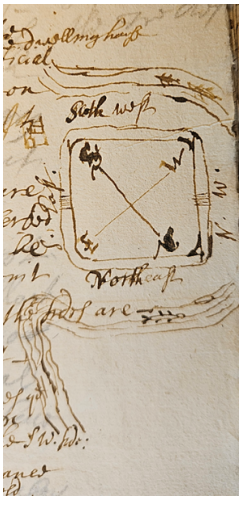

Figure 2.3vii.6. Watercrook Roman fort. II.83.

(Near the S. corner at 60 yards distance stands the now dwelling house \ calld Water Crooke, the Seat of &c. / flanking almost with the S.W. side) and near the N. corner at 70 yards distance are lately

[25] Scrawled in pencil at the top of the page.
[26] Henry Guy of Watercrook, see 'The Guys of Kendal and Watercrook', CW2, 58 (1958), 94.
[27] For a Roman inscription found at Watercrook in 1688 and recorded by William Nicolson, see Eric Birley, 'A Roman Inscription from Watercrook', CW2, 55 (1955) 46.

discovered the foundations of an old \ som old outer / Roman buildings \ 2 or 3 / in a brest – 1 extending in lengthw[ise] towards the S.W. with 3 roomes on a flooer of 5 yards square,[28] \ & fronting & / flankeing with the N. East side \ of the Great Romane fort / where several fragments of Roman Antiquities have bin discovered.

{Let this be last for the Inscription sake}
In the 1ᵗ roome, which lyeth N.E. was an Oven found, as they informed me, floored with Bricks of 1 f[oot] diameter & 3 inches thick, which they have imployd to the same use as formerly \ one of which was impressd of a Lyons paw as true and exact as if a Lyon had trod on the clay before it was baked. / But the arching was made on the inside \ concave / with thin Brick in tiles fixed one into another, and on the convex with Roman cement a foote thick, ~~so fixed them together~~ which so incorporated the whole mass together that ~~to stooke & to close them~~ no one single tile of whol and entire that they could procure ~~without breakeing~~, but brooke them in pieces.
Near the oven mouth \ were / 3 large flags caer\le/sly laid upon another, & the Lowest had \ the / inscription on the face Turned downe wards. The stone was flags – supported.[29]

[II.84][30]

That this has bin a Romane station and that the Legio Vi Victrix (the Victorious Legion) fixd in this place; & that Aelius mentioned both in the great Inscription and the little Altar, did sacrifice here.[31]

Figure 2.3vii.7. 'The Little Altar', 2 ft 1/2 high. II.82.

June 26 1692
The rest sent and I may [send] other collections of \ finds & / Inscriptions to Dr Mill of Edmund Hall Oxon to be returned.[32]

[28] Machell drew a square symbol, here.
[29] See N&BI, 105.
[30] Contains pencilled notes, most illegible, on Natland and Watercrook.
[31] A scribbled pencilled note, very unclear, particularly the word, Aelius.
[32] See Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 3viii. Parish of Kendal. Selside and Skelsmergh]

[Selside and Skelsmergh]

[II.101][1]

In Penrith Road. Anciently Selshead: Selside* Chapel & Hall 3m. N.E. a Kendal.
{Fami[lies]} Selside – & Fawcet Forrest – 44.

[The Chapel]
Outside L[ength] 12 B[readth] 8.[2]

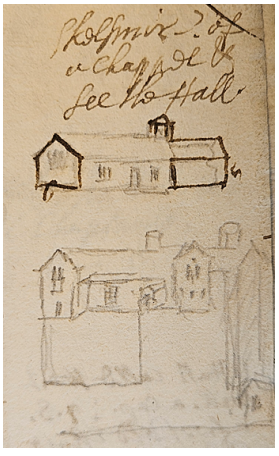

Figure 2.3viii.1. Selside Chapel and Hall. II.101.[3]

{? Dedicated}
The Dedication of this Chapel is not known, but there is a place in the Hamlet of Skelsmergh which belongs to & \ is / distant from this chapple about ½ a quarter S[ou]th West calld Patterdale,[4] whence it may be supposed \ to be / St Patricks Chapl. \ See the Rea[der]? / [5]

{2. House & Sallary}
There is no House belongs to the Reader: but ~~an ancient~~ Sallary of 5 marke \ 3: 6: 8 / per annum laid according to the Priority of Seates; so that those that sit within the quier pay 1s 8d per annum;[6] thence to the Bellroape 1s per House = & beneath the Bellroape 8d per House. {Mr Will. Thornborrow; Anth. Hall. Brackenrigg.}[7]

---

[1] Also numbered p.39.
[2] According to the sketch, 7 + 5 = the full length (12); '5' represents the length of the chancel.
[3] The chapel at Selside was described in 1709 as joined to cow-houses and stables at Selside Hall. The lower drawing appears to be a mixture of two attempts but must be the Hall with its cross-wings, so the top drawing represents the neighbouring chapel: see LANCAT, ARR/2/4/5/3, Faculty Cause Papers, c. 1709, 'Selside: petition to demolish and rebuild the chapel which is now ruinous; the present building is also joined to cowhouses and stables so the entrance to chapel has become noysome and offensive'. My thanks to Tony Cousins for this information.
[4] The Patterdales were fields on top of Skelsmergh Fell, where Watchgate water works are now situated.
[5] 'See the Chapel Reader.' Possibly Machell planned to check the dedication. Selside is dedicated to St Thomas.
[6] There is a blot over this figure. '1' is visible but might well have been changed to or from '2': unclear.
[7] Brackenrigg is a house in Selside, formerly a farm. The Hall family were occupants in the 17th century; see CASCAT, WDX 25, Whitwell and Selside. Land Tax 1647 etc. The 1647 Land Tax cites 'Robert Hall for Brackenrigg'.

{3. Patrons}
The Inhabitants Recommend a Reader to the Vicar of Kendal ~~Church~~; who has the Approbation ~~of him &~~ Confirmation of him.

4. Tithes}
Corne Tithe is payd in Kinde to ~~Trinity Coll~~ Mr Rowland Thornburrow of Me~~thap~~dup?[8] in Witherslack & Parish of Bethom: who payes a certaine Annual Rent of 3li 13: 4 to Trinity College in Cambridge for it (but doth not hold it by lease as they say, but by Inheritance. The Lady Thomasin Thornb[orrow] gave it by will to her eldest son Will. by the name of Tithe of Inheritance, & the lessee of the Rectory commensd a suit for it about 6 years agoe: but thought fit to let it fall.[9]
Hay money is paid to the Vicar of Kendal, with all other smal dues – Lamb 14d a Tythe Lamb. & wool in kinde to Sir John Otway – who farmes All the Rectory of the said College.[10]

[5. Bounder]
It is bounded on the East with Grarig Chapel: from which tis divided by Whin fell Beck: on the S. with Skelsmer\gh/ Chapl: divided by walls & waters. On the west it adjoynes on part of Skelsmergh – & the foote of Sleddal: divided from them by the outside of Catbarrow Wall – On the N. with Shap – & Orton parish in the Bottom of Westm'land; from the former of which (Sc. Shap) it is divided [by] Borrowbeck; & from the latter, Sc. Orton, by the same beck.

[Machell's Notes: II.101]
*{Skelsmir? Of a chappel & see the Hall.}[11]

[II.102]
{6. Division into Manors}[12]
It is divided into 2 Lordships – 1. Seshead[13] & 2. Fawcet Forrest:

{7. Tenure. Customary Fre Boones}
In Selside the Tennants are Customary; \ All but Mr Thornburrow \ who ret[ains] the demaine. / Thomas Cock is free[hold]/ \ & / as many as belong to Coll. Graham[14] are Arbitrary & Heriotable. But all Mr \ Rowland / Thornburrows \ Tennants / are at Fine Certaine (Sc. double the rent) excepting the Tenements of Brackenrig & Greengate Foote. And Mr Wilsons tenants are all Fine Certaine – Sc. an 8d fine – i.e. viii times double the Rent. The Wid[ows] pay the Heriots & have all the Estate their Husbands dyd ciesd of as Tenantright Land, so long as she continues in pure viduity.[15]

{Fawcet Forest}
The Tenants are Customary Arbitrary & Heriotable; But there are parcells ~~which Dispersd towards~~ which lye at Green \ Side / which pay noe Heriots \ nor Serv[ices] more than appear [at the Manor Court] / but [pay] a certaine free Rent amongst them all, of 12li per annum. These belong to [8] Meathop Hall was a Thornburgh seat in the 17th century; for the Thornburgh family of Selside see AWL, 295.

[9] Lady Thomasin née Bellingham, wife of Sir William Thornburgh, d. 1582.
[10] Farmes = leases. Sir John Otway's reach is also mentioned in Part 2, Ch.1, Barony of Kendal, II.359B); the Kendal chapelries of Longsleddale (Part 2. Ch.3vi, II.103), Burneside (Part 2, Ch.3i, II.91) and Hutton (Part 2, Ch.3iii, II.87); the parish of Beetham (Part 2, Ch.4, II.278); the Parish of Grasmere (Part 2, Ch.6, II.125-26); and the Parish of Windermere (Part 2, Ch.8, II.318).
[11] See Machell's Itinerary (Part 2, Ch.10, II.406); see also Blake Tyson, 'St. John's Well and Chapel, Skelsmergh: their location and present condition', CW2, 98 (1998), 156-67.
[12] For the text of a medieval deed relating to Selside see MS.IV.139.
[13] Machell might have intended to use an earlier version of the Selside name, e.g. Selsed(e) and Selshed(e).
[14] For Colonel Graham (Grahme), see Part 2. Ch.3vi, Longsleddale, II.104.
[15] 'As long as she does not remarry.'

Mr Graham & Forrest Hall (which has halfe of the forrest lying in [the] Demane) is the manner house which has bin in the Bellinghams time out of mind being their first Seat[16] when they came hither.[17]

{8. Lordship & Descent}
There are 3 Lords, each of which keeps a Court Barron, ~~&~~ \ whereof / the Forest is Court Leet & Barron – Sc. Rowland Thornburrow Esq. whose \ grandfather William / sold those Tenants – which Mr Graham has – to Sir James Bellingham: And those of Wilson, to Henry Wilson of Underley. ~~whose~~ And [Blank]* Son of Thomas, Son of Henry the Purchaser, doth now enjoy them.

{9. Manner Houses & Halls}
But the Rest he reserved ~~being intaled~~ with the Demaine & Manner house which he afterwards sold to his Cosan William Thornburrow, father of Frances, father of William, who now doth enjoy them; At w[hose] House the Tenants of Sleddall[18] formerly appeard \ & / Patton[19] & Whinfell (& som of Skelsmer belonging to Mr Rowland Thornburrow) did & do yet appeare at this Hall by the consent of the owner of it.
{1. Hall calld Whitwill,[20] a Capella ¼ q. S. A freehold Estate belong Mr W. Thornburrow after his mothers death; anciently the Thornburrows. 2 ew trees near the Hall} Cos[in] Thornburrow† \ workes / watches & silvere plate.[21]

{No Juniper. Raspberryes alias hawberryes. Strawb[erries] Turfes peat at hand & plenty, but in som parts scarce. No limeston but fetched from Skelsmer 1m. S., & coale from Regil. Rag stone – Fawcet Forrest manner. Slate a Blackish blew – ruff & heavy, 1m. N.W. on Whiteside‡.}

{10. Curiosityes}
Isabell Warriner of Bowthwate[22] – a Capella ¼ m. S.E. – dyed about 4 years agoe; being of the age of 106. & after she was 100 years old, she skaled \ all the / swathes ~~for a~~ \ in a day / that 2 mowers mew[23] & could thred a needle to her dying day having never usd spectacles.

The Dem[aine] is all called the Parkes & replenishd with wood & Deere in the mem[ory] of man.

[Machell's Notes: II.102]
*{q. If not the Land oner Harry.}
†{Pedigree.}[24]
‡See Shap Kirk Booke.
{Briam Thornburrow alias Sheepshanks in Kirkby Lonsdal. Picklock.}[25]

[16] Alan Bellingham (c.1517-1578) acquired and lived at Forest Hall, but the family had been in the area much longer. See Tony Cousins, 'Fawcett Forest', VCH Draft parish/township histories (2017), https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/sites/default/files/fawcett_forrest_draft_full_history.pdf
[17] A heading: 'Customs', has been left blank.
[18] Earlier name for Longsleddale.
[19] Paton.
[20] Whitwell.
[21] George Thornburgh, brother of William, was apprenticed in London as a Westminster watchmaker: see the Thornburgh pedigree, Part 2, Ch.10, Itinerary, II.404; see also LANCAT, DDTY/1/2/4: Lease of messuage and tenement at Lindall by George Thornburgh of Laisterfields, Westminster, co. Mddx, watchmaker etc. 19 Jan. 1704/5.
[22] Bouthwaite is still a Selside farm.
[23] In one day she spread out all the lines of hay that two mowers had mown; for skale/scale, see William Rollinson, Cumbrian Dictionary of Dialect, Tradition and Folklore (Otley, 1997), 141.
[24] See the pedigree in Machell's Itinerary (Part 2, Ch.10, II.404).
[25] This snippet of information, which relates more to Kirkby Lonsdale, probably occurred to Machell as he described the profession of his 'Cos Thornburrow'.

[Machell's Notes II.115]

In Kendal
Docker: & Dilliker f[amilies] = 25. In the proper place?[26]
Scalthwate-Rigg in the precincts of Kendal Church: f[amilies] 18. Q. in what Chapel – if not Selside.

[26] Docker and Dillicar belong with Grayrigg.

[Skelsmergh]

[II.119]

F[amilies]50.

Figure: 2.3viii.1A. '{St. Johns Well Running through Skelsmer Chaple from E. to W. Raspberry & Maden Hair grown out of the walls.}'

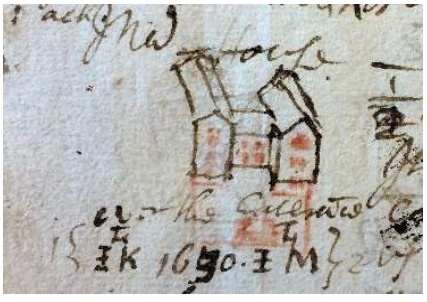
The Chapel {On the outside long 12 By 7½ [broad]} is Dedicated to St John Baptist; And a well springing out the East of it (which runns quite through the Chaple, into the High way which leads from Garth Row to Kendall) calld St John Well. It was standing about 50 years agoe, and the Runnell of the water was planked over & som Seates Remaneing in the quire – But has not been used in the memory of man. Yet The Great Bible was seen by the Informer {Thomas Gilpin of Skelsmergh Hall farmer æt 70}. And an Image of St. John with a Great Long beard. {Tithe}

{Tithe}
They pay their Tithe thus – Corne in kinde to Lesses of Trinity College in Cambridge – farm'd by Mr Laburn of Witherslack – Hay S[ilver] nothing at all. Wool in kinde to the Rectory; for a Tithe Lamb 14^{d} &c. All other small Tithe to the Vicar of Kendall.

{Ind[owment]}
No House ever Belongd to the Chaplane nor no Chapl yard. But an ancient Sallary – The Sum unknown. So much an h[ouse] But whether proportion'd by Rent or Seates is not now [known]. Xtpher Gilpin (father of Thomas, who lived to 95 years of Age a strong & active man to the last) told his son Thomas That he had seen It. { Thomas Gilpin of Skelsmergh Hall farmer aet 70.} The Vicar is supposed chose the ch[aplain] whom they calld priest, & one Sir Uter Gilpin was chaplain here before the Reformation; as appears by Will drawn by his hand. {not viewd.}

{Bounder}
It was Bounded on the ~~N. with Selside~~ East with Grarig Chaple[1] (being divided from It) in The S. with ~~the manner~~ Scalthwaterig belonging to the Mother church of Kendal divided by Mint-Water. On the W. with Burnaside chapelry from which tis divided by Sleddall Water, allis Spret[2] (as is supposd by a

[II.120]



Bridge of that name as you go hence to Burnaside on the N. ~~& W~~ \ E. / Sledal & Selside: from the formers of which It is divided by Sledal Beck: & from the Latter – By the Bounder of Selside. & note That Skelmer were in the Note of the Chaplaines Sallary, by which it appears to have belongd unto them alone. according the foresaid Bounder.

{Lordship}
It is one Entire Manner or Lordship calld Skelmirgh[a 3] The Tenants are generally Customary Arbitrary & Heriotable; Except about 9 or 10 is Freehold Lands Sc ~~Doding Green~~ \ Mr Ro[bert] Stephensons, / Milbeck \ Mr Peter Mawson / Milbeck & Gilthwate Rig \ Lawyer Rawlinson, / Mast hill \ Thomas

[1] Chapelry.
[2] Sprint.
[3] i.e. Thomas Gilpin as before, aged 70.

Cook / and severall others. Gilthwate Rig is of the Marquis Fee & holds under the Queen. For Tenant Right estates the Widow has It all dureing her pure viduity.

{The Manor}
The Manor was anciently in the Labourns from whom a Parcell of the Tenants were transmitted to the Bellinghams of Levins; & by the late Mr Allan Bellingham to Coll. Graham: Another parcel to the Brathwates of Burnaside who hold them still. The Bellinghams kept a Court Barron ~~at any place~~ formerly in memory of […?] at the Chappell: & since the demolishing thereof, at any of his Tenants House. ~~But the Courtes were anciently kept at the Ha~~. The Manner House is Skelsmer hall a capella a ~~¼~~ ½ m. S. near a mire or moss on the S. West of It called the Car. Whence possible It was called Skelmire, & perhaps from Scales[4] formerly upon their common, which was formerly large. This House with the Demaine was Reteined by Mr Labourne when he sold the Tenants (who suffered for Popery in Queen Elizabeth's time),[5] & Is now the Joynter of Mrs Labourne[6] after whose discease It descends to Mr George Labourne, now of Wither Slack, the chief of that family.

Over the Enterance: J \ L / K 1690 J \ L / M
1. John Laybourne & Katherine his first wife.
2. For John & Mary his second wife.

Figure: 2.3viii.1B. Skelsmergh Hall.[7]

{Tarnes}
Brabbon Tarne belongs to Graham a capella ¼ S.E. L[ength] 7 score br[eadth] 7 score but much growne up now.
Great Tarn to Graham. Had a Eal arke. L[ength] 400 b[readth] 400 a capella S.E. ¼ [mile] stored with Tench, Eal & Roach. {[They]Water The Chap[elry?] well by help of a sleuce above tarnes 2 mils with a mile of the head.}

[Notes]
{Gilthwate Rig is an ancient h[ouse] formerly belongd to Mr Richard Ducket descended from Grarig – who sold it to ~~The~~ Edward Turner Alderman of Kendal who resold to Sir William Rallison, a lawyer, now one of the Lords Com[missioners] for the Broad S[eal.}
{John Gilpin of Garthwain[8] in this manor – livd to 100 years of age – he died about 40 years Ab Anno Domini 1692.}
{Meadow from 10[s] to 20 – Arable from Idem– Pasture = a. 8 to 12.[9] Free Stone in the River Mint Read [stone] a capella ¾ [mile] S. Peates scarce and far afield but the Halls moss bough[t] in Crook Dale. Hay Straw & Raspberryes. Lime stone plenty Rag [stone].}

[4] Scales were huts or shielings constructed for the watchers of cattle in summer: OED.
[5] Informant: Thomas Gilpin, as above.
[6] Jointure: The holding of property to the joint use of a husband and wife for life or in tail, as a provision for the wife, in the event of her widowhood: OED.
[7] The date appears as 1690, but has been altered. The hall is older than this. There is a C15 Pele tower, a late C16 south wing, a wing to the east of the early C17 and a later extension: https://historicengland.org.uk/listing
[8] Perhaps, 'Garthwham'.
[9] Meadow from ten shillings to 20 per acre per annum; arable, from the same; pasture from eight to twelve shillings per acre.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 3ix. Parish of Kendal. Staveley]

Staveley Chapelry

[II.112]

[Notes]

Staveley Chapel[ry]
is Bounded on the East with Sleddal Chappel[ry] and is divided by the Ridge of Potter fell; on the S. with Underbarrow Chapel, divided by the Top of Rod-Rad (on which stands the signe of Rod-Rad but in Burnaside Chapelry; on the West with Crooke Chaple[ry], divided by \ the Ridge of / Brackenthwate fell; on the N. with Kentmire Chaple[ry], being divided by ~~Kno~~ \ Black / beck which runns by Milrig.

{Thinges of Note in Natur}
On Friday the 8 of July 1692, at Birkfield in Over Stavely – ~~as belief~~ e Capella E. 1m. {Richard Stephensons sons cow – a Quaker –} a calfe was calved, haveing 2 Heads – 4 Eyes – 2 Mouthes – & 3 Eares, the Heads being joyned together & the 2 ~~Head~~s Eares in the Midle Knit together by nature the Hollows inward, & seemd even down. It was with great difficulty pulld from the cow by the Help of Roapes & was alive, but the woman who assisted at it told me they killd it with working & helping the cow, which is now recoverd.[1]

There is a Parke called Staveley Parke wherein Staveley Hall stands, now all in Tenancy: Customary. ~~Arbitr~~ & Heriotable; & all the Lords have Tenents in it. Not replenishd in memory, but there are clean martes & wild cats, foxes, otters &c.[2]

Sheckles-Water, 11 score every way, is a Tarne – a Capella = 2m. N.E.; & lyes in 3 Lordships. Sc. Kentmer, Sleddal & Upper Staveley. Stored with Bass, Pikes, Eales – moore-game som.

{Ing-beck} has 2 heads: one at Hewgil a Capella 2m. N.W. Another – out of Applethwate fell in Windermer par[ish]. The head at Hewgil at High house* (formerly the Brathwates of Ambleside) runs thence S.E. to the Chaple of Ings on the westside; thence E. To Stavely, where it meets with Kent.

{Some Ewe at Burntknot. Store of Juniper; some Holly large – Raspberryes & Straw[berryes]} (& blea[berries] som).

Red stone none. Blew rag enough. Black blew Rag Slate – a Capella ½ m. W. at Rasell.
Turfe near but scarce. Meadow from 15 to 20s. Arable from 5 to 13s: 4d. Pasture from 3s to 6s.

[II.113]

Soyle: gravel.

[Machell's Notes: II.112]

*{Where the other branch meates it.}

[II.113][3]

A Paroch. Staveley Chaple

Ab Ecclesia N. & b[y] W. 4m.
{Bells.[4] Steple 4½. Body 27. Total 31½. Broad on the outside, 11. [Roof] lead.}

---

[1] Also noted on MS.II.113: '{Qu. of a Calfe Mo[ou]t[h]}'.
[2] MS: 'Not replenishd in memory, ~~But ther was \ is / if a place which~~.'
[3] Also numbered p.51. Note pencilled comments in Figure 2.3ix.1
[4] Three bells: N&B1, 140.

Figure 2.3ix.1. Staveley Chapel. II.113.

Fam[ilies] – Over Staveley 31
Nether Staveley 38
A pretty village; neat chaple in a plane; church yard a † at the gate, & a s[tone] bridge hard by.[5]

{In the East wind[ow]}

{The 1. \ being in the midle light [of the] E. w[indow] / is Standley. Sc. Ar[gent] a Bend – chargd with 3 Bucks, head cab[ossed] Or. & a mullet in chiefe for distinction &c. with its quartering impaleing Harrington.
The 2. Is Parr? in the 2nd light of the S. quire window; & there was another of these lately in the 3rd light of the East window.
The 3. Is in the South window next to the quire; & so is the 4th. And in the opposit window on the North side are 2 of the same; as at fig. 4th.}

The Dedication of this Chaple is not now known: But from this Inscription about one of the Bells I take it to ~~be~~ \ have / be[e]n St. Margarets.

\ Margeretam / CONCREPAT Illa Divam voce sonoram.[6]

And about the Greatest is writ: in the Name of God Amen – 1589.
The Communion Table is raled in, & there is besides a Pulpet, an Homily Desk on the left hand without the Quier dooer – octangular with Rale & Ballister in the forme of a Pulpet; with a Turneing Desk upon it for the Booke to Lye on.[7] \ It was made in 1618 & the Com[munion] T[able] Raled. / The walls are in Canonical Repare and so are all things about it.[8] But the Seats are old, & the floore of Blew rag[stone] – like unto marble, but in uneven & unequal courses.

Figure 2.3ix.2. Arms in Staveley Chapel East Window. II.113.

[5] The MS here also contains a pencilled phrase, 'a village; a † afore the steeple'.
[6] 'Let it make Blessed Margaret resound with its sonorous tones.' The modern church (consecrated 1865) is dedicated to St James, but the older church, dedicated to St Margaret, was founded by Sir William de Thweng in 1338; only its tower (1589) and churchyard remain, Hyde & Pevsner, 628-29.
[7] See Machell's turning table in his study at Kirkbythore: Part 1, Ch.14, I.537.
[8] Canonical repair: 'in conformity with, or having reference, to ecclesiastical edict or canon law'. OED.

50^{s} every good Friday given to the poore of Nether Staveley chapel chiefly by Mr Fleming; and Householders chargd upon Broadfold Ibidem – is 10^{s} per Annum yearly to the poore of the Brow & Gate chargd upon Longclose by [blank]

(William Harrison of Bampton Schoole – Curate – or Chaplaine – shewd me a pice of fire stone found in Borradale fells in Cumberland.)[9]
{The inhabitants cho[o]se [a curate or chaplain] & the vicar of Kendal approves.} There is no Dwelling house belonging him, but an Sallary \ ancient Ras'd by Seates / of XX nobles (6:13:4), and 10^{s} per annum (given by Hen[ry] Nicholson late of Pik'd-how in Over Staveley) for a yearly sermon on St. Thomas Day.[10] But hee teacheth School in the Chappel by permition; for which he has 1^{s} per Quarter, & of some 18^{d} as they can agree. But for the Tithes: they are payable to the Rectory & Vickaridge of Kendall thus.

{Division}
There are in this Chappelry,
3 Courtes Baron kept by 3 Severall Lords; & the Tennaments lye intermixt & dispersed;[11]
& Thre Hamlets belonging to it. Sc. Upper Staveley & Nether Staveley: in Mr Brathwate Poem called Staflay – from a woman laying down her Staff.[12] The 3rd, Hugil. & the Tenants intermixd.
[1.] The chiefe Lord is the King: & his Tenants are of the Marquess fee. (The rest hold?) all customary, fine certaine – 1d at the Death of the Queen, & 3 penny, i.e. 3ple[13] the Rent at death or alienation of the Tenant, & Heriotable; & Has Waife & Stray in that Lib[erty].
[Informant] Mr Gay.

[II.114]

2. Is Coll. Graham, who purchased late of Mr Allane Belingham which family had long enjoyd them; & are all Customary, Arbitrary & Heriotable (No Boones) – No Freeholds.
3. Mr. Brathwate of Burnaside; purchased of Gilpins of Kentmer Hall, as is reported about 100 years agoe. No freeholds – but all Customary fine arbitrary & Heriotable. & No Boones. All pay Greenhew,[14] & the Lords clame the wood – & they have House Hedge & Harrow boote,[15] & crop for the fire on their own Tenements. They all take Wafe in their Respective libertyes: & the Sherif of Westmorland has clamed of late – and appointed a Deputy.

[9] William Harrison appears in CCED as schoolmaster at Staveley in 1677 and curate there from 1712. He resigned in 1724. CCED.
[10] 21 December.
[11] A margin comment here is largely obscured but contains the words, 'William Rob … in Staveley'.
[12] Richard Brathwate (also spelled as Brathwaite, Brathwait and Brathwayte) c.1587/8-1673, poet. His father, Thomas, was a barrister and recorder of Kendal, who inherited the family estate at Burneside. Richard Brathwate was his second surviving son. In two of his poems, Brathwate speaks of Kendal as his 'native place.' According to Anthony Wood, he matriculated as a 'gentleman's son' and 'became a commoner of Oriel College A.D. 1604, aged 16'. He remained at Oxford for several years, enjoying a scholarly life, until his father desired him to take up the law. He was sent to Cambridge, and on leaving he removed to London, where, according to his own account in 'Spiritual Spicerie: containing sundrie sweet tractates of Devotion and Piety' (1638), he devoted himself to poetry and dramatic writing. After his father's death in 1610, he inherited his estate. For this account, and a select list of his poetry, see Edmund Gosse, Braithwaite Richard, Dictionary of National Biography (Archive Edition), 1885-1900. Vol. 6. See also his volume of Latin and English doggerel verse, Barnabæ Itinerarium, or Barnabee's Journal, under the pseudonym 'Corymbæus' (1638; reprinted as Drunken Barnaby's Four Journeys to the North, during the 18th century). Brathwate's authorship of this work was ascertained by Joseph Haslewood, who edited the work in 1818.
[13] Triple.
[14] Greenhew: the right to cut greenery for fodder.
[15] House, hedge and harrow boots were 'estovers': the right to cut wood for repairs. The Old English word for estover was bote or boot, meaning 'good'. The various kinds of estover were house-bote, cart or plough-bote, hedge or hay-bote, and fire-bote: The Tradesman's Lawyer and Countrey-man's Friend (London, 1703), 206.

[Houses]

~~The Old Hall~~ ~~calld~~ Staveley Hall \ in Over Staveley, / a Capella ¼ m. N. has bin called the Manner House of Upper Staveley, which now is falln – nothing being standing but the wall which belongs to Mr. Will. Birket being on his Tenement – & in that part which belongs to the Crown.

Another calld the Old Hall in Nether Staveley, a Capella 1m. S.W. Nothing standing but the vaults & walls – which belongs to Mr Brathwate: & another calld Hall within 2ce[16] 12 Score [yards], with a Demane in the Libertyes of which both Halls are conteined. & belongs Mr. Brathwates. This Estate belonged once to the name of Carus. And the Court is kept here for Mr. Brathwate or at any of his Tenants houses.

There are other Houses calld –
In Nether Staveley
[1.] John Philipson of Calgarth Esq. at Hollin How where a Hall of that name.
(2. E[s]q[ui]r[e] Bra[thwate] a Law[yer])
3. Xt[opher] Philipson of the Ashes & Roberth both freeholds, but no Hall.
4. Henfield – Broadfold no H[all].
5. Henry Mackreth – Crag & Sandy Hill, no H[all.
6. Robert Chamber Goosegreen Yeat, no H[all].
7. Roger Harrison of Stockbridge No Hall.
8. Rob. Harrison – Moss Side No H[all].
9. Mr Gay \ Far / Fair Banke, an Hall,[17] & Mr Sands [owner] \ of / the other halfe, by marriage of the d[aughter] & h-eir] of Mr. Will. Knipe.

[In Over Staveley]
Freholds in Over Staveley – none.

In Hugil. Freeholds:
1. Peter Birket – Grestgarth.
2. Roger Harrison – Ruston.[18] Qu. of whom they Hold.

[II.472A]

[De Thweng; Market]

De Thweng[19] {Tome 2.[20] of Dugdalls Baronage, p.30.}[21]

2. Marmaduke de Thweng brother & heir of Rob. Summond to Parliament 35. Ed. 1. [1306-1307] till the 16. Ed. 2. [1322-1323]. Justifibly dyed that year.	= Isabell d. of Will. de Ross of Igmanthorp in Com. York.	Robert de Thweng.
|
William to whom his father gave Lands in Hesslington, Kirkeby in Kendal, Warton & other places with the manor of Thweng. 16. Ed. 2. [1328-1329] ætatis 30.

[16] Twice.
[17] Machell's informant, see II.113, above.
[18] Now known as High and Low Reston, Westmorland Place-Names.
[19] William de Thweng [died 1340-41], lord of the manor, owned a park and a hall at Staveley: N&B1, 138.
[20] Volume 2.
[21] For references to the de Thweng family, see Part 2, Ch.1, Burneside, II.92 and fn.

{Staveley made a market town 2. Ed. iij. [1328-29]}

This William Thwengs died in the 2nd of Ed. 3. Obtained a grant for a mercat every week upon the Friday. And a fair yearly on the Eve day & morrow of St Luke the Evangelist[22] – at Staveley in Kendal in Com. Westmorland. And he was summond to Parliament 12. of Ed. 2. [1318-19]: but never afterwards.[23]

[22] Feast of St Luke: 18 October.
[23] Nicolson and Burn referenced John Denton when reproducing some of this information (see N&BI, 140), but it can also be found here, in Machell II.472A. Machell owned a copy of John Denton's MS: see MS.VI.146 -76.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 3x. Parish of Kendal. Underbarrow]

Under Bar[row]

[II.109]

Ab Ecclesia W. 1m.½. See my Paper. Fam[ilies] 74.

[II.111]

[Name][1]
{Barrow […][2] Barrow? Barrowby.
Brough Brou.
Thorow. Through. Throw.
Thornbrough, brow, burrow}

Underbarrow Chapel[ry] Bounder
2m & ½ West ab Ecclesia.[3] Joynes on the East to \ West part or Lordship / Kendal, the mother church; on the South to Brigstere in Kendal; West on Crosthwate in Hersham parish; North on Crooke and Staveley Chaplryes.

{Underbarrow Chappel in Kendal 19. Oct. 91.}

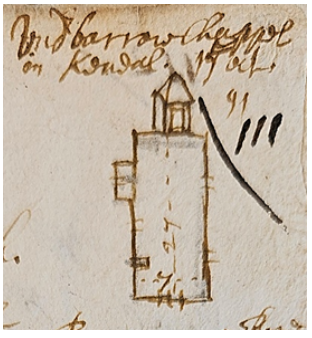

Figure 2.3x.1. Underbarrow Chapel. II.111.

Sall[ary] xi^{li} per Annum at so much a seate \ ab antiq. / a certaine rent upon every house.

[In the Chapel yard are] 6 ewe trees, 3 on each side. & one before the Gate, 24 yards in Diameter paced underneath.[4] & 3 or 4 Seates one above another like the staires of a Crosse.[5] These trees doe so shelter and over shadow the Chappell & yeald such a verdure & gloomy shade that it makes it looke \ solemn / like a place of devotion, and if it were a burying place (as it is not) might well be called a gloomy sepulcher.[6]

~~Tis~~ Only one Hamlett belong \ to this chaple / & the Tenents are part the Queens who Answer at Kendal and part Mr Grahams, who Answer at Hels[ing]ton Leathes. & the Queens [tenants pay] \ Fine / Certain. The other are {as in Crosthwate} so that that there is no Manner House; nor Houses of note

[1] Underbarrow: 'under beorg'; (land) under the hill. The hill is one of those like Knott or Helsington Barrows, forming the long ridge between Underbarrow Beck and the Kent, see Westmorland Place-Names.
[2] Followed here by three unclear words, 'a Bord …'
[3] See II.109, where the chapelry is stated as being 1½ miles from the parish church.
[4] MS: 'pavcd underneath.' Paced or paved?
[5] Machell appears to refer to a Calvary Cross: in heraldry, a cross set on three steps. OED.
[6] Scored-through notes on this page, relating to the above, are, '~~A Gloomy Sepulcher~~; ~~X The Chapel len 27 broad 7~~.'

{excepting 2} \ tho many fair houses, som of which have assumed the naim which may seem / to hav bin a Manner House but hath no tenants now appear here.[7]

Cunswick

E. a Capella 1m.½; now hath no tenants. Now Mrs Bradleys dureing her life; is then Mrs George Labourne of Witherslack \ in which name fam[ily] it hath long continued. / A little above the house northwards is a Tarne.

Men of note

[1.] {Bishop Labourn; sent about by King James 2. Brother of George.
2. Another they say like to be Cardinal sed q[uery]!} [8]

Tranthwate

E. a Capella ¼ m. A small estate with som \ few / tenants which belong to \ one / Thomas Bateman & \ hath bin pretty / long in the name, but of no great accounte.

Mangy-well.[9]

N.W. a Capella 1 quarter [mile]. Cures the Itch.[10]

The foundation of a chaple within 3 yards of it. This has bin an Hermitage (as I suppose) in the Times of Popery.

This abounds with Juniper instead of whins all over the Lordship – & hath a Long-Skar which extends its selfe from N. South on the Top of a very high mountaine; which I suppose has bin calld Barrow – corruptly from Burrow, whence our Brow, & has given name to the place which lyes beneath it calld Under Barrow. A little below this notable precipice is an Long Hutt[…][11] of wood, which belongeth to Mr Grahame \ presently to Mr Bellingham; / and here and there are divers little Tufts of Trees, with many Hollyes, Ewes & the like below in the chapelry, which being intermixt with \ craggy / rocks \ which are there very plentifull, and pieces here [&] there of green ground / makes it very delightfull on a sun-shine day. But how \ well / it becomes it[s] winter garment I cannot tell.

[7] The text here is very disjointed; the last word is unclear.

[8] The history of the Leyburn (Labourne, Layburne) family parallels difficulties experienced by the Roman Catholic Church in England in the 17th century. Cunswick-born John Leyburn, President of Douai College in 1672, served as James II's Catholic vicar apostolic and bishop from 1685 to 1688, during which time, he organised the funding of Catholic chapels, clergy and education. In July 1687 he began a national tour to dispense the sacrament of Confirmation to Catholic laity. This involved 12 confirmations at Corby in Cumberland, 23 at Greystoke, 28 at Sizergh, 37 at Dodding Green near Kendal, and 161 at Witherslack: see Michael Mullett, Carlisle in Revolution and Restoration, c. 1648-1688, CWAAS Tract Series 30 (Kendal, 2022), 119-120. As Alison Wright has remarked, 'It gives an idea of how close-knit this community was that only six of the sponsors of the communicants mentioned out of the 45 on his progress were not related to him in some way, or neighbours in the North West or had not been educated at Douay.' Alison Wright, 'Loyalty and Tradition II: Networking among the north-western Catholic Gentry, 1640-1720: The Case of the Layburnes', CW3, 14 (2014), 103-24, at 113. The efficiency of Bishop Leyburn's social and political networking in 1687 can be gauged from The Diary of Dr Thomas Cartwright, Bishop of Chester commencing at the time of his elevation to that see, August M. DC. LXXXVI. And terminating with the visitation of St. Mary Magdalene College, Oxford, October M. DC. LXXXVII. (Camden Society, London, 1843). The last Leyburn to inherit Cunswick was another John Leyburn. He joined the 1715 Jacobite rising at Preston, where he was taken prisoner. In London, he was tried and attainted for treason, although not executed. See Alison Wright, The Layburnes and their World circa 1620-1720, The English Catholic Community and the House of Stuart, PhD Thesis (University of St Andrews, 2002), 25-27.

[9] Mangy: suffering from, or having the appearance of suffering from, the mange; of the nature of or caused by the mange; formerly also, scabby. OED.

[10] The itch: a contagious disease in which the skin is covered with vesicles and pustules, accompanied by extreme irritation, now known to be produced by the itch-mite; scabies. OED.

[11] Insecure transcription; possibly a shortened form of a longer word.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 4. Beetham]

[II.265][1]

Bethom Parish {In Kendal Barony}

[II.276]

[Beetham Church]

Figure 2.4.1. Beetham Church. II.276.

L. 36 outside. B. 19 outside. 2 Rows of 6 p[illars.] 3 Bells.

[II.267]

Figure 2.4.2. 'In the High Quire on the South Side in wainscot: F.D. 1614'. II.267.

Figure 2.4.3. 'In the East window of the great Quire'. II.267.

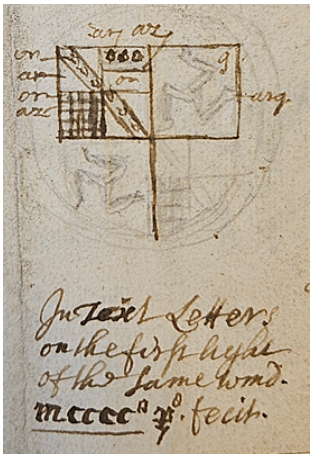

Figure 2.4.4. 'In the E. Window of the S. Ile quire. In Text Letters on the first light of the same window'. II.267.

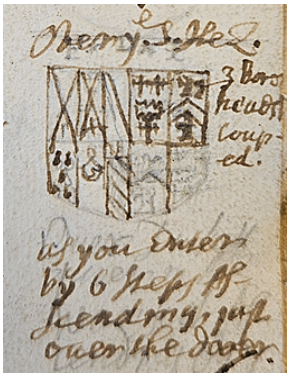

Figure 2.4.5. 'Over the S. Ile Q. as you enter by 6 steps Ascending, just over the dooer. 3 Bores heads couped'. II.267.

Figure 2.4.6. On the South Side. II.267.[2]

[2] Sir Thomas Middleton of Middleton Hall and Anne Beetham, his wife, c.1490. The effigy was badly damaged in 1647, see Hyde & Pevsner, 150.

Figure 2.4.7. 'In a midle window in the S. Ile.' II.267.

Note. A Brown Bulls head errased with a Ducal coller is in several Quarries of this window.

Figure 2.4.8. Beetham Church memorials. Foot of II.267.

This Pendent Coate is in the 2nd window on the North Side Ally. In which allso I Read These names.

Rogerus Lewyns | in artibus magister[3] | Reginaldus Lewyns | in Theologia bachalar'[4] | Jacobus Lewyns | vicarius de Cantley.[5]

And on another fragment beneath it.

Elizabetha Lewyns. | Isbella. Sebolla. Margareta. Edwardus. Johannes.[6]

[II.269]

The church is dedicate to Saint Leoth, or Lithe*.

{A Proverb: To St Lithe of Bethom, with many man Lates – from coming Pilgrimage for their absent friends.}[7]

[3] 'Master of Arts'.

[4] 'Bachelor of Theology.'

[5] 'Vicar of Cantley'.

[6] See Part 2, Ch.10, Itinerary, II.390, commenting on the name/meaning of Lewyn: 'Upper Levins Hall formerly writ (as I gather from the Inscriptions in Bethom church windows) Lewyns {q. le-vines – but it is writ in Ed. 3. time, Levens, Sc. Inq. in Part General} & belonging to an \ ancient / family That tooke name from Hence.'

[7] Nicolson and Burn have little to say on this, except, 'The church, according to Mr Machell's account, is dedicated to St Leoth or Lyth, otherwise called Lioba or Liobgytha; but according to Mr Brown Willis it is dedicated to St Michael. It is a vicarage in the patronage of the crown and in the presentation (under the crown) of the chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster.' N&B1, 217-18.

It is a neat building – Ruf cast all over on the Out Side; & pla[s]terd within with sentences &c.[8] – & is decently kept. The Church yard is pretty spatiouse & plane considering the country; and the places adjacent, notwithstanding the craggy fell which lyes above it towards the west, are very delightfull by reason of the woods & water.

The Parsonage House is on the N.E. side of the Church yard; which was formerly calld the College of St Maryes in Eccles[ia], & belongd to the monastry of St Maryes Yorke. But at the Desolution in the Time of King Hen. 8 it was held to the Crown. It is said that King James 1^{t} bestow'd it upon the Duke of Lenox – who Lett it in Lease to the Labournes of Wilder Slack; & was afterwards purchased \ in / to a fee farme by Sir Francis Ducket \ to his own use / {4^{0} Jacobi}[1606-07], paying yearly to the Crown therefore – 25^{li}, and to the vicar 13^{li} per Annum, & is now in the hand of Mrs ~~Hilton~~ \ Elizabeth / Hilton, widow \ and sometimes / Relict & 3^{t} wife of James Ducket of Grarig Esq. who[se] father Anthony sold of[f] The Tithe Barne of Farleton to the Wilsons of Underley of Helslack & Storth \ to Hugh Tomlinson, Yorke, who sold it / to Mr Ralph Buskell. & Whatside Tithe Barne he gave to Will his Eldest Son, by the 2nd ventor;[9] who sold it to John Girlington of Thurland-Castle in Lancs. Esq.
The College extended to above the dove cote as by the foundations doth yet appeare; and the old Vicaridge House, to which a new house (lately built by Mr Hilton) is now annexed, stood behind the old Parsonage House adjoyning unto the Church yard wall[10] {in memory.} But the Vicar now has not any House but what he farmes in another Town; Nor Church yard nor Glebe – nor so much as Smal Tithe, but surplice fees \ only /and the said salary. The King present to it.

[Machell's Notes: II.269]
*{See the Aurea Legenda}.[11] Lioba or Liobgytha. See Cressys Ch. History of Britain, lib. 24, cap 4, p.626.[12]

[II.274B]

The Indowment & patronage of the Vicars of Bethom: the Vicary of Bethom Contested

[II.274A]

May 18 1668
The Inhabitants of Bethoms Case[13]
The Rectory of Bethom fell into the hands of the Crown in K. Edward the 6th [1547-1553] upon the disolution of the Chantry of St Maryes of York, after which time the King had and his successors hath to this day the presentation to the Vicarage; which vicar stands charged with first fruits 13^{li} 7^{s} 6^{d} & Tenths 1^{li} 6^{s} 9^{d}; Subsid[i]es 2^{li} 8^{s} 0^{d}, besides pensions synodales and proccurations; which argues the vicarage to be endowed*. That the Rectory continued in the hands of the Crowne till the 4th yr King James [1606-07]; the Crowne Leaseing it from 21 yeares to 21 yeares under the fee farme rent of 35^{li}

[8] At this time, parish church interiors were often adorned with painted religious texts, e.g. Grasmere, Kendal, Beetham and Kirkby Lonsdale. See Andrew White, '"For his extraordinary paines in beutifying the church." The work of James Addison of Hornby, church painter', CW3, 18 (2018), 191-200.
[9] Or 'venter'; an obsolete word meaning one who sells or offers for sale; a vendor. OED.
[10] MS: 'And the old \ Vicaridge / House is now annexed stood behind the old Parsonage House ~~in~~ adjoyning \ unto / the ~~Court w~~ Church yard wall.'
[11] 'See The Golden Legend.' Aurea Legenda was a collection of hagiographies of the greater saints of the medieval church, written c.1260 by Jacobus de Voragine; it was one of the first books printed by William Caxton in English, appearing in 1483 and reaching its ninth edition in 1527: see Sherry L. Reames The Legenda Aurea: A Re-examination of its Paradoxical History (Madison, Wisconsin, 1985).
[12] The notes are not in Machell's hand and the style resembles William Nicolson's. 'Cressy's Ch. Hist. of Britt.' refers to Serenus Cressy, The Church-history of Brittany [Britain] from the Beginning of Christianity to the Norman Conquest under Roman Governours, Brittish Kings, the English-Saxon Heptarchy, the English-Saxon (and Danish) Monarchy, from all which is evidently demonstrated that the present Roman Catholick religion hath from the beginning, without interruption or change been professed in this our island, &c. (1668). St Lioba was a mid-8th century English nun; sometime after carrying out a missionary journey to Germany for St Boniface, she established a religious community there: see Robert Ellsberg, Blessed Among Us: Day by Day with Saintly Witnesses (Minnesota, 2016), 559. The church at Beetham is now dedicated to St Michael and all Angels.
[13] Not in Machell's hand, apart from margin queries.

per annum, paying 13li per annum to the Vicar as an Augmentation to the vicarage; and it was constantly leased by these words ~~totali~~

> "Totam illam Rectoriam de Bethom in comitatu Westmer[iae] et terris Gleab[alib]us et al[ijs] profittuis eidem Rector[i] Spectand[is]."[14]

By the grant the 4th yr K. James to Sir Francis Duckett, the Rectory is granted – reserving the antient Rent and payment to the Vicar – by these words.

> "Omnia et Singula Capella Cemiter[ium] mess[eria] molendin[um] Domos, Edificia Structur[as] horrea, stabula, hort[os], pomaria, Gardina, shopas, Cellar[ia], Sollar[ia], Terr[as] tenendum prat[a] pascua pascuar[ia] commun[ia] Terris Gleab[alibus], vias vaccua sum[ma] vasta jampna et Bruer[ia], moras moriscos aquas piscarias piscares boscos subboscos decimas Gerbar[um] Blador[um], Granor[um] et feni et lana[e] Lini et Cannabis et agnellorum nec non oblationes et obventiones ac omnes alias decimas quascunq[ue] tam majores quam minores."[15]

The K[ing] within this 4 yeares, presented one John Brockbank Clerke to the Vicarage;[16] who will be found to have it by reason of the great Impositions that are annually upon it. The K. could but grant quantum in se;[17] he could not grant the Church rights, whether it were possible to quash the grant in toto or in parte,[18] if the Vicaridge was endowed with lands, tythes or other rights. The Kings grant […][19]

[II.274B]

The Kings grant cannot take them away. But til it be known what the Endowment of the Vicaridge is, I cannot give any certane opinion, but conceive it is fit to search for the Endowments of the Vicaridge, which, appearing the granting of things there to belonging in the Patents, cannot prejudice the Vicar. Fran: Lindley.[20]

[Machell's Notes: II.274A]

{*I doubt that soe in tem. H. 8?}[21]

[II.270]

[Beetham Parish]

{Tithes}

The Tithes are in the said Mrs Hilton, or rather in feoffes in Trust for raseing Portions to her 3 Daughters \ which she had / by Mr Ducket as it [was] appointed by their father – and the over-plus to goe to the mother.

Corne hay & wool, Salt, fish, pigg, goose, & all but Lamb is payd in kinde, except som places where they pay a modus;[22] & for their Tithe lambes they pay 7d a piece. {T.}

---

[14] 'All that Rectory of Bethom in the County of Westmorland and with its glebe lands and other income to be expected by the said Rector.'

[15] 'All and singular along with the chapel; churchyard, harvests, mill, houses, buildings, structures, barns, stables, potagers, orchards, gardens, workshops, store-rooms, upper storeys, arable lands, tenant-holding, meadows, pastures, common pastures, along with the glebe lands; ways, bare heights, wastes, furze-brakes, heaths, moors, marshes, waters, fisheries, fishings, woods, underwoods, tithes of sheaves, standing corn, grain, hay, wool, flax, hemp, lambs; also all offerings and income and all other sorts of tithes whatsoever, both greater and smaller.'

[16] John Brockbank[e] was ordained deacon in 1662, priested in 1663, appointed vicar of Beetham in 1664, appointed curate of Witherslack chapel in 1671 and is also recorded as schoolmaster at Witherslack Grammar School from 1684 to 1701. His CCED record ends in 1701.

[17] 'So far as in him lies'.

[18] 'In whole or in part'.

[19] Two lines of text at the foot of this page have been scored through; much is illegible because foot the page has been cut through. This was clearly intentional because the text continues seamlessly on II.274B; this time in Machell's hand.

[20] This last is apparently the opinion of learned counsel (Francis Lindley), but written in Machell's hand.

[21] Margin note in Machell's hand.

[22] Modus. In full, modus decimandi: a method of paying tithes other than the one which is usual or prevalent; especially a money payment made in lieu of a tithe. OED.

{Bounds} [23]
It is bounded on the East with Hutton Roofe \ in K.[24] / & Burton parish, which runs quite through ~~Burton~~ touching on Hutton Roofe. Which part is called Farleton & Akebanke. On the South it is hem'd in with Warton Parish in Com. Lanc.[25] – & divided from it as in the Generall Bounder of Westmorland. On the West, with Cartmel in Lancashire, by the said Bounder. On the North with Heversham parish – from which it [is] separated – from Powbrig to Bachouse Neuke by a streight line. & so by the like, to Milthrop Bridge – thence to Abs Well by the Water Beethae.[26] Thence ~~to~~ by Levens Close & Belliside hedge to Akenthwate Land,[27] which land follows to Whasset Yeat; Thence by the Ringd Okes of Bethom Lordship \ to / Overthwate Bridge.

{Division}
It is divide into the Preci[n]cts of the Mother Church and the Chappelry of Witherslack aliis Wilder Slack.
In Bethom are 3 Lordships:
1. Bethom ~~wher~~ within 40-yard of the church on the S. side.
2. Haverbrack – wherein the Church stands.
3. Farleton – E. from the Ch. 2m.
And in the Chappelry ~~Ease~~ the said One:
4. Sc. – Witherslack – N.W. 4 miles.

Rosemary Generall [in the parish]

[Arnshead Tower]
There is also a Place calld Arnshead Tower 2m½ SW ab Ecclesia. The Earle of Darbyes.[28]
N.B. Arnshead[29] Tenants appear now at Bethom but anciently there was \ & yett is / a Tower House calld Arnshead Tower with Demane Lands belonging to it,[30] now Let out in Lease for Lives by the Earle of Darby, lord of the same: to whose Ancestors it was given on {forfeiture of Sir Thomas Broughton, who had Wither Slack also – But takeing up Armes with Martin Swarth (whence Swarthmoore near Ulverston in Furness) & advancd as tis said as far as Trent,}
[II.271][31]
{they were discomfited; he, flying, dyed in obscurity & his Estate was Leased. Some will needs [have] him to buried in the Common of Witherslack at a place calld Broughton Stone.}[32]

{Arnside had Deere 12 years agoe. Wild cats. Goates in Arnside. Brocks. Foxes.}[33]

[23] Here Machell has placed a compass drawing with the church at the centre. Although this was his usual practice when describing parish bounds, such sketches are only occasionally reproduced in this edition.
[24] Kirkby Lonsdale.
[25] 'The county of Lancashire'.
[26] River Bela.
[27] Ackenthwaite.
[28] In the MS, this sentence appears on II.271.
[29] Arnside.
[30] Arnside Tower was burned down in 1602; see Smith, Place-Names 1, 65.
[31] Also numbered p.39.
[32] Machell is referring to the Battle of Stoke Field, 1487, in which Sir Thomas Broughton and other English landowners sought, with the Earl of Lincoln and German troops under Martin Swartz, to replace Henry VII with a usurper (Lambert Simnel). The main army landed at Furness, pitching its tents at Ulverston near Swarthmoor. Swarth moor means 'black moor' (see Westmorland Place-Names), though Machell derived it from the man, Swartz. Sir Thomas Broughton and Swartz were killed in the ensuing battle of Stoke Field, but a rumour spread that Broughton had escaped to live in concealment among his tenants at Witherslack; hence Machell repeated the local story that Broughton had been buried on Witherslack common. See a longer version of this tale in William Howitt, Cassell's Illustrated History of England II (London, 1858), 82-83.
[33] There are two more entries here, which appear to be 'Gentes' [perhaps Goates] and 'Martsil.' These creatures have not been identified, though Machell frequently referred to 'martes', i.e. martens or polecats [otherwise known as pine martens]. OED.

[Lordships]

1. Bethom Lordship
F[amilies] 85. Hale f[amilies] & Whasset 39. \ both a Towne. /
The College. A Schoole built 60 [yards] S. from the Church. Built out \ of the use of the / Church Stock – about 1663 – & the Sallary at present is the use of 100$^{li.}$ let out by feofees who elect a Schoolmaster.[34]
{Mr Leighton, Parson in Essecks, born in this parish.}[35]

Beathom Tower \ 1¼ S. / destroyd in the Civil Wars.[36] Now demolishd as the Manner House. {traditionally calld Bethom Castle.} But the Court is kept at the School; in [which] regard the Earle of Darby Lord of the Manner, gave a Ginny & Timber for the Building of it.[37]
Helslack Tower 1m. S. ab Ecclesia – demolishd.[38]

Cappleside Hall ¼ N.E.[39] {formerly} Buskils, then Prestons by purchase. Now Lord Cliffords. The Descent on the other Side.
{Margaret Hind[40] dyed a yeare since, being 106. Thom. Johnson yet living, 103 & yet sets netts.}

2. Haverbrack
F[amilies] 11; Wattress f[amilies] 3; Sandside 4.
Dallan Tower is the Manner House – But they never keep Court.
There is a fort calld Castle Tower a Dall[am] ¼; a[l]most as big as the Round Table.[41]
Ponds at Dallan Town. Troutes & Eales.
All Customary, Fine Arbitrary \ & Heriotable / except the Rectory which is 1d fine at death of ~~the vicar &~~ \ the impropriator / & a 6d fine upon Descent or alienation. Wid[ows] p. have halfe for life.[42]
Lord [has] Waif & Stray.

3. Farleton
F[amilies] 31. Overthwate & Akebank all one L[ordship] 29.[43]
No manner – A Beacon on Farleton Knot – where there are 3. There is a Place calld Chapl. hill where it is said a Chapl. has stood: – 2 m \ E. / ab Ecclesia & about a Quarter of a m. from Farleton.
Arbitrary & heriotable; no freehold.
In Farleton dureing pure widow[hood] they have all the Estate of their husbands – otherwise loose all.
Lord [has]Waif & Stray.
{The Descent}[44]

---

[34] For the building of the school and master's house, see 'Inventory of the sums subscribed by the parishioners for the building a school [25 April 1620] & [house] for the use of the Master [1647]', in John R. Ford (ed.), The Beetham Repository, 1770, by the Rev. William Hutton, Vicar of Beetham, 1762-1811, CWAAS Tract Series 7 (Kendal, 1906), 52-56.
[35] Ambrose Leighton MA (Christ's College, Cambridge), born at Leighton Beck, rector of Little Yeldham in Essex, gave a donation of £20 to Beetham School in 1663, see The Beetham Repository 1770, 71.
[36] This comment was repeated in the MS at the page top. The tower was destroyed in 1644. William Hutton gave a colourful description of its fall: 'Fairfax … came … to dislodge some Scotch men who had seiz'd it: and this he did, and threw down the East wing about their ears. A few were kill'd, and the rest after possessing it two or three months and slaughtering the sheep of the neighbourhood made their escape.' See The Beetham Repository 1770, 93.
[37] Machell was referring to the sum of one guinea; for 'ginny'. OED.
[38] Hazelslack Tower, a pele tower built in the 14th century; in ruins by the 17th: Smith, Place-Names 1, 70.
[39] The earliest date of a specific reference to a hall at Cappleside is 1585. It was demolished shortly after 1687, apart from the southern tower which was converted into a barn in 1763, and was ruinous by 1862, see Historic England Research Records, https://www.heritagegateway.org.uk.
[40] Unclear word.
[41] Dallam Tower: a pele tower was built on the site c.1375 but demolished when the present house was built in 1720-23. There is a plan of 1614 showing a house with formal gardens on the east and west sides: http://www.parksandgardens.ac.uk. https://www.heritagegateway.org.uk
[42] Meaning: 'widows in pure viduity have half their husbands' estate for life'.
[43] This number is on the far right of a page which has perished at the edge.
[44] Descent of the lordship.

It was in Judge Hutton ~~who was born in Be~~ & descended by a D[aughter] upon Collonell Bierly of Grange in Yorkeshire.[45]

4. Witherslack
F[amilies] 37; Me\a/thop 7 & Ou\l/vay 3.[46] {which are in the Lordship but not in the chappelry.}[47]
Arbitrary & heriotable.
{[The Lordship] is supposed to have come with Bethom to the Earle of Darby – The House \ & Demane / sold circa 1660.}

Witherslack Hall was the manner [house] but the Demane being sold of, the Tenants appear any where in the manner where they are sumond. Dr Barwick, Dean of St Pauls, was borne hard by the chaple at a Place calld ~~Fellend~~ \ Halecat; who founded & endowd the Chapel & Schoole.[48]
Joh[n] Labourn – a Romish bishop. George his ~~brother~~ \ unckle / President of Dowa.[49] Nicholas – brother to the Bishop Procurator Ibidem.

Witherslack Park which is part of Witherslack demane is replenished with deer. Polecates.

Witherslack Well \ calld Holly well / purges by it, & urine & vomit, and is saltish & cures wormes.

Slate limestone and rag[stone].

[II.272]

[Descents]

{Descent of Bethom}
It was anciently in the Beathoms & after in the Standleys Earles of Darby, who made a foole of the heire and beg.[50] the Estate {Trad[ition]}.[51] And is now in William Earle of Darby, of Knowlesley in Lancashire.[52]

[Descent of] Haverbrack
\ In Haverbrack a Knight Templar[53] & Heversham / was in 2 Lords[hips]: the Prestons & Thornborrows – then purchased by 3 Londoners – Merchant & Knights – in hopes of a lead mine. Then sold to Mr Hen. Parker, second Brother to Lord Morley. & by him to Mr Edward Wilson & Thomas Wilson joynt purchaser, who outliveing him got the whol.
They[54] appear by consent at Heversham Hall. & now in the Home of Ed. Wilson – Justice of Peace.[55]

---

[45] For 'Colonel Bierly' [in 1697] see The Diary of Abraham De la Pryme, the Yorkshire Antiquary, Surtees Society Vol. 54 (Durham, 1870), 137.
[46] 'Oulvay' is Ulpha.
[47] See also II.265, above, which remarks that Witherslack is a chapelry in Beetham Parish & Kendal Barony.
[48] For John Barwick (1612-1664), dean of St Paul's, see Part 2. Ch.7, Heversham, Heversham Free School, II.164; and see below, II.275-76.
[49] The English College at Douai was founded by William Allen in 1568 for Roman Catholic exiles from Protestant Elizabethan England, where it had become treasonable for Catholic priests to celebrate Mass. There, English students could train as priests. The 'College des Grands Anglais', as it became known, was key to the English mission for the re-conversion of England: see Independent Catholic News, 2 Oct. 2018. George Leyburn was president from 1652 to1670. He resigned in favour of his nephew, John, president 1670-1675/6. For more on this family, see Part 2, Ch.3x, Underbarrow, II.111; Beetham, II.280A and II.280B. See also AWL, 189.
[50] 'Beggared the estate'[?]
[51] A reference, perhaps, to the attainder of Richard de Bethom after the battle of Bosworth, and the grant of part of his estates to the Earl of Derby, which led to a dispute between Thomas Middleton and the earl, so that the manor remained in the possession of Middleton until his death in 1517. From Whitsuntide 1525, for one year, the manor was in the hands of the crown. See William Farrer and John F. Curwen (eds), Records Relating to the Barony of Kendale II, CWAAS Record Series 5, (Kendal 1924), 211-38.
[52] William Richard George Stanley, 9th earl of Derby (c.1655-5 November 1702).
[53] A Knights Templar estate.
[54] The tenants.
[55] As these blotted notes are obscured by a modern repair to the binding, some have been omitted.

[II.273]

[Wilson Descent]
James ob. 1692 S.P.[56]
1. Ed. Wilson of Dallan T. Esq.? Just. of Peace = Jane d. of Gawen Brathwate of Ambleside Hall Esq.
|
Ed. Wilson of Park house in Tunsdl[57] Parish = Katherine d. of Sir Daniel Fleming of Ridal, Knight in Lancashire
|
Daniel aetat 12; Edward aetat 13

Milnthorpe

On Millthrop[58] Bridge a stone erected; somewhat resembling a Rom[an] Altar – with this Inscription {In Capital Letters} Fear God – Honour the King 1684.
A little above the Bridge is a Paper Mill; formerly an Iron Forge.[59]
My Lord Bishop of Carlile, Dr Thomas Smith, informes me that the fam[ous] Mathematition Dr [Blank] Rawlinson fellow of Queens Coll. (& Tutor to the E. of Northumberland, in which family he mostly lived? T.M.) was borne in this village.[60]

[II.280]

[Witherslack in Beetham Parish]

Wether-Slack in Bethom
It is in the ped[igree] Woder-Slacke but perhaps by the dialect as Wolsor.

[II.275]

Witherslack Chapel
{Chap[el] Long within, beside the steeple, 26. Broad, 7. 3 Bells in it.}

In the East Window, which is very ornamental, having 5 double lights.

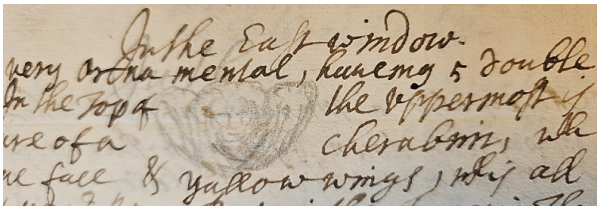

Figure 2.4.9. 'Cherubim' in Witherslack Chapel East Window. II.275.

In the Top of the uppermost is the figure of a cherubim, with humane face & yallow wings, which is all in that upper row. But in the Lower; the midle most has: ~~I~~HIS in a circle \ globe of Blew / with Rayes of Glory about it – yallow & orange – and a scrowle with this Inscription

> THIS is my Body. | THIS is my blood.
> Mathew XXVI 26 | Mat XXVI. 28

On each side of which in the top of the next lights, are the heads of 2 cherubimes joyneing together & peeping as it were into that mystery. & At the tops of the 2 outmost lights, are These Coates of Armes.

[56] James died childless.
[57] Tunstall.
[58] Milnthorpe.
[59] Information repeated in N&BI, 201.
[60] Richard Rawlinson (c. 1616–68), born at Milnthorpe; plebeian at Queen's College, Oxford; matriculated 1636 aged 18; MA 1643; DD 1681. A royalist and a mathematician, he drew a plan of the garrison and fortifications at Oxford for Charles I; he was rector to the Duke of Newcastle. OAD.

Figure 2.4.10. Witherslack Chapel. Coats of Arms, 1 and 2. II.275.

1. Is a Quarterly Coate as followeth – of William George Richard Earle of Darby – wherein the 1. is Argent a Bend ~~Gules~~ \ Az[ure] / chargd with Bucks heads cabashed, 2. Gules – 3 Armd Legs & feat in Triang[u]ler Unity Argent. 3. is Gules – 4 Barrs Argent & a chief Or, chargd of all with a Lyon Rampant of the 3. (Sc. Or. Crowne of the first, Sc. G[ules].) The 4. is Quarterly ~~Or &~~ Gules & Argent, in a quarter of the 1., a Mullet of the second. The 5. Or a cheveron Gules betwene 3 eagles displayed Az[ure]. The 6. is Azure 3 flooredelices Or. The 7. the same with a Battoun Gules. The 8th is Or a serpent Azure devoureing a Childe from the feet upwards = the Impaled Coate which ought to possess halfe the field – Azure an Eagle volant Or. The Crist is upon a Ducal cap \ G[ules] / lined Ermin – an Eagle & Cradle Or, with a Childe wrapt in scarlet, & Tyed Or. & the mot[to] SANS CHANGE.[61]

[2.] The other Coate is the Deanery of St Pauls. Sc. Gules 2 swords in Saltier with Pointes to the Pointes of the Escutchion – hilted Or. In chief a Cross couped[62] of the 3rd Impaleing = Dean Barwick, which are Argent, a Reade Rose proper between 3 Beares heads erased proper bridled Gules, and this mot[to] Adversis servata fides.[63]

These of the Earle of Darbyes are painted agane on the Back Side of the Commandments & towards the Chancell. And these of the Deanes on Each Side of them in Diamond frames writte in triangles,[64] with Scripture Sentences on the Back side of the Creed & Commandments.

{Foundation}
Over the little dooer beneath the said Co[mmandments] in stone is writ

> REVEREND John Barwick S.T.D. Born in this | Hamlet, late | Dean St Pauls | Built this Chappel A.D. 1664

There is a [weather] Cock also, & a font in it.

[II.276]

There is also a monument of white marble which was sent down by Dr Barwick his brother*, who now lives with the Countess of Albimarle.[65]

---

[61] Without changing.
[62] Here, Machell appears to have drawn a tiny symbol of a cross couped: a cross rendered with arms of equal length; but its small size makes recognition difficult.
[63] 'Faith maintained in adversity.'
[64] In the MS, Machell has drawn a triangle.
[65] In the 1650s, Peter Barwick married Anne Sayon, merchant's widow and kinswoman of William Laud. See P. Elmer, 'Barwick, Peter (1619-1705), physician'. ODNB. There is no mention here of Peter Barwick ever having

REVERENDUS &c
Reverendus admodum et Primævæ Pietatis vir,
Johannes Barwick, S. T. D.
Hic in vicinâ natus,
Qui post operam indefesso studio navatam,
Afflictiones infracto animo Toleratas,
Res tandem, licèt summè arduas, feliciter Gestas,
Pro Collapso Regni et Ecclesiæ Statu,
Ad CURAM et Dignitatem Decanatus
Primò Dunelmensis, Deinde Paulini,
Meritò Evectus
HANC ÆDEM
In Dei honorem et suorum gratiam,
Structam et Dotatam voluit et Bonorum Residuum Egenis Legavit
A.D. 1664[66]

{Dedication and Consecration}
By John Cestriensis – which was Bishop Wilkins – by his Instrument of Consecration. Date 22 Junii {Iovis} 1671.[67]
In nomine Dom[ini] Amen cum nuper Eruditus et Discretus vir &c. – ex fundo – pia devotione \ præ /nob[ilis] Domi[ni] D. Caroli Com[it]is Darbiæ – Witherslake – being Indowed with 26 sterling ad minimum[68] pro Presbytero seu Ministro Ordine presbyterij constituto for Praying, Preaching, Administering the Sacraments & Burying the Dead. Cæteraque &c. – quæ in alijs cap[itibus] recte fieri possint.
"Consecram[us] et Dedicamus per nomen Capellæ Divi Pauli in villa de Witherslake \ p[ar]ochiæ de Beethom / nominand[um] et appelland[um] fore decernimus et nominamus &c. – salvo semper Jure et Interesse matricis Ecclesiæ de Beethom prædict[o] In omnibus suis Decimis privilegijs et Com[m]oditatibus Ecclesiasticis quibuscunque Juribus Etiam nostris &c. – Reservatus – pro Archidiacae Richmo[n]diæ 1s p[er] annum ad festum Pasc[ae]. pro synodalibus 2s pro Procurationibus Triennale – Episcopo Cestriensi. {The minister to be Examined, Licensd & Admitted by the Bishop} {Absque ulla Diminatione vel de falcatione Juris Ecclesiastici Decimarum o[b]lation[um] vel obventionum quarumcunque ad dictam Matricem Ecclesiam de Beethom praedict[am] – seu ad vicarium ejus pro tempore existentem spectand[arum] et pertinend[arum] precip[it]em? in futurum.} [69] lived with a Countess of Albimarle; the Countess of Albemarle [?] was not made countess until 1701 (after Machell's death). The first Duchess of Albemarle died just after her husband (General Monck), in 1670. Christopher Monck, second duke of Albemarle (1653-1688) had a wife, the (mad) duchess of Albemarle, who married Lord Montagu, convinced that he was the Emperor of China, in 1692. See 'Lady Elizabeth Cavendish', The Peerage.com.

---

[66] 'That much revered man of outstanding piety John Barwick D.D., born in this neighbourhood, who, after working with unflagging zeal and perseverance, enduring afflictions with unbroken spirit, found a happy issue from all these troubles of collapse of the Kingdom and Church, deservedly was translated to the Position and Dignity of Dean, first of Durham, then of St Paul's. This building erected and endowed to the honour of God and the delight of his people, was his wish; and he bequeathed the rest of his goods to the poor. A.D. 1664'. See N&B1, 233, which gives the history of Dr Barwick alongside this inscription.

[67] Thursday 22 June 1671. John Wilkins was Bishop of Chester from 1668 until his death in 1672. CCED.

[68] The ending is blotted.

[69] 'In the name of God, Amen. Whereas of late that learned and discreet man etc., at the expense and devoted piety of the most noble Charles [?] Lord Derby, Witherslack being endowed with £26 sterling at the least for the priest or minister in the Holy Orders of priest duly constituted for Praying Preaching Administering the Sacraments & Burying the Dead, and other things etc. in other areas which can rightly be done by him –We consecrate and dedicate by the name of the Chapel of St Paul in the Township of Witherslack and Parish of Beetham, to be named and called [as now] we do decree and name it etc. Saving always the rights and interests of the mother Church of Beethom aforesaid in all its tithes, privileges and ecclesiastical easements whatsoever, according also to our rights etc. – Reserved for the Archdeaconry of Richmond 1 shilling per annum at the Feast

[Machell's Notes on the Barwick Family: II.276 & II.278]
*{Peter Barwicks wife brought forth a daughter = Sir Ralf Dutton of Gloucestershire}[70]
[II.278]
{1. Nicholas. 1 s[on] & 2 d[aughters] 2. Will 3 d[aughters] & 1 s[on].
John. Doctor. Dean of Durham then of Thersfielde – he kept a Curate.[71]
{John Barwick Dr in Divinity [died] in a consumption. [He requested] to be buryed with as much privacy & little pomp as may be.}
Peter = Ann. 1 d[aughter]

[II.277]

Figure 2.4.11. Witherslack Chapel and East Window. II.277.

{2. Foundation; Dedication}
It began \ to be built / in 1664. And was consecrated to the service of God & for Parochial uses by the name of St Paules \ Chappell / June 22 1671 – by Doctor Wilkins Bishop of Chester, Dr Thomas Smith afterwards Bishop of Carlile being present at it. {After consecration, all that pertained to the old Chapl[72] [was] added to the New by an Instrument under the Hand & Seal of John Cestriensis, Sc. Dr Wilkins Bishop of Chester; Bearing Date 26 June 1671.}

{Parsonage Vicarage} {to teach scholars}
The Chaplaines house {a Capella circa 30 yards} is on the S. side of the same chapl. & is Designed of Easter; for synodals, 2s, for the proctors, payment for a triennial mass for the Bishop of Chester. The minister to be examined, licensed and admitted by the Bishop and receive that profit without any deduction or shortfall of tithes, offerings or sources of income whatsoever in Church Law belonging and pertaining to the said Mother Church of Beetham aforesaid – or to its vicar incumbent at the time, or right into the future.' See N&B1, 231: The chapel of Witherslack 'was consecrated by Bishop Wilkins… by the name of the Chapel of St Paul in the town of Witherslack in the parish of Betham, with a clause, as is usual in like cases, that the same shall be in no wise prejudicial to the mother church'.

[70] Dr Peter Barwick (1619-1705). 'Of his four children (three daughters and one son), only one daughter, Anne (b. 1662), survived him. She married Sir Ralph Dutton of Sherborne in Gloucestershire in 1679'. P. Elmer, 'Barwick, Peter, Physician'. ODNB.

[71] Dr John Barwick (1612-64), is remembered as a royalist spy under Charles I. After the Restoration he was appointed Dean of Durham Cathedral, then Dean of St Paul's in 1661. See J. Elligott, 'Barwick, John, Dean of St Paul's'. ODNB. For a colourful description of Dean Barwick's life and connections with Beetham, see the Mail (Cumbria) 26 May 2019, which reports, 'The Witherslack farmer's son born in 1612 was "quite a character" … He managed the correspondence of both Charles I and Charles II, was imprisoned in the Tower of London for being a Royalist spy, and became Dean of St Paul's Cathedral in London. When he died in 1664 [he] left money for a church and school to be built in the village where he grew up. His brother Peter – a doctor who rose to be physician-in-ordinary to King Charles II – ensured his wishes were carried out, with St Paul's Church consecrated in 1671. "Lots of people in Witherslack know the name Dean Barwick – we have the school and the Dean Barwick Trust – so it's known in the village but kind of forgotten in other ways," said the vicar.'

[72] MS: 'After consecration on [Blank] all that pertained to the old Chapl…'

for a Schoolhouse as well as a Dwelling house, the Chaplain being obligd to teach gratis the children of the said Inhabitants, but foreigners[73] as they can agree with him*.[74]

{Patronage or Disposal}
The said Dr John Barwick \ Dean of St Pauls / reserved the disposal thereof to him selfe – dureing his life and after his death. And after his \ whose / death It was to be in the disposall of \ transmitted to / feoffees in Trust who Recommend one unto the Bishop \ of Chester, & he admits as to him seeth good (with the approbation of the vicar of Bethom†) dureing his life; who was born at Halecat (a Capella circa 200[yards]) & who founded both the Chaple & Schoole; the Earle of Darby Lord of the Manner allowing so much of the Common \ Town green / as was ~~necessary~~ \ sufficient / for a chapple yard, & the Schoolhouse to stand on.

{Old Chappel Sallary}
There was an old Chapel heretofore near Witherslack Hall adjoneing the gardine \ not 20 yards S. from the Hall – & ~~a Sallary of~~ \ xx nobles / 6: 13: 4, belonging unto it, which was payd by all the Inhabitants by known proportion \ according as they sat higher or lower / {no Inhabitant being abov 3s nor non under 1s 6d except the Lord, who was [charged] 1. 6. 8. out of his Rents} by the name of Sallary.

{Endowment}
(& there was an House about a m. S. from this chapel, which belongd unto it, which he holdes) which was annexed together with the said old Sallary to the N[ew] Ch[apel] [75] \ because the owner of Witherslack hall would sell no ground for a ch. yard. / & as a further Augmentation, the Dean of Pauls[76] [gave] 26 per annum payable by the said Trustees.

[Machell's Notes: II.277]

*(The Armes are in another Paper.)
†{It should have bin but this is now of q.}
{Will at S.P. Dat. 21 October 1664. Obser[v]e the clause for keeping the Mother Church Indemnifyed.}

[II.278]

Out of the Will[77]

4 li for Repares [to] Utensils & Ornaments every year by the Chaple wardens with consent \ the advice / of the Curat.
10li per annum for the following uses. Sc.
1. To place apprentices. {bond with}
2. Mend highways.
3. To give as portions in marriage with made[s] borne in the chapelry – by such Orders as his executors exp[r]ess in the settlement.
He also gave 300 [li] to St Johns in Cambridge for the Library or som other public use.
100li towards the Rep[are of St Pauls Church London besides what he gave with the Chapter for that noble use.
Item, 40li worth of Bookes to Sedber School Library. The rest to the poore.
(To each of his brothers & Mary the daughter of Peter, 100li. George son of Will. his brother 200. & the 3 d[78] of Will. 100li apiece. 500 in all to Peter.

[73] People from outside Witherslack.
[74] MS: '& is Designed ~~as well~~ for a Schoolhouse as ~~for that purpose~~ \ well as / a Dwelling house, the Chaplain being obligd to teach gratis the children of the said ~~of the~~ Inhabitants ~~to be taught gratis for others~~ but foreigners ~~& they a~~ as they can agree with him.'
[75] MS: '(& there was an House \ about a m. S. / from this chapel \ which belongd unto it / ~~belong'd the Chaplane, but a mile S from the old Chaple~~, which he holdes) ~~together with the said old Sallary~~, \ which was annexed together with the said old Sallary / to the N[ew] Ch[apel].'
[76] MS: 'Dean of Polls.'
[77] Out of John Barwick's will.
[78] Three daughters.

Historia Bizantini Parisijs – to the Archbishop {of Cant.}[79]
The Works of Kg Marter, 2 voll. in folio to ~~Sir~~ John Otway Esq. \ as / now Sir J. Otway \ as a memor of his thankfulness / for the great paines & Her[t] he underwent at his Intreaty towards the Restoration of the said King.[80]

Given by Peter B[arwick] Dr in Phis,[81] Brother of the said Dr Barwick:
All the furniture of the said chapel, Sc. an Hanging behinde the Altar made of read leader, & a covering for it of the same to be usd every day. Allso printed Tammy[82] of Purple & Read with read silke fringe, for festival time, Sundayes & Hollidayes, with a cushion & purple cloth of the same . Also, Damaske of the same for Communion, with a large Green flowerd Silke cushon for the Pulpat upon great occasion.[83]– These given before the Consecration*.

Tis the best glaz'd[3] flaggd[1] & plaster[2] of any ~~church or~~ chapl in the Barony of Kendal;[84] & the windows thereof – which are very good ones – have bin kept whol for 21 years by the caer of Sir John Brockbank, 1st Minister,[85] with the expence of 10d.[86]

[Machell's Notes: II. 278[
*{Query of Dr Thomas Fuddergill President of St Johns i.e. pert[aining] to the matter. Was tutor to Dr Barwick.}[87]

[II.279]

{New Chap[e]l Sallary}
Tithes out of the Rector of Lazenby & P[l]umpton, & Hareskew[88] in Kirkoswald Parish*; in the ~~said~~ County of Cumberland \ which Purchase in Kirkoswald was made after the Dean was deceased because the Rectory of Lazonby did not answer the Rent which he had designed.[89] / {To whom he gave also 40 per annum out of the Rent Charge.}[90]
And £10 per annum for the marriage of poore mades borne in this chapelry– And for putting out Apprentices & mending the highways; \ & £4 per annum for the Repares of the Chapl & Schoole / to p[ay] a Chapl[ain] thereto annext to the chaple of W[itherslack] and to Endow & make it Parochial. The ressidue of the said Rents if any be (after necessary charges deducted out of them) to be disposed \ as the said x li / to any of the said uses.

---

[79] Archbishop of Canterbury was then Gilbert Sheldon (1598-1677). Several books have been published with the title, 'Byzantine History'. As the book named here was published in Paris before Barwick's death in 1664, it might have been the Historia Bizantina of George Acropolita (b.1220), an edition of which was published (in Greek and Latin) in Paris in 1651.
[80] Sir John Otway (c.1620-93) of Ingmire Hall, Sedbergh. For his academic and parliamentary career, see History of Parliament Online; for more on Barwick's will see J. Elligott, 'Barwick, John (1612-1664), dean of St Paul's'. ODNB.
[81] Physic.
[82] Tammy: a fine worsted cloth of good quality, often with a glazed finish. OED.
[83] MS: 'All the furniture \ of the said chapel / Sc. an Hanging ~~& Covering~~ \ behinde the Altar / made of read leader, & a covering for it of the same to be usd every day. Allso \ printed Tammy / of Purple & Read ~~Tamy printed~~ with read silke fringe for \ festival time / Sundayes & Hollidayes\ with a cushion & purple cloth of the same /Also – Damaske \ of the same / for Communion ~~Times~~. ~~And a Pulpat Cloth & cushion of the said Read & Purple Stuff for every Sunday~~ with a large Green flowerd Silke cushon for the Pulpat upon great occasion.'
[84] Note that Machell changed his preferred word order by using the numbers 1, 2 and 3 to guide the reader.
[85] John Brockbank (as vicar of Beetham) became the first minister of Witherslack, see II.274A, above.
[86] MS: 'the windows \ thereof which are very good ones / have bin kept whol for 21 by the caer of Sir John Brockbank, \ 1[st] / Minister thereof ~~have bin kept whol~~ for 21 years, with the expence of 10d.'
[87] This is problematic because no Dr Thomas Fuddergil (or even Fothergill) was ever president of St John's College, Cambridge [see https://www.joh.cam.ac.uk/masters-st-johns-college-cambridge]. An alternative might be Dr Thomas Morton (bap.1564 d.1659), a moderate Calvinist who rose to become bishop of Durham; he was an alumnus and fellow of the college. John Barwick was his chaplain, his executor and preached his funeral sermon. See B. Quintrell, 'Morton, Thomas (bap. 1564, d. 1659), bishop of Durham'. ODNB.
[88] Now, 'Haresceugh'.
[89] In the MS on II.278, this scored-through text appears in the margin: {~~Plumpton near Kirkoswald was added after the Deans death because the Rectors of Lazonby did not answer the Rentel he designd~~}.
[90] '40' might have 's' for 'shillings' above it, but it is squeezed onto the end of a line, and is unclear.

{Curate 26 s[hillings] (per annum) if in Order of Priesthood Teaching a School. But not preach unless sufficiently inabled & licenced per Episcopum ei Cestrensis [91]

[Machell's Notes: II.279]
*{Purchased I thinke of Sir Thomas Dakers in his brother Peters name}

[II.279]

[Witherslack Chapelry]

{The Bounds} {Division into Manners]
It is Bounded on the E. with Lithe in the Chaplry of Crosthwaite & Parish of Heversham; from which tis divided by a Little \ Rill / at Far Fell end. On the South by Meathop & Oulvah[92] in Bethom precincts. By which tis divided by the Moss; as the Lordships \ goe there / divide: on the West by Cartmel in Lancashire \ from which it is separated / by the River Winstar – on the N. with Crosthwate, \ in Heversham Parish, / by which tis divided by the Bounds of Powbanke in Crosthwate. It is one Entire Lordship,[93] \ for tho / some of the Lordship that are in Heversham Parish are by ancient custom obliged to pay Sallary to the other places as being permitted to come to the Chaplaines for their Ease & Convenience, \ yet are they within the chapelry of Witherslack, pay[ing] a salary here & for their Ease frequenting this Chapel; though they pay all their dues to the church of Heversham {S[c]. Pow Bank & Far Fell End alias Heefell.}

{Descent of the Manner}
This Manner is said to have formerly bin the Broughtons of Broughton Tower in Kirkby in Furness & opposite to Millum, the River Duddon running betwixt them. But is now in the Earle of Darby.

[II.280A]

{Labourns Pedigree}[94]
The Armes in Parchment are quarterly,
1. Azure, 6 lyoncells Argent Langued & memb[ered] G[ules]. By the name of La-born.

---

[91] 'But not preaching unless sufficiently enabled and licensed by the Bishop of Chester.'
[92] Ulpha. Machell's version is much altered and overwritten.
[93] MS: 'by which tis divided by the Bounds of Powbanke in Crosthwate. {Is in the Lordship.}\ ~~There is but one Lordship~~ that chapelry / It is one Entire Lordship, But…'
[94] The Leyburn (Labourn, Labourne, Layburne) family was closely aligned with the Roman Catholic Church in England during the 17th century. John Leyburn (1620-1702), vicar apostolic of the London district, was the fourth son of John Leyburn of Cunswick Hall, Beetham (where he was born), and his wife, Catherine Carus. A nephew of Dr George Leyburn, president of the English College at Douai, he was educated there and followed his uncle as president in 1670. He resigned in 1676 and moved to Rome to become secretary to Cardinal Philip Thomas Howard. Cardinal Howard, at the request of James II, recommended Leyburn as vicar apostolic of all England, to which the pope agreed. He was consecrated at Rome with the title of 'Bishop of Adrumetum, in partibus.' [Vicars apostolic were given titular dioceses in areas in Asia Minor etc – 'in partibus infidelium' – that had fallen to the Turks.] See T. Cooper & G. Bradley, 'Leyburn, John (1620-1702), vicar apostolic of the London district. ODNB. Bishop Leyburn served as James II's Catholic vicar apostolic from 1685-88, organising the funding of English Catholic chapels, clergy and education. In 1687 he toured England to dispense the sacrament of confirmation to Catholic laity. This involved 12 confirmations at Corby (Cumberland), 23 at Greystoke, 28 at Sizergh, 37 at Dodding Green and 161 at Witherslack: Michael Mullett, Carlisle in Revolution and Restoration, c. 1648-1688, CWAAS Tract Series 30 (Kendal, 2022), 119-120. Alison Wright has remarked on how close-knit this community was: 'Only six of the sponsors of the communicants mentioned out of the 45 on his progress were not related to him … or neighbours in the North West or had not been educated at Douay.' Wright, 'Loyalty and Tradition II. Networking among the north-western Catholic Gentry, 1640-1720: The Case of the Layburnes', CW3, 14 (2014), 103-24, at 113. Bishop Leyburn's social and political networking is noted in The Diary of Dr Thomas Cartwright, Bishop of Chester commencing at the time of his elevation to that see, August M. DC. LXXXVI. And terminating with the visitation of St. Mary Magdalene College, Oxford, October M. DC. LXXXVII (Camden Society, London, 1843). The last Leyburn to inherit Cunswick was another John Leyburn who joined the 1715 Jacobite rising and was captured at Preston. In London, he was tried and attainted for treason, but not executed. Alison Wright, The Layburnes and their World circa 1620-1720, The English Catholic Community and the House of Stuart, PhD Thesis (University of St Andrews, 2002), 25-27.

2. Argen[t] a Bend Sable chargd with 3 Annulets Argent which a Trifol. S[able] in sinister point.
3. Gules 3 bores heads Couped Or langued Azure.
4. as the 1.
The Crist on a wreath Argent & Azure. An Hauk Regardant Azure.
A maid \ G[ules] hair Or / riseing out of a coronet with a Diamond ring in her right hand.

TO HIM THAT DESERVES IT BEST.

Trad. {Which Coate was subscribed to by Will Ryley, Norroy, King at Armes & coll[ected] out of an old Ped[igree] Somerset cxiii.}

Witham = Labourn.
Or a Bend Gules betwene 3 (eaglets say they but rather blackbirds) Sable.
A Coate produced of 6 quarters –
1. Witham.
2. Gules a Chief Argent.
3. Argent a fess Gules charged with 3 escallops Argent \ betwene 3 parrots prop. /
4. Argent a Chevron between 4 [cross-crosslets] Gules.
5. as the 3.
6. Argent a Chevron Sable chargd with Bucks heads cab[ossed] Argent.

[Machell's Notes [II.280A]
An Eccho from the Green Hill before the Hall.
Well whom Witherslack passeth by being [blank]

[II.280B]
Out of an Old Eaten Parchment Roll, Intitled, 'Certain notes taken out &c. and in the memory of man, of matches of the ancient house of Leybourne.' {[Arms] Azure 6 lyoncells Argent.}
Rogerus de Leyburn Tenuit in Com West. Castrum de Burg sub Staynemore manerium de Morton, de Appelby, de Meaburn, de Clinton, de Kirkby Stephan, Castrum de Mallerstang, forresta de Whinfell. Eyworth in Cartat' Beds, Anno Regni Regis Edv. 1. xij^{0} [1283-1284].

{Labourns Pedegree}				James Layburne[95] of Cunswick Esq. =	Jane d. of John Bradley of Bethom			[II.280A]
				William of Cunswick =
	George Dr of Divinity & President of Doway	Thomas = Mary d. of [Blank] Bradley of Arnsides	Nicholas	1. John Leyburne = of Cunswick = who had by his 2nd wife had isue	[1.] Katherine d. of Xt. Carus of Halton near Lancaster [2] M. d. of Will. Croft of Claughton in Lancashire	Frances = George Dabrish-court of Stratfield-sea[96] in Hantsh.	Dorathy = Weaver	Elizabeth m. to Ant. Ducket of Grarig

[95] In remarks related to a review of Jane Ewbank's Antiquary on Horseback (1964), the CWAAS Transactions reviewer (T.G.F.) commented on Machell's inaccuracy here. 'James Leyburne of Cunswick Esq. who heads the pedigree is stated to be the father of William Leyburne who married Jane, daughter of (John) Bradley of Beetham. Yet does not all the evidence go to show that William's father in point of fact was Nicholas Leyburne (born 1516) who married Elizabeth daughter of John Warcop of Smardale Hall? (vide William Wiper, "The Layburnes of Cunswick", CW1, 10 (1889), 124-57'. See this review in 'Recent Publications 2, Antiquary on Horseback (1964) T.G.F.', CW2, 64 (1964), 414.
[96] Stratfieldsaye, Hampshire.

		3. Charles	2. Nicholas Vice-President of Dowa		1. George de quo infra	Many daughters wherof 1 Frances only is living &c. unmaried
5. William Obijpa…	4. John Bishop of Adrumetum	3. James, Governour of Fair Castle in France	2. Thomas Lab. of Witherslack = Dorathy d. Will Lasselles of Breckinbrough in Yorks.	William Layburne of Cunswick obijt durante vita patris	= Elizabeth d. of [Blank] Thomlinson a Londoner Remarried to R.B. [97] 1 Girl dyed in minority	Lucy = Thomas Kitson of Killington	2. Elizab. = to [Blank] Wiseman in Mary Land	1. Jane = Richard Sherburne of Hesum[98] in Lancashire
[Children of Thomas Laybourn of Witherslack, and Dorathy]
	1. John dyed unmaryed	2. Katherine maryed = to Dr Marmaduke Witham of Clif in Yorks.	2. Elizabeth innupta- ad huc[99]		3. Ann	4th daughter
Co-heireship Son of John abovesaid
			George L. of Witherlack & of Neateby in L. heir of Cunswick		= Ann Stanley of Dalgarth in Cumberland
James	Nich.	George	John aet 23		4.	3. Ann	2. Kath.	1. Mary,[100] to Marmaduke Tunstal of Baringham

Juliana filia Thomæ de Leyburn = uxor de Hastinges filij Comitis Penbrockie Anno R. Regis Ed. 3. 1^0 [1327-1328]. Or, a manch Gules impaleing Leyburn.[101]

Idonea de L. Uxor Johannis de Cromwell tenuit manerium de Leyburn in Com. Nottingham conjunctim cum marito sue,[102] – Argent a Chief Gules over all a bend Azure*.

Juliana de L. Uxor Willielmus Clinton Comitis Huntingdoniæ. Anno R.R. Ed. 3. xlj^0.[103] Of whom my Lord Fitzwilliam, Earl of Southampton & the Fitzwilliams of Strotsburgh are descended – Argent 6 cross crosslets[104] Sable: on a Chiefe Azure 2 mullets Or pierced Gules – impaleing &c.

{Dom. Jacobus de Leyburne}
Anna filia Domini Jacobi de Leyburne, Nupta Willi[am]o Domino Montegomerico. 1557.[105] Argent a Bend Azure charged with 3 Buckes heads cabossed Or: & in Chiefe a crescent[106] Gules. Impaleing.

[97] R.B. was Roger Bradley; see 'Recent Publications 2. Antiquary on Horseback', CW2, 64 (1964), 414.
[98] Heysham.
[99] 'As yet unmarried.'
[100] Mary died without issue and was buried at Spofford on 25 June, 1705. See 'Recent Publications 2. Antiquary on Horseback', CW2, 64 (1964), 414.
[101] 'Juliana, daughter of Thomas de Leyburne, wife of Hastings the son of the Earl of Pembroke, 1. Edward III.'
[102] 'Idonea de Leyburne, wife of John de Cromwell, held the manor of Leyburn in Nottinghamshire conjointly with her husband.'
[103] 'Juliana de Leyburne, wife of William Clinton, Earl of Huntingdon in 41. Edward III.' [1367-1368].
[104] Cross-crosslet symbol.
[105] 'Ann daughter of Lord James de Leyburn, married to William Lord Montgomery. 1557.'
[106] Crescent symbol.

Elizabetha filia Dom. Jacobi \ de / Leyburne militis, nupta Domino Thomæ Dacres de Septentrione Anno 1558.[107] Gules 3 escallops Argent impaleing.

dicto Elizabetha L[eyburne] relicta Thomæ de Dacres de Septentrione 3 uxor Thomæ Ducis Norfolciæ. Anno 1567.[108] Gules a Bend (betwene 6 cross-crosslets[109] Argent) Chargd with the Scotch Escutch[eon] Gules & Or†.

[Machell's Notes: II.280B]

*{This I take to be Idonea de Veteriponte 1. Maried to [Blank] Leyburn by whom he had those lands in Westm'land above said. See Clifford [pedigree].}

†{N.B. This signifieth ale or nothing to the Labournes of Witherslack & Cunswick; onely we may suppose that they have bin of Kin to, & came into Westmorland with this Labourne who was married to Idonea de Veteripont, but they are not descended from him, for he dyed S. P.[110] & his wife was remarryed to Cromwell S. P. so that all returned to the Cliffords.}

[II.284]

{Tenure}
All Customary ~~few~~ Arbitrary & Heriotable to the Earle of Darby

[II.272]

{Bethom} Mostly customary – Except 4 or 5 Freholds. The Lord has Waif & Stray.

{Custome}
Of a man marrying an Heiress & \ she / set him Ten[an]t. The Estate goes to his Heir not hers. The widowes pay Heriots - & has halfe, dureing (pure) widow[hood].

[II.272]

{Bethom}Widow duering p[ure] viduity [enjoy] ½ the Estate.

[II.281][111]

{Tithe}
2 Houses ~~that~~ \ whose lands / adjoyning on the Parke payes corne in kinde: at Beckhead. Sc. John Pow & Frances Bowes. All the rest of the Chapelry pay Prescr[iption] Hay. Also prescription Hay money. Wooll in kinde, & Lamb. 1d Tythe Lamb, ~~& they Reckon~~ (for 1– ob, 2 – 1d, 3 – 1d ob. &c.)

For 0d. A custom that if they sell afore Candlemas the Buyer is to pay the Tithe – & if after Candlemas the seller payes – which Holds in all Goods*. And for sheepe tis a penny a sheepe.

{Manner House}
Witherslack Hall was anciently the manner house (but the Court is kept in the School) where there are Coates of Armes. No.[112]

[Machell's Notes: II.281]

*{?} But q[uery] when it commences.

[II.277]

[Witherslack Hall]
{Wideslack hall; one little wooded \ Parke / & all about Trees of Laurell as high as the house.}[113]

[107] 'Elizabeth, daughter of Lord James de Leyburne, had married Lord Thomas Dacre of the North in 1558.'
[108] 'The said Elizabeth, widow of Thomas de Dacre of the North, was third wife of Thomas, duke of Norfolk, 1567.'
[109] Cross-crosslet symbol.
[110] 'Without issue.'
[111] The page top begins, 'The School is in the papers taken there.' [Where is not known.]
[112] 'No' was written in different ink.
[113] Written in pencil and scored through.

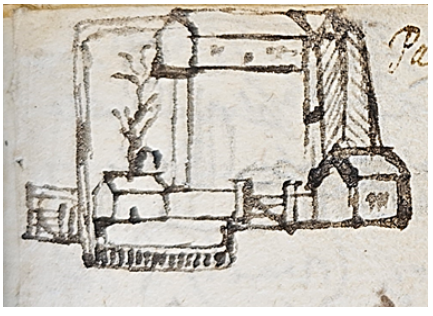

Figure 2.4.12. Witherslack Hall. II.277.

[II.281]

There is an Ile calld Holme below Medop, a Bethom 4m. W. ~~S.W.~~ twixt Arnside & Cartmell – sometimes in Westmorland & payes Sesses to it; sometimes in Lancashire and payes Sesses to it – whence som call it the Floateing Iland. But all the mistery is in the Bonder Beck calld Pull, which is Pow, which sometimes Runes on the one Side of it; sometimes on the other.

{Eminent Men}
Dr \ John / Barwick – Dean of Durham & St Pauls – Dr Peter Barwick his Brother Dr in Phisic/ John Labourn Bishop of [Blank] Sir Thomas Broughton.

[Rarities of Art and Nature]
In Yeakwood in Witherslack near Jacks beck a Capella ½ m. S.E. on the ~~left hand~~ N. side the Way to Kendall, where there are 2 long stones set on Edge.

{Parke}
Witherslack having Fallow Deere, Goates. Many clean & foule marts. Many wild cats {8d a Skew-Cat,[114] 3s a mart, foul mart 8d.}

Heston Tarne – Twixt Lancashire & Westmorland 200 yards long & as broad – lyes in the Pow. Water is 14 fathom deep & has in it Pikes Buss & Eales – a Capella ½ a mile N.W. & is part in Lancashire part here. 6 or 7 Swans at a Time. Ravens in Whittbarrow.

[II.280B]

{A Cave} at Howridden \ i.e. Hill Ridden / a Capella 2m. N., & from the Hall 1m. N.; a Strait Entery so that you goe \ in / sidewas. But within is a [square][115] Roome 3 yards & more, & an Hole descending god knows how deep; as by stones into water. In the Entery are 2 little wells which petrify.

[II.281]

{Witherslack Well}
There is a well calld the Holy Well a Capella 1m. South which hat[h] don diverse Cures: and thereupon hathe received its name, as having som thing of Sanctity in it. {It was found by accident, by Ann the daughter of Mathew Layfield one of th[ose] who getting strawberryes ~~about~~ \ in / this place in 1656 and being thirsty dranke of the water and wondering at the brackishness of it (& the manner of its operation) told her father, who tried the Experiment first himself & then Recommended it to other. Upon which it grew famous having don many cures & these more Especially:}[116]

[II.282]

[114] Skewbald cat.
[115] Sketch of a square shape.
[116] This narrative is repeated, lightly scored through, on MS.II.284; it has been omitted from this edition.

Method for [describing the curative properties of] wells

1. Anno Domini
2. Person
3. Place
4. County
– Age
5. Distemper
6. The method of cure
[7.] What remarquable in it

{§1} Circa 1671.
Katherine \ Borwick – now Katherine / Hartley~~son~~ of Halecot in Witherslack (who~~se~~ was neece to Deane Borwick) \ and at whose house I lodged / being then about the age of 9 yeares, was so very feeble for halfe a year, that she could not goe 20 yards without resting. And with Drinkeing 9 cups of the said water, her face and all her body turn'd yallow: upon which she tooke a Drinke for the Jaundice, and so Recover'd: But doth belive the well would have ~~don It~~ \ cured her / without the said drinke.

{§2} Anno Domini 1674
Robert Warton of Sidgewick in the Parish of Kendall ætat 18. Being pained at his stomack, and so very feeble that they were forced to carry him the water because he could not walke to the well; drank thereof till It ~~caused~~ \ made / him ~~to~~ vomit; & cast up 5 wormes out of his stomack all hared over like unto ulboades (as they call 'em here), which are your Palmerswormes,[117] being in length one inch & ½. After which he Recovered Speedily; and in a weekes time could walke a whole mile.

{§3} A.D. 1678
A woman of Gresing\h/am in the County of Lancaster (whose name I have not) Being in a Timpany,[118] was cured thereof in 4 or 5 dayes by drinkeing this water; in so much that she ~~could~~ \ was able to / Shear (or Reape corne) in the next Harvest following. Vide (4).

(§4) Anno Domini 1689.
John Watheman of Carneforth in the Parish of Warton & County of Lancaster; being 50 yeares of age, was cured of a Leprocy or Long-runing Itch, by batheing herein & drinkeing the water. (Vide 5°)

{§5} About a year since – Sc. A.D. 1691.
It brought a worme \ in shape / like a fluke from a man \ by / purgeing; ~~by flooke~~ which worme was above 2 inches in breadth, & somwhat longer than it was broad, The Colour Yallow; & the Back all plated like the End puding[119] of an Horse when he dungeth. After which the man became very well.[120]

{§6} {1692}
And this very last f[r]om about 3 weekes afore I was there – A woman of Russendall in the Bottome of Westmorland

[II.283][121]

having an akeing in her arme, and no use of it; at the first drinkeing (it caused her to vomit & remov'd the Paine into her neck; & before she came from ~~It~~ \ the well / she could hold the pot in her hand, & in [117] Palmer-worm: A small terrestrial invertebrate with many legs; a centipede or millipede, a woodlouse, a caterpillar. OED.

[118] From the 16th to the 18th centuries, a morbid swelling or tumour of any kind was known as a timpani. OED.
[119] End-pudding = rectum. See Bertil Hedewind, The Dialect of Dentdale in the West Riding of Yorkshire (Upsala, 1967), 326.
[120] A fluke is a parasitic worm of several species, found especially in the livers of sheep and so called from its resemblance to a fluke or flounder. OED.
[121] MS.I.283 contains a first draft of the cure-narratives on II.281; it has been omitted from this edition.

three dayes time was \ perfectly / well {ab Hinc 3 weeks}.[122] There is a well near it Turnes peat into Stone.

[Other Rarities of Nature in Beetham Parish]

{Winstar flu}
The River Winstar Runns into the Sea twixt Lindal & Meathop – a Capella 2m. S. It springs about Winstar Chaple & comes on the W. side of Calmer Hall & so W. from this Chap. ½ mile. {The Brigges first, then the Brierlyes}[123]

[II.284]

{Notable Springs}
Beckhead, a broad flowing spring in the road from Kendal a Capella 1m. E. Drives a Mill within 2ce[124] 12 score [yards.]

{Rare Woode}
Hundreds of Ewes,[125] som [of] them large ones, at Arnside Parke & Hagg. & at Slack head young ones, & elsewhere.[126]
Large Ewe 5 fathom[127] (in the parke near the Hall & plenty of Ewes up & down, tho now much destroyed – Juniper everywhere which they hear call Savin.[128]
Savons; great store all over especially at Witherslack.[129]
Holly Store, Box, Laurrell & Bayes \ Rosemary / in gar[dines].

{Fruites}
Raspberryes (bleaberryes few) Strawberryes enow. Wineberri: gardines onely.
Good store of Orchards all over.

{Earthes}
Fuel plenty – in the mos[s]. S.W. a Capella ¼ mile
All the parish richly provided of Turfe & peat and near at hand.[130]

{Stones}
They have a sort of stone, like Rockwork, as if it were made of petrify'd water, of a white brownish colour, & just like the Artificial Stone at Water Crooke, & Plumton in Cumberland.[131] This they call marle. But have no pit marle. They sell it to Kendal to scower wooden vessel. It is at Far \ Hee / Fell End in Witherslack, just ~~betwixt~~ on the Edge of Heversham Parish.

[122] 'She was perfectly well three weeks afterwards.'
[123] Machell's meaning: Cowmire Hall belonged first to the 'Brigges', then to the 'Brierleys'. Cowmire Hall was owned by the Briggs family. Thomas Briggs' daughter and coheir, Agnes, married Sir Richard Hutton (c.1594-1645) of Goldsborough, Yorks. The Goldsborough estate eventually came to their grandson Robert Byerley, MP for Knaresborough from 1695 to 1714. See https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1604-1629/member/hutton-richard-1594-1645. In the margin at this point there is a heading, 'Armes', but there is no further text.
[124] Twice.
[125] Ewe = yew.
[126] This line has been removed from notes on MS.II.272.
[127] In circumference.
[128] 'Savins': small bushy junipers, Juniperus sabina, native to Europe and Western Asia, with overlapping scale-like mature leaves and blue-black berry-like cones. Later, more fully: savin juniper. OED. Savin coal was fine charcoal made from juniper wood, prized in the making of gunpowder, see William Rollinson, Cumbrian Dictionary of Dialect, Tradition and Folklore (Otley, 1997), 141.
[129] This line has been removed from notes on MS.II.272.
[130] This line has been removed from notes on MS.II.272.
[131] Voreda = Old Penrith.

A Veine of Spar 2 yards broad & above 50 long a Capella ¼ m. S. called Halecat – The House, Rakefoot house.
Limestone all over. No fre stone.[132]
Blew walling stone, & black blewish Slate near Blea Cragg Brigg, ¼ [m.] W. a Capella.
They fetch their Hewing Stone from Hesum[133] in Lancashire 12m. S.*.
Mr Bellingham sought for a gold mine at the South End of Whitbarrow 7 \ 8 / yeares since: But lost all that he had before he found any.
{Memorandum: a white huen stone quarry just now discovered in Lythe S. a Capella Crosthwaite 1m. – & from Heversham iiij N. ad Crosthwaite.}[134]

[II.272][135]
In Hale Moss, white marle ab Ecclesia 1m. S. where there are diver[s] pitts calld Roche pits.[136]

[Fish]
Beethom Hall: There are ponds formerly stored with tench.
The Lord of Darby has the fishing (except with the Rod) in his own Lordships.
In ~~Kent is~~ Beethom is taken Salmon, Sallans,[137] morts,[138] sprots,[139] Troutes, Eales, Smelts,[140] Forke Tales,[141] The like & more plentiful in [the river] Kent. Pike are yard longe.

Great Store of Duck & Mallard, Teal, widgeon. Quantityes wild geese.
Lizards Black.

[132] This line has been removed from notes on MS.II.272.
[133] Heysham.
[134] In the MS, Machell added a codicil to this information, 'But Note in the margent above a white hewn stone quarry lately discovered.'
[135] A note page, presenting transcription difficulties; the ink has blotted in many places.
[136] This phrase is unclear. 'Roche' could be a name for a large piece of stone, a boulder; or it could represent alum, especially rock alum. E.g. in 1700, 'C. Leigh, Nat. Hist. Lancs. iv. 76: Allum may be divided into three Classes, the Roch, the Feather'd, and the Trichites.' All OED.
[137] Insecure transcription. No fish of this name has been found, although a 'solan' or 'sollen' is a gannet. OED.
[138] Mort: a young salmon, especially a young salmon in its third year. OED.
[139] Sprot: a sprat (Sprattus sprattus, family Clupeidae); also, occasionally, a smelt. OED.
[140] Smelt: a small fish (Osmerus eperlanus) allied to the salmon, emitting a peculiar odour; the sparling or spirling. OED.
[141] Forktail: a name given to the salmon in its fourth year. OED.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 5. Parish of Burton]

[II.296]

{Burton Parish in Kendal}

[Machell's Initial Notes and Queries]
Burton Parish in Kendal, & Preston Chapel.
Q. for L. & B. of the church, a bounder & things of note.
Dalton Hall.
Holm parke house.
Qu. of Richard Claughton Balif of Burton. Thomas Jackson his brother in law, Stuart of Dalton.
Draw the Steeple.
See the Easter Booke.[1]
The old Ruine.
Qu. of James Dawson for the Tenure & Succession of Holm Skale.
Of Mr T[…][2] Banke about Claythorp descent &c.
Mr Wood ~~vicar~~ Schoolmaster. Send Word to Mr Thomas Wood Schoolmaster of Burton.
Mr Batty Curate.[3]
Mr Usher[wood] Vicar.[4]
The Town of Burton is distant ab Ecclesia about [Blank] m. S.

[II.287]

Burton Parish; Preston Chapelry

Burton Parish, so called from the Town where the Church stands, is in Chester Diocess, & Barony of Kendale. It is bounded on the East with Kirkby Loansdale parish; on the West with Bethom & Heversham; on the North with Kendale; & on the South with Warton in Lancashire {from which tis divided by Heerin-Sike. This divide[s] the countyes not the parishes.} Yet there is a little Town in Lancashire belonging to it, which is called Doulton.[5]
The form thereof is oblong extending it selfe from (some stragling houses called) Holm-Scales in the North to Hearin-Sike in the South about 6 miles;[6] and from Dawkton in Lancashire in the East, to Halemoss in the West about 2 mile broad.
The Soyle is a blackish clay & blackish sand but for the most part limestone; & affordes both woodland, arable, pasture & meadow: neither very fertill nor very barren. Their fuell is peat, which are fetch'd from a place calld Burton Moss, about a mile from the Church. They have used no Hollyes in memory of man;[7] neither now doe they make any bone fires on Midsommer eve;[8] But on St Jam[es']s day[9] they have a Rushbearing, the young mades who performe the solemnity being entertaind with musique, &c. and such sort of Junketts as the countrey affordes, and there they dance about the May poll; but none of their mirth is sufferd to be acted in the church or church yard. {Dr Am[…]er[10] found som, being in the Black Book at Yorke.}[11]

---

[1] An account book for recording money paid at Easter by parishioners to the incumbent of a parish. See S.J. Wright, 'Easter books and parish rate books: a new source for the urban historian', in David Reeder (ed.), Urban History Yearbook (Leicester, 1985), 30-45.
[2] The name could begin, 'Trin' or 'Tim', but the word is unclear.
[3] CCED records show only that one William Batty was ordained deacon at Rose Castle, Carlisle, in 1638.
[4] John Usherwood, Vicar of Burton in Kendal, 1691-1694. CCED.
[5] Dalton [in Furness]. Machell originally used the spelling Doukton, but erased the 'k' and added the 'l'.
[6] As the numeral is blotted, it is difficult to decipher. Ewbank (p. 46) and Godwin (MS) read it as '6' but it might be '4'. See Jane M. Ewbank (ed.), Antiquary on Horseback. The First Publication of The Collections of the Rev. Thos. Machell Chaplain to King Charles II Towards a History of the Barony of Kendal, CWAAS Extra Series 19 (Kendal, 1963), and see Jeremy Godwin, Machell MSS, CAC(C), DX 1974/H9410.
[7] The reference is to the custom of burning branches of holly at Christmas time. See Machell's Preface, I.81-82.
[8] Machell refers to bone fires or bean fires (burning bones of dead dogs or horses). Machell's Preface, I.82.
[9] 25 July.
[10] Parts of this name are obscured by the binding.
[11] An almost illegible margin comment. A 'Black Book' could be a record book or ledger (bound in black) relating to finance or administration (as used in cathedrals etc.); but if this comment is understood in its context, it might refer to the recording of unacceptable practices, in which case a 'Black Book' recorded names of people

[The Church]

{L[ength] 33. Br[eadth] 16 on the outside.}
The name of the Church is said to be St Hellens there being a well about 3 score yards northeast from the church which bears that name; howbeit, the feast or wake \ Rushbearing / being yearly celebrated \ observed / on St James his day, it may more probably be dedicated to him. It is built of stone with a Square Tower having 3 bells in it, and in the body of the church ~~are of stone~~ \ two / row of pillers.
{1 Oratory, now ~~Leighs~~ Daltons Quire wainscoted by Sir Peter Leigh – 1628 on the end of the North Ile;[12] 1 in the end of the South Ile – wainscoted by Sir John Preston – of H[olker] 1634.}

II.290

Church visited in a preamble: visited 16 Sep. 1678.

Figure 2.5.1. Small sketch of Burton Church. II.291.

II.289

In the Body
On the screen – 1.[13]

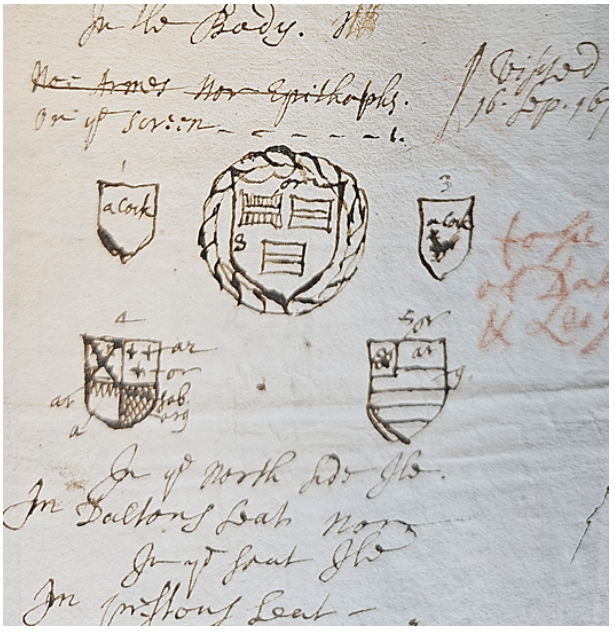

Figure 2.5.2. Burton Church Arms, Sketches 1-5. II.289.

In the North Side Ile in Daltons Seat Non. In the gr[e]at Ile in Prestons Seat [see below] liable to censure or punishment. The name was allegedly given to an official report prepared in 1535-36 for King Henry VIII, after an investigation into the condition and administration of the monasteries. OED.

[12] Sir Peter (Piers) Leigh of Lyme Hall, Disley, Cheshire.
[13] '~~Nor Armes nor Epitaphs~~. On the screen – 1. On the Screen.' To the right of these coats of arms is an unclear note in red crayon referring to the 'crest' of Dalton and Leighton.

Figure 2.5.3. Arms, Sketches 6-7. II.289.

On the Capital of the \ farthest / pillar on the South Side the Chancel – is this Coat of Arme which seems to have bin the founders*.

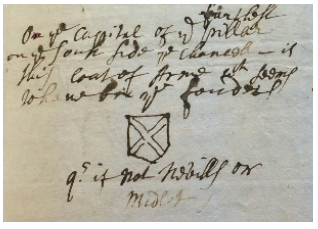

Figure 2.5.4.'Arms on the Capital of the farthest pillar.' II.289.

[Machell's Notes: II.289 and II.290]

*q? if not Nevills or Midletons.

{Leighs. Mr \ James / Moore sayes are in Wiggin church on an ~~Pennen~~ escutch[eon] A bloody hand in medio Gules he thinke. Q. of Tho. Jackson of Dalton,[14] Stuart.}

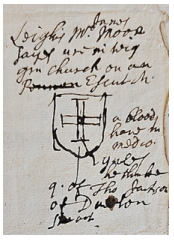

Figure 2.5.5. Leigh Arms. II.289.

[II.290]

At Burton Armes

Prestons has tenants & held in – Preston C H. Holmbeck 1 per mile ab Ecclesia w.

[II.291]

{Court Baron at Burton}

{Anywhere pro arbitr[i]o Senescalli.[15] – for there is no manner house.}

[II.287]

[Families] {Out of the East[er] B[ook]}

1. Burton ½ query S. ab Ecclesia = (47) fam[ilies.]
2. Claythrop[16] NE ab Ecclesia ¼ m[ile]
3. Holm = N. ab Ecclesia 1 mile (34 [families])
4. Dalton ab Ecclesia S.E. 1 m[ile] – f[amilies] 20*.
5. Preston Patric fa[milies] 50

[6.] Holm Scales – most of it free purchased time out of mind. How many Tenements? – fam[ilies] 12 Very poore –

[14] A blotted word, some letters illegible.
[15] 'At the discretion of the steward'.
[16] Clawthorpe.

The old Vic[arage] ~~sold of~~ deteined in the 8th of King James I [1610-11], there being a contest betwixt Mr [?] Midleton, the Patrone,[17] \ & Curwen [who] dyed in the R[oad] from Lond[on] s[ine] suspitione veneni.[18] /
{An ancient Hall on the side of the Church yard – now too converted to Tenency, where Ruins yet appear.}

[Machell's Notes: II.287]

*? Memorandum, they talke of one end of Dalton being formerly calld High Burton; [er]go Alter if so the Bounder.

[II.288]

Ex Informatione John Lucas of Holm ætat. 44. Richard Claugh~~th~~ton ætatis 45.

[Tithes.1.]
The Place is a Vicaridge, the Great Tythes being impropriate, and now belonging to Sir Thomas Preston of the Manner in Lancashire.[19] But the Smal Tythes belong to the Vicar, such as calves pigs geese wool & lambes; but many of them are not payed in kinde; for if there be X calves, he has 4s for his Tythe; if V, 2s; if under then he has paid ~~him~~ 2d½ for every calfe.
{In kinde for the 1t year}
So for lambes, \ the 1t 2 years in kinde, / he has 10d for the tenth Lamb ~~& so a penny a Lamb be they more or less~~ \ as in other places.[20] /
But there is no Glebe except the church yard, which makes the place very inconsiderable, not much exceeding 30li per annum; and which to be pittyed as well as admir'd, there is not an house to put his head in.
{Lord Montgomery has [tithe of] Burton, Holm & Dalton: Lord Clifford has Tith of Preston Patric & Holmskale. But Montgomery [has] the Manner house & Demane of Preston Patric} [where] there is one chapel called Preston, belonging to the parish. Distant ab Ecclesia 3 miles Norwards.

[II.291]

[Tithes. 2.]
{Hay} In Burton they Pay ~~hay~~ to the Vicar 8d per Annum, for leeses – for their meadowes – so much a piece, as in the Vicars Composition Booke. Corn as in the other paper.
Wool in kinde all the parish over – to the Vicar by flece = the Parishioner having 2 head choyces before he ~~begin~~ takes his if they be ten; if 9 the same; if at 8 [the same]; but at 7 they take 3 & he a flece, pay[ing] them nothing. If 6 they take 3 & he a flece out of the Remander; If 5, he takes up halfe a flece; if iiij – he has 1d a piece & so on to 1[at] 1d. Lambe as in the other paper. & This is general over the Parish.

[Burton Market and Cross]

[II.296]

[Burton Market]
Burton was made a Market Towne ~~The~~ by a Charter from King Charles the 2. in 1661. The market to be kept every Tuesday, & 2 fairs every year, Sc. on St George his Day[21] & St Bartholomew.[22] Procurd by Sir George Mildleton \ Kt & Baronet / Lord of the Manner, & of Leyton in Lancashire – with Toll & 1d a Beaf;[23] & a Quart a Loade for whea[t], Peas, Beans & Barly;[24] & nothing more, how much [17] The first name is unclear. According to Nicolson and Burn, the advowson in the reign of Elizabeth I was granted to Edward, earl of Lincoln, and Christopher Gough, gentleman. Soon afterwards, the advowson was in the hands of the Middleton family of Leighton in Lancashire, the last of whom was Sir George Middleton. In subsequent years it passed through many hands. See N&BI, 235.

[18] 'Without suspicion of poison.'
[19] The beginning of this sentence appears on MS.II.287.
[20] Other sentences on tithes and impropriations relating to milch cows, such as '…a cow in milk there 2 years in kinde; after, as in other places, 5[d] …[etc.]' are obscured by the binding.
[21] 23 April.
[22] 24 August.
[23] A 'beef' was an ox. OED.
[24] MS: '& a Quart ~~at a Load~~ a Loade – ~~& no more for~~ for ~~whea~~ whea Peas Beans & Barly.'

soever he bring in on that day. & for Oates 3 handfulls, as at Kirkby Loansdal. & Stallage,[25] ½ if all their goodes present[ed] to sale be worth 13s½.[26]

[Burton Cross]

Figure 2.5.6. Burton Cross. '3 yards & ½ y[ard]. 6 stairs, 10 inch hig[h]' Drawing in red pencil. II.290.

[II.288]

[Lordships]

There are 4 Lordships in the Parish: Burton; Holm \ ab Ecclesia 1 m N.; / Preston [Patrick]; Dalkton. & Note that Farleton \ in Bethom / comes in between Holm and Preston, cutting the parish into 2 parts.

[III.321][27]

Carta Antiqua

[Charter of Richard I, confirming to Gilbert, son of Roger, son of Reinfred, and to his heirs, a carucate of land and a fishery at Levens; four carucates of land at Farleton, four carucates of land at Beetham; four carucates of land at Preston and in Holm; two carucates of land at Burton; one carucate of land at Hincaster; one carucate of land at Preston; and three carucates of land at Hopperton.]

{Cart[a] eiusdem Gilb[ert]i}
Rich[ard]us dei gr[ati]a Rex Ang[lie] etc. O[mn]ibus fidelibus suis Sal[u]t[e]m: Sciatis nos dedisse, et concessisse, et prouti Carta mea Confirmasse Gilb[ert]o fil[io] Rogeri, fil[ij] Reinfr[edi], et heredibus suis, unam Carucata[m] terre in Levenes cum piscaria eiusdem Vill[ae]. et 4 Carucata[s] terr[e] in Farleton, et in Betene, et 4 Carucat[as] terr[e] in Prestona, et in Holm: et 2 Carucat[as] terr[e] in Berton et una[m] Carucata[m] terr[e] in Hennecastre, et una[m] Carucata[m] terr[e] in Prestona, et 3 Carucat[as] terr[e], in Hopp[er]etona [?], et una[m] piscaria[m] qua ad easdem terr[as] p[er]tin[et], pro homagio, et Servicio suo, et pro ut sterlingone[s] quas nobis dedit. Scilicet ei et heredibus suis tenere, de nobis et heredibus meis in Feodo et he[re]ditate, cum o[mn]ibus p[er]tinen[tij]s suis p[er] Serviciu[m] unius Feodi militis p[ro] o[m]ni Servicio : Quare Voluimus et firmiter p[re]cipimus, quod p[re]d[i]c[t]us Gilb[er]tus et heredes sui h[ab]eant et teneant p[re]d[i]ct[as] terr[as], de nobis et he[re]dibus meis in Feo[do] et he[re]ditate, bene, et in pace, libere, et quiete, et honorifice cu[m] o[m]nibus libertatibus et liberis consuetudinibus in eccl[es]ijs in bosco in plana in vijs et semitis in piscarijs et vivarijs in stagnis et aquis et molendinis in pratis et pasturis in Burgo et extra Burgum, et in o[m]nibus locis, liberas et quietas, de geld [tax] et Denegeld et de Montegeld[28] et de Hornegeld[29] et [25] Stallage was a tax or toll levied for the liberty of erecting a stall in a fair or market. OED.

[26] 13s 6d.
[27] In the MS, this charter is placed in Volume III, among various Shap charters.
[28] Tax on animals brought back unsold from market.
[29] Cornage.

de Blodwithe et de Frithewite[30] et de Seirwitha [?] et de Ferdwitha[31] cum Soca et Saca[32], et Toll, et theam […?], et insangthe […?] et cu[m] o[m]nibus libertatibus et liberis Consuetudini[bus], que ad easde[m] ter[ras] p[er]tinent.
Test[ibus]
Ld Dunelmensis Etc. et multis alijs: Is erat tenor Cart[e] me[e] in primo Sigillo meo Q[u]e quia aliquando p[er]ditu[m] fuit et du[m] Carti essen[t] in Alemania in aliena pot[es]tate constituti mutatum est: huius autem Innovac[i]o[n]is testes sunt hij Ld Sarum Ep[iscop]us, Unnanus [?] Archiadiaconus dereb. R. I. et B. Capellani.[33]

[II.288]

{1. Burton Lordship}

The Lordship of Burton is a sandy soyle & hath much lime \ stone / in it, but no wood worth speaking of. Their measure of Land is 6 yards & ½ to the Rood; & 4 Roods to the Acre*. And their Arable & pasture is generally worth per annum 7s; meadow 10s; moss 1s {[Lord of the manor of] Burton has bin always know to take stray good.}

{Tenants & Tenure}
There are no \ valuable / freeholders in this Lordship. The Lord payes a free-rent of 31s \ to Crowne anciently due / to Kendall Castle of which he holdes the tenants by an Agreement with the Lord & Decree in Chancery. [They] pay Rent & fine certain, which fine is only double the Rents, & Due upon death of Lord & change of Tenant.

{Court & Court House. Q. If not the Vicaridge. The people call part of it the Vicaridge.}

The Lords House is called Claythorp hall† & part Fryer Flatts, not far from the church, on the North Side of it, to which there is a Demain belonging, farm'd for about 40li. It is good land and of all sortes excepting woodland. Another place calld Burton H[all] \ 80 yards from the church / {which pays Rent to the King. Held by Jo. Lucas, one Thomas[34] and others.}

{Descent of the Manner}
It belonged ~~anciently~~ \ formerly / to the Midletons, Sir George Midleton of Leightone in Lancashire (2 mile hence) who daughter & \ heir / Mary Midleton, transferrd the Right (by marryage) to the [30] Fine for breach of the peace.

[31] Fine for not doing military service.
[32] Suits and jurisdiction.
[33] 'Richard by the grace of God King of England etc. sends greetings to all his loyal subjects. Know that we have given and granted and thus by my charter confirmed to Gilbert, son of Roger, son of Reinfred, and to his heirs, one carucate of land at Levens along with the fishery of the same Vill and four carucates of land at Farleton, also at Betene [Betham?], and four carucates of land at Preston and in Holm; also two carucates of land at Burton and one carucate of land at Henncaster [Hincaster] and one carucate of land at Preston and three carucates of land at Hopperton [Hoppergate?] and one fishery which pertains to the same lands, in return for his homage and service and likewise the money which he has given us. Indeed, [we have granted] to him and his heirs to hold [them] from us and our heirs in fee and inheritance with all their appurtenances through the service of a fee of one soldier for all service. Wherefore we have willed and we have strictly ordered that the aforesaid Gilbert and his heirs should have and hold the aforesaid lands from us and my heirs in Fee and Inheritance, well, and in peace, freely and undisturbed, honourably and with all liberties, and with customary freedoms in the churches, in the woodland, in the field, in the roads and the paths, in the fisheries and fish-ponds, in the pools and waters and mills, in grassings and pastures, in the Town and without the Town, and in all places freely and peaceably; in matters of tax and Danegeld, of Montegeld and Cornage, of Bloodwit, Frithwit, Seirwit, and Ferdwit along with suits and jurisdiction, and Toll and […?] and […?], and with all liberties and free customs which pertain to these same lands. Witnesses: Lord Dunelm Etc. and many others. This was the sense of my charter under its first seal, which, because it (Sc. the seal) was at some time lost, and as long as the charters were in Germany, being in the power of others, it was changed: however, the witnesses of this confirmation [sc. of the charter] are these, The Lord Bishop of Salisbury, Archdeacon Unnanus [?] dereb… [?], R. J. and B. Chaplains.' [The last few words here are uncertain.]
[34] The rest of this name is obscured by the binding.

Oldfields of Sommerforth in […], whose son George is present […][35] thereof & his mother at present Patron.

[Machell's Notes: II.288]

*{yards – rods; 6 – perch; 4 – a rood; 4 – an Acre. This to the General}
†{which has bin called the Parsonage house […] Moore house}[36]

[II.291]

[Bounder]
It is bounded on the East, with Hutton Roofe in the parish of Kirkby [Lonsdale]. Accord[ing] to the Bounder of that Chappelry: On the South with Warton P[arish] in Lancashire, being divided from it By Dalton Parke fence \ & Deerslat[37] / on the W. with Bethom P[arish] ~~being distinguished~~ which strikes quite through as like a Tonge – adjoyneing \ on the / East to Kirkby Parish: By a Ring fence commonly knowe = On the N[orth] – when, this Parish comes in agane, with Hutton Chapl in Kendal parish.

Figure 2.5.7. Orientation diagram from Burton Church. II.291.

See It[inerary][38]

{Soyle}
{Generally Limestone excepting Preston}

{Division} into \ Chapelries & / Lordships}
Wee have Burton, Dalton & Holm. The chaple & manner of Preston Patric, & the Hamlet of Holmskale. {See the E[aster] Booke for fam[ilies.]}

Burton
In Burton is the Lordship of Burton & the Hamlet of Caythrop. Som good Houses in Burton lately built – a Free School near the Ch. yard wall on the E. side thereof. Sallary about 5li 10s 0d per Annum – given by several of the Town. a Grammar School = when it shall be taught by a Master of Artes there is 10 li per Annum given by John Hutton of Hindon in Bishoprick, being Borne here in Holm: But while it is not so taught as above said, it goes to the poore of Burton & Bethom as by his Will {In Registry at Richmont of which diverse [persons] have copyes.}

[II.293]

[Machell's Notes: II.292 and II.293]

Claythorp answers at Heston – at the Manner house there {Claythrop ab Ecclesia ½ m. NE}
{Tr[adition}: [Burton] Anciently to Studleys of Hornby L. ~~formerly~~ belongd to the Midleton of Leighton. Now to Oldfields of Sommerford in Cheshire.}
[II.293]
They clame a Beacon on Farleton Knot: Sc. that which is next \ S. / to Holm Parke.
Homeskale – q. the Tenure – Lords & […]?[39]

[35] Some words are obscured by the binding.
[36] Some of this note is obscured by the binding.
[37] Deerslack, Deerslet, Durslett: flat meadow frequented by deer, see Westmorland Place-Names. The word following this is unclear.
[38] 'See Itinerary', is written below the compass diagram. See Part 2, Ch.10, Itinerary.
[39] An illegible word is followed by Machell's question mark.

Claythrop \ all / Customary Tenants fine Arbitrary Heriotable – Belinghams til ~~of~~ 1689. Now Col. James Graham.

[2.] Holm

All Arbitrary, one halfe Heriotable the other not – for formerly this Lordship was divided twixt Tonsdal[40] & Preston, whereof Tonsdal were & are free of Heriots to this very day; but are deeper charged in their Rents, so that they are knowne & distinguishd by the Rentalls, but not otherwise; lying sparsim.[41] In Holm \ & Burton & Claythorp & Dalton / the Widdowes enjoy but ½ [of the deceased husbands estate] dureing non-couverture.[42] But in all the rest ~~them~~.[43] But in Preston Patric, as there for Holmskales qu[ery]*. But a 2nd wife &c. has but the 3rd.
Anciently the Prestons of the manner & Tunsdalls, but afterwards came into Prestons hand only, & is now in the Lord Montgomery†.

[Machell's Notes: II.293 and II.294]

*Qu[ery] of Holm Skale.
†{They are said both Howcar & Mon[tgomery] to have come out of Ireland. Query.}
[II.294] Oldfield of L[eighton] has[44] an house ¼ [mile] NE over against Moss Loan. 100 Acres.[45]

[II.295]

Holm takes Stray. 5 or 6 Freeholds. Ab Ecclesia 1m. Northwards. Lawyer Pinder Inherited 60li.
{Holm C. Barronial. No Manner House – Holm pays 4s per Annum for all their hay.}
{Holm Soyle} Holm is much of the same quality, but hath som wood in it, most of which is Ash.

{Bounder, Tenants & Tenure}
On the East it hath Kirkby [Lonsdale] Lordship; on the West Bethom; on the north Heversham. & no manner house but old Lodge in the parke, which parke is well stored with fallow Deer, being a mile long & about 3 in circumference, And there is no Demain unless this be one, which for the most part is course earth.
{Holm payes a Rent [to] Col. Howard; Rent to som of that n[ame], & another Rent 3li to the Crown.
{None pay to the vicar, but 15s to the Impropriator.}

{Descent of the Manner}
It belongs to Sir Thomas Preston [Lord] of The Manner – But now to the Lord Montgomery.

[Holm: N[otes] G[eneral]}
Foul & clean marts. Wild cates & foxes; to[o] many all over.
{White marle plentifull in all the Mosse 1 yared deep.}
Bayes & Laurell pretty common in Gardine.
Store of Orchards. Raspberry Crouneberryes.[46]

[3.] Preston Patric

3 miles Northw. [Ecclesia]. Preston hath on the East, Kirkby [Lonsdale]; on the West Burton; & Heversham, N. Kendal on the South. It hath one \ little / parke, but now disparked*. The manner house is Preston hall†.

{How now disposed of}
It belongs to Sir Thomas Preston [Lord] of the Manner.

[40] Tunstall? See Smith, Place-Names 1, 60.
[41] Latin: 'scattered'.
[42] 'Non-couverture': the legal position of a widow; the opposite of 'coverture': the condition or position of a woman during her married life, when she is by law under the authority and protection of her husband. OED.
[43] Transcribed as seen.
[44] An unclear word (in red pencil) follows. It could be 'bu[ilt]'.
[45] Notes in red pencil placed at the top right of the page.
[46] The crown berry: a lingonberry or cranberry. OED.

Holmskale‡ distant 5m. N. East. {Holmskales joynes with Preston Patric in the payment of the said 15 li.} {They pay hay T[ithe] \ in / Burton.}.

[Machell's Notes: II.295]

*~~No~~ \ a / Demain unless ~~this~~ a Parke.[47]
†See my other paper.
‡q. if a Lordship.

[II.293]

Preston Chaple
Anciently to Preston of Preston Patrick, which [family] was extinguished in 2 daughters co-heire. One maryed to Preston of Howkar, the Preston other manner, & hence the names [of Preston] & Richard{Trad[ition}. Now in the Lord Montgomery.

[II.300]

Sir Thomas Preston
1. Mary P. maryed to Herbert Lord Montgomery.
2. Ann P. maryed to Lord Clifford*.

[Machell's Notes: II.300]

*{Ex infor. George Hilton[48] who calls him Hugh Lord Clifford, but q. if not […][49]}

[II.297]

Preston Chap. in Burton Parish
The Hall stands in a Bottom; the chaple upon an Hill. A fine Dale from the Hall west[wards] & South west & N. west. An Inscription above the Dial with the chaple wardens names {Mr Usherwood Mr Batty}[50] & the Year of Our Lord 1685.
{L[ength] 23, b[readth] 8} outs[ide] S. Quier. Wardens}
In what Saints name this chapel was dedicated is not certainly known; but there is a well about 200 yards E. \ wards / from it cald St Gregoryes well, which gives occasion to suppose it was dedicated unto that Saint{?}[51] Howbeit their Rushbearing is at St James tide.[52]

Figure 2.5.8. Chapel and Hall at Preston Patrick. II.297.

[47] Possible meaning: but no demesne unless this park[?]
[48] The surname here is unclear. If the informant had been George Hilton of Beetham (1673-1725), he would have been only 19 years old at the time Machell visited the area. For George Hilton, Jacobite and diarist, only son of Thomas Hilton (1651-1691), of Hilton House, Beetham, see https://www.cumbrianlives.org.uk/lives-index/h.html, Hilton, George.
[49] The name is obscured by the binding.
[50] CCED records show only that John Usherwood was vicar of Burton-in-Kendal, c.1691-94, and William Batty was ordained Deacon at Rose Castle, Carlisle Diocese, in 1638.
[51] For St Gregory's well, see Peter Lucas, 'A South Westmorland Medieval Holy Well? The Case of St. Gregory's Well, Preston Patrick', CW3, 14 (2014), 125-38.
[52] 25 July.

[Tithes]
The Corne Tithe is pay'd in kinde to Trinity College {?} in Cambridge & Leas'd by the Lord Montgomery in right of his wife, one of the Daughters & Coheires of Sir Thomas P[reston] of the Manner in Lancashire. \ [Lord] Clifford has Demanes & Hall & Holme Parke in Holm in Burton and Nether Levins in Hersham. / The hay tithe is pay'd in prescription money unto the College.[53] The wool & Lam is pay'd in kinde unto the Vicar which when they compound after 2 years at 10d a Lamb. but the wool \ always / in specie.[54]
There is no House belonging to the Chaplain, but \ a / Sallary of 5 marke per Annum payable out of the Respective Tenements proportionably according to an ancient settlement charged upon them [is] payd.

[Bounder]
It is bounded on the East with the Lordship of Lupton in Kirkby L[onsdale] parish; on the south with Farleton in Bethom parish from which tis divided by Farleton Beck; on the West with Preston Richard in Heversham P[arish] [from which it is divided] by Gate beck water; on the N. with Old Hutton Chapelry in \ the parish of / Kendal ~~Parish~~.
It is one Entire Lordship calld by the name of Preston Patrick. The occasion of which is by Tradition that the 2 Prestons – Patric & Richard (whereof this lyeth on the East Side of Gatebeck, the other on the West), were formerly given to 2 Sons of those names*.

[II.299]

{Tenants. Vall.}[55]
The Tenants are Generally (excepting only 3 or 4 free holds) Customary Tenants payin[g] fines Arbitrary, Boones & Heriots, and Waife & Strayes &c. in the Lord of the Manner. And the Tenants have the Customs of the Barony of Kendal in relation to their Widdowes & heiresses.

{Lord[ship]}
They hold of Preston Hall {E. a Capella ¼ m.} where Court Baron is kept; which now belongs to the Lord Montgomery in right of his wife. There are other places calld Hals: Sc.
[1.] Braken Hal. N.E. a Capella 1 mile, a freehold Estate ~~Chan~~nel hall a Customary Tenement under Wharton who has a 3[rd] part of the Lordship, but no Demane Lands†.
[2.] Preston Parke {N. a Capella ½ m.} in the midle of the chapelry standeth; in the North End of which the ~~Ruines of the~~ Keepers house standeth yet know[n] by that name; & [the park] has bin replenished with fallow Deer & wood in the memory of man.

{Ponds [and rarities in nature]}
There are ~~9 or 10~~ several ponds lying together in a place calld Moss Ends {a Capella S. ¼ m.} which afford Eales & Tench.
There is plenty of Black Cocks, & Gray hens with their pootes[56] on Preston fell {E. a Capella 1m.}
There is an Ewe Tree in the Chaple yard – very old & decayd – which shews the Antiquity of the Chaple. Not much wood of any kinde excepting fruites which are very plentiful. Strawberryes ~~resb~~ common.
They have little fuel – And that only turf fetched from Preston fell about a mile of.
Their Stone is generally a Blew Ragg; but yet there is Lime Stone near the West End of the Chapel in Preston Parke.[57]

[Machell's Notes: II.299 and II.300]

*de quo qu?[58]
†{? q. how he came by them?}

[53] MS: 'The hay is pay'd in prescription money, ~~part~~ to \ unto / the College ~~& part to the vicar~~.'
[54] 'In kind'.
[55] Value.
[56] A gray hen is a female black grouse. Poots, poults, or pullets are young domestic fowl, or simply, game birds, irrespective of age. OED.
[57] This sentence is placed at the top of MS.II.301.
[58] 'Query this'.

[II.301]

[Preston Hall]
It has bin in the Prestons time immemorial, & gave name unto them – but was odly Quitted by Sir Thomas Preston (who being a Priest before it fell to him by the death of Sir John Preston his Brother) maryed & had Isue 2 daughters (maryed to the Lords Montgomery & Clifford);[59] and being in widowhood, was over persuaded by the Romish priest that the Estate would not prosper unless he returnd to his \ former / function \ ~~agan~~e / upon which he settled it on his 2 da\u/ghters, have[ing] first given his Estate in Lancashire calld the Manner (formerly an Abby)* unto the Jesuites, & so went beyond Sea, putting a period to \ the continuation of / that ancient family upon this Estate. Upon this Grant to the Jesuites discovered by Oates \ & others, / there was a Trial in the Exchequer Tempore Carl. 2.[60] And it was adjudgd forfæted to His Majesty who ces'd upon it & granted a Lease for yeald of the same to Mr Thomas Preston of Howkar Esq.[61]

[Machell's Notes: II.301]

*{No}
Corne; Big vjs.[62] – 0 […] Gal 24 PB.[63]
Arable 2. From 10-20
Meadow 1.
Pasture from 5 to 10.
Fam. 10 to 20.

[II.302]

Gatebeck – so calld at Preston – & Cocklet Tarne
It springs at Lilly Tarne in Killington Lordship – the South ¼ m. off the East Side of Benrig (3. [miles]). Thence S. West ~~to Coe~~ through Branthwate (2.) Thence Through Brigg End ½ m. Thence W. to Beckside Mil \ (4.) / which is on the E. side; thence W. to Low Bleas {½ [mile]} which stands on the N. (Bleas H. ½ m. North from it). Thence S. by the W. Side {2m.} of Gate beck. Thence S. ~~Through~~ \ inter[64] / the 2 Prestons {1m. to Pesza-Brig.[65] Thence W. on the N. Side of Ourthwate[66]

[59] 'Maryed to the Lords Montgomery and Clifford', is encircled, and in the margin is written, '? Place this elsewhere'. '[In]1647 Sir Thomas Preston of the Manor and of the Abbey entered the Society of Jesus; he died at Watten in 1709. Between these dates he created trusts giving the whole of his estates to the Jesuits. Titeup and other property was vested in the name of his sister, Lady Catherine Stourton, and, probably by this means, was secured to the Jesuits when the principal trust (illegal because of the anti-Catholic laws) was discovered either by Titus Oates or by enquiries set on foot by the heir-in-tail, Thomas Preston of Holker. As a result, the rest of the estate was forfeited to the Crown.' F.J. Butler, 'Chronological Record of Tytup Hall and Bibliography of Father West, S.J.', *CW*2, 42 (1942), 180-82, at 181. Titus Oates was an instigator of the Popish Plot panic of 1679, which exploded in response to allegations of a Jesuit conspiracy to murder Charles II, restore the Roman Catholic faith as the state religion and establish a French-backed tyranny under James, duke of York. Richard Cavendish penned a highly coloured demolition of Oates's character: 'Titus Oates, fantasist and virtuoso liar. A former naval chaplain, expelled from the service for homosexuality, he was in his late twenties in 1677 when, "lulled asleep by the allurements of the Popish Syrenes" as he later put it, he was received into the Catholic church. He went to the English Jesuit College at Valladolid in Spain, where he was described as "a curse" and soon expelled, then wheedled his way into a Catholic school at St Omer in France, to be quickly expelled once more. Deeply dislikeable, ugly, foul-mouthed, unsuccessful and painfully poor, he seems by this time to have been bent on revenge on the world that had rejected him, and he came back to England with the tale of a sensational conspiracy.' See History Today, 55, 7 (July 2005).
[60] In the reign of Charles II.
[61] See Butler, 'Tytup Hall and Bibliography of Father West, S.J.', CW2, 42 (1942), 181; see also, Anne C. Parkinson, A History of Catholicism in the Furness Peninsula, 1127-1997 (Lancaster, 1998), 33.
[62] Barley, 6 shillings.
[63] These notes on crops were written in large, pencilled script, much of which is unclear.
[64] Inter = between.
[65] Pesa Brig = bridge over Peasey Beck: see Emanuel Bowen and Thomas Kitchin, A New Map of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland Divided into their Respective Wards, scale about 4 miles to 1 inch (London, 1760).
[66] Overthwaite.

{2m.} Thence W. through Bethom {1m.½} (the Church on the South Side). Thence W. by the ~~west~~ \ South / End of Milthrop {1m.} ~~by the same~~ in to the Sea.}

[II.295]

[4. Dalton]

Da(uk)ton. Writ Dalto[n] 60 years ago. 1. mile S.E.[67]
[Dalton Hall] Over the Hall dooer

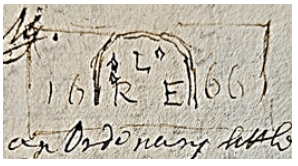

Figure 2.5.9. R \ L / E, 1666, 'Over the hall door'. II.295.

{How it came Dalton.}

Lee of Lime.
In Lancashire. Belongs to Mr Lee \ son of Sir Peter, of Lime in Cheshire / which I shall not touch upon being out of the County.[68]

Peter Leigh of Lime in Cheshire
|
Richard L. of Lime – who built the house.
|
Peter L. of L.

Near the Sea; an ordinary little Hall; The Demaine well wooded. [They say] that Martin Swarth came in at Peel[69] and destroyed the old House, but built agane in Mem[ory].[70]

[General Notes]
A parke at Dalton destr[o]yd time immemorial – foul & clean marts. Well woode[d] is Dalton parke.
Gray Slate in Dalton ab Aula 1m NE at Russbrig.
Dalton a Court Barron – 1 or 2 freeholds.
{Q. of the bounder, of Thomas Jackson Stuart at Dalton Hall}
Dalton tenants are Leasers for 3 Lives.
It is said that Leighton & This [Lordship] belongd to 2 Coh[eirs.] The Lady Midletons – & yet they both came by marriage.
Mem[orandum] a part of the Ruine appear like a Castle wall yet about a yard high {2 m[iles] W. above Yellan.}[71]

[67] Dalton: 'Valley farmstead': dæl, tūn, in allusion to the valley between Dalton Park Wood and Dalton Hall: Westmorland Place-Names.
[68] See II.287.
[69] Piel island, Morecambe bay: the location of Piel Castle.
[70] For Martin Swarth (Swartz), see Part 2, Ch.4, Beetham, II.270-II.271.
[71] Yealand.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 6. Grasmere Parish]

[Grasmere]

[II.156]

[Machell's Contents Page] [1]

[All numbers refer to paragraphs marked '§' on the following pages]

{Gresmer Church}

Bounders	4
Dedications	§13 from; a well 16 in Margine
Dimentions of the Parish	10
Discription: Bells a paper	§12
Endowment	§22
Fam[ilies] in it	§6
Marts & wild cats	29
Of Easter Booke (ad Margin)	§7
Parsonage house	§16. 21 }
Patroneage	20 }
Incumbents	22 }
Soyle	32
Stile Arm[es] mo[numents]	27
The fig[ures]	§13 in Marg[in] 33

{The Parochial Manner of Gresmer}

Consistes of Grasmer, Loughrig	24
Tarne	30
Easdal & Coldal Tarne	16[2]

1. Gresmer

Gresmer. Why	24
Bounds	25
Copper	26
Court Baron	35[3]
Custom	38
Descent of the manner	40 & a Paper
Dumbal raise	25
Eagles &c.	31
Hal-steads	27
Long lived men	29
Lord[ship]	36
School	26
Soyle	32. 30
Tenure	37

[1] Editor's Note. Machell wrote this chapter as a series of notes in numbered sections, introduced by a Contents page. Although most of the paragraphs were numbered sequentially, they were not necessarily positioned thematically; neither were they always labelled correctly. Where paragraphs on the same theme were separated, this edition brings some of them together. Additionally, discrete narrative elements – described by Machell as 'Papers' and positioned randomly – are now inserted between relevant paragraphs, to illuminate particular notes. N.B. Not all of Machell's projected 'Papers' were actually written.

[2] Machell numbered this incorrectly; he placed these tarns with the others at §30.

[3] Machell numbered this incorrectly; he placed information on the Court Baron at §39.

2. Loughrig.
Loughrig. Why? 35. 63.
Cite 41
Descent 46
Discrip. 42[4]
Manner house 47. 48
Rarityes in margine[5]
Tenure 45[6]

3. Great Landale.
Why. Infra?[7]

Ambleside Chapel

(Some in Windermerside) §11[8]
Bell 72
School Endowment Discrip. 74[9]
Clappergeat?[10]
Dedication? Discrip. 71
Made Parochial 20. 72. 90
Marc[et[fairs & charters §17
Paper Mil 18
Rarityes 77. 78. Fig. 79
Tenure of Ambleside 17. 18

Manner of Ridal
Armes §5 & 9
Crist & motto ibidem.[11]
Bounder 62
Descent of the manner 66
Discription of the manner – extent 61
Lordship: Priviledges, M. house, Gardens, Orchards, Easnot, Mill, Grotto[12] Trees frutes, herbes 65
Name 61
Pedigre 76
Rarityes [&] tenure 64. 66
Village 63

Great Landale Chapel

Fig. & Descript. 34
Rud 16
Bounder 80
Endowment. Disposal. Succession. School [blank]

[4] §42 refers to Base Brown, now known as Baysbrown: Westmorland Place-Names.
[5] Find most rarities at §18.
[6] §41-50 relate to Baysbrown.
[7] See §51.
[8] More correctly at §9, 20, 66, 90.
[9] More correctly: {(74) Disposal} i.e. 'The Curate is recommended by the majority, and approv'd by the Minister. He teaches for 6d per quarter of the tenants: & of other what can get.'
[10] See §6.
[11] The MS strikes through 'Armes §5 & 9. Crist & motto ibidem', but the Fleming arms are indeed to be found on §5 & 9.
[12] MS adds, 'In margine'.

Division into 1. Great Langdale, 2. Little Langdale 3. Basebrowne: ~~32 a paper~~

1. Great Landal, Why
Chaple School & Sallary	27. 32 – a paper
Tenure	32 a paper
Breathey Head	52
2. Little Landale. Why
Bounds	56.
Breathey head	52
Descent	(Site 41. Ten. 45.) 60.
Extent	48[13] 51
Hardknot & Wranose	ibid. & 53. 54. 55[14]
Iron ore	in the margines & at 52[15]
Lingmer Tarne	30
Old Chap & Hall	51
Soyle	57
Tenure	59
3. Base Browne. Why
A sword	79. 32. – a paper.
Descent	42. 44. 46. 50.
Elterwater house	48
House	44. 47. 48. 49
The Bounder of Westmorland Continued	89. 91. 92.

[Machell's Notes: II,156 & II.157]

Ridell in Yorkshire. Dugd[ale]
[II.157]
Langdale forsan Longedal.
Dugdal. Bar[onagium] p. 423.
Gresmer Parish.
Qu.{Bounder} farther 1692.

[II.123]

[The Parish of Grasmere]

[§1-9. Machell's Initial Notes and Queries]

[§1] {Read over the places marked thus & get them Answered.} {The Easter Booke}
N. The King of Patterdal calls it Garsemer.[16]
Mem[orandum] the Courses of Rivers. Upon the old Q[ueries] I should Alter this Method & put the Mannerhouse &c. according to my second paper of Queries.

§2. N.B. In what Lordship or Township – Parish & Chapelry.
Clappergate. Basebrowne. Elterwater 9m. Landale Chap.
A place calld Cawsa in Windermer – in which Hamlett; how far ab Ecclesia said Capella & what akin to the family of Philipsons ad §60.
Fine Certane Arbitrary[17] in Ridal.

[13] This information is at §58.
[14] Hardknott and Wrynose can be found on §52, 54, 55.
[15] In the margins of §41 and 51.
[16] Unclear word.
[17] Two Latin words: 'ad h…' appear here, where the page-edge has perished.

1. Grasmire R.[18]
2. Windermere R.
3. Kirkby Kendal V.[19]
4. Hersham V.
5. Beathom ~~Wether church. When built?~~ \ V /
?6. Burton. V.
~~?~~7. Kirkby Lonsdal V.[20]

Note ad Westm'land General – and 25 in the Bottom of Westmorland.
§.3. In all 32. Speed says but 26.

[II.150]

In Gresmere Parish are[21]

Church & Chappelry	& Familiyes E.W.N.S.
1. Gresmer Church. Mr Loic[22]	Mannor of Gresmer & great Landal
2 Ambleside Chapple L.B. Ded[ication] Indow[ment] Bells Armes Bounder fig.	The whole Town in the Mannor of Windermere yet the chapples above the Stock in Gresmer Parish
3 Langdal Chapple[23] The same as in Ambleside	Mannor Little Langdale. Great. the Q[ueen][24] Baise Brown q. of Bass or Pearch in it?

The Armes of Gresmer church & Ridal are done: & the Pike jaw at Ambleside, per Dugdal.[25]

[II.123]

§.4. Note General ad Gresmer ad Windermere
Measure of Ground about Kendal. Sc. in Grasmer & Windermer.
6 yards & ½ square T[h]ey call a Fall of Ground.
40 Fall make a Roode.
84 Roode – make an Acre.
Gresmer Church hath had
1. – Ambleside Chapel; 2. – Great Langdale; 3. – Lile Langdale

[18] Rectory.
[19] Vicarage.
[20] Numbers 1-7 have been crossed through.
[21] Above this line of the MS, the sentence, 'See the Easter Booke?', has been written and crossed through.
[22] 'Loic' This name refers to John Ambrose, an absentee incumbent, who, nominated by the Flemings of Rydal, was rector of Grasmere both before the Civil War and after the Restoration. During the Interregnum this situation was complicated by the competing influences of the Presbyterians and the Flemings. Ambrose was a nephew of John Fleming of Rydal Hall, whose sister Dorothy (his mother) had married the lord of Lowick. Ambrose inherited the lordship and Lowick Hall by surviving five brothers. He died in 1684 and was followed as rector by Henry Fleming. See M.L. Armitt, The Church at Grasmere: A History (Kendal, 1912) 82, 162. For analysis of the clerical changes in Grasmere during this period, see Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 2, 1059-70.
[23] An unclear word here could be a shortened form of 'bounds.'
[24] After 1688, Mary II, wife of William of Orange (William III of England).
[25] See Part 2, Ch.8, Windermere. Fishing was important to monks and population alike, as seen in this extract from William Dugdale's Baronagium. 'William de Lancaster the third, [temp. H. 3.] for the health of his Soul, and the Soul of Agnes his Wife … gave to the Monks of Furnesse, all his Lands of Scathewaite, and Egtone; as also four Boats, one to carry necessaries upon Thurstan-Water [Coniston], another to Fish therein; a third to be used on Wynendermere, for carriage of Timber and other commodities, and a fourth to Fish in that Meer. And bequeathing his Body to be buried in the Quire of the Abby of Furnesse, near to the Tombe of William his Grandfather, departed this life without issue.' Dugdale, Baronage, 422-23.

[II.124]

{Flemings Armes}[26]

Figure 2.6.1. Seal stamped with the Fleming Arms. II.124.

§.5 [Notes on the seal containing] Flemings Armes.[27]
1. Gules a fret Argent, Single in the Study. Per nomen Fleming.
2. Argent, on a Bend Sable. 3 Lozenges (or fusils) of the 1ˢᵗ charged with as many (Saltiers forsan) Gules. Per N. Urswick of Conyston in Lancashire: and this is impaled[28] with the former Coate in the Study.
3. Argent. 2 Barrs Gules on a Canton of the 2nd a lyon passant gardant Or – Lancaster.
4. Gules ~~ar~~ frettee Argent – Hudleston.
The rest are the Coates with the H[udlestons]; then Quartered. Sc.
5. Argent a Bend inter 2 Mullets Sable – Millum.
6. Argent a Cheveron inter 3 Bullock heads cabbosed Sable. Boyvill.
7. Parted per fess Gules & Argent. 6 martlets coun[ter]ch[arged]. – Fenwick.[29]
8. Argent a Lyon Rampant, Sable. Armed & Langued Gules – Stapleton.
9. Argent a Lyon Rampant, Azure armed & Langued Gules – Fauconbridge.
10. Barry of 8, Or & Gules – Fits Allan.
11. Sable a fret Or – Maltrevers.
12. Parted per pale Or & Vert a cross moline Gules (alias Argent & Gules) a [cross crosslet][30] Or – Ingham.
13. Azure a fess inter 3 Leopard heads Or – de la Pool.
14. Parted per pale Argent & Gules, a Bend counterchargd Cha[…]cer.[31]
15. The 15 as the 1ˢᵗ. Sc. Fleming.

These are in the parlour 2ce.[32] One of them being with the Crist, placed there 1617. The same agane above, sine Crista.[33] The motto – PAX COPIA SAPIENTIA.[34] Sometimes, Sapientia Pax Copia, when over the Crist which is a Serpent nowed,[35] with a Garland of Olives & 3 vines in her mouth all prop[er]. Under Sir William Dugdals owne hand in his visitation, at Kendall 20 March 1664: per me W. Dugdal, Norroy, King of Armes.[36]

[26] The Flemings of Rydal Hall.
[27] Red seal, containing 15 coats of arms, affixed to the top left hand of the page.
[28] MS: 'implae'd'.
[29] In 1690 John Fenwick of Northumberland bought New Hall in Over Burrow, Lancs, see AWL, 115-16.
[30] Machell has drawn a cross crosslet here.
[31] Part of this name is obscured by the binding.
[32] Twice.
[33] Without the crest.
[34] 'Peace Plenty Wisdom'.
[35] This is often described as a 'serpent erect tail nowed', the tail being interlaced in a knot. See S.C. Fox-Adams, A Complete Guide to Heraldry (New York, 1978), 257.
[36] See Joseph Foster (ed.), Pedigrees recorded at the Heralds' Visitations of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmorland made by Richard St. George, Norroy, King of Arms in 1615, and by William Dugdale, Norroy, King of Arms in 1666 (Carlisle and Kendal, 1891). Dugdale's visits were made in 1664 and 1665.

{In the Hall}
1. Fleming Impaleing Ducket with quarterings.
2. Fleming Impaleing Kirkeby of K. in Lanc[ashire] Sc. Argent 2 Bars Gules, on a Canton of the second a cross moline Or.}

§6. [Families][37]
Grasmere 78. Loughrig F[amilies] 27. Clappersgate 4. Ridal F[amilies]14. Elterwater F[amilies] 9.
In Langdale Chapel: Little Langdale F. 25. Great Langdale F. 47. Ambleside 29 f.

[Assessments]

§7. [Easter Book Tithe Assessments]
Stiles[38] – 1, Clerke 1[d]
Smook,[39] ob[40]
(garth \ i.e. gardine / 1[d]) Hay money.
Corne money.
Newcle[41] 2[d]
Why[42] 1[d] ob
Hand: a whol Calfe – 5 groates
& milke \ money / beside oblations 1[d] ½.
Bees 2[d] per hive disposd.
Foles 2[d]
Chick[ens] a brood ½.
(Easter Eggs)[43] 2 for an hen. 1 for a chicken.
Geese and Grise[44] in kinde.

§8. The[y] sett down their Assessments not in writeing but on a stick thus:

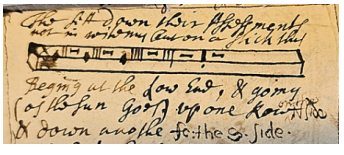

Figure 2.6.2. Assessment Stick. II.124.

Beg[inn]ing at the Low End, & going (as the sun goes) up one Row \ on the / N Side & down another[r], Sc. the S Side. X is the 1[t] house. A notch, ~~& strokes drawne with a knife stands for~~ through is 4s. Halfe through 6d. A Rake or Scratch with a knife is 1d. A pop with the point on the underside is ob[45] &c.[46]

[37] In the MS at §6., the following sentence has been scored through: '{~~MS A p.106~~ …~~John Crack Mabel of …Cooper Xtopher 2 Richard 3 George 4~~ … ~~See the Pedegree to this Richard Ibidem~~.}'
[38] Perhaps, 'stile-boot': wood claimed of the Lord by an owner of lands within certain manors, for making a stile. OED.
[39] 'Smook', 'Smuik': to suffocate by means of sulphur; a term applied to a mode of destroying bees to gain their honey. OED.
[40] A halfpenny.
[41]' Neucle' and variants of this word = a newly calved cow. Dictionary of the Scots Language, Online.
[42] Perhaps 'Quey' (pronounced 'why'). In the north of England and Scotland, a quey was the name given to a young cow before it had calved, i.e. a heifer. OED.
[43] Paid to the clergyman at Easter.
[44] Young pigs.
[45] Ob = ½d.
[46] For the use of tallies at Langdale, see Bill Bevan, 'Nick Stick Seat, Great Langdale', CW2, 89 (1989), 281.

§9 {19 fox skins being in the Hall. Laurrell in large trees. Maiden hare, a Grottoe, 2 Parkes – 2 orch[ards.]}

[Machell's Notes: II.124]

{King of Patterdal for the continuation of the bounder.}[47]

[II.125]

Grasmere Parish

{East of the Church T.}
{Consider if it may not be convenient to End with Ambleside in Windermer & begin with it in Gresmer, being in both parishes}
{~~q. Dumbal Raise~~}

{§10. Length & Bredth}
Is in the Diocess of Chester & in Kendal Ward; it takes its name from a village called Grasmere \ Grismer antique / \ & Grosmer / where the church stands & conteins in lenth from Stockbrige in ~~Hole~~ Ambleside to \ Dumbal / ~~the~~ Rais (the top of a mount which parts Westm'land & Cumberland) 6 miles: In bredth from the top of Ridal Fel to the \ River / Brathey (which separates Westm'land from Lancashire) about 5 miles & ½ by common estimation.

§11. Ad Windermer
{2 Bags of Coyns, whereof 6 Gold coins, 66 Silver, & 250 in Brass Coper &c. Given the 6. of Nov, 26. Car. 2. Anno Dom. 1674, to Doctor Barlow Provost of Queens for the Library of Oxford – which he received at the hands of Sir Daniel Fleming. July 03 1685. Collected & purchased in several places by 1. Thom. – 2. Gawen – & [3.] Thom. –}[48]

§12. Bound[er]
It is bounded on the East by Patterdale (a chappelrae belonging to Barton-Kirk \ ~~Westmorland~~,) / from which tis divided by the very ridge or top of the mountains \ as heaven water deales; / on the West which part of Lancashire \ Sc. Furness fells / from which tis divided by the River Brathey; on the North with part of Cumb'land, from which tis divided by the Ridge of the Mountaines calld Langdale Fells, \ as the heaven water deales / ~~runns of to each side of the mountain~~; on the South with the parish of Windermere in the County of Westm'land \ from which tis divided by Stockbrig Water & the Boundes of Windermere. / It consists of Arable pasture & meadow, but ~~a great~~ \ the most / part is mountainouse. Sc. the ~~commons~~ moores or Commons.

[II.132C]

[Paper 1.] The Bells at Gressmere

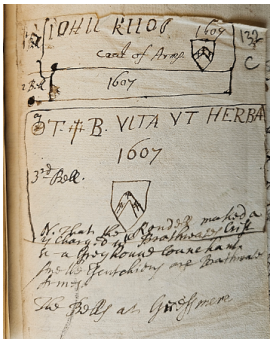

Figure 2.6.3. Bells at Grasmere Church 1607, with Arms and Inscriptions. II.132C.

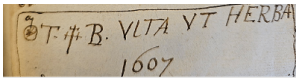
[47] The king of Patterdale was John Mounsey of Patterdale Hall, see Part 1, Ch.5, Barton, I.714.
[48] Thomas Dixon (father and son) and Gawen Brathwaite.

3rd Bell. T.† B. VITA VT HERBA 1607[49]



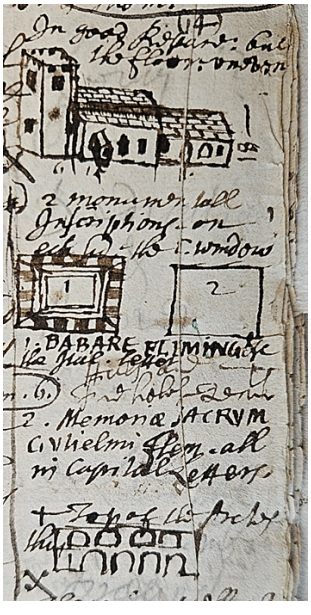


Figure 2.6.4. Grasmere Church, 3rd Bell Inscription. II.132C.

N[ote] that the Rondell marked a. is charged with Brathwates Crist, Sc. a Greyhound Couchant. And the escutchions are Brathwates Armes.

[§13-16] Grasmere Church and Parsonage]

§13, §14. {The Church} See 33.

The Church is a stone building with a Square Steepl or Tower; and is commonly calld Grasmere church from the towne where it stands, but is dedicated to St Oswald.
[Length of quire] 11; [of body] 15; [south side of steeple] 6; [breadth of quire] 18.[50]
{In good repare: but the floore uneven.}
[It is] \ built like a dou[b[le church,[51] with a row of 4 pillars & 5 arches; & above them 4 other arches meeting at the {Top of the Arches}.

{2 Monumentall Inscriptions on each side the E. window.
1. BABARÆ FLEMING &c.[52] The italic letter.
2. Memoriæ SACRVM Gulielmi Flem.[53] All in Capital Letters.}

Figure 2.6.5. Grasmere Church. Memorials and Arches. II.125.

\ A fine level Church yard. / {There is a well about a Bowshot W. ab Ecclesia calld St Oswalds, whence we suppose the church.} The Dale little but level meadow ground excepting one Hill calld Butterlep How & a little crag by it, a mere.

[49] 'Vita ut herba': life is as grass. Psalm 103, v.15: 'As for man, his days are as grass: as a flower of the field, so he flourisheth' (AVB). This is an anagram of the Braithwaite name. See Part 2. Ch.9, Windermere, II.351.
[50] Measurements in yards: see illustration of the church.
[51] A double nave.
[52] See the complete inscription in N&B1, 171. Barbara Fleming (née Fletcher) 1634-75, was the wife of Sir Daniel Fleming and the eldest daughter of Sir Henry Fletcher of Hutton-in-the-Forest; after her marriage in 1655 she produced 15 children, dying soon after the birth of the final child. See Scott Sowerby and Noah McCormack (eds), The Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal Hall from 1633 to 1688, CWAAS Record Series 23 (Kendal, 2021), 413, 426.
[53] See the complete inscription in N&B1, 164. William Fleming (1609-53) of Skirwith, Esq., was the father of Sir Daniel Fleming. see Sowerby and McCormack, Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming, 397, 431-32.

§15. Armes
Q. What Armes Monumental Inscriptions &c. They are to be Had in Mr Dugdalls Visitation of West. & Cumb'land 1664. att the Heralds College near St Pauls London,[54] which may save me a Labour. Patronage §20.[55]

[II.128]

{Armes} & Monuments in the church. One in painting on the wall being of Flemings with the Crist &c. & another in the East window under an Inscription in Glass: which is Fleming & Kirkby – Sc. Argent 2 bars Gules, on a Canton of the second – a Cross Moline Or. But they are in Dugdalls Visitation {or Mr Fleming Rector will send them.}[56]

[II.125]

§16. The Parsonage house
W. ab Ecclesia about 40 yards:[57] See §21. Endowment §22. Sessments §8. […] of Easter b. §7. Fam[ilyes] §6.'

Ambleside

§17. {Ambleside Market is kept in that part which is in Windermer – ad Windermer.}
At Grasmer formerly, was a sort of Commerce held amongst the Neighbourhood ~~Inhabitants~~ in the manner of a market – kept upon Mondayes (as they have now at Bowness on Fridays). But by the consent of the people ~~there~~ it was Transferd to Ambleside as the more Commodiouse place;[58] w[hi]ch Towne obteined a charter to hold one market:

die mercuri qualibet septimana, et duas ferias annuatim Quaru[m] una in die Mercurij proxim[a] post festum Penticostes, et altera ad Decimum octavum diem Octobris (per ordinem Parliamenti) et curiam Pedis pulverizati – temporibus feriarum predictarum ibidem p[ro] eisdem Tenent[ibus]. Ad usum et com[m]odum Inhabitantium. Testibus nobis ipsis etc.[59]

And King James the 2. By his Letters Pattent of July 25 Anno Domini 1688 & the 4th his Reigne, Granted to Brathwate Otway Esqs,

[II.126]

& Francis Topham Esqs and others, inhabitants of the said Town:

{Ambleside Charter by K. James 2.} N.B. See Bloms Britannia.[60]
"Quod ipsi unam mercatum die Mercurij apud villam de Ambleside sub loco vulgo vocat[o] The Stock etc. tener[ent] ac duas ferias quolibet anno ten[erent] ibidem quaru[m] unam die Mercurij Proxim[o] sequen[te] post festum penticost[es] et sup[er] crastinam istius diei. Alter[a] die Sancti Luc[ae] Evangelist[ae] (si non iste dies non nisi sit dies Domenicus) et si sit, die Lune prox[imo] sequent[e] et in Crast[ina] istius diei incipiat ac per totos illos dies duratur[a] in perpetuum : ac etiam una[m] feriam sive nundinum super quemlibet diem Mercurii in qualibet ... septimana, & a die Mercurii fest[i] Penticostes ad diem S[anc]ti Lucae Evang[elistae] & John … et profec[...] inde pro venien[...] sibi et heredibus suis percipiend[...] etc.

[54] The College of Arms.
[55] See II.127.
[56] For Dugdale's Visitation, see II.124, above. For Henry Fleming, rector after the death of John Ambrose in 1684, see II.123, above.
[57] Machell lists where similar information can be obtained, such as the parsonage house: 'See §21. Endowment 22. Sessments §8. of Easter 9. Fam[ilyes] 6.'
[58] See N&B1, 188-9.
[59] 'On a Wednesday in any week, and two fairs annually, one of them on the Wednesday next after the Feast of Pentecost, and the other on the eighteenth day of October (by decree of Parliament) and a Court of Piepowder – at the times of the aforesaid fairs in the same place on behalf of the same tenants. We ourselves being witness to the use and convenience of the Inhabitants etc.' See also the extended charter below.
[60] 'Ambleside, seated near the great lake of Winander, hath an indifferent good market for wool, yarn and provisions, on Wednesdays.' Richard Blome, Britannia, or, a Geographical Description of the Kingdom of England, Scotland and Ireland (1673), 235. There is no description of the charter.

Pro emptione et venditione omnimodum omnimodum uberiorum, pecorum, bonorum Mercionum, merchandizorum etc – et teneant et custodiant curiam Pedis Pulverizati[61] tempore respectivarum feriarum. Consensia eorum Brathwate Otway etc. – et Heredum et Assignatorum suorum in ea parte Assignan[tium] et App...and[...] una cum omnibus Libertatibus ratio… …Tolnet, Theolon, Stallag, Piccag. furium a...ciament[...] et omnibus alijs etc. – ad curiam pedis pulver[izati] pertinento.[62]

{Ambleside Tenure}
The Tenants are all Customary under the Crowne & appear (but have a distinct jury) at the Court Baron holden at Gresmer. q. if both above & beneat[h] the Stock.[63]

§18. {Rarityes}
{Paper Mill in Gressmer Parish. Ages, see §29. Tarnes 30. Eagles 31.}
There is \ in Ambleside / (a Capella ½ m N.) on the River Scandall – which divides it from Ridall, a Paper Milne for Browne paper.

[II.127]

[Parish Church and Chapelries]

§19. {Division into Chapelryes}
There are 2 chappels belonging to this church: 1. Ambleside & 2. Langdale,[64]

§20. Ambleside Chapel [Patronage]
the ~~latter~~ \ former / of which [chapels] is lately made a Parochial chapple: ~~of a noted~~ \ in 1674 by a grant from the Bishop {of Chester, who referr'd it to the 2 parsons of Grasmere & Windermere, provided they should loose nothing of their dues or Rights. It is in good Repaire, & the Towne of Ambleside \ presents, / repares the chaple & raises a stipend for the ~~minister~~ \ chaplan, / out of every Tenement proportionately. He allso increaseth his Revenu by teaching School. ~~The parsonage is worth by common estimation about 30li per Annum, &~~ the Right of Patronage is the Famaly of the Flemings of Ridal.[65]

§21. Parsonage of Gresmer.
The Parsonage house (~~for tis commonly calld~~) \ 40 yards W. ab Ecclesia / was an old stone building hard \ close / by the church in the midle of the Towne \ hamlet; / and seated upon the ~~banke~~ \ N. side / of the Raisebeck (which runns ~~by~~ \ by the church & near / the end of the house.) \ But is lately Rebuilt [61] Court of Piepowder: a summary court formerly held at fairs and markets to administer justice among itinerant dealers and others temporarily resident. Word origin: 'a wayfarer; dusty foot.' OED.

[62] 'On Wednesday in the town of Ambleside below the place commonly called the Stock, etc.; and two fairs every year, one on the Wednesday next after the Feast of Pentecost, and on the Feast of St Luke the Evangelist, Sundays excepted (if it fall on Sunday, to be held on the following Monday and on the day after), to begin on those days and be held for ever after; and also that one festival or fair may be held on any Wednesday in any second week between Pentecost and St Luke's Day for those who come, by him and his heirs etc., For the buying and selling of all kinds of produce, cattle, goods, commodities, merchandise, etc. – and let them hold and keep the court of Pie-powder at the time of the respective fairs. By agreement of these Brathwate Otway etc. – and of their heirs and assigns during the time of each fair at the house of the Steward of Mr Braithwaite, Mr Otway etc.; For the maintenance and use of the poor living in the same town of Ambleside. Without making a computation for the king.'
[63] The boundary of Windermere parish is at a place called the Stock. All below the Stock is in Windermere parish; all above the Stock is in the parish of Grasmere: see N&B1, 188.
[64] MS: '2. Langdale, & 1. Ambleside.'
[65] According to Nicolson and Burn, 'The curate, Mr Machel says, is recommended by the majority of persons paying the said salary, and approved by the rector. But Sir Daniel Fleming, who was patron of the church of Grasmere, says, the curates of this chapel have been nominated by the patrons of the advowson of Gresmere, in which parish it is seated.' N&B1, 189.

by Mr William Fleming in 1691.[66] / \ It is / at 6 mile distance from ~~Ambleside which is th~~ Hawkside in Lancashire, which is the nearest market.

§22. Indowment [income, rents]
\ Glebe 5 acres & the Church yard. /
Corne in kinde to the Rector in Gresmere, \ but for hay, prescription money; / In Ambleside ~~so much a Tenement~~ for hay & corne, money calld Field-Tithe – so much a Tenement according to their Rent ~~q. what Stipend?~~ But in Langdals, Loughrig & Ridal, Prescription \ & boon / for Hay & 1d a Stooke for every 10th Shock of Corne.
Wool & Lamb
Wool in kinde all over the parish, except Ambleside Hall & Ridal Hall, which Prescribe for all Tithes; & for Lambs a tenth Lamb.

Allow 14 succession of parsons?
Mr Wilson before the Civil wars.[67] Mr Ambrose ~~the~~ Lord of the Manner of Loic \ or Lowick / in Lancashire the present Incumbent.[68]

Mannors & Townships in this Parish

§23. Division
Townships & Mannors
sub Ecclesia. Gresmer manor; Ridal manor.
sub Capella de \ part of / Ambleside; de Landal: Magna, Parva.[69] {Home Bearthay.}
There are 4 Mannors & Townships in this Parish, Sc. Grasmere, Little Langdales, Ridall \ & Base-Browne. / And part of Ambleside – Grasmere Lordship.[70]

§24. [Parochial Manor of Grasmere]
Gresmere & Great Langdale & Loughrig Grasmere.
Grasmere \ or Grossmere – q. Great-meere – / takes its name from a great lake \ or / mere near adjoyning commonly called Grossmere from Reason of the plenty of grass which grows upon the Banks thereof [and] from it[s] comparative greatness with that other of Ridal upon the same River.[71] / {NB The King of Patterdale calls it (cum vulgo) Garsmer – i.e. Grassmere.}
This Lordship is in lenth, from[72] Elterwatter ~~to the top of it is 2 miles in bredth~~ Bridge in the W. to the top of Grasmere fells in the East (3 miles); in bredth, from Ridal Waterhead in the South to the top of the Rais in the north (2 mile); the circumference 11: see 32.[73]

[66] The rector of Grasmere, 1685-1728, was Henry Fleming (1659-1728), second son of Sir Daniel Fleming and younger brother of William Fleming. Sir Daniel was still living; he died in 1701. See Sowerby and McCormack, Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming, 428-29.
[67] Henry Wilson, rector of Grasmere (1628-39): St John's Coll., Oxford, 1623; BA 1626-27. CCED. Ousted from his cure in the first Civil War, he died penniless in 1647, having borrowed money from the family at Rydal Hall, who regarded him as their ally during Grasmere's Presbyterian ascendancy. In 1646, parliament named him 'a notorious malignant and articled agent', possibly referring to his journeys on behalf of the Flemings. See Armitt, The Church of Grasmere, 78-83; see also Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 2, 1059-70.
[68] John Ambrose (died 1684) succeeded to the manor of Lowick in 1666. He was a senior fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. See Victoria County History, County of Lancaster Vol 8 (1914), 360-62. Ambrose was also a (largely absentee) rector of Grasmere, both before and after the Restoration. See above, II.150.
[69] 'The townships and manors of Grasmere are under the care of the parish church. Ambleside and Great and Little Langdale are under the care of Ambleside chapel.'
[70] MS: 'There are 4 ~~Lordships or~~ Mannors \ & Townships / in this Parish, Sc (Grasmere \ Bais-Browne /) \ Great Langdale / Little Langdales & Ridal, \ & Base-Browne / ~~of Windermere &~~ And part of Ambleside ~~Sc the North End which belong to this {parish because part of the Mannor of Windermer of which see these~~.'
[71] As one line (c.18 words) of this sentence has been thoroughly scored-through and partly overwritten, it has been omitted from this edition.
[72] 3cm of illegible text has been crossed through here.
[73] This is not mentioned in section 32 (II.129C).

§25. {Gresmer Bounds} [Dunmail Raise]
It is bounded in the East with Patterdale, being part of Barton parish; on the west with Little Langdale; on the N. [blank].

[II.132B][74]

Dunbal Raise Stones
From Wiburne[75] in Cumberland

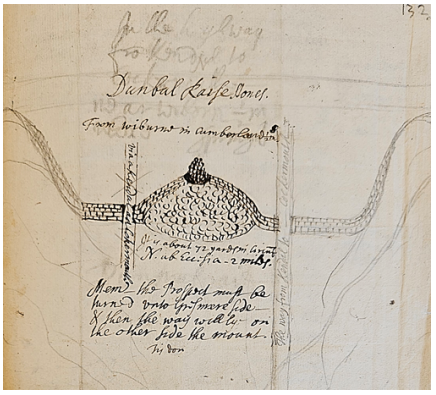

Figure 2.6.6. 'Dunbal Raise Stones'. II.132B.

In the highway from Kendal N. to Cockermouth, Dunbal Raise Stones* from Wiburn in Cumberland, ½ m. It is about 72 yards in Circumference. N. ab Ecclesia 2 miles. Memorandum – the Prospect must be turned unto Gresmere Side & then the way will lye on the other Side the Mount.[76]
Tis don.

[Machell's Notes: II.127B]
*{Q. Dumal Rase: Se a Note in Camden of Cumberland. Did Regulus[77] ibidem the[…][78] See all M.S. Cumberland per Denton.[79]

[II.132A][80]

Rex Edmundus adjutorio Leolini Regis Dernetiæ fretus Cambriam totam Cuctij omnibus spoliavit, &c. (Duobus filijs Dunmaili eiu[s]dem provinciæ Regis oculorum luie privatis) Regnum illu Malcolmo Scotorum Regi, de se tenendum concessit, ut Aquilona res Angliæ partes terra inarique ab hostium adventantium incursione tuenetur.'[81]
Might not this be the occasion of that great heap of Stones on the Confines of Westm'land & Cumb'land called Dunmale Raise Stones, at the head of Wythe-burn near Gresmere. Camden: de Cumbrianis Rasibus.[82]

[74] On M.III.156, Machell names this particular page, p.2.
[75] Wythburn.
[76] The 'prospect' refers to Machell's sketch.
[77] Regulus: 'a petty king or ruler; a sub-king.'
[78] 'Did Regulus then […]' The last word has perished.
[79] An edition of Denton's 'Cumberland' can be found in MS.VI.1.146-76.
[80] A small page: 12cm x 8cm. The reverse reads, 'ffor Mr Thomas Machell Recktor of Kirkbythure' (address part of a letter).
[81] 'King Edmund, by the helpe of Leoline Prince of South-Wales, wasted and spoiled all Cumberland, and having put out the eyes of both the sonnes of Dunmail King of the same Province, hee granted that kingdome unto Malcolme King of Scots, to be holden of him, that he might defend the North parts of England by land and sea from the inrodes and invasions of the common enemies.' See 'Cumberland' in Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1610), 787. Camden attributes the passage to Florilegus, the 'floure gatherer of Westminster', once thought to be the author of Flores Historiarum (who probably never existed). The work has been linked to Matthew Paris's Chronica Majora, and to Westminster Abbey, where it was partially written. S. Lloyd & R. Reader, 'Paris, Matthew (c.1200-1259), historian, Benedictine monk, and polymath'. ODNB.
[82] 'Of the Raises of Cumbria.'

[II.128]

§26. Gresmer School
A School erected circa Anno 1685 in the Church Yard at the N.E. corner. Builded by the Towne & Endowed by Mr Ambrose, Late Rector here, who gave 50li. And Anthony Dawson of Gresmere who gave 7li. The use[83] of which is for the maintenance of a Schoolmaster, who has also 9d per Quarter, or as they can agree, of every Scholar.

§27. Hall [Halsteads]
A place calld Ha[l]steeds ¼ m N. from the Church lately full of Borrans[84] = Now in Tenancyes divided amongst them. There is an ~~Hall~~ Hill near it call'd Butterlep-How.

§28. [Great Langdale Chapel] {Note. See also the paper on the other side marked Thus ~~I I~~.}[85]
Att Great Langdale there is \ a / Chaple ~~of ease but~~ in very good Repare, where they have prayers every Sunday & hollyday at the cost & charge of the neighbourhood in that Dale; who also ~~instruct~~ \ have their / their children instructed by Him, for which they pay him according to agreement; The Stipend for officiateing there is rais'd by proportion upon every Tenement, & is call'd by them the Priests Sal\u/d {Sallary Saled, or Salid} \ i.e. ut opinor[86] The Prieste's aide. /
q. to that monument Arms Inscription: None.[87]
§29. Gresmer ætas.[88]Miles Birket of Wrea in Gresmer (c.d.e.) buryed 50 years since, lived to 100 & 6. Old Mr Gawen Brathwate came to see him maw[89] after he was 100 – & gave him 1s for his panes. Test. Herd.[90]

§30. Tarnes
Gresmere \ Tarne / – ab Ecclesia \ halfe / ¼ S.E. an Ile in it of acker of ground. Large Pikes tench Trouts Eales.
Easdale Terne 2m. N.W. [ab Ecclesia] Bass, Trouts, Eales.
~~Currell~~ CodaleTerne, nothing but Eales – tis above Easdale Terne.
(N. Lingmer Tarne[91] in Little Langdale a Capella 1m. West, has tench in it, put in by Mr. Gawen Brathwate or Solomon Benson.)

{Rivers [and Meres]}
Rasbeck springs at Rasegil head – ab Ecclesia 2m. N.E. comes down \ almost to Dunmail Rase; thence West down the Dale & / by the S side of the Church & Parsonage runns into Gresmere Water – & about a bowshot \ below / into Ridal &c.
Gressmere is long 1m. b[road] ½ m. Ridal Water l[ong] ½; b[road] ¼ inde Gresmere.

§31. Gresmere
Eagles Build in Blea-Crag. 2m. ab Ecclesia N.W.
More of more game.[92] Q. in what Chapelry or Lordship.
Marts & wild cats – som.

---

[83] I.e. the interest from the capital.
[84] Borrans = burgæsn: tumuli or cairns: Westmorland Place-Names.
[85] See II.129B, {Great Langdale Chapelry}, below.
[86] 'As I think.'
[87] A scored-through sentence here comments, '~~Sent to Mr King at the Heralds Office, or Mr Fleming parson of Gresmire~~.'
[88] 'Period of life.' Machell aimed to research long-lived people; see 'curiosities in nature' passages, throughout.
[89] 'Maw': To cut (especially hay, also corn etc.) with a scythe; in contradistinction to cutting or sheering corn with a hook. Dictionary of the Scots Language. Online. More simply, 'maw' and 'maa' are Cumbrian dialect words for 'mow'. William Rollinson, Cumberland Dictionary of Dialect, Tradition and Folklore (Otley, 1997), 103, 106.
[90] John Herd, Machell's source. See II.154: '§89. Bounder of Westm'land', below.
[91] Lingmoor Tarn.
[92] A moor of moor-game, i.e. grouse, particularly the red grouse.

{Codded Arsmart in the Highway.[93] Rosem[ary].}
{Good Blew Slate ½ m. S.}
{Peate 1 mile. plenty; Lead in – None found; Copper at Hawhead ¼ S.E.}

[II.129]

[Paper 2]
[Bensons in Grasmere Parish]

{Fold House}
There is a place in Lough Rigg, call the Fold house (a freehold estate which has of old belonged to the Bensons.) One Francis? Benson of this Place maryed a daughter of Gilpine of Kentmer Hall, & had ~~isue~~ iiij daughters; whereof one was maryed to Judge Hutton,[94] another to Mr Brathwate of Ambleside, a Third to Davis of Winder in Barton, & the 4th cald ~~Frances~~ \ Margaret / to Michael Benson of Coat-how: Old black Michael maryed fair Margaret.
{Richard Hutton married Agnes, daughter and coheir of Thomas Briggs of Cowmire. Of the Huttons of Huton Hall, Penrith.}

Figure 2.6.7. {'Ergo this Coat, had he 2 wives – for Briggs was one of Calvmir.'}. II.129.

It now belongs (if I be not mistaken) to one Bernard Benson. And diverse Coates of Armes are there (as I am informed) which I must see: for those do not imply it the best house of the Bensons.[95]
There is Clan of this name in Gresmer parish \ This of the Fold. / Sc. Benson of the High Close; a Third at Coat-How, all in Lough-Rigg; a 4th at Elterwater; & a matter of 15 or 16 more familyes dispersed here & there about the parish: But none of any great account.
To Coat-How belongd the Tith[e] of Crosthwate, some Tenants in Lough Rig; of which High-Close & the Fold bough[t] themselves free of Thomas Benson about 40 years since (ab anno 1692). L. Benson the Informant sayes Coat how & the Fold paid a Rent & were Customary Tenants to it. {How can this [93] Codded Arsmart = impatiens noli-tangere or touch-me-not. The name refers to the explosive release of seeds from the seed pods when touched, rather than to any irritant properties of the plant. John Gerard, The Herball Or Generall Historie of Plantes (1597), 361.

[94] Possibly Sir Richard Hutton (bap.1561-1639) of Hutton Hall, Penrith. He originally studied for the Church at Jesus College, Cambridge, but was persuaded to change to law, entering Gray's Inn in June 1580. By 1592, he had become escheator of the West Riding of Yorkshire, purchasing Goldsborough manor while continuing to buy land in Cumberland and Westmorland. He accumulated honours and offices as a member of the Council of the North (1599); serjeant-at-law (1603); receiver-general and chancellor of the bishopric of Durham (1608–09); and recorder of York, Doncaster and Ripon (1608-10). His rise was assisted by powerful clients and friends, including George Clifford, third earl of Cumberland. There is a dichotomy between the official biography and Machell's assertion that 'judge Hutton' married a Benson. The biographers claim that Hutton married Agnes, daughter and co-heir of Thomas Briggs of Cowmire, in 1591, and, on sketching a coat of arms (Figure 2.6.8.), Machell, too, saw a connection to that family. See CFH, 177; see also W. Prest, 'Hutton, Sir Richard (bap.1561, d.1639), judge'. ODNB.
[95] MS: 'for those do not imply (them then the best of) \ It the best house of / the Bensons.'

be? That High Close & the Fold should be purchased free of T.B. of Coathow; and[96] yet Coathow & the fold pay a Rent and be Customary Tenants to It.}
There are Bensons (of Bensons Hall corruptly) near Kendal: on the right hand of the Road to Apalby, who are descended of the Fold house. N.B. Dorathy Benson of the High Close, has a silver seale of the same Armes as Bensons of Dodsford, which L. Benson caryed to him, which differ from those at Amb[le]side impaleing B[rathwaite].[97]

[II.129C]

§32. Soyle. Grasmire Vall.
{?} The Soyle is sufficiently fertile for hay, corn, meadow, pasture ~~& som wood~~. But hath little wood, or other fuel, there peats being plentiful but so far of[f] that poore people can hardly \ procure them. / There are 3 villages in this Lordship; Grasmore, Great Langdale & Loughrigg. Grasmere: the houses most slated, which is got upon the common.

§33. Grasmere Church
Fam[ilies] 78.
The parish church stands in Grasmere; ~~& it is al~~ where allso is[98] an high stone bridge of one single Arch \ over / the River, \ which / affords Trout ~~pike~~ & eales; & the Mere (or Lake there) are pikes allso in it.

§37. Tenure Grasmere
The Lord has Rent Fine & Heriot \ waif & stray; / & the Tenants ~~hold according to the custom of the Mannor, &~~ have one notable Custom or Priviledge –

§38. Customs of Grasmere
– That if a man marry a wife who is heire of a tenement, alltho she dye without Isue the estate shall goe to him & his heires & not to hers; which is more than Curialitas Angliæ: The Curtisye of England.
The Tenants are Admitted & pass away their Estates by which freehold & where they appear.

[II.369B]

Ad Gressmere
I heard this custom proved in Court at Appelby Aug. 29. 1690 – before Justice Dolbin.[99]
That if a Man maries an heiress in Gresmire – 1. He was thereupon admitted Tenant and might aleen[100] the Land to whom he pleased – if Land purchased by a virgi[n] afore marriage. But it did not appear that it was so wher Lands fell to a feem covert,[101] or were given to her after Mariage, as that judge observed.

[II.131]

§39. Court Baron
The Queens Stuart, or his Deputy, ~~keeps a Court Barron~~, (these lands being settled upon her in joynture) keeps a Court Baron once every year at som of the Tenants houses in Grasmere, for mannor house there is none. & all the Tenants doe Suit & Service there – But there is a Court Leet allso kept at Kendall by the Queens Stuart (every thre weeks)* for all the Crown Tenants; ~~app~~ & \ som of / these appear there ~~once in~~ 2^{c}ye[102] in the year.

[96] MS: 'any'.
[97] For the pedigree, see Part 2, Ch.7, Heversham, II.167.
[98] 4cm of crossed-through illegible text follows here.
[99] This was probably Sir William Dolben (bap.1627, d.1694), judge, knighted in 1677: S. Handley, 'Dolben, Sir William (bap.1627, d.1694), judge'. ODNB.
[100] 'Aleen' = Alien, frequently in form Aliene: to transfer or surrender ownership of (property rights); to make over to another owner. OED.
[101] 'Feme Covert': a married woman, considered as under the authority and protection of her husband, and (formerly, in English common law) as having no separate legal identity or rights to her own property; opposed to feme sole. OED.
[102] Twice.

§40. Descent
The ancient Proprietors of this Lordship (as is said) were the Duke of Richmond & Earle of Marquess (forsan Marshes), whence the 2 different foes; & that they were forfeited to the Crown. Sed de hoc Quære. {Non se Sense[runt] ergo Qu.?}[103] {See my map of England.}
The Kings Arms & pedigree I have.

[Machell's Notes: II.131]

*{Kendall. This cannot bee, for they are kept but twice.} {Sc. 2 in a Constablewick.}

{Great Langdale Chapelry}

[II.150]

§70. [Notes]
{Qu. In the Chappelry of Langdale} Qu. of the Division from Lancashire, from the head of Brathey (or Skellet beck) to the Shire Stones and thence to Dunbalraise Stones – See it in Great Langdale Chapelry.

Out of Dugdal Monasticon p.708.
Divisio Montanor[um] Furnesij – per Registro Abbatiae de Furnesio f.130
Henricus Rex Angliæ et Dux Normaniæ et Aquitaniæ et comes Andegaviæ archiepiscopis (etc) salutem. Sciatis me concessisse et carta mea confirmasse conventionem quæ facta fuit coram me, inter monachos de Furnesio, et Willielmum filium Gilberti de Montanis [de] Furnesio. Quæ talis est. Montana de Furnesio dividuntur a Kendala, his terminis, sicut iuratum est præcepto meo [iura]mento xxx hominum. Desicut descendit de wremeshales in Langdene-little; et inde in Helterwatra: et inde per Braitha in Winedermer: et inde in Levenam: et inde usq[ue] mare. etc.[104]

[II.153]

§79. Langdale Chapel

L[ength] 26 [yards] Br[eadth] 9 [yards]
Under a Cragg. Ewe trees near the west end. In pretty good r[epair]but for the floore ~~& the~~ Eagles & Ravens build very frequently in many places of this chapelry.
{Dedication} The dedication is not known.

Figure 2.6.8. Langdale Chapel. II.153.

§80. [Langdale] Bounder[105]
This Chapelry is bounded on the East, with ~~Ambleside~~ with Loughrig in this parish of Gresmer, from which tis divided by the Meere Sike; on the South \ with / Fourness fell in Hawkside in Lancashire,

[103] 'They did not agree with each other; therefore query it.'
[104] 'In the register of the Abbey of Furness f[olio] 130. Out of the "Division of Mountains" p.708 – Henry King of England and Duke of Normandy and Aquitaine and Earl of Anjou sends greetings to the archbishops (etc). Know that I have granted and by my decree have confirmed the agreement which was made in my presence between the monks of Furness and William son of Gilbert concerning Furness Fell. It is like this. Furness Fell is divided from Kendal by these boundaries, as it was sworn under my direction by the oath of 30 men. It runs down thus, from Wremeshales to Little Langdene; from there to Helterwatra; from there through Braithsa to Windermere; and from there to Levens; and from there right down to the sea. etc.' See William Dugdale, Monasticon… Vol. V. Abbeys (London, 1846 edn), 248-49.
[105] Under this word are scored-through headings, Disposition, Division, Descent, as if drawn up, then discarded.

divided by the River Colleth {? Course};[106] on the West with [Blank] in Cumberland, from which it is divided by the River Dudden; on the \ Nor West with Crosthwate in Cumb. / North with Gresmer the Mother Church from ~~the former of which~~ \ both which / it is div[id]ed as heven water deals.
{q. if Bale Brown be in this Chapelry.}

[II.129]

§34. Great Langdale
Fam[ilies] 47.
At Great Langdale there is a little Tarne with Trouts & Eales in it. So calld from the great long Dale. Som lands in it calld Gilpin Lands, the Tenements whereof belong to Miles Atkinson of the High house in Hugil in the right of Mr Brathwate his wife; & to one Thomas Benson of the High Close. Yet do Suit & Service at Gresmer Court. Great Langdale is about 2 miles from Hawkside Market.[107]
{See §53 Rasps & Bleaberryes.}
{Slate allso here.}

[II.129B][108]

{Divisions}
There are in this Chapelry, 1. The Township of Great Langdale, if it may be so calld, which is in Gresmer Lordship.[109] 2. The Manor of Little Langdale. 3. The manor of Base Brow.

[II.129C][110]

[Bounder]
On the North with the Fells twixt Westmerlnd & Cumberland; & on the South with Ridal, from which tis divided by [Blank]

[II.129B]

{Great Landale Chap[el] Endowment}
~~H~~[111] This chapel hath belonging to it an House a Capella about 20 yards being the next but one: & ½ an Acre of Meadow. S.E. a Capella about 30 yards of adjoyneing the Highway. – Allso 5^{li} & a Marke old Sallary & more, which has been formerly Sest* of Bordering People in Lancashire & elsewhere. Which is Charged upon their Several Tenements according as the Seates which are allotted thereto; as they are higher or lower in the Chapl. The highest being 2s a Seate – Their wives Seates Being free in at it. & a Schoole taught by Him at 6^{d} near the Chapelry; & forreigners as they can agree.

Machell's Notes: II.129B
*It is disposed of by Sir Daniel Flemming & the In[habitants] the parsons approveing.[112]

[II.129C]

§35. [Loughrigg Tarn]
{A mile to Langdale chapel; 1 mile ½ from [Grasmere] church; 3 miles from Hawk[side].}
And at Lough-rig a great one of a mile in Circumference which they fish with botes & take great store of Pikes & Eals \ & Trouts. This Tarne, which the Scotch cal a Lough, on which the Towne stands, gives name to the place. \ There is a great ridge of a fell from this lough called Lough Rig. / There are slates got on the hight over against Ridal in the comon belonging to this place. This Lordship being Crown land, & ~~ergo held of none. But~~ it is said to have escheated to the King; and is a mixt foe.

§36. [Lordship]
For there \ are / som Tenants in Grasmere hold (according to the Custome of the mannor) of Richmond foe, & som (according to the Custom of the mannor) of Marquess foe; yet appear but at one and the same court \ Sc Grosmer / & likewise at Great Langdale, & (Quaere de) Lough-rig.

---

[106] River Colwith (1722), Collath (1800), Callah, also Colwith Bridge (1794). See Westmorland Place-Names.
[107] Hawkshead.
[108] Reverse of II.129A, bound into the volume by modern paper tape.
[109] MS: 'There are in this ~~Lordship~~ \ Chapelry/ ~~the manor of~~ \ (the ~~Lordship~~ Township of) / Great Langdale if it may be so calld \ which is in Gresmer Lordship.
[110] The left-hand-margin text on this page is illegible; the rest is caught in the binding.
[111] A continuation symbol; see §28 on II.128, above.
[112] MS: 'appro~~bation~~\veing. /' The word, 'Sest', is probable here, despite being blotted and unclear; the meaning of 'ses' or 'sess' is, 'to assess or determine officially the amount of (a tax, contribution, wages, or prices)'. OED.

[II.129A]

The Tenants of Great Langdale where the said chapel stands, appear at the Queens Court baron in Gresmerr. And there are no freehold lands (yet q. of the Haa Steads & Chaple in Litle Langdale which I remember are now purchased free) But som of ([…] ? vix)[113] Leonard Bensons of Elter-water which is in Base-Browne.

[II.129][114]

Lough-Rigg is an Hamlet of it selfe, opposite to Ridall on the other side of the River [Blank] which being conjoined with a wooden-bridge make as it were one entire village; yet are in 2 mannors, & (q. of) chapelryes.

[II.131]

The Lordship of Bais-Brown in Great Langdale Chapelry[115]

§41. Bais-Brown

Bais-brown is a little Lordship laying betwene Little & Great Langdale, conteining in Lenth from [Blank} in the [Blank] to [Blank] And is bounded on the \ N. & / East with Great Langdale in the Lordship of Grasmere; on the North with Great Langdale; on the West with Little Langdale; [116] q. how separated. On the South with Lough-rig, from which it is separated by [blank]?

[Minerals]

{Fierstone at Rusbriggs amongst the blew Slate
At Wranose a Capella 3m. W. – Iron ore plenty; & 2 miles thence S. at a place cald Greenburne in Lancashire, Copper[117] plenty.}

§42. Bais-Brown

{¾ m \ West / from Langdale Chap.; 3 \ West / [from the] Church; 4 ½ N. to Hawk.}
It containes nothing in it, but ~~the Hamlet~~ Baise Brown, which is rather an Hamlet than village (for they count none villages but such as are a Constablewic of themselves) \ the houses lyen dispersed. It is a Clay-ground & consists mostly of meadow & pasture.

§43. Village

There is nothing but a forge remarkable in it, and \ yet / the Lordship neither affords Iron nor Coale; the 1[t] being fetched out of Cumberland, & the latter from Lancashire.
{Blea Tarn – Tench, put in at first by old Gawen Brathwate.}

§44. Descent. See §46.

It is held of [Blank] and payes quit rent. It ~~descent~~ descended to Miles Atkinson by Dorathy his wife, daughter of Robert, yongest son of Gawen Brat\h/waite Brother of A[m]bleside, who gave it to him.

[II.132]

§45. Tenure of Baise-Brown

The Tenants are Customary (at a Fine Certane) at Doubl the Rent: & it is in dispute whether Heriotable or not. The ~~manner~~ house is \ calld / Baise Browne – an Ordinary House & has a Demane made out of several parcels[118] belonging unto it. ~~which to~~ \ The Tenements / formerly in the Bensons

§46. Descent

& sold by John Benson to Thomas Brathwate about 100 years agoe; in which name they continued till they came into the Hands of Miles Atkinson by his marriage with Dorathy the daughter & heir of [113] Transcribed as seen; there is an unclear word before the question mark; 'vix' is a Latin adverb which can mean 'scarcely' or 'with effort'.

[114] Scrap page measuring 19cm x 13cm. Added to on several occasions in various shades of ink.
[115] Baysbrown: also known as Basebrun; Basebrown(e); Bays(e)browne; Baisbrowne. See Westmorland Place-Names.
[116] MS: 'on the North with Great Langdale ~~allso q? How or with what separated~~ on the West with Little Langdale.'
[117] MS: 'cope'.
[118] This word is obscured by the binding.

Robert Brathwate of High house in Hugill – brother & heire of Thomas, son & heire of Gawan, son of Thomas Brathwate of Ambleside, the Purchaser.

§47. [Tenements] Baise Browne house – see §49.
As for the House; it was made out of several Tenements. Purchased of Tenants by Mr Gawen Brathwate, & so made up into a Demane which came to Miles Atkinson, as the Tenements aforesaid. {There are Tenements in Great Landall ~~afor~~ cald Gilpine Lands, the tenants of which are the said Atkinsons & Thomas Bensons of High Close & doe Suit at Grosmer.}[119]

§48. Elterwater House
There is no other freehold but Elterwater House (vulgo Hall) which was made of Tenements united together & after purchased into freehold, doing Suit of Court onely & paying 20s Rent \ now / to Miles Atkinson of Baseburne It was sold by [Blank] Benson to [Blank] Benson the now owner of it. This perhaps being in Baise browne Lordship, may give name to the place where the Tenants live – which is called Elterwater in the Easter Booke, where there are 9 familyes. I thinke they are in the Chapelry of Langdale for Mr Benson of Elterwater Hall went with me thither and was one of those that gave Informacion. q. tamen.[120] Yes. It is soe.[121]

[II.133]

§49. Baise Brown House
The Cheife house {? What the name it?} stands on an hill side with a medow before \ it, / down the midle of which runs a little-brooke which upon a great Rane over flows the meado\w/ & makes it very fertile. The house is on the west side the ~~meadow~~ River, which springs ~~an~~ \ near / Langdale Steäke {a stone set up for a way marke} & runs down hence into Elterwater Tern, being the chiefe head of it from which it is fed. \ & / Thence it descends into Breathey att \ a / little distance. The House is from Langdale Chaple 1m.; from the parish-church 3; from Hawkside market 4.

§50. The descent of Baise-Brow
It was formerly the Seat of the Bensons, and sold to Gawen Brathwaite of Ambleside Esq. about 30 years agoe; & ~~is~~ now belongs to Robert Brathwate of High-house in Hugil in the parish of Kendal, who was a younger son of Gawen. – (whose mary d[aughter] = a country fellow.)[122] There Armes & Pedigre I have.
{Marts & Wild cats all over}

{[Notes on the] Freehold}
It hath considerable free hold. There but so many freehold, the other tenants. The[y] are admitted by [blank] & pass their estates by [blank]. The tenants ~~pay~~ \ are lyable to / Rent, Fine Certane ~~& Heriots~~; \ in dispute / ~~except such as have bought themselfes free, onely paying a Rent. I thinke there are scarce so many Tenants as to make up a Jewry so that no Courts \ Baron / are kept there~~. {There need not be many to a Court Baron. See Kitchen of Keeping Courts.}[123]

The Manner of Little Langdale

§51. [Manner]
The Manner of Little Langdale {in the same chapelry now}[124] \ The Chapel demolished. To which perhaps som part of Furness.[125] / It takes its name from a little dale which extends it selfe along from [119] They attend the manor court at Grasmere.

[120] 'But query.'
[121] At the foot of the page is a small piece of paper, pasted onto the page, comprising faded pencilled notes.
[122] Whose daughter married a country fellow.
[123] John Kitchin, Le Courte Leete et Courte Baron & Hundred Courte &c., Collect by John Kitchin de Grais Inne, an apprentice in Ley (London, 1592 & later editions).
[124] In the same chapelry as Great Langdale, Baysbrown and Elterwater.
[125] Perhaps once attended by people from some part of Furness.

north to south, & is ~~litt~~ calld little in oposition to great Langdale – \ alias Mickle Dale[126] / of which we spoke in the \ 2 / Grosmere ~~parish~~ Lordship. It conteines in lenth from the Bridge below the Mill which is near ~~the forge~~ Baisbrowne forge \ to the fell foote from S. to north. 1 mile and ½. / & in bredth from one fell top to the other E. to West 1 ~~of a~~ mile.[127] ~~The whole circumference~~

[Chaplemire]
There is a place calld Chaplemire in Little Langdale chapelry {1½ m. a Capella S.W.} where tis said a chaple did stand, which was removed and adjoyned to that of Great Langdale,[128] & the sallary Annext. & a Place near it called Hall Steads being a Close, ~~now~~ in Tenancy, now purch[ased] f[ree].

[Little Langdale Notes]
{They have Waif & Stray}
{Eagles & Ravens build all over the chapelry.}
{Iron ore at Wranose – a Capella 4m. N.E.}

[II.134]

§52. [Breathey Head] Breathy[129] springs in 2 sever[a]l-heads.
At Wrynose Top in Little Langdale – thence E. by the Iron Forge calld Hacket. & Colloth[130] mill (for cloth) till it meets the other head in Elterwater Tarne {q. Ealtern Water} which springs in the head of Great Langdale alias MickleDale – & thence runns E. on the S. side the Chaple – to the said Terne: Thence E. on the N. side of Brathay.[131]

§53. Rasp[berries] – Bleaberryes in Great Langdale
Ewes[132] ~~saverin~~; Juniper – Rose-mary – Lawrel & Bayes \ Box / in Gardines

§54. §55. [Wraynose & Hardknot]
Wraynose, from the crookedness of the way which leads from little Langdale up into Cumberland by the Shire Stones & so \ directly / up Hard-knot. ~~&~~ They are each of mile high. There is Reine & Storme there when none att all in the lower part of the country. On Wrynose there ~~are~~ \ is a / little pieces of wall built in manner of a T., hard by the High way, which hath bin about 2 yard high; but are \ now / not above 1 & ½ {4 yards in a Branch} a little beyond the Shire Stones but in Cumberland. There are allso of the like form in the High way over the mountains which leads from the high end of Ambleside into Patterdale ~~& so to Penrith in Cumberland~~ so to Bo\a/rdal & so to Barton Kirke & so to Penrith in Cumberland, which they call Cammerton builds, ~~being~~ from one Cammerton of I suppose, either the Builder or Contriver of them\ or build them. / There use is to defend & Shield from the great Stormes of raine winde & snow on those lofty mountains; which they will secure on one side or other wherever the winde sit*.
The mountains are so hye that this Rithme is commonly spoke of them.

God Bless us & Saine[133] us ~~from~~
From Hart-knot & Warynose
And they faw down theil main[134] us.

[126] Mickleden ('large valley') is at the very head of the Langdale Valley beyond Dungeon Ghyll, just below the Pike o' Stickle axe factory location. It is in the chapelry of Langdale and parish of Grasmere. Westmorland Place-Names.
[127] The distance appears to have been originally written as ¼ mile, but then altered to 1 mile.
[128] Its duties and congregation were then adjoined to Great Langdale chapel.
[129] River Brathay.
[130] Colwith.
[131] 'North' is blotted.
[132] Yew trees.
[133] 'Sain': to make the sign of the cross on a thing or person as a consecration or blessing; or for the purpose of exorcising a demon, warding off the evil influences of witches, poison and so on. OED.
[134] 'And if they fall down they'll main us.' 'Main': to maim or mutilate, Dictionary of the Scots Language. Online.

Hardknot, so to Eskdale, so to Raven Glass att the Sea Side.

[Machell's Notes: II.134]
*{They are but sheep builds or Shields or perhaps for Travailers.}[135] {Ashe.}

[II.135]

§56. Bounder of Lile L[angdale] Lordship
It is bounded on the East with ~~the Lordship of~~ Great Langdale, from which tis divided with the Ridge of the fell which lyes betwixt them commonly calld [Blank]; On the West with Furness Fell, part of which (with som by houses) are in this Lordship \ ~~commonly calld Tilburts Thwaite~~ / for it reacheth as far as the Top of Wranose or Wranose-hight, one of the highest mountains ~~&~~ \ in / Westm'land: where are 3 long stones pitch'd up at about a yard distance & a spring ~~in the midle of~~ \ near /them which are calld the Shire Stones; being the place where thre countyes meet, Sc. Westm'land Cumberland & Lancashire.

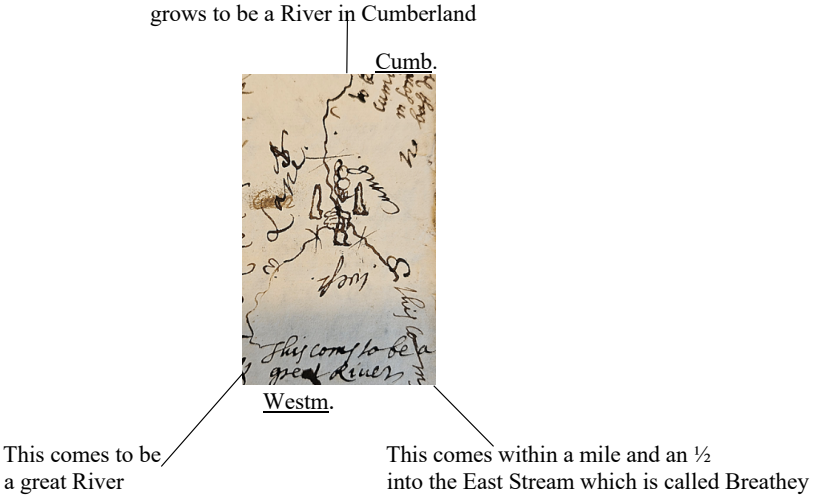

Figure 2.6.9. The three Shire Stones and the rising of rivers. II.135.

& the spring sends forth thre veines, which are partitions to the 3 countyes, 2 of which make 2 considerable Rivers, Sc. E. & N.W. 1. called Brathy, 2. calld Dudden [which] grows to be a River in Cumberland, which in summer time you may cross dry shod.[136] In winter in great sto[r]ms & showers it tears down Rock & Crags as big as horses, to the great amaisment & terrour of the Beholders.[137] This coms to be a great River, while this coms within a mile and a ½ into the East stream which is called Breathey.[138] {Alter this to bring it in at the last.}
On the North, it[139] is bounded with part of Wraynose, being divided from Cumberland by the Ridge of the mountaine; On the South its bounded with Lough-rig & part of Lancashire, from both which it is ~~parted~~ \ divided / with the River Breathey.

§57. Soyle of Little Langdale
It is no very good soyle, yett hath som good meadow in it, with som pasture & arable but in little parcels more like gardens then fields; & very little or no wood in the Lordship. Yett they are so careful of keeping their corne & hay dry while it is in the Shock or Cock,[140] that they bring out all their bedclose & through over them upon the approach of a Shower of Raine: & bring it in without [135] 'Bield': a refuge or place of shelter. OED.

[136] The last few words have perished at the page edge.
[137] Written at the page top; it appears there upside down.
[138] Adapted from the information Machell provided on his map. See Figure 2.6.10.
[139] Little Langdale.
[140] Stook of corn. At this point Machell has written, {'This must be out'}, in the margin.

helpe of Horse, in Burthens upon their Backs. \ More Scotorum, venter Magistri Artium ingenij quibus Largîtor.[141] /

[II.150A]

(57) If Ridal be not in this Chapelry?[142]

[II.135]

§58.[143]
It has no villages in it, being onely a Dale, excepting onely that there are 2 or 3 houses out of the dale called Tilburth-Thwait \ in Lancashire / as was said before, on Furness Fells, which doe Suite & Service at the Court of Langdale; & they are 2[144] mile distant from Great Langdale Chaple, 4 from the parish church & 4 from Hawkside Market. {They are in another parish, Sc. in Lancashire: q. what parish church: Ulv[er]ston, Hawkside or Conished;[145] & what Lordship.}

[II.136][146]

[Notes]
? q. of a place in Westmorland called Cawsa[147] – Jo. Philipsons[148] and what he is to the other familyes. {Brathwate} – from Breathay-Thwaite forsan som better so called – by the River Breathey. Or Brea Thwate from the Banke of the River called a Brea.[149]
Rydale – from Rotheydale. – Rotheey: bestow.[150]

[II.137][151]

§59. Tenure of the Langdales [152]
Of whom it is held? \ by / Knt Rent.[153]
The Lord hath Fines Arbitrary, Heriots Rents Waifs & Strayes,
\ There are [blank] freeholds which appear in it & the other / Tenements[154] hold by Custom of the Manner, their Estates descending from Ancestor to the Heir Generall. & doe Suit & service at the ~~Manner House~~ best house in the manner calld Fell-foote in Langdale, \ which is / the same distance from Ch. & M. There is no demaine now nor manner house.
{? How doe they admit to estates & pass the M. away}

§60. Lands of Little Langdale
The Lordship. It belongs to the family of the Penningtons of Moncaster in Cumb'land; and is thought to have don of old – Sir William Pennington is the present proprietor about ~~20~~ \ 22 / years of aige; & ~~lately~~ made Baronet since he came to his estate. {The most part are purchased free about 7 years (ab 1692) of Sir William Pennington who has sold the Rest, being Customary Tenent to Jo. Philipson Proprietor of Cawsa in Windermer parish ~~whose Armes & pedigree you have before~~}.[155]
N.B. Q. whether I have his Armes & pedigree or whether it be in Dugdal. Dugdal has Pen[nington] of Seaton.[156]

---

[141] 'In the manner of the Scots, for whom the stomach is "Master of the Arts", a bestower of ingenuity.' [I.e. Necessity is the mother of invention.]
[142] Here Machell refers back to §57.
[143] Text written beside this numeral is largely obscured by the binding.
[144] Overwritten and difficult to read. Machell first wrote ½, then turned the '1' into '0' to make 0/2.
[145] Conishead is a chapelry of Ulverston.
[146] This (otherwise conventional) page has information on Braithwaite and Rydal written on a small scrap of paper pasted onto it.
[147] Machell thought this place to be in Windermere: see II.123, II.137.
[148] See §60, below.
[149] 'Brea': a hill or hillside; the high ground adjoining a river bank, Dictionary of the Scots Language. Online.
[150] Rothay's probable meaning is 'Trout river', from Old Norse, 'rauđi': 'the red one', which was used as an appellative for the trout. See Smith, Place-Names 1, 12. For Machell's understanding of this, see below, II.138.
[151] Most of the left-hand margin of this page is obscured by the binding. Visible words have been transcribed.
[152] Here, in the margin, there is a folio number: {f[olio]25}.
[153] Free rent by knight's service: scutage (see the English Glossary). Sergeanty/serjeanty: a form of feudal tenure dependent upon rendering a personal service to the king. OED.
[154] MS: 'in it & the other / The Tenements'.
[155] William Pennington (c.1655-1730) was created baronet in 1676; he was High Sheriff in 1685, see CFH, 258.
[156] For Pennington of Seaton, see CFH, 258-59.

Of the manner of Ridall

§61. Ridall
The Manner takes its name from Rydale or may be \ from / Wry-dale because the Parke & Demaine lands wry[157] or Tur[n]e them ~~them~~selves in betwixt 2 \ mountaines / fells.
{Vallis in curvato forsan,[158] if it should not rather be Ridell and so called from a family of that name which came in with the Conquest. See Batle Abbey.}[159] {Ergo the Roll is suspicious.}[160]
{q. if it be ever writ Wridale in Evidences or Roathadale from the River which [was a] common way of naming places.} It conteines in Lenth (from the little Stone bridge att Ambleside field head, \ South / to Grasmere from Ridale Water on the west, to the Ridge of Ridal Fell East – 1 mile & ½. In circumference [Blank].

§62. Bounds
It is bounded on the East with the Lordship of Hartsop, from which tis divided by the Ridge of ~~Patterdale~~ \ Kirkstone Fell; / on the West with Loughrig ~~Lands~~ from which tis divided by the River ~~Ridal~~ Roathey; on the North with Grosmere, from which tis divided {?} by a ~~wall on the~~ streight line from Stean Stone to the old wall & to the Scar Top; & on the South with ~~the Lands of~~ Ambleside \ fields / from which tis divided by ~~the~~ Scander beck {?}
It is generally good Land, both Arable & meadow & pasture, and very well wooded ~~both~~ with Timber & underwood {oak; Ash &c.} especially ~~up~~ the Demaine Lands.
{See}Armes &c. Hujus §5 & 9.[161] In the Study Parlour Hall.

[II.138]

[Notes]
In a peat moss upon Lough-rigg Fell was once found a crude canoe made of a hollowed trunk of a Tree.
{Rothey-dale Correpte Roydale, & Corrupte, Ridale.}

Memorandum.
In Ro~~a~~they (which runs by Ridal being cald Ridal [beck] there & receives that name afterwards) and in Breathey, there is this Remark~~e~~able – That where \ they / run both (~~almost~~) together into the head of Windermer Water, in that Lordship, 2 several sorts of fish come out of that lake and follows the several streames. Sc. Troutes & Rase (or Case) a fish like a char \ sort of char / so that for several miles you shal finde none but Case in Breathy, & none but Trouts in ~~the other~~ Rothey, the Reason of I shall impute in the margent to Nature of the fish & currents of the water – for the Trout loves a streame, the char a calme; & therefore Brathey being a calme water, abounds with the charrs; & Rothey being fierce, abounds with Troutes – And Sir Daniel Fleming have a Lock on either River [which] abounds with them both.

[Rydal]

[II.139]

§63. Description villæ
{Fam[ilies] 14} There are noe villages ~~But~~ \ save the Hamlet / Ridall onely;\ tis only one / in this Lordship. {~~at vill~~} But on the other side the water, as if it were one Town, is Lough-Rig which wee spoke of before, & they 2 make 1 Constablewick.
The houses in Ridall are all of stone. And there is a wood bridge over the River betwixt it and Loughrigg, & a stone bridge by Ridall hall over a little brooke, being the High way to Ambleside [157] 'Wry': to wend or to swerve and turn aside. OED.

[158] 'It perhaps means, the curved valley'.
[159] The Battle Abbey Roll is a commemorative list of the companions of William I, once held in Battle Abbey, Hastings. It is known from 16th-century copies in Leland and Holinshed, but neither list is regarded as accurate. Camden and Dugdale suggested that names were added by the monks. See Catherine Lucy Wilhelmina Powlett, Duchess of Cleveland, History of Battle Abbey (London, 1877), 325-28.
[160] See Machell's Paper on the Ridells (II.140), for another version of this sentence.
[161] 'Of this, see sections 5 and 9.'

where the Hall appears well.[162] There are quarryes of slate att White-Moss near unto the Town; by reason of which convenience most of their houses are slated. ~~There are none but the~~ \ There is nothing of Note / but the Mannor House of which anon. All the Demaine Grounds are very well wooded with Oake, Ash & plenty of ~~and allso with~~ underwood.
It is held of [blank].

§64. Tenure
The Lord has Rent \ fine Certaine or Arbitrary? / heriot, waifs & stray {?} with Service & Boons from his Tenants. And there are [blank] freehold. And the Tenants hold by the Custom of the Manner. ~~Appearing at the Lords Court Baron~~ {The rest hold by [blank].}

§65. [Old Hall; Manor House]
\ There is a place called the Old Hall, ab aula[163] ¼ S. & from the Chap[el] 3m, on the right hand to Ambleside by the High way whence Sir Dan[iel] lead stone to build a barn. /

The Manner house is called Ridall hal.
{3m. from the church; 1m.¼ to Ambleside Chapel; 4m. from Hawkside.}
\ The hall is a good old house / ~~Stone building~~ (3 storyes high) \ said to be built at 9 times; more of convenience than usually; / situate upon the side of ~~a little hill or~~ Banke, so that you ascend from the highway (which lyes west of it \ windeing up by degrees / ~~up~~ to the house; on the east side ~~of which~~ is a little brooke with a stone bridge over it, which turns a corne mill belonging ~~to the Hall~~ \ adjoyneing to the Gardene. / And the other River \ Rothy / runns by the hyway on the west side the house at about the distance of 2^{ce} 12 score [yards];[164] on which there is store of Pike Eal Trout & Pearch, which are \ taken / with a waterlock made over the River. In the other are Troutes and Eals only ~~but no pikes att all~~.

[II.149][165]

There \ are / fine ~~Gardens &~~ Walks about the house & tis well fence'd with trees planted on every side {most of which are Black Cherrys which Sir Daniel Fleming has ~~reard~~ in his Time reared from stones.} There are large trees of Lawrell almost as high as the Hall – A Row of Scotch Firrs in the walk next the House – maden hair great store upon the walls there. Coded Arsmart in the Hole next the Bog House – Peaches growing upon Standards not plashed[166] – a Grotto in the orchard with a Catadupe}[167]
There are 2 parkes, called the High & Low Parke. The High Parke is distant about ½ a mile \ N.E. / & is very well wooded with timber trees Ash &c.

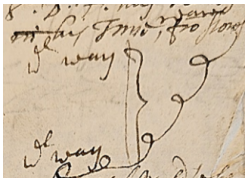

Figure 2.6.10. {'Which Way - Which way'}. II.149.

[162] MS: '~~Ridal is a pretty populous place & theire houses~~ \ The houses in Ridall are / all of stone: And there is a ~~stone~~ \ wood / bridge over the River betwixt it and Loughrigg: & a stone bridge by Ridall hall over a little brooke ~~calld~~ ~~which turns a \ corn / mill belonging to the Hall~~…'
[163] '… from the hall'.
[164] 480 = twice twelve score.
[165] Much margin comment on II.149 is obscured by the binding; it has not been transcribed.
[166] 'Plashed': bent down and interwoven (stems partly cut through) so as to form a hedge or fence. Cf: pleach. OED. Machell preferred to see the peach trees grown as standards.
[167] 'Catadupe': a cataract or waterfall. OED. Machell was referring to Rydal Hall's grotto, the subject of one of Wordsworth's poems. '…Then, while I wandered where the huddling rill / Brightens with water-breaks the hollow ghyll /As by enchantment, an obscure retreat / Opened at once, and stayed my devious feet'. See William Wordsworth, 'An Evening Walk', in Poems in 2 Volumes, Vol. 1 (London, 1815).

{Which way – Which way}[168]
The Low Parke is distant about a mile \ S. / & the Lower part of it is good arable medow & pasture, ~~but~~ \ & / the higher clad with great Oakes and other wood; But there are no Dear in either of them. There is one Demain of which the parkes are parcel.
{I was pleased to see The Hall Richly hung; with 18 or 20 fox skins stufed – an argument of a Good Common Welths man and a great Pa[t]riot.}[169]

[II.139]

The Hall though placed amongst rocky mountains on the right hand & left, yet hath a most pleasant & delightfull aspect towards the S.S.E. of the Gardine, meadowes, woods & \ Windermere / water for 6 or 8 miles with Scotch firs, squirrels, Codded Arsmart (a yallow flore) & rill of water running fiercely through the Gardine & Bog house & driving a mill.

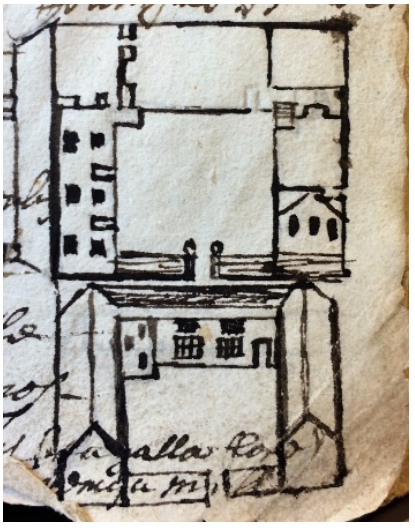

Figure 2.6.11. Rydal Hall. II.133.

[II.149]

§66.[170]
No freeholds but the Lord. \ But there are som Customary Tenants from Grasmere & Loughrigg who appear at the Court. / The present Proprietor is Daniel Fleming Esqs {Now Sir Daniel Anno Domini 1692. Their ancient estate is in Lancashire}, who came to the estate upon defect of the male of [Blank] Fleming who \ as may be seen by the following pedigree / had 1 Son that dyed unmarryed &

[168] See Figure 2.6.11. Machell was possibly unsure of the geography of these two parks.
[169] Fox-hunting became popular during this period, possibly because hunters had made virtually every other huntable species extinct, but arguably because foxes were genuinely regarded as pests. James II was a keen fox huntsman, both in England and in exile, see W. Speck, 'James II and VII (1633-1701), king of England, Scotland, and Ireland'. ODNB. Machell complained several times in these texts that there were far too many foxes in Westmorland. Of Patterdale, he wrote, 'Badgers and Foxes more than enough, al these Creatures being fatall enemyes to their Ews and Lambs' [Part 1, Ch.5, Barton, I.708]. According to the OED, a 'Commonwealth's Man' at that period could be described as, 'a man who is devoted to the interests of a commonwealth: a patriot [a term now] obsolete'. OED. The apparent meaning of Machell's remark, then, is that Daniel Fleming killed foxes for the common good. But the phrase, 'Commonwealth Man', had deeply political meanings. In the 17th century it referred to a follower of Cromwell; in the late 17th and 18th centuries a 'good commonwealth man' was a Whig radical retaining the political objectives of Cromwell's Commonwealth, predictably derided by Tories. Thus, Dryden in 1681, 'Never was patriot yet, but was a fool', and Johnson's, 'Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel'. As a High Tory, did Machell quietly deplore Fleming's role with Sir John Lowther in bringing down James II, leading to this wry comment; or, as a great admirer of the gentry, and of Daniel Fleming in particular, are his observations simply to be taken at face value? My thanks to Professor Emeritus Michael Mullett, the instigator of this debate.
[170] Text within the margin is obscured by the binding here.

2 daughters – One maryed to Sir Jordane Crosland of [Blank] in Northumberland; The other to Mr Collinwood &c. – There ped[igree] Arms &c. I have. See hujus §5.9.[171]
There is allso in this ~~Lordship~~ \ parish / part of Ambleside, Sc. the North End of it: But that being in the Lordship of Windermere I shall refer it to thither as its proper place \ It is treated of there / beside those in Windermere Parish below the Stock.

[Machell's Notes: II.149]

Qu. whether Brathwates House be in Windermer or Gresmer.
Memorandum – That Brathwate is a numerous name in Furness fells, \ near adjoyneing /most of the familiyes being of that Sirname; but none has arrived to the Reputation & degree Gentlemen except those of this House. Whence – The Bra-

[II.140]

[Paper 3.]

{ Descent of Ridall}
This Lordship & Mannor House (now removed)[172] may seem to have formerly belongd to the Ridals; and to have given name to that Ancient Family; which is said to com in with the Conqueror (in Battle Abby) And of which name I finde one Stephen Ridel, Chancellor to Earle John, who was brother of King Richard 2. (Hollinshed, p.130. Col. 2).[173] But whether \ & how / he was related to this place & family I may \ dare / not determine. {But he could not com in by that name; which render the Roll[174] \ not / a little suspicious} See something of the Flemings & Harringtons in Camden: of Lancashire, p.682.[175]

[II.143][176]

[Letter to Thomas Machell from Daniel Fleming]

For the Reverend & his much honoured friend Mr Thomas Machell, Rector of Kirkbythore, these at Kirky-Thore.

[II.145][177]

Rydal, Feb. 9. 93/94
Sir
Having often occasion to consult Dugdale's Baronage of England, I hope you'l be pleased to return mine hither as soon, & as safely, as you can. I am glad to know that you, Mr Arch-deacon[178] and Mr Todd[179] are concerned for Westmorland, Northumberland & Cumberland in the new edition of Mr Camden's Britannia;[180] not doubting but that those three counties will be very well done. I long to hear of that book being published. I have here sent you a copy of a pedigree, which I omitted to deliver unto you at your being in this country, and which is more correct than that which was more [171] For the Fleming pedigree, see II.141-42. 5:9 refers to arms at Rydal Hall: see II.124.

[172] Removed to its present site.
[173] A crossed-through margin note on MS.II.139 gives identical information. John Holland, first earl of Huntingdon and duke of Exeter (c.1352-1400) was the second son of Thomas Holland, earl of Kent (c. 1315-1360), and Joan (d. 1385), daughter of Edmund of Woodstock, earl of Kent. John was half-brother of Richard II, son of Joan and Edward, the Black Prince, whom Joan married in 1361 after the death of Thomas Holland. M. Stansfield, 'Holland, John, first earl of Huntingdon and duke of Exeter (c. 1352-1400)'. ODNB.
[174] Roll of Battle Abbey, see above: II.137, §59.
[175] See Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 755D: 'More Eastward standeth Aldingham, an ancient hereditament belonging to the family of Haveringtons, or Harringtons, unto whom it came from the Flemmings, by the Cancefields; and whose inheritance descended by a daughter unto William Bonvill of Somersetshire; and at last by him unto the Greies, Marquesses of Dorset.'
[176] Letter address-sheet, 15cm x 19cm.
[177] II.145 comprises a letter from Sir Daniel Fleming, referring to his family pedigree, for which see II.141-42.
[178] William Nicolson, future bishop of Carlisle.
[179] Rev. Dr Hugh Todd, canon of Carlisle cathedral (4th canonry), 1685-1728. See David W.V. Weston, Carlisle Cathedral History (Carlisle, 2000), 146.
[180] The editor was Edmund Gibson (1669-1748) born in Bampton, graduate of Queen's College, Oxford, antiquary, bishop of Lincoln (1716), bishop of London (1723). Gibson's edition of Camden's Britannia was published in 1695: see D.J.W. Mawson, 'Dr Hugh Todd's account of the Diocese of Carlisle', CW2, 88 (1988), 207-24, at 220 fn.4.

hastily taken here by Sir William Dugdale. I wish we had any thing in these parts that would invite you to cross our mountains, your company being very acceptable unto
Sir
Your most faithful servant
Dan: Fleming.

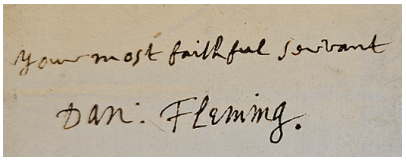

Figure 2.6.12. Daniel Fleming's Signature. II.145.

[II.141-142][181]

The Pedigree of the Flemings of Rydal Hall in Westmerland

Sir Michael le Fleming, Knight {he lived at the time of the Conquest &c.} being related unto Baldwine the 5 Earl of Flanders was sent into England with some forces to assist William the Conqueror the said Earl's son in law. This Michael had given him by King William, the Castle of Gleaston and Caernarvon, with the Lordships and Manors of Aldingham, Bec\k/ermet &c. in the Counties of Lancaster and Cumberland. He married [Blank] the daughter of [Blank] and had isue

{Henry 2 &c.} Sir William le Fleming, Knight, Owner of Gleaston Castle Aldingham Mitchel Land &c. in Lancashire who married [Blank] and had issue	Sir Richard le Fleming Knight, his 2nd son, who had Caernarvon Castle Beckermet &c. in Cumberland and Lancashire who married [Blank] and had issue	Daniel le Fleming Anselm de Furness Jordan de Furness Godith le Fleming
{Henry 3} Sir Michael le Fleming Knight who died without issue	Alice le Fleming married to Richard de Cancefield who became heir to her brother	Sir John le Fleming Knight, who married [Blank] daughter of [Blank] and had issue
		Sir Richard le Fleming Knight, who married Elizabeth daughter of Adam de Urswick and heir to Adam and Jo. Her brethren, by whom he had the manor of Coniston &c. in Lancashire, and by her he had issue
{Edward 1}		John le Fleming who married [Blank] and had issue
{Edward 1 &c.}		Raynerus le Fleming who married [Blank] the daughter of [Blank] and had Issue	Hugh le Fleming his second son who had issue Mary, married to Ralph de Frisington in Cumberland
{Edward 2}		Sir John le Fleming Knight, who married [Blank] daughter of [Blank] and had issue
{Edward 3}	William le Fleming who died without issue	Sir John le Fleming Knight his second son who married [Blank] daughter of [Blank] and had issue	Joan le Fleming married to Jo. Le Towers of Lowick in Lancashire
{Edward 3 &c}		Sir Richard le Fleming Knight married Catherine	Robert le Fleming his 2nd son

[181] Pages written in a hand which appears to be that of Sir Daniel Fleming.

		daughter of Sir John de Kirkby knight and had issue
{Richard 2 &c.}		Sir Thomas le Fleming Knight married 1t Eleanor daughter of [Blank] 2ndly Isabel daughter of Sir Thomas Leyburne Knight and had issue by his 2nd wife	- Jos le Fleming - James le Fleming -Richard le Fleming, Bishop of Lincoln - Robert le Fleming, Dean of Lincoln - Joan le Fleming
{Henry 4 7c.}		Sir Thomas le Fleming Knight married Isabel daughter and coheir to Sir John de Lancaster Knight, by whom he had the Lordship of Rydal &c. in Westmorland and he had issue	John le Fleming his 2nd son
{Henry 6 &c.}		John Fleming senior Esq. who married 1. Joan daughter of Sir [Blank] Broughton Knight 2. Ann daughter of [Blank] and by his former wife he had issue	William Fleming his 2nd son
{Richard 3 &c.}		John Fleming Junior Esq. who married Joan daughter of Sir Hugh Lowther Knight & had Issue
{Henry 8}		Hugh Fleming Esq. married Joan daughter and co-heir of Sir Richard Hudleston of Millom Castle Knight and had Issue	- Agnes Fleming married to Richard Ducket Esq. - [Blank] Fleming married to Richard Kirkby Esq. - Margaret Fleming married to Thomas Stanley Esq. - [Blank] Fleming married to William Bardsey Esq. - [Blank] Fleming married to [Blank] Thwaits Esq.
		Anthony Fleming Esq. married 1. Sir Jeffrey Middletons daughter and had no issue 2. Elizabeth daughter to William Hoton Esq. 3. Jane daughter of John Rigmaden Esq. By his 2nd wife he had issue	- Thomas Fleming - David Fleming - David Fleming - Joan Fleming married to Lancelot Lowther gent.
Elizabeth		William Fleming Esq. who married 1, Margaret daughter of Sir John Lamplugh Knight 2. Agnes sister of Sir Robert Bindloss Knight. By his 2nd wife he had issue
James 1 &c.		John Fleming Esq. who married 1. Alice daughter of Sir Francis Ducket Knight and had no issue	- Thomas Fleming 2* - William Fleming 3* - David Fleming, 4, who	- Joseph 5 - Dorothy Ambrose. - Mary Senhouse.

		2. Bridget daughter of Sir William Norris Knight of the Bath Sir Thomas Bolds widow and had no issue 3. Dorothy daughter of Sir Thomas Strickland Knight of the Bath by whom he had issue	married Isabel daughter of James Braithwaite Esq. and had issue	- Grace Barwise. - Eleanor, Lady Lowther.
Charles 1 &c.		William Fleming Esq.*	Bridget Lady Crosland. Agnes Collingwood
Charles 1 &c.		William Fleming Esq. next heir male to William Fleming Esq. next abovesaid, married Alice daughter of Roger Kirkby Esq. and had Issue	- John 2 - Thomas 3 - Jos. F. 4 - Dan. F. 5	- Agnes Dudley - Dorothy Hudleston - Mary Browham
Charles 11 &c.		Sir David Fleming of Beckermet &c. aforesaid, knight married Barbara eldest daughter of Sir Henry Fletcher Baronet and had Issue	- Roger F. 2 - Will. F. 3 - Jo F. 4	- Jo F. 5 - Isabel F. - Alexander F. 6
James ii &c.		William Fleming Esq. 1	- Henry F. 2 - David F. 3 - John F. 4* - Thomas F. 10*	- Fletcher F. 11 - Catherine Wilson 1 - Alice F. 2 - Barbara Tatham 3 - Mary Bouch 4

In this pedigree I have omitted divers things for brevity sake which you may see at large in MS. A. page 59, and MS. P. Leaf 1. &c.[182]

> Nam genus & proavos, & quæ non fecimus ipsi,
> Vix ea nostra voco.
> Ovid.
>
> Nil decus aut splendor, nil Regia nomina prosunt,
> Splendida Divitiis nil juvat ampla Domus.
> Omnia fluxerunt, virtutis sola remansit
> Gloria, Tartareis non abolenda rogis.
> Ibid. 722.[183]

[II.140]

The [old] Hall is said to have formerly stood on the top of a woody hill on the left hand as you goe to Ambleside about [Blank] from it; & Sir Daniel Fleming tells mee he fetched stones from som ruines there to build with […][184] See more of Ridal Hall in my Itinerary.[185]

[182] See Daniel Fleming's MSS: D/Lons/L12/2/1 and 15: the latter consists of 2 volumes.
[183] 'Birth and ancestry, and that which we have not ourselves achieved, these things I scarcely call our own.' 'Not honour nor splendour nor a royal name profits us; a great house of magnificent wealth cannot help us. Everything alters; the glory of virtue alone remains, not to be extinguished by the funeral pyres of Hell.' From Ovid, Metamorphoses Bk. 13, lines 140-41, 722.
[184] The rest of this sentence is obscured by the binding.
[185] See Part 2, Ch.10, Itinerary, from II. 382.

[II.150][186]

[Windermere]

§70[A].
In Windermere the Best Arables is worth 20^{s} or 30^{s} per Annum
The Midle for 15.
The worst pasture – is worth 5.
Informante T. Dixon Senior

Figure 2.6.13. Windermere. Islands near Bowness. II.150.[187]

[Ambleside]

In Ambleside the most of the familyes are of the Mackriths, but none of the quality of a Gentleman.

[II.151]

Ambleside Chapel in Gresmire is parochial.

[186] Most of the right-hand margin of II.140 is obscured by the binding and cannot be transcribed.
[187] See also II.313.

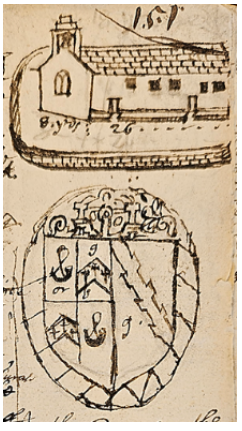

Figure 2.6.14. Ambleside Chapel, ‘ In the Quier on the right ha[n]d window near to great East window’. II.151.

In the Quier on the right ha[n]d window near to great East window. The 1ᵗ is the Coat of Bentham in Yorkshire. 2. Brathwate of [Blank] Impaleing Penruddock.
[Breadth] 8 yards [length] 26. {In Good Repare all but flags.}

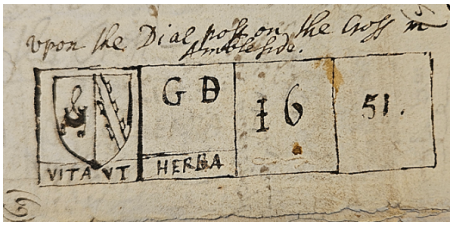

Figure 2.6.15.‘Upon the Dial Post on the Cross in Ambleside’. II.150.

§71. Bounder of Ambleside Chapel
It is bounded on the E. with Troutbeck Chapelry in Windermere divided by Wansfel wall – (made by the 2 Hamlets); on the S. with ~~windermer~~ Holbeck-gill & Windermer water – divided by ~~the bottom of the water of~~ Holbeck Sike; on the W. ~~with the~~ & N. with the proper precincts of the mother church, divi[d]ed by Rowthay &. Scandal beck.
To whom it is Dedicated is not known, but they have their Rush beareing about St James tide.[188] So has all places I thinke in the Barony.

§72. Made Parochial
It was made a burying place (~~about 15 years since~~) by Bishop ~~W~~ Pearson. Sc. 10 of July 1676.[189] Upon a Petition to the said Bishop suggesting that the Inhabitants within the said chapelry within the Parishs of Gresmergh & Windermer [190]

Figure 2.6.16. Inscription on ‘Ambleside Chappel Bell’. II.150A.

[188] 25 July.
[189] John Pearson (1613-86). In 1662, Pearson became master of Trinity College, Cambridge; he was bishop of Chester from 1672 to 1686. See H. Quehen, ‘Pearson, John (1613-1686), bishop of Chester’. ODNB.
[190] The inhabitants in the chapelry had leave to use it for this purpose. See below, §90.

[II.154]

§90. were far distant from the said churches, & by reason of the heat in sommer & great snows & sudden Inundations of water in winter, could not without great difficulty & danger carry their dead thither for Burial, Earnestly requesting Liberty to Bury & Baptise at the said Chappelry.[191] And promising to pay all ancient & accustomed dues to the Parishes of Gresmergh & Windermergh.
In consideracon of the promises, & of the Consent of the said Rectors given to the said Petition, [the Bishop] issued out an Order impowering the Inhabitants of said Chappelry to Bury their Dead & Baptise their children at the said chapple. Provided they continued to pay all ancient & accustomed dues whatsoever to the Parishes of Gresmergh & Windermergh as before and not otherwise.

Given under our hand & seal the 10 of July – in the Year of our Lord 1676. & in the 4 year of Our Consecration – John Cestriensis.[192]
Sub Sigillo.[193]

[II.151]

§73. Indowment
The ancient Sallary was abo[u]t 14li per Annum, given by the charity of well disposed persons ~~to~~ in a curate laid upon the respective Tenements, ~~at so much yearly, for which they mortgage a~~ parcell ~~of land~~ pledgeing their Lands by Certaines Deeds for so much of it as they receivd. Which writeings were in the hands of Thomas Brathwate Esqs. \ And ordered by Jo[hn] Cestriensisto (i.e.) be deposited in such a persons hand or place as the majority may com to them. Dated under his hand & Episcopal Seale the 3. July 1674 & the 2nd year of his Consecration. / D. Pearson, who also gave license to bury there.}

§74. Disposal
The Curate is recommended by the majority [of the inhabitants], and approv'd by the Minister. He teaches for 6d per quarter of the tenants: & of other what [he] can get.

[II.152]

An inscription brought from Borwens

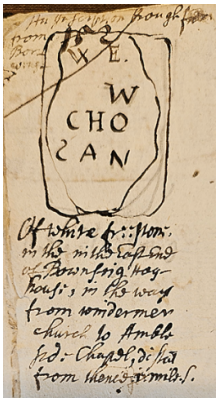

Figure 2.6.17. Inscription from 'Borwens'. II.152.

Of white freestone in the East End of Bownsrig Hog-house,[194] in the way from Windermer Church to Ambleside Chapel, distant from thence 1. Mile S.

[191] Requesting the Bishop of Chester.
[192] John, Bishop of Chester.
[193] 'Under my seal.'
[194] According to the OED, hoggs/hogs are pigs, but see The Cumbrian Dictionary, where hoggs, hogs and hoggets are terms used for yearling sheep. As weaned lambs, they would have sheltered against the winds of winter in a hoggas/hoggast/hogus (hog house). Rollinson, Cumbrian Dictionary, 82.

[II.153]

§77. [Rothey]
Rothey ends in this Chapel[ry] by running into – Breathay: at a place called the Ee or Eye, where it stands like a pool.

§78. Rothey alias Rase Beck
It spring in Grossmere \ near Dumbal Rase whence it runs S. / ~~Thence~~ See there §31. Pearles are said to be in the foote of Breathay, Great store of Holly – & large all over; Rosemary Lawrell & bayes \ & Curran[t]s / in their gardines – Rasp[berries] common in the fields, & Strawb. & bleab.; Store of Orchards; with Black & Read Cherryes.
Blew Slate good & plentifull, & Blew Lime Stone in great postes, but will not rise in beds. Peat plenty – by Cove moss – a Capella 2m. N. Wood plenty.

§79. A sword at Elterwater Hall
[From pommel to hilt] 1 foot 2 inch [From hilt to point] 40 inch and one inch broke of

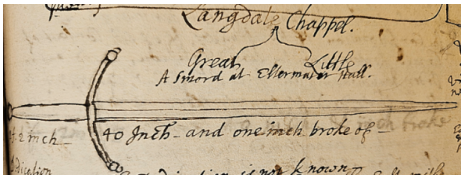

Figure 2.6.18. 'A sword at Elterwater Hall'. II.153.

{Ad Generalem}

§76. {Ad Generalem Westmeriæ Disc[riptionem]}
The Bounder of Westmorland from Windermer – water head – westwards 7 miles to the Head of Breathay \ Brathy / (which at several places assumes several names) till you com at three Stones standing like the feet of a Brandreth[195] on the Top of Wranose (all along divisening from Lancashire).[196] And here the 3 countyes of Westm'land, Cumberland & Lancashire meet: & where Cumberland comes in.) Thence N. on the Ridge of Bowfell in a streight Line {to Langs […] beck head.} {Thence westward in a streight line to […] den granes, 1m.}[197] And so ~~dow~~ (Eastwards) down the said Beck to {The Gate Foote*. Thence Southwards up Mear Sike to the Back of Stickle (a little Crag) 1m. Thence ~~Eastward on the Ridge of Blakerig as heaven water divi~~ \ thence ½ m / {to the Hee-Rase: q. if not Dunbal R.}
Test. Mr Benson of Elterwater, the Curate and others.

[Machell's Notes: II.153]
*But note that Borradale pretends to have a right to the Gate head.

[II.154]

§89. Bounder of Westm'land[198]
a. Mr Henry Fleming Rector
b. Thomas Knot Schoolmaster
c. John Herd
d. John Hawking
e. Michael Knot
& a Bounder in 1639.

[195] 'Brandreth': gridiron; tripod or trivet of iron; originally a grate supported on three legs on the hearth. OED.
[196] MS margin adds,'{to the head of Breatha (calld by several names) till you com at the [perished] of Wranose, where it springs.}'
[197] Parts of the margins here have perished
[198] A list of Machell's informants.

From the Hee \ High / Rase SE on the top of the fell as Heaven Water deals to Sergeant Crag ½ mile.
Thence – even N. (by a Streight Line) to the 3 Standing Steanes 1m.
Thence N. (in a Streight Line) to the – Lang-hil oth'moor ½ a m.
Thence N. (in a Streight Line) to the – Master Cragg – ½ m.
Thence NE (in a Streight Line) to ~~the High~~ Glead Pike – ½ m.
Thence N. (in Streight Line) to – Lower Glead Pike – ¼ m.[199]

§91. Bounder of Westmorland [continued]
From the lower of Glead Pike directly East ~~to~~ (downe a Sike & wall) to \ an Hatterell[200] of st[ones] calld Dunball Rase ¼ m. /
Thence, E. up the said Walls & the Peatgate \ to / Great Riggald Kno[tt] ¼ m.
Thence E. (up the said Peatgate to the Bounder Stones \ which stand near together on Willy-wise moore ¼ m. / Thence, E. (In a streight Line, \ to the / Top of Skelly Stone \ ¼ m. /
Thence S.E. (in a streight Line) to the Dike head: an old \ Casten-Dike / where Patterdale comes in and adjoynes on Cumberland \ ¼ m. /
Thence, directly N. (on the ridge of the mountanes as heaven water divides) to Lile-Cove head, a place like a cokpit calld Cauk cove (¼ m.).
Thence N. (by the Ridge of the mountanes to The Midle Cove (like C[ove] Head or Caud[ale] Head) ¼ m.[201] Thence N. (by the Ridge of the mountanes to Great Cove […][202] alias Blea-berry C[ove] ½ m.
Thence N. (by the Ridge of the mountanes to the Top \ Man / of Helvellin ¾ m. {Qu. In Patterdale.}
[II.155]

§92. Co[n]tin[uation] of the Bounder of Westm'land. Ad Gresmer.
From the Man {an heap of Stones} on ~~the~~ Helvellin head \ down / N. \ as heaven water divides / to the top of an hill calld The {Top of the Raise 1m ¼.} Where Glen Kuen […][203] comes in.
Thence \ down / N.W. in a Streight Line to the Top o th' Sticks. ¼ m.
Thence \ up / N. in a direct line to an heap of Stone on Stiveray \ Stiresay / Dod. ¼ m.
Thence \ down / Northw[est] by the Ridge or Edge of a fell calld Green Side to / {Withysike head} takeing in Lencoun alias Glenkoine dale head where the Beck springs. ¾ m.
{Thence down the said \ Sike / to the middle of Ulswater – King of Patterdale sayes those within the course of that Sike are in the chapelry of Patterdale & pay county sesses for bridge (with them), for Westm'land & their Constables appeared the Sessions for Westm'land.}
Thence – N.E. to the midle of Ulswater – Ushewater 1m.½
~~But Query where that part of a Tenement called Lencoune on this {?} side the Beck~~.
But Query \ whether / the Withysike at Gowberay new parke yeate be not reputed the Bounder of Westm'land.
Thence \ N.E. / downe the midle of water till you be over against How Towne (2½ m.)
Thence N. to Pooley – 1m. ½.
Ulse water ~~6~~ \ 7m. / Long. & Broad – ½ a m. – & 1m.
Harrisons & Wilsons} \ most / generally in Patterdale.[204]

[199] 'Glead': the kite (Milvus regalis). Now chiefly northern and Scottish (in form gled). Also locally applied to such birds of prey as the buzzard, osprey and peregrine falcon. The kite is sometimes distinguished as the fork-tail(ed), red, or salmon-tailed gled, while blue, brown and white gleds are hen-harriers. OED.
[200] Hatterel, or hatterell: A confused heap; a jumble; a large number, Dictionary of the Scots Language. Online.
[201] Much of this sentence is obscured by the binding.
[202] Two unclear words.
[203] An unclear interlineated phrase follows here.
[204] Sentence written roughly in red crayon.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 7. Parish of Heversham]

[II.159]

Hersham Parish Baronia de Kendale

Hersham General Account.[1]

Hersham alias Heversham hath
1. Hersham which hath The church.
Free School.
Hersham Hall.
with their Raritys of any sort
1. The Parish Church wherein are
1. Hersham Parish Church
2. Crosthwate, a Parochiality
2. Crosthwate Chapel, wherein are [Blank][2]

[II.160]

Heversham – Mr Farmer Vicar.[3]
Qu. A Medicinal well there = pergeing by stoole & urine, good for.
See som part of Hersham parish in the Lordship & Chapelry of Witherslack.
Also a quarry in †thwate Chapelry.
See ibidem in margin.

[II.161]

[Heversham Church]

Figure 2.7.1. Heversham church. II.161.

This church was burnd dow[n] about 90 years agoe. 40 [long] 23 [broad].

{Dedication}
It seems from the well[4] 200 yards distant N. West \ ab Ecclesia / calld St Maryes well, to be dedicate to the Virgin Mary. But the Rush bearing is on St Peters near Midsommer.[5]

[1] This heading was originally placed on MS.II.163.
[2] Crosthwaite and Lyth.
[3] George Farmer, ordained priest (Lincoln) September 21 1689; vicar of Heversham, 1691-1724; buried at Heversham, 7 February 1723/4. CCED. N&B1 lists Farmer as vicar of Heversham from 1692, see N&B1, 198.
[4] MS: 'weall'.
[5] 29 June.

{Indowment}
The Vicaridge House is distant westwards about 6 score yards – And the Patronage is in Trinity College in Cambridge, who have allso the Rectorye. The Vicar has Tithe hay \ in kinde / of the soale medows of the Ancient Demane of Heversham hall; and Tythe Corne in kinde of all the said Demanes, but nowhere else. But has Prescription money for hay in severall places elsewhere in the Parish.[6] And all other small Tithes; as also wool in kinde ~~al over~~, & 10d a Lamb – & 1s 6d ~~groates~~ a Tith Calfe throughout the Parish. The Impropriators have Corne in kinde but no Tithe of Hay.

{Bounder}
It is bounded on the E. with Preston Chappelry in the parish of Burton – divided from it by Beetham alias Hotton \ beck /or Lilly Beck. On the S. with Bethom: divided from it by Kent; & Sam Poole. On the west with the Chappelry of Wither-slack, divided by the Ridge of Whit-barrow to the Fell end. On N. with Cartmell fell Chappelry from which 'tis \ divided by the River Winstar*. / It has but one Chappelry calld Crosthwate Chappel.

In the East window of the S. Ile or Alley: Richard Buskel 1601[7]

Figure 2.7.2. Heversham Church East Window. 'Richard Buskel 1601'. II.161.

In Prestons Seat in the S. Alley [and] Three more Thus.

Figure 2.7.3. 'In Prestons Seat' and 'Three more thus'. II 161.

[6] Prescription money: money paid according to ancient or continued custom, especially when regarded as authoritative. OED.
[7] Buskel or Buskell. '…1602 Richard Buskell, gent., lately deceased, long before his death was seised of the manor of Eversham, a capital messuage called Evershamhall, 6 cottages, 72 a. land, and of one burgage or messuage in Kendal; that on the marriage of his son Thomas he settled the premises upon the issue of that marriage; that the said Thomas died in his said father's lifetime; and that Jasper, son of the said Thomas, is heir of the said Richard and is now aged 15 years and 2 months.' William Farrer and John F. Curwen (eds), Records Relating To the Barony of Kendale II, CWAAS Record Series 4 (Kendal, 1924), 141-67. 'In 1613-14, Jasper Buskell, counsellor-at-law, conveyed to Edward Wilson of Nether Levens, gent., the capital messuage of Heversham Hall and the demesne together with his manor of Heversham.' N&B1, 201.

In Hersham Church[8]
Heversham Church. l[ength] 40. b[readth] 23. See also in the General Account for Armes.
{On a Pillar. Mem[orial] Mr Henry Bellinghams lady.}
{Bellinghams [Arms] with Quarterings in the farthest window of the N. Ile.}

Above a Capital of a Pillar in the N. Ile

Figure 2.7.4. 'Above a Capital of a Pillar in the N. Ile'. II.165.

On the E? window of the north Ile.

Figure 2.7.5. 'On the E? window of the North Aisle'. II.165.

[8] On II.165, some inked comments and three inked margin sketches are superimposed over pencilled text and sketches which are now almost illegible.

On a Marble-Grave-Stone in Prestons Pew. S.

Figure 2.7.6. 'On a Marble-Grave-Stone in Prestons Pew S.'. II.165.

[II.161]

{Lordships}

1. Heversham & Milthrop \ d[istant] 1m. S. /
2. Leavins Up[per] \ 1m. N. /
3. Preston Richard.
4. Sisars \ 2m. N. / consisting of: Sidgewick \ 2m. N.E. / Hencastar \ 1m. S.E.[9] / Staneton \ 2m. E. /
5. Crosthwate & Lythe in the Chappelry of Crosthwate. N.W. 5m.
6. Nether Levens.

[Quarters]
1. Crosthwate – has in the Chaple Quarter 64 f[amilies]; in Lithe 52; Townend Quarter 45.
2. Milthrop has in that quarter 80; in Akenthwate 17; Rowell 8; Woodhouse 20; Heversham 27.[10]

[II.162]

3. {Sidgewick 39; Hinkister 30; Mabbin Hall and Leesgill 16}
{Quarter calld the West side of Kent 59 ; Brigsteer 17.}
4. Preston Richard 66; Milton 19; Staniton 60.

[II.161]

{I. Heversham Manner House Court}
{A Parke but no Deere in them} \ d[istance] ab Ecclesia 200 yards W. /
The Manner House is Heversham Hall, where a Court \ Leet / & Court Baron is kept.

[II.162]

{Descent}
Formerly belongd to the Bouskill (and Milthrop allso, which was said formerly to be a member of the manner but is not so now) from whom it was sold[11] with a 3rd part of the Tenants by Richard B[ouskill] to Mr Edward Wilson of Nether Levins about 50 years since {ab Anno 1692}.[12]
And Parke House – d[istant] ¼ m. S. – was sold with Heversham Parke, an other Parcell of the Demane, by the said B[ouskill] to Sir James Bellingham of Upper Levins 2 years afore. The former remane in Mr Edward Wilson, son of Thomas ~~Son~~, kinsman to the said Purchaser, on whom he bestowd it. The lat[t]er is passed by Mr Allan \ Bellingham /(son of James, son of Allan, son of James the Purchaser) to Col[one]l James Graham, circa anno Domini 1687.

[9] Unclear compass direction.
[10] In the MS, the Lordships were renumbered, the new numbers being superimposed over the first.
[11] MS: '~~It is said~~ formerly ~~to have~~ belongd to the Bouskill ~~with Milthrop to~~ and Milthrop allso, which was said formerly to be a member of the manner but is not so now – from whom it was sold ~~B to Mr Edward Wilson~~.'
[12] Machell wrote this in 1692. For more on the descent of the manor, see above, II.161.

{Tenure}
The Tenants are most of them customary at Fine Arbitrary & Heriotable – there being only about ~~6~~ 12 \ consid[erable] / freeholds.

[II.163]

{II. Preston Richard} I have it.[13]

[II.162]

{III. Upper Leavens}
Manner House is Upper Levens Hall {Court Baron} which was purchased either by the said Sir James or Allan his father of Mr Readman of Thornthon near Engleton Yorkshire. & was sold by young Allan aforesaid to the said Mr Graham.
{1 Parke stord with deer, & Kent runs in the midle & a Catadupe at the head.}[14] {Clean martes there.}
The Tenants are mostly Customary

[II.163]

at Fine Arbitrary & Heriotable; & but few freeholds in it.

{IV. Manner of Sisergh}
The Manner House is Sisors Hall. ~~Where~~ \ but / they kept their Court \ Leet & Baron / at Croscrake Chappel. Till they bough[t] themselves free of ~~Mr Walker~~ Sir Thomas Strickland[15] about 18 years since {ab A.D. 1692} & were Arbitrary & Heriotable as other Tenants. Now the Royalty & all is in the Tennants but \ they keep no / Courtes; but the Manner House & Demanes continue still in the name of the Stricklands & is in Kendal Parish.

[II.164]

{V. Crosthwate ~~Lordship~~ & Lith \ Manner /}
Has no Manner House, nor Demane Lands now appertaneing to it \ but tis said ~~ther~~ Calmer Hall was the manner house. / It was & is part in the Crown & part in Mr Graham, who have 2 Stuarts & joyne together in keeping a Court.[16] But the Queens Tenants are at Fine Certaine, Sc. Double the Rent at the Death; & 3ble[17] upon descent or Alienation. But the other are Arbitrary & Heriotable. The Queens part still remanes in the Crowne: But Bellinghams part is transferred by purchase to the said Mr Graham.

[II.163]

{VI. Under Levins Lordship}[18]
The Manner house is Nether \ Under / Levens Hall – (which has 2 Demanes, one of which is called Ninesergh.) And the Court is kep at the Hall*. It was anciently in the Prestons in the Manner of Furness in Lancashire, and fell by Descent to Sir Thomas by the Dea[th] of Sir John his elder

[13] In the MS, Machell left space here for information on Preston Richard, but did not use it.
[14] The rest of this margin note is blotted.
[15] The royalist Sir Thomas Strickland (1621-94) J.P., of Sizergh Castle, was captain of foot (1642) and lieutenant colonel (1644) in the first Civil War. His estate was settled on him before the second Civil War, in which he fought and was fined £943 on an annual income of £397. After the Restoration he became MP for Westmorland (1661-77). A Roman Catholic, from 1675 he did not attend the House: the Speaker was not informed of his recusancy until Sir John Lowther III was of age to succeed to the seat. Sir Thomas was disabled from sitting in 1677. Financial need compelled him to alienate his Yorkshire estate and salt farm to his cousin Sir Roger Strickland. In 1687 James II offered him the governorship of Carlisle, but he had expected 'something more suitable', so was sworn in as a Privy Councillor. Having entered exile in 1688, he died in France in 1694. https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1660-1690/member/strickland-sir-thomas-1621-94.
[16] 'James Grahme (Graham) (1650-1730), MP for Carlisle (1685-87), was keeper of the privy purse, first to the Duchess, and then to the Duke of York (1679-88). One of the court's 'Anglican-Tory circle', Grahme and his brother, Viscount Preston, entered the Jacobite underworld in 1688. Preston's capture in 1690 led to Grahme's arrest and seizure of his Westmorland estates 'upon the notion of his being a papist'. He was released but pursued again for 'abetting and adhering to his Majesty's enemies'. From the mid-1690s, Grahme lived quietly at Levens, purchased for £24,000 in 1688. Although he claimed to have experienced financial problems associated with his loyalty, his estates are estimated to have been worth over £1,000 p.a. in the 1690s. He was mayor of Appleby (1705-06, 1717-18), and MP for Appleby (1702-1708) and Westmorland (1708-1727): http://www.histparl.ac.uk/volume/1690-1715/member/grahme-%28graham%29-james-1650-1730.
[17] Treble.
[18] MS: '{VI. ~~Nether~~ \ Under / Levins Lordship}.'

Brother.[19] And now by Marriage of the one of his Daughters,[20] is the possession of the Lord Montgomery.

{Tenure}
The Tenants are Customary Arbitrary & Heriotable except som freeholds.
This I hear is lately purchased of my Lord [Blank] by Mr Wilson of Dallan Tower {Som[time][21] in 1694}

[Machell's Notes: II.163]

*{q. if Leet.}

[II.164]

{Heversham Free School}

At Heversham ab Ecclesia 200 yards NE is erected a free Grammar School founded by Mr Edward Wilson of Nether Levins*, as by the figures over the Door in 1613.[22] And endowed by him with 20li per Annum & 2 Exhibitions of 6.1.3 4d a piece – the one to Queens College in Oxford, the other to Trinity College in Cambridge. And there is another Exhibition given by one Rig sometime Stuart of Levins, of 10li per Annum in the Hands of the College. The 2 former is limited to such Boyes as goe from this School their parents being poore; the other chiefly for those of this School, or from any other according to the Discretion of the said College. {Dr Bor \wick/ Dean of St Pauls;[23] & Dr Borwick, a physician, his Brother;[24] Dr. Rawlinson Fellow of Queens College[25] – all educated here.}

A place \ in Heversham /of from the [church] ½ a quarter [mile] NE – calld Battle Place but on what occasion is not known†.

[Machell's Notes: II.164]

*{There he farmed only, & tho he had many, never lodged in an House of his own.}
†[Source:] {The woman that lives in it.}

[19] Colonel (Sir) John Preston (1617-1645), son of Patrick Preston of The Manor, Dalton-in-Furness, succeeded his father in 1642 (baronet, 1644). A recusant family, the Prestons' large iron interests in Furness allowed them to raise a fighting force against the Parliamentarians. In 1644 Colonel Preston was wounded, fighting in Furness. Sir Henry Slingsby noted, 'His horse kill'd, and it may seem that being down, some of the foot ... gave him a knock on the head ... He lay in a swoon ... many days ... his perfect sense and understanding he recovered not for half a year after.' He was dead by the end of 1645, after which his estates were partially sold to settle the debts of John Pym: a fierce enemy of Catholics: P.R. Newman, D.Phil. Thesis, 'The Royalist Army in Northern England 1642-45' (Two Vols., University of York, 1978), Vol. 2, 166. See also, Anne C. Parkinson, A History of Catholicism in the Furness Peninsula 1127-1997 (Lancaster, 1998), 30-33.
[20] MS: 'And now by Marriage of the one of this of his Daughters'.
[21] Or 'Sommer'.
[22] Founded in 1613 but with later endowment, see below.
[23] John Barwick (1612-1664) was born in Witherslack in 1612, third of five sons of George Barwick, a husbandman. He entered St John's College, Cambridge, in 1631; graduated BA,1635; elected fellow of the college, 1636; MA, 1638. An Arminian and a Laudian, he was ordained deacon in Lincoln Cathedral in 1640 and in 1641 was made canon of Durham Cathedral and chaplain to the bishop. A devoted royalist, he was ejected from his fellowship in 1644, upon which he went to London to be chaplain to Thomas Morton, bishop of Durham. He was said to be a secret royalist spy, communicating with the king in Oxford. After the regicide he was imprisoned for high treason but freed on bail in 1652, after which he negotiated with people of influence for the return of the monarchy. In 1660 Charles II awarded him a DD. He was appointed dean of Durham Cathedral on 1 November 1660 and dean of St Paul's in 1661. He died of consumption in 1664. J. Elligott, 'Barwick, John (1612-1664), dean of St Paul's'. ODNB.
[24] Peter Barwick (1619-1705), physician, was born at Witherslack, a son of George Barwick (see above). Like his brother, John, he was educated at Sedbergh School and at St John's College, Cambridge, where he was admitted sizar in 1638; BA, 1642. In 1647 he became MA and studied medicine. In 1651 he attended Charles II at Worcester. Throughout the Interregnum he and his brother continued to support the royalist cause. In 1655 he received his MD and became a member of the Royal College of Physicians. After the Restoration (1660) he became a medical advisor to the king: P. Elmer, 'Barwick, Peter (1619-1705), physician'. ODNB.
[25] For Richard Rawlinson, see William Poole, 'A royalist mathematical practitioner in interregnum Oxford: the exploits of Richard Rawlinson (1616-1668)', The Seventeenth Century 33, 5 (2018), 557-86.

{Goates in Whitbarrow.}
{Dr Sands Archbishop of York in ? – was Vicar here.}[26]

[II.170]

[Letter to Thomas Machell from Edward Wilson of Nether Levens]

Chester Dioces
Heversham Free School was founded by Edward Wilson of Nether Levens, owner of Heversham Hall in the Barony of Kendall & countie of Westmorland, gentleman, in or about the yeare of our Lord 1619,[27] & by him endowed with Severall Burgage lands to the yearely value of 21^{li} -03^{s} -10^{d}, & with a yearely Rent Charge of 3^{li} issuing out of other Lands within the same Barony; & by his Last will & testament with 2 Exhibitions of Twentie Nobles a yeare – th'one to Queenes in Oxon, th'other to Trinity College in Cambridge – yearely for ever, besides tenn poundes yearely for ever to the poore of the said parish. Schoolmasters have been severall; of greater remarke = One Rowland Lucas of Christs College in Cambridge Master of Arts, whoe was Schoolmaster there to Peter Borwicke Dr of Phisicke; to Dr Rawlinson \ Fellow of Queens College Oxon / famous in the Mathematikes & tutor to the last Earle Percy & severall others of eminent learning. The present Schoolmaster is Mr Thomas Lodge. The feoffees of Heversham Schoole at present are 12: to witt Edward Wilson Esq, grand child of him the said Edward, & Patron thereof; Sir John Ottway Kt; James Bellingham Esqs; Curwen Rawlinson Esqs;[28] Mr Thomas Bigge Vicar of Heversham; Edwin Saule; Anthony Saule; Rowland Parke; Thomas Benson; Geoffray Park; & William Holme.

This for Mr Christopher Wase from \ Mr / Edward Wilson.[29]

[II.166]

[Rarities in Nature]

{Fowle} ~~Swans~~ willd \ swans / (20 together) are some times in winter seen \ here / aboutes. & wild gees usually on the mosses at the said season. Scarples,[30] Sheldrakes, plenty of wild Duckes by 100 together, Teales & Widgeons & Didappers.[31]
{Springs Petrefying} In \ Upper / Levins Parke ½ a m. ab Aula, ther \ is / a well called Makerig well. Turnes Moss into Stone: Sic dict[um] \ forsan / quia fabricus lapides fabricando Lapides.[32]

{Trees} 2 Rare Trees in Levins Parke –? q. how great.[33] Ewe Large & plentifull all over the parish, \ Sweet / Savin \ i.e. Juniper / all over, Lau\r/ell & Bayes & Rosmary great store.

---

[26] Edwin Sandys (1519?-1588) was born at Esthwaite Hall near Hawkshead. Cambridge BA (1539); DD (1549); Cambridge vice-chancellor (1553); Bishop of Worcester (1559-70); Bishop of London (1570-76); Archbishop of York (1576-88). Sandys's name appears in CCED as vicar of Heversham from 1551-1554. See also P. Collinson, 'Sandys, Edwin (1519?-1588), archbishop of York'. ODNB.
[27] Edward Wilson of Nether Levens Hall, founded a Grammar School on Heversham Head in 1613, see R.D. Humber, Heversham: The Story of a Westmorland School and Village (Kendal, 1968), Ch.1. In 1619/20 an Indenture was made between Wilson and Thomas Kilner of Helsington, yeoman, Edward Fisher of Kirkby Kendall, clothier, Thomas Wilson, clothier, and Robert Crosfield of Stricklandroger, yeoman, to provide further for the school. See Farrer and Curwen (eds), Records Relating To the Barony of Kendale II, 141-67.
[28] Curwen Rawlinson (1641-1689), Gentleman, of Cark-in-Cartmel, entered Queen's College, Oxford, in 1656-7; married the niece of General Monck, duke of Albemarle, in 1672; became MP for Lancaster in 1689. The only member of his family to enter Parliament (as a moderate Tory), he died at Warwick in 1689. When his sons died without issue, the property was divided by the heirs of his sisters, see OAD; see also https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1660-1690/member/rawlinson-curwen-1641-89.
[29] For Wase, see P.J. Wallis, 'Westmorland schools about 1676: Christopher Wase's Survey', CW2, 67 (1967), 168-85.
[30] Unknown, but possibly scart/scaurt: cormorant or shag; or, scaurie or scorie: the young of any type of gull, see Joseph Wright, The English Dialect Dictionary, being the complete vocabulary of all dialect words still in use, or known to have been in use during the last two hundred years (London, 1898), 245, 248. The OED suggests, scaup duck, scoter duck, scale-drake (sheldrake).
[31] Dabchicks. OED.
[32] 'So called perhaps because the stones [are like a] craftsman, fashioning stones.'
[33] The rest of this sentence is obscured by the binding.

{Fruite} Rasberryes plentifull ~~& Currants~~ Great store of orchards.

{Fuele} Turfe or Peat – ab Ecclesia \ ¼ / W[est] near [Blank]

{Stones} Firestone \ i.e. Sulphur / on Hersham head ab Eccleia ½ quarter m. North.
Limestone plenty. Except \ in / Preston Richard.

{Heversham Long Lives; 100 y.}
Agnas Story of Heversham buryed here 9 years agoe, was above 100 years of Aige.
Ed Saul & his wife – about 20 years since lived to make up together above 200.[34]
And there is \ one / Thomas Benson at Levins Parke now living {1692}, who is above 100 old. He frequently Angled & hunted on foote, & came to the Church 2ce a day on foot,[35] within these three yeares. Has \ house / ab Ecclesia ~~a~~ \ 2 / m. {from which Bensons name is desended; a notable family in [Blank] as appears by this pedegre}.[36]

[II.167][37]

[Benson Family Pedigree]

A Pedegre shewn me by Lancelot Benson of Ambleside, who was Born Elterwater Hall, 2 son \ (& Brother of Michael) / of Mich, son of Mich. of the same. {See the Northumberland Booke in the Heralds Office London.}This ped[igree] was taken by Mr King, Deputy to Mr Sandford, Somerset Herald – the last visitation of Northamptonshire, 1683. & entered in the Northumberland[38] Booke – being compared by Mr Lane.[39]

Benson Descent.

		Richard Benson of Heckam, alias Hersham† near Kendal in Westmerland	= Katherine daughter of Greenwood*
George B. merchant ob. S.P. 1642	Nicolas B. 6th son & Hugh Benson Son 7th	Richard B. of Alesbury in Bucks Obijt 1639	= Martha d. of Richard Taylor of How in Hambledon Pasture Bucks	2. Will B. killd at Ostend[40]	3. Hen. B. Sine P.
	1. Will Benson Isue Rich. Benson of Chadshunt in Northampton Now living in 1691	2. Henry Benson of Charwelton in Com. Northants Esq? Ob. 1664	= Francis elder coheire of George Dumbleton of Dumbleton in Glos Esqs.	3. George B. of Towchester m. = the 2nd coheire of Dumbleton Obijt 1687	Mary

[34] In the 1669-71 Hearth Tax Roll, Lay Subsidy 195, n.73, m.3., 'Widow Saul' paid tax for one hearth. See Farrer and Curwen (eds), Records Relating To the Barony of Kendale II, Heversham and Milnthorpe hearth tax roll, 1669-71, 141-167. Machell's informants, Anthony and Edwin Saule, were feoffees of Heversham School, see below, II.170, II.174.
[35] MS: 'He frequently Angled, & hunted ~~upon his feet~~ \ on foote / & came to the Church 2ce a day on ~~his~~ foot,'
[36] See II.167.
[37] For other Bensons, see Part 2, Ch.6, Grasmere, II.129.
[38] Machell appears to have written 'Northumberland' over 'Northamptonshire'; unsurprising, given the similarity of the county names and the fact that the Bensons appear to have lived in both counties.
[39] The name 'Lane' is an insecure transcription; it is the last word at the (damaged) page foot.
[40] The siege of Ostend, in which an army of about 20,000 royal troops confronted a garrison of about 5,700 defenders, took place from July 1601 to September 1604, during the Revolt in the Netherlands. See Werner Thomas, 'How a defeat became a victory: the siege of Ostend in contemporary Dutch war coverage and post-war chronicles (1601-15)', in Raymond Fagel, Leonor Álvarez Francés, and Beatriz Santiago Belmonte (eds), Early modern war narratives and the Revolt in the Low Countries (Manchester, 2020), 125-45.

		Rich. Benson of Charwelton Esq? ob. 1671	= Ann d. & coheire of John Wirly of Dodford in Northumb. Esq.	George Benson of Little Boyton in Northumb'land	= [Miss] Knight of Stapton & had [Blank]
	2. Rich. Benson of Sulby, celebs[41]	1. Hen. Bens. of Dodford Esq. ~~obijt~~ now living 1671	= Eliz. eldest d. of Thomas Lord Gray of Grooby, eldest son to Henry Earle of Stamford[42]	George Benson now living 1691
	Anna Maria Benson obijt 1674	~~Anna Maria~~ Christiana Elizabetha Benson. Borne in Bourges in France. Now living 1691		Jane Gray Benson, born 1685 at Dodford now living 1691.

{Mich. Benson of Elterwater}
|
{Mich. Benson of Elterwater}
|
{Mich. Benson of Elterwater}
|
{1. Mic. Benson who sold it to 2. Lancelot Benson of Ambleside}

[Machell's Notes on the Benson Pedigree and Arms: II.167]

*A mistake; suerly never so called.
†Never of any account there. Yet there is one Benson an old man in that Parish, above 100, who had a son at Oxon.
{N. If these Bensons came from Hersham, it shew they neither had armes then, because they differ.}
{But N[ote] These arms differ much from those of the Bensons impaleing Brathwate of Burnaside. T.M.}

Figure 2.7.7. Benson Family Arms. II.167.

[Left] A seale – Benson quartering Dumbleton.
[Right] Benson quartering Whirly.
[Centre] Argent on a Bend (inter 3 goates heads \ errased / Sable langued G[ules] armed Or & S[able]) 3 Escallops of the 1st. The Crest a Goates head S[able] chargd with an Escalop Argent.

[41] 'Unmarried.'
[42] Thomas Grey, Lord Grey of Groby (1622-1657), was MP for Leicester during the English Long Parliament, a member of Cromwell's New Model army, and a regicide. He was the eldest son of Henry Grey, 1st earl of Stamford, and Anne Cecil, daughter of William Cecil, 2nd earl of Exeter. E. Bradley & S. Kelsey, 'Grey, Thomas, Baron Grey of Groby, regicide'. ODNB.

[II.169]

[Further Notes and Queries relating to Heversham]

Westmorland Heversham Free School.
Mr. Brigs Vicar.[43]
The Free School at Heversham: The Schoolmaster August 1692 – was Mr [Blank] Green, an Apalby scholar – who promised to send me the Monumental Inscriptions,[44] & som Armes to be drawn by Mr Webster.
? q. How the Church was Build and repared?
Qu. of the Medicinall well. How far distant ab Ecclesia. E.W.N. or S. with its vertues, & names of People cured by it, & of what diseases, with their age Condition & place of Aboad.

[II.171]

Preston Richard in Heversham

{ab Anno 1692}
{Soyle – sandy & limestone}
{B[ounded] on the East divided by Preston Patrick divided by Gatebeck on the S. with Farleton in Bethom divided by St Sunday which is here called Deepthwate beck, 2 waters meating on the West with ~~Milthrop & in~~ Hersham parish – d[ivided] by Deepthwate or St Sundayes becks: on the N. with Holm Scale divided by Gatebeck – so that there is not 2ce score [acres] of Land uncompassed about with water.}

Preston Richard is an Hamlet on the N. side {of St Sundaye which is here calld Deep Thwate Beck} ~~Of~~ \ & the West side of / Lilly-beck alias Gatebeck, consisting \ 1 / of free-hold[ers] which bought themselves free of Sir John Lowther of Lowther about 18 years since. {They bought themselves free paying only the old Rent & Suit of Court to him.} (who purchased halfe the Tenants of Mr Preston of Howskar[45] \ & / allso Kirkby Tenants with all the Demane lands which he had there). The other halfe are Customary Tenants: Pay fineable Rents at Fine Arbitrary but no Bonds & Services; & pay Greenhew 2d per Annum (they never heard of Cornage.) The Widdow has the whol Estate if she neither Mary nor Miscarry dureing her life, or else she looses it \ all. / But in freehold the W[idow] has her thirds dureing her life whether she marry or not {but 2nd &c. has but halfe.}

The \ Free / Tenants \ appear / at any House their Lord doth appoint within his Libertyes, he having no Manner house of his own. And the Customary Tenants \ likewise / appear at any house ~~of their~~ Lords ~~which he shal~~ \ doth / appoint within his Libertyes \ for the same reason / And both Lords have liberty of Waife & Stray upon the Common as they com \ 1t / to them or upon the Remand[er] as they happen to be in the Lands of their Tenants.

{Manner House}
The Manner is held of the Earle of Darby as Capital Lord; & formerly payed a noble Rent to him. But Penningtons Ancestors bought of their halfe; and the \ other / halfe is still continued upon the Tenants of Sir John Lowther. It is said heretofore to have belongd to the name of the Bensons, whose manner house (lately Customary ~~Land~~ \ Estate now Sir John Lowthers part purchasd free* /) is called Auld Hall (where Courtes were kept), of which Mr Bankes has seen Courtes Roll & Thomas Fletch[er] hath heard so reported. And is said by 2 Daughters & Coheirs, to [have] passd in marriage to 2 different Lords – And the Prestons of Howcar; & Penningtons of Moncaster (who hold

[Machell's Notes: II.171]
*Time. Query – how long free the Bensons?

[43] Thomas Briggs (Bigge or Big) was presented to Heversham vicarage in 1638, although his name does not appear in the parish registers until 1641. He was sequestered c.1645 but continued to live in the neighbourhood and was restored to the vicarage in 1663. He died in 1676. See Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 2, 972-74, 977-79. See also CCED; and see N&B1, 198.
[44] In Heversham church.
[45] Holker.

[II.173]

one halfe still) have continued Lords of it time immemoreal; till now of late that the Prestons sold their part to Sir John Lowther of Lowther in Westmorland*. {annis ab hinc 20*.}[46]

There are Trenches & Bulworkes upon Milton More {ab Ecclesia 1m. S.E. ab Aula S. ¾} of diverse forms, of which 2 are hills cast up with Trenches about them 6 or 8 yards diameter & 1 yard high, which I suppose to have bin Tumuli. There ~~are~~ is a Square one 7 Score from thence towards the S. East about 8 yards broad & 16 long. Another like the Carpenters Square – haveing 2 sides only – 40 yards North from the former – But of what use they can not imagin.
A place calld the Deere Parke adjoyning the old Hall – now in Tillage & \ ½ of it / a customary estate – as has bin sayd.

Holme Moss Tarne – 60 Broad & \ ½ a quarter mile long {ab Aula N.E. ½ m} has Eales only in it And in Holm Moss ½ in the Lordship ~~&~~ ½ in Holm in Burton parish – in a Dike Gutter 2 yards wide, not cast above 2 years before – an Eal was taken – 1691, about 3 quarters long & 9 inch about, 1m. from Parke ½ m. West. In which they say is white marle[47] & many pikes. {Mr Moore.}

There were Swanes formerly kept on the foote of Deepthwate; which sat & bread there but they belongd to Nether Levins. Gate beck ends in Deepthwate, a m[ile] S. below the Old Hall - well stord with orchards. Rasberryes up & doen,[48] but few.
Their Fuel Turfe or Peat ~~scarce &~~ 3m. West ab Aula at Foulshaw. Large gray Limestone in great plenty all over.
{Tenants & Tenure is before the Descent of the Lordship.}

[II.174]

[Machell's Notes. II.174]

1f	1f
1f	2f

Frame: 3 inch; 2 inch: ½ ciferd off

{Hersham: Mr Farmer vicar. Anthony Saul. James Beck. James Hinde. Mr Green Schoolmaster}[49]

[II.175]

[Upper Levins]

Figure 2.7.8. Upper Levins Hall. II.175.

[46] 'Twenty years ago from this present date.'
[47] 'White marle': an earthy deposit, loose and unconsolidated, comprising clay mixed with calcium carbonate, formed in prehistoric waters; used to improve the texture of sandy or light soil. Also, a calcareous deposit found at the bottom of present-day lakes and rivers, composed of the remains of aquatic plants and animals. OED.
[48] 'Up and down.'
[49] Machell's informants.

Arms at Upper Levins Hall
{N.B. Many of the Caps supernumeraryes may be omitted}[50]

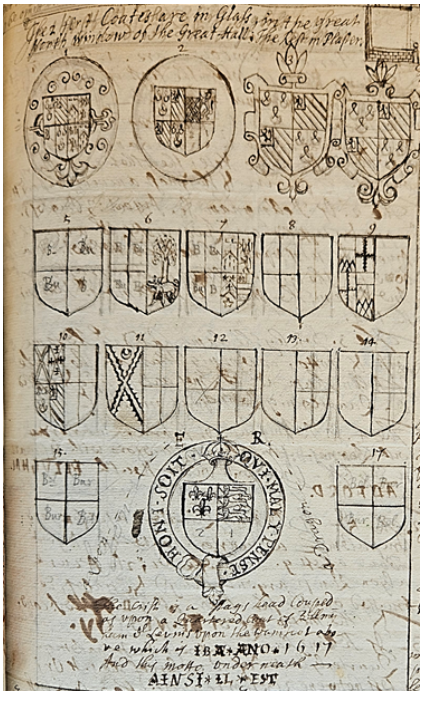

Figure 2.7.9. Arms at Upper Levins Hall. II.175.

[On the 'Royal' Arms, placed centrally, supporters are dexter, a lion; sinister, a dragon].
The Crist is a Stags head couped as upon a Quartered Coat of Bellingham with Levins upon the wainscot above, which is, IBA*ANO*1617. And this motto underneath: AINSI*EL*EST.[51]

The 2 first Coates are in Glass, in the Great North window of the great Hall; the Rest in Plaster.
1. The 1^{t} is Bellingham whose armes are Argent 3 Bugles Sable tiped [and] tined [blank] quartering Levines who bears armes ~~Barry~~ Argent \ 3 Bendlets / Gules on a Canton of the 2nd, a Lyon Rampant of the 1^{t} = impalein[g] Sandford ~~&~~ quaterd with English whereof the former is parted per the cheveron S[able] & Ermin, 2 Boares head couped Or. {N[ote]} latter is Sable, 3 Lyons Rampant Argent.}
2. The 2nd is Bellingham with the said Quartering Impaleing = Curwen (Argent a frett Gules over all a chief Azure) quartering a Lyon Rampant. Argent debruised of [a billet][52] Gules by the name of [Blank]
3. 4. N. Al the rest are in Plaster above the wainscot, whereof the 2 first, marked 3 & 4, are on each \ side / the dooer as you enter; And are the same with Bellingham &c. – as at fig. the 1^{t} without the Impaleing.
5. The 5th is \ the Same with / Bellingham Quartering Levins.
6. The 6th Bellingham with Quarterings – Impaleing a wilde bore leaning against a Tre: by the name of [Blank]

[50] Placed in the top left margin and unclear, but perhaps, 'Many of the headings in excess of the required number may be omitted.' [?]
[51] 'So it is.'
[52] Machell provided a small sketch of a billet, instead of the word.

7. The 7th is Bellingham with the said Quarterings Impaleing Sandford with its 3 quarterings, whereof the 2nd is English, the 3 is Crackenthorp with a floredeluce chargd upon the cheveron for a younger House: And the 4 is Lancaster of Howgill Castle.
8. The 8th is Bellingham Quarterly &c – Impaleing Curwen with its Quarterings as at Fig. 2.
9. Is quarterly Sc. 1. 3 cheveronell Brassd in Bass and a chiefe – by the name of [Blank] Quartering a † Ingraled = Impaleing Bellingham with quarterings as above.
10. is a Saltier – quartering in the 2 quarters a Saltier betwene 4 Cross ✠. In the Third Bellingham; in the 4th Levins = Impaleing Bellingham quartered ut supra.
11. The [11th] is a Saltier ingraled, with a [crescent][53] in Chief = Impaleing Bellinghams Quarterd ut [supra]
12. 13. 14. Are Impaleing of B[ellingham] with Blankes.
15. 17. Bellingham with Burn[eside]} quart[erly] ut supra.[54]

[II.176]

{Bellingham Quartering}
18. In the Parlour window are 1. Bellingham Quartering Burnaside wherin the first is Argent, 3 Bugles. Lined & Tipped of the Field – {And on a Scrowle on one side
AMICUS AMICO ALANVS – on the other BELLIGERVS BELLIGERO BELLINGHAMVS}[55]

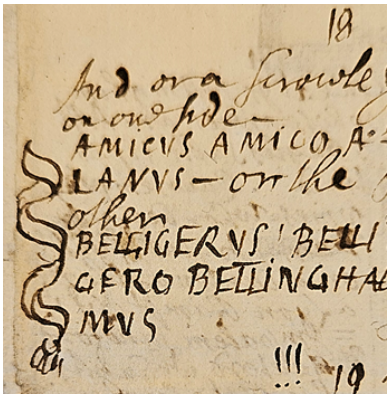

Figure 2.7.10. Scroll 'in the parlour window'. II.176.

The Second is Argent – ~~on a qua~~ 3 Bends Gules, on a Quarter of the 1t a Lyon Rampant of the second – (N.B. where Note, the other was Barry {!!!} but this is fairer – & this the most ancient Coate in the Hall.)

{Bellingham Single}
19. The 2. is Bellingham Sc. Argent: 3 Bugles S[able][b] Tippd & Tasselld Or,[a] Lin'd Gules.[56] With a wreath Argent & Gules upon a side faced Helmet, & above for the Crist, a Staggs head erased Or, And herein, the motto is the same with that in the Hall.

[53] See Fig. 2.7.11.
[54] This paragraph is crushed into the bottom right of the page and heavily abbreviated.
[55] At the end of the 18th century, the window was noted by Capt. Joseph Budworth (1756-1815), aka (from 1811) Joseph Palmer, who used the pen-name, 'A Rambler': 'This couplet was made upon Alan Bellingham, who purchased Levens, alluding to his social, and, at the same time, martial disposition.' A Rambler, A Fortnight's Ramble to the Lakes in Westmoreland, Lancashire, and Cumberland (2nd edn, London, 1795), 19. The play on words could, perhaps, be translated as, 'Alan's a mate to his mates; Bellingham's a bastard to bullies.' (My thanks to the incomparable Jane Penman. Ed.)
[56] Note that Machell decided to order the sentence differently using superscript a. and b.

{With Quarterings}
20. The 3. don by the same hand, with the same Crist & motto, excepting that on the scrowle is Bellingham with Lines gules, Tip'd & Tasseld Or, Quartering Burnasides in the 1[t].
21. The 4. is Bellingham ut supra. Quarterly with Burnaside = Impaleing Sandford with its quart[erings] Sc. English. And writ underneath BELYNGHAM SANDFORD.
What color are the Bores heads – with Sandford {?}[57]
22. The 5[th] is Belling[ham] Quartered as aforesaid Impaleing = a Quarterly Coate of [Blank] Argent ~~above~~ \ on / a frett G[ules] a Chief Az[ure]; 2ly. Azure a lyon rampant Argent langued &c. Gules. debruised on the Shoulder with 3[58] \ billets / of the second. The motto SI JE NESTOY {with Curwen}.[59]
23.\ The 6. / is Bellingham quarterly as aforesaid, Impaleing a quarterly Coate of 12. Whereof the 1. is Or; a fess betwene 3 Crescents Gules. The 2. Or a cross Sable. The 3. Argent; a chevron[60] Azure betwene 3 Roses {with ?} Gules seeded leaved propper. The 4. Argent, {great many quarterings…)[61] a fess Gules charg'd with a mullet Or, betwene 3 Birds Vert. The 5[th.] is Argent, 2 Barrs wavy Azure. The 6. Gules a cross[62] Moline Or, I think Invecked. The 7. is Sable a Bend fleury[63] Argent. The 8. is Azure a fess ^^^ Ermin, between 6 Cross Crosslett Argent*. The 9. is Azure a Chief Argent chargd with 3 chapletts of Roses Gules. The 10. is Argent a fess, betwene 6 floredelices Sable. The 11. is Ermin on a Canton Gules an […][64] Or pierc'd of the field. And the 12. is the same with the first, under which are these figures – 1613.

[Machell's Notes: II.176

*three & thre.

[II.177]

{Bellingham with Burnaside ut infra}
24. In the Bow window in small Quarryes are these Coates of Armes [see figure below]. Sc. 1. Bellingham – Argent, 3 bugles Sable tiped Lined & Tassled Or (N.B. which differ from all the foregoing Bearings) ~~and on one is writt~~ Impaleing Argent 3 Bars.
25. and a Chanto[65] Gules chargd with a Lyon Rampant Argent. And on one side is writ Bellingham, on the other Burnaside.

{With Salkeld}
26. The 2. is Bellingham as aforesaid, Quartering Burnaside (~~which I calld before Levins, till I saw this: ergo Qu~~) Impaleing Azure frette Argent – On the one side of which is writ Beling[ham]. On the other Salkeld.

{With Barburne}
27. The 3. is Bellingham quarterly \ ut / supra – Impaleing Argent 3 chaplets of Roses seeded Or & writ &c. – sc. on the one side Bellingham & on the other side Barburn.

{With Tunstall}
28. The 4. is Bellingham ut supra Impaleing Sable 3 Combes Argent, & writ by it Tunstall.

---

[57] Written in different ink in Machell's hand, as if added later.
[58] Machell drew a small rectangle after this word.
[59] Machell's execution of 'JE' is overwritten and blotted but William Nicolson rendered it clearly when he wrote in his diary on 20 Sept. 1702/3, 'In the great Dineing-Room at Levens (and the Lodgeing-Room at the end, where I lay) are the Bellingham Arms with their matches with the Fords &c. in Glass, & well carved in wood, with this motto. – Ainsi il est si je nestoy, 1595. The Crest a Buck's Head, and, in one place, two Stags supporters.' See Bishop of Barrow-in-Furness [Henry Ware], 'Bishop Nicolson's Diaries, Part II', CW2, (1902), 155-230, at 208. Translation: 'So it is as if I'm not there.'
[60] Here Machell drew a chevron symbol.
[61] The rest of this comment is obscured by the binding.
[62] This has been drawn as a cross-crosslet.
[63] Here Machell placed a tiny sketch.
[64] Here Machell placed a small sketch of a shield.
[65] Canton.

{With Gilpine}
29. The 5 &c. ~~is or~~ \ Impaleing / Or a Bore passant Sable, & writt by it Gilpine.

{With Beck?}
27. The 6 Bell[ingham] &c. – Impale[ing] [Blank] & writ by it Becke. But the armes are faln out.

{With Sandford}
28. The 7. is Bellingham &c. Impaleing Sandford, as in the Glass before at fig. 21 & writ – Bell[ingham] &c. Sa\n/dford.

Figure 2.7.11. Figures illustrating text. II.177.

{With Salkeld}
29. The 8. is Bellingham &c. – Impaleing Argent a frett Gules \ charg'd with a / Chiefe Azure – Quartering the Lyon Rampant Argent debruised of more than 3[66] \ billets / Gules, in a field Azure. But no name writ.[67]

30.}
31.} Over the 2 Dooers in it, are cutt in wood, Bellingham Quartering Burnyside.

32. And over the Chimney Piece – 1. The Royal Arms with Lyon & Dragon for supporters – & these fig[ures] 1595.

33. – 2ly. The Coate Crist & Motto AINSI. IL EST.[68]

34. – 3. Bellingham Quartering Burnaside, the Same Crist & motto & 2 Stags for Supporters.

35. – Bellingham with quartering ut Ante[69] = Impaleing as at fig. 22. SI JE NESTOY.

[II.178]

In the N[orth] Servants Hall in stone Lintal over the chimney and above in wainscot, Bellingham quartering in the 2 place; the frett & Chiefe 3. Burnishead – 4. a Lyon Rampant.

[66] Here, Machell sketched a rectangle.
[67] But he has written 'Salkeld' in the margin.
[68] Partly blotted.
[69] As before.

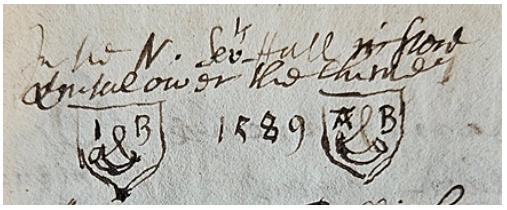

Figure 2.7.12. Bellingham coat of arms in wainscot. II.178.

Collonell James Graham \ Privy Purse to King James 2 / Brother to Sir Richard Graham of Netherby in Cumberland, Baronet & afterwards Created Lord Preston by King James the 2nd upon his Returne from an Embassy in France. Beareth Or on a Chiefe Sable Thre Escallop Shels of the first (charged with Ulsters Armes in the fess) & with his distinction for a younger Brother.[70] They are said to descend of a Second Son of the Earle of Monteith in Scotland, who about the Time of King Henry 4. maryed the Lady Ann Vere, daughter to the Earle of Oxford:[71] Bloomes Guillam.[72]

[II.179]

[Under Levins]

Figure 2.7.13. 'Under Levins Hall'. II.179.

[Notes]
[On sketch] Alter this side*.[73]
Mary Preston = Lord Montgomery.
Arms at Under Levins Hall {N.B. These may all be be don in 2 Rows of 5 a piece The key head say it belongd to Brigs or Redman!}

[70] Graham/Grahme, of Levens: see above, II.163.
[71] 'Though Malise, earl of Monteith, is said by some authorities to have married, first, Ann Vere, daughter of Henry, earl of Oxford (see Wood's Douglas' Peerage, vol. ii. p. 228), there was never, however, an earl of Oxford called Henry … All that is positively known of his wife or wives is … it appears that his widow was called Marion …' Sir Harris Nicolas, History of The Earldoms of Strathern, Monteith, and Airth (London and Edinburgh, 1842), 25-26.
[72] John Guillim, A Display of Heraldry (London, 1610). Enlarged editions were published by Jacob and Richard Blome after the author's death in 1621, e.g. John Guillim, A Display of Heraldrie… The fourth Edition… Printed by T. R. for Jacob Blome (London, 1660). In this volume, Vere or de Vere appears on 7, 9-10, 176; on the last of which is the comment, 'The Boare hath been much honoured by being the crest of an Earle, which seemeth to be given to the House of Vere, because Verres is the name of a Boare in Latine.'
[73] See the asterisk to the right of the sketch.

Arms at Under Levins Hall
In the Dineing Roome there:

Figure 2.7.14A & 14B. Arms at Nether Levens Hall. II.179.

[Under Fig 4.]
The 2 Argent, a Black Ram Pas. S. Horn'd & hoof'd Or. On a Chief of the 2nd garbs of the 3rd.
1. Is Prestons. Sc. Argent 2 Barrs Gules: on a Canton of the 2nd a Cinquefoile Or, pierced of the 1t.
2. Preston ut supra. & Curwen which is Quarterly; in the 1t & 3rd Argent a fret Gules. Over all a chiefe Azure. In the 2nd & 4th Azure a Lyon Rampant Argent. Debrus'd of a Billet Gules as in Upper Levens
3. Is Preston, & the Impaleing broke out.
4. Is Preston Impaleing Preston of Bi'ans (a younger house) who bear in the 2nd & 3rd Quarter Argent; A Ram passant S[able], Arm'd and hoofed Or.[74]
5. The same with the 4th in the ~~great green~~ Ladyes chamber or Withdrawing Roome. In a smal Quarry.[75]
6. The same with the 1t.

[74] Bi'ans could be Biggins i.e. the Preston Family of Biggins Kirkby Lonsdale: see AWL, 238.
[75] This paragraph is repeated in the right-hand margin.

7. Preston Impaleing Thornburrow who beareth Ermin Frettè & chiefe Gules.
8. Preston Impaleing Readman, who beareth Gules: three Cushions Ermin, Buttoned and Tassaled Or. If they be not Rather Pillows. Concerneing which add the account which Guillam hath published of the occasion of this Coate of Arms at p. 228. If it be not already added elsewhere.
9. {?} Preston Impaleing Bradley who beareth \ a fess / between 3 cross cross[l]ets fitche S[able] which as I remember is in the Hall window: As also
10. {?} Preston Impaleing Curwen as in the (2nd above) But with this Difference That the 1t & 4th Quarters are Freettè. Which gives us occasion to q? farther into this Coate.

{Descent of the Hall}
This Hall did antiently belong to the Readmans, as tis reported, & may partly appear from the Coate of Armes in the Roome which is called the Green Chamber.[76] Of whom they say there were Three sister, one whereof was maryed to {or had} Heston Leathes. Another to Upper Levins, & the 3r. This – {de quo Qu?}[77]

[II.181

Epitaph to an unknown lady

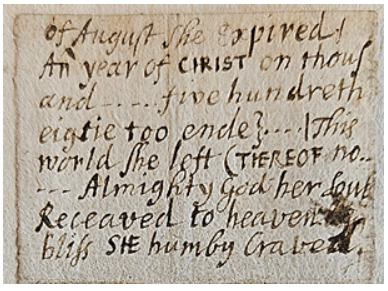

Figure 2.7.15. Slip of paper 4cm square: epitaph to an unknown lady who died in August 1582. II.181.

Of August She Expired |
An year of CHRIST on thous and … five hundredth eightie too ende} … | This world She left (THEREOF no …
… Almighty God her Soul
Receaved to heavenly bliss SHE humbly Craved.

[Machell's Notes: II.181]

Referenda.
Levines – A Rume Oval – & a dropping well. See MS. Y. \ Sir Daniel Fleming.[78] /
This Nether Levins came by marriage of Sir Thom. Prestons Daughter to the Lord Montgomery who sold it to Mr Preston of Dallen Tower circa 1695.[79]
{Cawmer Hall the Briggses in Crosthwate Chaple in Hersham.}[80]

[76] The Redman family owned Levens until 1562. Matthew Redman (b.1528) died without issue; his sisters (probably his co-heirs) included Matilda (d.1624) who married, 1. Christopher Irton of Threlkeld; 2. Thomas Leigh of Isel; 3. Sir Wilfrid Lawson. See CFH, 275.
[77] 'From whom was this story?'
[78] Written on paper, 15cm x 4cm, pasted to the page, reminding Machell to research Daniel Fleming's papers.
[79] A note, probably added, contains '98' [possibly 1698, the year Machell died] and 'I Do', plus 3 or 4 letters now illegible but possibly 'WME', followed by 'T.M.' [Thomas Machell].
[80] For the Briggs family of Cowmire Hall, see H.S. Cowper, 'The history of the house may be disposed of in a few words. It was owned by a family called Briggs, who seem to have lived there at the end of the sixteenth century, and probably built the tower. They entered a pedigree of two generations in the 1615 Visitation of

[II.183]

Sisargh

[Initial Notes]
{Siserge – The Descent of the Man[or] – Mr S. Strickland marriage & Dower – Marq[uess] & Richmond Foe.}
The Stricklands came from Micle Strickland, \ & / Little Strickland Melkinthorp \ Hall in / Morland. And maryed here with one of the Daughters of Dainecourt[81] (who give the 3 Water Budgets – perhaps it should be Par) by which they had the manner of Sisar, Lordships of Natland Sedgewick Stenton[82] & Henkister[83] on the West Side of Kent: So \ old / Mr Shepherd quondam Stuart to the family.[84]
{St James Chapl.}

Figure 2.7.16. 'Silver found About Siserge Hall 15 years since'. II.183.

Figure 2.7.17. 'Silver found there at the same time.' II.183.

Westmorland, but as the family ended in daughters, Briggs of Cawmire is heard of no more.' H.S. Cowper, 'Cawmire or Comer Hall', CW2, 1 (1901), 119-28, at 119, 122, 125-26, 127.
[81] D'Eyncourt.
[82] Stainton.
[83] Hincaster.
[84] 'Old Mr Shepherd, formerly steward to the family.'

Figure 2.7.18. 'Silver which came out of Yorkeshire perhaps from about Fountains Abby near Rippon'. II.183.

[II.185]

At Sisargh Hall
In the Dineing Roome Window. The Same with that in the Hall, at the Letter. C.[85]
And a dilicate Chimney-Piece of Wainscot with these Coates of Arms

Figure 2.7.19. Sizergh. Arms on 'a dilicate chimney piece of wainscot' in the dining room'. II.187.

The 1[t] marked (g) is Stricklands quarterly coat Impaleing a Quarterly Coate.
(h) Strickland quartering 3 Coates – Sc. 1. [Blank]
(h) Supporters & Crist as att (e.) in the Parl[our.]

{1.) Is Strickland with the said quarterings impaleing a 4[rly] Coat. Sc. 1. A bend ingraled betwixt 6 martlets.
2. A Cinquefoyle pierced betwene 8 crosses florry, the 1[t] with a Crescent charged upon it?

X. A Curiouse Chimney Piece of Carving.[86]
In the Kitchen window the same with that in the Hall marked (b).

[85] The heading and body text are superimposed upon notes made in pencil.
[86] Marked with a cross because Machell had repeated himself.

[II.187]

Figure 2.7.20. Arms in the Hall at Sizergh Castle. II.187.

In Sisergh Hall on the East Side the Hall Skreene.
N. The (a.) is in wainscot on the Hall Screene.
(b). In the 1. window on the East Side of the Hall.
(c). On that side also. In the next
(d). is of Canvas set in a frame, which hangs against the wall above the wainscot, behind the End Table & gives us the colours.

(a.) Not in colours but Blazoned below at ~~fig~~ d.
(b.) A Quarterly Coate the 1[t] & 4[th] Argent a Fess Danse inter 9 Billets, 3. above 3. & 2. Below, Sable, by the name of [Blank] The 2[nd] & 3[rd]. Sable 3 Escallops Argent by the Name of Strickland which is Quartered by the former = Impaleing Or a Fess of iiij Fusils Azure by the name of [Blank]
(c.) The same Quarterly Coate with (b.) Impaleing another Quarterly Coate whereof the 1[t] and third is [Blank] Thre Gorges or water-budgets – by the name of [Blank] Quartering in the 2 & 3[rd] Argent, 2 Barrs Azure the Higher charged with a mullet of the 1[t]. \ But note those in Par C. are in a B[ordure] [invected].[87]
(d.) Quarterly. The 1 & 2[nd] as above (onely 9 billets) The 3 Gules on a Saltier Argent a Mullet Sable The 4?

[Funeral Escutchion]
There is an Escutchion from som \ funeral / Sc. Azure a lyon Rampant Gardant betwene xi [cross crosslets] Argent langued &c. Gules.[88]

[Chimney Piece]
(e.) In the Parlour is a Curiouse Bold well carved Chimney Piece of noble foliage, better than I was able to describe, being so much in haiste: and in the Midle this Coate of Armes.

[87] Here, Machell drew a series of small semicircles with the points turned inwards.
[88] The cross crosslets are represented by a symbol.

Figure 2.7.21. Detail of the parlour chimney piece (e); arms under a window of the tower (f). II.187.

(e.) Strickland and his Quarterings as at a. & d. iiij times over in the 4 Chiefe Quarters alias Stricklands Quarterly Coate, Quartered.
(f.) Stricklands quarterly Coate & Crist in stone; under the second window of the great Tower, which is on your Right-hand as you enter into the house.

[II.190A][89]

Crosthwate Chapl in Hersham Parish

{[Notes] Thors 17 day Oct. 91}
There is one chappelry called Crosthwate-Chappel.
It hath an handsom square tow[er] and 3 Bells in it. / \ quier leaded. /
[Length of body] 20 [breadth] 8; [length and breadth of quire] 8.[90]

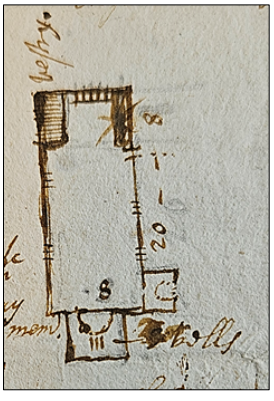

Figure 2.7.22. Plan of Crosthwate Chapel. II.190A.

{2. Bounder}
It is bounded on East with the Chappelry of Hutton; South with Heversham – the Mother Church; West with the Chapelry of Cartmell Fell; [91] N. with the Chapelry of Underbarrow, from which divided by Winsterbeck.

[89] II.190A consists of a full-sized page, bound in at right angles to the volume. It has been heavily overwritten with paragraphs woven through one another, and is a fine example of Machell's handwriting at its most obscure…
[90] Measurements taken from the sketch of the chapel.
[91] This is St Anthony's: built as a chapel of ease to Cartmel c.1504 to fulfil the will of Anthony Knipe (d.1500). See Hyde & Pevsner, 273.

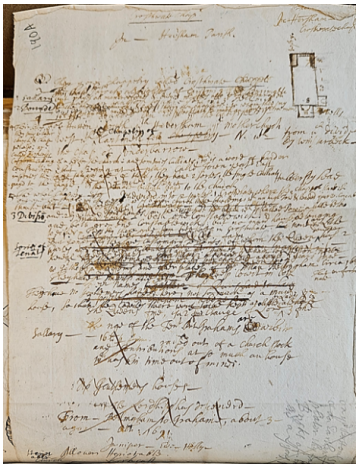

Figure 2.7.23. Example of Machell's MS. II.190A.

{3. Sallary}
This chapel hath Parochial rights of Cristening & ~~of~~ Buriing &c. But payes all manner of dues & dutyes with sesses[92] also, for Reparation to the Mother Church, & finds their own Chaplaine; to whom they pay 16li per Annum raised out of a Church Stock and contributions at so much an house which has bin time out of minde.[93]

{4.} [Culliats]
Their sesses whereof they pay to their church & chappel also are called Kirk Casts (from casting of a Sess for the church. And sometimes Culliats, which is a word of harder construction but begining at a place calld Town Yeat \ from the Ch. ¼ mile thence / imports the same thing; and of these they have 2 Sortes: the Single Culliat payd to the chapel, & the double Culliat payd to the church.[94]

{5. The whol Chappelry}
To which divided into 2 partes. 1. Crosthwate where the chapel standeth, and 2ly, Lithe; but one Constablewick and but 1 Lordship, where is a fair church-like building with a high Tower & leaded quire Circa 60f.

{Division; Sortes of tenants}
Both are one Constablewick; but no manner house to either. They say there are som freeholds in Crosthwate, not any in Lithe.[95] Som \ 24 / houses on the west side the beck {a little below}, which is calld Powe. But generally they are Customary Tenants of whom the Queen \ douger[96] / has 2 Partes.[97]
They keep Court in both. They have 2 Stuarts.
They have no Gentlemens houses here, not so much as a manner house, so that the Courtes were wont to be kept at a little ale house. The Queens Fine is a 2^{d} fine [on] change of Lord; 3^{d} Fine [on] change of the Tenant but Grahams are Arbitrary. All over, Heriotable.
The Lordship descended from Bellingham to Grahame, about 3 agoe – Oct. 1691.

---

[92] Assessments. OED.
[93] One of two matching sentences referring to the salary per annum; the second has been omitted.
[94] In the margin Machell has written, 'Hubbersty Head'.
[95] MS: 'They say ~~Crosthw. Vel capel~~ there are som freeholds in Crosthwate ~~but~~ no~~n~~t any \ in / Lithe.'
[96] Dowager.
[97] Here, several scored through lines are almost illegible (see Figure 2.7.23). One line refers to a sale 'of Levins and other places by Mr Allan Bellingham circa 1689, that unfortunate… purchased about 3 yeares since … Mr James Graham', a reference to the sale of Levens Hall. This last sentence was reprised at the page foot.

[Rarities]
{Juniper ewe holly}
{On the Bottome […] of an Earthen plater this fragment.}
{Bricks a foot broad with a Lyons paw.}[98]

[II.191]

Calmire }
Cawmer} Hall[99]

Figure 2.7.24. Calmire Hall. 'Old Ivy Building'. II.191.

Belonged to one Bierly who sold it to Henry Nuby, father of William Nuby the present proprietor.[100]

Arms in the Hall

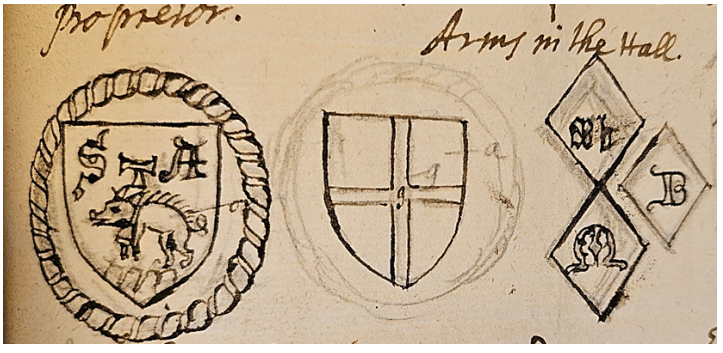

Figure 2.7.25. Arms containing 'wantaracks' at Calmire Hall. II.191.

In the Clay Roome windows are Escutchions in Glass – one with these letters [see Figure 2.7.27.] in Chiefe; the M. & B. in yallow, the wantarack[101] in black; & a man in yellow with a Pike Staff on his right shoulder & a whip in his left hand driving 4 Pack Horses. In anothe[r], I.B. in Chief & a spining wheal with cardings – & a Basket with wool & hand cards Or. In several other quarries M⚘B,[102] another sort of wantarack.

[98] The last two sentences were written in pencil on a corner of the paper; they clearly belong with comment on Roman antiquities elsewhere in the volume.
[99] Cowmire (or Cawmire) Hall.
[100] For Bierly, see Machell's Itinerary, Part 2, Ch.10, II.398; see also Part 2, Ch.4, Beetham, II.271.
[101] 'Wantarack' appears to be a name for a merchant's mark, i.e. an emblem or other distinctive figure or device adopted by a merchant and placed on the goods sold by him (in the Middle Ages often used as a quasi-heraldic symbol, e.g. on seals or monuments). OED.
[102] The symbol chosen here merely approximates to that in Machell's sketch, see Figure 2.7.28., 'another sort of wantarack.'

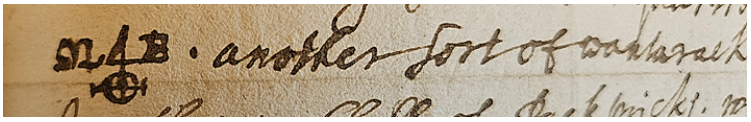

Figure 2.7.26. Calmire Hall. 'Another sort of wantarack'. II.191.

In another, a Shaff[103] of Pack pricks,[104] which \ shews / by what trade he inriched himselfe.

[Machell's Notes: II.191]

{Winster. q. of Mr Rich. Dixon.}
? Sold the Tenants free. Will Nubyes wife sayes shee thinks it belongd to Crosthwate & Lithe; an that the people thereabouts go[e]th both to Crosthwate and Car[t]mel Chapel. But q. if they bury there?[105]

[II.85][106]

Croscrake in Hersham

ab [Ecclesia] 3m. S. & by East; where the minister is Mr Farmer.[107] {Families} about 40 and above. Crosthwaite.
{Croscrake is [also] 1 or 2 houses in Staneton}
Ward [blank]
[Chapel] Long 9, broad 5 but has bin much longer. No bell.

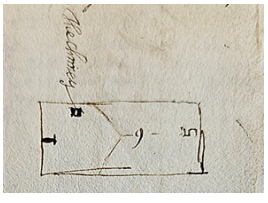

Figure 2.7.27. Crosscrake Chapel. 'The chimney is made in the corner, yard long in the lintal – which lyes a yard high, & a yard above that the funnel goes out'. II.85.

{Sallary} None, nor prayers read. Thomas Wells, master. John Hinde aetat 79.[108]
50 well fac'd children.
1. No dedication.
2. Once a bell. But now none. Nor place for a bell. The bell sold to make a school house, repard 8 years since by a contribution. Ruind in the Civil Wars. They gave 12d per annum.
[3.] No quire. No seates.

[Bounder]
Bounded on the East with Preston Chapelry; South, the parochial church; on the North with Natland Chapelry; on the West side with Sisars Chapelry.
It is a Constablewick: one Constablewick, one Lordship – if it be not the same with Sizars and a member of it. The [tenants] were customary under Sir Thomas Strickland of Sizar & payed Rent, fine [103] 'Shaf(f)': sheaf or bundle. OED.

[104] Pack prick: a skewer, probably made of wood; it secured the pack cloth in which goods were wrapped. Yorkshire Historical Dictionary. Online.
[105] The next page contains at its foot a number of faded notes written in pencil. Almost all are illegible.
[106] Also numbered p.25.
[107] George Farmer. Trinity College, Cambridge, 1683; Pembroke, 1684; Matric. Trinity, 1685; Scholar, 1687; B.A. 1687-8; M.A. 1691. Priested (Lincoln) 1689. V. of Heversham, 1691-1724; buried at Heversham, 7 Feb., 1723-4: Ancestry.co.uk. Cambridge University Alumni, 1261-1900. In 1696, Farmer signed the Anti-Jacobite 'Association' for the protection of William III: Kendal Indictment Book, 1692-1724, in John F. Curwen (ed.), Records Relating to the Barony of Kendale III, CWAAS Record Series 6 (Kendal, 1926), 222-33.
[108] James Hinde was one of Machell's informants, see II.174.

service & heriots. But purchasd the fee simple at 60 years purchass, according to their annual, to a peppercorn upon demand.

{Tythes}
Tythe Corne to Siser in dry stooke – som payes hay money for their board – i.e. Bottom Meadow, nothing for the rest, & the Hay money of these that doe pay to the vicar. 4d c[h]urching. Strickland farmd of Trinity College. But now the lease in Mrs Dalton.

{Castlehead} On the back of Natland a Capel[la] almost 1m. N.

{Fuel}Peates which they call also turves. Limestone all over. Gravel enough.

Som wildcats, & marts of both sortes.
In the Strickland of Sizars time out of minde.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 8. The Parish of Kirkby Lonsdale]

[II.199]

[A.] {N[otes] Generales an Divis. Kirkby L.}

{Sat. July 1692}
Manner 1. Kirkby Loansdal. Sir Joh. L[owther].[1] Kirk[by] Court Leet & Court Baron.
2. Lupton \ Lordship. / Sir C. Musg[rave][2]
3. L[ordship] Hutton. Parke H\ouse. / Sir Thomas Wentworth.
4. Mansergh \ Lordship. / Mr Tho. Godsalve.[3]
5. Barbon. Sir Rich[ard] Shotleworth.[4]
6. Casterton. Queen Dowager.[5]
7. Midleton \? Jo[hn] Hebleth & thwate & James Crag. By marriage Midletons.[6]

II.200

[1.] {ad Kirk[by Lonsdale]}

Free Stone out of Lancashire at Sellet ½ m. S. Great Store of Walling Stone & lime; Gray Slate from Gragarth – by the County Stone {ad Casterton} E. ab Ecclesia – 1[7] mile – in Casterton q[uery]?
Plenty of peat all over the parish
Som wild cats, Badgers & foxes. Otters.
Wild Ducks bread on the Mosses. Bitters bread on Kirkby Moore[8] – Squirrel & Hedhogs plenty.
{K[irkby] [pays] Boone hens & 1[d] a Cock – Plowing Harrowing & Shearing formerly.}
Chaplanes admitted without the Vicars hands, who approves or rejects.

[II.199]

The Town & Lordship of Kirkby-L. or Manner of K.L. consistes of [9]
[1.] K[irkby Lonsdale] 60 f[amilies] {a library in that church} {Mr John Briggs Vic.}[10]
[2.] Upper Biggins \ S.W. ½ m. Lower Biggin[s] \ ¼ Ibidem. 10 f[amilies] both Hamlets.
Biggins \ Hall / in Upper Biggins is the manner house {one of these belongd to the Applegarthes 2 or 300 years agoe & was lately sold to?}
[3.] Tearne Side W. 1m. – 13 f[amilies] – a Chappel there formerly. Man[or[house] Underley Hall – & Far Underley – Mr Wilson {Wild cherries in the fields.} Flags[11] in Ternside.
[4.] Kestwick N.W. 1m. f[amilies] 25 & Dane\s/Biggins hall.
[5.] Spittle – which payes no Tithe.

---

[1] Sir John Lowther (1655-1700) of Lowther, 2nd baronet: see Part 1, Ch.15, Lowther, I.725C.
[2] Sir Christopher Musgrave (1631-1704) of Edenhall.
[3] Thomas Godsalve bought the manor of Mansergh some time before 1664. On his death in 1696 it passed to his son Thomas Godsalve of Rigmaiden, gent. https://www.british-history.ac.uk/kendale-barony/vol2/pp374-397.
[4] The manor of Barbon was held by the Barbon family from the late 12th century, descending by marriage to the Lascelles family by 1239. In the mid-15th century it passed by marriage to the Pickering family whose heir Francis Vaughan held it into the later 16th century. By 1588 it was held by Sir Richard Shuttleworth of Gawthorpe. 'Interim Draft history of Barbon': https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/township/barbon.
[5] Charles II gave the Richmond and Marquis Fees (including the larger part of the township of Casterton) to his wife, Catherine of Braganza. In 1669 she granted a 96-year lease to Edward Wilson of Park House, Burrow (later of Nether Levens), on condition that Edward's three sons should still be alive at the end of that period. See N&B1, 249-50.
[6] See Machell's Itinerary, Part 2, Ch.10, II.385.
[7] This numeral is almost covered by the binding; it could equally well read as '7'. The distance from Casterton to Kirkby Lonsdale is 2.2 modern miles, according to Google Maps.
[8] 'Bitterns breed on Kirkby Moor.'
[9] Near this line, a separate phrase gives, 'a large & [blank]'. Presumably, Machell was referencing one large settlement and several smaller ones in the lordship.
[10] John Briggs of Lancaster entered Peterhouse, Cambridge, in1666, aged 18; he migrated to Clare College in 1667; took his B.A. in 1669/70; was made deacon,1670; priested, 1671. He was preferred to the rectory of Heysham, but was deprived for simony in 1674. He was then presented to Kirkby Lonsdale (2 Nov. 1676) on the death of Henry Hoyle, the previous incumbent. See R.P. Brown, 'The Vicars of Kirkby Lonsdale', CW2, 29 (1929), 166-92, at 188 . See also below, II.261.
[11] Flagstones.

[II.208][12]

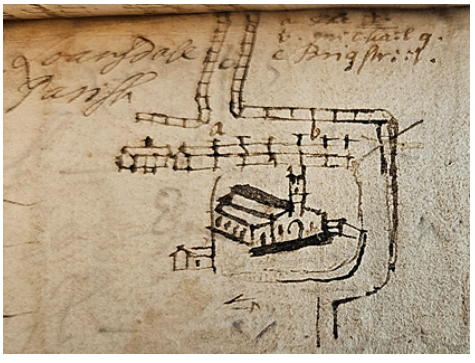

Figure 2.8.1. 'Kirkby Loansdale Church, Michael gate and Brigg Street.' II.208.

Kirkby Loansdale Church. Parish. Charter. Schoole. Cross. Gibbet.
a. The †
b. Michael g[ate]
c. Brig Street
q. of Mr Brigs where his fire stone was found. The farmer at Midleton says sulphur will do the like.

[II.202]

{Kirkby Manner}
A Court Leet & Barron. Waifes & Strayes. The Baly for the Time being Corroner: electing & swearing their Constables & all other officer.

[V.53]

Deans Biging was the old Manner house; & now held with the Demane Lands by Free Tenent. The Lord[ship] formerly in the Caruses – Then Curwens tis thought by marriage – Then Witheringtons by marriage – Then to Preston of Howkar[13] by purchase – Then to Lowther of Lowther by ~~marriage~~ \ purchase / about 20 year agoe.

[II.202]

Abbots-Hall belongs to the College[14] and is said to be a Priviledged place. \ It stands at the S. East corner of the church yard, an ordinary house. /[15]

Ten[ures]: Som Free, som Copy, some Customary at fine Arbitrary - & som of them Heriotable.

A moat of water near the vic[arage] 100 yards ab Ecclesia. N[ow] calld – Castle hill & said to be cast up as a Defence against Scottish Invasion. {& a little below this nearer the water standeth the School which is a good Building 2 stories high & kept very neat by Mr Farran or [Far]rer the Schoolmaster there.}[16]

Terribanke Tarne {L[ength] 2ce. xii score;[17] b. 12, Sc. Broade.} Reported that Brass & P[…][18] were found); ab Ecclesia 2m. N.W.

---

[12] On the right side of this page, pencilled text in pencil has been overwritten and is now illegible.
[13] Holker, Cartmel.
[14] Trinity College, Cambridge.
[15] An additional sentence, written in different ink. Presumably, Abbot Hall was seen as an ordinary dwelling rather than an 'ordinary house', which in the 17th century referred to a drinking house regarded as a step-up from the common ale house. See Anna Groundwater, 'Ben Jonson's Walk', University of Edinburgh, 15 July 2013: https://www.blogs.hss.ed.ac.uk/ben-jonsons-walk; see also OED.
[16] According to Machell, the name of the schoolmaster at Kirkby Lonsdale was 'Farrer'. Two people of this name appear in this chapter: Joseph Farrer and S. Farrer. Both acted as Machell's informants, their names recurring regularly throughout.
[17] Length: twice 12 score = 480; breadth: 12 score = 240.
[18] The word is obscured by the binding.

Terribanke Tarne (& Burrow beyond Leun),
Were the 2 farest cityes in all Xt Doome.[19]

Troutes (Eales) large, at the head of Underleigh beck (& by Keastwick). Un[der]leigh hall is on the N. side.
Kirkby [town] & Lordship, Casterton, Lupton, Barbon & Mansor. ~~Close~~ \ And / Churchwardens here, being 7, & com to the Mother Church.[20]

[II.203]

Here in this Parish They call a Conjurer a Scoomer, or Corruption perhaps of Schemer.[21]

[II.204][22]

[Monuments]
An Altar above a yard high, dig'd up in a Banck call'd Abbots Brow adjoyneing the N. East Side of the Church-yard, circa 1684, & now lying in the High Street for a Seat at a Doore.

Figure 2.8.2. Altar at Kirkby Lonsdale, used as a door seat. II.204.

Memorandum. There is a Stone like an Altar \ lately / set up on the Bridge,[23] with a Dial upon it, & an Inscription upon the Three Sides. Which that they may not amase men hereafter.[24]

KIRKBY L | FEAR GOD. HO | LOANSD
WARD | NOVR YE KING | AL WARD[25]

See more in my Papers [sent] to Dr Mil.[26]

[19] Christendom.
[20] A scribbled note at the page foot.
[21] Conjuror: one who practises conjuration; one who conjures spirits and pretends to perform miracles by their aid; a magician, wizard. OED.
[22] Text on this page is in landscape form, in 3 columns.
[23] Known as the Devil's Bridge. In 2010, Historic England described it as 'one of the finest medieval bridges in England' https://historicengland.org.uk/listing/the-list/list-entry/1086899?section=official-list-entry)
[24] Amase or amuse? Because of Machell's formation of 'a' and 'u', this sentence could equally well read, 'that they may not amuse men hereafter'.
[25] 'Kirkby L. Ward. Fear God & Honour ye King. Loansdal Ward'. In 2010, Historic England transcribed the sundial's inscription as, 'N: CONSTABL C: LONSDALE WAR'; 'FEARE GOD HONER THE: 1673'.
[26] For Kirkby Lonsdale antiquities and Dr Mill, see Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, VI.257.

Figure 2.8.3. Carus with Curwen descent. V.53.

[II.205A]

[Notes on Wilson of Underley]
(No Armes that I know of ~~of~~ (& Dug[dale] has disclamed them sed […][27] Yet I saw an Escutcheon which they had assumed at one of their funeralls – Sc. Argent! A wolf (Rampant) Sable with a flordeluce in Chiefe G[ules]. Inter 2 O[28] Azure), which I only mention as a Private memorandum but will take no notice at all of Armes where I know there are none.[29]

[II.205B][30]

Wilson of Underley. Never heard of.[31]
Edward W. of Kirkby yeoman & as of
1. Thomas Wilson (of ~~Helm End~~ Kerkby) = Margaret B. of Steabankes & had for her portion Helm End. Sister to Wilsons wife of Dallam Tower.
Henry Wilson Just[ice] of Pea[ce], to whom Mr Henry Wilson of the Blackwell Hall Company gave Underley. He dyd […][32]

[27] 'But …'. The following word has been obscured by the binding.
[28] The circle drawn here suggests 'annulets'.
[29] Machell was disdainful of those whose arms were suspect: see Editor's Introduction.
[30] A group of very rough notes, difficult to interpret, written on a small scrap of paper. See Figure 2.8.4.
[31] A revealing statement, given the importance of the Wilsons in the town of Kendal, see fn.32, below.
[32] For the Wilsons: kin of 'the rich clothier of Underley', see R. Percival Brown, Edward Wilson of Nether Levens (1557-1653) and his kin, CWAAS Tract Series 12 (Kendal, 1930), 3ff. Black Hall (69. Stricklandgate) is Edmond of Wor[…]par in Yorkeshire.

Thomas Wilson = Jane, daughter of Miles Penington of Seat[on]. Esq.[33]
Thomas Miles.[34]

[II.208]

H. Wilson of Underley buried the 29 May 1684.

Figure 2.8.4. Machell's use of small scraps of paper. II. 205B.

[II.202]

[2.] {Lupton}

A Lordship – N.W. ab Ecclesia 2m. Stragling. It comes to the Church [at Kirkby Lonsdale] and are nearer to it then any Chapel.
Thomson Houses }2 f.
Lupton Row } [In all:] 56 f[amilies.]
? Mr Thom. Heblethwate is to informe of Fellowships & Exhib[itions] Given by one Lupton.
1. Hall Lupton Hall – belong to the Huttons (by Purchase From?). Richard Hutton Barrister at Law the last owner of it.
Tenants – Now in Sir Xt. Musgrave by Gift from Mr Hutton.
Lupton Moor. Juniper.
Lupton Tarne – ab aula ½ m. N.W. A smal Tarne affording large Round Troutes shaped like a maccrel & read like a char – 1 foote long.[35]

[II.199]

[3.] Hutton Roofe[36]

20[37] f[amilies] an Hal. & Newbiging \ Ham[let] a Capella N. 1m. / 8 f[amilies.]
Se\a/lford. A single h[ouse] a Capella N.E. 1m.
Winyeates. 4 or 5 f[amilies] 1m.½ N.W.

{Hutton Chaple had 6 li per Annum Chaple Stock. Capella. Manerij.[38] Now 4 or 5 li. Manner house.}
{Hotton is a Chapelry and a Lordship, & Parkhouse is said to be the manner house, which belongd to a 16th-century building. In 1575 it was the home of Henry Wilson, First Alderman (Kendal's equivalent of mayor), https://www.lancaster.ac.uk/quakers/links/kendal_black_hall.html. In the City of London, the Blackwell Hall Company was the national centre of the wool and cloth trade; here, cloth manufacturers and clothiers from the provinces brought their material to sell to merchants and drapers. See Machell's Itinerary, Part 2, Ch.10, II.413. See also N&B1, 248.

[33] For the Penningtons of Seaton see CFH, 259.

[34] There is an interesting but almost illegible comment here: 'q. How he was an [...] a poore boy not worth 40s.' R.P. Brown, discusses discrepancies in the interpretation of the Wilson family history in Edward Wilson of Nether Levens and his kin, 3 ff.

[35] Many fish found in UK waters are round fish, i.e. cylindrical – round in the centre of their body, tapering to a tail. Examples include cod, bass, whiting, pollack, mackerel, red mullet, gurnard, bream, trout. https://www.directseafoods.co.uk/fish-glossary/round-fish/.

[36] MS: '{Hutton Roofe ~~& Casterton~~}'.

[37] The numeral '2' has a circular blotted shape next to it: possibly the numeral '0'?

[38] 'Chapel of the manor.'

the Prestons of the Manner in Lancashire,[39] & now – by marriage of 2 to coheires – part to the Lord Montgomery. It formerly belongd to Judge Carus {Temp Ed. 6. [1547-53], & was purchasd to the Prestons \ & Bellinghams. / No Armes in.

The upper part of the parke belongs \ now / to Sir Thomas Wentworth – which he had in marriage with Mistress Elizabeth, daughter of Sir \ Hen[ry] Bellingham. & was purchased {by Bellingham of Rig[maden], who purchased of Miles Man.} The ~~other~~ \ nether / park is \ the E[arl] of / Montgomery – which came to them by Prestons d[aughter].
{Spittle – an house in Hutton a Capella 1m. ~~SW~~ N. – for wid[40] – payes no Tithe.}
{Tenants}The Tenants have purchased [blank]
{Sir John & all [the tenants] are the (Kings) Queens Tenants.}
The Tenants are all Free[holders] & have bin time out of mind.

[Rarities]
{The fl[umen] Kear[41] sp[rings] in Cowan Moss, a Capella S. 1m. [and runs] by Borick hal in Lancashire & into the Sea at Warton Sands.}
Good flags. Troughs[42] & Hewn Stone & Lee stone[43] a Capella 1m. S.W.
Hanging Stone[44] 3 yards diameter; not half a yard Bass.[45] S. west side of chapel.
Cole at Casterton, a Capella 3m. East. Colepit Hills [belong] to the K[ing].

[4.] {Lordship Mansergh}

Mansergh belongd as tis said to the family of that name; after was in Brownsword & Symson of Kendal by marriage of [Blank] & purchasd of them lately by Mr Tho. Godsalve, a merchant. The Tennants all fineable, & some Heriotable[46] & som Freehold Estates.
No manner house – a place calld Rigmaden hall & wood where there are mart and Goates.[47]
It belong formerly to the Wards – moriâ.[48]

{Rarityes}
In 7 Acres Close, being the vicars, & places adjoyneing upon Limestone ground {S. ab Ecclesia 11sc[ore]} ar cast up in molehills pieces of Transparent Stone of Several Shapes – Cutt like Diamonds – & are so Hard as to Cutt Glass: white. {A shilvering stone only, with shinie partickles in it.} {This is only Spar, a mark of Lead Ore.}[49]
Large fresh museles calld Horse Muss about (Rigmaden) {3m. N. ab Ecclesia.}
{Raspberryes all over & Curraberryes Generally.}

[39] MS: 'Hotton is a Chaple is a Lordship (~~& no more in it~~) ~~Sir Thomas Wentworth Lord~~ & Parkhouse is \ said / the manner house, which belongd to the Prestons of the Manner in Lancashire.'
[40] Widows?
[41] River Keer.
[42] This word could be 'throughs', with a missing 'h'.
[43] Limestone?
[44] There is a field called Hanging Stone near Kirkby Lonsdale: see Westmorland Place-Names. Alternatively, hanging 'coal' is a common type of coal, Joseph Wright, The English Dialect Dictionary 3 (London, 1898-1905), 53.
[45] Bass: a miner's term for dark coloured shale; a form of impure coal. OED. See also Robert Plott, Natural History of Staffordshire (Oxford, 1686), iii. 131: 'Bass or freestone above, and Ironston or earth, below.'
[46] One illegible word has been crossed through here.
[47] References to the presence of goats appear twice on this page.
[48] Moriâ: post-classical Latin for folly or foolishness. In medicine: impairment of the intellectual faculties; mental dullness; retardation. OED.
[49] Two margin comments have been added in different ink. The word 'shilvering' can be traced to 'shelyng' and 'shelyng'/'shelving stone', dialect words for a type of blue slate. See Wright, English Dialect Dictionary 5, 376-77, 385. The other comment says that the rock is only spar.

[II.201]

{L[ordship] Mansergh. V[u]lgo Manser.}
An Hamlet which on the N. side the [town of Kirkby Lonsdale].
F[amilies]. In all circa 30 fam[ilies]? & Manserge houses V. f[amilies]
{Manser Hall freehold […];[50] but no m[anor]}
{Wid[ows]?}
Manner House: Rigmaden Hall \ Mr Godsalve there Lord – 3 or 4 freehold, the rest Customary, no heriots. Boones.
Nether Hall \ ad / Cooke, Vintner. Freehold.
Hegham Hall (John Andland, Jo. Walker).
Great horse matches at Blackbrow in Manser a Rigmaden ¼ S.E.[51]

[5.] Barbon

[Barbon Well & Holms Well]
Within Barbon Libertyes at the Lords Seate is a well cald Barbon well (by som Dent well & Makeber well[52] from a M[ountain] of that name out of which it springs) belonging to Barbon, a Capella 5m. N & by [blank]; a Dent 3m. SW; a [Barbon] fell 3m. Has cured:
1. Scale heads – in 3 weeks.
2. A frettish, or chilness or numness like a dead palsy – occasiond by Buges[53] \ or otherwise. / George Woodhouse \ at Casterton / who could not stir his fingers \ & was ill all over, was cuered in forthnight by drinkeing & hot bathing with Linnen Raggs: John Addison of Casterton a Streain in his side with a Lift after a quarter of a year Ilness, was cured with once coming. James Fawcets wife, being very weeke & sore paind in her back for ½ a year ocasiond through childe bearing. was cured by cold bathing & drinkeing in a forthnight or less. It tastes of iron, colours stones yallow, purges & vomits. Helps Hearing.
~~Christ~~ Holms well in Holm meadow near Beckfoot cures Sore Eyes & dimness. A Capella 1m. West.

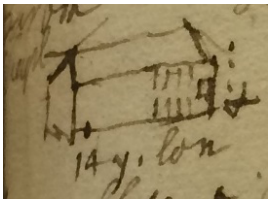

Figure 2.8.5. Barbon Chapel. II.201.

Barbon Chapl
14 y. lon[g] 4 [wide]. No Bells.

Barbon \ the East side the W[ell][54] / an Hamlet. Barbon & Beckfoot: f[amilies] 30.
& Fel House \ alijs Underbanck / 1m.½ N.E. F[amily] 1. No M[anor] H[ouse]. Anciently the Midletons,[55] & for diverse Generations to the Shutleworths of Fawcet in Yorkeshire. Purchased by Shutleworth.[56]

[50] Indistinct word which might be 'Harling' i.e. roughcast.
[51] For horse racing at Mansergh, see Emmeline Garnett, 'Mansergh', in F. Edmonds and S.A. Rose (eds), The Victoria History of the Counties of England: A History of the County of Westmorland, Volume I (Martlesham, forthcoming).
[52] In Machell's MS, the letters W and M are sometimes used interchangeably. Machell is probably referring to Wakeburgh well and Wakeburgh Scar. See II.214; II.223; II.231; II.234B.
[53] Bug: an insect, as in this quotation from 1594: 'This medecine caused many times, a certaine blacke bugge, or worme to come forth which had many legs, & was quicke.' All OED.
[54] An editorial suggestion, as Machell wrote the letter, 'W' only.
[55] MS: 'Anciently the ~~Thorstats~~ the Midletons.'
[56] See Machell's Itinerary, Part 2, Ch.10, II.384.

Bar[bon] Parke = no dear in mem[ory] but \ clean & / foul marts. But d[eer] 80 years since – Fallow & read. {Applegarth pond & Close behind the Chaple on the Parke edge: i.e. no H.}[57]
Woods cut down in Barbon Parke & ~~much~~ som remaneing.
It was purchasd by Midleton, of on[e] Vernon or Vaughan \ about / 80[58] year since, but enjoyd by them a few years onely, having Borrowed money of \ Serg. / Judge Shutleworth, to whom it was Transferd. The Judge gave it his Nephew, Richard Shutleworth of Gauthorp = Barton of Barton of Gauthorp near Preston in Lancashire. {[Informant] Robert Ustinson Balive.}

Sir Richard had:
1. Rich.
2. Col Nic[olas]
3. Col. Eutred
4. Maj. Barton
5. Cap. Edw.
6. Cap. Willk[…][59] at Lancaster
7. Mr John [Blank]

Richard = [Blank]
|
[1.] Nicolas [2.] Richard = Margaret Tempest of Old Durham.
|
Sir Richard, Knight.

[Tenure]
Tenants. All fineable Arbitrary. No Heriots. Boones.
{Wid. ½. Unmarried or miscard}[60]
Free-holds ~~Jas Gibson.~~ Wid[ow] Baly. Wid[ow] Gibbnson. 6 or 7 [freeholds]
{Feoffees: Rob. Moore, Jo. Atkinson, John Bainbrig & Jos G. = Sam. Gibson, Minister: Pay a Rent to the King & Q? as h. of K.C.[61] and ancient Sallery, 3:12:0 per Annum, payd out of the Chaple Stock. & 6^{d} per ¼ in the Town & 12 out Townes & 4 meales a week.}[62]

Raspberryes
Cole on Barbon fell – 2m. E.
Brown Slate 5 m \ N & 6 / E – at Weyber. \ Turf / peets – Ibidem. 3m.

[II.200]

[6.] Casterton

Uper: ab Ecclesia 1m. \ N / E. Church. 24 f[amilies.]
Lower: ab Ecclesia 1m. E. 17 f[amilies.]
and Chapel Houses 2. f[amilies] – an Hamlet.
The Hall \ & Demane / was the Manner House [and] belongd to the Davenportes, \ then to the Bellinghams / now to Sir John Lowther by his fathers marriage with Mrs Elizabeth Bellingham. But the Lordship is in the Queen Dowager. The Tenants pay Rent & Fine Certain of 3 years – & Heriots 40^{s} by Decree in Chancery. Green hew 1d. for Spelkes & Prods.[63]

[57] This comment is written at right angles to the main text, tucked away in the left-hand margin; it has been difficult to transcribe with accuracy.
[58] Or '70': the text is unclear, the numeral '7' (or '8') having been altered.,
[59] This word has partly perished.
[60] Miscarried.
[61] The king and queen at this time were William III and Mary II; perhaps K.C. is King Charles and Machell's 'h' stands for 'heirs', underlining William and Mary's legal status.
[62] Meals for the chaplain.
[63] 'Spelk': a thatching rod. 'Prod': 'any of various pointed instruments, as a skewer, a poker etc. OED. See also, 'prod' as in 'proddle': 'to make holes in something', William Rollinson, Dictionary of Cumbrian Dialect, Tradition and Folklore (Otley, 1997), 125.

[II.223]

{Hall}
Casterton Hall is an old ruinous building, now only fit to conteine a Farmer. But formerly the Seat of Sir William Davenport, a Judge in this nation. {& lately purchased by Sir John Lowther \ and lately Baronet / of Lowther}[64]

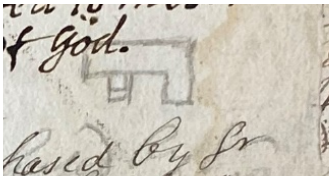

Figure 2.8.6. In the margin, sketch of Casterton Hall. II.223.

{Well}
And here I was told of a medicinal well called Dents Well, alias {Wakeber} in the very parting of Yorkeshire & Westmorland, as much frequented within memory of man as the well in Fourness is at this day,[65] but now not regarded.

[Brigs]
{Mem[orandum]. Brigs hall in Burrow now Mr Fenwick who came out of Northumberland. Col. Brigs has by his wife 15 sons and 7 daughters.}[66]

[II.216]

Burrow – is the same with Barrow in the Lancashire Dialect, which the people in Kendal participateing of, call their Brows Braws; Burrows Barrows – Inde Under Barrow, Whitbarrow, Oxenbarrow – Clea-barrow.

[II.200]

ad Casterton \ Ease/Gil kirk. East from the hall 2 mile. – see Camden.
Ginghrig Caud.

St Comes Chapl. ab Ecclesia 1 m S.E. ~~within park road~~ \ beyond Kirkby Bridge 12 score. / demolishd and gone yet bearing his name. & also calld Chappel houses – ~~and a well~~ a Sancta Columbo.[67]

[II.223]

{St Comes Chaple} in Loansdale
There is a Place call'd Chappelbeck-close on the left hand of the High way from Kirkby to London, where A~~nd~~ Chappel hath stoode. {There are 2 houses called Chappel houses at a place near unto them.} But the ground is now plowed; And a well near onto it, call'd St Collmes ~~well~~ a corruption as wee suppose of Colums and that of Columbus,[68] the [saint] in whose name {it may to have bin first of all consecrated to the Service of God.}

[II.200]

[7.] {Lordship of Midleton}

Midleton is scattered above & below the Hall.
(Holme) part of Midelton \ viii of them / – 66 [families].[69]

[64] Added later in pencil and inked over.
[65] 'The well at Fourness': the medicinal 'Holy Well' at Humphrey Head, near Cartmel, known as Cartmel Well.
[66] This is a pencilled note in the lower-right margin; some of it is too faint to read. The '7' daughters might be '9'. There are 8 other words, but they are almost illegible. More pencilled notes occur at the bottom of the page at right angles to the rest. Scored-through, they, too, are also illegible.
[67] St Columba was also known by the Old Irish name of Colum Cille, meaning, approximately, 'Church Dove'. M. Herbert, 'St Columba (c.521-97), monastic founder'. ODNB.
[68] St Columba.
[69] Middleton consisted of 66 families, eight of which lived in Holm.

Midleton [Chapel] was built in memory {Capt. Ed. Man. endowed?} Consecrated by Bishop Bridgeman.[70] But there was an old one before & is in the Hall.[71]
{Sallary?} – A Sall[ary] Sett \ in / land.

{Manner house}
Midleton Hall & Demane – now in Joseph Heblethwate = maryed 11 [blank] Midleton.[72]
James Cragg = Mary Midleton, Sisters & A[f]ter heires to Mr David [Middleton], 3 son of John M[iddleton] Esq.[73]

{Ten[ure]}
~~All~~ freeholds = time out of minde \ for about 80 years / having purchased their freedom of Mr Ed. – father of the \ said John / Lord – they keep a Court.
John =[74]
|
Col. Wil. Edw.
|
John = Cole
|
David obijt inuptus.[75]

{Armes at} Midleton Hall, & 1 or 2 tenants.
Sergeant Moore – borne at Bainsbank in Midleton, now living.
Read shining Dust & other oare {A gold mine opened?}
Knoutberry-Hill upon Midleton fell, near which they grow; a Capella – 1m. ½ E.
Parke at Midleton – no dear but in mem[ory]
{Mr Bainbrig of Hawkins a freehold in Midleton; a coat of Armes – Sc. 3 Blackbirds. F. Argent.}[76]

[8.] Killington

L. Killington Ham[let and] Chaple[ry] – f[amilies] 32. {M[anor] h[ouse]} – Killington Hall \ & Parke / belongd to the Kitsons of Warton in Lancashire in memory of man. Now it belongs to Tho. Heblethwate, by marriage?
{Ten[ures]} All freeholds time out of minde.
{Parke} No dear in mem.; full of Holly but shrubs.[77]
More game – & Blackcocks on K[illington] fell a Capella S.W. ½ m.

[II.201]

[9.] {Firbancke Chappel}

F[amilies] 35. No Demane lands known – not calld a Manner nor Lordship.[78]
{? Tenants} – all free. {[Informant] Mr Applegarth.}

[70] John Bridgeman (1577-1652), bishop of Chester from 1619.
[71] The advowson is in the [owner of] the hall.
[72] Possible meaning 'married twice', secondly to […] Middleton [?]
[73] Almost obscured by the binding are the words, '& Cole of Coate in Lancashire'.
[74] For the full pedigree, see II.243, below.
[75] Died unmarried.
[76] For the Bainbrigs, see R.P. Brown, 'Bainbrig of Hawkin in Middleton, Westmorland', CW2, 24 (1924), 123-49; and 'Thomas Langton and his Tradition of Learning', CW2, 26 (1926), 192, 208.
[77] I.e. shrubby.
[78] MS: 'No Demane lands know – not calld a Manner nor Lordship – nor ~~known whether it should be~~ referd M H?'

[10.] [Rarities in Nature]

[II.214]

Kirkby Loansdal Parish
[A woman] circa 80 ætatis, so lame that she could not goe about the House; & Renewd her Strength & sight of a sudden; had fresh hair white as a child, and a new set of teet[h] – and could goe to Chapham Church on foote – She went to shew herselfe abroad about 9 year agoe & was never heard of since. {Mr Tempest Husband an […][79] witness.}[80]
Vicaridge.[81] A miserian[82] – & white flore-de- lueys.[83] & Imperial Crown: A flore.[84]

Underleigh; a fine Seate
Lawn [&]
1. Arbor Vitæ – one on each hand as you enter through the Court. & in the Vic[arage[Garden.[85]
2. Buck-horn Tree by the garden dooer as you goe into the Turret gardine & at the Vic[arage].
3. The steps up the Mount, 66 & are 4 or 5 Inch High \ & maden hare in the steps. /
4. The Turret 2 stories high.
5. A Cock of the wood, being as big as a goose, brown like an Eagle & shapd like Moore game.
6. A Crokadil – 1 yard ½ or more.[86]

[Machell's Notes: II.214]
{The Master! (Thomas Holm of Barbon.)}

[II.203]

[B.] Kirkby Lonesdal Parish in the precincts of the Mother Church & the number of chapels

[II.213]

[1. Church: General Description] {July 16 1692}

Saint James his Church (as is supposed from the rush bearing used upon that day) hath a Steeple, 22 yards & 2 foote in Height, with a fair carved gate to enter into it. This Church in Length on the Out Side about 40 yards. The Breadth 24. And at the far \ East / End of the North Ile is Midleton Quire, where ~~is~~ are the ruines of a fine Monument made Alabaster of a Readish brown colour with these Coates of Armes, Sc. of one of Midletons & his wife cut in Alabaster {which the 1ᵗ Coat Impald shews to be} which was the Effigies Edward Midleton Esq. and [Blank] his wife.
The ~~Outer~~ \ South / Portch was builded by one Mr Baynes of Hegholm Hall (as by these verses which hung about 40 years agoe over the dooer.

This Portch by Baynes 1ᵗ builded was
Of Hegholm Hall they were.
And after sold to Christopher Wood to keep in good Repare.

[79] Two words are illegible here.
[80] The story is repeated on MS.II.219.
[81] In faint pencilled letters under this heading are the words, 'It has great Parke at 18d – Endowments of Chaples.'
[82] 'Miserian', mentioned by John Evelyn as a flower suitable to be sown in a hot bed in spring alongside myrtles and nasturtiums, see John Ingram (ed.), Elysium Britannicum, or The Royal Gardens (Philadelphia, 2001), 109.
[83] White lily. See Frederick Barlow, The Complete English Dictionary: Or, General Repository of the English Language, Vol. 2 (1773), LIM-LIN.
[84] The crown imperial was a fritillary beloved of George Herbert: see Henry Nicholson Ellacombe, The plant-lore and garden-craft of Shakespeare (2nd edn, 1884), 104.
[85] Tree of life: the evergreen thuja.
[86] The crocodile or krokedail was either the holly (Ilex Aquifolium) or the stems of Clematis Vitalba: Wright, English Dialect Dictionary 1, A-C, 801.

And is repared as you see & kept in order good –
By the true Owner now thereof, the foresaid Christopher Wood.[87]

There is a ring of 3 Large Bells; & they are so expert as to Ring 29 Changes upon them.
The patronage & Impropriation thereof belongs to Trinity College in Cambridge, & is held in ~~by~~ Lease by Sir Thomas Strickland[88] – 1^{t} fruits 20^{li}.

[II.214][89]

[Clock] A clock in the church with 2 Horeplates – S. & West.[90]

[II.205][91]

[The Church: Further Details]
{St James day Rushebearing.[92]
22 yards l[eng]th
a fine corte gate
a fine flaged walke
3 great Bells: 7 Ringes, 29 Changes.}

Figure 2.8.7. Kirkby Lonsdale Church; margin sketch. II.205.

[II.219][93]

{July 16 1692}
Midleton Quier, which is the East End of the N. Ile {6 Collumns in a Row}
Here is a Fragment of an \ Allabaster / Monument of a Duskish Read Color – having bin formerly the Effigies of a Man in Armour with his Sword girt about him, laying on his back with hands erected & his head resting upon an Helmet. & by him the figure of his wife.[94] And at the head or West End of the Monument are 2 Coates of Armes and on Each Side 2. & has bin (I guess) as many more.

[87] Compare the versions in Rev. Canon Ware, 'Notes upon the parish church of Kirkby Lonsdale', CW1, 1 (1870), 189-203, at 198; and in R.P. Brown, 'Christopher Wood's inscription in Kirkby Lonsdale Church' CW2, 25 (1925), 321-30; see also N&B1, 246.
[88] Sir Thomas Strickland (1621-1694) of Sizergh was a committed Royalist and Civil War commander. After the collapse of King James II's regime, he and his wife fled to France. See J. Callow, 'Strickland, Thomas John Francis (c. 1682-1740), Roman Catholic bishop of Namur and diplomatist' [son of Sir T.]. ODNB. See also Part 2, Ch.7, Heversham, II.163, n.15.
[89] The reverse of II.213; it is divided into three columns, each of which is paginated (213, 213A, 214).
[90] Hour plate: the dial-plate of a clock inscribed with figures denoting the hours. OED.
[91] Other than the sketches and margin comment, this page is not in Machell's hand. The porch inscription on this page of the MS is virtually identical to that on II.213, so has not been transcribed.
[92] 25 July.
[93] The whole of this page has been overwritten. The base text is in pencil and mostly illegible. The images were drawn in pencil and then inked over.
[94] See N&B I, 246.

Figure 2.8.8. Arms in the Middleton Quire of Kirkby Lonsdale Church. II.219.

Figure 2.8.9. Second coat of arms. Middleton quire in Kirkby Lonsdale Church. II.219.

The 1. was Midleton single with a Crist, defaced. The 2. Midleton impaleing Tunsdal. Which by the Pedegre will sho which of the Midletons it was.

On the South Side the Monument.

Figure 2.8.10. Coats of arms on the south side of the monument in the Middleton quire in Kirkby Lonsdale Church. II.219.

On the north side

Figure 2.8.11. North side of the monument in Middleton Quire in Kirkby Lonsdale Church. II.219.

[with] An English Inscri[p]tion in the old Text Round.[95]

[95] The text has perished here, but the remaining words say, 'In Casterton Piew in the S. Ile – on wainscot A.D. 160 [blank] is this Coat…'

Fig 2.8.12. 'In Casterton Piew in the S. Ile – on wainscot.' II.219.[96]

1. The Crist Stags head Co[llared] Or.
(2.) Argent a /\ charg'd with a Crescent Or between 3 [cross crosslets fitchy][97] Sable.
2. Azure a Lyon Rampant Vert.
3. Vert. A Bend Argent charged with 2 Rows of Ermins.
? 4. Or A Bugle Sable.
(5.) Argent. 3 Bends Gules on a Canton of the 2nd a Lyon Rampant of the first.
6. The sixth, as the first.}

[Library]
At the East End of the N. Ile is erected a Library above a Little Place for the Vestery – being only \ a Loft or Gallery / of wainscot, with one Row of Seates & Read[ing] Deskes placed before them; under which are classes for the Bookes.[98] This Library pulpit & New Loft, together with the School house, were founded by Mr Henry Wilson of Underley who gave to the colleges – 1000li. Besides 35li yearly to 7 poore Scholars going to Queens College in Oxon. And to this church & Schoole 240li[99] – To the poore / of Kirkby Loansdal Lordship 500 li. Besides making other gifts to […][100]

[II.220] [101]
In the Top of the Midle high window \ light / in Casterton pew: Gules 3 cushons Ermin. But not Tasseld. I take it for a Readman. {inde forsan colligatur – Readmans aliquando Casterton habuiss[e]}[102]

Figure 2.8.13. Redman Arms in Casterton pew in Kirkby Lonsdale Church. II.220.

On an Alabaster Monument, being a Table of black marble betwixt 2 monument \ white marble / columns in the South Ile.

[96] The text has perished here.
[97] Machell has drawn a sketch here, rather than using words.
[98] 'Classes': a set or category of things having related properties or attributes in common grouped together, differentiated from others under a general name or description; as in 'classified'. OED. See also N&B1, 248.
[99] This phrase is almost hidden in the binding. The sum has hitherto been judged to be 24li, but there is a nought after the '24', which suggests that the sum is 240li. The amounts given here do not quite concur with Nicolson and Burn's data, see N&B1, 248.
[100] 1¾ lines of text at the foot of this page have perished.
[101] The whole of this page has been overwritten. The base text is in pencil and mostly illegible. The images were drawn first in pencil and then inked over.
[102] 'Perhaps it might be adduced that the Redman family once owned Casterton.'

FÆLICI &c. fælici memoriæ Elizabethæ Carus, filiæ et heredis Thomæ Carus, Nicholai Curwen Equitis Aurati uxoris. Matri Suæ | Optimè meritæ merens filia Maria | Henrico Witheringtono Nupta, Hoc Sacrum Posuit. [103]

And under neath on a Smaler Table of Black Marble also:

Hic Requiescit ab Ano no Domini 1611. Ætatis suæ | 51. Donec Postrema lux refulgeat.[104]

And above all is this Coate of Arms

Figure 2.8.14. Curwen with Carus coat of arms. II.220.

Which is Curwen, with its quarterings, impaleing Carus with its Quarterings.[105]
1. Argent a frett Gules, ch[arged] with a chief.
2. Is Azure, a Lyon Rampant Argent gutteed Gules.[106]
3. Azu\re/ a cheveron \ Ar[gent] / charged with Thre mullets Gules.
4. Argent 3 bares Gules, on a canton of the 2nd a sparrowel[107] Or, piercd. In the Chiefe a crescent montant[108] for distinction of another house.
5. As the second.
6. As the first. N[ote] Ergo A[rgent] impaleing.
7. Argent a Ram Sable Hornd Ore a chief of the 2. Garbes of the 3.[109]

[II.208][110]

Kirkby Loansdal Parish conteineth in it
1. The mother church.
2. St Coomes chapel.[111]
3. Barbon Chapel.
4. Midleton Chaple.
5. Firbanke.
6. Killington.
7. Hutton Roofe.

[103] 'To the happy memory of Elizabeth Carus daughter and heir of Thomas Carus and wife of Sir Nicholas Curwen Baronet. Her daughter Mary wife of Henry Witherington set up this sacred stone, grieving for her best-deserving mother.'
[104] 'Here she has reposed since A.D. 1611, aged 51. May the final light shine again in and on her'.
[105] The MS here contains a list, written in pencil and scored through: '~~1. Argent 2. 3. 4. 5. Azure a Lyon Rampant Argent 6. As the 1.7. Argent 3 calfes sable~~.'
[106] Here, Machell has sketched a droplet symbol (goutte).
[107] Spur rowel.
[108] Here, Machell has sketched a crescent symbol.
[109] The rest of the phrase is obscured by the binding.
[110] In the MS, each chapel's name is followed by the words, 'in which', with no added text.
[111] St Columba or Colum Cille.

[II.205] [112]

[2. Information supplied by Machell's Informants, with Machell's queries and notes]

[i.] The Parish of Kirkby Lonsdale, Countie of Westmorland is in form oblong on the S. part abutting upon the north of Lancashire and extend its bounds northerly to Couperethwaite in Firbank being X miles in length and from the East bounded upon Yorkshire, and extends itself iiij miles westward bounding upon Kendall parish northerly and upon Burton parish southerly. It is divided into 6 Constablewicks* (vizt) 1^0 Kirkby Lordship, 2^0 Casterton cum Hutton roof, 3^0 Barbone cum Mansergh, 4. Middleton, 5. Killington cum Firbank, 6. Lupton; and further accompt [is given] as per inclosed paper of Kirkby Lonsdale parish†.

Of the Town of Kirkby L.[113]
Kirkby Lunesdale, being the Chiefe Towne from whereof the parish has its denomination; and the Dale from the River Lune which has its rise by a small Spring, X miles above the head of the parish, continues its course through the parish being X miles in lengthe and emptyeth it selfe at Lancaster or Lunecaster X myles below the parish. The River is large and al along butiffyed with great plenty of wood; and ~~furnished~~ \ enriched / with abundance of fish and \ great / variety of Salmon, Trouts, Eeles, Pikes, pinks, and greate store of salmon Friye called Smelts.

{Site of the Church}
The Church situate upon the Bank of the river, a very pleasant, \ in / a large Levill and incomparable Churchyard, butyfyed with curious walks, planted with wood; the Church three rowes of Collumns and well butified within but most of the antient monuments defaced; a slender square steeple. Iij Bells: about 100 yards East from the Church upon the River bank a very fine Free Schoole‡ founded in 1628 by Mr Henry Wilson of Underley, who alsoe gave to Church, Colleges, Schoole and poore, and other pious uses, neare 3000^{li} a particular whereof [blank][114]

[Machell's Notes: II.205]

*{q. whether Lordships.}
†{q. How Casterton & Hutton roof & allso Lupton stand apart from Kirkby & on what side of the water. See the bounders in the other paper.}
‡{A further account (if servicable) take from Mr Wase of […]}[115]

[II.206]

{The Marcat e Registro de Wederhal f. 121}
Hen. III (per Cart dat. Anno Regni sui [Blank] et [Blank] Granted to John de Kirkby parson of the church of Kirkby in Lonesdale, that he and the succeeding parsons of the said church, should have forever one fair there upon the Church Land; to continue 3 dayes every year – Sc. on the Eve, upon the Day, & the day after, the Feast of the Nativity of the Bl[essed] Virgin Mary.[116] And one Market on Thorsday every week nesc[essary] &c. But the Parsonage being after appropriate to the Mon. of St Mary of Yorke, a Quo Warranto[117] was brought against the Abbot of York {Anno Dom. 1291 XX Ed.} concerneing the same 1, who said that he clamd ~~it~~ \ to have a fair & m[arket] there / as parson of the Church, Reciteing the Charter above said. And he clamed Emendas assisæ panis et cerevisiæ fractæ Tu[m]brellum et pillorium tanquam annexas et pertinentes Mercato.[118]

---

[112] The main text below the heading is in another hand. The sketch and margin comments are in Machell's hand.
[113] A margin note gives, MS: '{Kirkby Loansdall Towne in the Tower? 48 Charter –}', but some of this comment has been obscured by the binding.
[114] See above, II.219.
[115] Although the final words are unclear, this is a reference to Christopher Wase's schools survey. See P.J. Wallis, 'Westmorland schools about 1676: Christopher Wase's Survey'. CW2, 67 (1967), 168-85.
[116] From 7 to 9 September.
[117] A writ of, 'by what authority'.
[118] 'And he clamed amends for the breach of an assize of bread and ale, [and the use of] tumbrel and pillory, as being annexed and pertaining to the market.' The Assize of Bread and Ale (Latin: Assisa panis et cerevisiae)

And at length it was agreed by the Kings Counsail that the foresaid Abbot should enjoy the fair libertyes & those things which belongd to a marcat & fair – salvo jure Dom[ini] Regis et heredum suorum.[119] And a Precept was given to the Sherif to permit the same &c.

[Fairs]
{1 fair on Shear Thorsday ie Mau[n]dy Thorsday; 1 on St. Thomas Day;[120] & one every forthnight day from Hallow Thorsday till Michaelmas. The Lord of the Manner has all the Tolls both of Faire & Market.}

{Abbats [Hall]}
There is a place calld Abbats Hall standing on the Southwest side of the church yard. Which with the Impropriation & Advowsan of the church now belongs to Trinity College in Cambridge.

[II.207][121]

If Servicable may be had, and what further knowne.[122]

{Market & Faires}
The Towne is a Markett weekly, upon Thursday, and two faires yearly; both faires and market afford a great store of Cattall and all sorts of graine in great plenty; Buildings pretty good; quantity of stone and timber within the parish; oakes* and ashes, of which in some parts are found that will never worme eate, which is very rare in ashen wood†. For fewell, plenty of wood, turffs, peates, and coales all within the parish and two miles of the Towne.

{Ad Kirkby Town} {Kirkby Bridge}
Through the Towne the high roade from Scotland and northest of Cumberland and Westmorland to London, and over the bridg called Kirkby Bridge, famous for its strength and building, consisting of iij Arches all founded upon \ a / roky Base, naturaly grounded in the middle of the river.
As for Gentry I can give very smale account but what I suppose may be better had out of Dugdall.

{Note. Gen[eral] of the parish of Kirkby}
The parish generaly of a good soyle, redish and black mould, all sorts of graine, greate store of Lime-Stone, Free Stone and Slate very convenient; greate store of p[lea]sant springs but none phisicall; every part furnished with Small Rivelets emptying into the river, and all furnishd with fish from thence.

[Machell's Notes: II.207]

*{at Barbon Park.}
†{?!!!}
The Vic[ar's] House on the N. of the church yard – Mr Briggs. 1m. West Tearnside-Chapl (1 m west ~~½ N \ W. & SW /from the church~~.) – Lately demolished by Richard. Balif.
Hutton Roofe – W. ab Ecclesia 2m. and more; Midleton Chapel 3m. N \ E / ab Ecclesia. Killington 4m.[123] N.; Firbank 7m.[124] north; Barbon chapel 2 m \ N / E by N.[125] was a 13th-century law which regulated the price, weight and quality of bread and beer manufactured and sold in towns, villages and hamlets. It was the first law in British history to regulate the production and sale of food: Henry de Beltgens Gibbins, The Industrial History of England (London, 1897), 245-46.

[119] 'Saving the rights of the Lord King and of his heirs'.

[120] 21 December.

[121] Continuation of II.205, written in the same hand. Machell provided the margin comments.

[122] Heading of a note from Machell's informant.

[123] This could also be seen as '5'.

[124] Overwritten. Could be '1m.'.

[125] All of these distances are placed at the foot of the page and are either indistinct or partly perished. They are therefore insecure.

[II.209][126]

[ii.] Mr Aplegarth

{Parish length & Bredth}
Kirkby Lonsdale Parish lyeth upon the east side of Kendall barony. From Kirkby Church \ in the South / till Couperthwaite in Fir banke \ northwards / in the same parish is in length nine myles; in breadth foure myles.

{Bounder?}
Bounded on the East side whereof with Yorkeshire all along; on the ~~South~~ \ north and northwest side / side with Kendall Parish, and Burton parish; the South parte abuttinge upon Lancashire: The river Lone from whence the Dale has its name runninge downe the very midle of the parish from Midleton Head to Kirkby Church.

{Lordships}
It is devided into six divisions: Kirkby Lordshippe; and Casterton and Hutton Rooffe, another; Barbon and Mansergh, another; Midleton the fourth; Killington and Fir banke the fifth; and Lupton the sixth the ~~smallest~~ \ least / parte by some small quantity.

{Gen[eral] Tithe*}
All the parish pays Tyth Corne in kinde except Killington and Firbanke which pays Composition money called Tyth meale silver; as the rate is Dated the Saturday before midsummers[127] \ day / and the Saturday after: every yeare.
The Patronage is impropriate, belongeing to Trinity Colledge in Camb.

{Tenure}
The Tenures ar mixt: in Kirkby Lordshippe some Coppie holds and some free \ customary; / in Casterton and Hutton Roofe, Customarie Lands and Free holds; in Barbon, Customarie lands; and Mansergh, freeholds. Midleton all freeholds, onely oweing Suite of Courte to Midleton Hall. Killington and Firbanke all free holds; longe since belongeing to the mannor-house called Killington Hall and in ancient time of the Pickeringe lands the Eschutchion of that house being three fishes \ no that cannot be,[128] / as they are to be found att this day in a glasse window of the said house.

{Lupton} And Lupton all Customarie Tenants:

{Hutton Ch. Barbon C. Kil. Ch. Firbanke !!!}
A Chappell of Ease in Hutton Roofe; an old ruined Chappell in Barbon; a chappell where they bury in Midleton; and one of the same quality in Killington where they bury; and a chappell in Firbanke dedicated to St Martine; \ and / within an indifferent distance of the said Firbanke Chappell there is a Springe wel which kills keads (as comonly called by the Country people) if any be got into a mans eare, by dropping \ the / water therein: It has beene reported that \ formerly / very many have come farre for that end and found helpe by the water and lyeing of the ground in that Chappell; for certaine truth the ground upon the fell under which this well aforesaid riseth does not suffer one keade to live upon the sheep that there pasturs in the Summer: my owne sheep goes in the same place and I cann witnesse itt.[129]

[Machell's Notes: II.209]
{Q. of fir roots found in the mosses about K.}
{*Giles Balif æt 70. Will. Willan. 37 – of Hutton Roof.}[130]

[126] Smaller page, 18cm x 20½cm: main text not in Machell's hand; margin comment in Machell's hand.
[127] 21 June.
[128] Interlineation here by Machell.
[129] 'Keds' or 'keads' are sheep lice and parasites: Rollinson, Dictionary of Cumbrian Dialect, 89.
[130] Informants.

[II.213] [131]

[iii.] Ad Bounder of Westm'land[132]

Yorkshire in the East is divided from it Thus:
Beginning at Holmwater foote; thence Eastwards up Holm water to above Holm.
{? From Holm Beckfoot to the County Stone.}
From Holmwater above Holm.
Up a gill by the east side of Midleton Fell to the hanging stone in in Berkine where Barbon be.
{Q[uery] County Stone ~~on the top of Gragerth~~\ inter Weber and Gragerth.}

{A Bounder from Barbon Pike to Langfoot Side as followeth} {N.B. This is Good} Thence \ W. by S. / from Gragerith go down a Gill to a \ cave /calld Easgill-Kirke* (where such a parish or Lordship begins.)
Thence Westwards inclineing to the S. by. St Coomes Chappell house (divideing this Lordship from [Blank] in Lancashire &c.)
Thence Westwards in a directly over Leune to \ an Ash Tree in \ medow / Cansfield Closes.[133]
Thence W. Cross[in]g Lancaster Road, in \ a / streine[134] to a Great Stone in a field calld Thirnby.
Thence W. By the fence \ or hedge / to Thirnby Well.
Thence W. (in direct Line) \ over the fields / to a well in a meadow twix Biggins-hall in W. & Sellet Hall in Lancashire.}
Thence W. (over the fields in a streight line to {North Neuk of Cartar-Intack now Jacksons.)
Thence West (up ~~the~~ the Dike twixt Brabon Intack in Lancashire & Langfield in Westm'land & to the top of Langfield hill.)

[Machell's Notes: II.213]

*{q. of a story in Camden}[135]

[II.214]

Ra\w/tha Water devides Westmorland from Yorkeshire from the Stean-brig at the N. End of the foremire SW by the River Leun to the foote of Ra\w/tha.
Thence (up Rara beck) and by South to where Midle[ton] comes in to Higher Holme \ takeing it in; / Thence E.S.E. (by as Heven Water divides to the Hinging Stone where Barbon comes in.
Thence S.E. (by a streight Line to Willy mount Rase \ at the W. End of Green head. / Thence W.S.W. (in a direct line to the Lords Seat: a chare made with 3 stones upon an Hurrock at the N.E. End of Wakeber near the well.
Thence S.E (up a Sike to Mear-Häu, a round Limeston hill.
Thence S. (up the said Sike to – ergo – Milstone-Pike where Casterton comes in Thence in a direct line streight – County Stone whe[re] the Countyes of W. Y. & L. meet all together.

[II.215]

{Ad Bounder} {Hutton Roofe}
§ The Bounder of Westmorland from Hutton Roof Lordship to Winstar beck head; & thence to White Scout head.
From the Top of Langfield Hill (where Hutton Lordship begins) S. up the Out Side of Whittington Intack Wall till you com ~~at~~ to the Dike Nook of Haber.

---

[131] Although of the usual size for this volume, this page has been pasted in at right angles to the rest.
[132] This bounder information is in note form and has been scored through. In the margin is written 'ad bounder infra'.
[133] Here there is a tiny sketch of a tree (¼cm x ½cm) surrounded by grass.
[134] 'Streight line'.
[135] Camden remarked of this area, 'Above the Spring-head of Lone the country spreadeth broader and the hilles shoot out with many turnings, betweene which there lie some vallies mervailous steepe and deepe withall, with many hollow places in maner of caves.' Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 760C. The 'story', however, might have come from Camden's previous chapter on Lancashire, in which, describing the shores of Windermere, he wrote, 'And a little village standing hard by carieth the name thereof. In which Eathred King of Northumberland in the yere of Christ 792, when he had by force fetched King Elfwolds sonnes out of Yorke and slue them, that by his owne wickednes and their bloud he might secure the Kingdome to himselfe and his.' See Edmund Gibson (ed.), Camden's Britannia Vol. 2, 2nd edn (London, 1722), 978.

Thence directly S. downe by an old Casten Dike to the Head of Këür-beck.
Thence, Westward down the said Beck to Mort Intack Nooke.
Thence agane Westwards down the said Këur to the Low Nooke of Hawkrig alias Hawkside hill* at Roand well.
Thence – even West (in a streight line) to Walker Pots ~~Under there to~~ Cragg-house on the South Side of it. {Crag house payes Rent & cesses in Lancashire}.
Thence, N.W. (in a direct line) to Heap of Stones twixt Lowthate and Ploverlands. Where Burton parish comes in but q. whether Burton clame not to Walker pots.
(Thence q[uery] in Burton. And memorandum to enter a note about Dalton.)

Where Burton comes in Thence W. (up Roand Well Sike) to Roand-Well Head (They call Rowled Roand vulgo here.) Thence West (in a direct line) to the South End of Pickle-Hill.[136]
Thence N.W. by ~~a Common fence~~ \ the Out Side of Dalton / Ring fence to Storth-Stile.
Thence \ directly / W (by the foote way) to Peac\r/oft hedge.
Thence directly S. (in a streight line) to the Highway twixt Burton & Dalton.
Thence W. (down the Highway) to the East point of Lan\g/ran Close.
Thence W. (~~down~~ \ up / the said Hedge about 100 yards to a Gray Stone on the N. side of a well.
Thence Southward 200 yards to the S. point of Langran close.
Thence Southward (by a quick wood \ hedge / to the East corner of a common field belonging to Burton, calld Boun-Town.
Thence S. (by another like fence) to a close calld Slaks.

[II.217]

From Sc. Slacks
From thence S. Eastwards following the fence on your left hand till you com at ~~Dickni~~ Dickin yeat.
Thence West (downe the lane from Dalton to Burton) till you com ~~at~~ \ to / a place calld Ou-fangs.
Thence W. (by a fense on the left hand) to Herrinsike.
Thence \ W. / up the said Sike \ about / 100 yards till you com at Dearflat Meadow.
Thence Directly Nor[th] (up Dearflat fence) to The Highway twixt Burton & Yellan.
Thence W. – followin[g] that Land to Yellan head.
Thence N. up Yellan head fence to the South corner of Bread Lands.
Thence W. down Broad Land Dike {where Dalton & Burton comes in}to Hilderstone Dike.
Thence ~~N~~ W. Jump over the Moss in a direct line to 2 or 3 Houses calld Leyton Beck where Bethom comes*. So calld from the river Betha – which springs at Lilly tarn. And runs by the East end of the Church. Then N. down from the Hall to Milthrop Bridge.
Thence west by north of Dallan Tower and ?11 score[137] beyond it turnes Southwards into the sea.
From Levton Beck (SW) downe the said Beck to south corner of Ivy-meadow; thence S.W. (by Midle Barow wall) to South side of Midlebarrow; thence W. (in a Streight Line) in the \ field / to Arnes head well; thence N.W. by the South Side of Arneside Park[138] to a Skarr calld Black Steäne.; thence N.W. (by a Streight Line) Over the \ Eye Ea† to the / foot of Lindal Pow. Thence N. up the River Powe to the Powbank? which I thinke is Winstar beck foote.

Machell's Notes: II.217]
*Qu. of Ed. Garnet of Bethom, Thomas Hudson of Haverbreek beyond Bethom.[139]
†{The Eye of Kent so calld there.}
{Bethome: Thomas Hudson, Samuel Dowker.}[140]

[136] MS: 'Thence West (in a direct line) to the South End of Pickle-Hill Heap of Stones twixt Lowthate and Ploverlands.'
[137] Yards.
[138] 4cm of text is thoroughly scored through and illegible here.
[139] Machell queries whether this bounder is correct.
[140] It has been partly hidden by the binding but the name could be 'Bowker'.

[II.218][141]

{White Skout Sicke}
Thence up the said Winstar beck till you com above Winstar chaple at the place where White Scout Sike comes into Winstar betwixt the 2 mills.
Thence Westwards to White Skout head where it springs*.
From Preston Chaple to Hutton S.E. 3 m – Thence to Dalton Hall S.W. 1 m & ½; Thence to Burton 1m. N.W.†.

[Machell's Notes: II.218]

*Qu. If Winstar beck be not the Same with Lindal Pow –
†So far as Burton is concernd, given in by Valantine Armorer; Rich. Claton Landlord 2s 6; & Balif.
John Lucas Senior of Holm; John Lucas Junior; Roger Hind. Spent at Crookelands – 0-2-6.[142]
See the outmost parishes and their Bounders & thence Extract the General Bounder.

[II.221][143]

[iv.] Kirkby Lonsdale Schoole [Henry Wilson][144]

Sir
In answer to your desires in your letter sent me (touching the Free Grammar Schoole of Kirkby Lonsdale in the county of Westmorland) I give this narrative of what I know and have heard of the same*{i.e. Mr Richard Jackson Parson of Whittington near Kirkby Lonsdale from whom together with Mr Henry Wilson Justice of Peace I had this information}[145] my selfe being borne in that towne November the 11th 1602 and am now aged yeares seventy and three;[146] my father was a feofe or governor among others of that schoole many years, and myself one since his decease.
As for the rise and original of that schoole, I have heard it was thus, viz, that one whose surname was Godsalve borne at Newton of the Parish of Whittington in the County of Lancaster gave one hundred pound toward a free schoole to be disposed as the parson of Whittington (called Parson Bland) should hold fitting, and being borne att Kirkby Lonsdale, that towne being an ancient market towne, but a mile from Whittington proposed his willingness that the said hundred pound the gift of the said Godsalve should goe towards the foundation of a free grammer schoole at the said Kirkby, provided Kirkby Lordship or the parish would add to it another hundred pound which was done accordingly, at which time one Mr Tenant having purchased two manners in the north riding of the county of Yorke called by the name of Beadall and Scotton, did for the said two hundred pounds grant a Rent Charge of twenty pounds upon the said two manners yearly for ever unto the Governors of the said schoole to the use of him who was elected by them master of the said schoole and to be paid yearly at two payments viz at Whitsunday and Martinmas[147] by equall portion or within ten dayes after either of those two festivalls under a nomine poena[148] of fortie shillings in case the same was unpaid as aforesaid; but now that rent charge is paid by Sir Henry Tompson of Yorke who lately purchased the mannour of Scotton of the heires of the said Mr Tenant, and he duly payes the same within the times limited, the deeds to shew the same are extant and kept with the letters patents in the thre and thirtieth yeare of Queen Elizabeth[149] granted to the four and twentie feoffes Governors of the said schoole and all the other writings ~~belonging~~ relating to the said schoole in a chest kept in the Vestry of the church of the said Kirkby Lonsdall. Alsoe there was given by the Lady Curwen who was heire of the said mannour of Kirkby Lonsdale certaine parcel of lands called the Masters lands scituate nea[r] the Biggins, and the wast grounds of the old Schoole house, and the new Schoole house was erected upon [141] Note-page containing several shades of ink as well as red pencil (overwritten).

[142] The sums appear to relate to Machell's expenses during his Itinerary; see the letter from Gibson, schoolmaster, below, II.225.
[143] The page is not in Machell's hand; it is a letter written by Henry Wilson, school governor, descendant of Henry Wilson who gave money for the new school building.
[144] The contents of this letter also appear in Brown, Edward Wilson of Nether Levens and his kin, 55-57.
[145] Machell placed an asterisk here, referring to a margin note which is now obscured by the binding.
[146] He was writing in 1675.
[147] 11 November.
[148] 'A named penalty'.
[149] 30th year of Elizabeth I's reign, 1590-1591.

\ it / worth per annum fortie shillings and upwards to the use of the said Schoole master, as the deed kept in the said chest will shew, the old Schoole house being but a mean thatchd house. Mr Henry Wilson of Blacwell hall in London being borne in Kirkby Lonsdale and sometimes being a Scholler there, ~~and the said Henry Wilson made a small library in the Church of Kirkby Lonsdale over the vestry and gave some bookes~~ caused it to be taken downe and at his owne proper Costs erected the now new Schoole house. The same is two stories high: In the lower story are two large rooms devided, the East end thereof for the head master to teach in, the West end for the Usher,[150] for the maintainance and wages of which Usher in regard the whole former Rent and Revennues went only to the former grammar master, the said Mr Wilson by his last will and testament gave the consideration mony of 120^{ff} yearly to be at two payments to him that should be Usher with 120^{ff} principall,[which] together with other monies to pious uses are laid upon a part of the Demean lands belonging to Thurland Castle in the parish of Tunstall and County of Lancaster as will appear by Deeds kept also in the chest of the Schoole evidences. And in the upper story of the said new Schoole house there are two very large rooms and divided with a convenient study distinct for the head master. And there are for the rooms both above and below for either place at the west end a faire free stone chimney and the whole schoole house is adorned with sutable free stone windows both above and below, and the whole roofe is covered with slate.

[II.222]

Alsoe for the encouragement of schollers to come to the said schoole there was given by the last will of Mr Thomas Wilson, a parson in Norfolk, ~~being~~ younger brother to the said Mr Henry Wilson, 200^{ff} to be layd upon land; the consideration whereof was to goe to the master and fellowes of Christs Colledge in Cambridge, to the use of three poore schollers in three Exhibitions at 5^{ff} per annum to each of those sc\h/ollers, which ~~scoll~~ schollers was to come from the said Schoole of Kirkby, and to be students in the said Christ Colledge, and the said schollers to have the same yearly payd them till they weer of standing to commence Master of Arts, if they soe long continued, which 200^{ff} was laid upon a mansion house and land in a place called Bulbanke near a towne called Wraton in the parish of Melling, County of Lancaster, as will appeare by the deeds in the chest of the Schoole Evidences.

{Exhib. Kendal}[151]

And alsoe Mr Henry Wilson by his last will and testament gave by way of rent-charge out of the tyth corne and graine arising within the Liberties of Farleton of the parish of Beathom and County of Westmorland the summ of thirtie five pounds yearly to be paid to seavn poore schollers, four of them to be sent out of the said free schoole of Kirkby Lonsdale and the other three out of the free schoole of Kendal and thus to be students in Queens Colledge in Oxford and the said schollers to be from the Counties of Westmorland or Cumberland as will appeare by the said will.

Alsoe the said Mr Henry Wilson ~~gave~~ made a small library in the Church of Kirkby over the Vestry and gave severall books.

And as for the names of the schoole masters; in my time were as followeth. Viz. they who teached in the old Schoole house where I had my learning was Mr James Redman ~~Clarke who was Curate under Mr Waterhouse~~.[152] And since the new Schoolhouse was erected after the decease of the said Mr Redman succeed one Mr Hodgson and after his decease one Mr John Leake until he removed to be vicar of Tunstall, and after him ~~succeed~~ succeded ~~one~~ Mr Henry Carr and after his decease Mr William Carr and after him Mr John Tatham and after his decease Mr Edward Bainbrigg and after his removeall into Ireland succeded Mr Francis Jackson and when he removd to be vicar of Warton after him succeded Mr Robert Garthwaite and when he removed to Newcastell, succeded Mr Robert Gardiner and after his resignation of it to the Governours there is elected one Mr Miles Farrar; and [150] Usher: see the English Glossary.

[151] In Machell's hand.

[152] Note that Machell scored-through the final phrase, but see the following quotation from R.P. Brown in, 'The Vicars of Kirkby Lonsdale', CW2, 29 (1929), 177: 'Thomas Machell (MSS. ii, 221) preserves a letter from an aged correspondent in which it is stated, but doubtfully, that Mr. James Redman was this vicar's [Waterhouse's] curate.' NB, in the MS the relevant page is II.222.

after Mr Guy had resigned up his Usher place, the Governours elected one Thomas Atkinson to be Usher.
This narrative I have from Mr Richard Jackson parson of Whittington; and as for my uncles Henry Wilson and Thomas Wilson it is all according to their last wills which I have perused and compared.
Witness my hand
Hen: Wilson
I have put upon the file the original from Mr Jackson.

[v.] Barbon [Samuell Gibson, Schoolmaster]

[II.226]

To Mr Tho. Maychell att Kirkby-Thore neare Appleby Westm[r]land
To be left at Mrs Catherine Forths in Kendall
For the virtue of the well – send Qu[ery] – after the method for Witherslack in Bethom parish.[153]

[II.225]

Sir
To my promise on your request I have Endeavoured to acquire the pedigrees of Shutleworth in his Lordship of Barbon, formerly in the possession of J. Heighington of Holderness neare Hull; next Jno. Middleton of Middleton and from him to Judge Shutleworth for the sum of 1400[ll –] But further I rest in yours.
I have solicited diverse persons about aged persons, & finde but 2, viz / son to Sir Jiffrey Middleton aged 111, rocked in a Cradle before his death – John Garnett of Casterton one m[ile] from Kirkby – E. be. S.,[154] a prophessier,[155] aged 120, laid under a ~~Bed~~ Table all night – [his relatives] – supposeing him dead. Next morning revi[v]ed, got out of the house naked & ran [to] an old chapel St Cumes alias Comes[156] above a mile (& about ½ a mile) E.S.E. of K. & there was found with lifted up hands kneeling before the Alter & died within 3 days.
The reliques of an old chapel at Ternside a mile from Kirkby W.
Wegboure[157] well workes by Urin; disolveth the Stone & purgeth the Gravell i[n] the Blader; staineth wood, earth or stone a deep Orange.
Holme middow. Holme well cures the Itch, kills wormes within the bodys of men women & children, but not so strong in its taste & opporacon.
Mill Beck in Middleton runs as Heaven water devides, workes made on Each Side to keepe it[s] Course; A great Stone lying in Barbon dale in the High way to Dent with a perfect print of a Hors Shooe upon it. Some Prime Trees alias Prim & Juniper.[158]
Birds or fowles has none [but] which are common; not worth \ mentoning;[159] /
Barrick Hall late in the possession the ancient family of Manserghs, ancient as said before the Conquest. I [went] to Enquire for some coates of armes or other engraven worke but found none worth observaton.
Neeth Hall[160] formerly belonging the said Mansers; a great many white Fox gloves.

I shall not inlarge further Sir as being in hast in hopes these will finde safe returne & what you are awanting in our parts may assure [your] selfe in what I am Sir
Your humbly devoted
Sam Gibson
Barbon 5th August 92.

[153] This note is in Machell's hand.
[154] East by South.
[155] Prophesier: a Puritan preacher. OED.
[156] St Columba.
[157] 'Wegboure': unknown to this editor. Perhaps it is Borrowegan, near Kendal.
[158] Prim = privet: genus Ligustrum. OED.
[159] This word was written above another, now scored-through and illegible.
[160] Nether Hall?

Sir I desire your pardon being short in some things & not so full as intended; likewise of a Direcon' to you which I hope yo'le (att the receipt of these) be pleased to honoure me with –

[II.229][161]

{July 19, 1692} Barbon
The schoolmaster at the chaple there, Samuell Gibson, born in the Town, being about 24 years of age being at Chaipha in Asia 20m.[162] from Jerusalem, in 1687. Had these markes impressd & Tingd upon his Armes, as fair as they are herein expressd: for his safer {better} passage in his Travels amongst the Christians where ever he came and Testimony of his haveing bin there.

The figures were pricked out with a forked instrument like 2 needle points set in wood about ½ a quater of an Inch in length by the Impression with the woden printes, being wett & strewed \ pounced / over with Gunpowder beaten to dust as he doth imagin, & tyed up in a Rag. And after all Rub'd it over with som liquid matter (which he takes to be vinegar & Gunpowder but I rather thinke it som strong sort of Spirit as Aqua Fortis;[164] for it Stung Exceedingly: & the[y] did not touch it with their fingers but Rub'd it in with the Ends of the [instrument] wherein the needle points were set. It was don by a Nazarene[165] & caused his Armes to be very sore & swell exceedingly for 4 dayes after which the pain Abated & they heal'd of themselves.

[II.231][163]

Figure 2.8.15. Samuell Gibson's Christian Tattoos 1. II.231.

[II.230]

They must be printed off [in my book] with Blew inke.[166]

[161] A piece of paper, 14cm x 20cm. In Machell's hand.
[162] The second numeral is blotted, making the distance unclear. The town appears to be Haifa, in Hebrew, Hefa, but named Caiphas by the Crusaders, who conquered it in 1100. The distance by road between the cities today is 94 modern miles: https://www.distancecalculator.net/from-jerusalem-to-haifa [163] A piece of paper measuring 14cm x 20cm. See similar illustrations in Part 2, Ch.10, Itinerary, II.384A.
[164] Aqua Fortis: early scientific name of nitric acid, a powerful solvent and corrosive; a term also used of other powerful solvents. OED.
[165] Inhabitant or native of Nazareth.
[166] For more on these tattoos, see Part 2, Ch.10, Itinerary, II.384, II.384A.

Figure 2.8.16. Samuel Gibson's Christian Tattoos 2. II.231.

[II.205]

[Notes on Barbon]
{I suppose this Lordship [of Barbon] as it gave its name to the[m] so it was possesd by the family of the Babournes which was in being & in good reputation about the time of Richard II: for Richard de Bellingham grandchild of Robert and Christian de Burnishead marryed Ann the daughter of John de Barbourne & had isue Sir Robert Tu[n]sdel of Thurland Castle, the next neighbouring place to the Lordship of Barbon.}

[II.227]

Barbon Chap. In Lonsdale
1. Thre Water Budgets by the name of Parr Quartering 2 Barrs and a mullet, by the name of [Blank]
2. [Blank] 3. [Blank]
4. Par[r]. Quartering that with the Mullet in the 2nd. That with the cheveronells in the third. The 4th as the 1st.

[II.231]

Lizards – Black brown 4 or 5 inch at Wakebur fell – E. a Capella 2m.

[vi.] Middleton. Joseph Heblethwaite Senior, James Cragg Junior, superstito.[167]

[II.235]

Midleton \ Ch. / in Loansdale. Midleton Chapelry; One Entire Lordship.
1. Midleton Hall – Hawkin Hall. Bainbrig.
Bainbrig Rector of Clipston in Northamptonsh.[168] {Ætat 80ti}[169] fello of S.[170]

Over the Hall doer: Argent betwene 3 martletts a cheveron Sable, chargd – & with 3 ~~Bucks~~ Stags heads cabboshd Or – The Crist a Staggs head Errased Or.

The chapel was built by the Inhabitants \ upon ground given by Mr Xt. Bainbrig a minister; /{finishd in 1634 as by a stone † in the chapel; which was formerly on the East End of it having these figures}[171] & Indow'd with 100li or thereabouts, which yielded 8li per Annum Intrest and ~~about~~ 2 years \ after / Anno Domini 1635 it was Consecrated [by] John (Bridgeman) then Bishop of Chester, [167] 'Surviving'. This heading appears on MS.II.241.

[168] Christopher Bainbridge, son of Edward Bainbridge of Long Marton. School: Kirkby Lonsdale. Christ's College, Cambridge from 1632; B.A. 1635-6; priested 1638; M.A. 1639; B.D. 1661; fellow 1637-44; ejected during Interregnum; vicar of Caldecote, Cambs. 1661. Rector of Clipston, Northants. 1667-99; d. 1699. CCED.
[169] Aged eighty.
[170] Fellow of [?].
[171] Figures not given.

die solis Xvij[0] Maij.[172] by the name of Capellæ Spiritus Sanctie;[173] reserveing to the Bishops of Chester the Nomination of a Prea[cher] to officiate therin {who also gave 40s towards the building thereof} & also 1s per Synodalibus et 1s 4 per Procurationibus[174] every Triennial Visitation – The original of which I saw in the [possession of] Mr John \ More / of Grimes[175] near the said chapel, with a Broad Seal appenda[n]t. {Anno Consecrationis suæ euj}[176] {per Ed. Russell Notary Public.}[177]
It was afterwards made a Buriing place by Bishop Wilkins about 20 year since.[178]

[II.237]

In Strange Gothick like letters yet lately don Sc. – A.D. 1674 – Upon a grave stone in Midleton Chapple in the Alye before the quire doore:
Sept. 19. 1674.

Here I remane and hith'ward do tende
All who theire span of dayes in Vertue spend
Tho –| Bain
mas –| brigg

[II.235]

{The Sallary was laid in Land being advanced 60 more} They pay Tithe in kind; all but Hay for which a Composition.

Figure 2.8.17. Margin sketch, 3cm x 1cm. Middleton Chapel [length]19; [breadth] 8. II.235.

[Middleton Chapelry]
It is bounded on the East with Dent in Sedber parish; on the S. with Barbon Chap[elry];[179] on the west with Killington \ Ch[apelry]; / on the Nor West with Firbanck \ Ch[apelry]; / & on the N. with Howgil Chaple[ry] in Sedber.
It [is] one Entire Lordship. They[180] are Generally freeholds. But appear at Court Baron ~~The~~ held of Midleton Hall which Holds of Kendal, & by Attainder of the Barron, came to the Crowne, & so The Lordship payes a Rent to the Crown. Midle[ton] Hall is the Manner House – where the Court is kept.

[172] 'On Sunday 17 May.' Bishop John Bridgeman (1577-1652) was bishop of Chester from 1619.
[173] 'By the name of the Chapel of the Holy Spirit.'
[174] '1s for synodals and 1s 4d for subsistence'.
[175] Grimes Hall.
[176] 'Dated in the year of his [the Bishop's] consecration the sixteenth.'
[177] [This original was] 'prepared through Ed. Russell, Notary Public'.
[178] John Wilkins (1614-1672), theologian, natural philosopher and a founder of the Royal Society, was bishop of Chester from 1668 to 1672. An anti-Laudian Churchman and parliamentarian, and effectively excluded from active participation in ecclesiastical politics after the Restoration (since he seemed a turncoat to all sides), Wilkins unhesitatingly accepted the Act of Uniformity in 1662 and tried to persuade moderate dissenters that it was in the best interests of the Church: J. Henry, 'Wilkins, John (1614-1672)'. ODNB.
[179] MS: 'It is bounded on the East with ~~Sedber~~ \ Dent in / Sedber parish; on the S. ~~with Tunsdal~~ \ ~~& Whittington~~ / ~~in Lancashire~~: with (~~Burton & Kendal~~) Barbon Chap[elry] ~~with Preston Chap in Burton & Hutton in Kendal~~.'
[180] The tenants.

[Middleton Hall]

Figure 2.8.18. Middleton Hall. II.241.

[II.242]

Midleton Hall on a fellside clad with wood. 3 rows of trees afore the door & a Parke above. Built castle like but ruinous.[181]

[II.241]

In the Dineing Roome W[ain]s[cot]

Figure 2.8.19. Middleton Hall. In the Dining Room wainscot. II.241.

[Notes]
[Coat 1] Argent & Sable – Midleton
[Coat 2] Midleton impaleing Lowther, Sc. Or, 6 anulets Sable
[Coat 3] [Midleton] Impaleing a quarterly [coat] In the Stn[182] a wooden escutcheon belonging to the chimney.
[Coat 4] On the Arch of the Hall chimney. Katherine 4 d[aughter] of W. Conyers of Marsk, w[ife] of Thomas Midleton de Aplegarth in Midleton.
5. John Mid[leton]
6. Sir Geffray[183]
7. Thomas Mid[leton]

Upon an old Wooden Tablet decayed:

[181] For Middleton Hall's history, see Garnett, 'Middleton', Victoria History ... of the County of Westmorland, 1 (forthcoming).
[182] Unknown shortened word, possibly 'stone'.
[183] Pencilled letters here are illegible.

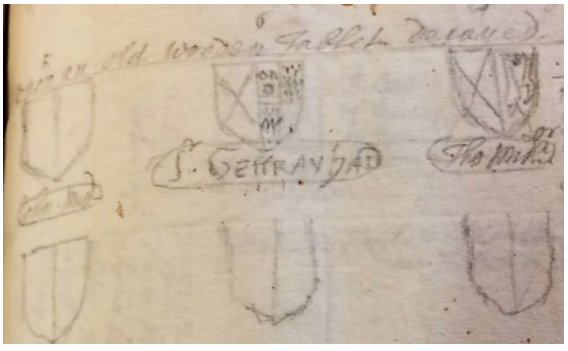

Figure 2.8.20. Dining Room Middleton Hall: Arms on a wooden tablet. II.241.

Hic iacet Katherina filia 4 Gulielmi Conyers de Marske Armigeri, Quæ uxor fuit Thomæ Middelton de Applegarthe, filij 2. Galfridi Middelton de Middelton Hall Equestris Ordinis, pro servitio suo fideli Illustrissimus ille Marchio de Northampton Dominus Par Eidem Thomæ Grangiam et | Tenementum illam de Applegarth Remunerabat […[Ano Dom 1569 […] Ætatis suæ 53 et iacet in (Ecc)[le]sia Parochiali de Prædicta Marske. [184]

[II.236]

[Hawkin Hall]

'A pretty new house call'd Hawking-hall … I have given you the platforme \ & manner of it.'[185]

Figure 2.8.21A. Elevation. Hawking Hall. II.236.

[184] 'Here lies Katherine, fourth daughter of William Conyers of Marske Esq., who was wife of Thomas Middleton of Applegarth the second son of Galfrid Middleton of Middleton Hall, Knight. For his faithful service the most excellent Marquis of Northampton Lord Par rewarded him with the said grange and tenement of Applegarth […] A.D. 1569 […] In the 53rd year of his age, and he lies in his parish church of Marske aforesaid.'

[185] The quotation is taken from Machell's Itinerary, Part 2, Ch.10, II.384.

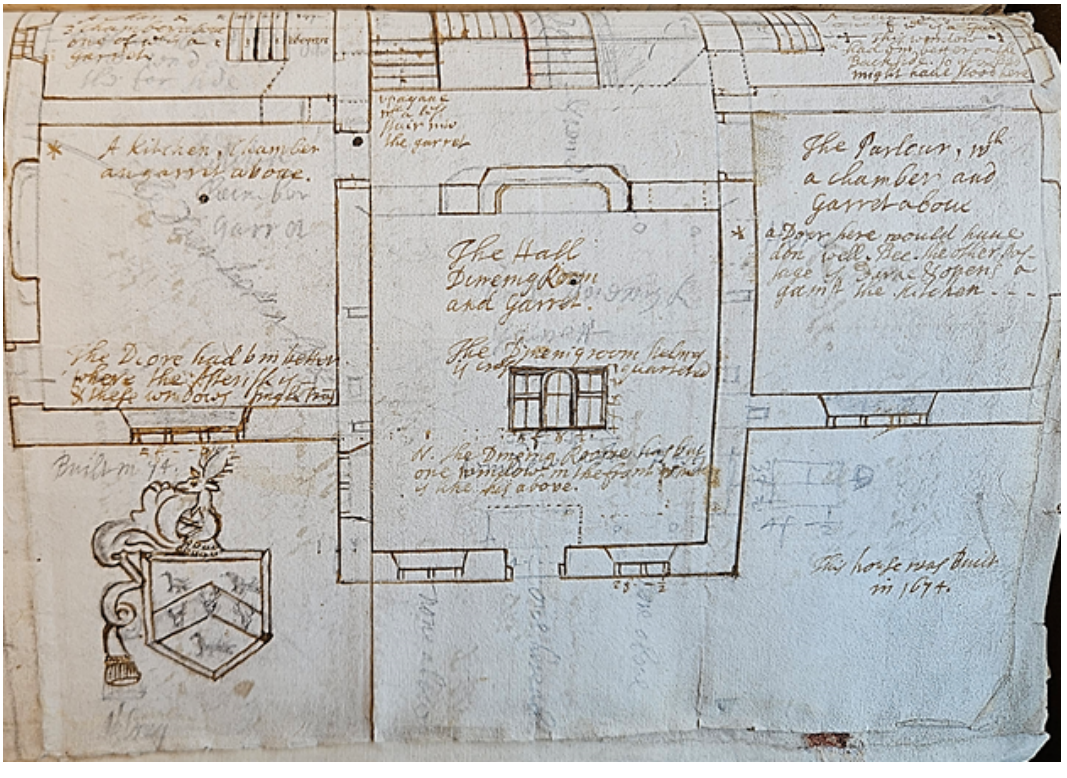

Figure 2.8.21B. Plan. Hawking Hall. II.236.

[Notes on the Plan above]

This house was built in 1674 {Set this front out ½ a foot}
A cellar & 3 chambers above one of which is a garret.
A kitchen chamber and garret above. The Dore [lower end left] had bin better where the Asterisk is & these windows single transom.
[Stairs] up agane with a less[er]stair into the garret.
The Hall, Dineing Room and Garret. N[ote] The Dineing room sieling is cross quartered. N[ote] the Dineing Roome has but one window in the front which is like this above: 5 feet & ½ long; 4 feet & ½ high.
A cellar & 3 chambers one of which is a Garret. This window had bin better on the Backside so that a Bed might have stood here.
The Parlour with a chamber and Garret above*. A door here would have done well bec[ause] the other passage is Darke & opens against the Kitchen.

[II.243]

[Middleton Family Pedigree]

Edward Midleton =
|
John Midleton =
3. John a Capt.[186] 2. William a Coll. 1. Edward Midleton = Bridgett d. of Binlos of Borwick in Lanc. |

= 2nd wife Joan Eld. Sis. of Sir G.M. of Leighton

d. Joan m. = John Lupton cordwinder	George	Char.	Will.	Edw.	Robt	Thom. ob. s. p. [childless]	Geofrey	1. John M. [see below]

1. John M = Mary Cole of Coate near Halton in Lancashire

Rob. Innupta [unmarried]	David Innupta	Edw. d. Sine Prole [childless]		Briget m. To Josua Heblethwate of Dent Yeoman	Mary m. to James Cragg of Dent Yeo.
	d. Agnes m. to Rob. Cooke yeom.	3. Jos. 9	2. Ed. 12	1. John aet 18

Isabell	Briget	Rebecca	Mary	Agnes	3. David 1.	2. James 5.	1. John æt 21

[Bainbrig of Hawkin Pedigree]

Dr. Bainbrig. Xtr Bainb[rig] 1st Benefactor to the chapel.		=	Widdo Moore
	1. Edward B.	=	[?][187] d. of Mr Rich Barton Rector of M.
Xtopher fellow of Xts Coll. Camb. who builded	1. Thomas = 2. Margaret d. of Arthur Dixon of Plu[m]gards by Kendal	=	1. [Blank] Robson of Edenall in Cumberland
2. Alice	1. George		1. Edward	2. Xtpher

[186] Captain.
[187] Covered by a blot.

[II.239]

Doctor Bainbrig Master of Christs College in King Ch.1. Time; who maryed at 60 years of age & had 19 children. Borne at Hawkin.[188] {Tradition}[189]

Roger Moore Sergiant of Law, now of Holmhouse in Whitington parish, was borne at Bens Banke.[190]

And John More afore mentiond, who \ was / sisters son with the said Sergeant, being 64 years of Age tho an intelligent person & a man of great business: was never so many miles from home as he is years old.

Capt. John Midleton, a soldjer in the Low Countryes, was slane in the Service of K.C.1.[191]

And Collonel Will. his Brother was not slane in that Service.

{N[otes] G[eneral]}

~~Trees~~ Linwood (Tilia?) Lindenwood a sort of tree like the Plane Tree but the leave much less.[192]
Cherryes near Blackbeck {and at Barbon twixt Brigford & in Scarford}.
Rasberryes (vulgo – Hineberryes hic)[193] Cnoutberryes at Knoutberry hill – Knotberryes (forsan Chamæmorus).[194]
Midleton Deere Parke Disparkd about the year 1640 {gradually destroyd}.
Som Juniper but not sweet (which they call Savin).
Ewe – at Esheholme, but scarce enough.
Holly large & plentifull – Sparsin.[195]
Peets 3m. E. a Capella. Barkin Edge.
No Limestone none.
If all be gold that glisters – See Euerbeck N.E a Capella. 2 mile & ~~2~~[196]
Good Salmon all over Leun.
Store of Clean \ foul / marts all over the woods.
More [blank] wild cats than some Rats.[197]

[188] Thomas Bainbridge was the 12th Master of Christ's College, Cambridge, 1622-1646, see https://www.christs.cam.ac.uk/masters-christs-college-1505.
[189] The following note is derived from research by Christopher Gathorne, included by R.P. Brown in, 'Bainbrig of Hawkin in Middleton, Westmorland', CW2, 24 (1924), 134: 'Edward Bainbrig married Ann d. of Mr. Richard Burton Rector of M[arton] 1591-1641; … his father Christopher married "Widdo Moore"; and … his son Thomas' first wife was a Robson of Edenhall. To the name of Edward's son Christopher, Machell appends the remark "who builded". This ought to be conclusive that Hawkin was rebuilt, not by Edward's father but by Edward's son. Caution however seems necessary, for Machell describes the elder Christopher as Dr Bainbrig (which he was not), and the Edenhall marriage is not found in the register of that parish.'
[190] Bains Bank. A margin comment close to this text appears to be 'Tem. Will. 3'. As William III reigned from 1689 to 1702, this interpretation must be in error.
[191] KC1 = King Charles I. English soldiers fought in the Eighty Years' War (1568-1648), otherwise known as the 'Revolt of the Netherlands' against Spanish rule. See Anton van der Lem and Andy Brown, Revolt in the Netherlands: the Eighty Years' War, 1568-1648, E book (28 February 2019), 9781789140880.
[192] Linden trees are of the Tilia genus.
[193] 'Commonly called hineberries here'.
[194] The genus Chamaemorus includes the knotberry: see Philosophical Transactions, Giving Some Accompt of the Present Undertakings, Studies and Labours in many considerable parts of the world, eds John Martyn, James Allestry, Henry Oldenburg: Vol. 61, Part 1 (1771), 365.
[195] Sparsim: scattered; dispersed here and there.
[196] Machell also refers to 'read shining dust' above, see II.200.
[197] Unclear passage. Because Machell's distinctions between 's' and 't', and 'a' and 'o', are sometimes unclear, this sentence could equally read, 'more wild cats than tame rats.'

[II.252]

[vii.] [Gervase Benson][198]

Westm'land
Gervase Benson Esqs one of the justis of peace for the sayd County, to the Sheriffe of the sayd County & alsoe to all Bayliffes Constables Officers & Ministers of the publique peace and chiefly to the Constables of Brough & Helbecke within the sayd County greeting.
Forasmuch as Francis Blenkinsope and John Bragge have personally appeared before me at Killington in the County aforesaid and have found sufficient suretie for themselves and also for Thomas Blenkinsoppe younger & Mary Bragge wife of the sayd John Bragge.
That they the sayd Francis Blenkinsoppe John Bragge Thomas Blenkinsoppe younger & Mary Bragge shall well & truly keepe the Peace of the Commonwealth towards all and cheifely towards John Machell of Appulbye. And alsoe that they shall personally appeare before the justics of the peace at the next generall sessions of the peace to be holden for the said County. Therefore on the behalf of the keepers of the lybertie of England by authoritie of parliament I command you and every of you that you utterly forbeare & surcease to arrest, take, imprison or otherwise by any meanes (for the sayd occasion) to molest the sayd Francis Blenkinsoppe John Bragge Thomas Blenkinsoppe younger Mary Bragge and if you have (for the sayd occasion & none other) taken or imprisoned any of them that then you doe cause such person or persons to be deliverd and set at lybertie without further delay. Given at Killington aforesaid under my hand & seale the Third day of Aprill in the yeare of Our Lord 1652.
Ger: Benson.

[Machell's Notes: II.252]
[Query] of Mr Heblethwate; q. what G. Benson had to do there?[199]

[viii.] [Firbank. Killington. Joseph Farrer, Rob. Johnson.]

[II.245]

Firbanke Chapel in Lonesdale Parish
{Firbanke alias Firth Banke in a deed 1586.} {S. Farrer has seen it writ – Firthbanke alias Thure-banke}
{L 20? B. 7? 1 Bel} {L. 14 B. 6}[200]
The Chapl is calld St Martins Chaple; their Rushbearing on Whit Sunday. But the Antient \ ch[apel] stood] / in a close calld Chappel Garth (this being built by the Inhabitants of the same materials feched away by them because the chappelyard was clamed by som in Killington). Adjoyneing to which are 2 Close mentioned in their ancient Bounders (tho now clamed & enjoyd by Killington) calld Priestfields.
The Impropriation is in Trinity College who have Wool & Lamb in Kinde; (wooll unsen).[201]But neither Corne nor hay – but Meal money & (Hay Silver) as it rules in Kendal Market according to the [198] Gervase Benson (d.1679), JP and sometime mayor of Kendal, whose nonconformist and political inclinations led him to invite the Lancashire parliamentarian forces to Kendal. He was known as 'Colonel Benson' in 1645 when he was in command of Kendal's local garrison. He had a house at Borrett (a farm between Brigflatts and the edge of Sedbergh). In his journal, George Fox, leader of the Quaker movement, described meeting Benson at Borrett in 1652, following Fox's vision of a large number of people waiting 'to be gathered' in South Westmorland. 'And the next day [6th June] I went to a Separate meeting [of people who had left the Established Church] at Justice Benson's: where the people was generally convinced [had embraced Quakerism]: & this was the place that I had seen a people coming forth in white raiment. A mighty meeting there was and is to this day, near Sedbergh, which I gathered in the name of Jesus.' Benson became a prominent English Quaker; his understanding of laws on tithes and oaths made him highly useful to Quakers on trial for non-compliance. See John L. Nickalls (ed.), The Journal of George Fox (London, 1975), 106; see also C. Phillips, 'Benson, Gervase (d. 1679), Quaker leader'. ODNB. The letter above (see Figure 2.8.22), was written just two months before Benson met George Fox.

[199] The query is in Machell's hand.
[200] The second measurement is written in pencil beneath the first.
[201] Possibly 'unseen'.

highest Rate, Saterday afore midsomer & Saterday [after], but the money not payable till Mich[aelmas] day.[202] This Lordship & Killington payes together the Rate of 6 Sc. & 5 Bushel oat-meal Winchester measure ~~which is to Bushell~~.[203] And of this, Firban[k] is only a third part. The hay silver is halfe to the Rector & halfe to Vicar; and these 2 being joyned together in their corne are therefore divided in their Hay Silver – so that the Vicar has for his halfe the Hay Silver of Killington & the Rector for his part, this of Firbanck {and this division goes through the parish according to such proportion as has bin anciently agreed upon.}

There is ~~House for~~ \ a Schoole house adjoneing. / The Chap~~lain~~ hath an endowment of iiii marke per Annum laid upon their Respective Tenements,[204] & there was a like proportion payd by Killington men as far as a place calld Walkergards – 4m.½ S. from this chaple. It is gatherd by the name of Chaple Sallary [and] gathered by the Chaplain whom they provide – the vicar approveing. They allow him 5^{li} more for Teaching, & the Chaple Stock, being 5 nobles. & Quarter pence as he can agree. {10^{li} – to use; Given as an Augment[ati]on to the Chaplaine by John Symson, Anno 1689; Anthony Ward 40s in 1691.}

It is bounded on the East with Sedber in Yorkeshire & divided from it by the River Leun; On the S. with Killington Chappelry – [divided] by Sever Beck; but they clame a piece within the beck where the Chappel [s]tood.
They Hold of the Crow[n] as the Lord of the M[anor].

[II.247]

Firbanke Ch. in L.
On the West [bounded] with \ Lamrig in / Grarig Chappelry divided by Galloway-gate from […][205] to Burton. On the North, with Dillaker in the said Chaplry divided by Dillaker [beck]. It is one Entire Lordship; with Cooperthwait adjoyneing unto it: which formerly ~~was~~ belongd to an abby – of Gervise as they thinke in – Yorkeshire.[206]

They were all customary tenants & Heriotable formerly \ & payed Boones & Services / but were purchased free by the respective Tenants; ~~But~~ of Edward Ward of Firbanke yeoman & Roger Dawson of Kendal, Draper, in 1586, 29 of Eliz, as by an original Deed I have seen of one Thomas Newbys {dat 20 Febrie XXIX of Eliz.}[207] wherein is Recited:
"That whereas Francis Vaughan of Sutton upon Derwent in the County of York Esqs, by his Endenture &c. bearing date XXX of August in the 26 of Queen Elizabeth,[208] & other Asurances in Law for 1000li. payd to him; Did convey unto the said party &c. forever the Lordship & hamlet of Firbank alias Firthebanke with all the Rights members & appurtenances in Firbank alias Firthb. within the County of W. & All their Messuages Tenements &c. then or late in the several Tenures [and] possessions of certain persons in the said Indenture named or their Assynes. And all other lands &c. which ~~the said~~ was his the said Francis Vaughan in Firbanke, as by the said Indenture Ap[peareth] the true Intent of which Indenture was – That the said Ward & Dawson their heires &c. should convey unto every [one of] the said Tenants & their heires & Assignes for ever (as aforesaid): Each their owne Tenements, together with an Equal part or portion of the moores wastes commons pastures perquisites & profits of Courtes, & of all other Privileges liberties & Franchases parcell of or belong unto the said Lordship proportionably: & accord to the Annual Rent of any such Messuage or Tenement." And accordingly, they were conveyed to the respective Tenants by the said partyes. And [202] 29 September.

[203] A Winchester bushel was a measure of capacity used for corn, fruit, etc., containing four pecks or eight gallons. OED.
[204] A mark = two-thirds of a troy pound of pure silver or two-thirds of a pound sterling. 4 marks = £2 13s 4d. https://www.nottingham.ac.uk/manuscriptsandspecialcollections/researchguidance/weightsandmeasures/money
[205] A crossed-through, unclear place-name occurs here.
[206] Jervaulx.
[207] 20 February in Elizabeth's 29th regnal year would have been in 1587.
[208] 30 August in Elizabeth's 26th regnal year would have been in 1584.

in the End of the Deed is conveyed to every [tenant] the wood growing upon his own Tenement. {The King has Waif & Stray.}
{Ann Lady Knevet is concerned in the original grant. Farrer will send word.}[209]

[II.248]

Crock-principals so called.[210]

[II.249]

They hold of the King as the Lord of the Manner did, paying amongst them 7 Groates per Annum which is ~~by~~ 1[d] per house;[211] which Rent was formerly payd by the Lord.
Cowperthwate belongd to a Religiouse h[ouse]? & pay compos[ition for] Meal [tithe]
They appeard here before at Killington Hall.

{Lamrick [had] an old Tower in a place calld Fri[…][212] demolished a[bout] 10 years ago, a Capella 1m. S. It belongd Grarig – it was onely for a Parke house & for fawning[213] the deere.

There are 3 stones by Gallaway yeat on Firbanke Fell having crosses on them – calld by the Name of Goody-Cross*. The old Widdow[s] in memory were all calld Guddyes here – [Goody Cross stands] where Firbanke, Lamrig & Hutton Lordships meet.

No Buriing place here, but with leave they bury & pay the due to both Churches. & som at Kendal.

No Parke – Martes of both sortes.
Good salmon – as far as Rean[214] in Orton Parish in the River Leun; allso Trouts & Eales –
\ an[d] He[a]r of / Hawkes in Goody-Wood – while it was standing†.

Great store of More game – Black cock & Hen called Ore-gam - & more \ cockes, poutes, / Hens &c.
St \ Martins / Well – in Firbanke – kills keads.[215]
Som Holly & Box – large in gardines, alas none in the hedges.
Peat or Turfe – 1½ m. West.
A place calld Marle-pits – hard by the chapl within the bottom on the S. West side
A Well, at Party-haw – ¼ [m.] S. West a Capella – which petrifies moss – like Rotten free stone – & kills the grass. No limestone none. Blew Rag.
They have no manner house – But appere at Killing[ton] Hall which formerly ~~yet~~ to the Pickerings – After to the Vaughans – & now to the Tenants themselves.

[Machell's Notes: II.249]

*{forsan pro Goodwin}
†{40 year since.}

[209] One of the Farrers was acting as Machell's assistant and informant here.
[210] A crock/cruck: one of a pair of curved timbers forming, with other pairs, the framework of a house. OED.
[211] The groat was equivalent to 4d. It was in general circulation until 1662. See https://www.nottingham.ac.uk/manuscriptsandspecialcollections/researchguidance/weightsandmeasures/money.
[212] The paper has perished here.
[213] Fawning or Fownyng = birth of fawns; as in 1579 (Reg. Privy C. III. 173): 'During the present seasoun of fownyng of the deir.' Dictionary of the Scots Language. Online.
[214] Rayne.
[215] Sheep-lice: see the English Glossary.

[II.258][216]

[ix.] [Thomas Heblethwaite]

To Mr Thomas Machell Parson of KirkbyThure at Appulby or elsewhere with care
These Present
Westm'land

[II.257][217]

Sir
I made enquiry of severall persons how this County of Westmorland boundered on the west of Yorkshire till it came to Lancashire but finding them to differ soe much in their accompts I could not tell what to make of them and therefore shall not trouble you therewith. As for the Consecration of Killington Chappell I cannot give you any further accompt thereof.

{Ad Killington}[218]
As for Killington Hall I finde that 28^0 Elizabeth [1585-1586] Francis Vaughan of Sutton upon Darwen Com Ebor Esq. did convay it cum per.[219] unto one Robert Waidson gent. & his heires & assigns and about five yeares after Mr Waidson convayed the same to Radcliffe Ashton of Preston in Amoundenes Com Lancaster & his heires & assigns.
And that Mr Ashton 15^0 Jacobi of England I & 50^0 of Scotland [1617-1618] convayed the same to Thomas Kitson senior of Warton Com Lancaster af[ores[aid] gent. & his heires which said Mr Kitson was my mothers father. And after the Decease of Thomas his Son by a settlement made by him the same discended & came to mee. And I am apt to believe about the same time the said Mr Vaughan sold all his tenements in Killington & Firbanke into fee simple. Sir I begg your pardon for giving you this trouble; the rest is the tender of my humble service to yourselfe and to all your friends that enquire after Deare Sir
Your assured friend & servant
Thomas Heblethwaite
Killington 8^0 August 1692

[Machell's Notes: II.260]
This T. Heblethwaite (for giveing Sir Joh[n] Lowther a double vote against Sir \ Xtopher / Musgrave) was made Justice of P[eace] through his Intres[t] 1696.
[Note in a later hand]
(which quashed all his merit with T.M.)[220]

[II.253]

[x.] [John Heblethwate and Joseph Farrer]

Killinton Chapel in Lonesdal 6m. N. ab Ecclesia {l. 20. b. 6: 2 little B[ells.]}
{Mr Slater Chaplaine.[221] John Jackson schoolmaster: 20s per Annum & 1s per quarter & meat house per house} {Sallary of the chapel about 19 li per Annum charged proportionably upon their Estates & is immemorial and out of 100^{li} chapel stock.}
{Mr J. Heblethwate is to informe of fellowships or exhib[itions] given by the Heblethwates.}

[216] A wax-sealed paper, the reverse page of the letter on II.257.
[217] This page consists of a letter written by Thomas Hebblethwaite, with later comments written by Machell and William Nicolson.
[218] In Machell's hand.
[219] Shortened Latin form: 'with its appurtenances'.
[220] This later bracketed remark is in a hand very similar to that of William Nicolson.
[221] William Slater is recorded as chaplain of Killington Chapel in 1712. CCED (Online records here are sparse).

Figure 2.8.22. Killington Chapel. II.253.

This Chapl (if wee may conjecture from the Rushbearing which was formerly us'd) is dedicated to the Service of God by the name of St James. In the East end thereof in the 1^{t} light is this coat of Armes. Marked – (1.)

Figure 2.8.23. Killington Chapel. 'Arms marked (1.)'. II.253.

One Walker & his wife. Both of them buried under one stone at the East of the chapl.
'James | Walker and | Mabil his | wife | strange yet true to hear | They lived together either of them, (about) 100 year. – 1637.'

JAMES WALKER & MABIL HIS WIFE
THESE WORDS ARE TRUE YET STRANGE TO HEAR
THEY LIVED EITHER OF THEM 100 YEAR 1637[222]

They pay Meal Silver for their Tithe Corne: & wool & lamb in kinde to the College, or their farmers. But no \ Tithe / hay. The rest of their Tithes are payd in kinde to the Vicar of Kirkby.

It is bounded on the East with Sedber Parish, & part of Midleton chappelry: on the S. with Midleton & Kirkby: On the N. with Firbanke \ Chaple: / & on the West with Old Hutton in Kendal.
It is one entire Lordship & consisted of freehold & customary Tenants. But those that were customary excepting ~~som few~~ (one which Holds of Mr Thomas Heblethwate) are all purchas'd free of one Mr Vaughan Lord of the Manner? paying only 1^{d} per house for their Quit Rent due to the Crown – {fine Cert. no boones nor service} They have nothing to doe with the Marq[ess] & Rich[mo]nd foes but hold of the Crown: & have no Court kept.

[II.333]

{Killington}
A man of the Bap[tist] ch[urch] that ever I mett with of that inployment, amongst his neighboures injurious one to them in this: that he does not marry, that they may have more of so good a Breede.

[Killington Hall]

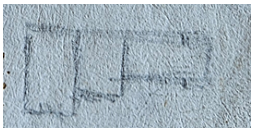

Figure 2.8.24. Sketch plan of Killington Hall. II.253.

The mannerhouse is Killing\ton Hall, ~~at~~ near the W. End of which / an ancient Tower house & much decayed, but is now a[t] Repars by the said Mr Heblethwate the owner of it.

[222] Written in the left-hand margin. The epitaph is repeated verbatim as a note on MS. II.254.

[Arms in the Hall]
2. Over the \ 2nd / Garret window in the Advancd part of the Hall

Figure 2.8.25. Killington Hall garret window. II.253.

Figure 2.8.26. Killington Hall. 'Over the hall door now a window'. II.253.

{3. Over the hall doore now a window, 3 Chevins,[223] by the name of Kitson, 3 fishes Argent on a ch[ief] Or, a Lyon Rampant Sab[le] Inter 2 ograses[224] charged with 2 Anchors Or: whence the colours of this other may be set.}[225]

[Land at] Killington – W. a Capella adjoyneing to the Hall, has had Deere in it as appears by the Leapes, but has not bin stock'd in the memory of man. There martes of both sortes, Broks. There is another called Stone Parke; both which belongs to Mr Heblethwate.
Store of more game, as Black Cocks, More Cocks & Partridges \ & gray hens. /
Lilly Tarne – 1m. ¼ N. a Capella. l[ength] 200 – b[readth] as much[226] – hath Trout Pike & Eal, but not so big as Mr Heblethwate['s] the ~~owner of it~~. the Informer \ testify. /
Lang Tarne – 1m. ¼ W. l[ength] 11 score – b[readth] – about 6 Sc[ore], affords the like; & belongs to him; & [is in] the Lordship of Old Hutton.
The Hall-beck which runns by the Hall on the S. End therof & thence takes its name, springs on Killington Fell a Capella 1m. N. & Runns through Killington by the Hall & Chapel. & discharges itselfe ½ a mile into the River Leun above Julian Ford S. East a Capella.[227]

[II.255]

Holly – good store in Killinton Parke. But few orchards. Wineberryes – Crône berryes (a white berry speckled with browne & read like a magpies eggs, in shape & colour, but no bigger than a wood strawberry; they grow on small stalkes like bent & are good to preserve).
On the mosses – Raspberryes every[where] Few bleab[erryes] Strawberryes plenty.
Peate or Turfe plenty – within a mile W. on Killington Common. No lime stone! Blew Raggstone for w[orking] – all over Kirkby Lonsdale Parish.[228]

[223] Chevin: a fish, the chub. OED.
[224] Ogress: 'a sable roundle', A.C. Fox-Davies, A Complete Guide to Heraldry (New York, 1978), 151.
[225] This margin material has been overwritten in ink; the last word is unsafe.
[226] Length and breadth, each 200 yards.
[227] The bottom left-hand margin contains information written in pencil, which begins 'Richard' but is highly blurred and therefore illegible.
[228] MS: 'KLP'.

{August 20. 1692.}
The Man'r was in the name of Vaughan about 80 years since – & was sold – Ut Supra – to the Tenency.[229] The Royalty remaned in the Crow[n]. Demane & manorhouse was sold to Mr Ashton of Cuerden in Com. Lanc; from the Ashtons to Mr Thomas Kitson of Warton in Lanc. \ above / 70 year agoe. In which name it remaned till of Late that Thomas Kitson son of Thomas, the purchaser conveyed it by deed – to feofees in Trust for the use of Mr T. Heblethwate \ his sisters / son {?} the present proprietor. Of which he send me a particular account.
{Firbank was purchased 2 yeares afore this [sale], by which the date may be found} {Jos. Farrer says it was before that in the Pickerings.}

Pedegre of Heblethwate
{Warton?}

Thomas Kitson of Killington purchaser	=	Elizabeth Croft
1. Thomas Kitson obijt sine prole	=	Lucy \ d. of John / Labourn Esq	Jane	=	Robert Midleton of Leighton a younger brother of Sir George	Elizabeth Kitson	=	Robert Heblethwate of Killington
							|
1. Thomas Heblethwate to whome Thomas his unkle conveyed the Estate	2. Henry	3. John	Robert	James	6 [Blank]	1. Ann	3. Dorithy	2. Elizabeth

[II.256]

[Machell's Notes: II.256]
Pickatree.[230] Black head, back; Tales wings of same colour; speckld with 3 yal[low] str[ipes] – neck & thighs read; Belly yellowish.

[II.261]

[xi.] [Information provided by an unknown informant]

Hutton Roof Chapelry in Kirkby Lonsdale Parish[231]
{Chap. L. 13, B. 6. Never had a bell. Indifferent Repare. Mr Giles Baly Chaplain 16 years here}
It was builded at the cost of the Lordship Anno 1610; as appeares by a stone on the Top of the E. End of the said Chapel on the outside with those figures upon it. And is supposed to bear the name of St James his Chapl from their Rush bearing about that time.

[229] Tenantry.
[230] A pickatree is a woodpecker. From its description here, Machell may well be describing the Great Spotted Woodpecker.
[231] MS: 'Hutton Roof Chapelry in Lonsdale Parish Hutton Roof Chapel in Kirkby Parish.'

Figure 2.8.27. Hutton Roof Chapel. II.261.

There is no Dwelling House belonging to it. But a salary of iiij per Annum,[232] begun by the Town at the Consecration & augmented to the said sum by som of the Inhabitants by their lasts Wills & Testaments. Which is now in a Stock called the Sallary put out by feofees – Sc. Edward Man, Edward Burrow, Thomas Loansdal & John Green; & their Heires successively. The Town provides [the chaplain] ~~and~~ & the Vicar \ has the /[233] Approbation upon any vacancy.

Corne is here payd in kinde to Trinity Colledge in Cambridge, or to their Leaser Sir Thomas Strickland or his Assigne. And the hay is payable in kinde, but they compound for about 6d or 8[d] an Acre as they can agree, {Mr Hoile med som pay 12d}[234] & halfe of the hay is due to the college & halfe to the Vicker. Wool & Lamb in kinde to the College but other small Tithes are all due to the Vicar. {The said informant, sed q.}[235]

This Chappel[ry] is Bounded on the East with Kirkby Lordship; on the \ South / Lancashire (as in the Generall Bounder); On the West \ with / Burton (from the Heap of Stones at Plover lands to the Standing Steän; \ thence to the Brig at Wood Yeat Green not far from Cow Brow'; / On North with Lupton in Kirkby [parish], from which tis divided ~~from standing stean~~ by Lupton Beck.
It is now esteemd but ½ of a Lordship as joyn'd with Casterton beyond Leun. But a Court was formerly kept in this place; & they never \ of old / appeard at Casterton.
Divers sortes soyle but mostly lime stone.
{Names of place. Newbigin (6.)[236] a Capella ½ m. NW; Winyeats (4.)[237] W. a Capella ½ m.
Hootton R (20.)}[238]
{Barre-heams at Lupton – Bar-hims at Kendal– what wee call Barghhams.}[239]

[II.238]

Bind-weed leavs bruised & applyed with a Clout[240] will take away the pain [informant] Baly.[241]

[II.263]

Hutton Roof Chap. in Lonesd.
There is a place called the Parke {onely slatt hedg'd}[242] and an \ obscure / House called Park-House: {a Capella ¼ S.} which is supposed to have bin the Demane \ if there was any / which lately belongd [232] No denomination given.

[233] These words have been placed above three other words, all scored through and illegible.
[234] Henry Hoyle appears to have been notoriously venal. According to John F. Curwen: 'in 1675 Thomas Moore, of Hutton Roofe and Dorothy Middleton of Lupton, were prosecuted in the Bishop's Court at Richmond, by Henry Hoyle, priest of K. Lonsdale for small tithes, and in the latter end of the year were cast into prison by a writ de Excommunicato capiendo where they remained till the priest died, after whose death (in 1676) they were kept in prison by John Newton of K. Lonsdale, the priest's proctor, till he also died, and then they were set at liberty after four years and seven months imprisonment'. John F. Curwen (ed.), Records Relating To the Barony of Kendale, III, CWAAS Record Series 6 (Kendal, 1926), 278-91.
[235] 'But query this informant's information.'
[236] 6 families.
[237] 4 families.
[238] 20 families.
[239] Bargham: collar of a working horse. OED. Machell notes its different pronunciations in Lupton and Kendal.
[240] Cloth.
[241] See II.261: Giles Baly, chaplain of Hutton Roof.
[242] This word is unclear; it might be 'slatt': made either of hurdles or slats of wood (OED), but it could be an abbreviation of some other word.

to Sir T. Preston of Preston and Man[or] which they say* \ now / belong to the Lord Montgomery or the Lord Clifford by marriage of his daughters†.
Martes of both sortes, Badgers, & Foxes too many, wild cates – Partridge.
Large Laurel Tree in the House calld the Haw – formerly ~~Mr~~ Captaine Mans & his ancestors, but sold by him to one Bateman who resold it to Mr Thomas Cole of Coate near Halton in Com. Lanc.
Fuel scarce, Flaws[243] – ¼ S. a Capella,[244] on the Common.
Plenty of Lime al over the Lordship; no Blew Ragg. Whiteish brown free stone; good store {½ S a Capella} {Sc. on the Common} Also Gri[n]dstones & flags at the same place.
They tried for Cole in Mr Coles lands S.E. a Capella ¼ m.

[Storth]
There is a place calld Storthe[245] ½ m. a Capella N.E. payes no Tithe.
There are som Customary Estates in the Town which lye in parcells in severall mens hand. But Generallity bough[t] themselves free a long time since, even beyond memory – But of whom or when is not knowne but they have heard of a Court.
The Kings Balif takes Waif & Stray – And they pay a Quit Rent unto the Crow[n] as the Chief Lord thereof. They have no Lord now but The Queen & themselves.

[Machell's Notes: II.263]

*{?}
†{q. which?}
{Park-House is thatched}

[II.233]

[xii.] [Machell's Further Queries of his Informants]

Further q[ueries] in K. Lonsdal Parish.
The Bounder of it, & that side of the Barony from the Holmwater foote.
Who bought Underley of Apple Garths – & who Wilson bough[t] of Midleton.

How the Tenents hold in freedom yet keep a C[ourt]; in whose n[ame] now called?
how Endowed – the Chap[el] l. b.[246] – by whom built.
Armes at the Hall

\ Lord[ship of] / Firbank \ Chapel / If anciently a Chaple alias to which [chapelry] they belong
If an Hall or have Steed[247]
Free or Customary. Who Lord?
Who owes & how Rigmadon Hall[248] a manner house or freehold only?
Nether Hall
Hegham Hall?

The Lord of Mansergh? Tenent free or Customary.
1. q[uery] of a Chaple \ l. b. / Encl. &c.
2. Query if Carus Arms be a cheveron Argent ch[arged] with 3 Mul[lets] G[ules] in Azure.
3. The hall or Manner house.
4. Who Lord & how poss[esse]d.

[243] Flaws. The name once given to thin layers of heath cut for fuel: Yorkshire Dictionary. Online. The OED gives, 'a flaw of peats': the quantity got in a season. OED.
[244] MS: 'a Capel ¼ S. a Capella.'
[245] Unclear word.
[246] Length, breadth.
[247] Homestead.
[248] 'Who owes [suit of court] and how Rigmaden h[olds]. A manor house or freehold only?'

[II.234B][249]

Q[uery] of M. Moore[250]
The meaning & difference of Marquess & Richmond f[ees].
Why do you call it a Foefar[m] Rent?
How this T[own] is situated si in Medio Vallis de Loan.[251]
If the Lord have the Liberty of Waife & Strays.
The Suggestion for having a chaple.
The Salvo Jure. in Ecclesiæ how Express'd? & Read \ a / allou[d][252]
Pick lock.
Whose Barbon before the Midletons.
Colonel Brigs of Burrowby.[253]
Barbon Beck springs at the head of Barbondal in Wakeber & Berkin fells a Capella 3 miles N. by E. & Runs downe twixt the Parke & Spring till it coms on the N. of Bar[…][254] near which dist[ance][255] W. it is lost in Leun.

[II.218]

[Tithes]
{Hay.}[256] The Vicar has some Tithe Hay in Kinde in Keastwick & Underley, & \ ½ ~~part~~ / of Hutton Roofe – & som hay money ~~Sc. 10 groats~~ in every Hamlet – The Impropriator has the rest.
{The Tithe Corne.} The Tithe Corne & meal money[257] \ goes / all to the coll[ege].[258]
{Wool.} Wool & som lamb in kinde to the Impropriator. Are Piggs?

[249] II.234B is a scrap page, 8cm x 18½cm; its text comprises queries added on several occasions, as seen in the colours of the ink used.
[250] Possibly John Moore, see II.239.
[251] 'If in the middle of the Lune Valley'.
[252] 'Saving the parish church's right: how expressed and read aloud?'
[253] Colonel Edward Briggs, commander of the Lonsdale Trainbands during the Civil Wars, lived at Burrow Hall. His children's baptisms are recorded at Tunstall church from 1651 to 1663. See W.H. Chippindall, 'The Tatham families of Burrow, Tunstall, Cantsfield and Lowfield', CW2, 33 (1933), 98-112, at 98-99.
[254] Perished.
[255] The next word is too blotted to understand.
[256] Begins with illegible pencilled comments, partly obscured by the binding.
[257] Hay-money and meal-money: see the English Glossary.
[258] Trinity College, Cambridge.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 9. Parish of Windermere]

[II.302A]

Kendal. Windermere Parish

[II.304]

{Referr Hither my Itinerary for description of Places}[1]

The Parish of Windermer is Divided into

1. Precincts Peculiar to the Parish Church wherein ~~are~~ is	St Martines Church}	Bowness Orrest head Under Milbeck Aplethwate now since the dissecration of St K[atherine's] Ch[apel]	Church, Parsonage, School: [all] in Bowness. Under Melock Brant Fel Old Field Lickbarrow Thornburtt Lindath Storrs
2. The Precincts Peculiar to the several Chapelryes	St Maryes Chapl}	The Lady Holm which I take for an hermitage only. Said to be in Clavegarth Parke tho in Windermer Water	Are returned
	St Katherine Chap.}	Aplethwate Calv-garth But both now belong to St Martin Ch[urch]	Langholm 3. Ladyholm 2. Windermer Water 3. Aplethwate 4. Calv-garth[2] 1. Greene
	Jesus Chapl}	The Vill. of Troutbeck Part of Orrest	Blumen Chapel School Parkehouse Dod moss Spyehow Wandale Raise Lowick how Old Parke Battlehow
	Part of Amb[le]side Chappelry below the stock is in this Parish. And all Ambleside is in This Lordship – But not in this parish. Ergo Treat of it here as a Lordship & There Too as a Chap[elry]		Ambleside Borhanes See the latter end of Gresmer

[II.306]

Windermere [Notes]
{N.B. See my Itinerarium for Descent.}
{1. Undermilbeck f[amiles] 17.
2. Applethwate f[amilies] 60 & Lime~~thwate~~ fit (no Lime but 4 or 5 houses.
3. Troutbeck f[amilies] 47.
4. Ambleside below the stock (i.e. The Bridge) f[amilies] 43.

[1] Machell here refers the reader to his Itinerary, see Part 2, Ch.10.
[2] Here, the MS continues, '~~Langholm & fish fowle~~.'

Note. There is in the Bottom of W[estmorland], Winder & Windermer, wath: q. why so called.[3]
Note. Sunningday.}

[II.95][4]

[Church and Tithes]
Windermer (parish church) T.M.
N.W. by West: Mr Wilson.

[II.306]

{[Church is] L. 30 – & steeple 5. Broad 20. Bells 3 – & a Clock. Organ, Clerk Salary.}

{§ Comput[us]-Pascalis}[5]
{Stiles,[6] Hort.,[7] & Cerev farr[8] tantqua[n]t oblat. 1d. ob;[9] lac. (neuk) 1d.[10] Stript abs ½ a calf 1s. 6d;[11] & Arr. 1d;[12] Apes[13] 1d under nu[mber] 6. ½ a cast at 5, for which somes is groates sometimes 3s. Has bin Tythe pullits 1d = under number; over 1d or 2 [...]}[14]

[II.311]

Item. Eggs – at Easter for every hen 2; every chick 1 egg; Every cock 1; & for tithe \ of / chick 1d.[15]

[II.306]

[Composing the Narrative relating to Windermere Parish]

{N.B. Memorandum – when I compose – to begin with places nearest the church & E. Sc.1. Bowness &c. 2. Undermilbeck. 3. St Catherines. 4. Troutbeck. 5. Ambleside. And so enter upon Gresmer. And see my Itinerary.}

[Notes for the Narrative, divided into Sections]

{§1. Name}
The Parish of Windermere (anciently call'd Winnandemere) takes its name from a great mear or lake att the south \ west side / ~~end~~ of the Parish. It is in the Diocess of Chester & in Kendal-ward.[16]
1. Speake of the mere \ or rather \ in Aplethwate, / the parish by it. /

{§2. Boundes}
It is bounded on the East with Kentmer (a dale in the Parish of Kendal) from which tis divided by the Ridge of the mountaine called Blewgill-head; & with the Top of Pike-of-Yoake & the Top of the Hight of Garburne-mosse.[17] & so on South-east by the Wall of Kentmere Parke. On the west with the Parish of Hawkside[18] \ in Lancashire / from which tis divided by the far side of Windermer-water, so

[3] Winder is in Barton parish; Winderwath is in Brougham. A.H. Smith quotes alternative meanings. High Winder = 'wind-swept shieling, one offering shelter from the wind'; Winderwath = 'Vinand's ford' (the ford would have been one across the Eden); Windermere = 'Vinand's lake'. See Westmorland Place-Names; see also Smith, Place-Names 1, 18.
[4] Also numbered p.35.
[5] 'Easter Reckonings'; see Grasmere Easter Offerings, Part 2, Ch.6, II.124.
[6] Stile-boot, see Grasmere Easter offerings, Part 2, Ch.6, II.124.
[7] Garden produce.
[8] These two Latin words are unclear. Machell was possibly referring to ale and corn.
[9] 'Just as an oblation of 1½d.'
[10] 'Milk from a newly calved cow.'
[11] 'Stript': to extract (the milk from a cow's udder). OED. Thus, half the milk stripped from a cow with one calf. Mary Armitt referred to a 'strip-milked cow, or stripper' as one that is nearly dry: M.L. Armitt, 'Ambleside Town and Chapel: some contributions towards their History', CW2, 6 (1906), 38.
[12] 'Arr' could be interpreted as a shortened form of the Latin word 'arrergium', meaning 'arrears', but this does not sit comfortably in the context. The precise meaning is unknown to this editor.
[13] 'Bees'.
[14] A word or symbol here is unclear; the whole Easter-offerings section has been crammed into a margin.
[15] This sentence has been scored through. Compare with a similar scored-through sentence on II.306, below.
[16] An interlineated phrase here possibly offers, '1t the bounder', but the words are faint.
[17] MS: '& so on south-east ~~through the midst of~~ \ by the Wall of Kentmere Parke ~~so on southwards~~.'
[18] Hawkshead.

that the whole lake is within this Parish \ & the county of W[estmorland.] / {The oblong Figure.}[19] On the North with \ Grasmere from which tis divided by / the River which Runns under Stock-bridge through Ambleside Towne. On the South with \ Cartmel fell from which it is divided by the Bounder sike from the place where it comes into Winstars; thence to Crooke in Kendal-parish, from which tis divided by Gilpin-beck.

[II.306]

It conteins in Lenth from Gilpen-beck bridge in the South to Stockbrige in A[m]bleside \ in the / North \ about / 6 miles. And in Bredth from the sand-bed on Furness Fell side in the West to Garburne moss in the East – 5 miles. In circumference about 26 miles. ~~query not counting~~ \ Besides 5 miles of water which shoots down \ in a direct line / betwixt the 2 parishes of Hawkside & Cartmel in the county of Lanc[a]ste[r] which belongs to this parish.

{§3. Soyle}
It is generaly ~~a very~~ \ mountainouse except upon the \ S. East / banke of Windermer. / ~~Good soyle for corne & Hay &c~~. & good pasture, being mostly a Redish \ black / mould but somwhat sandy near the Lake; & is pretty well wooded; They Generally burne ~~peat &~~ wood, & peat of \ the latter of / which they have great plenty, within the parish.

{§4. Rush bearing}[20]
On St James day[21] the young people of the parish use to bring Rushes to straw the church withal, in white sheets with flores & garlands; & formerly they used sommerings or sommer Games; since King Charles the 1[t] came to his crowne[22] there was a great contest betwixt Aplethwate & Under milbeck (2 hamletts in this parish) which should outvy one another in Garlands & sommer rods \ which are long polls like fishing rod Butts{as high as the church adorned with floores & painted figures}there being an 100 or above \ in show / on each side, with all sorts of pastime, musique & dancing.

[II.307]

[Windermere Church]

{§3.[23] Presentation}
This Church was formerly a Chapel ~~Presentative~~ Appendant to the Great Church of Kendal to which it payes [Blank] per Annum. By vertue \ where / of (with the consent of the Bishop & Patrone, as I suppose, of the vicar of Kendal, to whom it is yearly payd to this day) it became Presentative. In the 49. of Edward 3. [1375-76] I finde that Johanna Late wife & Relict of John de Coupeland, dyed seised ~~there~~ of \ the Advowsan thereof / for the Terme of her life, by the name of Capella de Gresmer – The Reversion being in Ingelram de Coucy & Isabel his wife \ who was the Kings daughter / by grant from the King, and therein it is Taxed at 5[li] per Annum. or ~~Cl~~s.[24]

{§4. Ratio Nominus Kirkeby}[25]
I believe that of Old, this Barony of Kendall especially this more northern Part, was mostly forrest & not much inhabited. That in the most populous & plentifull partes of the said Barony, Churches were Builded, ~~And~~ \ Sc. Kendal & Kirkby; / that after this ~~their Builded~~ \ when / the People began to Build near ~~unto~~ them, & therefore the Rather, ~~because~~ Because That Markats were anciently kept in the Church Yards, \ Now / such Places \ as these / they commonly called \ by the names / Kirkebyes – i.e. Building near & about the churches: whence Kirkby in Kentdale & Kirkby in Loansdale. The former of which had a large precinct.[26]

[19] Here, Machell appears to refer to his map of Lake Windermere on II.313, below.
[20] A pencilled note here reads, 'Ded[ication] Gen[eral] Custom].'
[21] 25 July.
[22] In 1625.
[23] The section numbering repeats the numbering above.
[24] Transcribed as seen. £5 per annum = 100s.
[25] 'Reason for the place-name Kirkeby.'
[26] Smith gives the meaning as follows: 'village with a church = kirkju-bȳr. Like Kendal (that is, Kirkby Kendal) and Kirkby Stephen, this place was the head of a large ecclesiastical parish. The affix is the name of the valley e.g. Lonsdale.' See Westmorland Place-Names.

{Note 5. How Chapels became Rectoryes}
Afterwardes, as the Parish grew populouse & people began to spread[27] themselves, They for their Convenience Builded Chappels of Ease – of which Those that were the farthest Remote, Sc. This of Windermer (& the other of Gresmer); compounded with the Incumbent of Kendall, to Take the cure of soules upon them, and for a certaine Annuall Rent in Lew of all Tythes, to becom a distinct, though not an Independent Rectorye. And now these are the onely Rectoryes left in the Barony, The Church of Kendal on which they Depend being a Viccaray onely.
Inq. Ex bundello Eschaetor, de isto anno N^{0}. 20. hujus copia est penes Danielem Fleming de Ridel Militem.[28]

[II. 308][29]

{Windermere Church. [Arms, Stained Glass and Inscriptions]}

Figure 2.9.1. Windermere Church. II.308.

{Long 30 & steple 5. Broad 20. 3 Bells & a Clock. & Organ formerly. Q. organist salary.}

[Windows][30]
{3 windows of 5 lights & 6 above of 3 lights.}[31]

{N[ote] In the Upper Lights}
In the High Quier window is the Passion of Our Saviour with St George, St Mary, S. [Blank] & St Katherine & the C[oats] of Armes in the second upper light.

[27] MS: 'speard'.
[28] 'Inquire of Escheators bundle no. 20 of that year [presumably 49 Edward 3, as seen earlier on the page], a copy of which is at the house of Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal, Knight.'
[29] A page slightly smaller than most (3cm x 18cm). At the top left is the pencilled phrase, 'ad p.2'.
[30] For the windows, see N&BI, 178.
[31] Text written in ink has been superimposed on a pencilled note; most of the pencilled text is therefore illegible.

Figure 2.9.2. Windermere Church. Arms in the upper lights. II.308.

In the Second Upper Light.
Coat B: Ground A[rgent] bend Gules {B. Ursick of Conyston at 3 lights and so these perhaps.}
Coat C: Ground A[rgent] and Sable.
Coat D: Dexter half, ground Gules fret A[rgent]; Sinister half, ground A[rgent] fleur-de-lys Gules.

In the Third Upper Light.
Coat E: Ground Sable fret A[rgent.]
N.B. [Coat] F. is parted per Pale: 1. Argent [blank] 2 Barrs, & a [Blank] in Dexter Point Gules = Impaleing G[ules] 6 (squirrells as I guess) Or \ ra[m]pant[32] / Argent.
H. Is Quarterly First \ & Third / Barry of six Argent and Azure, 3 [annulets] in chiefe Gules. The second & fourth I know not what. But it appears to be Bendy of six Or & Gules a Ly[on] Or Ra[mpant] Argent.
N[ote] ad H.
I sent up the schoolmaster Thomas Hob to view these Armes nearly by the Help of a Ladder; & Hee sayes the second & 3 Quarters are 6[33] Gules, but it appears to the ey at a Distance a Lyon Rampant Sable.
In the Fifth Upper Light
I. is the Royal Arms with a file or 3 Labels Argent writ about in Text with Hon y Soit &c.[34]
L. is a Quarterly Coate: The 1[t] & 4[th] as that marked A. The 2[nd] & 3 is Argent 2 Barrs, & 3 a[nnulets] alias ♦[35] G[ules].}

[32] This abbreviated word is unclear.
[33] Here, Machell has drawn a symbol resembling an annulet.
[34] 'Honi soit qui mal y pense': shame be on him who thinks evil of it, is the motto of the Order of the Garter. Machell did not mention Coat K. which, taken from the Figure, might be written as, 'K. has a cross saltire engrailed Sable charged with a mullet of 5 points.'
[35] Lozenges.

At the Low End of the Longer lights
M. is Quarterly. The first and fourth ~~the same with that marked C. being~~ Sable 3 Lyons Ramp[ant] Argent; The 2nd and 3rd the same with that marked C.[36]
P. Parted per pale. Or & Vert a Lyon Rampant Gules, over all a chief Azure. S. the same agane.[37]
T. The same with the Coate impald at D.
V. an Escalop Argent in a piece of glass inversed, which may seem to have bin a partes of the Stricklands of Sisargh broke & misplaced: being now where the Head of the Crucifix has bin.

In the South Ile Quire on the S. Side[38]

Figure 2.9.3. 'In the South Ile Quire on the S. side'. II.308.

[II.309A][39]

The Authors Epitaph upon Himself, made in the time of his sickness[40]

A Man I was wormes meat I am | To earth return'd from whence I came |
Many removes on earth I had | In earth at length my bed is made |
A Bed which Christ did not disdaine | Although it could not him retaine |
His deadly foes might plainly see | Over sin & death his victory | &c.
Here must I rest till Xst shall let me see | His promised Jerusalem & her felicity |
Veni Domine Jesu veni cito[41]
Robertus Philipson Gent. xiiij[0] Octobris Anno salutis 1631 Ætatis suæ 63.[42]

{Thake flese away}[43]

[36] N and O are not described, but, as seen in the Figure, are probably, N: gules 3 bulls' heads. O: ground gules, fret azure with a label of 5 points alias file of 5 labels.
[37] Q. and R. are not described, but are probably, Q: Gules 3 cushions lozengewise Or. R: Argent a fess Gules between 3 birds Sable or Brown.
[38] Perhaps this coat could be described as, ermine, fretty Gules, below a chief Gules.
[39] A small page, 12½cm x 15cm; the reverse holds part of a letter in another hand.
[40] The epitaph is not in Machell's hand, but he added '&c.' to the fourth line.
[41] 'Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly.'
[42] The spelling here does not copy the original accurately. For instance, the inscription, as seen in the church, contains 'meate', 'altho', 'deadlie', 'plainlie', 'sinn', 'victorie', 'Christ', 'felicitie'.
[43] Written in Machell's hand. If 'thake' (N.B. Machell's letters can often be misread, particularly his 'a' 'o' and 'u'), then this phrase might be interpreted as a saying or proverb. The dialect word 'thake' can mean 'thatch' but it can also mean, 'waste corn left in the fields unraked'; thus, 'straw flees away' might possibly refer to the fleeting nature of life. See Joseph Wright, The English Dialect Dictionary 6 (London, 1898-1905), 73.

[II.310][44]

{Vis[i]ted 1[t] Aug. 1692 T.M.}
In the ~~fourthe~~ \ second / Long Light of the East Window of the High Quier, is a Man & Woman, in their Circ-Coates of Armes; & writ above in Text letters – Will Thornborr & his wife; in the next som Priests. In the 3. 4. 5. & 6. som of like sort but Letters gon which should have discovered them.
X. The Coate marked X is in an High window belonging to the midle Ile; which is so obscure & at such a distance, that I am not able to make anything of it.
Y. The Coate marked Y, and those 2 that follow are in the side window next to the Quier in the North Ile; concerneing which they have a Tradition – That a Shereman,[45] a Smith and a Carryer were buryed there.

Figure 2.9.4. Four Coats relating to the woollen industry. II.308.

On a window in the S. Ile next the Quier dooer is writ in Text Letters if I mistake not – Anno Quingentissimo Vicessimo Terti[0] i.e. 1523 – which shews the Time when these windows were don.
There is on the N. side of the Large East window, a monument set up of Black Marble, with the following Epitaph made by Mr Robert Philipson of Calgarth in the Time of his sickness

> A man I was, wormes meat I am,
> To Earth Return'd from whence I came
> Many Removes on earth I had
> In earth at length my bed is made

{Qu. If the cherveron in the Arms upon this mon[ument] be not chargd with a crescent.[46] And Indeed I wonder the Armes are not granted so by the Heralds since they came of a younger bro[ther] of Thirlewal Castle &c. see S.7.}

[II.311]

Memorandum de Ecclesia.
There were 3 window beyond the portch, of 5 lights a piece, & a Quier doore betwixt the 2 last – And 6 windows above of 3 lights apiece – which must be noted if I draw it againe.
{! Lett this be the stile} – The East Window of the High Quier is said to have com'd from [Blank] and hath 2 Rowes of Lights.
In the second upper Light are these Coates of Armes. A.B.C.D.
In the 3[rd] upper light are These. E.F.G.H.
In the 5 upper light These. I.K.L.M.N.O.P.
In the 6 upper light These. Q.R.S.T.U.

[44] N.B. Much of the following is a repetition of Machell's earlier observations on the church glass, left in this edition to demonstrate Machell's research and writing process.
[45] Shearman (shereman: Middle English to 1600s) a man who shears woollen cloth. OED. See Machell's sketch of the shield.
[46] Here, Machell has drawn a crescent.

In the \ Lower / Lightes which are much Longer are – 1[t]. St George on foote. 2. St Mary. 3ly. The Passion of our Blessed Saviour; 4. St Martin forsan & 5ly, St Catherine. And which being the S[ain]ts in whose names the Church & chaples are dedicated {which are in the parish perhaps the less reason to believe they fetched from.}[47]

At the foote of the said Lower Lights these figures of Gentlemen & their Ladyes praying in their Circoats \ of Arms / Sc. in the:

2	4	5	6

{Write this underneath the said Coates of Armes – Then add the figures}

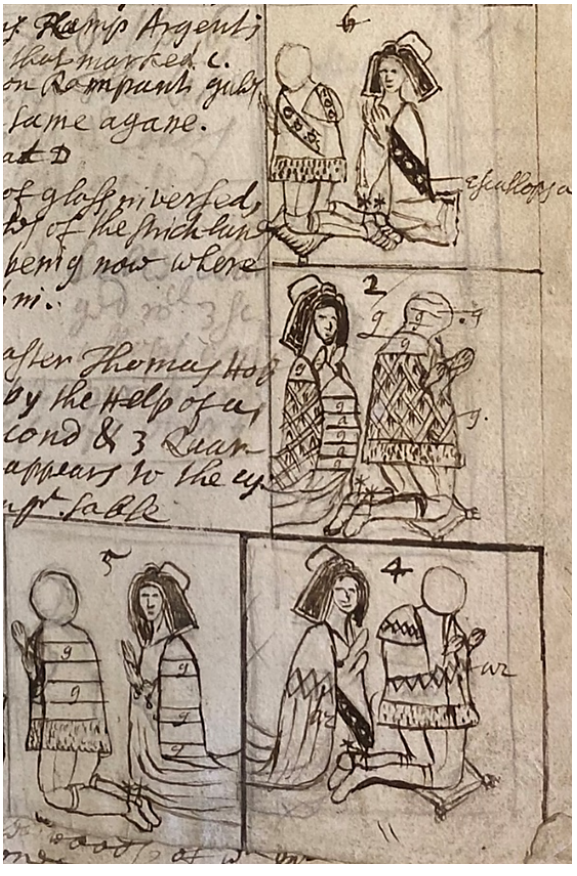

Figure 2.9.5. 'Gentlemen and their ladyes' at the foot of the lower lights. II.311.

Note. Ad – H. I sent a young man up a Ladder to give me a farther account of these Arms, & hee Tells me they are as followeth: But he having no manner of skill in Heraldry, I have drawn them as they appeared to the eyes.

[47] Much of this margin comment is obscured by the binding.

[p. 312A]

[Bells]

Figure 2.9.6. On little and middle bells at Windermere Church. 312A.

On the Little Bell: CW. PC. IW. MG. TE. NE. TP. WM. Gloria in excelsis Deo 1666. W.S.
On the Middle Bell a Rose; a key – on a scutcheon.
Great Bell:

[II.312b]

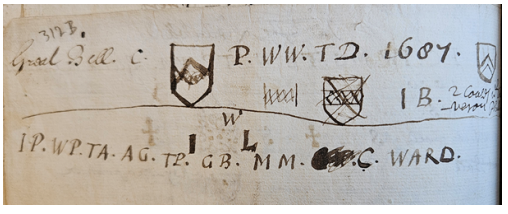

Figure 2.9.7. Windermere church. On 'The Great Bell'. II.312B.

Great Bell. C.P. WW. TD. 1687.
IB – 2 Coates with cheveron Phillipson
I \ W / L
IP. WP. TA. AG. TP. GB. MM. C.[48] WARD.

[II.312]

Windermere
The Parish Church is in Bowness, \ which is part of Undermilnbeck / but goes by that name ~~of Windermer Church~~ \ because the lands [create] a Bow into the water;[49] yet the great lake being so remarkable that it gives name both to church & parish.

{§6. Dedication St Martin, & there is a well}
~~The dedication of the Church is not certainely known; but by the Rushbearing & sommer games which were kept on this Day it should see to have bin Dedicated unto St James~~.
{But it is dedicated unto St Martin – see Troutbeck Chapel.}
{No. It is St Martines Church, as I finde in the Licenceing for Burying granted to the chapelry of Jesus in Troutbeck A.D. 1563. And there is Martin well 100 yards East ab Ecclesia.}

{Church}
It is an ha[n]som Large Church having 2 rows of Pillars in it, & 2 Iles besides the Body of it, & [the roof] is Leaded all over. The steeple is a square Towre with 3 \ gret / Bells ~~&~~ \ a Clock / {given by Richard ~~&~~ Shaw & Martin Suart of Undermilnbeck} & a Saints Bell ~~in it~~. And there was an Organ In the Church which cutt in piece in the warrs time by the Roundhead Party; this parish being \ always / very loyal to [the] King their Lord and Master.[50]
There is but one monument of \ black / marble sett up in the wall, with this Inscription made by Mr R. Philipson himselfe in the Time of his sickness.

[48] MS: Illegible letters before 'C' are scored through and blotted; one letter might be 'W'.
[49] Blurred interlineation: 'create' is an editorial substitution containing similar letters.
[50] See N&BI, 178.

A man I was worms meat I am | to earth return'd from whence I came
Many removes on earth I had | In earth at length my bed is made
A bed which Christ did not disdain | Although it could not him retaine
His deadly foes might planely see | Or'e sin & death his victorie
Here must I rest till Xt shall let me see / His promised Jerusalem & her felicity.
Veni Domini Jesu veni cito | Robertus Philipson Gent. xiiij^{0} Oktobris Anno salutis 1631
Ætatis suæ 63.[51]

{There are allso several Coats of Armes of Lancashire familes brought hither (as is thought) from Furness Abby.[52] Sed de hoc dub.}[53]

Figure 2.9.8. Margin drawing of the Philipson monument in Windermere Church. II.312.

{§7. Chappels}
There is but one Chappel in this parish – Troutbeck – which is ~~a~~ parochial ~~one~~: And som of this parish have liberty to bury &c. at Ambleside chappel, \ a part of Ambleside are in the chapelry & ar part of there, / provided they pay their dutyes to their \ mother / church; Sc. \ the Inhabitants of / the Low end of Ambleside beneath Sockbridge, \ concerneing which / see \ more / in G of M'.[54] \ But there were [an]other 2: One in Windermer water in Lady Holm dedicated to the V. M., & another near to Calgarth called St Katherines, now turned into a Dwelling House. /

{§8. Endowment}[55]
This Parish is a Parsonage (& is worth about 60li per annum) but the Minister receives his Tythes of all things by Composition,[56] save Geese & Grice;[57] & hath Eggs at Easter: for an hen, one egg; a chick 2 egg \ a cock one egg; Tithe Chick 1d Teste ipso.[58] / {Bees, for which they sometimes pay 3^{s} 6^{d} a cast: & sometimes more. The parson has 4d a Boate Prescriptions for the Tithe of fish every year.}

{§9. Custome}
The Patronage ~~was lately~~ in Gawen Braithwates of Ambleside & his son Thomas after him: & Phillip Fox of Crooke who are joynt Patrones present in joynt Turnes.
Memorandum. Formerly in the Crown. Query. How it came to Them.

[51] 'Come, Lord Jesus, come quickly. Robert Philipson, Gentleman [who died on the] 14 October in the year of salvation 1631 in the 63rd year of his age.'
[52] See N&BI, 178. See also Edward Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes, being the Heraldry, Epitaphs, and other Inscriptions, in the Thirty-two Ancient Parish Churches and Churchyards of that County, 2 (Kendal, 1889), 36, which cites R.S. Ferguson's research on this window.
[53] 'But of that I doubt.'
[54] 'G of M' might be Geoffrey of Monmouth, Historia Regum Britanniae (c.1136).
[55] Most of this margin-heading is obscured by the binding.
[56] Composition: an agreement for the payment of a sum of money in lieu of the discharge of some other obligation, or in a different way from that required by the original contract. OED.
[57] Grice = pigs.
[58] 'As I, myself, testify.' But see II.311 above, which is slightly different.

{§10. Parsonage} {New Hall no Hall}
The Parsonage house is called ~~the~~ Hall, there being no other Gentleman's house in the village of Bowness. It is distant from the Church ¼ of mile \ S.W. / & from Hawkside in \ Furness in / Lancashire 4 miles, from Kendal 6. \ from Ambleside? / The house is an ~~Hansom~~ stone building & slated all over & in good repair.

{§11. Glebe}
I[t] stands upon a little hill; so that you come to it (on every side) by an easy assent; and it is rendered more pleasant by reason of Windermer water on the North & West side ~~of it~~, upon the Banks of which the Gleeb Land. Hobby Hawkes build in the glebe woods, of which one Wilson had one time 3 young ones.

[II.316][59]

[The glebe land] lieth for a mile in Lenth, ~~a Corner of which~~ \ being near about 40 Acres / reaching from the house to the water side, where the Minister of the Parish has his Pleasure Boate \ for recreation. / There is a very good Garden & orchard, & ~~good~~ store of Pollards ~~fire wood~~ upon the Glebe land which serve for fewel \ ~~with other Timber Trees~~. / There are about 40 Acres of Land belonging unto it {? For the Tarrier[60] Mr Dixon} which amount to the vallue of 30[li] per Annum. A part of it was formerly rebuilt by Mr Richard Archer, somtimes fellow of Queens College in Oxford;[61] And another part of it, by Mr William Willson[62] formerly Taberdar of the same College,[63] now the ~~present Incumbent~~ Rector thereof. [64]
Query. Ut Tenants: what their Rents – free or fineable; fines Certaine or Arbitrary. This before the Glebe & house.

{§12. Sub division}
This Parish is but One \ entire / Lordship, call'd by the name of Windermer Lordship, & there are \ also / some Tenements in Crooke in \ the parish of / Kendall ~~parish~~, which belong unto it. {they are onely in the Constablewick} Sc. 14 Tenements ~~and~~ which lye on this side Gilpin Beck. Or rather this with the Parish of Grismer and all but one manor \ & hath other members. For I find in the said Inq[uisition] Anno 49. Edward 3. [1375-76] that Johan the w[idow] of John Cowpland was by the grant of the said King ciesed for the Terme of her Life of the Manner of Winander worth per Annum 144[li] with its members & appurtenances; Sc. Hamletta de Langden Loughrig, Grismer Hamelside, The King is Lord \ of it / but the lands are ~~the Queens joynt~~ \ now settled on the Q[uee]n ~~and he has~~ / who Rentes, \ Certaine / Rents Certain of every Tenement, with different fines in different places.

---

[59] Also numbered p.4.
[60] 'Tarrier'. From Latin, terrarium, and French*, terrier*. A register of landed property, formerly including lists of vassals and tenants, with details of their holdings, services, and rents; a rent roll; in later use, a book recording the site, boundaries, acreage, etc., of lands belonging to a private person, or a civil or an ecclesiastical corporation. Also, an inventory of property or goods. OED.
[61] Richard Archer, son of Edward Archer of Kendal; matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, in 1628, aged 18; BA 1630; MA 1632; fellow 1633-46; BD 1642. Rector of Windermere 1645-62. OAD; see also E.J. Nurse, History of the Parish Church Windermere (Bowness-on-Windermere, 1908), 21-22.
[62] William Wilson, son of Thomas Wilson of Kendal and Dorothy, daughter of Henry Fisher of Bradleyfield. At Queen's College, Oxford, from 1648; BA 1654; afterwards incorporated at Cambridge University. According to State Papers (1660-61), he was 'presented to the Rectory of Windermere in 1657 but could not be legally instituted on account of the late tyranny till 1660'. In 1662 he married Elizabeth, daughter of Samuel Sandys, of Esthwaite. See Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 2, 1045-46; Nurse, Parish Church Windermere, 22.
[63] Taberdar: see the English Glossary. See also Anthony Wood, Athenæ Oxonienses Athenae Oxonienses: An Exact History of All the Writers and Bishops Who Have Had Their Education in the University of Oxford; To Which Are Added the Fasti, or Annals of the Said University, I (London, 1691-92), 348: '…in 1583, he was made Pauper Puer, or Tabardus or Tabardarius; that is, a Tabarder or Tabitter, so called because anciently they wore Coats or upper Gowns, much according to the fashion of those belonging to Heralds.'
[64] MS: Scored-through passage at the beginning of this sentence:{'~~It is thought to have bin an appendant of Kendal Tower. It yet payes.~~'}

{Troutbeck, Applethwate[65] Strickland Ketel et Hoton} {the reversion to Lord Ingelram de Coucy Earle of Bedford & Isabel his wife the said Kings daughter.}[66]

{§13. Tenure}
He has also Heriots, Waifs & Strayes; & keeps Court Barron ~~at the schoolhouse in Bowness~~ \ every year. / The Tennants \ allso / appear (2 out of every Constablewick) once in the year at the Balifs command, at the Kings Court-Leet in \ the Town of / Kendall. ~~But there are no freeholds \ or Halls / in the Lordship~~. {But N[ote] here is no mention of Ridal – so that it was no part of the Manner} {q.? see after on the particulars; these are freeholders} {see S.33.}[67]
It affords Good store of \ blackish / Blue slates, peets & firewood near Ambleside – ab Ecclesia 4m. N. {see §.33}.

[II.318[68]]

{§14. Mannour House}
There is neither mannour house nor demaisne lands in it; but the Kings Stuart keeps Court every year, or his Deputy for him, at the Schol-house in Bo\w/nesse Windermer. But how these lands came to the Crowne, by Escheat or otherwise, q.?
? T[h]ere appear [Blank] so many freholders. {Cowgarth a free Demane; Old Field a freehold – & great [blank]. The Iland a Crown Rent not fineable. […][69] free rent.}
There are 4 villages in this Lordship, & each of them distinct Constablewicks, Sc. Ambleside, Troutbeck, Aplethwaite. And Undermilnbeck whereof Bowness is part.

{§15. Ambleside f. 43}
Ambleside formerly Hamelside {43. Edward 3. Inq.}[70] is all in \ within / this Lordship tho but part thereof within the Parish. It is 4 miles distant from Windermer church, & 4 from Gresmire but has a Chaple within it selfe \ on Gresmer side of the Stock brig; / & \ is / 3 mile from Hawkside market but 10 from Kendal ~~and is an entire Constable wick of it selfe~~. The \ few house it hath / ~~houses~~ are all of stone & Generally slated. It is situate upon the High end of Windermerwater whych lyes ~~at~~ \ near / the South end of ~~it~~ \ the village; / & the Great Roade twixt Kendal & Cockermouth \ in Cumberland /goes quite through it \ & so thorow Gresmer by Dunmale Rase. / There is one Chaple parochial in it which ~~wee spoke of before in~~ \ must be refer'd to / Gresmere parish. ~~And One side~~ They say there was a Castle at head of the Water and 4[r] of a mile ~~below~~ \ West of / the Towne the Ruines of which doe yet appear.
{It is now called Borhans – anciently AMBOGLANUM according to Camden.[71] Forsan ad Latus Amboglanæ vel Amblosheved, i.e. collis Amboglanæ, on the side or skirts of which it standeth.}[72]
{Whence I should have thought the vil. of Ambleside to have taken its name, Quasi ad Latus

[65] Some scored-through place-names are illegible here, although one word might be 'Crosthwate'.
[66] In the MS the following scored-through passage appears here: '~~It takes Its name from the Great Lake of Windermer And is the same \ whole / length bredth & circumference with the parish except \ with / 14 Tenements \ more / at Crooke \ in the parish / of Kendal parish by the on this side Gilpin beck, which are taken {into it over & about the parish}~~ ~~There are good Blew slates got in the manner & in great plenty~~.'
[67] Section 33.
[68] Also numbered p.6.
[69] Illegible word which begins, 'leu ...'
[70] Inquisition of 43 Edward 3 [1369-1370].
[71] From Camden: 'At the upper corner of Winander-mere lieth the dead carcasse, as one would say, of an ancient City, with great ruines of walls, and many heapes of rubbish one from another remaining, of buildings without the walls yet to be seene. The fortresse thereof was somewhat long, fensed with a ditch and rampire; for it tooke up in length 132. Ells, and in bredth 80. That it had beene the Romanes worke is evident, by the British bricks, by the mortar tempered with little peeces of bricke among, by small earthen pots or pitchers, by small cruets or vials of glasse, by peeces of Roman money oftentimes there found, and by round stones as much as by milstones or quernstones, of which layed and couched together they framed in old time their columns, and by the paved high waies leading unto it. Now the ancient name thereof is gone, unlesse a man would ghesse at it, and think it were that Amboglana, whereof the Book of Notices maketh mention, seeing at this day it is called Ambleside.' Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 760B.
[72] 'Perhaps Ambleside is derived from the side of Amboglanum or Amblesheved i.e. the hill of Amboglanum on the side or skirts of which it standeth.'

Ambloglani[73] – if I had not met [it] writ by the name of Hamelside in antient writeings.}[74]

There is allso a fair house called Ambleside hal belonging to the Brathwates \ but Tennent Right Lands / ~~tho there {be \ som few / Tenants belonging to it;}~~ But ~~now~~ \ lately / in debait betwixt Sir John Otway[75] & Mrs Dorathy Sands, sister to Mr Thomas Brathwaite lately deceas'd S.P.,[76] \ that is now in Sir John Otway Jane uxor {by a Decree.}[77] Whose Arms and Fam[ily] I have them.
{See a pikes jaw \ in / Dugdal who I thinke visited the place.}[78]
{According to the custom of the mannour of Richmond foe} the Tenants in this village hold their Land of the King as a Rent & fine certaine: Sc. Twopenny fine \ i.e. double the rent / upon change of Tenant; & one penny fine \ i.e. as much as the Rent / upon change of the Lord; i.e. paying over & above the Rent at change of Lord; and twice as much as the rent at the change of Tennant.[79] The Common is all Improved.[80]

{Ad p. 3.} [II.314]

Windermer Water

It is 10 miles Long & 2 miles Broad, yet under one Arch. Backbarrow Bridge {com Lanc.} strideth over it all with one single Arch.[81]
The fishing is divided into 3 Cubles as they call them:[82]
1. The High Cuble, from the water head to the Char-bed. ½ a mile above Calgarth.
2. Midle-Cuble, from thence to below the Ferry.
3. The Low Cuble, from thence to Nuby.
The Breadth of the water From Bowness to the Ile 27 score.
The Iland Broad?
Thence to Furness ¼ – 22 score.
At Calgarth it is Broade, 2 miles. Above it is generally 1m. & ½ – which is the Generall Breadth.
N.B. For a Map & full D[e]scription of Windermere water, vide in Windermer Parish p.3 & 13 & 20 & 22 & 23 & 31. And in Gresmer Parish – p. Ult §68 – v[ide] Windermer Gresmer par. p.10.
Camden in 'Lancashire', p. 681,[83] sayes that the Britans defended themselves a long time in Furness fells being a sort of natural fortifications. But nothing being Inaccessible to the Conq[uering]Saxons. For \ wee gather / that in the 228 year from \ after / their arival, the Brittans continued in this place; ~~from~~ Because then Egfridus King of Northumber[land] gave to St Cuthbert the Land called Carthmel. and all the Britanes therein. These he takes to be the Setantij, & Windermer water (lacus totius Angliæ maximus)[84] – formerly Wynander mere, & in the Saxon Winpadre mere – to be the Setantiorum

[73] 'As [being] on the side of Ambloganum.'
[74] These references to Amboglanum are written (amongst and between data on other topics) in the right-hand margin of MS.II.318.
[75] For Sir John Otway, see Part 2, Ch.3iii, Hutton, II.87; see also Part 2, Ch.4, Beetham, II.278.
[76] Without issue.
[77] 'Now in the ownership of Sir John Otway's wife, Jane.'
[78] William Dugdale, Monasticon: on Furness Abbey. See below, II.313.
[79] MS: 'i.e. ~~dubbling on Tennant held Rent the Rent upon change of a Lord~~ \ their Rent / paying over & above the Rent ~~its full vallue~~ at change of Lord; \ and twice as much as the rent /~~& duble its vallue~~ at \ the / change of Tennant.'
[80] 'Improved' probably means 'enclosed'.
[81] MS: 'Yet ~~all this water passeth~~ under one Arch ~~at a place calld~~ \ Back / Barrow Bridge {com Lanc.} strideth over It all with one single – Arch.'
[82] The word 'cubble' (variously spelt cable, cobble, coble, couble, couple, cubble and cuble) relates to Windermere fisheries. Windermere was divided into three sections, each one called a cubble. The English Dialect Dictionary suggests that a cubble was a short flat-bottomed rowingboat, or, as much as could be fished by one rowing boat. Certainly the word infers an area of water. See Charlotte Kipling, 'The Commercial Fisheries of Windermere', CW2, 72 (1972), 156-204, at 164. Jane Ewbank (ed.), Antiquary on Horseback. The First Publication of The Collections of the Rev. Thos. Machell Chaplain to King Charles II Towards a History of the Barony of Kendal, CWAAS Extra Series 19, (Kendal, 1963), 87, transcribed the word as 'cable' but Machell's vowel seems to be open rather than closed.
[83] 'Lancashire': a chapter in Camden's Britannia.
[84] 'The greatest lake in England'.

Winn: The lake of the Setantij[85] {And I mett with som Britanns – Sc. men of that name (?) in Cartmel fells at this very day; But for certane in Carthmell. & perhaps those battles were fought by them at Woundale &c.}

[II.313][86]

A Prospect of Windermer from Troutbeck Towne End.

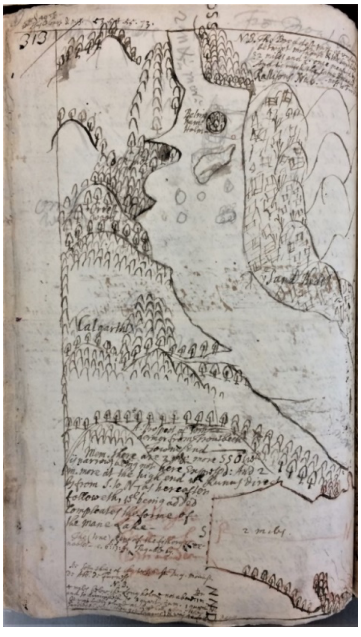

Figure 2.9.9. 'Windermere Water'. II.313.

See §49; to which This belongs: & p.13, 53. 54. 55. 73.
Memorandum, there are 2m. & ½ more SSO[87] (which is narrow) being not here expressd: And 2m. more at the high end which runns directly from S. to N. – as hereafter followeth – which being added compleates the forme of the mane Lake.
N.B. The Broadest part of Windermer betwixt Milhouse & the Sandbeds, which is ?2 miles and ½ once measur'd by a line. And tis much the same Breadth from Bowness to Furness.
N.B. 4 miles below the Long holme, not above 1m. \ Br[eadth], / and so diminisheth to 3 quar[er], ½ a m[ile], 1 quart[er] &c. It was lately plumd at Read hall above the sandbeds (where they get charrs) & was 40 f[athoms] deep.[88]

The (true) Rent of the fishery is XX nobles,[89] i.e. $6^{£}\ 13^{s}\ 4^{d}$. Payable by [Blank] See something of this Water in Dugdale Monasticon, de Abb[ey] de Furness.

[85] 'Forness-fells. Among which the Britans lived safe a great while, trusting upon these strong natural fenses: although the victorious Saxons made way through all in the end. For in the yeere 228. After King of Northumberland, gave unto Holy Saint Cuthbert the land called Carthmell, and all the Britans in it (thus we finde written in his life) … if you read in Ptolemee … the Setantians Mere, as some copies have; and not … the Setantians Haven, I durst boldly avouch that these Britans here were called Setantii …. For among these mountains the greatest standing water in all England, now called Winander-mere'; in the English Saxon Winpadre-mer (haply of his winding and turning in an out) lieth stretched out for the apace of ten miles.' Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637),755A-B.
[86] Ink superimposed on pencil. The northern part of the lake. For another map of this lake see II.150.
[87] SSO = Southwards, also seen at the head of the map. NND = Northwards, is seen at the foot of the map.
[88] Windermere lake is 10.5 miles long, one mile wide, and 220 feet deep: https://www.visitcumbria.com. A fathom is 6 feet, therefore Machell judged Windermere to be 240 feet deep.
[89] 20 nobles. 1 noble was equivalent to 6s 8d, thus 20 nobles equalled £6 13s 4d.

[p. 316A]

[General Notes]

N[ote] ad Furness fells, Kendal in Gen[eral], Gresmer
Occar – for use money in Conyston in Furness fell
I gang &c. to pay my occar.[90] a. Sir Dan[iel] Flem[ing]

Gree – In use the same place they have custom that the eldest brother that succeeds his Father in a Tenant Right or Customary Estate shall pay to \ such of / his Brothers – 3 Years Rent; which is called their gree or Portion.[91] a. Sir Dan[iel] Flem[ing]

[II.317]

Qu. If Calgarth be not in Aplethwate? And if so, whet[h]er it has not formerly bin the manner house for Windermer & Gresmer. For it is said – in the Inq[uisition post mortem] of 49. Edward 3. [1375-76] that Johan the late Wife of John Coupland Deceas'd, obijt seiseita ad Terminum Vitæ suae – de Advocatione Capellæ de St Mary Holm, infra Lacum de Winandermer; quæ nihil valet quia Terra de qua [præ]dicta Capella fuit, antiquo Tempore sesita est in Manu Domini; et jacet infra Parcum Del Calv-garth.[92]
If he mean by Terra, the Land on which it stood, it is strange how an Iland \ in soe deepe a Lake / should be within the Parke of Calvgarth: but if there be a word anwanting so that by Terra de qua prædicta Capella[93] we may understand Dotata fuit,[94] than it is easy enough to imagin that the Indowment lyeing in the Parish of Calvegarth & being cies'd \ long agoe / into the Lordship, it was worth nothing. Yet this Lord still seemes to have bin [in] the King. Because the Advowson was in him – & he was Lord of this Manner of Windermere, whereof Aplethwate is expressly a parcel. Tho I confess – the Argument will not always hold from the Patrone of the church to the Lord of the Manner.

Memorandum. To Enquire of a store[95] about a Hagworme[96] who bit a man in the legg – of which he could get no cure; and about a year after, the hag worme came to the doer, & the man ordered them to set it open; & so it came to his leg which he exposed, & licked it, & went away, after which he mended forthwith. Told me at Mr Prestons of Howcar,[97] I thinke per Mr Marsden.

[90] 'I go etc. to pay my occar.' The OED and Dictionaries of the Scots Language Online refer to 'occar or 'oker' as 'the lending of money at (excessive) interest, usury; interest gained from this'; and 'the taking of (more or less excessive) interest or the practising of usury.' The word was meant to be derogatory.
[91] 'Gree': to make (persons) pleased; to reconcile, conciliate (several persons, or one with another); also, to arrange or settle (a matter). OED.
[92] 'Died seised for her lifetime of the advowson of the chapel of St Mary Holm in the Lake of Windermere, which is worth nothing because the land in which the said chapel was, in ancient time was the Lord's land; and falls within the Park of Calgarth.'
[93] 'Land from which the said chapel.'
[94] 'Was endowed.'
[95] Story.
[96] Hagworm: a northern name for the adder or viper but in some districts applied to the grass snake and in others to the blindworm. OED.
[97] Holker.

[II.319]

{§7.}[Informants] de Troutbeck: Mr Walker curate[98] – George Brown yeoman.[99]
Ad Kendal et Kentmere. Poet Brat:[100]

> Kendal from Kent derives Its name
> & Kent from Kentmeres springing fountaine came.

!!! The true rent of Winandwater is XX nobles i.e. 6:13:4.
See Dugdal de Abb[t] of Furness for Windermer Water.[101]
Sheep feed on the tops of Trees on \ this place / Furness Fell. All their great water passeth Arch (at Backbarrow Bridge in Co. Lanc.)

[Troutbeck]

{Mr Walker, curate; George Brown, yeoman}

{(§19.) Bounder of Troutbeck Chapl}
It is bounded on the E. by Kentmer in Kendal from which tis divided by the Ridge of Applet\h/wate Fell, as heaven water deales. On the S. with the Mother Church as far as \ the Nether / Orrest ~~comes as of~~ \ divided / by the libertyes of those 2 Houses which pay to this chapl; & so by Windermer Water which divides from Lancashire. On the W. with Ambleside divided by [Blank] from Windermer Water up Holgate Gill; & so along by a wall made by both Townships to Kirkston. On the N. with Patterdale in Barton divided by \ a wall / on Kirkston, & so NE. over Cowdalmor to Th\r/eshhold mouth, as heaven water deales.

{(§20.)}
{George Robinson of Troutbeck, buried 50 years agoe was above 100; & Peter Longmire never dranke ale in his life – Big bread[102] – who was buried the next year after, was above 100!!! §42.}[103]

Q. of the Consecration (& Endowment. both of church & chapl – & how Chargd or Rased.)

{(§21.) ~~Chappel~~ The Hall of Troutbeck.}

---

[98] Dudley Walker, listed as curate of Troutbeck, 1663-1701, and curate of Grasmere, 1712. CCED.
[99] Townend, the home of the Browne family, is well known through its National Trust status and the preservation of the family's large collection of documents at CAC(K): boxes coded WDTE. The history of the Brownes of Troutbeck has been well rehearsed; for their activities in the 17th century, see M.A. Parsons, 'The Brownes of Townend and the Township of Troutbeck 1500-1750', CW3, 2 (2002), 171-82, in which this yeoman-family's rising prosperity and social aspirations are discussed. For example, George Browne of Townend (1626-1703) was High Constable of Kendal Ward in 1667; see also AWL, 56.
[100] Poet Brathwaite (Richard Brathwaite/Brathwate). This aphorism also appears at the beginning of Machell's chapter on Kendal Barony: Part 2, Ch.1, Barony of Kendal, II.17.
[101] There is little information of this nature in Dugdale's (English, abridged) Monasticon: see Vol. 1, Furness, 88-89. Thomas West, who wrote extensively on Furness and the Abbey at the end of the18th century, remarked that Dugdale was 'totally silent as to the edifice itself, of which a much greater part was entire in his time than now is.' West's book contains a copy of a deed made in 1240, of William de Lancaster III, eighth baron of Kendal, in which the monks of Furness were to have two boats (one a fishing boat) and 20 nets on Windermere, 'without any opposition from me or my heirs: but if any servant belonging to the monks, who shall have the care of their boats on the said waters, commit trespass in my forests, he shall be punished at my discretion; and if such servant refuse to give and make reasonable satisfaction, he shall be dismissed, with the loss of his wages, by the monks, from their service.' Thomas West, The Antiquities of Furness (London, 1774), Dedication to Lord George Cavendish; 35. This deed is discussed (along with several others) by Charlotte Kipling in 'The Commercial Fisheries of Windermere', CW2, 72 (1972), 156-204, at 157-58.
[102] His diet was bigg (barley) bread.
[103] Some discarded notes follow. MS: '{~~L. 23 b. 8 inside & steeple 2; walls~~;} {~~Troutbeck~~} …~~ school~~.'

{(§22.) Chapel}
{See §25. 26. Mr Parson Carus, supervisor}[104]

Figure 2.9.10. Margin sketch. Troutbeck Chapel. II.319.

{An Ewe Tree afore it of 9 or 10 branches. sub umbra 9 yardes diam.[105] & in the body 3.
[Chapel measures] Long. 23. Steeple, 2. Wall, 1.
Broad, 8. Wal. 1. Inside m.}

There are \ diverse / medows \ & Arable Land / in Troutbeck calld The Hall Ings – now in Tenancy. Query where the Hall stood? & the ruines of an old house upon a Riseing ground in the midle thereof in memory of man, & bequeathes […][106] o' the Reparation of the said church / 13s 4d, & to the Rep[air] of ours, 3s 4d.
Anno 1558. George Browne (father of Thomas, father of George, father of George, father of George 3^{d}, orderd his body to be buried at Windermer church by his will dated as above,[107] who gave a legacy of iijs 4d to Sir Edward Whitlock.[108] And in another 1566, Agnes, wife of the said George Browne, gave her body to be buried in the Chaple of Troutbeck, & to it ~~as my~~ \ for her / bequest ~~for~~ & burial, 6^{s} 8^{d}. So that it was consecrated \ as a burying place / betwixt the years 1558 & 1566. And George Browne informes that in the Instrument of Consecration it is called Capella Jesus infra parochiam St Martini.[109]
{N. a winde linen;[110] a Bushel Windermer.[111]}

{(§23.) Indowment ~~4li: 10s: 0~~ of the Chap.}
Indowment – The Ancient sallary ~~7 per Annum~~ \ 4li: 10s: 0[d] raised by the Inhabitants according to the priority of seates; the highest seate being 1^{s} 8^{d} & so by degrees to 6^{d} a seat, which is the lowest; & when any is admitted on death of another into the Chancell, which is don by Trustees or Collectors of sallery, the party [pays] 2s Admittance money, which goes to the Church stock. {After improved by the Chaple-stock & som bequests of which Francis Borric gave 20^{li} – & 100 to the poore of the parish {to 7^{li} per Annum – & at Length to 10^{li} – see §27.}
The Burial in the Chancel is 8s; in the Body 3s 4d – towards the Chappel stock, which stock \ being augmented by the / Parish Church.

[104] In 1558 Adam Carus supervised the will of George Browne, the Troutbeck yeoman: II.319, II.320, II.322.
[105] 'Its shade is 9 yards in diameter.'
[106] A word here is illegible.
[107] MS: 'Orderd his body by will (of this date) to be buried at Windermer church. by his will dated as above.'
[108] Reader at the chapel, see below, II.320.
[109] 'And George Browne informes that in the Instrument of Consecration it is called the Chapel of Jesus within the parish of St Martin.'
[110] Linen winding-cloths: grave-clothes. See K.V. Iserson, Death to Dust: What Happens to Dead Bodies? (Tucson, 1994), 452.
[111] Machell's Preface refers to a Windermere bushel as a 'wandell'. See 'Strange Words', II.353.

{(§24.) School}
The Schoole was erected – which stands E. a Capella 20 yards 2 storeyes high – & 12 yards long; & with the Consent of John Bishop of Chester (Bridgeman)[112] had 5 per Annum of the stock setled on it, to the Curate if he will Teach according to Cannon,[113] or in case of refusal – whom the Parson & Churchwardens should nominate & the Bishop approve. {Per Licentiam Episcopi Cestriensis at Chester Pallace 7 Aug. 1639.}[114]

[II.321][115]

[Petitions to the Bishop of Chester]

To the Reverend Mr Thomas Machell
Rector of Kirkby thore
In Westmorland.
These.

This paper came inclosed in a Letter to me with the direction to be sent to you. I have taken the first opportunity to get it transmitted, and I hope it will come safe to your hands. Which is all at present from
Sir
Humble servant & nephew
R. Borrow.

[II.320][116]

[Petitions to the bishop of Chester] For Burying, Celebrateing the Sacraments[117] – Hearing the word.}

[1.] {1562} William Lord Bishop of Chester at the petition & supplication of the Inhabitants of Troutbeck & Aplethwait Grants with the Consent of Adam Carus Rector of the Parish Church of Windermeer, as also with the consent of the Parishoners there; That their Priest lawfully & canonically ordained may preach the word of God, Administer the sacraments &c. And that the people of Troutbeck & Aplethwait may resort to the said Chappell by the name of Jesus Chappell to hear &c. so that it be no prejudice hurt or Impediment to the Parish Church of Windermeer aforesaid &c. In witness whereof to these presents we have put our Episcopall seal the 18th day of July Anno Domini 1562 in the 2d year of our Consecration.[118]

[2.] [Licence to bury the dead] {q. if this be not \ an Instrument of / Consecration.}
Mathew Lord \ Arch / Bishop of Canterbury at Inhabitants motion giveth Licence to bury their Dead at their own Chappell by the name of Jesus Chappell, & to Celebrate both the Sacrament & other sacred rites, & to hear the Word of God &c. Provided always that the aforesaid Church of St Martine of Windermeer do suffer no damage or detriment hereby in any of its rights profits or dues, but that the dues of the said Church & of the Incumbent of the same in all things may always be safe & sure; save only the Liberty of Bapt[ism] & Bur[ial] aforesaid &c. Given under our Seal of Authority the last day of the month of April in Anno D. 1563, & in the 4th year of our Consecration.[119]

---

[112] John Bridgeman (1577-1652), bishop of Chester, 1619-1652.
[113] Canon law: the 151 Canons of the Church of England, https://www.anglican.net/doctrines/1604-canon-law.
[114] 'According to the licence of the bishop of Chester, dated at Chester Palace 7 Aug. 1639.'
[115] Text at the page-top was written by Dudley Walker, curate, in the form of a signed statement on behalf of George Browne. Machell annotated it (see the heading and margin headings) and resumed his narrative below.
[116] The reverse of II.321: the other side of the letter from R. Borrow.
[117] MS: 'For Burying ~~The Priest~~ Celebrateing the Sacraments'.
[118] William Downham, bishop of Chester (1561-1577). Adam Carus, rector of Windermere (1548-86), was the son of William Carus of Esthwaite, Whinfell, and his wife Isabella Laybourne, daughter of Thomas Laybourne of Cunswick. In 1558 he supervised the will of George Browne, of Troutbeck (see above). In 1568 he was an arbitrator in a dispute between James Cookson and Thomas and Christopher Browne relating to land of the Hall in Troutbeck. The first consecration deed of Troutbeck Chapel (18 July 1562) states, as Machell noted above, that all was done with 'the express consent and assent of that worshipful man Adam Carus, clarke, Rector of the Parish Church of Windermere.' See Nurse, Parish Church Windermere, 18.
[119] Matthew Parker, archbishop of Canterbury, 1559-1575.

The 7th of Aug. 1692, by Dudley Walker Curate there & George Browne. (A substantial & understanding Inhabitant.)[120]
Certifyed out of the records of the Chapel. This came to my hand from the said partyes Aug. 31 1692. T.M.

It was a chapel long before they obtained the favour of Parochial Rightes. But was onely used as an Oratory then, for they Christned & buried at the Parish church, having onely here a Licensd Reader whom they called a Sir. As appears by the will of one George Brown (a substantial yeoman of this place ~~of~~ \ from / whom the Present George Browne of Troutbeck, an Ingeniouse Countryman, is the 5 in Descent) which beareth Date A.M. 1558. Wherein he makes Mr Parson Carus ~~supervisor~~ Rector of Windermer, a supervisor; & gives, with his body to be buryed there, to the Repare of the said Church – 13s 4d. And to the Repare of Ours (meaning this Chapel) 3s 4d.[121] And to Sir Edward Whitlock (who was Reader here) 3s 4d. And Agnes his wife (the first that I finde was buried here) gave her body to be buried in

[II.321]

Troutbeck Chapel, & gave to it for her bequest & burial 6s 8d – anno Dom. 1566.[122]

[II.322][123]

{Ambleside}

Som of the Tenants have dotes of wood in other Tenants grounds,[124] which they may not be hindored or disturbed of or [Blank] the Tenant by survey about the Demain & woods. I wish I could see the M[anor] Booke shew Demaine & Lordships.

{~~Refer~~ this to Troutbeck}
There is a place called the Old Parke at the Low end of Ambleside, Att Holbeck bridge; which extends itselfe in lenth 2 miles all along by Windermer to Troutbeck bridge; but is now all inclosures, & possesd by the Tenants \ of Troutbeck / But no Remarkes of Antiq now remaining, only there is a poole which they call the old Casway. But see Camden & Speed.

Troutbeck ab Ecclesia 3m. N.E. {The Towne a Capella ¼ m. N. West; & the schoole ly[eth] N. It is a mile long but not with \ a / continued range of Building. The Houses are fair stone building and most of them slated.} {On the edge or Top of an Hill.} {What fuel.}

{(§25.) Troutbeck §87.}
Troutbeck is a large village which takes its name from the River Trout beck running on the East side of it,[125] & which is so called from the plenty of troutes which are found in it; & som very large at Michaelmas T[ide].[126]

Places remarkable

{(§26.) Chapel}
Here is an old parochial chapple on the East Side the village calld Troutbeck Kirke And the Parish Church is within 3 miles. But Hawkside market is 5 mile distant, & Kendal 7. There is a Road goes by the church (where is a stone bridge of one large Arch) from Kendal to Patterdale & so to Penrith. It goes on the East side of it & through the Towne head!

[120] The last phrase is in Machell's hand.
[121] For the will, see also II.319, above.
[122] Text written by Machell, which appears on the address page of the letter.
[123] Also numbered p.8.
[124] 'Dote' grant of land, property, etc. OED.
[125] MS: 'Troutbeck is a ~~pretty~~ large village ~~on the West side of the little River called Troutbeck, whence It takes Its name, which springs in the fells at Trout beck dale head, which~~ \ which takes its name from the River Trout beck running on the East side of it.'
[126] Circa 29 September.

{(§27.) Schoole}
Here are the Church or Chaple aforesaid; a little schoole house \ near the E. end of the Chaple yard / built ~~by the neighbourhood~~ \ out of the church stock / where the chaplain teaches for ~~so much by the Quarter, but has no standing stipend save onely for Reading prayers~~ \ see the sallary / which is raised in part out of a Common stock & partly out of the several Tenements by an adequate proportion, notwithstanding which they pay their dues & dutyes to the Minister of Windermer (according to ~~composition~~ \ Law. /

{(§28.) Parke House §.32}
There is at ½ a mile distance & within the Constablewick an House called Parke house, which stands att the {south} side of Troutbeck-parke; which together with it was {given p.30.}[127]

[II.324][128]

{§33. Freehold}
given by King Charles the 1[t] to Mr Hudleston Phillipson for his good service in the \ late / Civil wars. And Confirmed by King Charles the 2[d,] \ to {Xtopher his son after Sir Xtopher} / which is free land pay\ing / 6d quitt-rent \ per Annum / to the King & {appears at no Court.} It was formerly held by Lease of the Crowne by the Harringtons of Woolyeakes[129] in Cumberland from \ whom / it passed to this ~~fami~~ Hudleston Phillipson. ~~who~~ He had a young Brother allso of great courage & vallour who was calld in a by name Robin the Divil.[130] ~~There is a stinted common belonging to the Towne, which is called Woundale, at a mile distance towards Patterdale~~.[131]

[II.323]

{(§31.)} A Tryal with Herd for Lowick-how{See §34. To which this belongs}

{§32. Parkhouse}
There is a Parke calld Troutbeck P. ½ a m. N. from the \ Hall / Inge![132] Belongs now Sir Xtopher Philipson at 6[d] or 1s. rent.[133] Rent: The Ing is amongst diverse Tenements at Free Rent.
Clean marts ~~which they commonly call by name martens~~ \ wildcats / Moorgame plenty.

{(§32.)[134] Flumen Troutbeck}[135]
Trout beck springs near the Parke a Capella 3m. N. There plum S. by the East side of the Chaple; & on the N. west side of Cowgarth Hall. They calld Cawgarth \ Gard net / formerly about Appleby and at Yanwath, sayes Mr Walker, Curate.

{§32.} [River][136]
It springs on the fells at Troutbeck dale head / & emptyes it selfe into Windermere water – 2 miles below \ the Towne, / beyond Calegarth. {Upon which River stand 4 mills – 3 Corne & 1 Paper. All which pay 3s 4d a piece free rent to the King for liberty of breaking the stream, being the Kings water. There is store of Trout & Eeles in the River & onely 2 stone bridges, the lower haveing 2 ΩΩ.[137] In Troutbeck. How ancient?}

[127] Machell's continuation of the text appears on MS.II.324; this edition has placed it here.
[128] Also numbered p.10.
[129] Wooloaks.
[130] See §52, below.
[131] Scored through lightly because the information occurs elsewhere.
[132] 'Ing' or 'Inge': a meadow, William Rollinson, Dictionary of Cumbrian Dialect, Tradition and Folklore (Otley, 1997), 85.
[133] '1s' has been circled; presumably 1 shilling was the correct rent.
[134] Sic. Two sections 32.
[135] Two entries describe the river at Troutbeck.
[136] The first part of this heading is obscured by the binding.
[137] Tiny sketch of arches.

[§34.][138] [Tales of the Heard Family][139]
{There is another house by Troutbeck Parke \ within this parish / on the west side the becke, which lately belonged to a yeoman family of the Heards (gentleman but yeomen) with a little Estate or Tenement called Lowick-how;[140] \ & / which pays a rent to the other house & is held of it. But the Report goes That one Heard, a man of prodigious stature & of equal strength; before the union of the two Kingdoms of England & Scotland, upon an Incursion made by the Scotts[141] (who had advanced over Jacks Brigg, which is upon the mountains betwixt Kentdale & Patterdale) tooke his bow & his Quivers & went alone up ~~the midel of~~ an Hill call'd the Tongu'e in the midst of the parke to take a view of them. And as they were coming down the Scot Raike (which is a path ~~or Trac which~~ they wore in their march, retaning its name upon that occasion), he Bent his bow & shot freely at them, & they att him. But he so far outdid them, & he made such Execution & havock amongst & upon them (whist in the meantime all their arrows fell far short of him) that they thought it convenient rather to Retreat than hazard themselves with such terrible Archers as these. Upon which, tis Reported that the King sent for Him that he might /see him shoot.[142]

[II.326][143]

And a Bow being brought to him which was none of the weakest – he call'd it a spelke (which in his country languedge signifies a little stick split in the midle, {i.e.} such as they make for little boys to shoot with),[144] & said it was fitter for a child than a man; upon which they fetched him of the strongest they had. And Heard, calling for 2 of their longest arrows {takeing 2 of them} tooke both Bows in his hand together & at one single pull drew them quite threw the Bows.[145] \ Upon which / the King ~~& all about him~~ admired his strength and askd him \ what / victualls he was brought up with ~~&~~ the man reply'd: with Thick-gulls (which is an haisty pudden made of oat-meal & milke). {& souer-milke?} Then, the King bid[d]ing him, aske what he would have; And ~~fellow~~ \ he only / desird ~~to have~~ this little Tenement (called Looke-how) & had His request.
Thus the story goes, and it is very certaine that the estate ~~did~~ continues in that name to this day – Thomas Heard being in possession, who[146] has no son but several Daughters, the eldest \ was long since / marryed to one Thomas Birkett \ of Bowness, none of Troutbeck / an other prodigie who weighed near upon 24 stone, at 14[lb] to the stone. But has no Isue.

[II.323]

[More on Heard]
They report of this Heard in the Parish to this day that he would sitt downe at a marriage feast with the 1[t] Table,[147] & eat as they did with the same moderation; & pay his groat with them (which was the common ordinary then) when they riss from Table; But would sitt \ downe againe / with the next, &

---

[138] Not numbered in the MS, but Machell's notes on II.323 suggest that the subject of §34 was the Heard family.
[139] See Roger Bingham, Kendal: A Social History (Milnthorpe, 1995), 354-55.
[140] MS: 'which ~~formerly belongd to a~~ \ lately belonged to a yeoman family of the Heards with a little estate ~~gentleman but yeomen~~ or Tenement called Lowick-how.'
[141] MS: 'one Heard a man of prodigious stature & \ of equal / strength ~~equal unto it~~ Before the union of the two Kingdoms \ of England & Scotland, / upon an Incursion ~~of~~ \ made by / the Scotts (~~having notice given of their marching over Jacks Brigg upon the high street~~.'
[142] MS: 'And as they ~~came~~ \ were coming / down the Scot Raike (which is a path ~~or Trac which~~ they wore in their march, Retaning its name ~~from them to this day~~ \ upon that occasion, / he Bent his bow & ~~lett fly~~ \ shot freely / at them, & they ~~likewise~~ att him; but He ~~outshott them so far & did so much execution that he put them all to flight~~ \ ~~did then~~ But he so far outdid them, & he made such Execution \ & havock / amongst & upon them / (whist in the meantime all their arrows fell far short of him) that they thought \ it / convenient ~~rather~~ \ rather to Retire / to Retreat ~~back againe from them~~ than incounter such Archers \ than hazard themselves with such terrible Archers as these / Upon which, tis Reported that the King sent for ~~Herd~~ Him ~~And desired to~~ \ that he might /see him shoot ~~amongst his own Archers~~.'
[143] Also numbered p.12.
[144] In Scotland and Northern England, a 'spelk' is also a splinter. OED.
[145] MS: 'upon which they ~~brought another~~ \ fetched him / of the strongest they ~~could get~~ \ ~~proove~~ / \ had / And Heard calling for 2 of their longest arrows, {takeing ~~both hence~~ \ 2 of them /} tooke both Bows ~~together~~, \ in his hand together / & at one \ single / pull drew ~~both~~ them ~~Arrows~~ quite threw the Bows.'
[146] 6cm of heavily scored-through illegible text follows here.
[147] MS: 'They report of this Heard in the Parish to this day ~~with a great deal of~~ that he would sitt downe at a ~~great~~ \ marriage / feast with the 1[t] Table'.

doe the like with them. And so ~~until~~ till a 4th meal was made. & with these \ 4 meales / he would worke (or Travel) 4 dayes \ together / without eating or drinkeing. And they say he went to London after one of these feasts, from his own house (being 200 miles) in the strength of that meal \ or those meales. /

{(§31.)} A Tryal with Herd for Lowick-how{See §34. To which this belongs.}[148]
& Sir J. […][149] by a Tryal (it proveing to be a part of the Parke) & could shew no Grant \ he having no Grant to shew […][150] (he but having after varied the rent) did fairly recover it. /
Heard dyed 10 years agoe – ab Anno 1692.[151]

[II.326]

{T. But one Heard his descendant having no grant from the King ~~to produce~~ and different Rents having bin p[ai]d, he was ejected by Sir […][152] in a Triall at Apalby – above 10 years [ago]} \ and so theres an End of the Heards & their Heards. /}[153]

But to returne again to Troutbeck, after so long a digression.

{(§35.) Old Parke see §39. see p.19 in margin}
There was an other Parke \ heretofore / belonging unto it (but 2 miles distant) \ N. ab Ecclesia / but W. ad Capella called the Old-Parke whether stocked with deer or no I know not but now quite despark'd if ever it wase so & divided in \ several / Cantons amongst the Tenants. It extends it selfe in Lenth 2 miles from Troutbeck-bridge, all along by Windermer Water \ except where Cawgarth interposeth a little / to Hol-beck-brige halfe a mile from Ambleside: But there are no remarks of. p.14.[154]
{May not this be Calvgarth parke mentioned in Inq[uisition?]}

[II.323]

Art & Curiositves in Nature near Troutbeck

§29. Great store of Rosemary: some Ewe Trees – & a great one in the churchyard. Juniper store; Holly great store; & great Trees – The sheep feed on the Tops of Them. Laurel & Bayes in their gardnes. Raspberryes Natural (a generous reine[155] of Blackberryes) Bleaberryes Strawberryes Croneberryes. Fire stone in round lumps like brown hand balls. There is an Hill ~~Gat~~ called Gatlow-how near the place where wee suppose the manner house stood, which is an Arrow shot west from thence; whence tis supposed the[y] might have had the Liberty of Furcas within this Lordship.[156]

{Blew amongst lime stone in the forrest a Capella ½ m. west. but not plentiful. Good Blew slate in diverse places. Peat – a mile & ½ a Capella W.}
{? N.B.} A piece of Gold found 6 or 7 years since in a Peat moss calld Dod in Troutbeck forrest ¾ deepe, a m[ile] dist[ant] N.W. from the chapple; sold to Mr Cock \ old James / a Bookseller.[157]

[148] Copied from §31, above.
[149] The name is shortened and unclear.
[150] A word here is obscured by the binding
[151] Machell recorded this in 1692; Heard had died ten years previously.
[152] Unclear word at the page edge.
[153] Several illegible words continue into the margin.
[154] See II.328.
[155] 'Reine': the uncultivated grassy strip of land around a field or allotment, Rollinson, Dictionary of Cumbrian Dialect, 132.
[156] 'Furcas' = gallows. OED. Hence, the liberty of furcas, i.e. the right to erect gallows in the Lordship.
[157] The first of three references to Cocke's purchase (see also Part 2, Ch.10, II.424; Part 3. Ch.3, VI.259.) The activities of James Cocke, bookseller and mercer of Kendal, his wife, Mary, and another Joseph Cocke (perhaps a son) appear in Sir Daniel Fleming's correspondence and papers (1665-96): see Christine Churches, 'Daniel Fleming, Richard Scott and James Cocke: the making of a 17th Century English Provincial Library', Thesis presented as part requirement for an Honours Degree in History, University of Adelaide (1984), 34-44.

{(§30.) Woundale Rase ~~see also p. 36~~}
There is one in Woundale calld Woundale Rase – a mighty heape & no other stones near it (which is almost a wonder in this place) but upon what occasion is not known. Credibly possibly a monument of som that were slane &c. in this place.

{Spying-how; the Raise}
There was at ~~spring~~ \ Spying / how in Troutbeck forrest a Capella W. ½ a mile, an Heape of stones called The Raise which they Removed for making their fences about 70 years since; & in the midst of it they found a chest of 4 stones \ a one on each side & one on each end / with large bones in it, which \ may seem to have / bin a monument of {som scouts or watchmen here slane & burned …}[158]
{! Perhaps a vulneribus[159] for a Battle there. See [§]34 to which this belongs.}
{These stone Heaps or Raise's as here called are no other than the Welsh Carnedhs, which are described well in Rowlands Mona Antiquity; Borlases Antiqu de Cornwal;[160] & they being British sepulchres.}[161]

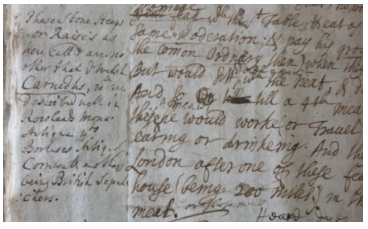

Figure 2.9.11. Margin Note: Bishop Lyttelton's addition to Machell's text. II.323.

Memorandum. Mr Wilson Parson of Windermer had 3 sons \ 2 alive / by his wife at a Birth.[162]
& Robert Borricks \ wife / of Troutbeck had 3 sons likewise – all alive.

[II.327]

Borrans at Ambleside, Windermer Parish[163]

Pieces of Glass found here ½ an inch thick; & 3 inches broad. Also several Leaden Bullents, like mustard balls, Coins of silver brass & gold sta[m]ped with Cæsars heads upon them.

This square fort is call'd Borrans-Ring from being surrounded with a Bulwork[164] & trench which do yet appear. The Inner Edge of the square has bin wall'd about & [there are] buildings in the midst amongst the Ruines, of which much hewenstone is found, \ which is great rarity in this Country. / Pieces of Brick & G~~alls~~las (as tis said) ½ an inch thick. & They tell me of Cannon & Musket Bullets which have bin found here but the Invention of Gunns being of late date I can hardly believe it; Unless som skermishes might have happened here in our Civil wars betwixt som partyes on camping here &\ in / the opposit mount. But of this nothing is said. {Query if been a Dwelling house here?

[158] The end of this sentence is obscured by the binding.
[159] 'a vulneribus': literally, 'from the/their wounds'; figuratively, 'a loss in battle'.
[160] Henry Rowlands (1655-1723) Mona Antiqua Restaurata: an Archaeological Discourse on the Antiquities, Natural and Historical, of the Isle of Anglesey, the Antient seat of the British Druids (1723); William Borlase (1695-1772) Antiquities, historical and monumental, of the County of Cornwall (1754).
[161] This hand is likely to have been that of Bishop Lyttelton. Charles Lyttelton (1714-1768) was bishop of Carlisle from 1762 to 1768 and President of the Society of Antiquaries of London from 1765 to 1768. In 1764, Lyttelton borrowed Machell's MS.Vol.3 (July 31); MS.Vol.4 (August 7) and MS.Vol.6 (August 15) from Carlisle Cathedral Library: see CAC(C), DCHA/5/6/1/15. Library Register, 1703-1873. See Lyttelton's advice to readers of Machell's history in Part 3, Ch. 4: 'Directions for those who shall undertake to finish the Antiquities of Westmorland', VI.432A-B.
[162] For Wilson, see fn.62, above.
[163] Waterhead, anciently Galava.
[164] MS: 'Bulwook.'

Which might scatter such things.} However tis certane that diverse Coins of Gold Silver & Brass have bin found hereabouts – of which a curiouse collection ~~is made~~ \ was made by Mr Brathwate & given by deed to the University of Oxford where now they Remane in the Public schools of the \ said / University of Oxford.

Figure 2.9.12. Borrans-Ring. II.327.

{See §43. §44. Note. It should stand of[f] the water as far as the 3*.}

[II.328][165]

Troutbeck

{1 years old rent onely for a fine upon change of the Lord by death: 2 years old rent onely for a f. upon change of every Tent. By death or alienation è Decreto Anno Jac primi 17^0 4^0 Novembris.}[166] ~~Of Antiquity about It~~ \ Of note – to be seen in or about it I saw / onely a little pool ~~about~~ \ in / the midle ~~thereof~~ which they call the Old Casway. But see Camden & Speed. And nothing but the name of a parke is \ now / remaining.

{§36.}
But there is allso a stinted Common belonging to the towne ~~or village of Troutbeck which is called~~ Woundale, laying towards Patterdal, at a full mile distance from the Towne. & a Common of pasture {by stint nearer to the Towne consisting of 3 Inclosures called by the names of the 3 Hundreds wherein store of Limeston slate turfe peat & Ling.}

{§37. Custom}
There are no fre holders.[167]
The Tenants hold only Richmond foe, pa[y]ing Rent \ & / fine \ Certaine every of them 1 year old rent onely / as in Ambleside*, with Heriots as they die, i.e. the best Beast[168] for all his Tenements, hold he never so many and the like ~~for a single one~~ \ if he have but one Tenement*. / And \ they say / If a man marry a Wife Heiress to a Tenement, it goes to his heires (if he have no Isue with her) & not to hers, which is general throughout the Lordship. Q. if not amongst all the Kings Tenants in other places of the Barony? But this is certaine out of a Decree Anno Jacs. Primi 17^0 [1619-20][169] shewd by Sir Daniel Fleming. That the Eldest sister d[eceased] of Co[n]san[guinity] being an heiress Inherits without any co-partnership in Tenancy held of the Richmond foe or Marquess foe – and upon d[eath] of every Tenant dying cesed of a Tenement leaveing a widow behind him, an heriot for which she enjoy her husbands Estate dureing her widow-hood onely.}
{* [&] *: Refer this to the general remarkes for the Lordship.}

[165] Also numbered, p.14.
[166] 'By death or alienation from a decree of 4 November in the 17th year of the reign of James I [1619-1620]'.
[167] MS: '\ There are ~~so~~ no ~~many~~ fre holders, ~~& the Rest of the~~ /.'
[168] MS: '~~best~~ best'.
[169] 'Decree in the 17th year of James I.'

[II.329]

[Woodlands]

{(§40.) Woods}
There is young Timber all Up & Downe, & ~~much~~ som old pollard which serves for fewell.
{(§41.) ad (§39.)}
They have Doates of wood in Troutbeck & Ambleside – on other Tenants groundes which the owner of the ground may not medle with nor disturb them of.

[II.328]

The Old Parke (which I take to have bin the Demain, & perhaps the ~~little one~~ \ other / too). {Refer this to the Old Parke [section] before.}[170] It was divided Equally amongst the Tennants by Survey, & they charged with so much Rent proportionably. And the wood likewise divided Equally accord to proportion; so that they who had lands without wood were to have a share (tho in other mens allotment) where wood grew; & hence I suppose it happens that to this day som Tenants have Right to wood in others grounds. When this partition hapned I know not, but \ there / are the Bookes of Survey in the parish (if they could be found) which would satisfy that query.

[II.329]

{Long lives ad Windermer &c.}

{(§.42)} {See §20 & referr to proper places}

Thom[as] Willan Parish-Clerke of Windermer was Buried 3 or 4 years agoe {ab Anno. 1692} on whom a good fellow made this epitaph.

"Hære lyes Tho Willan under this Ewe Tre. who lived to bee 100 years & Three."

{Their Diet Imployments Exercise}

[Willan.] Perch sheepsheads & plucks – Haverbread; drinke good ale when he could get it. {Ferryman loved a glass of good Ale.}

George Robinson of Milbeck & Thomas Braithwate of the same, who dyed within a year one of the other & were Xtned together – lived to above 100 years. They were Buried with[in] these 3 years.

Robinson \ a fisher / seldom dranke any ale bein a waterman – but lived on the common country diet & much of Perch. /

Old Rob Brown of Crooke in Crook Chapelry buried 20 years agoe; lived to 120 years as all the neighbourhood & Sir Thomas Brathwate was convinced of by circumstances which he rememberd.}

Old Miles Jackson of Ambleside, buried about 14 years agoe; lived as the neighboures there Report 120,[171] \ which is a common thing in the parish. / But the Parsons of the Parish (before Mr Wilson the present Incumbent) never found out the wit to live half so long. 3 Remembrd [there] having bin 7 parsons there in the memory \ of man / & the longest liver enjoyed it not above 17 years – which was Parson Wakefield.[172] But Mr Wilson has had it 35 years & upwards, & is yet as like to live as to dye.[173]

{Martin Dixon & his wife of Parke ground near Calgath, lived near 6 score, & his wife to above 100. Buryed about a dussen year since. His Business was fishing: which trade (for chars)} they follow most in winter twixt Martinmas & Easter (being the only Season) & catch the most in the most stormy [170] See II.322, II.326.

[171] 20 is superimposed over 60.
[172] James Wakefield, rector of Windermere (1627-44). Nurse, Parish Church Windermere, 17.
[173] William Wilson, rector of Windermere (1652-1705). Nurse, Parish Church Windermere, 17.

weather, & after the snows begin. {A fisherman seldom dyes under [his] appointed period of 70 years. Sir Xtopher Philipson never knew one [lost] by a su[dden] death.}[174]

[Borrans]

{§43. Borwen}
¼ mile N. from St Katherines Brow near Troutbeck brig on the E. Side of the River is a place calld Borrwens a (a Tenement of George Dixons, 3 younger Brother of Thomas Dixon somtime fellow of Queens College in Oxford, & now Rector of May-Hil in Hantshire.[175] [He] was Borne at Orresthead in Aplethwate – 1m. E. (ab Ecclesia) whose father Rased ~~a vast estat~~ \ above 1000. 1400 li / out of a Tenement of 16[li] per Annum) – near which is a place calld Battlehow.[176]
Another Borrans – in Aplethwaite (near High house in Ings Chapelry) a Tenement of John Wilsons. {Note} And \ ~~the sam~~ / Rowland Wilson was Born at [Blank] in the said chapelry of the Ings. And Rowland was his – q. what he Right[177] to? This was not Harry!

{§44. Batlehow}
{These places, & Woundale – & Spyinghow – may all importes som Battles fought hereabouts.}

[II.330][178]

Aplethwate Applethwate[179]

{§45. Aplethwate Schoole}
Aplethwate seems to have taken its name from the plenty of Aple trees (which have bin planted ~~hereabout~~ in their orchards, tho now there are ~~but few~~ \ not many, / and the bottoms thereabouts, which in their country Language are called Thwaites. {forsan (q.) the Weaites.[180] For there are plane valleys or howins,[181] down which a water course doth commonly go.} It is a long stragling ~~Town~~ \ Hamlet, / or rather a ~~Row of~~ \ number of single / houses rudely disposed \ & at a great distance one from another / extending it selfe 3 miles in Lenth \ & 2 in bredth. / The Houses are all built of a Ruff \ Ragg[182] / f\l/att stone and most of them slated, having their lands for the most part about their houses; which is the Reason why they are so far distant one from another.[183] It is an entire Constablewick & The River Troutbeck runns (at about eleven score ~~distance~~ \ yards / from their houses) at the High-end of the Constablewick called Line-fit, on the west side of it. & this part is within less than halfe a mile of Troutbeck ~~Kirke~~ Chappel, 3 miles from the parish church & 7 from Kendal the nearest market \ to but Ambleside. / The other end of it is within a mile of Winder-mer church, & som houses less; & 6 from Kendal. The Great Road twixt Kendal & Cockermouth goes through it, ~~extending it selfe~~ from Troutbeck-brig ~~towards the~~ \ running / South East.

[174] Words in square brackets are editorial suggestions; the original words are obscured by the binding.
[175] Thomas Dixon matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, in 1664/5 aged 15; BA 1669; MA 1672/3; described as 'fellow of Queen's' in 1673; BD 1682; rector of Weyhill, Hants 1682-1708; DD 1685, see OAD; CCED. Machell wrote 'May-Hil', but both websites attribute this rectory to Weyhill, Winchester Diocese.
[176] See correspondence between Rev. Thomas Dixon and Sir Daniel Fleming in John Richard Magrath (Ed.), The Flemings in Oxford: Being Documents selected from the Rydal Papers in Illustration of the Lives and Ways of Oxford Men 1650-1700, Vol. II, 1680-1690 (Oxford, 1913), 2, 7, 17, 18, 21, 24, 29, 33, 34, 37, 45, 47, 52, 53, 64, 69, 71, 74, 75, 78, 85, 88, 95, 104, 113, 124, 130, 136, 291.
[177] This word is badly blotted; the transcription is therefore insecure.
[178] Also numbered p.15.
[179] One written in pencil, the other in ink.
[180] Thwaite or thwate: a piece of ground cleared from forest or reclaimed from waste. OED.
[181] From 'howe': a hollow or valley. OED.
[182] Rag/ragg: see the English Glossary.
[183] MS: '(~~most of them~~ \ for the most part / about their houses, which is the Reason why they are so far distant one from another, ~~& take up so much ground. The River Troutbeck~~.'

Figure 2.9.13. Margin sketch of St Katherine's Chapel, Applethwaite. II.330.

{§45. St. Katherines-Brow}
And in this Road at a Place call'd St. Katherines-Brow \ ab Ecclesia 2m. / was an old chaple, now turn'd into a dwelling house {6 yards broad at the west end and 18 long}[184] but som part ~~very~~ fair \ enough / yet to discover that it \ had bin / a chapple; & the name of the place doth show the dedication.[185] {Hence perhaps St Katherine Picture in the E. window of Windermer Church} {But Aplethwate now is […] Troutbeck Chap[el] at least som part of it.}[186] {Mr Jo. Philipson – now of Cal garth – sayeth his Uncle Christopher Philipson (perhaps he meanes his great uncle) went to School at this chapel when he was a boy.}

Ad Calgarth – alias Caw-garth.

{§46.} {Caw-garth Hall}
There is allso an Hall on the West side of this place called Callgarth, a mile from the church & 7 from Kendal \ reputed to be in Aplethwaite & yet payes its Rent to the Kings ground of Undermilbeck / It is a fair stone building & in good Repaire. The situation thereof is very pleasant, being built upon a Level within 12 score of Windermer-water \ (on the east side of it) / a great part of which is within Prospect \ out of the Dineing Roome which is a fair one; / & is renderd more commodiouse by a Parcel of Fishing ~~by their own ground~~ belonging unto it. & ~~There are~~ very good gardens & orchard about (page 338).[187]

[II. 338]

Calgarth, i.e. the Parock within a Call,[188] \ whence som who have supposed it hath taken its name; for in several places they call their gardens by the name of Cal-garthes. And ergo I should have gladly received this op[inion] if I had not found it written Calv garth. Note de vaccarys.[189] / & there were stately woods belonging unto it but lately cut downe; in the places of which some young one[s] \ Tres / are growing.

{§47. No Tenants}
There is a Demain belonging unto it which lyes by the house, & the land very good both for meadow corn & pasture. But there are no Tennants belonging unto it: \ here but those at Winstar appeare at this place / but it pays a Rent. But they have Tenants at Winstar purchased to a fine certaine: But there being an Intale are Arbitrary & Heriotable.

[II.331]

{Descent of the Place}[190]
I am apt to believe that this Estate did formerly belong to the family of Cawgarths, who tooke name from hence and of which sirname there were som remaining not many years agoe; for Tho[mas]

[184] Dimensions taken from the sketch of St Katherine's Chapel, Figure 2.9.13.
[185] Two interlineated words are illegible here.
[186] Transcribed as seen; this unclear sentence is also blotted.
[187] The page number is a later addition, in another hand. Obedient to the advice given, this edition continues on II.338.
[188] Parock: an enclosed area of ground; a small field or paddock, especially one close to a farmhouse. OED. Hence Machell's reference to a garth (garden). 'Call' and 'ca' are dialect terms for either a cattle-walk or a calf, see Wright, English Dialect Dictionary 1, 477, 492. In Westmorland Place-Names, the name Calgarth is said to mean, 'Calf enclosure'.
[189] Vaccary: a place where cows are kept or pastured; a dairy-farm. OED.
[190] Here there is a ½cm sketch of a cross-crosslet.

Mackerith an Antient man now living in Ambleside was told by a neighbour who dyed about 40 yeares agoe[191] of one Caw-garth of the Water-head with a Remarquable Circumstance of him – That he / had an Excellent fishing {char fishing puto} in Windermer off ~~of~~ Sea-maw-Crag, which never could be met with ~~since~~ agane after he dyed; nor is it discovered to this very day. He told me also another very Remarquable Passage (which I thinke fit here to Insert (though out of the County) for the rarityes sake;[192] of one Ellin the w[ife] of George Mackerith of Skelwith near unto Brathey in the County of Lancaster; who standing by whist they opening the Panch[193] of a cow at Martinman time in 1685,[194] had her hair all cinged with a flash of fier that came out Thence; & yet they found nothing extraordinary in it but a great hard lumb[195] or marg[…][196]

[The Gargen]
As to the natural cause: The natural cause hereof is said to proceed from an hot distember,[197] called the Gargen,[198] which is occasioned by Eating the Rootes or Slips,[199] branches, of the Ewe tree, or by Eating of Ackorns, as the same man informed.

[II.332]

[Calgarth Hall]

Figure 2.9.14. Draft sketch of Calgarth Hall, annotated, 'not right'. II.332.

Figure 2.9.15. Arms at Calgarth Hall, annotated, 'Set the[se] off a little wider one from another'. II.332.

[191] There follows 5cm of illegible scored-through text.
[192] As Machell also did when recording, 'A Relation of a Spirit which appeared last Xtmas in Langedale parish of Stainthrop near Barnard Castle in the Bishoprik of Durham, 1674'. Part 1, Ch.6, Brough: I.397-98.
[193] Stomach.
[194] Cattle breeding formed a large part of the economy of the far north of England but wholesale slaughter of cattle at Michaelmas (suggested in Machell's passage) is questionable as it was then possible to overwinter breeding animals successfully. During the autumn, butchers received only the animals that had been led south by drovers for final fattening. See A. F. Kinney, D. W. Swain, E. D. Hill, W. A. Long (eds), The Routledge Encyclopedia of Tudor England (New York, 2001), A7.
[195] Lump.
[196] The rest of this word is obscured by the binding.
[197] 'Distemper': a disease of dogs characterised by catarrh, cough, and loss of strength. OED.
[198] 'Garget': a disease among animals, especially cattle and calves: Wright, English Dialect Dictionary 2, 562.
[199] 'Slips': twigs. OED.

The Armes marked 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. Are in the Hall windows \ & all with compertments though omitted here for Brevityes sake. / whereof the 1. is Gules a cheveron betwen 3 Bores head couped Ermin Langued Azure {q. if not more Ermins} By the name of Philipson = Impaleing Azure – {upon a cheveron betwene 10 Cinfoyles Argent, 4, 2, 1, 2, & 1; 3 mullets Gules} a Cheveron Argent charged with 3 mullets Gules betwene 10 spurrowels of the second – 4, 2, 1, 2, and 1. By the name of Carus.[200]
2nd is Philipson with the same Compertments & so are the Rest though here omitted = Impaleing, Azure 6 Lyoncels Rampant Argent. By the name of Labourn.
3. The Third is Barry of Ten. Or & Sable a Canton of the second, by the name of Brigs.
The 4th Coate ~~has the like Compertment; and~~ is Philipson Impaleing = Gules 3 cheveronells braced ~~counter compony~~ \ vaire[201] / on a chiefe Or; a mullet \ piercd / of 5 pointes, Sable, ~~pierced of the chiefe~~. By the name of Wivel.
The 6th Carus Impaleing Wivel which is in plaster over the Hall Chimney where also Philipson single.[202]
The 7th is Philipson with the like compertment quartering Carus.[203]
The 6th is Philipsons Paternal Coates (which is also ~~in the Parlour~~ on the Hall Chimney don in plaster) ~~as like~~ with this motto above – FIDE NON FRAVDE[204] – where also is Carus Impaleing Wivel, both in plaster. & The same with the former is in glass in the Parlour.

{A stately dineing Roome is wainscoted about}[205]
There is a stately wainscoted Dineing Roome which looks into Windermere; & on the Chimney Pice; are these single Coates. 1. Philipson. 2. Wivell. 3. Carus. 4. Briggs.

[II.331]

{Windermer Parish Memoranda}

James Machel of Haverthwate near Ulverston/Ouston in Lancashire.[206] 3 miles below Newby Bridge a Ship Carpenter \ wood monger / & Merchant = One in Hutton a substantial man.

Old Mr Sands
To Mr Sands of Hawkside checking for assume his coat of armes & saying he might [cause] trouble. The other replyed, thou shalt not need; for thy Armes I will leave the[e] to get thy living with; for thy coate I would not be in it for anything.[207]
{The True & Modest account of Windermer}
Fower miles below this Ile – It is not above a mile at most, so on to 3 quarters, ½ a mile, 1 quarter &c. – It was \ lately / plum'd at Read Hill above the Sand beds ab Ecclesia 3m. NW. & was found there to be 40 fathom deep.

The parson has 4d per Annum for the Tithe \ of every board / per composition ab Antiquo.[208]
{5s free Rent paid by Sir Xtopher Philipson to the Crown for his Ile without Fine or Heriot which is paid, in which Aplethwate, & payes with it in all Tax[e]s.}
~~Borwens at Ambleside in in Windermer Parish where the coines are found.~~[209]

[200] 'Carus' was added in pencil. Part of this sentence was underlined with pecked lines; Machell often did this when he was unhappy with a passage as it stood.
[201] 'Vair' or 'vaire': one of the heraldic furs. OED.
[202] The 5th is missing.
[203] 'Carus' was added in pencil. Machell omitted the 5th. This 7th may be the original 5th.
[204] 'By Trust not Treachery.'
[205] This extensive margin comment is faded and scored through. Only the first sentence (given here) is clear.
[206] Old names for Ulverston include Oostan and U'stan: Rollinson, Dictionary of Cumbrian Dialect, 115.
[207] For Sands, see Part 2, Ch.2, II.26-27, II.39. The story told here is explained more clearly on II.27.
[208] 'From an old composition.' Composition: see the English Glossary.
[209] The MS here contains a note relating to the Barony of Westmorland. MS, '{Memorandum ad Browham} Hel dungeon near The Chapel by the water sid.}'; not transcribed in the body text.

Ad §46. & see p. 21.

Calvegarth. [Philipson]

{Out of Sir Daniel Flemings Collection MS. A. p.50 ex originali}[210]
Note – Here is the grant & distinction of their Armes. This must be Added to the Account in my Booke of Pedegrees.
{18 May 1581 Rob. Cooke Clarency[211] confirm'd this coat, & gave this Xt[212] to Rowland P. alias Thirlwall: sc. G[ules] a Cheveron inter 3 Borrs heads coupes Ermin tusked de Or. Crist on an helm 5 ostridge feathers, Sc. 3 Argent & 2 Gules set in a Crown mural de Or.} {And to Miles of Thwatterden Hall, younger brother of Rowland, the same armes with a Bordure Gold, the Crist as the other, only 3 feathers Gules & 2 Argent. Mantle Gules. Doubled Or limned White.}

Figure 2.9.16. Calgarth Hall. II.333.

1. Christopher Philipson of Calvegarth Esq. J.P. = marryed Mary d. of Tho. Piercyhay Esq. = 2ly Ann d. of Rich. Burgh Obijt Sine Prole	4. Carus Ph. ob sine pro	3. Rowland ob s.p.	2. Robert obijt s.p.	5. John Philipson of Calvegarth Esq brother & heire of Christopher	= Dorathy d. of Xtopher Crackenthorp of Newbigging Esq	1. Ann w. to Hen. Ward of Rigmaden	2. Mary wife of William Shaw	3. Catherine W. of George Gilpine of Kentmere
7. Miles 6. William	4. Rowland 5. Carus vicar of Almundbury mar. = Dorathy High	3. John	2. Xtopher	1. Rob. P. of C. Esq. J.P. Hee dyed beyond sea	= Barbara d. of Will Pennington of Seaton Esq. obijt May 20. 1678	1. Mary	2. Ann	3. Margaret 4. Dorathy 5. Barbara
5. Rowland S.P. 6. William Philipson	4. Miles Pr s.p.	3. Rob. Philipson	2. Christopher Ph. maryed = Wharton	1. John P. of C. Esq.	= Mary youngest d. of Sir Rob. Paton of London Knight Feb. 15. 1688	1. Beatrice	2. Dorathy	3. Judeth

[210] For the Philipson pedigree in Sir Daniel Fleming's Book A, see CAC(C), D/Lons/ L12/2/1, 49-50.
[211] Clarenceux. Robert Cooke (d. 1593) was appointed Clarenceux King of Arms in May 1567: J. Day (2008, January 03), Cooke, Robert (d. 1593), herald. ODNB.
[212] Chart.

[II.336]

The Arms & Inscriptions

There is also writ upon the hall windows in 4 pains of Glass being oblong squares in capital letters Sc.
1. Robert Phillison | & Jennet Laibor | ne his wife. He dyed in Anno 1539 | The 22 of Dece | mber. 1579.
2. Rowland Phillis | on. And Katherine C | airos his wife. He dyed in Anno. 1516 | The 30th of awgus. 1579.
3. Robart Phillison | And Jennet Laibor | ne. his wife. He die | d in Anno. 1539. | the 22 of Dece | mber 1579.
{Note the 1 & the 3 are the same. The latter dates are the time when the glass was made}

And on the like pains in the Parlour:
C. P. who dyed in Anno Domini 1566 the 21 of August. On another, R. K. 1569.

Figure 2.9.17. On a silver tumbler, the Arms of Philipson. II.336.

And on a Silver Tumbeler – The Arms of P[hilipson] Impaled 2 Coates parted per fess as it were – 1. Ermin 6 Birds: - 2ly underneath That a Cheveron betwene three mullets pierced – which I suppose is intended for Crackanthorps but theirs are not Pierced. & ergo is a mistake of the graver.[213]

[Philipson Descent]

	Ann the d. of Richard Brough of [Blank] in Yorksh.	1. Christopher P. of C. Esq. J.P. 1= maryed Eliz. d. Sir Marmaduke Wivell of Burton in Yorkshire.	2. John Philipson of Calgarth son of Rowland	= Dorathy d. of [Blank] Crackenthorp of Newbigging Esq. Great Aunt to the Now Lord of Newbigging	[Blank] to [Blank] Gilpine of Kentmer	[Blank] to Ward of Rigmaden
	2. John A merchant of Newcastle	3. Carus P. Parson of Almundbury in Yorkshire near Halifax	1. Robert Philipson of Calgarth	= Barbara d. of Miles Pennington of Seaton Esq. obijt May 20 1678	Mary To George Whinfel of Newcastle	Ann Maryed to One Gervice in London
William	Rob.	2. Xtopher to Mrs Wharton	1. John Phillipson of Cowgarth	= Mary d. of Sir Robert Clayton of London 1. Mary 2. Jane	Beatrice	Dorathy	Judith

{Rowland of Calvgarth Esq. A.P. = Katherine d. & heire of Nic. Carus of Kendal 1. Xt & 2. John.}
{~~Tis said his Uncle Xtopher went to Schoole at St Katherines Chaple; perhaps he meant his great Uncle~~.}[214]

[213] The reference to the engraver's mistake appears to be a pencilled addition.
[214] See II.330.

Xtopher [Philipson] of Calvgarth[215]

{Temp. Marie & Eliz.}	1. Rowland		2. Miles Phil. of Thwatterden Hall Esq. J.P. Stuart (?) & Receiver of al the Crown Rents in the Barony	= Barbara Sister & coheire of Francis of Conishead in Lancashire	3. Clara N.B. take only the first line & leave the collaterals
Henry Jac	3. Miles, who had from his father The Moity of Conished which he sold & went to his sister the countiss [of Arundel][216] whose son Miles maryed Alderman Mawsons d. of London. Borne in Skelsemire qua nota. This Miles is now in Wiltshire	2. a Daughter who had to her 2nd Husb. One Arundel a count of the E[m]pire; who had one son whose descendent is in Herefordshire & 5 daughters maryed to great fortune 1. to the Earl of Shrewsbury 2. to the Earl of Somerset 3. to Lord Evers 4. to Sir John Fortiskew 5. […] of Wild Street London. […] by whom he had a D, who has to her portion […]	1. Robert P. of Thwatterden Hall Esq. J.P. Stuart (?) & Receiver of al the Crown Rents in the Barony	= Ann d. of ~~Sole heire of John~* ~~Latus of Whiteham park in Cumberland~~ 4. John P.LB.[217] Fellow of ~~Queens~~ \ Marton / College in Oxford[218]: whom offerd the presentation of Windermer to him but he Refusd	2. Elizabeth 3. Xtopher whose descendant is maryed to Ralfe Latus of Beckhall in Cumb. N.B. See the Pedegree of the Philipsons in my Booke of Pedegrees
			Christopher of Th. ~~P colonel under King Ch~~. Captaine of foote in Sweeden	= Mary the d. of William Hudleston Esq. of Millum Castle in Cumb.
2. Robert = Ann d. of Thomas Knipe of Burblethwaite Inquire, near Witherslack 1. Robert | 1. Christopher 2. Clare			1. Hudleston Ph. Col[onel] under King Ch. I.	= Elizabeth D. of Allan Askeugh of Skeughsby in Yorkshire & from Yorke Eliz. to Latus of Witch. A younger brother
2. Alan Capn of Foot in Flanders at the 1. Fraye of Mons – [sine] prole[219] 3. Robert Capt. Of a privateere in Jamecha not heard of these 14 yrs![220] + Miles at London unmarried.			1. Sir Christopher P.	= Clara the d. of Lyonel Robinson of Cowton Grange, near Richmond in Yorkshire. w. Francis Topham of Aglethorp near Midleham

[215] This muddled pedigree is blotted (Figure 2.9.18, below); therefore parts of the transcribed pedigree have been left blank and even the transcription of the rest is insecure. See the pedigree (1615) of Philipson of Thwatterden Hall in Joseph Foster (ed), Pedigrees recorded at the Heralds' Visitations of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmorland made by Richard St George, Norroy, King of Arms in 1615, and by William Dugdale, Norroy, King of Arms in 1666 (Carlisle and Kendal, 1891), 104.

[216] This information provoked negative comments from T.G.F. (reviewer of Jane Ewbank's Antiquary on Horseback, Kendal, 1963). 'On p.123 we are told that Miles Philipson sold a moiety of Conishead to his sister the Countess of Arundell, but neither Miles nor his sister ever owned a moiety of Conishead for it descended to their brother Christopher Philipson (died 8 March 1599/1600) who is omitted from the pedigree altogether.' See 'Recent Publications 2. Antiquary on Horseback … edited by Jane Ewbank', CWAAS Extra Series 19 (Kendal, 1963), in CW2, 64 (1964), 413-15, at 414.

[217] Bachelor of Civil Law.

[218] Merton College: see Foster, Pedigrees, 104.

[219] For Captain Alan Philipson and others mentioned here, see N&B1, 180-84. See also T.G. Fahy, 'The Philipson Family II: Philipson of Crook Hall', CW2, 73 (1973), 240. The siege of Mons took place in 1691 during the War of the League of Augsburg or 'Nine Years' War' (1689-97), see R. Foley, 'League of Augsburg War', The Oxford Companion to Military History (Oxford, 2001).

[220] For Captain Robert Philipson, see Fahy, Philipson Family II, 240.

Figure 2.9.18. Philipson Descent. II.338.

[II.341][221]

{Ad Calgarth, Crooke, Hollinhow}

[Phillipson Family]
The family of the Phillipsons are descended of an Ancient family of the Thirlewalls of Thirlewal Castle by the Picts-wall on the edge of Northumberland which adjoynes upon Cumberland: And are said to \ have com'd into Westmorland, and assumed this Sirname ~~of Phillipson~~ upon this occasion: There being a League betwixt the English and the Scots; & som Scottish Officers coming to search for ammunition in Thirlewal Castle would needs Rudely press into a Roome that was locked up: whereupon a younger son the Family kild one of the Officers;[222] which being a violation of the League betwixt them, he was forced to flye \ ~~for It~~ / & came to a place here in the Barony (in Nether Stavley) called Hollin~~s~~ How, then in the posesion of a certaine Tanner, who wanting Stock to traid withal. & the young Gentleman haveing money enough,[223] for his father had given him his portion with him, furnishd the Tanner upon the Condition that he might goe halfes – by which he increased his money considerably. \ At length [he] got that House / ~~that Estate~~ \ which was their 1^{t} Seat ~~said~~ in Com. Westm'land / and after made Suit of an Heiress whose name is supposed to be Thwatterden of Thwatterden-Hall, & marrying her, came to that Seat which is now calld Crooke Hall.
{Sure this has bin Robert Phillipson the 1^{t} of Hollin How circa 1456 as is computed. T.M. vulgo.}

[221] Also numbered p.21.
[222] MS: 'There being a League betwixt the \ English and / the Scots \ said / ~~& the northern being~~ & som ~~off the~~ Scottish ~~Gentlemen~~ Officers coming to search for amunition ~~said to be there~~ \ in Thirlewal Castle / would needs Rudely press into a Roome that ~~was~~ was locked up: ~~a son of~~ / whereupon a younger son the Family kild one of the Officers.'
[223] MS: 'Then in the / posesion ~~at that time by a~~ \ of a certaine / Tanner, who wanting Stock \ to traid withall & the / ~~&~~ young Gentleman haveing ~~considerable given in money which he brought a long with him he furnishd the Tanner & went halfes with him~~ \ money enough.'

Afterwards they \ are said to have / maryed the Heiress of Calgarth & \ so / had that Estate, both which are \ now / poss'd by the Phillipsons; Callgarth being Given to the Elder Bro: whence \ is descended / John Phillipson (Esq.) the present Proprietor ~~is Descended~~; and Crooke hall to a worthy Gentleman, Sir Christopher Phillipson the owner of it and of This Iland, with several other Places in the Barony of Kendal.
{See Thirlwall Pedigree for one Philip de Thirlewall about that time, or write to Mr King about it? Inde pro Crista coronam muralem.}[224]
{How they came to Calgarth & Thwatterden hall it doth not appear; But Xt[opher] Ph. Receiver to King Ed. The 6 in these northern parts (who dyed the 21 August. 1566) was the 1[t] of that name I finde at Calgarth. And Miles his 5 Son, but second*.}

[II.341A]

*Whose Mother was a Labourn of Cunswick, his wife a Briggs of Helsfell hall in Strickland Ketle; but neith[er] ~~of them~~ an Heiress: nor any before them, & therefore I guess he had it by Purchase or by gift from the King, being his Receiver. And Miles his 5[th] son, but second that had lived, was the 1[t] of this name at Thwatterden hall now called Crooke, which was either Purchased by his father or came by the marriage of Barbara Sandes sister & coheire of Frances Sandes of Conishead in Com. [Blank]

[II.341]

{The Phillipsons of Crooke were also owners of Helsfell-hall in Strickland Kettle, Purchased by Miles Great great grandfather to Sir Xt[opher] Phillipson. \ For Miles his mother was a Brigs of ~~now~~ Helsfell hall, but no heiress neither / And Troutbeck parke ~~both which he~~ \ as I / have said – & Lindith purchasd by the said Miles – being 3 Tenements – And Burblethwate demane} \ & 14 or 15 / Tenements which was Thomas K[n]ipes Gentleman of Cartmell in Lancashire & Langthwaite a freehold estate [and] some Tenements in Millum.
These had also formerly by marrying an Heiress of the Sands'es of Conyshead in the County of Lancaster, one moity of that Demane & one Doding the other ~~& they marryed an Heiress~~ Latus of Whitcham Hall in Millum; ~~but for a composition in money as is supposed~~. It remaned to one of that name & so doth […][225]

[II.339]

Windermer [Water]

~~There is a drye well in the Iland~~
St Johns well by the schoolhouse 3 yards, \ 300 yards / ab Ecclesia, the runnel of which comes through the Town within 60 yards in winter.[226]
Mr Wilson has seen 30 swans in \ a / flock \ in winter / and got no much as the Tithe of them, tho an excellent gunner.

{ad §52.}[Sparrow Hawks]
Sparrow Hawkes Build in the Iland. Mr Wilson has 3. & the Patterdale Eagle comes to fowle here. But build not in this country.[227]
Bald-Cootes alias Bellcouts[228] & cormorants too many for they destroy the eales abundantly. Sir Xt[opher] has seen 17 in a flock; & Xt[opher] Philipson of Burthwate, kill 2 at a shot; & holding one of them up by the feete, she disgorgd 4 Eales out of her stomack; no way injured \ disgested or putrifyed. /

[224] 'Hence a mural crown for a crest.' 'Mr King' was probably Gregory King (1648-1712) clerk to William Dugdale, 1662; herald, registrar of the College of Arms, 1684-1694: see J. Hoppit, 'King, Gregory (1648-1712), herald and political economist'. ODNB.
[225] The text here has perished.
[226] MS: '… the runnel of which comes through the Tow within 60 yards ~~of the chaple & Martin well within 100 ab Ecclesia~~ in winter.'
[227] In the MS, this paragraph also contains the scored-through phrase: '~~Hobbys upon the Glebe Woods~~.' A hobby is a small species of falcon, Falco subbuteo, formerly flown to kill larks and other small birds. OED.
[228] 'Bald Coot': coot (Fulica atra), named for its pure white wide frontal plate, with no feathers. OED.

Wild ducks in Great Plenty – also Skeldorkes {The Hen is the Gravy}[229] & White Sides, White Eyes; Lough Mallards by 100s in a flock. Goldins, Teales, Widgions, Toppins (an excellent fowle as large as a Duck),[230] Gants,[231] Didappers.[232]

Dr Rich[ard] Gardner
Dy-Dapper Dick, Dapper Dick Dapper dye
Dy-Dapper is seen in the fowl and for why.[233]

And divers others sortes of fowles, which they want names for. Wild geese – 60 in a flock. Parson Wilson.
{N. Gen. Juniper & ewe – up and down the parish – Tho now much destroyed. (Hollyes large & plentifull in the old park 3m. ab Ecclesia N.) Rasps – plenty. Croone berrys[234] Bog-berryes.[235] They burne mostly wood, peat being not plentiful.}

N.B. This Windermer-water doth properly belong unto Applethwate; for the whole Rents is charg'd upon it: & there the Pursevant[236] (If he finds no Boates upon the water \ to answer arrears[237] / will forthwith destrane.[238]

[II.340][239]

Aplethwate. Windermer-water.

The ~~broad~~ long Iland is in Aplethwate for it payes Rent & Sesses with it.

{§48.}[Applethaite Fell]
There is a Common \ without stint / belonging to this Hamlet called Aplethwait Fell, which joynes ~~to the~~ unto it \ on the east side. / There is \ Ling & Brackens / Quarries of Slate & Limestone; & Good Store of peet potts, whence they have their fuel. ~~Tho great~~ And another little common without stint ~~on~~ Sc. the fell call'd Scal-Knot {which joynes unto it on the S. E. side 1 mile long & 1 mile bredth in which is slate peets Turf & Ling.}

{§49. Windermere Lake see 50 & 51}
The Great Lake calld Winder-mer water \ is / on the west side of this Hamlet & \ the fishing held thereof / is farmed by several persons in it, as allso by som of Unde-miln-beck; who \ alltogether / pay 6^{li} per Annum ~~as an acknowledgement to the King~~ \ to the King, sayeth T.D. Balif. But XX[240] nobles [229] This bird is possibly either, 1. The skelduck, otherwise known as the common sheldrake; or, 2. The gravel duck or goosander. See Wright, English Dialect Dictionary 2. 712 and 5. 461. For the gravy, see also II.340, below.

[230] 'Toppins': possibly 'tappens', named from 'the tuft or crest of feathers on the head of a bird; hence 'tappenie', a tufted hen', Dictionaries of the Scots language. Online.
[231] Gannets.
[232] 'Dab-chicks'. OED.
[233] The word 'didapper' (humorous, literary and rare) could be used to describe someone who (like the dab chick) disappears and then suddenly appears again, Collins English Dictionary. Online. 'Dapper Dick' appears also to have been the nick-name of local poet, Richard Braithwate, of Burneside Hall: see M.L. Armitt, 'Ambleside town and chapel', CW2, 6 (1906), 1-96, at 28; see also H. S. Cowper, 'Notes on Richard Braithwate of Burneside, the Poet and Writer, and his Portraits', CW2, 22 (1922), 78-84.
[234] Possibly the crown berry, which is a lingonberry. OED.
[235] Cranberries. OED.
[236] 'Pursuivant'.
[237] MS: 'arrers'.
[238] MS: 'destrane' = distrain: by the sale of chattels to obtain satisfaction for a debt, particularly for arrears of rent. OED.
[239] Also numbered p.20.
[240] 20.

i.e. 6:13:4, sayes Sir Xtopher; & others free Rent to the King for their / ferrying & fishing; & so it descends to them & their Heires. [241]
It is in Lenth 10 miles; in bredth ~~4 miles~~ \ about 2 or 2½*, / \ rather 10 long & One & ½ Broad / & in som places above 40 fathom deep.
{*Redbrow is said to be 7 score fathom 7 score y.}[242]

[II.338]

{Memorandum. The broadest of Windermere is from milhouse to the sand bed. It is much the same from Bowness to Furness Side – 2 m ½ once measured by a line.}

[II.340]

{Fish}
There are great store of Chars, both Golden Chars, & Red-chars \ & Case Charrs.[243] / Allso eeles. \ Common & Gray / Trouts. ~~Case~~ Pikes \ gret! / Perch. Silins & minnows.[244] Beäne prickts {i.e. Bone.}[245]

{Fowle}
And in the winter time ~~great store of~~ wild swan, \ wild geese, / Duck & Mallard, Teal, Wiggions, Bare-tales i.e. Didappers. Gravyes, which are larger than ducks & build in hollow trees.[246] \ And many others / whose names are not known to the inhabitants.

[II.336]

Figure 2.9.19. Cormorant seen at Windermere Parsonage. II.336.

[Cormorant]
A cormorant hanging in the parsonage house at Windermer. Long. 3f. 6 inches. Broad. 1f. besides the wings. They are larger than a goose & eat like read Deere baked. The feather are blackish.[247]

[241] Overfishing amid commercial interests was common to Windermere in the 17th century. See Parsons, 'The Brownes of Townend and the Township of Troutbeck, 173.
[242] Margin note written in pencil and crossed through; one of several illegible margin notes.
[243] 'Char': a small fish (Salmo salvelinus) of the trout kind, found in the lakes of mountainous districts in the north and in Wales, and esteemed a delicacy. 'Case Char': Arctic Char, Salvelinus alpinus. OED.
[244] 'Silins': sile or sil[l]: the newly-hatched fry or young of fish, Dictionaries of the Scots Language. Online.
[245] 'Bone prickets': small sharp points or spikes made of bone. OED.
[246] Possibly the gravel-duck, or goosander, see II.399, above.
[247] The sketch and notes here have been completed in ink over pencil and red crayon.

[II.340]

{§50.} [Storms]
There were 47 persons \ at Michaelmas tide / about 1634, drown[ed] in this water in passing the Ferry from Hawkside market homewards.[248] Som of the Horses got out after, but were so terrified with the storme & danger that they ran away 3 or 4 miles before they could be stopd.[249]
There was once a passenger who going[250] through this Part of the Country in Winter time into his journey to Cockermouth or som part of Cumberland in the Winter Season, & seeing a very fine plane before him all coverd with [snow][251] which was a very delightful object in this mountainous country, he entered at the Low end of it, takeing it to bee meadow, & rid all along for 10 miles together till he came att the very head of the water. And there he turned of to Ambleside, being in his road, & Enquired what spatious / meadow that was? that he gallop along for 9 or 10 miles.[252] The people wonderd & knew not what he meant till hee told them it was 10 miles

[II.342][253]

~~in lenth they discovered the mistake~~ \ by which they discovered the great mistake, / & told him what a danger he had escaped; upon which he presently fell in a Swoone: But recove[er]ed again.

{§51. Ilands in Windermer}
& so wee will lieve him on his journey. & Returne to the water – in which{there are diverse Iles, yet but 3 of note \ Sc. / 1. Bellingholm. 2. Longholm.[254] 3. Ladyholm.}
There are several little Ilands ~~in It~~. Sc. \ 1. / Rough-holme, \ 2. / Lady-holme, \ 3. / Hen-holme, \ 4. / Dixon holm {Boatma[n]s holme alias Crow holme, Bellingham Holme, Madenholm, Lingholm. Blakeholm,} 2 little holmes called Smale-holmes

{§52. Longholm & Aplethwate}[Holm House] behinde the Long holme which had the one warren; which Long holme is 20 Acres of Land,[255] most of it Arable \ & formerly well wooded with oake / & a pretty house in it, \ called the Holm house, for which is paid a free rent of 8s per Annum, on which Aplethwate, with which it pay all manner of Dues.[256] /
[Robin the Divil]
It was besieged by Collonel Briggs in the Civil wars for 8 or 10 dayes till the siege was rais'd at Carlisle.[257] \ And then / Mr ~~Rob Phillipson~~ Hudleston Phillipson \ of Crooke to whom it belong'd / came from thence & Reli[e]ved his Brother Robert there. The next day being Sonday, Mr Robert

[248] The 'History of Kendal Church' gives the date as 1635, when on 18 October, 'The River Kent came into the vestry. 47 wedding guests drowned in the Windermere ferry sinking.' https://kendalparishchurch.co.uk/history
[249] See W.G. Collingwood, '"The Fatall Nuptiall," a Tract (by Richard Brathwaite?) on the Windermere ferry accident of 1635', CW2, 13 (1913), 147-59.
[250] This phrase replaces two words of scored-through, illegible text.
[251] MS: '~~And many others have bin cast away there.~~ There was \ once / a passenger \ who going / ~~travelling this way~~ \ through this Part of the Country in Winter time / into ~~Wales~~ \ his journey to Cockermouth / or som part of Cumberland \ ~~who being~~ / ~~ignorant of the Countrey~~ in the Winter Season & seeing a \ very / fine plane before \ him / ~~(for the water was frose over & coverd with snow)~~.'
[252] MS: '& rid all along ~~of it 10 miles in lenth~~ \ for 10 miles together / till he came att the \ very head of the / water ~~head where he turn'd of to~~ \ and there he Turned of to / Ambleside \ being in his road / & ~~dest~~ Enquired what ~~large~~ \ spatious / meadow that was? \ that he gallop along for 9 or 10 miles. /'
[253] Also numbered p.22.
[254] Now Belle Isle.
[255] MS: 'behinde the peat \ Long / holme \ which had the one warren; / which Long holme \ (is Tenant Right &) / is 20 Acres of Land'.
[256] The interlineation here is unclear.
[257] For 'Colonnel Briggs', see Part 2, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, II.234B and fn. The siege of Carlisle was raised in 1645: see Samuel Jefferson (ed.), Isaac Tullie, A Narrative of the Siege of Carlisle, in 1644 and 1645 (Carlisle, 1840).

Phillipson with 3 or 4 more, Rid to Kendal to take revenge of the ~~Sequestrators~~ \ Committe men;[258] / passed the watch & rid in to the church up one Ile & down an other, to sacrifice \ on[e] of them / ~~or if he could have~~ {some of them if he could have met with any there}. [He] met with him whom I shall not name; but was dishorsd in his returne by the Gards, & his girths broke. But his partners reliev'd him by a desperate charge, & Robin in a trice clap'd his sadle on horseback & valting on to him without girth or stirrup, \ kild a Sentinal, / Gallopd away, & returned to the Ile by 2 a clock.
Upon this & such like adventures he was commonly calld Robin the Divil;[259] \ But / was Killd \ at last / in the Irish-warrs at Washford fight,[260] \ as is reported in the Roll of Crooke. This Ile is now possesd by \ Sir[261] / Xpher Phillipson Esq, son of Hudleston.[262]

Figure 2.9.20. 'Great Holm-house alias White-hall'. II.342.

Holm-house alias White-hall.
The rooms 5 Broad, 4 yards long something more.
Outside measure 10 Broad 14 & ½ or 15 L[ong] with the new window 16.

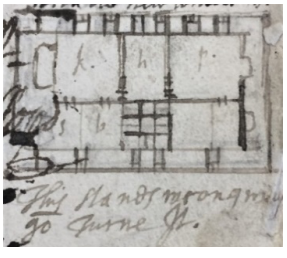

Figure 2.9.21. Plan of Holm-house (Whitehall). 'This stands wrong way; ergo, Turne It'. II.342.

An Hall 5. Kitchen 5 and Parlour 5 may do very well.

[258] The Parliamentarian Committee for the Sequestration of Delinquents' Estates was formed in 1643 to confiscate the estates of Royalists who had fought against the Parliamentarians in the Civil War. See 'Royalist Composition Papers', in David Hey, The Oxford Dictionary of Local and Family History. Online.
[259] Robert Philipson was a major in a Royalist regiment during the Civil War: N&B1, 142.
[260] Battle of Wexford (Ireland), 1649: a Cromwellian victory.
[261] Machell was here updating Christopher Philipson's title.
[262] 'Sir Walter Scott romanticised the Robin the Divil story in his poem, 'Rokeby'. Most of the sixth canto is devoted to Robert Philipson's famous ride into Windermere church, seeking out the unpopular Roundhead commander, Colonel Briggs. See The Works of Walter Scott, Esq: Volume 9, Rokeby (Edinburgh, 1813), Notes to Canto VI, 2, 411-13. For a fascinating description and analysis of this event, see Pauline Wharton, 'The True Story of Robin the Devil', https://paulinewharton.wordpress.com/the-true-story-of-robin-the-devil.

[II.343]

{§53.}Lady Holm
This Ile is N. ab Ecclesia ½ a mile; from the Long Holm ½ m N.E.
On a blew Table Stone a.
NOVIT. PAUCOS: SECURA QUIES: CHR: PHILIPSON 1631[263] being one line
On another Table below:
1605 NON EST MORTALE QVOD OPTO ChRISTOFER PhILIPSON[264]
He was said to retire thither on the Sundayes after Morneing Service till the Evenprayer.
In this [isle] are seve[r]al sorts of wood; a Ewe Holly Juniper Linwood Broome Sally[265] Hassell Ash Oacke Maple Aspe[266] Raspberryes Bleaberyes.

{§54.}[Pike]
A[…]?[267] 23. 1686 – a Pike was presented to Sir Daniel Fleming \ of Ridal / taken in a Net the day before, which was 1 yard & 6 Inches Long: and ½ a yard 3 inch & ½ in circumference at the thickest part: & which weighed 24 li & ¼ Wool \ & Butter / weight.

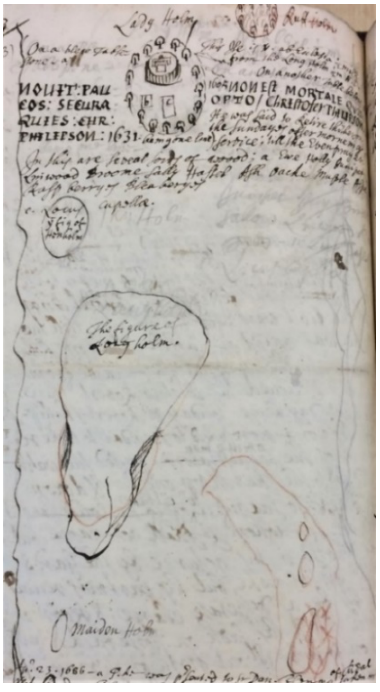

Figure 2.9.22. Windermere, showing 'Ruffholm, Ladyholm, Henholm, Longholm Maiden Holm'. II.343.

{§55.}Som Ilands with their position in Windermer to be compared & placed in the map.

[263] 'Few enjoy rest free from care Chr Philipson, 1631'.
[264] '1605. That which I long for is not a mortal thing.'
[265] Machell wrote 'sallow' in pencilled notes below this paragraph, but, in a later inked draft, he wrote 'sally'.
[266] The word is obscured by the binding; perhaps it is 'aspen'[?]
[267] This appears to be A[pril] but could also be A[ugust]. Machell's question mark suggests that he was unsure of the date. According to Charlotte Kipling, Windermere pike were caught throughout the year in the 17th century, unlike char, which were caught at spawning time, in either spring or autumn. See, 'Commercial Fisheries of Windermere', 168, 189.

Figure 2.9.23. Windermere.. Detail from the larger image on II.343.

[II.344]

{(§56.)} {? Cawgarth}
There is noe Freehold in this vill[age] but Cawgarth \ unless & the Iles may be so Accounted, which pay a free rent / which payes quit Rent to the King & appears at {Which Court?}
{q[uery] if he hold not Lady holm as free land of the King & an Appurtenance of Cawgarth} {Yes it is in the Park.}

{Tenure}
The Tenants or Inhabitants of this Village hold of their Lands according to the Custom of ~~the manner of~~ Richmond foe, paying \ to the Crown an annual / Rent fine Certane & Heriots which \ Heriot is / ~~One for all~~ \ the / best beast \ they have & which they pay for / for all they hold, as the former \ Tenants. / But their fines \ som what / defer; for these pay onely 2 penny fine at change of Lord \ i.e. 2 years rent in the name of a fine, / & 3 penny fine \ i.e. 3 years Rent, / at the change of Tenant. The reason why the others doe not pay so much is because they say \ these Estates were augmented whilst / it was forrest-grownd \ & ergo more rent & fine laid upon them. / They doe Suit \ & service / a[t] the Court Baron ~~at the~~ \ held for this Lordship in / Schoolhouse in Bowness & 2 &c. Appear at the Court Leet at Kendal once in the year, as in other places*.
{*This is a general note for the Kings Tenants, & all pay Greenhew.}

They have the wives Land to them & their Heires; & may give their Tenements by Will-writ, or deed, to any Stranger, from their \ owne / Heirs. But the widow enjoys at her husbands estate when he dyes seised viz. posessd \ in Tenancy of / dureing her ~~pur~~ viduity. ~~And for~~ And these are \ Reckond as / general cu[s]tomes amongst all the Kings Tennant \ both / in Grosmere & Windermere; ~~excepting for Heriots, for~~ \ But in matter of Heriots there is som difference: / those who hold by Richmond fee & Marquess fee are lyable to a duble Heriot if they have 2 Tennements of different Tenures. But if they have 20 of each \ of those Tenures, / they pay no more.
~~There are no freehold but \ Phillipson of / Cawgarth. Where both reside~~.

{§57. Windermer}
How what Rent is charg'd upon Aplethwate. If the Kings Pursevant finds no Boates upon the water or if any Boate be upon the water when they [are] not afishing he will distrane upon them, if they refuse to pay.

[p. 346][268]

Under-miln-beck – & Bowness

{§58. Undermilnbeck wherein is Bowness}
~~Bowness and~~ Undermilnbeck \ with Bowness which is part of It / make another Constablewick. N[ote.] I take Aplethwate to be divided into 2 partes: Sc. Overmilnbeck, commonly called Applethwate, & Undermilnbeck, wherein Bowness standeth. {q.} And it takes the name of

[268] The previous page (II.345) contains the following question, written in pencil: '? How springs & Runs Milbeck.'

Undermilnbeck from the ~~Mill~~ River above which comes from Aplethwate, divideing that place from this. \ Which drives a miln here. / The chapple of Winster is within this ~~Hamlett~~ \ Constablewick, / but, neither in the Lordship nor Parish – concerning which see more in Kendal parish.[269] It is distant from Hawkside market 4 miles & 6 from Kendal; from which it stands \ N. /W.

{§59. Bowness}
The Houses ~~Stand~~ \ are of a Ruff Thin stone, & stand, / stragling for the most part, except in Bowness round about the church where they are ~~more~~ \ about a dussen houses stand pretty / thick, & many of them are coverd with a \ Blackish / Blew Slate got in their own grounds. It is seated for the most part below the River which runns on the nor-east of it & so powers itselfe into Windermer Water which also belongs ~~to~~ \ unto / this Township in part, & here they have the Ferry Boate to convey the market folks \ & other passengers / from Hawkside to Kendal. In which passage those 40 people afore mentiond were drown'd & \ insumed / *Som of them as if they had forseen \ or presaged / the mischief; would not enter the Boate till hailed in & carried in the Arms of their friends & other acquaintance. {*either the other story must be brought in here: or this passage added There.}[270]
The Places of Chiefe Remarke are the Church, of which we spoke before in the General account of the Parish, The Schoole & The Parsonage House.

{§60. Windermer School in Bowness}
The School is a Stone Building 2 stories under Roofe & Broad 6, 13 yards Long, with a Chimney in the end of it & Slated al over, It ~~is close by the church and goes by the name of Windermer-mer Schoole~~. \ It stands S.E. from the church about 100 yards[271] / & goes by the name of Windermer-Schoole, of which see more in my Papers with Mr Waise.[272] It stand ab Ecclesia 80 yards S.E.

[II.345A][273]

A brief Account of Windermer School
Att Windermer (alias Winandermer) in the Barony of Kendall & County of Westmoreland, there is a free School, scituate ~~now~~ in the Town of Bownes near Winandermer Water & att a small distance from the church of Windermer. The stock belong\ing/ there unto, (which was att first £100 is now advanced to £200) began in King James's reigne[274] by the liberall contribution of some well disposed persons in the two Hamletts of Aplethwaite & Undermilnebeck: but the School-House was not built till about 40 years ago (Sc: circa anno d'1637) att which time another contribution was made by the two foresaid Hamletts for the erecting the said School, which is […][275] governed by 4 Trustees and 10 Feoffees. The Trustees att present are Robert Philipson of Calegarth Esquire; William Wilson Rector of Windermer, Thomas Dixon of Orresthead & Robert Birkett of Lickbarrow, whose respective Heires or successors are to be deputed to this office for ever. And the Feoffees are to \ be / chosen out of the rest of the most substantiall & able men in both the aforesaid Hamletts, and when one half of them is dead, the surviving half makes choice of such as are to compleat & fill up the number ~~againe~~: and then new security is drawne betwixt the Trustees & Feoffees, & so from age to age perpetually.[276]

[269] See Part 2. Ch.3ii, Crook and Winster.
[270] See II.340, above.
[271] The text has smudged here; an addition notes the school was 80 yards from the church.
[272] Christopher Wase (1627-1690) was a headmaster and classical scholar who conducted a national free-school survey titled Considerations Concerning Free Schools as Settled in England, published in 1678: see R. Hodges, 'Wase, Christopher (1627-1690). ODNB. For Wase's use of questionnaires and his connections with Thomas Machell, see P.J. Wallis, 'Westmorland Schools about 1676: Christopher Wase's Survey'. CW2, 67 (1967), 168-85. References to Wase in Machell's volumes are found in Part 1. Ch.1. Appleby, IV.35; Part 2, Ch.3iii, Hutton, II.170; Part 2, Ch.7, Heversham, II.170; Part 2, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, II.205.
[273] A small (15cm x 19½cm) sheet, comprising a letter in another hand, addressed to, 'Westmoreland Winandermere in Winandermere parish.'
[274] James I: 1603-1625.
[275] There follows one illegible scored-through word.
[276] See N&B1, 179; their account of the early history of the school appears to be based on this description.

This came from Thom Dixon, father to Mr Dixon fellow of our house.[277] Now Dr in Divinity.[278] {The Usher whereof makes an annuall & standing pension for the schoolmaster who is att present Thomas Wells.}[279]

[II.346]

{Bowness}
There is one thing very Remarkable in Bouness, that most of the people are power \ cottagers 15d a year to the King / yet will not betake themselves to any imployment[280] excepting its ~~bee~~ begging: They \ inter / marry one with another; ~~as soon~~ will spend all they have in the wedding weeke & then goe a begging. & Bring up their children to the same ~~profession~~ \ Trade /, never permitting them [to] doe a dayes worke for pay.[281] There was \ onely / one man ~~onely~~ (as has bin observed these 40 years) that betook himselfe to workeing \ an honest imployment enough / & the 1ᵗ day he wrought he was sore exclamd against for breaking their Custom; His neighbours telling him 'twas never a good world since Bowness people went to wo[r]ke. But this is a rarity {the like of which I never heard of the like ~~in al my travail~~s except in Hantshire att a place called [Blank] where their about 100 Inhabitants of the same profession. Trade.}

[Dues and Duties]

[II.347]

{§66.}
? Lastly, there are in this Hamlet (But in the Parish of Kendal) 14 or 15 Tenements which belong to this Lordship on the same side of the water{what do they call the place} which hold of the King in the same manner, & injoy the same priviledges.

{§67. Green}
There are allso 3 Tenements at Green over against Lady-holm in this Hamlet & Lordship which Appear at Court paying (a smale quit rent &c. {q. of both & how much} & Green-hew to the King. But \ Heriots & / a fineable Rent by Composition to Mr Phillipson of Calgarth, which seems to make that a petty Lordship. And Mr Phillipson allso payes to the \ Kings / Grave[282] of Undermilnbeck, To be payd the ~~Kings~~ Auditors for the use of the Crowne, 26 Pounds yearly: as free Rent for his Estate.[283] {ergo he seems to be in Undermilnbeck & not in Aplethwate, q. ideo.}[284]
And He has \ also / Tenants ~~also~~ At \ a place calld / Winstar, which is a distinct Lordship ~~from this & in Kendal~~ \ & Chappelry in the / Parish of Kendal yet (perhaps for That Reason, because they are his) are put in this Hamlet. They do Suit & Service at they own Court Baron held in their own Liberty where the Lord doth \ pleaseth / appoint. Pay Boone Hens & Capons, Shearing ~~Sheep~~ &c. Rents, & Fine Certane by a Late Comp[osition][285] but it doth not stand good because ~~twas~~ \ the estate was under / Intale[286] & q[uery] f[or] Heriots. But these pay nothing at all to the King.

---

[277] In Machell's hand. Dixon was a fellow of Queen's College, Oxford: see II.329, above.
[278] Written in pencil. Dixon Junior became DD in 1685: see II.329, above.
[279] This margin comment is partly obscured by the binding.
[280] This word is scored through, but as Machell did not provide a substitute, it has been retained.
[281] MS: 'never permitting them doe a dayes worke ~~they may never so much~~ \ for pay / money ~~for it~~.'
[282] 'King's Grave': a steward, person placed in charge of property. OED.
[283] In his review of Jane Ewbank's Antiquary on Horseback (1963), T.G.F. was astonished at this large free-rental: 'That the then Philipson of Calgarth paid for his lands in Undermilbeck to the auditors for the use of the Crown, 26 yearly as a free rent for his estate seems quite incredible. This is, for the period, a huge sum, surpassing the entire rent-roll for Undermilbeck which in 1574 was 1q. 3s. 10½d. (RK ii 82), and it must be remembered that these were fixed rents. As an illustration of what the rents really were, I quote all the Philipsons occurring in the 1650 list of free rents in the Marquis lands: Mr Phillipson 6/9; Mr Philipson 1/6; Mr Philipson of Crook 3/2; Mr Philipson of Helsfel 6/8: for the Richmond lands of the same date we find among the freeholders, Christopher Phillipson Esq., 4/2.' See 'Recent Publications 2.', CW2, 64 (1964), 413-15. Machell's figure is very clear and Jane Ewbank's transcription is accurate.
[284] 'Therefore enquire.'
[285] A sum of money paid in settlement of, or by way of compounding for, a claim or liability. OED.
[286] Intail: the limitation or destination of a freehold estate or fee to a person and the heirs of his body, or some particular class of such heirs. OED.

[II.350][287]

Windermer [Notes]
? Easter Booke {A pensione paid by the Parson of Windermer of a Mark per Annum every Easter to the Vicar of Kendal – & Gresmer the like.}
{Church on the Outside: L. 30; Steple 5; B. 20; Bells 3 & a Clock.}

{§61. Bran Fell}
There is a larg Common belonging to this place, one part of which is calld Bran~~t~~ fell:[288] \ Sc. Undermilnbeck & Bowness / in which are quarrys of Ruff walling stone & store of fearn or Brackens; the other Lindeth & Crooke fell, where there are quarries of stone, Turfe & a Bad sort of peat with plenty of fearne & Furrs which they call Whinns. {& there is a place calld Sommering hill where they used to have their sommer sports.}

{§62. Old field}
There is a Freehold in this Township calld Old field which belongs to Xtopher Phillipson which does Suit & Service. Which is well wooded with Oake \ Timbers / Trees,[289] ab Ecclesia [Blank]

{§63. Lickbar-row} {e Lickbarrow distant} {Now General for the Lordship}
And there are ~~four~~ \ 5 / Tennement in a place calld Lic\k/bar-row within this Hamlet which do Suit & Service at the Kings Court Baron paying a smalle Quit Rent & Greenhew?? (as every one of the Kings Tenna[n]ts doe), being 2d \ a / Tenement \ in som places & others 1d; / & is supposed either to bee for Liberty of Common or (which is more likely) ~~for~~ of green wood; for to Hew & Cutt is the same thing. These \ 5 / Tenements of Lickbarrow pay Rent & Fine-Certaine according to Composition & ~~an~~ Heriots allso by Composition to Richard Ducket of Kendal an Attorney, to whom they were either sould or mortgaged by one Timothy Knipe or \ his / son William. They being bough[t] by Samuel Knipe father of Timothy about 36 years agoe of Anthony Garnet of Crosthwaite, since of Crooke ~~&~~ Lately deceasd.
{Martes plenty, their skins sold at 10 groats a skin. & wilde cats. Eels pike. & pearch 17 inch & ½ long & 14 about – Sir Xtopher Phillipson. Parson Wilson. Xtopher Dixon […] son 18.}[290]

{§64. Thornburrow Hall} {Thornburrow Hall Distant?}
There is allso an other Tenement which doth suit at This Court calld Thornburrow Hall. It pays a Quit Rent & Green hew to the King; & pays 5s per Annum Rent to the Lord Wharton of Wharton \ of Wharton Hall with / an 8d fine. \ This has belongd to & bin built by the Thornburrows, whence it is that wee have their name & Armes \ and pictures / in the Church windows.

{§65. Lindath; Stors}
There are allso \ 7 /[291] Tenements ~~& allso~~ at a place calld Lindath; & 5 at Storrs, with a parcell of Peat-moss; which do Suit & Service at the Kings Court Baron, paying quit-Rent & Green-hew. But were Fineable to a family of the Willsons formerly of Spittle in the parish of Kendal – paying a certain Rent with Heriots & a fine Arbitrary. It is redy to be sold. {Lindath & Storrs distant 1m. N.E. & belongs to Sir John, Mr Graham.}

[II. 352][292]

There are Lastly other Tenants in this Hamlett, Sc. att Winster, but they are of Winster Lordship where they do Suit & Service; \ Customary Tenants in Lordship will appear / ~~paying~~ paying Boon Hens & Capons & Boone Shearing or Reaping; (where Heriots?) & Rent & Fine (Certaine by a late

[287] Also numbered p.28.
[288] MS: 'There is a ~~great~~ \ large / Common belonging to this place ~~It is calld Bran Fell~~ one part of which is calld Bran~~t~~ fell (~~may be from the bigger Common called Bratts which is hard at hand~~.'
[289] MS: 'which is well wooded ~~with oake~~ with ~~Timber~~ oake \ Timbers / Trees.' The interlineation is unclear.
[290] These men were Machell's informants; there is an illegible word here between 'Dixon' and 'son'. because a repair has been made to the paper.
[291] There is an illegible crossed-through word here (possibly '6'), which the numeral '7' has replaced.
[292] Also numbered p.30.

Composition) but nothing Regi.[293] \ But it would not stand the Estate being intailed. & nothing to the King. / {These belong to Mr Phillipson of Calgarth who payes to […] Grave of Undermilnbeck 26li yearly to be payed to the Audit of the King. & 30 other Tenants.}[294]
All the rest of Tenements within the Hamlet are the Kings solely & held by custom of Richmond foe only. These Hold in the same Manner with Applethwate & have the same Priviledges. There are also in this Hamlet, but in the parish of Kendal, 14 \ or 15 / Tenements belonging to the Lordship or the same of the water, which hold of the King in the same Manner {& enjoy the same priviledges.}

And so I have don with the several Lordships & villages conteined in them all which pay dues & dutyes to the Minister of Windermer or Composition for them; whose place of Residence is att Bowness, and The House is called the parsonage house, alias The Hall &c.

[II.351]

{§68. Bowness}

Here was a market kept on the Sundayes, meat, cockle, sheepskins – Swills[295] – on the S. side the Church under the Ewe Tree about 50 years since. But no charter. & now a meeting every Friday.

They pretended to Armes q.?

	Arthur Wilson John Wilson
3. Allane W. to whom Bartle gave it by will obijt May 2 1675. no mar.	1. Bartle an Attorney at the Kings Bench obijt sine prole[296]	2. John, who released his brother Alane n. h. pro.[297] now living. 10. 10 1676	= maryed at Stratford by London ubi vivit.[298]

Bounder

{§69.} [Sources of the Bounder]
{a. Christopher Roberts of the Bowness Green. b. William Robinson}

N.B. The County Bounder taken at Windermer.
From the foot of West ~~Sike~~ – Sike head betwixt the 2 mills at Winstar ¼ of a m. to the Sike head.
Thence agane W (by a streight line) \ to Blackbeck head which springs in ~~to the midle of~~ Rostet Moss.
Thence Westward down the said beck into Windermer water.
Thence S. by the Banke of Windermer Water to Newby Brigg.
Thence over the Brigg & up the Westside of the water – North – to the head of Windermer Water.

{Sir Daniel Fleming.} Qu. [1.] If these Townships in Windermer have several commons & Bounders or do all […] Intercomon.[299] 2. Whether they have district juryes?[300]

{§70. Ambleside}

Halfe of this Towne \ below the Stock is in this parish / although it belongs to the Chapelry of Ambleside which is in Gresmer parish. And the whol Town, even that within Gresmer, is holden to be

[293] 'Nothing for the king.'
[294] Parts of this margin comment have perished.
[295] Swill: a large shallow basket, made roughly with strips of oak, unpeeled willows, or the like; also, a basket in which fish are landed or carried to market. OED.
[296] 'Died without issue.'
[297] 'n.h. pro.': possibly, 'nulla hereditaria prole' = 'there being no offspring to inherit'.
[298] 'Where he lives.'
[299] Intercommon: to use a common mutually with the inhabitants or tenants of a contiguous township. See J. Kendrick Kinney, A Law Dictionary and Glossary: Primarily for the Use of Students (Chicago, 1893), 395.
[300] A remark in red crayon at the foot of the page reads: 'now is out y' in the manner of Windermer {which shewes as if manner has bin afore parishes} The Market however is Reduceable hither, because it was kept below the stock, as is expressly declared in the Charter of Kendal. James 2.[301] But it was a Market \ some time / before; as appears by these charters – see Gresmer Parish §17. The Cross – see in Gresmer §69.[302] {Communicated me by Sir Daniel Fleming Ridal Knight.}

At the S? end of Ambleside & Head of Windermere is an old Rom[an] fort calld the Burwens &c. See p.13 Hujus.[303] Coins found there – See Gresmer Parish §11. And there seemes to have bin an old chapel here.

[II.353]

[General Notes and Queries][304]

{? The Hall at Bowness. Sir J. Ped[igree]. The Phillipsons came to [blank] Who had the Estates they now have & how.}
{Calld the Old Halsteed}
{Draught of the Cro[ss] & Bells}
{Armes at Calgarth}
{Com[mon]s of Ambleside}
{given to the library}
{N.B. of the 14 Tenements: what called. The distance of Stors &c.[305]

The Iland
From Bownes to the Ile 27 Sc.
The water ¼ of a mile; above a q[uarter]? say ½.

Fishing
1. High Cuble from the head to the charbeds off \ above / Calgarth ½ mile.
2. Midle-Cuble to below the ferry, The water ¼ of a mile.
3. The Low-Cubble at Calgarth 2 miles.[306]

{Windermer Parish conteineth in it –	}
1. Windermer Church with Bowness & Undermilnbeck	} Ministers de Windermer
2. St Katherines	}
3. Troutbeck Kirk chapel	}
4. Katherines Brow chapel[307]	}

[301] The market (weekly at the stock on Wednesdays, plus two fairs annually) was granted by James II on 25 July 1688: N&BI, 189.
[302] Grasmere §17 occurs in Part 2, Ch.6., on II.125-26; The sub-heading '§69' does not appear. The bell appears on II.150 in a section on Grasmere church. Machell was cross-referencing the third bell's inscription with the fact that, when, in 1650, Ambleside was granted a charter to hold a market (weekly) and two fairs (annually), the Brathwaite family was Ambleside's leading family, and, to celebrate the granting of the market charter, it is likely that Gawen Brathwaite (d.1653) provided the funds for the market cross and its Latin inscription, VITA UT HERBA (Life [is] as grass), which is both the Brathwaite family motto and an anagram of the surname. See Charles Nugent, 'Cross-Head of the 17th century Market Cross, Ambleside, bearing the initials of Gawen Brathwaite and the date 1651, later converted into a sundial.' Armitt Library and Museum Exhibition Label (2017). The stone head of the original market cross is exhibited in the Armitt. My thanks to Timothy Sykes for drawing my attention to this document.
[303] 'Of this section'.
[304] These notes are written haphazardly; text flows in three directions; sections overlap. It follows that some of the transcription here is insecure. Some sentences have been omitted.
[305] The sentence goes on: '{and in what lib. with Orrest}', but it runs into the binding.
[306] The rest of this passage is illegible because of damage and repair to the page.
[307] The rest of this section is obscured by the binding.

Ambleside.
Troutbeck.
Applethwate.
Bowness 12 or13 fam[ilies] together.
Undermilnbeck of which Bowness is a part.
Ad Crooke Hall; has 14 customary tenants. Fine Arbitrary & heriotable with Boone Shearing to Sir Xtopher Phillipson.
Barnside. Hay hens & Capon. Informant Xtopher Phillipson.
There were Bellinghams the ancient Towne Knipe tenants & Batemans which 2 last were run into Bellingham also & are now Col[…][308]

[308] This paragraph is scored through; close to the right-hand margin, it is partly illegible.

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

[Chapter 10]

[Thomas Machell's Itinerary: A Month's Journey in the North]

[II.376][1]

A Diurnal of Minutes taken in One Months Travaille through the Barony of Kendal from July the 5th to August the 2. 1692.[2]

{I leave these to Dr Thomas Guidot of Bathe for the use of my children.}[3]

[Remarques prefatory to the said Diurnal & to round off the forgoing Topography

These must be referrd to the Parishes Chaples & Ma[nners][4]

{Armes}

I like not the new invented way of discribeing the Colors in Coates of Armes by pointes & strokes all though it be ingenious enough, because it so much defaces the Bearings & therefore I rather follow the old way of an \ initial / letter for \ a / color {which you must call}

b for	blew	az[ure]
g	green	ver[t]
m	murrey
r	read	gu[les]
s	Sanguine
t	Tenn
o or y	yallow
A or w	white

But Argent & Sable which is black & white need not be mentiond in writeing or graveing upon a white ground. Neither Or (or yallow, upon gold or Brass.}

{!!!} N.B. The Best Method in Particulars [of] Manners Townes & Places will be first to set downe.

1. Curiosityes in Art or Nature.
2. The Descent of the Manner.
3. The Descent of the Manner House & pedigree.

{!!!} N.B. In Viewing of Churches, Chaples and Halls.

1. Take Armes in glass (which view & enumerate) because they give the proper colours.
2. In plaster & stone.

N.B. ad J.P.[5] is the only way both to serve and in truth to command your country. And though som upstarts make use of this means \ onely / to advance themselves above the yeomanry, which make it more odiouse to ancient families; yet it \ is / by no means to be dispised: since it gives you a step

---

[1] Also numbered p.1.

[2] A diurnal is a journal: a day-book or diary of daily entries. OED.

[3] Dr Thomas Guidot matriculated at Wadham Coll. Oxford, 1656-57: B.A. 1659-60; B.Med. 1666; practised in Bath 1667; and London 1679: OAD. Guidot's publications include, A century of observations; containing further discoveries of the nature of the hot waters at Bathe (1686) and Thermae Britanicae (1691), see the British Library catalogue. As is well known, Machell left his papers to his wife and children, asking that they should be sent to William Nicolson, then archdeacon of Carlisle, 'whom I doe entrust to peruse the same and put them in order, and if the Gentlemen of the said Counties will be at Cost with the Cutts, that they may be printed to the use & benefit of my said wife & children.' See R.S. Ferguson, 'Wills relating to the Dean and Chapter Library at Carlisle. Wills of Rev. T. Machell, Bishops Smith and Nicolson, and Joseph Nicolson', CW1, 4 (1880), 1-12, at 4.

[4] Referred = cross-referenced.

[5] Justice of the Peace.

above your Eq[uals][6] as well as it doth them. & if you accept the Imployment, it often advances these very men who are your inferiours & whom you dispise, & sets them above you.[7]

{Kentmer (dale)} is a pretty large plane, but the Bankes are more flou[8] & less woody than Sleddal is. Except on the W. side where the Parke is wooded.[9]
{Sleddal}[10]
Is a delicate dale, a River down the m[idst of] it and meadow & arable, & woods on both sides.

[II.378]

Qu[eries] left in the Barony

{Loansdale. Mr Aplegarth}
– Mr Applegarth is to send me a Bounder twixt Westmorland & the Bordering Countyes but no queries left.
Midleton. {Mr Heblethwate} of Killington. Qu. In Midleton, 1a.
1. A perambulation of the chapelry on that side next Yorkeshire from marke to marke, & how they bear E. W. N. & S. one from another. From Dent water foote {as far as you can carry it.}
2. The suggestions mentioned in the Instrument of Consecration, for having a Chaple \ & Burying / there, & the Salvo Jure Matris Ecclesiæ[11] in their very words. & N[ote] If any obligation to goe to the Parish Church as often as they can, according to the antient form.
3. What Distance Aplegarth lyes from the Chaple & Hall. E. W. N. or S. & the Conveyance of it from one family to another, to the present Proprietor. {1m. or more S.}[12]

Will. Midleton \ brother of Ed. / Col. in the Civil Wars – a you[nger] son of Midleton Hall = Dora[thy] daughter of Roger More of Bens Bank} |

2. George m. … Taile, a Londoner	1. Charles a merchant at London; owner of this estate m. [Blank]	[Blank]
Isue	Isue

Killington.
The conveyance of the manner and of the manner-house from one fam[ily] to another as at Qu. 3.
Item, what fine certaine the Tenant payes you, with what Rents- Boones-Services?
Preston Richard {Mr Tim. Banks}
Mr Timothy Bankes of Crooklands in Preston Rich. prom[ised] me at the Assizes a MS of the Custom of Kendal.
Firback.
{Firbank well. John Robinson} Moss put in the well.[13] S. ¼ m. or above; to Rob. Johnson.

[II.379]

{Sizerge. q. of Mr Shepherd of Natland}
What are the supporters of That Coate of Armes which is on the screen of wainscot as you com into the Hall?
What is the colour of the 3 Water-budgets & the Shield they are in, in the 2nd window of the East Side of the Hall; And whose Armes are they said to be?

---

[6] Suggested word to complete 'Eq…'
[7] Machell referred here to the office of Justice of Peace or Magistrate. In the 17th century and beyond, the J.P. exercised local government at the monarch's command, accepting this responsibility as part of his membership of the 'elite' in society. In England, the landed elite monopolised government, combining social and official power and rooting it in the countryside where their mansions proclaimed their status. Hence Machell's dislike of 'odiouse' social climbers, who used the magistracy to gain social advancement. For analysis of these views, see Norma Landau, The Justices of the Peace, 1679-1760 (London, 1984), 2.
[8] Perhaps, 'flowery'[?]
[9] Here instead of 'wooded', Machell has drawn a tree, as seen elsewhere in his MS.
[10] Longsleddale.
[11] 'Saving the rights of the mother church.'
[12] The following pedigree is repeated in the margin of this page of the MS.
[13] See below, the 'petrifying' well: II.386.

And whose it the other Quarterd with them?
Whose are the 3rd & 4th Quarterings in that Coate of Armes which hangs in a frame at the End of the Hall?
~~And~~ What color is ~~the field and~~ the cross flory & the field wherein it standeth?
And whether the Crist be not oake-leaves, & of what color?
1. Whose Are the Scallops.
2. Whose, the fess ^^^ betwene the Billets and How many of them.
Whose is that Quarterly Coate Impaled with Strickland – In the Third Shield over the Dineing Roome Chimney – Sc. – The Bend Ingraled betwixt 6 martlets? And whose that other quartered with it; Sc. The Cinq-foy[l]e[14] pierced betwixt 8 crosses fleury[15] \ the 1t charged with a crescent? / And what are their colors?
What is the Chaple cald. St James his [chapel]? & how far distant E. W. N or South from Sizerge Hall.
How is Sizerge writ in the ancientest writeings that you have seen?
Whose is that Escutchion which hangs at the End of the Hall – Sc. Azure \ blew / a Lyon Rampant gardant betwene XI cros croslets Argent, langed Gules &c.
Whether 4 or but 3 Billets above the ^^^^.

{Kendall q. of Mr Farrington}
In that Coat of Armes on the outside of the Tower?

[II.379B]

{Grayrig} {Sir D. Fleming MS Y}
Memorandum. In Dokear[16] was a Grange belonging to St Peters Hospital in York {ibid[em]!!!}[17]
Qu. of Probat of Wills in the Lords Court.[18]
Rich. Dukat of Fillingham maryed [Blank] Windlesore {Sir D. Fleming MS Y Ibidem.}

[II.380]

Grarig Chaple in my way is a large but low building conteineing within the precincts there of the manor of Grayrig which though it ly amongst the fells is rather to be counted hilly than mountainous.

[II.382][19]

Iter Boreale per Mensori[20] {1692 July 5.}[21]

Tuesday [5.] from K.

Directly S. to Crookdale hause head: Thence

Wednesday [6.]

A Fast at Kendal church,[22] {where after morning service I spent my time till the afternoon prayers in drawing out} som Coates of Armes & monuments.

Thorsday [7.]

My w[ay] Returned home wards.

---

[14] Unclear word.
[15] Here, Machell placed a tiny sketch of a cross fleury.
[16] Docker.
[17] Landownership: granted by William de Lancaster to the hospital of St Peter, York (later known as St Leonard's) for grazing horses. After the Dissolution, granted to Richard Washington, who conveyed it to Duckets of Grayrigg, who sold it in 1690 to the Lowthers: see N&B1, 109-10; see also https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/township/docker. 'Ibidem': the same source, i.e. Daniel Fleming.
[18] Docker claimed to be a manor peculiar, proving its own wills in the manor court. See N&B1, 109.
[19] Also numbered p.5. All interlineation and margin comment is written in pencil or in different ink from that of the main text.
[20] 'A month's journey in the north.' This is the beginning proper of Machell's Itinerary.
[21] Machell dated his Itinerary according to the Julian Calendar; the Gregorian Calendar was officially adopted in Britain in September 1752. https://www.nottingham.ac.uk/manuscriptsandspecialcollections/researchguidance
[22] For fasting in 17th-century England see Machell's short comment while visiting Natland: Part 2, Ch.3vii, II.79, with extensive fn.

Friday [8.]

{Natland}
(Tho. Smith hired for a Guide) {write to Dr Mill to be kinde to him & send him to the ch.}[23]
Set forward to Natland \ Chaple in Kendal Parish / where there is a little Chapel lately rebuilt; a Dillicate\ plane level / green with houses about it, whereof 3 or 4 are very good Houses. Here I met with one Shepherd, an ingeniouse man \ who had several coins which I drew out / & one [Blank] Wilson, a courteouse gentleman, & a good wife.[24]

{Crosscrake}
Thence to Crosscrake Chaple \ in Kendal Parish / which is in Staine-ton – a Place (comparatively with the rest of this Barony) not so very stony as to diserve that Denomination.[25] Here an ancient chapl is also re-edifyed, having a chimney in the N.W. Corner with a smokehole out of the west end of the wall about 2 yards high a terra. And here I saw a number of well fac'd children,[26] but no houses near it that I can remember.[27]
Thence: by the Maidenhead Inn, and through a Beck calld St Sunnandayes, to Hutton-Chaple, \ in Kendal Parish / in which the Timber stands like a Barne, but the walls &c. in good Repare, The floore Excepted, which is the Generall fail[ing] of Churches as well as Chapls in most parts of this Barony. The Freeschool (taught by Mr Nicholson Curate) stands in the Chaple yard, but the fence on the N. side being taken away, the owner of the Lands adjoyning will needs clame the ground whereon they both stand. A piece of sacraledge not to be suffered.

[II.383]

Thence accompanied with the said Curate I went to Bridgend in the said Chapelry: where I lodged all night at James Dawsons, an ingeniouse contry man who has made a milne which grindes Corne, Tempses[28] & Winnowes, & Turnes a Grindestone & polish wheale, & bores Gun-barrells; He having a Whitesmiths shop in his mill, in which he works Gun worke to Admiration, as also Clock work and Watch work – all which he tooke up of his own hand.
Here I saw a w[oman] who was struck with lightning, 2 men & a ~~wom~~ dog being slane in her company, & she onely Escaped.[29]

{Satterday}[9.]

~~He set me next~~ morn \ Thence accompanied with my Landlord I went next morn/ing to an old chapl upon the Hill. & thence to an alehouse on the moor side \ where we parted. He told me there was not a glass / window in this chapelry since he could remember, which continues like \ a Carr[30] dismantled of trees / forrest (there being only one \ other ale house in all / in the way) till I came at ~~Kirkby Loansdal~~ Kirkby Lonsdale, a pleasant dall well adorned with wood.

{Sunday}[10.]

Kirkby Loansdale \ parish church / where I tooke a generall account of that parish with the Armes & monuments & in the church, being kindely Entertained by Mr Briggs \ the Vicar / & his wife – a well bread gentle woman.[31] Here I preached 2ce on the Sunday, to an Orderly & Regular Congregation

[23] Written in different ink: an addition relating to his guide, Thomas Smith; 'ch' is unclear.
[24] 'Mr Shepherd of Natland' answered Machell's queries relating to Sizergh; see above, II.379.
[25] Staine = stone. OED.
[26] MS: 'Here an ancient chapl is also Re-Edifyed, having a chimney in the N.W. Corner with a smokehole out ~~of the face of the face~~ of the \ west end of the wall / about 2 yards high a terra. And here ~~were taught~~ \ I saw / a number of well fac'd children ~~as ever I saw~~…'
[27] '…but no houses near it that I can remember': an addition, written in different ink.
[28] Tempses from 'tempse': sieves or sifts. See George Meriton, Nomenclatura Clericalis: or the Young Clerk's Vocabulary in English Latine … (1685), 312.
[29] See a different version in Part 2, Ch.3iii, Hutton, II.87-88, in which, '3 men a Woman & a Dog … which struck one man Dead – Rich[ard] Whitehead – & a Dog dead – And the 2 men & woman were struck astonishd as dead, & when the[y] came to them selfes, they found them selves burnd in a wonderful manner'.
[30] Carr: wet boggy ground; a meadow recovered by draining from the bog, grown up with low bushes, willows, alders, etc. OED.
[31] For John Briggs, see Part 2, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, II.119, fn.

with whose desent behaviour at Church I was very well pleased. Here I had the Company of Mr Farrer the ~~worthy~~ Schoolmaster, & Mr Aplegarth who promised to give me an account of the Bounder of the County of Westmorland as divided from Lancashire.[32]

{Munday}[11.]

And on Munday morning; having given the vicar an Extract of their ancient Charter \ out of my Antiquities / I informd my selfe from Tempest Husband[33] – (being an Eye wit[ness] of an old w[oman] in Lancashire that renewed her youth);[34] And drawn out the Altar at Ademan dooer.[35] {Here I met with spar - & a mon[ument.] & Underley.}[36]

I went thence to St Coomes – & se[37] the ruines of an ancient chaple now an hutt of Trees – & Thence to Casterton hall \ in Westm'land / where I heard and saw little worth observation {which place may seem to derive its name from som castle or \ campe / formerly here; but [on] the strictest Enquiry imaginable I could hear of neither, nor of any of Arms,[38] Castors or Bevers in these partes.}[39] & so on to Parke house in Lancashire near unto Leck beck. Thence Tu[n]stall[40] – which was changed in Dru[n]ken Humor for Girleington, & where I drew out som Armes in the church & Inscriptions at the Vicar[age] House. & so Returned by Old Burrow whence the said Inscriptions were brought, where I met with a Roman Coine & saw Coll. Brigs.[41]

[II.384A]

{Arbor Vitæ; Travailers joy}

And so Returned to the Parke house where I lodged all night with my fellow collegian ~~and in this country my fellow travailer~~ Mr Ed. Wilson,[42] where is a gardine of physical herbs & plants and the largest Trees of Arbor Vitæ that I have met with; also, Travailers Joy & many other rarities.

{Tuesday}[12.]

{Barbon}

On Tuesday I returned out of Lancashire to the Chapel of Barbon, lately Rebuilt and to which one Shuttleworth Lord of the Manor some few years agoe offered to give 5 or 6 li per annum out of his Rents there. But the people had not the manners or wit shal I call it to accept of his profer; so that the Indowment is little or nothing.[43] {On the opposite side I saw Rigmaiden hall & Mansergh?}

{Here I met with a Living Inscription}

---

[32] See 'Mr Aplegarth' on II.378, above. See also Part 2, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, II.209.

[33] In 1695, 'Tempest Husband & Margaret his wife, his son Stephen, two daughters Ann and Margaret, his mother Ann Battersby', were included among Kirkby Lonsdale notables. See 'Recent Publications 2. Antiquary on Horseback … edited by Jane Ewbank', CWAAS Extra Series 19 (Kendal, 1963)', in CW2, 64 (1964), 413-15, at 415. Tempest Husband died in 1703. His will left goods worth £339 in two shops, and a house with fourteen rooms: Lancashire Archives (Preston) WRW/L, Tempest Husband, 1703.

[34] See Tempest Husband's tale in Part 2, Ch.8. Kirkby Lonsdale, II.214.

[35] A Roman altar, later used as a seat outside a door: See Part 2, Ch.8. Kirkby Lonsdale, II.204. 'Ademan' is an insecure transcription.

[36] This margin comment is very faint.

[37] There is a blank space here, followed by the word 'Hall' in faded ink; possibly part of an earlier draft, now overwritten.

[38] Unclear word.

[39] See Part 2, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, II.223.

[40] 'The castle was in 1643 gallantly held for the king by Sir John Girlington, its owner, but the Royalists having failed to relieve it, it was surrendered after a seven weeks' siege', see 'The Parish of Tunstall': VCH: Lancaster, Vol. 8 (London, 1914), 225-30.

[41] Space was left on the left of the page here, presumably for the arms, inscriptions and Roman coin mentioned in the text. For Colonel Briggs of Burrow, see Part 2, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, II.223, fn.

[42] Edward Wilson (1651-1720). Queen's College, Oxford from 1669; Gray's Inn, 1671; son-in-law of Sir Daniel Fleming. OAD. See also Scott Sowerby and Noah McCormack (eds), Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal Hall from 1633 to 1688, CWAAS Record Series 23 (Kendal, 2021), 457.

[43] For Barbon, see Part 2, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, II.199 fn., and II.201.

Figure 2.10.1. Christian tattoos. II.384A.

Yet here I met with a pretty young man,[44] who teaches school in, & a great Travailler \ aet 24 / who was within 20 miles of Jerusalem & has the markes ting'd on his Armes. On the one Our S[aviour's] Resurrection;[45] on the other the Armes of Jerusalem as he calls them. {See before pag.381 & p.227}[46] And here I heard of a medicinal well that has don great cures especially for paines & aches by stranes.[47]

[II.384]

{Midleton; Hawking Hall}
{So called from its situation in the midst of Loansdale}
Thence I went to Midleton Chaple near to which is a pretty new house call'd Hawking-hall considerably large, & yet has but one pair of Principals in it. Which because it may be of ~~very good~~ \ som / use where Timber is scarce I have given you the platforme \ & manner of it.[48] / This was built by Mr Bainbrig, whose Armes are placed over the Enterance into the Hall. Here I lay all night, and had the converse of Old John? Moore, Brother of the Sergiant at Law, & very understanding, who shewd me the Instrument of Consecration, & of Samuel Moore his Ingenious son. {Rufus} whom I found to be a very good botanist. There I also had presented unto me by an old Acq[aintance] of my father, a Piece of That Ore which they take to be gold, but I fear is too light for any such metal.

[II.385][49]

{Wednesday}[13.]

{Midleton hall}
The next morning I went from thence to Midleton Hall, an old Ruinouse Castle like house, & Exceeding black – having an ascent to the gate with 3 Rowes of Trees. Here has bin a chapel which is now ruinouse. I drew out the Armes with an Account of Midleton of Applegarth out of an rotton table

[44] Samuel Gibson.
[45] The depiction is of the Crucifixion.
[46] This margin comment is a cross reference in a later hand; the page references no longer fit the subject. See Part 2, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, Barbon, II.231 for other tattoo images The following extract from an early-19th-century travelogue discusses the practice of tattooing pilgrims: 'The inhabitants of Bethlehem … claim, almost exclusively, the privilege of marking the limbs and bodies of Pilgrims, by means of gunpowder, with crosses, stars, and monograms. A Greek servant who accompanied us thought proper to have his skin disfigured in this manner; and the wound was for many days so painful, and accompanied with so much fever that we had reason to apprehend a much more serious consequence than he had expected. This practice is very antient; it is noticed by Virgil, and by Pomponius Mela … but its origin may be found in more remote antiquity; and very often among the religious customs of the heathen nations.' E.D. Clarke, Travels in various Countries of Europe, Asia and Africa. Part the Second: Greece, Egypt and the Holy Land, Part I (2nd edn, London, 1813), 630.
[47] See Samuel Gibson's letter to Machell: Part 1, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, II.225, Barbon.
[48] See Part 2, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, II.236.
[49] This page is also numbered p.7.

of wood.[50] Went to visit Mrs Heblethwate the surviveing sister of the 2 Coheires, the other being dead. who was maryed to [Blank] \ Cragg.[51] / Both country men: And it troubled \ me much / to see so small \ a / difference betwixt a person so well descended, & a plane country wife.

{Gillianford. Killington Ch. Killington hall}
Hence I passed over Julian ford (q. what the[y] call the Higher) to Killington Chapl where I drew out one Coat of Armes which I take to be Pickerings tho the field be Argent. & Killington Hall stands over against the W. end of \ the chapl, / the highway onely lying betwixt them; where there has bin a pretty \ lightsome / Tower which is now onely walls. But rest is Rep[aired] by one of the Kitsons – whose Descendant Mr Tho. Heblethwate caused me [to] lodge all night in that House with his brother & farmer, & was very courteouse & civil to me, as he is said to be to \ all / his neighbours \ hood.[52] / At the East end of the said chapl. I mett with a great stone giving an account of a man & his wife who were each \ of them / 100 years ~~of Age~~ \ old. / Hence

[II.386]

{Thorsday}[14.]

{Firbank}
I went from Killington (where 4 or 5 houses stand together) to Firbanke alias Frith-banke Chaple – ~~where it seems~~ \ near which / formerly there has bin a Parke,[53] but now they cannot tell any thing of it. This Chapl now standing was lately built by the In[habitants], being Removed from the Edge of Killington field where it formerly stoode, all in one night by reason som of the Lordship clamed the ground whereon it stoode. But in all probability – by viewing the place & considering well of the pretended bounders – That place has bin really in ~~Killi~~ Firbanke Lordship: tho the ~~the~~ Grounds thereabouts might be sold to som of the Killington men, both the Lordships being under one Lord, & as far as I can learne doing suit and service at Killington Hall \ Court. /
{Firbanke is a stragling place.} {The persons I conversd with were – Mr Tibolds the Reader. [Blank] Farrer, father to the schoolmaster of K. L.[54] And both very notable understanding men.}

{Petrefying Well}
Here I met with a Well of Petrefying quality – having turned the moss which hung about it into hard stone much like a pumice. And there were 2 springs within 5 yards of one another whereof the one was cold & insipid, the other som what Brackish & warm. & there was a shiny sort of substance upon the gravell like to a jelly, which I take to be the seed or principle of coagulation & petrefaction; which any man near the place might do well to observe.

{Lilly Tarne from Sedgeflores; sed dub}[55]
Hence I went S.W. by Lilly Tarne where [Blank] springs, but has also another head at [Blank] so by [Blank] & by Bleas, \ on the r[oad][56] / from which place to Preston[57] is a pretty country \ & yields a good prospect, but the rest forrest like.

{Preston hall}
Here I saw Preston \ Hal / which gives name to that family – an old Rambling house with slender Tower over the Gate; the Lower Roomes all pavd with ~~cobles but not a~~ [blank] Thus, from small heads doe great Rivers flow. It stands in Boggy Bottom Ground. But the Chapl. a fair stone building

[50] Machell referred to this as an 'old wooden tablet' in Part 2, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, II.241.
[51] Bridget Middleton married Joshua Heblethwaite; Mary Middleton married James Cragg; both were yeoman of Dent, see Part 2, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, II.243.
[52] There is a scored-through interlineation here, but it is illegible.
[53] Though Machell indicated a note here, no footnote was given.
[54] Kirkby Lonsdale.
[55] 'The name Lily Tarn came from sedge flowers, but I doubt it.'
[56] Machell wrote only 'r.'
[57] Preston Patrick.

(in one of whose windows I espyed Prestons Armes) stands – Overs Read of a.[58]
The old maps of Speed, Camden, Norden[59] q. if not Killington Park.

[II.387]

{Chap[el]}
Alone in Parke on the Top of an Hill, & has a very pleasant prospect all round about,[60] except to the E. Near to the place ar som houses calld Crooklands[61] where I Lodged all night \ but ~~cannot say~~ rested not.[62]

Friday [15.]

{Caw braws; blew slate large}
Thence I went S.E.? by Caw-braw[63] where I saw blew slate so large that one ~~was~~\ of them / coverd a Porche, brought from about Ingleton in Y[orkshire].
And so to Hutton-Roofe \ Chapl. / an old ordinary building yet in pretty good repare & ½? a m. distant S. the village of H[utton] som few house (I know not whether all of a Row.)

{Hutton Knot}
Thence S.W. to Hutton Knot, a craggy mountain on which I had a sight of the \ main / ocean of Britain. Thence to Dalton \ in Lancashire but P.[64] / an iregular village. Thence to the Hall, a little farme \ house / but built on the Ruines of an old foundation which they say was demolishd.

{Burton in Kendal – where I lay but slept not hard all that night}
Thence to Burton, a small market Town – where there \ is / a good Cross & som good Ins lately built. Here I sat up late hunting the Bounder twixt W[estmorland] & L[ancashire] & was ~~satisfied~~ \ very well satisfyed / with the honest & diligent investigation of the Informers, being very scrupulous[65] not to take any more then their owne. Here I lay, but slepd not hard all that night. The church stands ¼ m. I thinke distant from the Towne.

Satterday [16.]

[Holme]
From Burton, I passed through a village called Holme, which stands on a plane, & hath a River Running through it whence the name Holme. Here Lawyer Prickets mother hath a good Country House.[66] Thence on level ground to

[II.388]

Betham
{A pleasant place by reason of wood & water, though over top'd with craggy fell on the west side whence you may view a great [expanse] of the sea.} Where there is a dillicate church in a fair level & large church yard. \ And / near unto the N.E. corner stands a fair house lately built \ by T.H. / & adjoyneing an old one which is the Parsonage; & lately belonging Cos. Tho. Hilton the Impropriator

[58] Information on the chapel is given in the first paragraph of II.387.
[59] 'John Norden (c.1547-1625) was an English cartographer, chorographer and antiquary. He planned (but did not complete) a series of county maps and accompanying county histories of England: the Speculum Britanniae. Several of Norden's county maps were included in the 1607 edition of William Camden's Britannia. In 1611 John Speed used Norden's maps of Surrey, Sussex, Middlesex, Cornwall and Essex in his Theatre of the Empire of Great Britaine, the first published atlas of the British Isles. Most maps of these counties published in the following 150 years were based on Norden's work. He is credited with key innovations in English cartography, such as marking roads, administrative units and hierarchies of place, and a grid-reference system. See Frank Kitchen,' Norden, John, (c. 1547-1625)'. ODNB.
[60] Here is another tiny drawing of a tree.
[61] Pecked underscoring suggests that Machell was unsure of the name.
[62] Although a word here is obscured by the binding, it is still clear that Machell did not enjoy a comfortable night's sleep.
[63] Here is another sketch of a tiny tree.
[64] In the parish.
[65] A scored-through word here is illegible.
[66] Here is another tiny drawing of a tree. Alan Prickett Esq. of Natland Hall was listed as a recorder of Kendal in 1673, see Part 2, Ch.3iii, Hutton, II.87.

sue uxoris:[67] being 4? w[ife][68] & relict of Mr Ducket of Grarig who settled it on her. Here I drew out the Monuments & Coates of Armes. And went hence (over an Hill as I remember) to

Dallan-Tower
A Pleasant seat, with fair Gardines about it. Purchased lately by one of the Wilsons; a man of great wealth who made diverse purchse here & elsewhere & yet never laid in an house of his own as I am very credibly inform'd. So that the Best way to get many Houses is to keep none:[69] a Paradox not so strange as true. It now belongs to Mr Ed. Wilson Esq. J.P. ~~who marrying into good family have gained the reputation of Gentleman~~ \ This a numerous name in the Barony {whereof this & [Wilson of] Underley are reckond the Chief, they having by mary into good family & exerciseing the Com[mission] of [the] P[eace], advanced themselves to the Reputation & port[70] of Gentlemen.}
The Tide comes up almost to the Gates. Near which there is the foundation of a Castle and \ one of these Catadupe – Mr C. speakes of.[71] / {But which he has m[isplaced], for this is in [Blank] the other in Kendal.}[72]

[II.388B]

{Dallan Tower}
The Redmans puto,[73] a square Ruinouse [building], the founds of a fort or castle hard by it {Sir Daniel MS. Y.}[74]

[II.388A]

Near which was lately Haver Brack hall; & a sq[uare] fort calld \ the / Castle! Tis calld Haverbeck in Dugdalls Baronagium p.421, which if right speld is either from the plen[t]y of oates growing thereabouts? Calld Haver [or] from averia signifying catle,[75] it being a place where their beasts were watrd. {Bethom also Buthum.}[76]

[II.388]

{Milthrop} {Salmon taken in the air}
Hence passing the Bridge whereon there standes a Dial Stone with Inscriptions upon, much like an Altar of the Romanes but importing no more but that it was, &c., I went to Milthrop, a small but long village place, the only Port that wee have in Westmorland. A little above the Bridge is a paper mill formerly an Iron Mil.

[II.389][77]

Yet paper white at 2 sheets 1^{d}. There is a Good Cross – & a fair once a year \ Sc. / on May day: which are all the things of note about It.[78] Vessells of 8 or 10 Tunn com in here. Hence, I went by on the left ha[n]d to [67] 'In right of his wife.'

[68] 'His wife being the 4th wife' – but Machell is not sure.
[69] MS: 'Best way to get many Houses is to keep \ none / no house.'
[70] Possibly 'portance': carriage, bearing, demeanour, conduct. OED.
[71] Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 759F-760A, offers, 'Somewhat below the river Can, are two Catadupæ, or water falls, where the waters have a downefall with a mighty noise: the one is by Levens, a little village; the other more Southward, neere to Betham; which to the neighbour inhabitants are as good as true prognostications: for when that which standeth North from them soundeth more cleere and aloud in their eares; they look certainely for faire weather; when that on the South side doth the same, they expect no other than showers of raine, and foggy mists.' See also, John Speed, The Theatre of the Empire of Great Britaine (1611-1612), 85-86.
[72] Catadupe: a cataract or waterfall. OED.
[73] 'The Redmans perhaps.'
[74] 'Sir Daniel Fleming's MS Y.' MS.II.338A repeats this information: 'Dalla[n] T. formerly to the Readmans {Sir D.F.}'
[75] Averia: term for working animals (horses, oxen, etc.) See *Black's Law Diction*ary. Online.
[76] Buethum is a historical form of Beetham, see Westmorland Place-Names.
[77] Also numbered p.12.
[78] 'Vessells' has been superimposed on 'It'.

Heversham alijs Hersham
Where there is a fair \ parish / church, burn'd down to the ground about 100 years agoe, {q. how}[79] & now in very good Repare. I tooke som Coates of Armes my selfe here \ by the help of a candle / & Mr Green the schoolmaster after promissd to furnish me with the rest in which he imployes my friend T. Webster: & to send me the Monumental Inscriptions. The vicarage house – a pretty good fabric – is about 100 {?} west from the church, which I mention least it should chance to be lost as Bethom and Burton [vicarage houses] are at this day. Thence by night I went to Water Crooke and so on to Kendall where arrivd at 12 a clock oth night. The next day being

Sunday [17.]
I preachd Twice at Kendall in complement to Mr Mayor & the Vicar. And on

Munday [18.]
Munday I tooke a farther Account of the Town of Kendal, Church & Hospital & other places; & of their charter[80] \ Dokray hall. / And Mr Farrington the schoolmaster there, promissd me an Account of a spirit in his time which did strange things there. {Thus far the Less mountainouse part.}

[II.389A]

Docaray Hall
And ancient fam[ily] of the Docarayes now extinct {Ibid[em Sir Daniel MS Y.} Westm'land country people yet of that sirname.

[II.390][81]

Tue. 19. July 1692.
I set forwards from Kendale downe the west side of the River Kent (by Heslinton Hall,[82] which I viewd 2 years since & is now rebuilt by Coll. Graham) a most ruged way, the lands being full of uneven caswayes, Rocks & ruff cobles. {If Helston be the same, tis derived – q. Hill-stone – being a stony hill.}[83]

To Sizarge Hall
A Noble \ but irregular / old House surrounded with woods with a Parke at the Dooer; and the Court all sett about with Lawrell. There is the statelyest Kitchen {Open to the Top} here that I have met with: a good Hall {14 Long, 7 Broad, with a fine screene made A.D. 1618.} And 2 famous parlours or dineing Roomes which stand in the Body or front of the House. And hath with large wings isuing from it, which makes 2 sides of the great court, which fronted as I remember westwards.
They talk of the Assises having been here; but are lead (I suppose) into that Absurdity by the sound of Sizarge,[84] having not any other authority for it. And that the Stricklands[85] came hither from Strickland alias Menkinthorp hall in the Bottom of Westmorland; who having gotten a better Estate by marriage with the heiress of Sizarge, they gave the other to a daughter which he had out of wedlock.

I drew out the Armes in the Hall, Dineing Roomes, & the Kitchen windows, & Those on the Tower; & so passd on by the like Rugged way {to soften this description a little. But N[ote] they have a good way to Kendall through Natland Parke; & tis pitty the other were not blockd up for ever.}[86]

[79] See the church Vestry Book, 1601: 'Whereas it fortuned through the negligence of a careless workman, being a plumber, anno Christi 1601, on Wednesday being the first day of July, the Parish Church of Heversham, in the County of Westmorland was utterly consumed with fire and all implements, ornaments, books, monuments, chests, organs, bells and all other things were perished.' In R.K. Bingham, The Church at Heversham: A History of Westmorland's Oldest Recorded Church (Milnthorpe, 1984), 29.
[80] For the Kendal charters, see Part 2, Ch.1, Barony of Kendal, II.11.
[81] Also numbered p.13.
[82] Helsington Hall.
[83] 'Hals' usually denotes a hause or hawse (a neck of land, a col, a pass). OED.
[84] Machell referred to the similarity in sound between Sizergh and Assizes.
[85] Strickland family: see AWL, 286-87.
[86] Different ink shows that this margin comment was added later.

(beholding whole fields of the Large Daryes)[87] till I came {?} to Levins-Brig, hard by which on the E. side of Kent is

Upper Levins Hall
formerly writ (as I gather from the Inscriptions in Bethom church windows) Lewyns {q. le-vines – but it is writ in Ed. 3. time, Levens, Sc. Inq[uisition] in Part General}[88] & belonging to an \ ancient / family That tooke name from Hence, the original of which I should have taken to come from the Plenty of Whyns in this Place if I had seen any store hereabouts; for Le-wyns seems to me, to import ~~no more than~~ The Whins: unless (which would be a wilde conjecture) wee should imagin plenty of vines to have grown in this place.[89] It is a fair Building \ & noble Seat / though no way Regular and of late much improved by the Alterations of

[II.391]

Coll. Graham, the Present Proprietor,[90] who after many descents of the Bellinghams whose Chiefe Seate was here, Bought it of Alane Bellingham Esq., that Ingeniouse but unhappy young man (who consumed a vast Estate in his youth) with the rest of his Lands in the Barony of Kendal. The Court groweth round about with Lau[rel]s and betwixt that & Kent were many statly & large grown Elmes – a Rarity in this Part of the Country (for I have not seen one any where else) – which Mr Graham was a cutting \ down / to open the prospect by which this fine seat will be rendered more pleasant but I fear more cold than it was heretofore. Here I met with many Coates of Armes in the Hall & Dines, both in Glass wood & plaster, being the matches of the Bellinghams, and was kindely R[eceive]d by Mr Graham (whose Seale of Armes, Match & Isue I want) but could not stay with him, for I posted thence over the Bridge down the River side, being very good way to

Nether Leavins Hall which is an old Low sort of Building, with Low seiled chambers and Court Wall next to the river, the highway onely running betweene them, with battlements like a little castle \ haveing Land on both sides. / {Here as I remember Rich[ard] Wilson farmed.} Here I met with som Coates of Armes, which haveing drawne out, I went ~~through~~ \ up / the Parke, or field shall I call it, to a Little Hamlet or Row of Houses called Beathwate Greene at the foot of that spacious

[II.392]

Moss which lyes betwene Crosthwate and the River Kent, having Lythe on the one side & Brigsteere parke upon the other. The Tenements here I rem[ember] belong to Neither Levins. {There is a little wooden brig unto the moss which divides them from Lithe; whence perhaps tis called Brig Stree & corruptly by Brig Steere over Pull alias Pou unde forsan Poole.}[91]
And here I was told a very strange story of a Boy in this place about xj years old \ – the son of Widow Crosfield – / who going to Lithe with xviij[d],[92] to his sister (a nurse), was stopd at New-bridge by an Apparition in the shape of a soldier clothed in Read with a musket in his hand, a sword Girt about him, with Bundalereyes[93] & a Leathern pouch; which standing up in the midest of the water below the Bridge, forbid him to pass it while he was there; but incouragd him not to be afrade, told him what he had in his pocket & whither he was going; and that King William should after a sharp ingagement at Sea obteine ~~the~~ \ a great / victory: But that [he] be worsted on the Land, & afterwards prove very victorious, tho his sword should be broken; & in 3 years time give his enemyes (the P.) a very great overthrow.[94] And went away singing in a most melodiouse manner \ concerneing King William / in so

[87] Daryes: sometimes applied collectively to the milch cows on a farm. OED.
[88] This is possibly an Inquisition (concerning Levens and other manors) in the possession of Sir Daniel Fleming, in a bundle dated 49. Ed. 3, no. 29. See Part 2, Ch.1. Barony of Kendal, 'Notes To make out the hist[ory]of the Descent of this Barony', II.365.
[89] 'Leven' (Leune): name of a major river in the district. Westmorland Place-Names, Leven .
[90] For James Grahme (Graham) see Part 2, Ch.7, Heversham, II.178.
[91] 'Brig-steere over Pull alias Pau, whence perhaps Poole.'
[92] 18d (1s 6d).
[93] A bandolier is a pocketed belt for holding ammunition. OED.
[94] MS: 'But that be worsted \ ~~of that part~~ on the / Land, & afterwards ~~though his sword should be broke~~ prove very victorious \ tho his sword should be broken / & in 3 years time put an End to the Warrs: {give his enemyes the P. a very great overthrow}.' 'P.' probably refers to Roman Catholics (papists).

much that [the] boy was ravishd at [it] & followed the noyse (wishing ~~to~~ \ he might have / hear it all the dayes of his life). & did remember som of the words of it, of which these are part:

– Nor Cannon Bullets pierce his horny hide –

{This I thinke pro[…]ed[95] not according~~ly~~ whether the [re]lation be true or false. There were other circumstances which I omit, of breakeing the water of the streame & appearing also in a Blew habit. & of another on the opposite side who appeard in Brown. But what I have said is the sub[stance] of the story (which the boy being Examed 5 or 6 times in the womans \ house / & one of these time by the Vicar of Kendal) did recount with all the circumstances of it and without variation. This was a month \ & 3 days / after the sea fight. & he no lyer. {He was examened 7 times in James Nicholsons, as Jane his wife informed me.}[96]

[II.394][97]

Hence wee passed by a Long Casway over the moss to the said Bridge where this was transacted, & here I saw most stately shrub Gale which growes in great Bushes & with ~~thick~~ \ som / stalkes ~~som~~ as thick as my thumb; but the arromatick smell like myrtle was much exhausted by the season of the year.[98] Thence I went under the Horrid long Rock which is calld Whitbarrow, till I came \ at / som Houses where a Rill of water descends from the Mountaine {where there are great Ewe Trees.} & here I espayed an Huge great Crag which seemd to have tumbled from the Rocks above, of a sort of stone which is here call'd marle, & which being beaten they use at Kendal (whither great quantityes are frequently sold) to scoure their Trenchers & Earthen Vessel. {I call it Rock-marle for distinction from Pit-marle, being a sort of clay.} It seems to be composed of the water \ & som sort of Limy & Earth / which of its own nature condenses & petrefyes, being like to a pumix*; & the very same, as near as I can guess, with that sort of stone which I saw at Water Crooke near unto Kendal and at Plumpton Castle not far from Penrith in the old Romane Ruines,[99] which I tooke [to] be Artificial Stone. & perhaps the Romanes, takeing their first Indications from nature, might frame the like \ with lime, sand & water. / That I confess at Watercrooke might com from hence. But without this hypothesis I cannot \ well / see whence they had those more Artificiall stones at Plumpton Castle; they would never bring them as far as hence. & know not any \ other / place in \ Westm'land or the whol of / Cumberland where there is the like {q. & trye if they will not bide fier in an hooden-oven}
{*Note there is a great affinity twixt this & the stones which I brought from Firbanke: onely that is lighter as being made of moss.}

[II.395]

The word Barrow (which I note here once for all) is without doubt of Brow \ Borrow contractly / which is Braw in the Lancashire dialect, as from that instance of the Place calld Cam Braw, which dialect is retained in this Barrony adjoyneing on Lancashire. And this Brow or Declivity of this white Rock is called Whit barrow, which is a[s] much as to say the white \ which is to say Whitebarrow / – so Underbarrow is under the Brow: & Lik-barrow the like &c.
Hence I passed through Rocks & Crags to Witherslack chapple.

[How to write about] Cures.
1. Person, 2. Place, 3. County, 4. Age, 5. Distemper, 6. In what time cured.
[Sc.] A.D. 1691.

[95] Word unclear.
[96] Prophecy was widespread in the late 17th century; both educated and uneducated people were likely to believe in it. The prophetic element of the soldier is especially interesting as it suggests contemporaneous chap-book prophecies which were cheap, popular and able to be passed round ale houses etc. Elements such as bridges and water were common in such episodes, and children seem to have been a popular vehicle for such accounts. The reference to the end of wars and of the Papacy is undoubtedly Apocalyptic and Millenarian in tone, and this seems to confirm the idea that the boy was a voice of prophecy. See Warren Johnston, Revelation Restored: The Apocalypse in Later Seventeenth-Century England, Studies in Modern British Religious History 27 (Rochester, N.Y., 2011), 202. The significant point is that, as an antiquary, Machell faithfully recorded this, and felt able to uphold its veracity. My thanks to Professor William Gibson of Oxford Brookes University for providing these insights.
[97] II.394 is also numbered p.17.
[98] Myrica Gale: the bog myrtle.
[99] Voreda or Old Penrith.

[1.] John Jackson. [2.] of K[endal] [3.] in the county of W[estmorland] [4.] ætat 33. [5.] was grievously troubled with a pane in his Arme. [6.] & in a weekes time drinkeing 3 times a day, & as often bathd in, was perfectly cured.

[II.396]

{! And though this place be rocky & barron of all things but wood: yet is sought after & resorted unto for a famous well, which has don many cures & is ergo called the Holy-well}.
{Here I had a piece of the said Rock-marle bestowed upon me by the minister.}
Wetherslack Chapl: one of the neatest and best orderd chapls in all the Barony, lately built adorn'd by Dr Borwick Dean of St Pauls – who is writ Barwick, but Borwick I rather take for the name, there being a Place in the county of Lancaster \ & upon the […][100] edge of Westm'land / now \ is / the Seat of the Bindloses & not far from hence which beareth that name – He was Born at an House near to \ 200 yards west from / the said chapl, called Hale-Cot where I lodged all night.[101]

In these Rocky Countryes} where there is suc[h] abundance of craggy stones, such places \ as / are exempted from them are called Slaks \ or Gills / {so in Yorkshire, T. Allison.} And wee use the word yet much in the like sense when speak[in]g of Showry or Tempestuous weather. When there happens som intermitions \ or calmes, we commonly / say ~~that it slacks~~ \ the weather slackes or slakes. And there being 2 of these Slacks or Gills, one on each side of Witherslack ~~hall~~ \ Parke; / whereof that in ~~where it~~ \ which the Hall / stands is much the wider; \ & being first peopled it might thence be called Widderslack[102] & Witherslacke, & for Brevityes sake, Wither Clack, for Denominatio \ to both the Dales / sumitur à majori p[ar], and the denomination derived from thence to the whol Lordship.[103] {ratio nominis ad Aulam 3^0}[104]
Or it may perhaps be called Woderslak, as I finde writt in a Pedegree, from the Plenty of Wood; if it be not \ rather occasioned by a vulgar dialect usd in this contry, which turns I into O, as for Wilson – Wolson &c.

Wither Slack hall
to which I went, up a crooked Rake[105] \ ½ of which I was forced to walke for fear of it / & thorrow a Parke well stored with \ young / wood.

Wednesday Morning [20.]

This Witherslack is an \ low Black / old fashond house which is a Seat of the Labournes, & is now the portion of 3 coheires. It stands very pleasant considering the Rocks & montaines about it, som of which are pleasant \ Delightfull / to loke upon, \ being clad with wood, /and Returne a fine Ecco. There are Laurell Trees now in the gardine as high as the House, & Ewe has bin so plentiful here that the Hall yeat stoopes are made of that wood.[106]

[100] A word here is blotted
[101] For John Barwick (1612-1664), dean of St Paul's, see Part 2. Ch.7, Heversham, II.164.
[102] Wider Slack.
[103] 'The denomination to both the Dales is taken from the greater part and the denomination derived from thence to the whole Lordship.'
[104] Machell appears to have meant, 'the third reason for the name of the hall'.
[105] Rake: a slope. OED. The word was also used locally as an alternative for 'way', as in Lady's Rake, Keswick, and Rake Lane, Troutbeck. In 1717 a Troutbeck man was fined 3s 4d for driving cattle from his ancient out-Rake through the Middle Hundred and the Lowest to Skelgill Close, 'to the great disturbance' of his neighbours. The driving of cattle over unenclosed ground, or over ground allotted to another, was a serious matter and, possibly, each had his customary route or rake. See Mary. L. Armitt, 'Ambleside Town and Chapel: Some Contributions towards their History', CW2, 6 (1906), 1-96, at 12.
[106] 'Yeat stoopes': gate posts.

[II.398][107]

[Cowmire Hall][108]
From Wither slack I went through the woods by 2 or 3 houses calld [Blank] to[109] Car\l/-mir-hall. An old fashond house like to a monastery grown over with Ivy, which has vaulted sellers.

[II.398A][110]

Calmer hall belongd to Brigs who had 2 d[aughters]. One married to Hutton – Sir D.F.

[II.398]

{Armes} & here in the windows was much painted Glass: some with Armes which I scratched out;[111] & som with the pictures of Packho[r]ses & Carryers, Spining Wheales & flaughters,[112] with wantaracks[113] & other materials belonging to the Woollen Trade. & the Letters T.B. dispersd here & there, to shew that the former owners of this House \ perhaps the Briggs / advanced themselves by that manufacture.
{Descent}
For it descended by 2 d[aughters] and heires to one which was the w[ife] of Judge Hutton,[114] which by that means descended to Bierly, & [Blank] Bierly sold it of late to the present Proprietor. It is said heretofore, to have bin the manner house of Crosthwate & Lithe; & it standeth in Crosthwate Chappelry.
Hence I went over forrest like ground where som of the rock resembled those I have seen Britannia depicted upon, \ on the Title Page of Camdens Britannia, /

Figure 2.10.2. Frontispiece detail from William Camden's Britannia (1600 edition).

here & there adorned with Trees, to Winstar Chappel standing near the head of the Dale, having som good houses lying dispersed at a small distance from it. It is like the Building in ordinary Repare & has had a Sq[uare] Steeple, which fell upon a S[un]day in time of Service, & though some were touched yet none were hurt by it. The very c[hurch] yard is now clamed by the [person living] next to it, who ought to be kinder; but the nearer the Church the farther from God. Nemo tam procul tamq[ue] propinquus.[115] I will not mention him least it should leave a Blot upon his very name, but ~~the matter~~ shall leave, & all such like to the Castigation of the B[ishop] of Chester whom it most concernes.

[II.399]

This Chaplry extends over the water into som part of Cartman fell[116] (which may more truly be calld Cartless fells, for there is not a cart us'd in this country) in the C[ounty] of L[ancashire] by reason of

[107] Also numbered p.21.
[108] See Part 2, Ch.7, Heversham, II.191.
[109] A few words are obscured by the binding here.
[110] Small scrap of paper, 18cm x 1cm, cut from a larger piece. A few traces of the missing text can still be seen.
[111] Which he drew.
[112] 'Flaughter' or 'flauchter': flat spade used in peat cutting, see Dictionaries of the Scots Language. Online.
[113] 'Wantarack' appears to be a word signifying a merchant's mark, i.e. an emblem or other distinctive figure or device adopted by a merchant and placed on the goods sold by him (in the Middle Ages often used as quasi-heraldic symbols, e.g. on seals or monuments). OED.
[114] For Sir Richard Hutton (1561-1639), descended from the Huttons of Hutton Hall, Penrith, see Part 2, Ch.6, Grasmere Parish, II.128.
[115] 'No one so far and so near.'
[116] Cartmel Fell.

visnage.[117] Yet tho they pay jointly to this chapl. they pay distinctly all dues & dutyes to their Respective Parochial Ministers to whom they belong.

{Windermere}
Hence I went on the Bounder Sike & over the Moore to Windermere \ Church and to the / Parsonage. & in my discent I had a most delightfull Prospect of the great \ Lake called / Windermere which gives name to the Parish. It appeard to the Eye like an Arme of Sea, the Bankes \ on this side / adorned with wood & on the other ~~with~~ Furness fells ~~on the other~~ being large Rocky Mountaines formerly well clad with woods but now divested in a great measure of them. In the midle of the Lake were here & there Rounds Hatts[118] of Trees in Little Ilands; whereof the Greatest, being Sir Xt. Phillipsons, is adorned with a neat dwelling house, Gardines, & Walkes of Trees set in Rows.
And the Parsonage House on this side the water makes a great shew, where I lodg'd all night {with ~~honest~~ \ Mr / Wilson, being Entertained with a set of musique: 2 violins & a bass viol.}[119]
{N.B. Why may we not suppose this county to have taken its name of Westmorland from this Western mere, being the noblest lake in all the kingdom & lyeing on the west side of this county.}
[II.400][120]

On Thorsday Morning [21.]
I tooke a Ring,[121] by Windermere church directly East up Orrest-head – where Dr Dixon \ friend & / now Rector of Way-Hill in Hantshire & my old Acquaintance, sometimes F[ellow] of Q[ueen's] C[ollege] in Oxon, whom I helped to Elect into that Society many years since {et voce et voto}[122] – was Borne & Brought up.[123]

[High House]
Thence by 2 or 3 houses (one of them a Wilsons) calld {?} to High house, lately a Seat of the Brathwates, now the poss[ession] of [Blank] on whom the young Gentlewoman (unfortunately) bestowed herselfe. Quid non speramus amantes.[124] Thence NE. through a \ wilder outer / Parke & \ so to / a wood on the Banke side as you descend to Kentmer Hall

Kentmer-Hall
Which is an old \ black / Building, having ~~an~~ \ a strange / Antick Tower of Raggy stone at the West end of, and a monstrous craggy mountaine behind it; \ which when clad with wood as it has bin formerly, hath bin pleasant enough. / But before a spacious meadow & the poole calld Kentmer, fed with a Rill on the W. side this Hall, but chiefly with another beyond the chaple.[125] On the right \ side / of this plane or meadow is an High Ba[n]k of wood: & on the other, Great fells but not Rocky.

[Gilpin]
It was anciently the Seat of the Gilpins, given (as is said) by the Crowne for killing a wilde Bore hereabouts (doubtfull whether at Sleddal or in Gilpine Beck) which som doe affirme had that name given to it upon this occasion. {Memorandum: the family Bar[nard] Gilpin, who are said to descend of a Scotch Ancestor who slew a wilde boare in the River now calld Gilpin beck, from that occasion as is reported.}

The chaple \ of Kentmer / is [a] large \ & / stately Building with Little windows placed very high, & has heretofore had a sq[uare] steeple. & not far from hence was Dr [Blank] Provost of Q[ueen's]

[117] Vicinage or visinage: proximity. OED.
[118] Or perhaps, 'hutts'. Machell's 'a' is often identical to his 'u'.
[119] For William Wilson, rector of Windermere, see Part 2, Ch.9, Windermere, II.323, 329, 339, 345A, 350.
[120] Also numbered p.23.
[121] A circular trip.
[122] 'By speaking up for him and by casting my vote.'
[123] Thomas Dixon. See Part 2, Ch.9, Windermere, Borrans, II.329.
[124] 'What do we not hope for when we are in love?' The undeserving husband would seem to have been Miles Atkinson of Base Brown, who married 'Dorathy, the daughter & heir of Robert Brathwate of High house in Hugill', see Part 2, Ch.6, Grasmere, II.132.
[125] MS: 'but chiefly with {another} ~~the River of Kent which comes with a Grane~~ beyond the chaple.'

College in Oxford Borne.[126] Hence wee went Eastwards over the mountaine \ and down a great precipice / to Sleddall.[127]

[II.402]

Sleddall, having 2 Hamlets at the head of it & several Hamlets dispersed here & there all down the Dall[128] in the midle of which stands a Little Chaple with a Court as it were on either \ side, / for the chapl yard does not surround It. This Dale is good ground, sound and fruitfull but not very broad. {Not ¼ m.} Having high mountains on either side coverd with wood, Ashe Oake & Ewe, but most of them young; which Renders it very delightful and pleasant. There has bin such plenty the last mentioned wood (tho now scarce enough) that there is ~~an old~~ \ a Tower / House near to the chaple calld Ewebarrow hall {i.e. Yewbarrow hall} which I take to have bin the manner house, for it has som Tenants which yet belong\ing un/to it. {Write to view for armes.} This I suppose to have bin formerly a Seat of the Sleddals, who tooke name from this Dale as Johannes de Sleddal, Thomas de Sleddale, Rogerus de Sledal: from whom it may seem to have passed to the Harringtons \ of Woolyeates[129] in Cumberland /{near relations to my honord father, for he securd himselfe in that family from being taken ward;[130] but in what degree they stood I know not} who enjoy the house yet, with som of the Tenants as hath bin said & have don of old.

[Selside Hall]

But the most part of them were Trans~~mitted~~\ferrd / to the Thornburgs of Selside \ hall, / where they appeared & did Suit & Service, being a little distant from the foote of the Dale. And where I tooke up my lodging all night.[131] This Selside Hall in the Maps calld Selstead.

[II.404]

Sir William Thornburrow = Thomasin daughter of Bellingham[132]

|

1. Will. Thornburrow of Selside & Hamsteed,[133] had Estate of 800 per Annum – 500 of which was in old Rents. but by profuseness & ill husbandry reduced to 100^{li} per Annum, so eclipsing the Glory of this florishing family. He had ~~Richard William~~ Isue 2 sons. {See the Armes & Ped. in my Book of Pedegrees. M.}[134]

		Will. Son of Sir Will. of Selside & Hamsteed	Nicholas 2. Son of Sir William Thornburrow Lived at Whitwill, the gift of his father
3. Nicholas m. in Ireland	2. Thomas	1. William of the same	2. Thomas (maryed in Lanc.) of Wilson House 1.

[126] Bernard Gilpin (1516-84), clergyman and preacher, was a younger son of Edwin Gilpin of Kentmere. In 1533, aged 17, he entered Queen's College, Oxford, graduating BA and MA. Ordained in 1542, he became archdeacon of Durham in 1556. Gilpin had been a fellow of Queen's College, but, despite Machell's assertion, he refused the provostship in 1561. In later life, his extensive preaching journeys made him legendary; he is known as 'the Apostle of the North'. D. Marcombe, 'Gilpin, Bernard (1516-1584). ODNB.

[127] Longsleddale. The MS margin here has a note: '{Memorandum: the Chan[cel] out of St Anns church see in Kendal Tow'.}'

[128] Machell had already made this comment at the foot of MS.II.400: 'Having 2 Hamlets at the head of it & severall houses dispers'd here & there all down the dale. {& is dilicately wooded on either side}.'

[129] Wooloaks.

[130] Ward: a minor under the control of a guardian. Wardship: the guardianship of a minor. In Feudal Law, the guardianship and custody of the person and lands of a minor, with all profits accruing during his minority. OED.

[131] This was Thursday 21 July.

[132] Selside Hall came by marriage to the Thornburghs or Thornborrows, an ancient and distinguished Catholic family from Yorkshire who settled in Westmorland c.1283. During the 13th and 14th centuries several were Knights of the Shire. Sir William Thornburgh (d.1552) married Thomasin (d.1582), daughter of Sir Robert Bellingham of Burneside. A thrifty woman, Thomasin kept meticulous accounts of her expenses. In Stockdale's Annals of Cartmel, an entry relating to this lady, dated 1579, lists, 'The holle yeare waigs of Dame Thomasyne Ladye Thornburgh of all her servants of Selsett'. See James Stockdale, Annales Caermoelenses or Annals of Cartmel (Ulverston and London,1872), 471. A descendant, William Thornburgh, was president of the Roman Catholic seminary of Douai in 1739: The Catholic Record Society, Records, Volume 28: The Douay College Diaries: The Seventh Diary 1715-1778 (London, 1928), 221.

[133] Hampsfield

[134] See MS.5.139-41.

3. John obj. Caelebs	4. Franc. obijt C[aelebs][135]	2. Richard	1. Rowland of Medup = [Blank] Dikenson of Raseham in Lancs	William who purchased Hall of his cosan William
	William	James	1. Rowland of Medup = Jane Brokeld of Claton in Lancs	4. § Frances	3. Nicholas Inn.[136]	1. William Ob Inn.[137] 2. James of Selside Hall who sold Selside Hall to his brother Frances & now farmes at Garnet fold adjacent – & had Isue, Nicholas \ at 19 / 2. John: & 4 daughters living – Sc. 1. Frances. Katherine Elizabeth Mary
		§ Frances the 4th son of William who purchased Selside, & was 2 son of Nicholas son of Sir William	= Fr[…] daughter of George Teale of Laburne near Midleham in Yorkeshire[138]
George apprentice at London to a watchmaker		1. William of Selside 16. 15 July 1692 {[Pedigree] Taken 29 of July 92. From the said William}	= Mary \ onely / daughter of Mr William Hudleston of Hale in Newbigging Parish	Isabell	1. Agnes

[II.406]

Selside-Hall, is an Old Manner-House flanked on the North Side the fold with an old Chappel contiguouse thereunto, which yet serve the neighboure[hood]. And is adjoyned within a walld parke which is the Demane and yet belongs to it. It was an ancient Seat of the Thornburrows once one of the most considerable familyes in the Barony of Kendal; whose Chiefe is removed to (a Freehold Estate ? in) Methop near Witherslack & yett reteineth some of the Tenants – the Rest being sold to [Blank][139] and the Manner House with Demaines to a younger Branch of the same family, being now poss[ess]ed by the Ingeniouse Mr [Blank] Thornburrow who was lately maryed to Mary the daughter of Mr William Hudleston of Hale in the parish of Newbiging, a younger son of Hudlestons of Hutton John in Cumberland, whose Descent I have taken. And thence

On Friday [22.]

Skelsmer-chapel[140]

I went downe the Hill crossing the Roade twixt Kendal & Penrith to Skelsmer chapel. Dedicated to the Service of God in the name of St John Baptist; as appears \ not only / by tradition but a well \ also / which springeth at the E. end thereof & Runeth under it, the floore formerly being coverd with Plankes. Called St Johns Well. It is now ~~demolish &~~ \ of late / falne to decay, the walls thereof onely Remane. But som yet living {Gilpin, farmer at the Hall}[141] remember it coverd & seates standing [in] it (x with the image of John the Baptist),[142] the Church Bible, and have seen a note of the ~~sallary~~ \ ancient salary which belongd to the C[haplain].[143] / But can give no Account how it was chargd, whether by Seates or Rents of Tenements as in other places. ~~Heu Pietas~~ But now it is lost, and the [135] 'Died a bachelor.'

[136] 'Never married.'
[137] 'Died unmarried.'
[138] Words in this section are blotted.
[139] William, see the pedigree above.
[140] See Blake Tyson, 'St. John's Well and Chapel, Skelsmergh: their location and present condition', CW2, 98 (1998), 156-67.
[141] See Gilpin's letter to Machell, Part 2, Ch.2, Kendal Town, II.45, 47.
[142] The letter 'x' and the round brackets were added in different ink. The 'x' might denote that the text was meant to be deleted.
[143] Or 'chapel'.

People \ neglecting to repare their chaple, / are forcd to repare to the mother church.[144] Heu Pietas, Heu Prisca fides.[145]
\ Patton[146] is commonly joyned with it in the Easter Bookes, & they are contiguous. /
A little below in the Edge of a Parke once stored with Deere (for there were {or are} 5 oakes by the mire side which had Holes motessd[147] in them, where Racks had bin placed for feeding the Deere), stands Skelsmer-Hall.[148]

[II.410]

[Skelsmer Hall] {Nom[en] presens et discriptio Loci}[149]
A pretty Large House situate near to a mos or mire; whence perhaps tis called Skelsmire – & from Scales for sheep that have bin hereabouts.[150]
{Labourn antiq.}[151] Tis a Seat of the Labournes, and was lately[152] Rebuilded by Mr [Blank] Labourne in [Blank] as appears by the Initial Letters of his name & of his 2 wives set over the Doore as you enter the Hall.

{Descensus}[153] Hence over the Bridge we pased to

[II.409] [154]

Burneside: Burneside Hall

Figure 2.10.3. Burneside Hall. Margin sketch. II.409.

[144] Nice pun!
[145] 'Alas for piety! alas for the ancient faith!' Virgil's Aeneid Book VI.878; The Lament on Menelaus.
[146] Paton.
[147] Mortised: fixed or fastened firmly. OED.
[148] MS: 'A little below in the Edge of a Parke (once stored with Deere, for there were {or are} 5 oakes by the mire side ~~near which this~~ which had Holes motessd in them, where ~~tis said~~ Racks \ had bin placed / for feeding the Deere ~~had bin placed~~) stands Skelsmer-Hall.'
[149] 'Name and description of the place.'
[150] Scales: huts or sheds erected for tending animals on the fellside. OED.
[151] Some heading text is lost in the binding here.
[152] MS: 'lated.'
[153] 'Going down.'
[154] MS.II.407 contains one note: 'Sir John Machell \ a Sheriff of London r. q. Md / Born in Kendal & Descended of the House of Crakenthorp.'

Armes at Burnaside Hall. {Taken 20 July A.D. 1692}[155]

Figure 2.10.4. 'Armes at Burnaside Hall'. II.409.

[Names on coats 3-15 are as follows][156]

3. Braithwaite, Bindloss.
4. Braithwaite, Benson.
5. Bradley, Braithwaite.
6. Benson, Braithwaite.
7. Briggs, Braithwaite.
8. Braithwaite, Dalton.
9. Braithwaite, Lawson.
10. Lamplugh, Braithwaite.
11. Barton, Braithwaite.
12. Salkeld, Braithwaite.
13. Brisco, Braithwaite.
14. Askough, Braithwaite.
15. Braithwaite, Penruddock.

{I.} The I. in the New Dineing Roome. Gules a chevron Argent charged with 3 †[157] \ cross croslets fitche / sable: & in Chief for Distinction of a Second House a Crescent Or. The Crist a greyhound Seiant Argent coller Or Leashed Gules – by the name of Brathwate.
All the rest (except the 2 last, which are in stone above the Hall chiminey) are in the Gallary windows, & have all compertments about them & Inscriptions under them like:

{II.} The Coate marked 2. which is Brathwate impaleing Williamson; who Bears Argent Between 3 Trifoles slipt a cheveron {IX} ingrald S[able] charged with 3 crescents Or.
[IX] The 9 is Brath[wate] impaleing a Quarterly Coate whereof the 1^{t} \ & 4th / is Argent a chev. betwene 3 martlets Sable. \ By the name of Lawson. / The 2nd & 3rd Barry of 6 Argent & Azure 3 annulets in chiefe of the 2. &c. By the name of Lawson.
{XI} The XI. Barton bears (if this be right) Quarterly. Sc. 1. Ermin on a fess Gules 3 anulets Or; the second Pally of 6, Argent & Vert; the 3rd Gules between 2 Bends Or & Azure. 3 Lionsells passant Argent: the 4th gules a cheveron Argent charged with 3 harts, Inter 3 florr de luces Or.

[155] If Machell really meant this particular date (Wednesday 20 July), then he failed to explain how he had made these sketches among all his other activities on that day, see above. As the ink is different from that on the rest of the page, one could speculate that the date was added later.
[156] Surnames 3-15 have been reproduced in modern form.
[157] Cross crosslets image.

{In the old Parlour or Dineing Roome are the same with the 3rd & 9th upon the wainscot. And the same with the 1t in Plaster with a Crescent & the year of Our Lord 1641.

In the Hall upon smal Diamond quarries of glass, ar[e] two Coates the same with the 1t, charged with crescents.[158] And also the same with the Coat marked 3. Having for its Crist a Demy-Horse Couped with a Ducall flourished Collar Azure. Belonging to Bindlose of Borrick.
{The XIV [coat] is sable a fess Or, Inter 3 Horses sistant[159] Argent. By the name of Askough.
The XV Impaled is Quarterly sc. 1. Gules a Ragged Staf Argent. The 2. Sandford with Bores heads Or. The 3rd Sable 6 annulets Or. 2, 2 & 2 perhaps for Lowther. The 4th Azure a fess inter 3 martlets Or.
XVIII may sem to have bin the Armes of Sir John Machell in a Bord[ure.]}
{Coats 14 & 15 see Guillim.}[160]

[II.410]

Before the Court ~~gate~~ is a large pond intercepted with a passage or Casway \ Bridge / up to the gate, & on either side is a little Iland with a tree planted in it. It anciently belongd to a family of that name – whose h[eir] generall was maried to Bellingham. From the Bellinghams it pass to the Machell {of some of whom L.M.[161] is supposd descended – of Whinfell – hardby; {one of Machells of Crackenthorpe} & at length to the Brathwates in whom it now Rests.[162] But the Tenants (whose houses were very scarce \ here /) for I saw but few of them – were [Blank]

[Burneside Chapel]
Hence, I went over the Bridge to the chaple of Burneside, for it stands on the other side of Kent & is in pretty good Repare, the floores well boarded, both in the ally & under the seates; [a] rarity which I have not met with anywhere else.[163]

[Garnett House]
Near to this place stands Garnet House on the Top of an Hill, the heire of T. Striklands. & farther \ of[f] in a parke / by the waterside a good ~~gentile~~ \ old / Country House with wainscot Rooms in it, where I lodged all night with Honest Denyson the owner thereof.[164] Whose parlour is paved with Diamond Sq[uares]; like ~~the king of~~ Patterdale-Hall, being don I believe by the same ha[n]d.[165] A thing not vulgar; for I have not met with it any where else.[166] All this a very pleasant C[ountry] {from below Selside.}

[II.412]

[II.411]

? View Forrest-hall.

---

[158] Here are inked passages, superimposing pencilled notes.
[159] From the Latin 'sisto': to stand still.
[160] John Guillim, A Display of Heraldry (London, 1610) with later editions.
[161] Lancelot Machell.
[162] A modern description of Burneside Hall, referring to Machell's visit, is in Hyde & Pevsner, 206-07.
[163] MS: '~~&~~ the floores well boarded, both in the ally \ & / under the seates; ~~which is~~ rarity \ which / I have not met with ~~in~~ any ~~other place~~ \ where else. /'
[164] Presumably, this was Friday evening, 22 July 1692, if we follow the last formal date on II.406 (Skelsmer Chapel), above.
[165] See Part 1, Ch.5, Barton, Patterdale Hall, I.714-715B.
[166] Garnett House is recorded in documents from the 16th to the 20th centuries. In 1517, Sir Thomas Parr of Kendal (1478-1517), father of Katherine Parr, bequeathed 'Garnettes House' to his cousin Richead Ducket for life. The Hearth Tax of 1669 records three hearths: in 1674 there were four. The will of George Gibson (1745) mentions a parlour, new parlour, hall, buttery, dwelling house (main room) and kitchen loft. The upper floor included a gallery loft, parlour loft, and hall loft. Outbuildings included a stable, lamp loft, cart house, cow house, barn and oxen house. See Historic England, 'Garnett House, with attached walls, gate piers and steps. Burneside, Kendal, Cumbria', https://historicengland.org.uk/listing/the-list/list-entry/1479032?section=official-list-entry. There is no mention here of honest 'Denyson' (or other similar spelling), who, from Machell's description, appears to have been a yeoman, not dissimilar in status to the 'King of Patterdale', see Part 1, Ch.5, Barton, Patterdale Hall, I.714-715B,

[II.412]

[Forrest Hall]
Near to this place is Forrest-Hall,[167] the first {?} Seat of the Bellinghams in this Countery, which I did not visit, hearing there was nothing Remarkable at it.[168] \ I went to it afterwards and can onely make this remarqe: that there was nothing Remarquable in it – q[uid] miror![169] / But went to ut infra*.[170]

Staveley Chappel[171]
which is a fair building like to a church, standing in a level place opposite to the Cross & at the Lower end of the village of Staveley,[172] which is pretty well sett with a Row \ two / of Houses and was heretofore a market Towne. There is a fine steeple at the West End of the said chapel, with 3 good bells in it. The Communion Table is raled in, and all other things excepting the floore (a common calamity} in very good order – having \ besides the Pews & the pulpit / one thing peculiar. Sc. an Homily Deske ~~or pulpit~~ made with rale & Ballaster, & a Turneing Deske for the Booke to lye on – ~~Beside the Reading pew & the Pulpit~~. The Chaplain here gave me a pice of ore, & shewd me a Jewill with pea[r]les appendant.
And I drew out the Coates of Armes, & went thence by Parke to a womans house* who helpd to pul a calfe from a cow which had 2 heads, 3 Earrs, 4 Eyes 2 mouthes & 2 noses & who told me the cow recovered.
{In the year of Xt / 1456. Amongst diverse prodigies hapning at Rome, is recounted \ one / of a Calfe that was borne with 2 heads – and 1499 of another at Crocovia[173] with one behind & another before. See Func. Cron. Sub verb – vitulus.}[174]

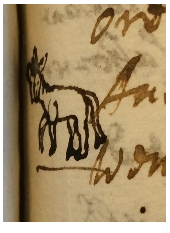

Figure 2.10.5. Margin sketch 1½ cm square: calf with two heads. II.412.

Thence up to \ Burnt Brow vel aliquando Tale[175]/ Birkets the Queens chief Baly; who I met not with; so Back agane & away to the chapel Ith Ings. But q[uery] if this was not in our way to Staveley.

The Chapel Ith Ing: vulgo Ing Chappel. So called from the Long Ing or Meadow near to head of which it standeth.

[II.413]

Ad chapl. Ith Ings [& Low Hall]
{L[ength] 7 body; 7 quire. B[readth] 6, sc. on the inside}

---

[167] Above the heading, 'Forrest Hall', Machell has placed a tiny sketch of four trees.
[168] MS: '~~which hearing that~~ \ which I did not visit, hearing / there was nothing Remarkable at It, ~~I did not Visit~~.'
[169] 'Why would I be surprised?'
[170] Ut infra = 'as below'. These words, and Machell's asterisk, refer to the village of Staveley and a paragraph about a calf with two heads, further down the page. A scored-through comment on Ings Chapel, MS: '~~which is so called from being situated at the Head of an Ing~~,' follows the phrase, 'ut infra'.
[171] There is no reference here to the fire which damaged part of Staveley chapel and three houses, recorded by Sir Daniel Fleming on 11 October 1684: see Sowerby and McCormack, Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming, 214.
[172] MS: '…which is \ a fair building / like to a church {standing} placed in a level churchyard \ place / opposite to the Cross & at the Lower end of the village {of the village of Staveley}.'
[173] Crocovia: Latin name for the Polish city of Kraków.
[174] 'Under the word, 'vitulus' [a bull calf]. In *Annals 15.*47, Tacitus described the birth of a monstrous calf as a portent of impending doom. 'Func. Cron.' is unknown to this editor; the volume [Chronicle?] appears to have been written in alphabetical form, like a dictionary.
[175] 'Or sometime/formerly such a name.'

[II.416]

which I viewd on the out side, but could not enter for want of the Keys.[176]

[Hugill]
Hence – I went up a little higher to the N. West to Hugill – to the House of [Blank] Birket who told me his Ancestors had Caw garth; and that he had writeings which declared the same; but I saw them not and ergo onely gave him the hearing till farther enquiry can be made.[177] Here I met with J. Gowling my Quondam[178] parishioner. And ~~t~~his I suppose to have bin formerly the manner house if ever Hugil was a manner;[179] because St Anns Chappell, a large ancient Ruine, which hath had 2 arches & wings on each, standeth opposit to it in the very ~~fold~~ \ court yard / & hence without doubt came the name of Hugil, which is not worne out from amongst the vulgar sort \ of people / to this day.

[High House and Hag Worm]
Hence – wee Returned by the High-house & Orrest-head (where I saw an Hag-worm slane in the way, as thick as my finger and almost a foot long)[180] {of a \ raw / Blea-brown colour somewhat like a Stripd Eale or a Common Earthworm, but somewhat more browne}. \ This High-house belongd to the Brathwate[s], the heiress whereof bestowed her selfe on a Country fellow.[181] There are Armes in the windows & in a Parchment Roll of matches, but she[…]ing[182] them to my mem[ory], I passed them by. /

[Bowness]
Windermer Church*, which stands in a Large & Level church yard in the midst of Bowness – a small c[ountry] village having a Schooll house ~~& others~~ \ with 9 or 10? other houses / about it; where there is a sort of market or meeting \ place / lately begun. Here I busied my selfe till late at night in Drawing out som of the Coates of Armes & lay agane at the Parsonage house. Here Anno Xti 792 Eathredus King of the Nordan-Humbers[183] slewe \ murderd / the sons of King Elfwald, whom he fetched from Yorke that he might confirme the Kingdom to him in their Blood & his wickedness†.

[Machell's Notes II.416]

{*ad Viculum Windermere}[184]
†Coenobii Hist. Melrosensis p.682.[185]

[II.417]

{The Townehouse}
There was a market house – or rather – a meeting house builded there this last winter – 1692 – by Sir Christopher Philipson; the Parson of W[indermere]; & other subscribers of their friends & acquaintance, with som of the Town. It stand just opposit to the church on the S. side of the church yard.[186]

---

[176] Machell returned the following year. See Part 2, Ch.3iv, II.413: 'Text added in late March 1693.'
[177] For discussion relating to Machell's dislike of fake pedigrees, see the Editor's Introduction.
[178] John Gowling, had been churchwarden at Temple Sowerby chapel, part of the rectory of Kirkby Thore: see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, III.245, and numerous references to Gowling family members in that chapter.
[179] MS: 'And ~~which~~ \ This / I suppose to have bin \ formerly / the manner house ~~for that part~~ if ~~It~~ \ ever Hugil / was a manner.'
[180] Hagworm: a northern name for the adder or viper; in some districts applied to the grass snake and in others to the blindworm. OED.
[181] See Part 2, Ch.6, Grasmere, II.132.
[182] Unclear word.
[183] 'Northumbria', see Camden, Britannia tr Holland (1637), Cheshire, 603.
[184] 'In a lane at Windermere.'
[185] Annalibus Melrosensis Coenobii (MS. in the Cottonian Library) a document listing the Scottish kings; also quoted by James Ussher: see The Whole Works of the Most Rev. James Ussher, Volume 6 (Dublin, 1639), 454.
[186] For a description of the market house, see Blake Tyson, 'The first Market House at Bowness-on-Windermere, 1692', CW3, 7 (2007), 107-12.

[II.420]

On Sunday [24.][187]

I Preached at Windermer for Mr Wilson, & was seised upon by my d[ear] \ kinde / Brother, Sir Christopher Phillipson, who tooke us prisoners & caried us over into his Ile, where I lay al night.[188]

[Munday 25.]

& Returneing next day to finish my work in the said church, wee kept very busy till 12 at night; and a storme arriseing wee lay together at the Parsonage \ house / but dined agane in the Ile of Sir Christophers.

On Tuesday [26.]

After dinner wee went to view the Lady Holm, where there is supposed to have bin a chaple, the ~~Ruin~~ foundation of which seemd to ~~be~~ appare,[189] & the very name bespeakeing \ as much / which I have \ had /since confirmed by Evidence that is undeniable. And I looke upon it to have bin an Hermitage wherein probably the 2 young pri[n]ces of whom wee have spoken where interr'd if not murthered.

[Cawgarth]

Thence I went up to visit Cau-garth – The only Seat excepting the Parsonage on the Bankes of Windermer.[190] {Is not this a comparison?} These 2 conteineing the best & planest gr[ound] thereabouts – well [191] There is in this house a good Hall & Parlour & an Excellent Dineing Roome which views the great lake; in all which places I drew out the Armes, and Returnd to the Iland.

On Wednesday [27.]

The Parson & I sett forward for Ridall, viewing in the way – 1[t] a pretty new house of one of the Phillipsons \ whose name is pretty common here amongst the vulgar.[192] & so are the Fishers; / Then St Katherines Chapel.

[II.422]

St Catherines-Chaple* \ in Windermer Parish /

Us'd of late years but now converted into a Dwelling house, yet so that by the figure & position of it being East & W. & an East Window like other chaples, now walled up, as well as by the name, confirmd it unto us that it has bin a chapel.[193] The Sallary which belonged unto it, is swallowed up amongst the Inhabitants, who have thought it better to spare their purses in paying the same & Repareing therof ~~chaple~~ than to spare their legs in Repareing to (Windermer) the mother church {which is [Blank miles] of.} It stands a little N. from Caugarth. But being thus lost, I did not thinke it worth my while to take the Limits & Bounder of it. Hence wee travaild to Troutbeck Chapel

Troutbeck Chapel[194]

\ which / is parochial (in Windermer Parish) and a pretty fabric in Hansom repare, having a steeple with Bells in it & a good chapel yard – near the East End of which stands the Free School. \ They are

---

[187] MS: 'On Sunday ~~Morning~~'. Presumably this is Sunday 24 July and Machell had spent Saturday 23 July at Staveley and Hugill, although there is no obvious statement of where he had spent the night.

[188] MS: 'I Preached at ~~Gresmer~~ \ Windermer / for Mr Wilson, & was seised upon by my d. \ kinde / Brother Sir Christopher Phillipson who \ tooke us prisoners / & carryed us; ~~Prisners~~ \ caried us over / into ~~the~~ his Ile, where I lay al night.' Once home to the Philipsons, this island (now Belle Isle) was first known as Winandermere Island, then Long Holm, then Curwen's Island, see P.J. Mannex, History, Topography, and Directory of Westmorland; and Lonsdale North of the Sands in Lancashire (London, 1849), 56.

[189] Probably Machell meant, 'To be apparent'; 'to ap[p]eare'.

[190] MS: '\ the Bankes of / on Windermer banke.'

[191] Figure 2.10.6. Another small sketch of a tree, Machell's shorthand form for 'well wooded' or 'well planted with trees'.

[192] Possibly Rayrigg Hall, a 17th and 18th century house belonging to the Philipsons, sold to the Flemings in 1735: see Hyde & Pevsner, 693.

[193] MS: 'as well as by the name ~~it bears It may be discoverd to have bin Demolishd~~ \ confirmd it unto us that it has bin a chapel. /'

[194] Jesus Chapel: see Part 2, Ch.9, Windermere, II.312; II.320.

situated / in an hansom plane valley on the West banke of which stands the ~~village~~ \ Town / of Troutbeck – a Long Rambling disorderly village,[195] but with good houses in it – where I mett with one Browne, an Ingeniouse country \ man / who with Mr [Blank] a worthy man also – the Curate there – gave me a good account of al things.[196]
This place take name from a Little River which Runns by the church all along down the vale, which has plenty of Troutes & som very large one about Michaelmas Time.
At the S. end of Troutbeck being on the very Top of the Hill, I had a fine prospect of Winandermer \ Water, / & the windeing of it. And Thence wee went forwards to the Head of \ Windermer / Water†. {where I tooke the Dimentions of a Romane forte calld [Blank] Castle: & Thence to Ameside.}

[Machell's Notes: II.422]

*{A Phillipson learned at it.}
†N. Here the map must be corrected, for the head of Windermer Water reaches in a manner to Clap[pers]gate.}

[II.424]

This Ambleside
is a small market Towne \ at the head of ~~Ullswater~~ Windermer / on the East side of ~~It~~ and not much above a Bow Shot from it. Call'd Ambleside from the old Romane fort which was cald Amboglana, about which place many fragments of Romane Antiq[uities] have bin discovered. And amongst the Rest a piece of a Golden Bridle bit* & divers coines in gold, silver, brass, were bestowd of the Public Library in Oxford by a Deed from [Blank] Brathwate of Ambleside Hall,[197] where they are to be seen.[198]
This House of the Brathwates is called an Hall only from the goodness of it exceeding the common sort of buildings. But neither is nor ever was a manner house, for that Estate is composed of \ divers / Tenements united together and is still in Tenancy under the Crown.
This \ Town of Ambleside / was made a market &c. as in my N[otes]. And in the said Towne, but above the Stock, standes Ambleside-Chapel[199] – which is in very good Repare, & where I drew out this Coate of Armes. Which likewise is upon the Cross with the Brathwates motto.[200]
{[Ambleside Chapel is] in Gresmer parish tho the market be in Windermer – For Ambleside above the Stock, i.e. the Bridge which has bin formerly made of wood (whence our word stocks) is all in Gresmer, yet both in one Chapelry.}
In the Street hereof not long agoe a piece of Gold was found & disposed to one Cock of Kendal[201] which I must enquire if it was Romane†? And I heard of ~~memory~~ a Thunderbolt found hereabouts which I must endeavour to gett a sight of from my Lady Otway, the last of Bra[thwates] that ought[202] this hall.

[195] According to Hyde & Pevsner, the village 'ambles down braided tracks following the spring line'. Hyde & Pevsner, 641.
[196] Dudley Walker was curate of Troutbeck, 1663-1701, and curate of Grasmere, 1712. CCED. George Browne of Town End was descended from a well-known Troutbeck yeoman family. According to Hyde & Pevsner, the family was 'semi-gentry and the house has developed somewhat beyond the vernacular, in the provision of … George Browne's … library, for example.' Hyde & Pevsner, 641.
[197] Thomas Braithwaite, of the family of Brathwaite, was owner of the Borrans, site of the Roman Camp at Waterhead. Having made a collection of antiquities, 'he bequeathed to his son Thomas, to be preserved as family heirlooms, "mine ancient coynes of gold, silver, and brasse"'. Dying childless, son Thomas bequeathed his 'ancient medals and Roman Antiquities' to Oxford University, through the Provost of Queen's College. See Armitt, 'Ambleside Town and Chapel', 24-25.
[198] MS: '& diver coines in gold silver brass ~~which~~ were bestowd of (~~& are to be seen at~~) the Public Library in ~~the U. of~~ Oxford by a Deed from [Blank] Brathwate of Ambleside Hall ~~which is called so from the goodness of the building not that It is or ever was a~~ \ where they are to be seen. /'
[199] MS: 'And \ in the said Towne / ~~a little above the said Town~~ \ but above ~~& above~~ the Stock / standes Ambleside-Chapel.'
[200] The text implies an intended illustration, but it did not materialise here.
[201] For James Cocke of Kendal, see Part 2, Ch.9, II.323, fn. 174.
[202] Owned.

There \ are / som good House & Inns in this Towne and some good fellows which kept me longer than I intended from Ridall Hall (not for drinkeing but for companyes sake}[203] where I tooke up my Lodgings.

[Machell's Notes: II.424 and II.425]

*{So the vulgar calld it; but Mr Cock sayes it was only a mussy[204] piece of gold about 5 Inches long, & as thick as the small end of a Tobacco pipe, sollid & streight; for which he gave 34s. & sent a shilling to the Girle that found it at the head of Windermer Water. He had also \ from thence / a meddal of gold worth about 17s and 6d. – with Adrians[205] head & superscription ~~from the said place~~ \ upon it. / But he sold them both many years since, so that I could not see them.}

†Yes. Ut supra.[206]

[II.425][207]

{The fat ox in Yorkeshire}

Sir Edward Blacket Baronet kild at Newby near Rippon in November 1692 an Oxe; the 4 Quarters whereof onely, weighed 106 stone one pound and one halfe (at 14li to the stone) And it had 19 stone & 4 pound of Tallow therein (at the same weight).

Witness Sir Christopher Philipson & Mr Marmaduke Tunsdal, who saw it weighed. Out of Sir Daniel Flemings collections M.S.O. p.249.

[II.426]

Gresmere Parish

Ridal-Hall

About 1 mile N. from Ambleside Chapel stands Ridal-Hall, twixt Gilbeck & Roathy in a pretty little valley of meadows twixt it & the Towne, well wooded on both sides. Though surrounded [and] hem'd in with great mountains, it is yet a very pleasant Seate, so that tho you have a Great Cragg Mountaine above the House {which is called the Nab whence they can view the Castle of Lancaster?}, from thence you have a pleasing though narrow prospect for a great way of viewing som part of the head of U[l]sewater & the Western banks of it.[208] It is also adorned with good gardines & orchards planted all round so thick with Black Cherries, & those so high grown, that you can hardly see the house for them which is Res Viris ætatis \ in an other sense than Florus gives it.[209] / Sir Daniel Fleming \ who is no old man[210] / raised them all since he was marryed of Black Cherry stones.

In the Gardine a Runnell comes quite thorow it & the H[ouse] of office, which drives a mill \ adjoyneing thereto. / & in one of the Orchards by the Gilbeck side is a little Grotto or a house of Retirement, of one little Roome, \ wainscotted round, / whose window opposit to the Dooer opens directly upon a great force or fall of water, having onely a small poole betwixt them, which is very surprising.

[Machell's Notes: II.426]

{Sir Daniel describes it to be an ugly convenient building – i.e. an ill well contrivd house. T.M.}

---

[203] The MS continues with the following, mainly scored-through, text: '~~Which kept me the longer from Ridall Hall About a mile N. from Ambleside Chapel stand which stands about a mile above Ambleside Town. Ridal Hall on a little meadow on a pretty little well wooded Dale twixt Roathy,~~ & the little Rill calld Gilbeck ~~the~~…'.

[204] Mussy: untidy, rumpled [thus, messy]. OED.

[205] Hadrian's: Publius Aelius Hadrianus (76-138), emperor 117-138.

[206] 'As appears above'. The answer is written in different ink. Machell refers to this incident in Part 2, Ch.9, Windermere, II.323. See also, Part 3. Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, VI.259.

[207] Text on the reverse of this page relates to Machell's dispute with Sir John Dalston (d.1692 aged 81) of Acorn Bank. He deleted it, recycling the paper to pen this note, taken from the Fleming MSS.

[208] This passage could be regarded as proto-picturesque. It has been calendared. The original is as follows: 'though backd with a ~~monstrouse~~ \ ~~very~~ / cragg~~y~~ ~~mountaine~~ & Hem'd in on mountanes on either \ surrounded with mountaines / is yet a very pleasant Seate, for About 1. M. N. from Ambleside Chapel stands Ridal-Hall, Twixt Gilbeck & Roathy ~~& Gilbeck~~ in a pretty little valley of meadows twixt It & the Towne \ hem'd in with great mountaines / well wood – on both sides so that tho you have a Great Cragg Mountaine above the House {which is called the Nab whence they can view the Castle of Lancaster?}, yet looking ~~to Ambleside~~ from thence you have a ~~very~~ pleasing \ though narrow / prospect ~~from the upper Roomes~~ \ for a great way of / viewing ~~Ulsewater~~ som part of the head of Usewater \ & the Western banks of It.'

[209] Res viris ætatis: 'which is a feature of age in men'. Compare Florus (Epitome Rerum Romanorum I.I.): 'Res erat unius ætatis, populus virorum.'

[210] Daniel Fleming was born in 1633.

{An hig[h] walke & low; a pond & a privy, are the accomplishments of a good garden sayes Mr Preston.}
{July 13.[211] New Orchard upon an hill top, a cirq' of Scotch firs with one in the center.}

On Thorsday [28.]

[Clappergate]
I went (accompanied with Mr Fleming, Rector \ Parson / of Gresmer,[212] & M. Miles Wright)[213] by Clappergate a small hamlet or village near to the Romane forte, which is thought to take name from the Gate of the Castle \ whereon the clapper or knocker did hang / opening that way – and They would ~~needs~~ persuade us that the very Hi[n]ges (which are prettily florishd) & the Rings upon the Porch & Quier dooer of Gresmer Church, came from This place.

[II.427]

Coathow
Coathow near Ridall, which is said to be the chiefe Seat of the Bensons, is in Gresmer parish […],[214] where there are som Coates of Arme. For Elter water house was a late purchase of VIII Tenements by one Michael Benson of this place; who laid them together & built that fair house whose 4[th] son George is said to have bin a Doctor in Divinity,[215] & to have maryed B[isho]p Kings d[aughter.][216]
{He was Baptized Octob. 2. 1583.}[217]

[II.429]

{Coathow in Gresmer – a free hold} {10 li per annum}

In the hall
3. The portcullis & crown Or \ in an Oval Argent. /
4. The flor de luce & crown Or \ in an oval […] /[218]
5. 6. Blank.
7. The Royal Crist be a Lyon on a crown.
8. Gilpines Armes – Or Sable.
9. & 10. Blank.
11. Blank.
12. 1569.[219]

Figure 2.10.7. Coathow. Arms in the Hall. II.429.

[211] Unclear; insecure transcription.
[212] Henry Fleming (1659-1728), second son of Sir Daniel Fleming. Queen's College, Oxford. BA, 1682. He resided at Queen's for many years afterwards. Although he preached a sermon as rector of Grasmere in December 1687, he was non-resident, employing John Braithwait as his curate. Henry Fleming became D.D., and also rector of Asby, in 1696, holding both benefices in plurality. See Sowerby and McCormack, Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming, 429.
[213] See below, II.436.
[214] Here there is an illegible blotted word.
[215] George Benson: Queen's College, Oxford; DD 1607; died 1647/48: see OAD.
[216] 'Bishop King': Possibly John King (died 1621), bishop of London, 1611-21. P. McCullough, 'King, John, bishop of London'. ODNB.
[217] See the Benson pedigree.
[218] This indistinct word abbreviates either 'azure' or 'argent'.
[219] The date is written inside a rhombus, similar to those in Figure 2.10.7.

In the Great Loft
Letters or lines Gules; wantaracks Argent; Pricks or quar[ters] Argent.
3. Lond[on].[220] Armes Argent & Gules.
[4.] Gilpine.
5. Portcullis Or with a crown above the Shield.
6. Armes of England with a crown about.
7. Argent the Yorke & Lancaster Rose White in Read cum Corona […][221]
8. Argent – a Port cullis Or, cum Corona ut supra.
9. The Lyon on a Ducal Cap.
10. Gules – a maiden head [at]tired with a chaplet of Roses, & Habited & tressed Or, within a Bordure neubulee[222] Argent.
11. Earle of Darby crest, Sc. the Eagle & Childe.
12. The year – Sc. πNN^0 1573.[223]
In the Parlour under it – the same.

Thomas B[enson] had iiij wives, and by som of them 3 daughters –
1. Mabell who maryed an Apothecary in London and had the Estate by purchase of her father before his death.
2. Dorathy \ 14 / who maryed one Thomas Benson of High Close. S.P.[224]
3. Isabel, who maryed Reginald Brathwate of Clappersgate.

[II.430]

[Iron Forge]
Hence wee went up by Brathay Beck – where there are Locks for fishing – to a Mill and House at [Blank] Brig, & so up on Lancashire Side through Furness till wee crossed agane to the Iron \ Forge / where the[y] usually have Incomparable Ale. Here I saw the \ double / Bellows & great hammer heat by the motion of wheales; but could not obteine any rationall account of the nature of Iron from the manager of it; whether they could make their Iron tuff if naturally Brittle by Intention of heat or maliation; And whether they could make Tuff Iron Brittle & worke into Steale, by Divers heates & Temperings of it.
Hence wee returned down the mou[ntains] (not being able for \ want / of Time to reach the Shire Stones),[225] to the Lough at Loughrig at the foote of Lile Langdale, where I saw a ~~sword at Benson Hall~~ \ two-handed sword, but none of the greatest that I have met with, at an House of ~~his~~ Bensons corruptly called Elterwater Hall. /

[Langdale Chapel]
Thence up the Beck to Langdale Chap[el], a long ordinary building at the foote of Great Langdale, being 2 \ chapls conjoined / in one. For they say the chapple ~~& Sallary~~ of Little Langdale was ~~brought to this~~ \ translated hither / and the Sallary with it annexed to this, which has made a pretty good endowment.
Hence (being benighted) we Travailed E. over the fell – by 2? places of the Bensons to the Bankes of Gresmere; & thence down along by the Edge of Loughrigg-fell for som miles \ together / in a Strait Track, their being a Great precipice all along on the left hand into the water, till wee came at \ [220] The ancient arms of the City of London were coloured argent and gules, as in 'Arms - Argent a cross gules, in the first quarter a sword in pale point upwards of the last.' See London Metropolitan Archives: the Arms of the City of London. Online.

[221] The symbols after, 'with a crown', are indistinct. They appear to read, '3. I. Sap.' Sapphires are sometimes used as heraldic symbols, see Jordan Walbesser, 'Of Camelopards and Camelopardels', in Coat of Arms: The Annual Journal of the Heraldry Society, 4th Series, Vol. IV. (2021), Arms of Cecil Thomas Crisp-Molineux-Montgomerie, Esq., 47. Nevertheless, this is merely a suggestion for the meaning of this unclear text close to the gutter.
[222] Nebuly.
[223] 'Anno 1573.'
[224] 'Sine prole': without issue.
[225] The Shire Stones: three shire stones (for Cumberland, Westmorland and Lancashire) on Wrynose-top.

Coathow / and \ here / there is a fearfull Rocky descent so that the Horses seemd to goe on their heads, the night being darke. Had it bin upwards[226] it might have bin counted a heavenly way for it, but being downw[ards] it seemd to me a little shought of hellish – {which, but that the Poets have tolds us – facilis descensus Averni,[227] I should have calld [it] a Hellish w[ay].}

[Machell's Notes: II.430]

{N.B. [Brathay is derived from] Breatheye, vide Greeke [and compare] Ritheye Rithdale Brath-eye Brath-thwate Brea-thwate Poole-eye Pooley. The Eye, at the head & foot of Ulswater.}

[II.431]

And we return'd to Ridal agane.
Hence

[II.432][228]

On Friday [29.]

Figure 2.10.8. Helm Crag. 'Atlas supporting the Hevens'. II.432.

Mr Henry Fleming the Parson of Gresmer – the only Minister in the Barrony of Kendal except Mr Wilson that was so civil as to accompany me through their parishes – went along with me up the N. side of Rothay to Gresmer church, in the way to which I espyed a mountain beyond the church called the Helm, on the Top of which there is a crag which looks like Atlas supporting the Hevens.[229] And leaveing that on the left hand, wee went up the Dale to an heap of stones on a fell betwixt 2 higher mountains \ on either side one /) called Dunbal-Raise; which partes the Countyes of W. & Cumberland near unto Wiborne[230] ~~in the said County~~: where there is a fair lake, being one of the heads of Derwent water.

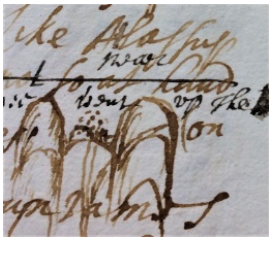

Figure 2.10.9. 'An heap of stones'. II.432.

[226] MS: 'there is a fearfull Rocky descent so that the Horses seemd to ~~stand~~ \ goe ~~on~~ / on their heads \ the night being darke. / Had it ~~not~~ bin ~~by way of Descent~~ \ upwards. /'
[227] 'The descent into Hell is easy', Virgil, Aeneid 6, 126.
[228] II.433 contains only, 'Kendal Barony. T.M.s Itinerary', a title-page written in pencil.
[229] MS: 'Mr Henry Fleming the Parson {of Gresmer} (~~who is all~~ the \ only / Minister in the Barrony \of Kendal / except Mr Wilson that \ was so civil as / accompany~~ed~~ me through his Parish \ their parishes /) went along with me up the N. side of Rotha To Gresmer church ~~& so up the Dale leaveing the Helm on the left~~ \ In the way to which I espyed a mountain beyond the church called the Helm, on / the Top of which ~~in the way from Ridal to Gresmer~~ \ there is a crag which / looks Like Atlas supporting the Hevens ~~But not so \ neare / at hand~~.'
[230] Wythburn.

Whence wee Returned by the way that wee ~~came~~ \ went, & / had a faire prospect of the Dale of Gresmer, a fine little plane mostly of meadow, whence it may be calld Grasmere. In the midle of which is a pretty mount or hill \ clad with wood[231] / which might have becomd a manner house, but that I can hear of none in this place.

{Church}
Near to this Hill ~~stands~~ \ in the midle if the Dale stands / Gresmer church, a fair large building in a large plane church yard; with a square tower or steeple & 4 Rowes of Pillars which have bin inlarged at several Times.[232]And a little distant from the West End of it stands the Parsonage-House on a plane Level ground – ~~which was~~ lately \ Re /builded by the present Rector Mr Henry Fleming from the very foundation.

[II.434]

[Grosmer/Gresmer]
And a little below is a Great mear or Lake with an Iland in it of meadow ground, and a Barne built thereon. This mere is infinitely less [than] that great one calld Windermer, yet being much larger than the other mere upon the same River at the head of Ridal, it might from thence be called Grosmer, corruptly Gresmer \ from being the larger of the two. / Take which dirivation liketh you best, for both do agree the Nature of the place – Conveniunt Rebus nomina sæpè suis.[233]

[Sess Bills]
They have in this Parish {a peculiar way of makeing their Sess Bills,[234] not with paper & inke – but a stick & a knife: a very strange method;} yet I believe of great antiquity; for simplicitas formæ est Antiquitatis Argumentum;[235] and which I ~~believe~~ \ conjecture / till Pen & Inke became \ so / frequent in England has bin used all over, ~~which is by scratching~~. And the Gothes & Vandalls may seem to have used som such way of writeing when their Letters are called Sticken. However, since this is so great a rarity in so Learned age, Behold the Booke;[236] and let him that despiseth their Rural Simplicity, Read \ this / if he can: for any childe or Iliterate person in the Parish can read it of hand.[237]

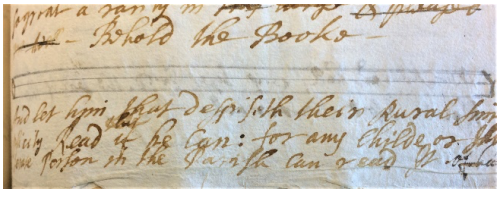

Figure 2.10.10. Grasmere 'Sess Bills'. II.424.

[II.435]

In this line is every house in the Towne and the sums they were assessed for Repares of the Church. \ 3 / pence, sixpence, ~~shillings~~ shillings, & halfe pence, Anno Domini 1691. And they will not admit of any other way.

---

[231] MS adds: '~~whose sides are yet replenishd with wood~~.' This scored-through phrase hints at deforestation, a distinctive theme throughout Machell's volumes.
[232] See Part 2, Ch.6, Grasmere, II.125; II.128; II.132C.
[233] 'Names often suit their subjects', or, 'There's often an agreement between names and things'. See Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 525C: 'For saith the Poet, Conveniunt rebus nomina sæpè suis. The names, as often times we see, with things themselves full well agree.' Here Camden was commenting on the name of Rutlandshire being based on the colour rud, roet or red.
[234] MS: 'Sess Bills': assessments or rates.
[235] 'Simplicity of form is an argument for antiquity.'
[236] MS: 'However, since this is so great a rarity in this ~~large & pleased me well~~ \ so Learned age / Behold the Booke.'
[237] This was a form of tally: to notch (a stick) so as to make it a tally; hence, to mark, score, set down or enter numbers etc. on, or as on, a tally. OED.

[Machell's Notes, II.435]

Ulvesthwaite near Kentmer Hall was, sayes Sir Daniel, the Seat of the Gilpines before Kentmer hall.
A note of the female poll formerly payed in ~~Gres~~ \ Winder /mer Parish and in what part of it.
The Antient Estate of the Flemings in Lancashire.
A N[ote] of the grant of Brath[wate] Armes
Mem. One of the L. a duel. & the Indenture –
Old [Blank] of Anwick in Northumberland. 100 y[ears]
A new set of Te[e]th & Hare 3 years since {ab 1692} Agnes uxor John Fulthrop through F[le]ming, informant.
Q[uery] of William Stanton, her landlord.[238]
There is spar a little below the summit […][239] Kentmere Beck.

[II.436]

Hence we Returned to Ridal that night and on

Satterday morning [30.]

I purposed to have Returned Home: But their happening a most severe Rane \ in that morning / I spent al the Day in studying with that Ingeniouse Gentleman & Industriouse gatherer of Antiquites, Sir Daniel Fleming, purposeing to preach the next day at Gresmer Church, or at Ambleside Chapel for his son Mr Henry. But the Raine continuing all the day over [and] on Sunday likewise, they would not suffer me to goe out of Dooers: & so I \ only / Red prayers ~~in the House~~ to the family. &

On Munday morning [1 Aug.]

I went by Ambleside, over Kirkston fell {having the company of Mr Fleming – Eldest [son] of Sir Daniel Fleming[240] – & my friend Miles Wright[241]} & in the way met with a piece of a Blew-marble rag veined with white {an Indication of more thereabouts} and as I remember a vaine of \ white / Spar on Troutbeck fell, which is a token of Lead Ore in that place \ and is all I met with re[garding] the rock. / This ~~fell~~ \ Kirkston fell / takes its name from a Ridged stone \ or cragg / like the Roofe of an House – like an house only at the N. End towards Patt[erdale] – which som have imagined (when churches were but Indifferent Buildings without Bells & Steeples) to be like a church.

Figure 2.10.11. 'Like an house only at the N. End'. II.436.

It lyes a Little on your left hand as you descend into Hartsop dale, where there is a square Lake, there river expanding into a broad [lake] called Broader-water.[242] & Patterdale, where the head of that great one \ & most famous lake in the bottom of Westmorland & 2nd in England / called Ulsewater, doth first shew its \ head / from betwixt 2 stons set upon edge & w[h]ere a spring calld St Patricks Well, which give name unto \ the Dale, / runns through the High way into the Lake.

[238] Two examples of Machell's fascination with regeneration in old age, to be seen throughout the volumes.
[239] The next few words are illegible because they are in faded pencil.
[240] Sir William Fleming (1656-1736), see Sowerby and McCormack, Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming, 432-33.
[241] Unknown person, although one Miles Wright was admitted as sizar aged 19 at St John's College, Cambridge, 1630-1. Son of Stephen, tailor; ed. Sedbergh School. B.A. 1634-5; M.A. 1638. Deacon's orders, 1635. CCED; Ancestry.co.uk: Cambridge Alumni. In 1692 he would have been c. 80; an age not necessarily conducive to riding over difficult terrain … perhaps.
[242] Brothers Water.

Wee calld at Park house & parted at Gowbarrow, whence I went by Pooley & Lowther, Home; arriveing there later on Munday at night.

[II.437]

After my Journey

On Tuesday[243] I went to meet the Judges – On Wednesday Thorsday & Friday to Appelby & Thence to Blenkarn where I lay all night & came home on Sat[urday].[244]

[243] 2 August 1692.
[244] 6 August 1692.

Part 3. Further Collections

[Chapter 1]

Directions for those who shall undertake to finish the Antiquities of Westmorland

[VI.429][1]

Writ 3 Indexes:
1. Of ~~proper~~ names.
2. Of places: referring to the places; to the parish; to the parish & Lordship.
3. Of things.

{N.B. Lett this[2] be red over with the Booke Misc. Papers, & referd}

Directions for those who shall undertake to finish the Antiquities of the County of Westmorland.

If any hereafter shall thinke fit to superstruct upon my Foundation; that he may not laboure invane, &, as wee say, actum agere,[3] is to bee noted that I have perused, as followeth:

1. Volumes of Mr Dodsworth's Collections of Yorkshire, out of which I have taken observations.[4]

2. Leland volumes and taken notes or referr'd to him.[5]

3. Cambden's Britannia, traced quite through, who follows Leland about Appleby, but neither \ of them / came att it. Speed, who follows Cambden.

4. The Heralds Office, and therein most particularly:
    1. 'The Visitation of Westmorland & Cumberland' by Mr Dugdal Anno Domini 16[blank]
    2. 'Visitation of Yorkshire' by William Flower, Norroy, 1663 -1664 circa. Anno 6 Elizabeth, marked (D.2) allso (D.1). {1563, 1564.}
    [3.] All Flower Norroys concessions.

5. Most of the Herald painters shopps & collection in London, and namely these:
    1. Mr Morgan's at Cambden's Head, behind the Old Exchange in Swithins Alley. Nothing there
    2. Mr Williams the midle most in Little Britane.[6]

---

[1] Also numbered p.65.
[2] The word following this one is blotted.
[3] 'To have all one's trouble for nothing.'
[4] The unpublished MSS were bequeathed to the Bodleian Library. Anthony Wood described how, in June 1673, 85 volumes of manuscripts arrived from York in a rain-soaked condition, and how he spent the best part of a month drying them out on the leads of the library roof. G. Parry, 'Dodsworth, Roger (bap. 1585, d. 1654), antiquary'. ODNB. See also https://archives.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/repositories/2/resources/7563.
[5] John Leland (1503-1552), Itinerary, originally published by Thomas Hearne (1770). See Lucy Toulmin Smith (ed.), The Itinerary of John Leland in or about the Years 1535-1543, 5 vols. (1907-10, reprinted 1964). Though a 'New Year's Gift' to Henry VIII (edited by Leland's assistant, John Bale) was published as The Laboryouse Journey, in 1549, no other Leland material was published until 1770. Nevertheless, Leland's notes circulated among serious scholars, including William Camden. In 1677, the last authenticated Leland MS joined others in the Bodleian Library (Bodl. Oxf., MSS top. gen. c.1-4; gen. e.8-15). As a fellow having already embarked on his own 'History', Machell would have been aware of these acquisitions. See J. Carley, 'Leland, John (c. 1503–1552), poet and antiquary'. ODNB.
[6] Now a street name, Little Britain was historically a small area in the City of London that specialised in book-selling during the late-16th and 17th centuries. According to The Life of the Right Hon. Francis North, it was then a 'plentiful and perpetual emporium of learned authors', and men 'went thither as to a market'. Izaak Walton (1593-1683) described meeting a bishop unexpectedly there: 'The place of our meeting was Little

3/4. The other 2 Herald painters shopps in Little Britane.
5. Mr Wallis behind the Old Exchange.
6. Mr Mole's in Chauncery Lane, who has not yet given his ans[wer] {?}
7. One on the other hand (ibid) near Lincoln's Inn.
8. Mrs Marshall's (formerly Parker \ alias Parkers / att Charing Cross. And
9. An other, over against Stanhop-House, withall in the Strand.
10. Mrs Smyth's, near St Dunstan's, on the other side the way; where I had a piece of a 'Visitation of Westmorland', taken (as I guess) much from old ped[egrees] about \ 1638 / 15 of Charles 1 {1638}, but by whom I know not.

Out of this I had much of my Collection of Pedegrees, this being the chief booke for the county of Westm'land that I have mett withall, & I left nothing of moment behind me: Feb 1^0 1675/6.[7]

6. All the MS Bookes of Heraldry, which are in the possession of Sergiant Knight, one of the King's Chirurgions,[8] who[se] grandfather was Norroy (who lives in Durham Yard att the high end of the New Exchange in the Strand), namely these:

1. A Book \ in 4^0 / intitled, 'The Visitation of ~~Westm'land~~ \ Cumberland' / (but nothing in it save Coates of Armes \ of Westm'land & Cumberland / & some short notes) taken, as I suppose, from windows, carved shields & monuments about the reign of Elizabeth. Arms et Authore incerto.[9]

[VI.430]

2. 'The Visitation of Northumberland',[10] per Richard S[nt] George, Norroy, 1615.

3. 'Visitation of Durham', eodem anno.[11]

4. 'Visitation of Lancashire': a good one (anno tamen & authore incerto). {This of Lancashire was taken 2 Generations before that of Mr Smyth's, which has som of the same pedegrees, with 2 descents more, as I observd.}

5. 'Visitation of Yorkshire' \ a good one / circa 1584, 1585: authore incerto.

Evidences of Ancient Gentry in Westmorland, serched

VII.

1. The evidences of the Cliffords in 2 volumes, collected by Mr Hayles, afterward Lord Chiefe Justice of England.[12]
2. The evidences of the Machells of Crakenthorpe.
3. The evidences of the Blenkinsops of Helbeck & Helbecks.
4. An abstract of contents of Musgraves evidences. Sed vid.
5. The evidences of the Sandfords of Askham.

Britain, where he had been to buy a book, which he then had in his hand.' See William Roberts, The Book-hunter in London: Historical and other Studies of Collectors and Collecting (Chicago, 1895), 171.

[7] He left nothing important when he left Oxford for Kirkby Thore.

[8] Chirurgion: surgeon. OED.

[9] 'Author uncertain.' 4^0 = quarto.

[10] MS: '2. The Visitat 2. The Visitation of Northumberland.'

[11] 'The same year.'

[12] Sir Mathew Hale/Hales (1609-1676), barrister, judge and author. Despite Hale's tacit sympathy for Puritans, made evident in the trial of John Bunyan in 1661 (Michael A. Mullett, John Bunyan in Context (Pittsburgh, 1997), 81-84), Charles II appointed Hale Chief Justice of King's Bench that year. Never accepted as wholly loyal to the laws of the established church, Hale survived an attempt to remove him in December 1672: he had refused to endorse the royal Declaration of Indulgence. He retired in February 1676. His famous law treatises, Historia placitorum coronae, and History and Analysis of the Common Laws of England, were both published posthumously in 1736. Alan Cromartie, 'Hale, Sir Mathew, judge and writer'. ODNB.

VIII. Halton's Register att Rose Castle, glansed into & som notes taken.

VIV. A MS Booke with the Coates of Armes of All the Nobility of England penes Episcopum Carliol, which run all over, & tooke notes, 1674.

X. 3 MS Miscellanies of Mr Sheldons of Weston in Warwickshire:
1. In quarto, marked thus.[13]

II. In folio marked χ, the III in folio marked thus.[14] {Now in the Heralds' Office, 1764.}[15]

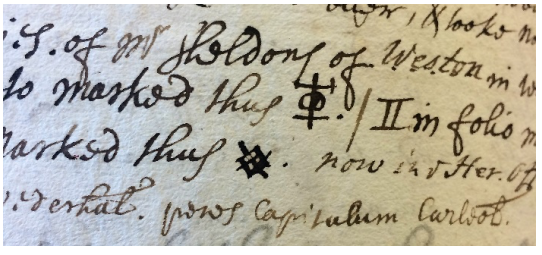

Figure 3.1.1. 'In folio marked thus'. VI.430.

Registrum de Wederhal penes Capitulum Carleol.[16]

The evidences of the Wybers of Clifton.

I Have Visited:

Askham
Appleby, but want the 2 great monuments
Bongate
Brough
Barton \ & / Bolton
Clifton
Dufton but not completely
Lowther by Mr Dugdall & the Hall
Morland & Bolton
Nubiggin
Kirkbythore, \Temple Sowerby / Milnburne & Howgill Castle, Acorn Banke
Warcop
See a farther account which I have don in a letter to Mr Adams, 1687 or 1688.[17]

[VI.431]

Books that may be necessarye, & other directions which may conduce to the farther illustration of the Antiquities of Westmorland

1. Spelman's Villare Anglicanum, for finding out townes the original or groundes of many sir names. {I have it.}

[13] The antiquary, Ralph Sheldon, bequeathed his MSS collection to the College of Arms. See Jan Broadway, 'Sheldon, Ralph (1623-1684)'. ODNB.
[14] See Figure 3.1.1.
[15] This margin comment is an addition.
[16] 'The Register of Wetheral Priory in the keeping of the Chapter of Carlisle.'
[17] See Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence. Machell to John Adams, 26 Jan. 1686, discusses sources at length.

2. Goring's Nomenclator,[18] which shows the Romane townes, but is not of much use, being only a collection out of Camden.
3. Ignulphus or Ingulphus, who was secretarie to William the Conqueror: an author worth seeing.[19]
4. Prinns III volumes may conduce.[20]
5. The Scutage Rolls in the Tower; & bundells of Escheates, into the knowledge of which Mr Petty of the Inner Temple has promiss'd to introduce mee, if I goe up to London in vacation time. \ See allso the Pipe Rolls of Westmorland. /
6. Mr Petty's account of the limitts & bounders of Scotland & England (which may be touch'd att from Rear Cross). His account of Doomsday Booke, whether it have nothing of Westmorland, sub Tit. Eboracschyre, as may be hop'd from Brompton's Cron.[21] His copyes of a line or 2 of the usuall hand-writeings in each king's reign from the Conquest to John, which are generally sans date \ quere? / His references to an Index I left with him \ 14 / of February 1675/6 on purpose to be returned, with what observations occur in his reading. These things he promisd.[22]
7. Spelman's Glossarium for ancient law termes which occur in evidences;[23] & Blou[n]t's Dictionarie.[24]
8. The evidences of the ancient gentry of Westmorland, which I have not yet seene, Sc. Musgraves of Hartley \ & / Musgrave ~~& Edenhall~~, Crackenthorps of Newbiggin; Hiltons of Burton; Lowthers of Lowther.
9. Saxon Dictionary;[25] Skinner's Dictionarie;[26] & Dr Marshal account of the names in the Index.[27] Minsheus Polyglot Dictionary is a good booke too, but may be not for our purpose.[28]

---

[18] Thomas Gore, Nomenclator Geographicus (1667).
[19] Ingulph (Ingulphus) was made abbot of Crowland Abbey in 1087, after travelling to England with William the Conqueror. The Latin MS, 'Chronicle of Croyland Abbey', thought to be by Ingulph, was first printed (in part) in 1596, in Sir Henry Saville's Scriptores post Bedam; and in various later collections. Admired and thought entirely genuine by 17th-century antiquaries, the 'Chronicle' has since been exposed as the work of several hands: see Henry T. Riley (translator and ed.), Ingulph's Chronicle of the Abbey of Croyland with the Continuations by Peter de Blois and anonymous writers (London,1854).
[20] Prinn = William Prynne, The History of King John, King Henry III and the most illustrious King Edward the I, wherein the ancient sovereign dominion of the Kings of England, Scotland, France and Ireland ... is asserted and vindicated (London, 1670).
[21] 'Brompton's Chronicle': Latin chronicle (588-1199) preserved in Corpus Christi C., Cambridge, MS.96 (c. 1425), and in a later 15th-century manuscript (BL, Cotton Tiberius C. xiii.), named for the 15th-century John Brompton, Cistercian Abbot of Jervaulx (1436-1464), whom the 16th-century antiquary John Bale regarded as the author (see Index Britanniae Scriptorum – John Bale's Index of British and other writers, Oxford, 1902 edition). Machell possibly read it in Twysden's, Decem scriptores (1652). See E.D. Kennedy, 'Brompton's Chronicle', in G. Dunphy and C. Bratu (eds), Encyclopedia of the Medieval Chronicle Online (2016).
[22] William Petyt (Petit), lawyer; keeper of the Tower records from 1689. An esteemed scholar, he was famed for The Antient Right of the Commons of England Asserted (1680): J. Greenberg, 'Petyt [Petit], William (1640/41-1707), lawyer and political propagandist'. ODNB. For more on William Petyt see Part 1, Ch.20, Orton, I.640; see also Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, V.3.
[23] Sir Henry Spelman (c.1562-1641), Concilia, Decreta, Leges, Constitutiones in Re Ecclesiarum Orbis Britannici (1639); Glossarium Archaiologicum (1626, completed by William Dugdale, 1664).
[24] Thomas Blount, Glossographia (1656).
[25] The first Anglo-Saxon dictionary was William Somner's Dictionarium Saxonico-Latino-Anglicum, voces, phrasesque praecipuas Anglo-Saxonicas . . . cum Latina et Anglica vocum interpretatione complectens . . . Aecesserunt Aelfrici Abbatis Grammatica Latino-Saxonica cum glossario suo ejusdem generis, 2 pts (Oxford, 1659), though Camden and others had produced Anglo-Saxon word lists before this. See Roberta Florence Brinkley, Arthurian Legend in the Seventeenth Century (Baltimore, Johns Hopkins, 1932). William Nicolson was also an acknowledged scholar of the Anglo-Saxon language, see Graham Parry, The Trophies of Time: English Antiquarians of the Seventeenth Century (Oxford, 1995), 344-45.
[26] Stephen Skinner, Etymologicon Linguae Anglicanae (1671).
[27] Henry Marshall (bap. 1621-1685) was an Oxford scholar, linguist and dean of Gloucester who contributed to scholarship on the Anglo-Saxon language, particularly in Observationes in Evangeliorum Versiones perantiquas duas, Gothicas scil. et Anglo-Saxonicas (Dortmund, 1665; Amsterdam, 1684), [28] John Minsheu, Ductor in linguas, Glosson Etimologicon (1617).

10. Visitations of neighbouring counties into which many familyes transplant their selves; as Bishoprick, Yorkshire, Cumberland & Northumberland, where the pedegrees may possibly be entered. Divers of these I have tried.

[VI.432]

There is a booke worth looking into in the Heralds Office (butt not ~~part~~ \ directly / to my purpose) marked (L.15) Item: Lord Marshall's Booke marked (I.15), out of which I have taken som notes in reference to Heraldry.[29]

For explication of cornage (by which tenure most of the lands in Westmorland were held) vide Rot. Patents 22, Rich. 2 partem 3, memb.1[0] {Se all: se Law Dictionaries} Mr Leigh at the Heralds College.[30]

I must see in Scaccario[31] (penes Rememoratorem Regium)[32] the booke of Knights fees in Ed. Time {Given in temp. Ed. I} wherein is mention of William de Lancaster & John de Veteriponte, Lords of the Baronyes of Kendall & Westmorland. But I suppose it should be in Henry 3, for John Vipont dyed about the 26 of his reigne. However, the book is worth seing: Walterus de Strickland & Robertus de Hellebeck collectores.

In Mr Dugdall you may have a pedigree of 3 or 4 descents of the Fishers of Steanbankegreen, whose Armes are inserted there but no proofe exhibited.[33] They say that the 1[t] who raised this family above the ordnarie sort of yeomandry was a shireman[34] of Kendall whose industry \ ergo / is to be comended.[35]

There is also a pedegre of Steale of Kendal: a phisitian there; but his posterity is scarce yet arrived to the repute of Gentleman.[36] There is likewise of Scaife of Winton, & Armes entered but no proofe b\r/ought;[37] which 3 I thought not worth the transcribing. But tha[y] may be seene in Dugdall's Visitation of Westmorland (1664?).[38]

Som people out of Kent, Essex, Midlesex &c. were brought to inhabit the countyes of Westm'land & Cumberland under the conduct of Ranulph Mescheins, 1[t] Earle of Cumberland (in William the [29] Earl Marshal of the College of Arms (Heralds' College), a hereditary position since 1672, held by the dukes of Norfolk. https://www.college-of-arms.gov.uk/About/01.htm.

[30] Sir Francis Leigh, Of the Antiquity, Office and Privilege of the Heralds in England (1575).

[31] The late-12th-century Dialogus de Scaccario, or Dialogue concerning the Exchequer, is the work of Richard Fitz-Nigel, treasurer of England (c.1195-8), bishop of London (1189-98). It takes the form of a dialogue in Latin between teacher and pupil, and is one of the principal sources of knowledge of Norman administration in England before Magna Carta. It has been repeatedly republished and translated: see Drabble et al, The Concise Oxford Companion to English Literature (3rd edn, Online, 2013).

[32] 'In the keeping of the Royal Remembrancer / Recorder.'

[33] Stainbank Green, Kendal Parish: see Smith, Place-Names, 1, 121. In Dugdale's 'Visitation of Westmorland' (1666), there is a reference to 'Nicholas Fisher, of Staine-banke-greene, in the Parish of Kendall, Esqr., now one of His Majestie's Justices for conservation of the Peace for the County of Westmerland, and an Utter Barister of Gray's Inne, setatis 51 annor., 20 Martij, 1664 …' 'Arms, Or. a king fisher ppr. Crest, a king fisher ppr., holding in the beak a fish argent. Respite given for proofe of these armes, but no proofe made.' See Joseph Foster (ed.) Pedigrees Recorded at the Heralds' Visitations of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmorland made by Richard St. George, Norroy, King of Arms, in 1615 and by William Dugdale, Norroy, King of Arms in 1666 (Carlisle and Kendal, 1891), 48.

[34] Possibly 'Shereman': a shearer of woollen cloth. OED.

[35] The pedigree begins with, 'Henry Fisher, one of the first Aldermen of the Borough of Kendall', but there is no date. The first given date is a death in 1640. see Foster, Pedigrees, 48.

[36] 'Steele of Kendal: arms, a fesse engrailed fretted, between three fleurs-de-lis within a bordure. Crest: A wolfs head Sa[ble], gorged and fretted below the collar Az[ure]. Respite given for proofs of these arms but no proofe made.' Michaell Steele, the 'Doctor of Phisick', was aged 48 in 1664. see Foster, Pedigrees, 129.

[37] 'Scaife of Winton: arms, azure, on a chevron argent, between as many wolves' heads erased Or, three trefoil's slipped sa[ble]. Crest: A wolf's head erased Or, holding in the mouth a trefoil as in the arms. Respite given for proofe of these arms, but no proofe made.' Foster, Pedigrees, 120. See Machell's low opinion of the Scaifes in Part 1, Ch.6, Brough, I.395.

[38] The visitations were made in 1664 and published in 1666: see Foster, Pedigrees, 48.

Conqueror or Rufus, his time); which Ranulph was sister son to Hugh Lupus or Lou, first Earle of Chester (& near kinsman to William the Conqueror), so that he sent the best of his soljers & nearest relations in whose valour & loyalty he confided[39] most, into these northern & most remote partes: MS Cumb. Part 1[t] pag. 47. N.B. See ergo in the Tower about Ranulph Mescheines & William Rufus; allso Ivo Taleboys.

Registrum de Wetherhall penes Dom Willielmum Howard de Naworth anno 1638, folio 7. Radulph Mescheines \ de Bricasard / calls it his castle of Apelby in the charter, whereas he gives the advouesan of St Michael to St Mary, Yorke, to whom the castle descended .?Mon. Ang. […] I399 \ Laewrence /[40] Stainmore on the skirts of Yorkeshire & Westmorland given to Ranulph Meschiens ex vetusta membrana penes Henricum Ferri[e]r quadam de Desley q.? * ubi et quis. Et quid Amplius? Baronagium p.37a.{*in Hamshire puto. {His brothers, Will of Coupland & Geffrey of Gillsland, vide etiam Waltheof & Morvill Taylboys.}[41]

[VI.432, A & B]

[Bishop Charles Lyttelton's suggestions for further reading]

{This is writt by Bishop Lyttelton}[42]

Machel's MSS Collect[ion] Vol. 6, p. 432
For the Roman Antiq[uities] of Cumberland & Westmorland, see Horsley & Warburton's, Vallum Romanum, pr[inted] at London, 1753.[43]

[39] Unclear word.
[40] The feast of St Lawrence is on 10 August; Machell's date is obscured by the binding.
[41] 'Register of Wetherall in the keeping of Lord William Howard of Naworth, from the year 1638, folio 7. etc. From a certain ancient document in the keeping of Henry Ferrier of *Desley. q.? where and who? And something further? Baronagium p.37a.*In Hampshire, I think … See also Waltheof & Morvill Taylboys.' Dugdale's, Baronagium, 37A, comments, 'It is likewise recorded of this Ranulph; that being a person of more than ordinary valor, King William the Conqueror gave him that vast Mountainous Country, called Stanemore, situate on the skirts of Yorkshire and Westmerland, then possessed by Aliens, upon condition, he could recover it out of their hands; and that, by his singular courage, having beaten out those Foreigners, he Enfeoffed his two Brothers in a large portion thereof, viz. William of Coupland, and Geffrey of Gillesland; and a multitude of others within the County of Cumberland, amongst which, one Waltheof, a Man of note in that age, as also the Morvills, and sundry persons in Anandale, whose Estates, the King at his request confirmed.' William Dugdale, The Baronage of England (London, 1675-76), 37. Desley is unknown but Disley in Cheshire was named Desley in 1528: see Survey of English Place-Names, https://epns.nottingham.ac.uk/browse/Cheshire.
[42] Charles Lyttelton, Bishop of Carlisle 1762-68, was president of the Society of Antiquaries of London, 1765-68. See B. Nurse, 'Lyttelton, Charles (1714-1768), bishop of Carlisle and antiquary'. ODNB. This letter was obviously pasted into Machell's Volume VI after 1757 (the last published date of the volumes recommended by Lyttelton) but probably much later, see the Editor's Introduction. It is interesting to note that Lyttelton presented an annotated copy of John Denton's MS History of Cumberland (also in Machell Vol.VI) to the Society of Antiquaries in 1762, the year in which he became bishop. See Angus Winchester (ed.), John Denton's History of Cumberland, Surtees Soc. Vol. CCXIII and CWAAS Record Series 20 (Woodbridge, 2010), 200. See also, Catalogue of the Society of Antiquaries, MSS/0091, https://collections.sal.org.uk/mss.0091. For Nicolson and Burn's praise of Lyttelton as an antiquary, see N&BII, 299-300.
[43] John Horsley (1685-1732) wrote an account of his journey around Roman Britain, Britannia Romana (London, 1732). The section dealing with Hadrian's Wall was appropriated by John Warburton (Somerset Herald) in his Vallum Romanum, or the History and Antiquities of the Roman Wall, commonly called the Picts Wall, in Cumberland and Northumberland (London, 1753). See T. Woodcock, 'Warburton, John (1682-1759), herald and antiquary'. ODNB.

In this thereto also the new Roman Iters of Brittain in Richard Corinensis, printed at Copenhagen, 1753,[44] & published by Carolus Berham in very small 12mo;[45] a most curious work on which Dr Stukely has published 3 letters to the Antiq[uarian] Society in this year.[46] See also some Papers in the Philosophical Transactions, where some inscriptions are explain'd. Tis the same Transactions attend some curious accounts of storms & inundations & other ~~parts~~ \ points / of the Natural History of these counteys.

See the Harleian & Cottonian MSS in the British Museum for various matters relating to these countys, especially heraldical.

See Sir Joseph Williamson's Cabinet in the library at Queen's College Oxon.[47] Consult also Bishop More's MSS in the publick Library at Cambridge,[48] and the MSS of Bennett, and other Colleges there \ very like in Oxford. /

For the perambulation of Englewood and other forests in these countys, see the Tower records & those within the Closet at the old Chapter House Westminster, where also carefully consult the Indexes D, the

[VI.432B]

King's Bench and Common Plea Rolls, where many things are to be found of importance to one who describes the ancient owners of maners and lands here.

See the Index's and Calendars to the records kept in the Office of Augmentation adjoining to Westminster Hall, under Cumberland and Westmorland, where several interesting particulars occur.[49]

---

[44] MS: 'in Richard Creeshensis \ Corinensis / pr. at Copenhagen, 1753.'

[45] Book sizes: smaller formats include duodecimo, consisting of twelve leaves per sheet.

[46] The Westmonasteriensis comentariolum Geographicum de situ Britanniae & Stationum quas Romani ipsi in ea Insula aedificauerunt, was supposedly compiled in the second half of the 14th century by a medieval chronicler, Richard Coriensis, but this medieval history had been written by the literary forger Charles Bertram, who published it in 1757, alongside two genuine early medieval texts by Gildas and Nennius, as Britannicarum gentium historiae antiquae scriptores tres. During a lengthy correspondence, William Stukeley, a founder member of the re-established Society of Antiquaries (1718), encouraged Bertram to publish, thus adding weight to the work's supposed authenticity. It was accepted by many as genuine and utilised in various histories of Roman Britain until 1866: D. Haycock, 'Bertram, Charles Julius (1723-1765), literary forger'. ODNB. Twice in 1756, Stukeley read papers on Bertram's manuscript to the Society of Antiquaries, publishing them in 1757 as, An Account of Richard of Cirencester, Monk of Westminster, and of his Works: see Stuart Piggott, William Stukeley: An Eighteenth-Century Antiquary (London, 2nd edn, 1985), 126, 133.

[47] The Upper Library at Queen's College, Oxford, was built between 1692 and 1695 to house large donations from Thomas Barlow, one-time Provost of the College (later Bishop of Lincoln), and from Sir Joseph Williamson: https://www.queens.ox.ac.uk/library-history. Both of these men were Cumbrians known to Machell, who had been a fellow of Queen's College. For Barlow, see Part 1, Ch.20, Orton, I.639; I.642A; for Williamson, see Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, I.517.

[48] John Moore (1646-1714), bishop of Ely, was a patron of learning. At his death his library was 'universally and most justly reputed the best furnish'd of any … that this Age has seen in the Hands of any private Clergyman.' Extracted from William Nicolson, The English Historical Library (2nd edn, 1714), xii. Following Oxford University's refusal to house the library, its almost 29,000 books and 1,790 manuscripts were given to the University of Cambridge in 1715, bringing its university library into international prominence. P. Meadows, 'Moore, John (1646-1714)'. ODNB.

[49] The Court of Augmentations, formerly held in the Old Palace of Westminster, was founded by Henry VIII during the Reformation to survey and govern all forfeited ecclesiastical property secularised to the use of the king. All records of judicial proceedings, deeds and resignations of abbeys, priories, lands, and their valuations, were kept there, as were the Parliamentary Survey records made under the Commonwealth, see British History Online, The Law Courts and Old Palace Yard, 560-67.

Consult Ray's Glossary of Northern Words.[50] The Glossary annex't to Kennett's Parochial Antiquitys.[51] Baxter's Glossary: Antiq. Brit.[52]

[50] John Ray (1627-1705), A Collection of English words, not generally used ... in two alphabetical catalogues, ... northern ... southern counties, with catalogues of English birds and fishes, and an account of preparing ... metals and minerals (1674). See Machell's Preface, II.353, II.488.
[51] Bishop White Kennett, Parochial Antiquities attempted in the History of Ambrosden, Burcester, and adjacent parts in Oxford and Bucks (1695).
[52] William Baxter (1650-1723), Welsh antiquary, linguist and grammarian, Glossary of Roman Antiquities (1726). See Thomas Hardy Rees, Notable Welshmen 1700-1900, with Brief Notes in chronological order (London, 1908), 25.

Part 3. Further Collections

[Chapter 2]

[Thomas Machell's Correspondence][1]

[A. Letters and Notes concerning Clerical Obligations]

[I.378]

[1.] [Preaching the Ordination Sermon at Dalston, while preparing to leave for Oxford, 1674.]

Crakanthorp. Feb: 22. 1674.
Master[2]
My Lord Bishop has commanded me on Sunday next to preach the Ordination Sermon att Dalston,[3] where I should be glad to meet with you; and therefore the rather because I am ready to take my Journey towards Oxford again. Pray tell Captain Fielding that I hope he will send a token (by you) to me, for his sonn.[4] I wish my occasions would have given me lieve to \ have / waited upon him, ~~before my return~~. But tho I cannot I hope his son will not fair the worse for it. I am so busye, partly with preparing for Dalston, and partly for Oxon, that I have not time to inlarge any further, and must therefore subscribe myself
Y. most humble servant
T.M.
Present my respects to your wife and family.[5]

[1] Correspondence between Machell and Dr John Mill on Roman antiquities has been moved to Part 3, Ch.3.
[2] 'Master' provokes questions. Who was he? The provost of Queen's College, Oxford, comes to mind, but at this point he was Thomas Barlow, future bishop of Lincoln, who never married. One person might fit the given facts: superior to Machell in rank; attending the ordination; able to take a message to Captain Fielding/Feilding; married with children. This could be Sir Christopher Musgrave, governor of the garrison at Carlisle Castle. See fn. 4, below. See also Michael A. Mullet, Carlisle in Revolution and Restoration, c.1648-1688, CWAAS Tract Series 30 (Kendal, 2022), 114.
[3] Edward Rainbow (b.1608) was bishop of Carlisle from 1664 until his death at Rose Castle in 1684, David Weston, Carlisle Cathedral History (Carlisle, 2000), 142. The bishop's letter containing the command to which Machell refers, dated at Rose Castle February 1674-5, has been published in Edward Bellasis, 'Machell of Crackenthorpe', CW1, 8 (1886), 416-67, at 446. Viz. 'Mr. Machell, it had not been proper to have celebrated orders for yourselfe single if other inconveniences had not also deteined me from that office, but on Saturday last there was presented to me some necessity to give orders now to one for the service of the Cathedrall and St Cuthberts parish in Carlisle. I therefore consented you rather for your sake of which I have written to the Archdeacon to give you notice, and withall to desire you to give us a sermon at Dalston church, you shall be welcome to your chamber here, lett Mr. Sell or me know by a line or two that you have received this, remember my respects to your father. I commend you all to God's blessing and remain your very loving friend (Signed) Edward Carlisle.' Thus, Machell was ordained at Dalston in 1674/5, preached the sermon, and stayed the night at Rose Castle.
[4] Captain Feilding (or Fielding) was Basil Feilding, the lieutenant governor of the garrison of Carlisle Castle under the governor, Sir Christopher Musgrave. Active in civil government, Feilding was elected mayor of Carlisle, 1685-86, see Mullett, Carlisle in Revolution and Restoration, 60; see also Scott Sowerby and Noah McCormack (eds), The Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal Hall from 1633 to 1688, CWAAS Record Series 23 (Kendal, 2021), 219, 239. Machell's letter suggests that Captain Feilding's son was then at Oxford. Of three students named Feilding at Oxford during the 1670s, the best candidate might be Basil Feilding, son of B. Feilding of Barnacle, Warwickshire, who matriculated at St Edmund Hall in 1671 aged 15 and became a barrister at the Inner Temple in 1683. OAD.
[5] By 1674 Machell had been a fellow of Queen's College for over a year (see A. Winchester, 'Machell, Thomas'. ODNB.) The copy of the letter illustrated above, in which his writing is superimposed on sketches of heraldic shields, suggests that he had been carrying out county research from at least February 1674.

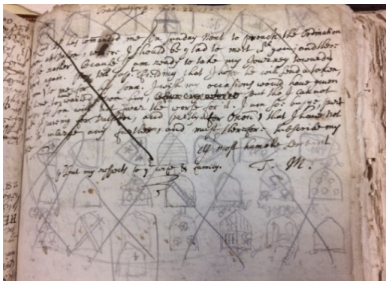

Figure 3.2.1. Machell's copy of his letter, superimposed on sketches of heraldic shields. The text was scored through to remind Machell that he had dealt with the subject. II.378.

[II.367]

[2.] [From Thomas Machell to the bishop's secretary, following a visit to Rose Castle, undated.][6]

Mr Secretary
I left your Godolphins 2 volumes in my chamber at Rose;[7] & I fear the Extract which I made out of them (my man neglecting to put up that paper amongst my other things) \ might be left there also – / Pray if it be soe; be pleased to send me That Sheet of Paper by this bearer; for I have present occasion for it, & you will obliege
Sir Your very affectionate friend to serve you
T. Machell
My humble duty & service to my Lord and his good Lady.

[I.604]

[3.] [Memoranda concerning a will, 1685.]

[A.] June 22 1685.
Memorandum that Grace ~~Crak~~ Watson, one of the daughters of Mrs Elizabeth Crakanthorpe of Kirkbythore who was buried this day, declared that the said Elizabeth Crakanthorpe, in the presence of her selfe & one Catherine Abraham of Kirkbythore, to whom she appeales as a witness in the Case made this verball will on Thorsday last. Sc. I desire you (speakeing to her daughter Grace) to divide what I have equally amongst you, to see you fall not out about it. & that she bid the said Catherine Abraham, see that They did not fall out about it. And at the request of the said Grace Watson I made this memorial to which the said Catherine has put her marke, the day & year above written.
Thomas Machell
— Katherine Abraham her mark
Richard Crakanthorp

[B.] June 22 1685.
Memorandum that Mary Adamthwaite one of the daughters of Mrs Elizabeth Crakanthorp of Kirkbythore, who was buryed this day, declared to me That her mother gave all she had left, to [6] Machell copied his letters to others on used sheets of paper, as a record of his correspondence. The heading, 'Notes upon Camdens Britannia' appears at the head of this particular copied letter. The page was perhaps originally destined for Machell's antiquarian notes. Whether this letter was written after Machell's ordination is not known.

[7] John Godolphin (1617-1678): author of works on law and theology. Early theological volumes, The Holy Limbeck, or, A Semicentury of Spiritual Extractions (1650) and The Holy Arbor … or, The Sum and Substance of Christian Religion (1651), had Puritan leanings (when young, Godolphin supported Cromwell) thus not necessarily Machell's automatic choice. His final work, Repertorium canonicum, or, An Abridgement of the Ecclesiastical Laws of this Realm (1678), provides a comprehensive survey of English Church law: see J. Collins, 'Godolphin, John, civil lawyer'. ODNB. See also, Anthony à Wood*, Athenae Oxonienses: An Exact History of All the Writers and Bishops who Have Had Their Education in the University of* Oxford, Vol. 3 (1691), 1153.

Elizabeth Adamthwaite, daughter of the said Mary – in the presence of Richard Gowling, whom she cited for witness. And That she did it in these words following – \ For / The thing I have left, I doe not value if I give it her all (speaking concerneing the said Elizabeth in whose behalf Richard Gowling had spoken) & That this was declared about a month since, but the day they knew not. And at the request of the said Mary I made this memorial to which the said Richard has put his S[ignature] the day & year aforesaid.
Thomas Machell
Richard Crakanthorp[8]

[I.521][9]

[4.] [Visiting the Sick: Francis Gray, physician, to Thomas Machell, 8 June 1688.]

For the Reverend Mr Thomas Machell att Kirkbythore

[I.520]

Sir
I have so litle tyme to be with Mr Cole that it were next to sacriledge to rob him of any part of it which makes me beg your company here today. One visit while I stay will be of greater advantage [than] to give them two in my absence for this reason his case is indeed very dangerous & to most might appear desperate yet I hope to cure him by god's blessing & if you come over I hope to satisffie you that I go upon as rationall yea certaine grounds as any physician can have which when you shall declare to him will be no small satisffaction to him & his wife who needs some encouragement as wanting his masculine spirit.[10]
My service to Mistris Marshall & all yours I rest
Sir
Your most humble servant
Fra. Gray[11]
Brampton hall[12]
June 8 '88

[I.657A][13]

[5.] [Invitation to the funeral of Ciprian Hilton of Ormside. December 1693.][14]

Sir
It pleased \ god / yesterday afternoon to take my deare Master into his Mercie my misteris is extreamly weak. Shee beggs that yow and your lady would doe her the favour to be here on Friday at 10 of the clock at the funrall.
Sir from your humble servant
Sam Birkett
p[er] my mistress, Abigail Hilton[15]
Ormside Dec. the 28th [1693]

---

[8] For the Crackenthorpe descent, including Richard and Elizabeth Crackenthorpe, see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin: III.285, III.287; for the influence of the Gowling family on the chapel at Temple Sowerby, see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, III.243-253, V.290-296.
[9] Machell also used this page to make rough notes, i.e. 'Burrow Brig & to the right, Minship 1, Arkendale 1, Flasby 1, Goldsbrough 1, Ribston 1. From Bur br. to Cassel 5.'
[10] For 'Mr Cole' of Brampton Hall, see Machell's Preface, I.116A; for Brampton Hall, see Part 1, Ch.6, Long Marton, I.608.
[11] Francis Gray, physician and friend of Machell, see Part 3, Ch.4, Roman Antiquities, VI.301.
[12] See N&BI, 363.
[13] Letter written in another hand.
[14] For the Hiltons, see Part 1, Ch.19, Ormside, III.291.
[15] See the memorial brass in the north aisle of Ormside Church: 'Here lies interrd the body of Cyprian Hilton Esqre. of an antient family, whose Loyalty to his Prince, Zeal for the Establish'd Church, Love to his Wife and Children and Kindness to his Tenants are a lasting Monument of his Memory. He left behind him his dear Consort, Mrs Abigail Hilton, and by her a numerous Offspring, four Sons and five Daughters, all now liveing; and he in them. He dyed the 27th day of Decr A.D. 1693. in the year of his age 34. and is here intomb'd, in hopes of a blessed Resurrection.' See Nicolson, Misc. Accts, 40.

[III.155B]

[6.] [For Rich. Crakinthropp Esq. att Newbygin, Westm'land. [Undated.]

[III.155A]

[Information on Archdeacons]
And ~~both the~~ \ as the / Bishops said the Arch Deacon may have ~~their~~ \ his / official & sometimes they are joyned by several grants to the same person.
{Ibid §18.} But when the grants are to 2 distinct persons, in strictness & propriety of speake, he who is autherised by the bishops' commission, should be calld a Commissary; he who officiates for the Arch Deacon should be calld an official.
{Ibid §19.} They ought to be read in the Canon or Civil Law, for want of which they are deprivable.
{?} But now of late the Arch[16] is restored to som Jurisdections, more than induct into Benefices.

[III.162B]

[7.] 'A la[n]terne to our feet'.[17] [From a sermon on inattention to the Word of God: undated.]

… of precipices we are benighted with Sensuality and lusts. And the Word of God is a La[n]terne to our feet. Now if wee do not attend to this light but rather dispise and Trample it under foote, we Run on headlong to our owne destruction; and are therefore more miserable; because our folly (or madness) is such as not to deserve the least compassion. Our distruction is (as said of Israel on the like occasion) upon our owne heads; and who will pitty us?
When causual & accidental miseries fal upon men; wee have a fellow fealing in us of their calamityes. But when they do wilfully run into dangers and will not be ~~interrupted~~ \ warned nor hindred / from them by any that interpose them selves, they are destitute of pitty from others as they …[18]

[B. Correspondence on Personal and Family Matters]

[VI.520]

[1.] [Lancelot Machell to his brother, Thomas Machell. 3 March 1676.][19]

M[r] Yaward at the Blew bell in Wood street send to be there on Thorsday Night.
These to M[r] Thomas Machell fellow of Queens College in Oxford.
From Crakenthorp March 1676

[VI.517]

Deare Br.
I have thought it somewhat strange to be soe longe together deprived of your letters,[20] for since I left Oxon I have received nought from you, save those you sent by M[r] Dixson; & when he gave them to me he would not light, nay scarce drinke att dore, as it is well of observed by my uncle Andrew[21] – whisper that in his eare. {[Dixon] was telling of some papers that he would send me but since I have heard nought from him.}[22]

---

[16] The final part of this phrase is altered and blotted; presumably the meaning is, 'Arch Deacon'.
[17] Psalm 119. 105 (AVB).
[18] The page ends here.
[19] Lancelot Machell was the youngest of the three brothers. Hugh and Thomas Machell attended Queen's College, Oxford, but there are no records of Lancelot's attendance. Edward Bellasis described him as 'of Skipton castle, co. York, and Bewley castle, warden to Richard, earl of Thanet, who served six years (till 1675) in William Tichborne's troop.' He and his children and his wife, Elizabeth Walker (married 6 Nov. 1677 at Long Marton), are prominent in his mother's will of 1701, see Bellasis, 'Machell of Crackenthorpe', 443. For more on the Machells and their relatives, see C. Roy Hudleston, 'Thomas Machell, his wife and children and his Whelpdale stepchildren', CW2, 70 (1970), 110-44.
[20] The underscoring in this letter is in different ink, thus probably done by Machell.
[21] Andrew Whelpdale, son of William W. of Penrith, matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, in 1643 aged 15; BA 1647/8; MA 1651; fellow 1651; vicar of Newnham, Hants 1658; rector of Dogmersfield, Hants, 1671. CCED. His sister, Susan, married one Roger Sleddall of Penrith; Sleddall's sister, Elizabeth, married Machell's father. The link was strengthened when Thomas Machell married Whelpdale's widow c.1680 after Whelpdale's death in 1678/9. This lady's father had held the advowson of Dogmersfield. For more detail see Hudleston, 'Machell, his wife and children', 112-16.
[22] Presumably, Lancelot Machell was referring to Thomas Dixon, a contemporary of Thomas Machell at Queen's College, Oxford, son of Thomas Dixon of Windermere. Both Dixons acted as Machell's informants:

I have been with the Man at Colby. And he tells me that he never had any thinge to doe with the family of Crackanthrop, nor with any save Cosen Hilton and something att Bleatarn where he finds mention of Bella=Landa. I have also distributed some of the Queeries, viz. to Bongate & Dufton, and will as soone as I can dispose of more of them, to other places.[23]

The Body of the Most Noble Vertious & Religious Lady Ann Countisse Dowager of Penbrooke, Dorset & Montgomery*, Daughter & sole Heir to the late Right Honorable George Clifford Earle of Cumberland, Baronisse Clifford of Westmorland & Vessy ~~the~~ Lady of the Honor of Skipton in Craven & High Sheriffese by Inheritance of the County of Westmorland who departed this Life in her Castell att Brougham in the foresaid County, the 22 of March 1675 having attained the Age of 86 years, the 30th of January before and was interred in S[t] Lawrence Church att Apleby the 14th of April 1676.
My Cosen Thomas Sandford of Ascun†. Dyed the 17th of February {1676} & was Buried the 19th ~~att~~ \ in / Ascum church.

My Father & Mother are very well, & all the rest of the relations heare, my Father has taken part of Howgill Demaine for Brother & sister to laie upon, in value yearely 18[li]; & I suppose one or both of my tenements & the house at Milborne, he intends them. My sister \ Susana / was telling me that she heard them say that they had a better right to those tenements than I.[24] Now I know not what to doe in this case for I would not willingly incur my fathers displeasure, neither doe I expect any great allowance from him yet I would not give away my right to those who I expect little favour from.[25] {Pray let me have your advice in this.}

Little Ann was 5 years old last New years day, but when Christened I know nott. Bettey is 3 years old the 10th May, when Christened I know nott. Mary was Borne the 25 of March & was Christened the 6th of April (76)‡.
I have not yet a trew Information of the Manner of my Cosen Braithwaits death.[26] My uncle William Atkinson takes it very unkindly that he never heares from you concerning his son. He tells me that he sent by Burnyeats 5[li] to be Drunck with M[r] Crosthwate, M[r] Mills. & your selfe,[27] therefore he is afraid that his son never told you nor any of them of it & this makes him something doubtfull that his son is Lavish; neither has he any account of the moneys that he gave him [to take] up with him which was 20[li] as I remember he told me.[28]

[VI.518]

I know not whether you had best send my things downe; \ that I shall leave to yourself / {but however send for the trunck to Oxon: for I suppose it may be more serviceable to you then me for I have noe see Part 2, Ch.1, Barony of Kendal, II.2; Part 2, Ch.6, Grasmere, II.154A; 154B; Part 2, Ch.9, Windermere, II.329; Part 2, Ch.10, Itinerary, II.400.

---

[23] Note that Machell's brother was distributing Machell's queries to would-be informants in the spring of 1676; see more relating to Machell's informants in the Editor's Introduction.

[24] This illuminates the regular Machell family feuds, in one of which Thomas's mother and his sister, Susanna, 'appear in the most unfavourable light'. In a letter written by Thomas's brother, Hugh (1685), Susanna is 'accused of hating her brother Thomas, and mother and daughter appear to have joined in acting against him. Hugh, Thomas's elder brother, had displeased his father by marrying without his consent, and the father would have disinherited him in favour of Thomas, had not Thomas refused and persuaded his father to re-settle the estate in favour of Hugh.' Hudleston, 'Machell, his wife and children', 123.

[25] Family concerns and jealousies often concerned property; here they relate to the claims of Lancelot's eldest brother, Hugh, who inherited Crackenthorpe Hall; Hugh also encountered problems with his family, see Hudleston, 'Machell, his wife and children', 137-44.

[26] 'Cosen Braithwait' was mentioned by Thomas Machell in Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, I.280. For the Braithwaites of Warcop, see Part 1, Ch.23, Warcop, I.319.

[27] The sum of 5[li] is merely an editorial suggestion, as the text immediately adjacent has been heavily scored through. For Burnyeats the carrier, see Part 3, Ch.4, Roman Antiquities: E. Correspondence between Thomas Machell and Dr John Mill.

[28] William Atkinson junior of Morland matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, in 1675/6 aged 15: BA 1681; MA 1684. He became the ensign of a company of scholars [sic] who took up arms against the Duke of Monmouth in 1685. He appears to have died at Oxford c.1700, without leaving a will. OAD.

need of it} for if my Lord doe nott consider what inconveniency he hath put me to I shall scarce truble my selfe till you git a place[29] & then if I may be any ways helpful to you, you may Assume your selfe of it without a complement. Pray give my regards of service to all friends in the south in particular to M^r^ Wyndham, M^r^ Secretary[30] & to my very good Uncle & Ant Andrew,[31] my Cosen John Machell & all my Cosens in Bucks - & tell my Cosen Jo that he is very much wished for heare in the north where he may be Assured of a free & harty welcome from my father; and my service to M^r^ Provist & all fellow friends in Queens desireing very much to heare from you I am
Sir
your Most Affectionate Bro
Lancellot Machell
Crackanthropp March the 3^d^ 1676/7

{Little Ann has hir Duty presented unto you & desires you will be pleased to send hir a Booke for upon my word she is a good Schollar. Burnyeats will inform you further.}
{Sister Susana remembers her love to you; she has not been ~~very~~ well. I Imagine it to be love – neither know I who it should be with unless Cosen John Machell, for when I told hir of him she recovered strangely & now is very well.}
{Pray remember my kind love to sweet-hart Johan –}

[Machell's Notes VI.517 & 518]

*{Countiss of Penbrok dead.}
†{The Sandf[ords] of Ask.}
‡{An[n] Machel, Elizabeth Machel, Mary Machel.}[32]

[I.313B]

[2.] [Dr John Mill of The Queen's College Oxford to Thomas Machell, 1683.]

These for the Revd Mr Thomas Machell, Rector of Kirkby Thore near Appleby, Westmorland.
Dr Mil about his marriage with Priscilla the daughter of Sir Edward Palmer.[33]

[I.313A][34]

Dear Sir
I receiv'd the favour of yours of Dec. 17th and have solicited the concern you engag'd me in; but ineffectually. Neither haveing any thoughts of changeing for a liveing in the north, at least wise not for so small a thing as yours in Hampshire is represented to be.[35] I wonder Mr Ward has not paid you [29] 'til you git a place': 'until Thomas Machell is awarded a parish'. Machell was recently ordained (1674-5), when his brother wrote this letter, see Bellasis: 'Machell of Crackenthorpe', 447.

[30] A reference to Sir Joseph Williamson (1633-1701), diplomat and secretary of state, born at Bridekirk, Cumberland. After attending school at St Bees, he was recommended to Gerard Langbaine (born at Barton Kirk), provost of Queen's College, Oxford, as a deserving northern youth, entering Queen's College in September 1650. Williamson's time there made a great impact upon him; he was one of the college's most generous benefactors, sponsoring building work and awarding gifts including a massive silver trumpet used to summon the college to dinner. Importantly for the development of antiquarianism, he founded an Anglo-Saxon lectureship there, ensuring that his protégé William Nicolson (born at Great Orton, Cumberland) received the post. He attempted to become M.P. for Appleby in 1668, but failed to gain the confidence of Lady Anne Clifford. See A. Marshall, 'Williamson, Sir Joseph'. ODNB.
[31] Andrew Whelpdale and his wife (who eventually married Thomas Machell).
[32] These were Lancelot's children (Thomas's nieces), to whom his letter refers so fondly despite not knowing their baptismal dates. See will of Elizabeth Machell of Bewley Castle, 4 Jan.1700, in Bellasis, 'Machell of Crackenthorpe', 461.
[33] This comment was written by Machell. In May 1684, John Mill married Priscilla (1649-85), youngest daughter of Sir William Palmer of Old Warden, Bedfordshire, with a portion of £3,000. Mill had been Palmer's chaplain. The marriage was short: Priscilla died on 1 April 1685. S. Handley, 'Mill, John (1644/5-1707), Church of England clergyman and college head'. ODNB.
[34] Letter from Dr John Mill.
[35] Mill here refers to Machell's rectory at Dogmersfield. A Queen's College colleague of Thomas Machell, John Mill (1644/5-1707), was a Westmorland man, born in Hardendale in Shap parish, son of Thomas Mill, a weaver. When the family moved to High Knipe in Bampton parish, he was educated at Bampton School. He a visitt since his comeing down.[36] I think our people of that country are under some unaccountably fatal oblegation of Barbarism. I have ever found them insensible of favours, in alle my experience. Under the Rose,[37] I have now re[s]olutions to marry my dearest Priscilla. From London, whither I go, God willing, the next week, you may expect to hear from

Your old friend and most unalterably faithfull servant
Jo: Mill
Bletchington March 24 1683/4

[I.667][38]

[3.] [Hugh Machell to Thomas Machell, Penrith, 16 July 1689.]

Penrith the 16th of July 1689
These for Mr Thomas Machell att Kirkby thore Westmorland.
1. Description of places and rarityes
2. Endowment & Benefactors: of Church – Chaples – Halls –
Sir
Yo[u]rs I received and delivered the inclosed and Cosn Brierly Assures me that he will either writte to you or me after thursday post, for then he expects an answer of his letter from London, he tells me that the Lord Hughet is very unwell in London.[39]
This with my service to you my Cozen I rest your Affectionate Cozen & servant
Hugh Machell

[III.41B][40]

[4.] [Thomas Machell to an unknown person regarding payments to a relative. Undated fragment.]

And the weekly or monthly contributions for the case of my cosan so long as they last and upon his notice what you pay to him shud be answerd here by Sr. Your most faithfull & affectionate servant
T.M.

[VI.622A]

[5.] ['Cos' Mary to Thomas Machell. Undated.][41]

Dear Cos Thomas both youeris I resaved[42] and hathe as faer as I can obayed your comandis: In the forst plasse spoken to my Ant consarning your linning. She has hear the last robe and bought sum for you! I have also sent you hear, all we can find consarning B[isho]p Whelpdal.[43] And for thoes oder things you writ for Last I will send you them vary shortly and wil writ to my ounkel to send you a vary good horss and if that will not dow I wil goe my selfe A pourpss to sarve you, in hopis it is for coming dowen on and if \ so / my Laber wil be vary well bestowed and I shal reste more satisfacshon \ in dowing of it / then I have now tiem to exprss so shall I tacke leive for the prssent and reman matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, in 1661 (BA, 1666; MA, 1669). Handley, 'Mill, John (1644/5-1707)'. ODNB.
Your onen cos Mary.[44]

---

[36] Possibly William Ward, son of William of Kirkland, Westmorland; student at Queen's (BA, MA) 1666/7-1674; rector of Skelton, Cumberland, 1683-1711. OAD.

[37] 'under the rose': sub rosa = in secret.

[38] Letter from Hugh Machell to Thomas Machell, Penrith, 16 July 1689; short notes in Machell's hand are written on the outer cover.

[39] Probably Sir George Hewett of Pishobury (1st Viscount Hewett, 1652-1689), who for his services in Ireland was made Baron of Jamestown, co. Longford, and Viscount Hewett of Gowran, co. Kilkenny, in 1689. British History online, Hertfordshire, Sawbridge Parish, Pishobury, 332-47.

[40] Reverse of I.41A, with letter seal attached.

[41] At the foot of this page is the word 'London'; it is possibly part of a postmark.

[42] 'Both yours I received.'

[43] Roger Whelpdale was Bishop of Carlisle (1419 to 1423), while also Provost of Queen's College, Oxford (1404 to 1421). The name 'Whelpdale' was of personal importance to Machell. His wife, Elizabeth, was the widow of the Rev. Andrew Whelpdale, Rector of Newnham, Hants. Andrew Whelpdale was the son of William Whelpdale of Penrith. See above, VI.517.

[44] Below this letter, Machell wrote biographical information on Andrew Whelpdale and the Whelpdale family which contains a pithy remark relating to a 17th-century Whelpdale of Penrith; see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.561.

[C. Letters of thanks and apology from students at Queen's College Oxford]

[I.40]

[1.] [From George Tibbols to Thomas Machell, undated.][45]

Insignissime literarum patrone
Cum vestro labore simul ac exemplo bonarum artiu[m] studia promovere, et laudis praemio virtutem iacentem excitare non dedigneris, uti spero, mihi condonabis, quod hac impolita incompl[et]aque epistola vestris studiis moras inijcere ausus sum, nam iuxta proverbium praestat stultum quam ingratum agere. Multa beneficia vel insperata in me contulisti, quae trabali (qu[o]d aiunt) clavo memoriae infixa conservabo, eosque imitabor mendicos qui cum acceptae stipis mutua[m] referre nequeant, benevola verborum actione rependunt. Incredibilis illa bonitas vestra non solum merita, sed etiam vota longe superavit; quocirca non amicum sed genium, ac meum numen tutelare appello, ac me eternum adamantinis obsequij catenis tenebis obstrictum.
Clientulum tui ob servantissimum
Geo Tibbols.[46]

[I.56]

[2.] [Two letters sent to Machell, undated, which he later recycled as notepads.]

[2.a.]
Tanta (Dignissime Maecenas) candori vestro inest majestas, ut, vel Phoebi instar, omnibus im[m]o indignis benefacere gloriatur: adeo ut si flagitium perennem fere dignitatis demeretur eclypsin, ad vestrae tamen humanitatis asylum confugiens, impune condonetur. Non iratum Phoebum existimo cum nubibus obumbretur vultus: illius etenim fulgorem obfuscando, hoc saltem efficiunt nubeculae istae, ut splendidiores subinde nobis praeberet radios: nec Te infensum censeo, cum benevolentiae jubaris aliquantum denegetur influxus; ideo enim denegari existimo, ut aliquando latius effulgeat. Vestri ideo splendoris jubar tandem sibi oriturum exoptat. Servulus vester observartissimus.[47]

Joh[n] Scott[48]

[I.57]

[2.b.]
Vir Dignissime
Candoris aliquid (probe novimus) etiam cum maxime saeviat, praestare potest ipsissima severitas; ideoque non tam timore quam spe pleni vestram accedimus dignitatem criminis ignoranter patrati veniam impetraturi; vestrae enim excandescentiae, ut speramus, flam[m]a non adeo tota in vindictam

[45] George Tibbols, son of George Tibbols of Asby, Westmorland; matriculated Queen's College, Oxford, aged 16 in 1674; BA 1679. See OAD.
[46] 'Most distinguished patron of letters. Since by your labour and at the same time example you do not disdain to promote my zeal for the noble arts and to arouse latent virtue by the reward of praise, you will, as I hope, forgive me, because with this unpolished and unfinished letter I have ventured to cause a delay in your studies, for according to the proverb it is better to play the fool than the ingrate. Many and unlooked for benefits have you conferred upon me, which I shall preserve fixed (as they say) on the fast spike of memory, and I shall imitate those beggars who, since they are unable to make like return for the alms they have received, repay the kindness by act of words. That incredible goodness of yours has far surpassed not only my merits but also my prayers; for which reason I call [you] not my friend but my genius and my tutelary spirit, and you will hold me eternally bound by adamantine chains of gratitude. From the hand of your most obedient and insignificant client. George Tibbols.'
[47] 'Most worthy Maecenas, such splendour is there in your brilliance that it shines, even in the manner of Phoebus, to benefit all, nay, even the unworthy: to such an extent that if my wrong-doing should deserve a near eclipse of dignity, nevertheless, taking refuge in your humanity, it would be excused without penalty. I do not think Phoebus angry when his visage is darkened by gloom: for, by veiling his brightness, those little clouds do, after all, bring it about that straight afterwards he shows us more brilliant rays: nor do I judge you enraged when the stream of light of your benevolence is a little withheld; for I think it withheld only so that in due course it may shine more widely. Thus the brightness of your splendour desires finally to dawn again. Your most obedient servant. Joh[n] Scott.'
[48] John Scott (b.1659), son of Richard Scott of Carlisle. Matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, 1673, BA 1678, MA and fellow 1681. Vicar of Carisbrook 1689; rector of Shorwell 1697 (both Isle of Wight). Died 1697. OAD.

corripiatur, ut aliquantum non admittat favoris mixturam. Gratam ergo, precamur, impraesentiarum candoris vestri influentiam nos sentiamus; et si hic, qualis est error vestram adeo offendit dignitatem, ut crimen non nisi ampliori supplicio delendum judicetur; parcams tamen, et in posterum cavebimus ne demus laesum patientiae vestrae numen. Sentiamus.
Dignitatis vestrae
Cultores Observanntissimi[49]

Anth. Tonstall[50]
Barnard Gilpin[51]

[II.482]

[3.] [From John Cocke to Thomas Machell, undated.] [52]

To Mr Machell Dean of Queens College
Insignissime Vir
Incensum rei metuunt Iovem, nec aras appropinquare audent, ne ijsdem flammis, quibus adolentur sacrificia, perirent: pari ratione, supplex vester, temeritatis improvidae sibi conscius, advolvitur, vestra tamen clementia fretus: et inde est quo vester Ganymedes suum interpellat Iovem, quia candidiorem sperat. Meae stultitiae vestra facilitas evadat Asylum, meam quippe felicitatem vestra solum humanitate metior. Scio petentium desideria, regijs animis lenitatis Theatrum sternere, eosque raro aut nunquam repulsa pati, qui pudore suffusi limen intrare erubescunt. Tua proin clementia delicti nostri dissipetur nubes: non adeo (crede) errores depereo, ut lapsibus addam et pertinaciam; satis quidem ad poenam facit onerosa mei criminis recordatio. Nescit Epistola nostra tam graviter delinquere, ut culpas, quas admisi, stultitia mea patrocinando, studeret: nostrum vehementer triumphabit obsequium, si Maecenatis indulgentiam mereatur, quas si dignabaris, usque me cautiorem reddes
Tuae humanitatis
cultorem Humillimum
Johannem Cocke.[53]

[49] 'Most Worthy Sir, Real severity can mean a kind of fairness (we know it well), even when most harsh; and for this reason we approach your revered person filled not so much with fear as with hope, to implore pardon for an offence committed in ignorance; for may the flame of your anger, as we hope, be not taken up in vengeance so entirely that it admit not some admixture of goodwill. Therefore, we pray, at the present moment may we feel the gracious influence of your open-mindedness; and if this error, such as it is, offends your worthy person so much that the offence be judged discharged only by a heavier sentence, may you nevertheless grant pardon, and in future we will take care that we do not try your patience of spirit. Let it be decided. Most obedient servants of your Honour, Anthony Tonstall, Barnard Gilpin.'
[50] Anthony Tonstall, son of Nicholas Tonstall of Selside, Cumberland. Matriculated at Queen's in 1672 aged 17; BA 1677; MA and fellow 1680; canon of Exeter 1686; rector of Cheriton Bishop, Devon, 1687. Will proved at Oxford 1688. OAD.
[51] Bernard Gilpin, son of Alan Gilpin of Strickland, Westmorland. Matriculated at Queen's 1673/4 aged 18; BA 1678. OAD.
[52] John Cocke, son of J. Cocke of Kendal, matriculated at Queen's in 1672 aged 17. BA 1677; MA 1680. Vicar of Thatcham, Berks, 1687. OAD. For James Cocke of Kendal, see Part 2, Ch.9, II.323, fn. 174.
[53] 'Most Illustrious Sir, People fear Jove in his rage, and dare not approach his altars lest they perish in those same flames by which sacrifices are consumed. With like thoughts, your suppliant falls at your feet, aware of his rash forwardness but relying on your clemency: and hence is the reason why your Ganymede accosts his Jove, because he hopes him more radiant. May your graciousness offer sanctuary to my foolishness; indeed, I measure my felicity by your humanity alone. I know that, to regal spirits, the urgent requests of petitioners spread out a theatre for leniency, and that they rarely or never suffer rejection who, suffused with a sense of shame, blush to cross the threshold. Accordingly, through your clemency the cloud of our fault will be dispersed: I am not (believe me) so much in love with my mistakes as to add persistence also to my lapses; indeed, the burden of recollecting my offence makes for punishment enough. Our letter cannot stray so far from the mark that my folly should seek to furnish a defence of faults which I have admitted: our compliance will succeed completely if it should earn the indulgence of Maecenas, if such you deem fitting, until you render me more circumspect, one who most humbly strives for your gentle treatment, John Cocke.'

[4.] [From John Troughton to Thomas Machell, undated. Annotated by Machell.][54]

{Sat Sent. tis mouldy}[55]

Most Honourable Sir
Quod magnis licet devinctus beneficijs ad limen tuum, trepide procumbo, facit et Imbecillitatis nostrae, et dignitatis vestrae ratio; uti veniente numine fas est semper sacrificijs Onerare, non solum mos antiqua, sed ipsa ratio nos docuit ut ad numen non nisi reverenter recedamus, gratiorque aestimatus est iste horror qui sacro cordisque ac oculorum tremore te mitissimum fateatur; nunc vero causae propter quas te coli fas est (Vir Colende) sunt sumendae a tua Clementia, qua delicti nostri nubes dissipiatur, et ne posthac invenies me deliquentem, quin semper observantissimu[m] et obedientissimu[m]tuu[m] servitu[m]
John Troughton.[56]

[I.475]

[5.] [From Thomas Poole to Thomas Machell, undated.][57]
Insignissime Vir
Cum ut vestram recuperarem benevolentiam epistolam scribere subinde cogitarem, nigro carbone papyrum, non notare calamo in mentem venerit, nisi atramento atrata charta aeque depingeret peccati mei nigredinem, et actionum lituras. At […] dum vestram benevolentiam enixius efflagito, veniam pro se ipso precari meo opus est epistolio; meam tamen utrimque vestrae dignitatis placito submissionem testetur styli humilitas; et Tropis expertes lineae paenitentiae meae indigitent realitatem. fateor me in Te peccasse, crimen dolens, [...] sco, et a Te veniam exoro; nec vereor quin in hoc perinde ac reliqu[is] numen imiteris benignum condonando scilicet servulo Tibi de [...] clissimo
Tho: Poole[58]

[D. Correspondence and Memoranda relating to Machell's Antiquarian Pursuits]

[III.41A]

[1.] [Anonymous letters to Thomas Machell, undated; later used as sketchpads.]

[1.a.]
Yuu'le ~~agr~~ pay him so much for the first moneth, and tell me, where I may repay it here in London, and to whom, it shall be done. I am glad to heare, you are well, and though providence hath placed us at great distance from one another, yet I shall be glad to heare from you […][59]

---

[54] John Troughton, son of James Troughton of Kendal, matriculated at Exeter College, Oxford, 1672/3; BA at Queen's, 1676 (just before Machell left for Kirkby Thore); rector of Brauncewell, Lincolnshire, 1680. OAD.
[55] In Machell's hand. Since the MS pages before and after this letter are blank, there is no clue as to Machell's comment, which, presumably, applied to the state of the letter [?]
[56] 'The fact that, while obliged by great benefactions, I fall in trepidation at your threshold, is brought about by recognition both of my weakness and of your high status; just as, when divinity comes it is right ever to load [it] with sacrifices, not only ancient tradition but reason itself has taught us that we should have recourse only reverently to power, and that sense of awe is reckoned more agreeable which acknowledges you most clement by a reverential trembling of heart and eyes. Now indeed the causes on account of which it is right for you to be worshipped (Worshipful Sir) arise from your Clemency, through which the cloud of our offence is dissipated and never after this will you find me offending, but that I am ever your most attentive and obedient servant, John Troughton.'
[57] Possibly Thomas Poole, son of Richard Pool of York, who matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, in 1670; BA, 1674. OAD.
[58] 'Most Illustrious Sir, When I was thinking to write a letter that I might thereby recover your goodwill, it came to my mind to scribe the paper not with a pen but in black charcoal, thinking a page utterly darkened should both depict the blackness of my fault, and equally blot out my actions. But […] while it is your goodwill I more earnestly request, I must pray pardon for my letter itself; in both matters, however, may the lowly efforts of my pen, so please you, attest how I bow to your greatness; and its lines, devoid of rhetoric, proclaim how genuine my penitence. I confess that I have offended against you, lamenting my fault, [...], and I entreat your pardon; nor do I fear but that in forgiving this just as in other matters you will indeed show a kindly spirit.
Your most […] servant, Tho: Poole.'
[59] The note breaks off here because the paper has perished.

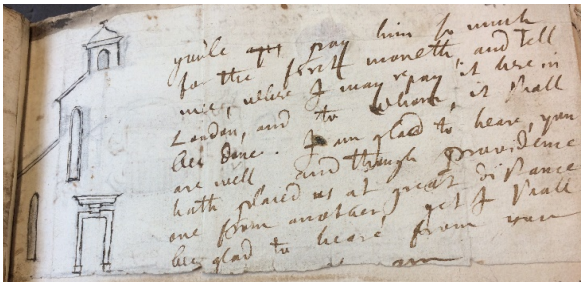

Figure 3.2.2. Letter to Machell, on which he sketched the west end of Lowther Church. III.41A.

[VI.482][60]

[1.b]

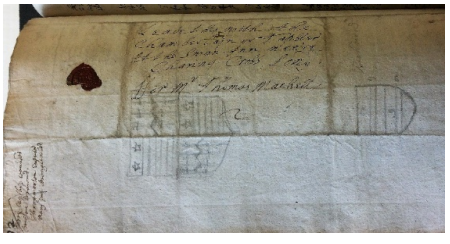

Figure 3.2.3. Letter addressed to Machell in London, later used as a sketch pad. VI.482.

Leave this with the Chamberlajn or Tapster at the Swan Inn ne'ere Charing Cross, London. For Mr Thomas Machel.
{Berry. Cap. ship wounded; bowson drownd;[61] Throgmorton executed;[62] Mary Put Brought in bed.}[63]

[V.2B]

[2.] [Thomas Machell, Memorandum: A trip to London, undated.]

Monday:
Dine with Mr Dean of Rochester.
Meet Nic. Lough at the Fleece Tavern in St Martins Lane att one a clock

Tuesday:
Meet Mr Glen at the Bull Head at Charing + [Cross] at 6. a clock at night.
– Mr Dugdall at 9. a clock in the morning.

---

[60] Re-use of mail stationery.
[61] Jottings in Machell's hand. They might all refer to events in 1682. In 1682 the Frigate, 'Gloucester', bound for Scotland with the future James II on board, ran aground and sank within hours. Some, including the captain, Sir John Berry, and the Duke of York, escaped in the long boat, but many drowned. See 'Two letters from Scotland giving a true relation of the unhappy loss of the Gloucester-frigot, whereof Sir John Berry was commander : with a particular account of the persons of quality drowned therein, and the miraculous escape of His Royal Highness the Duke of York.' Early English Books Online. https://name.umdl.umich.edu/A64017.0001.001.
[62] Francis Throckmorton was executed for treason against Elizabeth I in 1584, but the reason for Machell's note is unknown. Perhaps Machell was referring to Sir William Throckmorton, 4th baronet (1658-1682), who had been a scholar at Christ Church, Oxford, 1677-81; he was killed in a duel in 1682. See Jan Broadway, 'Throckmorton family (per. c.1500-1682), gentry'. ODNB.
[63] This 'Mary' might be Mary of Modena, wife of the Duke of York, who gave birth on 15 August 1682 but the infant lived only until 6 October. Mary suffered two further miscarriages: in October 1683 and May 1684. A son was born in June 1688. See A. Barclay, 'Mary [Mary of Modena] (1658-1718), queen of England, Scotland, and Ireland, consort of James II and VII'. ODNB.

– Mr Lough at 6. in the morning.
– Call upon Cosan Patteson & enquire for letter.[64] So att Dr Lamp.[65]

Wednesday:
Goe to Mr Glen.
To the Heralds Office.
Herald Painters.[66]

[3.] [Correspondence between Thomas Holford (Herald)[67] and Thomas Machell, 1676.]

[3a.] Thomas Holford to Thomas Machell, 13 May 1675/6.

[I.276]

These for Mr Machell, Fellow of Queens College in Oxford.
Direct your next to me: This from Mr Holford at Mr Balls in James Street in the Haymarket next dore to the Dancing Schole.

[I.275]

Sir. I thanke you for the discourse I re[ceive]d (by the hand of my cosen Sandford)[68] relating to the family of Bellingham, and had returned you an ansare sooner, had I been in towne when it arived. I here send you inclosed the things desired,[69] only that of Talboyse which I must deferr till a farther time, it being a thing of some difficulty to find; but I am apt to believe Mr Dugdale's Baronagium Anglicae will helpe you in that affaire. I shall be ~~verry~~ glad if I can serve you at any time; therefore you may at any time when you have occasion freely lay your concernes on him that is Your very reall servant
Theo Holford
May 13th 1675/6

I shall, the next opportunity I have of writing to you, intreat the favour of you in a thing I am verry desirous to get of the Bishop of Lincolne.[70]

{Answered Trinity Sunday 1676} This was from Mr Holford, one of the Heralds in the Heralds College near St Pauls London.[71]

[V.2C]

[3b.] [Thomas Machell to Thomas Holford, Herald, Trinity Sunday 1676.]

Sir
I receiv'd this with the papers inclos'd for which I give you many thankes; but could wish you had us'd a compass in the roundalls.[72] I know your business you speake of is concerning your fathers picture, & if you please to give my Lord a line I will deliver it with all the advantage that I am able;

[64] A later reference suggests who 'Patteson' might have been: 'Burton's Itinerarium. Blatum Burgu[m] \ p. 114. / is taken by Josias Simler for Abalaba, a station in Cumberland, of which see more out of the Notitia of the Western Empire: Mr Pattison at the Read Hart in Fetter Lane.' See F.13 on I.174A.
[65] This might be a reference to Thomas Lamplugh DD, of Dovenby, Cumberland. Queen's College, Oxford, from 1634; DD 1660; principal of St Alban Hall, Oxford, 1664-73; archdeacon of London 1664; dean of Rochester 1673; archbishop of York 1688; died 1691.
[66] The artists of the College of Arms were known as herald painters.
[67] Thomas Holford was Blanche Lyon Pursuivant of Arms in Ordinary from 1686: https://www.british-history.ac.uk/survey-london/bk16/pp229-306#h3-0024.
[68] The reference is to the Sandfords of Askham, possibly to Edmund Sandford, author of 'Cursory Relation of All the Antiquities and Familyes in Cumberland', now published as A Cursory Relation of All the Antiquities and Familyes in Cumberland, CWAAS Tract Series 4 (Kendal, 1890). See also Part 1, Ch.2, Askham.
[69] See information on the Bellinghams on MS.V.2-36.
[70] Thomas Barlowe (1607-91): see correspondence relating to Appleby Corporation, Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, I.279-82.
[71] In Machell's hand.
[72] Machell the architect!

The best way will be to have it copyed out here if we had a good painter, & I hope we shall have some betwixt this and Act. I sent you a letter (since my notes) & desired you to consult a little booke in 4^0 call'd the Visitation of Cumberland and Northumberland, which Mr Knight has, who is the Kings chirurgion,[73] & lives behind the ~~Old~~ New Exchange \ Lower. / The business was to examen that coate wherein Bellingham quartered with Barnisteed impaleth Leigh – impaleing Clifford, for in Leigh's quarterings I have drawne 3 Bendletts which as I remember should be Barruletts. Pray send me word how it is there & correct your owne. And you may be pleas'd allso, where I mention'd Patritius the son of Thomas, to add in the mergin (instead of – of this family was the founder of Shap Abby) \ the word / – which Patricius liv'd ~~in the~~ anno 40. Hen. 3. [1255-56] / 25. Ed. 1. [1296-97]. And this Thomas his father (son of Gospatritus, son of Ormus, was founder of Shap Abby. This with my service is all att present.

[V.2D]

Sent to Mr Tho. Hollford an Herald
Trinity Sunday 1676.

[V.3]

[3c.] [Bellingham Pedigree: Part of Thomas Machell's Report to Thomas Holford, 1676.]

An Impartial account of the Pedigree & Armes of the Bellinghams of Westmorland, sent in a letter to Mr Holford of the College of Heralds att London {at the request of the said College being imployd to draw a ped[igree] & answer som doubts concerning the Armes of the said family by ~~the~~ Mr Petty.[74] Per M.}[75]

I were very unworthy if I did not all \ the service / that lyes in my power for any that belongs to the Heralds Office whence I have received so many civilites, and therefore have sent you, according to my promise (tho not so speedily as I could have wished being hinder'd by indispensable business) all that I am able att present to informe you concerning the family of the Bellinghams of Westmerland; for which I have a singular respect & to whom I am in some measure related; yet I shall deale truly with you & them; remembering what Aristotle said of his master; Amicus Plato, sed magis amica veritas;[76] and for the better discovery of the truth, I will:

1^t. Give you my judgment concerning their pedigree; & 2^{ly} what proofe I am able to produce of the true Coate of Arms belonging to the family, which is the whole business now in agitation.[77]

1. For pedigrees I have seen 3, and compared them together. One which you showed me in a Booke of yours, yet not without some manifest errors, & composed by I know not whom. But I take this to be the best and most Ancient of any of them, because the fullest \ tho / without date, for 8 generations; This being with Richard de Bellocampo.

2. Another (now in mine own custody) which I had out of a Booke of Mrs Smyths over against St Dunstans Church {London} who was sometime wife to an Herald painter. And this is also of [73] John Knight (bap. 1622, d. 1680) was surgeon to Charles II. He was also a collector of manuscripts; his father, Thomas Knight (d. 1652), was a herald painter and servant to successive Garter kings of arms; it is likely that he was himself the son of Thomas, Chester herald (d. 1618), and grandson of Edmund, Norroy, king of arms (d. 1593), whose heraldic manuscripts were inherited by the surgeon in 1662 and were left by him to Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge. Extracted from C. Knighton, 'Knight, John, surgeon.' ODNB.

[74] 'Mr Petty' was a relative of the Pettys of Orton Old Hall (Petty Hall). There had been doubts about the authenticity of a Petty pedigree agreed by William Dugdale, placing the family's origin in Sir Oates Petit of Cornwall. Machell knew that 'Mr Petty … has the pedigre & is of the same familie with the Pettyes of Oreton; for they of Oreton came lately from about Skipton in Yorkeshire, where this Petty was borne': See Part 1, Ch.20, Orton, I.640. 'Mr Petty' was actually William Petyt (Petit) (1640/41-1707), born near Bolton Abbey, Yorkshire, son of William Petyt, landowner and lawyer of Bolton Abbey and Barnard's Inn. The son became a lawyer at the Inner Temple in 1664, keeper of the Tower records in 1689. An esteemed scholar, he was a student of English historical records and famed for The Antient Right of the Commons of England Asserted (1680): J. Greenberg, 'Petyt [Petit], William (1640/41-1707), lawyer and political propagandist'. ODNB. For more on Petyt's influence on Machell, see Part 3, Ch.1, VI.431.

[75] 'Per m[anum]': by hand.

[76] 'Plato, I love, but I love Truth more.' Or, 'Plato is my friend, but truth is a better friend.' The maxim is often attributed to Aristotle as a paraphrase of the Nicomachean Ethics 1096a, 11-15.

[77] The Report continues on MSV.3-36.

uncertaine Authoritie; but seems to be collected from the other, being not so full & compleat; yet it has the addition of Dates to the pedigree where the other wants them, but suspitiously inserted. This was (by computation) toward the beginning of Kg Charles the I[t], but has its faults also, and begins with the same Richard de Bellocampo.
3. The third \ as the former/ I have seen (sent up from Westm'land and now in that custody) which, pretends to more than either of the other; as having many notes concerning the family; but has indeed less of exactness \ in it / being \ as it seems by the dates therof / taken out of mine, but falsely writ, & voluntarie additions made unto it by I know not whom; yet this (notwithstanding the hand betrays it to be of yesterday, pretends higher than either of the other, beginning with Alano de Bellacampo[78] maryed to Beauchamp, Tempore Conquestoris;[79] whereas if the Author had understood himself, \ Bellocampo / Beauchamp were the same name; but that Bellocampo was not writ Beauchamp till of later years.

{Why the pedigrees (which shall be annexed at the end of this letter) are to be disallow'd of, from Alano downward & to Robert Bellingham who maryed Burnashed: Ratio 1.}

Now my judgement concerning these Pedigrees (if I may be so bold \ as / to offer my judgement in a Business being your and my profession, and whereof that are judges) is plainly this; That none of the 3 can be authentic, at least no higher than Robert de Bellingham, who maryed with Burnished; for all above him are writ 'Bellocampo'. And my reasons are these:

[V.4]

1. Because they are all (not only of uncertaine Authoritye, but), very incongrouse; the 1[t] without date for 8 generations, but with collaterals (sisters of Roger de Bellocampo) whose names are not mention'd, but their matches are. The 2[nd] with date but \ without / those collaterals, as tho it were a compendium of the former. But the dates are very suspitiously inserted, there being no years but only the Reignes of Kings \ annexed / and those equally distributed \ for the most part. / The 3[d] without collaterals too, and with date also; yet that date differs from the Date of the former in Richard de Bellocampo, who is said \ in / the other to have lived in the time of Henry 2. & Richard the I. But in this latter (as tho it were a coppy and falsely transcribed) in the time of Richard de Veteripont \ where doubtless this meant / of those Veteripontes who were Lords of Westm'land; & besides, that they had not the Honour of Westm'land till the 4[th] year of the Reign of King John which is 2 descents after him. There was never such man \ in the world / as Richard de Veteripont that I could mete with, either in pedigrees or \ in / records, tho I have a most exact and particular account concerning that family.[80]

[V.15]

I hope the pains I have taken in it will not be disliked. Because of this greatness, but ~~rather~~ interpreted (by you) as an Argument \ rather / of the great respect I have for the family, and noe less desire of serving the office (and your self in particular) in all ~~that~~ I am able. Vive Vale. si quid novisti rectius istis, candidus imperti; si non; his utere mecum.[81]
T. Machell
Q.C.O. April 15. 1676.

[VI.253][82]

[4.] [Thomas Machell to Dr John Mill, 7 October 1692.]

To the Reverend Dr Mill, Principall of Edmund Hall in Oxford.
Sir
Pray give my service to Mr Wood[83] with the enclosed letter, which is (I assure you) no begging one; for I am long since broke off that trade. I beg'd books of him; & compasses, pencils & Indian ink [78] Machell placed a cross above this spelling error, correcting it in the margin.

[79] 'At the time of the Norman Conquest.'
[80] Machell's analysis continues for 11½ pages; these have not been transcribed: see MS.V.3-36.
[81] 'Farewell and keep well. If you know anything better than they, frankly share [it]; if not, join with me in using these my researches.'
[82] Also numbered p.57.
[83] Anthony à Wood, Oxford antiquary; author of Athenae Oxonienses: An Exact History of All the Writers and Bishops who Have Had Their Education in the University of Oxford (1691-92).

(with other impliments) of a nearer friend a great while a goe, but never got any. If I were near Oxon, I would try my hand at my own country trade & help my selfe; for the takeing hand (they say) never wants! But spatiis disclussus iniquis - Prætereo.[84]
And so fare you well. T.M.
Oct. 7th 1692.

[5.] [Thomas Machell to Anthony Wood: Enclosed letter.]

To Mr Anthony Wood the Oxford Antiquary
My Old Friend
I thanke you for mentioning in your Athenæ the match of Mr Rowland Machell with Elizabeth, the sister of Dr Langton, Bishop of Winchester.[85] And because you take notice of severall lands in the County of Westmorland which the said Bishop gave them, I desire you to send me a copy of his will, or an abstract (at least) of the said lands, which will much oblige
Sir, Your very affectionate friend & servant
Thomas Machell

[VI.186]

[6.] [Thomas Machell's Memorandum of Needs, undated.]

I want:
A Welsh dictionary & Corrispondent
A book of Coynes; Indian Inke; a magnifying glass
A pair of divideing compasses[86]
A pollisher of my Coll[ection]
The Hebrew Inscript[ion], an account of it: And wee are the people of thy pasture, & sheep of thy hands:[87] a solisicme metathesis[88] – see in ancient copyes & consult Rabby[89] Hide.[90]

Query of Sir Joseph.[91] Whether Clericus Regis[92] & Clericus Regni[93] be not the Kings Secretary– as in this Express[ion]

---

[84] 'But, kept away by the envious miles of distance - I must let it pass.' Hurt feelings and barbed remarks are common features of Machell's correspondence with his former colleagues, yet the tone is often affectionate.
[85] Thomas Langton (c.1430-1501), bishop of Winchester, was born at Appleby c.1430. He graduated MA at Cambridge in 1456 and was a fellow of Pembroke College by 1462/3. A supporter of Richard III, he became bishop of Salisbury in 1483. After the battle of Bosworth, he was removed from his posts but pardoned. In 1487 he was elected provost of Queen's College, Oxford. Under Henry VII, in 1493, he became bishop of Winchester, richest diocese in England. Langton's will contains more than one hundred items. His money legacies amount to upwards of £2,000, including the provision of six exhibitions at Queen's. Richard Pace (d. 1536), whom he supported financially, remembered that the bishop 'befriended all learned men exceedingly, and in his time was another Maecenas, rightly remembering (as he often said) that it was for learning that he had been promoted to the rank of bishop'. See D. Wright, 'Langton, Thomas, bishop of Winchester and archbishop-elect of Canterbury'. ODNB.
[86] Note Machell's letter to Mill 7 October 1692: the 'no begging' letter.
[87] 'For he is our God, and we are the people of his pasture, and the sheep of his hand. Today, if you hear his voice'. Psalm 95.7 (AVB).
[88] Solecism is a term for deviation against the standard syntax formation in grammar. Metathesis (etymologically from Greek, literally 'a transposition') is an alteration of a word whereby letters, or syllables of a word are transposed, or shifted out of their natural position, as: 'prevert' for 'pervert'; 'Evandre' for 'Evander': https://www.ifioque.com/figures-of-speech/scheme/solecism.
[89] Rabbi.
[90] Machell was probably referring to one of many books authored by Thomas Hyde (1636-1703), Hebrew scholar, orientalist and Bodleian librarian; viz. De Historia shahiludii tria scripta hebraica viz. Rabbi Abraham Aben-ezrae prelegans poema rythmicum, R. Bonseniora Ben-Jachiae facunda oratio profaica, liber deliciae regum prosa, stylo puriore, per anonymum Omnia ex Chartis MSS jam primo deprompsi & Latine vertit Thomas Hyde, with Hebrew and Latin on facing pages (Oxford, 1689); and see Anthony Wood, Athenae Oxioensis 4 (extended edition ed. Philip Bliss, London, 1820), 524-26.
[91] Sir Joseph Williamson (1633-1701), see above, VI.518.
[92] 'King's secretary.'
[93] 'Secretary of the realm.'

– datum per manum Mr Rogeri Mali Catuli clerici nostri.'[94]
A Little Booke of Fortification. Edmonds?[95]

[I.479]

[7.] [Correspondence with William Nicolson. 18, 19 January 1686.]

[7a.] [William Nicolson to Thomas Machell, 18 January 1686.][96]

Sir Jan. 18. 86
This comes (to thank you for your last kindness, and) to beg the perusal of those northern words which I gathered for you at Queens. I had a copy of 'em; but my friend has thought fit to keep them, with some others of my books, for his own use. I will thankfully return them, when I send for the old Register.[97]
You may remember I told you I had met with something relateing to the Welp's of Kirkbythore: and, tho' I could not then show you what it was, I have since read over again a great many Instruments (in the Holm [Cultram] Register) on that subject. I find a good share of your Town-fields has bin formerly in the possession of those monks: by the gift of Walden fil, Gamelli fil Welp, Lord of the place, and his Tenants. The places named in the several Instruments as boundaries of Donations, are: Keldes, Barnstathe, Sica regia, Pons Atulphi, Fons Bernulphi, Kirktoftes, Crossrig, Stodeholm major et minor, Goldelands, Crokelands, Sandwath,

[I.480]

Morlandes, Wartheberh, Hale, &c. One I fancy may seem to Justify Mr Dalstons plea for a peculiar at Soureby by this passage: Renuntiando omni privilegio tam fori Civilis quam Canonici mihi vel Heredibus vel meis Assignatis competenti.[98]
Another (if the men of the monastery come to recover their Rights) may doe some service to the Rector; and therefore I send you it entire:
Haec est conventio inter D[ominum] Abbate[m] et Conventu[m] de Holm et Ecc[les]iam B[ea]ti Mich[aelis] de Kyrkbythore. Scil[icet] q[uo]d p[re]dicti Abbas et monachi reddent decima[m] garbam p[re]dictae Eccl[es]iae de Kyrkbythore de omnibus terris quas in eadem parochia de [...] caetero adepturi sunt. dum tamen terre illae prius cultae fuerint antequa[m] ad eos pervenirent. Hijs etc. A[nn]o D[omin]i 1194.[99]

---

[94] '…given by the hand of Mr Roger Malus Catulus our secretary.'
[95] Machell was unsure of the name but he was possibly referring to Edmund Gunter (1581-1626), a designer of mathematical instruments with practical applications for a number of tasks, including surveying, for which he invented the precursor to the logarithmic slide rule. His publication, A New Treatise of Fortification, was later added to several of his other works by Samuel Foster (ed.), The Workes of Edmund Gunter, Containing the Description of the Sector, Cross-staff, and Other Instruments; with a Canon of Artificial Sines & Tangent, &c. Much Enlarged by the Author. Together with a New Treatise of Fortification. Whereunto Is Now Added the Further Use of the Quadrant Fitted for Daily Practice (London: Fr. Egleffeild, 1653). See H. Higton, 'Gunter, Edmund, mathematician'. ODNB.
[96] By 1686, Nicolson had been archdeacon of Carlisle for two years and was living in the archidiaconal rectory of Great Salkeld, c.11 miles by road from Kirkby Thore. See D. Hayton, 'Nicolson, William (1655-1727), Church of Ireland bishop of Derry and antiquary'. ODNB.
[97] This paragraph refers to a list of Cumbrian words made for Machell when Nicolson was acting as his research assistant at Queen's (for examples of such words, see Machell's Preface, II.353). Nicolson had lent his copy to a friend who had not returned it. In this letter, Nicolson asks if he might borrow the original document. For Nicolson's word-list, entitled 'Glossarium Brigantinu[m]', see, CAC(C), DCHA/11/10/1: 'Nicolson's dictionary of northern English (compiled whilst Nicolson was at Queen's College, Oxford, 1677)'.
[98] 'By renouncing all privilege both civic and canonical due to me or my heirs or my assigns.' For Machell's deep difficulties with Dalston over Temple Sowerby chapelry, see Paul Barker, 'The Reverend Thomas Machell's Complaint: July 2d. 1690', CW2, 89 (1989), 279-81. See also, Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin IV: A Narrative about a Chapel at Sowerby.
[99] 'This is the agreement between the Lord Abbot and the Convent of Holm [Cultram] and the Church of the Blessed Michael of Kyrkbythore. Namely, that the aforesaid Abbot and monks will render the tenth sheaf of corn from all the lands of the aforesaid Church of Kyrkbythore which they are to acquire in that parish from the other [...] As long as, however, those lands were previously cultivated, before they came to them. To these etc. A.D. 1194.'

With my own & wife's hearty Respects to you and yours, I am, Sir, your obliged faithful servant
William Nicolson.[100]

[I.481]

[7b.] [Thomas Machell to William Nicolson, 19 January 1686]

Jan. 19 1686

Sir
Your request is so reasonable, that I make not delay ~~ansering~~ granting it; But have sent the booke by your man, in hopes to receive it agane with Interest. I thanke you for Those hints in your Letter: But I had the chart[er] of Wald. ~~fill,~~ Gamel fill, Whelp, & the other of Holm (which I believe are the same with yours) a great while \ agoe; / yet any thing of That nature is \ welcome, & / kindely accepted.
Your affectionate friend & servant
T.M.
Husbanded til.[101]
Give myne & my wive's kinde love & respects to your wife & sister; & accept the same to yourself, ~~with many~~ wee shal be glad to see you here.
Can you grant me liberty of Rise or Gardfell in Morland – or Kirkander by Newbyging

[8.] [Correspondence with Hugh Todd, 23, 24 February 1686.][102]

[8a.] [Hugh Todd to Thomas Machell, 23 February 1686.]

[I.503A][103]

The Reverend Mr Machell
Rector of Kirkbythore
in Westmereland
This:

[100] Taken at face value, the fact that Nicolson referred to his 'wife' in January 1686 when, in fact, they married on 3 June 1686 [D. Hayton, 'Nicolson, William (1655-1727). ODNB] appears irrational, but Nicolson was using traditional Julian dating, which in the Gregorian calendar would be January 1687, 'new style'. The official switch to the Gregorian calendar took place in 1752, but well before that date many people were anticipating the change for the months January to March by using an oblique, for example, 14 February 1676/7, as seen in other correspondence in this chapter and in the edition generally.

[101] Presumably, Machell was referring to the word-list lent to Nicolson, which Machell had husbanded for some time, i.e. looked after carefully, and which Nicolson must now husband until it is returned to Machell.

[102] Hugh Todd DD (c.1657-1728) studied at Queen's College, Oxford. An antiquary and clergyman, Todd was born at Blencow, Cumberland. In 1684, be became chaplain to Thomas Smith, bishop of Carlisle, and vicar of Kirkland, Cumberland. In 1685 he was collated prebendary of Carlisle and presented to the vicarage of Stanwix, resigning that living in 1688 when he was presented to the rectory of Arthuret. Eleven years later Bishop Smith asked him to accept the vicarage of Penrith as well, and he held both livings in plurality until his death. A resolutely High Church Tory, Todd was frequently in controversy with William Nicolson (bishop of Carlisle from 1702). Their initial animosity, which predated Nicolson's shift from Tory to Whig, was probably due to jealousy between fellow antiquaries and professional rivalry. See Michael A. Mullett, A New History of Penrith Book III, Penrith in the Stuart Century 1603-1714 (Carlisle, 2018), 114-21, for a full analysis of the history of this rivalry. After several petty squabbles, Todd and the absentee dean, Francis Atterbury, questioned Bishop Nicolson's right of visitation, insisting that the cathedral statutes which allowed it were invalid. In 1708 the court of common pleas upheld their contention, but not before Todd had been excommunicated by Nicolson. The ecclesiastical establishment, alarmed by the limitations placed upon episcopal authority, hastened to secure a parliamentary bill to re-establish the episcopal right of visitation. After its passage the sentence of excommunication was removed.' See David Mawson, 'Todd, Hugh (c. 1657–1728), Church of England clergyman and antiquary'. ODNB. See also C.M.L Bouch, Prelates and People of the Lake Counties. A History of the Diocese of Carlisle 1133-1933 (Kendal, 1948), 296-302. Todd was an accomplished antiquary; along with William Nicolson and Machell, he contributed to William Gibson's edition of Camden's Britannia. See, for example, 'An Account of the Division of Cumberland by William the Conquerour amongst his Followers; taken out of two ancient Latin Manuscripts in the Library of the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle; carefully Collated by the Reverend Dr Hugh Todd', in Camden's Britannia, Newly Translated into English: with large additions and improvements by Edmund Gibson (London, 1695), 'Additions to Cumberland'.

[103] The outer sheet of Hugh Todd's letter.

[I.502]

Worthy neighbour!
I had most certainly waited on you and your Lady at your house, in my Returne; but that the weather was so very bad, that I was not able to weather the Point. I ha' done my Penance for the Neglect, or whatever it was, and hope you'l not deny me Absolution.[104] I shall be mighty carefull for the future, and Question not but to gain my Reputation, if ever my business here will allow me to pay my Respects where they are so highly due. Whenever my chain is broke, or taken off, or any way loose: you shall be sure to hear on't.
Your Inventory of Learned Goods belonging to this Country[105] is very Large; and if any of them be moveable, I should be glad to see them at this Place, when you do my Lord the favour of a Visit: but, if they're fixt to the Freehold, be assurd that I'le come to view them;[106] but when I shall be able, is not so certain to me, as that I am with the greatest sincerity
Your affectionate Obliged Friend & Brother, H. Todd.
Rose. Feb. 23 1686.

[I.503][107]

[8b.] [Thomas Machell to Hugh Todd, 24 February 1686.]

Sir
I Receiv'd your Complement stilo novo,[108] on the 23 Instant: But your Penance should have bin public & in the place where the Crime was Committed; & must be so (by a very hard entertanement here) before you can have a full Absolution. And ergo, though my Goods were not fixed, I should take an occasion to make them so; since I finde it may prove an happy \ effectual / meanes of bringing you hither, where \ yet / you may hope for all the favour That can be expected by such a Criminal. From, sir,
Your affectionate Brother and Servant
TM
Feb. 24, 1686.

Pray Give mine & my wife's due Respects to my Good Lord & my Lady Lowether; & lett her know That her God-Daughter's well, for whom I begg her Prayers & blessing. I hope to see you all very shortly under the Rose,[109] & then perhaps may step over with you to Mr Adams,[110] to whom in the meantime present my service, when your occasions call you to Carlile.

[9.] [From Sir Daniel Fleming to Thomas Machell, 9 February 1693/94.]

[II.143]

For the Reverend, & his much honoured friend Mr Thomas Machell, Rector of Kirkbythore thereat Kirkby-Thore.

---

[104] The letter is jocular, but Todd's use of these terms corresponds to contemporaneous rumours about his 'popish' views, expressed in the same year as this correspondence in a letter from Henry Fletcher to Sir Daniel Fleming (Oxford, 12 June 1686). 'We have a report here of Mr Todd's inclining to popery in several sermons in the country, and that the bishop has rebuked him for it.' See The Manuscripts of Sir S. H. le Fleming, Esq., of Rydal Hall, Historical Manuscripts Commission. Twelfth Report, Appendix, Part VII (London, 1890), 200.
[105] 'County'.
[106] David Mawson's assessment of Todd's antiquarian career is relevant here: 'Hugh Todd … has never really been accorded sufficient credit for his share in promoting the past. An able antiquarian, he was an energetic administrator, who, while a prebendary of Carlisle Cathedral, became a prime mover in re-establishing the Dean and Chapter library, which had been dispersed during the aftermath of the siege of the city in 1644-5. His bishop, Thomas Smith, and the Vice-Dean, Arthur Savage, were the first and largest benefactors of this new library, but where they made generous gifts of books and money, Todd for his part also deposited his own manuscript collections and accounts relating to the cathedral and the diocese'. D.J.W. Mawson, 'Dr Hugh Todd's Account of the Diocese of Carlisle', CW2, 88 (1988), 207-24, at 207.
[107] Machell's reply to Todd, copied onto the reverse of Todd's letter, continues the joke.
[108] 'In the new style.'
[109] At Rose Castle.
[110] John Adams, see the correspondence between Machell and Adams, below.

[II.145]

Rydal, Feb. 9. 93/94
Sir
Having often occasion to consult Dugdale's Baronage of England, I hope you'l be pleased to return mine hither as soon, & as safely, as you can. I am glad to know that you, Mr Arch-deacon and Mr Todd are concerned for Westmorland, Northumberland & Cumberland in the new edition of Mr Camden's Britannia.[111] Not doubting but that those three counties will be very well done, I long to hear of that book being published. I have here sent you a copy of a pedigree, which I omitted to deliver unto you at your being in this country, and which is more correct than that which was more hastily taken here by Sir William Dugdale. I wish we had any thing in these parts that would invite you to cross our mountains, your company being very acceptable unto
Sir
Your most faithful servant
Dan: Fleming.

[E.] [Correspondence with John Adams, cartographer. 1686/7][112]

[E1.] [John Adams to Thomas Machell, 18 December 1686.]

[I.522][113]

To the Reverend Mr Thomas Machell
These humbly present at
Kirkbythore

Carlile 18 December 1686

Reverend Sir
I hope that my misfortune will not be taken for a discharge of your kind promise, viz. to give me the Account of the Parish of Kirkbythore in the method I desired and to transmitt it to me with one of your proposals by the 12th of January next. the Account of Kirkland I have, and Ousby, Melmerby, and indeed all the Parishes of Cumberland are undertaken by several hands, I have made noe progress att all in the Bottome of Westmorland, having yet but two Parishes viz. St Wilfred de Burgham, {whether that be not the name of the chapple}[114] and the little Parish of Clifton, and therefore if you will procure me an Account \ of / the Parishes of Dufton, Long-marton, Newbiggin or any other Parishes in the Neighbourhood, or recommend ~~h~~ \ them / as you have opportunity to the Incumbents, I shall take it for a great favour. I saw Sir William Dugdale's Warwickshire at your house, and I have a great mind to bestow three Weeks upon that Book, I doe not think that there is an[other] of them in Westm' or Cumb', for I have made Application to the Bishop Mr Chance[...][115] who furnished me with Monasticon Anglicanum but want that. I know that the carriage […][116] troublesome, and that I am a prisoner and a stranger, and consequently I [shall] not take it ill if it be denyed me, but if you will favour me with the use of it for three Weeks I will give the Messenger who brings it a couple of shillings for the carriage and I hope not to die ungra[teful] for the kindness, and it shall be safely returned whenever you command.

---

[111] Camden's Britannia … with large additions and improvements by Edmund Gibson (London, 1695).
[112] John Adams (b. before 1670, d. 1738), was a surveyor and cartographer who worked with his brother, William. In 1677 he engraved on copper a map of England and Wales (177cm × 176cm) based on older maps but with the distance of each town from its nearest neighbours 'entered in figures in computed and measured miles'. To work in conjunction with the map, he published (1680) the Index Villaris, or, An alphabetical table of all cities, market-towns, parishes, villages, private seats in England and Wales (reprinted 1690 and 1700). It was compiled from sources such as hearth tax returns, navigational works, and works to aid land travellers, notably those of John Ogilby. See E. Baigent, 'Adams, John, cartographer'. ODNB. Machell was inspired by the Index Villaris when planning his History: see Machell's Preface, III.vii, V.3-11.
[113] Also numbered p.52.
[114] A margin-note in Machell's hand. All underscoring in this letter is in the same ink as Machell's margin comment, suggesting that Machell himself underlined key points.
[115] The page here has partly perished. The bishop was Thomas Smith but Adams might have been referring to Thomas Tullie (chancellor of the diocese from 1683), who later became dean of Carlisle.
[116] One word following this, has perished.

From
Your obliged humble servant
John Adams.[117]

[I.524]

[E2.] [Thomas Machell to John Adams. 8 January 1686/7.]

Jan. 8 1686/7

Sir
Yours of December the 18th I did not receive till this morning, but heard something of it by Mr Archdeacon and Mr Robinson at Edenhall on Thursday, who required if I had not received a line from you. Had it come sooner I should not have been soe slowe in answering it but might have taken the advantage of Christmas to have promoted your publick designe, though your misfortune has prevented my hopes (& I feare, will your expectations) of any farther subscription in these parts.[118] But it shall never make me unmindfull (nor in truth never did) of the promise I made to give you an account of Kirkbythore Parish: only I thought there was noe haste of it, untill your inlargement, which I long to hear of;[119] Because your Mape (as you rightly propose) can never be truely & accurately done without an actuall survey of the Countrey. And I could wish that more than ordinary paines were bestowed on Westmerland and Cumberland, both because of my love to my native soyle; & because it may be of advantage to me, & save me a labour if ever I should be prevail'd upon to muster up my scattered papers & write the Antiquities of these two Counties, which I am much Importun'd for to doe by some of good note: But must confesse, that both in regards of my owne insufficiency, & for other reasons best knowne to my selfe, I am not forward to undertake it, yet may perhaps leave something behind me to after ages which they may receive with more candour & kindnesse than the present will doe: For things of this nature, if writ without adulation & flattery (as Histories should be) are never acceptable to the present age. And it is to be feared that even your Mapes may disoblige many by inroling some in the Catalogues of Gentlemen who perhaps are none, & leaving out others who really \ are. / As for the booke you desire to borrowe, I have herewith sent it to Mr Shepherd, a friend of mine, who lives in Carlile & will bring it to you; In Lieu of which I desire the perusall of your Collections in the Barrony of Kendall, (which I suppose to be long since finished by reason of the long acquaintance which you have had in that part of the County of Westm'land.) And I hope to returne them with some advantage; I intended herewith to have sent you the Parish of Kirkbythore which I have finish'd but being much troubled with the tothach[120] & my papers removed from place to place, I have either lost or someway misplac'd it. But however, I hope to send or bring it in [117] In a letter to Daniel Fleming, written 12 March 1686/7, Adams expressed his candid opinion of Machell, while asking for Fleming's assistance at the forthcoming Carlisle sessions. 'Pardon me . . . for this rude scribble. I thought I should have died this Week and am now better and [. . .] like to live. It is my Earnest Request that you will favour an unfortunate stranger soe farr as upon his Account, to be at Carlile the evening before the Sessions and onely to appear upon the Bench upon the opening of the Sessions to do me Justice, and I hope my Affair will be dispatcht before the honorable Bench goe to dinner. My case I will send fully, by my boy, upon the 26th instant and then write more at large than my present indisposition will permit […] PS. How much Mr Machel resents my design the inclosed will declare, which I pray when the packet is returned make it a parcel, for really if he refuses his assistance I will print it and make a diverting piece of Raillary upon it …' See Blake Tyson, 'John Adams's cartographic correspondence to Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal Hall, 1676-1687', Geographical Journal 151, 1, March 1985, 37.

[118] Subscription: raising money to publish by seeking subscribers to the volume.

[119] Inlargement: release from confinement or bondage. OED. In 1680, John Adams had published the Index Villaris, designed to be used with his large map, see above. After its publication, Adam prepared to write another book of maps which demanded a general survey of the country. He collected subscriptions throughout England towards its publication, and promised that the completed work would contain illustrations of country houses and towns painted by professional artists; but he delivered nothing. He was imprisoned in Carlisle when surveying Cumberland during part of 1686-87 – almost certainly for debt – for his survey appears to have placed him in financial difficulties. Blake Tyson (see above) sees his actions as those of a 'brave idealist struggling to fulfil a project obviously beyond the resources of a private individual, a whole century before the national effort to map Britain accurately'. Undeterred, while imprisoned Adams started to work on the history of Cumberland and Westmorland, utilising the books and manuscripts of local antiquaries. His letters to Machell boast of these contacts. As seen in his letters, Machell regarded Adams with suspicion, refusing to release his manuscripts to him. Tyson's article tells some of this story, but the correspondence with Adams in Machell's Volume I, explains it further.

[120] 'Toothache'.

convenient time if in the interim you doe not visit me, which is much the desire of ~~your friend & servant~~
Your friend & servant
Thomas Machell
I cannot, till I be free from this paine, take any care, either of your concernes, or mine owne.

[I.526]

[E3.] [Thomas Machell to Mr Shepherd, concerning John Adams: 8 & 17 January 1686/7.]

[E3a.]
Jan. 8.
Mr Sh[epherd][121]
I received a Letter on Satterday last from Mr Adams who desires to borrow my Dugdal's Warwickshire for 3 weeke's space. And I have sent it to you, hopeing that you will deliver it to him, & take care to transmit it to me. I could be a great Assistant to him if I [had] health & leisure, & might be anyway recompenc'd for it; but otherwise have business enough \ to doe / of my own. Be sure you take special care of my Booke; for I would not spare it but to such an one as him, whose misfortune as well as inclination (being at least a lover of Antiquities), makes me have the more kindeness for him. I am in great haist.
Your affectionate friend
Tho: Machell

[E3b.]
Jan. 17: This night a friend is com to my house who will bring the Booke to you, which has already layd a week at Nell Langhorn's. And I am glad of the opportunity, because it will save Mr Adams some money.
post script. com sensu.[122]

[I.513]

[E4.] [John Adams to Thomas Machell, 24 January 1686/7.]

To the truly Reverend and much esteemed Thomas Machell
Rector of Kirkby Thore Westmorland these humbly present
Post paid 2[d] Kirkbythore.[123]

[I.514][124]

Carliol 24 January 1686/7
Reverend Sir
Upon the 20[th] instant I received yours dated the 8[th] instant, together with D[ugdale] Vol. of Warwick from Mr Shepherd, & about an ~~other~~ hour after another from my Lord the Bishop to my great surprize: but upon recollection I apprehended that the reason was this. I did believe that my letter written to you before Christmas, had miscarried, and being an unfortunate prisoner, did distrust my Interest with you to obtain that book. Therefore, to support my credit, I did write to Rose the 15[th] instant humbly requesting that his Lordship's secretary would write to you in that Affair, and it seems [121] Richard Shepherd was licensed as Machell's curate in December 1680. A Richard Shipherd [sic] is recorded as a schoolmaster at Carlisle Free Grammar School in 1682. In 1689, a Richard Shepherd became rector of Cliburn, remaining there until his death in 1739. These men appear to be one and the same, as a 'Mr Shipherd the trustee' is mentioned in a letter written by Machell's brother, Lancelot, relating to Thomas Machell's will. It appears, then, that Richard Shepherd (Shipherd) was probably living in Carlisle when Machell needed help to deliver his book to John Adams. See Hudleston, 'Thomas Machell, his wife and children, 122, 136; see also Kirkby Thore; Carlisle Free Grammar School; Cliburn. CCED.

[122] Latin abbreviation: 'with consent'.
[123] 'Rates for carrying letters: For the port of every Letter not exceeding one sheate to or from any place not exceeding fowerscore English miles distant from the place where such Letter shall be received Two pence' From 'An Act for Erecting and Establishing a Post Office' (1660): Statutes of the Realm, Vol. 5 (1628-80), Great Britain Record Commission (1819). British History online https://www.british-history.ac.uk/statutes-realm/vol5/pp297-30.
[124] Some parts of this letter have been underlined in different ink, probably by Machell.

his Lordship having the Book himselfe (which was more then I did know) did take the sending the same to me to be the more expeditious way. So that now having two books, I begg leave to keep yours untill I see or hear from you, I will return my Lord's and have another in Lieu thereof, which I the rather desire because in the close of your letter, you hint that you will send or bring the Account of Kirkby Thore, and I assure you, upon my Faith, that I shall esteem an intimate acquaintance with you as the greatest happiness I cann meet with in the North of England.
As to my inlargement, if the person that putt me in prison did write to the sheriff to set me free, yet I would not leave this City until the 25th of March 1688, which is near a year and quarter. Pardon me (worthy sir) that I acquaint you I have openly declared to my Acquaintance here and sent letters to severall of my correspondents, that I have undertaken (to the best of my industry and \ according to the / information I shall receive from men of candour and honesty) to publish a Treatise of the Antient and Moderne state of Cumberland as an evidence of my Vigilie in prison. I long to show you my Apparatus, which is first my collections out of Mon. Angl.,[125] which Volumes have perfectly reconciled me to the Antiquary learning, which before I slighted, regarding it nothing but the modern state, secondly by the collections of Mr Denton of Cardew written tempore Elizabeth, which I conceive are considerable, and, third, A Treatise of Tenant-Right, cornage tenure, Border Service, the union of the kingdoms and manner of Country keeping, & remarks upon the stat[ute] to prevent Great Theft and rapine in the Northern parts, all written by Thomas Denton of Warnell Esq., who was with me last night and promised me the full perusal thereof;[126] \ ~~with~~ / which together with the promised Assistance of Mr Archdeacon & Mr Todd,[127] will be materials to build something rough or a model at least, and if I may prevaile with your selfe to digest methodise, smooth and polise the promisses, probably I may bring all to a happy conclusion. As to change (though a prisoner) my own fortune is not soe narrow but that I shall find enough to goe through this worke, and I resolve not to putt the Gentlemen of this or your County to one farthing charge, for a substantial reason expressed in your letter, viz. I will doe it without adulation and flattery, for instance, in speaking of the family of Lowther of Lowther for the sake of a considerable estate in Burgh Barony &c. & for that he is the chief of Lowther of Whitehaven, I will reject as foolish and idle a tradition in that family that 30 males all K[nights] or B[arons] (whereas the father of Sir John now living was neither, because he died in vita patris) were in a lineal descent from father to son married to soe many wives, and because he has given me the names of the wives, therefore the tradition is true, but say I very false, for either Sir John shall Acknowledge that ~~four~~ six or 7 of his Ancestors married two Wives, or that soe many younger brothers came in for want of issue by the elder, and if this be not granted I will explode his Account as frivolous, and take occasion from thence to putt this Test or Siboleth[128] upon all pedegrees from the Conquest to this day that if the number exceeds 25 descents, that pedigree is mistaken, for I never yet mett with an Authentick pedigree that did reach 24, and as I take it, the daughters of ~~an~~ \ our / King Aurange & Denmarke are the 21st descent from the Conqueror, this I rather hint & offer to your thoughts as a novelty which when I discoursed with Sir William Dugdale he could not make it sink into his head, but that the descents might be about forty, though in all the pedegrees he produced, the number fell out still \ to / between 18 and 24. Yet I doe confess that there may be about 40, nay 50, of a name that shall inherit an estate*, especially if such cases happen as in the surname of Valence where 5 brothers (which I call but one Descent) successively inherited & all died s. p., and I pray God the like instance may not be neerer home in the family of Tufton, Earl of Thanet &c.

[I.515]

---

[125] Dugdale, Monasticon.
[126] For John Denton (c.1561-1617) and his distant relative Thomas Denton (1637-1698), see M. Wane & A. Winchester, 'Denton, John (b. in or before 1561, d. 1617), antiquary'. ODNB. For Machell's own copy of John Denton's manuscript: 'An accompt of the most considerable estates and families in the county of Cumberland', see Machell MS.VI.146-76. For published transcriptions of John and Thomas Denton's Histories, see Angus J.L. Winchester (ed.), John Denton's History of Cumberland, Surtees Soc. 213, CWAAS Record Series XX (Woodbridge, 2010); Angus J.L. Winchester and Mary Wane (eds), Thomas Denton: A Perambulation of Cumberland, 1687-8, including descriptions of Westmorland, the Isle of Man and Ireland, Surtees Soc. 207, CWAAS Record Series XVI (Woodbridge, 2003).
[127] Archdeacon (later bishop) of Carlisle, William Nicolson, and prebendary of Carlisle, Hugh Todd. For their feud, see above.
[128] Shibboleth: The Hebrew word used by Jephthah as a test-word by which to distinguish the fleeing Ephraimites (who could not pronounce the sh) from his own men the Gileadites (Judges 12. 4-6). OED.

Another instance I shall give in the family of Fletcher of Hutton, that the flourishing fortune of that family ~~is owing~~ is a debentur to god's blessing upon the ~~honest~~ endeavours of Richard Fletcher of Cockermouth mercer or Chapman about the later end of the Reigne of Queen Elizabeth and beginning of K. James, his Reigne. but I will forbear to call him petty-chapman as I find him in Denton the Antiquary's book sub lituto. Villa Wythope, hodie Widhope, and without flattery I will express this in honest civil plain English. And I will not scruple to tell the world that Henry Dacre Esq. is the 6th son in descent from a natural son of the Lord Dacre. Ex pede Herculem &c.[129] And perhaps when I have finished the Treatise I may proceed in the Map.[130] I humbly ~~tak~~ thank you for all your favours and long for your Account of Kirkbythore. It is not soe Bulky but It may be sent by post, but if brought by your selfe the favour would be so much the more to

(Reverend Sir)
Your most obliged humble servant
John Adams
{*Have ever bin of the same opinion in the main tho not critically Ped. up to that number}[131]

[I.516]

[E5.] [Thomas Machell to John Adams, 26 January 1686/7.]

Kirkbythore
Jan. 26 1686

Sir
Yours of the 24th of this Instant I did not receive till The last night, having bin from home. As for my booke, it shall be att your service, either till I come downe for a Monthly space, tho' I cannot well spare it. I am much obliged to you for the greate esteeme you are pleased to have of my acquaintance, & wish I may deserve it at your hands: but to deale plainly & ingeniously with you, it cannot be expected from me (tho' I will not discourage you) that I should be as forward in promoting This, your private designe, as I am in your publick; because it intrenches upon my owne province; and I should be blamed by many of my friends and acquaintances (especially att Oxford who claime some sort of right in my labours) If I should communicate what I knowe & have writ, concerning the Antiquities of Westmerland and Cumberland to any stranger; & he his Assistant, in fishing (as we say) before my owne net. Your apparatus is very considerable: all which (excepting Mr Dentons booke, which that worthy gentleman was pleased to proffer me, & which I knew I could have att any time) I might have showne you in my owne study: Sc. An Extract of all that relates unto these two Countyes out of Dugdal's Monasticon;[132] a transcript of Mr Denton's Antiquities of the County of Cumberland: & another essay of the same nature (Begun but not finished) in a smarter style \ as prepar'd for the Press; Another cursory & ingenious account upon the same subject in a more jocose stile/ by an unknown hand.[133] And besides all these I have many more, which I shall not scruple to mention to you. Sc. A Collection of all or most of the Coates of Armes, together with the pedigrees, of the Gentry in these parts; which I extracted in my younger years (with much paines & ~~at~~ \ no little / Cost,) out of all the bookes in the Heralds' Office; Mr Sheldon's Library; Dr Knights study; & all that the Herald painters afford \ ed / in London, & Yorke: which I designd to correct & adjust by the writeings & evidences of the surviving families. I have alsoe ready ~~by me~~, an exact account of the foundations & endowments of all, or most, free schooles in the Diocesse: the valuation & present patrones of every parsonage & vicarage in it. A booke of the Sheriffs of Westmorland & Cumberland from the days of K. Henry the second till of late years, & a platforme of Appleby (the shire towne of Westmorland) drawne by my self, with an account of its Antiquities all the inscriptions att the school-house there (excepting ones which I could not come att): all the Monuments which are in Camden,[134] & severall Altars, Coynes &c: which have been found since.

[129] 'Ex pede Herculem': Literally, 'Hercules is measured from his foot;' less literally, a guess or an assumption, or an extrapolation about the whole from the part.
[130] Machell has added a question mark in the left-hand margin at the beginning of the sentence 'and perhaps …'
[131] Machell's margin comment.
[132] Dugdale, Monasticon.
[133] Machell was possibly referring to Edmund Sandford's, 'A Cursory Relation of All the Antiquities and Familyes in Cumberland', a copy of which can be found in Machell's MS.VI (540-69).
[134] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 761-73.

I have alsoe reade over All or most of the writeings which did belong to the family of the Cliffords of Apelby Castle, Barrons of Westmorland & Earles of Cumberland; with some others alsoe of very ancient & worthy families (besides our owne), from which I have many remarkable passages. And not to mention what supplies are afforded out of the severall Register Bookes of Bishop Halton, \ the / Priory of Weatherhall, & the two famous Abbyes of Holm & Hepe.

[I.517]

I have alsoe perused Doomesday Booke, & the Red Booke, which are in the Exchequer; Inspected Rolls-Chapple & the Tower of London, which were (long since)[135] laid open to me by Sir Joseph Williamson, then Secretary of State & fellow (with me) of Queens Colledge in Oxford; who would take it unkindly if I should not make some use of that favour, but bestowe the printes of it upon another.[136]

And ~~that~~ \ least / I might have missed of any thing worth observation, in my general viewe: I tooke the paines (after all this) to examine no~~n~~ lesse than \ 62 / folio \ & Quarto MS / in the possession of Sir William Dugdale, which were collected (as I suppose by Mr Prin) out of the Tower;[137] And Thence extracted such notes, as I thought made for my purpose. To conclude, I have alsoe a greate many draughts (by my owne hand) of severall Castles, fortifications & other Antiquities which occur in these Counties; And in truth want not anything which I can thinke of, excepting one booke I have long hunted after, called Cronicon Cumbriæ; I doe not mean that page which we meet with in Wetherhall Register, but a MS Booke bearing that name, which Sir William Dugdale first told me of, & which (or should be) in the possession of a Northern Gentleman who has bin long time out of the kingdom. {Sir Henry Goodrick; it was old Sir Henry.}[138]

These are my materials: & if I had met with a kind reception among my relations (the Gentry of the Countrey) & but any returne (tho' never so sleight) from the Country Ministrey, to the Queries I sent there (which were design'd partly to assist Dr Plot my friend and consociate in his Natural History; partly to gather where ancient writeings, & other ancient Antiquities might be seen by me; but principally, to gaine the Topographies (or locall description) of these two sister-counties to which I might refer my collections. I have long since finished what you are beginning (& what I have made such progresse in) tho' I am not hasty to appeare in print for the reasons I gave you in my former letter; But whether you thinke it worthe your while to proceede or not, I highly applaud your ingenious humor in sleighting Fables, & rejecting scurrilliry. For men should be cautious (strangers especially) that they be not imposd on. & truth is noe worse for being attyr'd in a comly dresse. Gentlemen should be gently dealt with, & what ever seems to reflect upon them should be related with candour & modesty, which I ever propose to my selfe, as a Rule.

What you observe concerning pedigrees, you may remember I concurr'd with you in it, at the first proposall before you made your Notion knowne to me, declaring the space of thirty years a convenient distance for a descent, which (in the maine), agrees with your Test.

[I.518]

And tho' I doe not confine my beliefe in this affair to the criticall number of soe many descents from the Conquest till now, because some may marry sooner than others, which makes a great difference; yet I doe declare, that I never observed above twenty-five in any true pedigree, whose epocha begins from the Conquest. But you must expect to meet with many that are false & spuriouse; for I have read somewhere (& I thinke it was in the Heralds' Office, or Dr Knights study) that there was a mendicant, illiterate fellow, went about in these parts makeing false pedigrees: & I have found it true by experience, having had occasion to correct some of them for the Heralds themselves; who were pleased to thinke me (how truely I question) the most proper man for that undertaking, as being borne in the same Countrey, & one who had applyed my selfe in my younger yeares, to understand the Antiquities of it. And therefore the rather, because I confined my roaving fancy (not dareing to [135] Brackets added in different ink.

[136] Sir Joseph Williamson (1633-1701), see above, VI.518.

[137] William Prynne was Keeper of Records in the Tower of London from 1660 to 1669: William Lamont, 'Prynne, William (1600-1669), pamphleteer and lawyer.' ODNB.

[138] The margin comment relating to Sir Henry Goodricke is written in pencil in a hand other than Machell's. It probably refers to Sir Henry Goodricke of Ribston Hall in North Yorks, MP for Boroughbridge from 1673 until his death in 1705, apart from a period spent as British Envoy Extraordinary to Spain (1679-1683). J. Davies, 'Goodricke, Sir Henry, second baronet (1642–1705), diplomat and politician'. ODNB.

lau[n]ch out into the ocean as you have done) within the Brëas of Westmerland & Cumberland,[139] to the former of which I was endeared by the fathers side; to the latter by the mothers; & to both by the ancient estate & patrymoney of my progenitors {Sc. The Lordship of Crakenthorp in Westmerland beyond[d] any record. And Lazenby & Kirkoswald in Cumberland, ~~from~~ where wee have yet Tenaments from about the Reigne of King Edward 2.}
You see Sir how free I am with you; & I hope you will not take it ill (for the reasons alledged) to be denyed my helpe & assistance in your new designe; which is in a manner Actum agere;[140] but if I can serve you in the other (which is worke enough for any one man to complete in one age) you may command, Sir,
Your very affectionate friend and servant
Thomas Machell[141]

I do intend, shortly, to wait on the Bishop, and then (if I can) will pay you a visit. & because you cannot come to Kirkbythore, will make Kirkbythore come down to you. In the mean time I must reminde you of my former request, about you[r] Collections in the Barony of Kendall, concerneing which you gave me no Answer.

Qu[aere] in the Registry at Carlile; whether it be the church or chapel at Browham, which is dedicated St Wilfridd.[142]

[I.512]

[E6.] [John Adams to Thomas Machell, 7 February 1686/7.]

Carliol. 7 Feb. 1686
Reverend Sir
I send you this after the next post after the receipt of yours of the 26th instant and humbly thank you for your ingenious freedome in plainly declaring what I am to trust to, if I proceed in the description of Cumberland in the way of an Antiquary: and all that I shall at present say upon that Account, is, that then I must bewaile my own misfortune, in wanting the help of so able an hand, and must be content to offer some slight touches of the first century after the Conquest, whereas if I might have had your Aid, the body of my discourse would probably have growne to perfect simmetry, in full proportion and Garniture, whereas now, being left forlorne, I much doubt I shall fright the world with my spectrum, and I think myselfe obliged to Acquaint England that the Chasme of five hundred years in my work will be supplied by an excellent pen and, probably, be hereafter sent for a Token to their children's children.
Worthy, Sir you put me in hopes of seeing you in Carlile, and if then I doe not satisfye you that there is a necessity upon me to appear in print (unless I will absolutely give over all thoughts of my survey) and that the Territory where providence has (against my will) placed me is as proper a subject for my discourse as any other, I will be ready to desist, and bestow my Industry elsewhere. The modern Account, if I mistake not, you think falls within my proposals, and therefore I desire that you will according to your kind promise be pleased to bring or send me the Account of Kirkby Thore, ~~as~~ as alsoe your promised paper of Queries in lieu of my proposals. As to your Volume of Warwick, It is at your service againe with my thanks, for I have leave to keep by me my Lord's Book, and It shall be delivered acording the first order therein sent to
Reverend Sir
Your most obliged and faithful humble servant
John Adams 2/87

[139] 'Brea' as in 'brae': a steep, a slope, a hillside; in the north a 'hill' is always a mount with a summit, and with slopes or 'braes' [breas] on all sides of it. OED.
[140] 'Actum agere': to have all one's trouble for nothing.
[141] Here the handwriting changed, as if Machell had signed the letter and added a postscript.
[142] This sentence is placed below the postscript, but, unlike the letter, has been written in Machell's usual hand.

{Four days since I received Sir Daniel Fleming's remarks upon the Barony of Kendal and, indeed, all Westmorland but cannot part with the manuscript out \ of / my custody unless I have his directions therein.}[143]

[F. Personal Notes, reused by Machell as note-paper for his research]

[III.51]

[F1.] [London visit, 1689.]

London, September 9th '89.
Yesterday orderd that Dr Bury be thanked for his sermon and desierd to print it.[144]
The Ingrost Bill[145] intituled an Stat[ute] declareing the rights of the Subs […][146] & settling the succession of the Crown read thrice & past the House.[147]

[II.341B]

[F2.] [Part of a torn letter relating to a Court Case, 1692.]

Administrations to take that they appear at Appleby the 14th of June hopeing you will grant the desine of Sir your assured servant William Smith.[148]

Appelbye the 26th of May (92)

Sir our Court day is Tho[rsday] 15th of June
I heard noe thing of your Corant Nomine […][149]

[I.509B][150]

[F3.] [A haberdashery shopping list, undated.]

8 yrds ½ qtr black serge[151]	2s 4d
½ yrd Drught[152]	9½
2 yrds dimitte[153]	12d
6 yrds firritt[154]	2s

[143] Fleming was a supporter of Adam, subscribing to his published work: see Tyson, 'John Adams's cartographic correspondence to Sir Daniel Fleming', 21-39, particularly at 37; see also Sowerby and McCormack, The Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming, 180-81, 193-94.
[144] Possibly Dr Arthur Bury (1623/4-1713) of Exeter College, Oxford. A Royalist, in 1648 Bury was deprived of his fellowship, but after the Restoration Charles II ensured that he become rector of the college. Machell would have admired Bury's loyalty to the Crown but a year after delivering the sermon that apparently pleased Machell so much, Bury was accused of writing anti-trinitarian literature and deprived of his office. As Machell was such a conservative figure, this aspect of Bury's theological position would clearly have displeased him. Hence, the attribution of Arthur Bury is tentative. See J. Benedict, 'Bury, Arthur (1623/4-1713), college head and writer on theology'. ODNB.
[145] Engrossed or ingrossed: written out large, written in a legal hand; expressed or incorporated in a legal document. OED.
[146] One word is illegible here.
[147] The Bill of Rights 1688: 'an Act declareing the Rights and Liberties of the Subject and Setleing the Succession of the Crowne': https://www.legislation.gov.uk/aep/WillandMarSess2/1/2/introduction.
[148] William Smith was cler. Pocciatem, the town clerk of Appleby. He was mayor in 1667 and 1673 and a supporter of the Tufton candidate in the 1679 election, see Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, III.55, I.209, I.211. See also https://applebytown.org/wp-content/uploads/2020/08/MAYORS-OF-APPLEBY-PDF.pdf.
[149] 'Current nominee'. the next words are obliterated by a hole in the paper but begin, 'Coming up your […]?
[150] Reverse of 509A: a haberdashery list.
[151] A woollen fabric. Before the 16th century it was mentioned chiefly as material for hangings, bed-covers etc.; afterwards it was said to be worn by men and women of the poorer classes, perhaps rather on account of its durability than of its price, which seems not to have been extremely low. OED.
[152] 'Drugget': a heavy cloth of wool, or of a mixture of wool and silk or wool and linen, used chiefly for clothing. OED.
[153] 'Dimitte' (dimity): a stout cotton fabric woven with raised stripes or fancy figures; usually used undyed for beds and bedroom hangings, and sometimes for garments. OED.
[154] 'Ferret': a stout tape most commonly made of cotton, but also of silk; then known as Italian ferret; also ferret ribbon. OED.

white Inkle[155]	2[d]
browne Inkle	2[d]
3 yrds blacke Riben	2
5 yrds black gallowne[156]	2s [?]
1 centrum pines 7
1 centrum pines 6[157]
1 qtr ½ silke 6, white filliting[158]	3[d]
1 f. thred
6 hookes	1½
2 f. browne thred,
2 f. blacke thred,
4 Glover thred […][159]
Coate prices ~~2~~ \ 1 /
3 dozen Curtine Ringe,	3
1 yrd Linn[en]	12
Lac'es	1

[I.3]

[F4.] [An Oxford [?] Ribbon Seller, undated]

~~Smyth a ribben seller in Inges~~ […] ~~Entery Magdalen parish~~[160]

[I.553B]

[F5.] [Invoice, Spring 1686.]

That his mother had 8? given by him – Ergo: a mort. If he was at Cost with housekeeping; or

Became part in it; q. of Sand[erson]	0: 3: 4.
My foe[161] for his brothers will so due upon his mothers account	0: 2: 0.
My foe for her will	0: 2: 0.
My foe for her Apprisements &c.[162]	0: 2: 0.
Inventory due for her mortuary	0: 3: 4.[163]

[F6.] [Invoice, March 14 1686/7.]

Thom. Bushby clames since his time 12 month malt sold & B	5: 6.
Oates drying L.[164] Bushels at 1	0: 4: 2.
Malt[165] at twice xxiv \ at 4[d] /	0: 8: 0.
Big Malt xi & ½ }
& — vii ½ } xix at 4[d]	0: 6: 4.
Mor B \ Feb. 86 / xiv at 4	0: 4: 8.

[155] 'Inkle': a kind of linen tape, used for various purposes. OED.
[156] 'Galloon': a kind of narrow, close-woven ribbon or braid of gold, silver, or silk thread, used for trimming articles of clothing; a trimming of this material. OED.
[157] 'Centrum': 'the centre', from which comes the word 'concentration'; thus, one could loosely give the meaning as, 'a packet of pins size 7 and a packet of pins, size 6', see William W. Smith, A Complete Etymology of the English Language (New York and Chicago, 1873), 307.
[158] 'Filleting': a woven material for binding; tape; a band or bandage. OED.
[159] The last part of this sentence is obscured by the binding.
[160] Anthony Wood's Antient and Present State of the City of Oxford refers to 'Magdalen Parish' and to Inge's or Igge's Hall. Brasenose College's full name is 'The King's Hall and College of Brasenose in Oxford (see https://www.bnc.ox.ac.uk/about-brasenose/history/archives/history). Anthony Wood also refers to Oxford's lanes and passages (often between the colleges) as 'entries', Anthony Wood and J. Peshall, The Antient and Present State of the City of Oxford (Later Edition, London, 1773), 51-52.
[161] Part of this word has perished.
[162] Apprisement: the action of setting a value upon; appraisement. OED.
[163] The rest of this invoice has perished at the page foot.
[164] Unclear symbol.
[165] An unclear word appears before 'malt'.

Wheat 2 pecks at 2s	0: 3: 8
~~B Malt a Bushel~~	~~0: 5: 6.~~
& 2 more Borrowed
Eggs 1s	0: 2: 0.
	1:14: 4

[I.767A] [166]

[F7.] [Candle Requirements. Undated]

T.M.
E Lib V.[167] Jo. Middleton
Tui Nov. 3.
Chandles bespoke of him.
Nov. 7. Ric[eive]d from him upon the Bargain aforesaid Lib VI of Candles. Qu. how much tallow delivered to Nell Langhorne.

[I.324A]

[F8.] [Receipt, 1678.]

Marton 1678[168]
April 20th
Received of Robert Appleton the sum of ten pounds in full for halfe a year's augmentation due & ended.
Lady Day last I say received by me Henry Allain, vicar of the same: £10.

[I.442B]

[F9.] [Machell's Expenses at York, 1679/80.][169]

{Enter} A note of expences at York sent to me Feb. 6th – 1679-80.

Sum tot. (Beside my Letters)	2-19-01
more To Council	0-10-00
more given	0-01-00
more spent	0-03-06

[V.18B]

[F10.] [Fragment of a letter (from an anonymous correspondent) to Thomas Machell: written on the reverse of V.18A]

But you and I shall talke more of it when I see you here, which is much the desire of [Blank]
My brother is bringing up his eldest for to study the law some time this summer. I wish that could help to a rich heiress, he being a very pretty youth and the chiefe of their family.

[III.90A]

[F11.] [Address Page]

For John Jones at the Signe of the Angell in Petty France West, London.

[166] The reverse of this page is paginated VI.767B. It contains one part of a household shopping list (not in Machell's hand) with prices. For example, 'rasons 5d; currants 5d… Brandy 2-4 was 3 – 2s 7d.' Unfortunately, only the right-hand half of the information has been retained, as the page had been cut to perform other uses. Consequently, it has not been placed in the body text.
[167] 'Libra', a Latin word for pound, both weight and money; the weight measure was usually shortened to 'lb'.
[168] MS: '1768', but as the text is in Machell's hand, the numbers have presumably been transferred.
[169] See also MS.V.312A, 'Bills of expences of Doctor Henry Machell, his owne hand or his mans as I suppose.'

[I.176B]

[F12.] [Evidence of multiple use.][170]

Figure 3.2.4. Evidence of multiple use. I.176B.

Remember Hodgsons Letter.[171]
John Dalston Booke.

[II.36B]

[F.13] Paper scrap, 18cm by 14cm: the reverse of a sealed letter. Comparisons made between two seals, one of them in Kendal church, are written on the reverse.

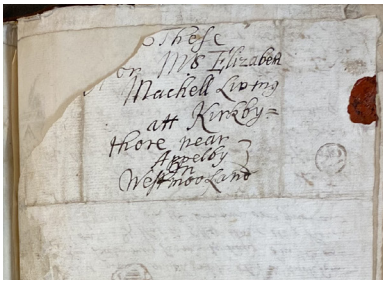

Figure 3.2.5. Letter addressed to Mrs Elizabeth Machell. II.36B.

'These for Mrs Elizabeth Machell living att Kirkby-thore near Appelby In Westmooland'.[172]

[I.174A]

[F.13.] [Personal and antiquarian memoranda, together on the same page]

Burton's Itinerarium. Blatum Burgu[m] \ p. 114. / is taken by Josias Simler for Abalaba, a station in Cumberland, of which see more out of the Notitia of the Western Empire: Mr Pattison at the Read Hart in Fetter Lane.
Mr John Hixon in St Anns Lane near Westminster has an organ cost 60li and offers to sell it to Skipton for 30li. See it for his servant E. Gudgeon.[173]
Write to my mother about the boy-riket syrrup. Sell Corne.
! Quaere de serv[itio] forinseco. Serv[icium] seculare. Lib[eratio] ab omni serv[icio] secul[ari].[174]

[170] The main image is one of Machell's maps, but who drew the fishing net is a mystery. On the reverse (MS.I.176A) is a map of Appleby with the name 'John Machell' written near the margin. It is not Machell's hand and appears to be an immature signature.
[171] In Machell's hand.
[172] Written as seen.
[173] For Machell's part in the purchase and installation of an organ at St Lawrence, Appleby, see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.538, I.548.
[174] 'Ask about foreign service'. 'Ask about secular service'. 'Ask about freedom from all secular service'.

Quid in Blatum-Burgum nomen dant – loco in Apeby vulgo vocato Battleburgh. Per metastasin Literarum T.M. Ibi enim est vetus A[pleby]?[175]

[I.174B]

Caryer: White House, 27 April.

[175] Here, Machell wants to know about the origin of the name Battelburgh and whether it is actually the name of old Appleby. Machell has used the term 'metastasis' in place of the more commonly used 'metathesis', to comment on the transposition of letters in words. He seems to be thinking particularly of the T in Blat / Battl and the M in Burgum, which has not actually been transposed but simply changed. [Is it a coincidence that T.M. are his own initials?]

Part 3. Further Collections

[Chapter 3]

Roman Antiquities

[VI.214]

Figure 3.3.1. Roman Finds. VI.21.

[A1. 1684][1]

[Thomas Machell's research findings presented in a letter to Sir William Dugdale]
[Published in Philosophical Transactions, 14 April 1684]

[VI.200]

Here put in the let[ter] to Sir William Dugdall.[2]

[Philosophical Transactions 14, 158 (20 April 1684), 555-58.][3]

A Letter from Mr. Thomas Machel of Kirkbythore in Westmorland to Sr. W. D. March 25, 1684. concerning some Antiquities found there.

Your love to Antiquity, and my Obligations to you are such that I cannot omit to give you an Account of a strange Well, discovered here about a week since by the foot of an Horse which stumbled upon it; and therefore may be called the 'Fountain Hypocrene.' Tis in the Street of Kirkbythore by the Bridge-end, on the North side of the River Trout-Beck, the Antient Boundary twixt the Lordship of Crackanthorp (my Brothers Estate) and this of Kirkbythore, and is about ten yards distant from it, in the common Road; and as many yards distant from the Great Roman Causey which leads to Carlile, and goes betwixt it and a place called the Burwens, being part of the Ruines of Whelp-Castle, on the East side of it: And 'tis very strange that a Well should be digged so near to the River, unless perhaps the Castle-walls have gone betwixt them and the way run through it; as at Maiden-Castle on the top of Stanemore.

It hath been covered with a Plank of wood about nine inches thick, in the fashion of a Potlid: but decayed and macerated to the colour and consistance of a Peat, or Turf; insomuch that I could hardly conjecture what wood it was made of but I suppose Oake. And above this was gravel and pavement about a yard thick, which (being tendered by the late great Frost and swelling of the Spring): easily gave way to the Horses foot.

Instead of wall were two large wooden vessels, one upon another, like Hogsheads or Wine-pipes with Bung-holes in them, about three inches Diameter: and the plowings for the heads were fair to be seen. They were made of Firr (whencesoever they came), above an inch thick each of them in depth, by a Perpendicular, 6 foot at the least at the heads, in circumference no less then 8 foot, being in Diameter 2 foot and 8 inches; and in the middle 10 foot and 4 inches, being in Diameter no less then 3 foot 5 inches and ⅓. The wood was found but withal very spongy by reason of the water. At the bottom about 5 yards deep, were 4 Planks of wood laid quadrangular wise, supported with a stone at every Corner, to bear up the Fabric and let in Water through the gravel and sand, which lay loose in the bottom about a yard deeper, as was tried by a Spit, and these also found (though the Cover was rotten) because not so much exposed to the Air.

The men that scearched it, having my permission (for it lies on my side of the high way) flattered themselves with great hopes of some Treasure when they saw the Hogshead set on end: and their expectation was therefore the stronger because they could not possibly imagine that a Well should be placed in an open Street in a publick high way and so near to the River, but they only found Fabritian

[1] In this chapter, Machell's research results are presented in approximate date order.
[2] A pencilled note of instruction which was not followed at the time, but see Machell's draft letter at A2, below (VI.280). His actual letter was printed in Philosophical Transactions 14, 158, 555-58, in 1684. The version presented here is a downloaded transcription of the letter with accompanying illustrations as they appeared in the journal.
[3] https://royalsocietypublishing.org.

Plate:[4] old earthen-Vessels, with pieces of Urne, one piece of a drinking glass and several Sandals, which may serve to bespeak the Antiquity of it, for sure 'tis long since any Sandals were worn in this Country.

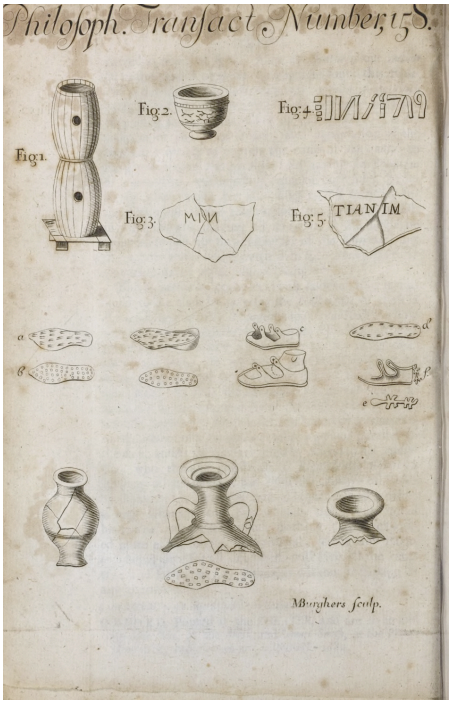

Figure 3.3.2. Illustration from Thomas Machell's letter to William Dugdale, March 25 1684, 'which was published to my unknowledge & printed at Oxford, amongst your Philosophic Transactions, Apr. 20 at p.555.'

The earthen-Vessel were of very fine Metal (if I may so call it) of a Brick like colour, and in several Forms: But the most (and most remarkable) were, like a Bason or Posset-Cup, the Bowl, semiglobular; the foot, a Ring: Some were in Diameter about 8 inches, and in depth on the inside, more then 3½, some more, some less, as appeared by the Fragments which came to my hand. They were (for the most part) very finely imbossed, but three more especially, viz. 1. One with a Vine branch, having a Figure in every turning, and in the first place a naked Man standing alone upon his left foot, the other leg cross, and holding his left hand down towards his back, his right towards his belly, with a branch of Lawrel of 3 sprigs in it, one of which turns up to his face-wards over the crooke or bending of his Arm; and at his feet is a Branch of a Blossom or Flower. In the next is a Vine-leaf, 2 Blossoms at the bottom; and at the top 2 Peacocks regardant. In the next is Victory (as 1 take it), viz. an Angel or Genius holding in its right hand (the Arm stretched out, and the face looking towards the Man) a Garland of Lawrel; in the left, a Sprig of the same; and two sprigs likewise are at the foot with Flowers or Blossoms, and one Flower in the middle betwixt the Garland and one of those sprigs. In the next is a Vine- leaf the same as before; in the next is Victory, and so by turns, till it ends with a Vine-leaf next the Man. And upon it are also some Goth-like Characters of the lesser sort,[5] but dim and obscure. Another of these Pots is adorned with Circles and Semicircles; in one of these Circles is the Figure of a Man sitting on a Plinth or square stone; in all the rest are fluttering Genii. In some of the Semicircles are Lions and Goats (or some such like Creatures) here one, there another; all single and current; and near the bottom are Stags in Course and Gray- hounds pursuing, with an Inscription (in a Goth like Character of the greater sort), which see Fig. 4. This may be Paulini.[6] An Inscription with the like Characters is to be seen at Burrowbrigg and publisht by Dr. Lister.[7] And they have been careful in preserving these; for this and some other, having been broke, are crammed (or rather soldered) with lead.

[4] 'Fabritian'. Gaius Fabricius Luscinus (Fabritius) the Roman censor of 275 B.C., was a model of the old Roman virtues of austerity and incorruptibility. Despite his public eminence, he chose to live in simplicity and poverty. As censor he sensationally excluded a patrician ex-consul from the senate for possessing 10 Roman pounds (c.3.27 kg.) of silver tableware. Dante took up the theme: 'O good Fabricius, you who chose to live with virtue in your poverty, rather than live in luxury with vice.' (Canto XX 24-27). Fabrician plate, therefore, would be plain earthenware, rather than silver etc. See Oxford Classical Dictionary Online.

The third sort is yet far more beautiful then any of the rest, being adorned with Gray-hounds very well moulded, and in full pursuite of Stags and Hinds and the Wild Boar; upon which I discovered the same Inscription as in the other. And tho I am not so vain as to say this relates to our Coats of Arms, yet having so near an Affinity with it, both in Creast and Charge (a. the Stags head, b. 3 Gray hounds current.[8] c. Whelp Castle being found at the place which we came from (as is said and believed) I cannot but take some notice of it; and have lent you a piece to look upon, which will (without doubt) give you more satisfaction both for the matter and colour of it, then any Description in writing can do. But I desire you to return it again.

There were several other broken Inscriptions; and one above the rest upon the bottom of a plane Dish or Platter (on the inside of it) writ in this manner, Fig. 5. But whether it stands for Vespatian imperator or Domitianus, or neither of them, I cannot tell.[9]

As to the Glass, there was but a very small fragment of it, 1 can scarce guess the Figure, but I think it a flute Glass made like a Tunnel or Spire inversed. But this is remarkable, that it hath been as thick as a Barly Corn.

The Urns were of a leaden colour inclining to black; one had been large, 2 inches thick in the side of the Pot, but how big I know not, for there was a sherd only brought to me like half of a Shield; I have now the top also, being in Diameter from outside to outside 7 inches, of which the Roll is 2 inches and the Mouth 3 inches. The Neck yet streighter, and only thick there, one third of an inch. The Figure of which you have. And many such are found at this Town, some of which have Ears or Handles as thick as my Arm-wrist, and their Heads and Mouths much of this bigness, but thicker and stronger, such as that Fig. 6. into which I could not thrust in my hand. But the other was almost intire and whole, tho a very small one in depth or height 8½ inches, the Diameter of it 6½ inches, which is in Circumference 19½ wide; in the Mouth almost 3½; in the Neck somewhat more then 2½ by the Diameter: the bottom well nigh as big as the top, excepting the Ring; and the Body in thickness the fifth part of an inch: but thicker somewhat at the top and the bottom.

But Sandals were most admired by me, because I never saw any before. There were some for Men, some for Women, and some for Children; all shap'd by their feet, spreading more to the outside then to the inside: and some were very large and some very crooked as this in the Cut. The leather was Fresh, of which they were made, but very tender when it came to be spread upon a Last. Each consisted of three principal parts; an upper leather (or rathe[r] heel piece with 2 Tabs on each side) an inner Soal, long 11½ inches, broad 3¾[a]; of 3 or 4 Soals hitched together with leathern thongs, and an outer Soal[b] of 2, stuck full of Nails with little round heads (so decayed and rotten that I could scarce

[5] 'Goth-like': gothic. In 17th-century writing and printing, the term 'gothic' was used to mean written characters resembling black letter, and, later, to distinguish them from roman and italic characters. OED.
[6] 'Dr Lister observed that one inscription in the margin might be Paulini, probably the potter's name, being the same which he had found on other pots', see VI.268, below.
[7] Martin Lister (bap.1639, d.1712), physician, naturalist, Royal Society member: J. Woodley, 'Lister, Martin'. ODNB.
[8] 'Current': courant; running.
[9] Roman emperors: Vespasian (ruled 69-79) and his second son Domitian (ruled 81-96). https://www.britannica.com/biography/Vespasian. https://www.britannica.com/biography/Domitian.

discern them to be Iron) plated on the inside. And to the upper leather (3 fold in the heel piece[c]) is fixed betwixt them and sowed with leather, or rather tacked, which the Iron Nails do help to defend. Yet I think some Womens (of the better sort) had no Nails at all.[d] And of these there is one well worth the observation, of Spanish-like leather and curious workmanship, being exactly stitch'd down round about the fore piece long 2⅓ inches with a pretty Label[f] of the same piece hanging from it, for fashion sake surely; since 'tis too slender to be of any use. As small in the string as the 1 5[t] part of an inch. The Tongue at the end broad half an inch, long one inch, betwixt the two flourishes, which is the length of the small string, 8 parts in 10 of an inch, the two flourishes take up the rest.[d] The Figure of which you may see.[e]

When I first discovered them, I thought peradventure, that the people here in former times might have worn such Shoes as they do in Ireland and the High lands of Scotland, which they call Broagues: and that these might be such; but having the opportunity of discoursing an Highlander that travelled by, while we were digging: and another Gentleman the very next day, who had travelled those Countryes; I was fully satisfied that they were not Broagues; for those (they say) have but one single Soal, and these have six, And so I leave them and the whole matter to your Consideration.

[A2. 1684]

[Thomas Machell's Draft letter to William Dugdale, with notes]

[VI.280][10]

To Sir William Dugdall

Kirkbythore in Westmorland
March 25, 1684.

Sir

Your love to antiquity & my obligations to you are such that I cannot omit to give you an account of a strange well, discovered here about a week since by the foote of an horse, which stumbled upon it & therefore may be called the Fountaine Hypocrene.

'Tis in the street of Kirkbythore by the Bridge-End on the northside of the river Trout-Beck, the ancient boundary 'twixt the Lordship of Crakanthorp (my brother's estate) & this of Kirkbythore, & is about 10 yards distant from it {Cf. It hapned when the water being high, otherwise 20.}in the ~~highway~~ common roade, & as many yards distant from the Great Romane Casway, which leades to Carlile & goes betwixt it & a place calld the Burwens, being part of the ruines of Whelop Castle, on the east side of it. And tis wond[er]ful strange that a well should be digged so near to the river! Unless perhaps the castle walls have gon betwixt them & the way runn through it, as at Maiden Castle on the top of Stanemore.

It hath bin covered with a plank of wood above nine inches thick, in the fashion of a pot-lid, but decay'd & macerated to the colour & consistence of a peat or turfe, insomuch that I could hardly conjecture what wood it was made of, but I suppose oake. And above this was gravel & pavement, about a yard thick, which (being tendered by the late great frost & swelling of the spring) ~~easily~~ gave easy way to the horses foot.[11]

Instead of walls, were 2 large wooden-vessells, {as at f.1.} one upon another, like hogsheads or wine pipe[s], with bung holes in them about 3inch diameter, & the plowings for the heads were fair to be seen. They were made of firr, whencesoever they came above an inch thick, each of them in depth, by a perpendicular, 6 foote at the least; at the heade in circumference no less than 8 foote, being in diameter 2 foote & 8 inches; and in the midle, 10 foote & 4 inches ~~in the circumference~~, being in diameter no lesse than 3 foote 5 inch & ⅓. The wood was sound, but withal very spongie, by reason of \ lying so long in / thee water. Att the bottom (about 5 yards deep) were 4 plankes of wood laid quadrangular wise, supported with stone at every corner, to bear-up the fabric and to let in water through the gravel & sand, which lay loose in the bottom, about a yard deeper, as was tryed by a spect. And these allso sound (though the cover was rotten because not exposed so much to the aire.)

[10] Also numbered p.79.
[11] Margin comment here: {easi, easy}.

The men that search'd it (having my permission, for it lyes on my side of the \ high /way), flattered themselves with great hopes of som treasure, when they sawe the appearance of an hogshead set on end. And their expectation was therefore the stronger because they could not possibly imagine that a well should be placed in an open street in a public hig-way, & so near to the river. But they only found Fabritian-Plate: old earthen-vessells with pieces of urnes \ and pieces of a drinkeing glass. / & sev\er/all sandalls, which \ may / serve to bespeak \ discover / the antiquity \ of it / for sure tis long since any sandalls were worn in this country.

[VI.279]

[VI.278]

[2.] But the sandalls were most admired by me because I never ~~saw~~ \ see / any before. There were som for men, som for women & som for children, all shap'd by their feet, spreading more to the outside than \ ~~to the~~ / ~~side~~ inn \ side: & / som were very large & som very crooked \ as this in the margent. / The leather was fresh of which they were made, but very tender when it came to be spread upon a last. Each consisted of 3 principle partes: an upper leather (or rather a heale piece) with 2 tabbs on each side; an inner soale of 3 or 4.

[VI.277][12]

{a.} An inner soale of 3 or fower soales stiched together with leathern thongs, &
{b.} An outer soale \ 1 of 2 / Q. of 2 folds of l[eather] stuck full of nales \ b. / with little round heads (so decayed & rotten that I could scarce descerne them to be iron) plated on the inside.
{c.} & so the upper leather \ 3 fold in the heal piece c. / is found betwixt them & sowed with leather, or rather tatched,[13] which the iron nales do help to defend.
{d.} Yet I thinke som womens (of the better sort) had no nales att all. \ d. / And of these there is one well worth observation, of Spanish-like leather & curiouse workmanship, being neatly stich'd down, round about the fore peace ~~& have formerly carved about the […]~~ with a pretty label \ of the same piece hanging down […][14] / for fashion sake surely, since it is too slender \ g. / to put on the shooe, or for any other considerable ~~be of any~~ use, the figure of which you may see in the marg[ent] \ e. / When I first discovered them, I thought peradventure that the people here in former times might have worn such schooes, as they doe in Ireland and the Highlands \ of Scotland, / which they call Broagues, & that these might be such; but having the opportunity of discou\r/seing an Highlander that travaled \ was pasing / by while wee were a digging; & another gentleman the very next day who had travaild those countreys, I was fully satisfied that they were not Broagues; for those (they say) have but one single soale, & these have six. And so I lieve them and the whole matter to your consideration*/ desireing you to returne this letter with your thoughts concerneing them; for I had not time to write it ~~further~~ fair over because the carryers are a going to Kendall, where my friend lives, by whom I must send it; and because he was coming up to London & was resolved to call for the writeings which I left long since with Mr Kings. I would not let let such an occurance pass without your notice, and so writ it in haist, which I hope will excuse the unhansomness of it, and all other faileings. M.
Sir, Your most faithfull and affectionate servant
Thomas Machell
Amphora non meruit tam pretiosa mori.[15]

[Machell's Notes: VI.277]

*{Thus far was printed to my unknowledge and without my permition in the Oxford Philosophical Transactions, April 20 1684, p.555, in 4^0.}

[12] Also numbered p.78. This and the next leaf were placed in the volume upside down.
[13] 'Tache' or 'tatch': to fasten, attach, fix, secure. OED.
[14] The 6cm of scored-through text following, has been omitted from this edition.
[15] 'convivae meruere tui fortasse perire: amphora non meruit tam pretiosa mori.' Martial Epigrams I (18), translated as, 'guests deserved to perish, but so costly a jar did not deserve to die'. See D.R. Shackleton Bailey (ed.) Martial. Epigrams, Volume I: Spectacles, Books 1-5, Loeb Classical Library 94 (Cambridge, Mass.,1993.)

[VI.278

{3.} The third sort is yet far more bea\u/tifull than any of the rest, ~~being~~ adorned with greyhounds, very well moulded & in full pursuit of stags ~~& hinds~~ & the wilde boare ~~likewise~~ upon which I discovered the same inscription, as in the other.
{a. The stag's head; b. 3 grey hounds currant (Argent in a field Sable) c. Whelp Castle}
And though I am not so vaine as to say that this relates to our \ f[amily] / Coate of Armes, yet having so near an affinity with \ it / both in crest & charge, & being fou[n]d at the place which we came from (as is said and believed), I cannot but take some notice of it, and have sent you a piece to looke upon, which will (without doubt) give you more satisfaction, both for the matter & colour of it, than any description in writeing can do. But I desire you to returne it agane.
{And they have bin careful in preserveing these vessels} there; for this and som other having bin broake, are cramed (or rather solder'd) with lead.}

{More remarqebl than al the rest}
There were severall other broken Inscriptions, & one above \ all / the rest upon the very bottom of \ a / plane dish or plater (on the inside of it) writ in this manner: {TIAN. IM.} But whether it stands for Vespasian Imperator or Domitianus \ per incuriam ogrificis[16] / or neither of them, I cannot tell.

{Glass}
As to the glass, there was but a very small fragment of it. I can scarce guess the figures \ ther of / but I thinke \ it / a flute \ -glass made like a turrell[17] / or spire inversed. But this is remarkeable, that it hath bin as thick as a bar'ly-corne.

{IV. Urnes}
The urnes were of a leaden-colour inclineing to black.
One had bin large: 2 inches thick in the side of the pot, but how bigg I know not, for a sherd onely was brought to my view – rough – and to me like halfe of a shield. But afterwards I got the top of it, which was about 7 inch in diameter on the out side the rims, the roll 2 inches thick, and the mouth about 3 inches over: the figure of which you have at this mark: x.
And many suchlike are found hereabouts, som of which have ears or handles as thick an arm wrest, and there heads & mouthes much of this bigness but thicker & stronger, such as that which is marked, into the mouth or neck \ which / I could not \ perforce / thrust my hand.}But the other was almost entire ~~& whole~~, though a very small one; in depth or height 8 inch & ½, the diameter of it 6 inch ½ which is in circumference 19½; wide in the mouth almost 3 & ½; in the neck somewhat more than 2 & ½ by the diameter. The bottom might well [be] nigh as big as the top, excepting the ring. And the body of one sid the shel of it twas \ in thickness / the fifth part of an inch, yet thicker somewhat at the top than the bottom.

[VI.279][18]

{2. The earthen vessels discribed}
The earthen vessels were (& most remarkable) were like of very fine mettall (if I may call it) of a brick-like colour, & in severall forms; but the most (& most remarkable) were like \ to a baron or a / posset-cup, the bowle semi-globular, the foote a ring. \ Some others were / in diameter about 8 inches & in depth on the inside more than 3 & ½, \ som more, som less, / as appeared by the fragments which came to my hand. They were (for the most part) \ very / finely inscribed, but 3 more especially:

{2} Sc. one with a vine-branch, having a figure in every turning; & in the 1[t] place a naked man standing alone upon his left \ foote, / the other leg cross, and holding his left hand down towards his back, his right towards his bellye with a bra[n]ch of lawrell of 3 spriggs in it \ one of / which turns up towards his facewards over the crooke or bending of his arme. & at his feet is a branch of lawrell & a blossom or flower.

[16] 'Through the carelessness of the letter-writer.'
[17] 'Turrell': a cooper's auger (hand tool used for boring holes in wood). OED.
[18] A piece of paper pasted onto this page contains the note, 'The Brittans were subdued by the Romanes under his conduct: see Speed, 170.' John Speed's Historie, Ch.48, 170, discusses Julian the Apostate, emperor 361-63.

In the next is a vine leaf, 2 blossoms at the bottom, & at the top, 2 peacocks regardant. In the next is Victory (as I take it).[19] Sc. an angel or genius holding in its right hand (the arme stretched out \ & the face looking / towards the man) a garland of lawrell; & in the left, a sprig of the same; & 2 sprigs likewise are at the foote, with flores or blossoms, & one flore in the midle betwixt the garland & one of those sprigs. In the next is a vine leafe, the same as before. In the next is Victory, & so by turns till it ends with a vine leaf next to the man. And upon it, are \ allso / som Goth-like characters of the lesser sort, but dim and obscure.

Another of these potts is adorned with circles & semicircles. In one \ of / these circles is the figure of a man sitting on a plinth or square stone. In all the rest \ are fluttering / geniuses. In som of the semicircles are lyons & goates (or som such like creatures); here one, there another, all single currant;[20] & near the bottom are stags in \ full / course, grayhounds pursuing \ them, / with this inscription in a Gothlike character of the greater sort, which you see in the margin.

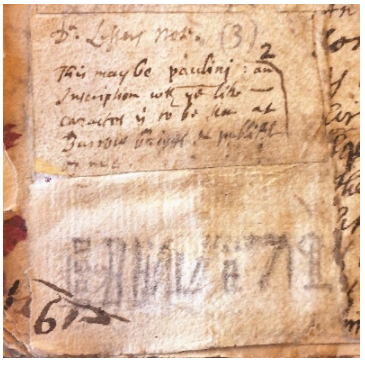

Figure 3.3.3. Machell's sketch of an inscription and reference to Dr Martin Lister's note on Paulini. VI.279.

[A3.]
[Dr Martin Lister, 1684][21]

{III […][22] Dr Lister's note (3) 2}
This may be Paulini. An Inscription with the like caracters is to be seen at Burrow briggs & publisht by me.}[23]

[VI.278]

An inscription with the like characters is to be seen at Burrow brig & publishd by Dr Lister.

[Extract from the Transactions of the Royal Society, 1684]
['Dr Lister produced a letter, which had been written by Mr Thomas Machell of Kirkby-thore in Westmorland to Sir William Dugdale, dated March 25 1684, concerning some antiquities lately found there; as some old earthen vessels with pieces of urns, one piece of a drinking-glass, and several sorts of sandals. The figures of all these were carefully delineated, together with the inscriptions. There was also a piece of a broken vessel shown, of a reddish colour; the relief upon it being greyhounds in pursuit of stags. Dr Lister observed three sorts of materials used for urns in the North country. 1. A fine red earth like a bolus. 2. A blue clay mixt with coarse sand. 3. A blue clay with finer sand and [19] A faded margin comment in pencil reads, MS: 'If I mistake Vol 10.' But the reading of '10' is debateable.

[20] Currant: courant; running. See above, Machell's letter to Dugdale published by the Royal Society, in which this word is written 'current' (fn. 8). Three greyhounds courant were part of the Machell arms.
[21] See above, VI.200.
[22] 3cm of scored-through MS text has been omitted from this edition.
[23] See, The History of the Royal Society of London for improving natural knowledge, from its first rise, in which the most considerable of those papers communicated to the society which have hitherto not been published are inserted in their proper order, 4 (London, 1757), 286 (Transactions of the Society, 1684).

micae: specimens of which were shown. He observed that one inscription in the margin might be Paulini, probably the potter's name, being the same which he had found on other pots. This conjecture was confirmed by Mr Richard Waller from a book written at Nimeguen by Smetius on the antiquities of that place.']²⁴

[B.]
[1684, with additional material to 1694]

[B1. Notes on earthen vessels found at the well or 'Fountaine Hyppocrene]

[VI.275]²⁵

Of Hyppocrene

H	B	L
32	38.2	72
	32
	6.2			07:22:120			7:22	120
	0.7			22: 7:120
	4.34						22.7	120
	32							[x]7
	36.34		3.65		4.5			22)840	(38.[1]
			x2		x 2			4.6
			7.30		9.0			180
			255.50		315.0			176
		Beer	262.80		324.0	Wine		4.0

Qu.: What quantity the vessells held?
Ans.: 262 gallons, 3 quarts & cott[yle], Beer-Meas[ure].²⁶
Or 324 gallons tonne meas[ure]. Which 324 gallons is one hodgshead & 9 gallons above the common tunn of corne,²⁷ 252 of which is now in use, the hodgshead thereof goes at the rate of 63 gallons.
Mr Hilliyard sayes that the largest \ vessell ~~the largest vessel~~ / that ever he met with \ was / 300 gallons for Hereford Shire sider.
!!! N.B. The Quality of vessells in the wooden-well.

[24] Johannes Smetius (1599-1651) and Johannes Smetius (1636-1704), Antiquitates Neomagenses. Sive notitia rarissimarum rerum antiquarum, quas in veteri Batavorum Oppido studiose comparavit Johannes Smetius, pater & filius (Noviomagi Batavorum: Ex typographeio Regneri Smetii, 1678). Roman antiquities in the vicinity of Nijmegen (the Roman Oppidum Batavorum, home to Legio X Gemina) were gathered by Johannes Smetius (senior), who published a book listing these finds in 1644. His son, Johannes Smetius, continued in his father's footsteps by producing the illustrated catalogue, Antiquitates Neomagenses, containing 4,500 antiquities, in 1678. See R.B. Halbertsma, Scholars, Travellers, and Trade: The Pioneer Years of the National Museum of Antiquities in Leiden, 1818-1840 (Abingdon, 2003), 10-11.
[25] Also numbered p.76.
[26] A 'cotyle' or 'kotyle': a small vessel, a liquid measure of about half a pint. OED.
[27] Tunn: a measure of weight, now generally 20 cwt., in Great Britain legally 2240 lbs (variant of ton); or a large cask or barrel, usually for liquids e.g. wine, ale, or beer, or for various provisions (variant of tun). OED.

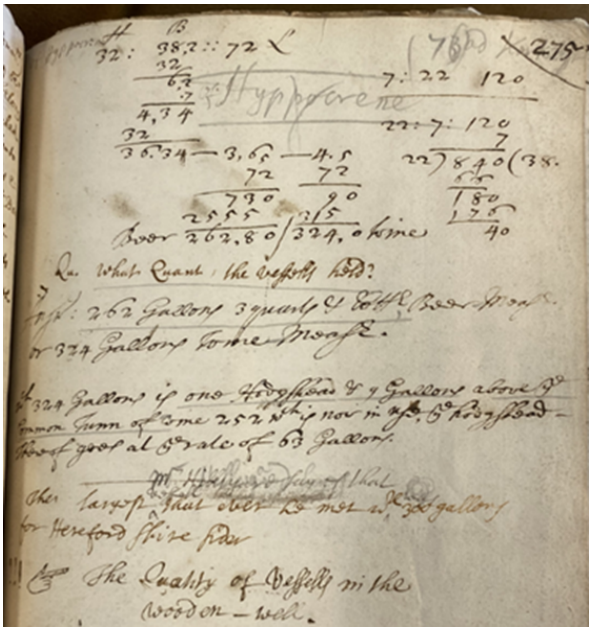

Figure 3.3.4. Vessel Quantities. VI.275.

[VI.276]

See an extract about this well at p.15 & place this letter there.[28]
The cuts sent to London to be inserted in Camden's Britannia.[29]

[VI.304]

Hyppo Creene

{a} A golden seale with a blewish agat set therein and a Cæsar's head (perhaps [blank]) ingraved upon it, which was found in Broades-Gardine near the southwest wall of the city of Bath in Sommersetshire, circa 1682 (it was purchased for a ginney & shewn to me by Mr Ed. Addison, August the 12, 1694)[30] near the very place where the excresence growth of a stony substance, upon the said wall.
{b.} (b) is the impression of the said seale.
{c.} A sardonyx stone with a Cæsar's head (perhaps Claudius) found in Walcot Fields near Bath amongst Romane ruines 1691 set in a signet by Dr Guidot. This is the impress ma[r]ked (d.)[31]

[VI.235]

[C. 1687-91]
[Various Drafts relating to {things found at Whelp Castle}

[C1.]

The following Rarities [were] found at Whelp Castle about 5 years agoe amongst the Rifled foundations thereof, whereof the 1ˢᵗ (Marked (a.) is the Shadow & representacon of a most Solid ~~wall~~ & Substantial wall, the like of which I never yet met with \ in any building antient or modern, / being (murus quadruplex) a four-fold wall, Made up of 4 walls Jump'd together & as it were united into [28] See VI.205.

[29] Camden's Britannia newly translated into English, with large additions and improvements; publish'd by Edmund Gibson (London, 1695), to which Thomas Machell contributed, see VI.281.
[30] Edward Addison (1656-1705), architect; see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.538.
[31] Thomas Guidot wrote a number of treatises on Bath and its mineral waters, including, de thermis Britannicis tractatus. Accesserunt observationes hydrostaticae, chromaticae, et miscellaneae unius-cujusque balnei apud Bathoniam naturam ... exhibentes. (Observationum centuria, pleniorem in thermarum Bathoniensium naturam inquisitionem complectens, etc.) (London, 1691).

one, which, whether it was for preventing the danger that might happen from Earthquakes, Instead of Those Spiracula\r/ (or windpipes) up the midst of Their walls,[32] which Vitruvius (If I be not forgetful) [VI.237][33] doth som where direct: (if my memory fails not} Or whether 'twas onely for Strength & Defence, I leave others to judge. But it seems to have \ bin / a most excellent way against the Battering Rams, us'd ~~in those days~~ \ of old / & might hold out \ for ought I know / a Considerable Time (for anything know) ~~were~~ against our Canon; because ~~of~~ \ thô / a breach were made in the first wall, or Perhaps in the Second, The Rest might stand firm, having no dependence One upon the other.

They were made of Hewn Stone, ~~&~~ each being 2 foot & 4 Inches ~~in~~ breadth, so that the whole was 9 foot & 4 Inches. The utmost wall was Strongly Cemented to the very foundation with the best Roman-mortar (a Composition \ made as I guess / of Lime Gravel and Brick). The other 3 had their foundations, ~~first~~ laid \ first / in Clay, & then in a coarser sort of Lime, And underneath all was a Pavement of Cobles, to make the foundation more firme & durable – An Invention \ of which / I once \ imagind my self / thought my self \ to have bin the / master[34] ~~of~~ (takeing my Hint from the Casways in London, which support ~~such~~ vast burthens, notwithstanding the Shoging of Carts & Carriages;[35] whence I concluded they would bear greater weights in a foundation where they might lye at rest from all such disturbances). But I found my mistake in 2 Instances here […][36] & in a 3[d] at Kirkbythore Church, when I caused Them to flag it & to level the threshold; Which being builded out of These Ruines (as the Hall & towne are) they ~~have~~ \ had / learn'd from thence how to lay Their foundation firm & secure \ which is made of pebbles; / Which againe was forgotten in after ages; but now is revived. This four-fold wall had a sinke passing Through it (as you se at this Marke (+) which was laid at the Bottom with a sort of Gutter Tiles marked Thus [+ +][37] being 4 Inches & about a foot over. & at Their Edges was a Course of Hewn Stone on either side to keep in the water which ~~it~~ ran in That Channel. There is a Returne {b*} in the said wall (which had been formerly sought & wrought out) near the Angle or corner, whereof on the Inside (which I have marked Thus with an (*) Asterisc) we found that Broken Piece of an Altar –

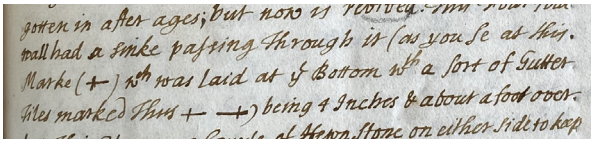

Figure 3.3.5. Symbols used by Machell. VI.237.

FOTVNÆ SERVATRICI

which is so easy & fair to be read that it needs no manner of Explication save that the letter F, being a wanting in the beginning of the first line, must be supplyed.[38]
And thus, I have don with the 4 fold wall, which was near \ to / the Angle of the high Burhanes {c.} towards the South.

[32] Spiracle: from Spiraculum = airduct. A pencil sketch of the walls in the left-hand margin is very close to the binding; it has not been reproduced.
[33] Also numbered p.43.
[34] MS: '{My selfe haveing bin the first finder out}.' Written in a pencilled scrawl in the margin.
[35] To shog: to shake or roll (something heavy) from side to side; to jolt or jar (some one or something); to shake off a load. OED.
[36] Here, there is illegible margin comment roughly written in pencil.
[37] See Figure 3.3.5 for the shape of Machell's symbols here, and for Machell's attractive, legible handwriting.
[38] Much of the information written here in a legible hand can be found in note form in VI.236A: not transcribed.

The 3[d] thing \ c. / of note marked (c.) is a wall {pipe wall} 2 foot & 2 inches broad (the 2[d] Instance of a Pav'd foundation, of the same materials with the former; but with this Remark,

[VI.239][39]

That under the foundation thereof was found Leaden-pipes VIII inch in Circumference; The connecting or joyning of which together is very Observable; for thô the Plummer had shewn himself an \ most / Excellent Artist in soldering up the sides of the pipes, yet they were not soldered one into another (as the manner now is)[40] but made with broad Brimms like unto Sawcers & so Nail'd together: which is fitter for us to admire then imitate. This wall was discovered nearer the midle of the said High Burhanes, Running a long from S. East to N. West, & was pursued to within 10 yards of Burhan-Hall-Lane, where They found the End of it by a Returne which was made in the wall {d.} somewhat towards the North.

{Pillar Wall and Inscription}
And Paralel to it was another foundation of Plane Hewnstone, breasted on both sides as a perpen wall, but with vi. Projectures like the Bases \ or plinth stones / of Columms, each of which was of one entire stone – I foot in depth & 2 in Diamiter every way. The Interspaces betwixt the Projectures were in Length x foot & in breadth 1½ f. And Before it became \ lay / a Conduit of Stones about a yard broad, & Excavated (like Spouts) in the Midle; which so flowed with water (though the situation be somewhat High) That it hindred the Workmen from rasing the stones, & set them \ all / wet shod. The Wall was laid in strong Lime & Sand, som of which (continuing yet moist, because of the water) was clammy & soft & seem'd to be mixed with the powder of Marble or som other hard stone, & with pounded \ pounced / brick: {Testae Tunsae}[41] The old composition that the Romans made use of in mixing the mortar for plastering \ of / walls & laying of \ of / floors \ Are / divers pieces of {old plaster} which were also found here,[42] being variegated in such a manner (with the Said Composition, & Pible stones polished, & with small lumps of Brick) That they seem'd to Resemble our Speckl'd Marble, & were in a manner as hard as a stone, though they had lain so long in the Earth.

{e.} But that which gave me most Satisfaction was This Piece of Inscription on the 2[d] Plinth Stone (the other part of it being taken away \ in former ages / when they Rifeled so deep into the foundations.)[43]

ELL ˆ EQQ ˆ LLAVRELIVS ˆ M
ARCVS ˇ DEO ˇ ALÆ ˇ VSLLM

The Latter Part of which I read Thus: Aurelius Marcus Deo ALÆ \ or Decurio Alæ if the Romans had such an officer.) / votum solvit libentissime merito.[44]
f.f. And near unto it was found a Piece of (the Scapus Columni) or Shaft of a Pillar, fluted on One Side with a Single Gutter &

[VI.241]

having a Mortiss \ Motess / at the End thereof,[45] 3 Inches Square, as at f.f. From \ all / which Together I do Conclude that this hath \ formerly / been a Temple, & of that \ very / sort which the Greeks (& the Romans after them) called Peripteros; from being surrounded with a Row of Pillars; six of which were placed in that End they design'd for the Front, 6 in the other End, & ix on Each Side; which with

[39] Also numbered p.45.
[40] MS: 'as the manner is \ 2 / now \ 1. /'
[41] 'Lime, sand, and pounded pottery', see Vitruvius: 'After finishing the plank flooring, lay a second plank flooring over it at right angles, and nail it down so as to give double protection to the framework. Then, mix with new broken stone one third the quantity of pounded tile, and let lime be added to the mixture in the mortar trough in the proportion of two parts to five.' Morris H. Morgan (Translator & ed.), Vitruvius Pollio, The Ten Books on Architecture (Cambridge, Mass. 1914), Book 7, 1, 5-6.
[42] The interlineation in this sentence was added in pencil to correct the text; it has faded and is almost illegible.
[43] MS: A pencilled cross has been placed over the beginning of the text in round brackets.
[44] 'Aurelius Marcus, to the god of the cavalry unit, or decurion of the cavalry unit, pays his vow most gladly and justly.' Pencilled notes in Latin at the foot of the right-hand margin, have faded illegibly, thus not transcribed.
[45] 'Mortise' (mortas, mortase): a cavity, hole, or recess into which the end of some other part of a framework or structure is fitted so as to form a joint. OED.

the Angular Ones made xi. But we may Reckon \ account / them accounted \ Reckoned / before, in the Front & Rear; for they are the same Columns, though faceing 2 wayes; {for} “Periptores”, (sayes the Learned {architect}Vitruvius,[46] in his 3d Book, de Deorum Immortalium Ædibus Sacris: erit Illa, quae habebit in fronte et postico senas columnas; in lateribus cum angularibus undenas \ nas /; ita autem sint hae columnae collocatae, u\t/ intercolumnij latitudinis intervallum, sit a parietibus circum ad extremos ordines columnarum, habeatque ambulationem circa cellam aedis.[47]

[VI.234A]

There were VIII yards of a Conduit bared, being stones of about ½ a yard broade. The hollow 4 inch & ½ in breadth & 3 inch & an half in Deepness, & something Strater at the Bottom than Top.

Figure 3.3.6. Pillar Shaft. VI.234A.

[Labels on the image above]
High End Sc. down to the Leaden pipe
1 foote Diameter (or 2?)
1 f. & ½ High
This was 3 Inches \ deep / and 3 Inches Diam.

[VI.234]

Figure 3.3.7. Peripteros: Ground plan. VI.234.

[46] MS: ‘Sayes the Antient Vitruvius.’When editing this page, another hand disagreed with the description ‘Antient’, replacing it with ‘Learned’.
[47] ‘A temple will be peripteral that has six columns in front and six in the rear, with eleven on each side including the corner columns. Let the columns be so placed as to leave a space, the width of an intercolumniation, all round between the walls and the rows of columns on the outside, thus forming a walk round the cella of the temple.’ See Vitruvius (ed. Morgan), The Ten Books on Architecture, 3, 2, 5.

[VI.240]

Figure 3.3.8. Four-fold wall, pipe wall, pillar wall and altar. VI.240.

[VI.241]

{Distance as to Column Shafts}
I cannot indeed Justly say that all these Rules were Exactly observed; for the Intercolumnium (or Interspace betwixt these Pedestals ~~or Basses of pillars~~) was but 10 foot (or xi at most if we reckon to the Shafts of the Columns). But the distance betwixt them and the back-wall (which I take to be part of the Ambulationes Circa Cellam Ædis)[48] was 3 foot more {perhaps 4 foote more, so 15 in all.} But then I find that Th[e]se Directions (in every Circumstance) were not always observed, since Vitruvius himself has left us one Instance in the forequoted place, of the Temple of Vertue, made by Mutius sine Postico, which is a greater Irregularity than to set of a wall, 2 or 3 {3 or 4} foot to inlarge a walk by It. So That This maketh Nothing against our opinion That it was such a Temple, There being so many remarkable Circumstances to Confirme us in It. & the \ very / Platform which is in Vitruvius (& sheweth us what such Templs were), will (if Compared) make it more ~~clear~~ \ Evident. / But Then you must not look on my draughts as drawn by the Scale, for I think it unnecessary: Nor expect that any thing \ which that as here re/presented by me (by my own handy work) should be performed in {Exact} full Proportion, unless it be Coynes & \ Seales & / som other \ such / things as admitt of Miniture; Yet I have don Them in such a manner \ & with so much Resemblance) as may give Satisfaction to any Beholder, though the Rule of Proportion {of one thing to another} be not duly observ'd – Peripteri Fundamenti ICHNOGRAPHIA. Ex qua ad totius Ædis

[VI.243]

Orthographiam facillimè periti architecti peruenire possunt. È Lib. III! M. Vitruvij de Architectura, Cap 3ino {vide hujus p.6. 7.}[49] By this it is Evident to any man's eye \ beholden / that the wall we are treating of has been the foundation of such a Temple as is here described. And we find by the letters on the foundation, that it was erected by

AURELIVS MARCVS DEO ALÆ
To the tutelary God of the Roman horse

[48] 'A walk round the cell of the temple', From Vitruvius (ed. Morgan), The Ten Books on Architecture, 3, 2, 5.
[49] 'Plan of a Temple Foundation. From which skilled architects can very easily arrive at an elevation of the whole building.' See Vitruvius (ed. Morgan), The Ten Books on Architecture 3, 3. The reader will note Machell's frequent references to Vitruvius. On MS. VI.264, for example, he referred again to Book 3: 'Peripteri fundamentum Ichnographia é lib 3. M. Vitruvii de Architectura, Cap. 5. See it at p.48.'

the Troops which they placed on the Right & Left Hand about their Legions being called Alæ from (Ala, a wing) because [they] covered & protected their Infantry (or legions of foote) as the wings of a bird do the Body of it. But who this Aurelius Marcus was, is not so Easy a thing to Determine \ matter to discover, / for I am in a doubt whether the names may not be transpose'd, so that we might read MARCVS AVRELIUS for Aurelius Marcus, and thus apply it to {1.} Marcus Aurelius Antonius Verus, the Adopted Son of Marcus Antonius, who came to succeed him in the Roman Empire, but was truly son of Ælius Verus. For his stile is MARCO ÆLIus AURELIUS, as we sometimes find \ it; / and ELI in the beginning of the said Inscription may seem to favour it \ This opinion; / or whether the names may not stand as they are. {Or may \ it / not be Aurelius Flavius about CCLXIX years after Xt Nativity? The letters LL being for FL}
{2.} And so to be applied to that once famous but unfortunyt MARCVS, Lieutenant of Brittaine under Honorius at the Declining of the Roman Empire*, whom the armies in Brittaine (fearing least the flames of their Neighbours being all set on fire by the Goths & Vandals, might at length flash out & take hold of them, Elected Emperour, & paid him obedience for a while at the first; but not long after put him to Death. This I should take to be the man (if his Prænomen could be discovered to be \ have bin / Aurelius, concerning which my Author is silent†) because he lived & dyed in this Iland, & presently after the Romans were forced to betake themselves home, leaving onely (as may well be supposed) some few Men of Note to head the Britons (who intermarried & continued amongst them) & som (doubtless) here. For, as it appears by its fourfold wall to have been one of their Strongest Forts, and by this example \ Temple / to have been most Commodious \ Garr[ison]. /

[Machell's Notes: VI.243]
*{This lieutenant was Calphurnius Agricola, whose name was inscribed upon an altar at the Picts Wall perhaps for [blank] ELI}
†{May not this be Aurelius Optatus, as being so called from this election?}

[VI.245]

So it must be of Consequence, be the longer Retained, & upholden by Them.

[C2. Further Notes]

{Unde K.[50] It was caled Gallup & Catuli Gnolea}
But when the Saxons came ~~in~~ to \ this Island to / assist them against the Picts, & They & (Their religion) prevail'd, so far as to overspread the whole Nation & give language to it; They \ may / seem to have Placed their mighty God Thor here in This \ very Roman / Temple whence the Town took its name[51] {of Kirkbythore}, & perhaps the like was ~~scarce~~ \ not thereat / to be found […];[52] whence it is that we have ~~so~~ many Thoresbyes {i.e. places where the image of Thor was erected:[53] i.e. a place where there was a temple} & \ not a / Kirkbythore ~~but one~~ \ save this one onely. /

{Romane Castles}
A little farther from this Noble Temple, towards the south west, we met with diverse floors & c[h]ambers under \ the / ground; for your Romane Castles were not a continued Pile of Building, but rather like to to a little Towne within it self \ having severall / as I shall shew when I come to speak of Plumpton Wall, / where There are the fairest vestigia of it That ever I met with; & yet dark enough. Some of these floores were flagged with stone, & som Paved with Brick, better then \ any / we meet with nowadays. For our workmen Generally are so Penurious, & do things so sleightly to gain the more by Them, that in Process of time they lose the Perfection of all arts & Trades \ facultyes. /

{Bricks of}
Two of These Pavements made of Brick I have \ {here} / describ'd at the letter (h.), which for the

[50] 'From what place Kirkbythore?'
[51] MS Margin: '{might be called}'.
[52] Interlineated words here, written in faded pencil, have not been transcribed.
[53] In the MS, here, there is an illegible word and a group of scored-through words.

most part are x inches square & 2 inches deep; thô I met with som that were ½ inch Thicker & a foot Diamiter every way, which is just a quarter of the Semi te\t/radoron[54] that was used in building amongst the Greeks, whereas the Roman building brick was the διδωεον – so call'd for consisting of 2 palms in breadth & as much more in length – which Vitrivius explanes to be Longum Pede, Latum Semipede, a foot long & ½ foot broad.

{Size}
& in the unfolding of his Scheams of these measures, he shews us what is meant by a Palm (which the Greeks call δϖεον). Namely the breadth of a man's 4 fingers; & I do observe that 2 of these palms (at the thickest part of my fingers \ next to the Palm / when the hand is expanded) are just ½ a foot; from whence I collect that a midle sized man amongst the Romans was \ of / no larger \ taller / then we are \ at this day / & that the Gigantic Ideas & fancies men entertaine {concerneing} \ thus / of them, do only proceeed from Their noble Acts Recorded in Story; nor does the world grow old in Th\is/ sense, but all things continue Now as they were then \ in those dayes, / which is no unpleasant speculation.

[VI.246]

[C. 1687-88 with additions to 1692]

[C1.] Subterranean Passage found near the site of 'Whelp Castle'

[VI.281][55]

A platform of an arched Su[bterranean] Vault at Kirkbythore.

{This platform was cut out & sent to London to be inserted in Cambden's Britannia 1694 per T. Machell.}

Figure 3.3.9. 'A Platform of an Arched Subterranean Vault at Kirkbythore.' VI.281.

[54] Semi tetradoron: Vitruvius explained that the tetradoron was a brick four palms square (in Greek, 'palm' means 'the giving of gifts' and the gift was always given in the palm of the hand). He explained that there were also half-bricks. 'When these are used in a wall, a course of bricks is laid on one face and a course of half-bricks on the other, and they are bedded to the line on each face.' See Vitruvius (ed Morgan), The Ten Books on Architecture 2, 3, 3-4.
[55] Also numbered p.81.

The remarquable places
(a.a.a.a.) The area or flower.[56]
(b.b.b.) The two scatchments.
(c.c.c.c.) 2 rowes of stones of \ each / a yard long, such as the side-walls are composd-of.
(e.e.e.) The stairs ascending up under the arch towards High Burwens.
(f.) The surface of the earth & a sight of the heavens under the arch in that ascent.
(g.g.g.) The Arch it selfe made of fine stones.

This vault was accidentally found in seekeing for stones at Coppin-hill (so called corruptly as I do suppose ~~for~~ \ from the word / Copped-hill) the place being advanced to a more than ordinary height & eminence by \ reason of / this Arch, and the rubbish ~~which was~~ \ which lay / about it. It is in the upper end of that street which lyeth betwixt the Romane Way and the High Burwens, where we doe conjecture that the main body of Whelp-Castle stood, & not 40 yards from it, where whilst a labourer was striving with an iron gavelock[57] (so they call a craw in this country) / to get up a stone, it slipt out of his hand & it was heard to plunge & dash into water, which gave them occasion to dint[58] deeper in it.[59]

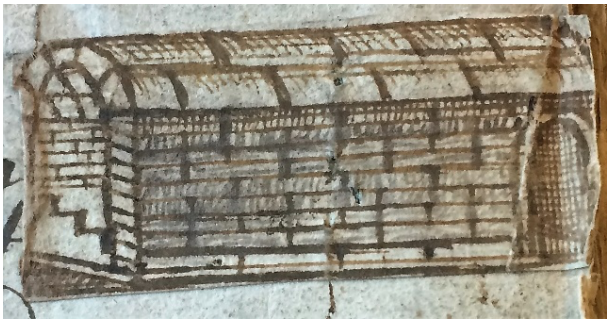

Figure 3.3.10. Vault Detail. 'The figure of it resembled a trunke'. VI.281.

& as they informd me, the figure of it resembled a trunke, the lid of which discribeth the Arch, & the sides – the sidewalls – being in breadth about 4 foote & ½; in length 15. That end which pointeth \ down / to the High Street to the Romane Way was not solid-wall, but of loose stone & rubbish; & the other end which was next to the Burwens (~~a far higher place than Coppin-hill~~) ascended by stairs under the Arch, each step consisting of one entire stone, of which six in number & perhaps many more, for they could not finde the bottom of it \ then / with a long iron gavelok, after they had cleared as low as the scatchment,[60] but \ still there remained / soft mud & rubbish, which, with fragments of earthen potts & glasses & boanes \ of / monstrous bigness \ incredibleness for men's bones – if they ~~be~~ \ were such / the materials with which it furnished withal – the water above them ascending as high as the stair{?}

[VI.282]

[56] 'Floor'.
[57] Gavelock: an iron crowbar or lever. OED.
[58] 'To dint': to impress or drive in with force. OED.
[59] MS: 'whilst a labourer was strive with an iron \ ~~craw or~~ / gavelock, ~~for~~ (so they call a craw in this country) to get up a stone ~~he lost his instrument~~ {it slipt out of his hand} & it was heard to plunge \ & dash / into water ~~beneath~~, which gave them occasion to seeke \ sinke / further into it \ dint deeper in it. / ~~as they tell me~~.'
[60] Probably 'scarcement' also 'skersment', 'skarsment': a plain flat set-off or rebate in a wall or in a foundation or bank of earth; also, a flat ledge projecting from the face of a rock. OED.

{But I will yet give you a more lively representation thereof, of proposing the idea […][61] of what hath bin said. [I] have exposed the idea \ of it / naked to your view in this following scheem, wherein the earth is suppos'd ~~bin a~~ [to] be taken quite \ a/way from it on every side, the stony-carkass thereby remaining.}[62]
The side walls were faced with stone with great dents in them (as is elsewhere described), and backed up with earth,[63] \ each stone consisting of one foot in thickness & about 3 in length / which rose from the scatchment in regular courses (all of a bigness to 10 quarters as height) up to the springers. I doe suppose that the scatchment was only to support & strengthen & keepe the saide walls from shifting in being ~~backed with~~ \ forced by the / earth. And there was on the left hand by the south west corner of an arched dooer-steed of about a yard wide. Above these walls \ by the south west by the south west corner of an arched dooer-stead of about a y[rd] wide / an Arch was erected, which consisted only of 5 stones in length: Sc. 2 springers with 2 seconds next unto them & a sprin[g]ling stone \ to binde them / in the midst {?} an so they proceeded (in the like order) from \ one / end to the other end. But to give you yet more clear comprehension of it, behold the figure.[64]

Thus, I have described it as well as I could by mere information. But to discover what it hath bin is an harder taske. Some thinke (by the boanes & blackish mudd wherewith it was filled) that it had bin a sepulchre; but the great store of urnes which are found ~~which are~~ heareaboute, \ which e.e.e.e. / do persuade the contrary. I rather take it either to have bin a port to the castle, unto by which they ascended by the said stairs in the end; & the lefthand dooer ~~a lodge thereunto~~ to have bin for a lodge \ to it /. Or else I gues it to have bin a Bath, fountain or well, having 2 descents: one by the dooer on the left hand (from som \ small / appertments); the other, by the great stair in the end \ ~~of the vault~~ / (from the main castle). The deepness of the pitt perswades the former; and the position of the stair & whol fabric (being directly opposite to the midst of the castle) doe perswade the latter. But in things so abstruse, it is \ hard / to define \ determin. / I therefore leave it to the judgement of others to make such conjectures as they thinke more rational.

[VI.283]

Yet the principal entrance seems to have bin on the opposite side (the house here opening wider & wider to the right hand and left). And we found another in 1692 by the plin'thes of the gate postes, about [blank] of distant near to the midle of Burhan Hall lane, with the foundation of a wall all along, with a conduit under it being 2 yards distant or thereabouts from the said lane.

[VI.285]

De Templo Alæ
{This referd to in the foregoing treatiss at [blank] p. [blank] yet I will not throw it away, there being a coyn mention'd therein, & som other notes which be not here.}[65]

[C2] {1687} {The Pillar W[all} [Machell's Fair Copy][66]

1. The Foundation
On December the 12th 1687 by digging for Stones in a Place calld Highburwens at Kirkbythore in the County of Westm'land (suposd to be the Scite of Whelp-Castle), A foundation of huen-stone was there discovered, plane on both sides but with six Projectures,[67] each (of which was of) one entire-stone, a foote in depth and 2 foote in Diameter every way. The Interspaces betwixt these Projectures

[61] Several centimetres of this margin comment have been erased and overwritten; the ideas expressed appear to be different versions of the same material.
[62] See MS.I.509A, which gives similar information.
[63] MS: 'The side walls were ~~onely~~ faced with \ ~~ruff huen~~ / stone ~~& backed up with earth, the stones roughly huen~~ with great dents in ~~to~~ them (as is elsewhere described) ~~each being about~~ \ and backed up with earth / ~~a free foote in thickness & full yard in length~~.'
[64] See the figures on VI.281.
[65] For Machell's notes, see VI.234-45, VI.286-87, VI.289.
[66] The calligraphy on VI.285-88 is immaculate, contrasting greatly with Machell's notes and drafts elsewhere.
[67] There is a line of illegible scored-through text in the MS here.

were about 10 f. & in bredth one foot an Halfe \ and in length 10 foote / in manner of a Perpen-wall;[68] & before it came a Conduit of stones about a yard broad, and \ Excavated {holloed} like Spoutes / in the Midle, which so flowd with water (thô it be on an Hill) that it hindred the workmen from takeing them up \ raseing the stones, / and set them wet-shod. The wall was laid in strong lime and sand, som of which (continuing yet moyst by reason of the water) was clammy and soft, and seemed to be mixed with the powder of marble or of Coble Stones, and Rubbish of brick; The old composition which the Romanes made use of in mixing their morter.
And (some few days after)[69] under the foundation of another wall (which ran parallel to it at about 5 yards distance) Leaden-Pipes were discovered[70] curiously soldred, & 8 inch in circumference. But the connecting of them together was \ something / most remarkable; [71] for they are not soldred one into another, but made with broad brimms like unto Sawcers, and so nailed together, which is fitter for us to admire than imitate, the figures of both I shall \ here / present you with, though not by scale (for that is not necessary). ~~Neither have I leisure at present to do justice.~~ Yet in such a manner as shal \ may / give satisfaction to every eye {the Beholder}, tho the rules of proportion be not \ duly / observed.

[VI.286]

The first is a wall of 2 f[oot] & 2 inch broad with 2 Leaden-pipes joyned at [letter] (a); the other, a wall with 6 Projectures for so many Pillars, on each of which wee suppose one hath stood.

Figure 3.3.11. 'A wall of 2 f[eet] & 2 inch broad with 2 Leaden-pipes joyned at (a); the other, a wall with 6 Projectures for so many Pillars, on each of which wee suppose one hath stood.' VI.286.

And on the second of these projectures was this inscription:

[68] Perpen: a stone running through a wall from one side to the other and having two smooth vertical faces; a perpen (or parpen) wall could also be a mason's term for a wall of a single stone in thickness. OED.
[69] Here, two-thirds of a line consists of thoroughly scored-through illegible text, but a margin comment, in another hand, asks, 'The pipe wall?'
[70] A margin comment here offers, 'We found.'
[71] MS: Written as, 'remarcable', but the 'c' was changed to 'k' by another hand.

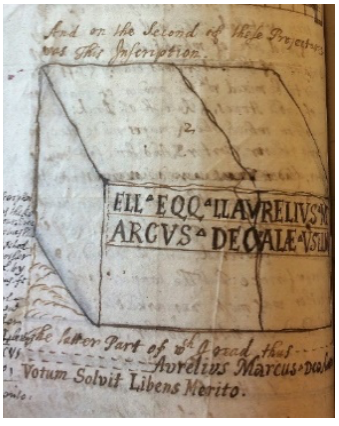

Figure 3.3.12. 'And on the second of these Projectures was this Inscription.' VI.286.

What if the whol should be thus read

(... A …) ELL (US) Equester Quirinalis Libert[is] Libertabusque
AVRELIVS MARCVS DEO (sive DECurio) ALÆ Votum Solvit Libens Lubens Merito.}[72]

The latter part of which, I read thus:

… AURELIUS Marcus. Deo Alæ Votum Solvit Libens Merito.[73]

There is an inscription to M. Aurelius the Romane Emperour, erected by M. Aurelius Philo at Apalby School, Fig. 3; and another Iovi opt[imo] Maximo[74] by Aurelius Fabius, F[ig.] 5.

[VI.287]

The manner of the Platform doth (in my Thoughts) bespeak it a Temple or Place of Worship within this great Fort;[75] and of that kinde which is called Peripteros from being surrounded about \ with a row of / Pillers, six whereof were plac'd in the front, and Six in the Rear; & nine on each side, which, with the Angular ones, made eleven. For whosoever consulteth Vitruvius will be of this minde.

And, By the inscription (reverently placed on a Foundation Stone) it should seem to be Dedicated (DEO ALÆ) to the tutelary God of the Romain Horse {if there was such a deity}; their Troopes, which they placed on the right and left hand about their Legions, being called Alæ from ala: a wing, because they covered and protected their infantry \ or legions of foot / as the wings of a Bird do the body of it {doth her body}. And the Author of this Temple is (here) said to be AURELIUS MARCUS, who seems to have vow'd it upon some hazardous Expedition in case his troupes returned victoriouse; as by the event it appeareth they did.

But it is not so Easy a thing to determin who this Marcus should be? Whether Marcus Aurelius Antoninus Pius (the word being Transpos'd) Emperour of Rome about the CXXXIXth year of Christ's Incarnation,[76] one of whose Coyns I have in Silver,[77] found near to this place about a year since? Or

[VI.288]

Marcus Aurelius Antoninus Verus (commonly called Marcus Aurelius) the adopted son of M. Antonius, to whom he succeeded about CLXII; {An. Xt. 162}) but was the son of ELLVS Verus which theletters ELL in the beginning of the foresaid Inscription may seem to favour. Or Marcus

[72] 'Aurelius Marcus, to God (or Decurion) of his cavalry unit, willingly, gladly and justly pays his vow.'
[73] 'Aurelius Marcus, to the god of his cavalry unit, pays his vow willingly and justly.'
[74] 'To Jupiter best and greatest.'
[75] A pencilled margin comment reads, MS: 'This seems so as ~~it has bin~~ here hewhead, as here we finde them some pieces of shapes of shafts of coll[umns] being here also found with holles.'
[76] A.D. 139.
[77] In the MS there is a rough sketch of two blank circles and a margin heading, 'A Coyne.'

Aurelius Flavius Claudius? Or his brother, Quintilius, about CCLXIX? {An. X^ti 269} Or Marcus Aurelius Valerius Probus, about CCLXXVII? Or Marcus Aurelius, sir-named Carus, in the year CCLXXXII?
{*!!}[78] Or lastly, one MARCUS, a Lieutenant of Britaine under Honorius at the Declineing of the Romaine Empire, when the Goths & Vandalls would needs overrun it about 396 years after Xt birth {CCCXCVI}, upon which the soldiers who lived here in Britaine (distrusting the conduct of young Honorius) elected Him Emperour.[79] \ But / presently after put him to death? This I should take to be ~~author of it~~ \ the man / ~~above all the rest~~ (if his prænomen could be discover'd to have bin Aurelius) concerning which my instructor \ author / is silent, because he lived & dyed in this Iland where (for ought I can read) the Rest never came; and presently after the Romains Retired. So, the least Antiquity can be assign'd \ this Romane Temple / is M.CC. LXXXXI years. {M.CC.XCI. 1291.}

[VI.289][80]

[C3.] Of the Temple of Alæ.

{Note. The M[emorandum] notes, & what is at the end with the paper pind to, may yet be serviceable} {A duplic[ate] being the 1^t draught.}

Of the Temple of Alæ
On December the 12, 1687, by digging for stones in a place call'd Highburwens at Kirkythore in the county of Westmorland (supposed to be the scite of Whelp-Castle) a foundation of huen-stone was \ there / discovered, placd on both sides (within & without), but with 6 projectures ~~at 2 foot distance after this maner~~, each of which was one entire stone, a foote & in deepth & 2 foote in diameter every way.

Figure 3.3.13. 'Interspaces between Projectures.' VI.289.

The interspaces betwixt these projectures were about 10 f[oot] and in bredth 2 foote & an halfe \ and in length 10 f[oot] / in manner of a perpen-wall; & before it came a conduit of stones, about a yard \ broad & / hollow in the midle \ excavated like spoutes / which soe flow'd with water \ (tho it be on an hill) / that it hindered the workemen from raiseing them \ up[81] / of the ground† \ & set them wetshod ~~though it be on an hill~~. The wal was laid in strong lime & sand, som of which (continuing yet moyst by reason of the water) was clammy & soft, & seemed to be mixed with the powder of marble or \ of / coble-stones. {And som few dayes after, leaden-pipes were found \ discoverd / under the foundation of an other wall which ran parallel to it at about 5 yards distance.}

†The 2^nd projecture was (in the front) inscribed as followeth:
The latter part of which I read thus …. Aurelius Marcus, Deo Alæ, Votum, Solvit, Libens, Merito.[82]

[78] A later hand, probably not Machell's.
[79] MS: 'about the year \ after Xt's nativity / ~~of Christ~~ 396 \ years after Xt birth /{CCCXCVI} ~~whereupon~~ \ upon which / the soldiers \ who lived / here in Britaine (Distrusting the Conduct of young Honorius) elected Him Emperour;'
[80] This is another draft of the content on VI.285-88.
[81] As in the previous draft, this word replaces a longer, illegible word.
[82] Continues on VI.291.

Figure 3.3.14. 'The 2nd projecture' inscription. VI.289.

[Dimensions written on the sketch above}
[Left side] 2 foote deep. [Right side] 1 foote and 10 inch.
[Front] One foot ~~and an halfe~~ and one halfe – rather 2f.
[Depth] 1 foote.

II. The maner of the platform does (in my thoughts) bespeak it a temple or place of worship within this ~~strong~~ \ great / fort; & \ one / of that kinde \ or sort / which is called Hexastylos \ Peripteros /from having six pillars in the front \ & rear / of it \ & on each side / {from being surrounded about with pillars, 6 whereof were plac'd \ XI / in the front, & 6 in the rear, & 9 on each side ~~which with those in the[…]~~[83] ~~made the said 11 which the angular one made~~} For whosoever consulteth Vitruvius will be of this minde.[84]

[Machell's Notes: VI.289][85]

{What remanes at the ends seemed to me only returnes, & supplement at the corners for strength.}
It was length way in the wall a f[oot] & ½, & in breadth 2 f[oot] as all the rest were.[86]
{Query: if this may not be Aurelius Optatus? So calld peradventure from the soldiers electing him Emperor.}
{se 220. His coyn. N.B. Antoninus Pius is stiled Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, whose lieutenant was Lollius, p.220, 2 & 5., in whose time the dike was cast twixt Carleile & Tine.[87]
{EQQ 237. Forsan (A)eli(us) Equest. Quirinalis. Libertis Libertabusque Aurelius Marcus Decurio-Alæ votum solvere libentissime merito. LL? ante Aurelium.}[88]
Marcus Lieutenant [pres]ented emperor by […] The armies there. 276. 5. Ibid. Speed.[89]
Marcus Aurelius the emperor […] parentage 221. & hon-rable titles 223. 12. His […] aise, 224. 12
Unhappy in his son. […] \ 247. /248. 249.
† Such a cross as this in the stones found at Kirkbythore […] After erected in The Picts Wall by Aulus […] ens who perhaps was A Christian) see Speed 222 […] -our M. Aurelius con-vincd by miracle[90] enco […] his edict & Lucius our 1ᵗ Christian King encouraged the […] See also what Trebellinus & Pertinas […]

[83] There is one illegible word in this scored-through passage.
[84] This paragraph was written on a piece of paper (19cm x 7½cm), pasted to the foot of VI.289 over Machell's text, much of which is now hidden.
[85] The dotted lines in this section represent text hidden by VI.292B. Part of it appears to echo text on VI.291 relating to a Christian miracle.
[86] The following sentences are covered by a piece of paper pasted over them, obscuring a significant part of the text beneath. Parts obscured are shown by: […].
[87] A Latin phrase here begins, 'non sed murus p[…]'; the last word is unclear. For Lollius, see VI.291, below.
[88] 'Perhaps Aelius, a Quirinial knight. To the freed men and the freed women. Aurelius Marcus Decurion of the cavalry unit pays his vow most willingly and justly. LL? Before Aurelius.'
[89] John Speed, The Historie of Great Britaine Under the Conquests of the Romans, Saxons, Danes and Normans. Their Originals, Manners, Habits, Warres, Coines, and Seales: with the Successions, Lives, Acts, and Issues of the English Monarchs from Julius Caesar, unto the Raigne of King James of famous Memorie (London, 1611 and many other editions).
[90] Machell is referring here to Speed's description of a Christian miracle: 'Aurelius the Emperour … was inclosed about with his enemies, called the Quadi, and suffered great mortality both by Pestilence and much by want of water, whereby himselfe and Host were almost consumed. At which time many Christian Souldiers

[VI.291]

And, by the inscription, it should seem to be dedicated (DEO ALÆ) TO THE TUTELARY God of the Roman Horse; their troupes which they plac'd (on the right & left hand) about their legions, being called Alæ, from ala: a wing, because they cover'd & protected their infantry, as the wings of a bird do the body of it. And the author of this temple is (here) said to be AURELIUS MARCUS, who seems to have vow'd it upon some hazardouse expedition in case his troupes returned victoriouse, as by the event it appearse that they did.

But it is not ~~a thinge~~ so easy a thing to determin who this Marcus was; whether Marcus Aurelius Antoninus Pius (the words misplaced \ transposed / ~~who was~~ Emperour of Rome about the 39th year of Christ's Incarnation, one of whose coyns I have in silver, found near to this place about a year since; whose Lieutenant \ Legate / Lollius \ Lieutenant of Britaine / built a turfe-wall to divide the province & to impeach the incursions of the Barbarians \ people / after he had reduced the Brit~~ains~~ish \ provinces / to their wonted subjection. {Julius Capitolinus.}[91] {This lieutenant was Calphurnius Agricola, whose name was inscribed on an altar at the Picts Wall.} {Marc Anthony}[92]

Or Marcus Aurelius Antoninus Verus (commonly called M. Aurelius) \ the adopted / son of M. Antoninus, to whom he succeeded in the Empire about 162. But was the son of Elius Verus, which the letters ELI \ prehab for ELI / may seem to favour in \ the beginning of the foresaid / inscription: Marcus Aurelius Flavus Claudus \ LL being for FL. / Or his brother Quintilius about 269 ~~or 71~~. Or M. Aurelius Valerius Probus, about 277, or M. Aurelius sirnamed Carus in the year 282 {whose other names are not discovered to us in history.} Or lastly one Marcus, a lieutenant of Britaine under Honorius at the declineing of the Roman Empire, when the Goths & Vandalls would needs runn it, circa an X^t. 396. Whereupon the soldjers in Britaine, distrusting the conduct of Young Honorius, elected him Emperour, & presently after, put him to death. This I should take to be the founder of this ancient Temple, above al the rest \ (if I could trade his prænomen, Aurelius, / because he livd & dyed in this Iland, where (for ought I can read) the rest never came, & presently after the Romans retir'd, so the least antiquity can be ascrib'd to it \ assign'd it / id M.CC.XCI years \ 1291. /

[VI.292]

{May it not be Aurelius Oplatus, so calld perhaps from the soljers electing him emperor. If I could finde his other name to have bin Aurelius? See Sabellicus, *Enn.*7 Lib. 9.}[93]

A better account was sent to Oxford to Dr Mil[l] Jan. 13. 1688, to be return[ed]; wherein of the lead pipes.[94]

[C4.] Addend[a]

{!!!} And from hence it may seeme that in the Declineing of the Roman Empire this place was so large and so considerable that a whol wing of the Romain Horse kept their station here; for the being in his Campe, and commanded (as Ionas was) to call upon their God; they fell prostrate on the ground in prayers, & obtained of him so plenteous a shower of raine, as therewith after five daies extreamest drouth and thirst, the whole Army was refreshed, and the Quadi contrariwise by Thunder and Lightning were quite dispersed and overthrowne. This wonder (saith Eusebius) is reported even by those Historians who favoured not Christianity, and the prudent Epistle of the Emperour himselfe (which hee wrote to the Senate for confirmation of this miracle yet extant) doth warrant the same: whereupon he both mitigated the rage against Christs Professours, and (by testimony of Apollinaris) named that Legion of the Christians, for an everlasting remembrance, The Lightning Legion.' Speed, Historie of Britaine (London, 1611; this edn, 1623), Book 6, Chap. 19, 221. Eusebius of Caesarea (c.260-c.339) was a historian of Christianity.

[91] Julius Capitolinus was one of the supposed authors of the Historia Augusta, presented as a series of imperial biographies by six writers. A critical edition published by Isaac Casaubon in 1603, gave it its name: see Andreas Mehl (tr. Hans Friedrich Mueller), Roman Historiography: An Introduction to its Basic Aspects and Development (Oxford, 2014), 171.

[92] Added in pencil.

[93] Marcus Antonius Sabellicus (Italian; 1436-1506), Enneades sive Rhapsodia historiarum (1498). Machell probably took this reference from Speed, Historie of Britaine, see 1623 edn, Book 6, 179.

[94] Roughly written in pencil. The 'better account' is the fair copy of VI.285-88, see above.

Temple shews it to have bin more than a moveable Quarter; and that Marcus himselfe, the Lieutenant of Britain, resided then here that he might be in readiness to send his Instructions with his troops of horse out upon all occasions to assist the Infantry upon the frontiers;[95] to which purpose also the Maden-way, which leades from hence to Caer-varon at the Picts Wall, may seeme to have served, & give som colour to this conjecture.

[VI.292A]

[Notes] Ad Templum \ Dei / Alæ
What Rem[ains] at the Ends, semes to be returns and additional[96] suppliments for supporting the Coynes[97] & strength[ening] the foundations of them.
{Peripteros[98] 6 Coll; Pseudoperipteros[99] 8 col.}
Ergo if 10f in leng. The walke would be but 10 – Ergo if 10f in leng. The walke would be but 10 – sit inter collumnij latitudinis \ intervallum / Quorum inter collumniorum et imæ lassitudinis. collumnæ spatium; ergo XXf. II.[100]

[VI.292B]

The mannor \ verg[101] / of the platform does (in judgment) \ my thoughts / bespeak it a temple or place of worship, ~~within~~ and of that sort which is called Hexastolos, from hence the precincts of this ancient fabric, which has bin in 6 pillers in the front of it, for whosoever constructeth \ erected / DEO ALÆ – to the tutelary God of the Romaine Horse – their troupes which they placed (on the right hand & left about their legions, being call de Comitibus,[102] see Speed, p.222, or Capitolinus Valerian 2.2.[103] Vitruvius will thinke so with me, be of my minde. And by the inscription, which I read that[104]

[D. Ring Stones, 1687/8]

[VI.246]

[1] {A Cornelian ring stone with a seal cut upon [it] found in a lump of Roman [s]tone by the temple f. 1687/8, Feb.}
[2.] {A Sardonix ring stone with a seale cut upon it, found in Bleckats Burhans 30 March 1687/8.}
[3.] Lastly – those Ovals at the foot of the Table mark'd with the letters (h. i. & k.) are several Ring Stones found hereabouts & in my Possession; whereof the 1[t] part, which is marked h., is either a Ruby or Deep Cornelian (but pardon me if I mistake in these things \ matters that I know not / being no profest Lapidary; Having \ and has / the Figure of a man upon it, with a Dog at his foot, a trident or forked-Mace in his right hand (with a Mantle hanging down from that arm, & in his left I do not know what). But Because the Impression quite alters the Posture and may yield \ far / greater Satisfaction to the Inquisitive than my Scratches[105] can do, I have thought fit to add it.
Which whether it may be some of Their Lares,[106] which the Romans worshipd ~~or the Saxon God Thor~~, or may have relations to som of the Catuli, Let others Conjecture. I know nothing of it, but That

[95] MS: 'in readiness to send ~~aid and~~ \ his / Instructions, ~~and~~ with his horse \ ~~guards~~ \ troops / of horse out upon all occasions / to assist the Infantry upon the frontiers ~~on emergent occasion~~.'
[96] MS: 'adionals.'
[97] Wall Quoins.
[98] 'Peripteros': a temple or other building surrounded by a single peristyle or row of columns; the encompassing peristyle itself.
[99] 'Pseudoperipteros': a form of temple or other building with free columns forming a portico in front (and sometimes in the rear) as in a peripteral building, but with the rest of the columns engaged in the walls instead of standing free.
[100] 'The walk would be but 10 feet in length, if we assume an interval of a column's width between; and between these columns, a space for the plinth at the base of a column: therefore 20 feet II.'
[101] An indistinct word, added later. Because 'mannor' is underscored by a pecked line, Machell seems to have preferred to write, 'the verge of the platform', i.e. 'boundary, border, edge'.
[102] 'The ranks of the companions.'
[103] The life of Valerian I appears in the Historia Augusta, 2, 98-102 (supposedly written by Trebellius Pollio).
[104] Here, the fragment ends.
[105] An interlineation here, written in thick pencil, appears to say, MS: 'I am able to draw here thought fit to subjoyn the Inscription.'
[106] 'Lares': Roman family spirit-deities, worshipped as guardians, patrons or protectors.

it was stuck in a Piece of Roman ~~Plaster~~ \ morter or cement / amongst the Rubbish of the Temple Describ'd; & That there was another found also (within ½ a yard of the same place, which I never saw, being carelessly lost by an unhappy boy; & I have h\e/ard of a third[107] taken up som 40 years since, of the same sise & colour, which was offer'd in Sale to Mrs Dalston of Acorn Bank, but not purchased by her. {So I was informed by her daughter Duket, Feb. 9 1688, T.M. She told me also of a booke 550 yeares of age, found in a wall at Burhans hal, with curious lining, which Dr Smith, B[ishop] of Carlile, bid 10s for.}[108]

Figure 3.3.15. Seal Ring Stones. VI.246.

Fig 3.3.16. A sardonix ring stone with a seale cut up on it found in Bleckatt Burhans, 30 of March 1687/8. VI.246.

The 2[d] Oval, which is mark'd with (i), is without doubt a Sardonyx Stone: Of a Duskish colour on the inside (which is the Reverse). But on the Outside, round the Rebate, a little Readish like a man's naile & veined with black & yellow strokes as small as an hair. But then the small Oval, wherein the figure of a man standeth, pointing as it were to the ground with a rod in One hand, & in the other holding an Helmet (or som such like Thing) is now become (through long Continuance) like Discolered Ivory; wherein are som little Transverse, blackish st\r/okes; which to Dissemble & alter the Graveing (\ as / to outward appearance) That it seemeth more like a worm than a man, But yet the Impression thereof is Delicate – & was formerly better.

[107] MS: 3[d].

[108] Thomas Smith, bishop of Carlisle from 1684, was an enthusiastic collector of books. A fellow of Queen's College, Oxford, from 1639, he built up a substantial library, helpfully inscribing his books with his name, the date purchased and the price. On his death in 1702 he left a number of these books to the cathedral library. See David Weston, Thomas Smith 1614-1702, Dean of Carlisle: 1672 to 1684, Bishop of Carlisle: 1684 to 1702 (Carlisle, 2020), from 56. The Philemon Holland edition of Britannia (London, 1610), consulted by this editor, was published in 1637. Purchased by Thomas Smith for £1.10s. in 1656, it remains in Carlisle Cathedral Library (CCL, 6A. 9.7).

{Have […][109] to London. Som little injuryes to be set on gold.}

[VI.244B]

[Instructions relating to the] Ring stones found in Whelp Castle ruines, 1687.

[VI.244A][110]

Memorandum:
To get these stones sett in 2 seal-rings firmly & handsomely with this inscription on the inside of them: Lapis inventus apud Whelp-Castle. 1688.[111]

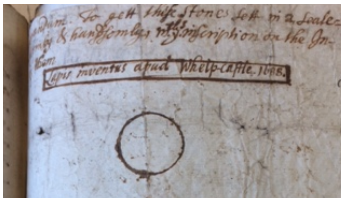

Figure 3.3.17. 'Lapis inventus apud Whelp-Castle. 1688.' VI.244A.

Enquire into the value of the stone; what the figures ingraven is? And have it weighed before you carry it to a goldsmith. That when it is don, you may know what weight of gold the ring is by subducting the weight of the stone, & by this means you will not be cheated. But you may do well to get my cosan Framptons assistance, or Mr Shepherds, to both whom I pray give my service.

[VI.244][112]

		LI	O	d	Gr[113]
The gold of the tow rings is	=	00		04	06
				6
Which is		00 =		17	00
LI
The stones w. (H) ii (Gr) 8 the fashioning		1		07	00
	Graving	1
{6 –15[0]}
Which is a penny weight
eighteen grains
		01		04	00

March the 10th 1690/1
Rec[eive]d of Mr Thomas Machell by the hands of Mr Shepard, one pound four shillings.
By me Geo: Brooke.

[VI.247]

For lending this, & the other stone on the opposite page, lately to London to be put in gold rings, they unluckily broke a piece out of this, which makes the 2d impression of it worse than the former.

{A Cristilline Stone found at the S. west corner of the High Burhans where Whelp Castle Stoode, in 1691.}
The last marked (k.) was a Christalline Stone, much thicker & larger than the other, which for that [109] The following word in the MS is indistinct. From the context (see following pages) it appears that Machell sent the ring-stone to London to be set in gold.

[110] Piece of paper, 14½cm square, attached to the main page.
[111] 'Stone found at Whelp Castle, 1688.'
[112] Piece of paper, 14cm x 9½cm, attached to the main page.
[113] Machell appears to refer to Troy weight, a standard system of units of mass originating in the French city of Troyes during the medieval period, primarily used in the precious metals and precious stones industries. Troy weight units are the grain, the pennyweight (24 grains), the troy ounce (20 pennyweights), and the troy pound (12 troy ounces). OED.

Reason was unfit for a Ring; neither was there any thing graven upon it, which makes me ~~think~~ \ suppose / that it has been a Locket, for wearing upon a ladyes arm only. It was found at High Burhanes, on the S. west side, near the South angle, & was kindly given me by (Susan Dobson) {A good wife in the town; a neighbouring woman};[114] and many such Stones have been found hereabouts. Yet (which is most strange) I never h\e/ard of a Ring, saving one about 60 years since, which was taken up in Bleckats Burhanes (as they now call them) & sold at first hand for a small price, but at the 2[d] hand for 60[li],[115] as I am inform'd, the Stone being a Diamond. & truly if it had such virtue as is ascribed by Dioscoridesto such kind of stones:[116] That being born upon the left shoulder it was good against strife, contention (~~or hideing~~), the ring might be richly ~~valued~~ worth the money. Or, if it would take away fear & melancholly & strengthen the Heart (as the greatest Naturilists say that it will) were but now in some mens hands of my acquaintance.

[Machell's Notes: VI.247]
{in K.: stuck in the Plaster of their Chamber Wall for their private devotion.}
{One found formerly (as Mrs Elizabeth Ducket informed me Feb. 9 1688) of the size with the Cornelian & offerd in sale to her mother Dalston, but not Purchased by her. Query: whether they have not bin their Signa or Simulation Deorum: see Vitruvius.}

[Conclusion]
Thus have I exposed \ un/to your view a most Noble Treasury of Choyce Antiquities, which was opened on the 12[th] of December, 1687, by \ in / seeking for stone in the High Burhans – the Place which I always assign'd for Whelp Castle; & it gave me abundant satisfaction therein, shewing the Riche\s, / Strength & Magnificence of a most Sumptuous Palace, thô long since Destroyed & Buryed under Ground. & the plenty of water which so flowed upon them, the Leaden Pipes which went under the wall, with the Conduit & Channels which I have mentioned within & without do show that it hath been vere' Castellum: a Castle Indeed. Which is further confirmed by a Stone I met with in the Side of an house on your left hand as you goe up the town, with this Inscription, but (like the Castle) turn'd upside down:[117]

[VI.248]

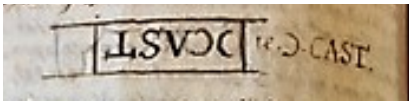

Figure 3.3.18. 'With this Inscription, but (like the Castle) turn'd upside down.' VI.248.

Whence we may Conclude –
HIC STETIRIT CATVLI
REGIA CELSA SENIS[118]
Here stood
WHELP=CASTLE

[114] MS: '{A good wife in the town; a neighbouring woman} a neighbouring wife.'
[115] Machell placed numerals 1, 2, 3 above words in this passage to change the order; the text is transcribed as seen but if the alteration had been made the text would have read, 'but for 60li at the 2[d] hand.'
[116] Pedanius Dioscorides (c.40-90 AD) was a Greek physician travelling with the Roman army, whose fundamental work is known by its Latin name, De Materia Medica (c.77 AD). The work describes how to make medicine using almost 600 plants and minerals. www.britannica.com/biography/Pedanius-Dioscorides
[117] MS: 'by a stone I met with in the side of an house on your ~~right~~\ left / hand as you goe ~~down~~ \ up / ~~from hence towards~~ the ~~bridge~~ \ town, / with this inscription, but (like the castle) turn'd upside down.'
[118] Compare Ovid, Heroides 1. 'Letter from Penelope to Ulysses', 1.34: 'hic steterat Priami regia celsa senis.' 'Here stood the lofty realms of old Priam.' Machell was referring to Ovid speaking of ancient Troy, but adapting the line to refer to, and give lustre to, his own family by association with King Priam of old.

[VI.viii]

[E. Discoveries, 1687–1692]
[E1. From William Nicolson's List of the Contents of Volume VI]

A collection of Roman Inscriptions (with a discourse on them) sent to Dr Mill in 1692, p.181 to 249. Some draughts referr'd to are wanting here; but are in a fairer transcript in 4to, which was the Book sent by the author to Oxford.

[VI.181]

[E2.] {Out of my collection of the antiq[uities] of W. & C.}
A Booke of Antient Inscriptions sent to Dr Mill Principal of Ed. Hall in Oxon in 1692
With the Cuttes[119]

[Note] I write antient with a (t) not a (c) because it comes from the Latine antiquus: T.M.[120]

[VI.189][121]

Inscriptions at Apulby
{Stephanus è libro Notitiarum}[122]
At Apalby (the antient Aballaba, reckon'd amongst the great cities of old, and yet the County Towne of Westmerland) are divers Inscriptions both Antient and Modern. There was One at the Castle (grav'd upon Brass) in the Tower call'd Cæsars: which evil hands have depriv'd us of. But there are yet Severall about the Schoolhouse, being the Collection of the learn'd Mr Bainebrig, Schoolmaster here in Camdens time, whereof Some are Topicall, the Rest translated hither by Him from other places {of which tis Reported (& by some believed) that He left a Spell or Inchantment upon Them; That no man could read them unless he lay 3 days & 3 nights upon his Back.}[123]

[a.] On the Front of the little Schoolhouse (vulgarly calld the Gardine House from its Situation in the midst of a Gardine, & which is allover adorned with Inscriptions) are these purely Topicall. Whereof the 1st (marked a.) shews the situation of the Towne \ chiefe street / of Apalby: "Quam circumfluit Ituna": which Eden Incompasseth, & the Antiquitie of it, as having been a Roman Station. As also the devastation Thereof by War & Pestilence. And that the Market was translated thence, to a Place call'd Gilshaughlin, which is iiii or v miles N.W. from Apalby. And the Reason why it was Their, rather than any other Place, is Probably This; That some of the Fallowfields (whose Seat was hard by at Great Strickland Hall, commonly call'd Melkinthrop Hall) might at that time be Maior of the Town. Note: C.C. in the end of the 1st line stands for Circum.; F.F. in the ivth for Funditus; F., in the end, for fuit. All the rest is easy enough.

{b.} The 2^{d}. Marked b.) Gives an account of the Foundation of this little Schoolhouse; for there was a School long before this – ex fundatione Burgensium de Apalby;[124] as I have shewn in my Treatiss

[119] 'With the engravings.' Cut: a design cut or engraved upon wood, copper, or steel; the impression from this; an engraving, a plate, now restricted to engravings on wood, those on metal being called plates. OED.
[120] Another note here, remarks, 'Cornage' [commuted] 'consisted of "Eundo cum regis exercitu contra Scotos in vantgard[ia], et redeundo in reregard[ia]. T.M. É Tur. London"'; which translates as, 'going with the king's army against the Scots in the vanguard and returning in the rearguard' [N.B. The most dangerous position in each case.] 'T.M. From the Tower of London.'
[121] Also numbered p.3.
[122] 'Stephanus, from The Book of Lists.'
[123] For similar information see Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, II.507, II.509.
[124] 'Founded by the burghers of Appleby.'

of it. The only difficulty in this Inscription is F.F. for fundati fuêre; & in the VI[th] line H.M.O.B. &c. i.e. Hoc Monumentum ob Ma\e/rita[m] Præstita[m] Riginaldus Bainebrig Posuit.[125]
{c.} The 3[d] (marked c.) sheweth how Mr Bainebrig Dr LL taught School Here, till the Great School was builded by Him & Hoc Monumentum Sibi Vivens Posuit.[126]

The rest which follow are on the Same Front; whereof som perhaps were found about Apalby & Therefore not marked with any Townes Names (which I have Noted with an Asterisc) do sufficiently testify. And yet some suchlike may be Published in Camden, forasmuch as 'twas usual with the same Legions to leave the same Inscriptions behind them in severall places. Note, the 4[th] Inscription is Pub[lished] in Camden, but with this variation in the ivth line: II. UVG. F. And there is also one like the 5[th], but not so perfect, in Ædib[us] Howardorum de Naworth.[127]

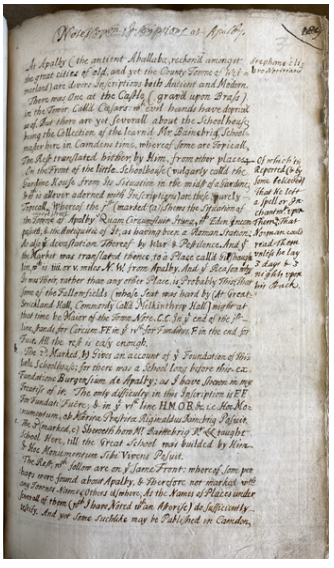

Figure 3.3.19. Fair Copy of Machell's work on Appleby Inscriptions sent to Dr John Mill at Oxford. I.189.

[VI.191]

I wonder much at this Second Stone having Legio Septima Victrix upon it. Because I never remember my selfe to have met with such a Legion as This in any other Inscription or Author. Blatumbulgulium is Bulness, vulgo Bowness in Cumberland, where the Picts wall begins.[128] Æsica is the ruines of an old towne, so call'd, near Netherby upon Esk in Cumberland, where a piece of Roman Gold (I think [125] 'Reginald Bainebrig set up this monument in honour of the estimable Margaret.' This was Lady Margaret Russell (1560-1616), daughter of Francis Russell, 2nd earl of Bedford, wife of George Clifford, 3rd earl of Cumberland and mother of Lady Anne Clifford.

[126] 'He set up this monument to himself in his lifetime.'
[127] 'At the seat of the Howards of Naworth.'
[128] Camden wrote in Britannia, 'Promontoriolo huic incumbit antiquum illud opidum Blatum-Bulgium (fortasse a bulch Britannorumquae interstitium sive divortium sonat)' which translates as, 'Upon this standeth that ancient towne Blatum-Bulgium (happily of bulch, a British word that signifieth a separation).' According to Bulmer's History and Directory of Cumberland (1901), 'There is some uncertainty as to the name by which this station was known to the Romans. Camden, from a resemblance of sound in the names, says it was the Blatum Bulgium of that people; but Horsley, Hutchinson, and others affirm that it was the Tunnocellum of the Romans, and that it was the eighteenth station on the wall, being occupied, according to the Notitia, by the Cohors prima Ælia Classica.' T. Bulmer & Co., History, Topography, & Directory of Cumberland (Preston, 1901) 32.

of Nerva but the letters are dim) was found \ the / last year; {penes Hugone' Todd}[129] about the bigness of a Roman penny.

Chesters.
There are 3 places of This Name in Northumberland, as I have observed in my Pervestigation of the Picts-wall; whereof 2 of Them are upon the said Wall, one being 2 miles distant from Hexam near Wallic Grange, which therefore I call Chesters by Wallic; the other near Woa-Town (not far from Cærvorran & Thirleway {Castle which therefore I call Chester by Woa Towne.} The 3^{d} (not far ~~distant~~ S. from it, where I suppose ~~this~~ stone was found) is call'd Chesters-Iverton, or Chesters on Caudley, so I thought fit to distinguish.[130]

8. There is an Inscription, much like unto this, published by Camden apud Whitley Castle yet with considerable variacions; for that begins thus: IMP. CAES. L. … This, CAES. IVL. … That erected by the COH. III; this by the II NERVIORVM. That at Whitley Castle; this at Alsten-moore: with divers others. But one may serve to explaine the other. Note in This, That DV stands for D·V, i.e. DIVI per implicationem & reduplicationem litera I.[131] And yet Alsten-moore is in the way which leads from Whelp Castle at Kirkby-thore to Cævarron on the Top of Glen-Whelp near the Picts-wall; which is an antient Roman Cas-way paved with Pebles & call'd Maiden Way {for Mr Camden was imposed upon by the bordering Troopers, both as to the matter & Termini of it when they made him believe it was paved with flint & extended to Maiden Castle on Stainemore. By which it appeareth that he never came to the Bottom of Westmorland (the best part of the county) and therefore no wonder he gives so slight a relation of it.}
{via virginea ducit a Castro Catulino, ad Convallem Catuli juxta Cærvorran ~~via virginea ducit ad convallem~~ Catuli.}[132]

9. There is One like this in Camden, At Rochester, but This differs from it, 1. By Implication of Letters in the 2^{d} & 3^{d} lines, which in That are at Large; 2. By Variation of Mood in the fourth; 3. By wanting of the Transverse Stro\a/kes over N. & H. in the beginnings of the 5th & 6th; 4^{ly} by the Redundance of a Leaf after C. in the 5th also; and by several Periodical Points diversly dispers'd. The like differences may be observ'd in the Rest that Occur in Camden, but I pass them over for Brevities Sake.

[VI.193][133]

The 14th in Number (as they stand in the wall) is placed at d.

{15 & 16} The xvth & xvith are in Mr Camden. But then his letters are not so Genuine. For these (as I take it) may be Originals. The only difficulty is in the Subscriptions; whereof the 1st is Hic lapis invent[us] est Brovonaci[134] i.e. at Browham. The other, Hoc Monumentum est Gallagi,[135] i.e. At Kirkbythore, where Whelp-Castle stood; for Tho' Mr Camden calls it Wheallop to bring it as near as he can to Wallatun and so to Gallatum, yet we (with all due respect & reverence to so Great an Author)[136] being better informed by antient writeings, do with the vulgar call it Whelp-Castle. {For there was one WHELP (sic Anglo-Saxones dixêre CATVLVM)[137] Lord of this place at or before the Norman Conquest.}

[129] 'In the possession of Hugh Todd', see Machell's correspondence, Part 3, Ch.2, I.502, I.503A.
[130] For analysis of this paragraph and Machell's association with Hadrian's Wall, see Eric Birley, 'Notes: Thomas Machell and Hadrian's Wall?', CW2, 51 (1951), 181-82.
[131] 'Divi, by implication and by reduplication, of the letter 'I'.'
[132] 'The Maidens Way leads from the castle of the Catuli to the valley of Catulus, by Caervorran.'
[133] Also numbered p.7.
[134] 'This stone was found at Brovonacum.'
[135] 'This monument is at Gallagum.'
[136] MS: 'with all due reverence \ 2 / & respect \ 1 / to so great an author'.
[137] 'For this is what the Anglo-Saxons called Catulus.'

[VI.214]

Figure 3.3.20. Inscription '16. ad App[leby].' VI.188.

[VI.186D]

Figure 3.3.21. 'The xxth is design'd by Mr Bainbrig as a fairer copy to preserve the Memory of Those Inscriptions upon the Rocks which are at Crawdundale.' VI.186D.

20. The xxth is design'd by Mr Bainbrig as a fairer copy to preserve the Memory of Those Inscriptions upon the Rocks which are at Crawdundale in Newbigin Parish, as appears by the letters which he has caused to be graved under them & which I read Thus: Qvæ. Svpra SCRIPTA SVNT APVD Crawdundale. But when I went to view the Place, I found The Original (which much surprised me.) \ Thus / exactly:

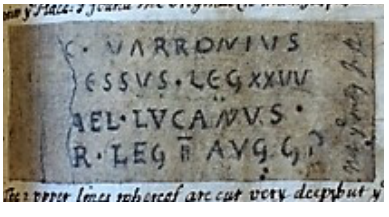

Figure 3.3.22. Varronius Inscription. VI.193.

The 2 upper lines whereof are cut very deep, but the lower are don with a lighter hand \ & / in a much finer and more Polite Character; which maks me suppose them severall Inscriptions: Whereof that of Varonius seems the more antient, The Letters Λ. E. C. L. & V, carrying (as it were in their very foreheads) the Prima Literarum Elementa, before they \ were / jump'd together in Forme, & arriv'd to perfection. And the Judicious CAMDEN observes, That in this Iland from the Time of Severus til Gordian & afterwards, The Letter A was always writ (in Roman Inscriptions) without the Transverse or Coupling stroake. And so it is in that of Varronius; But otherwise in that of Lucanus. And as to the former He Readeth it Thus:

[VI.195][138]

Varronius Præfectus Legionis Vicessimæ Valentis Victricis.[139] But the word Præfectus, or –Ectus, is not visible now (however, the Alteration came or the Mistake was committed) but planely ESSVS. The Latter he Readeth after this manner: Ælius Lucanus Præfectus Legionis Secundæ Augustæ, Castra metati sunt,[140] or som such like thing (But you se the Characters). And Then, He tells us "That the LEGIO VICES-SIMA VALENS VICTRIX (which quartered at DEVA, now called West-Chester) and the LEGIO[141] SECUNDA AVGVSTA (which quartered at ISCA now CAERLEON in Wales) Being call'd against the enemy in these Parts, may seem to have Pitched their Tents Hereabouts, which is not unlikely. But I do observe That the Romans were wont to leave very many Inscriptions behind them upon such Rocks as afforded them Stone for their Public Buildings: whereof This is One; as appears by stones which are yet Digged up out of the Foundations at Kirkbythore & which (we are satisfied) came mostly from Thence.[142] And doubtless there have been more Letters \ here, / though now Done away. For in a Rock just above this (looking for OCTO. COT. COS. which Camden mentions in vicina Rupe;[143] not now to be found) I met with another, which is as followeth and which he hath not.

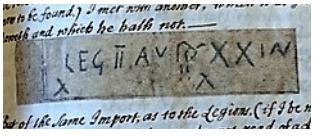

Figure 3.3.23. Inscription not known to Camden. VI.195.

But of the Same Import as to the Legions (if I be not mistaken with the former), for we do not read of Legio Vicessima Prima. Nor will the various forms of the A (in the same Line) favour such reading.

{Appleby}

But to Returne againe to APALBY. I hope it is possible (by these little Hints that I have given) To Read all the lines which are writ on this house, without the Trouble of lying 3 days & 3 nights on your Back, As a Counter Charm against Mr Bainebrigs Reported Magick; who being a Learned Ingenious person, & understanding the use of the Globes

[VI.197][144]

(with some other things which \ yet / are not vulgar) is therefore look'd upon as a Conjurer, but was in Reality a very good man; as appears from his Building The Famous Schoolhouse (wherein they now teach) with the Help & Assistance of some Benefactors. On the Front of which he hath placed These Inscriptions.

{1.} 1st over the school door: Whereof (as I take it) the 1st is Read Thus:

---

[138] Also numbered p.9.

[139] 'Varronius, Prefect of the 20th Legion, Valens Victrix.' Camden (followed by Machell) named the 20th Legion as 'Valens Victrix' instead of 'Valeria Victrix.' RIB 998 (Roman Inscriptions of Britain) gives: 'Gaius Varronius [.]essus legionis XX Valeriae Victricis | Aelius Lucanus | cornicen legionis II Augustae C[…]; translated as, Gaius Varronius [.]essus, (soldier) of the Twentieth Legion Valeria Victrix. Aelius Lucanus, cornicen of the Second Legion Augusta.' https://romaninscriptionsofbritain.org/inscriptions/998. According to RIB, 'The surviving portion is now built into the west wall of the barn at Underwood Farm, Milburn, 4.8km. north of Kirkby Thore. The rest is now lost.'

[140] 'Ælius Lucanus Prefect of the 2nd Legion Augusta moved camp.' For a fuller discussion of Machell's transcription and interpretation, see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, III.283.

[141] MS: 'Legio \ EGIO. /'

[142] MS: 'Thence Hence.'

[143] 'On a neighbouring rock.'

[144] Also numbered p.11.

"Haec Schola Anno Quinto Jacobi Magnæ Britanniæ Regis a Riginaldo Bainebrig Scholarcha Ejusdem, Domino Autore, Fundata fuit. 1607";[145] wherein S. standing for 5 (which figure it somewhat represents) is chiefly remarkable.

2. The II[d] is a Fragment, Translated hither by Mr Bainebrig from Bowes in Yorkshire, which Place was antiently call'd Lavatris, perhaps a lavando (and Bowes a Baijs) from the Roman Baths that were builded there. It is Published in Camden with a Remarke on another Inscription, which gives light to this & to my Conjecture Concerning the Antient and Modern name of the Place whence it came. "Imperante Severo (sayes he) Cum Virius Lupus Legatus, et Proprætor Britanniæ esset, Cohors Prima Thracum Præsidium a(pu)d Bows egit; Cui Balneum (quod etiam BALINEVM dicitur) restituit (vi ignis exustum)". Ut patet ex inscriptione quae hinc Cottingtoniam, ad Ædes Roberti Cottoni; translata est.[146] In which is added CVRANTE VAL. FRO[N]TONE &c.[147]

{4} The IIII[th] is so eassie, that He who runns may Read.[148] I shall therefore need to say nothing of it. But there is another Inscription on the North end of the same Schoolhouse, Over the Door of the highest Story, Design'd for a library, which gives an account of the kind Assistance Mr Bainebrig met with in his Designe of Building This school, from the noble family of the CLIFFORDS of Apalby which is now Extinck; and the letters in a manner worn out but \ that / I took care to preserve them formerly, which is (as I read \ them /) De Schola Bene Meruerunt, Franciscus Nobilis Comes Cumbriæ Dedit Ligna: Margareta Comitissa Cumbriæ; Clarissima Fæmina, Saxa Dedit.[149]

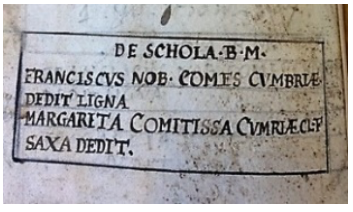

Figure 3.3.24. Appleby School; Clifford Inscription. VI.186B.

[145] 'This school was founded in the 5th year of James King of Great Britain by Reginald Bainebrig, Teacher, inscribed by the Head-Master.' (i.e. Inscription set up by Bainebrig himself).
[146] The passage in Camden's Britannia is as follows: 'Imperante Severo, cum Virius Lupus legatus et propraetor esset Britanniae, cohors prima Thracum praesidium hic egit, cui balneum (quod etiam balineum dicitur) restituit, ut patet ex hac inscriptione quae hinc Cottingtoniam ad aedes clarrissimi et eruditissimi viri Roberti Cottoni ordinis equestris translat'; which translates as, 'Whiles under Severus the Emperour Virius Lupus ruled as Lieuntenant Generall and Propraetor of Britaine, the first Cohort of the Thracians lay heere in garison: for whose sake he reedified the Bath or Hote house, as appeereth by this inscription, which from hence hath beene translated to the Cottingtonian, unto the house of that right worshipfull and learned Sir Robert Cotton, Knight: See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1607), Latin translation, Dana F. Sutton, Yorkshire, 64. https://philological.cal.bham.ac.uk/cambrit. The Latin in Machell's MS translates as, 'During the reign of Severus when Virius Lupus was legate and governor of Britain, the First Cohort of Thracians did garrison duty at Bowes; for these men he restored the bath-house (which is also called a hot-house). It had been destroyed by a serious fire. As is apparent from an inscription which has been transferred from here to the Cottington [library collection] at the house of Robert Cotton.'
[147] The inscription given by Camden is as follows,
'DAE … FORTVNAE / VIRIVS LVPVS / LEG. AVR. PR. PR. / BALINEVM VI/ IGNIS EXVST- / VM. COH. I. THR- / ACVM REST-/ ITVIT. CVRANTE / VAL. FRON- / TONE PRAEF - - - / EQ. ALAE VETTO'. See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1607, Latin translation, Dana F. Sutton, Yorkshire, 64, https://philological.cal.bham.ac.uk/cambrit. CVRANTE VAL. FRO[N]TONE translates as, 'under the supervision of Valerius Fronto.'
[148] A biblical quotation: Habakkuk 2.2.
[149] 'They have deserved well of the school: Francis noble earl of Cumberland gave the timber; Margaret Countess of Cumberland, most illustrious lady, gave the stones.'

[VI.199] [150]

And there was also another House (with a little Gardine) at the South end of the Great School, Design'd for the Usher by Mr Bainebrig,[151] whereon was this writ: Reginaldus Bainebrig Hoc Ædificium Hipodidascalis Dono Dedit In Perpetuum.[152] But this House of the Ushers was demolished upon the erecting of a new dwelling house for the use of the master, over the door of which is writ thus:

[VI.198A]

Figure 3.3.25. Appleby School Inscription; Thomas Smith and Ran[dal] Sanderson 1671. VI.198A.

[VI.199][153]

Which shews it was built at the cost of Thomas Smith, Dr in Divinity (then Dean, now Bishop[154] of Carlile, who was born at Whit-Wall not far from Apalby), and of Rand[all] Sanderson, Master of Arts (then rector of Way-Hill in Hantshire, born at Regill in Westmorland), who had been Fellows of Queen's Coll. Oxon, & scholars here.[155]

There is but one inscription more (that I know of) in Apalby, which is this above the gaol-door:

PORTA (2) PATENS (3) ESTO (1) NVLLI CLAVDATVR HONESTO.[156]

And thus having finished all the Inscriptions that are in This PlaceI shall proceed to Kirkbythore, which has bin another Roman Station. But by the way shal \ also / take notice of this Romane Camp & other antiquities in the Lordship of Crakenthorp.

{Crakenthorp}

The Roman Way (called Via Regia in Deeds, S.D.)[157] Leads by Abalby to Kirkbythore all along Down Crackenthorp moore; At the Low end of which, on the South \ We[st] / side, the way, is a large Roman Camp of Quadrangular form (but that the Corners Thereof are abated) & having 3 Gates on

[150] Also numbered p.13.
[151] Usher: an assistant to a schoolmaster or head-teacher; an assistant-master. OED.
[152] 'Reginald Bainebrig gave this building as a gift to the Ushers, in perpetuity.'
[153] VI.198 contains text in faded pencil beneath an otherwise empty square containing the words, 'Place here the Camp on Crackanthorp moore.' The faded text reads, 'When Marius or Morus, King of the Britans & General of the Roman forces had conquerd the Picts, on the top of St[anemore] where had ful another […] of \ the very / same forme, […] Morus advanced thus far.'
[154] MS: 'Bibshop'.
[155] 'Randall Sanderson of Westmorland. Plebeian. Matriculated Queen's College, Oxford, 1628; BA 1632; MA 1636. Delegate of the Parliamentary Visitors, 1647. Rector of Weyhill, Hampshire, 1650-79; Canon of Sarum, 1662'. OAD.
[156] Two possible translations of this common inscription: A. 'Let the door stand open, let it not be closed to any honourable man.' B. 'Let the door stand open to none; let it be closed to the honourable man.' [An ironic twist, possibly suitable for the doorway of a prison.] By numbering the first three words, Machell seems to have been aware that the translation is open to question. This inscription also appears in Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, II.521.
[157] SD: without date.

every side, with Bulwarks afore them; which is a Mile Distant from Kirkbythore, & therefore supposed to be cast up against it.
When Galgacus*, Prince of the Caledonians, That Noble General (from whom it may seam to be call'd GALLAGVM if he may be supposed to have marched thus far) Advanc'd his Army against the Romans under the Command of Julius Agricola (of whom we find mention in the 4th inscription at Apalby School) And gave him 2 Battles. In the 1st of which he was pretty \ somewhat / successful, falling in upon their Camp, where the IX LEGION lay; Yet was Repuls'd ~~again~~ by Agricolas horse. But in the Latter, He was utterly Ruin'd; for 10000 of the Brittaines fell in it \ that conflict / & but 00300 Romans.[158] After which they were Absolute Masters \ of them; / this being the last effort of the
[VI.205][159]
Brittish valour; the last field that was fought.)

[Machell's Notes: VI.199]
*{The Camp: I fear this of Galgacus is not consistent, tho it is not improbab[le] that the Pictish Britanes held this part of England which is now cald Westm'land till the Battle of Manus.}

[VI.202]

Crackenthorp in St Michael's Apalby vulgo Bongate.[160]
The figure of an Urne found amongst severall others in a hole of Ashes at a place call'd Machells Bank in the Lordship of Crakanthrop, & near Kirkbythore, within x yardes \ on the left hand / of the Great Romane \ Way / which Leadeth thither.

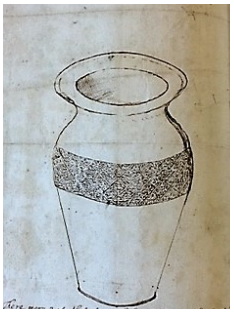

Figure 3.3.26. An urn found at Machell's Bank. VI.202.

High 4 \ in[ch] / & 1/5; the d[i]am[eter] in the mouth as here, 2 inch. The brim as here ½. The diam[eter] at bottom 1 \ inch / & 6 partes (in 10) a little thicker than a 5s piece. Of a blackish earth,[161] light & sponge, not sounding. There were 3 of these Urnes (whereof this was the least) which stood Contiguouse ~~in~~ Triangular ~~form~~ wise.[162] But in Such a Repository as I have not heard of, & perhaps was never observed before. For they were hid in a Circular hole or pit of Clay (made for the purpose) 6 foote in Circumference & about 3 in[ch] depth, the sides whereof were perpendicular. And herein they were compassed & covered \ over / with burn'd-boanes ~~a sort of black ashes~~ \ and ashes, / laid within a foote of the Surface of the Ground; The Remainder being ~~covered &~~ cloas'd up with earth. And in the 2 Greter were ashes & boanes; But in the Lesser (which is here described) Black ashes only.
And at about 40 or 50 yards destance (by the wayside also) was another Repository

[158] One altered numeral is unclear: the number of men slain could have been 00340 or 00300.
[159] Also numbered p.15.
[160] This heading has been moved from MS.VI.201.
[161] MS: 'Blankish'.
[162] MS: Machell added pencilled lines to place 'triangular wise' before 'contiguouse'.

[VI.203]

with Ashes & Boanes; But it had no Urnes in it, which seems to have bin for som ordinary persons; but That ~~other~~ for som persons of \ greater / Quality, \ with / his wife & ~~his~~ child & ~~som~~ other Relations.[163] {Informante. Thomas Longhorn: teste occulato.}[164]

[VI.205][165]

A little further towards Kirkbythore & by the way side, is a small Forte call'd Maiden-Hold, which I look upon as the Prætentura that belong'd to the Camp, being but a Bowshott distant from it, & to have som Relation to the Maiden way (mentioned before) and the Maiden Castle which is upon Stainemore {a ~~stony~~ mountaine \ lying / twixt Yorkshire & Westm'land}& lyes (in like manner) Before another Notable Camp of the Same Sise & Shape on the Top of the Mountaine but at far greater distance, where the Romane way first enters Westmerland.

{A nest of urns} {Machels Bank}

And ½ a mile nerer to Kirkbythore at a Place which is calld Machells Bank (in the Lordship of CRAKANTHORP, about x yards of the Roman Way, on your left hand) were lately discovered 2 strange Repositories of Urns & Ashes, with Burnt Bones amongst them, one of which Urns was transmitted to Oxon by my very worthy & ingeniouse friend Mr Hugh Tod, who (being Chaplaine to the Bishop of Carlile, the Reverend & learned Dr T. Smith, and sent to preach at Kirkbythore for me whilst I was busied in contriving & altering the castle at ROSE for his Lordships Reception, being newly made Bishop),[166] met with [it] Here; whereof This is the figure & full Dimension.[167]

[VI.204]

Figure 3.3.27. Urn, drawn on a separate piece of paper and pasted onto the page. VI.204.

[VI.205]

There were III of these Urns (This being the Least) which stood Contiguouse one unto another, in Triangular ~~wise~~ \ figure, being placed / in the ~~very~~ midst of a Round Pit of Clay made for the purpose, about a Yard deep, ~~with~~ the sides Perpendicular. And herein they were compass'd, & Covered Over \ with / Burn'd Bones & black Ashes, to within a foot of the surface of the ground \ ~~earth~~ / the Remainder bein[g] closed up with Earth. The 2 Greater Urnes were in shape & proportion much like unto that which I have Graphically described \ heretofore / (amongst other things) in a letter to Sir William Dugdale of March 25 1684, which was Published to my unknowledge & Printed at Oxford, amongst your Philosophic Transactions Apr. 20 at p.555, upon which they (as kindly as unexpectedly) sent me the complement of being Elected into the Fellowship [163] This paragraph has been lightly scored through with a cross.

[164] 'Eye-witness.'
[165] Also numbered p.15.
[166] Thomas Smith became bishop of Carlisle in 1684: David W.V. Weston, Carlisle Cathedral History (Carlisle, 2000), 142. For Machell's skill as an architect, see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.538.
[167] See dimensions on VI.202, above.

[VI.207]

of the OXFORD PHILOSOPHIC SOCIETY, which I think my self bound in Point of Gratitude, Here, to acknowledg as a Respe[c]t beyond my deserts.[168]

One of these greater sort of Urns was unhappily broke all to Pieces by the careless Hedgers \ Labourers / who accidentally light upon them in casting a Ditch; the other (which I freely bestow'd on my Honour'd Brother, Hugh Machell Esqs (Lord of the Mannour) was a little disabled; But the 3^{d} (which is sent up to OXFORD) was whole & entire. They were all of a Blackish sort of Clay, but softer then Earthen-pots use to be, for the Sheards would not ring. In the 2 greater, were Ashes & Bones, but in the Least (which is here discrib'd) were black Ashes only.

{Another Repository of Ashes onely}
The other REPOSITORY was about 40 or 50 yards distant from the former, by the way side also, and was nothing else but a Pit of Like Forme, full of Ashes & bones \ without any Urnes / {which make mee imagin that urnes have bin used as [blank]}[169] which gives ~~us~~ occasion to look upon them as a mark of Distinction twixt Persons of a Greater & lesser Quality; (as coffins are now \ adayes, / being seldom \ made / used of for the meanest sort) \ for / Terra Tegitur, qui non habet urnam.[170]

[A Coin and two Altars]
A Quarter of a Mile from Machells Bank thus Northwards,[171] At a Place call'd Miln Butts on the Southside of Machells Ing (which is a Meadow lying directly under the ~~mantle of~~ skirts of WHELP-CASTLE, the River Troutbeck being only betwixt them), ~~A~~ This Coin[172] was found ~~in 1687~~, of Trajan the Emperor \ in 1687; / who Reigned Anno Xti 99.[173]
And about as far Westwards from the said Place, a Roman Altar \ ? / was found som years agoe at a place that is called Charles Dub, in the river of Eden; & another at Old Troutbeck Foot. But all the letters are quite washed out, which notwithstanding I thought fit to describe for the workmanship of it,[174] amongst Other Antiquities at Crakenthorp Hall, the Chief & most Antient Seat of the Machells, where they have continued Lords of the Mannour ~~many Hundreds of years~~ {beyond all record, for there is no evidence how or when they came by it; may they be thankful for so great a blessing and long may they flourish.}
The 1st of these is the Coin I now spake of; the 2^{d} is the Altar which [was] found in Ellerkar, which stands in the End of Crackenthorp hall; & the 3d is an Altar which standeth there also, translated thither from Kirkbythore, concerne which next ~~from~~ \ with / Kirkbythore,

[VI.208]

[a] co[n]siderable town con[sisting] as it were, of 3 villages […][175]

[Machell's Notes: VI.208]
Then p.35/36 of Gallatum Cat. Guolph; then the p.ij of the new name K. &c; then 31.[176]

---

[168] See Section A1. of this chapter: research findings presented in a letter to Sir William Dugdale, published in Philosophical Transactions, 14 April 1684.
[169] This phrase is in pencil.
[170] Augustine, City of God, 1.12. Augustine's actual words were 'Caelo tegitur, qui non habet urnam': 'his covering is the sky, who has no urn.' Machell, however, substituted 'terra' for 'caelo', so that his meaning became, 'He is covered with earth, who has no urn.'
[171] MS: '\ 2 / From Machells Bank thus Northwards \ 1 / a Quarter of a Mile' [pencilled interlineation changes the form of the sentence].
[172] MS: 'Co~~yn~~e \ oin /.
[173] MS: 'a \ this / coyne \ in / was found ~~in 1687~~ of Trajan the emperor \ in 1687 / who reigned Anno Xti 99.'
[174] MS: '~~som years since, in Ellerkar at~~ \ som years agoe at a place that is called / Charles Dub, in the river \ of / Eden, ~~not to mention~~ \ & / another ~~which was lately found~~ at Old Troutbeck Foot. But all the letters were \ are / quite washed away \ out / which notwithstanding I shall \ thought fit to / describe for the workmanship of it.'
[175] The rest of this sentence is illegible: not transcribed.
[176] Machell was referring to pages of the various 'books' of notes he had created in the course of his research. These are now dispersed throughout the MSS as a result of William Nicolson's reorganisation of the material prior to binding. On VI.223 (Appleby), for example, Machell's note reminds readers to, 'See p.19 hujus, a

3 principal streets which mett at the Castle, Sc. Cross End, Down End & Wharton End, being arguments of it[s] former capacity.

[VI.209]

[Gallatum]
Here Camden tells us great Ruines of an antient Town are to be seen, & Ptolemy records it as the 4 city of the Brigantes. But all the Vestigia I can finde of it (after so long ~~a tract of time~~) lyes betwixt ~~the river of~~ Troutbeck on the S. East the Roman Way, with a piece beyond it called Waterman Croft on the S. West; Keld, or Kelk-bottom (as tis commonly call'd) on the N. West. For within this Circuit (but Rarely elsewhere) we have often observ'd foundations of Walls, both brick & stone (some of which were 4 wal's on a breast standing close to one another); Channels of stone & Leaden Pipes for conveying of water \ from the castles which stood some time[177] in the midst of the T[own]; / Urnes, Altars & Tiles with other fragments of Roman Antiquity; & a \ whol bag of Coynes found at several times & in several places / ~~number of coyns~~ which I have now by me, amongst which is one of Julia Mamêa, Augustus, his wife; & another of Julia Augusta, his frolicsome Daughter, whom he could not govern & of whom Macrobius tells in many \ diverse / witty & som wanton Passages.[178]

{Whelp Castle}
Near the East point of this Tract of Ground in the most antient part thereof (as having an easy ascent on all sides) stands the Main Fort (now & antiently called WHELP CASTLE but commonly known by the name of High Burhans, from its high situation comparitively to the Rest of the Towne; the English Saxons calling the Ruines of Old Forts & Castles by the name of Burwens (or rather Burhanes, as I have seen it writ in old Deeds) of which this country affords many Instances. And it (yet) doth appear to have been a Large Square replenish'd with Buildings, containing ~~about~~ \ beside the Mantle and Outworkes / 6 acres of Ground, whose Angles respect the (Quatuor Cardines Caelorum) \ or / iiii Points of Heaven.
And about 40 yards from the East Angle of it, at Burwen Hall end, was this Altar found, with a little Ara, or Portable Altar / attending upon it, which was rude & unfinished, but all the Letters were quite worn away (except what you see), which seemes to have bin [done by] sharping of edgetools,[179] which may seem to have hapned after Xtianity had prevailed so far as to make them brake down their Altars & Images; whereof this […][180]

[Machell's Notes: VI.209]
{Gallatum or Kirkbythore described as Brigantes. ~~Sometimes the 4th city of the Brigantes~~. This is wrong.}
{Kirkbythore. N.B. This is varied & inlarged to Millbeck & Ch[arles] Dub. in Camden.}

[VI.211][181]
(which was also found about the Same Place but close by the Castle) may seem to be one; But the Inscriptions upon the Next Page {p.36}[182] are purely Topical, Relating to the Family of the Machells of Crakenthorp Hall, for explication of the former of which, see what Sir William Dugdal has published in his Monasticon Anglicanum out of the Charter of King Henry II, Reciteing & Confirming the gifts of King Henry his Grandfather, & of ~~severall~~ others with him, amongst which Hugh ~~de~~ Morvil (Lord of Westm'land*) confirms the donation of Halth Le Malchael and Eve his wife of XV acres of land, & of certain meadows in Ellerkar (in the Lordship of Crakanthorp). Given to them by description of the town & castle; & at p.35/36 of the old name, Galatum.' For Machell's original p.36, see VI.210; for 'Cat Guolph', see VI.230; for the name of Kirkby Thore on Machell's original p.31, see VI.223.

[177] The word here is faded and near to the page edge. 'Time' is suggested but is questionable.
[178] Macrobius, Saturnalia. For the 'witty' and 'wanton passages' see Jacqueline Long, 'Julia-jokes at Macrobius's Saturnalia: Subversive decorum in late antique reception of augustan political humor.' International Journal of the Classical Tradition 6:3 (1999), 337-55.
[179] Edge-tools: any implement with a sharp cutting edge, as a knife or sword; technically denoting chiefly chisels, gouges, planes, etc., also axes, hatchets. OED.
[180] MS: 'which \ seemes to have bin / sharping of edgetools \ which may seem to have hapned / after Xtianity had prevailed so far as to destroy \ make them brake down their Altars & / their ~~Altars & throw down~~ Images. whereof this ~~that followes (which was~~).'
[181] Also numbered p.22.
[182] VI.210, below.

the said Priory ~~&~~ \ which are / now held by the Bishop of Carlile or his \ under / Tenants ~~under him~~ who did a yearly Homage & Service to the Lord of Crakenthorp and payes a final Rem[ittance] on St Barnabas Day for enjoying the same.[183]

{Hoveden p.690.[184] Mali Catuli}
And for the Latter see Hoveden, temp. RIC. I [1189-99], who gives an account of this Roger Machell, whom he calls Malus Catulus: that he was Drown'd at Messana in Sisily and the Broad Seal of England found about his neck. And here we must note that the Machels were anciently calld MALI CATULI, as appears by severall Deeds beyond date which belongs to this family, in the bodyes of which they bear the one name & in the Roundalls about the Seals (which I have inserted in the following page for confirmation) is inscribed the other, se Fig. 4.

[Machell's Notes: 211]
*{This seems to have bin Hugh Morvil the First: father to that Hugh Morvil who slew Thomas a Becket in the Time of King H. & thereupon forfeited al his estate.}

[VI.210]

M.M.
FRM SIV. HALTH. LE MALCHAEL ~~DOM~~
DOM DE CRAKENTH
ET CL. F. EVÆ VXORIS EIVS.
PRIORAT.VS SAN. MARIÆ KARL.
INTER PRIMOS …… TORES
TEMP. H. CONQVESTORIS F.[185]

For explication & confirmation of this inscription see what Sir William Dugdal has publish'd in Mon. Ang.[186]

E. M.
CL. V. ROMA. CATVLI. DOM. CVST.
MAGNI ANG. SIG. S. PLENI. POTENTQ.
RIC. I. QVI SANCTA SVA EXPED. CONT.
RA TVRCAS NAVFRAGGIO PERIIT
HOC AVTEM KENOTAΦIONE.
CORPUS ENIM MESSANÆ REPONITUR
ROGERHEAVED[187]

[183] See grants to the Abbey at Carlisle (inc. Halth de Malchael and Eva his wife) in a Confirmation of Henry II, in Dugdale, Monasticon, Vol. 6. (London, 1846 edition), Priory of Carlisle Charters no.3: Charters of Henry II, 144. See also N&B2, 240-42. For Halth de Mauchael see Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, III.78, III.87, VI.221.
[184] Roger of Hoveden (or Howden), Gesta Henrici II et Gesta Regis Ricardi (Deeds of Henry II and King Richard), c.1192; revised in Chronica magistri Rogeri de Hoveden ('Chronicles of Master Roger of Howden'), c.1192-1201, which tells the story of England from before Henry II's reign to 1201.
[185] 'FRM [?] Halth le Malchel, Lord of Crackenthorpe; and of his illustrious wife lady wife, Eva. Prior of St Mary's at Carlisle Among the first [Blank] at the time of Henry, son of the Conqueror.'
[186] See above.
[187] 'To Eva Machell. At Rome. The illustrious wife of Roger Malus Catulus, Lord Keeper of the Broad Seal of England & sub-plenipotentiary to Richard I; who, in his Holy Crusade against the Turks, perished in a shipwreck but commemorated by this cenotaph, for his body is laid to rest at Messana. Rogerheaved.' For Rogerheaved and Roger Malus Caltulus, see Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, III.76-77. N.B. The uncommon use of the word 'cenotaph' is marked by the use of Greek lettering

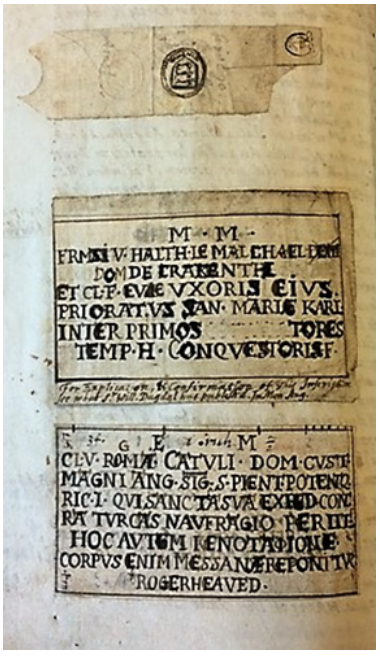

Figure 3.3.28. Machell Seal and Inscriptions. VI.210.

[VI.488]

Places visited by Mr Dugdale in Westm'land besides the places elsewhere

Maybrough Castle

On a mean Ascent. In depth from Crest to Skirt about 60 foote, the perpendicular from the Crest to the Level ground within about	12f.

The Level within in Diameter about	266f.
Near the centre 4 stones the Biggest conteineing in Height above Earth	11f.
In bread[th] One way	6.
an another	4.

Round Table

Laying ope N. &. S. At the north pas 2 stones	of about 5in[ch] thickness
From the Crist to the midle of the Trench in depth	50f.
Thence to the Level ground therein Ascending	14f.
The Diameter of which Levell is about	160
The 2 Enterances in wideness a piece	15f.

[VI.211]

[F. Coins]

[Fig. 4] These Coyns were in my collection for Crakathorp & therefore I have placed them here. {The 1st is Gallienus Emperour of Rome, who began to Reine in 256 – the other I have not yet discover'd, but it was found \ up/on the South side of Crakenthorp Hall Anno Xti 1674.} The Lyon came from Kirkbythore out of Whelpcastle & alludeth somewhat unto the name, for thus Juda & Dan[iel] are call'd Lyons WHELPS. Genesis XLIX. 9. Deut[eronomy] XXXIII. 22.

[VI.210A][188]

Figure 3.3.29. Coins. VI.210A.

N.B. This was don upon the Back of a Covered Booke (the Cambridge Concordance)[189] after the paper had first bin moisten'd with a Touch of my Tongue.
Query: If a coin may not be Taken of by way of Impression, first [try] takeing it of on the end of a stick of wax & then sealing with it.

[VI.211]

[G. Seals]

The 1st of the Seals is of White Wax within (as appears by the edges being broke a little with carrying to London since I first drew it out), though otherwise 'tis so disco~~u~~lo\u/red (through long continuance) on the outside as to looke Readish inclining to Browne, like to the top of a Rye Loaf. Tis appendant (in a blew string) to a Deed without date (for dateing was not used in those days)* whereby Willielmus Malus Catulus conveys

[Machell's Notes: VI.211]

*{Deeds without date are no mark of high antiquity; the Saxons, as first Normans, dated all their Deeds.

[VI.212][190]

{1} to Alexander his brother 2as[191] Bovatas terræ in Crakenthorp, free from all Service & from Secular Service; with this further Priviledge (Ita) Quod si Prædictus Alexander vel heredes sui forefecerint verbo ut opere quod non sit Blodwita, et convicti fuerint; dabunt; xii denarios et emendabunt cui forefecerint{sex denarios & exmendabunt cui forefecerint et sit Blodwita & convicti fuerint}.[192] Which I mention only for \ the / strangeness of it.

---

[188] Page much torn around the edges.
[189] Samuel Newman, A Concordance to the Holy Scriptures: with the Various Readings both of Text and Margin, in a More Exact Method then hath Hitherto been Extan. (2nd edn, Cambridge, 1672, many reprints, e.g. 1682). Known as the Cambridge Concordance.
[190] Also numbered p.25.
[191] Acres.
[192] 'That if the aforesaid Alexander or his heirs incur forfeiture in word or deed such that there be not bloodwit and they are convicted, they shall give 12 denarii and they shall compensate the person they have wronged. {Six denarii and shall compensate the person whom they have wronged even be it bloodwit and they have been convicted.}'

{2.} The 2nd is not so Brown as the former but rather like a piece of leaven; & is affixed to a Lease for life, Granted by Willielmus Mauchael to Mr Adam de Kirkebythor of his Demaine – Arable Lands (in the Lordship of Crakenthorp) ad fossatas more;[193] about the Camp which we have described) Now calld More Dikes &c. And herein he also mentions one Alexander his Brother, so great a Respect had this W[estmorland] family to the Conquering Names of Alexander & William. This Deed is S.D. {The like Priviledge is granted in a Deed S.D. of Gal. Malus Catulus to Galfridus Malus Catulus, with 2 Oxgangs of Land, but with this Alteration, "Et si prædictus G. vel heredes sui vel aliqui suorum forefecerint et convicti &c. dabunt pro forefacto vid." &c.[194]

[Machell's Notes: VI.212]
1. Note 1. I suppose Will. Malus Catulus gave these 2 ox. to Galfridus Malus Catulus.
2. Galfridus Malus Catulus gave them I suppose to Alexander de C. & see A!
3. W. Malus Catulus gave or rather the same by a Deed of Confirmation.

Will M.C. Alexander Mauchell dom de Craken.
|
John Mauchell
Galfridus Malus Catulus
/ \
Thomas M. Catulus Henricus M. Cat.

[VI.217]

Seales [continued]
{3.} The 3d is the Deed of One John Mauchael (Son of Alexander Mauchael & Lord of this Place) at a Deed bearing Date in the Time of King Henry, son of King John [1216-72]. Wherein he grants to Will. son of William de Crakenthorp, to be Moulter free for a certaine Rent: to be serv'd at Crakenthorp Mill next him & his heir & the Lady Dowager; for so I render "Domina dotata de hereditate dicti Johannis."[195] About this is writ: S. IOHAN MAVC, for Sigillum Johannis Mauchael.

{4.} The 4th are 2 seals which I have placed one above the other; But are appendent to 2 Deeds without date; One of Thomas Machael, Son of Galfridus Malus Catulus; the other of Henry Machael, Son of the same call'd in the body of the Deed: Henricus fil Galfridi Mali Catuli.

{5.} Whereby they confirm to Radulphus de Crakenthorp 2 Oxgangs {2 acres Bovatas} of Land in the said Lordship, which he had by the Gift of Galfridis Malus Catulus their father. Which is a plane & clear Demonstration That the Names of \ 3. / Machel. \ 2. / Mauchael or \ 1. / Malchael; & Malus Catulus ar one & the Same.

[VI.186D]

{Mal} Maul & Malus is without doubt of Norman original.

[VI.219]

{Machell ad Catulus}
Now as to the Originall & true meaning of it. The Machels of Crakenthorp are said ~~by Tradition~~ to Descend of Catulus – or Whelp of Whelp-Castle – for that their was such a man at the Conquest (or then abouts) – Lord of that place – appears from an antient Deed without Date in the Registry of Holm; wherein one Waldeve, son of Gamel, son of Whelp (a branch of the family \ which was / perhaps less injurious \ perhaps / to the conquering ~~sword~~ \ Norman / & so continued still upon the place that the castle there ruin'd. Upon that spot; which at length took the sirname of Kirkbythore,) gave divers lands there to the said monastery. And tis more then probable That the Epithet Mau, Mal or Malus was impos'd by the Normans:

[193] 'Arable lands … up to the dykes of the moor.'
[194] 'And if the aforesaid G. or his heirs or some of his people incur forfeiture and are convicted etc. they shall give as compensation 6d. etc.'
[195] 'Lady endowed from inheritance of the said John.'

"Quod primus id Nominis, Catuli instar Mala cujusdam feriatæ Bestia (Qualis in insigillo Willielmi exprimitur) in hostes sævijt eosque dilaceraverat."[196] Of which the Lyon might be a fit emblem, as well as those figures upon the Seals. Thus, as the Antient Roman Catuli were [c]alled Luctatij, a luctando cum Hostibus,[197] from resisting their enemies: so ours might be called Mali Catuli, a Malum Hostibus inferendo,[198] from Mauling (or Mischeiveing) their Enemies.
And this Halth Le Malchael (of whom we have spoken) is thought to \ be the first to / This Sirname, as \ being the eldest / son to Catulus; for there is an Emphasis in the particle Le, which implyeth as much: Halth Le Malchael being as much as to say, Haltheus Catulus Ille Malus, Halth Whelp the Mischeivous {q.d. præcipue et præ alijs}[199] where the Epithite Mal may seem to be added as a Mark of Disfavour for opposing the Conquerour.

{Malignant}
Thus, those worthy Hero's who espous'd the Interest of King Charles the First, in or after the late Civil-Warrs (of which this family was not the least) were called Malignants on the like occasion.[200] But Benefacere & Mal~~um~~ \ e / audire Regium est.[201]

[VI.219]

{Those warlike dayes}
Or perhaps there was not ~~that of~~ Malignity in the Epithite Mal in that warlike age, being rather a note of ~~undauntable~~ \ indomitable / courage & \ of / Martial Ferocity. For it was admitted into the Names of Persons of the greatest Quality amongst the Normans & is still retained by many worthy & Antient Families who might have exchang'd their Sirnames \ at pleasure / and Assumed others from the Names of the Places of that aboad (if they had seen good \ so pleased /); which (where they had \ a / remarkable sirnames) they commonly left to their principall freeholds (though Orphans or Brothers) {Coseins} for Distinction of Families.

[VI.221][202]
To give you \ som / Examples (in both kinds) – William the Conquerour had One Uncle (Archbishop of Roan)[203] {Speeds Cronicle} who was called Mauhgerus; And another Great Uncle (son of Richard the Hardy, III Duke of Nor\ma/ndy, who name was Maliger, which is Malus Gerus,[204] & which they would certainly never have chosen if it had been disgracefull. And we find the Epithite is still retained as no way dishonourable by many Antient and worthy Families; as \ in / Mallory, Mallovel, Malltravers*, Malliver\er/ and many others – Sed ut cunque fuerit impositum, sive gloriosè sive injuriosè, honorificè semper est retentum in hunc usque diem.[205]

But however the name was imposed, This Family of the Machels \ of Crakenthorp / have retained their Antient Manner of Crakenthorp (at the least by Capitulation.) Non per Drengagium sed per Nobile Cornagij Servitium sicut ipsi Normanni. And have long agoe deserv'd so well of the Kings of England: 'Ut Canem Optimum & Generosissimum, Graium, Nimirum (~~Non minu~~ \ tam / fidei quam

[196] 'Because the first of the name Catulus like a wild beast of particular ferocity (such as is depicted on William's seal) raged against his enemies and tore them to pieces.'
[197] 'Luctatii, from wrestling with their enemies.'
[198] 'From bringing ill upon their enemies.'
[199] 'Especially and above others.'
[200] MS.VI.304 repeats this: 'Thus, those worthy hero's […] (of which this family was not the least), were called Malignants on the like occasion.' MS.VI.186D offers a comparison, both faded and obscured, which in precis suggests: 'Wee had a like instance in those {generous souls} who espous'd the interest of King Charles the First in and since our late civil wars: the best of men.'
[201] 'To do good and be ill-spoken of is kingly.' Proverbial; supposedly one of the sayings Publius Syrus, a first-century B.C. Syrian slave. See 'Est regium male audire et bene facere', in Publilius Syrus Sententiae, http://www.thelatinlibrary.com/syrus.html.
[202] Also numbered p.29.
[203] Rouen.
[204] 'Maliger', 'Malgerius', and 'Mauger', see Speed, History of Great Britaine (London, 1611), Book 9, Ch.1: 22 & 24; Ch.2: 62.
[205] 'But howsoever it has been imposed, whether honorifically or pejoratively, it has always been retained as a matter of honour up to the present day.'

fortitudinis Symbalum) in scuta sua transtulêrunt.'[206] As is expressed in their Seal at Arms at Fig. [blank], and the early use of Seals in this Family may be an Argument of their \ high / Esteem & ~~grat~~ \ great / Reputation in the days of old; For thô they (Generally) began to be used at the Norman Conquest, yet they were not allowed of to persons of Inferior Quality of a long time after: In somuch that Ric. De Lucy, Chief Justice of England in Henry the 2[d] time, is said to have checkt an Inferior Subje\c/t for presumeing to use a Private Seal \ of his own; / whereas he said that appertained only to the Kings & his Nobles. {Lamberts Perambulation of Kent, p.404.}[207]

[Machell's Notes: VI.221]

{*Antient Barons of England, which honour is now in the Earle of Arundale since Edward 3[d].}
{Drengage or Drevgage is a servile tenure, whence our word Drudge; But Cornage is a sort of Knights Service, which consisted eundo cum regis excercitu contra Scotos in vanguard[ia], & redeundo in reregard[ia].[208] The most hazardos & most honourable Posts in war that can be: Ingulphus, f.512, n.20.}[209]

[VI.223][210]

[H.] Kirkbythore: why so called

And so to return to the Roman way which we left at the Camp & Places adjacent in the Low end of Crakenthorp Moor. It Leads us Thence to Kirkbythure as 'tis commonly called, but Now & Antiently writ Kirkbythore & sometimes Kirkby-Thor, which gives us clearly the Ratio Nominis,[211] shewing that the Saxon God Thor (from whence our word Thursday) had a famous Kirk (or Temple) Here, after the Romish Idolatry vanish'd & gave way to theirs; Whence the Houses surrounding or standing by it, were call'd Kirkbythor*; And thô I will not trouble you here with any account of his manner of Worship, or the Magnificence of his Throne & Temples; [that] which others have given may be counted \ as such. /

[Machell's Notes: VI.223]

*Which yet is vulgarly cald Kirkby thûre as they call Thorsday Theurday – corruptly Thursday.
See p.19 hujus a Description of the Town & Castle [of Appleby]; & at p.36 of the name Galatum; & p.51: Many Thersby & but one Kirkbythore.

[VI.228][212]

[Notes on the meaning of the name: Kirkbythore]
From its pleasant situation in amongst the woods. Either from κάλατον,[213] being in a wodiy country, for the very m[ountains] – 3 miles distant on the E. side thereof were cover'd with wood; &, as

[206] 'Not through drengage but through the noble service of cornage, just like the Normans themselves … that they put on their shields an excellent and most noble dog, indisputably Grecian (a mark of loyalty as much as of fortitude).'
[207] William Lambarde (1536-1601), A Perambulation of Kent conteining the description, hystorie, and customes of that shyre. Collected and written (for the most part) in the yeare 1570. Nowe increased by the addition of some things which the authour him selfe hath observed since that time (London, 1576). William Nicolson also related this story, '… the common use of seals did not prevail in England before the reign of Edward the Third, and there is a passage in a MS history of Battail Abbeyy… which tells a story of an inferior fellow's being reprimanded by Richard Lucy, Lord Chief Justice under Henry the Second, for daring to use a private seal; which, as he observed to him, was the proper prerogative of the king and peers of the realm.' See William Nicolson, The English, Scotch and Irish Historical Libraries giving a short view and character of most of our historians, either in print or manuscript (New Edition, London, 1776), 198-99.
[208] 'Going with the King's army against the Scots in the vanguard and returning in the rearguard.' See above, VI.181.
[209] Ingulph (Ingulphus), 'Chronicle of Croyland Abbey', first printed (in part) in Henry Saville's Scriptores post Bedam (1596).
[210] Also numbered p.31.
[211] 'Reason for the name.'
[212] This page consists of rough notes in pencil.
[213] The word κάλατον is not found in classical Greek.

app[ears] from thos[e] found there & many trees in the peat mosses, DEO SYLVANO, or else from Gallatum q[uery] Vallatum i.e. Vallo Cinctum.[214]

[VI.266]

I find (in Burton Upon Antoninus)[215] that Kirkbythore ~~alias~~ antiently Gallacum, was the 4th city numbred amongst the Brigantes, which I have not noted amongst those papers which I sent you before.

[VI.230]

Cityes of the Brigantes according to Ptolomy
1. Epiacum – Papcastle in Cumberland
2. Vinnovium – Binchester in Ep.[216]
3. Caturactorium – Cateric in Yorkshire
4. Calateu' – Whelp Castle at A.
5. Isurium – Aldburg in Y.
6. Rhigodunum – Brampton in Cumberland
No. Gal \a/cum in the Introduction.
κάλατον[217] Calatum.[217]
7. Olicana – Oteley in Y.
8. Eboracum – York.

The best way is (by order of time) to shew first the antient name of Kirkbythore which

2. By A[n]tonine called Gallacum. T.M. q[uery] Vallatum, being mostly woods; or from καλός pulcher […][218] And not as Camden – Gallatum & Gallagum.[219]

1. By Ptolomy κάλατον Calatum. T.M.

The former name seems to be Brittish; as Gall. Sever for Severus-his-wall, doth sufficiently shew. However, there walls may well be supposs'd to have bin first of earth.
The Greek Geographer seems to have given it ~~either~~ the name of κάλτον either from the British name thereof, or from κάλον lignum,[220] the British citye.
{It seemeth afterwards to have bin called Gouloppum or Guoloph, and was known more definitely by the name of Cat-Guolph – or Guoloppum – i.e. Cat. Guolph – where a discord happened – at Guoloppum i.e. Catguolph.}

To which wee may add:
Dr Gale, in one of his Appendices, which he met with in some antient copyes and has Published in his edition of Nennius, Speakes of a Discord (xii years after the death of Guortigirn.[221] {This Discord was betwixt one} Gort\o/lin (otherwise called Maurion Guitolin) and Ambrosius or Embris, otherwise alias Idris,[222] whose death ensued in that Transhumbrian expedition against the Saxons. And he takes this Cat Guloph, \ bothe which there is but obscure mention, / to be the same with Ptollomæs Gallacum & Camdens Whallop (thô Antiquaries are silent herein), which gives som light ~~to what has bin said~~ / to the old name of &c.; for Cat Guolph may seem to import \ Guolophulum Catuli, as if / ~~what~~ some of the Catuli \ had / Resided Here & ~~were~~ \ bin / Lords of the Place {masters of it}; whence the Castle also in after ages might \ com to be called Catuli Castrum: in English, Whelp

[214] 'To the god Sylvanus or else from Gallatum? Vallatum? i.e. surrounded by a wall.'
[215] William Burton, Commentary on Antoninus, his Itinerary (1658).
[216] In the Bishopric of Durham.
[217] Kalaton: Gallatum.
[218] 'Beautiful.' The rest of this sentence is obscured by the binding.
[219] The numbering of the sentences is as seen.
[220] 'Beautiful wood.'
[221] Dr Thomas Gale, dean of York, antiquary and secretary to the Royal Society 1679-81, 1685-93. See N. Doggett, 'Gale, Thomas (1635/6-1702)', ODNB. Gale inserted a tract supposedly written by Nennius into the first volume of his Historiae Anglicanae scriptores XV (1691): see Thomas Wright, Biographica Britannia Literaria: Anglo-Saxon Period (London, 1842), 130.
[222] MS: '(otherwise called Maurion Guitolin ~~at Guoloppum i.e. Cat Guolph (whom the Dr takes to be Marchant (whence Marchator ibus~~) and Ambrosius or Embris alias \ otherwise / Idris, ~~at Guoloppium i.e. Cat Guolph~~.'

Castle / i.e. Cat-uli Castrum, as it is to this day; which, If Judicious Mr Camden had known, he would have distinguished twixt the Town & the Castle, & not have confounded them under one name;[223] there being one Whelp, Lord of this Place about the Time of the Norman Conquest, \ tho / The Town's name ~~being~~ \ was / changed long before that into Kirkbythore, as hath bin shewn.

[I.] 'Runic Silver'

[William Nicolson's Letter to Ralph Thorseby, 1691]

[VI. 225][224]

"This \ is / a transcript of part of a letter which I wrote to Mr Thoresby of Leedes in 1691,[225] which was afterwards printed in Dr Gibson's new edition of Camden.[226]
W. Carliol."[227]

[VI.226][228]

{Mr Nicholson the learned A[rchdeacon] of Ca[rlisle.}
Mr N.'s notes on a runic piece of silver in the possession of Mr Thoresby of Leeds,[229] sent to him in Aug. A.D. 1691.[230]

Figure 3.3.30. Two faces of a silver coin, 'the bigness of a 3d.' VI.226.

[VI.227][231]

Yet having an extraordinary rarity[232] (a piece of silver which relates to this name) communicated by one Mr Thoresby {of Leeds in Yorkshire} to my very worthy and Ingeniouse ~~Colleague~~ \ friend / Mr William Nicolson (Archdeacon of Carlile) for his opinion, and by Him to me, I think fit to insert it; which is as followeth.[233]

[VI.226]

"The best Danish Antiq[uaries] are of opinion that no currant coyne was ever minted in the northern kingdoms till the use of the runic character was laid aside, so that thô they did now & then meet with

---

[223] MS: 'which, If Judicious Mr Camden had known, he would not have sought any other original have distinguished twixt the Town & the Castle, & not have confounded them under the name of Whallop or Whellop {under one name.}'
[224] Transcript of a letter written to Ralph Thoresby in 1691, printed in Gibson's edition of Britannia.
[225] The well-known Yorkshire Antiquary, Ralph Thoresby (1658-1725), commenced his correspondence with William Nicolson in 1690. See Joseph Hunter (ed.), The Diary of Ralph Thoresby FRS Author of The Topography of Leeds,1677-1724 in 2 Volumes, Volume 1 (London, 1830), vi. Although trained by his father for the wool trade, Thorseby's interests turned to the study of antiquities. His father had founded the Musaeum Thoresbyanum by purchasing the cabinet of coins and library of Lord Fairfax from his heir. Ralph Thoresby expanded the collection. He was elected fellow of the Royal Society in 1697, after sending an account of some Roman antiquities he had discovered in Yorkshire. At least thirty of his communications to the society were published in the Philosophical Transactions. These deal with Roman and Saxon monuments in the north of England, inscriptions on coins and accounts of uncommon accidents. See P. Kell, 'Thoresby, Ralph (1658-1725), antiquary and topographer'. ODNB.
[226] See Gibson's edition of Camden's Britannia, 'Additions to Westmoreland', 813-16.
[227] In William Nicolson's hand. The letter was first copied by Machell, but after Machell's death (and after Nicolson had become bishop in 1702), Nicolson edited it with his own explanation, seen here.
[228] MS.VI.227 contains an earlier draft of Nicolson's text: omitted from this edition.
[229] An MS margin comment here gives, 'If it may be known where was found.'
[230] Both this and the following narrative are in Machell's hand.
[231] Also numbered p.33.
[232] MS: 'Yet \ having / have I an extraordinary rarity.'
[233] MS: 'I think ~~fit~~ to insert ~~it with his observations, & therefore~~ the ~~rather because of a runic inscription upon it~~ which is as followeth {fit to insert it, which is as followeth}.'

pieces of the like fashion with this before us, "Ast ego (sayes Th. Bartholin T.S.[234] who speakes the sense of all the rest of his profession) "Amuletorum quoddam genus fuisse magici usus crediderim, cum ex Antiquitatibus nostris Edoctus sim, habuisse veteres, in Paganismo, Res quasdam portatiles ex Argento vel Auro factas, imaginibus Deorum facie humanâ expressorum signatas: quibus futurorum cognitionem explorabant, et quarum possessione felices se, et (quodam quasi numinis præsidio) tutos judicabant."[235]

And he is of opinion that this will prove one of those amulets, rejoyceing extreamely to meet with so noble a proffer of this learned opinion, which he confirmes by these following reasons:

1. The imagery gives us a more humane visage, with a Glory encircling his head \ for the account / which S. Stephanus (in his notes on Saxo Grammaticus[236] – and som others of his learned countrymen, give of their antient God Thor, is this – that in the postures they worship'd him, he had

[VI. 225][237]

"Caput flamma circumdatum in modum solis alicujus; eodem modo quo pictores ora divorum exornare consueverunt. In manu etiam sceptrum, aut (prout alij volunt) malleum igneum pingunt."[238]

A description so agreeable to the portraiture above, that it could not have bin more exact if it had bin copyed from it.

But 2ly. The inscription & character on the reverse puts the matter (to me) beyond al dispute; where wee have these words fairly legible: μόνος οὐρανοῦ θεος [239] Thur gut: Luetis, i.e. Thoronis Dei facies[240] (sive effigies), upon which he farther proceedeth thus:

"I never yet saw any Runic Inscription so plane and intelligible. And yet (if there were any occasion for it) the figures of the 2 half moones & stars in the midle might serve for (a good) comment on a text much darker than this is. For the Old Gothic Nations had the same opinion of their Thor, that the Phoenicians had of their μόνος οὐρανοῦ θεος the sun: Cuius Nutum Planetae Reliquaque Sidera Observabant."[241]

{Mr N. has Hadriani leg. iij Battavia.}[242] καλός

[VI.229][243]

2. Copyed from this original.

"But (2[d] ly) the Inscription & \ Runic / Characters on the Reverse put the matter to me beyond all Dispute; where we have these words (fairly legible), i.e. Thur ut luetis (which signifies) Thor: Dei: Facies: (Sive Effigies) the face or effigies of the God Thore. I never yet saw any Runic Inscription so plaine & intelligible."

---

[234] Thomas Bartholin (1616-1680), was the Danish physician and writer who discovered the lymphatic system. 'He also defended the use of amulets. He believed that they operated "by an external species of vapors and atoms attracted either through the respiration or through open pores of the skin"; and he used this reasoning to support amulet therapy… Bartholin felt that his approval of common amulets needed no defence, for "there are a thousand other amulets whose virtues happily are recognized by the consensus of physicians."' Extracted from Martha R. Baldwin, 'Toads and Plague: Amulet Therapy in Seventeenth-Century Medicine', Bulletin of the History of Medicine, 67, 2 (Summer 1993), 227-47, at 240. See also Machell's possible source: Thomas Bartholin, Historiarum anatomicarum rariorum centuria III et IV (Copenhagen, 1657). The letter might, however, have referenced Thomas Bartholin the Younger (1659-1690), Professor of History at the University of Copenhagen, later appointed Royal Antiquarian and Secretary of the Royal Archives.

[235] 'But I believe a certain type of amulet to have been of magic use, since I have been taught by the Ancients, that the men of old, in Pagan times, had certain [jewelry? boxes?] made of silver or gold, engraved with images of the gods depicted with a human visage: with which they sought knowledge of the future, and through possession of which they judged themselves lucky (as if through the guardianship of some divine spirit).'

[236] Stephanus J. Stephanius (ed.), Saxonis Grammaticae Historiae Danicae Libri XVI (1645).

[237] In Machell's hand; transcript of a letter written to Ralph Thoresby in 1691 and printed in Gibson's edition of Camden's Britannia.

[238] 'The head is surrounded by flame in the manner of a kind of sun; in the same way in which painters are accustomed to adorn the faces of the gods. In his hand they depict also a sceptre, or (as others have it) a fiery hammer.'

[239] 'Only God of Heaven'.

[240] 'The countenance of the God Thor.'

[241] 'The sun: whose nod [command] the planets and the rest of the stars observe.'

[242] A pencilled note in Machell's hand, referring to Hadrian's 3rd Battavian legion. 'Mr N' is William Nicolson.

[243] The interlineation is in pencil, in Machell's hand.

And \ yet / (were their any Occasion for it) The Figures \ also / of the Half Moon & Stars might serve for a Comment on a much darker Text; for the Old ~~God Thor~~ Gothic Nations had the same Opinion of Their Mighty God Thor as the Phoenicians had of the Sun. Their μόνος οὐρανοῦ θεος, Cuius Nutum Planetae Reliqu\a/que Sidera Observabant*.[244] And this was the Deity which the Saxons honoured above any \ all / other God, from which Kirkbythore derived its \ said / name. But it was formerly called Gallagum, ~~perhaps from Galgagus The Noble King of the Caledonians, as hath been said~~: After Gallatum, query Vallatum, i.e. Vallo Cinctum, when the Romans had won It & Intrenched Themselves there; (~~which reconciles Ptolemy to Antoninus~~) though ~~now~~ we \ now / do not find the l\e/ast Example of a Ditch about It; Except in the Burhanes where the Old Castle Stood, and a little Beyond the Parsonage-house, where there is appearance of a Rampiard & Ditch, which hems in the Croft & Returnes againe Westwards like to a Bastion towards the Parsonage, if it has not been Rather a Bulwark about It.

[J. Inscriptions]

[J1. Altar]

But the following Altar, now at Kirkbythore Hall, The Seat of the Whartons, \ chief / Lords of this Manner), which was found he\r/abouts since Camdens time, may seem to in forme us \ somewhat / more of this matter, If it could be ~~discovered~~ \ read / & well understood. But, Alas! The Letters had taken their flight before I came ~~at them~~ \ there. / Yet \ But / afterwards I found them {in som wafer in the Herald Colledge London} preserved by my most Learned & Industrious friend,[245] Sir William Dugdall (of worthy memory)[246] in his visitation of the County of Westmerland in 1664; which are as followeth:

FORTA. + BALLI + N. M. S. S. + C. CALEZI~~TI~~ + VS. FOR + NTINVS + NƟV

wherein I have plac'd the Croslets-fitche[247] onely for distinction of lines upon the Altar; and which (with Submission to better Judgements) I would willingly read after this manner:

FORTABALLI (pro valli, sive Vallati) N(u)M (inibus) s(acrum) C(aius) CALEZIVS.[248]

[Machell's Notes: VI.229]

*{see Camdens Deo Belatu Cadro … att Gallatum.[249] No, it is a mistake in Mr Camden or the printer, for tis καλατον in Ptolemy, and which at most Calatum or Gallatum, & has nothing to do with Galgacus.}

[VI.186C]

'Kirkby Thore forsan pro valli FORTA BALLI i.e. Fortalitij. Ex vallo factum. A castle made of earth or turves. Bein[g] in sepissime præsertim Notitia Antiquitatum[250] pro v. ponitur Deo sic ideo Legimus. Fortalitij Valli. Numinibus sacrum. C. Calizius Forntinus (vel forsan Frontinus per metathesin).[251]

---

[244] 'Whose nod the planets and the rest of the stars observe.'

[245] MS. '… preserv'd, by \ most / Industrious & Learned \ 1 / friend, Sir William Dugdall.' Machell shows here that he wishes to change the position of the adjectives relating to Dugdale.

[246] Sir William Dugdale died in 1686.

[247] Machell's cross croslets fitched are represented here by the symbol, '+'.

[248] 'Forta Balli instead of Valli, or Vallati; sacred to the spirits. Gaius Calezius.'

[249] Camden's inscription is as follows, 'DEO BELATVCADRO LIB VOTVM. FECIT IOLVX'. See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1607), Westmoreland, 6: 'From thence the river with his full course passeth directly North-west by Buley a castle of the Bishops of Carlil, and by Kirby Thore, under which are seene great ruins of an old towne and peeces of Romane coine otherwhiles digged up, and not long since this inscription …'

[250] Notitia Dignitatum…

[251] 'Kirkby Thore, perhaps instead of valli Forta Balli i.e. Fortalitij. Made from a wall: a castle made from earth or turves. Being placed very frequently and especially in front of a wall in the Notitia Antiquitatem.' See also Part 3, Ch.4, Heraldry, VI.489.

{Green Castle}
Had This bin Found on the Top of the Fell I should have Taken It for a Pacafyc[252] Altar to the Gods of Green Castle at the Head of Grange Beck (whence the other altar Inscribed to Silvanus (as they say) was brought); for It is nothing \ else / but Trench above Trench & Forte above Fort in a Circular manner on the top of a Mountain. I can only say That It is not Impossible \ that This / might com from Thence.[253]

Figure 3.3.31. Detail. Frontinus Inscription. VI.186B.

[VI.231][254]
CALEZIVS FORNTINVS (pro Frontinus per transpositio[n]em Litera R.) NΘ (i.e. Numini Iovis Opt[imo] per Implicationem, Sc. et Reduplicationem Litera O.) V (i.e. Votum) … Solvit[255] – or som such like thing.
But what this Frontinus might be to Julius who subdued the Silures & the Brigantes, as we are informd by the Inscription at Apalby School \ (F.) /, or whether he be not the same Frontinus whom I take to be Captain of the 1st Thracian Cohort, Mentioned There also \ at T. / I leave to others; but the Letters C'AL in the said Inscription Incline me to be of That Opinion: And that he might have \ {quartered here or have bin} / Imployd (with his Cohort) in Subdueing this Place. In Order to which we find divers Romaine Camps & Intrenchments about the Towne; as namely That Great One on Crakenthorp More which we have describ'd, being South from hence about a Mile. Another which is opposite to it (The River Troutbeck running betwixt them) at a place cal'd Bran-Crooke (i.e. Brant Crooke) in Marton Field, South-east from hence about the same Distance. And a Third at Hale, upon the Moor Edge (which hath Double ditches, & joyneth into the ~~same~~ \ Maiden / Way on the south side {thereof} about as far Northwards, being the least of \ the three / them All.

{W[help] Castle}
But after the Romans became Masters of it They began to build (more Romano)[256] with Brick, Lime & Stone. And in Process of time \ amongst other ~~buildings~~ houses / erected a magnificent Castle; which the English Saxons (who Succeded them Here & changed All our Names into their own language*) transmitted to us by the name of Whelp Castle; as if som of the Catulis (A flourishing Family amongst the Romans) {or Lords of the Place} had been concern'd in Building of it; for what Catulus was with the Romans, the same was Whelp with the English Saxons†. And we find it continued in that very name at the Norman Conquest‡; which if judicious Camden had know, he would not have named the word so far from the Common use of it as to call it Wheallop for the sake of Gallatum; nor would he have sought any other original. The Strength of this Place & Situation of it being in a pleasant & Plentiful Country, gave the Romans Occasion to make it a Colony, & \ a / standing Qua[r]ter for their light horse, who had a [252] Pacafyc (pacific, pacyfyque, paciffick): a peace offering; an offer or overture of peace. OED.

[253] Here (but not transcribed) Machell repeated his remarks about the crosslets fitche, above.
[254] Also numbered p.37. Several pages in this chapter demonstrate Machell's most careful handwriting. To a large extent, this page represents a fair copy as it was created for, and sent for publication to, Dr John Mill. The text (apart from some interlineation and pencilled margin comment) is easy to read when compared with Machell's notes, allowing us to note (for example) his carefully considered spelling.
[255] 'Calezius Forntinus (instead of Frontinus by transposition of the letter R.) NΘ (i.e. to the divinity of Jupiter the Best by implication i.e. a reduplication of the letter O. V (i.e. his vow) … pays.'
[256] 'In the Roman fashion.'

[Machell's Notes: VI.231]
*{As Aballaba into Apleby, Brovonacum into Brou., Blatabulgium into Bowes.}
†{Mr Camden in the […][257] Deed s.d. {For he cals it there Whellop.}[258]
‡{for Waldeve the son of Gamel, the son of Gamel, the son of Whelp, gave divers lands within his lordship of K[irkbythore] to the monks of Holm Cultram. Deed s.d.}

[VI.233][259]

[J2. Maiden Way]
Temple for their Devotion within this Castle, as appears by a stone lately dig'd up (~~which I shall exhibit by & by to your view~~ amongst other Antiquities which were found there) {Bring it in here} Inscribed DEO ALÆ {or DEC. ALÆ}, as \ if / a whole wing of their Rese\r/ve Guards had laid thereabouts \ this Place. / And for a farther ~~observation~~ \ Confirmation / \ of It / there is the Casway calld Maiden Way all paved with stone, which goes from thence directly Northwards unto Caervoran (near the Picts Wall where the Foot were ingarrison'd) to facilitate & hasten them to Their Aid if ther should be occasion.[260] And upon som Glorious Expedition which they had perform'd, an altar was erected here \ also, / by one Antonia Stratonissa (a good wife I warrant you) = FORTVNÆ SERVATRICI: to Preserving Fortune; upon sight of the Army Returning in Triumph (which they might easily see from this Place \ on / to the Top of the Mountains) and for the arrival of their husbands & children.

{Maiden Way}
And now all the young maidens running in numbers upon the highway to meet all their brothers, cosans (& sweethearts, to whom I should have named it, as may well be supposed \ up/on such \ a / occasion~~s~~) it might thence be call'd Via Virgineæ: The Maiden Way, which our old English call'd Maiden Gath & Maiden Gate. Thus, the Lane near Sourby within the Parish of Kirkbythore, which leads to Mitrig, is call'd Maiden Lane from the resort of som maiden Gentlewomen \ of my Relations / {which I thought fit to take no[te]} who used to walk there.

If this Conjecture ~~upon so good a ground~~ do not please all men because they find there is Maiden Castle on the edge of Stainmore, Maiden Hold on Crakenthorp More, & Maiden Castle againe at Edenbrough in the Kingdom of Scotland, which have the like Compellations with this but cannot be Grounded upon the like reason, I answer neither Is it Necessary. Divers things may have had the same Name upon divers Occasions. And to set aside what may be conjectured of Madan, one of the \ ~~antient~~ / Brittish kings (Grandchild of Brute) who is said Indeed to have Built Maiden Caister now calld Doncastar (how truly I know not) but not a word of his having any hand in these things which are purely Romane. To set (I say) such fancyes aside; these Places of Strength might be so called, because they were never won by Assault; upon which account the City of Tourney[261] was look'd upon as a Virgin City

[VI.235][262]

Till Ravish'd by King Henry VIII & \ having / had This Sentence writ over A Gate:

> Iannes ton ne àperdèu ton Pucillage:
> i.e. Thou Hast never lost thy Maiden-head.

[257] One word here is illegible.
[258] Written in pencil beneath margin text written in ink.
[259] Also numbered p.39.
[260] MS: 'to facilitate & hasten ~~their march upon all occasions to their reliefe~~ \ them to their aid if ther should be occasion. /'
[261] Early in th 16th century the city of Tournai and surrounding area formed a French enclave within the 'Burgundian-Habsburg' Netherlands. When, in 15I3, Tournai was besieged by an army led by the Emperor Maximilian and Henry VIII, the city surrendered to Henry VIII in his capacity as 'King of France'. Determined to keep Tournai, Henry left a resident garrison to build a citadel. In 1519, however, under the terms of the treaty of London, Tournai was returned to Francis I of France. Extracted from C.S.L. Davies, 'Tournai and the English Crown, 1513-1519', The Historical Journal, 41, 1 (I998), I-26, at 1.
[262] Also numbered p.41.

The Like of which was Reported of Edenbrough \ Castle / That she was never taken by storm till ~~now~~ (of late) by […][263] King William {2} […][264] But this will not agre to the Maiden-way.

Now as to the Author (as well as the Name) of so Noble a worke, I know there is a Northumberland Story of a Young Lady there who, being courted by a person of Quality out of These parts, required of him (as a Proofe of his Love) That he should ~~pave~~ \ cause a way to be pav'd / over all the Mountains & Through all the Bogs to make ~~the way~~ it passible betwixt Their 2 houses, by the nearest Cutt, which (they say) he did accordingly {was performd accordingly.} Yet the Peevish maid refus'd to have him until he could set it up on End. And so he lost both his love & his labour. Whereupon it was call'd Maiden Way.

[J3. Crawdundale]
But leaving such storyes to their relators {& every man to his own conjecture} I do conclude it a work of the Romans:[265] and that it was either done by VARRONIVS, because his name is not only preserved in the Fort of Caervorran whither it Leadeth; But Inscribed also upon that known Rock near to This Place, called Crawdundale in Newbiggin Parish as has been shewn. Or els perhaps, som of the CATVLI might have an hand In it, Because It extendeth à Castro Catulino ad Convallem-Catuli; for the Castle at This End (which is the only Place considerable whereto it relateth \ leadeth / is call'd Whelp Castle. And the Gill at the other end \ thereof / under Caervorran[266] (Whence ~~perhaps~~ \ are descended / the Whelpdales of Skirsgil, a Family of Good Note in Cumberland), is called Glen-WHELP, where \ in which place / I met with This Fragment of a Roman Inscription \ in a little house, / which had stood 60 years \ on a knok[267] on the back of / behind the fire.[268] And hence the Remainder (if it be not a solecism to call That so which doth not remaine) was consumed to Ashes. Hinc illæ lacrymæ![269]

[VI.248]

[J4. Further Altar]
I have one Altar more to be inserted, found 20 years since in Burney beck within this Parish of Kirkbythore & suppos'd to have stood \ on the top edge of Burney / near unto Green Castle, which is a great Fort with Double Rampiers on the very Top of Milburn Fell, at the south end of it. But, being round, I think tis no Roman Fortification.
The letters upon it are – DEO SILVANO ----- ÆLIVS ----- VOTVM – SOLVIT[270]

[263] In the MS, 2cm of scored-through text appears here.
[264] In the MS, 5cm of scored-through text appears here. A partially legible pencilled interlineation appears to read, 'is able to oppose on'. In fact, 'Edinburgh Castle was captured and recaptured many times. It has been besieged more than any other place in Britain: there have been 23 recorded attempts. Captured in 1296 by Edward I, the Scots reclaimed it in 1314. The English took it again in 1335 before, in 1341, Scots disguised as merchants took it back. Cromwell's forces occupied the castle in 1650. At one point it was even handed over to the English as a ransom payment. It was captured twice by Covenanters in the 17th century, fighting against King Charles I's imposition of Episcopacy.' Janice Hopper, 'Edinburgh Castle history: 900 years protecting Scotland's capital', https://www.britain-magazine.com/features/region/scotland.
[265] A similar passage appears in the margin of MS.VI.234: not transcribed.
[266] Here, a pencilled margin addition is illegible.
[267] Perhaps this is a variant of 'nok' or 'nook': an out-of-the-way corner. OED. Machell seems to have described something on a wall or plate lining the back of a fireplace.
[268] MS: '(whence ~~perhaps~~ \ are descended / the whelpdales \ of Skirsgil / a family of good note in Cumberland \ may perhaps be descended / is called Glen-WHELP, where \ in which place / I met with this fragment of a Roman inscription \ in a little house {dwelling} which had stood 60 years \ on a knok on the back of / behind the fire (~~hinc illæ lacrymæ~~).'
[269] 'Hence those tears.' This MS passage continues at the beginning of the section, 'Things Found at Whelp Castle.1.'
[270] 'To the god Sylvanus Aekius pays his vow.'

Figure 3.3.32. Further Altar. Detail. VI.248.

[VI.249]

And so we have done with Kirkbythore, from whence the Romaine Way doth lead us directly nor-west to another antient Romaine town called BROVONACUM, now vulgarly Browham, being v. miles from thence & viii. from Apalby.[271] Here, if any where, should be the Ruine which Camden calls the Ha[n]ging wall of Marc. Antonius. The Conflux of Eden & Lowther sheweth It, but I never yet could finde or hear of any thing like It, unless the outwall of Browham Castle Court may be thought to be It, which was in the Battlement which hung over the wall, being rased upon Corballs as high or higher than the wall It selfe. This was pulld downe by the Lord Thomas Tufton – before whome nothing is able to stand – in 1691.[272]

~~Emot & Lowther \ here / being~~ Emot here having swallowed up Lowther, loseth itselfe in the River of Eden about 2 miles below, near the Head of which \ River / at Russendal Church there [are] 2 Monuments with Hebrew inscriptions. And not far from thence springeth Lyvennet.[273]

[VI.250]

Lilly Beck brings us into Kent, into which runs Kentmere, at the Head of which and on the other side of them spring Ulswater, the head of Emote, which brings [us] to the Castle of Browham where wee left of, & where wee meet againe with the Roman Way.

[VI.267]

[J5. Brougham]

The following {priestly} figure[274] was found near the place where it now standeth (by digging up stones for the wall of Browham Castle Demane circa anno 1665) not far from the Pillar, which may seem to have been a Romane Flamen by the canonicall habit upon it, if that gens togata may be supposed to have wore any such in those antient days. Though I should rather have judged it to have bin a Saxon priest or a Bishop[275] if it had not occur'd amongst other fragments of Romane antiquitys.

[VI. 269]

This oval figure stands in the said wall in the midst of the lane as you go to the castle on your right hand; and was found near that place on the same occasion and about the same time.[276] I take this to be the portraiture of Julius Crispus, son of Constantine the Great, our famous countryman; as appears to me by comparing of it with a coin of his which Speed hath exhibited; and therefore the rather because there was an altar found here, inscribed to his father (D.C. Valerio Constantino) which is to be seen at Apalby s\c/hool.

---

[271] The page continues in pencil.

[272] Thomas Tufton, 6th earl of Thanet and 18th Lord Clifford (1644-1729). He succeeded to the titles on 12 December 1691. For Machell's difficulties with this particular Lord Thanet, see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, June 5 1697, 'A narrative of the matter in contest about the Chapel of Sowerby within the Parish of Kirkby-thore in Westmorland to the Right Honorable Thomas Earle of Thanett Patrone of the said Parish-Church, T.M. R[ector]', from III.229.

[273] The page has perished here, but could read, MS: 'which brings [us] to the river Kent & …'

[274] The sketch is missing. There is a vertical gap of 16cm here, with indications of a previously attached sheet of paper.

[275] MS: '{it \ to have bin / a Saxon priest or a Bishop} it one of the Saxon Bishops'

[276] There is a vertical gap of 16cm, but no sketch.

[VI.257]

[J6. Kirkby Lonsdale]
An altar

Figure 3.3.33. 'An altar (above a yard high) digg'd up at Kirby in Loansdale, circa an. 1684.' VI.257.

(above a yard high} Digg'd up at Kirby in Loansdale, circa anno 1684, in a Banke in the River Leun call'd Abbats-Brow, adjoyneing the North East Side of the Churchyard: and now lyeing in the High Street, for a Seat, at Widdow Mans doore. One side of this Altar (which I have Supplyed) is broke of & lost. The 1st Line seemeth to be NVMINIBVS. The 4th APOLLINIS; the last VOTVM SOLVIT &c.[277]

Cætera legant alij[278]

[VI.259][279]

[J7.] Near Ambleside
At the Head of Windermer water, is a small Roman fort. Being an Oblong Square of above 100 Yards in Diameter. Here severall fragments of Roman Antiquities have been discovered, & amongst the Rest divers Medalls of Gold, Silver & Copper; some of which are in That Collection of Mr Thomas Brathwaite, of Ambleside Hall, which he gave by Deed to the Library at Oxford, dated 26 of November 1674. Since which was found one Medall of Gold with Hadrians Image & Superscription upon it, valued at 17s and 6d. And a piece of Gold about 5 Inches long, as thick as the small end of a Tobacco pipe, Sollid & Streight {which the country people took for a piece of bridle bit &) which was purchased by Mr James Cock, Booke Seller in Kendall, for 34s, who also bought the Former Medall, But resold them both some years agoe; so that they never came to my view.[280]
And there is a field house call'd Borosrigg-Hoghouse, 1. mile south from hence in the way twixt Ambleside & Windermer Church, in the East end of which I found a stone (brought from the said Borrans) with this broken Inscription concerning a Roman Cohort there. Which Cohort may seem to have pinn'd up the Brits in Cartmel & Furness, where They continued till King Egfrid's time, who was King of Northum[berland].[281] Gre. Anno 671.[282]

[277] See Part 2, Ch.8, Kirkby Lonsdale, II.204.
[278] 'Let others read the rest.'
[279] Also numbered p.63.
[280] This is Machell's third reference to finds bought by Kendal bookseller and mercer, James Cocke. See Part 2, Ch.9, Windermere, II.323; Part 2, Ch.10, Itinerary, II.424.
[281] Ecgfrith (c.645-685): king of Deira from 664 until 670, and king of Northumbria from 670 until his death in 685. See Hugh Chisholm (ed.), 'Ecgfrith', Encyclopædia Britannica. Vol. 8 (11th edn, Cambridge, 1911) 870.
[282] 'Gregoriano Anno' refers to the Gregorian calendar.

Figure 3.3.34. Roman Inscription found between Ambleside and Windermere church. VI.259.

[VI.261]

[J8.] {Near Kirkby L. in Lancashire}

[VI.262]

Barrow upon Leun in Tu[n]sdal Parish in Com. Lanc.
These 2 Fragments of Romane Inscriptions are on the Vicaridge[283] House in Tunstal. Being found at Barrow upon Leun in the said Parish. On the Steeple of which Church, on the 3 sides, are 3 Angells \ in stone / holding the Coat of Armes which is marked (a). And in the Quire on each side the East window an Angel \ in stone / holding the Coate marked (b) which are Tu[n]stals; the Monument of one of which Family is under an Arch near the East of the South Ile.
Near Tunsdal Church is Thirland Castle, the chiefe & most antient seat of the Tunsdals (who had a great Estate in this country) {1000 li per annum}, which now belongeth unto the Girlingtons. And they had a Parke about a mile hence, with a good old Hall in the midle of It, calld the Parke House {a good old house with good court and gardines, but no fair access. It stands on a plane.} Purchased by Wilson of Dallan-Tower 60 years since; & now the Seat of Mr Edward Wilson, Justice of Pease = heire Apparent to Dallan Tower; where on the Back Side of the House I saw a tree calld Abour Vitæ, 3 foote in Circumference, and as high as other Ordnary Trees. It grows like a Savin.[284] Arbor Vitæ is the th\u/ya of the Botanists.[285]

[VI.263][286]

At the vicaridge in Tunstall are two Fragments of Romane Inscriptions, Translated hither by the Late Minister for Barrow upon Leun in the said Parish, which I have placed one upon the other, for the better convenience of Graveing. And have added two Coats of Arms (for Ornaments sake, & to fill up the Spaces); The former of which is on the Church Steeple & the Latter (being Tunstalls) is under the window behind the High Altar.[287]
From this Larger Inscription I should have conjectured The Name of The Burrow (Alias Over Burrow) to have been Aurcubia in the time of the Romans. If Mr Cambden, the best of Antiquaries (who yet speaks doubtfully concerning this matter) had not ~~been against It~~ thought otherwise. For I read the Inscription, so far as legible, after this manner: Dis manibus Sacrum et perpetu[a]e securitate Aureus N N IO TU AN […] 52 Hic Mili […] AUREUBIÆ […][288]

---

[283] MS: 'vacaridge'.
[284] '{It grows like a savin…}' Savin = juniper. The rest of this comment is obscured by the binding.
[285] Arbor Vitae: popular name of several evergreen shrubs of the genus Thuja, family Coniferæ. OED. Arbor Vitae grows like a shrubby juniper bush.
[286] Also numbered p.65.
[287] There follows a vertical gap of 13cm, presumably where the two drawings were eventually to be placed.
[288] Machell wrote the inscription twice: once as part of the text (as above) and once in his sketch (Figure 3.3.35). The first was written in pencil and is almost illegible; the Figure is easy to read but words are missing. It begins, 'Sacred to the gods of the underworld and eternal freedom from care…' Using Machell's MS, Historic England translated and commented on the inscription: 'The stones cannot now be found there, and have, no doubt, perished. The first of the two inscriptions ... opens with the phrase, "Dis Manibus Sacrum, et Perpetu(a)e Securitate."... In the fourth line the letters seem to be a mis-representation of ANICETV(S), and have probably been followed by VIXIT, as there is a large space left vacant in the drawing. It is, of course, possible that we may read simply AN(NORVM) Lll., but the space after ANICETVS would hardly be left blank. I was inclined to think that AVREVBIAE was simply a misreading of AVRELIAE, but Dr. McCaul … suggests the reading,

Figure 3.3.35. Fragments of Roman Inscriptions at Tunstall Vicarage. VI.262.

[K. Correspondence between Thomas Machell and Dr John Mill c.1670-1692]

[IV.79]

Correspondence 1. Undated

[1. Letter from Machell to Mill, undated.][289]
Sir, I am glad to heare of your good health and better promising fortune, for tis partly my owne since I am sure to be a sharer, if not in your preferment, yet at least in your joy.[290] The loss of two friends, Mr B. & Mr M. doth not truble mee halfe so much (tho very considerable) as the hopes of your preferment doth already delight \ rejoice / mee. For I could be very willing to forgoe my owne, rather than you should \ and will / any way miss, fore you, if elected, may \ both / credit your colledge \ & countery; but I shall be happy if I be no disgrace to either of them.
I hope you will pardon my detagneing your booke, for I was not willing to trust with carriers \ by / whome I have suffered so many great losses. \ But now I have it with the Inscriptions at Apalby \ schoole, which / I have sent \ out / you, \ tho / very preposterously, for I thought to have writt them in one leafe side, but was hard put to it to containe them in two; soe that \ without a paradox / the first must be last and the last must be first. Cancros imitare legendo.[291]
One onely Inscription I have \ voluntary / omitted, which stood so high that I could not come to \ at / it; yett I hope to have it before my returne, & then, as the rest, it shall be at youre service. This is the first time that they were writt \ or read that we hear of. / Diverse Herrald and \ other / travellers when

AVR. EVSEBIAE, conjecturing that Machel has omitted the letters SE … In the last line Dr. McCaul suggests F.P.P. as the concluding letters, expanding them as F(ILIVS)P(IE)P(OSVIT). [Therefore] Aurelius Anicetus, as we gather from the inscription, lived fifty-two years, and appears to have been stationed some time at Overborough, from the use of the words "hic militavit" ("here he has fought"). Aurelius Eusebia, his wife, lived thirty-seven years, and it was probably their son Aurelius, who put up the stone from motives of filial piety ("pro pietate posuit")." Historic England Research Records, Monument No. 44052, https://www.heritagegateway.org.uk.

[289] This is a draft letter which, in the MS, was scored through; the lines have been removed in this edition.

[290] John Mill was elected fellow of his college in October 1670 and ordained in the same year. Preferment included chaplain to the bishop of Exeter (1676); prebendary of Exeter (1677); nominated for rectory of Bletchingdon Oxon (1682); royal chaplain (1682); principal of St Edmund Hall Oxon (1685). S. Handley, 'Mill, John (1644/5-1707), Church of England clergyman and college head'. ODNB. Though the letter is undated, Machell was possibly congratulating Mill on the prospect of his becoming principal of St Edmund Hall.

[291] A proverb relating to the crab: Salutem Mitto tibi Metulas, cancros imitare legendo, seen in the work of the minor Latin poet, Pentadius, i.e. moving crablike, sideways, not in a straightforward fashion. See C.L.F. Pankoucke (ed.) Poetae Minores (Paris, 1842), Pentadius, 406.

here \ have attempted to Read / but never could take the paines to observe \ conquer / them. I was full two days on a ladder aboute them, but att last got the ~~conquest~~ \ victory / & now finds them bound \ unto you / like slaves in Tryumphe, unto him who like a generall incouraged me to make this onset. But I must confess they jayded me soe much that I have not attempted to take a Transcript for my own use.

But I took occasion to goe from thence to Kirkby thore, where I drew out the Altar. But (alas!) the Inscription is so much defaced by the Injury of Time ~~then carelessness of the people~~ that to read the characters \ is / no less than impossible. There's a faire F beg[inn]ing the first line, but ~~whose~~ \ he who is able to read the rest / goes further ~~reads better~~ than I. The place where twas founde was the seat of our ancestors (as appears from old writeings) \ and / cald Whelep Castle, after Whelp Castle; & the towne was cald ~~Whelope~~ \ Callatum alias Gallatum / as Mr Cambden will tell you \ will better inform you. / Hic steterit Catuli Regia celsa senis.[292] But iam seges est, ubi domus erat.[293] And the furrow plowes every day more and more [to] make windowes by its woundes, to lett in light to those obscured antiquities. For not much more than a 2 yeare agoe {circa 1667} a great roaleing stone of aboute 2 yard lenth was digd up here ~~the ground~~, which now remaines at Nebiggin Hall.

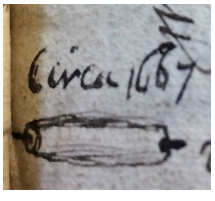

Figure 3.3.36. 'Roaleing stone'. IV.79.

[IV.80][294]

And when they dig the foundacions of there houses, many curious peces of Antiquity are here descovered.[295] I was inform'd by a credible person (whom I have ~~constituted and~~ appointed \ to be my / Stuart […][296] if any such things come againe to his hands) that In diging a little depth for the foundation of a little kill \ which is / now standing on your left hand as you \ journey[297] / for Browham aboute 15 yards beyond the water Troutbeck, a great barr of Iron was taken up, about the thickness of a mans legg, which as soone as touched (such a consumer of all things is Time) fell into shivers.[298] But diverse vessels of brass were taken up whole, perfect and uncorrupted, ~~save only rust which it had contracted~~ that rusted all over. And \ there were / fine Earthen potts & enameld Glass, as I am informd,[299] which gave the spectatoures occasion to thinke (and perhaps not amiss) that People in those days Fabe\r/tius-like, T[r]ichlia sua Samnetico preferebant auro.[300]

---

[292] 'Here will have stood the lofty realm of old Catulus.' Compare Ovid, *Heroide*s. 'Letter from Penelope to Ulysses', I.1.34, 'hic steterat Priami regia celsa senis': here stood the lofty realms of Priam.

[293] 'Now are cornfields where home once was'. Compare Ovid, Heroides, 'Letter from Penelope', 1.1.53, 'iam seges est ubi Troia fuit': Now are cornfields where Troy once was.

[294] From here to the end of IV.82, the text becomes more difficult to read: scored-through passages jostle with interlineated phrases. What follows is not a verbatim transcription; rather, it is an attempt to use Machell's words to make sense of what he was trying to communicate.

[295] Here is a blotted interlineation.

[296] 'Steward.' More illegible words follow.

[297] Unclear word.

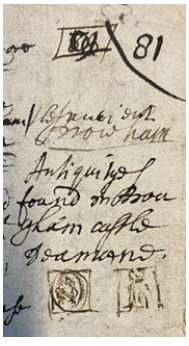
[298] A 'kill' is the cell of a monk or hermit. OED.

[299] For another version of this paragraph, see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.558.

[300] [People in those days], 'Fabertius-like, preferred their own wattle huts to Samnite gold'. 'Marcus (sic: Manius) Curius Dentatus refuses the gifts of the Samnites', is a painting by Govert Flinck (1656), hanging in the Royal Palace of Amsterdam. It depicts the Roman consul, Marcus Curius Dentatus, preferring a gift of turnips to an offer of gold and silver objects. 'Fabertius-like' echoes another of Machell's references to righteous frugality, viz. VI.200, at the beginning of this chapter, which refers to 'Fabritian plate' i.e. earthenware used by Gaius Fabricius Luscinus, a similarly self-denying Roman censor in 275 BC.

I made strict enquiry after \ all / these and other things of the like nature; as likewise for coynes diggd up in this place. For coines I enquird much after them […] but as the cocke in the fable,[301] they sleight these jewells and gave them [to] their children \ to play with / who threw them away.[302]
Prodegious stone was likewise here found, which baffle the apprehensions of oure modern workemen \ who cannot imagin / that wonder much, how they could be layd. In diggeing for which, a Vault {Coppin hill Vault} was discovered in the midle of that street as you turn toward the castle, which was closed up at the command of Mr Wharton, under the pennalty of undergoing paying a fine. ~~and~~
These Ruines are found for a vast space together, which discovers the castle to have been very large.[303]
And certanely the territories were not disproportionate \ unanswerable. / But this being from where wee descend, I may seem to have writ to[o] much concerneing it; but I doubt not your pardon since you requir'd it; and know that I do it rather to gratify your curiosity than my owne ambition. For I finde not any thing in this long preservacion of oure name & familie, but a just occasion to glorifie god for so great a Blessing; who I hope allwayes will come nigh the family in there Ancient Inheritance, as hitherto he has done; birthr[ight] neither so poor as to be contemptible, nor yet so rich as to despise others, & forgett themselves.

[IV.81]



But to goe on a little further in my Itur Boreale.[304] Found at Borovonacum – Browham – 2 memorable figures in stone, noe less remarkeable, set up in the wall which apperd lately in the castle demaine in digging of stones to wall it about. Stones were then digged up, many of them hewne, these 2 above others to be taken notice of because seeme to be the statue of an Ancient holy man \ perhaps one of their [?] as may be gathered from the habit I have scratched out with my pen. But the head \ they have placed / upon it can not att all belong to that body, both by cause of its \ great / disproportion and also because of its workmanship. It is far more Rude than that of the Body, for the 2nd which stood nearer the castle, is a Roman head with a lawrell wreath about it, having a very youthful countenance and a Coate of Male? or of net worke upon him.

Figure 3.3.37. Margin. IV.80.

Figure 3.3.38. Margin. IV.81.

They were found in a place flagged over like a church, which confirmed som in their beliefe in an old conjecture that Browham had been a Towne of a large extent conteineing no less 9 churches, 8 whereof, with the Towne, being demolishd; the ninth had, as it now hath, the Name of Ninechurch, which I rather submit too. But findeing no Ground at all for this Story, save that it was a Roman Colony, I have heard of other opinion con[cerning] a Scotch Saint whose name (they say) was on the wall; and picture was there in the memory of man upon the w[all] – I shall further enquire into – and that thence it was called Ninechurch.
{I conclude this church has taken it name from St Ninianus at whose n. it may seen to have been dedicated. Mr Savage, Ecclesiæ, Rector.}[305]

[301] Aesop's Fable. The Cock and the Jewel. When a cock was scratching in the ground to find food, he found a precious jewel. The cock knew that the jewel was valuable to some, but would have much preferred to find even a single ear of corn. Moral: precious things are worthless to those who cannot appreciate them.
[302] Machell was much struck by this, mentioning it several times in the MS: e.g. see Part 1. Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.560.
[303] From this point on the page, Machell begins to score-through much more thoroughly, and to rewrite interlineally. As the words are so closely written, a perfectly precise transcription cannot be made. Nevertheless, this edition uses only Machell's words, in an attempt to reproduce what Machell was endeavouring to say.
[304] 'Northern Journey.'
[305] As several words in this margin comment are too indistinct to transcribe with certainty, they have been omitted. In the MS, Savage is named as 'Salvage', but a margin comment corrects the error. For Savage, see Part 1, Ch.7, Brougham, II.479-480. Arthur Savage was ordained deacon at Rose Castle, 1637; rector of Brougham, 1643-1662; prebendary of Carlisle Cathedral and Rector of Caldbeck from 1665 to 1701. CCED.

But that be as it will. Certanely the Towne had been very large, as is further probable both from the distance twixt X[C] and parsonedge, which if there had not been nigher would never have beene build at 2 miles distance. And appeares allso from the rubbish plowd up thereabouts where they can onle riple,[306] the ground being hindred with stones.

[IV.82]

I was also at Lazenby in Cumberland.

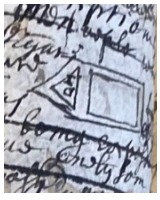


Figure 3.3.39. Stone at Lazonby. IV.82.

Lett me carry you a little further with mee, where tho I cannot have your assistance to read, yet I shall have your company to lament with mee the Injury of Time \ and negligence or rather ignorance of men / which has washd away 2 noble Inscriptions which have bin writ on 2 stones of this figure in the church-yard; but brought as from P[l]um[p]ton Wall;[307] whose inscriptions being exposed to violence from the wether & so washed away, now have onely som characters left remaneing to tell us they were not intended as now a dayes. And that the one was Saxon, and the other Roman. And those symbols[308] in the triangle D.M. Dis man.[309] On the other, in the same place, a crescent[310] for theire Goddess the Moon, whence we yet retaine our Dies lunæ: Munday or Mooneday, as you very well know.

And these I thinke are the most observances that I have made, being destitute of my best companion and 2[nd] selfe, and also being hindered of going in the chefe season of the yeare by the indisposition of my Body,[311] by cold wether partly, partly by my […]ends.[312] Yet while I was at home I was not altogether idle for I have drawne the Armes of the Gentery of Westm'land and informd myself a little concerneing theire families.
But that I may not bore[313] \ you / in so lamenting a condi[tion] for the neglecting the time [and] opportunities here (or my negligence of […][314] industry in the discovering of those remnants of Antiquity), I'le Bring you Back to Pendraggon Castle.

I also rambled to Pendraggon Castle which is a Building so uniforme & compact & so well contrived with a Gallary all round the Top of it that bespeakes the workmens praise and the wisdom of the Ancients, and detractes from the honour some take in these later dayes for their skil in Building [and in] Architecture. It stands betwixt 2 great fells which far overtop it on either side, but the River assaying to Reach about it, change the fine rotunders to strong Bulworkes. [To list] the Roman or rather Brittish strong Bulworke[s] of a square figure which here & there lye up & down the countery would be too large a Taske. But there are 2 or 3 more Remarc[able]. One \ a Campe an Crakenthorpe: more a watch tower; / a campe cald Maiden-holde, as allso of castle demollishd: Maiden Castle on Top of Stanemore, where I saw stone of a dore or window. {And tis no less then a wonder, how ever they should get stones unto such a vast a[nd] craggy mountaine.} {Brough Castle, part whereof fell (as Tradition sayes) on that good Friday our Saviour sufferd, where there is distant from the castle a Tower cald Cæsers. Browham Castle, \ Apalby Castle / where an other \ there be of them at; / & \ Browham[315] C[astle] \ where there is / an other calld Pagan T[ower]. And but the handsomest of all: Maybrough \ Mabrough / Castle at Yeamont, not far from the Rounde Table, for I have neither time nor paper to proceed any further.}

[306] To scratch lightly, graze. OED.
[307] Plumpton/Plumpton Wall, Cumberland, is a township in Lazonby Parish containing the Roman site, Voreda.
[308] Editor's substitution; the word it represents is illegible.
[309] 'Dis minibus': to the spirits of the dead.
[310] Machell drew an illustration of a crescent here.
[311] Two words here appear to read, 'since that'.
[312] The letters at the beginning of this word are obscured by the binding.
[313] This a tentative substitution for a very unclear word.
[314] Here, the transcription omits several illegible words.
[315] 'Browham' has been written over 'Appleby': Machell appears to have been careless here.

[Correspondence 2. February 1687]

[Letter 2A. Mill to Machell. 7 February 1687][316]

[I.764][317]

D.L.[318]

I receiv'd your last, and before I come to it, must say something to ~~some~~ former letters I have had. In yours of Oct. 22 last you desird me to speak with Mr Walker to communicate what he mett with in his readyng concerning Westmorland and Cumberland. You know I cannot – Acheronta movere.[319] I was never very well acquainted with him; and now I should be sorry to begin. And I doubt Mr Wood will not wag in this matter.[320] Walker is taken up now with other concerns. However I will talk with Wood, & see what can be done about your monuments in Sicily, if there be any such –

As to your lease 'tis drawn, and seal'd, and ready for you. Your way of haveing it paid to your bailiff in Hampshire, will not be so well.[321] For if it should be paid in that way, it must be return'd afterwards to London, to the Collector in Smithfeild, which is a trouble not fitt to give the Colledge: who will expect, you know, to receive it without trouble. I am advisd by Mr Newlyn their Steward (who gives you his service) to tell you that your best way will be to send your servant in Hampshire over to the Colledge with the money. He \ may / come in one day, and go the next. And therefore, without giveing yourself or me any further trouble, pray write to your Agent, and take this method –

Your large account of the monument dugg up by you, I cannot yet communicate to Dr Plot; he being at London. I chuse to send it back to you, not knowing when we shall see him here. Pray, proceed in gathering what antiquities can be found, relateing to our Country. As to the inscription in Cambden DEO &c., the Circumstance of its being shewn Cambden by an old woman who liv'd upon the place is in the Latin Edition.

And thus I have made a shift to give you a short answer to your several Queries. You know my business is great: so that I cannot expatiate, as I would. Pray remember to send up your old Lease by 316 Letter copied in Machell's hand.

---

317 Also numbered p.24. Part of the reply to the letter can be seen as a scrap on VI.763A, below. Words underscored are in different ink, suggesting that Machell underlined these points as important.

318 'Deo Laudes': praises to God.

319 Virgil mentions the river Acheron in his description of the underworld in Book VI of the Aeneid. In Book VII, line 312[13] he gives to Juno the famous saying, 'flectere si nequeo superos, Acheronta movebo': 'If I cannot bend the will of Heaven, I shall move Hell'. In his letter to Machell, Mill appears to be saying of Walker, 'I cannot move the infernal powers.' This suggests that the victim of Mill's opprobrium was Obadiah Walker, Master of University College, Oxford. An excellent scholar, he was also a determined royalist who remained with Charles I in Oxford, and, after the king's death, was ejected from his fellowship. After the restoration he was reinstated and voted Master of University College but his encouragement of Roman Catholicism made enemies. He converted in 1686. When James II was deposed in 1688 and fled England, Walker attempted to follow him but was captured and returned to Oxford, where he was imprisoned and later put on trial. His ghost is reputed to haunt staircase 8 of University College. R. Beddard, 'Walker, Obadiah (1616-1699), college head and author'. ODNB. See also a letter from Bishop Thomas Smith to Daniel Fleming (3 June 1686), which refers to John Mill's scathing description of Walker's 'papist' conversion, in J.A. Bennett and R. Ward (eds), The Manuscripts of Sir S. H. Le Fleming Esq., of Rydal Hall, Historical Manuscripts Commission. Twelfth Report, Appendix, Part VII (London, 1890), 199-200.

320 Anthony à Wood, Oxford antiquary: see Graham Parry, 'Wood, Anthony [Anthony à Wood] (1632-1695), antiquary'. ODNB. In 1667, Obadiah Walker became a delegate of the newly founded Oxford University Press. His influence enabled Wood to publish his pioneering History and Antiquities of Oxford: see Beddard, 'Walker, Obadiah'. ODNB. Nevertheless, Wood was critical of Walker's Catholicism, see Andrew Clark (ed.), The Life and Times of Anthony Wood, Antiquary of Oxford, 1632-1695, described by Himself, collected from his Diaries and other Papers, Volume III (1682-1695) (Oxford, 1894), January 1686, 176-77.

321 C.1680 Machell had married Elizabeth, widow of Andrew Whelpdale, rector of Newnham and Dogmersfield, Hampshire, the daughter and coheir of William Godson, lord of the manor and advowson of Dogmersfield. See Angus Winchester, 'Machell, Thomas (bap. 1647, d. 1698), antiquary'. ODNB.

Burnyeats.[322] & contrive to pay in the money speedily! That upon recit of it, I may have your Lease from your Colledge, so as to send it you down by the same Carrier. I am
Your most affectionate
J.M.[323]
Oxon, Feb. 7, 1687/8

[I.763A]

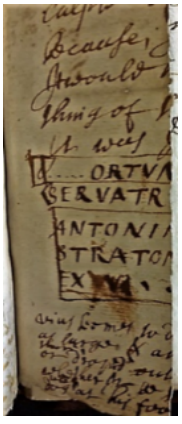

Figure 3.3.40. Part of an Inscription within a discarded draft of Thomas Machell's letter to John Mill, 20-21 February 1687. I.763A. [324]

[VI.295]

[Letter 2B. Machell to Mill. 20-21 February 1687: a precis of a longer narrative]

{This is extracted into the following disc[ourse]}
Feb. 20, 1687/8
Sir
I see you~~r intension~~ \ are so intent / upon your business that makes you unmindeful of other matters, for the lease you desire with such expedition is in your owne hands, as appears by your letter on the 1[t] of December 1687, wherein you acquaint me that you have received my old lease from London, sent to you by one Mr Baynes &c. But I thinke my mother will be up very shortly and therefore you need not haisten that business. However, I shall order the payment as you have directed.
Pray give my service to Mr Wood, & renew my request about the monument, if there be any such in Sicily.
Send me word also in what Latin edition of Mr Camden (for there are diverse) the circumstance of that Inscription (DEO BELATUCADRO), being shewn unto him by an old woman, may be found {no, it was in Northumberland}.[325] As also whether it be not sayed in that Latin edition in the Taberders Library, or on the other in the college library, that Kirkbythore, heretofore calld Gallagum, was the principal town of the Brigantes? For I thinke, somewhere I have read som such matter, but doubt very much \ of the truth of it / because of Yorks being famouse in those dayes.[326] {No[t] suer.}
I have found a piece of a Roman altar since I sent you last, which has bin layd \ with the letters downwards / for a foundation stone, as I suppose, upon the repare of som part of Whelp-Castle, after the first desolution of it, & perhaps by the Christians, or at the least \ som Roman enemyes / by the [322] Burnyeats, The Kendal Carrier; see below, VI.185; VI.301.

[323] Dr John Mill: Principal of St Edmund Hall, Oxford. Born a weaver's son at Hardendale near Shap in 1645, and educated at Bampton School, he entered Queen's College as a 'poor child' in 1661; known as Milne up to 1673. Politically, a waverer, he was nick-named 'Johnny Windmill' in the 1680s. He died in 1707: S. Handley, 'Mill, John (1644/5-1707), Church of England clergyman and college head'. ODNB.
[324] Tiny page (4cm x 3cm) containing part of a Latin inscription in a draft letter from Machell to Mill. The reply to this letter appears in this chapter on VI.764: Letter 2. Mill to Machell. 7 February 1687.
[325] See I.764. This margin comment and the neighbouring underscorings have been scrawled in pencil.
[326] This paragraph has been lightly scored through.

Goths and Vandals; for I do not imagin it would have been counted horrendum nefas,[327] while Roman paganism was on foote, to have defaced anything of that nature & put it to such an inferior use. It was inscribed to Preserving Fortune, after this manner: ORTVNAE / SERVATRICI / ANTONIA / STRATONIS / EX VI. SO / {Every word is a line} But adverse fortune has denyed us the happiness of the rest of it, being laid in som other part of the building.
{ἀγχδή Jύκη: bonæ fortunæ. Idem cum bene vertat = sit faustum felixque = cum bonis auspicijs. Apud Græcos in basibus et cipis statuarum virorum. Bene merentium honoris ergo, aut futurum ominandi causa præfigibantur. Marmora Oxon, p.57.58.}[328]

[VI.296]

Wee also found pieces of rubble floores, such as Vitruvius seems to describe: L.VII Cap 1^0, {Ruderi novo tercia pars Testae Tunsae admisceatur, Calchisque duae partes ad quinque mortarij mixtionibus praestant responsum, Vitruvius,}[329] composed of like stone dust or sand, together with beaten, pounded or pounced brick, & marble stones of variouse coulers,[330] well rubd & polish'd, which render'd it like unto speckled marble. And in one lumpe of lime or cement, rather which was harder and stronger than stone it selfe, a curious Cornelian Oval was found (either drop'd by accident out of a ring or stuck there on purpose when the morter was made), upon which this figure was fairly ingraven:

Figure 3.3.41. Cornelian gem stone seal figure. VI.296.

Which, whether it be one of the Roman lares or the Saxon god Thor or ~~signo~~ \ one of the / Catulus, with his dog at his foot, I leave you to conjecture.

[327] 'An unholy atrocity.'
[328] 'Good luck! To good fortune! Likewise, with, May it turn out well! May it be lucky and happy! With good omens! Among the Greeks, on the pedestals and pillars of the statues of men. Therefore, they were attached in front, in honour of those who deserved well, or to bring good luck for the future.' See Humphrey Prideaux, Marmora Oxoniensia ex Arundellianis, Seldenianis, aliisque conflata recensuit & perpetuo commentario explicavit (Oxford, 1676). Pages 57-58 contain: 'in Appendice saepius inscriptionibus habes praemissa significant idem quod apud Latinos bene vertat, seu sit Faustum felixque, seu cum bonis auspiciis, & apud Graecos in omnibus fere statuarum basibus & cippis in alicujus viri bene meriti hono|rem, aut foederis promulgandi gratiâ erectis, bene ominandi causâ praefigeban|tur.' Translated as, '… in the Appendix you have several inscriptions before them, signify the same thing which among the Latins turns well, or whether Faustus is happy, or with good auspiciousness, and among the Greeks in almost all the bases of the statues and cypresses erected in the honor of some man well-deserved, or by the grace of promulgating a treaty, they were prefigured in the cause of good omens.'
[329] 'The pavement is composed of two parts of fresh rubbish, one of potsherds, and two of lime.Vitruvius.' The whole of Vitruvius's Ch.1.5. translates as, 'Pavements are, however, more fit to be used in the open air, in as much as timbers expanding in a moist atmosphere, and contracting in a dry one, or sagging in the middle, cause defects in the pavement by their settlements. Moreover, frosts and ice soon ruin them. But as they are sometimes required, they must be made as follows. Over the first flooring, boards, others crossing them, must be laid, fastened with nails; thus, giving a double covering to the beams. The pavement is composed of two parts of fresh rubbish, one of potsherds, and two of lime.' See Morgan, Vitruvius Pollio, The Ten Books on Architecture (Cambridge, Mass. 1914), Book 7, 1, 5.
[330] MS: 'together with ~~brick~~ beaten \ pounded or pounced / ~~in pieces &~~ \ brick, with / & marble stones of variouse coulers.'

If you know any books in the public Library de dijs Gentium let this be enquired of;[331] & note that the sceptre, or whatever it be, is in his right hand a[nd] grav'd in the stone, tho' here it appears to be in the left.[332]
I have since, this: a cristilline stone of an oval figure presented to me, which was found on the west side of the High Burwens in 1691, which I suppose has bin used as a locket, having nothing at all ingraven upon it:[333]

Figure 3.3.42. Image from a ring stone found in 1691. VI.296.

There was alsoe an Urne of the largest sort (such as I described heretofore in my letter to Sir William Dugdale) but unhappily broke by the stroake of a gavelock before it was seen; and this puts me in mind of what was lately said in a newes letter (as I am informed by those that trade in them),[334] that there was an Urne full of Roman Medals found in Wiltshire, concerning which, if it be not to great an avocation, I would desire you to give me an account: Sc. of what metall they are generally made, & whose images & superscription they beare. For if you put me upon this fruitlesse & laborious study, you must expect some part of the trouble as occasion requires. For here we want books & correspondents, without which, you know, nothing can be done. Pray gô[335] inspect my former Letters & let me have further satisfaction concerning my Queries – both in them & this, or else forbeare to impose your commands in this particular upon
Sir
Your most faithfull & affectionate friend

Pray send me a copy of the matriculation oath, and other oaths, which wee tooke in the college & schools upon our promotion & degree, that I may take care to observe and performe them, as God shall inable me.

[Correspondence 3: October 1688 – July 1689]

[V.168][336]

[3A. Mill to Machell. 13 October 1688]

These
For the reverend my very worthy friend
Mr Thomas Machell, Rector of Kirkby Thore near Appleby
In Westmerland

---

[331] Machell would probably have known Tertullian's De execrandis gentium diis (On the Execrable Gods of the Heathens), but perhaps did not know Lilius Gregorius Giraldus, De Deis Gentium varia et multiplex Historia, in qua simul de eorum imaginibus et cognominibus agitur (A diverse and manifold History of the Gods of all Peoples, in which at the same time there is an account of their images and their epithets.) (Basel, 1548 and Lyon, 1565).
[332] A rough sketch of a stone appears in the MS margin here.
[333] The paper containing the image has been pasted onto this page (Figure 3.3.42).
[334] 16th- and 17th-century newsletters, newsbooks and pamphlets (produced in print or in manuscript), predated the modern newspaper. Suspected by political authorities, often unreliable in their veracity, they were subject to strict control until the failure to renew the Regulation of Printing Act in 1695. Ross Eamon, Historical Dictionary of Journalism (2nd edn, London, 2021), 1-14.
[335] 'gô' = ergo: therefore, a common contraction in Machell's MS; for Machell's list of contractions, see MS.IV.97-101.
[336] The outer part (with seal) of a letter to Thomas Machell.

[V.165][337]

Oxon Oct. 13. 1688
D[eo] L[audes][338]
For my own part, I'm goeing to answer your letter, but, I confess I am heartily ashamed of my negligence. I laid yours by upon the receipt of it, and thither rumbling among my papers, I found it, dated Febr. 10th. Well, I must trust to your good nature. Ey' well I mett with it at last; for, but for this accident, it would have remaind in my Archive. It is full of queries, and I am glad to find it so, considering the nature of them, for I would gladly have you pursue your design of searching into the antiquities of our native country. If you meet with ever an old charter relating to my ancient abbey in Valle Magdalenæ, not extant in the Monasticon, pray let me have it, for I have a great treasure of charters already! and I would willingly be adding. Hereafter we may add another volume, for ought I know, to the Monasticon. As to your last, I need say nothing. 'Tis in Mr Godson's hands and I have deliver'd the counterparts to C.C.C. so that that business is over. – And Woods[339] I have spoke with, but he can say nothing to the Sicilian monument.
– The history of the urn & medals in Wiltshire, I have had the opportunity to be fully inform'd of by a Person of great worth & curiosity, Captain Hatton, who made a very peculiar enquiry about them. & 'tis all, he assures me, forgery & fiction. The medals he saw several of them, were recent things.[340] As to the Inscription Deo Belatucadro &c. in The Library Cambden,[341] ther's not a word of its' being there in Mr Cambden by an old woman[342] \ *a. /. And what he says of K[irkby Thore] is onely this: 'Nomen vetustum penitus obliteravit ipsa vetustas, Wheallop Castle hodie nuncupant. Si per antiquitatis Prætorem liceat, dicerem esse Gallagum Ptolemæi quod Antonino Gallatum suffragante itineraria distantia, nec prorsus reclamante nomine &c.'[343] Not a word of its being the principal town of the Brigantes.
–The Cornelian Oval you must give me further time to enquire after; but I will not fail to give you the sense of the Curious in this place. Your release from Ric. Davis's {?}[344] agents he tells me was sent you long ago – And as for your oaths, that of your matriculation is out of doors with you; it obliges you, while here, to observe the customs and statutes of the University – And for the Coll[ege] Oath at [337] Letter in Mill's hand.

[338] The letters, 'D L' are probably a contraction of 'Deo Laudes' (Praises to God).
[339] Anthony Wood, antiquary. In his lifetime he was formally known as Anthony à Wood, but he appears in many published works as Anthony Wood.
[340] Captain Hatton was possibly Christopher, first viscount Hatton (1632-1706). In 1670 Hatton succeeded his father as second Baron Hatton and governor of Guernsey. A collector of books and antiquities, Hatton senior had patronised William Dugdale and had carried on an extensive correspondence on scientific and philosophical matters. Five years after the father's death, the son presented to the Bodleian Library his father's collection of four volumes of Anglo-Saxon Homilies and 112 valuable manuscripts (in part Anglo-Saxon), which are styled 'Codices Hattonianæ.' (See Edward M. Thompson (ed.), Correspondence of the Family of Hatton, being chiefly Letters addressed to Christopher, first Viscount Hatton, A.D. 1601-1704, 2 vols., Camden Society, London, 1878). In 1687, Christopher, first viscount Hatton, became Captain of Grenadiers in the Earl of Huntingdon's Foot, which might explain why Mill referred to him as 'Captain Hatton'. See Jan Broadway, 'Hatton, Christopher, first viscount Hatton (bap. 1632, d. 1706), politician'. ODNB; see also Victor Stater, 'Hatton, Christopher, first baron Hatton (bap. 1605, d. 1670)'. ODNB.
[341] Camden left his library of books to his former pupil and friend Sir Robert Cotton, the creator of the Cottonian library; both libraries became foundation collections of the British Library. See British Museum, A Catalogue of the Manuscripts in the Cottonian Library deposited in the British Museum (1802).
[342] See Machell's request, VI.295, above, in which he asks 'In what Latin edition of Mr Camden (for there are diverse) the circumstance of that Inscription (DEO BELATUCADRO), being shewn unto him by an old woman, may be found.'
[343] Correctly transcribed by Mill, this translates as, 'But tract of time has quite out-worn the old name, and it is called at this day Whealop-Castle. If I might without prejudice to the judges of antiquity, I would say it were Gallagum mentioned by Ptolome, which Antonine nameth Gallatum, the distance of journeys accord so well, and the name doth not altogether gainsay...' See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1607), Westmoreland.
[344] A question mark in Machell's hand.

your admission Scholar, & Fellow, you oblige your self cum ad uberiores fortunas perveneris imminente articulo opportunitatis, ad Collegij meliorationem insister[e] auxilijs et consilijs.[345]

Since I consulted the Library Cambden, I have consulted that of the Taberdars; there's not a word relating to the 2 above mention'd passages wherein you desire satisfaction; only as to the Inscription "Belo Sancto Bela tucadro" {?}[346] \ b. / first 'tis in the Tabitors edition, Cambden saies 'twas describ'd for him by one Mr Oswald Dykes, a Cumberland minister. I think this is all which may concern the questions purpos's in your letter. Pray proceed and make use you think fitt of your old friend & servant, J.M.
{Oxon. Oct. 13 '88}

[V.168]

[Machell's Notes relating to the letter above]

*! a. But I finde an Inscription, Sc. Deo vitirine[o] Limeo Rov[a] P & M ad Kirkbythore in Westmariæ: anicula quae causulam proxima[m] incoluit Arulam votivam Antiqua[m] hanc Camdeno Regionem illam perlustranti ostendit Deo indigiti vitirineo inscriptam. MS Inscrip. P.33. {No. It is a mistake for it was about Caervoran.}[347]
Inscription 2
{q?} Which being an Argument that Camden himselfe was in this country – I must farther enquire if this passage be not either in the Library ore Taberders Camden.[348]
b. I suppose that is another Inscription which in the correct copy is DEO SALVETO &c. and not Belo Sancto and a different thing from that of Kirkbythore.
{!} I have allso an Inscription V. (Deo Silvano) upon an Altar found in Grainge Beck \ in the Parish of K., / The rest being Obliterated: See if it have no affinity with this which was found in an Altar at Moresby in Cumberland.

DEO SILVAN... / COH. II. LING / CVI PRÆES… / G. POMPEIVS M … / SATVRNIN…

To be read thus – Deo Silvano. cohors secunda Lingonum, Cuj præst G. Pompeius M. Saturninus. quæ quidem Ara cum cornuta' Silvani imaguncula. Fossa fuit. MSS Inscrips. p.8. Fig.2.[349]

[V.166][350]

[3B. Machell to Mill. 9 July 1689]

July 9^{t} 1689

Sir
I thank you for the last \ trouble / I gave you in searching the Libraryes – but am still in earnest expection of an Account concerneing the Oval Impressions I sent you, as likewise of the Sicilian monument, but of this I suppose conclamatum est.[351] When I was not well last winter gon a twelve month, I diverted my selfe in Reading Vitruvius; and there I met with a certaine Diagram concerneing an artificial Eccho which ~~I am not so much master of musick which~~ the ancient Romans used in their Theaters. I am not so much Master of Musick as to understand it so well as I ought,[352] much less to render the Thing Intelligible to vulgar capacityes. But Mr Principal of Alban Hall is (as I remember), an Expert musitian; wherefore I desire you to consult him in it, & (if he pleases to do me that favour)

[345] 'When you arrive at a more prosperous station in life, and the moment of opportunity presents itself, to apply yourself to the betterment of the College by your help and counsel.'
[346] The question mark is in Machell's hand. Mill appears to be referring to the inscription, Deo Belatucadro.
[347] 'To an ancient god of pathways, in a lane P & M at Kirkbythore in Westmorland: an old woman who dwelt in a nearby cottage showed this little old votive altar to Camden, when he was traversing that region, inscribed to an ancient native deity.'
[348] I take from this that Machell asked for two libraries to be checked for a particular copy of Camden's Britannia: the Bodleian library and the Taberdar's library (Taberdar's Room) at Queen's College, both in Oxford.
[349] 'To be read thus – To the god Silvanus. The second cohort of the Lingones, commanded by G. Pompeius M. Saturninus. It is an altar with a little horned image of Silvanus. It was excavated.'
[350] This page is in Machell's hand.
[351] It is dead past all hope.
[352] MS: 'I am not so much Master of Musick as to understand its & so well as I ~~would~~ \ ought. /' to send me a plane description of the matter, so as to render it easy and practi\ca/ble.[353] I am resolved according to your repeated desires, to continue my search after the Antiquities this County of ~~afords~~ \ Westmorland / [affords], being very glad to contribute any \ way / to your satisfaction. But in truth I have not that otium scribendi,[354] which is necessary for one being so much diverted with the fattegues & troubles / of a Country life, That it oftentimes distracts my thoughts when I should set upon it. The Best Remedy for which I thinke is, now that Our friend is Archbishop of Yorke,[355] to bespeake me my old Unckle Henryes preferment, Or In order thereto a chaplains place:[356] which I leave to your management.

I heare you have a young man in your Hall for whom I had a singular kindness upon your account. I mean James Gibson;[357] and as I doubt not but he will answer the character I gave him, so I hope he will with your favour and kindness upon[358] my account; which will ~~highly~~ \ ever / obliege, Sir, your very affectionate friend & servant, T.M.

{Mr Brierly, Lieutenant Collonell to \ a / regiment of horse quartered in these partes, does often with me Remember his Tutor; he is growne a very ingeniouse Gentleman & is much esteemed of amongst the soljers, and all that are acquainted with him.}
{The copy of CCC Lease.}

[Correspondence 4: March – October 1691]

[VI.183]

[Letter 4A. Mill to Machell. 28 March 1691][359]

[VI.298]

These for the Reverend Mr Machell with a book at Kirkby Thore Westmorland.

[VI.183]

Dear S[r]
I presume you have receiv'd my answer to your last. This I send by one Embassador Burnyates;[360] and together with it a Paper book, which I beg leave to lodge in your hands, till he come up again to [353] The only obviously musical principal of St Alban Hall during this period was the campanologist, Richard Duckworth, author of Tintinnalogia, or, The Art of Ringing (1668, 2nd edn, 1671), the first book on the art of change ringing. See J. Eisel, 'Duckworth, Richard (bap. 1631? d. 1706)'. ODNB. The dates of Duckworth's tenure are uncertain, so not given in ODNB, but Anthony Wood has suggested a starting date of '1692 or thereabouts', which is later than the date of Machell's letter. See Anthony à Wood, Athenæ Oxonienses 1632-95, Vol. IV (ed. Philip Bliss, 1813-20), 794.

[354] 'leisure for writing'.
[355] The newly enthroned archbishop of York was Thomas Lamplugh, son of Thomas Lamplugh of Dovenby, Cumberland. He entered Queen's College, Oxford, in 1634 aged 16; BA 1639; MA and fellow 1642; BD 1657; DD 1660; Principal of St Alban Hall, Oxford, 1664-73; archdeacon of London 1664; canon of Worcestor 1669; dean of Rochester 1673; bishop of Exeter 1676; archbishop of York 1688 to 1691, see OAD.
[356] 'Old Unckle Henrye' was Henry Machell LLD, prebendary of York in the stall of North Newbold, 1512: see Edward Bellasis, 'Machell of Crackenthorpe', CW1, 8 (1886), 425; see also Bernard Burke, A genealogical and heraldic history of the landed gentry of Great Britain & Ireland Vol. 2 (London, 1894), 1292. By seeking 'a chaplain's place', Machell is referring to the law that allowed episcopal and noble chaplains a legal right to hold two livings in plurality. Their status was defined in 1530, and further clarified in subsequent acts over the following century; see Daniel Reed, Patronage, Performance, and Reputation in the Eighteenth-Century Church, PhD thesis, Oxford Brookes University (Sept. 2019), 44; see also William Gibson, A Social History of The Domestic Chaplain, 1530-1840 (London, 1997), 67.
[357] James Gibson is described as 'Son of Richard, of Bampton, Westmorland, pauper. St. Edmund Hall; matric. 7 March 1688/9 aged 22; B.A. 1692, OAD. Gibson was ordained priest in Oxford on 15 June 1701. CCED.
[358] Here, 3½cm of text has been thoroughly scored-through.
[359] See another transcript in a letter sent by R.S. Ferguson (then editor of CWAAS Transactions) on 17 December 1885 to the Society of Antiquaries of Newcastle upon Tyne, and printed in the Society's Proceedings 2 (1887), 142. Ferguson was frustrated at the quality of Machell's reponse to Mill's invitation, contained in the six volumes of Machell's researches: 'It is very disappointing; it refers to drawings in the book sent to Oxford, but a few rough sketches on tracing paper are pasted in.' Some readers might have been similarly dissatisfied at the lack of finished drawings. To quote Ferguson, thy are 'rough'. But see Letter 9, below.
[360] The Oxford Carrier.

Oxford. You must know, among our other literary designs this is one: to collect by our selves and our correspondents both at home and abroad, all the Inscriptions in what language soever, excepting English, that are not already in Gruter,[361] Reinesius[362] and the Book of our Theater Marbles. A very great Collection is already made; and we are very Zealous to pursue this design as far as it will go. Among those who must promote this work, I must beg leave to mention (I have done it already) the worthy Person to whom I'm writeing; who has made great observations of this kind; and has got together Several Inscriptions in the Northern Parts, not as yet noted by Cambden or any Body else. My request to you is, that you would give \ me / an in this book I send you, all your inscriptions, those of Appleby Schole & all others never yet publish'd. Write them very fair and exactly just as they are upon the stones, even with the Errata. And above every Inscription, set down in English the Pedigree, as I may call it, of such Inscription. The figure (& other considerable Accidents) of the stone on which tis engraven, the place where & the person by whom twas found &c. And order your matters soe as to have them ready by the time Tom Burnyates comes up, so as to send them by him. When ever we print you may depend upon it I will do \ you / justice and honour. Pray be kind in gratifying me in this request; and believe me to be ever
Dear S[r]
Yours most faithfully
J.M.
Oxon March 28. 91.
What we have in Cambden already you need not write.
My humble service to your good Lady &c.

[VI.297]

[Letter 4B. Machell to Mill. 11 May 1691]

May 11, 1691
Dear Sir
I receivd your kinde letter concerneing your Godson a great while agoe, and should have made a more early acknowledgement of your great friendship in adopting him as it were your own childe, and expressing your selfe so freely towards him upon my account; but that I know such a true friend as you are will give way to business, and that no remissness can alter the friendship that \ is so well grounded / has bin so long continued betwixt us ~~& so very well grounded~~.
And this suggests also a ready answer to your ~~rather~~ \ last / letter sent by Burnyeats, wherein you desire me to transmit unto you (in the Booke you sent) all my Inscriptions at Appleby-school or any where else, never yet publish'd; which, though ~~it be~~ a request that would not be granted \ unto / another (considering the \ present / designe \ which / you \ so lately / have revived in me, of writing a Booke of that nature my selfe) yet it cannot in friendship be denyed to you by
Sir
Your Most faithfull and affectionate servant
Tho. Machell.

[VI.185]

[Letter 4C. Mill to Machell, 26 October 1691]

For the Revd Mr Machell, Rector of Kirkby Thore, Appleby

Dear Sir
I sent you down a Paper book, wherein I desir'd you to write down The Inscriptions you mett with from Time to Time in your parts, never yet publish'd. In your answer to this request, you promis'd me to Transcribe them into my Book, and send them up by the Carrier; but Burnyeats all this [time] having brought me no account from you, I am apt to think he neglected to call upon; for otherwise I am confident you would not fail me. I have order'd him to deliver this with his own hand; and I beg [361] Jan Gruter (1560-1627), Inscriptiones antiquae totius orbis romani, in absolutissimum corpus redactae, ('Ancient inscriptions of the entire Roman world, edited in the most complete assemblage.') (1603).

[362] Thomas Reinesius, Nova Reperta Inscriptionum Antiquarum (Leipzig and Frankfurt, 1682).

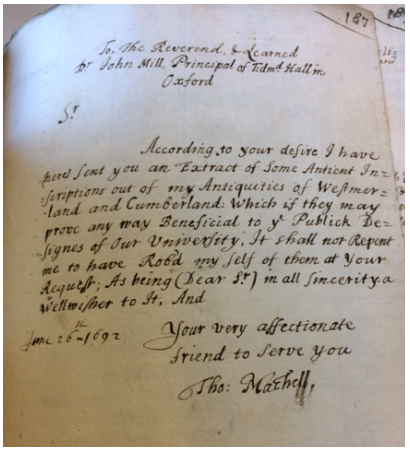
you will send up my book by the next return of the Carrier. My Service to your good Lady and all our Friends. I am ever
Your most faithful servant
J.M.
Oxon Oct. 26. 91.

Figure 3.3.43. Letter to Machell from John Mill, October 1691, with Machell's riposte. VI.185.

[Machell's Note: VI.185]

To shew my readiness to serve an the pu[b]lic wherein I may especially in a thing which may lend credit to our University, I have depauperated my ow[n] collection to inr[i]ch your store.[363]



[VI.187]

[Correspondence 5: June – October 1692]

[Letter 5A. Machell to Mill. 26 June 1692]

To the Reverend & Learned Dr John Mill, Principal of Edmund Hall in Oxford.
S^{r}
According to your desire I have here Sent you an Extract of some Antient Inscriptions out of my Antiquities of Westmerland and Cumberland: Which if they may prove any way Beneficial to the Publick Designes of our University, it shall not Repent me to have Rob'd my self of them at Your Request; As being (Dear Sir) in all sincerity a wellwisher to It, And
Your very affectionate friend to serve you.
Th. Machell
June 26th 1692

[363] In Machell's hand; written on Mill's letter in scrawled pencil.

To. The Reverend. & Learned
Dr John Mill. Principal of Edmd Hall in Oxford

Sr

According to your desire I have here sent you an Extract of Some Antient In= scriptions out of my Antiquities of Westmer= land and Cumberland: Which if they may prove any way Benefecial to yr Publick De= signes of Our University, It shall not Repent me to have Rob'd my self of them at Your Request; As being (Dear Sr) in all Sincerity a Wellwisher to It, And

June 26-1692 Your very affectionate friend to Serve you
Tho: Machell.

Figure 3.3.44. Letter from Machell to Mill, 26 June 1692. VI.187.

[VI.299]

[Letter 5B. Machell to Mill. 1 July 1692]

{This below to a Booke of Inscriptions sent Dr Mill}[364]
Sir
I have Laboured all that I could (even under the Pressure of som mighty affairs that intervened & of diverse Disturbances & Interruptions) to gratify you in Your Request, with such inscriptions as occur in These Parts; but have not had leisure to compleat and finish them as I Intended.[365]
However, Sir, that you may not be altogether frustrated in Your Designe, I have sent you your Book with all the Inscriptions at Apalby-School, and som other Places, fairly writ in It. And (That nothing may be awanting to do you service that layes in my power) I have also sent you The very first Draught of all my other Rude Notes & \ other / Inscriptions as they were Scratched out ~~at the first~~ \ in haste / on Horseback or Otherwise, in my Travails and Rambles; which, notwithstanding, I dare affirm to be very Exact as to the Letter: which is all you desire. But for the notes Interspersed amongst them, they are so ill writt (for want of Convenient time & place) and so full of Blotts & Interlineations, That (unless it be you, who pretend to read anything that falls from my Penn) no body besides my selfe can Compose & Bring them in Order. And you may be suer that I would not expose them in so Rude a Dress to any man liveing Excepting your selfe (my old friend and Confident) who I know will conceal them from all Carping Eyes, & Communicate onely what is for your Purpose (Sc. The Inscriptions) to som Cunning Graver in your own Chamber, who may supply the Defects & Shadowings by his owne Ingenuity; And for the Rest (if you like it so well) you may either take panes to transcribe it your selfe with your own hand, or at least Returne the Deformed Fœtus to be li[c]ked over into som better shape, by the Parent of It.

[VI.300]

In the meantime, that these Inscriptions may be Render'd more serviceable to Your Designe, I have taken care to Stitch them all up in the very same order wherein I purposed to have Treated of Them. For my Intention was to follow the Tract of the Romane-way, which enters Westmerland at Rear-Cross on the Top of Stanemore where:

KING WESTMER*
SLOE KING ROTHNGER

{* Bishop Usher. Note my Authors differ about the Inscription; ergo, see them all.}

And runns through Brough (where I wonder \ much that wee finde / there are no Inscriptions); & Thence by Apalby through Kirkbythore, & so to Browham Castle, where it leaves Westmerland and [364] Written in pencil.

[365] In the MS, 11cm of scored-through, mainly illegible text follows.

where I ~~would~~ \ intend to / have left It, that I might recurr to Water Crooke {(a.) where I have made a fine Collection} in the Barony of Kendall; and thence to Russendal {(b.) where in the church are 2 Hebrew Inscriptions, which I would have my friend Rabbi Hide (as being the best at it) to translate & send me a Copy of} before I Entered an other County.[366]
Then from Browham Castle I purposed to pursue the said Way through the County of Cumberland, as it runns by the Edge of Penrith fell twixt the Town & the Beacon to Plumton-Wall (3 miles East from which at a Place call'd Nunnery was the last Inscription which is placed there \ not long since discovered / found.) And thence \ I purposed / to Carlile and so on to the End of the Romane-way (which I have not yet found out by \ any / Enquiry but may perhaps Discover hereafter by Traceing of it som where about Bowness. Thence, from the West to the East of Cumberland (by my Pervestigation[367] of the Picts wall) as far as Powt-Ross. Thence to som Towns upon the said wall (or not far distant from It) which I saw in Northumberland. And so to other more foreine Inscriptions, ~~in Yorkshire &c.~~ which are not in this Roade.

[VI.301]

And in this Method my Papers are laid: so that (if you please) you may goe on & prosper; haveing Materials enough at your hand to fournish a pretty Considerable volume alone by It Selfe. To which may be added (If you please to command them on such a score) all the Coins I have met with In their proper places, wherein they were found: for If you would but polish what I worke ruffly \ rudely / over, I should not scruple to finde you materials; But Indeed it is Endless to undertake both; unless I had nothing else to do, or were free from the variouse avocations & troubles of a Country life.
But however, Sir, Since I have put all I have of this kinde into your hand; & kept nothing back though never so naked; I hope you'l be very tender of them; and, when you have taken out what you please, Returne them agane \ with all possible care / to
Sir
Your affectionate friend & servant
Tho. Machell
Kirkbythore July 1. 1692.

[Addition to the letter]
I have sent the Booke & papers mention'd (as I hope) by Thomas Burneyeates; but there is som thing of a doubt in it; for I was forced to sit up all night (being willing to do all I could for you). And to send my man to Kendal on Sunday to deliver Them to him. But he was gon as far as Kirkby,[368] whereupon Dr Gray advised ~~my servant~~ \ him / to send them by the Kendal Carrier, who set out last Monday & said he was to overtake him. But if they com not by Thomas Burnyeats, you may do well to send to London to enquire at the ware-house for a Book in 4^0 wrap'd up in Linnen, which Dr Gray and my man delivered to the Kendall Carrier ~~who was to set forward to London on~~ on Sunday the 26 of June, directed to you at Edmund Hall, Oxon.
I could not possibly write with it then, for want of time; nor had I an opportunity since, for \ by reason / titheing & som other occasions that \ have / Thronged \ in / upon me. But I hope this Letter will com time enough to give Notice of it, & perhaps may be with you before the Carrier.
Pray excuse all false-spelling, for I minde Things, not Words; & yet of set purpose do aftertimes deviate from the Common way, for which if you do but well & Consider, you will find […][369] som good Reasons. \ ~~And~~ besides which / There are many Things ~~also~~ in the Booke I sent you, which have nead of Correction, which I desire you \ freely / to Bestow ~~upon it~~; & which I ~~would~~ \ Intend[ed] to / have ~~alter'd~~ \ don / myself in som particulars if the Time had not faild me; As, for instance, in my [366] See Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, 'Thomas Machell's Memorandum of Needs', VI.186. Machell was probably referring to Thomas Hyde (1636-1703), an oriental scholar, M.A. (Queen's College, Oxford) 1659, chief librarian of the Bodleian Library, 1665-1701. In 1691 he became Laudian Professor of Arabic at Oxford, and acquired the Regius Professorship of Hebrew, together with a canonry at Christ Church in 1697. He served the government for many years as translator of diplomatic correspondence with the Ottoman empire or the states of north Africa. Though tolerant of other faiths, Hyde was an Anglican clergyman. See P. Marshall, 'Hyde, Thomas (1636-1703), oriental scholar'. ODNB.

[367] 'Diligent research or investigation'. OED.
[368] Kirkby Lonsdale.
[369] Here, 2½cm of scored-through illegible text has been omitted.

notes upon Crakenthorp at the name Malchael there is a paragraph begins \ as I remember / with Latine, ~~wh~~ sed ut cunque fuerit impositum &c, which I intended to \ begin with English, & / have altered thus [blank]. But however the name was impos'd (sive gloriose sive injuriose), the Ma\u/chells of Crakenthorp have retein'd it with honour to this very day: still holding This, Their Ancient Mannor \ ordering / (at the least by Capitulation) from the Conquest downwards {without any evidences} utque non per Drengagium &c.[370]
And a little after, in my note about ~~seales~~ \ Nobles: / "For wee do not pretend to have had any such, in This Ancient Family" &c. And many such like. But canis festinans coelos parit Catulos.[371]

[VI.255]

[Letter 5C. Machell to Mill. 7 October 1692]

Sir
I wonder I have not heard from you since I sent you my Book of Romane Antiquities, which I understand by Thomas Burnyeats came safe to your hand. I have Ransack'd Since, That all the Barony of Kendall (that I might not leave one Stone unturned in the County of Westmerland); And have only met with a Broken Altar at Kirkby-in-Loansdale; One fragment of a Romane Inscription at Ambleside in the parish of Windermre, and another at Tunstall in the County of Lancaster; which I have here sent you, together with some other things Relateing to Browham & Kirkbythore; which through hast were omitted, but do appertaine to my former Collection. Pray, if you have taken what is to your Purpose, Returne them againe by Thomas Burnyeates To
Your very affectionate friend to serve you
Tho. Machell
Kirkbythore
Octob. 7. 1692.

[L. Discoveries post 1692]

[I.509A][372]

[L1. Fragment of a draft letter from Thomas Machell, relating to his Antiquities Research at Kirkby Thore, undated]

Sir
I have really don what I have promissd you, but ~~findeing~~ haveing so great an hand my selfe in \ most of / the rarityes, of which art hath within this Parish; I doe repent of the undertakeing of a thing \ subject / more fit for another mans pen. Because I can not describe them unto you so well as I should \ ought / without seeming guilty of selfe commendation. ~~Yet~~ \ & though / I have don it in a Third person, & according to your method proposed, as it had bin your purpose [to] excuse me from the censure of others if any should see it; I desire to be excused for imparteing it to you – & that you would release the kinde promiss which was formerly made by [blank]. I have not leisure to ~~new do~~, nor indeed any patience to new doe it agane, & therefore desire to [be] excused from Impart – &c.

[370] See VI.221, above: 'Sed ut cunque fuerit impositum, sive gloriosè sive injuriosè, honorificè semper est retentum in hunc usque diem': 'But howsoever it has been imposed, whether honorifically or pejoratively, it has always been retained as a matter of honour up to the present day.' 'Non per Drengagium sed per Nobile Cornagij Servitium sicut ipsi Normanni': 'Not through drengage but through the noble service of cornage, just like the Normans themselves.' 'Ut Canem Optimum & Generosissimum, Graium, Nimirum (~~Non minu~~ \ tam / fidei quam fortitudinis Symbalum) in scuta sua transtulêrunt': 'That they put on their shields an excellent and most noble dog, indisputably Grecian (a mark of loyalty as much as of fortitude).'
[371] 'A running dog makes the Catuli equal to the heavens.'
[372] This page, 18cm x 14cm, is pasted onto a blank page in MS.Vol.1. As it is undated, it is difficult to ascertain to what aspect of his research Machell was referring, but the top part of the fragment contains text reused in his work on archaeological remains at Kirkby Thore (see the top of the fragment and compare with this chapter, I.281-82). Moreover, an image on I.281 states, 'This platform was cut out & sent to London to be inserted in Cambden's Britannia 1694 per T. Machell'. Given the tenor of the letter, we might remind ourselves that Machell died in 1698, only four years later.

which you [can] well do, haveing received a Generall account from [?] D. {who knows for certaine it was don by […][373] ~~and I have~~ no ~~time to publish it in pieces~~.}[374]

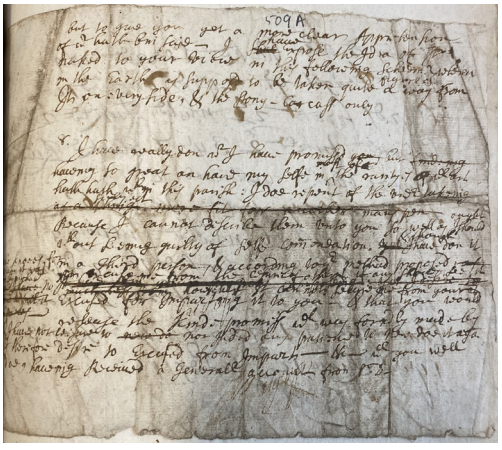

Figure 3.3.45. Page fragment containing a letter. I.509.

[VI.188][375]

[L2. Coin] Sent up to L[ondon] Aug. 1694, to be inserted in Camden Britannia

[VI.271]

{1. Kirkbythore}
Constantine the Great, having put to death Julius Crispus whom he had som time created Cæsar, being his own son by Minervina \ his concubine / (as is said elsewhere in the Parish of Browham);[376] he left to succeed him \ in / the Empire as the Augusti (or chief rulers thereof. T.M.) \ 3 of / his sonns, whom before \ his death / he had made Cæsars: / ~~namely~~ Constantine, Constans & Constantius; The Empire bein[g] divided \ amongst them into 3 partes; And by his Testament he then designed Dalmatius, his Nephew, son of his brother Anniballinus, to be Cæsar \ unto / with them, one of whose Coynes was found at Kirkbythore in Soulbyes \ gardine / Burwens in 1688, mense martij;[377] whose figure I have thought to Subjoyne, together with that which occurs in Mr Speed, which will serve as an Explication to It, because this is imperfect*.[378]

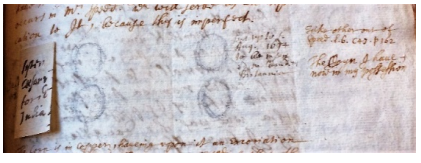

Figure 3.3.46. Coins. VI.271.

Sent up to L[ondon] Aug. 1694, to be inserted in Camden Britannia
The Coyn† is in copper, having upon it an Excoriation of greenish rust, yet Shining as pollish'd, so that the figures & som of the Letters may be fairly seen, namely his face on the foreside, very youthful [373] An initial and a word here are illegible.

[374] This draft, written on a scrap of paper on which many words have been scored through or repeated, is difficult to untangle. The resulting transcript is the closest possible approximation to the original. The following phrases, '~~much less from~~', and, 'lest it can not secure me from yours', have been omitted from this transcript.
[375] Fragment measuring 8½cm x 8½cm.
[376] See the parish of Brougham, I.445.
[377] 'In the month of March.'
[378] See Figure 3.3.46.

& smooth, with a sharp picked nose, the bridge being streight and not raised in the midle, as that in Mr Speed – which I do suppose, through the gravers falt, is not so true \ like / as it ought to be. And on the Reverse are 2 Armed men with their Spears in one and colours in \ vexilla[379] in / the other \ hand / without those flo[u]rishes on the Top of the Ensigne & those picked Crookes neer the foot of the Staffes, which Mr Speed hath \ perhaps omitted for want of compass in so small a Coyn. / In the midle of the said Reverse are a pair of Pinchers or som such like thing \ tho it be otherwise in Mr Speeds, / and above the heads of the Armed men where the Coyn is not broken, these Letter[s] are readible = I Ā EXER = which is doubtless a fragment of that Inscription about the Reverse of Mr Speeds – GLORIA EXERCITVS – ~~under~~ \ Then / what should be underfoote, is quite broken \ out, / but may

[Machell's Notes: VI.271]

*{Taike other out of Speed, lib. (4) p.162.}
†{The Coyn I have now in my possession.}

[VI.272][380]

seem to be the same with the other – se these 5 Letters CONST, \ as well as the Letters P.L.N. in Stat[ue] of Constantine […][381] / which may stand in my judgement for Constantinople as the place of its coinage, notwithstanding the opinion of som* from an Inscription on of his Statue, That it was at first Called New Rome {Nova Roma}; for doubtless a Coyn is a better as \ good / Authority as that of a Statue.[382] For Coynes are made in the life time \ commonly / of those whose Image they bear, but Statues, ofte times [ma]ny years after.[383]

{2. In Blekets Burhwens. Query Mr Walker?}[384]
I have another \ Coyn / found in Bleckets Burwens in the same month and year, but being […][385] myne owne I need not to draw it. It is in copper, the face fairly visible with som markes of Letter; the Reverse not so clear. It has som Resemblance of The British King Galgacus & is somewhat hollow, but of this I must Enquire farther, for as I remember therres were of iron†.

I hav also another, found in the same place in the same month and year, Stamped in Honour of Julia Mamæa Augusta, who was […][386] to Julius \ Cæsar & / Grandmother to Augustus; who is called Mamaea Augusta […][387] [for] distinction's sake (as I suppose) from […][388] Augusta, who was his daughter; whose Coyn I have also, found this time twelve month, in the same place.

{L3. Ringstones}

I had ~~not~~ \ scarce / Entertained this noble and renowned Lady Julia Mamæa a weeke in my house before the same place afforded me also another Rarity: an Oval Stone, drop'd out of a Ring \ as if she had scattered her jewels about her / which I have described in another paper but cannot tell what sort It is of. It is ingrav'd with a dillicate figure, holding a long rod in the one hand & an, if I mistake not [379] Military banners.

[380] Also numbered p.73.
[381] Some words here are obscured by the binding.
[382] MS: 'for doubtless a coyn is a better \ good / authority as that of a statue.'
[383] Here, a pencilled margin note is illegible.
[384] See Walker, Master of University College, Oxford, and a Roman Catholic convert, in Letter from Mill to Machell. 7 February 1687, above. Despite their religious and political differences, antiquaries of note were invited to contribute to Edmund Gibson's edition of Camden's Britannia. An expert on Roman and Saxon coins, Walker rewrote an essay for the volume. See Thomas Roebuck, 'Edmund Gibson's 1695 Britannia and Late-Seventeenth-Century British Antiquarian Scholarship', Erudition and the Republic of Letters Volume 5: Issue 4 (Oct 2020), 427-481.
[385] A word is blotted here and is illegible.
[386] A hole has been cut out here, see VI.271.
[387] Another hole here.
[388] Another hole here.

an Helmet in the other, which will serve very well for a Seal, and has bin desiged I suppose for the purpose; which will much advance the Antiquity of them.

[Machell's Notes: VI.272]

*As well as the Letters, P.L.N. in that of Constantine (p.259) may sig[nify] the pl[ace] of it[s] minting at London as sig[illum] affirmes: 260. S.9. / from an Inscription of his Statue.[389]

†Send the Coyn to Mr Walker the 1ˢᵗ opportunity.

[389] 'Sig' could be 'sigillum': a seal; alternatively it could be 'signatura': a mark, stamp, signature or impress.

Part 3. Further Collections

[Chapter 4]

[VI.371]

Collect[ions] Concerning Heraldry & of the Arms & Pedegrees of Westmorland

[Foreword: Honour and Dishonour; Dues and Duties]

[I.603]

{Honourr & Deshon[our]?}
Tho Gold come from the earth, none despiseth it, and the dross come from Gold, yet none regards it; so the verteouse comeing from mean parentaige, are honoureble, and the vicious comeing from Noble parentaige are Contempteble. Tis better to \ be / famous from a contempteble family then to be contempteble from a famous family: Ibid. Milk & Hony, p.101, §689.[1]

[I.602]

For by that Aristotle[2] dos not show that are honourable;[3]
They are compeld and bound to doe it [to] honour those that are in Authority over them what ~~shall be done to that~~ persone whome the King delighteth to Hon. And Aristotle sayes that onely to show that fælicity consists not therein, not that worthy men are not[4] to be honoured. Sed ibi plura.[5] {It [is] the due of one & the duty of the other.}

{Birth more Honourable}
Now those are more worthy, honour those fro[m] there ancestour (vid. Polit tom[e] d.) Hanc quæstionem an virtus sequitur sanguinem. vel simi[le]:) Nobiliores because there loud tongued fame yet sounds in the eares of after, and still are is though[t] on tho they be in the land where all things are forgotten.[6] 'virtus post funera viget'.[7] Nor does it availe that some object, for matter of policy, that worthy men now being, are to take place as less worthy tho more Ancient; for that is not to be don except by[8] persons who by there office represent the Kings majesty & too according to Circumstance: for this bespeakes an unutterable gratitude to those Noble Heroes; and others, by seing what honoures are done unto there lively monuments, I meane there children, are transported into admiration of there worthiness, and raised into high t[h]oughts of equalling those never (nor never to be) forgotten

[1] The aphorisms used here were taken from Ralph Venning, Milk and Honey, or, A Miscellaneous Collation of Many Christian Experiences, Sayings, Sentences, and Several Places of Scripture Improved (1654), 101, sections 689, 700.
[2] See one other reference to Aristotle in Machell's letter 'to Mr Holford of the College of Heralds att London', Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, V.3.
[3] 6cm of scored-through text follows here.
[4] MS: 'nōt'.
[5] 'But there is more there.'
[6] 'See Polit tom[e] d. [for] this question, whether honour [naturally] follows blood. Or [whether] those who are like them [are] the more noble?' Machell was almost certainly referring to Aristotle's Politiká ('Politics') [Things concerning the Polis], a work of political philosophy in eight books. The acronym or abbreviation, 'tomd' is not an obvious one but might perhaps read as 'tom[e] d' (i.e. the fourth book of Aristotle's work.) Perhaps Machell was using an edition of Politiká in which the eight books were named 'tomes'. Machell's text utilises 'tome' in the sense of 'volume' or 'book' only once, when discussing a work written by Dugdale, i.e. 'Tome 2. of Dugdalls Baronage, p.30': Part 2, Chapter 3ix, Staveley, II.472A. The analysis here is suppositional but since Machell did not regularly cite Aristotle we cannot tell how he thought it fit to refer to the work or even be sure that the abbreviation has been accurately transcribed.
[7] 'Honour is esteemed beyond the grave.'
[8] MS: 'I'.

virtues, and when they see Antiquity take place, strive in time to outstrip one another that (as the Romans did) ~~they~~ \ which of them / may first of all become Deityes. But to the objection, I can farther answer that its far outh of vise[9] of honour onely to respect, interest & honour them most that can doe something; and dispise them that can doe no more.
{1. Quia[10]: The ancestors of this family were [cl]earely deserveing.}
{2. Quia: It will be a spur to others to behave themselves so that they may have earth[ly] honours.}
{3. Quia: Haveing continued in Loyal[ty] for many generations, they will be more careful Loosing it: and the King who is found […] of Honour does there admitt it.}[11]

[VI.373]

[Part I]

Of Familyes

Concerning familyes
I thinke fit to enquire into these three things, viz.
1. Their Antiquity
2. Their Armes &
3. ~~Their~~ Matches
There is no better way of discovering the Antiquity of familyes that I know of, than by serching their ancient writeings, and soe drawing a pedegre according to them, observeing ~~out of them~~ \ thence / what you thinke is remarkeable, but especially the date, according to which you must marshall your succession. But he who takes this in hand will finde it a difficult taske, not onely for the ~~travaile and~~ paines he must ~~take~~ \ undergo / but allso for want of access to these writeings, which few in this aige will expose to view (for fear some flaws should be found in their titles).

As touching the Arms of each particular family in this county, I thinke I am able to ~~produce them~~ \ giv som account, / having long agoe taken notise of them, and confirmd \ a /new my observation by a view which I lately tooke of the most Visitations and Collections of Arms that are about London; but that which grieves me most \ of all / is that I meet not with any that were taken before King Hen[ry] the 8th time, if they reach soe high, and these very imperfect in severall particulars, especially their Visitations of the northern countyes, Westm'land & Cumberland, ~~the family~~ wherein the familyes are so intermixed and compounded together that when you looke for a Westm'land ~~Gent~~ name, you shall find both it and the place of residence in the other Visitation soon[e]r than this: an unusual oversight committed by Heralds, either through negligence or misinformation, and from which Mr Dugdall (the most carefull and accurate man of them all) cannot be excused.[12] For [of] the places ~~there~~ \ in his Visitation, / the Round Table \ is entered / in Cumberland, which all men know (that know anything \ att all / of the country) to be in Westm'land, laying on this side of the River Emote which parts the 2 countyes. Nor will I promisse to be so accurate ~~my selfe~~ as to scape all oversights; som can not be avoided.[13] But I will doe my \ best / endeavour, and be very much beholden to those who shall take [9] 'Vise': view, contemplation, regard. OED.

[10] 'Because'.
[11] The text has perished here. There is one more numbered paragraph (4.) but as much of it has also perished, it has not been transcribed.
[12] MS: '~~which is~~ an unusual oversight ~~For Heralds~~ committed by Heralds \ either / through negligence or ~~false~~ \ mis/ information, and from which Mr Dugdall (the most carefull and accurate man ~~that ever yet made one~~ \ of them all) cannot \ be / excused ~~himselfe wholy in his last Visitation~~.'
[13] R.S. Ferguson's description of family pedigrees and the involvement of the Heralds' Office is pertinent here: 'In Machel's days, the records of heraldic visitations appear to have been the private property of the heralds, and to have been consulted in the hands of their descendants, or the shops of the herald painters. Thus, Knight's visitation was found … in the possession of the herald's grandson, Dr Knight [VI.464]; at the house of Mrs Smith, a widow, near St Dunstan's Church, Fleet Street [see VI.501; I.287; V.3, V.12, V.14-15], he found a very good visitation of Cumberland, "by whom taken I know not" [VI.429]. He guessed the date of it to be 1638, but the extracts he made from it prove that it was a copy of St George's visitation of 1615. He also discovered in the the paines to correct these papers where they are amiss if ever they happen to come to light; for I doe not write them with any intentions of pub[l]ishing a Booke but to gratify a \ particular / friend who will neads believe that I know more of that state of this countrey / ~~county~~ than any other; nay, more indeed than I know my selfe.[14] However, I hope by this means (and that I suppose he chiefly aims att) to provide rough materials for a Temple of Hon[our] if they happen hereafter to fall into the hands of a skilfull Artist who has more time and more ingenuity to order them than I can pretend to.[15]

[VI.374]

The 3d thing I purpose to touch upon is the matches of each severall family; but that I can never expect to compleat. However, I shall declare what I know, to which posterity may make their additions in after Ages if they would have a minde, and discover more than I know att present or have time to seek out, by the same means & methods which I have proposed, and allso by searching the Prerogative office, where by wills they shall finde the wife's Xan names & most of her children, who are either therein left executors or legacies.[16] But I almost dispaire that any man \ being, / beside my selfe, will talke so much about so triviall & thankeless a matter; & for my owne part, having a greater imployment upon me, I am not willing to misspend much time in the serch after vanity.[17] Nay I grutche[18] the scribbling of what I \ am / already \ known to / ~~am acquainted with, for little does it esteem of what I know, which yet I would never know but for the love which I had to Antiquity and country, nor never writ before the respect which I have to my [...]~~[19] ~~& country together~~.[20] Because I thinke it not worthy my patries. Nor am I willing in my riper years to expose the --- of my youth.[21] possession of Mr Fawcett of Sowerby [VI.397] an old book containing a visitation of Cumberland and Westmoreland in 1580.' See R.S. Ferguson, 'Notes on the Heraldic Visitations of Cumberland and Westmorland', CWI, 2 (1876), 20-27, at 25.

[14] There are several candidates here. One is Dr John Mill, Principal of St Edmund Hall, Oxford, for whom Machell prepared his work on Roman antiquities, although their later correspondence suggests Machell's equivocation about releasing what he considered to be his own material. See Machell to Mill, 26 June 1692. 'According to your desire I have here Sent you an Extract of some Antient Inscriptions out of my Antiquities of Westmerland and Cumberland: Which if they may prove any way Beneficial to the Publick Designes of our University, it shall not Repent me to have Rob'd my self of them at Your Request.' See part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, Letter 5A, VI.187. Another candidate might be the antiquary, Robert Plot, see Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, I.516-17.

[15] MS: 'However, I hope by this means (and that I suppose he chiefly aims att) to bring ~~such materialls~~ \ provide / rough materials for a Temple of Hon[our][15] \ ~~rough materiall~~ / (~~stones & morter to thr erecting of a Temple of Honour~~) if they happen \ hereafter / to fall into the hands of a \ skilfull / Artist who has more time and more ingenuity to order them than I can pretend to.' This sentence also contains 9cm of illegible scored-through text (not transcribed).

[16] MS: 'but that I can never expect to compleat ~~or give~~. However, I shall declare what I know to which ~~those who come after me~~ \ posterity may make their additions / may ~~make additions in severall aiges~~ \ in after Ages / if they ~~please~~ \ would have a minde / and discover more than I know att present or have time to seek out, by the same means \ & methods which I have / I proposed ~~before~~, and allso by searching the prerogative office, where by wills they shall finde the wife's Xan names & most of her children, who are either \ therein / left ~~as~~ executors or ~~else to whome some~~ legacies ~~are bequeathed~~.'

[17] MS: 'But I almost dispaire that any man \ beside my selfe / will take~~ing~~ so much about so triviall \ & thankeless / a matter; & for my owne part, having an ~~other~~ \ greater / imployment \ upon me, / I am not willing to misspend ~~the hore~~ much time in the serch \ after vanity. /'

[18] 'Grutch': grudge. OED.

[19] Illegible word.

[20] Machell's preferred text (without the scored-through element): 'Nay I grutche the scribbling of what I already known to. Because I thinke it not worthy my patries. Nor am I willing in my riper years to expose the --- of my youth.' The scored through element has been retained above because of the sentiment revealed.

[21] Machell drew a pecked line here, but provided no alternative word.

[VI.377]

[Queries and Answers; Notes on Method] [22]
{I heard of Machells de Wendover, 3 miles from Buckingham; do, Horsham in Sussex; de Gilford in Surrey {the same family}; de Crackenthorpe in Westmorland.
Enquire whether the Arms be the same with[23] in a bordure.
Machell, whose armes be these [empty shield] what this actiom means: a nom. ad arma &c.}

{Whether}
1. The institution of the Heralds Office (since tis certain that arms were before) begun in the reine of Edward 3^{d}? [Answer] Noe, the office is no way long.
2. By the Heralds register I can certainly know which familyes in any county are most ancient according to order, and which of lesser duration? If so [Blank].
3. Denton de Cardew or \ Denton de / Warnell in Cumberland be m[ore] ancient? And whether Blenkinsopp de Helbeck in Westm'land or de Blenkinsop-Castle in Northumberland be the 1^{t} house. Helbeck is with a crescent Argent on the fess for distinction \ of Helbeck. /
4. It be observable in Northumberland that their Arms (as some will have it) do want Crests? And when they 1^{t} began to be added unto the heldmets amongst […][24] [Answer] Not usually till of late years by patent.
5. Mantles have their originals \ as Cartwright would have / from love locks […] mistrisses favours (for if so, seems improper to have a mantel Ermin); or rather from som habit which the Knights wore of old, the wreath indeed may probelely […][25] from the former, if it be not rather the coulours of bearer folo[…][26]
6. Supporters bee proper onely to the gentery down to a Barron, or allso to others of inferior degree. [Answer] Se[e] Guillam,[27] but the contrary has bin in practise[28] for Knights.
7. The Honour of a Barronett (which in defect of an heir the estate passeth to a younger brother) \ yet it goes by pattent / be allso heret[ance] to, unto him with his estate. Or supposeing \ any Gentlemans / family extinct, & the estate to pass to an other of his name, whether the title of honour be allso extinct or transfer to the successor. [Answer] If he be heire it goes by patent: Dugd[ale].[29]
8. Other of the same name \ or title / with ~~Gentlemen~~ \ persons of / quality by Industry advanceing them selves, can withoute the produceing of a pedigree, demand or have granted the beareing of the said Gentleman? For if so, it intitles him to the estate entailed, which, peradventure, he has no right to it att all. [Answer] Noe, he may not with\out some material difference: Dugdale.
9. When the custome of entaileing was first us'd in England.
[Answer] {Anno 13 Edward 1 [1284-1285] etat West: 2; 331 years since} whence derived habet originem a statut Westminster 2. Anno […][30]
10. There be any punishment to be inflicted on those who take […][31]

[22] Much text on VI.377-378 was written in a hand similar to, but not exactly like, Machell's; it might demonstrate an earlier manifestation. Interlineation and marginalia are by Machell (sometimes initialled T.M.) and William Nicolson.
[23] Words here have perished.
[24] The next word has perished.
[25] Several words in this passage have perished.
[26] The rest of this sentence has perished. The mantle is a device surrounding the shield, representing the covering of a knight's helmet: A.C. Fox-Davies, A Complete Guide to Heraldry (New York, 1978), Chapter XXIV. The name 'Cartwright' as a heraldry expert is unknown to this editor (although the Elizabethan puritan, Thomas Cartwright, wrote sermons denouncing sinfulness: see Patrick Collinson, 'Cartwright, Thomas (1534/5-1603), theologian and religious controversialist'. ODNB).
[27] John Guillim, A Display of Heraldry (London, 1610).
[28] MS: 'p'tise.'
[29] William Dugdale, Baronage.
[30] The paper here has perished.
[31] The paper here has perished.

{Queries for the herald painter}[32]
{Enquire for Mr Smiths in Fleet Street, a little below St Dunstan's Church.[33] Send to Peter Rowlandson. Mr Ward. Whether a Doctor of Physic take place of a squire.}

[VI.378]

{Whether}
Prohibition of duels and what it is. See Parsons Councellor.[34]
11. Those that have been traytours, or borne Arms ~~from~~ against the King, ought not either to have lost their scutchions, or att leaste received some abaitment of honour, notwithstanding the Act of Indempnitys.
12. He hath met with any circumstance of antiquity showing when […][35] the dateing of writeings began? {G. hand}[36]
13. The antiquity of Appleby be knowne unto him from any othern author or circumstance than what Camden out of the Booke of Provincial Notices has declared, and what that booke is or where to be se[e]n?[37]
Ans[wer] Noe. {In the Poetical Dictionary it is cal'd Urbs Westmarie Antiquissima e lib. Vol. Province.}[38]
14. There has not been a Family of Duftons de Dufton near Apleby. The last heiress whereof marryed to Duftons de Kirkouswald in Com. Cumberland, where her coat as I suppose (the same being in Dufton & Morton church windows) is to be seen in the 4th quarter of Lord Dakers, his? If not, what her name was to whom this coat belong'd and where her seat?
[Answer] It was Baron Graystock. T.M.
15. Dalston de Dalston, formerly a seat of the Vauxes, were not cal'd Dawsons before they came there.?
[Answer] No, ut put[o].[39]
16. He have not red of King Arthur or Uter Pendraggon's residence in Westmorland, for it should seeme to be so from the Round Table there & Pendraggon Castle.

---

[32] The queries are in Machell's hand. The artists of the College of Arms are known as Herald Painters: https://www.theheraldrysociety.com/articles/the-herald-painter/.
[33] Further references mention 'Widow Smyth' in the same role, see VI.494; VI.501. This St Dunstan's would be St Dunstan's in the West, in Fleet Street, as opposed to St Dunstan's in the East, near the Tower.
[34] Simon Degge, The Parson's Counsellor, with the law of Tythes and Tything, in two Books (2nd edn 'corrected', London, 1685). There is mention here of the prohibition of fighting with weapons in churchyards, but no specific reference to the term 'duel', see Part 1, 150.
[35] There follows an illegible two-word interlineation.
[36] Machell was probably referring to Gothic Hand or Blackletter, a script used throughout Western Europe from approximately 1150 until the 17th century. See Geoffrey Dowding, An introduction to the history of printing types; an illustrated summary of main stages in the development of type design from 1440 up to the present day: an aid to type face identification. (London, 1962), 5.
[37] Philemon Holland's translation of Camden's Britannia (1637) contains, '… for that the high streete of the Romans, as yet evidently apparent by the ridges thereof, leadeth this way to Brovonacum by Aballaba, whereof mention is made in the Booke of Notices': see 'Westmoreland'. John Speed wrote similarly: '… the Aurelian Maures kept a Station in the time of the Romans, and their high-street is apparently to be seen by the ridges thereof, which lead by Apelby to a place named Brovonacum, mentioned in the Book of Provincial Notices.' See John Speed, An Epitome of Mr John Speed's Theatre of the Empire of Great Britain and his Prospect of the most famous parts of the World (London, 1676), Chap. 49. Otherwise known as the Notitia Dignitatum, the Book of Notices is the official list of all ancient Roman civil and military posts, which survives as a 1551 copy of the missing original. A major source of information on the administrative organisation of the late Roman Empire (late 4th and early 5th centuries), it is divided into two sections covering the eastern and western parts of the empire as divided in A.D. 395.The document names the chief civil and military officials of the empire, together with their departmental staffs and, occasionally, the areas of their expertise or competence. The manuscript includes drawings of the regimental shield of each magistrate and the fort of each military commander: https://www.britannica.com/topic/Notitia-Dignitatum.
[38] Thomas Cooper (drawing on the dictionaries of Stephanus), An Historical and Poetical Dictionary, briefly covering the Proper Names of Places and Peoples (London, 1565).
[39] 'No, so I think.'

17. He have not red of some highly renowned and much celebrated maiden Queen in Westmorland, which has given denomination to so many places there; as Maiden Castle upon the top of Stamemore, Maiden-Hold upon Speedy-Moors, otherwise Crackenthorpe Moore in my father's lordship, & Maidne-Way, a vast casway, all which retaine their names to this very day.
18. A field of colour (for so it seems by our noblest coats in England) charged with metal, or the contrary be better armoury.
[Answer] Not materiall. T.M.
19. An Esq for his late deceaset father being a Knight may take place of an other, tho his family be ancienter if remoter from of the Esq. […][40]

[VI.379]

{Lib. Sic Notatur Φ.[41] Penes Mr Sheldon}

The ordering of Estates of all Degrees according to their Estate & Degrees. Or: A Table of precendency taken out of a MS booke in 4[0] penes Mr Sheldon de {Beoley} in Com. Warwick which I have great reason to believe was compiled dureing the reign of H.8. because in the end thereof is a catalogue of the coronations & burials of the successive Kings of England from June in the Year of Our Lord MVIX: 1509.

{[Note] This conjecture will not hold; se the note at the hand[42] and other notes. However, it may serve to compare with Dugdalls in the following pages.}
{It probably was in time of K. Henry 8 but certainly before Queen Elizabeth, by the visitation of the Mayor of Calais in no.19.}[43]

1. The Emperor.
2. The King.
3. The Kings son: a Prince.
4. The Archbishop.
5. The Duke {A Duke's eldest sonn and heir being of the Bloud Royal, shal goe or be sett above a marquess. And if he bee not of the Bloud-Royal, he shall sitt above an Earle.
\ 6. The Bishop. /
7. The Marquess.
8. The Earle {And an Earle's sonn and heir, if he bee of the Bloud-Royal, shal sit above a Viscount. And if he bee not of the Bloud-Royal, he shall sit above a Baron.
9. The Viscount.
10. The Baron.
~~10.~~ 11. The Baronet*
(Note: I wonder when this was made for wee had none of these till King James*}
{*Baronet & Baneret were anciently used promiscously, see below.}[44]

[40] The rest of this sentence has perished. See VI.433, below.
[41] 'The book is marked thus.'
[42] 'Note at the hand': In the MS Machell usually drew a pointing-finger as his 'N.B.' device. It has been removed from this edition and replaced by 'N.B.' or 'Note'.
[43] In another hand, almost certainly that of William Nicolson.
[44] In another hand, almost certainly that of William Nicolson. First mentioned in 1321, the term 'baronet' was applied to noblemen who had lost the right of summons to Parliament. Edward III created eight baronets in 1328. Further creations were made in 1340, 1446 and 1551. Sir William de la Pole's baronetcy in 1340 was created in return for help to maintain the King's army. It is not known whether these creations were hereditary, but all died out. The present hereditary Order of Baronets in England dates from 1611. Created by James I, the Order was granted initially to 200 gentlemen of good birth with an income of at least £1,000 a year. As James aimed to fill the gap between peers of the realm and knights, baronets were created to form the sixth division of the aristocracy following the five degrees of the peerage. More importantly, James needed money to pay for 12. The Knight Batchellour.

13. The Dean. }
14. The Arch Deacon. } None of this allow'd of in Dugdall: see quaere of 4.
15. The Knights. What? Not a word of Esquires. This is strange!
16. The Masters of the Rolls.
17. The Justices.
18. The Barons of the 'Chequer.
19. The Mayor of Calais. }
20. The Dr in Divinity. } None of this in Dug[dale]
21. The Dr of Both Laws. }

{N.B., I take this to be very unauthentic & of later date than King H.8 because of the Baronetts mentioned att Figure 11, T.M.}

{But Baronet here only stands for Baneret who always took place of Knight Bachelors. No 19 shows this to be compiled before the reign of Queen Mary.}[45]

22. Them that have bin maiors of London.
23. The Sergiants of the Law.
24. The Masters of the Chancery.
25. The Preachers & Clerkes Graduites.
26. The parsons & priests.
27. The Worshipful Merchiants. In good time! What, before Gentlemen?
28. The Gentlemen.

{From the omission of Abbots, Priors &c. this was written after the Dissolution of the Monasteries, & from the Respect shown to Preachers in no. 25, probably at beginning of King Edward VI reign.}[46]

[VI.381]

A Table of Precedency in the Kingdome of England[47]

1. The King & Queen.
2. The Prince of Wales & his Princess.
3. Dukes of Royall Blood & their Dutchesses; as the sons, brothers or sisters sons of the King in being, or of a deceased King.
4. The Kings Vice-general in Ecclesiasticall affairs; when one is appointed or made.[48]
5. The Archbishop of Canterbury.
6. The Lord High Chancellor or Lord Keeper of the Great Seale.
7. The Archbishop of York.
8. The Lord High Treasurer.
9. The Lord President of the Kings Counsell.
10. The Lord Privie Seale.

These four officers next aforesaid are to be of the Degree of Barrons of Parliament or above. Otherwise they are not to be placed as aforesaid. The Lord Steward of England is not heare soldiers to carry out the pacification of Ireland, thus each new baronet was required to pay for the upkeep of thirty soldiers for three years, amounting to £1,095. Extracted from 'The Standing Council of the Baronetage', https://www.baronetage.org.

[45] Almost certainly in the hand of William Nicolson.

[46] The stylistic differences here point to the work of yet another hand, which could be that of Charles Lyttelton, bishop of Carlisle 1762-68. See Part 3, Ch.1, 'Directions for those who shall undertake to finish the Antiquities of Westmorland', VI.432, A & B.

[47] Most of VI.381-386, has been written in another hand but points 1-5 on VI.381 are in Machell's hand.

[48] In January 1535 Henry VIII appointed Thomas Cromwell royal vicegerent, or vicar-general. See H. Leithead, 'Cromwell, Thomas, earl of Essex (b. in or before 1485, d. 1540), royal minister'. ODNB.

mentioned, nor in the Stat[ute] 31 H.8.10. because it was not intended that, when the vise of him should be nescary, he should not endure longer than a hac vice.[49]

11. The Great Chamberlan of England, the Constable, the Marshall, the Lord High Admiral, the Lord Steward of the Kings House and the Kings Chamberlan shall be placed after the Lord Privie Seale in manner following: viz. every of them shall be placed above all other personages being of the same sta[tion] Degree. As if he be a Baron above all Barons; if a Viscount, above all Viscounts; if an Earle, above all Earles.

12. Then Dukes and thire Dutchesses.
13. Marquesses and thire Marchonesses.
14. Then eldest sons of Dukes of Roÿall Blood and thire wifes and there sisters.
15. ~~And their sisters~~ If one be daughter and heiress of a Duke she shall take place of all ~~eldest~~ Dukes eldest sons wifes and after Marchonesses.
16. Earles and thire Countesses.
17. The eldest sons of Marquesses, there wifes and there sisters.
18. The yoiunger sons of Dukes of the Royal Blood & their wives.
19. The yoiunger sons of other Dukes and there wives.
20. Viscounts and their Viscountesses.
21. The eldest sons of Earles, their wifes and sisters.
22. The youngest sons of Marquesses and there wives.

[VI.383]

23. All Bishops of England. Viz. The Bishop of London, the Bishop of \ Durham, / the Bishop of Winchester and then all the other Bishops of both \ provinses /shall take place according to the seniority of there confederations.
24. Barons of the Parliament and thire Baronesses. The Kings principal Secretary, being a Baron of the Parliament shall take place of all barons not having any of the offices aforesaid; but if he be a Viscount, Earle or any other higher Degree, he shall not take place of any Viscount, Earle or higher Degree. And if the Secretary be a Bishop, he shall take place of all other Bishops not having ~~not having~~ office aforesaid. But not above the Archbishop, all the Barons, Viscounts, Earles and the above mentioned not having any of the offices aforesaid are to take place amongst themselves according unto the Antiquities of thire severall titles and thire severall Ancestors Creation respectively; and the Heir survives accordingly.
25. The eldest sons of Viscounts, there wives and there sisters.
26. The younger sons of Earles and thire wives.
27. The eldest sons of Barons and thire wives and sisters.
28. The Treasurer Comptrouler of the Kings Household.
29. Knights of the Garter and there ladys.
30. Privie Cou[n]sellers of his Majestys Master of the Court of Wards and Liveries, Chancelor of the Dutchy,[50] Chiefe Justice of the \ courts of / Kings Bench, Master of the Rowls, Chiefe Justice of the Corte of Comon Pleas, Chief Baron of the Corte of Exchequer and the other judges and barons of the Degree of the chiefe of the said courts, who take place amongst themselves according to the seniority of the severall patents.
31. Knights Barronets made by the Kings majestie or ~~Kings~~ \ Prince / Henery[51] and his standerd displayed in an Arms Royall, in an open warr[ant] and the Knight or Prince personaly present for the Time of thire lives, and noe longer. Also there ladyes.

[49] '… because it was not intended that, when the vise of him should be nescary, he should not endure longer than from this turn of office.' The office of Lord Steward has generally remained vacant since 1421, and is now a primarily ceremonial, ad hoc office, filled only for a coronation. Encyclopædia Britannica, Vol. 17 (11th edn, 1911), 'Lord Chamberlain' to 'Luqman'.
[50] Duchy of Lancaster.
[51] Henry, Prince of Wales (1594-1612), eldest son of James I.

[VI.385][52]

32. The younger sons of Viscounts and there wives.
33. The younger sons of Barons and there wives.
34. Baronats and there ladys.
35. Knights \ barr\n/onats made otherwise then as abovesaid and there ladyes.
36. Knights who have been Enbassadors.
37. Knights of the Bath and there ladyes.
38. Knights Batchellers and there ladyes.

1. First \ those / select Esqs for the Kings body and there wives who take place only during their office.
2. Baronets eldest sons, their wives and their sisters.
3. Knights eldest sons and there eldest sons likewise sucksesively; so also there wives. These take place amongst themselves according to the priority of the knighting of there first ancestors, not of the last; and he who is descended from a younger brother, shall, if the elder brother be dead, and all his issue male, take the sam place as if he were desended from the elder brother.
4ly. Esqs. The younger sons of baronets, and there wives.
5ly. The younger sons of the eldest sons of Baronets and of other nobles of higher estate.
6ly. The created Esqs with a Collor of S:S,[53] called in the west, White Esqs.
7ly. Those who have any superio\u/r publique office in the common weall, or serve the prince in any worshipfull […][54] calling, whose place or precedence contrived soe for life.

[39.] Others only during the time of there being in office, as ~~an~~ a sherife is an Esq. for life and a Justice of Peace only whilst he is in commission.
40. Gentlemen and there wives.
41. Citysons or Burghers and their wives.
42. Craftsmen, artisans or workmen and there wives.

All Peares, Knights and Baronets abovesaid, there wives and children, doe take place only[55] according to there severall and respective antecedents,[56] priority of the date of their Pattents, or of the time of their being knighted respectively.

[VI.386]

If any of the daughters of any Baron, Viscount or other Peare doe marry any Gentleman, Esquire or other person amongst the minor nobility, yet she shall retaine her honour and place; but if she marry with any of her inferiours amongst the major nobility: to wit with a Baron, or any other her superior, by the custome ~~of~~ now used in England, she shall onely ~~to~~ take place of hir husband. Soe if any daughter of the minor nobility shall mary hir inferior, she shall loose hir owne place and take that of hir husband, excepting onely the daughters of Baronetts, who shall still retaine there places due unto them by birth; by reason there places are particularly granted unto them by the Kings Majesty in there patents under the Great Seale of England.

{Graduits} The Degrees which any man shall take, either in any university or in any Inns of Court, shall not intitle to any other place out of the said university or Inns of Court then what he might justly take without any of the said degrees.

All the eldest Issue males descended from knights shall take \ such / place inter Sc. as there Ancestors would doe if they were now alive, from whom they claim there presedency.

---

[52] Also numbered p.27.
[53] Collor: an ornamental band or chain worn round the neck for ornament or as a badge of office or livery. OED.
[54] An unclear word follows.
[55] MS: '~~only~~', followed by an illegible substituted word, not transcribed.
[56] MS: 'anncents.'

{Quere} What place the nobility of Scotland and ~~England~~ Ireland, there wives and children ought to take amongst the English.}[57]
{Answire} Next to those of the same Degree in England. But Scots before Irish: informante, Mr Dugdal, apud London, May, 1675.}

{2. Quere} \ 2 / Whether all the daughters of Baronetts are to take place next after there eldest wives during there fathers life tyme.
{Answire} They are.

{3 Quere} Whether all the daughters of Baronetts are not to have there precedency of all junior Baronetts eldest sons, wives, by the decree of the 14th of King James [1616-1617], and of all junior Baronetts daughters.
{Answire} We doubt not but they are.

{4. Quere} Whether a Bishop or Drs wife can take ~~pres~~ any other place then according to there husbands Quality by birth.
{Answire} They can-not.

[VI.387][58]
See excellent laws enacted by King Henry the 1st, confirmed by his hand & seale, against Wardship more especially, and his assent to King Edwards laws: Speed History p.435 Col. 1.

[I.151]

Of the Title Esquire

The barristers at Law have of Late affected to be called Esquires, which never was allow'd amongst the Heralds and in the Late Poll for King Charles the 2nd they generally ~~app~~ payd their Poll of Esquires, \ & / so they [~~on record use Esq.~~] stand returnd in the Exchequer, How be it, as it hath hereto fore been a thing unheard of, so I thinke it now altogether improper that they should be soe termed; for it doth not be long to the Gens Togata,[59] excepting those only of the military cassock; unless ~~it be~~ derived ~~unto them~~ from their progenitors \ who were / knights or esquires, of ~~an~~ descent. And then, it does not belong unto them by vertue of their imployment & office, but by ~~descent~~ their berth.
That a Barister should be writ an Esqr (as it has bin unheard of till late dayes) it seems to me always improper and an incroachment upon the sergiants at Law who have the best pretence to it. & title; for they are call'd Servientes ad Legem, which was the ancient word for a Squire. & out of these (It being the highest degree in Law) the Judges – the milites – are chosen.
The Judges, who bear the sword of Justice in their hands not only to cutt off superfluous branches & rotten stems, but to cut out & divide to every \ one / the harvest that which is his right. So that if \ wee / would appropriate the Titles \ of Esquire & Gentlemen to / Long Robes, & speake like men of standing & sense, wee must call the Bar. Inns of Court, Gentlemen; the Sergeant, Esquire.

{Consider of the Notion}
{~~Howbeit~~ \ For I have / reason to believe (from which I have read) that only the[m] being of the Inns of Court does not make them Gentle \ men /, although a Degree, as that of Barister, may \ possibly doe / make them so). But ~~it was designed at firste that none but Gentlemen should~~ that those Inns of Court were at first designed only for Gentlemens sonns, especially for younger sort; whence the terme \ of Inns of Court Gentlemen / became universal to graduits & others – Gentleman is a Degree of Honour. Non Graduits, quatenus,[60] such cannot be.}

[57] Margin queries and answers are in Machell's hand.
[58] The text is now in Machell's hand,
[59] I.e. 'long robes' (see below) the defining toga of the Romans.
[60] 'To that extent'.

[VI.387]

[The vital importance of ancient evidences of descent]

If any difference should arise, as I hope there never will, touch[ing] the antiq[uity] of any familys which I have taken notice of, I would not have them lay any stress upon anything I have written by conjecture; for precedence is matter little ~~which is not~~ and therefore it must be determined by evident proofe, not by conjecture. Though therefore I have in many familyes, for their greater honour, run them by higher than their \ own / pedegrees will allow, or writeings maintane, yet not without some probably[61] (as finding men of that name witnesse to deed of more ancient date). Yet I must pre[a]cquaint them that I dar not maintane that they are really of the selfe same family & lineally descended from them, because we know there are many of one and the same that will not acknowledge any affinity \ continuity, / especially where names are taken from townes and such townes are frequent in England in severall counties. But my determination upon the matter is that they shall \ not / ~~putt~~ \ confide / too much ~~confidence~~ in mee neither, but have recourse to their ancient evidences and trust me no further than I agree with them; for I am sure I have dealt so faithfully that I am not afraid to be putt to the test; for what is conjecture I deliver as opinion, & what is \ proved / evidence, as demonstration.

Onely as concerneing the matches of familyes I dar not maintane so punctuall a relation, because much of them, as I could not otherwise see, taken from gentlemens owne information, some from visitations, some out of glass windows, and in many familyes they have bin so careless that tho their matches be \ in part / preserved, yet the order is con \ fused / jectural.[62]
The 1^{t} family I finde mentioned now in being in the writeings of the Vip[onts] is John Mauchell \ Hardclay. / The 1^{t} in this country \ John de Ormesheved, who was his servant. / 2^{t} is Hellebeck.[63]
1. Ormesheved
2. Helle beck
3. Hardclay & Mauchaell

[Machell's Notes: VI.387]

It seems Whinfell belonged to Apleby, as by King Johns Deed.
Memorandum that the Countisses Evidences were collected & translated by Barron Hales.[64] King John's ~~mad~~ truce, E. of Essex, Lord Ludgarshalle in Wiltshire & chief Justice of England from him. {Hollin[shed]}[65]

Grant. pro Tempore
Rex &c. G. filio Petri &c. sciatis quod commisimus dilecto et fideli nostro Roberto de Veteriponte castra nostra de Apelby et de Burgo et Totam Baliuam de Westmerland cum omnibus pertinentijs suis, custodiendo quam diu Nobis placuerit & ideo vobis mandamus quatenus sine dilatione Rob. De Boel et Johi de Ormeshevet servientibus ipsius Roberti de Veteriponte predicta castra et Totam Baliuam de Westm'land cum omnibus ad eam pertinentibus habere facialis, et in hujus rei &c. T[este] me ipso apud Rothair xxxmo die martij é patent[e] de anno 40 Joh[annis] Regis mem. 2 in Turri Lond.

[61] Probability [?]
[62] Machell's unresolved decision as to whether to use 'confused' or 'conjectural'.
[63] This word is followed by an illegible scored-through sentence.
[64] Matthew Hale (1609-1676), Chief Baron of the Exchequer and Chief Justice of the King's Bench under Charles II; author of influential works on the law, https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1660-1690/member/hale-matthew-1609-76.
[65] The rest of this margin comment is almost illegible but appears to comprise, '… fils Geofrey & … fils Geofrey married to Rob. De Vet. 3d &.' Raphael Holinshed, Chronicles: The firste volume of the chronicles of England, Scotlande, and Irelande… faithfully gathered and set forth by Raphaell Holinshed. (1577, enlarged 1587).

Idem. Johannes de Veteriponte habet alias literas patentes directas Omnibus tenentibus de Honore de Apleby et de Burgo et de Tota Baliua de Westm'land quod sint intendentes ei tanquam Baliuo quamdiu &c.[66]
i.e. So they doe service & homage unto him as Baliue &c.

[VI.388]

I submit this to the Norroys judgment.

In man[n]ers of takeing place as which bro[thers] compare with themselves, so which family compared one with another.

1. It is not manners for a man from a later family to take place of one of a more ancient extraction, tho he have greater possesions; no more that it is for a younger brother to take \ place / of his elder who is not so rich as him selfe, which [in] any man to be a great peace of pride, clownishness and folly. Ergo the gentry in the Bar are hugely commended for give precedence to Mr Thornborrow.
But if there be a difference of degree in honour, then the higher takes place. So a Knight[67] of a later family take precedence of an Esquire of an ancienter; and so a younger brother that is a Knight, take place of his elder who is but an Esquire and his eldest son o[ver] of the others eldest son during their fathers lives; for as then the Knights son is an Esq. and the other but a Gentleman. But when they come both to bee of the same degree in honour, the ancienter family doth by right take ~~the~~ place.
2. It is not manners ~~for men~~ for an Esq. by birth to take place of an Esq. by ofice whilst he is upon the actual execution of his ofice as of a Justice a Peace upon the Bench, for there he has a pr[er]og[ative]; as likewise it is not manners for the locall Esqs to take place of the native Esqs when they are of the Bench, except he bee of an ancienter family. So, a mayor out of his Corporation may not take place of his superior in birth, nor a Master of Arts out of the university (or fellow of a college out of his) of an other in whose family is more ancient or birth more noble, nor Dr &c., but by curtesie & in reverence to the profession of Divin[ity], tis often given to them, but them alone.
3. A Knights younger son is but Gentleman & therefore he ought to take place, not as the son of a Knight before other Gentlemen, but as a gentleman amongst those who are Gentlemen according to the antiquity of his family. Except (maybe) durante vitâ patris.[68]
4. The daughters are no more then Gentlewomen, yet they peradventure may have precedence durante vita patris of Infer[ior] Gentlemens daughters of ancient families, & may be of durante vita unius cuiusq[ue][69] till the[y] be marrid, but then the[y] must have place but according to their husband qual[ity]. Nor can the children of Knights sons & daughters however, challenge[70] any precedency from the parents but as the fall in ranke of Gentelty.
5. Noe honour by office doth descend unto wife and children; neither does mans being Justice a Peace, tho he was an Esq. before, give him any precedency of his seniors, save only as afore said upon execution of justice.
6. Esqs by place or creation give place allwayes to Esqs by birth.
Tho a father give place in his owne wrong, yet the son may challenge it agane, for the birthright of honour cannot be aliened from posterity. It cannot be given away, for tho an elder brother give place

[66] 'Grant, for the time being. The King etc. to G. son of Peter etc. Know ye that we have entrusted to our beloved and loyal Robert de Veteripont our castles of Appelby and of Brough and the whole Bailiwick of Westmorland with all its appurtenances, to ward as long as it shall be pleasing to us, and therefore we command that, without delay, Robert de Boel and John of Ormeshevet, underlords to Robert de Veteripont, shall hold the aforesaid castles openly, and the whole Bailiwick of Westmorland with everything that pertains to it; and in [the provisions] of this matter I myself am witness, at Rothair, on the 30th day of March, following a Patent of the 4th year of King John, membrane two in the Tower of London. The same. John de Veteripont has other letters patent directed to all the tenants of the Honor of Appelby and of Brough and the Whole Bailiwick of Westmorland, to the effect that they look to him as Bailiff for as long as etc.'
[67] MS: Here, 2cm of the text is scored through.
[68] 'During the life of his father.'
[69] '… during the lifetime of each one.'Here, the MS contains 4cm of scored-through text.
[70] MS: 'challened.'

to his younger, yet hee cannot make his younger brother elder, nor his younger brothers children, elder brothers children.

{He that has most be lest; & commoner shal often times take place of a courtier. And he that has the best gifts, be the best man & than he that is a scholer, which I suppose many gentle[men] would grumble to submit too.}

[VI.389]

Authorities for the Table in pag. 381, 3, 5, 6[71]

The authority for the several places aforsaid with reference to the figures in the Margent.
For all the figures until the 28th vide, Stat. 31. H.8. Cap. 10 &c. Sir Edward Cokes exposition thereof inst. p. 4th page 361.[72]
In Dugdal's Antiquities of St Pauls, towards the end thereof,[73] and the printed Proceeding of his Majesty from the Tower to Westminster April 22th 1667. {7? 1.}[74] {Cookes Inter.?}[75]
For the 20th 0 29th: Dr Heylins History of St George, page 3 Chap.2, sect. 5th and Ch.3 Sect. 30.[76]
For the 30. 31. 32. 33. 34. 35. 36: Robt. Cot.[77] 10 Jacoby Regis [1612-13] \ Pact. / se[e] in Dugdale.
For 36. 37. 38. Viz. Mr Dugdalle ut supra.
For the 39. 40. 41. 42. 43. Viz. Robt Cot. 14 Jacoby Regis [1616-1617]. Pact. 2 in 24. Camden's Britannia page 176. 177.

This table was revised by William Dugdale Esq., Norroy, King of Arms, and all the queries answerd by him as aforesaid in May Anno Domini 1665: vide his letter and a table inclosed. J.

Query what place younger sons or Esqs are to have amongst equalls? & whether respect shall be had to 2 & 3 sonns &c.
Objection against fig. 38 (&3) why the descendant of ancient squire by creation (tho there never was a knight of his family) should not take place of a less ancient esquire, whose ~~descendant~~ ancestor was a knight. Quere de hac.[78]

It should seem that the ancienter in every degree ought to have precedence of those of the same quality, as among lords he of whose family had the 1t lord has precedence of other of the same quality who were made so lately. So, in familyes of Knights Baronetts, & one would thinks of Esqs to; not he [71] In another hand: similar to some of the interpolations on VI.379.

[72] Edward Coke, The First Part of the Institutes of the Lawes of England. Or, a Commentarie upon Littleton, Not the Name of a Lawyer Onely, but of the Law it selfe (London, 1628). Often referred to as 'Coke upon Littleton', it is a commentary on Thomas Littleton's treatise on land tenure.
[73] William Dugdale, The History of St Paul's in London from its foundation until these times (London, 1658).
[74] Clearly the writer had written the wrong date [1667]. In the margin, Machell questioned it, substituting '1' [1661]. See, 'The Ceremonial and Proceedings at the Coronation of Charles II (23 April 1661), republished in Thomas C. Banks, An Historical Account of the Ancient & Modern Forms, Pageantry, & Ceremony of the Coronation of the Kings of England (London, 1820), 22-76 (particularly 28-30).
[75] Possibly a reference to Robert Cooke, Clarenceux King of Arms. As well as heraldic compilations, visitations, precedencies, heraldry treatises and ordinaries of arms, Cooke compiled The Armorie of Nobility, a treatise on the English Baronage (1606, 1621): See J.F.R. Day, 'Cooke, Robert (d. 1593), herald'. ODNB. The Armorie was completed after Cooke's death by Robert Glover (Somerset King of Arms) and Thomas Lant (Portcullis): see Report of the Royal Commission on Historical Manuscripts, Vol. 3 (London, 1872), 208.
[76] Peter Heylin, The History of St. George of Cappadocia (1631).
[77] Sir Robert Cotton (1571-1631), politician and antiquary, who, with William Camden and others, inaugurated the Society of Antiquaries and opened his extensive library to fellow scholars. As a politician, Cotton was highly involved in issues of precedent; in November 1602, for example, he was asked to produce a list of precedents relating to the office of Earl Marshal. Though he wrote little during his lifetime, many of his tracts were published by James Howells in Cottoni posthuma (1651). See S. Handley, 'Cotton, Sir Robert Bruce, first baronet'. ODNB.
[78] 'Query this.'

who has the 1ˡ knight of his family but the 1ˡ Esq. Otherwise a cobler's purchasing [a] knighthood shal have his posterity to take the places of the most ancient familyes which are squires by creation.
? Whether the right line extinct of an Esq., the collaterall may take ~~place~~ the title? And whether prescription be a sufficient ground for assumeing the title of an Esq.

[VI.390]

All I can answer in opposition to this argument is that in the same degree, precendence should be given to the ancienter family of that degree; except title be derived from a greater. For the \ younger / sons of a lord are only Esq. but must have the precedence of other Esqs, because their title is derived from an higher dignity; & in like manner the eldest son of a knight for the same reason.
Query: what better distinctions of familyes may [be] thought of, than are now in use? As crissent, mullet, martlet &c.? These are good for brothers, but bordure better for familyes.
I take it that official titles & honours derive a quality to posterity in a lower degree, tho not in the same? Though as \ a / Knight derives to posterity the title of Esq. in the first branch, an Esq by office; as a Justice a Peace or mayor of a towne may I presume doe the like for gentlemen. For they must have a begining, & those who serve their King & Country in any qualitye deserve som honour. Sed de hic quer.[79]

But there is another sort of Esquires which I have not yett mentioned, nor \ indeed / ever read of except in their own subscriptions & writeings: Sc. Squire Baristers, or if you please weed call them Squires Templers (because there were formerly knight of that order) but that I fear[80] The other Inns of Court will be angry at me as excludeing them, who have as good a clame \ to right / to the title \ squire / & to save the king[81] \ a labour / have created them selves such. For an honest gentleman (& barrister at law) upon my proposeing this question whether a barrister as such was not an Esquire, & where there were not an Act of Parliament (in this kings reigne) for it \ as some had endeavord to make me believe, / he answer'd no, there was no such thing; but indeed saith here wee have many amongst ambitious of title who write{them selves so (which no man else do), and to publish their honour. They have got a trick: such as have lodgings in the lowest chambers to write large & fair subscriptions to themselves. These to sue an one Esquire &c., which they stick in their windows to be seen through the glass so that he who runs may read; & take no smale pleasure to whatch in their chambers & hear the ignorant vagrants in or from false[82] the true conclusion: a barrister I warrant Him.}

[VI.391][83]

And ~~truly sayeth he~~, since 'tis our will & pleasure to be such, who can hinder us? We write ourselves squires, & the country people dar not for their lives (or estates att least) ~~calls by~~ \ call us / any other \ wise / ~~compellation~~. And besides, whee have the law in our own hands, & if a writ be issued out against ~~any~~ barrister without that title, tis our common practice to returne it, as an in valid & against (our own) law. Som may thinke I impose upon the lawyers, but I profess seriously on the word of an honest man that I had this story from a gentleman barrister in these very words, or much to this purpose. And he was pleased farther in the conclusion, to reminde me of the fable of the man & the lyon which \ had / a contest, which the man contended as Lord of the Universe, and to convince the lyon, showd him a picture (such as that of the London Apprentice) where a man was strughling with & got above ~~the~~ \ a / lyon. O, quoth the Lyon; you men can make pictures! Which if we could performe that would finde as many lyons above the men as men above lyons. The moral of which leave to the reader, with this protestation, that I highly dout those professors of law who ar men of honesty & sober principles; content with their owne & not watching to invade the propertyes of others & Kings prerogative. But such men as to thus, ough[t] to be blaz'd in their proper colours – parted per pale Or & Gules. For there is a coat belonging to this order of unmade Esquires, whose […][84] {is full as ridiculous to the soberer part of their owne profession, as to any other men. But the absurdity of

[79] 'But of this, query.'
[80] 7cm of illegible scored through text has been omitted here.
[81] 4cm of illegible scored through text has been omitted here.
[82] The next word begins with 'pr', but the rest has perished.
[83] Also numbered p.30.
[84] A word here has perished.

their personal clame to this title will appear if you consider that many Barristers have no Arms attal but by usurpation. Yet these men without Arms must be call'd Armigeri, those that have no scutchons must be calld Esquires; indeed, for sergeant to be counted, so there may be som reason, som kinde of analogical, for the one was anciently Serviens ad Arma, as the \ color / was, & in[deed] is, serviens ad legem. But for barristers as such, ~~tho they may~~ to pretend unto it, is very incongruouse. They may justly \ indeed / be calld Men of Contention; but by no means, Men of Arms.

[VI.393][85]

Of Heraldry

Heraldry is the Art of blazoning Coats Armour. Armes are hieroglyphical symbols or signes demonstrating the nobility or gentility, acquired by virtue and good service performed by the bearer or some of his ancestours, either in martiall exploits or by the learneing they have attained too. P.3.[86]

A Rebus is a quaint allusion to ones name; as this: Take the first letter of [87] Our Father, a maker of wax, an I & an N, the colour of an ass. And what have you then. We have: ABINDUN.[88]

A Devise is a conceit of wit, which is made by means of a comparition, having allwayes the figure of some natural or artificiall (so it bee not humaine) thing, which some smartor acute sentence goeing along with it: as the devise of his Majestyes life-gard of Horse, a lyon passant, crowned Or, with this motto: Dieu et mon droit.[89]

Figure 3.4.1. Dieu et mon Droit. VI.393.

Many in the late wars, both on the Kings side and Parliament, had their devises, amongst whome that of Collonell Cookes of Gloucester-shire, a Parliament, is very remarkable. He figured an armed man cutting the corners of a University cap with his sword, & his motto was:

[85] Also numbered p.32. The text on VI.393-96 is written in another hand.
[86] For the exact words, see John Guillem, A Display of Heraldry (London, 1610), 3.
[87] 3½cm of scored-through text is illegible here.
[88] Rebus: a cryptic representation of a word or phrase by pictures, symbols, arrangement of letters, etc., which suggest the word or phrase, or the syllables of which it is made up; spec. an ornamental device, often of heraldic appearance, associated with a person to whose name it punningly alludes. OED.
[89] Device: a fanciful, ingenious, or witty writing or expression, a 'conceit'. OED.

MUTO Quadrata RORUNDIS

That is: he would convert Square Heads or Cavaliers into Round Heads.

Figure 3.4.2. 'He would convert Square Heads or Cavaliers into Round Heads'. VI.393.

But Queens Colledge in Oxon. most remakeable for its loyalty in that loyall university, both in the time of the war and \ during the / Tyranny of Oliver \ Cromwell / never laid downe their ancient formalityes, nor without great unwillingness admitted of noveltyes or any innovations; inso much that to were a square cap in Oxford was enough to denominate the man a Cavalier, and with the same breath, old soldjer of Queenes.[90]

Hieroglyphics are much of the nature of Arms, only they are sacred signes, used by the Egyptians to expresse their religions mysteryes. Ring was an hieroglyphick of faithfulness; buckle, of steadfastness; bracelet, of industry.
The Antiquity of Arms appears from the antiquity of those Nations that boare them; as the Syrians.
[VI.394]

Syrians	bore a dove
Indians	a dragon
Athenians	an owle
Persians	a [bow[91]] & arrow
Romans	an eagle
Israëlites	the Hebrews
Sythians	a thunderbolt
Phrygians	a swine
Reuben	a mandrake
Dan	a serpent

[90] A scored-through passage at the beginning of this paragraph offers, '~~And well might Cavaliers be represented under the hieroglyphic of a square cap~~.'
[91] Sketch of a bow.

Numbers Cap. 2: Every man of the children of Israell shall pitch under his owne standard & under the arms of their Fathers houses.[92]
The Saxons also bore an Horse anno 450 when they entred this nation under the conduct of Hengist & Horsus. It is their emblem of celerity, & being stamp 1st on money caused to be cald currant; or may be because it goes so fast away.
Romulus bore a bundell of hay at the end of a long staff, which bundell was cald Manipulus; & hence the soldiers under him manipulare.
And Agamemnon a lyon ~~rampant~~ with this epigram: Hic pavor est hominum, manibus gerit hunc Agamemnon.[93]

Concerneing a Coat of Arms, 4 things are observeble:
1. The Crest.
2. The supporters; & the lyon & unicorn in the Kings.
3. The comportment containing the bordure with an inscription, as DIEU ET MON DROIT.
4. The coat it selfe.

Not[e] ad 1. (In Northumberland, that they seldom have any crests.)
Note ad 4. (In Ireland, that many noble families have no Arms at all.)
For understanding of Coats and their Blazonry, gett Guillams Heraldry,[94] or, if you can: Lee's Acc*idenc[e] of Armory*.[95]
For understanding the new orders of Nobility & Gentry, get Carter.[96] & with him you may read Lee-Gerrad,[97] out of which many of his coats are borrowed, which treats of these orders sursum ascendendo:[98] Esqs, Knight Batchelor, Knight Barronett, Baron, Viscount, Earle, Marquess, Duke, Prince, King, Emperor.
Gett also: Brookes Catalogue of Kings, Princes, Dukes, Marquesses, Earles, Viscounts since the Norman Conquest.[99]
And for the Antiquitie of Brittain, gett Verstêgans Antiquities.[100]

[VI.395]

Of Heraldry
1. Physical amongst natural things; as the noblest is the

Planets	The Sun
In Animals	Crow, beasat
Mettalls	Gold
Gemms	Diamond
Colours	Sable,

[92] AVB: Numbers 2.2.
[93] 'This is the terror of men, this did Agamemnon bear in his hands.' The lion was the symbol of Mycenae, the Bronze Age fortress near Mykines in Argolis, north-eastern Peloponnese, Greece, where the legendary Agamemnon lived. The stone gateway leading into it, surmounted by two lions, is known as the Lion Gate.
[94] John Guillim, A Display of Heraldry (London, 1610); see also I.286; II.179; II.409; III.201; VI.394.
[95] Gerard Leigh, The Accedence of Armorie (1562); see also 1.133; I.295.
[96] Matthew Carter, Honor Redivivus. or, The Analysis of Honor and Armory: Reprinted with Many Useful and Necessary Additions and Supply'd with the Names and Titles of Honour of the Present Nobility of England, the Bishops, Baronets, Members of Parliament, &c. (1673).
[97] Gerard Leigh. Leigh's only published work was The Accedens [Accidence] of Armory (London, 1562; reprinted 1568, 1576, 1591, 1597 and 1612. See J. Day, 'Legh [Leigh], Gerard (d. 1563), heraldic writer'. ODNB.
[98] 'In order of ascendance'.
[99] Ralph Brooke, A catalogue and succession of the kings, princes, dukes, marquesses, earles, and viscounts of this realme of England, since the Norman conquest, to this present yeare, 1619: together, with their armes, wiues, and children: the times of their deaths and burials, with many their memorable actions (1619).
[100] Richard Verstegan, A Restitution of Decayed Intelligence in Antiquities concerning the most noble and renowned English Nation (1605; reprinted 1628, 1634, 1652, 1655 and 1673). For Verstegan's career, see Graham Parry, The Trophies of Time: English Antiquarians of the seventeenth Century (Oxford, 1995), 49-69.

Birds	Eagle, Phoenix
Serpents	Basiliske
Flowers	Rose, Lily or flore de lice
Plants	Cedar Tree
Trees	Palme or Olive Tree
Fishes	Dolphine
Frutes	Pomgranate
Beasts	Lyon
Dogs	Grahound, which som esteem nex to a lyon

Not[e] that things which have life are preferd, in armes, before things that have no life, except crowns imperiall, whereof there are but two: Englands and Germanys, mentioned in Carter, pag. [blank][101]

{Nobility is twofold, vel:)
2. Politicall amongst the members of a Commonwele or humaine associates; and that is either by Blood.
Desert.
or Both.
And Desert is sub-divided into that which is acquired use – precedit
Marte by Pike.
Arte by Pen.
Not[e] that Nobleness by blood has precedency of desert in as much as wee see that Gentlemen of the same ranke, if they be so by right, always take place of those who are so by office. But the Blood preceed desert. Yet where those two meet both on one, it is most noble.
Note. Amongst men of equall ranke the Ancients family should still take place.

[The King]
It is worth a mans labour to seeke out the Nature & Constitution of King & Parliament; for which I commend Seldons Titles of Honour: the best booke he ever writ.[102] The Kings Coat you have att large in Guillam, 'Blazon*s*', to your hand (with) the reasons of additions.[103]

The King of England was formerly cald Rex Diabolorum because of his subjects, so often by rebellion (the Divill's Stombling Block) attempted soverainty, and a de defenso,[104] of which hereafter.

The King of Spaine was cald Rex Hominum, because the Spaniards (from the highest to the lowest) has so much of gravity, seriousness, manhoodness and fidelity \ in them / as they ~~who~~ seldom or never [101] Matthew Carter, Honor Redivivus. or, The Analysis of Honor and Armory: Reprinted with Many Useful and Necessary Additions and Supply'd with the Names and Titles of Honour of the Present Nobility of England, the Bishops, Baronets, Members of Parliament, &c. (1673), 260-61.

[102] John Selden, Titles of Honor (1614). Selden (1584-1654) was a lawyer and historical and linguistic scholar. Titles of Honor dealt historically with European honorific titles such as king, duke, count, baron, and knight. Breaking away from the genealogical concerns of most heralds and kings of arms, Selden derived honour from virtue, portrayed all civil honours as granted by the sovereign, and dismissed any claim to a hereditary nobility independent of the state: Paul Christianson, 'Selden, John'. ODNB.
[103] Reference is here made to a later edition of Guillim's, A Display of Heraldry. The 4th edition of 1660, for example, contained, 'a true register of all the blazons of the knights of the garter'. Richard Blome was a descendant of the printer Jacob Blome, who held the copyright of Guillim's Display of Heraldry. A 5th edition was published by Richard Blome in 1679. See Part 1, Chapter 1 on Appleby, (I.297) for Blome's letter (27 February 1674) to the 'Maior, Aldermen and other the Majestrates of Appleby', concerning his desire to include a chapter 'to treat of the cittyes and cheife townes corporate in England' in his latest edition of Guillim.
[104] 'In defence.'

rebeld. He's allso cald Rex Catholicus, because one of them ~~expeld~~ \ banished / the Arians (who denyed Xt's divinity) out of Spaine.[105]

{Germany}
The Emperor was calld Rex Regum because of the 7 Electours of the Empire, who have almost a kingly power & in their owne territoryes have *OS Gladij {*jus Gladij}[106] & may depose the Emperour if he do not stand \ to / and \ perform / promises in Bulla Aurea.[107]

The King of France is cald Rex Asinor[um], because he makes his subjects beare such heavy burthens of taxes \ 2 / & impositions \ 1 /.[108]

Note that England had the first Xtian King, Lucius; the 1[t] Xtian Em: Constantine; the 1[t] Protestant King: Ed.6; & 1[t] martyrd King: Charles 1[t].

[VI.396]

Charles the 1[t], who calls himselfe in his speech upon the scaffold, the Martyr of the People. He dyed for maintaineing their liberty and freedome: Sc. King Charles, His Works,[109] especially his ἐικων βασιλικη:[110] which will sufficiently manifest \ him / an other David: a man after Gods owne heart, who followed the footesteps of his Saviour as well in his death as he did in his life, praying for his enemyes & grievious persecutours, even till he dyed for, and by, them.

That there were Kings before the flood, Selden proves in his Titles of Honour.

The King of England title of Defensor Fidei,[111] they commonly say he has from Henry 8, who received it from the Pope because hee writ a booke against Luther in defence of indulgences.[112] But the title is far more ancient, for he is cald defensor fidei in a Charter of King Richard the 2[d] to the University of Oxon, concerneing which se Rex Platonicus[113] & Dr Crackenthorps Epistle to his Booke against the Bishop of Spalatro.[114]

---

[105] 'Catholic King'. Ferdinand and Isabella, joint rulers of Spain, were awarded this title by Pope Alexander VI in 1494. See Henry Kamen, Spain, 1469-1714: A Society of Conflict (London and New York, 1983, 2014), 37.
[106] King of Devils'; 'King of Men'; 'The Catholic King'; 'King of Kings'. 'OS Gladij' is probably an archaic form of 'IUS Gladij: 'The right of the sword' [i.e. power of life and death/supreme jurisdiction]. The margin comment explaining the error was made in another hand, probably William Nicolson's.
[107] The Golden Bull of 1356 was a decree named after its golden seal, which fixed the constitutional structure of the Holy Roman Empire for 400 years.
[108] 'King of Asses.'
[109] See, Charles I, King of England, 1600-1649, William Fulman, Richard Perrinchief and John Gauden, Basiliká. The works of King Charles the martyr: with a collection of declarations, treaties, and other papers concerning the differences betwixt His said Majesty and his two houses of Parliament: with the history of his life: as also of his tryal and martyrdome (London, 1687).
[110] ἐικων βασιλικη translates as 'royal image'. The word usually means a physical representation, like a statue. The phrase was used when describing busts of the Roman emperors. It could also possibly mean 'model' or 'pattern'.
[111] 'Defender of the Faith.'
[112] The title was first conferred by Pope Leo X on Henry VIII (1521) as a reward for the king's pamphlet Assertio septem sacramentorum adversus Martinum Lutherum ('Declaration of the Seven Sacraments Against Martin Luther'). When Henry broke with the papacy, Paul III deprived him of his title but it was restored to the king by Parliament in 1544 and is still used by British monarchs. 'Fid. Def. or 'F.D.' have been regularly on the coinage from the time of George I. Extracted from https://www.britannica.com/topic/defender-of-the-faith.
[113] Isaac Wake, Rex platonicus: sive, de potentissimi principis Iacobi Britanniarum regis, ad illustrissimam Academiam Oxoniensem, adventu, Aug. 27. Anno M. DC. V. (1635): A description, in Latin, of the king's entertainment at Oxford in 1605.
[114] Richard Crackanthorpe (1567-1624), Defensio Ecclesiae Anglicanae; Defence of the Church of England against the calumnies of M. Antony de Dominis, Archbishop of Spalatro (published in 1625 after his death).

The Kings Arms are sometimes given to a subject, but allways with a distinction: so the Ro[y]all Society now bears them as a badge of his Majestyes favour to the propagatours, as Morgan relates in his A\r/malogia.[115]
Upton sayes that the cross is the most noble beareing; and of all crosses, the plane cross (cald St Georges) takes place.[116]
That marke which the angels set on the doors of the Israelites is supposed to have been a cross; & Maemonides tells us that the character of the sacerdotall unction was a ✠ cross betwixt the brows of the high priest.[117]
Obs[erve] that those nations that were ingaiged in the Holy War, obliquely* thus: X; but the more noble nations, as English, Germans and French, bore it with right-angle; thus: †.
Observe that in the Kings Coat theres a chaine about the unicorne of Scotland, because, as some say, they have been false to the Crowne & therefore are to be chained. Others say that it is a reward of that service, according to the Romans custom, who gave bracelets & chanes of gold to persons well deserveing.
{*The Spaniards & Scotts bore the cross obliquely.}

Axioms[118]

1. Non licet insignia mutari magis quam nomina.[119]
2. a nominibus ad arma sequuntur argumenta.[120]
3. Insignia sicut antiquissima, quae alludunt ad nomina Gestantium. Fern: 231.[121]
4. Metalla praeferuntur coloribus quia Argentum sive luna, et Or sc[ilicet] Aurum: sc[ilicet] Sol omnes colores producunt.[122]
5. Qui sanguine solum nobilis maiorum insignia, non sua venditat.[123]
6. Primogenitus est splendour totius familiæ. Gen. 49.2.
Jacob sayes (Deut[eronomy). 21.17) to Reuben: Thou art my first borne, my might & the beginning of my strength, the excellency of dignity & the excellency of power.[124]

---

[115] Sylvanus Morgan (1620-93), Armilogia, sive, Ars chromocritica. The language of arms by the colours & metals being analogically handled according to the nature of things, and fitted with apt motto's to the heroical science of herauldry in the symbolical world : whereby is discovered what is signified by every honourable partition, ordinary, or charge, usually born in coat-armour, and mythologized to the heroical theam of Homer on the shield of Achilles : a work of this nature never yet extant (London,1666).
[116] 'Place' = precedence. Nicholas Upton (c.1400-1457) was a cleric, lawyer, and writer on warfare and heraldry whose De Studio Militari (1447) concerned heraldry and the arts of war, drawing on traditional writings but also reflecting 15th-century apprehensions. A. Brown & C. Walker, 'Upton, Nicholas'. ODNB.
[117] Moses Maimonides (1135-1204) was a Jewish philosopher, scholar and physician, see Britannica.com.
[118] MS: 'Axiom's.'
[119] 'Insignia may not be changed [any] more than names.'
[120] 'Themes follow from names to coats of arms.'
[121] 'Insignia which allude to the names of those who bear them, count as the most ancient. Fern: 231.' See Sir John Fern (c.1553-1609), The Blazon of Gentry (London, 1586), dedicated to his mother's relative Lord Sheffield, as 'a moral advertisement of gentry to the practice and action of virtue, without which none can be cleped a perfect gentleman'. His work discussed the relative merits of lineage and talent: 'a gentleman of blood, endued with virtues is to be preferred before all others in the receiving of a dignity, offices or rule in the commonweal'. https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1604-1629/member/ferne-john [122] 'Metals are preferred to colours because Silver if the moon, and Or or Gold, that is to say the sun, can represent all colours.'
[123] 'He who is noble by blood alone, blazons the insignia of his ancestors, not his own.'
[124] 'The first-born is the splendour of the whole family.' Genesis 49.2. Genesis and Deuteronomy appear to have been confused here. The author quotes, 'Reuben, thou art my firstborn, my might, and the beginning of my strength, the excellency of dignity, and the excellency of power', but attributes it to Deuteronomy 21.17, when it belongs to Genesis 49.3 (not 2). Deuteronomy 21.17 is as follows, 'But he shall acknowledge the son of the hated for the firstborn, by giving him a double portion of all that he hath: for he is the beginning of his strength; the right of the firstborn is his.' (All AVB.)

[Cumberland and Westmorland Family Arms]

[VI.397]

These Arms taken out of an old B[ook] penes Thomas Fawcet de Sowerby.

Note. This Visitation was taken about 1580, John May being Bishop of Carlile. T.M. Consecration [29 September 1577].[125] Obijt 1598.
Note also: That in the Original they stood 3 on a row.

Figure 3.4.3. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.397.

Sc. In the first Order these: Lord Wharton, Musgrave and Lowther.
In the second, Machell = & Crackenthrop & Clibourne which made the first page.
Whence it appears that at the time of this Books being made, the ancient family of the Machels of Crackanthorp were in chiefe repute, next to Lord Wharton, the Musgraves and Low[thers], which are Knight by familyes.

[125] The MS is blotted here; the actual date of John Maye's consecration was been added. May (Meye) died of plague in 1598: David W.V. Weston, Carlisle Cathedral History (Carlisle, 2000), 142.

[VI.398]

A Relation of Proofe of the Arms of Fothergill of Great Strickland, Threlkeld de Melmerby in Cumberland, Rigge de Strickland Parva, Salkeld de Rosgil, Blenkinsop de Helbeck, Helton {de Murton TM?}

[VI.399]

Figure 3.4.4. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.399.

[VI.400]

A Relation and Proofe of the Arms of

[VI.401]

Burton de Ormside, Sandford de Askam, Dudley of Yanwath, Browham de Browham, Birkbeck de Hornby in Westm'land, Lough de Blenkearne in Cumb'land.

Figure 3.4.5. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.401.

[Second-right Coat] {It seems at the time when the Booke was made out of which I tooke these, that the Browhams (now of Scales in Cumberland) were seated at Browham!!!!! {These are arms of Redding}[126]
[Bottom-right Coat] {This was misplaced in the original, being a Cumberland coate. T.M.}
N.B. That the second Coat in this page was torn out. Instead of which I placed this here together with Dudleys which I fetched from a page misplaced in Cumberland; having also in it Whitfield, Lancaster of Sockbridge Armes, & another Lancaster and 1 Coate Torn out. But in this page also before this of Browhams came in Martindales: Sc. Argent 3 barrs Gules, over all a bend Azure.

[VI.403][127]

Wharton de Kirkby-thore, Prekering de Crosby, Ducket de Grarig, Strickland de Sisars, Bellingham, {Brathwate de Warcop. TM}

Figure 3.4.6. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.403.

[126] Written in another hand.
[127] Aso numbered p.41.

[VI.405][128]

Thornburrow de [Blank] Westm'land; Harr\in/gton de W.; Midleton de Midleton Westm'land; Bradley de [Blank] Westmorland; Preston de Howkar; Redman de [Blank]

Figure 3.4.7. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.405.

{Memorandum: he concludes his collections of Westmerland after this of Readmans, with many blankes ready for more coates, and in one of them: Argent a cheveron Gu[les]. Betwene 9 cloves Sable, 4.2.1 & 2, which having no relation to any particular family, but only to the Grocer Company, I purposely omitt.[129]

[VI.407][130]

Lancaster de Sockbridge; Lancaster de Kendale*; 3. Wiber de Clifton; 4. Warcop de Colby; 5. Sandford de Askham; 6. Dalston de Acornbank; Helton; Scaife.

{N.B. These marked with the figures 3,4,5,6 are additions to the Book per me T.M.}

*{Note this field had bin on at first, but altered afterwards into Argent. This is of Sockbridge T.M.}

[128] Also numbered p.43.
[129] Nevertheless, the following page gives more coats of arms.
[130]Also numbered p.45.

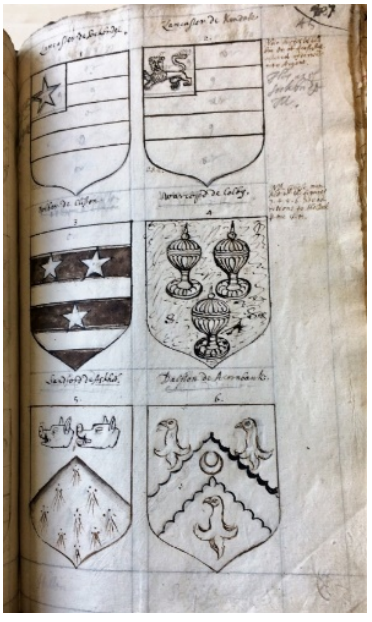

Figure 3.4.8. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.407.

[VI.409][131]

Suddaick de K.; Whitfield; Martindale.

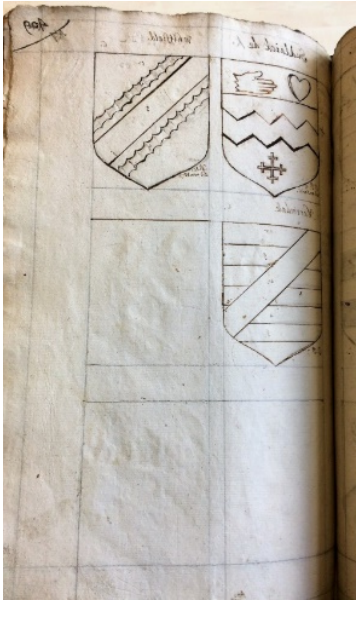

Figure 3.4.9. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.409.

[131] Also numbered p.47. For coats of arms of families in Cumberland, see MS.VI.413-25.

[Part II]

[VI.433][132]

Miscellaneous Notes for Families & Armes &c. in order to the Antiquities of Westmorland

Out of III bookes marked by me for distinctions sake after this manner
I. marked thus: χ, in folio } Penes Mr Sheldon de Weston in Com Warwick.
II. marked thus: ## in folio }
III. marked thus Φ in Quarto }
Memorandum: the books had noe titles, nor pages figured, so that I could not refer to the pages.

[VI.451][133]

A Barons Cap

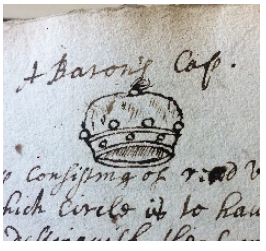

Figure 3.4.10. 'A Baron's Cap'. VI.451.

This sort of cap consisting of read velvet & a circle of gold (which circle is to have 6 pearles on the top of it) to distinguish the same from the circles or coronets of viscounts) was granted by King Charles the 2[t] (as appears by his warrant to the Attorney or Solicitor Generall, bearing July 6[th] 1661, Whitehall) to all Barons & their heires after them who are Peares of the Realm of England & have right to vote in the Upper House of Parliament; which they have liberty to weare on the dayes of coronation of the Kings & Queens of England; & place the same over their Coates of Armes or elsewhere as they shall thinke fit.
By His Majesty's Command
Edward Nicholas.[134]
This out of a booke in folio in the custody of Mr Sheldon of [Blank] in Warwick shire} sic notat ##, where the warrant is under the Kings owne hand ut puto.

In lib. Sic notate (χ) in folio penes Mr Sheldon de [Blank] in Com. Warwick.
There is an account of one William Dakins, who had his eare cut of by sentence in the Star Chamber for making false pedegrees & giving Coates of Armes; and was afterwards taken & imprisond, upon which he confessed amongst many others that he had made false pedegrees for these which follow, mongst many others which are not for my purpose, & subscribed unto it 23 of January 1597, Sc.
For \ Mr / Bellingham of Bromby, Lincolnshire.
For Mr Sanderson of the Bishoprick of Durham.
For Sir William Hilton, Knight.
For Mr Conyers of Sockbourne in the Bishoprick of Durham.
For Mr Grymston of Smeton, Yorke.

[132] MS.VI.435-50 contains general remarks on the nobility of England: not in Machell's hand and not transribed
[133] In Machell's hand.
[134] Sir Edward Nicholas (1593-1669), follower of Charles I and Charles II, was Secretary of State during part of the royal court's period in exile. Never a particular favourite, he retained office after the Restoration, but by 1662 he was out of the king's favour. See S. Baron, 'Nicholas, Sir Edward government official'. ODNB.

[VI.452]

For Mr Wivell of Barton.[135]
For Mr Ellerker of Ellerkar.
With abundance in Lincolnshire – almost all the gentry there; all which he confesseth to have made & to be false in the greatest part.
And he descovered severall others who practised the like forgeryes, among whom one Edward Waterhouse, who gatheres fees as an herald.[136] To which and many things more the said Dakyns subscribed in the presence of William Dethick, Garter Principall King of Armes.
There is allso a warrant for apprehending Christopher Dakyns & Edward Waterhouse, according to the tennour of Lord Marshalls warrant in that behalf. March 4th 1597, subscribed by:
William Dethick, Principle King of Armes.
William Camden, Clarenceaux King of Armes.
William Segar, Norroy King of Armes.
Lant. Winsor.[137]
Robert Treswell Somersett.
Thomas Knight, Alijs Rouge Croix.
William Smyth, Rouge Dragon.
S. Thompson, Portcullis.
The whole relation is to be seen out of the miscellaneous MS out of which I writt this; or in the iron barr'd chist in the Heralds Office where the original is kept. Quere whether they have it.

Quere. Whether the Ped[igree] of Bellingham herein mentioned be not the same with that in my book which I su[s]pected.
Quere. Whether Hiltons herein mentioned be not that att Hilton Castle in Bishopric.

There are fine notes in the said manuscript: a warrant of King James dat at Westminster Aug. 1 anno Regni ejus in Ang. 20, Scot. 56.[138] per Breve de privato sigillo:[139] to establish the Earle Marishall in equal power & authority with the Constable, whereon it is said to be found by clear proofe in the \ Privy / Council that the Constable & Marshall and joynt judges together, & severall in the vacancy of either, & ergo the King, doth authorise, will & command Thomas Earle of Arundale & Surrey his Earle Marshall, to proceed & judge in all causes whatsoever which pertaine to Constable, or to an Earle Marshall jointly & severally &c. Executed 4^0 September 1622.

[VI.453]

There are allso very good accounts of the jurisdiction of the Earle Marshall, Provost Marshall \ Knight Marshall &c. / with the ordinances of the field in time of warr {good for soljer or Herald} excellent [135] Barton/Burton?

[136] Edward Waterhouse (1619-1670), son of a London fish-monger, entered Emmanuel College, Cambridge, but did not take a degree. Although never a member of the College of Arms, Waterhouse's heraldic and historical interests led him to write books such as A Discourse and Defense of Arms and Armory (1660). His earliest work, An Humble Apologie for Learning and Learned Men (1653), was a historical survey of the contribution of learned men to human affairs. He was fascinated by the fluctuating fortunes of great families of distinguished ancestry. Anthony Wood thought him a 'cock-brain'd man' of small ability (Wood, Ath. Oxon.: Fasti, 2.164) but William Dugdale gave him greater credit. His best-known work is *The gentleman's monitor, or, A sober inspection into the virtues, vices and ordinary means of the rise and decay of men and familie*s (1665). D. Woolf, 'Waterhouse, Edward (1619-1670), heraldic writer'. ODNB.
[137] Thomas Lant, Windsor King of Arms: see T. Woodcock, 'Lant, Thomas (1554/55-1600/01), herald and draughtsman'. ODNB.
[138] James I of England (1603) and VI of Scotland (1567); James's reign of Scotland was the longest of any monarch pre-union of the crowns: 57 years and 246 days. M. Brown, 'James I (1394-1437), King of Scots'. ODNB.
[139] 'By writ of privy seal.'

things & well worth transcribing if I had time. There are allso transcript of Records of all or most of those who have bin Marshalls in most kings reignes, att least from Ed. 3 to Q. Elizabeth.

There is allso a Catalogue of the Armes of Noblemen: bannerets, & knights in the reign of King Edward the Second, out of which I tooke these:

Sir Robert de Clifford, Or & Az. a fess Gules.
Sir Thomas Moulton: Argent, 3 barrs Gules.
Sir Robert Thony: Argent, a manch Gules.
Sir John de Engayne: Gules Crasuly \ & / a chev. Or.
{1.} Sir William Leyburne: Azure, 6 lyons rampand Argent.
Sir John Huddleston: Gules fretty Argent.
Sir Robert de Escales: Gules, 6 scallops Argent.
Sir William Vesey: Or, a plane cross Sable. {This differs from the seal in Clifford ped[igree].}
{2.} Sir Randulphe Nevil: Gules, a fallier Argent.
Sir John Deyncourt: Azure, billette & a fess dancetty[y] Or.
{2.} Sir William Leybourne de North: Or, 6 lyons rampand Sable.
{2.} Sir Hugh de Nevil: Azure, a lyon rampand Or.
Sir Nicholas Ponte: barry of 8, Or & Gules.
Sir Nicholas Vipount: Or 6 annuletts Gules.
Sir John Cromwell: Gules, 6 annuletts Or.

[VI.454]

Sir Robert Hilton: Argent, 2 barrs Gules.
Sir William Maleverer: Argent 3 greyhounds Gules.
Sir Nicholas Carew: Or, 3 lyons passant Sable.
Sir John de Lancaster: Argent, 2 barrs and quarter Gules, on the quarter a leopard Or.
Sir John de Harcourt: Or, 2 barrs Gules.
Sir Walter Beauchamp: Gules, a fess inter 6 martletts Or.
Sir Simon Ward: a cross pate[140] Or: field Azure.
{Daker} Sir William D'acre: Gules, 3 scallops Argent.
Sir Robert de la Ward: Vairy Argent & Sable.
{Malevl} Sir John Maleverer: Gules a Chief Or, a baston gobonne[141] Argent & Azure.
{No collers} Sir William Maleverer: Argent 3 greyhounds Gules.
Sir John de Haverington: Sable, frette Argent.
Sir Michael Haverington: distinguished with a label Or.
{Strikland} Sir Walter Strickland: Argent 2 barrs & a quarter Gules. This must be compared with that seale in our ped[igree].
Sir Thomas le Rous: Ermin on a chief indented Gules, 3 scallops Argent.
Sir John Conyers: Azure, a ma\u/nch Or.

These may be were taken out of my Lord Brudenells Boke;[142] for it follows the names of such familyes which beare different Coates of Armour, taken out of my Lord Brudinells D.[143]

[140] Probably a cross paté: a cross with arms, narrow at the centre. See Fox-Davies, Heraldry, 129.
[141] 'Baston': stick or staff. 'Gobony or Gobone': of a bordure composed of a row of squares of two alternate tinctures, sometimes a colour and a metal. OED.
[142] Thomas, Lord Brudenell (c.1583-1663), first earl of Cardigan. Royalist soldier and antiquary. His treatise concerning the nobility (1605-12); genealogical papers; drawings and coats of arms (1635) and correspondence with Sir Christopher and Sir Thomas Hatton (1622-60) are held in various English repositories; see TNA Collections, https://discovery.nationalarchives.gov.uk/details/c/F45645.
[143] A similar reference occurs elsewhere, viz. 'In an old MS penes anct. intitled Lord Brudenell's Book (B) é carta Rogerh'm in parochia de Herton in Comit. de Staff.' The quotation is taken from C.T. Banks, Baronia Anglica Concentrata: or, A concentrated account of all the baronies commonly called baronies in fee; deriving

Amongst others I shall onely offer a family:

1. Beauchamp Earle of Warwick: Gules, a fess inter 6 cross crossletts Or. B. of Elmly Gules a fess Or.
Sir Walter Beauchamp: Gules a fess inter 6 martletts Or.
Sir Miles in Bucks: Vaire, a label Or.
Sir Humphrey in Somersett: Vaire, a label Or.
Sir John in Essex: Gules, Brilletty & a fess Or.
Sir John, B. of Fyfield: Or a lyon Sable \ crown'd / Gules.

2. Nevil, Raph Earl of Westmorland: Ruby a saltier Pearle.
\ Sir John in Yorkshire: Argent a saltier Gules. /
Sir James in Surrey: Gules, crusule[144] & 2 trompes Or.
Sir Theobald: Azure crusule & 3 leopards heads fleurie Argent.
Sir John: Gules, crusule & 3 fleurs-de-lis Argent.
Sir Robert: Gules, a fess da\u/ncy Argent, a bordure ingrailed Or.
Sir Richard: Gules, a fess indented Argent, a label Azure.
Sir Phillip: Gules, a fess indented Argent, 3 mullets in chiefe Or.
{Sir Thomas of Lincolnshire: Or, a chiefe indented Vert, a bend Gules.
Sir Phillip: Argent, a fess dauncy Gules, a bend Sable.
[Blank] Azure 3 bustards riseing Or.

[VI.455]

Foes allowed by the King to his Councill of the North while established at Yorke

	li.
Lord Presidents foe	100: 0:0 with budget for himselfe & the rest of the Councill
7 Councillors, their foe	040: 0:0 a peece
The secretary, foe	033: 0:0
The Messenger, foe	006:13:4

For severall expenses allowed yearly amongst the officers & Councillors aforesaid:
Foe, 100:00:00 per annum
Ex Lib. MS Misc[ellaneous] in folio χ not.[145]

{Morvile}
Anno 1171 Willielmus de Traci, Hugo de Morevile, Richardus Brito, Regnaldus filius Ursi, milites, generis permanentia conspicui occiderunt Thomam de Becket Cantuariensem Archiepiscopum, & Pos[t]mod[ic]um Alexandrum Romanum Pontificem adien[te]s, et accepta ab eo pænitentia, ierosolymam profecti sunt; et ex præcepto ~~ab eo~~ Papæ in monte nigro Pænitentiam agentes obierunt, & sunt ierosolymis sepulti, ante ostium Templi.[146]
Hoveden, f. 298 6 & 299.[147] Lib. X Paulo post med.

their origin from writ of summons, and not from any specific limited creation, whereto is added the proofs of parliamentary sitting, from the reign of Edw. I to that of Queen Anne…, Vol. I (Ripon, 1844), 103.

[144] 'Crusule or crusilly': of a field or charge covered or strewn with crosses, usually crosses crosslet. OED .

[145] Machell possibly meant, 'note'.

[146] 'In the year 1171 William de Traci, Hugh de Morvill, Richard Brito, Regnaldus son of Ursus, knights notable for the long continuity of their family, killed Thomas de Becket Archbishop of Canterbury, & soon after, going to Alexander the Pope in Rome, and receiving penitence from him, set out for Jerusalem; and while doing penance according to the order of the Pope on the Black Hill, they died and were buried at Jerusalem, before the door of the Temple.'

[147] Roger of Hoveden or Howden, Chronica, republished by G. Bishop, R Nuberie & R. Barker Typographij Regii as, Rogeri Hovedeni Annalium Pars Prior & Posterior, in Rerum Anglicarum Scriptores Post Bedam Praecipui, ex vetustissimis codicibus manuscriptis nunc primum in lucem editi (London, 1596).

{Q. An haec fuit transgresio ob quam Apleby venit in manus Dom Johans \ Hen. 2 / Regis: et sic Richardi: inde Johannis qui dedit Rob. De Veteriponte.}[148]

{Ad Courts Baron}
Valvasor
Thain – Saxon: Major, a baron or Pear of the Realme.
Baron – Danish: Minor, & proprie such as may be impleaded in Jury among the Knights where Baron is party \ su[n]t / qui ad valvas tentorij Domini sui in Bello excubantes ad quamlibet vim et injuriam propulsandam, valvasor q. vas sortitu[s] ad fortitudinem: viri magnæ dignitatis Brouton.[149]
Minimus, sive valvassimus,[150] Lords of Manours called Barons (but abusively)* the Courts of their Manour calld, ergo, Courts Baron {Lib. 6, Cap. 11. Se Dugdals Baronagio Angliae.}[151]
*For of these Glanvil speaketh (Lib. 8, Cap. 10. Fol. 64}.[152] Præterea recordum habent minores curiæ de hijs quæ in ijs factæ sunt, in curia Domini Regis: quod contingit quando Aliquis Baro habet aliquam loquelam in curia sua, unde aliqua Rationabilis dubitat[io] oriatur; ita quod curia ipsa non sufficiat eam determinare, tunc potest {vid[e] versa pagina.}[153]

[VI.456]

Collection out of a miscellaneous MS ## penes Mr Sheldon

{ad bellum cum Scotis. sic notat[um] X pro certe: cetera suspic[io].}[154]
Anno 7. Ed. 2. [1313-14]. A grant was made out of the 15th part of goods moveable within cityes, 7 burrows, & a 20th part of the other laie people, with a forme for the assessing & levying of the same.
Anno 9. Ed. 2. [1315-16]. A like grant of the 15th – out of cityes & burghes; & out of every other towne one X armed man for the kings warrs in Scotland att their charges.
Anno 10. ejusd.: An impost of greater custom is laid upon merchandise, to be levied to the Kings use for a certain time by the way of loane.
Anno 12. Ejusd.: One 18th part of goods moveable of the layetie is granted for the wars in S\c/otland
Likewise, subsidies granted annis Ed. 3.[155] 6^0, 13^0, 13^0, 14, 15^0, 18^0, 20^0, 22, 25, 27, 29, 36, 38, 42, 43, 45, 46, 47, 50, 51.
Likewise, Rich. 2t.[156] Annis 1^0, 2^0, 2^0, 3^0, 4^0, 5, 6, 8^0, 13^0& 14, 18^0 & 20
Temp. Henry 4t.[157] Annis 1^0, 2^0, 4^0, 6, 7, 9, 11, 13

[148] 'Whether this was a transgression on account of which Appelby came into the hands of the Lord King John \ Henry 2 / and so of Richard: thence of John who gave it to Robert de Veteripont.'
[149] 'They are those who watch at the doors of their master's tent in war to repel any kind of violence or injury. valvasor q.: one who has received his military equipment for his steadfastness: men of great respect: Brouton.' A partly illegible margin comment opposite this paragraph, offers, '{The civilians, as Sha[?] Lexicon Juris, the […] valuæ Petrius Gregor, Syntagma Juris Lib. 1, Cap. 18.}' Machell was probably referring to Petrius Gregorius (Gregorii*), Syntagma Juris Universi, atque legume paene omnium Gentium Lib. 1* (Frankfurt am Main, 1599, 1611; Geneva, 1639).
[150] 'The lowest ranking, or valvassimus'.
[151] William Dugdale, Baronagio Angliae (1675-76).
[152] Tractatus de legibus et consuetudinibus regni Anglie (Treatise on the Laws and Customs of the Kingdom of England), often called Glanvill, is the earliest treatise on English law. Written for Henry II and attributed to Ranulf de Glanvill (died 1190) and dated 1187-1189, it was revolutionary in its systematic codification, defining legal process and introducing writs. https://earlyenglishlaws.ac.uk/laws/texts/glanvill.
[153] 'Moreover, the lesser ranking have a court record of the things which have taken place among them, in the court of the Lord King: a thing which happens when some Baron has some suit in his own court from which some reasonable doubt may arise, in such a way that the court itself is not sufficient to settle it, then it is able {see next page}.' [See VI.456, foot.]
[154] 'For the war with the Scots. It is noted X, like this, when certain. The rest I regard as suspect.'
[155] Edward III reigned from 1327 to 1377.
[156] Richard II reigned from 1377 to 1399.
[157] Henry IV reigned from 1399 to 1413.

Temp. Henry 5.[158] Annis 1^0, 2^0, 3^0, 4^0, 9^0, 9^0
Temp. Henry 6.[159] Annis 1^0, 2^0, 3^0, 4^0, 6^0, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 14^0, 15, 18, 20, 27, 28, 31bis
Temp. Ed. 4.[160] Annis 3^0, 4^0, 5^0, 12^0, 14^0, 22 haec omnia in L ##

Potest dominus ipse curiam suam ponere in curiam domini regis.[161]
Among those northern people who invaded the Roman Empire, Baron signifyed a man of strength, as by the laws of the Lambards, & corrupt use of the word in Spane, France & Itali \ in which Latine is / now mixed with the Gothick & northern language, in every of which tongues the word Varron or Barron is instead of the Latin word Vir; with which agreement that piece of the ancient law of countries the dane collicipium quod e summa census diversa diu est suarum Dignitatum, si minoris vironis i.e. Baronis, duæ libræ si majoris quatuor.[162] {Bracton Lib. 2, cap. 8, s4.}[163]
The English Saxons called them Thaynes:
Thani Reges: T.M. qui de Rege.[164]
Thani aliorum: T.M. qui de alijs sub Rege.[165]
Hartfordshire. mar. de Brackinges (Domesdaie) Hoc manerium tenuerunt duo Taignir. Danes are yet Liberi Domini.[166]

[VI.457]

Collection è Lib. ## in folio, capt. è Claus 21 Ed. 1, part 1^t, m. 10

Licet Rex recuperasset usus Nicho[lai] de Veteriponte Manerium de Aldeston cum pertinent[ijs] quod qu[od]dem manerium idem Rex p[ror]us p[er] literas suas patentes concesserat habend[um] eidem Nicho[lao] e hered[itatione] de Alexandro Rege Scotorum defuncto, Rex vult quod idem Nicholaus continueret serv[ienti]am suam ei. vj Jan.[167] {Aldeston for Alston More in Cumberland.}

[158] Henry V reigned from 1413 to 1422.
[159] Henry VI reigned from 1422 to 1461.
[160] Edward IV reigned from 1461 to 1483.
[161] 'the lord himself can move his court to the court of the Lord King.' This follows the sentence at VI.455, foot.
[162] '… the Danish collicipium [qualification] which for a long time has had a different level among their rankings as a whole: if of a lesser, 'viro', that is a baron, two pounds; if of a greater [baron], four.'
[163] Henry of Bratton (Henricus de Brattona or Bractona) was an English judge of the court known as Coram Rege (later King's Bench) from 1247-50 and from 1253-57. Bracton's chief claim to fame is his association with the treatise De legibus et consuetudinibus Angliae (On the Laws and Customs of England). Commonly known as Bracton, the work attempts to describe rationally the whole of English law, While the attribution of the work to Bracton is of considerable antiquity, it now seems that the bulk of the work was written in the 1220s and edited and partially updated in the 1230s, by persons other than Bracton, with various additions up to the 1250s. The last owner of the original manuscript and the author of the later additions was probably Bracton.' Harvard Law School Library amesfoundation.law.harvard.edu/Bracton.
[164] 'Thane rulers: people who hold their power from the king. Thomas Machell.'
[165] 'Thanes of others: people who hold their power from others under the king. Thomas Machell.'
[166] 'From Hertfordshire. Manor of Brackinges (Domesday Book). This manor was held by two Taignir (Thanes). Danes are yet free lords.'
[167] 'Although the King had taken back into possession from Nicholaus de Veteriponte the Manor of Aldeston with its appurtenances, because the same king straightway through his letters patent had granted to the same Nicholas to hold a certain manor, from his inheritance from Alexander King of the Scots, deceased, the King wishes that the same Nicholaus should continue his subservience to him. vi Jan.'

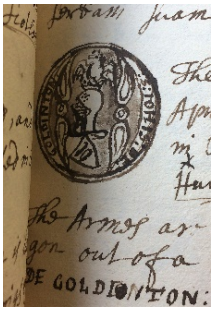

Figure 3.4.11. Seal of John Goldrington. VI.457.

The seale of John Goldrington, ad cartam dat apud Satbridgeworth (vide ubi in Spelmans Villare) [1] in Com[itatu] Hereford, 90 Henry 4 [1407-08]. {forsan aliq[uid] faciat ad Goldrington apud Appleby} fuit Dominus de Hunsden* Johannes ille Gold[r]inton.[168]
*Hunsden is in Herefordshire in Bragging Hundred. The Armes are 2 lyons passant, the Crist a demy dragon out of a coronet, the circumscription S. IOHS. DE GOLDINTON[169] i.e. sigillum Johannis de Goldr[i]nton.

{ad cristas}
Crists were used in the 32. Ed. 3. [1358-59]. The same seale with a milstone for the crest. But the page \ foregoing / was lost, in which the seale was dwane[170] so that I know not what it was. But I believe it was of Robert de Insula.

Ax[i]oma. Species legum forest[ae] sunt infinitæ[171]
Betwixt the date of a writ of summons (for a forrest court) and the returne are above 40 dayes; & that is a general in summoning all Royal Courtes of the Crowne {such is the majesty of the said haughty & stately courtes} as of the Court of Parliament; the eires of Quo Warranto concerning liberties & franchesses; the eires of the forests & forrest laws; because it is supposed that in the time of 40 dayes after summons, give all persons in the realme who are concerned in those, may have sufficient knowledge of them.[172] Note allso that the forme of warrants: Omnibus, Archiep.,[173]

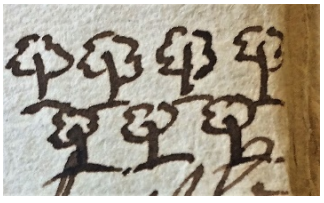

Figure 3.4.12. Forest Court: 'the eire of the forrest'. VI.457.

[168] 'He puts it on the charter at Satbridgeworth (see where in Spelman's Villare) in the County of Herefordshire, 9th year of Henry 4 [1407-8]. {Perhaps he may do something at Goldrington at Appleby} The Lord of Hunsden was that John Gold[r]inton.'
[169] MS: 'GOLDI~~O~~NTON'.
[170] 'drawn.'
[171] 'Proposition. The types of Forest Laws are innumerable.'
[172] The 'Eire' or 'Eyre' was The Court of Justices Itinerant. The 'Eire of the Forest' was the justice seat, which by ancient custom was held every three years by the Justices of the Forest, journeying up and down for that purpose'. See Giles Jacob, A New Law Dictionary (1729), EI-EL.
[173] Archiepiscopal: relating to archbishops.

Episcop., Comatis, Baron &c., was changed when the Office of Justice of the Forest, south & north, was given to nobles & now begins thus: R. concessit T.M. officium gardinu[m] et capita[lem] Juristic[tionem] {nostri itinerantis omniu[m] forestarum – chasearum & parcar[um] et war\r/enar[iorum] citra Trent.}[174]

In the laws feudal of the Lombards, collected by their King Rotharis, the word Baron is for a man of strength. And in Lib. 2 Feudorum Cap. 10[6] (these Barons according to that law are those capitanei or valvasores majores) for qui a principe vel ab aliqua potestate de plebe aliqua vel plebis \ parte / per feudum est investitus, is capitaneus appellatur, qui proprie valasores majores olim appella\ba/ntur;[175] and of the questions arriseing concerning those Baronie, the monarch of the realme (or those to whome he comitts the same) doth judge, for that those Baronies are said immediate a rege infeudati;[176] as for others, they are Barons ex similitudine,[177] and ergo are those which in the said Laws Feudal are called valvasores & valvasini,[178] for the words are these: Qui vero a capitaneis antiquis Beneficium tenent valvasores sunt.[179]

[VI.458]

Qui autem \ a / valvasoribus feudum quod a capitaneis habebatur similiter acceperint valvasini, i.e. valvasores minores appellantur.[180]

The use of this division in England hath bin no other but this. The Valvasor major is our Baron or Peere of the realm. The second is Valvasor proper, of whom mention is made in the Law (13. Ed. 3. [1339-40] T[….] cha[…..] 15),[181] for the[y] may be impleaded &c.

N.B. Vide Legem. T. The 3 valvasini – as you have it before.[182] This is the authors sense & much of his word. But I am inclinable rather to consider whether these words out of the feudal may not direct us to use of the words thus: That Valvasor Major is a Baron qui de rege tenet, valvasor special: qui de Barone tenet Sc. Dominus Manerij. Valvasinus qui de ipso Domino, Sc. Homo Domini, & speciatim Liber tenens. T.M.[183]

[VI.459]

The names of those which came in with the Conqueror as far as I seem concernd, as to West[morland] & Cumb'land, or elsewhere in my note

These were taken of a MS folio Mr Sheldons marked thus, Sc. χ, where the whole catalogue is to be seen.

[174] 'The King granted T.M. the office of warden and chief jurisdiction {of our circuit of all his forests – chases and parks and warrens, on this side of Trent.}'

[175] '… (these Barons according to that law are those captains or greater barons) for the man who is invested in fee by a king or by some power arising from the people or part of the people, he is called captain – they who properly were once called greater barons.'

[176] '… for that those Baronies are said immediate enfeoffed by the king.'

[177] '… as for others, they are Barons by resemblance.'

[178] '… in the said Laws Feudal are called barons & lesser barons.'

[179] '…for the words are these: indeed, those who hold a fee from the chieftains of old are barons.'

[180] 'Moreover, those who have received from barons a fee which was held in the same way from chieftains, are called 'valvasini' i.e. minor barons.'

[181] These two words are indistinct.

[182] 'See the Law. T. The three Valvasini – as you have it before.'

[183] 'That valvasor major is a baron who holds from the king; a valvasor special is one who holds from a baron, that is, the lord of a manor. A valvasinus is one who holds from that lord; that is, a lord's man, and in particular, a free-holder.'

According to William Taileur of Rhoane, in his Cronicle of Normandy: vide How's continuation of Stow's Cronicle p.103, 104, 105.[184]

Guillaume de Veitz Pont	Referatur ad Apleby
Le Sire de Port.	Hantshire
Le Sire de Romelle	per Skepton
These archers of the Vale Rieill[185]	& of Bretneil[186] & other places, p.105. 106.
le Sire de Tony	ad Clifford
Le Sire de Oslie	ad Oxon
Hue le Vigot alias Bigot de Maletot
Le Sire de Harrecourt	\ ad / ad cognom \ ap opedis /
Le Sire de Dancourt
Le Sire de Scantevil (si Stuttevilee)
Tostam du Bec

Those out of the Tables att Battle Abby:

Bohun	(ad Hartley)
Breton
Beke
Beauchamp
Coniers	(ad Machel)
Curson ad Oxon
Clifford	(! Id mirum non de Clifford. vide etiam ut ducunt originem a [blank] de Ponte, non e suspect[o] reddit[u] vel Catalogi vel Genealogiæ Clifford?).[187]
De la Pole	(ad Wayhil)
Engaynen	(ad Westm'land)
De la Ward
Fitz William	(ad Musgrave fa.)
Glannvile
Le Scroope
Lind-sey
Le Vaus
Morvile	(ad Aplby)
Musgrave	(ad Musgrave)
Musgrose	(hi[n]c patet quad sunt destinitæ familiæ)[188]
Mallory
Morley
Mantell forsan?

[184] Edmund Howe, The Abridgement of the English Chronicles First Collected by M. John Stow, and After Him Augmented with Every Memorable Antiquities, and Continued with Matter (1611). This volume contains lists of Normans who entered England with William I, from which Machell extracted names local to the north of England. Stow's source was L'Histoire et Cronique de Normandie, published at Rouen between 1487 and 1610. Holinshed and Stow called the work, the 'Croniques' or Chronicles of Normandy. The author was mistakenly identified by Holinshed, Stow, and John Speed as 'William Taileur', that is, Guillaume le Taileur of Rouen, one of the original publishers of the work in 1487. See R.B. Gottfried, 'Samuel Daniel's Method of Writing History', Studies in the Renaissance 3 (1956), 157-74, at 158-59. Hence, Machell acknowledges 'William Taileur' as the original source of his lists, while citing his actual source, which was How, Abridgement of the English Chronicles, 103-08.

[185] The archers of the vale of Reuill, see Howe, Abridgement of the English Chronicles, 104.

[186] The archers of Bretuille, see Howe, Abridgement of the English Chronicles, 104.

[187] 'This is amazing. Not of Clifford; see also that they draw their origin from [blank] de Pont, not from the unreliable rendering, either of the Catalogue or the Clifford Genealogy.'

[188] 'From this it is open how far they are of an established family.'

Morton	(inde mirum de oppidis)[189]
Norrice
Neel
Oryol	ad [Blank]
Pigot
Pudsey?
Rose	(ad Barwises) et Cumberland
Ridle	ad Ridel?
Richmond	(ad Fam. Machel et ad Cumb'land)
Sandford?!	Iterum
Taylbois	(ad?)
Torell
Tirell
Ward	(not de la Ward)
Wynell

Tis something strange that there should be noe (de) prefixed to these sirnames, which are most of that taken from Townes &c. & som of them not French Townes neither.

[VI.460][190]

Cognomina Conquisitorum Angliae cum Domino Guilliam[o] Duce Normaniæ & Conquestore Angliæ ex Rot[ulo] Antiquo penes Tho. Scriven Ar[migerum] Anno 1615.[191]

Achard
Archer
Bastard
Basset
Blundel
Berry
Beauchamp

Botiler
Bigod
Burle
Cursy
Chauser
Darce
Duket ad Grarig
Dericourt
Harecurte
Kosin ad Burton
Lucy
Mansel
Morvil
Moleverer
Morley
Picot
Parley
Puutfrait
Russell
Rydell id mir[um]![192]
Rooz
Richmount
Say
Savage
Tonny ad Cliff
Tyrell
Tayleboys
Vere
Villers
Vesey
Vaus
Ward

I suppose the Table out of which I pick'd these names from among many others are in Hows Continuation of Stow's Cronicle, vide. I know not what to thinke of these \ latter / except they have bin taken out of some records & digested in to this alphabeticall \ order / by the Collector, who has left out the (de) for brevity's sake.

[189] 'Hence astonishing about the towns.'
[190] A note at the top of this page reads, 'for. 107'.
[191] 'Surnames of the Conquerors of England with Lord William Duke of Normandy and Conqueror of England, from an ancient document in the possession of Thomas Scriven, Knight, in the year 1615.'
[192] 'Rydall – This is astonishing!'

[VI.461]

Notes concerning Heralds Visitation – with some Coates of Armes

Miscellanea Lib. 10, p.78
25. Rob. Crakenthorpe = Elizabeth, 2[a] fil. Et coheres Johannis Lancaster de Rydall, militis, et habuit in per tem sua maneriu de Mylne-burne.

Entered in Kirkbythore.
Joh[ann]es Crakanthorp de Helgyll in Co. Westm'l. Ed. 4 = filia.
Ambrose Crakenthorpe de Helgill or Holgill sine exit. Antonius Crakewenthorpe obijt 11. H. 8.

[VI.460A]

Ad p.17 in the Booke of Arms
Grocers
Of Whitfield Or, bend Sable, between 2 cotizes ingraled, Sables.
I place it here because a branch of them lived lately at Bolton.

[VI.462A][193]

Coats of Arms belong to Westm'land

{Labourne}
Laburne de Witherslack Hall near Kendall bears Arms 6 lyons passant gardant Or. 32 & 1.
Note this. I have putt downe for Winsors, having information of both from Ar. Duckatt, sed de hoc quere? For he tooke Nevils to be Winsors.
I finde that to the Leyburnes (of what place I know 0) but those who were Barons in Ed. 3 time, the last of which family was Julian, daughter and heiress to Thomas Leyburne, who was given in marriage to Will. Clin\o/ton, E. of Huntington, created by the forsaid King E. 3, anno 1337. And these Leyburns bore for their Arms 6 lyons rampant, 3, 2 & 1. This may peradventure correct the former.
It doth sae {se my pocket book}.

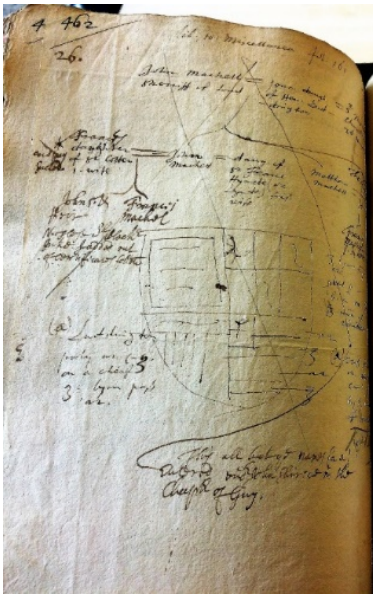

Figure 3.4.13. Labourne Arms. VI.462.

[193] Also numbered p.101.

[VI.463]

(Memorandum l. the 15 in Colleg. Herald)
{Armes not to be borne by one that maryes of a gentle woman heiress}[194]
A very good booke in the Heralds Office (marked L. the 15), wherein is declayred that if an heiress mary one that has no Coate, he cannot bear his wives; neither her children of her, except som of them shall have a Coate granted; then he may quarter his mother Coate. Not otherwise, for to bear it single were an injury to others of the same family in the indirect line. (Sed quere? For I have red the contrary, & methinks it may be born without injurie because the other may be known by their distinction, or hers may be borne with 3 [labels].)[195]
Sed Nihil statuo.[196]
I must serch Visitation of Lancashire,[197] for the Gentry about Kendall side, who often transplant thither, & for Gentlemen in other parts: Bishoprick, Yorkshire, Cumberland & Northumberland? Consult Mr Phillipson or Ducket abou[t] Leybourne to joyne the ped[igree].
N.B. Memorandum: I have left a paper att M. in Yorkshire Visitation, & Lowther is to be examend.[198]
{? Vide Visitation Yorkshire 1585 penes Dr Knight.}

[VI.464]

Mix'd Notes of Families & Places to [be] referd to the proper Chapters

Memorandum: Machells Armes are in Dugdall: greyhound not collared, & that Machell, that match in Apleby Church window, which he called Maliverer; but Armes is indeed Machell & Thornburrow, he has drawn without collers. q. an recte.[199] {?} He has take out the late mon[ument] for the present countiss, nor the figure of the other, but only the inscriptions & Armes.[200] Query whether he has there \ in Apleby Church windows / a chev[ron] between 3 horseheads. What churches & family in Cumberland. Noe.[201]

Memorandum at Mr Knights
A Visitation in the 4^0 of Cumberland wherein are no pedigrees, but the Armes of most familyes in Westm'land & Cumberland; anno et authore nil certo,[202] but about the time of Q. Eliz. As I guess. I should see it.
{Machell}
Machells Armes of Westm'land are there. Sable 3 greyhounds courant in pale, Argent collard Or.
I have consulted at Mr Knights, this:
Visit[ation] of Northumberland per Richard St George, Norroy 1615.
Visit[ation of] Durham, eodem anno.

[194] The rest of this margin comment is obscured by the binding.
[195] MS: image of a 'label'. The label can appear as a cadency mark, denoting the eldest son during the lifetime of his father, but might also be used as a permanent distinction: See Henry Gough, A Glossary of Terms used in British Heraldry (Oxford, 1847), 98-99.
[196] 'But I make no judgment.'
[197] Machell is possibly referring to William Dugdale's Visitation of Lancashire (1664-65), though there were others: William Flower in 1567 [see F.R. Raines (ed.), The Visitation of the County Palatine of Lancaster made in the year 1567 by William Flower Esq., Norroy, King of Arms (Chetham Soc., Manchester, 1870)]; Richard St. George in 1613 [see F.R. Raines (ed.), The Visitation of the County Palatine of Lancaster, made in the year 1613 by Sir Richard Saint-George, College of Arms (Chetham Soc., Manchester, 1871)]. But see his reference to an undated Visitation on VI.464 and VI.466, below.
[198] Pedigrees of Gressingham, Thornton, Harwood, Ripon, Burton and Cottingham (of Lancashire and Yorkshire) are examined on the rest of this page of the MS: not transcribed in this edition.
[199] 'Whether correctly?'
[200] This passage has been transcribed as seen. For its meaning see Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, I.295.
[201] The answer is written in different ink.
[202] 'Year and author uncertain.'

Visit[ation of] Lancashire {anno et authore incerto} penes Knight.
But a very good Visitation of Yorkshire circa 1584, 1585, authore incerto.[203]

At the Heralds Office:
Visit[ation] of Westm'land, Mr Dugdale, Norroy, anno [blank][204]

Herald Painter
Att Mrs Smiths by St Dunstan's, a partiall Visitation of Westm'land circa in 5^0 Caroli,[205] & all her books.
Mrs Parkers, all her books. Ther a pedigree of Dakers out of which something extracted.
I want the seale & origine of the Burogh of Kendal. Dugdale, Westm'land, p.21.b; Appleby, p.22.
Seale a Appleby Schoole p.22.a. I want Wharton of Kirkbythores pedigree. Ibid.

{Burnished Bellingham}
Burnished. Bears ~~Gules~~ \ Argent? / 3 bend\i/etts ~~arg~~ \ Gules / on a canton of the second a lyon rampant of the 1^{l}: è Bellingham ped[igree].

{Salkeld}
Salkeld bears Vert 4 fretts \ of 4 / Or: è ped. Bellingham (forsan è Dugdalle)

{London}
Memorandum: to se when Richard de Veteripont lived refer to the 2^{nd} descent in Bellingham pedigree & send it to the Heralds: Noe such man.[206]

[VI.472][207]

{August 1675. Letters in order to the antiquities of Westmorland}

These: for Mr Thomas Machell att Queens Colledge in Oxford.[208]
{Sorry I saw you not again. Enquire the next […].[209] Tell Campion negat Liter}[210]

[VI.471]

London August the 30^{th}, 1675
Sir
I have had some extraordinary business that hindr'd me in the serch of those Coates you desired of me, otherwise I had given you an account of them ere this. I can only finde three of them, which I have sent you. Mr Threlkeld tould me you desired me to send you the letter of attorney made me by Mr Lowther and you would take care to recover my money. I have sent him a letter per this post with an order to pay it into your hands, and take your receipts for his discharge, which is as well as if I had sent the letter. I would intreat your kindness in it and you will infinitely oblige me to serve you in my own way or otherwise, which with my humble service is all att present.
From your humble servant
Giles Campion

---

[203] See Joseph Foster (ed.), The Visitation of Yorkshire, made in the years 1584/5 by Robert Glover, 1544-1588 (London, 1875). Glover was Somerset Herald of Arms and father-in-law of William Flower, see N. Ramsay, 'Glover, Robert, herald'. ODNB.
[204] See Joseph Foster (ed.), Pedigrees recorded at the heralds' visitations of the counties of Cumberland and Westmorland: made by Richard St. George, Norroy, King of Arms in 1615, and by William Dugdale, Norroy, King of Arms in 1666 (Carlisle and Kendal, 1891).
[205] A numeral in front of the numeral '5' is indistinct.
[206] Added later in different ink.
[207] Reverse of a letter on VI.481. A seal is attached.
[208] Not in Machell's hand.
[209] This word appears to end 'ster'; the first letters might be 'ma' but the word, 'master', is unconvincing here.
[210] The margin comments are in Machell's hand. The Latin might be 'negat litera[m]': literally, 'He says not the letter', which could possibly mean, 'He says, forget the letter' [?] but the sense is not clear

[Machell's Notes: VI.471]
Answered to all but the Mon. Sept. 8 1675, and a farther quere for Sedalls armes?

[VI.471][211]

Figure 3.4.14. 'Drawings of Backhouse, Windsor and Theodall (alt. Theoball) Coates of Arms', in a letter to Machell from Giles Campion. VI.471.

[VI.465]

Visitation \ of / Northumberland, Durham, Northumberland, Cambridge, Suffolk, Essex. Lincoln, Bedfordshire. Penes Dr Knight Dom Regis Chirurgion juxta Nov. Excal.[212]

È Visitation Northumberland, se Richard St George, Norroy, 1615.

{Blenkinsop}
1. A pedigree of the Blenkinsops of Bellastar in Northumberland of 8 generations.[213] The armes Argent A bar betwixt 3 gards Sable (p.25).
Itt. Blenkinsop of Blen: a ped. of 5 generations, pag.37.

{Carnaby}
2. Carnaby of Hatton in Northumberland, a ped. of 11 generations.
From William to William etatis 22, 1615, with the coate & crist, p.12b.[214] Crist a Sarazens head Argent band[ed] Argent & Gules.
Carnaby of Horsly, q[uery] Halton, pagina 38. Ibid.

{Fetherston}
3. Fetherston of Fether[ston]haugh: 4 descents to Aubend 1615. p.36.
Swinborn p.8. 20th. 5 descents.

{è Visitation Episcop. Eodem anno}

Conyers of \ Sockborn / Laton.[215]
[1.] Azure a manch Or, charg'd in the tip with a mullet Gules.

[211] Letter to T.B. from Giles Campion, with a note in Machell's hand at the foot of the page. Giles Campion was a herald painter, see W.A.D. Englefield, The History of the Painter-stainers Company of London (London, 1924), 139.
[212] 'In the possession of the king's surgeon', see Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence: 'Thomas Machell to Thomas Holford, Herald, Trinity Sunday 1676' [V.2C]. The same letter gives Knight's address as, 'lives behind the ~~Old~~ New Exchange Lower.' See also VI.480, below.
[213] Probably Bellister Castle, Northumberland.
[214] Here, 5cm of text is scored through.
[215] Sockborn and Layton (Durham).

2ly. Barry of 6 a canton Gules, charged with a cross-crosslet florry, Argent.
3. Or a \ cross-crosslet / Sable as the first, a ped. of 8 descents from Sir Christopher of Sockborn, who married Marian the daughter of Sir William Euger, who had Issue Sir William who married Ann daughter of Sir Ralph Bygors of Fetherington and had Issue Sir Christopher of Sockb., & 2, Cudbert of Laton who m[arried] the daughter of Thomas Laton of Sox-Hoe,[216] & had Issue John, who marryed Jane, the daughter of Jo. Ogglethropp, who had Issue Sir Ralph, living 1615, who marryed the daughter of Simon Maud of Wrindlesham in Com. Suff. Esq. & had Issue, Cudbert etatis 4, Mary & Ann.
The crest on a wreath, a Wing Gules erect.

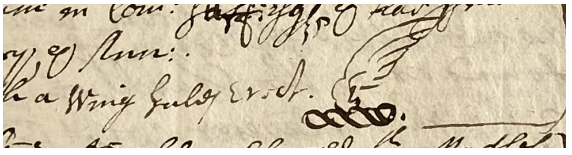

Figure 3.4.15. 'A Wing Gules erect'. VI.465.

{Hotton, Coate}
Hutton of Hutton John: Gules a fess Or, charg'd with a martlet between 3 coushons Argent, tasseled Or, charged with 3 flower de lies of the first. 5 descents. This is Hotton of Stretham in Duram Episcopate,[217] page 19.b.

{Fetherstonhaugh}
Fetherstonhaugh of Stanop in Episcopate Dunelme, 17 descents. The first \ of the name of / Rob. Fetherstonhaugh, 4^0 of Ed. 3rd [1330-1331] \ 3 / about […][218] by the name of Stanop. William de Monte is the 1t name in the pedigree vixit. Henry. Stephen. John \ is / the last marryed, which son of Ralph & Jane Apleyard, 17 of aige, 1613. Vid. p.22 & 23.

{Musgrave}
Azure a /\[219] inter 3 mul[lets]: arranged by the name of Hilliyeard, pro Edenall window.

{Tusdall of Kendal Bar}
Richard Tunstall had Issue Rob. of Kent Cragg in Kendall; marryed the daughter of Asque \ Aske / in Furness & had Anthony of Stockton in Episcopate Dun[elm].

{Comyn ad Machell de Crak.}
Comyn: Azure a cheveron Or, trimmd Sable betwixt 3 garbs Or, p.51. b.
Itter. Gules garbs Or. ~~It.~~ Gules 3 garbs within a duble tresure Or. Informate. Dr Knight.

{Wallis ad Machell}
Wallis in Scotland: ~~Gules~~ a fess ermine. Infor. Dr Knight.

[VI.466]

È Visitation Lancashire, penes Mr W. Knight

{Barlow}
Barlow, Bishop of Chichester, Azure on a /\[220] engraled betwene 3 cross crosslets Sable, a fess Sable.

---

[216] Saxhow.
[217] Here, there are 7½cm of scored-through text.
[218] A three-letter word here is indistinct.
[219] Chevron. The Hilliard (of Durham) coat of arms consists of azure, a chevron with 3 mullets (five-pointed stars), two above and one below the chevron. See John Burke and John Bernard Burke, Encyclopædia of Heraldry: Or General Armory of England, Scotland, and Ireland (London, 1844), HIL.
[220] Chevron.

Lib. Penes Mr Sheldon, 4^0 Φ.[221]
Barlow of Barlow: Sable an eagle displayed with 2 heads bearing in his claws expanst a trunk ragged, Argent. A peddigree of 8 descents to Sir Alixander: a good family, p.46.

{Dalton}
Dalton \ of Dalton after of Vispan,[222] / 11 descents, 2 descents \ being / before Ed. 3rd {?} p.124.

{Lancaster: of no distinction?}
Lancaster of Raijn-Hill in Com. Lanc.[223] beares 2 bars with a canton Gules, charged with a lyon passant Or; the crest a Lyon \ or Leopard / head eraysed. pag.80.

{Midleton}
Middleton of Besham & of Leyton, descend of 3rd sonn of Jeffrey Middleton of Westmorland by the daughter & Heire of John Crofts of Dalton.

È Visitation York. Cap. 1585

{Mountfort}
Mountforts Armes are Argent powdered with cross crosslets Gules {?} A lyon rampant Azure within a bordure Ermin; the Crist a talbots head Coupd Or. p.134. To give in Fra[n]ck Almoine for Liber Eleemo[sia].[224]

{Maliverer!}
{Maliverer in Yorkshire = Sable 3 grey hounds currant Argent studded Gules & herrelded Ore. Φ 4^0 penes Mr Sheldon.}
Maliverer of Allerton: Gules 3 grey hounds courant in pale Argent, coller Or, with 2 more quarterings & a ped. of 17 descents from William, first of that sirname after the Conquest; who had Isue: 1. Richard, founder of the church of Allerton ob. S.P. 3 foulk = 2. Ralphe Maleverer who had Isue = William, to whom Albert de Gresley gave lands in Flaxby[225] = who had Isue Henry Maliverer, to whom his brother Raphe (who outlived him & had a son called Rich. who dyed S.P.) gave 3 carucate terræ[226] in Clareton Anno 1204. He maryed Cicile, daughter of William Dunforth = & had Rich. who maryed Allice & had Henry, Cosin & heir of his great uncle Raphe, which Henry had Isue John &c. \ John had Isue: John, Lord of Quinxley Parva &c. 14. Ed. 3, 1339. / To Sir Richard Maliverer of Allerton, Knight, Anno 1584. The Crest is a grey hound A[rgent] standing upon a wreath & collard Or, as in the charge (p.215).

{Maliverer XI}
Maliverer of Woodersham, Sable 3 grey hounds courant in pale Argent collerd Or, with 2 quartering more; the Crest, a vine stem & leafe; with a ped. of XI descents from William Maliverer of Woodsham, who lived in 1584, having at that time onely 3 daughters, p.216 a. b.

---

[221] The symbols refer to the book 'in the possession of Mr Sheldon.'
[222] Bispham, Lancashire: see W.O. Roper, 'The Daltons of Thurnham', Transactions of the Historic Society of Lancashire and Cheshire (New Series 6, 1892), 97-124, 100.
[223] Rain-hill: See F.R. Raines (ed.), The Visitation of the County Palatine of Lancaster made in the year 1664-5 by Sir William Dugdale, Knight, Norroy, King of Arms, Part 2 (Chetham Soc., Manchester, 1871-72), 172.
[224] 'Frank almoin' (frankalmoign/e) was an English form of land tenure whereby an ecclesiastical body held land free of military service, such as knight service or other secular or religious service, sometimes in return for the religious service of saying prayers and masses for the soul of the grantor. Not only was secular service not due, but in the 12th and 13th centuries jurisdiction over land so held belonged to the ecclesiastical courts, so was immune from royal jurisdiction.' Machell's phrase translates as, 'to give in Frankalmoin as free alms.' See F. Pollock and F.M. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I (Cambridge, 1895), 218-30.
[225] Here, there are 2cm of scored-through text.
[226] '3 carucates of land'.

[VI.473]

{Machell}
Rogerus Malus Catulus, Vicechamberlain to King Richard 1, drownd going to the Holy Land, with the Kings seale about his neck.[227] Out of a parch[ment] booke of Mr Sheldons.

{Nevil}
John Nevyll, Lord Latimer, Anno Henry 4^t, 8^0 28 October [1406]. Seald with a crosse florry upon a escutcheon pendant in a side helme, & the Crist a cypress tre supported by 2 lyons couchant: writ about, S. Johannes de Nevyl Dr de.[228]

{Engayne}
One Thomas Engayne, Dom. de Blatherwick. Die Domenica in Festo Sancti Dunstani,[229] Anno 33 Ed. 3. [1359-60]. Seald with a /\/\/\[230] between 10 cross crosslets, 4, 3, 2, & 1; 4 of which are about the fess and the rest underneath. Writ about sig[illo] &c. He was son of John Dengayne. Se in what county the Manner of Blatherwick {Non occurit in Adams Villare.}[231]
Out of a letter of Pope Boniface[232] to the nobles of England assembled in Parliament at Lincoln, anno 1300, where unto was sett their hands & seales asserting the supremacy of King Edward & his jurisdiction over the Scotts, in the time of the Brit.

{Lancaster}
? To count Lancaster seales with 3 lyons passant garda[n]t & a fild of 3 labells, each of them charged with 3 flore de luces. Henricus de Lancaster Henricus de Lancaster Dominus de Mane[rio][233] ad with 3 lyons &c., & over all a bend or phillett.

{Roos}
Willielmus de Roos Dominus de Hamlake, 3 water budgets.

{Bellocampo}
Count Warwick Sc. Guy ~~Beau~~ de Bellocampo with a man in armour on horseback, having a shield in one hand charged with a fess betwene 6 cross crosslets & traping of the said, and a sword in the other. On the reverse a shield hanging on a tre cheqye a cheveron Ermin supported by 2 lyons pasant up the sides of it. Johannes de Bellocampo, Dominus de Hacche nubile.[234]

---

[227] The reference is to Roger Machell, King Richard I's vice-chamberlain and keeper of the great seal of England, who drowned while sailing to the Holy Land, see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.327A. An unclear margin note here probably refers to Roger Hoveden or Howden, author of Chronica magistri Rogeri de Hoveden ('Chronicles of Master Roger of Howden: the story of England before Henry II's reign continuing until 1201.')
[228] 'Dr…' is followed by two unclear letters.
[229] 'On Sunday, on the Feast of St Dunstan.' St Dunstan (909-988) is the patron saint of bell-ringers. He was successively Abbott of Glastonbury, Bishop of Worcester, Bishop of London and Archbishop of Canterbury. His concern with the architectural fabric of the Church allowed him to develop the design and forging of bells which increased the importance of their role. He was canonised and his Feast Day is 19 May. https://ringingforengland.co.uk/all-bells/influencers/
[230] A fess dancetté: See CFH, 'Engaine', 102.
[231] 'It does not occur in Adams Villare.' John Adams, Index Villaris, or, an alphabetical table of all cities, market-towns, parishes, villages, private seats in England and Wales (London, 1680, reprinted with additions, 1690). Blatherwick is in Northants.
[232] Pope Boniface VIII (b. c.1230, d. 11 October 1303).
[233] 'Lord of the Manor.'
[234] 'Johes de Bello Campo, Dominus de Hacche' (John de Beauchamp, Lord of Hatch) = John Beauchamp, 1st Baron Beauchamp of Somerset (1274-1336). He was one of the signatories of 'The Barons' Letter of 1301'. The letter (to which they set their seals) was written by seven English earls and 96 English barons to Pope Boniface VIII in the parliament at Lincoln after the pope had claimed Scotland as a fief of Rome and forbidden Edward I to molest the Scots. See Henry Gee and W.J. Hardy (eds), Documents Illustrative of English Church History

Robertus de Clifford Castelanus de Apleby[235]

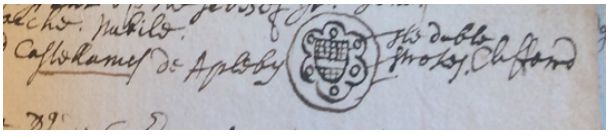

Figure 3.4.16. 'The duble strokes. Clifford'. VI.473.

{Multon}
Thomas de Multon Dominus de Eggremont, 3 barruletts. On horseback but no az[ure] scrip.[236]

{Latimer}
William le Latymer Dominus de Corby

{Eyncourt}
Edmundus de Eyncourt Dominus de Thurgerton

{Nevil}
Ranulphus de Nevyl Dominus de Rayby, a saltier on a shield.

[VI.474]

{Lancaster}
Johannes de Lancaster Dominus de Grisedale: 2 barrs on a canton; a lyon passant gardant.

{Bellocampo}
Walterus de Bellocampo Dominus de Aleceshire: a fess between 6 martletts: 3, 2 & 1.

{Engayne}
Johannes Engayne Dominus de Colum.

{Pecche, Corby}
Gilbertus Pecche Dominus de Corby.

{Hudleston}
Johannes de Hudleston Dominus de Aneys, frette of 8 & no circumscription.

{Leyburne}
Willielmus de Leyborne: 6 lyonsells rampant & writ about* S. WILLIELMI DE LEYBURNE.

{Graystock}
Johannes de Graystock Dominus de Morpath.
Radulphus fil Willielmi: on 8 barulets, 3 chaplett \ 3 ◊ 2 & 1. /
These 2 I believe are changed.

(London, 1896), 89-92. The letter was never sent. It survives in two copies originally held in the Exchequer. See Great Britain Record Commission, Documents and Records Illustrating the History of Scotland … preserved in the Treasury of Her Majesty's Exchequer Vol 1 (London 1837), cxxx-cxxxi. The letters are now held in TNA (E.26). The Latin word 'nubile' (married) might refer to John Beauchamp's marriage to Joan Chenuit before 1301, seen on his shield. See https://www.thepeerage.com/p1982.htm#i19820.

[235] 'Robert de Clifford, governor of the castle of Appleby.'

[236] Scrip: a pilgrim's wallet or pouch, see Gough, Glossary of Terms used in British Heraldry, 278.

{Percy}
Henricus de Percy, a lyon rampant with caud inflexed. On horseback armed &c. & the reverse the shield with the same charge.

{St John}
Johannes de Sancto Johane: on horseback &c. On a chief 2 mullets of 6 pointes pierced.

[VI.475]

Q. Taken I thinke out of the Visitations penes Dr Knight

{Laton}
Laton of West Laton: 1 a billet[237] Sable between cross crosslets 3 Or, a bend[238] Sable charged with 3 escallops[239] Or. Q. if this be not Laton of Westm'land. [240]

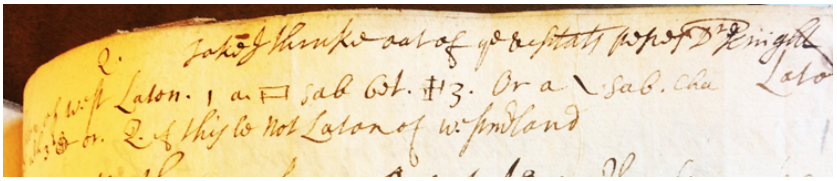

Figure 3.4.17. 'Laton' Arms. Machell's use of heraldry symbols as shorthand. VI.475.

{Persy}
Percy of Northumberland: Or a lyon rampant Azure with a gen. of 8 generations from Henry, 2 earle of Northumberland, Slane 33[d]. Hen. 6. 1455 to [blank]. Algenoone Lord Percy natus 1602. Visit[ation] York.

{Stapleton}
Stapleton: Argent a lyon rampant Sable with 3 other quarterings and a ped. of 13 generations from Nichollas to Jane, daughter & heire of Brian Stapleton, maryed to Sir Will. Fairfax. Ex eadem Fam. Stapleton de Wighill.

{Q. C. Chap.}[241]
A mullet[242] 3 in chief, & a [blank] Sable. In a field Argent. The Arms of John Dyneley, Maior of York, see p.127, Mr K[nigh]t.

{Williamson}
Thomas Williamson of Scarborough, one of the Balives of the town, 1584. Bore Argent within a bordure ingrailed Azure. A cheveron ingrailed of the second, charged with 3 crescents Or, between 3 bifoyles slipped Sable. For the Crest: a fallow deer's head erased Azure, lyred Argent, on the neck whereof a sunn Or. He had 2 wives. One was the daughter of Sir Raphe Eure & sister of William Lord Eure or Evers. The other was Ann, daughter of Tristram Tesh of York: p.4 Yorkshire. Mr Knight.

---

[237] Here, Machell drew a rectangle.
[238] Here, Machell drew a diagonal line.
[239] Here, Machell's drawing (close to the binding) might be a shell (escallop).
[240] See Figure 3.4.17. A coat of arms for Layton of West Layton, Yorkshire, is given in CFH as Argent a fess between six cross crosslets Sable. A coat for Layton of Dalemain (when High Sheriff in 1628) is given as Sable on a bend Argent three escallops Gules. For other Layton coats see CFH, 201.
[241] A John Dyneley took a BA at Christ's College, Cambridge, in 1609 and was incorporated at Oxford (MA) in 1614: Oxford Alumni at Ancestry.com. One John Dyneley, draper, was Lord Mayor of York from 1577 to 1578: D.M. Palliser, Tudor York (Oxford, 1979), 248, 254.
[242] Machell drew a star (representing a mullet).

{Wharton but I take it rather to be Warton}
There are Whartons of Beverly in Yorkshire who bear Or, a cheveron Azure with a martlets between 2 pheons[243] of the first with a ped. of 5 gen. Pag.53: penes Mr Knight.
The Crest on a trunke of a tree erased proper a squirrel proper sitting hold a nutt Or in her forefeete.

{Bainbridge}
Bainbridge Will. in Nottingham a patten of the coate Argent a cheveron Sable charged 5 ermins between 3 halberds Sable. By Will. Flower.[244] The Crest an hound Or, smelling collerd Vert. Visitation Northampton. With others. Mr Knight.

{Blenkinsop}
Blenkinsop &c. Argent a bar between 3 garbes Sable with a ped. From Thom[as] temp. Henry 6. to William, of 12 years,[245] 1615. 7 generations. Visitation Northumberland by Richard St George, Norroy eadem anno. The same Armes with a ped. of 5 to Tho. Blenkinsop of Blenkinsop, p.37. Rob. B. of Barley the same, p.1.

[VI.476]

Foster of Esterstove in Northumberland, a cheveron between 3 bugles. Coat quartered. A ped. of 6 from Thom. to Thom. aetat 11. 1615: p.18.

Merley, Baron of Morpeth, boar Barry Azure & Gules within a bordure Azure an Orle[246] of martletts Or. He seems to have taken the name of Morpeth from living there, for there is a monument at New Castle in these words: Here lyeth the body of Richard Mortpeth Merchant and Mary his wife, and their children, Christopher, who departed this life the 7. of Apr. 1591[…][247] The Coat is as afore, impaleing a fess between 3 hedgehogs passants.

{Grindall}
Parted per cross Or & Azure. A cross \ counter chang'd / Ermin & Or between 4 hawkes counterchaing'd of the field, collerd Argent. Visitation in 4^0 North. Cumb. & West. penes Mr Knight, p.9.

{Strickland}
Strickland & his wife Nevil in Com. Cumberland. Thus, parted per pale,
1. Argent a /\/\/\ fess[248] betweene nyne billets[249] Sable.
2. Sable 3 escallops Argent, som for[m][250] of the Dakers &c.; 3 as 2; 4 as 1. The second, Gules a X Argent, on which in fess a mullet Sable, pag.8. Visitation in 4^0 Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmorland. Strickland now beares the second coate.[251]

{Swinburne}
In Cumberland. Gules 3 bores head ~~Gules~~ \ ~~Argent~~ / betwene 8 cross crosslets Argent, 3.3 & 2. Second: Or a X ingrailed Sable charged in fess with an annulet Or. 4^0 Visitation.

---

[243] 'Pheon': the head of a dart, barbed, usually facing downward. See Gough, Glossary of Terms used in British Heraldry, 245.
[244] William Flower, Herald. Norroy, King of Arms. See J. Day, 'Flower, William (1497/8-1588), herald. ODNB.
[245] Aged 12 years.
[246] 'Orle': a narrow bordure following the outline of a shield but not extending to its edge; A number of small charges (usually eight) arranged around the shield so as to form an orle. OED.
[247] The word following this one appears to be 'Bob'.
[248] Fess dancetté, see Engayne, above.
[249] Here, Machell drew a rectangle.
[250] The word is obscured by the binding.
[251] As in CFH: 'Sable three escallops Argent', see 329.

{York Cit[y]}
Argent on a cross Gules 6 lyons passant Or.[252]

{Riddal}
Query whether Ridall in Westmorland so writ, & whether a place of that name in N\orth/umberland. Argent a fess betwene 3 garbes Azure, with 4 quarter[in]gs. And a ped. of 12 generations from Duke Utirius de Riddell (3 gen. above Ed. the 2.) to [Blank] William Riddel, son & heir of Thomas of Gatside & Newcastle ætat18. 1615. Visitation of Episc. Dun. per Henry St George, Norroy, penes Mr Knight.

{Ewbanke of Durham}
Sable 3 cheverons braised[253] in boss Or, on a chief of the 2nd ~~first~~ 3, O of the 1t. The Crist in a crownet Gules a dragon head Or, with a ped. of 4 or 5 gen. 1t James = Lord [of the] man[or]. 2. William = Tibbels 3. Harry \ Prebend / = Sampson. Toby = Grey. Ibid. pg. 27.

[VI.477]

Notes out of (Mr Knights) Visit[ation] of Yorkshire, 1585.
By Sir Will. Segar Garter Principal[254] King of Arms[255]

{Burdet}
Robert Baliol alijs Burdet mary'd Margaret the Daughter of Robert Denby ~~alijs Holland~~ by Margaret Daughter and Heir of Robert Holland, son of Adam.
His Arms were Argent 3 pallets Sable. Overall a Bend Gules charged with 3 martlets of the field. A Pedigree of 15 descents.

{Clapham}
Clapham of Clapham in Yorkshire. Quarterly of 6: 1 Argent, on a Bend Azure. 6 Floredeluces Or. 2, 2 &. 2. The second ~~Sab~~ Argent, on a Bend Sable, 3 coverd cupps of the first. By the name of Lound.
The Third Gules on a castle Or, a pigion Argent. By the name of Sutton.
The fourth Gules upon an Esscallop a cock Or. By the name of Otterborne.
The 5 Argent \ Sable/ Three Greyhoundes Courant Sable \ Argent / collared Or. Brisco? \ Mauleverer – I. I. W.[256]/
The 6th Argent. A Crosse between 3 womens heads Sable. See pag. 138. York,[257] where a pedigree of 21 Generations from Adam to Christopher who maryed the daughter of John Lauden of London & had Isu Christopher, ?Shefield,[258] & Mary. The Crist a Lyon Rampant Sable caud Gules? Holding a sword erect Blade Argent hilt Or.

{Dodsworth}
John Dod\ de /sworth of Thoreton-Watlons. Argent a Chev[ron] between 3 Hunters hornes Sable. A pedigree of 5 descents to John the son of John aetat 17, 1585. But Note that Waight of Hantshire & Sutton of Cheshire pretend to the same Coate; query Ideo, by what claim John the father of John ~~claimeth~~ challengeth the same. Allso he said his Ancestors are descended of a Daughter of the Thoresbyes & yet they have divided lands with the Thoresbyes which now are, and by that means [252] There are 5 lions on the York coat of arms today.

[253] Braced: See Gough, Glossary of Terms used in British Heraldry, 64.
[254] MS: 'Principle'.
[255] 'After becoming Garter King of Arms in 1607, William Segar (c.1554-1633) was granted arms in 1612 and knighted in 1616. Segar was not only a herald, but also 'a painter of significance', who specialised in portraits.' A. Adolph, 'Segar, Sir William, herald'. ODNB.
[256] The letter 'W' is indistinct.
[257] MS: 'Yerk'.
[258] Machell frequently placed a question mark before the question.

came to be, the possession of Thoreton Watlons as part of their said mothers Inheritance. But as others hold, their right Arms are notwithstanding Argent […][259] Lyons rampant Sable. Ideo Quaere p.54.[260]

{Eglsfield}
William Eglesfield of Mapleton in Holderness 1584 bare Or 3 Eaglets volant Gules. He was son of Tho. Son of John Eglesfield of Sutton on Derwent. Thomas Eglefield of Barton Willows. William Eglesfield of Charmansay.
Eglesfield quartered with Bosvil, is \ Gules / a chevron Argent charged with 3 cross crosslets Sable, between 3 Eaglets &c. Or.

[VI.478]

{Lawson}
Lawson. A Coat Quarterly. 1 Argent, a cheveron between 3 martlets Sable. A pedigree of 6 descents from William of Cramlington in Northumberland. James of Newcastle. Edmond of Newcastle. Raph of Burgh in Richmondshire Esq. 1585. Whose Armes they are. He had Isue.
1. Roger, son & heir aetat 14. Edmund Anthony Marmaduke Allice Margaret Jane.
And Roger had: 1. Ralphe Sp. 2. Henry married to Ann daughter of Rob. Hodgeson of Hobborne, Edmond, Thomas John George Roger. Dorothy Elizabeth. Mary. Mary Catherine Anne. Query whether Sir Wilfride hence.

{Laton}
Laton of West Laton in Yorkshire a pedigree of 14 Generations from Thomas Layton who lived 7^0 Ed. 3 (1333-34) to Allaine son of John who lived 1613. The Coat is Quarterly. 1. Argent a fess between 6 cross crosslets Sable. 2. Or a Bend Sable chargd with 3 escallops of the field &c. which I thinke is born by Laton of Cumberland{?}

{Labourne}
Labourne of Cousewick. Azure 6 Lyons Argent, 3. 2. &c. 2 Argent a Bend Sable charged with 3 Annuletts of the field. In sinister point ~~a Trifoche slipped of the second. With a pedigree of 5 descents. To James who maryed Briget Daughter of Raphe Bulmer~~. Query if Cousewick be not in Westm'land.

{Leigh}
Argent 2 Bars Azure, overall a Bend Counter compone Or & Gules. With a pedigree of 13 descents from John Leigh of Allington & Boothes in Cheshire. Q. If any thing to Leigh of Cumberland.

{Lampleugh}
Quarterly. 1[t.] Or a Cross florry Sable. 2. Parted per fess Gules & Argent. 6 pigions countercharg'd. 3. Argent, 2 Bars & on a chief of Gules a Cinquefoyle Or. 5 generations of the Lampleughs of Cumberland. John with Eglesfield of Lamborough, Sir Thomas with a coheire of Fenwick, Knight. John with Marg.[261] Pennington; 2. Sir John ma. 1. Curwen (2 Foster) John 1584.

{Malvierer of Allerton}
17 Generations from Will., Ralph, Will., Henry of Clareton 1204, Richard, Henry, John, John 14 Ed. 3 1339. Sir Havilath John. Sir John of Allerton 1400.
{N. Anthony 3 son of John (son of Sir Havilath) had 1. George.}
{N. Gilbert 2 son of Sir Thomas son of Sir John had Sir Richard of Allerton 1584. Gules 3 grey[hounds] Argent collard Or.}[262]
{Sir Havilath. John. Sir John. Sir Thomas. Sir Richard. Sir Thomas – to an daughter & sole heir.}

[259] A blot has covered this numeral; it is possibly '3'.
[260] 'Therefore, enquire p.54.'
[261] Or Mary.
[262] As these margin comments were originally crammed into a small space, they are difficult to decipher.

[VI.479]

{Williamson}

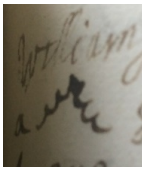

Figure 3.4.18. Shorthand heraldry symbol. VI.479.

Williamson of St Ellen, Aukland, in Episcop. Argent, a [symbol above] Azure charged with 3 crescents Or betwene 3 trifoyles slipp'd Sable & in chiefe a martlet. With a pedigree of 4 descents from Thom. to Will. ætat 10. 1615. Visitation Episc. p.29.

{Hutton}
Timothy Hutton \ of Harsk / Gules a fess Or charged with a floredeluce Sable between 3 cushion Ermin. Garlend of lawrel Vert. {Se Hutton of Lancaster & Durham. But the crist is a naked man proper having a branch in his right hand, his left upon his side, and a white scarfe about his loynes, p.37.}

{Preston}
Anthony Preston of Estmorton Argent 2 Barrs Gules; on a canton of the 2nd a cinquefoyle Or, p.58.

{Midleton}

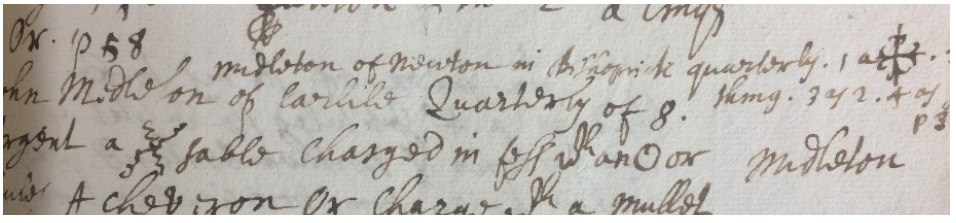

Figure 3.4.19. 'Midleton' Arms: symbols. VI.479.

John Midleton \ of Newton in Bishoprick quarterly 1; 2 nothing; 3 as 2; 4 as 1: p.38. /
John Midleton of Carlisle quarterly of 8.
1. Argent a [see the symbol in figure above] Sable charged in fess with an O Or.

{Headlam}
2. Gules a cheveron Or charged with a mullet upon an O betwen 3 lambs heads Argent. By the name of Headlam.

{Crackenthorpe}
3. Or. A cheveron (chargd with a crescent) betwene 3 mullets Azure. Crackenthorp.

{Lancaster}
4. Argent 2 barrs Gules on a canton of the second a lyon passant Or. Lancaster.

{Martindal}
5. Barry of 6 Argent & Gules. A bend Azure. Martindal.

{Newton}
6. Argent a cheveron Azure, charged with 3 garbes Or. Newton.

{Langrigge Cumb Shire}
7. Argent 6 billets[263] Sable 3. 2 & 1. Langrigge.

{Alanby}
8. Argent within a Bordure Ingrailed a /\ Azure by the name Alanby: p.60.
Crist upon a trunke barwise a monky proper chained Or with an annulet upon his shoulder.

{Pickering}
It seems the family is not quite extinct but rather transplanted into Northamptonshire, for Thomas Pickering of Barrow Hall in Kendal Co. West[morland] Esq. had Romber of Isham in Com. Northampton = Margaret, daughter of John Lustwick, eodem Com.[264] & had Isue Thomas Pickering of Isham, Gent. = Margaret, daughter of Anthony Sharkburgh of Horodon Parva in Com. Northampton: Anthony son & heir; Mary; Alice.
Arms: 1. Ermin a lyon rampant crowned; 2. Sable a X Argent on a chiefe of the 2nd 3 naggs faces Azure: p.44. Nor[thampton].

[VI.480]

{Pickering}
William Pickering of Gretton \ Com. Northampton / bore the same armes in the 1t quarter = Agnes de of: 1. Richard, Thomas 2, Henry 3, Alice: maryed George Quinton of Bed[ford] in Com. Bed., Catherine = Fowke in Com. Bed.
Richard de Gretton Gen. son & heir = Ann, daughter of Thomas Leyton of Leyton in Com. Rutland Esq. & had Isue: 1. John, eldest; William 2; Gilbert 3; Lawrence 4; Awder[265] daughter; Margery daughter: both unmaryed p.58.

Bellingham Thomas in Episcop.[266] Or a bugle Sable, lin'd Gules.

N.B. An Index of the Arms to be had in a 4^0, Intituled, The Visitation Cumberland & Northumberland, penes John Knight, Arm[iger] principalem chyrurgion[267] Regis Caroli Secund. in [Blank] near the New Exchange, London.

	Page
Aske	2	Bellingham	8
Aske	2	Blenkow	9
Aglionby	2	Braham	11
Allouson	7	Browham	11
Allanby	20	Bellingham	12
Allanby	20	Blindrakes	12
Arfour pro Orpheur	20	Bellingham	1
		Berhead	12
Busheby	2
Birkbeck	2	Curwen	1
Bannes	4	Clifford	1
Burden	4	Carleton	2
Barwis	8	Charas	3
Brisco	8	Corodell	4

[263] Here, Machell drew a rectangle.
[264] 'Of the same county.'
[265] 'Another'.
[266] Durham.
[267] Surgeon.

Clyborn	4
Cholmley	8
Crackenthorp	10
Dikes	2
Dalston	3
Ducket	3
Denton	3
Denton	4
Ducket	7
Daker	9
Duckett	12
Ellis	5
Fallowfield	7
Farrington	8
Gornton	7
Grindall	9
Hutton	2
Hoton	11
Harrington	5
Highmor	6
Hudleston	6
Jackson	7
Ireton	12

Kirkby	6
Lawson	1
Layton	6
Lucy	8
Leigh	8
Lancaster	9
Lancaster	9
Lowther	9
Lough	10
Lampleugh	10
Lampleugh	11
Midleton	3
Moresby	5
Machel	6
Musgrave	1
Nevil	8
Osmotherly	7
Peroy	1
Parr	1
Porter	3
Penruddock
Pennington	5
Preston	6
Patterricson
Patterrickson	7

[VI.481][268]

Richmond	2
Rigg	3
Ribton	5
Scroope	1
Salkeld	4
Salkeld	5
Sandford	6
Swinborn	8
Strickland	8
Sands	8
Swinborne	10
Senhouse	10
Skelton	11
Swinborn	11
Sandford	12

Sandford	12
Thwaites	7
Tunstall	8
Threlkeld	10
Vaux	9
Vaux	9
Whelpdall	2
Wyborne	2
Wharton	4
Warwick	4
Warcop	11
Warcop	11

[268] The MS pages following this one (VI.483-86) deal with 'Notes in order of the Antiquities of the Countie of Cumb'land': not transcribed.

Notes out of Mr Dugdall Visitation of Westmorland [269]

Godsave of Rigmaden in Kendal & Loansdale with Armes not proved with a ped. of 2 descents. Williams of Borwick in Com. Lanc.
Thomas Godsave of Rigmaden etat 42 mar. 20 Anno 1664 = Susanna daughter of Thomas Cartmele of Farleton into Westmorland.

In Apleby church yard:
Or a lyon rampant Azure Piercy; Gules a X Argent, Nevill; Azure powderd flordelice Or a lyon rampant of the 2, Beaumont, France & England; Machel (or Macherer) Readman; Musgrave, Azure, 6 annuletts Or. He wants the new tomb. {Entered.} [270]

Things to be had att any time in Dugdalls visitation, so that I need not trouble my selfe about them.[271]

[1.] Ad Ambleside: Ambleside at Windermere
Faucium præ gradis Lupi in immenso illo lacu Windermere vocitato suscepti figura p.4. Et nunc Sc. 5^0 Aprilis 1665, penes [Blank] Brathwayte de Ambleside Armigerum.[272]
[2.] A Prospect of Kendall & Castle, Prospect of Appleby & Castle, Prospect of Browham Castle.
[3.] Memorandum that it was agreed upon amongst the King of Armes &c. 30^{li} for granting a coate. 27^{s} is the fee for entering a ped: vid in Lord Marshalls booke. Ibid.
4. All in Apleby Castle & hospital armes
5. All arms at Grarig Hall. I have too in MS oblong.
6. Kirbythore Church and Hall, all the arms & antiquities there: I have them too.[273]
On the Alter these

FORTA BALLI
N. M. S. S.
C. G. ALEZI
VS. FOR NTINVS
N. O V…

Forta Valli i.e. Wallataum sive Gallatum. T.M.
Forsan forta balli (pro valli) numinibus sacrasancta C. Calezius Frontinus per tra[n]spos[itionem] Litera. T.M.[274]

7. Arms in Newbiggin Hall
8. Browham Castle Arms & Inscription on \ 3 / alters.

[269] Many of the notes on this page have been scored through, suggesting that Machell no longer needed them.
[270] This paragraph has been placed within a box and scored through lightly with a cross. 'Entered' is in different ink, suggesting that Machell added the information missing from Dugdale's *Visitatio*n.
[271] A heading in bold script.
[272] 'The shape of the jaws of a wolf, picked up from underfoot in that great lake they are wont to call Windermere. p.4. And now, that is 5th April 1665, in the possession of [Blank] Brathwayte of Ambleside, Knight. The length of the existing teeth without the jaws [is] the thickness of three thumbs.'
[273] The following inscription is lightly scored through with a cross.
[274] 'Forta Valli i.e. Wallataum or Gallatum. T.M. Perhaps Forta balli (instead of valli). Sacred to the spirits. Gaius Calezius Frontinus by transposition of a letter.' See part 3. Ch.3. Roman Antiquities, VI.186C, VI.229, VI.231. The name 'Calezius' is a solitary example of the use of Vulgar Latin in Roman Britain: the name is actually 'Calidius' (RIB 764, Kirkby Thore). See C.C. Smith, 'Vulgar Latin in Roman Britain: Epigraphic and other evidence', in Wolfgang Haase (ed.), Sprache und Literatur (Sprachen und Schriften [Forts]) (Berlin and New York, 1983), 893-948, at 925.

The camp the [shape] oblong: broad about 150 yards. The Roman Way passeth through it there, being \ a square of / 150 yards on each side, as may yet be seen by that part thereof where the great trenches on its outside are to be seen on the South East side of the said castle: è Mr Dugd. Visitation 23 March 1664.
9. Lowther Church & Hall.
10. Kendall Church. Kendal Mount he takes to be a castle (ut opinor)
11. Gresmere Church
12. Rydall Hall
13. Willson of Underlays Arms prov'd; Branthwayt of Cartingill; Fisher.
Scaifes, Steales: pedigrees of 3 or 4 gen. with Armes not proved.
14. Wiber of Cliftons ped. & armes. There are 5 descents and a note entered of Will. Wiberge of Clifton, temp. Ed. 3. Had to wife Eleanor, daughter & h. of Gilber Engayne of Clifton in com Westmorland: vide Dugdall in Cumberland.
15. The Round Table & Mabrough Castle, which I have allso.

[VI.490]

These I want:[275]
Birbeck
Browham of Scalemldb
Curwen
Dalston of Acomb
Fisher Parvi est[276]
Halton of Barton
Lowther of Colby Leathes
Sandford of Askham
Saufe of Winton parvi
Steal of Kendall parvi
Wha[r]ton of Kirlbythore
Whelpedall collord Or.
Birbeck Bores head in Fess with sable 3 barulets Or, & in Chiefe mullets of the second quartering […][277] a fess /\/\/\[278] between 6 cross crosslets Or.
Ducket of Grarig […][279]

È Visitation Cumberland & Northumberland (no Westm'land) penes Dr Knight \ made about the Time of H. 8 or Edw. 6. / A Booke of Armes onely.

Ad Kendall church; vid Bellingham pedigree notes
Sir Robert Bellingham of Kendall who builded the Lady Quire in the same church & lyeth buryed there, dyed the 17 of July 1533. & had 2 wives. 1^{t} The Daughter of Sir Robert Aske. 2. Elizabeth Daughter of John Lord Clifford, after Lord (pro Earle} of […][280]
He beare parted per pale
1. Quarterly of 4.
1. Argent a Bugel Sable lin'd Gules.
2. Argent 3 Bendletts Gules. On a canton a Lyon rampant of the field
3. As the second
4. as the 1^{t}.

[275] The following names (apart from Fisher and Steal) are marked with an X.
[276] 'Of little importance.' 'Saufe' and 'Steal' have also been labelled in this way.
[277] Illegible word here.
[278] Fess dancetté.
[279] The rest of this passage is obscured by the binding apart from, 'Gules a Saltier Argent between 12 cross crosslets Or'.
[280] The word following 'of' is obscured by the binding.

2. Parted per pale.
1. Quarterly in this manner
    1. Azure ~~a fess of 4~~ \ fusils in fess / Argent. By the name of Aske quartering
    2. Azure. 4 baruletts Argent. By the name of [Blank]
    3. As the second.
    4. as the 1[t].

Query whether these be not the Armes of Aske? They are of Sir Robert Aske in the County of Cumberland.

2. Chequie Or & Azure a fess Gules. By the name of Clifford.

Entered in the relation of Bellingham pedigree.
{Richmont per fess Or & Gules 2 cout[281] crescent[282]}
{Sir William Lawson of Isell in Cumberland … Argent & Sable a /\ cout?}[283]
Sir Thomas Parr Knight, Master of the Wards & Controwler to King Henry 8, dyed 8[th] of November Anno [Blank] & is Buryed in the Black fryers. He bare Quarterly Impaleing Quarterly:
    1. Argent within a Bordure, 2 Barrs Azure & a ✡ in chiefe for distinction
    2. Azure, a chiefe & 3 cheveronells in Bass brased Or.
    3. Varre[284] Argent & Azure, a fess Gules.
    4. As the 1[t] impaleing quarterly 1. Azure, 3 Bucks trippant Or. 2. Gules a chevron; between 3 cross crosslets Or; in chief a Lyon passant of the second […][285]

[VI.490A]

    The Crest on a wreat[h] Argent & Sable, a Camells head coupd Gules with a Coronett Coller Or.[286]

Item
Quarterly, the 1[t] as before, the 2[nd] 6 pales Argent & Gules; on a chief a Lyon passant.
3. Argent 2 Barrs Gules on a canton Gules a cross-crosslet[287] Or.
4. Quarterly of 6 Azure & Or 3 Lyon Rampand in the first of the 2[nd] with a cressant in fess po[in]t.

The Crest
A ~~greyhounds~~ \ Camells / head errased Or, crown coller Argent, under which a cressant Sable.

John: He bare allso parted per pale, Argent & Sable, 3 grey[hounds] counter charged a camells head Or {courant Argent. Alias parted per pail Argent & Sable, 3 grey [hounds] in a Border counterchargd.
The Creast, a greyhound (forsan a chamels head) couped with a coronet […][288] about his hed.
È shoppe apud Charing Cross London.}

[281] 'Countercharged'.
[282] Here, Machell drew a crescent.
[283] 'A chevron countercharged?'
[284] Vair: Parti-coloured fur, see Gough, Glossary of Terms used in British Heraldry, 316.
[285] One more margin comment here has been scored through thoroughly and few words can be deciphered. It begins: MS: 'This was in the Time of Sir. S. Musgrave; & when Ducket maryed Labourn. 6 Lyons', followed by illegible words and a symbol.
[286] MS: Here, there is a tiny sketch of a coronet.
[287] MS: Here, there is a sketch of a cross-crosslet.
[288] There follows one blotted, illegible word.

[VI.490B]

35. {a Dugdalli Visitation Temp. Car. 2: ni fallor memor.}[289]
Memoranda de pedigree of the Haltons de Burton a Temp. Ed. I. [1272-1307] sed anfract[us][290] to Ciprian 1665 (10 generations).
Dalston of Acorn Bank. 5 generations 1611 – Thomas son of Xtopher.
Ducket. 5 generations.
Hilton, 6. Henry 4., of Murton – tis there sett down that he marryed the daughter of Andre de Hetherton.
Nevinson, Ed. \ Esq. / son of Richard, son of Stephen. Argent a chevron charged with a ✡ between 3 Eaglets disp[layed] Azure with [blank][291]

[VI.491]

36. Brathwate: 7 generations but noe date save in the 3[d]: 34. Elizabeth [1591-92].
37. Midle \ton / of mid. a crescent for destinction. 7 generations from sir geofrey major general to king henry 8 in his expedition to Bulloine, to Edward: 1664.
38. Sandford de ask. 12 generations from Edmund, husband to Idon[ea], English Lord of Little Asseby, to William: 1664.
39. Fisher, 5 generations but not proved, from Henry to Ed. Henry was alderman of Kendal.
40. Willson not proved. 4 generations from Thomas of Staveley: 1624, to Edward: 1664.
41. Leyborne bears Azure 6 lyonns rampant Argent.
42. Phillipson, Gules a chev. Between 3 bores head couped Ermin. 7 Generations from Rowland to Rob.
43. Curwin of Helsington, a 2[nd] house.
44. Hilton of Burton. Johannes 17. Edward I. [1288-89] et agneti uxor[i] ejus Robertus Bacon & Magg[er]eta uxor ejus concesserunt totum terram de dom[inico] eorum in territor[io] de Hel[t]un sans dat. (Temp. Ed. 1.)[292]
45. Sir Richard Fleming, son of Sir John, 35. Henry 3. [1250-51] 2 generations above goes in the name of Furness; a ped[igree] of 21 descents.
46. Bird, 18 descents. 8 of the place. Henry Bird of Browham 16. Henry 6. [1437-38].
47.

- Apleby Church
- Apleby Castle } q. whether the mon[uments] be drawne: I thinke not
- Hospitall } Arms & inscriptions in Mr Dugd.
- Kirkbythore

[VI.492]

- Brougham Castle }
- Lowther Hall }
- Kendall Church } All Visitation Dugdall
- Gresmere Church } Visitation anno supradicta
- Rydall Hall }
- A wolfe's \ pike's / jaw at Windermer
- A prospect of Kendal
- A map of Apleby
- A prospect of Brougham Castle for Ogleby[293]

[289] 'Unless my memory is mistaken.'
[290] 'Anfractus': a winding or sinuous course. OED.
[291] Nevinson Crest: a Talbot proper collared and with chain reflexed over the back Or. See CFH, 242.
[292] 'To him and to Agnes his wife, Robert Bacon and his wife Magg[er]eta granted the whole extent of their domain in the territory of Hel[t]un.'
[293] John Ogilby (1600-1676), cartographer, known for publishing the first road-atlas of Britain. Ogilby secured the title of 'His Majesty's Cosmographer' in 1671. He drew upon the support of the king and other patrons in the production and publication of Britannia … an illustration of the kingdom of England and dominion of

48. The Machells of Crakenthorp.
It is generally owned for the ancientest Esquires in the north of England, for soe they have bin writt ever since, that title became a terme of honour without the intermixture of \ any / one knight. Howbeit, through their meritts & imployment in the wars tem[p] Henry 8[t], there were 3 att once of this family: viz. Richard, Guy & Hugh. The family has continued here ever since the Conquest, as appears by their evidences in which they are called Machaels or Mali Catuli ab asperitate naturae et ferocitate animi.[294] Their ancient Arms was a tyger \ or wolfe Leapeing on its pray / rampant & crowned. Howbeit in after times they bore the Ensigne above specified upon some considerable occasion or other: viz. Sable 3 greyhounds courant Argent collererd Or; given, as is thought, in Holy War. {Something like this ♔ which resembles a crowne is upon the head of the tyger.}

[III.67]

I could have as easily have inserted into this pedegre a number of Knights as som others have don, the better to establish our title clame to the Title of an Esquire; but I would not doe it: It is sufficient that the Chiefe of our family have bin writ & called & accounted Esquires since (Richard [blank]) it first became a Title of Dignity; & hav bin so far removed \ draned / & sifted from the dreggs of the vulgar & common sortes to have continued Lords of a Manner & Magistrates & amongst the chiefe Gentry of this County six hundred \ years: / which if the title be due on that score is Em[i]nence enough to raise them above the ordinary pitch & level of Gentry.{& the title of Esquire now grown so common that is not worth clame; all the whol nation if they were good clothes, are Squires & Madams.}

[VI.492]

49. {Bird of Browham}
In Browham are 2 ancient demasnes at the castle and one at the Hall. Noe more occur in ancient Rolls & cat[alogues]. Howbeit later \ time have bin / ~~are~~ large inclosents made by Mr James Bird, descended of \ an / ancient yeomanry; for to pass by with it inauthentical.[295] I mean an[296] old pedegree of the Birds, mentioning neither time nor ~~towne~~ \ com[297] / no, nor the wherein they lived (an easy method for any family to descend himselfe directly & linealy from Adam). The first was Henry, mention'd in evidences 17. Henry 6. [1438-39]. From this pedigree may be allowed of, Henry Bird = maryed 17. Henry 6. & had isue.[298]

[VI.493][299]

An Account out of Mr Dugdall's Visitation of Westmorland such as were disclamed att Apleby Sommersise, 1666.[300]

?! Robert Barton of Ormhed.
Thom. Birbeck of Coatflat & T.B. of Oreton.
?! Christopher Crakenthorp of Little Strickland \ good family. /
Christopher Dobson of Brampton.
Will. Dobson of Kirkby Stephan \ Kirkby thore. /
John Routledge of Morrland.
?! Thomas Sandford of Askham \ good family. /
Christopher Teasdall of Br\a/mpton & Thornthwayt.
Robert Teasdale of Kirkbythure.
James Webster of Thrymby.

Wales: by a geographical and historical description of the principal roads thereof (1675), the work for which he became best known. C. Withers, 'Ogilby, John, publisher and geographer'. ODNB.
[294] 'From their roughness of character and the ferocity of their spirit.'
[295] Seven words have been crossed through here.
[296] MS: 'and'.
[297] 'County'.
[298] For more criticism of Bird see Part 1. Ch.7, Brougham.
[299] Many words on this page are obscured by the binding; some have been scored through. They have been omitted from this edition.
[300] MS: 'An Account ~~of what is to be~~ out of Mr Dugdall's Visitation of Westmorland ~~in order to the Antiquities of~~ such as were disclamed att Apleby Sommersise, 1666.'

Those which are marked thus (!) are gentlemen of good familyes & ought not to have bin disclam'd except they would have disclam'd themselves. See my notes before. Kirkbythore? The rest except Birbeck, who perhaps may have som clame by allyance to Hornby, are no gentlemen.

{Kendal Lonsdal Wards}

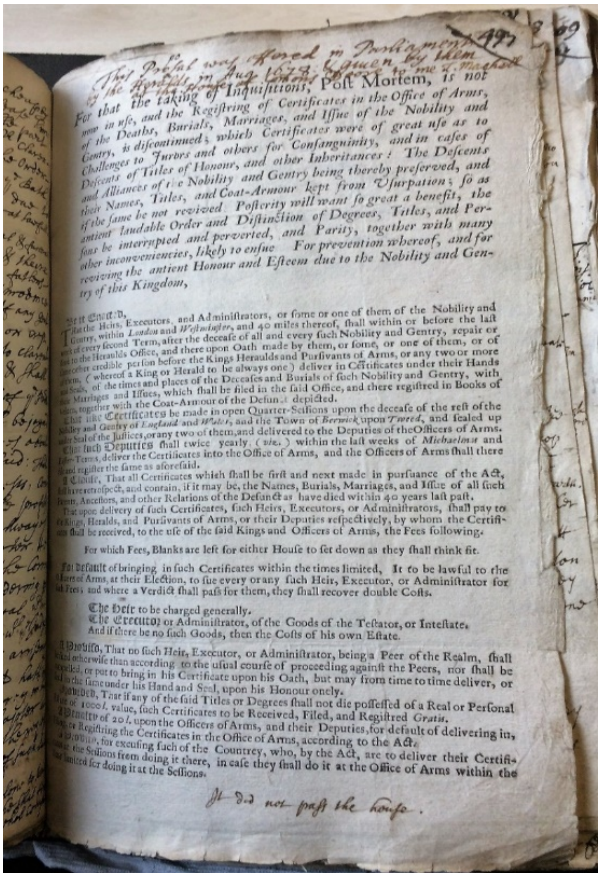
?! Leonard Airay of Kentmere
John Archer of Oxholme.
William Birket of Troutbeck.
Roger Bradley. } of Underbarrow & Bradley Field
Randall Bateman. }
Oliver Crosfield of Holme.
Christopher Dawson of Langdale.
George Foxcroft of Holmehouse & G Lamprick vide.
Gerrard Fetherston of Crosthwayte & Lyth.
William Garnett.
William Garnett of Barbon & Mansergh.
?! William Gilpin of Kentmere.
Robert Heblethwayte of Killington.
George Lamprick of Holmehouse & G. Foxcroft vid.
?! George Laburn of Skelsmere.
Miles Man of Kirkby Loansdall.
?! Nathaniel Nicholson of Kentmere.

[VI.494]

George Overend of Kirkby.
William Southerway of Langdale vid. Christopher Dawson.
?! Francis Thorburrow of Whitwell.
Allane Willson of Handholme.
N.B. Tis very strange he should disclame som of these which I have marked thus (?!) which notes of interogation & admiration; for they are of the ancient gentrye of the north; but the rest are such as never did or could pretend to it. The reason I suppose of disclameing them was their non-appearance to paying their foes. Quære: an causa sufficiens? puto quod non.[301]

The faults that are in his Visitation

1. Locall. He has \ miscalled many places in his pedegrees & / placed a knowne part of Westm'land, Sc. that place where the Round Table is, in Cumberland. Item: in his disclameing of Dobson: Kirkby Stephan for Kirkbythore.



2. Personall. He has entered some for severall generations Squires who were never gentlemen (as the Nevinsons), & entered others Gentlemen only who were most ancient Squires – as the Machells of Crakenthorpe. He has allso disclamed severall ancient families, as above, & allowd of some upstarts entering their pedegrees amongst the Gentery, wherras they had noe Armes. And Birds pedigree is to be enquired into.

3. Armoriall. The Birbecks, whose fess is counter compone Azure & Or, he has made chequie Sable & Or. The match of Machell & Thornburrow in Apleby Church and that drawne the greyhounds there & in his pedigree both alike: Sc. without collers. {There are 2 strokes of orange colour about the neck of each dog for collers.} Item: Lowthers charge: \ Gules for / Sable.
{4. Nominal, which may be seen in my pedegrees (marked) thus: ?!}
In his Visitation of Kendal Church, he has writt \ Sir / Roger insteed of Sir Robert who builded the chaple (se Visitation M4^{0} penes Mr Knight; & \ se / the pedigree of the Bellinghames for Sir Roger,

[301] 'Check: whether sufficient reason? I think not.'

penes Mr Holford; et alteram penes Vidua' Smyth).[302] Item: in the ticking of Armes, 4rd in Allanes Coate, there he has marked Sandfords bores heads & lyons rampant Or insteed of Argent, which is a common mistake with him or his scribe.[303]

[VI.499]

That Poſal was Moved in Parliament 1678 by them ... Heraldes ... Machell

For that the taking of Inquiſitions, Poſt Mortem, is not now in uſe, and the Regiſtring of Certificates in the Office of Armes, of the Deaths, Burials, Marriages, and Iſſue of the Nobility and Gentry, is diſcontinued; which Certificates were of great uſe as to Challenges to Iurors and others for Conſanguinity, and in caſes of Deſcents of Titles of Honour, and other Inheritances: The Deſcents and Alliances of the Nobility and Gentry being thereby preſerved, and their Names, Titles, and Coat-Armour kept from Uſurpation; ſo as if the ſame be not revived Poſterity will want ſo great a benefit, the antient laudable Order and Diſtinction of Degrees, Titles, and Perſons be interrupted and perverted, and Parity, together with many other inconveniencies, likely to enſue For prevention whereof, and for reviving the antient Honour and Eſteem due to the Nobility and Gentry of this Kingdom,

Be it Enacted, That the Heirs, Executors, and Adminiſtrators, or ſome or one of them of the Nobility and Gentry, within London and Weſtminſter, and 40 miles thereof, ſhall within or before the laſt day of every ſecond Term, after the deceaſe of all and every ſuch Nobility and Gentry, repair or ſend to the Heraulds Office, and there upon Oath made by them, or ſome, or one of them, or of ſome other credible perſon before the Kings Heraulds and Purſivants of Arms, or any two or more of them, (whereof a King or Herald to be always one) deliver in Certificates under their Hands and Seals, of the times and places of the Deceaſes and Burials of ſuch Nobility and Gentry, with the Names, Marriages and Iſſues, which ſhall be filed in the ſaid Office, and there regiſtred in Books of Parchment, together with the Coat-Armour of the Defunct depicted.

And that Certificates be made in open Quarter-Seſſions upon the deceaſe of the reſt of the Nobility and Gentry of England and Wales, and the Town of Berwick upon Tweed, and ſealed up with the Seal of the Iuſtices, or any two of them, and delivered to the Deputies of the Officers of Armes. And ſuch Deputies ſhall twice yearly (viz.) within the laſt weeks of Michaelmas and Eaſter-Terms, deliver the Certificates into the Office of Arms, and the Officers of Arms ſhall there receive and regiſter the ſame as aforeſaid.

And be it Declared, That all Certificates which ſhall be firſt and next made in purſuance of the Act, ſhall have reſpect, and contain, if it may be, the Names, Burials, Marriages, and Iſſue of all ſuch Perſons, Anceſtors, and other Relations of the Defunct as have died within 40 years laſt paſt.

That upon delivery of ſuch Certificates, ſuch Heirs, Executors, or Adminiſtrators, ſhall pay to the Kings, Heralds, and Purſivants of Arms, or their Deputies reſpectively, by whom the Certificates ſhall be received, to the uſe of the ſaid Kings and Officers of Arms, the Fees following.

For which Fees, Blanks are left for either Houſe to ſet down as they ſhall think fit.

For Default of bringing in ſuch Certificates within the times limited, It to be lawful to the Officers of Arms, at their Election, to ſue every or any ſuch Heir, Executor, or Adminiſtrator for the ſaid Fees; and where a Verdict ſhall paſs for them, they ſhall recover double Coſts.

The Heir to be charged generally.
The Executor or Adminiſtrator, of the Goods of the Teſtator, or Inteſtate.
And if there be no ſuch Goods, then the Coſts of his own Eſtate.

Proviſo, That no ſuch Heir, Executor, or Adminiſtrator, being a Peer of the Realm, ſhall be otherwiſe then according to the uſual courſe of proceeding againſt the Peers, nor ſhall be compelled, or put to bring in his Certificate upon his Oath, but may from time to time deliver, or cauſe the ſame under his Hand and Seal, upon his Honour onely.

Provided, That if any of the ſaid Titles or Degrees ſhall not die poſſeſſed of a Real or Perſonal Eſtate of 1000 l. value, ſuch Certificates to be Received, Filed, and Regiſtred Gratis.

And for Default of 20 l. upon the Officers of Arms, and their Deputies, for default of delivering in, or Regiſtring the Certificates in the Office of Arms, according to the Act.

And for Remedy, for excuſing ſuch of the Countrey, who, by the Act, are to deliver their Certificates, the Seſſions from doing it there, in caſe they ſhall do it at the Office of Arms within the time limited for doing it at the Seſſions.

It did not paſs the houſe.

Figure 3.4.20. Published document beginning, 'For that the Taking of Inquisitions Post Mortem is not now in use…', pasted into VI.499 and annotated by Machell.

'For that the Taking of Inquisitions Post Mortem is not now in use […]'[304] This Pr\op/osal was offered in Parliament by the Heralds in 1678 and given by them at the House of Commons Doore to me. T. Machell. It did not pass the house.

[302] 'And another in the keeping of Widow Smyth.'

[303] MS.VI.495 and VI.496 consist of 'Notes on visitations, granting and proveing of Arms', taken from the Lord Marshall's papers (I.25) at the Heralds Office.' MS.VI.497 and VI.498 consist of notes on the powers of the Kings of Arms, Heralds and Knights of the Garter. They were entitled by Machell, 'È Lib MS Sic notat Φ penes Mr Sheldon.' These four pages have not been transcribed.

[304] See Figure 3.4.20. Richard Ferguson explained this passage in terms of the failings of the College of Arms. 'In 1678 Mr Machell visited the House of Commons; at the door he found the Heralds distributing the prints of a Bill they wished passed to arrest the decay into which the College of Arms was falling.' R.S. Ferguson, 'Notes on the Heraldic Visitations of Cumberland and Westmorland', CWI, 2 (1876), 20-27, at 25-27.

[VI.501]

Out of Mrs Smyths Visitation of Lancashire
Ut opinor.[305] She lives over against St Dunstans in Fleet Street[306]

{1. Morton, Crosby}
Morton & Crosby came to the Musgraves by the marriage of Allice daughter of Richard Earl of Cambridge by Maud the daughter of Thomas Lord Clifford \ p.3 col. 2 / idem occa. pag.14. \ Falce: they had it in Rosses time. / Cambridge had noe daughter, se[e] Cliffords matches.

{2. Musgrave}
Richard Musgrave tooke to wife Jane daughter and coheir of Sir William Stapleton of Westm'land (puto of Cumb'land) pag. 3. Westm'land. Musgr. 5 Gen.[307] Sir Edward Musgrave of Hartland, sive Hartley, in Westm'land.

{3.} Catterleyn once belongd to the Musgraves or some of there land there. P.6. \ That has bin T. Musgrave who tooke for his 1^{t} wife Mary the daughter of John Vaus, widow of Thomas Holland Earl of Huntington {see my pedigree. King. R.2.}

{4. Warcop}
The Warcops of Smardale were extinct in 2 coheires. The one married to Dalston of Dalston in Cumb'land; the other to Talbott Bowes, p.6. ubi (General: 5 generations).

{5. Layburne}
Layburne of Cunswick in Westm'land p.7. Col. 2.

{6.} Crooke in Westm'land belongd to Nicolsons. 6. Fig. 3.

{7. Thornburrow}
Thornburrow of Hampsfield pag. 8.

{8. Bilose}
Brilose of Hailston (general. 5 or 6 generations) pag. 1. Col. 1.

{9. Brathwate}
Brathwate of Ambleside (general of 7) pag. 1. Col. 2.
Hence Brathwate. 1. Of Burnished; 2. Of Warcop. Ibid.

{10. Dalston}
Dalston of Dalston (2 Generations) p.3. Col. 1.

{11. Musgrave}
Musgrave. General of 13 or 14) p.5, 6, 7. Hence Harcley & Ednall.

{12. Warcop}
Warcop of Smardale (5 Generations) p.7. Extinct in Heiresses.

{13. Carus}
Carus of Asthwate, & of Kendall, 8 generations p.7.
{Asthwat of Asthwate extinct in Ed. 3^{d} time. The place is now calld Dalgarth. Vid. P.7 Col. 2.

[305] 'As I think.'
[306] Widow of a Herald Painter, see VI.494.
[307] It is possible that there is a numeral (5.) before 'Gen.', but it is tiny and close to the binding.

{14. Lowther}
Lowther. Generations of 13 or 14, p.9.

{15. Duckett}
Generation of 5, p.11. Here is mention of Harrington of Wrexam.

{16. Midleton}
Midleton of Midleton 6 or 7 Generations, p.12.

{17. Bradley}
Bradley of Betham in the county of Westm'land, p.18 in the pedigree of [Leyburne.]

{18. Leyburne}
Leyburne of Cunswick in Westm'land bears Azure 6 Lyons rampant Argent. 3.2.1 (A pedigree of 6 descents) p.18. Their Crest is a falcon regardant Azure with wings Expansed, Beack'd & bell'd Or.

{19. Stanley}
Stanleys were a family att Culgaith in Cumb'land p.19. Forsan 9b.

{20. Briggs}
Briggs of Calmyre but 2 Generations taken notice of before extinct in 2 coheires; 1. to Sir Richard Hutton, 2. To Edward Stanley of ~~Cullgaith~~ \ Dalegarth[308] / in Cumb'land, p.19.

[VI.502]

{21. Benson}
Benson (2 descents) of Hugil. Extinct in 2 Daughters. 1. Mabel married to John Preston of Halcar in Lamlash. [2.] to John Rodes, one of the Justices of Common Pleas qui obijt […][309] Roodes[310] forsan de Chipping (forsan in Yorkshire).

{22. Bradley}
Bradley of Bethom descended by 2 descents from Bradley of Bradley in Lancashire. He was Lord of Both. Extinct (forsan) in 3 daughters, p.20 (Generation of 4).

{23. Levins}
Levins had Crooke once, which is in Paroch. Kandalia.[311] He had it by mar[riage] from Corkley. Vid. Fig. 6.

{24.} Todd of Sledall in Westm'land.

{25.} The Leven's of Westm'land are now in Northamptonshire, seated at Evenley[312] anno 1618 (great Generations) p.20.

{26. Phillipson}
Rowland Phillipson of Shelwall of Calgarth. Port Gules a chevron Ermin, between 3 Bores heads couped of the 2[d]. The Crest a plume of fethers Argent reflex'd Gules \ out of / Crown murall Or. Phillipson of Thwaderden hall Bears the same within a Border invecked & a Crescent Or for destinction.

[308] The alteration here is in a different hand.
[309] A word here is obscured by the binding.
[310] 'Who died at Roodes.'
[311] 'The parish of Kendal.'
[312] MS: 'Evemley'.

{27. Fothergill}
Fothergill of Ravendale bears Vert a Staggs head couped Or, within a Border inveck'd of the 2[d]. Sir William Fothergill of this place was Standard Bearer to King Henry 8 at the Battle of Sollon Mos[s] day.[313]

{28. Bellingham}
Bellingham of Burnesheved was Extinct in coheires whereof one was married to Thorneburrough, p.25.

{29. Thornburrow}
William Thorneburrow of Selshead in Westm'land descended from John Thornburrow of Hampsfell in the county of Lancashire. He from William Thornb. of Thornb. in the county of Yorke, the son of forsaid Will. Was Thornb. Of ~~Selshead~~ Hampsfell (a Gen. of 11 descents), p.25. They had a match with the Maleverers and beare a crescent for destinction. Se the coat & crest ibid.

{30. Burneshed}
Burneshed armes ibid in the last 14[t].

{31. Beck}
Beck of Holbreak by […][314] 29. Col. 2.

{32. Bellingham}
Bellingham of Hellsington in Westm'land, 29. Col.

{? Salkeld}
(Salkeld of Corby Castle Cumb'land Ibid). The ped. is from H. 2. – R. I. & well timed;[315] p.29 et supra. ob 25.2 pro Salkeld of Gowbarrow.

{33. Richmont}
De Highet. Gen. of 3.

{34. Stockdale}
Stockdal of Kirkby Loansdall (6 descents to Stockdale of Barbonne in Westm'land) p.31.

{35. Midleton}
Midleton of Kirkby Loansdall (1 descent) 32.

---

[313] Sollom Moss = Solway Moss. In 1542, following Henry VIII's attempt to persuade James V to abandon his pro-French and pro-Catholic policies, war broke out between England and Scotland. In October, the Duke of Norfolk led 20,000 men into Scotland, burning Roxburgh and Kelso. The next month King James retaliated by sending 17,000 troops into England to burn the countryside north of Carlisle. The local English commander, Lord Wharton, mustered 3,000 men to oppose them. The Scots saw the flags of the small English force on a hilltop above them. Fearing that what they saw represented a much larger army, they turned and retreated, the English cavalry attacking their rear. The Scots made a stand at a ford across the Esk, but many were taken prisoner. Some of those who escaped into the vast marsh known as Solway Moss might have drowned. See Historic England, 'Battle of Solway Moss 1542,'https://historicengland.org.uk/listing/the-list/list-entry/1000034?section=official-list-entry.

[314] The following two words in the MS are indistinct; the first appears to begin with '~~Cl~~'. The name 'Beck', does not appear in either Index 1. or 2. of F.R. Raines (ed.), The Visitation of the County Palatine of Lancashire 1613 by Richard St George, Norroy, King of Arms. However, it does appear as part of the Machell pedigree: 'Hugh Machell of Crackenthorpe (died 1642) married Margaret, daughter of Thomas Beck of Penrith.' See Foster, Pedigrees … 1615 and … 1666, 87.

[315] 'Timed' is unclear.

[VI.503][316]

{36. Sheriff of Westmerland}
I tooke Westm'land to have been a country to which I nhad bin pecu[liar] of old to have the High Sheriffdoome intailed upon One family, to wit on the Viponts, notwithstanding if finde (in Bellingham Gen.) that Edward Bellingham was high sheriff of Westm'land {?} 8 & 9 Richard I (pag. 29) And that Sir William Lancaster was the like, pag. 32 col. 2. Armes of Lancaster, Or. 2 Barrs Gules with a mullet dexter. This is Lancaster of Sockbridge

{37. Harrington}
Harrington of Sleddall & Ubery hall in Cumb.[317]

{38. Wolston alias Willson}
Wolston alias Willson de Overstaveley in Kendall Westm'land (3 generations) p.34.

{39. Briggs}
Briggs of Helfell hall in Westm'land p.34.

{40. Phillipson}
Phillipson pedigree from (1516). This family married the sole heiress of Carus de Kendall.
Miles Phillipson of Thwatterden hall.

{41. Ralffe}
Lates of Bark hall.

{42. Carus}
Carus the last family in the Visitation.[318]

[VI.507]

12 feofes of the hospital success[ors] from the parentes }
Memorandum Hugh Machell Joynt Com. With Wharton } Dugdale Visitation.
Sedgewick bears Argent a Cross Gules charg'd with 3 Bells of the field. È Mr. Marshalls Visitation Booke.
See Atkinsons Arms ibid.
Mille bears Or 3 s[319] Sable.

There is little hopes for gaineing any knowledge out of the Records in [the] Tower in order to the discovery of families in Westm'land; because they are onely for fairs & other priviledges by charter. There is less to be hoped for è lib. Rubro in Scac[cario].[320] {See the Red booke in the Heralds office} that being onely an accompt of great mens possesions. But least of all out of Doomsday booke: Because the northern countyes, particularly W. C. & Northumb. were so much preyd upon and exhausted by continuall wars; that the Conqueror did not thinke fit to tax it. \ & beside he might far their[321] aynemy with the Scotts. /

It was usuall of Old to have the figure of some single thing in a Roundell upon Signetts and not in Esc[allops] as appear from several instances. {Says Dugdall.}

---

[316] Also numbered p.14.
[317] Yewbarrow/Ubarrow Hall (once named Ubery Hall) is in Longsleddale, Westmorland, see N&B1, 133.
[318] In the MS., 'The Visitation of Cumberland' follows: see MS. VI.503-06 (not transcribed).
[319] A blot appears here.
[320] 'In the red book in the treasury.'
[321] As the letter 'f' has been superimposed over the letter 'b', this word is difficult to decipher. It might be that Machell meant 'fartheir' [farther]. Similarly, the next word has the letters, 'aynemy', transcribed here as 'enemy'.

Ecclesia	Anno Val.	Decima inde	Patronus
Shap Vicaria	008 15:7:0	0:17:6 ob qua
Warcop Vicaria	009 5:1: ob	O:18:6 qua

Besides these, there are other in Westm'land which belong to the Diocess of Chester.[322]

[322] The pages from VI.509 to VI.516 are in Machell's hand and are devoted to 'Families and Arms'; for example, the Nevill, Roos and Vaux families. As the pages have been bound very closely, much substantial content is hidden. These pages have not been transcribed.

Bibliography 1

Published Volumes consulted by Thomas Machell

Acropilita, George	Historia Bizantina, Paris edition (1651).
Adams, John	Index Villaris, or, an alphabetical table of all cities, market-tons, parishes, villages, private seats in England and Wales (London, 1680).
Airey, Christopher	Fasciculus praeceptorum logicalium in gratiam Juventutis Academicae compositus (1628; 2nd edition, Oxford, 1633).
Antonine Itinerary	See Burton, William.
Augustine, St	City of God. (Concerning the City of God Against the Pagans) (413-426 AD).
Bartholin, Thomas	Historiarum anatomicarum rariorum centuria, III et IV (Copenhagen, 1657).
Bede	An Ecclesiastical History of the English People (c.731).
Bedwell, William	A Brief Description of the town of Tottenham High Crosse Middlesex, together with an historical narration of such memorable things as there are to be seen and observed (London, 1631).
Bible	Authorised Version
Bird, James	The speech of James Bird, gent Who was executed at Tyburn, on Friday the 18th day of September, 1691. for the willful murther of his wife Elizabeth Bird (London, 1691).
Blaeu, Johannes	Theatrum Scotiae (Amsterdam, 1648; 2nd edition, 1655; 3rd edition,1662.)
———	Theatrum Orbis Terrarum, sive Atlas Novus (1654).
Blome, Richard	Britannia, or, a Geographical Description of the Kingdom of England, Scotland and Ireland (1673).
———	A display of heraldry: manifesting a more easie access to the knowledge thereof than hath been hitherto published by any, through the benefit of method; whereunto it is now reduced by the study and industry of John Guillim, late pursuivant at arms. The fifth edition much enlarged with great variety of bearings. to which is added a Treatise of honour military and civil, according to the laws and customs of England, collected out of the most authentick authors, both ancient and modern, by Capt. John Logan. Illustrated with variety of sculptures suitable to the several subjects; to which is added a catalogue of the atchievements of the Nobility of England, with divers of the Gentry, for examples of bearings. (London, 1679).
———	An Essay to Heraldry, in Two Parts. The First Containing ... the Body of Heraldry; the Second, Honour Civil and Military; Being a Treatise of the Nobility and Gentry of England ... The Whole Illustrated with ... Sculptures, Etc. (London, 1685).
Blount, Thomas	Glossographia A dictionary interpreting all such hard words, of whatsoever language, now used in our refined English tongue (1656).

———— Nomo-Lexikon. A Law-dictionary and Glossary: Interpreting Such Difficult and Obscure Words and Terms, as are Found Either in Our Common Or Statute, Ancient Or Modern, Laws. With References to the Several Statutes, Records, Registers, Charters, Ancient Deeds, Manuscripts, and Law-books, Wherein the Words and Terms are Used (1670).

Blunt, Henry A Voyage into the Levant. A Briefe Relation of a Journey lately performed by Master Henry Blunt Gentleman from England by the way of Venice, into Dalmatia, Sclavonia, Bosnah, Hungary, Macedonia, Thessaly, Thrace, Rhodes and Egypt, unto Gran Cairo: With particular observations concerning the moderne condition of the Turkes, and other people under that Empire (1636).

Boethius, Hector aka Boece Scotorum historiae a prima gentis origine libri xvii (Paris, 1527).

Boswell John Workes of Armorie (Three volumes: The Concordes of Armorie, The Armorie of Honor, Of Coates and Creastes (1572).

Bracton, Henry de De Legibus et Consuetudinibus Angliae: The Laws and Customs of England (c. 1235).

Brompton, John Chronicle: printed in Twysden's Decem Scriptores (1652).

Brooke, Ralph A catalogue and succession of the kings, princes, dukes, marquesses, earles, and viscounts of this realme of England, since the Norman conquest, to this present yeare, 1619: together, with their armes, wives, and children: the times of their deaths and burials, with many their memorable actions (1619).

Buchanan, George Rerum Scoticarum historia (1582), translated by J. Fraser as The History of Scotland … Faithfully rendered into English (1690).

Burnet, Gilbert Three letters concerning the present state of Italy written in the year 1687 ... (1688).

Burton, William The Description of Leicester Shire. Containing Matters of Antiquitye, Historye, Armorye, and Genealogy (1622; 2nd edition 1638).

———— A Commentary on Antoninus, his Itinerary, or, Journies of the Romane Empire, so far as it concerneth Britain where in the first foundation of our cities, lawes, and government, according to the Roman policy, are clearly discovered ... with a chorographicall map of the severall stations, and index's to the whole work (1658).

Camden, William Britannia, sive florentissimorum regnorum Angliae, Scotiae, Hiberniae et insularum adiacentium ex intima antiquitate chorographica descriptio (First published in Latin in 1586, with later Latin editions, including one with hand-coloured maps in 1607).

———— Britannia, or, A Chorographicall Description of the Most Flourishing Kingdomes ...beautified with mappes. In English, translated by Philemon Holland (London, 1610).

———— Remaines of a greater worke, concerning Britaine, the Inhabitants thereof, Their Languages, Names, Surnames, Empreses, Wise speeches, Poësies, and Epitaphes (London, 1605).

Carleton, George The Life of Bernard Gilpin ... With His Sermon Preached Before King Edward the Sixth Anno. 1552, 4th edition (1636).

Carter, Matthew Honor Redivivus. or, The Analysis of Honor and Armory: Reprinted with Many Useful and Necessary Additions and Supply'd with the Names and Titles of Honour of the Present Nobility of England, the Bishops, Baronets, Members of Parliament, &c. (1673).

Casaubon, Isaac (ed.) Historia Augusta (1603).

Chaloner, James A Short Treatise of the Isle of Man, digested into Six Chapters: Appendix to King's Vale Royal of England; Or, The County Palatine of Chester (1656).

Charles I, William Fulman, Richard Perrinchief
The Works of King Charles the Martyr with a collection of declarations, treaties and other papers betwixt His Said Majesty and his two Houses of Parliament, with a history of his Life; as also of his Tryal and Martyedome, 2nd edition (London, 1687).

Church of England Common Prayer, Book of (1662).

Coke, Edward The First Part of the Institutes of the Lawes of England. Or, a Commentarie upon Littleton, Not the Name of a Lawyer Onely, but of the Law it selfe. Often referred to as Coke upon Littleton (London, 1628).

———— The Second Part of the Institutes of the Lawes of England (London, 1642).

Coles, Elisha An English dictionary, explaining the difficult terms that are used in divinity, husbandry, physick, phylosophy, law, navigation, mathematicks, and other arts and sciences. Containing many thousands of hard words (and proper names of places) more than are in any other English dictionary or expositor. Together with the etymological derivation of them from their proper fountains, whether Hebrew, Greek, Latin, French, or any other language. In a method more comprehensive, than any that is extant (London, 1676).

Compton, Henry Episcopalia, or, Letters of the Right Reverend Father in God, Henry, Lord Bishop of London, to the clergy of his diocess (London, 1686).

Cooke, Robert The Armorie of Nobility. After Cooke's death in 1593, The Armorie was completed by Robert Glover and Thomas Lant (1606, 1621).

Cooper, Thomas (drawing on the dictionaries of Charles Stephanus)
An Historical and Poetical Dictionary, briefly covering the Proper Names of Places and Peoples (London, 1565).

Cowell, John The Interpreter: or Booke Containing the Signification of Words: Wherein is Set Forth the True Meaning of All, or the Most Part of Such Words and Termes, as are Mentioned in the Law Writers, or Statutes of This Victorious and Renowned Kingdom, Requiring Any Exposition or Interpretation. A Work not Onely Profitable, but Necessary for Such as Desire Throughly to be Instructed in the Knowledge of Our Laws, Statutes, and Other Antiquities (Cambridge, 1607).

Crackanthorpe, Richard
Defensio Ecclesiae Anglicanae. Defence of the Church of England against the calumnies of M. Antony de Dominis, Archbishop of Spalatro (1625).

Cressy, Serenus The Church-history of Brittany from the Beginning of Christianity to the Norman Conquest under Roman Governours, Brittish Kings, the English-Saxon Heptarchy, the English-Saxon (and Danish) Monarchy from all which is evidently demonstrated that the present Roman Catholick religion hath from the beginning, without interruption or change been professed in this our island, &c. (1668).

Damhouder, de, Josse Praxis rerum criminalium, elegantissimis iconibus ad materiam accomodis illustrata, prætoribus, proprætoribus, consulibus, proconsulibus, magistratibus, reliquisque id genus iustitiariis ac officiariis, apprimè utílis ac necessaria, etc. With woodcuts by Gerard de Jode (Antwerp, 1554).

Dawes, Lancelot Gods Mercies and Jerusalems Miseries (1609).

———— Sermons Preached upon Severall Occasions (1653).

Degge, Simon The Parson's Counsellor, with the law of Tythes and Tything, in two Books, 2nd edition 'corrected' (London, 1685).

de Losinga, Robert, Bishop of Hereford
Excerpta ex Chronicis Mariani Scoti (an abridgement of the Chronology of Marianus Scotus) (c.1082).

de Oviedo y Valdes, Gonzalo Fernandez (known as Oviedo), La Natural hystoria de las Indias (The Natural History of the West Indies) (1526-35; English edition, 1555-56).

Diceto, Ralph de 1. Abbreviationes Chronicorum
2. Ymagines Historiarum (both before 1199).
Most of the 'Abbreviationes' and all of the 'Ymagines' were printed by Roger Twysden in Scriptores Decem (1652), see below.

Dioscorides, Pedanius De Materia Medica (c. 77 AD).

Doderidg, John Treatess: Consideration of the Office and Duty of Heralds (1605).

Duckworth, Richard Tintinnalogia, or, The Art of Ringing (1668, 2nd edition 1671).

Dugdale, William The antiquities of Warwickshire illustrated from records, leiger-books, manuscripts, charters, evidences, tombes, and armes: beautified with maps, prospects and portraictures (London, 1656).

———— Monasticon Anglicanum, or, The history of the ancient abbies, and other monasteries, hospitals, cathedral and collegiate churches in England and Wales. With divers French, Irish, and Scotch monasteries formerly relating to England (London, 1655-1673).

———— The History of St Paul's in London from its foundation until these times (London, 1658).

———— (Baronagium) The Baronage of England, or, An historical account of the lives and most memorable actions of our English nobility in the Saxons time to the Norman conquest, and from thence, of those who had their rise before the end of King Henry the Third's reign deduced from publick records, antient historians, and other authorities (London, 1675-76).

Duval, Pierre A Geographical Dictionary, In which are Described the most Eminent Countreys, Towns, Ports, Seas, Streights, and Rivers in the whole World. Very Useful for the Understanding of the Modern Histories (Paris, 1651. 1st English edition, 1662, 1678).

Edmonds, Clement Commentaries of Julius Caesar (1677).

Evelyn, John Sylva, or a Discourse of Forest Trees (1664).

Favine, André The theater of honour and knight-hood, or, A compendious chronicle and historie of the whole Christian world, containing the originall of all monarchies, kingdomes, and estates, with their emperours, kings, princes, and governours; …The first institution of armes, emblazons, kings, heralds, and pursuivants of armes (Paris, 1620; London,1623[?]).

Fern, Sir John The Blazon of Gentry (London, 1586).

FitzNeal, Richard Dialogus de Scaccario, or Dialogue concerning the Exchequer (late 12th century).

Florus An Epitome of Roman History.

Flower, William Visitation of Yorkshire (1563-1564).

Fuller, Thomas The history of the worthies of England who for parts and learning have been eminent in the several counties: together with an historical narrative of the native commodities and rarities in each county, endeavoured by Thomas Fuller (1662).

Gale, Thomas Historiae Anglicanae Scriptores XV (1691).

Gassendi, Pierre (Petrus Gassendus), 1592-1655. Machell wished to see one of his works, which was housed in the Hospital Library at Kendal (see Machell, Town of Kendal, II.66).

Gauden, John The works of King Charles the Martyr: with a collection of declarations, treaties, and other papers concerning the differences between his said majesty and his two houses of Parliament (1662).

Gemeticensis, Guilelmus (fl. c. 1137)
Gesta Normannorum Ducum.

Geoffrey of Monmouth Historia Regum Britanniae (c.1136).

Gibson, Edmund (ed.) William Camden and Edmund Gibson (1669-1748), Camden's Britannia newly translated into English, with large additions and improvements ; publish'd by Edmund Gibson (London, 1695).

Gildas De Excidio et Conquestu Britanniae (late 6th century).

Giraldus, Lilius Gregorius
De Deis Gentium varia et multiplex Historia, in qua simul de eorum imaginibus et cognominibus agitur ('A diverse and manifold History of the Gods of all Peoples, in which at the same time there is an account of their images and their epithets') (Basel 1548, Lyon 1565).

Glanvill, Ranulf de Tractatus de legibus et consuetudinibus regni Anglie (Treatise on the Laws and Customs of the Kingdom of England) (1187-1189).

Godolphin, John The Holy Arbor … or, The Sum and Substance of Christian Religion (1651).

———— The Holy Limbeck, or, A Semicentury of Spiritual Extractions (1650).

———— Repertorium canonicum, or, An abridgment of the ecclesiastical laws of this realm, consistent with the temporal wherein the most material points relating to such persons and things, as come within the cognizance thereof, are succinctly treated (1678).

Good, Thomas Firmianus and Dubitantius; certain dialogues concerning Atheism, Infidelity, Popery, and other Heresies and Schismes that trouble the peace of the Church and are destructive of primitive piety (1674).

Gordon, Robert, of Straloth Theatrum Scotiae (Amsterdam, 1648; 2nd edition, 1655; 3rd edition,1662).

Gore, Thomas Nomenclator Geographicus (1667).

Gouldman, Francis A copious dictionary in three parts: I. the English before the Latin; II. the Latin before the English. III; the proper names of persons, places, and other things necessary to the understanding of historians and poets (London, 1664).

Grafton, Richard Grafton's Chronicle: or, History of England; To Which is Added His Table of the Bailiffs, Sherrifs, and Mayors, of the City of London, From the Year 1189 to 1558, Inclusive (1563).

Gregorius, Petrius Syntagma Juris Universi, atque legum paene omnium Gentium Lib. 1 (Frankfurt am Main, 1599, 1611; Geneva, 1639).

Gruter, Jan Inscriptiones antiquae totius orbis romani, in absolutissimum corpus redactae ('Ancient inscriptions of the entire Roman world, edited in the most complete assemblage') (1603).

Guidot, Thomas de thermis Britannicis tractatus. Accesserunt observationes hydrostaticae, chromaticae, et miscellaneae unius-cujusque balnei apud Bathoniam naturam ... exhibentes. (Observationum centuria, pleniorem in thermarum Bathoniensium naturam inquisitionem complectens, etc.) (London, 1691).

Guillim, John A Display of Heraldry (London, 1610).

———— A Display of Heraldrie: Manifesting a more Easie Access to the Knowledge thereof then hath hitherto been published by any, through the Benefit of Method: Wherein it is now reduced by the Study and Industry of John Guillim late Pursuivant at Armes. Interlaced with much variety of History, suitable to the Severall Occasions or Subjects. The fourth Edition… Printed for Jacob Blome (London, 1660).

Gunter, Edmund 'A New Treatise of Fortification', in Samuel Foster, The Workes of Edmund Gunter, Containing the Description of the Sector, Cross-staff, and Other Instruments; with a Canon of Artificial Sines & Tangent, &c. Much Enlarged by the Author. Together with a New Treatise of Fortification. Whereunto Is Now Added the Further Use of the Quadrant Fitted for Daily Practice (London, 1653).

Hatton, Baron Christopher
A Book of Seals (1640s). Reproduced by Lewis C. Loyd and Doris M. Stenton (eds), as, Sir Christopher Hatton's Book of Seals (Oxford, 1950).

Helvetius (Johann Friedrich Schweitzer), Vitulus Aureus, 'The Golden Calf, which the world adores and desires' (1667).

Henshaw, Thomas (ed.), 'Stephen Skinner's Etymologicon Linguæ Anglicanae (London, 1671).

Heylyn, Peter Cosmographie in four bookes: containing the chorographie and historie of the whole world, and all the principall kingdomes, provinces, seas and isles thereof (London, 1652). (II.510)

———— Ἠρωολογία Anglorum; or, A help to English history. Containing a succession of all the kings of England, the English, Saxons, and the Britons, the kings and princes of Wales; the kings and lords of Man, and the Isle of Wight. As also, of all the dukes, marquises, earls, and bishops thereof. With the descriptions of the places from whence they had their titles. Together with the names and ranks of the viscounts, barons, and baronets, of England, by Peter Heylyn, D. D. Prebendary of Westminster (1641).

———— The History of St. George of Cappadocia (1631).

———— Ἠρωολογία Anglorum; or, a help to English history (1641).

Heywood, Thomas The Hierarchie of the blessed Angells (London, 1635).

Higden, Ranulf Polychronicon (or Ranulphi Castrensis, cognomine Higden, Polychronicon (sive Historia Polycratica) ab initio mundi usque ad mortem regis Edwardi III in septem libros dispositum) written by the English Benedictine monk, Ranulf Higden (c.1280-1364).

Hildebrand, Friedrich Antiquitates Romanae: in compendium contractae, et juxta ordinem alphabeti dispositae, bono juventutis (3rd edition, Oxford, 1673).

Holinshed, Raphael Chronicles: The firste volume of the chronicles of England, Scotlande, and Irelande conteyning the description and chronicles of England, from the first inhabiting unto the conquest : the description and chronicles of Scotland, from the first original of the Scottes nation till the yeare of our Lorde 1571 : the description and chronicles of Yrelande, likewise from the first originall of that nation untill the yeare 1571 / faithfully gathered and set forth by Raphaell Holinshed (London, 1577; enlarged 1587).

Hooke, Robert Micrographia (Royal Society, 1665).

Hooker, John (ed.) The first and second volumes of Chronicles comprising 1. The description and historie of England, 2. The description and historie of Ireland, 3. The description and historie of Scotland: first collected and published by Raphaell Holinshed, William Harrison, and others: now newlie augmented and continued (with manifold matters of singular note and worthie memorie) to the yeare 1586. by John Hooker aliàs Vowell Gent and others. With convenient tables at the end of these volumes (London, 1587).

Hooker, Richard Of The Laws of Ecclesiastical Polity, 8 vols (1594-1648).

Hoveden or Howden, Roger of Gesta Henrici II et Gesta Regis Ricardi ('Deeds of Henry II and King Richard') (c.1192). Revised in, Chronica magistri Rogeri de Hoveden ('Chronicles of Master Roger of Howden: the story of England before Henry II's reign continuing until 1201' (c.1192-1201).

Howe, Edmund The Abridgement of the English Chronicles First Collected by M. John Stow, and After Him Augmented with Every Memorable Antiquities, and Continued with Matter (1611).

Howell, James A French and English Dictionary composed by Mr Randle Cotgrave with another in English and French (London, 1673).

Howells, James Cottoni posthuma (1651).

Huntington, Henry of Historia Anglorum or The Chronicle of Henry of Huntingdon. Comprising the history of England, from the invasion of Julius Cæsar to the accession of Henry II. Also, The acts of Stephen, king of England and duke of Normandy (1129-54).

Hyde, Thomas De Historia shahiludii tria scripta hebraica viz. Rabbi Abraham Aben-ezrae prelegans poema rythmicum, R. Bonseniora Ben-Jachiae facunda oratio profaica, liber deliciae regum prosa, stylo puriore, per anonymum. Omnia ex Chartis MSS jam primo deprompsit & Latine vertit Thomas Hyde (Oxford, 1689).

Ingulph (Ingulphus) 'Chronicle of Croyland Abbey', first printed (in part) in Henry Saville's Scriptores post Bedam (1596).

Irenæus of Lyons Adversus Haereses,(Against the Heresies) Vol. 3. (c.180 AD).

Kitchin, John Le Courte Leete et Courte Baron & Hundred Courte &c., Collect by John Kitchin de Grais Inne, an apprentice in Ley (London, 1592).

Lambarde, William A perambulation of Kent conteining the description, hystorie, and customes of that shyre. Collected and written (for the most part) in the yeare 1570. Nowe increased by the addition of some things which the authour him selfe hath obserued since that time (London, 1576).

Leigh, Francis Of the Antiquity, Office and Privilege of the Heralds in England (1575).

Leigh, Gerard The Accedence of Armorie (London, 1563).

Leland, John Itinerary, First published by Thomas Hearne (1770). Leland's notes were not published until the 18th century but they provided much information for William Camden's Britannia (first edition, 1586), and many other antiquarian works.

Lister, Martin De Cochleis (London, 1685)

———— Exercitatio anatomica de Cochleis, maxime terrestribus & limacibus (London, 1694).

Malmesbury, William of Gesta Pontificum (1125).

———— Gesta Regum Anglorum, 'Deeds of the Kings of the English' (1125-34).

Manwood, John Treatise of the lawes of the forest ... also a treatise of the pourallee ... whereunto are added the statutes of the forest (1615).

Marshall, Henry Observationes in Evangeliorum Versiones perantiquas duas, Gothicas scil. et Anglo-Saxonicas (Dortmund, 1665; Amsterdam, 1684).

Minsheu, John Ductor in linguas, Glosson Etimologicon (1617).

Monmouth, Geoffrey of Historia Regum Britanniae 'History of the Kings of Britain' (c. 1136).

Morgan, Sylvanus Armilogia, sive, Ars chromocritica. The language of arms by the colours & metals being analogically handled according to the nature of things, and fitted with apt motto's to the heroical science of herauldry in the symbolical world : whereby is discovered what is signified by every honourable partition, ordinary, or charge, usually born in coat-armour, and mythologized to the heroical theam of Homer on the shield of Achilles: a work of this nature never yet extant (London, 1666).

Munday, Anthony A Briefe Chronicle of the Successe of the Times from the Creation of the Worlde to this Instant (1611).

Newburgh, William of Historia rerum Anglicarum (1196-1198).

Newman, Samuel A Concordance to the Holy Scriptures: with the Various Readings both of Text and Margin, in a More Exact Method then hath Hitherto been Extant (1st edition, London, 1643; 2nd edition, Cambridge, 1662). Known as the Cambridge Concordance.

Norden John The Surveyor's Dialogue (London, 1607).

Ogilby, John Britannia, Volume the First, or An illustration of the kingdom of England and dominion of Wales: by a geographical and historical description of the principal roads thereof actually admeasured and delineated in a century of whole-sheet copper-sculps: accommodated with the ichnography of the several cities and capital towns, and compleated by an accurate account of the more remarkable passages of antiquity: together with a novel discourse of the present state (London, 1675).

———— Mr Ogilby's tables of his measur'd roads ... with other remarks ... to which is added, A true account of the markets and fairs, &c. collected in his survey (1676).

Ortelius, Abraham Theatrum Orbis Terrarum: 'Theatre of the World' (1570).

Oviedo. Gonzalo Fernandez De Oviedo y Valdes (known as Oviedo) La Natural hystoria de las Indias ('The Natural History of the West Indies') (1526-35), printed in English (1555-56).

Pagit, Ephraim Christianographie, or, a Description of the Sundrie Sorts of Christians in the World (1635).

Palladio, Andrea The Four Books of Architecture (Venice, 1570). Book I was first published in English in London in 1663.

Paris, Matthew (d.1259)
Chronica Majora, a universal history (in several parts) from the Creation to 1259. Bound with the third part is the Historia Anglorum (1250-55).

Petyt (Petit), William The Antient Right of the Commons of England Asserted (1680).

Plot, Robert The Natural History of Oxford-shire: being an essay towards the natural history of England (1677).

——— The Natural History of Staffordshire (Oxford, 1686).

Prideaux, Humphrey Marmora Oxoniensia ex Arundellianis, Seldenianis, aliisque conflate recensuit & perpetuo commentario explicavit (Oxford, 1676).

Prynne, William The History of King John, King Henry III and the most illustrious King Edward the I, wherein the ancient sovereign dominion of the Kings of England, Scotland, France and Ireland ... is asserted and vindicated (London, 1670).

Ptolemy Geographia (Latin translation, 1406, first printed edition, 1477).

Ray, John A Collection of English words, not generally used ... in two alphabetical catalogues, ... northern ... southern counties, with catalogues of English birds and fishes, and an account of preparing ... metals and minerals (London, 1674, enlarged 1691).

——— A collection of English proverbs digested into a convenient method for the speedy finding any one upon occasion: with short annotations: whereunto are added local proverbs with their explications, old proverbial rhythmes, less known or exotick proverbial sentences, and Scottish proverbs (Cambridge, 1678).

Reinesius, Thomas Nova Reperta Inscriptionum Antiquarum (Leipzig and Frankfurt, 1682).

Ridley, Sir Thomas A View of the Civile and Ecclesiastical Law (London, 1607).

Rosinus, Johannes Antiquitatum romanarum corpus absolutissimum (Basel, 1585).

Ryley, William the elder [Lancaster Herald] and William Ryley the younger Placita Parliamentaria Or Pleadings in Parliament, with Judgments thereon in the Reign of Edward the First and Edward the Second ... Containing ... Statutes, Ordinances, Provisions, Inhibitions, Forms of Writs on several occasions, Prohibitions, Proclamations, with the Confirmation of Magna Charta and Charta de Foresta. As also of some other Records taken out of the Tower of London which prove the Homage anciently due to the Kings of England from Scotland, and the Establishment of Ireland under the Laws of England (London, 1661).

Sabellicus, Marcus Antonius
Enneades sive Rhapsodia historiarum (1498).

Sammes, Aylett Britannia Antiqua Illustrata, or the Antiquities of Ancient Britain derived from the Phœnicians (1676).

Scaccario Dialogus de Scaccario: 'Dialogue concerning the Exchequer', a mediaeval treatise on the practice of the English Exchequer written in the late 12th century as a series of questions and answers by Richard FitzNeal.

Scotus, Marianus Chronicles of Marianus Scotus (first printed, Basel, 1559).

Selden, John Titles of Honor (1614).

———— Fleta, Seu Commentarius Juris Anglicani Sic Nuncupatus, Sub Edwardo Rege Primo (1647, 1685).

Skene, Sir John De Verborum Significatione: The Exposition of the terms and difficill wordes conteined in the foure buikes of Regiam Magistatem, etc. (2nd edition, Edinburgh, 1599).

Skinner, Stephen Etymologicon Linguae Anglicanae (1671).

Smetius, Johannes and Joannes Smetius Antiquitates Neomagenses. Sive notitia rarissimarum rerum antiquarum, quas in veteri Batavorum Oppido studiose comparavit Johannes Smetius, pater & filius (Noviomagi Batavorum, 1678).

Smith, Captain John The true travels, adventures, and observations of Captaine John Smith, in Europe, Asia, Affrica, and America, from anno Domini 1593 to 1629 (London, 1630).

Smith, Sir Thomas A Discourse of the Commonweal of this Realm of England (1581).

Smyth (Smith), John England's improvement revived; plainly discovering the several ways of improving all sorts of waste and barren ground and of enriching all earths, with the natural quality of all lands; and the several weeds and plants which naturally thrive therein observed &c.; together with the manner of planting all sorts of timber trees and underwoods experienced in 30 years' practice. 6 vols (London, 1670).

Speed, John The Historie of Great Britaine Under the Conquests of the Romans, Saxons, Danes and Normans. Their Originals, Manners, Habits, Warres, Coines, and Seales: with the Successions, Lives, Acts, and Issues of the English Monarchs from Julius Caesar, unto the Raigne of King James of famous Memorie (London, 1611).

———— Theatrum Imperii Magnae Brtitanniae: The theatre of the empire of Great Britaine presenting an exact geography of the kingdomes of England, Scotland, Ireland, and the iles adioyning: with the shires, hundreds, cities and shire-townes, within ye kingdome of England, divided and described by Iohn Speed (London, 1611/12).

———— 'The Miniature Speed': small (10cm x 17cm) cartographic pocket book of Speed's maps entitled*, England Wales and Ireland: their severall counties. Abridged from a farr larger volume: by John Speed* (London, 1619).

———— 'Catalogus Religiosarum Ædium ex Anglico Ioannis Speed, Latinus', in N. Harpsfield and E. Campion, (ed. R. Gibbon), Historia Anglicana Ecclesiastica (Douai 1622).

———— An Epitome of Mr John Speed's Theatre of the Empire of Great Britain and his Prospect of the most famous parts of the World (London, 1676).

Spelman, Sir Henry Concilia, Decreta, Leges, Constitutiones in Re Ecclesiarum Orbis Britannici (1639).

——— Glossarium Archaiologicum (1626, compl. William Dugdale 1664).

——— Villare Anglicum: or a view of the townes of England (London, 1656).

Spottiswood (Spotswood), John
The History of the Church of Scotland: beginning the year of our Lord 203, and continued to the end of the reign of King James VI (1655).

Stephanius, S. J. Saxonis Grammaticae Historiae Danicae Libri XVI (1645).

Stephanus of Byzantium de Urbibus (6th century; 1st published in Venice, 1502).

Stephanus, Charles Dictionarium historicum, geographicum, poeticum (1553).

Stow, John The chronicles of England from Brute unto this present yeare of Christ. 1580. Collected by Iohn Stow citizen of London (London, 1580).

——— A Survey of London (1598, 1603).

Thoroton, Robert (1623-78)
The Antiquities of Nottinghamshire (1677).

Trithemius, Johannes Compendium sive Breviarium primi voluminis annalium sive historiarum, de origine Rerum & gentis Francorum (Paris, 1539 edition, Lib I, 38: 35).

Twysden, Roger Historiae Anglicanae Scriptores Decem (1652).

Upton, Nicholas De Studio Militari (1447).

Ussher, James Britannicarum Ecclesiarum Antiquitates (1639).

——— The Whole Works of the Most Rev. James Ussher, Vol. 6 (Dublin, 1639).

Varagine, Jacobus de Legenda Aurea (c. 1260; first dated edition, Barcelona, 1494).

Venning, Ralph Milk and Honey, or, A Miscellaneous Collation of Many Christian Experiences, Sayings, Sentences, and Several Places of Scripture Improved (London, 1654).

Veronensis, Torelli Saraynae
De origine et amplitudine ciuitatis Veronae (Verona, 1540).

Verstegan, Richard A Restitution of Decayed Intelligence in Antiquities concerning the most noble and renowned English Nation (1605; reprinted 1628, 1634, 1652, 1655, 1673).

Vincent, Augustine A discoverie of errours in the first edition of the Catalogue of Nobility published by Raphe Brooke, York Herald, from 1619 untill this present yeare, 1622: at the end whereof, is annexed a review of a later edition, by him stolne into the world, 1621 (London, 1622).

Wake, Isaac Rex platonicus: sive, de potentissimi principis Iacobi Britanniarum regis, ad illustrissimam Academiam Oxoniensem, adventu, Aug. 27. Anno M. DC. V. (1635). A description, in Latin, of the king's entertainment at Oxford in 1605.

Walsingham, Thomas Ypodigma Neustriæ (London, 1574).

Wase, Christopher Considerations Concerning Free Schools as Settled in England (Oxford, 1678).

William of Malmesbury
Gesta Regum Anglorum (1125-34).

———— Gesta Pontificum (1125).

Yorke, James The Union of Honour (London, 1640).

Select List of Classical Texts

Aristotle Politiká (Politics: Things concerning the Polis) in eight books.

Cicero, Marcus Tullius
De Oratore (On the Orator) (55BC).

———— Letters to Atticus. Book 4.

Dio Cassius (Lucius Cassius Dio)
Historia Romana, in 80 books: book 40.

Dioscorides, Pedanius
De Materia Medica (c. 77 AD).

Eutropius Breviarium Historiae Romanae (Summary of Roman History).

Florus An Epitome of Roman History, XLV.

Herodian libro 6^{0} ad Cultiorem Vitam; 6th of 8 Books entitled Roman History.

Horace Epodes 7.

Irenæus of Lyons Adversus Haereses, Vol. 3.

Livy The History of Rome, Bk 1.

Lucan (Marcus Annaeus Lucanus)
Pharsalia or De Bello Civili.

Macrobius Saturnalia.

Martial (Marcus Valerius Martialis)
Epigrams. XC. Epigrammata contraria.

Notitia Dignitatum List of Offices of the Late Roman Empire.

Ovid Metamorphoses Bk 13.

———— Heroides 1.

Pausanias Description of Greece (10 books), VIII.43.4.

Pliny the Elder Natural History.

Ptolemy	Geographia.
Suetonius	Life of Virgil.
Tacitus	Agricola. (De vita et moribus Iulii Agricolae)
Valerius Maximus	Factorum ac dictorum memorabilium libri IX (Nine books of memorable deeds and sayings).
Virgil	Aeneid, Book VI.
Vitruvius, Pollio	de Architectura (The 10 books on Architecture).

Bibliography 2

Published Volumes, Journal Articles, Theses, Maps and Websites consulted for this edition

General Volumes published before 1800

Anon., The Strange and Wonderful History of Mother Shipton (London, 1686).

Assigns of Richard and Edward Atkins, The Tradesman's Lawyer and Countrey-man's Friend (London, 1703).

Atkins, John, A Voyage to Guinea, Brasil and the West Indies, 2nd edition (London, 1737).

Barlow, Frederick, The Complete English Dictionary: Or, General Repository of the English Language, Vol. 2 (1773).

Baxter, William, Glossary of Roman Antiquities (1726).

Birch, Thomas, The History of the Royal Society of London for improving natural knowledge, from its first rise, in which the most considerable of those papers communicated to the society which have hitherto not been published are inserted in their proper order (London, 1757).

Birkbeck, Simon, The Protestant's Evidence (1634).

Borlase, William, Antiquities, historical and monumental, of the County of Cornwall (1754).

Brathwate, Richard, alias 'Corymbæus', Barnabæ Itinerarium, or Barnabee's Journal (1638).

Brookes, R., The Natural History of Birds: with the Method of Bringing Up and Managing those of the singing kind, Vol. 2 (London, 1763).

Burn, Richard, The Justice of the Peace, and Parish Officer, Vol. 2 (1780).

Camden, William, Britannia: Or, A Chorographical Description of the Flourishing Kingdoms of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and the Islands Adjacent; From the Earliest Antiquity, 3 vols, translated by Richard Gough (1789).

Collins, Arthur, A Supplement to the Four Volumes of the Peerage of England (London, 1750).

Drake, Francis, Eboracum or the History and Antiquities of York (London, 1736).

Foster, Samuel (ed.), The Workes of Edmund Gunter, Containing the Description of the Sector, Cross-staff, and Other Instruments; with a Canon of Artificial Sines & Tangent, &c. Much Enlarged by the Author. Together with a New Treatise of Fortification. Whereunto Is Now Added the Further Use of the Quadrant Fitted for Daily Practice (London, 1653).

Gerard, John, The Herball Or Generall Historie of Plantes (1597).

Gibson, Edmund (ed.), The Posthumous Works of Sir Henry Spelman Relating to the Laws and Antiquities of England Published from the Original Manuscripts. With the Life of the Author (Oxford, 1698) (2nd edition, London, 1727).

Goguet, Antoine-Yves. The Origin of Laws, Arts and Sciences, and their progress among the most ancient nations, Vol. 3 (Edinburgh, 1775).

Gouldman, Francis, A copious dictionary in three parts: I. the English before the Latin; II. the Latin before the English. III; the proper names of persons, places, and other things necessary to the understanding of historians and poets (London, 1664).

Grafton, Richard, Grafton's Chronicle: or, History of England; To Which is Added His Table of the Bailiffs, Sherrifs, and Mayors, of the City of London, From the Year 1189 to 1558, Inclusive (1563).

Hale, Sir Matthew, The History of the Common Law of England (1713).

———, Historia Placitorum Coronæ, or The History of the Pleas of the Crown (1736).

Harpsfield, N., and E. Campion*, Historia Anglicana Ecclesiastica* (Douai, 1622).

Horsley, John, Britannia Romana (London, 1732).

Bishop, G., R Nuberie and R. Barker (Typographij Regii), Rogeri Hovedeni Annalium Pars Prior & Posterior, in Rerum Anglicarum Scriptores Post Bedam Praecipui, ex vetustissimis codicibus manuscriptis nunc primum in lucem editi (London, 1596).

Humble, George, England Wales and Ireland: their severall counties. Abridged from a farr larger volume: by John Speed and are to be sold by George Humble in pops head alley (1619).

Jacob, Giles, A New Law Dictionary, 2nd edition (London, 1732).

Kennett, Bishop White, Parochial Antiquities attempted in the History of Ambrosden, Burcester, and adjacent parts in Oxford and Bucks (1695).
Leland, John, Itinerary (published by Thomas Hearne, 1770).
Markham, G., and L. Machin, Dumbe Knight (1608).
Nicolson, Joseph, and Richard Burn, The History and Antiquities of the Counties of Westmorland and Cumberland, 2 vols (London, 1777).
Nicolson, William, Glossarium Brigantinum (1677).
———, The English Historical Library, or, A short view and character of most of the writers now extant, either in print or manuscript which may be serviceable to the undertakers of a general history of this kingdom (London, 1696).
———, The English historical library, in Three Parts, giving a Short View and Character of most of our Historians either in Print or Manuscript : With an Account of our Records, Law-Books, Coins, and other matters serviceable to the Undertakers of a General History of England, The Second Edition Corrected and Augmented (London, 1714).
———, The English, Scotch and Irish Historical Libraries giving a short view and character of most of our historians, either in print or manuscript, New Edition (London, 1776).
Rawlet, John, T*he Christian Monitor* (1695).
Rowlands, Henry, Mona Antiqua Restaurata: an Archaeological Discourse on the Antiquities, Natural and Historical, of the Isle of Anglesey, the Antient seat of the British Druids (1723).
Rymer, Thomas, Fœdera, Vol. 14 (London, 1712).
Savile, Henry (ed.) Rogeri Hovedeni Annalium Pars Prior & Posterior, in Rerum Anglicarum Scriptores Post Bedam Praecipui, ex vetustissimis codicibus manuscriptis nunc primum in lucem editi (London, 1596).
Stevens, John, The History of the Ancient Abbeys, Monasteries, Hospitals, Cathedral and Collegiate Churches; being two additional volumes to Sir William Dugdale's Monasticon Anglicanum, Vol. I (London, 1722).
Stukeley, William, An Account of a Roman Temple and Other Antiquities, Near Graham's Dike in Scotland (1720).
———, An Account of Richard of Cirencester, Monk of Westminster, and of his Works (1757).
Thoresby, Ralph, Biographia Britannica, or The Lives of the most eminent Persons who have flourished in Great Britain and Ireland from the earliest ages down to the present times, collected by the best authorities, both Printed and Manuscript, and digested in the Manner of Mr Bayle's Historical and Critical Dictionary, Vol. 6, Part 1 (London, 1763).
Tuckney, Anthony, Forty Sermons Upon Several Occasions (1676).
Tynemouth, John of, and Wynkyn de Worde (printer), Nova legenda Anglie. Sanctilogium Angliae, Walliae, Scotiae, et Hiberniae (1515).
Upton, Nicholas, De Studio Militari (1447).
Warburton, Vallum Romanum, or the History and Antiquities of the Roman Wall, commonly called the Picts Wall, in Cumberland and Northumberland, with plates and maps (London, 1753).
Ward, Richard, The Life of The Learned and Pious Dr Henry More, Late Fellow of Christ's College in Cambridge. To which are annex'd Dives of his Useful and Excellent Letters (London, 1710).
Waterhouse, Edward, An Humble Apologie for Learning and Learned Men (1653).
———, A Discourse and Defense of Arms and Armory (1660)
———, The Gentleman's Monitor, or, A sober inspection into the virtues, vices and ordinary means of the rise and decay of men and families (1665).
West, Thomas, The Antiquities of Furness illustrated with Engravings (London, 1794, 1805).
Wirsung, Christof, The general practise of physicke conteyning all inward and outward parts of the body, with all the accidents and infirmities that are incident unto them, even from the crowne of the head to the sole of the foote: also by what meanes (with the help of God) they may be remedied (London, 1605).
Williams, E. & T. (eds), The Cambrian Register 2: 1796 (London, 1796).
Wood, Anthony à, Athenæ Oxonienses Athenae Oxonienses: An Exact History of All the Writers and Bishops Who Have Had Their Education in the University of Oxford; To Which Are Added the Fasti, or Annals of the Said University, I. (London, 1691-92).
Wood, Anthony à, and J. Peshall, The Antient and Present State of the City of Oxford (London, 1773).

General Volumes published after 1800

Abel, E.L., Intoxication in Mythology: A Worldwide Dictionary of Gods, Rites, Intoxicants and Places (Jefferson, NC, 2006), 16-17.
Aitken, G.A. (ed.), Satires of Andrew Marvell, sometime Member of Parliament for Hull (London and New York, 1892).
Statutes of the Realm, Vol. 5 (1628-80), Great Britain Record Commission (1819).
Inventory of the Historical Monuments in Westmorland (London, 1936).
Anderson, Robert, Ballads in the Cumberland Dialect with Notes and a Glossary (Carlisle, 1805).
Armitt, M.L., The Church at Grasmere: A History (Kendal, 1912).
Armstrong, A.M., A. Mawer, F.M. Stenton & Bruce Dickins, The Place Names of Cumberland 1. (Cambridge, 1950).
Baldwin, Martha R., 'Toads and Plague: Amulet Therapy in Seventeenth-Century Medicine', Bulletin of the History of Medicine, 67, 2 (Summer 1993), 227-247.
Bale, John, Index Britanniae Scriptorum (Oxford, 1902).
Banks, C.T., Baronia Anglica Concentrata: or, A concentrated account of all the baronies commonly called baronies in fee; deriving their origin from writ of summons, and not from any specific limited creation, whereto is added the proofs of parliamentary sitting, from the reign of Edw. I to that of Queen Anne…, Vol. I (Ripon, 1844).
Banks, Thomas C., An Historical Account of the Ancient & Modern Forms, Pageantry, & Ceremony of the Coronation of the Kings of England (London, 1820).
Barker, Juliet, Conquest: The English Kingdom of France 1417-50 (Cambridge MA, 2012).
Bartsch, Shadi, Persius, A Study in Food, Philosophy, and The Figural (Chicago IL, 2015).
Bate, Keith, Malcolm Barber and Rosemary Horrox (eds), The Templars. Selected sources translated and annotated (Manchester, 2002).
Bateman, N., 'From rags to riches; the wool cloth trade and Blackwell Hall, c 1450-1790: a brief survey', Post-medieval Archaeology 38.1 (Museum of London Archaeology, 2004), 1-15.
Bath, Jo, and John Newton,
'Sensible Proof of Spirits: Ghost Belief during the Later 17th Century', Folklore 117, 1 (2006), 1-14.
Beck, Thomas Alcock, Annales Furnesienses (London, 1844).
Beddard, Robert, A Kingdom without a King: The Journal of the Provisional Government in the Revolution of 1688 (Oxford, 1988).
Bennett, J.A., and Richard Ward (eds), The Manuscripts of S.H. le Fleming, Esq., of Rydal Hall (London, 1890).
Bingham, Roger, Heversham – a History of Heversham's Oldest Recorded Church (Milnthorpe, 1984).
———, Kendal: A Social History (Milnthorpe, 1995).
Birkbeck, Robert, The Birkbecks of Westmorland and their Descendants (London, 1900).
Blackstone, Sir William, Commentaries on the Laws of England in Four Books (1753) (with notes selected from various later editions, and a Life of the Author by George Sharswood, in Two Volumes (Philadelphia PA, 1893).
Bliss, Philip (ed.), Wood, Anthony à, Athenae Oxonienses: an exact history of all the writers and bishops who have had their education in the University of Oxford: to which are added the Fasti, or Annals of the said University (Oxford, 1632-1695) (London, 1813-20).
Bouch, C.M.L., Prelates and People of the Lake counties: a History of the Diocese of Carlisle 1133-1933 (Kendal, 1948).
Boumphrey, R.S., C. Roy Hudleston and J. Hughes, An Armorial for Westmorland and Lonsdale CWAAS Extra Series XXI (Kendal, 1975).
Brathwate, Richard, and Joseph Haslewood (ed.) Drunken Barnaby's Four Journeys to the North (1818).
Breay, John, The Light in the Dales (Norwich, 1996).
Breeze, Andrew, British Battles 493-937: Mount Badon to Brunanburh (London, 2020).
Brinkley, Roberta Florence, Arthurian Legend in the Seventeenth Century (Baltimore MD, 1932).

British Museum, A Catalogue of the Manuscripts in the Cottonian Library deposited in the British Museum (1802).
Britnell, Richard (ed.), Durham Priory Manorial Accounts, 1277-1310 (Woodbridge, 2015).
Broadway, Jan, William Dugdale and the Significance of County History in the Early Stuart England (Stratford-upon-Avon, 1999).
Broom, H., E. Hadley and W. Wait, Commentaries on the Laws of England, Vol. 1 (Albany NY, 1875).
Brown, F.C., F.A. Bourn & Hermann V. von Holst, Study of the Orders (Chicago IL,1906).
Brunskill, E.W., 'A Westmorland Family: Fortunes of the Philipsons', published as a series of three articles in the Westmorland Gazette (3 September 1927, 24 September 1927 and 1 October 1927).
Buckland F.T., Birds and Bird Life (London, 1863).
Bulmer, T., & Co., History, Topography & Directory of Cumberland, 1901 (Preston, 1901).
Bunson, Matthew, A Dictionary of the Roman Empire (New York and Oxford, 1995).
Burke, John, and John Bernard Burke, Encyclopædia of Heraldry: Or General Armory of England, Scotland, and Ireland (London, 1844).
Burke, Sir Bernard, A Genealogical and Heraldic History of the Extinct and Dormant Baronetcies of England, Ireland and Scotland (London, 1838).
———, A Genealogical History of the Dormant, Abeyant, Forfeited and Extinct Peerages of the British Empire (London, 1866).
Bush, Michael, The Pilgrims' Complaint: A Study of Popular Thought in the Early Tudor North (Abingdon, 2009).
Carlos, Ann M., and Frank D. Lewis, Commerce and a Frozen Sea: Native Americans and the European Fur Trade (Philadelphia PA, 2010).
Carpenter, David A., The Struggle for Mastery: Britain, 1066-1284, (Oxford, 2003).
Cartwright, Thomas, The Diary of Dr Thomas Cartwright, Bishop of Chester commencing at the time of his elevation to that see, August M. DC. LXXXVI. And terminating with the visitation of St. Mary Magdalene College, Oxford, October M. DC. LXXXVII (Camden Society, London, 1843).
Casserly, David, Massacre, The Storming of Bolton (Stroud, 2010).
Catholic Record Society, Records Volume 28: The Douay College Diaries: The Seventh Diary 1715-1778 (London, 1928).
Chambers Twentieth Century Dictionary (Edinburgh, 1950).
Chambers, William and Robert (eds), Chambers's Information for the People, Vol. 1. 5th edition (London and Edinburgh, 1874).
Cheviot, Andrew, Proverbs, Proverbial Expressions, and Popular Rhymes of Scotland, collected and arranged with Introduction, Notes and Parallel Phrases (Paisley and London, 1896).
Clark, Andrew (ed.), The Life and Times of Anthony Wood, Antiquary of Oxford, 1632-1695, described by Himself, collected from his Diaries and other Papers, Volume 3 (1682-1695) (Oxford, 1894).
Clarke, E.D., Travels in various Countries of Europe, Asia and Africa. Part the Second: Greece, Egypt and the Holy Land, 2nd edition (London, 1813).
Clarke, James, A Survey of the Lakes of Cumberland, Westmorland, and Lancashire (Penrith, 1787).
Clay, Agnes, 'Centumviri', in Hugh Chisholm (ed.), Encyclopædia Britannica. Vol. 5, 11th edition (Cambridge, 1910-11).
Cocker, M. and R. Mabey, Birds Britannica (London, 2005), 38.
Collingwood, W.G., Elizabethan Keswick: Extracts from the Original Account Books, 1564-1577, of the German Miners in the Archives of Augsburg (Kendal, 1912).
Colvin, Howard, A biographical dictionary of British architects, 1600-1840 (1st edition, London, 1978; 3rd edition, Newhaven CT, 1995).
Copper, Bob, A Song for Every Season: A Hundred Years of a Sussex Farming Family (London, 1971).
Coventry, Thomas, A Readable Edition of Coke upon Littleton (London, 1830).
Cross, F. L., & E.A. Livingstone (eds), The Oxford Dictionary of the Christian Church (Oxford, 2005).

Currie, C.R.J., and C. P. Lewis (eds), English County Histories: A Guide (Stroud, 1994).
Curtis, Jared (ed.), Collected Reading Texts from the Cornell Wordsworth III (HEB, 209,2014).
Curwen, J.F., The Castles and Fortified Towers of Cumberland, Westmorland, and Lancashire North of the Sands, CWAAS Extra Series 13 (Kendal, 1913).
———, Records Relating To the Barony of Kendal, 3, CWAAS Record Series 6 (Kendal, 1926).
———, The Later Records of North Westmorland or the Barony of Appleby (Kendal, 1932).
Dale, Bryan, The Good Lord Wharton (London, 1906).
Darwall-Smith, Robin, 'The Problem of Georgian Oxford', Histories of Universities XXXV/I (Oxford, 2022).
Davies, C.S.L., 'Tournai and the English Crown, 1513-1519', The Historical Journal, 41, 1 (I998), I-26.
Ditchfield, Peter H., Old English Customs extant at the Present Time: an account of local observances, festival customs and ancient ceremonies yet surviving in Great Britain (1896).
Don, George, A General History of the Dichlamydeous Plants, Vol. 1 (London, 1831).
Douglas, David, English Scholars 1660-1730, revised edition (London, 1951).
Dowding, Geoffrey, An introduction to the history of printing types; an illustrated summary of main stages in the development of type design from 1440 up to the present day: an aid to type face identification. (London, 1962).
Drabble, Margaret, et al, The Concise Oxford Companion to English Literature, 3rd edition (Oxford, 2013).
Duckett, G.F., A Description of the County of Cumberland taken in the year 1671 by Daniel Fleming, CWAAS Tract Series I (London & Kendal, 1882).
Dugdale, William Monasticon Anglicanum: a history of the abbies and other monasteries, hospitals, frieries, and cathedral and collegiate churches, with their dependencies, in England and Wales; also of all such Scotch, Irish and French monasteries, as were in manner connected with religious houses in England. Originally published in Latin by Sir William Dugdale, Vols 5, 6 (London, 1846).
———, (ed. J.W. Clay) Visitation of Yorkshire, Vol. 3 (1917).
Ellacombe, Henry Nicholson, The plant-lore and garden-craft of Shakespeare, 2nd edition (1884).
Ellsburg, Robert, Blessed Among Us: Day by Day with Saintly Witnesses (Minnesota, 2016).
Englefield, W.A.D., The History of the Painter-stainers Company of London (London, 1924).
Ewbank, Jane M. (ed.), Antiquary on Horseback. The First Publication of The Collections of the Rev. Thos. Machell Chaplain to King Charles II Towards a History of the Barony of Kendal, CWAAS Extra Series XIX (Kendal, 1963).
Fagel, Raymond, Leonor Álvarez Francés, and Beatriz Santiago Belmonte (eds), Early modern war narratives and the Revolt in the Low Countries (Manchester, 2020).
Ferguson, R.S. (ed.), Miscellany Accounts of the Diocese of Carlisle … by William Nicolson late Bishop of Carlisle, CWAAS Extra Series, Vol. I (London and Carlisle, 1877).
———, A History of Cumberland (London, 1890).
———, (ed.), A Cursory Relation of all the Antiquities & Familyes in Cumberland by (ed.) Edmund Sandford, circa, 1675, CWAAS Tract Series, Vol. IV (Kendal, 1890).
———, A History of Westmorland (London, 1894).
Ferguson, R.S., and W. Nanson (eds), Some Municipal Records of the City of Carlisle, CWAAS Extra Series, Vol. IV (Carlisle, 1887).
Ferguson, Robert, The Northmen in Cumberland and Westmoreland (London and Carlisle, 1856).
Fincham, Kenneth, and Nicholas Tyacke, Altars Restored: The Changing Face of English Religious Worship, 1547-c.1700 (Oxford, 2007).
Fleet, C., M. Wilkes, C.W.J. Withers, Scotland: Mapping the Nation (Edinburgh, 2011).
Fleming, Le, Stanley Hughes, J.A, Bennett and R. Ward (eds), The Manuscripts of S.H. Le Fleming Esq. of Rydal Hall (London, 1890).
Flores, Lisa Pierce, The History of Puerto Rico (Santa Barbara CA, 2010).
Foley, R., 'League of Augsburg War', in The Oxford Companion to Military History (Oxford, 2001).
Ford, John R. (ed.), The Beetham Repository 1770, by the Rev. William Hutton, Vicar of Beetham, 1762-1811, CWAAS Tract Series 7 (Kendal, 1906).
Foreville, Raymond and Gillian Keir (eds), The Book of St Gilbert (Oxford, 1997).

Foster, Joseph (ed.), The Visitation of Yorkshire, made in the years 1584/5 by Robert Glover, 1544-1588 (London, 1875).
———, (ed.), Pedigrees Recorded at the Heralds' Visitations of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmorland made by Richard St George, Norroy, King of Arms in 1615 and by William Dugdale, Norroy, King of Arms in 1666 (Carlisle and Kendal, 1891).
Fox, Adam, 'Remembering the Past in Early Modern England: Oral and Written Tradition', Transactions of the Royal Historical Society 9 (1999), 233-56.
———, Oral and Literate Culture in England 1500-1700 (Oxford, 2000).
———, 'Printed Questionnaires, Research Networks, and the Discovery of the British Isles, 1650–1800', Historical Journal, 53 (2010), 593–621.
———, 'Vernacular Culture and Popular Customs in Early Modern England: Evidence from Thomas Machell's Westmorland', Cultural and Social History 3 (2012), 329-47.
Fox-Davies, A.C., A Complete Guide to Heraldry (New York, 1978).
Fullarton, A & Co., Topographical, Statistical and Historical Gazetteer of Scotland, Vol. 1. (Glasgow, 1842).
Garnett, Emmeline, 'Mansergh', in F. Edmonds and S.A. Rose (eds), The Victoria History of the Counties of England: A History of the County of Westmorland, Vol. I (Martlesham, forthcoming).
Gee, Henry, and W.J. Hardy (eds), Documents Illustrative of English Church History (London, 1896).
Gemeticensis, Guilelmus 'Gesta Normannorum Ducum', Oxford Medieval Texts 21 (Oxford, 1992, 1995).
George, Robert H., 'The Charters Granted to English Parliamentary Corporations in 1688', English Historical Review 55, 217 (Jan., 1940), 47-56.
Gibbins, Henry de Beltgens, The Industrial History of England (London, 1897).
Gibson, William, A Social History of The Domestic Chaplain, 1530-1840 (London, 1997).
Goble, Rachel, 'The Execution of Perkin Warbeck', History Today, Vol. 49, 11 (November, 1999).
Gottfried, R.B., 'Samuel Daniel's Method of Writing History', Studies in the Renaissance 3 (1956), 157-74.
Gough, Henry, Glossary of Terms used in British Heraldry (Oxford, 1847).
Gowling, Margaret E., The Story of Brough-under-Stainmore (Kirkby Stephen, 2011).
Grainger, Francis and W.G. Collingwood (eds), The Register and Records of Holm Cultram, CWAAS Record Series 7 (Kendal, 1929).
Gregg, Jane, Ploughing in Latin: a History of Bampton (Bampton, 2nd edn, 2012).
Halbertsma, R.B., Scholars, Travellers, and Trade: The Pioneer Years of the National Museum of Antiquities in Leiden, 1818-1840 (Abingdon, 2003).
Hamper, William, The Life, Diary and Correspondence of Sir William Dugdale (London, 1827).
Harding, Vanessa, The Dead and the Living in Paris and London 1500-1670 (Cambridge MA, 2002).
Headwind, Bertil, The Dialect of Dentdale in the West Riding of Yorkshire (Upsala, 1967).
Hector, L.C., The Handwriting of English Documents (London, 1958).
Henning, Basil Duke, The History of Parliament: The House of Commons 1660-1690 III, Members M-Y (London, 1983).
Hodgkinson, John, The Greater Parish of Kendal, 1553-2002 during the patronage of Trinity College Cambridge (Kendal, 2002).
Hodgson, J., A Topographical and Historical Description of Westmorland (London, 1810).
Holmes, John, Descriptive Catalogue of Books in his Library, Vol 2 (London, 1830).
Hooke, Della, Trees in Anglo-Saxon England: Literature, Lore and Landscape (Woodbridge, 2010).
Hornsey, I.S., A History of Beer and Brewing (Cambridge, 2003).
Howitt, William, Cassell's Illustrated History of England II (London, 1858).
Hudleston, C. Roy, and R.S. Boumphrey, Cumberland Families and Heraldry CWAAS Extra Series XXIII (Kendal, 1978).
Humber, R.D., Heversham: The Story of a Westmorland School and Village (Kendal, 1968).
Hunter, Joseph (ed.), Letters of eminent men, addressed to Ralph Thoresby FRS, Vol. 1 (London, 1832).
Hunter, Joseph (ed.), The Diary of Ralph Thoresby FRS Author of The Topography of Leeds,1677-1724 in 2 Volumes, Vol. 1 (London, 1830).

Hyde, M. and N. Pevsner, Cumbria: Cumberland, Westmorland and Furness: The Buildings of England (New Haven CT and London (2010).

Hyde, Thomas, De Historia shahiludii tria scripta hebraica viz. Rabbi Abraham Aben-ezrae prelegans poema rythmicum, R. Bonseniora Ben-Jachiae facunda oratio profaica, liber deliciae regum prosa, stylo puriore, per anonymum. Omnia ex Chartis MSS jam primo deprompsit & Latine vertit Thomas Hyde (Oxford, 1689). (Extended edition, Philip Bliss, ed., London 1820).

Ingram, John (ed.), Elysium Britannicum, or The Royal Gardens (Philadelphia PA, 2001).

Iverson, K.V., Death to Dust: What Happens to Dead Bodies? (Tucson AZ, 1994).

Jackson, Charles (ed.), The Diary of Abraham De la Pryme, the Yorkshire Antiquary, Surtees Society Vol. 54 (Durham, 1870).

Jago, F.W.P., The Ancient Language, and the Dialect of Cornwall (Truro, 1882).

James, M.R., Eton and the King's Recollections, mostly trivial, 1875-1925 (Hastings, 2017).

Jamieson, John, Supplement to the Etymological Dictionary of the Scots Language (Edinburgh, 1841).

Jefferson, Samuel (ed.), Isaac Tullie, A Narrative of the Siege of Carlisle, in 1644 and 1645 (Carlisle, 1840).

Jefferson, Samuel, The History and Antiquities of Carlisle (Carlisle and London, 1838).

Johnson, Michael, Romance and the Gentry in Late Medieval England (Oxford, 2014).

Johnston, Warren, Revelation Restored: The Apocalypse in Later Seventeenth-Century England, Studies in Modern British Religious History 27 (Rochester NY, 2011).

Jones, Clement, A T*our in Westmorland* (1948).

Joyce, P.W., Local Irish Names Explained (Dublin, 1870).

Kamen, Henry, Spain, 1469-1714: A Society of Conflict (London and New York (1983, 2014).

Keeler, Mary Frear, Sir Francis Drake's West-Indian Voyage 1585-86 (Farnham, 1981).

Kennedy, E.D., 'Brompton's Chronicle', in Graeme Dunphy and Cristian Bratu (eds), Encyclopedia of the Medieval Chronicle (2016).

Kinney, A.F., D. W. Swain, E. D. Hill and W. A. Long (eds), The Routledge Encyclopedia of Tudor England (New York, 2001).

Kinney, J. Kendrick, A Law Dictionary and Glossary: Primarily for the Use of Students (Chicago IL, 1893).

Kohanski, Tamarah, and C. David Benson (eds), The Book of John Mandeville (Kalamazoo MI, 2007).

Kopel, David B., 'The Posse Comitatus and the Office of Sheriff: armed citizens summoned to the aid of law enforcement', Journal of Criminal Law and Criminology, 104, 4 (1973), 761.

Landau, Norma, The Justices of the Peace, 1679-1760 (London, 1984).

Latham, R.E., Revised Medieval Word-List from British and Irish Sources (Oxford, 1965, 1989).

Lecky, Katarzyna, Pocket Maps and Public Poetry in the English Renaissance (Oxford, 2019).

Lewis, Samuel, A Topographical Dictionary of England comprising the several counties, cities, boroughs, corporate and market towns, parishes, and townships, 7th edition (London, 1848).

Long, Jacqueline, 'Julia-jokes at Macrobius's Saturnalia: Subversive decorum in late antique reception of augustan political humor.' International Journal of the Classical Tradition 6:3 (1999), 337-55.

Loyd, Lewis C., and Doris M. Stenton (eds), Sir Christopher Hatton's Book of Seals (Oxford,1950).

Luard, Henry R. (ed.), Monachi Sancti Albani: Chronica Majora, seven vols (London, 1872-83), Vol. 3 (London, 1876).

Lucas, Peter, The Rise of the Quakers: Revaluing the place of Preston Patrick in the early movement (Kirkby Lonsdale, 2017).

Lyte, Maxwell, Stanley Hughes Le Fleming, James Arthur Bennett and Richard Ward (eds), The Manuscripts of S.H. le Fleming Esq. of Rydal Hall (London, 1890).

Macpherson, H.A., A Vertebrate Fauna of Lakeland: including Cumberland and Westmorland with Lancashire North of the Sands (Edinburgh, 1892).

Magrath J.R. (ed.), The Flemings in Oxford I (Oxford, 1904).

———, The Flemings in Oxford: Being Documents selected from the Rydal Papers in Illustration of the Lives and Ways of Oxford Men, 1650-1700, Vol. II, 1680-1690 (Oxford, 1913).

———, The Queen's College, 2 vols (Oxford, 1921).
Maitland, F.W., 'Northumbrian Tenures', English Historical Review. Vol. V., Issue XX, (1 October 1890), 625-632.
Malay, Jessica (ed.), Anne Clifford's Autobiographical Writing, 1590-1676 (Manchester, 2018).
Malden, H.E. (ed.), A History of the County of Surrey, Vol. 2 (London, 1967).
Mannex, P.J., History, Topography, and Directory of Westmorland; and Lonsdale North of the Sands in Lancashire (London, 1849).
Mehl, Andreas (tr. Hans Friedrich Mueller), Roman Historiography: An Introduction to its Basic Aspects and Development (Oxford, 2014).
Mendyk, Stan A.E., Speculum Britanniae: Regional Study, Antiquarianism and Science in Britain to 1700 (Toronto, Buffalo NY, London, 1989).
Merriton, George, Nomenclatura Clericalis: or the Young Clerk's Vocabulary in English Latine … (1685).
Metcalfe, R.W., The Ravenstonedale Parish Registers (Kendal, 1894).
Miller, George, On Fairness and Efficiency: the privatisation of the public income during the past millennium (Bristol, 2000).
Moorman, F.W., The Place-Names of the West Riding of Yorkshire, Thoresby Society (Leeds, 1910).
Morgan, M. H., (Translator & ed.) Vitruvius Pollio, The Ten Books on Architecture (Cambridge MA, 1914).
Morrill, John (ed.), The Oxford Illustrated History of Tudor and Stuart Britain (Oxford, 2000).
Morris, W.P., Records of Patterdale, Historical and Descriptive (1903).
Mullett, Michael A., John Bunyan in Context (Pittsburgh PA, 1997).
———, Patronage, Power and Politics in Appleby in the era of Lady Anne Clifford, 1649-1689, CWAAS Tract Series 25 (Kendal, 2015).
———, A New History of Penrith 1: From Pre-History to the Close of the Middle Ages (Carlisle, 2017).
———, A New History of Penrith, III: Penrith in the Stuart Century 1603-1714 (Carlisle, 2018).
———, Carlisle in Revolution and Restoration, c.1648-1688, CWAAS Tract Series 30 (Kendal, 2022).
Murfin, Lyn, Popular Leisure in the Lake Counties (Manchester, 1990).
Nicholls, W., The History and Traditions of Ravenstonedale, Westmorland (Manchester, 1877).
Nicholson, Cornelius, The Annals of Kendal: being a historical and descriptive account of Kendal and the Neighbourhood, with biographical sketches of many eminent personages connected with the town (London and Kendal, 1832, 1861).
Nicholson, Helen, The Knights Hospitaller (Woodbridge, 2001).
Nicolas, Sir Harris, History of The Earldoms of Strathern, Monteith, and Airth (London and Edinburgh, 1842).
Nightingale, B., The Ejected of 1662 in Cumberland and Westmorland, their Predecessors and Successors, 2 vols (Manchester, 1911).
Norcliffe, C.B., (ed.), The Visitation of Yorkshire in the years 1563 and 1564 made by William Flower Esquire, Norroy, King of Arms (Harleian Soc. XVI, London, 1881).
Nugent, Charles, 'Cross-Head of the 17th century Market Cross, Ambleside, bearing the initials of Gawen Brathwaite and the date 1651, later converted into a sundial', Armitt Library and Museum Exhibition label, 2017.
Nurse, E.J., History of the Parish Church Windermere (Bowness-on-Windermere, 1908).
Nuttall, P.A. (ed.), Thomas Fuller, History of the Worthies of England, Vol. 3 (1840).
O. Hehir, Brendan, Harmony from Discords: A Life of Sir John Denham (Berkeley and Los Angeles CA, 1968).
Palliser, D.M., Tudor York (Oxford, 1979).
Papworth, J.W., and A.W.W. Morant, An alphabetical Dictionary of the Coats of Arms belonging to Families in Great Britain and Ireland, forming an Ordinary of British Armorials (London, 1874).
Papworth, W., Gwilt's Encyclopaedia of Architecture (1867).
Parkinson, Anne C., A History of Catholicism in the Furness Peninsula, 1127-1997 (Lancaster, 1998).

Parry, Graham, Trophies of Time: English Antiquarians of the seventeenth century (Oxford, 1995 and 2007).
Parson, William and William White, History, Directory, and Gazetteer, of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmorland, with that Part of the Lake District in Lancashire, forming the Lordships of Furness and Cartmel (Leeds, 1829).
Payn, James, Furness Abbey and its Neighbourhood (Windermere and London, 1858).
Penman, Jane, Studies in the History of Martindale (forthcoming).
Perriam, Denis R. and John Robinson, The Medieval Fortified Buildings of Cumbria, CWAAS Extra series XXIX (Kendal, 1998).
Phillips, C.B., The Corporation of Kendal under Charles II', Northern History 31 (1995), 157-77.
Piggott, Stuart, William Stukeley: An Eighteenth-Century Antiquary, 2nd edition (London, 1985).
Placzek, Adolf K. (ed.), Andrea Palladio, The Four Books of Architecture (New York, 1965).
Platt, Jane (ed.), The Diocese of Carlisle 1814-1855: Chancellor Walter Fletcher's 'Diocesan Book' with additional material from Bishop Percy's parish notebooks (Woodbridge, 2015).
Pollock, F., and F.M. Maitland, The History of English Law Before the Time of Edward I (Cambridge, 1895).
Pond, Enoch, Treatise on Christian Baptism (Boston MA, 1833).
Poole, William, 'A royalist mathematical practitioner in interregnum Oxford: the exploits of Richard Rawlinson', The Seventeenth Century 33, 5 (2018), 557-86.
Powlett, Catherine Lucy Wilhelmina, duchess of Cleveland, History of Battle Abbey (London, 1877).
Prescott, J.E. (ed.), The Register of the Priory of Wetherhal, CWAAS Record Series I (London, 1897).
Raines, F.R. (ed.), The Visitation of the County Palatine of Lancaster, made in the year 1613 by Sir Richard Saint-George, College of Arms, Chetham Soc. (Manchester, 1871).
Raines, F.R. (ed.), The Visitation of the County Palatine of Lancaster made in the year 1664-5 by Sir William Dugdale, Knight, Norroy, King of Arms, Part 2, Chetham Society (Manchester, 1872).
Raines, F.R. (ed.), The Visitation of the County Palatine of Lancaster made in the year 1567 by William Flower Esq. Norroy King of Arms (Chetham Soc., Manchester, 1870)].
Reames, Sherry L., The Legenda Aurea: A Re-examination of its Paradoxical History (Madison WI, 1985).
Rees, Thomas H, Notable Welshmen 1700-1900, with Brief Notes in chronological order (London, 1908).
Relph, J.T., Chronicles of Crosby Ravensworth (Crosby Ravensworth, 1992).
Report of the Royal Commission on Historical Manuscripts, Vol. 3 (London, 1872).
Richardson, Douglas, Plantagenet Ancestry: A Study In Colonial And Medieval Families, 2nd edition (Baltimore, 2011).
Riley, Henry T., (translator and ed.), Ingulph's Chronicle of the Abbey of Croyland with the Continuations by Peter de Blois and anonymous writers (London,1854).
Roberts, William, The Book-hunter in London: Historical and other Studies of Collectors and Collecting (Chicago IL, 1895).
Robinson, Gavin, Horses, People and Parliament in the English Civil War: Extracting Resources and Constructing Allegiance (London, 2012, 2016).
Roebuck, Thomas, 'Edmund Gibson's 1695 Britannia and Late-Seventeenth-Century British Antiquarian Scholarship', Erudition and the Republic of Letters Volume 5: Issue 4 (Oct 2020), 427-481.
Rogers, James E.T., Education in Oxford (1861).
Rollinson, William, Dictionary of Cumbrian Dialect, Tradition and Folklore (Otley, 1997).
Roper, W.O., The Daltons of Thurnham', Transactions of the Historic Society of Lancashire and Cheshire (New Series 6, 1892), 97-124.
Eaman, Ross, Historical Dictionary of Journalism, 2nd edition (London, 2021).
Rowlands, Marie B. (ed.), English Catholics of Parish and Town 1558-1788 (London, 1999).
Rutt, J.T. (ed.), Diary of Thomas Burton, 4 vols. (London, 1828).
Rydal Hall, Historical Manuscripts Commission Twelfth Report, Appendix Part VII (London, 1890), 200.

Salter, H.E., and Mary D. Lobel (eds), 'St. Edmund Hall', in A History of the County of Oxford: Volume 3, The University of Oxford, (London, 1954).
Salway, Peter, The Oxford Illustrated History of Roman Britain (Oxford, 1993).
Sanders, F., and W.F. Irvine (eds), Wirral Notes and Queries … Relating to the Hundred of Wirral, Vol. 1 (Birkenhead, 1892).
Saunders, J., Cabinet Pictures of English Life: Chaucer (London, 1845).
Scott, Sir Walter, Marmion, A Tale of Flodden Field (Edinburgh and London, 1808).
———, The Works of Walter Scott, Esq: Volume 9, (Edinburgh, 1813).
Scriven, John, A Practical Treatise on Copyhold Tenure and Court-Keeping (London, 1816).
Scurr, Ruth, John Aubrey: My Own Life (London, 2015).
Shackleton Bailey, D.R. (ed.), Martial. Epigrams, Volume I: Spectacles, Books 1-5, Loeb Classical Library 94 (Cambridge MA, 1993).
Simpson, James, 'The Antiquities of Shap in the county of Westmorland', Archaeological Journal 18 (1861).
Skemer, Don C., Binding Words: Textual Amulets in the Middle Ages (State College PA, 2006).
Skene, William F. (ed.), John of Fordun's Chronicle of the Scottish Nation, tr. Felix James Henry Skene (Edinburgh, 1872).
Smith, A.H., The Place-Names of Westmorland, Vols XLII (1) and XLIII (2), English Place-Name Society (Cambridge, 1965-66).
Smith, C.C., 'Vulgar Latin in Roman Britain: Epigraphic and other evidence', in Wolfgang Haase (ed.), Sprache und Literatur (Sprachen und Schriften [Forts]) (Berlin and New York, 1983).
Smith, William W., A Complete Etymology of the English Language (New York and Chicago IL, 1873).
Society for the Benefit of the Sons and Daughters of the Clergy in Scotland*, The New Statistical Account of Scotland by the Ministers of the Respective Parishes: Vol. X Perth* (Edinburgh and London, 1845).
Sowerby, Scott, and Noah McCormack (eds), The Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal Hall from 1633 to 1688, CWAAS Record Series 23 (Kendal, 2021).
Sowerby, Scott, Making Toleration: The Repealers and the Glorious Revolution (Cambridge MA, 2013).
Speake, Jennifer (ed.), The Oxford Dictionary of Proverbs, 6th edition (Oxford, 2015).
Spufford, Margaret, Small Books and Pleasant Histories: Popular Fiction and its Readership in seventeenth-century England (Cambridge, 1981).
Starnes, DeWitt T., and Gertrude E. Noyes, The English Dictionary from Cawdrey to Johnson, 1604-1755 (Amsterdam and Philadelphia PA, 1991).
Steele, Andrew, The Natural and Agricultural History of Peat-Moss or Turf-Bog (Edinburgh, 1826).
Stephenson, Michael, The Gilbertine Priory of Watton, Borthwick Paper 116 (York, 2009).
Sterling A. Stoudemire (ed.) Oviedo, La Natural hystoria de las Indias (The Natural History of the West Indies) (Chapel Hill NC, 1959).
Stewart, Rory, Politics on the Edge (London, 2023).
Stewart, William, A Buik of the Croniclis of Scotland or a metrical version of the History of Hector Boece II (London, 1858).
Stockdale, James, Annales Caermoelenses or Annals of Cartmel (Ulverston and London,1872).
Stone, Daniel, The Polish-Lithuanian State, 1386-1795 (Washington D.C., 2014).
Strutt, Joseph, The Sports and Pastimes of the People of England (London, 1876).
Summerson, Henry, *English Heritage Guides: Brougham and Brough Cas*tles (London, 1999).
Summerson, John (ed.) 'The Book of Architecture of John Thorpe in Sir John Soane's Museum', The Walpole Society, Vol. XL (1964-66).
Sweet, Rosemary, Antiquaries: The Discovery of the Past in 18th-century Britain (London and N.Y, 2004).
Taylor, Michael Waistell, The Old Manorial Halls of Westmorland and Cumberland, CWAAS Extra Series VIII (Kendal, 1892).
Thompson, W.N. (ed.) The Register of John de Halton, 2 vols, CWAAS Record Series II (Kendal, 1913).

Thomas, J.H., A Systematic Arrangement of Lord Coke's First Institute of the Laws of England, Vol. 3 (Philadelphia PA, 1836).
Thomas, Mark, A History of Brougham Hall and High Head Castle (Chichester, 1992).
Thompson, W.N. (ed.), Register of John de Halton III (London, 1913).
Thomson, Edward M. (ed.), Correspondence of the Family of Hatton, being chiefly Letters addressed to Christopher, first Viscount Hatton, A.D. 1601-1704, 2 vols., Camden Society, London, 1878).
Timms, Samuel, The Family Topographer: a compendious account of the anciemt state of the counties of England, VI, Northern Circuit (London, 1837).
Tjondrowardojo, Yudha Thianto,'Stories Baptismal Registers Told: Private Baptism in Seventeenth-Century England', History, 95, 2 (318) (April, 2010), 177-93.
Todd, H.J. (ed.), A Dictionary of the English Language by Samuel Johnson; with numerous corrections … (London, 1818).
Toulmin Smith, Lucy (ed.), The Itinerary of John Leland in or about the Years 1535-1543, 5 vols. (1907-10, reprinted 1964).
Trevallyn Jones, G.F., Saw-pit Wharton: The Political Career from 1640 to 1691 of Philip, Fourth Lord Wharton (Sydney, 1967).
Tynemouth, John of, John Capgrave, Wynkyn de Worde and Carl Horstmann, Nova legenda Anglie Vol. II (Oxford, 1901).
Tyson, Blake, 'John Adams's Cartographic Correspondence to Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal Hall, Cumbria. 1676-1687', Royal Geographical Society Journal, 151 (March 1985).
Van der Lem. Anton, and Andy Brown, Revolt in the Netherlands: the Eighty Years' War, 1568-1648, E book (28 February 2019), 9781789140880.
Victoria County History, County of Lancaster, Vol 8, eds William Farrer and J Brownbill (London, 1914).
Victoria County History, Somerset, Vol. 10, ed. Mary Siraut (Woodbridge, 2010).
Walbesser, Jordan, 'Of Camelopards and Camelopardels', in Coat of Arms: The Annual Journal of the Heraldry Society, 4th Series, Vol. IV. (2021).
Walker, S, Nine Standards: Ancient Cairns or Modern Folly? (Kirkby Stephen, 2008).
Walsh, Michael J., Dictionary of Christian Biography (London and New York, 2001).
Wedd, Jackie, Ravenstonedale and the Gilbertines (forthcoming).
Weston, David W.V., Carlisle Cathedral History (Carlisle, 2000).
———, David W.V., Thomas Smith, Dean of Carlisle 1672-1684; Bishop of Carlisle: 1684 to 1702 (Carlisle, 2020).
Wharton, Pauline, The Disappearing Yeoman: Windermere 1640-1841 (self-published, Amazon, 2017).
Whatley, L.J. (ed.), A Companion to Seals in the Middle Ages (Leiden and Boston MA, 2019).
Whellan, William, The History and Topography of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmorland (1860).
Wilson, J. (ed.) Victoria County History. A History of the County of Cumberland, Vol. 2 (London, 1905).
Winchester, Angus J.L, The Harvest of the Hills: Rural Life in Northern England and the Scottish Borders, 1400-1700 (Edinburgh, 2000).
———, (ed.), John Denton's History of Cumberland, Surtees Society Vol. 213 (Durham, 2010).
Winchester, Angus J.L., and Mary Wane (eds), Thomas Denton: A Perambulation of Cumberland, 1687-8, including descriptions of Westmorland, the Isle of Man and Ireland, Surtees Soc. 207 (Woodbridge, 2003).
Wordie, J.R., 'The Chronology of English Enclosure 1500-1914', The Economic History Review 2, Vol. XXXVI, 4, (Nov. 1983), 483-505.
Wordsworth, William, 'An Evening Walk', Poems in 2 Vols, Vol. 1 (London, 1815).
———, 'Siege of Vienna Raised by John Sobieski, in Helen Darbishire and Ernest De Selincourt (eds), The Poetical Works of William Wordsworth, Vol. 3 (Oxford, 1946).
Wright, Joseph, The English Dialect Dictionary, being the complete vocabulary of all dialect words still in use, or known to have been in use during the last two hundred years (London, 1898-1905).

Wright, S.J., 'Easter books and parish rate books: a new source for the urban historian', in David Reeder (ed.), Urban History Yearbook (Leicester, 1985).
Wright, Thomas, Biographica Britannia Literaria: Anglo-Saxon Period (London, 1842).
Wright, Thomas (ed.), Early Travels in Palestine (London, 1848).
Zook, Melinda, Protestantism, Politics and Women in Britain, 1660-1714 (Basingstoke, 2013).

CWAAS Articles

Armitt, M.L., 'Ambleside Town and Chapel: Some Contributions towards their History', CW2, 6 (1906), 1-96.
Barker, Paul, 'The Reverend Thomas Machell's complaint: July 2d. 1690' CW2, 89 (1989), 179-81.
Barnes, Henry, 'Visitations of the Plague in Cumberland and Westmorland', CW1, 11 (1891), 158-86.
Bellasis, E., 'Machell of Crackenthorpe', CW1, 8 (1886). 416-67.
———, 'Strickland of Sizergh', CW1, 10 (1889), 75-94.
———, Westmorland Church Notes, being the heraldry, epitaphs, and other inscriptions in the thirty-two ancient parish churches and churchyards of that county, 2 vols (Kendal, 1888 and 1889).
Bevan, Bill, 'Nick Stick Seat, Great Langdale', CW2, 89 (1989), 281.
Birley, Eric, 'Notes: Thomas Machell and Hadrian's Wall?', CW2, 51 (1951), 181-82.
———, 'A Roman Inscription from Watercrook', CW2, 55 (1955) 46.
———, 'The Guys of Kendal and Watercrook', CW2, 58 (1958), 94-104.
Bishop of Barrow in Furness, 'Bishop Nicolson's Diaries, Part II', CW2 (1902), 155-230.
Blackett-Ord, Mark, 'Lord Wharton's deer-park walls', CW2, 86 (1986), 133-39.
———, 'Growth of a Manor House: the early history of Warcop Hall, 1580-1745', CW3, 20 (2020), 137-50.
Bouch, C.M.L., 'Ninekirks Brougham', CW2, 50 (1950), 80-81.
Bower, R., 'Notes on the Kirkby Thore Registers', CW1, 4 (1880), 372-386.
Brown, R.P., 'Bainbrig of Hawkin in Middleton, Westmorland', CW2, xxiv (1924), 123-49.
———, 'Christopher Wood's inscription in Kirkby Lonsdale Church', CW2, 25 (1925), 321-30.
———, 'Thomas Langton and his Tradition of Learning', CW2, xxvi (1926), 150-246.
———, 'The Vicars of Kirkby Lonsdale', CW2, 29 (1929), 166-92.
———, Edward Wilson of Nether Levens (1557-1653) and his kin, CWAAS Tract Series 12 (Kendal, 1930).
Budden, Lionel, 'Some Notes on the History of Appleby Grammar School', CW2, 39 (1939), 227-61.
Butler, F.J., 'Chronological Record of Tytup Hall and Bibliography of Father West, S.J.', CW2, 42 (1942), 180-82.
Carmichael, T.A., 'Bolton Church', CW2, 27 (1927), 188-94.
Charlesworth, Haydn, 'The medieval Parks of Brough-under-Stainmore', CW3, 18 (2018), 169-90.
Chippindall, W.H., 'The Tatham families of Burrow, Tunstall, Cantsfield and Lowfield', CW2, 33 (1933), 98-112.
Clarke, Peter D., 'The Sectarian "Threat" and its Impact in Restoration Cumbria', CW2, 88 (1988), 161-76.
Collingwood, W.G., '"The Fatall Nuptiall," a Tract (by Richard Brathwaite?) on the Windermere ferry accident of 1635', CW2, 13 (1913), 147-159.
Colman, C.S. 'The Paralysis of the Cumberland and Westmorland Army in the First Civil War c.1642-45', CW3, 1 (2001).
Cowper, H.S., 'Cawmire or Comer Hall', CW2, 1 (1901), 119-28.
———, 'Notes on Richard Braithwaite of Burneside, the Poet and Writer, and his Portraits', CW2, 22 (1922), 79-84.
Cresswell, Lionel, 'Crackenthorpe: Its Manor Hall and the Machell Family', CW2, 33 (1933), 113-32.
Duckett, G.F (ed.), 'The Sheriffs of Westmorland, with the early Sheriffs of Cumberland', CW1, 4 (1880), 285-305.
Fahy, T.G., 'The Philipson family II: Philipson of Crook Hall', CW2, 73 (1973), 150-213.
Farrer, William, and John F Curwen (eds), Records Relating to the Barony of Kendale 2, CWAAS Record Series 5, (Kendal, 1924).

Ferguson, Charles J., 'The Development of Domestic Architecture: Rose Castle and Dalston Hall', CWI, 2 (1876), 152-71.
Ferguson, R.S., 'Notes on the Heraldic Visitations of Cumberland and Westmorland', CWI, 2 (1876), 20-27.
———, 'Wills relating to the Dean and Chapter Library at Carlisle. Wills of Rev. T. Machell, Bishops Smith and Nicolson, and Joseph Nicolson', CW1, 4 (1880), 1-12.
———, 'Windermere (Bowness) Parish Church, and its Old Glass', CW1, 4 (1880), 47.
Gordon, C.J., 'Crosby Ravensworth Church', CW2, 8 (1908), 203-33.
Graham, T.H.B., and W.G. Collingwood, 'Patron Saints of the Diocese of Carlisle', CW2, 25 (1925), 1-27.
Haswell, Francis, 'Cliburn Hall', CW2, 12 (1912), 126-30.
———, 'The Family of Dalston, CW2, 10 (1910), 201-70.
Heelis, John, 'Kirkby Thore Church', CW1, 11 (1891), 314-22.
Hewitson, W., 'The Appleby Charters', CW1, 11 (1891), 279-85.
Hudleston, C. Roy, 'Thomas Machell, his wife and children and his Whelpdale stepchildren', CW2, 70 (1970), 110-45.
Jackson, W., 'The Dudleys of Yanwath', CW1, 9 (1888), 318-32.
Kipling, Charlotte, 'The Commercial Fisheries of Windermere', CW2, 72 (1972), 156-204.
Lucas, Peter, 'A South Westmorland Medieval Holy Well? The Case of St. Gregory's Well, Preston Patrick', CW3, 14 (2014), 125-28.
Mathews, Arnold, 'St Lawrence's Church, Appleby', CW1, 8 (1886), 396-403.
Mawson, D.J.W., 'Dr Hugh Todd's account of the Diocese of Carlisle', CW2, 88 (1988), 207-24.
Parsons, M.A., 'The Brownes of Townend and the Township of Troutbeck 1500-1750', CW3, 2 (2002), 171-82.
Phythian-Adams, Charles, 'From Peoples to Regional Societies: The Problem of Early Medieval Cumbrian Identities', CW3, 11 (2011), 51-64.
Ragg, Frederick W., 'Helton Flechan, Askham and Sandford of Askham', CW2, 21 (1921), 174-233.
Robinson, Jeremy R., and Kevin Grice, 'Cunswick Hall: an archaeological and historical survey of a Lakeland manor', CW3, 18 (2018), 149-68.
Roebuck, Peter, 'Cattle-droving through Cumbria after the Union: the Stances on the Musgrave Estate, 1707-12', CW3, 12 (2012), 143-58.
Rogan, John and Eric Birley, 'Thomas Machell the Antiquary', CW2, 55 (1955), 123-53.
Rose, Sarah, 'The Barony of Kendal', CW3, 15 (2015), 45-56.
Simpson, James, 'Brougham Castle', CWI, 1 (1870), 60-70.
Simpson, Rev. W., 'Appleby Castle', CW1, 1 (1874), 242-54.
Simpson, W. Douglas, 'The town and castle of Appleby: a morphological study', CW2, 49 (1949), 118-33.
T.G.F., 'Recent Publications 2. Antiquary on Horseback (1964) T.G.F.', CW2, 64 (1964), 414.
Taylor, Michael Waistell, 'Manorial Halls in Westmorland', CW1, 12 (1893), 24-27.
Turnbull, P., and D. Walsh, 'Monastic Ruins at Ravenstonedale', CW2, 92 (1992), 67-76.
Tyson, Blake, 'Some Cumbrian Builders, 1670-1780', CW2, 96 (1996), 161-66.
———, 'St. John's Well and Chapel, Skelsmergh: their location and present condition', CW2, 98 (1998), 156-67.
———, 'The first Market House at Bowness-on-Windermere, 1692', CW3, 17 (2007), 107-112.
Wallis, P.J., 'Westmorland schools about 1676: Christopher Wase's Survey', CW2, 67 (1967), 168-85.
Ware, Canon, 'Notes upon the parish church of Kirkby Lonsdale', CW1, 21 (1870), 189-203.
Weston, G.F., 'The Præmonstratensian Abbey of St. Mary. Magdalene at Shap, Westmorland. Part I. Historical', CWI, 10 (1899), 286-298.
White, Andrew, '"For his extraordinary paines in beutifying the church." The work of James Addison of Hornby, church painter', CW3, 18 (2018), 191-200.
Winchester, Angus J.L., 'Personal Names and Local Identities in Early Modern Cumbria', CW3, 11 (2011), 29-50.
Wiseman, W. G., 'The Medieval Hospitals of Cumbria', CW2, 87 (1987), 83-100.
Wright, Alison, 'Loyalty and Tradition II. Networking among the north-western Catholic Gentry, 1640-1720: The Case of the Layburnes', CW3, 14 (2014), 103-24.

Other Periodicals

Aylesbury News, 19 July 1856.
Church Times, 9 May 2014.
Country Life, 8 June 1961.
Economic History Review 2, Vol. XXXVI, 4 November1983.
Gentleman's Magazine (1791).
History Today, 55, 7 July 2005.
Independent Catholic News, 2 October 2018.
London Gazette. 30 June 1687.
Mail (Cumbria) 26 May 2019.
Notes and Queries, Vol. 11, Series VIII (12 July 1913).
Philosophical Transactions 14, 158 (1684).
Philosophical Transactions, Vol. 61, Part 1 (1771).
Proceedings of the Antiquaries of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, Vol. II (South Shields, 1887).
Science Daily, 22 September, 2010.
Spectator, 15 February 1873.
Transactions of the Historic Society of Lancashire and Cheshire, Vol. XLIV (1892).
Westmorland Gazette, 3, 24 September; 1 October 1927.

Theses

Churches, Christine, 'Daniel Fleming, Richard Scottt and James Cocke: the making of a 17th Century English Provincial Library'. Thesis presented as part requirement for an Honours Degree in History (University of Adelaide, 1984).

Claydon, Anthony M., 'Courtly Reformation: Williamite Propaganda after the Glorious Revolution in England'. Thesis submitted for the PhD (London University, 1993).

Griffin, Tristan A.R., 'Culture, Conflict, and Northern English Fortification in the British Civil Wars, Circa 1638-1652'. Thesis submitted for the PhD (Cambridge University, 2020).

Newman, P.R., 'The Royalist Army in Northern England 1642-45', 2 vols. Thesis submitted for the D.Phil. (University of York, 1978).

Reed, Daniel, 'Patronage, Performance, and Reputation in the Eighteenth-Century Church'. Thesis submitted for the PhD (Oxford Brookes University, 2019).

Wright, Alison, 'The Layburnes and their World circa 1620-1720, The English Catholic Community and the House of Stuart'. Thesis submitted for the PhD (University of St Andrews, 2002).

Maps

Bowen, E. and Kitchin, T., A New Map of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland Divided into their Respective Wards, scale about 4 miles to 1 inch (London, 1760).

Ordnance Survey Map, 1st edition (1859-1863) Westmorland, sheet VII.

Websites

Early English Books Online

'Two letters from Scotland giving a true relation of the unhappy loss of the Gloucester-frigot, whereof Sir John Berry was commander: with a particular account of the persons of quality drowned therein, and the miraculous escape of His Royal Highness the Duke of York.' https://name.umdl.umich.edu/A64017.0001.001

British History Online

Kendal Barony — https://www.british-history.ac.uk/kendale-barony/vol2/pp374-397.

Highgate — https://www.british-history.ac.uk/vch/middx/vol6/pp122-135.

The Law Courts and the Old Palace Yard, London — https://www.british-history.ac.uk/old-new-london/vol3/pp560-567

English Heritage
National Heritage List for England http://list.english-heritage.org.uk
Brough Castle https://www.english-heritage.org.uk/visit/places/brough-castle/history/description/

Historic England
Historic England Listing https://historicengland.org.uk/listing
Historic England Research Records https://www.heritagegateway.org.uk.
Battle of Towton 1461 https://historicengland.org.uk/listing/the-list/list-entry/1000040?section=official-list-entry
Battle of Solway Moss 1542 https://historicengland.org.uk/listing/the 1542list/list-entry/1000034?section=official-list-entry.
Garnett House, Burneside, Kendal https://historicengland.org.uk/listing/the-list/list-entry/1479032?section=official-list-entry.

TNA Collections https://discovery.nationalarchives.gov.uk.
Lord Brudenell https://discovery.nationalarchives.gov.uk/details/c/F45645.
Domesday Book https://www.nationalarchives.gov.uk/domesday/

Bodleian Library, Oxford https://archives.bodleian.ox.ac.uk/repositories/2/resources/7563.

Metropolitan Archives
The Arms of the City of London
https://search.lma.gov.uk/scripts/mwimain.dll/144/RESEARCH_GUIDES/web_detail_rg/SISN+15?SESSIONSEARCH#coll1

Westminster Abbey http://www.westminster-abbey.org/archive/visit-us/highlights/the-coronation-chair.

Borthwick Institute https://www.york.ac.uk/borthwick/holdings/guides/research-guides/probate-courts/.

British Museum
Armathwaite: View of Armathwaite Bay in Cumberland (after 1758) https://www.britishmuseum.org/collection/object/P_1869-0612-528.

Royal Society
Pete Wilton, 'Oxford and the Royal Society's Origins', https://www.ox.ac.uk/news/science-blog/oxford-and-royal-society%E2%80%99s-origins (2010).

Harvard Law School Library
amesfoundation.law.harvard.edu/Bracton.

Parliament, History of, Online
Lowther, Sir John https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1690-1715/member/lowther-sir-john-1655-1700.

Fane, Hon, Sir Vere http://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1690-1715/member/fane-hon-sir-vere-1645-93.
Grahme (Graham), James
http://www.histparl.ac.uk/volume/1690-1715/member/grahme-%28graham%29-james-1650-1730
Hutton, Richard https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1604-1629/member/hutton-richard-1594-1645

Tufton, Hon. Thomas	https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1660-1690/member/tufton-hon-thomas
Fletcher, Sir George	https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1660-1690/member/fletcher-sir-george-1633-1700
Strickland, Sir Thomas	https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1660-1690/member/strickland-sir-thomas-1621-94.
Rawlinson, Curwen	https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1660-1690/member/rawlinson-curwen-1641-89
Pickering, Christopher	https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1558-1603/member/pickering-christopher-1556-1621
Hansard	https://hansard.parliament.uk/Commons/1820-06-28/debates
'The Education of the Poor'	https://hansard.parliament.uk/Commons/1820-06-28/debates/7d773019-40a4-4b69-9808-

Adoption of the Gregorian Calendar
https://www.nottingham.ac.uk/manuscriptsandspecialcollections/researchguidance/datingdocuments

Cambridge
Masters of Christ's College, Cambridge https://www.christs.cam.ac.uk/masters-christs-college-1505. N
St John's College, Cambridge
https://www.joh.cam.ac.uk/masters-st-johns-college-cambridge
Cambridge Alumni Database at 'Ancestry UK' http://search.ancestry.co.uk

Oxford
Oxford Alumni Database at 'Ancestry UK' http://search.ancestry.co.uk

Queen's College Oxford, The https://www.queens.ox.ac.uk/library-history

Brasenose College, Oxford, https://www.bnc.ox.ac.uk/about-brasenose/history/archives/history

Westmorland
Westmorland Gazette https://www.thewestmorlandgazette.co.uk/news/18291644.nostalgia-famous-visitors-kendal-centuries.

Appleby:
Mayors	http://applebytown.org/wp-content/uploads/2020/08/MAYORS-OFAPPLEBY-PDF.
Town	http://www.applebytown.org.uk/
Red House	https://britishlistedbuildings.co.uk/101146473-the-red-house appleby-in-westmorland

Barton
Hodgson's Hill http://www.gatehouse-gazetteer.info/English%20sites/4653.html

Cumbria County History Trust
Barbon	https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/township/barbon.
Cliburn	https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/township/cliburn.
Docker	https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/township/docker.
Selside	https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/township/selside-whitwell.
Fawcett Forest	https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/sites/default/files/fawcett forrest_draft_full_history.pdf

Cumbrian Lives.org.uk
George Hilton https://www.cumbrianlives.org.uk/lives-index/h.html,

Place Names
Smith, A.H. (ed.) Place-Names of Westmorland (online), edited by A.H. Smith (1967).https://epns.nottingham.ac.uk/browse/Westmorland
Hutton-in-the-Forest https://hutton-in-the-forest.co.uk.
Kendal Parish Church https://kendalparishchurch.co.uk/history
Kendal, Black Hall https://www.lancaster.ac.uk/quakers/links/kendal_black_hall.html.
Selside https://selside.com/historyofselside.html.
Shap Abbey Harry Hawkins, 'Records of Shap Abbey', Pdf, harry.hawkins68@btinternet.com.

Westmorland people and activities
Otter Hunting https://lakelandhuntingmemories.com/LostOtterhoundsNew.html.
Round Fish https://www.directseafoods.co.uk/fish-glossary/round-fish/
Wharton, Pauline 'The True Story of Robin the Devil', https://paulinewharton.wordpress.com/the-true-story-of-robin-the-devil

Scottish History (Edinburgh)
Balfour, Dr Andrew (1630-94), physician. Royal Society of Physicians of Edinburgh, https://www.rcpe.ac.uk/heritage/college-history/andrew-balfour.
Groundwater, Anna 'Ben Jonson's Walk', University of Edinburgh, 15 July 2013 https://www.blogs.hss.ed.ac.uk/ben-jonsons-walk.
Hopper, Janice 'Edinburgh Castle history: 900 years protecting Scotland's capital', Britain Magazine https://www.britain-magazine.com/features/region/scotland

Arms and Descents
Peerage https://www.thepeerage.com/
Baronetage https://www.baronetage.org.
College of Arms https://www.college-of-arms.gov.uk/.
Heraldry, Glossary https://www.heraldsnet.org/saitou/parker/Jpglossa.htm

Encyclopaedia Britannica Biographies
Domitian https://www.britannica.com/biography/Domitian.
Fairfax, Thomas https://www.britannica.com/biography/Thomas-Fairfax-3rd-Baron-Fairfax-of-Cameron.4
Lothar https://www.britannica.com/biography/Lothar-I.
Suetonius https://www.britannica.com/biography/Suetonius.
Vespasian https://www.britannica.com/biography/Vespasian.

Church of England
Clergy of the Church of England Database
http://www.theclergydatabase.org.uk. (CCED)
Sheils, W.J., 'Bishops and their dioceses: reform of visitation in the Anglican church c.1680-c.1760', CCED Online Journal 1, 2007. http://www.theclergydatabase.org.uk/cce_a1/
151 Canons of the Church of England, 1604-1606 https://www.anglican.net/doctrines/1604-canon-law/
Court of First Fruits and Tenths https://www.britannica.com/topic/Court-of-Augmentations

Court of Wards and Liveries https://www.nationalarchives.gov.uk/help-with-your-research/research-guides/land-inheritance-court-of-wards-liveries-1540-1645.
Common Worship Calendar of the Church of England
https://www.churchofengland.org/prayer-and-worship/worship-texts-and-resources/common-worship/churchs-year/calendar (2000).
Book of Homilies (Church of England (1547, 1563 with additions to 1571) http://www.anglicanlibrary.org/homilies/
St Martin's Priory, Canterbury https://www.dover-kent.co.uk/st_martins_priory.html.
Worcester cathedral Library https://worcestercathedrallibrary.wordpress.com/2019/08/21/the-game-of-the-rose/#_ftn1
Beverley Minster https://beverleyminster.org.uk/saint-john-of-beverley/.

Dictionaries
Black's Law Dictionary (1910) https://thelawdictionary.org/
Collins English Dictionary https://www.collinsdictionary.com/dictionary/english/
Dictionaries of the Scots Language https://dsl.ac.uk/
Merriam-Webster Dictionary https://www.merriam-webster.com

Camden, William, Britannia (Translated by Philemon Holland, 1607), hypertext critical edition by Dana F. Sutton (University of California, Irvine) https://philological.cal.bham.ac.uk/cambrit/

Oxford University Press
Classical Dictionary https://oxfordre.com/classics/search?siteToSearch=classics&q=dictionary&search
National Biography http://www.oxforddnb.com.
English Dictionary https://www.oed.com/search/advanced/Entries?
Reference https://www.oxfordreference.com.
Local and Family History https://www.oxfordreference.com › acref-9780198600800
A Dictionary of British History (3rd edition, 2015)
https://www.oxfordreference.com/display/10.1093/acref/9780191758027.001.0001/

Oxford History of National Biography (ODNB) https://www.oxforddnb.com/
Entries consulted
Adolph, A., 'Segar, Sir William (c.1554-1633), herald'.
Anderson, M., 'Kings of the Picts c.300-c.900'.
Asch, R., 'Wentworth, Thomas, first earl of Strafford (1593-1641), lord lieutenant of Ireland'.
Baigent, E., 'Adams, John (d.1738)'.
Baker, J., 'Egerton, Thomas, first viscount Brackley (1540-1617)'.
Barclay, A, 'Mary [Mary of Modena] (1658-1718), queen of England, Scotland, and Ireland, consort of James II and VII.'
Baron, S., 'Nicholas, Sir Edward (1593-1669), government official'.
Bayne, R. & Armstrong, R., 'Birckbek, Simon (1583/4-1656), Church of England clergyman, religious controversialist'.
Beckett, J.V., 'Lowther, John, first Viscount Lonsdale (1655-1700)'.
Beddard, R., 'Walker, Obadiah (1616-1699), college head, author'.
Bendall, S., 'Speed, John (1551/2-1629), historian, cartographer'.
Benedict, J., 'Bury, Arthur (1623/4-1713), college head, writer on theology'.
Bickley, A., & Wright, S., 'Dawes, Lancelot (1579/80-1655), Church of England clergyman'.
Bradley, E. & S. Kelsey, 'Grey, Thomas, Baron Grey of Groby (1622-1657), regicide'.
Broadway, J., 'Hatton, Christopher, first viscount Hatton (bap. 1632, d. 1706), politician'.
'Throckmorton family (per. c.1500-1682), gentry'.

Britnell, R., ‘Sheldon, Ralph (1623-1684), antiquary’.
Brown, A., & Walker C., ‘Upton, Nicholas (c.1400-1457), cleric, lawyer, warfare and heraldry author’.
Callow, J., ‘Graham, Richard, first Viscount Preston (1648-1695), politician and Jacobite conspirator’.
———, ‘Strickland, Thomas John Francis (c.1682-1740), Roman Catholic bishop of Namur’.
Cambers, A., ‘Crakanthorpe, Richard (bap. 1568, d. 1624), Church of England clergyman and logician’.
Carley, J., ‘Leland, John (c.1503-1552), poet, antiquary’.
Carlyle, E., & Winchester, A. ‘Ferguson, Richard Saul (1837-1900), antiquary’.
Christianson, P., ‘Selden, John (1584-1654)’.
Clark, J.K., ‘Wharton, Thomas, first marquess of Wharton, first marquess of Malmesbury, first marquess of Catherlough (1648-1715), politician’.
Clark, M., ‘Robinson, Henry (1551/2-1616)’.
Collins, J., ‘Godolphin, John (1617-1678) civil lawyer’.
Collinson, P., ‘Sandys, Edwin (1519?-1588), archbishop of York’.
————, ‘Cartwright, Thomas (1534/5-1603), theologian, religious controversialist’.
Considine, J., ‘Casaubon, Isaac (1559-1614), classical scholar, ecclesiastical historian’.
Cownie, E., ‘Percy, William de (d.1096, 99?), baron, administrator’.
Cooper, T. & Bradley G., ‘Leyburn, John (1620-1702), vicar apostolic of the London district’.
Corner, D., Howden [Hoveden], Roger of (d.1201/2), chronicler’.
Cranfield, N., ‘Hudson, Michael (1605-1648), Church of England clergyman, royalist agent’.
Crick, J.C., ‘Monmouth, Geoffrey of (d.1154/5), bishop of St Asaph, historian’.
Cromartie, A., ‘Hale, Sir Mathew (1609-1676), judge, writer’.
Cruickshanks, E., ‘Grahme, James (1650-1730), courtier, politician’.
Davies, J., ‘Goodricke, Sir Henry, second baronet (1642-1705), diplomat, politician’.
Day J., ‘Cooke, Robert (d.1593), herald’.
———, ‘Flower, William (1497/8-1588), herald’.
Dockray, K., ‘Neville, John, third Baron Latimer (1493-1543), nobleman’.
Doggett, N., ‘Gale, Thomas (1635/6-1702)’.
Doggett, N., ‘Hare, Henry (bap.1636, d.1708), second Baron Coleraine, antiquary, architect’.
Eisel, J., ‘Duckworth, Richard (bap.1631? d. 1706)’.
Elligott, J., ‘Barwick, John (1612-1664), Dean of St Paul’s’.
Elmer, P., ‘Barwick, Peter (1619-1705), physician’.
Elzinga, J., ‘Howard, Philip [St Philip Howard], thirteenth earl of Arundel (1557-1595), magnate, alleged traitor’.
Farr, D., ‘Lambert, John (bap.1619, d.1684), parliamentary soldier, politician’.
Ford, A., ‘Ussher, James (1581-1656)’.
Ford, L., ‘Mildmay, Sir Walter (c.1523-1589), founder of Emmanuel College, Cambridge’.
Goodwin, G. & Peacey, J., ‘Howard, Henry Frederick (1608-1652), fifteenth earl of Arundel, fifth earl of Surrey, second earl of Norfolk’.
Greenberg, J., ‘Petyt [Petit], William (1640/41-1707), lawyer, political propagandist’.
Hamilton, A., ‘Bedwell, William (bap.1563, d.1632)’.
Handley, S., ‘Cotton, Sir Robert Bruce, first baronet (1571-1631), antiquary and politician.
————, ‘Dolben, Sir William (bap.1627, d.1694), judge’.
————, ‘Mill, John (1644/5-1707), Church of England clergyman, college head’.
————, ‘Spelman, Sir Henry (1563/4-1641), historian, antiquary’.
Harriss, G., ‘Beaufort, John, duke of Somerset (1404-1444), magnate, soldier’.
Haycock, D., ‘Bertram, Charles Julius (1723-1765), literary forger’.
Hayton, D., ‘Nicolson, William (1655-1727), bishop of Derry, antiquary’.
Hegarty, A., ‘Halton, Timothy (bap.1633, d.1704), college head’.
————, ‘Airay, Henry (1558/60-1616), college head’.
————, ‘Potter, Barnaby (bap.1577, d.1642), bishop of Carlisle’.
Henry, J., ‘Wilkins, John (1614-1672), theologian, natural philosopher’.
Higton, H., ‘Gunter, Edmund (1581-1626), mathematician’.

Hodges, R., 'Wase, Christopher (1627-1690), schoolmaster, classical scholar'.
Hoppit, J., 'King, Gregory (1648-1712), herald, political economist'.
Hoyle, R., 'Clifford, Henry, first earl of Cumberland (c.1493-1542), magnate'.
James, S., 'Herbert [née Parr], Anne (c.1515-1552), countess of Pembroke, courtier, sister to Katherine Parr'.
———, 'Katherine/Kateryn/Catherine] [née Katherine Parr] (1512-1548), queen of England & Ireland, sixth consort of Henry VIII'.
Jones, J., 'Good, Thomas (1609/10-1678), college head'.
Kaye, J., 'Eglesfield /Egilsfeld, Robert [Robert de Eglesfeld] (c.1295-1349), founder of Queen's College, Oxford'.
Kell, P., 'Thoresby, Ralph (1658-1725), antiquary, topographer'.
Kellett, A., 'Shipton, Mother' (supp. fl. 1530), supposed witch and prophetess'.
Kelsey, S., 'Wharton, Philip, fourth Baron Wharton (1613-1696), politician'.
King, E., 'Ingulf (c.1045-1109), abbot of Crowland'.
Kitchen, F., 'Norden, John, (c.1547-1625), cartographer'.
Knighton, C., 'Knight, John, (bap.1622, d.1680), surgeon'.
Lamont, W., 'Prynne, William (1600-1669), pamphleteer, lawyer'.
Landau, N., 'Burn Richard (1709-1785), legal writer, Church of England clergyman'.
Laughton, J.K. (revised by A. Lambert), 'Berry, Sir Edward, baronet (1768-1831), naval officer'.
Lloyd, S., & R. Reader, 'Paris, Matthew (c.1200-1259), historian, Benedictine monk, polymath)'.
Marcombe, D., 'Gilpin, Bernard (1516-1584), Church of England clergyman, preacher'.
Marshall, A., 'Williamson, Sir Joseph (1633-1701), government official'.
Marshall, P., 'Hyde, Thomas (1636-1703), oriental scholar'.
Mason, J., 'Diceto, Ralph de (d.1199/1200), chronicler and ecclesiastic'.
McCullough, P., 'King, John (d.1621), bishop of London'.
Meadows, P., 'Moore, John (1646-1714), bishop of Ely'.
Meikle, M. & Payne, H., 'Anne [of Denmark] (1574-1619), Queen of England, Scotland & Ireland'.
Mendyk, S.A.E., 'Blome, Richard (bap.1635?, d.1705), cartographer, bookseller'.
Miller, J., 'Anne [Anne Hyde], duchess of York (1637-1671), 1st wife of James II'.
Nurse, B., ' Lyttelton, Charles (1714-1768), bishop of Carlisle, antiquary'.
Parry, G., 'Dodsworth, Roger (bap.1585, d.1654), antiquary'.
Peltonen, M., 'Bacon, Francis, Viscount St Alban (1561-1626), lord chancellor'.
Phillips, C., 'Benson, Gervase (d. 1679), Quaker leader'.
———, 'Lowther, Sir John, of Lowther, first baronet (1605-1675), landowner, local politician'.
Porter, B. & Beva M., 'Skinner, Stephen (bap.1623, d.1667), physician and philologist'.
Prest, W., 'Hutton, Sir Richard (bap.1561, d.1639), judge'.
Quehen, H., 'Pearson, John (1613-1686), bishop of Chester'.
Quintrell, B., 'Morton, Thomas (bap.1564, d.1659), bishop of Durham'.
Ramsay, N., 'Glover, Robert (1543/4-1588), herald'.
Roots, I., 'Burton, Thomas (fl. 1656-1661), diarist'.
Royan, N., 'Boece/Boethius) Hector (c. 1465-1536), historian, college head'.
Sanders, J., 'Brathwaite, Richard (1587/8-1673), poet, writer' (ODNB Archive edition).
Seipp, D., 'Fleta (fl. 1290-1300), author of a Latin treatise on English common law written between 1290 and 1300'.
Sil, N.P., 'Herbert, William, first earl of Pembroke (1506/7-1570), soldier, magnate'.
Smith, N., 'Whitehead, George (1637-1724), Quaker leader, writer'.
Smuts, R., 'Howard, Thomas, fourteenth earl of Arundel, fourth earl of Surrey, first earl of Norfolk (1585-1646), art collector, politician'.
Spurr, J., 'Barlow, Thomas (1608/9-1691), bishop of Lincoln'.
Stansfield, M., 'Holland, John, first earl of Huntingdon, duke of Exeter (c.1352-1400), magnate and soldier'.
Stater, V., 'Hatton, Christopher, first baron Hatton (bap. 1605, d. 1670), politician.'
Stone, J., 'Pont, Timothy (fl. 1574-1611), map maker, chorographer'.
Stratford, J., 'John [John of Lancaster], duke of Bedford (1389-1435), regent of France'.

Summerson, H., ‘Clifford, Henry, tenth Baron Clifford (1454-1523), magnate’.
————, ‘Dacre, Leonard (d.1573), rebel’.
————, ‘Hugh [Hugh of Beaulieu] (d.1223), bishop of Carlisle’.
————, ‘The Dacre Family (1542-1716), gentry’.
————, ‘Whelpdale, Roger (d.1423), bishop of Carlisle’.
Taylor, J., ‘Walsingham, Thomas (c. 1340-c.1422), historian, prior of Wymondham’.
————, ‘Higden, Ranulf (d.1364), Benedictine Monk, chronicler’.
Thomson, R., ‘Malmesbury, William of (b. c.1090, d. c.1142), historian, man of letters, and Benedictine monk’.
Turner, A., ‘Plot, Robert (bap.1640, d.1696), naturalist, antiquary’.
Walker, S., ‘John of Gaunt (1340-1399), duke of Aquitaine, duke of Lancaster, prince and steward of England’.
Wane, M. & Winchester, A., ‘Denton, John (b. c.1561, d.1617), antiquary’.
Watson, F., ‘Bruce, Christian (d.1356), noblewoman’.
Welch, C., & Axworthy, R. ‘Lovekyn, John (d.1368), merchant, lord mayor of London’.
Winchester, A., ‘Machell, Thomas (bap. 1647, d. 1698), antiquary’.
Withers, C., ‘Ogilby, John (1600-1676), publisher, geographer’.
Woodcock, T., ‘Lant, Thomas (1554/5-1600/01), herald, draughtsman’.
————, ‘Guillim, John (1550-1621), herald’.
————, ‘Warburton, John (1682-1759), herald and antiquary.
Woodley, J., ‘Lister, Martin’ (bap.1639, d.1712), physician and naturalist’.
Woolf, D., ‘Waterhouse, Edward (1619-1670), heraldic writer’.
Wright, D., ‘Langton, Thomas (c.1430-1501), bishop of Winchester, archbishop-elect of Canterbury’.
Wright, S., ‘Fane, Mildmay (1602-1666) second earl of Westmorland, politician, writer’.

Acknowledgements

Cumberland and Westmorland Antiquarian and Archaeological Society would like to record its thanks to the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle Cathedral for permission to publish Thomas Machell's Collections towards a History and Topography of Westmorland.

Dr David Weston, Canon Librarian of the cathedral from 1995 to 2005 and continuing in an honorary capacity for several years afterwards, was instrumental in ensuring that the project could begin. I would like to thank him, Professor Emeritus Angus Winchester, and Professor Adam Fox for their help at that stage. I should particularly like to thank Professor Emeritus Michael Mullett for overseeing much of the venture; the Hon. Secretary of CWAAS, Marion McClintock, who generously brought the project to completion; the Hon. Treasurer of CWAAS, Dr W. D. Shannon; members of the CWAAS Small Grants Committee; and Professor Emeritus William Gibson, who has been a constant source of advice and support. I am indebted to the home of Machell's volumes, Cumbria Archives, Carlisle, where I have particularly appreciated the professional help of Helen Cunningham, whose knowledge of both palæography and local history is exceptional. She deserves the deepest gratitude for her support, and the highest respect for her skills.

I remember with deep gratitude my former colleague, the late Dr Jane Penman, for her elegant translations of Machell's Latin and Greek texts, and for her humour, scholarly guidance and warm support as we worked together. I also thank Timothy Sykes for his advice and for his skilful copy editing. This edition could not have been completed without the help of these two very special people.

The saying, 'It takes a village to raise a child', comes to mind as I think of many other people who have offered useful comment and assistance in bringing this book to fruition. The late James Armstrong was responsible for the photography of Machell's images; Haydn Charlesworth dealt manfully with some of the trickiest transcriptions; Harry Hawkins offered his invaluable expertise on Shap charters, as did Tony Cousins on Skelsmergh; Edward Impey, Master and Director General Emeritus of the Royal Armouries, shared his unrivalled knowledge of British fortified buildings; the late Adrian Allen gave advice on medieval documents; former archivist, Jeremy Godwin, very kindly allowed me to check my transcription against his unfinished draft of the Machell volumes, now housed in the Cumbria Archives, Carlisle; and Bryan Harper of Titus Wilson gave me valued advice during the publishing phase. The number of other people who furnished me with opinions and local knowledge is incalculable; I thank them all. Last, but certainly not least, I thank my husband, Richard Platt, for his invaluable support. Any errors in the text and footnotes are mine, although it should be noted that Machell's text can be opaque and his handwriting, at times, atrocious.

Dr Jane Platt FRHistS is an author and editor whose main interests lie in Church and local history. She was a researcher at the Centre for Methodism and Church History at Oxford Brookes University until it closed in 2024 and was one of the editors of CWAAS Transactions until 2025.

CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORLAND
ANTIQUARIAN AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL SOCIETY

More significantly, perhaps, this edition invites readers to explore Machell's other interests. His descriptions of the local, the commonplace and the every-day in Westmorland are vital to the collection. His deep interest in place-names and dialect; games and traditions; folklore and humour; local politics and local characters; his comedic or tragic anecdotes; and his ventures into tales of the occult offer an alternative dynamic which reveals even more of the period and place in which he lived. The importance of Machell's research is that it stands at an intersection between late-seventeenth-century antiquarianism, erudition, religion, lore and tradition.

Machell's History is made particularly valuable by the fact that his early death prevented the publication of a completed work. Had it been published, many of the unique delights of this edition: Machell's correspondence; his trenchant opinions; his unguarded comments; his frequent criticism of his peers, would almost certainly have been edited and lost. The unfinished nature of Machell's History also reveals important aspects of seventeenth-century antiquarian scholarship, including the development of research methods; the building of evidence to provide argument; the careful citation of sources; and the experimental composition of early drafts, which involved copious textual alteration. This transcription of Machell's work-in-progress will be appreciated, not only by those who are already conversant with him as a northern gentleman-antiquary, but also by a greater constituency of scholars and a wider public, to whom some of the hitherto impenetrable content will be revelatory.