Thomas Machell's Collections Towards a History and Topography of Westmorland

Full Version

Edited by

Jane Platt

‘If I could spare time to Methodise these Rude Notes which are contained in my several books of Collections … I would’. These are the rueful words of Rev. Thomas Machell of Kirkby Thore (1647-1698), who died before he could complete his mammoth ‘History and Topography of Cumberland and Westmorland’.
328 years after his untimely death, Machell’s collections toward his History and Topography of Westmorland are published here, for the first time.

Thomas Machell's Collections Towards a History and Topography of Westmorland

Thomas Machell's Collections Towards a History and Topography of Westmorland

Edited by Jane Platt

CUMBERLAND AND WESTMORLAND
ANTIQUARIAN AND ARCHAEOLOGICAL SOCIETY

Record Series Volume 25
2025

Cumberland and Westmorland
Antiquarian and Archaeological Society
Hon. General Editor
Professor Colin Richards

Thomas Machell's Collections Towards a History and Topography of Westmorland

Record Series Volume 25

Editorial matter © Jane Platt, 2025. All rights reserved

ISBN 978 1 873124 956

Printed by Titus Wilson Ltd, Kendal
2025

This work has been supported by a legacy from Annette Mary Theresa Harwood, deceased, of Stanwix, Carlisle.

No part of this publication may be reproduced in any form or stored in a retrieval system or transmitted in any form or by any means electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording, or otherwise without the prior written permission of the copyright owner or as expressly permitted by law.

Requests for the copyright owner's written permission to reproduce any part of this publication should be made of the copyright owner through the CWAAS.

Contents

List of Figures vi

Abbreviations xxiii

Glossary of some English Terms used in Machell's Text xxv

Glossary of some of the Latin Words used in Machell's Text xxxi

Introduction 1

Preface 31

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

- Chapter 1: Town of Appleby and its Parishes 219
- Chapter 2: Askham Parish 387
- Chapter 3: Asby Parish 399
- Chapter 4: Bampton Parish 401
- Chapter 5: Barton Parish 407
- Chapter 6: Brough Parish 473
- Chapter 7: Brougham Parish 527
- Chapter 8: Cliburn Parish 543
- Chapter 9: Clifton Parish 551
- Chapter 10: Crosby Garrett Parish 573
- Chapter 11: Crosby Ravensworth Parish 581
- Chapter 12: Dufton Parish 591
- Chapter 13: Kirkby Stephen Parish 597
- Chapter 14: Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin Parishes 651
- Chapter 15: Lowther Parish 769
- Chapter 16: Long Marton Parish 783
- Chapter 17: Morland Parish 791
- Chapter 18: Musgrave Parish 809
- Chapter 19: Ormside Parish 815
- Chapter 20: Orton Parish 821
- Chapter 21: Ravenstonedale Parish 837
- Chapter 22: Shap Parish 847
- Chapter 23: Warcop Parish 863

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

- Chapter 2.1: Kendal Barony 877
- Chapter 2.2: Kendal Town 907

Chapter 2.3: Kendal Chapelries

3i: Burneside 931

3ii: Crook and Winster 937

3iii: Hutton 941

3iv: Ings & Hugill 945

3v: Kentmere 951

3vi: Longsleddale 957

3vii: Natland and Watercrook 961

3viii: Selside & Skelsmergh 969

3ix: Staveley 973

3x: Underbarrow 979

Chapter 2.4: Beetham Parish 981

Chapter 2.5: Burton in Kendal Parish 1003

Chapter 2.6: Grasmere Parish 1015

Chapter 2.7: Heversham Parish 1049

Chapter 2.8: Kirkby Lonsdale Parish 1075

Chapter 2.9: Windermere Parish 1117

Chapter 2.10: Itinerary 1163

Part 3. Further Collections

Chapter 3.1: Directions for those who shall undertake to finish the Antiquities of Westmorland 1195

Chapter 3.2: Correspondence 1203

Chapter 3.3: Roman Antiquities 1233

Chapter 3.4: Concerning Heraldry 1307

Bibliography 1 1369

Bibliography 2 1383

Acknowledgements 1405

List of figures

Preface

Figure 1. ‘Of the British Characters’. I.15. 43
Figure 2. Sketch of the Picts’ Wall. I.35. 57
Figure 3. ‘hec fata resolvent’. I.229. 73
Figure 4. Proposed Title Page, ‘These Armes … will make a pretty Booke.’ I.41. 84
Figure 5. ‘Out of Mr Adam’s Index Villaris’. III.vii. 86
Figure 6. Examples of symbols based on the Index Villaris. III.1. 86
Figure 7. Part of Machell’s Township Chart. III.3. 87
Figure 8. ‘An Hantshire Piper’. I.83. 138
Figure 9. ‘Speed’. II.502. 207
Figure 10. ‘Father or brother … you may pace at any entrance as twix a. & b.’ II.530. 212

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

Chapter 1: Town of Appleby and its Parishes

Figure 1.1.1. Appleby Castle. I.57. 219
Figure 1.1.2. Seals ‘sans date’. I.62. 223
Figure 1.1.3. Appleby Seal. I.165. 224
Figure 1.1.4. Sketch of Roman coins. I.172. 231
Figure 1.1.5. ABALLABA Inscription. I.173. 232
Figure 1.1.6. ‘Platforme’ of Appleby. I.176A. 234
Figure 1.1.7. Margin sketch of halberd, with explanatory text. I.308. 257
Figure 1.1.8. Proclamation of James II, 1688. I.178-9. 258
Figure 1.1.9. ‘By the King: A Proclamation for Restoring Corporations to their Ancient Charters, Rights and Franchises, James R.’ 1688. I.182A-183. 259
Figure 1.1.10. Appleby Seal. I.276A. 262
Figure 1.1.11. Common seals of the Borough of Appleby. I.277. 263
Figure 1.1.12. ‘The seale is about as big as a groat.’ I.347. 289
Figure 1.1.13. Coat of arms drawn on a small scrap of paper. I.262C. 292
Figure 1.1.14. Seal of Robert de Veteriponte. I.187. 294
Figure 1.1.15. Seals of the Veteriponte and Machell families. I.261. 295
Figure 1.1.16. ‘This is not much unlike Meschiens, his armes’. I.332. 303
Figure 1.1.17. Appleby Castle Tower. I.183B. 304
Figure 1.1.18. Inscription in Appleby Castle Tower. I.183B. 304
Figure 1.1.19. Sketch placed alongside the words, ‘which strong and fortificall worke’. I.302. 305
Figure 1.1.20. Margin sketch: ‘antiq of Castles’. I.302. 305
Figure 1.1.21. ‘In a field Gules, 6 annulets Or’. I.234. 310
Figure 1.1.22. ‘Richard de Buly … Gules, a primrose, Or, pierced of the field.’ I.235. 311
Figure 1.1.23. Seal of John de Veteripont. IV.31. 311
Figure 1.1.24. Space for the Veteripont seal, containing the pencilled words, ‘Se the seale’. I.236. 312
Figure 1.1.25. Seal of Richard Fitz John. I.237. 313

Figure 1.1.26. Veteripont Seal. I.238. 314
Figure 1.1.27. Margin sketch relating to animal heads hung on the Hart Horne Tree, Whinfell. I.245. 321
Figure 1.1.28. Seal of Roger de Clifford. I.247. 323
Figure 1.1.29. Clifford Arms. I.248. 325
Figure 1.1.30. Reverse of Seal: 'This Seale is of Red wax'. I.253. 330
Figure 1.1.31. 'Seale of Sir William de Threlkeld' c.1341-42. I.253. 331
Figure 1.1.32. Example of Machell's frequent use of a pointing hand as a nota bene. I.254. 332
Figure 1.1.33. 'The Good old Mali-Catuli'. I.328B. 345
Figure 1.1.34. Hilton. 'Over the arched gate of the court'. III.91. 357
Figure 1.1.35. Hilton. 'Over the hall chimney'. III.91. 357
Figure 1.1.36. Crackenthorpe Hall. I.335B. 364
Figure 1.1.37. 'old timber footed … to make the garrets'. I.335A. 365
Figure 1.1.38. Sketch of Roman Fort. III.51. 367
Figure 1.1.39. Roman Camp at Crackenthorpe. I.330. 368
Figure 1.1.40. Roman Camp at Crackenthorpe. 'I have seen this Romane Campe since and have drawn it out elsewhere.' I.330. 368
Figure 1.1.41. Faint pencil plan of the Roman fort at Crackenthorpe. I.331. 369
Figure 1.1.42. Three greyhounds courant. I.332. 373
Figure 1.1.43. Seal sketches. I.646. 375
Figure 1.1.44. 'Machel with Barkar'. I.646. 377

Chapter 2: Askham Parish

Figure 1.2.1. East Window, Askham Church. I.359. 388
Figure 1.2.2. Askham Hall, gate inscription. I.361. 390
Figure 1.2.3. Askham Hall Chapel, East Window. I.361. 391
Figure 1.2.4. Kitchen doorway stone, Askham Hall, I.363. 392
Figure 1.2.5. Coats of arms on Askham Cross. I.362. 392

Chapter 4: Bampton Parish

Figure 1.4.1. Pencil drawing. 'SIGILLUM PATRITII FILII'. I.369. 402
Figure 1.4.2. Thomas Machell to Dr John Mill, St Edmund Hall, Oxford, 20 September 1686. I.370A. 403

Chapter 5: Barton Parish

Figure 1.5.1. Margin sketch plan of Barton Church with tower and interior arches. I.660. 411
Figure 1.5.2. 'Over the Portch on the outside in Stone'. I.673. 412
Figure 1.5.3. Chancel Ceiling, Barton Church. I.671. 412
Figure 1.5.4. A measured plan of Barton Church. I. 671A. 413
Figure 1.5.5. Arms and Monumental Inscriptions at Barton Church. I. 675. 415
Figure 1.5.6. Lancaster Arms. I.380. 417
Figure 1.5.7. Coats of arms, low end of the quire. I.380. 417
Figure 1.5.8. Sketch of the 'through' at number 13. I.380. 418
Figure 1.5.9. Barton Church: 'W.D. 1674'. I.380. 418

Figure 1.5.10. Small sketches: ‘Maybe John Lancaster’. I.381. 418
Figure 1.5.11. Text written in several different directions and text crossed through. I.655B. 428
Figure 1.5.12. Sketch of the Dacre Arms on Barton Cross. I.664. 429
Figure 1.5.13. Dunmallet, Pooley, ‘Bridge’ and Machell’s notes. I.666. 431
Figure 1.5.14. Sketch of Trostermount, now called Hodgson’s Hill, Pooley. I.692. 432
Figure 1.5.15. Sketch Plan of Winder Hall. I.696. 435
Figure 1.5.16. Sketch of Martindale Chapel. I.698. 436
Figure 1.5.17. Martindale Chapel Plan. I.655B. 437
Figure 1.5.18. Coats of Arms: Martindale family and Browne of Matterdale. Margin of I.700. 440
Figure 1.5.19. Lord’s Seat, Bannerdale. I.699. 440
Figure 1.5.20. Sketch of Patterdale Chapel and yew tree. I.706. 443
Figure 1.5.21. Patterdale Chapel Plan. I.725C. 443
Figure 1.5.22. Two escutcheons on the lintel over the door at Patterdale Hall. I.714. 446
Figure 1.5.23. ‘A light touch or scratch of what I remember of Patterdale Hall: a Little hall’ I.715A. 446
Figure 1.5.24. Patterdale Hall Floor slates. I.715B. 447
Figure 1.5.25. An eagle displayed: inked on the left, pencilled on the right. I.724A. 449
Figure 1.5.26. Hartsop Hall Ground Plan. I.725A. 451
Figure 1.5.27. Hartsop Hall sketches. I.725A. 452
Figure 1.5.28. ‘The forme of the lake called Ulse-water.’ II.438. 455
Figure 1.5.29. Small piece of paper affixed to the page. ‘On the Seeling in Plasterworke, in the old dineing Roome at Sockbridge’. I.733. 458
Figure 1.5.30. Plaster work on the partition of the new dining room at Sockbridge Hall. I.725D. 458
Figure 1.5.31. ‘Arms over the Tower Door’. I. 725D. 458
Figure 1.5.32. Plan of Sockbridge Hall. I.725D. 459
Figure 1.5.33. On the ‘Great Hall window’, Sockbridge Hall. I.725D. 459
Figure 1.5.34. Coats of Arms on a ‘great Beam’ in Sockbridge Hall. I.725C. 460
Figure 1.5.35. In Yanwath Hall ‘Outshot window’. I.736. 461
Figure 1.5.36. ‘In Plasterwork over the Dineing-Room chimney.’ I.736. 461
Figure 1.5.37. In plasterwork over the ceiling. I.736. 462
Figure 1.5.38. Annotated plan of Yanwath Hall. I.737. 462
Figure 1.5.39. Castlesteads at Yanwath Wood. I.738A. 463
Figure 1.5.40. Machell’s sketches of Maybrough and ‘Arthur[’s] Castle alias the round Table’. I.737. 465
Figure 1.5.41. Maybrough. Four standing stones; the larger circle contains the Latin word ‘Iugerum’. I.375. 466
Figure 1.5.42. Notes on Hartsop and Patterdale, written up elsewhere and then scored through. I.725B. 467

Chapter 6: Brough Parish

Figure 1.6.1. ‘IHS & M’. I.426. 478
Figure 1.6.2. Elevation of Brough Castle. I.392. 482
Figure 1.6.3. Plan of Brough Castle. I.392A. 483
Figure 1.6.4. Key to Machell’s Plan of Brough Castle. 483

Figure 1.6.5. Sketches. I.395. 485
Figure 1.6.6. Margin sketch. Impression of the old roof of the Roman Tower at Brough Castle. I.396. 486
Figure 1.6.7. Copy of Brough Charter Seal. I.429. 489
Figure 1.6.8. 'Brough Spaw Well'. III.103. 490
Figure 1.6.9. Court Leet and Baron Arms. I.399. 494
Figure 1.6.10. Maiden Castle. I.401. 497
Figure 1.6.11. Route over Stainmore. I.401. 498
Figure 1.6.12. Margin sketch plan of Maiden Castle. I.436A. 499
Figure 1.6.13. Faint lines of a pencilled plan of Maiden Castle. I.436B. 499
Figure 1.6.14. Arms of Sir Alexander Ewbank. I.400. 503
Figure 1.6.15. Arms of Vipont and Ewbank. I.400. 504
Figure 1.6.16. Symbols relating to the marriage of Thomas de Helebeck to Avicia. I.405. 505
Figure 1.6.17. Sigillum Thomas de Helbeck, 26. Ed. 1. [1297-98] I.409. 509
Figure 1.6.18. Arms, top-left margin, I.410 511
Figure 1.6.19. Blenkinsop: Thomas and Katherine's Arms. I.410. 512
Figure 1.6.20. Haverington Arms. I.410. 512
Figure 1.6.21. Arms of William de Blenkinshop. I.411. 513
Figure 1.6.22. Seals: 1. 'Used by Thomas Junior's widow at her will'; 2. 'Used at her sonn's will'. I.414. 517
Figure 1.6.23. Seal of Thomas Blenkinsop. I.416. 519
Figure 1.6.24. Vaux Seal. I.418. 521
Figure 1.6.25. 'Gun britch' and 'levator'. III.107. 524

Chapter 7: Brougham Parish

Figure 1.7.1. Chimney piece in the dining room at Hornby Hall. I.444A. 535
Figure 1.7.2. Matches. I.443. 535
Figure 1.7.3. 'Browham demolished'. I.630. 540
Figure 1.7.4. 'Browham demolished', detail. I.630. 541

Chapter 8: Cliburn Parish

Figure 1.8.1. Cliburn church plan. III.117. 544
Figure 1.8.2. Sketch of the gable end of Cliburn church. III.117. 544
Figure 1.8.3. Plan of Cliburn Hall. Margin. III.117. 545
Figure 1.8.4. Coat of Arms over the door at Cliburn Hall. III.15. 546

Chapter 9: Clifton Parish

Figure 1.9.1. Sketch plan of Clifton Parsonage House. III.121. 551
Figure 1.9.2. Engayne Arms (1.). III.121. 553
Figure 1.9.3. Helynor Ingayne. III.123. 555
Figure 1.9.4. Fallowfield of Great Strickland Arms. III.123. 555
Figure 1.9.5. 'vid. Fig. 3'. III.123. 555
Figure 1.9.6. The letter 'M' in Clifton Church. III.123. 556
Figure 1.9.7. 'Seal on a deed in the possession of T. Sandford'. III.124. 557

Figure 1.9.8. Seal of Richard Lowther. III.125. 557
Figure 1.9.9. Engayne Arms (2.). III.133 562
Figure 1.9.10. Inscription frame 'upon the gable end of Clifton Hall'. III.133A. 563
Figure 1.9.11. Wybergh Pedigree. III.150. 571
Figure 1.9.12. 'In Mr Knight booke'. III.150. 571

Chapter 10: Crosby Garrett Parish

Figure 1.10.1. Directions from Crosby Garrett Church. III.166B. 573
Figure 1.10.2. Musgrave Arms. III.166A. 575
Figure 1.10.3. 'Fairy Beads'. I.539. 578

Chapter 11: Crosby Ravensworth Parish

Figure 1.11.1. Crosby Ravensworth Church. East Window. III.177. 584
Figure 1.11.2. Crosby Ravensworth. Manor House Arms. III.178. 585
Figure 1.11.3. 'A coyn of Richard found … in the street. Feb. 23 1688/9'. III.174. 587

Chapter 12: Dufton Parish

Figure 1.12.1. Arms at Dufton Church. III.162A. 592

Chapter 13: Kirkby Stephen Parish

Figure 1.13.1 'In Hartley's choir which is on the south side of the church'. I.578. 600
Figure 1.13.2. Coats of Arms in the margin. I.579. 601
Figure 1.13.3. Wharton Tomb, pencil and ink drawing. I.573. 602
Figure 1.13.4. Wharton Tomb East End: detail. I.576. 604
Figure 1.13.5. 'Said to be Sir Andrew Hartcley, Earle of Carlile.' 'X.' I.580. 606
Figure 1.13.6. Example of the hand of a later writer who questioned the provenance of the monument above. I.573. 606
Figure 1.13.7. Armorial Glass in Kirkby Stephen Church. I.582. 607
Figure 1.13.8. Crocklem Castle and the Roman Way. III.183. 615
Figure 1.13.9. Fells and route map. III.188. 616
Figure 1.13.10. 'Wilborefell', A Prospect of the fell S. & S. West from Rasett Pikes. III.188. 617
Figure 1.13.11. 'A Memorandum of Hartley Castle'. III.223. 618
Figure 1.13.12. Stone 'howles'. Pencil and ink drawing. I.584. 620
Figure 1.13.13. 'Stone like a tortoise; strange stags horn'. I.569C. 620
Figure 1.13.14. Plan of Wharton Hall. III.202. 625
Figure 1.13.15. Machell's Figure (a.). III.202. 626
Figure 1.13.16. Machell's Figure (b.). III.201. 627
Figure 1.13.17. Machell's Figure (c.). III.201. 627
Figure 1.13.18. Machell's Figure (d.). III.202. 628
Figure 1.13.19. Machell's Figure (e.). III.203. 628
Figure 1.13.20. Machell's Figure (g.). III.203. 629
Figure 1.13.21. Plain shield, Clifford. III.205. 630
Figure 1.13.22. Image at foot of page after 'verry'. III.203. 630
Figure 1.13.23. Wharton Hall Parlour. Musgrave Coat of Arms. III.207. 631

Figure 1.13.24. Angel and Coat of Arms, 'probably Warcops'. III.225. 634
Figure 1.13.25. Coats of Arms. 'This is defaced but it appears like 3 cupps'. III.225. 634
Figure 1.13.26. Plan of Smardale Hall. III.225. 634
Figure 1.13.27. Armorial Glass in the Hall. III.225. 635
Figure 1.13.28. 'The same agane.' III.225. 635
Figure 1.13.29. Armorial Glass in the Gallery end window. III.225. 636
Figure 1.13.30. In Soulby Chapel. III.194. 637
Figure 1.13.31. Seal of Sir Richard de Suleby. I.497. 639
Figure 1.13.32. Small sketch of the Hither Pit. Letters a. to f. denote areas mentioned in the text. III.192. 649

Chapter 14: Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin Parish

Figure 1.14.1. Sketch of the Whelp Descent. I.550. 659
Figure 1.14.2. 'Vault underground … at Coppin Hill'. I.548. 669
Figure 1.14.3. A scrap page typical of those numbered in the 20th century when pasted into the volume. I.561A. 671
Figure 1.14.4. Letter to Machell from A. Smal[…], 1672. VI.222B. 672
Figure 1.14.5. Sketch of Kirkby Thore font cover with added scrap page. I.561. 675
Figure 1.14.6. Image of scroll. I.476. 676
Figure 1.14.7A. Machell's plan of Rose Castle post 1660. VI.662K. 677
Figure 1.14.7B. Detail from Machell's plan of Rose Castle. VI.662K. 678
Figure 1.14.8. 'Earthworks; The road to K. church; The Romane Way towards Apleby'. I.485. 698
Figure 1.14.9. 'Forme pectinatus'. I.528. 701
Figure 1.14.10. 'a & b; 'f.v.': examples of Machell's sketches. I.528. 701
Figure 1.14.11. Study desk. I.563. 710
Figure 1.14.12. Dining-room chimney 'contrivance' and study desk. I.562. 710
Figure 1.14.13. 'The little house on the left as you goe to Penrith'. I.548. 716
Figure 1.14.14. Inscription. I.758. 722
Figure 1.14.15. The Great Seal of England kept by Roger Malus Catulus. I.372. 726
Figure 1.14.16. The Great Seal turned through 180 degrees. I.372. 726
Figure 1.14.17. Machell descent. I.763. 726
Figure 1.14.18. Crackenthorpe Hall Coats of Arms. I.620. 732
Figure 1.14.19. Newbiggin Hall. 'Carnaby quarterd with Crackenthorpe'. Arms of Salkeld of Rosgil. I.649A. 733
Figure 1.14.20. Newbiggin Hall. Brisco quartering Skelton impaling Crackenthorpe. I.649A. 733
Figure 1.14.21. Newbiggin Hall. Crackenthorpe: fleur-de-lys Or; Bird Or on ground Gules. I.649A. 733
Figure 1.14.22. Newbiggin Hall. 'Warcop' Argent on Sable, fess Argent. I.649A. 733
Figure 1.14.23. Newbiggin Hall. Argent a bend chequy Or and Gules. I.649A. 733
Figure 1.14.24. 'On the lower rock at Crawdundell. Sep.19.1690'. III.283. 734

Chapter 15: Lowther Parish

Figure 1.15.1. Lowther Arms 1687 (Or, 6 annulets Sable). III.41B. 771
Figure 1.15.2. West end of Lowther Church, sketched on the reverse of a letter. III.41A. 774

Figure 1.15.3. Lowther Church. III.41. 774
Figure 1.15.4. 'Platforme of Lowther Parsonage'. III.34. 775
Figure 1.15.5. Lowther Arms. III.34A. 777
Figure 1.15.6. Lowther Hall. III.42-43. 778
Figure 1.15.7. Lowther Hall. III.45. 778
Figure 1.15.8. At Lowther Hall. III.48. 779
Figure 1.15.9. Sketch plan of Melkinthorpe Hall. III.34A. 782

Chapter 16: Long Marton Parish

Figure 1.16.1. Margin detail: images of tumuli. I.603. 783
Figure 1.16.2. Arms 'in Martin Church window'. I.601A. 784
Figure 1.16.3. Faded pencil sketches of escutcheons in the windows of Long Marton Church. I.606. 785
Figure 1.16.4. White Burwens..'a. Bulwork; b. the mote; c. another Bulworke like an halfemoon'. I.610. 787

Chapter 17: Morland Parish

Figure 1.17.1. Backhouse Arms. I.613. 794
Figure 1.17.2. Arms at Melkinthorpe Hall. III.263A. 801

Chapter 18: Musgrave Parish

Figure 1.18.1. Musgrave Church. East Window Images. III.273. 811
Figure 1.18.2. Musgrave Church. South Window Images. III.275. 811
Figure 1.18.3. Sketch containing six square plots: 3 above 3, each labelled a, b, c, d. III.282. 813

Chapter 19: Ormside Parish

Figure 1.19.1. Ormside Parish Bounder. III.291. 815
Figure 1.19.2. Sketch plan of Ormside Church. III.292. 816
Figure 1.19.3. Brass at Ormside Church. Sir Christopher Pickering. I.646B. 816
Figure 1.19.4. Margin sketch plan of Breeks or Breaks Hall. III.293A. 818
Figure 1.19.5. Finds from the River Eden at Ormside. III.293. 819

Chapter 20: Orton Parish

Figure 1.20.1. Brandreth Stone. III.301. 827
Figure 1.20.2. Letter, 1673. III.298. 828
Figure 1.20.3. Inscription, Tebay School. III.301. 829
Figure 1.20.4. Ancient Hall house with window 'castle-wise'. III.302. 831
Figure 1.20.5. Engraving. Portrait of Thomas Barlow D.D. I.642A. 833
Figure 1.20.6. 'Found in Sunbiging Tarne'. III.205. 834

Chapter 21: Ravenstonedale Parish

Figure 1.21.1. Sketch of a feature 'a mile & ½ N.W. from Newbigin, the left hand of the way to Appleby'. III.305. 837
Figure 1.21.2. Tern [Tarn] House. Coats of Arms. III.306. 840

Chapter 22: Shap Parish

Figure 1.22.1. Shap Church. Coats of arms. III.313. 848
Figure 1.22.2. Seal 'Ad Shap Abbey'. I.165. 848
Figure 1.22.3. Standing Stones, 'near to Shap Abbey'. I.312. 857
Figure 1.22.4. Gilbert Culwen, sigillum. I.311. 861

Chapter 23: Warcop Parish

Figure 1.23.1.'The Round-Castle near Coupland Beckbridge as the foundation Appears in Its Ruines'. I.317. 864
Figure 1.23.2. Warcop tumuli and 'the Romane Way which leads towards Appleby'. I.318. 865
Figure 1.23.3. 'A ring made of earth and stones'. I.318. 865
Figure 1.23.4. Coats of arms at Warcop Hall. I.319. 866
Figure 1.23.5. Church bells, Warcop. III.327. 867
Figure 1.23.6. Four coats of arms in Warcop Church windows. I.320. 867
Figure 1.23.7. Nevill coat of arms, Warcop Church. I.320. 868
Figure 1.23.8. Warcop Tower window. Coats of arms. I.322. 870
Figure 1.23.9. Margin sketch beside a description of Thomas Warcop of Colby. I.333. 870
Figure 1.23.10. Coat of arms at Burton Hall. III.329. 872
Figure 1.23.11. Coat of arms in the great window of the dining room at Burton Hall. III.329. 872
Figure 1.23.12. Detail on 'the highest stone of the S.W. angle of the great window' of Burton Hall. III.329. 872

Part 2. Barony of Kendal

Chapter 2.1: Kendal Barony

Figure 2.1.1. 'Cunswick, an old Hall.' II.3. 877
Figure 2.1.2. 'In Plaster over the Hall chimney' at Dockray Hall. 'R \ W / S. 1621.' II.359B. 896

Chapter 2.2: Kendal Town

Figure 2.2.1. John Speed's Map of Kendal. II.23. 907
Figure 2.2.2. Machell's Plan of Kendal Castle. Detail. II.26. 907
Figure 2.2.3. Kendal Hospital. Arms. II.26. 909
Figure 2.2.4. Water-Budget. II.31. 910
Figure 2.2.5. View of Kendal Church from the west; small sketch 4cm x 4cm, pasted onto II.30. 910
Figure 2.2.6. Parr's Quire. II.35. 911
Figure 2.2.7. Monument, north side of Parr's Quire. II.35. 911
Figure 2.2.8. Part of the monument of Sir Augustine Nicholls of Faxton. II.35. 912
Figure 2.2.9. In Sizergh or Strickland's Quire. II.36. 912
Figure 2.2.10. Between Parr's and Strickland's quire. 3 coats of arms in stone, one defaced. II.36A. 913
Figure 2.2.11.'North side of the quire: gray marble tomb supported with Hewne Stone.' II.36A. 913
Figure 2.2.12. Coats of Arms. II.359A. 913
Figure 2.2.13. 'And at the corner is this Coate of Arms'. II.36A. 914
Figure 2.2.14. Seal to a deed of gift, 21. Ed. III. 'which is not much unlike this in Strickland's Quire'. II.36B. 914

Figure 2.2.15. Pasted images of monument and inscriptions, c., d. and e, II.37. 915
Figure 2.2.16. Marble monument near the vestry door. II.39. 916
Figure 2.2.17. Memorial to Michael Stanford. II.39. 917
Figure 2.2.18. Seal detail. University of St Andrews. II.41. 918
Figure 2.2.19. Kendal Castle. II.71. 926
Figure 2.2.20. Mound at Kendal. II.369C. 929
Figure 2.2.21. 'Kendal Church. In Strickland, quier window'. II.122. 929

Chapter 2.3: Kendal Chapelries

3i: Burneside

Figure 2.3i.1. Pencil sketch of Burneside Chapel. II.91. 931
Figure 2.3i.2. Thomas Dennison. 'Hook nosed, my kinde & ingeniouse Landlord & informer.' II.91. 932

3ii: Crook and Winster

Figure 2.3ii.1. Plan of Crook Chapel. II.91. 937
Figure 2.3ii.2. Winster Chapel. II.97. 938

3iii: Hutton

Figure 2.3iii.1. Hutton Chapel. II.87. 941

3iv. Ings & Hugill

Figure 2.3iv.1. Chapel at Ings. II.121. 945
Figure 2.3iv.2. Lines on Rowland Wilson, copied by James Robinson, chaplain. II.413A. 947
Figure 2.3iv.3. St Ann's Chapel Ings from the south-east; sketch in red pencil and ink. II.414. 948

3v: Kentmere

Figure 2.3v.1. Kentmere Chapel. II.105. 951
Figure 2.3v.2. Kentmere Hall. Ab Ecclesia Kendal 8m. N.W & by N. II.105. 952
Figure 2.3v.3. 'Kentmer Hall; in the Hall window'. II.105. 952
Figure 2.3v.4. 'No Deer in memory – but trees'. II.106. 953

3vi: Longsleddale

Figure 2.3vi.1. Longsleddale Chapel. II.103. 957

3vii: Natland and Watercrook

Figure 2.3vii.1. Natland Chapel. II.81. 961
Figure 2.3vii.2. 'At Natland, the reverse as the lower in all respects.' II.79. 962
Figure 2.3vii.3. 'Found at Broadflat S. a Capella 12 score, in May 91.' II.79 963
Figure 2.3vii.4. 'Found near Mr Guyes ¼ m. N. a Capella. 16 years since.' II.80. 963
Figure 2.3vii.5. 'A piece of a pot with this broken inscription', and an 'oven' at Watercrook. II.81. 965
Figure 2.3vii.6. Watercrook Roman fort. II.83. 966
Figure 2.3vii.7. 'The Little Altar', 2 ft 1/2 high. II.82. 967

3viii: Selside & Skelsmergh

Figure 2.3viii.1. Selside Chapel and Hall. II.101. 969

3ix: Staveley

Figure 2.3ix.1. Staveley Chapel. II.113. 974

Figure 2.3ix.2. Arms in Staveley Chapel East Window. II.113. 974

3x: Underbarrow

Figure 2.3x.1. Underbarrow Chapel. II.111. 979

Chapter 2.4: Beetham Parish

Figure 2.4.1. Beetham Church. II.276. 981

Figure 2.4.2. 'In the High Quire on the South Side in wainscot: F.D. 1614'. II.267. 981

Figure 2.4.3. 'In the East window of the great Quire'. II.267. 981

Figure 2.4.4. 'In the E. Window of the S. Ile quire. In Text Letters on the first light of the same window'. II.267. 982

Figure 2.4.5. 'Over the S. Ile Q. as you enter by 6 steps Ascending, 3 Bores heads couped'. II.267. 982

Figure 2.4.6. II.267. On the South Side. II.267. 982

Figure 2.4.7. 'In a midle window in the S. Ile.' II.267. 983

Figure 2.4.8. Beetham Church memorials. Foot of II.267. 983

Figure 2.4.9. 'Cherubim' in Witherslack Chapel East Window. II.275. 989

Figure 2.4.10. Witherslack Chapel. Coats of Arms, 1 and 2. II.275. 990

Figure 2.4.11. Witherslack Chapel and East Window. II.277. 992

Figure 2.4.12. Witherslack Hall. II.277. 999

Chapter 2.5: Burton in Kendal Parish

Figure 2.5.1. Small sketch of Burton Church. II.291. 1004

Figure 2.5.2. Burton Church Arms, Sketches 1-5. II.289. 1004

Figure 2.5.3. Arms, Sketches 6-7. II.289. 1005

Figure 2.5.4. 'Arms on the Capital of the farthest pillar.' II.289. 1005

Figure 2.5.5. Leigh Arms. II.289. 1005

Figure 2.5.6. Burton Cross. II.290. 1007

Figure 2.5.7. Orientation diagram from Burton Church. II.291. 1009

Figure 2.5.8. Chapel and Hall at Preston Patrick. II.297. 1011

Figure 2.5.9. R \ L / E, 1666, 'Over the hall door'. II.295. 1014

Chapter 2.6: Grasmere Parish

Figure 2.6.1. Seal stamped with the Fleming Arms. II.124. 1019

Figure 2.6.2. Assessment Stick. II.124. 1020

Figure 2.6.3. Bells at Grasmere Church 1607, with Arms and Inscriptions. II.132C. 1021

Figure 2.6.4. Grasmere Church, 3rd Bell Inscription. II.132C. 1022

Figure 2.6.5. Grasmere Church. Memorials and Arches. II.125. 1022

Figure 2.6.6. 'Dunbal Raise Stones'. II.132B. 1026

Figure 2.6.7. {'Ergo this Coat, had he 2 wives – for Briggs was one of Calmire.'}. II.129. 1028

Figure 2.6.8. Langdale Chapel. II.153. 1030

Figure 2.6.9. The three Shire Stones and the rising of rivers. II.135. 1035

Figure 2.6.10. {'Which Way – Which way'}. II.149. 1038
Figure 2.6.11. Rydal Hall. II.133. 1039
Figure 2.6.12. Daniel Fleming's Signature. II.145. 1041
Figure 2.6.13. Windermere. Islands near Bowness. II.150. 1044
Figure 2.6.14. Ambleside Chapel, ' In the Quier on the right ha[n]d window near to great East window'. II.151. 1045
Figure 2.6.15.'Upon the Dial Post on the Cross in Ambleside'. II.150. 1045
Figure 2.6.16. Inscription on 'Ambleside Chappel Bell'. II.150A. 1045
Figure 2.6.17. Inscription from 'Borwens'. II.152. 1046
Figure 2.6.18. 'A sword at Elterwater Hall'. II.153. 1047

Chapter 2.7: Heversham Parish

Figure 2.7.1. Heversham church. II.161. 1049
Figure 2.7.2. Heversham Church East Window. 'Richard Buskel 1601'. II.161. 1050
Figure 2.7.3. 'In Prestons Seat' and 'three more thus'. II 161. 1050
Figure 2.7.4. 'Above a Capital of a Pillar in the N. Ile'. II.165. 1051
Figure 2.7.5. 'On the E? window of the North Aisle'. II.165. 1051
Figure 2.7.6. 'On a Marble-Grave-Stone in Prestons Pew S'. II.165. 1052
Figure 2.7.7. Benson Family Arms. II.167. 1057
Figure 2.7.8. Upper Levins Hall. II.175. 1059
Figure 2.7.9. Arms at Upper Levins Hall. II.175. 1060
Figure 2.7.10. Scroll 'in the parlour window'. II.176. 1061
Figure 2.7.11. Figures illustrating text. II.177. 1063
Figure 2.7.12. Bellingham coat of arms in wainscot. II.178. 1064
Figure 2.7.13. 'Under Levins Hall'. II.179. 1064
Figure 2.7.14. A & 14B. Arms at Nether Levens Hall. II.179. 1065
Figure 2.7.15. Slip of paper 4cm square: epitaph to an unknown lady who died in August 1582. II.181. 1066
Figure 2.7.16. 'Silver found About Siserge Hall 15 years since'. II.183. 1067
Figure 2.7.17. 'Silver found there at the same time.' II.183. 1067
Figure 2.7.18. 'Silver which came out of Yorkeshire perhaps from about Fountains Abby near Rippon'. II.183. 1068
Figure 2.7.19. Sizergh. Arms on 'a dilicate chimney piece of wainscot' in the dining room'. II.187. 1068
Figure 2.7.20. Arms in the Hall at Sizergh Castle. II.187. 1069
Figure 2.7.21. Detail of the parlour chimney piece (e.); arms under a window of the tower (f.). II.187. 1070
Figure 2.7.22. Plan of Crosthwate Chapel. II.190A. 1070
Figure 2.7.23. Example of Machell's MS. II.190A. 1071
Figure 2.7.24. Calmire Hall. 'Old Ivy Building.' II.191. 1072
Figure 2.7.25. Arms containing 'wantaracks' at Calmire Hall. II.191. 1072
Figure 2.7.26. Calmire Hall. 'Another sort of wantarack'. II.191. 1073
Figure 2.7.27. Crosscrake Chapel. 'The chimney is made in the corner, yard long in the lintal.' II.85. 1073

Chapter 2.8: Kirkby Lonsdale Parish

Figure 2.8.1. 'Kirkby Loansdale Church, Michael gate and Brigg Street.' II.208. 1076
Figure 2.8.2. Altar at Kirkby Lonsdale, used as a door seat. II.204. 1077
Figure 2.8.3. Carus with Curwen descent. V.53. 1078
Figure 2.8.4. Machell's use of small scraps of paper. II. 205B. 1079
Figure 2.8.5. Barbon Chapel. II.201. 1081
Figure 2.8.6. In the margin, sketch of Casterton Hall. II.223. 1083
Figure 2.8.7. Kirkby Lonsdale Church; margin sketch. II.205. 1086
Figure 2.8.8. Arms in the Middleton Quire of Kirkby Lonsdale Church. II.219. 1087
Figure 2.8.9. Second coat of arms. Middleton quire in Kirkby Lonsdale Church. II.219. 1087
Figure 2.8.10. Coats of arms on the south side of the monument in the Middleton quire in Kirkby Lonsdale Church. II.219. 1087
Figure 2.8.11. North side of the monument in Middleton Quire in Kirkby Lonsdale Church. II.219. 1087
Figure 2.8.12. 'In Casterton Piew in the S. Ile – on wainscot.' II.219. 1088
Figure 2.8.13. Redman Arms in Casterton pew in Kirkby Lonsdale Church. II.220. 1088
Figure 2.8.14. Curwen with Carus coat of arms. II.220. 1089
Figure 2.8.15. Samuell Gibson's Christian Tattoos 1. II.231. 1098
Figure 2.8.16. Samuel Gibson's Christian Tattoos 2. II.231. 1099
Figure 2.8.17. Margin sketch, 3cm x 1cm. Middleton Chapel [length]19; [breadth] 8. II.235. 1100
Figure 2.8.18. Middleton Hall. II.241. 1101
Figure 2.8.19. Middleton Hall. In the Dining Room wainscot. II.241. 1101
Figure 2.8.20. Dining Room Middleton Hall: Arms on a wooden tablet. II.241. 1102
Figure 2.8.21A. Elevation. Hawking Hall. II.236. 1102
Figure 2.8.21B. Plan. Hawking Hall. II.236. 1103
Figure 2.8.22. Killington Chapel. II.253. 1110
Figure 2.8.23. Killington Chapel. 'Arms marked (1.)'. II.253. 1110
Figure 2.8.24. Sketch plan of Killington Hall. II.253. 1110
Figure 2.8.25. Killington Hall garret window. II.253. 1111
Figure 2.8.26. Killington Hall. 'Over the hall door now a window.' II.253. 1111
Figure 2.8.27. Hutton Roof Chapel. II.261. 1113

Chapter 2.9: Windermere Parish

Figure 2.9.1. Windermere Church. II.308. 1120
Figure 2.9.2. Windermere Church. Arms in the upper lights. II.308. 1121
Figure 2.9.3. 'In the South Ile Quire on the S. side'. II.308. 1122
Figure 2.9.4. Four Coats relating to the woollen industry. II.308. 1123
Figure 2.9.5. 'Gentlemen and their ladyes' at the foot of the lower lights. II.311. 1124
Figure 2.9.6. On little and middle bells at Windermere Church. II.312A. 1125
Figure 2.9.7. Windermere church. On 'The Great Bell'. II.312B. 1125
Figure 2.9.8. Margin drawing of the Philipson monument in Windermere Church. II.312. 1126
Figure 2.9.9. 'Windermere Water.' II.313. 1130
Figure 2.9.10. Margin sketch. Troutbeck Chapel. II.319. 1133
Figure 2.9.11. Margin Note: Bishop Lyttelton's addition to Machell's text. II.323. 1139

Figure 2.9.12. Borrans-Ring. II.327. 1140
Figure 2.9.13. Margin sketch of St Katherine's Chapel, Applethwaite. II.330. 1143
Figure 2.9.14. Draft sketch of Calgarth Hall, annotated, 'not right'. II.332. 1144
Figure 2.9.15. Arms at Calgarth Hall, annotated, 'Set the[se] off a little wider one from another.' II.332. 1144
Figure 2.9.16. Calgarth Hall. II.333. 1146
Figure 2.9.17. On a silver tumbler, the Arms of Philipson. II.336. 1147
Figure 2.9.18. Philipson Descent. II.338. 1149
Figure 2.9.19. Cormorant seen at Windermere Parsonage. II.336. 1152
Figure 2.9.20. 'Great Holm-house alias White-hall.' II.342. 1154
Figure 2.9.21. Plan of Holm-house (Whitehall). 'This stands wrong way; ergo, Turne It.' I.342. 1154
Figure 2.9.22. Windermere, showing 'Ruffholm, Ladyholm, Henholm, Longholm Maiden Holm'. II.343. 1155
Figure 2.9.23. Windermere. Detail from the larger image on II.343. 1156

Chapter 2.10: Itinerary

Figure 2.10.1. Christian tattoos. II.384A. 1168
Figure 2.10.2. Frontispiece detail from William Camden's Britannia (1600 edition). 1176
Figure 2.10.3. Burneside Hall. Margin sketch. II.409. 1180
Figure 2.10.4. 'Armes at Burnaside Hall'. II.409. 1181
Figure 2.10.5. Margin sketch 1½ cm square: calf with two heads. II.412. 1183
Figure 2.10.7. Coathow. Arms in the Hall. II.429. 1188
Figure 2.10.8. Helm Crag. 'Atlas supporting the Hevens'. II.432. 1190
Figure 2.10.9. 'An heap of stones'. II.432. 1190
Figure 2.10.10. Grasmere 'Sess Bills'. II.424. 1191
Figure 2.10.11.'Like an house only at the N. End'. II.436. 1192

Part 3. Further Collections

Chapter 3.1: Directions for those who shall undertake to finish the Antiquities of Westmorland

Figure 3.1.1. 'In folio marked thus'. VI.430. 1197

Chapter 3.2: Correspondence

Figure 3.2.1. Machell's copy of his letter, superimposed on sketches of heraldic shields. II.378. 1204
Figure 3.2.2. Letter to Machell, on which he sketched the west end of Lowther Church. III.41A. 1213
Figure 3.2.3. Letter addressed to Machell in London, later used as a sketch pad. VI.482. 1213
Figure 3.2.4. Evidence of multiple use. I.176B. 1231
Figure 3.2.5. Letter addressed to Mrs Elizabeth Machell. II.36B. 1231

Chapter 3.3: Roman Antiquities

Figure 3.3.1. Roman Finds VI.21. 1233
Figure 3.3.2. Illustration from Thomas Machell's letter to William Dugdale, March 25 1684, 'which was published to my unknowledge & printed at Oxford, amongst your Philosophic Transactions, Apr. 20 at p.555.' 1235

Figure 3.3.3. Machell's sketch of an inscription and reference to Dr Martin Lister's note on Paulini. VI.279. 1240
Figure 3.3.4. Vessel Quantities. VI.275. 1242
Figure 3.3.5. Symbols used by Machell on VI.237. 1243
Figure 3.3.6. Pillar Shaft. VI.234A. 1245
Figure 3.3.7. Peripteros: Ground plan. VI.234. 1245
Figure 3.3.8. Four-fold wall, pipe wall, pillar wall and altar. VI.240. 1246
Figure 3.3.9. 'A Platform of an Arched Subterranean Vault at Kirkbythore.' VI.281. 1248
Figure 3.3.10. Vault Detail. 'The figure of it resembled a trunke'. VI.281. 1249
Figure 3.3.11. 'A wall of 2 f[eet] & 2 inch broad with 2 Leaden-pipes joyned at (a); the other, a wall with 6 Projectures for so many Pillars, on each of which wee suppose one hath stood.' VI.286. 1251
Figure 3.3.12. 'And on the second of these Projectures was this Inscription.' VI.286. 1252
Figure 3.3.13. 'Interspaces between Projectures.' VI.289. 1253
Figure 3.3.14. 'The 2nd projecture' inscription. VI.289. 1254
Figure 3.3.15. Seal Ring Stones. VI.246. 1257
Figure 3.3.16. 'A sardonix ring stone with a seale cut up on it found in Bleckatt Burhans, 30 of March 1687/8.' VI.246. 1257
Figure 3.3.17. 'Lapis inventus apud Whelp-Castle. 1688.' VI.244A. 1258
Figure 3.3.18. 'With this Inscription, but (like the Castle) turn'd upside down.' VI.248. 1259
Figure 3.3.19. Fair Copy of Machell's work on Appleby Inscriptions sent to Dr John Mill at Oxford. I.189. 1261
Figure 3.3.20. '16. ad App[leby].' VI.188. 1263
Figure 3.3.21. 'The xxth is design'd by Mr Bainbrig as a fairer copy to preserve the Memory of Those Inscriptions upon the Rocks which are at Crawdundale'. VI.186D. 1263
Figure 3.3.22. Varronius Inscription. VI.193. 1263
Figure 3.3.23. Inscription not known to Camden. VI.195. 1264
Figure 3.3.24. Appleby School; Clifford Inscription. VI.186B. 1265
Figure 3.3.25. Appleby School Inscription; Thomas Smith and Ran[dal] Sanderson 1671. I.198A. 1266
Figure 3.3.26. An urn found at Machell's Bank. VI.202. 1267
Figure 3.3.27. Urn, drawn on a separate piece of paper and pasted onto the page. VI.204. 1268
Figure 3.3.28. Machell Seal and Inscriptions. VI.210. 1272
Figure 3.3.29. Coins. VI.210A. 1273
Figure 3.3.30. Two faces of a silver coin, 'the bigness of a 3d.' VI.226. 1278
Figure 3.3.31. Detail. Frontinus Inscription. VI.186B. 1281
Figure 3.3.32. Further Altar. Detail. VI.248. 1284
Figure 3.3.33. 'An altar (above a yard high) digg'd up at Kirby in Loansdale, circa an. 1684.' VI.257. 1285
Figure 3.3.34. Roman Inscription found between Ambleside and Windermere church. VI.259. 1286
Figure 3.3.35. Fragments of Roman Inscriptions at Tunstall Vicarage. VI.262. 1287
Figure 3.3.36. 'Roaleing stone'. IV.79. 1288
Figure 3.3.37. Margin. IV.80. 1289
Figure 3.3.38. Margin. IV.81. 1289

Figure 3.3.39. Stone at Lazonby. IV.82. 1290
Figure 3.3.40. Part of an Inscription within a discarded draft of Thomas Machell's letter to John Mill, 20-21 February 1687. I.763A. 1292
Figure 3.3.41. Cornelian gem stone seal figure. VI.296. 1293
Figure 3.3.42. Image from a ring stone found in 1691. VI.296. 1294
Figure 3.3.43. Letter to Machell from John Mill, October 1691, with Machell's riposte. VI.185. 1299
Figure 3.3.44. Letter from Machell to Mill, 26 June 1692. VI.187. 1300
Figure 3.3.45. Page fragment containing a letter. I.509. 1303
Figure 3.3.46. Coins. VI.271. 1303

Chapter 3.4: Concerning Heraldry

Figure 3.4.1. Dieu et mon Droit. VI.393. 1321
Figure 3.4.2. 'He would convert Square Heads or Cavaliers into Round Heads'. VI.393. 1322
Figure 3.4.3. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.397. 1327
Figure 3.4.4. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.399. 1328
Figure 3.4.5. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.401. 1328
Figure 3.4.6. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.403. 1329
Figure 3.4.7. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.405. 1330
Figure 3.4.8. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.407. 1331
Figure 3.4.9. Thomas Fawcet's Book. VI.409. 1331
Figure 3.4.10. 'A Baron's Cap'. VI.451. 1332
Figure 3.4.11. Seal of John Goldrington. VI.457. 1338
Figure 3.4.12. Forest Court: 'the eire of the forrest'. VI.457. 1338
Figure 3.4 13. Labourne Arms. VI.462. 1342
Figure 3.4.14. 'Drawings of Backhouse, Windsor and Theodall (alt. Theoball) Coates of Arms'. VI.471. 1345
Figure 3.4.15. 'A Wing Gules erect'. VI.465. 1346
Figure 3.4.16. 'The duble strokes. Clifford'. VI.473. 1349
Figure 3.4.17. 'Laton' Arms. Machell's use of heraldry symbols as shorthand. VI.475. 1350
Figure 3.4.18. Shorthand heraldry symbol. VI.479. 1354
Figure 3.4.19. 'Midleton' Arms: symbols. VI.479. 1354
Figure 3.4.20. Published document beginning, 'For that the Taking of Inquisitions Post Mortem is not now in use…', pasted into VI.499 and annotated by Machell. 1363

Abbreviations

AVB	Authorised Version of the Bible (1611).
AWL	R.S. Boumphrey, C. Roy Hudleston and J. Hughes, An Armorial for Westmorland and Lonsdale CWAAS Extra Series 21 (Kendal, 1975).
BL	British Library.
CAC(C)	Cumbria Archive Centre, Carlisle.
CCED	Clergy of the Church of England Database Online: http://www.theclergydatabase.org.uk.
CFH	C. Roy Hudleston and R.S. Boumphrey, Cumberland Families and Heraldry CWAAS Extra Series 23 (Kendal, 1978).
CW1, CW2, CW3	Transactions of the Cumberland and Westmorland Antiquarian and Archaeological Society, old series (1866-1900); new series (1901-2000); third series (2001-).
CWAAS	Cumberland and Westmorland Antiquarian and Archaeological Society.
Dugdale, Baronage	William Dugdale*, The Baronage of England, or, An historical account of the lives and most memorable actions of our English nobility in the Saxons time to the Norman conquest, and from thence, of those who had their rise before the end of King Henry the Third's reign deduced from publick records, antient historians, and other authorities* (London, 1675-76).
Dugdale, Monasticon	William Dugdale, Monasticon Anglicanum, or, The history of the ancient abbies, and other monasteries, hospitals, cathedral and collegiate churches in England and Wales. With divers French, Irish, and Scotch monasteries formerly relating to England (1655-1673).
Dugdale*, Warwickshire*	William Dugdale, The Antiquities of Warwickshire (1656).
English Heritage List	The National Heritage List for England: http://list.english-heritage.org.uk.
Hyde & Pevsner	M. Hyde and N. Pevsner*, Cumbria: Cumberland, Westmorland and Furness: The Buildings of England* (New Haven and London, 2010).
Nicolson, Misc. Accts	R.S. Ferguson (ed.), Miscellany Accounts of the Diocese of Carlisle…by William Nicolson late Bishop of Carlisle, CWAAS Extra Series 1 (London and Carlisle, 1877).
N&B1, N&B2	Joseph Nicolson and Richard Burn, The History and Antiquities of the Counties of Westmorland and Cumberland, 2 vols (London, 1777).
Nightingale*, Ejected of 1662*	B. Nightingale, The Ejected of 1662 in Cumberland and Westmorland, two vols (Manchester, 1911).
OAD	Oxford Alumni Database, online at 'Ancestry UK', http://search.ancestry.co.uk
ODNB	Oxford Dictionary of National Biography, online version (Oxford University Press): http://www.oxforddnb.com.
OED	Oxford English Dictionary, online version (Oxford University Press): http://www.oed.com.
Smith, Place-Names	A.H. Smith, The Place-Names of Westmorland, Vols XLII (1) and XLIII (2), English Place-Name Society (Cambridge, 1965-66).
Speed, Historie	John Speed, The Historie of Great Britaine Under the Conquests of the Romans, Saxons, Danes and Normans. Their Originals, Manners, Habits, Warres, Coines, and Seales: with the Successions, Lives, Acts, and Issues of the English Monarchs from Julius Caesar, unto the Raigne of King James of famous Memorie (London, 1611).
Westmorland Place-Names	Place-Names of Westmorland (online), edited by A.H. Smith (1967). https://epns.nottingham.ac.uk/browse/Westmorland

English Glossary

Unless otherwise stated, these definitions have been adapted from the online version of the Oxford English Dictionary.

Agistment	Rate levied on or profit made from the pasturing of another person's cattle; the action or process of taking livestock to feed at an agreed rate; the opening of a forest for a specified time to livestock.
Alienation	Sale, mortgage, lease or other method of disposal.
Appurtenances	Rights and duties associated with holding land.
Arbitrary tenants	Evictable at the will of the Lord of the manor, who could also alter their fine at will: a 'tenancy at will'.
Baly or Baillie	Another form of the word bailiff.
Berryes	Tumuli.
Bishoprick	Diocese of Durham.
Boons and boon-days	Work done free for the Lord e.g. carting fuel, cutting crops, shearing sheep: as part of the rent.
Brassed (braced)	Interlaced.
Burgage	House or plot of land held by the inhabitant of a town or borough, or a tenure of land in an ancient borough.
Carucate	Measure of land, varying with the nature of the soil, etc., being as much as could be tilled with one plough (with its team of 8 oxen) in a year; a plough-land. The acreage of the carucate varied according to the system of tillage. If the land lay in three arable common fields the carucate, according to Fleta, contained 180 acres; 60 for fallow, 60 for winter corn, and 60 for spring corn. If the land lay in 2 fields the carucate consisted of 160 acres, 80 for fallow, and 80 for tillage. Commonly only the land under plough in any one year was reckoned, the fallow being thrown into common pasturage. Hence in ancient deeds the normal carucate is either 120 acres or 80 acres by the Norman number (5 score to the hundred) and 144 acres or 96 acres by the English number (6 score to the hundred).
Catadupe	Cataract.
Champion country	Variant of 'champaign': a large expanse of open country, as distinct from mountains and woods.
Clean marte	Pine marten.
Composition	An agreement for the payment of a sum of money in lieu of the discharge of some other obligation, or in a different way from that required by the original contract.
Constablewick	Township or tithing under the jurisdiction of a constable.
Copyhold	Tenure of manorial land with obligations to perform certain services for the lord.
Cornage	Feudal service, being a form of rent fixed by the number of horned cattle; horngeld.
Customary tenancy	Holding by copy of court roll under manor custom.
Deer leap	Opening to allow access to deer.
Drengage	Tenure or service of a dreng. A dreng was a free tenant holding by a tenure older than the Norman Conquest, the nature of which was partly military, partly servile.
Dubs	Deep & calm pools within a larger body of water (Machell, II.464); small and stagnant pools of water (OED Online).
Easter Book	Account book for recording Easter Offerings: money payable at Easter to the incumbent of a parish by the parishioners.
Escheat	An aspect of feudal law, whereby a fief reverted to the lord when the tenant died without leaving a successor qualified to inherit under the original grant. Hence, the lapsing of land to the Crown or to the lord of the manor, on the death of the owner intestate without heirs.

Escheator	An officer appointed yearly by the Lord Treasurer to take notice of the escheats in the county to which he is appointed, and to certify them into the Exchequer.
Escuage	Chief form of feudal tenure (literally shield-service), personal service in the field for a period of forty days in each year (see also scutage).
Escutcheon	Shield or shield-shaped surface on which a coat of arms is depicted; also in wider sense, the shield with the armorial bearings; a sculptured or painted representation of this.
Fee	Land holding (including the Marquess and Richmond Fees); such fees could divide townships in two.
Fee-farm	Kind of tenure by which land is subject to a perpetual fixed rent without any other services; the estate of the tenant in land so held.
Fee} simple Foe}	Freehold land which can be disposed of according to the wishes of the owner; one of the two (main) legal estates in land – correctly the 'fee simple absolute in possession'. (The other main legal estate in land is a term of years absolute, i.e. leasehold.) Machell appears to have understood 'fee' as derived from 'foedus': a contract or agreement: 'knights' foes.' It is also thought that 'fee' is derived from the Saxon 'fee' (cattle or goods of any kind): Low Latin, 'feudum'. See H.J. Todd (ed*.), A Dictionary of the English Language by Samuel Johnson; with numerous corrections …* (London, 1818), FEC-FEE.
Fine	Amount of money paid for a lease or admission to copyhold land: a premium.
Fine certain	A fixed sum.
First Fruits and Tenths	The First Fruits represented a customary gift or payment to the Church, by the new holder of an ecclesiastical benefice, usually equivalent to the first year's income. Tenths were 10 percent of the annual income, due each year. The Court of First Fruits and Tenths was established in 1540 to collect from clerical benefices moneys that had previously been sent to Rome.
Foul marte	Pole cat.
Freehold	To end copyhold status, freehold could be bought by a lump sum paid to the lord of the manor (see also Fee Simple).
Glebe	A portion of land assigned to a member of the clergy as part of a benefice.
Greenhew	Right to cut greenery for fodder.
Hag	Wooded enclosure; a coppice or copse; a hedge.
Heaven-water	'As heaven-water deals' – watershed; draining divide; boundary.
Hep/Hepp	Shap.
Heriot	Feudal service, originally consisting of weapons, horses, and other military equipment, restored to a lord on the death of his tenant; afterwards a render of the best live beast or dead chattel of a deceased tenant due by legal custom to the lord of whom he held.
Heriotable	Liable to a mortuary fine; paying a heriot in kind as part of the (re)admission fee to the holding.
Hundred	Subdivision of a county or shire, having its own court; formerly applied also to the court itself. Most of the English counties were divided into hundreds, in some counties into wapentakes, and in others, wards. It has been regarded as: denoting a division of a hundred hides of land; as the district which furnished a hundred warriors to the host; as representing the original settlement of the hundred warriors; or as composed of a hundred hides, each of which furnished a single warrior': (Stubbs Const. Hist. I. v. §45).
Hurrock	Way cairn. Machell defines a hurrock/harrock, as, 'a little heap for a boundary' [I.184].
Inquisition	Judicial or official investigation or inquiry, an inquest; also the document recording such inquiry and its result.
Kead	Sheep-louse.
King's Books	When the first-fruits and tenths were transferred to the English Crown by Henry VIII, it was enacted that commissioners should be appointed in every diocese to certify the value of every ecclesiastical benefice and preferment in the respective dioceses; according to this valuation the first fruits and tenths were to be collected and paid in future. This valor beneficiorum is what is commonly called the King's Books; see Sir William Blackstone, Commentaries on the Laws of England in Four Books (1753) (with notes selected from various later editions, and a Life of the Author by George Sharswood, in Two Volumes (Philadelphia, 1893), Vol. 1 - Books I & II. p.784 para 5.

Knight-service	The military service which a knight was bound to render as a condition of holding his lands; hence, the tenure of land under the condition of performing military service.
Lastage	Charge payable by traders attending fairs and markets; a duty levied at so much per last (commercial unit of weight) of goods bought or sold at a fair.
Lile	Little (e.g. Lile Langdale).
Leun	River Lune.
Li.	Pounds sterling.
Ling	Type of heather.
Lunn	Wood or grove.
Manor court	This could also take place in an inn or house.
Martes	Clean mart = pine marten; foul mart = pole cat.
Martlet	Heraldic swallow, never represented with feet, as swallows appear never to touch the ground: Fox Davies, Heraldry, 244-45.
Maunch	Manch – in heraldry, a sleeve, especially a medieval hanging sleeve.
Meal silver	Certain tithes could be altered by paying a modus (see below). The terms hay-silver, oat-silver, hemp-silver and meal-silver refer to the payment of tithes in money. See 'silver' in Joseph Wright, The English Dialect Dictionary Vol. V, R-S (London, 1904), 437.
Messuage	Originally, a portion of land occupied, or intended to be occupied, as the site for a dwelling house and its appurtenances. In later use (chiefly in law): a dwelling house together with its outbuildings and the adjacent land assigned to its use. Viz. Its curtilage.
Modus	In full, modus decimandi. A method of paying tithes other than the one which is usual or prevalent; especially a money payment made in lieu of a tithe.
Moiety	Part of a larger whole; a small or lesser share, portion, or quantity.
More-game	Moor-game, i.e. grouse, particularly the red grouse.
Mortmain	From post-classical Latin mortua manus, manus mortua (dead hand). The condition of lands or tenements held inalienably by an ecclesiastical or other corporation. Alienations in mortmain, as being injurious to the rights of the crown and the mesne lords, were forbidden under English law by Act 7 Edw. I, statute 2, 1279, to impose limits on the Church's holding of property, This and other such Acts were known as the 'Statutes of Mortmain'. In practice, such grants continued after 1279, but required prior royal licence.
Multur	Multer, moulter or multure: the payment of a fraction of grain ground to the lord of the mill, or the miller. The proportion exacted was higher for those farmers within the lands of an estate on which there was an obligation to grind corn at a certain mill, than for those who came voluntarily from outwith its jurisdiction: Dictionaries of the Scots language, Online.
Noble	Coin worth 6s 8d.
Nonage	State of being under full legal age; minority, youth.
Norroy	The title of the third King of Arms, whose jurisdiction before 1945 lay in England to the north of the River Trent.
Nowt/Neot geld	Rent-payment in cattle; also, a tax levied on cattle.
Oxgang	Measure of land formerly in use in parts of northern England and Scotland, equivalent to an eighth of a carucate; so called because a carucate was the amount of land that could be ploughed by a team of eight oxen in a year.
Passes	Paces; rate of stepping; steps. Machell was aware that his passes were not standardised, see Warcop, I.318.
Peculiar	Ecclesiastical district (usually a parish) outside the jurisdiction of the archbishop, bishop or archdeacon. Peculiars were entitled to hold their own courts, hence, before 1858 they proved wills of people who owned property in their respective districts.

Pontage	Toll for the use of a bridge; a tax paid for the maintenance and repair of a bridge or bridges.
Poutes	Young of a game-bird. Modern form: pullet: Dictionary of the Older Scottish Tongue (up to 1700). Online.
Prescription Money	Money paid out according to ancient or continued custom, especially when regarded as authoritative.
Procuration	Payment made by a parish, religious house, etc., in lieu of providing entertainment for a bishop, archdeacon, or other official visitor.
q.	Quarter of a penny: a farthing.
Quarry	Pane of glass, cut into a regular geometric shape.
Quire	Chancel or east end of a church.
Quit claim	Quiete clamare. To release or renounce all pretensions to right or title: Jacob's New Law Dictionary (1732).
Rag	Piece of hard or rough stone, especially of a kind suitable for paving or building.
Reader	After the Reformation, lay readers were appointed to lead worship and perform minor functions, including pastoral duties, in parishes which had no regular incumbent or minister. This situation persisted for longer in the north of England than elsewhere.
Saltier/Saltire	In heraldry, a St. Andrew's cross. Hence, 'in saltire': crossed like the limbs of a St. Andrew's cross. When the field of a coat, or any charge upon it, is divided by two diagonal lines, crossing each other, it is termed, 'per saltier'.
Scutage	Tax levied on knights' fees; chiefly in a restricted sense, such a tax paid in lieu of military service.
s.d.	Sans date: with no date.
Sesses	Assessments.
Settle	A flat ledge or wall foot.
Shrievalty	Office or jurisdiction of a sheriff. Sheriffs were deputies of the Crown and the main agent of the courts until the 14th century and were therefore of enormous executive influence in each county.
Sike	A small stream of water, a rill or streamlet, especially one flowing through flat or marshy ground, often dry in summer; a ditch or channel through which a tiny stream flows.
Socage	Tenure of land by certain determinate services other than knight-service.
Stallage	Tax or toll levied for the liberty of erecting a stall in a fair or market.
Stang	Pole or stake, a wooden bar or beam. To ride the stang: to be mounted astride a pole borne on the shoulders of two men, and carried through the streets to excite the derision of the spectators.
Stuart	Steward.
Suit and Service	Attendance at court and personal service due from a tenant to his or her lord; also used to describe certain forms of tenure that involve this obligation.
Synodal	Payment made by the inferior clergy to the bishop, properly on the occasion of a synod, and hence at an episcopal or archidiaconal visitation.
Taberdar	Name formerly given to certain scholars of The Queen's College, Oxford, from the gown (tabard) they wore as servitors (pauper puer); still surviving in the name of some of the scholarships at that college.
Tenement	Land which is held of another by any tenure.
Threave	'Thrave': two shocks or stooks of corn (or other pulse), generally containing twelve sheaves each, but varying in different localities; hence used as a measure of straw, fodder, etc.
Through/through-stone	A coffin made of stone; a sarcophagus. Also: a tomb, a sepulchre; a grave; a large slab of stone laid over a tomb or grave; a horizontal gravestone; also, a funerary monument consisting of a horizontal slab supported on columns; a table tomb.

Turbary	Land where turf or peat might be dug for fuel; a peatbog or peat moss. In law: in full common of turbary, i.e. the right to cut turf or peat for fuel on a common or on another person's land.
Usher	Assistant to a schoolmaster; under-master, assistant-master.
Vaccary	Cow pasture.
Viduity	Widowhood.
Vivary	[Latin] vivarium: enclosure for keeping deer etc., or a fishpond. 'Vivarium ... in Law … signifieth Parks, Warrens, and Pischaries or Fishings.' See E. Coke, The Second Part of the Institutes of the Lawes of England (1642), 100.
Waif and Stray	A waif was an item of ownerless and unclaimed property found on a landowner's territory; a stray referred to a domestic animal that had wandered onto the same land. A grant of waif and stray permitted the landowner to take ownership of such goods or animals if they remained unclaimed after a set period of time.
Yeat	Gate.

Latin Glossary

Compiled by Jane Penman

a capella	from the chapel
ab aula	from the hall
ab ecclesia	from the parish church
anno ejusdem	in the same year
arbor vitæ	tree of life: the evergreen thuja
capital messuage	the chief house on an estate; the mansion-house of a manor
caput baroniæ	head of the barony; the chief seat of a nobleman
coram provincialibus	in the view of locals
cum pertinentiis	with appurtenances
de mense in mensem	from month to month
de quo infra	of which below
de quo quaere	about which enquire durante vita	in his lifetime
durante vita patris	in his father's lifetime
eadem	the same
eadem anno	in the same year
ejusdem	of the same
eodem	with the same
fictilia	earthenware
forsan	perhaps
ibidem	in the same place
ideo quaere	therefore enquire
in capite	in chief; directly from the crown
infra	below
inter alios	among other people
membranula	skins from which a roll is composed; parchment
mense in mensem	every month / from month to month miles	knight
ni fallor	unless I am mistaken
nuper	lately
ob	½d. From Latin 'obulus'
Pasce	Easter
penes	in the custody of placitum inter	plea between puto	perhaps quo warranto	by what authority: writ or legal action requiring a person to show by what warrant an office or franchise is held, claimed, or exercised ratio nominis	reason for the name
rotulus	roll
sc. (scilicet)	one may know; equivalent to the English phrase 'to wit'
sed dub[ito]	but I doubt it
sed parum ad rem	but little to the point
sed quaere/quere	but query this sine prole (S.P.)	without issue
sine titulo	without title
ut puto	so I think
ut supra	as described or shown above
uxor	wife
valet per annum	worth per year
vidua	widow
viri clari	outstanding men
vix credo	I scarcely believe it

Introduction

Background to this Volume

The antiquarian collections of Thomas Machell, rector of Kirkby Thore, are the property of the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle; they have been preserved among the Dean & Chapter of Carlisle muniments (DCHA/11/4) in Cumbria Archive Centre, Carlisle. Characterised as a manuscript research archive towards a history of Westmorland, and, to a lesser degree, Cumberland, they have been bound into six volumes, each containing over 500 numbered pages. The papers include Thomas Machell's illustrated notes, bound and interleaved with transcripts of charters, pedigrees, correspondence and other records, not necessarily in Machell's own hand.

Machell's objective was to reveal the history, topography and natural history of Cumberland and Westmorland, their parishes and towns. Before his death in 1698 he had amassed a huge number of notes and draft narratives, and a collection of revealing correspondence. While the notes cover aspects of both counties, Machell's deep affection for his own locality guaranteed that the greater proportion of his research would be devoted to the county of Westmorland, particularly the Appleby area where he had been born and brought up, the history and topography of which became his major preoccupation. Machell's material on Cumberland (mainly confined to Volume VI) forms a minor part of the whole, most of it consisting of volumes written by others and since published as follows:
1. Edmund Sandford's, Cursory Relation of All the Antiquities and Familyes in Cumberland.[1]
2. John Denton's History of Cumberland.[2]

Machell's work on Cumberland has been largely omitted from this edition.

Transcribing the Text: Machell's Six Volumes

Machell's research has been admired locally for many years, as shown in Samuel Jefferson's listing of the contents of the Machell volumes, in his History and Antiquities of Carlisle (Carlisle and London, 1838).

Vol. I
- Collections respecting the Ancient Britons and Romans.
- An attempt towards a general description of Westmorland etc.

Vol. II
- Villare alphabeticum for the barony of Kendal.
- Descriptions of the parishes of the said barony.
- Churches, coats of arms etc.
- Journal of the author's travels in the said barony.

Vol. III
- Villare of Westmorland and Cumberland.
- Collections about King Arthur, Marius and Uter Pendragon.

Vol. IV
- A view of the first fruits and tenths within the diocese of Carlisle.
- Collections relating to the families of Vipont and Clifford.
- Abbreviations of words and law terms occurring in old records explained.
- Extracts from charters, rolls and escheats in the Tower, relating to lands in Westmorland and Cumberland.
- Collections out of the registers of Wetheral and Holm Cultram Abbeys, from the library of the Dean and Chapter.

[1] Edmund Sandford, A Cursory Relation of All the Antiquities and Familyes in Cumberland, CWAAS Tract Series 4 (Kendal, 1890), a copy of which exists in Machell's MS: VI.540-69.
[2] Angus Winchester (ed.), John Denton's History of Cumberland, CWAAS Record Series 20, Surtees Society Volume CCXIII (Durham, 2010). See Machell VI.1-146, 176 and 527-35.

Vol. V
- Charter of the Borough of Appleby.
- Pedigrees and conveyances of the families of Crackenthorpe, Machell etc.

Vol. VI
- A copy of John Denton's MS History of Cumberland.
- A collection of Roman Inscriptions.
- Excerpts from Dugdale's Monasticon.
- Arms of the chief families of Cumberland and Westmorland.
- A discourse on titles of honour in general.
- An anonymous description of Cumberland, written c. 1675.[3]
- Inquisitions concerning lands at Penrith taken upon the death of Alexander III, king of Scotland.
- A list of sheriffs of both counties from the reign of Henry II.
- R. Singleton's full account of the parish of Melmerby.

This edition comprises transcriptions of Thomas Machell's Volumes, I, II, III and VI (excluding most of the text on Cumberland), and short extracts from Volumes IV and V. As noted by Jefferson, Volumes IV and V predominantly contain the research documents (charters, deeds and pedigrees) from which Machell formed his narrative on history, people and places in Westmorland. Only a small amount of relevant narrative material has been transcribed from these two volumes.
All regnal years have been derived from Sweet and Maxwell's Guide to Law Reports and Statutes, fourth edition (London, 1962), Chapter Five.

Order of the material
1. Editor's Introduction.
2. Machell's Preface.
3. Part I. Barony of Westmorland.
4. Part 2. Barony of Kendal.
5. Part 3. Chapter 1. 'Directions for those who shall undertake to finish the Antiquities of Westmorland'.
   Chapter 2. Machell's Correspondence.
   Chapter 3. Roman Antiquities.
   Chapter 4. 'Collections Concerning Heraldry & of the Arms & Pedegrees of Westmorland'.

Machell's Preface is principally, although not wholly, taken from his preliminary research, which is largely housed in Volumes I and II.

Part I. Barony of Westmorland, consists of chapters on each parish and its chapelries in the barony, beginning with the main town, Appleby, and continuing in alphabetical order.

Part II. Barony of Kendal, comprises chapters on each parish and its chapelries in the barony, beginning with Kendal, the main town and largest parish, and continuing in alphabetical order.

Within Volume II, Machell described a fact-finding journey through the Barony of Kendal during the summer of 1692, which he named his 'Itinerary'. In Antiquary on Horseback. The First Publication of The Collections of the Rev. Thos. Machell Chaplain to King Charles II Towards a History of the Barony of Kendal (Jane Ewbank's scholarly edition of Volume II of Machell's collections),[4] the text of the Itinerary was subsumed into Machell's notes on the Kendal parishes to create a seamless whole. In this edition, however, the Itinerary has been retained as a separate entity, partly because it offers the reader a complete example of Machell's narrative style, and partly because we encounter Machell in carefree mode: meeting and travelling with old friends; consuming generous amounts of fine food and alcohol: 'not for drinkeing but for companyes sake';[5] and generally enjoying his 'holiday'. It is illuminating to contrast his demeanour here with his distressed letters to Lord Thanet and others, setting out his parochial difficulties, written just a few years later.[6]

[3] Written by Edmund Sandford, see above.
[4] Jane M. Ewbank (ed.), Antiquary on Horseback. The First Publication of The Collections of the Rev. Thos. Machell Chaplain to King Charles II Towards a History of the Barony of Kendal, CWAAS Extra Series 19 (Kendal, 1963).

The First Chapter of Part 3 consists of Machell's 'Directions for those who shall undertake to finish the Antiquities of the County of Westmorland', and his suggestions for further reading. This is augmented by textual additions made by Charles Lyttelton (antiquary and bishop of Carlisle from 1762 to 1768) in the form of his own (eighteenth-century) reading preferences.
The Second, Third and Fourth Chapters comprise material from all six volumes. Chapter Two contains most of Machell's correspondence (unless relevant to the narrative elsewhere); Chapter Three collates Machell's research, writing and publication on Roman antiquities; Chapter Four presents one of Machell's major preoccupations: the 'Heraldry & the Arms & Pedigrees of Westmorland'.

Transcription method
A critical principle of transcription is to avoid inflicting undue violence to the author's text. Word-for-word transcription is the rule in this edition unless the text has been obscured, has perished, was scored through, or (very rarely) written so illegibly that a précis had to be substituted. Where Machell repeated single words and short phrases in error, they have been silently corrected. Exceptions also include substitution of the thorn letter 'y' (in 'ye') with the modern 'th', and 'ff' with 'F'. These occur in text written by hands other than Machell's.

Spelling
Original spelling has been largely retained; for example, in such words as 'bin' for 'been' and 'Isue' for 'Issue'. Some shortened words have been silently extended (for example, 'go' is a shortened form of 'ergo'),[7] and also where Machell has placed a line above a letter, suggesting a double letter. When meaning is not absolutely clear, abbreviated words have been extended using square brackets. Machell's habit of spelling the same word in several different ways has been retained. For instance, when writing the word 'manor', he wrote it as 'manor', 'manner', 'maner' and 'mannor', but frequently wrote only 'm.' or 'man'. When the word has been shortened, this edition adopts Machell's most frequently used form: 'manner'.

Another difficulty arises in Machell's spelling of 'Westmorland'. Machell wrote at some length on the meaning of the name. Was the county named after moorland, as Camden had suggested, and therefore, 'Westmoreland'; was it named after King Westmer, and therefore, 'Westmerland'; or was it 'Westmereland', named after its lakes? Machell employed all of these versions, although, even in passages suggesting that the county was named after King Westmer, he would occasionally write, 'Westmoreland'. Howbeit, as Machell frequently adopted a shortened version 'Westm'land,' or even 'W', the slightly abbreviated word, 'Westm'land', has been used throughout this edition, unless Machell's deliberate choice of an alternative version is clear.

Machell's formation of the vowels 'a', 'o' and 'u' have provided another transcription difficulty. In Machell's hand these vowels frequently look exactly the same, and this makes his attempts to explain the derivation of the words, 'barrow', borrow' and 'burrow' in the same paragraph, risibly difficult to disentangle. Similarly, the letters 'W' and 'M' are sometimes used interchangeably, as in 'Wakeber Well', 'Makeber Well'. They have been transcribed as seen. While Machell used several variants of the word 'Esquire', 'Esq.' has been employed throughout.

[5] See Part 2, Chapter 10. Itinerary, II.424.
[6] Part 1, Ch. 14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, 'A Narrative about a Chapel at Sowerby June 5 1697', beginning at III.229.
[7] 'Therefore'.

Capitalisation
Machell's capitalisation can appear indiscriminate; proper nouns often begin with lower-case letters, while common nouns are often capitalised. In this edition proper nouns are usually capitalised. Machell often expressed compound place-names as one (as in 'Troutbeck', 'Kirkbythore' and 'Longmarton') but when he wrote them as two, only the first was capitalised, as in 'Kirkby thore'. These forms have been retained. Capitalisation of common nouns has been less easy to edit. It was decided that words beginning with letters that can be either capital or lower case in their formation (such as 'o' and 's'), would be treated conventionally. Machell, in common with others of his time, capitalised words which seemed important to him, such as 'Town' and 'Country'. Here, a fairly impressionist approach has been adopted. A judgment was made that ease of reading should predominate, but that, in some cases, Machell's preferences for capitalisation of common nouns should stand. Overall, the general rule has been to make the text intelligible while demonstrating Machell's style. An exception has been made in the treatment of the names of heraldic colours. To distinguish them from identical words with different meanings (such as, 'or'), they have been capitalised.

Other punctuation
Most of the colons denoting the end of Machell's sentences have been changed to the modern full stop. Machell's use of the comma has been retained, and commas have been added where appropriate, to aid understanding. Machell clearly wrote many of his notes hurriedly, making copious use of the dash, which can make scanning for meaning difficult. Some dashes have been retained, though many have been changed where appropriate.

Other editorial decisions
Ampersands have been retained.
Underscoring has been retained.
Abbreviations such as 20. Ed. 1. have been retained.
Machell's use of shortcuts, such as '2ce' for 'twice' is retained and footnoted.
Abbreviations denoting money or weight have been retained.
Superscript words and numbers have been retained.
Original pagination is reproduced in square brackets; for example [II.323] i.e. Volume II, page 323.
All brackets in the original text are retained as round brackets. Unclosed brackets have been closed silently.
Quotation and exclamation marks have been retained.
Deleted words have been struck through in the manner of the originals.
Names of published volumes quoted by Machell have been italicised for easy recognition.
Marginalia have been reproduced within braces { }. Where margin comments form a section-heading, they have been placed in the body text and underlined. If a margin comment acts as a note, it has been placed at the foot of the page on which it was written (see Asterisks).
Asterisks have been retained. Machell employed them to reference notes placed elsewhere in the text, as a form of footnoting. Accordingly, this edition has employed Machell's technique by utilising a form of footnoting suggested by the pages of Nicolson and Burn's History of Westmorland and Cumberland, and other contemporaneous volumes, as follows:

*	first
†	second
‡	third
⸸	fourth
‖	fifth
¶	sixth

These footnotes have been placed at the foot of the relevant pages of Machell's text, and denoted with the heading, '[Machell's Notes]', and the page number.
Angle brackets \ / denote interlineations.
It has been tempting to create a symbol noting the many changes of ink and other variations suggesting text written at different times on the same page but as there are often a great many such changes a decision was taken not to clutter the text but to note the most significant changes in footnotes.

Transcription of Latin text
Because Latin was an integral part of the antiquary's tool kit during the seventeenth century (essential for researching deeds, charters etc.) it was decided that the appearance of Machell's Latin passages should not differ in any way from his English text. Translations have been placed in footnotes. Regularly repeated Latin words and phrases have been placed together in a Glossary.

Editorial changes
'Mr' and 'Dr' do not receive the full-stop given to them by Machell.
Question marks in the text were sometimes written backwards and before the question itself. These have been replaced with question marks pointing in the conventional direction but remaining in their designated place.
Where marginalia echo the body text, they have been deleted and, if relevant, mentioned in footnotes. Most running headings have been removed.
Editorial insertions have been placed within square brackets, thus [ ].
Where expected headings do not exist, they are inserted in square brackets.
Chapter and main-section headings have been changed to bold type, while secondary headings have been underscored.
Broken (pecked) underscoring was Machell's method of demonstrating his unhappiness with his choice of word or phrase; he usually placed an alternative close by. This method has been retained.
In a few paragraphs where scoring-through, interlineation, pecked lines and underscored text threaten to obscure both the text and its meaning, the original has been transferred, exactly as seen, to a footnote; the 'correct' version (that is, the text edited as Machell intended) is given in the body text.
Repeated passages are usually deleted and indicated in footnotes but when repeats are necessary to the narrative, and to the observance of Machell's research and writing method, they have been allowed to remain.
When Machell wished to remind himself of an important fact, he often drew a hand with the first finger pointing in the direction of the text. This edition replaces the pointing hand with the more easily reproduced 'N.B.'.
Machell's text includes much deliberate scoring through (with one line or with a cross) of narrative passages. It seems that when a draft narrative had been rewritten elsewhere, Machell crossed through his older draft. Such crossing-through of drafts has not been shown in this edition, in favour of other means of demonstrating Machell's narrative changes.

Ordering the text
Machell's aim was to present the history, topography and natural history of each Westmorland parish in alphabetical order according to, first, the Barony of Westmorland and, second, the Barony of Kendal. The main town of each barony was to be presented first in each of the two sections. By so ordering his work Machell was replicating the approach of well-known contemporaries such as William Dugdale. Like Dugdale, he aimed to use a specific system – he called it his 'method' – to organise the material, first, within each barony, and second, within each parish (see below). Machell's notes do not necessarily follow his plan, and, to complicate matters further, William Nicolson's organisation of the six volumes did not place Machell's parish notes together in one place. Consequently, after an exact transcription of the text of Volumes I, II, III and VI had been drafted, information on places was brought together to form a coherent narrative. Thus, while page and volume numbers have been retained, they do not necessarily appear chronologically, allowing notes which appear randomly in one or other of the original volumes to become comprehensible when placed with text on similar themes.

Repetition
Machell was the first antiquary to chronicle the history of the two counties of Cumberland and Westmorland systematically. In doing so he had to start from scratch. 'It is indeed a thing to be lamented' he wrote > and the greatest occasion which discourages me from writeing concerneing this County is that Historyes are so silent: and that I should be deprived of the assistance which other men have so easily bin happy in from Doomsday Booke. And therefore, not knowing where to begine I must content my selfe with takeing some rude notes of those monuments of antiquity which yett remaine, they being the onely evidences I know of the famous exploits which have bin performed here in former aiges.[8]

After consulting the works of early chroniclers and historians, such as Camden, but frequently finding them inaccurate or 'silent' on the history of Westmorland, Machell and his assistants at Oxford University visited the Oxford libraries and the Tower of London, searching out old documents which would illuminate the county's history. Where evidence could not be found, Machell turned to ancient sites and the finds made there. This pioneering spirit lies at the heart of the Machell legacy, for his manuscripts are nothing if not a work in progress. He puzzled out his methods and narrative drafts over and over again. His accounts of each parish are laboured; pages of brief notes intersperse narrative passages, and such passages are often reworked several times, making it difficult for the reader to recognise anything resembling a 'fair copy'. Repetition is particularly marked in treatments of the town and parishes of Appleby, the parish of Kirkby Thore and the parish of Barton, three places Machell knew extremely well. In this edition, some repetition has been allowed to remain. Such passages have been separated and ordered, as far as possible, to demonstrate Machell's methods, techniques and preoccupations. Readers will find that each repetition contains something new, as Machell reconsidered his subject.

Biographical note

Thomas Machell's life has already been documented. For example, Angus Winchester's entry in the Oxford Dictionary of National Biography in 2004, and a highly appreciative article in CWAAS Transactions, by John Rogan and Eric Birley, 'Thomas Machell the Antiquary', published as long ago as 1955, both provide excellent overviews of his life and work.[9] In brief, their information comprises the following:

The second son of Lancelot Machell, Thomas Machell was born at Crackenthorpe Hall near Appleby, Westmorland, into a well-known gentry family; he was baptised in 1647. As a boy he was probably a pupil at Appleby Grammar School, from which, at the age of 16, he went to The Queen's College, Oxford, as a Taberdar.[10] He proceeded BA, proceeded MA, and in December 1672 became a fellow of the college.

At Oxford, Machell met some of the most celebrated antiquaries of the day, several of whom were involved in writing county histories. Influenced by William Dugdale and Anthony à Wood among others,[11] Machell determined to write a history and topography of Cumberland and Westmorland. Robert Plot, Oxford professor of chemistry, curator of the Ashmolean Museum and author of the Natural History of Oxfordshire,[12] encouraged Machell to extend his sphere of activity to include natural history.[13] From the early 1670s, still based in Oxford, Machell began to amass historical data from Oxford, London and Westmorland.

Machell returned permanently to Westmorland toward the end of the 1670s. As the Machells had for generations allied themselves with the powerful Clifford family, the Earl of Thanet (heir to Lady Anne Clifford's estates) presented Machell to the rectory of Kirkby Thore in 1677. In Machell's list of the values of 24 parishes in the barony of Westmorland, Kirkby Thore was the second most valuable, at [8] Machell's Preface, I.59.

[9] John Rogan and Eric Birley, 'Thomas Machell the Antiquary', CW2, 55 (1955), 123-53.
[10] Taberdar: see English Glossary.
[11] This rather grand name was used by few of Wood's correspondents. Machell referred to him as 'Mr Wood' {Part 3, Ch. 2, VI.253). 'Anthony Wood' is commonly used in this edition.
[12] Robert Plot, The Natural History of Oxfordshire, being an Essay toward the Natural History of England (Oxford, 1676).
[13] For Robert Plot, see A. Turner, 'Plot, Robert (bap. 1640, d. 1696), naturalist and antiquary'. ODNB.

£37 17s 8½d, with annual tithes of £3 15s 9½d.[14] On the 27 June, 1679 Machell was appointed a chaplain-in-ordinary to Charles II,[15] but other preferment did not come his way; he remained at Kirkby Thore for the rest of his life, marrying, fathering a family and caring for his parish, all the while endeavouring to complete his History. He died in 1698, aged 51.[16]

Significance of this publication

Thomas Machell's collections relating to Westmorland contain the earliest detailed antiquarian account of the county's history and topography, encompassing a wider range of material than some later histories.[17] In this edition, the vast majority of Machell's texts and drawings relating to Westmorland are published together for the first time. Parts of his text have been published already, amid general agreement among local scholars that Machell is an important figure. For example, from 1874 to the present time, his family, marriage, children, allegiances, parish difficulties, politics and much more have been explored by a significant number of contributors to CWAAS Transactions.[18] Here, he rightly emerges as a staunch upholder of Laudian Anglicanism and monarchism; a collector of family pedigrees; a proto-archaeologist; a scholar of ancient and medieval history; an innovative architect; and an expert on church buildings and country houses. This edition of Machell's History will allow scholars to study such themes more fully than in the past.

Perhaps even more importantly, this edition invites readers to explore another aspect of Machell's text, which, though integral to known themes, encourages the investigation of a completely different realm. Machell's many descriptions of the local, the commonplace and the every-day in Westmorland form a vital part of the whole collection. His deep interest in Westmorland's place-names and dialect; games and traditions; folklore and humour; local politics and local characters; his comedic or tragic anecdotes; and his ventures into tales of the occult offer an alternative dynamic which reveals even more of the period and place in which he lived. The importance of Machell's research is that it stands at an intersection between late-seventeenth-century antiquarianism, erudition, religion, lore and tradition.[19]

Machell's History is made even more valuable by the fact that his early death prevented the publication of a completed work. Had it been published, many of the delights of his six volumes – his correspondence; his trenchant opinions; his unguarded comments; his frequent criticism of his peers – would almost certainly have been edited and lost, leaving the reader with a rather bland volume and a much less fruitful reading experience. A short history and topography of Westmorland authored by Machell was published during his lifetime. Written as a supplementary chapter to Edmund Gibson's 1695 edition of Camden's Britannia, it briefly sketches out the content of his planned volume.[20] But, though carefully composed Machell's chapter hides more than it reveals when compared with his notes.

---

[14] Kirkby Stephen was the richest, at £48 19s 2d, with annual tithes of £4 17s 11d. See Machell's Preface, I.148.

[15] His appointment was continued under James II; but 'I have lost so good a master', wrote Machell, 'I never regarded it afterwards.' See Edward Bellasis, 'Machell of Crackenthorpe', CW1, 8 (1886), 416-66.

[16] See Angus Winchester, 'Machell, Thomas (bap. 1647, d. 1698), antiquary'. ODNB. See also Rogan and Birley, 'Thomas Machell the Antiquary', 132-53.

[17] For instance, Joseph Nicolson and Richard Burn, The History and Antiquities of the Counties of Westmorland and Cumberland, 2 vols (London, 1777) (cited as N&B1 and N&B2 henceforward) which presents a tightly controlled and somewhat restrictive view of the past in the two counties.

[18] For example, Bellasis, 'Machell of Crackenthorpe', 416-66; Michael Waistell Taylor, 'Manorial Halls in Westmorland' CW1, 12 (1893), 15-41; Lionel Cresswell, 'Crackenthorpe: Its Manor Hall and the Machell Family', CW2, 33 (1933), 113-32; C. Roy Hudlestone, Thomas Machell, his Wife and Children and his Whelpdale Stepchildren', CW2, 70 (1970), 110-45; Paul Barker, 'The Reverend Thomas Machell's complaint: July 2d. 1690' CW2, 89 (1989), Notes 4, 179-81.

[19] I should like to thank Professor William Gibson for this suggestion.

[20] William Camden and Edmund Gibson (1669-1748), Camden's Britannia newly translated into English, with large additions and improvements; publish'd by Edmund Gibson (London, 1695), 'Additions to Westmoreland', 810-18.

The unfinished nature of Machell's History also reveals important aspects of seventeenth-century antiquarian scholarship. The reader will note aspects such as the development of various research methods, including those of early archaeologists; the building of evidence to provide argument; the careful citation of sources; and the experimental composition of early drafts, which involved copious textual alteration. This transcription of Machell's work-in-progress will be appreciated, not only by those who are already conversant with him as a northern gentleman-antiquary, but also by a greater constituency of scholars and a wider public, to whom some of the hitherto impenetrable content will be revelatory.

Machell's citation of written sources

Machell diligently cited his published written sources. They have been listed in a bibliography. Machell's letters and list of printed volumes demonstrate him to have read widely.[21] The printed-volume list contains many of the major scholarly works of his era, comparing favourably (though the list is shorter) with the books owned by Sir Daniel Fleming at Rydal Hall.[22] Always attracted to ingenious devices, he

> … contriv'd an octagonall deske with a small writeing table running beneath it, by means whereof he can consult many authors at once without moving his foot, & compare them together with a turne of his hand.[23] … Turneing it round wil bring 8 folios or 16 folios to hand to examine at and quot of, to aprise ascending.[24]

Many of the volumes appear to have been Machell's own, but he also borrowed from other antiquarian libraries, such as the bishop's at Rose Castle, and from Sir Daniel Fleming at Rydal Hall, one of whose letters to Machell reminded him to return a particularly important publication.

> Having often occasion to consult Dugdale's Baronage of England, I hope you'l be pleased to return mine hither as soon, & as safely, as you can.[25]

Machell's correspondence

This edition includes all the correspondence found in Machell's Volumes I to VI. Not only do the letters illuminate Machell's family and clerical concerns, they also reveal some of the research preoccupations and processes of late-seventeenth-century antiquaries. Machell's correspondence with the principal of St Edmund Hall, Oxford, Dr John Mill (also born in Westmorland), with William Dugdale, William Nicolson, Sir Daniel Fleming, the cartographer John Adams, and others – together with his unguarded pen-portraits of contemporaries whom he disliked – illuminates relationships between antiquaries, scholars and landed gentlemen in a manner reminiscent of another unpublished antiquary, John Aubrey. In one sense, it is to be celebrated that Machell's raw, frank, multi-layered History and Topography of Westmorland was never completed, thus permitting us to arrive at an understanding of a life, a place, a county and an era which is lost to us in the mild texts of some published contemporaries.

Machell's unfinished manuscripts

Machell was not unique in failing to complete his county history. At the end of the seventeenth century the antiquary and bishop, White Kennett (1660-1728), remarked on the large number of unfinished or unpublished antiquarian works which remained in manuscript.[26] According to the historian Graham Parry, the reason for this is that writing a county history requires not merely 'industry and skill' but also 'organisational power'. Parry cites John Leland, who was overwhelmed

[21] See Part 3, Ch. 2. Correspondence.
[22] Compare Machell's book list with the list of volumes in Sir Daniel Fleming's study at Rydal in Scott Sowerby and Noah McCormack (eds), The Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal Hall from 1633 to 1688, CWAAS Record Series 23 (Kendal, 2021), Appendix 1, 335-41.
[23] Part 1, Ch. 14. Kirkby Thore, I.537.
[24] Part 1, Ch. 14. Kirkby Thore, I.562.
[25] Part 3, Ch. 2. II.145.
[26] In Graham Parry, The Trophies of Time: English Antiquarians of the Seventeenth Century (Oxford, 1995), 16.

by the volume of his notes; John Aubrey, who could never complete a work or methodise his papers; Roger Dodsworth, who left 60 volumes in manuscript; Thomas Allen, Brian Twyne and William Fulman, 'all of whom had the same ambition to collect, but the same misfortune never to methodise or publish'.[27] Machell was highly aware of his failings, but blamed them on the interruptions of a busy life.

> See Dugdall of Warwickshire, Burton of Leicestershire, to help method & order.
> If I could spare time to Methodise these Rude Notes which are conteined in my severall books of Collections … I would …[28]

Early Reception of Machell's Manuscripts

Encouraged by his peers, Machell published a small amount of his research. His work on Roman antiquities found at Kirkby Thore was eagerly awaited, the correspondence pages of this edition demonstrating the importance attached to his findings. His letter to Sir William Dugdale, describing finds made in a well at Kirkby Thore: 'discovered here about a week since, by the foot of an Horse which stumbled upon it and therefore may be called the Fountain Hypocrene', was printed in Philosophical Transactions in 1684; Machell's carefully detailed report of the finds resulted in his election to the Oxford Philosophical Society.[29] Of this he was proud enough to style himself:

> … one Thomas Machell (late-fellow of Queen's College in Oxford, & Chaplain in Ordinary to King Charles the second, now {this 1t October 1686} fellow of the Philosophical Society in the said university.[30]

Machell's collection of Roman inscriptions, 'with a discourse on them', which was sent to John Mill in 1692, did not earn the same respect. As described in Part 3, Chapter 2, Machell and Mill argued over the project for some time. Although they were both Westmorland men and Queen's College alumni, Machell was of gentry stock, while Mill, two years younger than Machell, was a weaver's son from Hardendale near Shap.[31] The two had an uneasy relationship, both personally and professionally, as shown in their correspondence. In one of Machell's last letters to Mill he expressed both intimacy and frustration:

> I have Laboured all that I could (even under the Pressure of som mighty affairs that intervened & of diverse Disturbances & Interruptions) to gratify you in Your Request, with such inscriptions as occur in These Parts; but have not had leisure to compleat and finish them as I Intended. However, Sir, that you may not be altogether frustrated in Your Designe, I have sent you your Book with all the Inscriptions at Apalby-School, and som other Places, fairly writ in It. And (That nothing may be awanting to do you service that layes in my power) I have also sent you The very first Draught of all my other Rude Notes & \ other / Inscriptions as they were Scratched out at the first \ in haste / on Horseback or Otherwise, in my Travails and Rambles; which, notwithstanding, I dare affirm to be very Exact as to the Letter: which is all you desire. But for the notes Interspersed amongst them, they are so ill writt (for want of Convenient time & place) and so full of Blotts & Interlineations, That (unless it be you, who pretend to read anything that falls from my Penn) no body besides my selfe can Compose & Bring them in Order. And you may be suer that I would not expose them in so Rude a Dress to any man liveing Excepting your selfe (my old friend and Confident) who I know will conceal them from all Carping Eyes, & Communicate onely what is for your Purpose…[32]

As noted above, Machell also contributed to Edmund Gibson's extended edition of Camden's Britannia, published in 1695. In his 'Preface to the Reader', Gibson introduced those in each county who had added to Camden's research.

---

[27] Parry, Trophies of Time, 16.
[28] Machell's Preface, I.153.
[29] Philosophical Transactions 14, 158 (1684), 555-58. See Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, VI.200 ff. See also, Rogan and Birley, 'Thomas Machell, the Antiquary', 145.
[30] See I.550.
[31] For Mill, see S. Handley, 'Mill, John (1644/5-1707), Church of England clergyman and college head'. ODNB.
[32] See Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, VI.299.

> Westmorland is engag'd to Mr. Thomas Machel for so many use-ful discoveries; as its neighbour Cumberland is to Dr. Hugh Todd Prebendary of the Church of Carlisle: and lastly, Northumberland to Mr. William Nicolson, Arch-deacon of the same Church, eminent for his knowledge in the Languages and Antiquities of the Northern Nations.[33]

Interestingly, few outside this circle acknowledged Machell's contribution, and local gossip asserted that a map made by Machell had been rejected because of his insistence on dedicating it to the earl of Carlisle.[34] Nevertheless, Machell's research was recognised by Anthony Wood in his Athenae Oxonienses : an exact history of all the writers and bishops who have had their education in the University of Oxford.[35]

> THOMAS MACHEL (malus catulus) son of Lanc. Mach. of Crakenthorp in Westmoreland. matric. Feb. 5. 1663-4. afterward became a poor serving child, tabarder and fellow of Queen's coll. Afterwards he was minister of Kirby-Thore in Westmoreland. He hath written:
> "A Letter to Sir Will. Dugdale", dat. 23 Mar. 1684. concerning some Antiquities found at Kirkby Thore. This letter is in the "Philos. Transact." nu.158 — Apr. 20. an. 1684.
> "Survey, or Antiquities of Westmoreland" MS.

After Machell's death: in November 1698, the unfinished pages and rough notes of his collections were deposited in the library at Carlisle Cathedral. As William Nicolson, then archdeacon and future bishop of Carlisle, explained in a letter to the antiquary Ralph Thoresby just before Christmas of that year,

> Mr Machell is lately dead: he has left the inspection of his papers to me, with a request that if I find any thing that will abide the public view, the press may be set to work for the benefit of his children. I do not yet see that any great fortunes are to be raised out of them, there being nothing that looks towards a formal work.[36]

Nicolson briefly recorded his involvement with Machell's research in his English Historical Library. When the first edition was published in 1696, Machell was still living.

> Westmorland. Mr. Tho Machel, Rector of Kirkbythore in this County, has (with a great deal of Pains and good Judgment) collected its Antiquities: which, we hope, will ere long meet with so suitable an Encouragement as will oblige the Author to publish 'em.[37]

When a second, expanded, edition of the English Historical Library was published in 1714, Nicolson amended the text to cover the fact that Machell had been unable to complete his research.

> Westmorland. Mr Thomas Machel late rector of Kirkbythore in this county had with a great deal of pains collected its antiquities but never met with encouragement enough to oblige him to publish them. His papers were left (in confusion) to me and I have taken the best care I can to preserve them (bound in six volumes in folio) for the use of posterity. That part of its story which more nearly concerns the nobility and gentry has been well preserved by Sir Dan. Fleming of Rydale Knt who has thereby done his own ancient family a great deal of right and has also approved himself an eminent benefactor to those of his neighbours.[38]

---

[33] Camden's Britannia, Newly Translated into English: with large additions and improvements. Publish'd by Edmund Gibson, of Queens-College in Oxford (London, 1695), Preface.
[34] See Rogan and Birley, 'Thomas Machell the Antiquary', 133.
[35] Anthony Wood, Athenae Oxonienses: an exact history of all the writers and bishops who have had their education in the University of Oxford : to which are added the Fasti, or Annals of the said University (Oxford, 1632-1695), in Philip Bliss (ed.) (London, 1813-20), Vol. IV, 532.
[36] Letter from W. Nicolson to Ralph Thoresby, 22 Dec. 1698, in Joseph Hunter (ed.), Letters of eminent men, addressed to Ralph Thoresby FRS, Vol. 1 (London, 1832), 349.
[37] William Nicolson, The English Historical Library, or, A short view and character of most of the writers now extant, either in print or manuscript which may be serviceable to the undertakers of a general history of this kingdom (London, 1696), 64-65.
[38] William Nicolson, The English historical library, in Three Parts, giving a Short View and Character of most of our Historians either in Print or Manuscript : With an Account of our Records, Law-Books, Coins, and other

History of the Binding

At some point after 1699 Nicolson obeyed Machell's wish by collating his papers. He had them bound into a set of six handsome calf-over-board volumes, each 33.3cm long and 22.6cm wide; and, while the thickness of each volume differs, each contains over 500 numbered pages. A contents page, an index and various annotations were added to each volume by Nicolson himself, thus impressing on future readers that (as he had communicated to Ralph Thoresby) he had carried out more than one very difficult undertaking for Machell, at great cost to himself.[39]

[William Nicolson's Introduction, Volume I, vii-viii]

> This and the five following Volumes (marked on the back, T.M. Vol. II. Etc.) are made up of loose papers left to me by their Author Mr Thomas Machell, late Rector of Kirkbythore; with his Request that (if it might be readily done) they[40] should be put into Form, and offer'd to some Bookseller for the Benefit of his Widow and Children. Upon perusal of 'em, I found the Collection so imperfect, Raw and indigested, that 'twas impossible to bring them (of 'emselves) to any such Account as the good man hoped for: since it appear'd that he had bestow'd more pains on the Family of Machel, than on the Pedigrees of all the rest of the Gentry in the two Counties; and that the single parish of Kirkbythore was more labour'd than all besides in the bottome of Westmerland. In the Transcripts of Records, &c, he has made use of other mens hands: As (particularly) in those out of the Tower, in the 4th Volume, I find a good many of my own writing. This Drudgery (I remember) I was unwillingly put upon in 1678. when Mr M. was Fellow, and I Taberdar of Qu. Coll. and (being then in Attendance on Mr Secretary Williamson) in dayly expectance of being sent beyond sea. Others are copy'd by W. Atkinson (afterwards Fellow of the same College) who was not well acquainted with old Records.
> Mr Machel's own chief Excellency was in drawing Coats of Arms, prospects of Churches and Houses, &c. And whoever shall hereafter perfect his Design, in furnishing the Curious with such an History of Cumberland and Westmerland as Sr W. Dugdale has given us of Warwickshire, may hence have a good share of the Ornamental part of his Work.[41]

Nicolson listed the pages where images of coats of arms; seals; Roman monuments; prospects of churches and chapels; stained glass and funerary monuments; and the seats of the nobility and gentry could be found. Clearly this took some time, as Nicolson's annotations are to be found throughout the six volumes. His Introduction, placed at the beginning of Volume I, is dated 'Aug. 10. 1711'.[42] His diary entry on the 19 of October 1709, written while he was resident in Carlisle diocese, is instructive: '19. Wednesday. D[ined] Mr Hall of Qu. Coll. to whom I shew'd my Medals, T.M's MSS. &c.,'[43] suggesting that he was then working on the material.[44]

Beginning in 1764, the churchman and antiquary, Charles Lyttelton (born 1714), bishop of Carlisle from 1762 to 1768,[45] studied the volumes, annotating some of the text and adding several sheets of matters serviceable to the Undertakers of a General History of England, The Second Edition Corrected and Augmented (London, 1714), 26.

---

[39] See William Nicolson's Preface, Machell MS.I, vii-viii.

[40] A scored-through word here is illegible.

[41] William Nicolson's Preface, Machell MS.I, vii-viii. On this subject, note Rogan and Birley's opinion: 'It will be seen that Nicolson has tacitly assumed that Machell's papers had been left to him, and not merely placed in his hands for perusal and putting into order; the event may cause us to be thankful, even though the antiquary's will makes it clear that he never contemplated giving the papers to his former pupil. Nicolson's own estimate of their value is remarkable, as much for its criticisms … as for the shrewd assessment of the antiquary's strong points.' Rogan and Birley, 'Thomas Machell, the Antiquary', 136-37.

[42] DCHA/11/4/1, viii.

[43] R.G. Collingwood (ed.), 'Bishop Nicolson's Diaries: Part VI.' CW2, 35 (1935), 112.

[44] Nevertheless, the idea of Machell's huge unbound collection of papers being produced during dinner is almost unimaginable.

[45] He was born in 1714; see David W.V. Weston, Carlisle Cathedral History (Carlisle, 2000), 142.

notes, the content of which corrected and supplemented Machell's narrative.[46] These sheets were firmly attached to the spine during a rebinding exercise which might have occurred much later, when the volumes were restored by Maltby of Oxford (founded in 1834). Regrettably, the record of this restoration has disappeared from the company's archive.[47]

It is clear that during the binding's careful restoration an effort was made to use as much of the original binding-material as possible. Nevertheless, binding involves a potential loss of text, and over-sewing has comprehensively hidden words and phrases written close to the gutter of each volume. Machell's choice of loose-leaf single sheets of different sizes, together with home-made booklets (he often directed the reader to 'my little booke'),[48] clearly offered a challenge to binders at different times. During a restoration, the original leather appears to have been stretched over boards beneath, suggesting that the boards had been renewed. During the late 20th century (from circa 1988, when the volumes entered Cumbria County Archives, Carlisle) various loose scraps of paper belonging to the collection were pasted onto some of the volumes' empty pages by archivist, Jeremy Godwin.[49]

Pagination

The volumes were paginated at different periods. Machell's original pagination occurs sporadically throughout the volumes and was apparently inserted by him when constructing his 'little books'. See, for example, II.470, which was first paginated as page 23. The main pagination seems to have occurred when the volumes were first bound; it was carried out in thick black ink, often superimposing Machell's earlier page numbers and even some of his text; during the process, a few pages were paginated incorrectly. Subsequent pagination was added by archivists in the late twentieth century, when various loose sheets were pasted into the volumes.[50] Written in pencil, such pagination usually adds a letter of the alphabet (A-F) to an existing page number. There are groups of blank paginated pages throughout the volumes.

Discussion of the binding and pagination of the volumes leads inevitably to a transcription difficulty caused by apparently missing pages – a phenomenon which could have occurred after Machell's volumes were borrowed from Carlisle Cathedral Library by Rev. Dr Richard Burn.[51] Although they occasionally cited 'Mr Machel' as their source, Joseph Nicolson and Richard Burn nevertheless co-opted substantial parts of Machell's manuscript into their own in their History and Antiquities of the Counties of Westmorland and Cumberland, published in 1777. As Burn had undertaken to author the Westmorland section, it is to be expected that he would seek to borrow Machell's volumes from the cathedral library, which he did in 1765, the year in which he became chancellor of the diocese. The matter is recorded in a Dean and Chapter Minute Book, in which it appears that Burn kept the volumes for ten years; they were not listed as returned until 1775, two years before the publication of Nicolson and Burn's 'History'.[52] Conceivably, Burn's extensive use of Machell's work made rebinding a necessary next step in the history of these volumes.

---

[46] See Part 3, Ch.1, Bishop Charles Lyttelton's suggestions for further reading, VI.432A-D. Lyttelton borrowed Machell's volumes from Carlisle Cathedral library; viz. '31 July. 3rd vol. Machel's MSS for the Bp; August 7. 4 vol. of Machel's MSS. for the Bishop; Sept.15. 6. vol. of Machel's MSS for the Bp.' See CAC(C), DCHA/5/6/1/15. Library Register 1703-1873.

[47] Email correspondence between this editor and the firm: http://www.maltbysbookbinders.com. The firm's logo is attached to the volumes' binding.

[48] See Machell's Preface, II.474: 'Se my little b[ook] on Alters dig'd up; se my misselanyes.'

[49] See Jeremy Godwin's comments on the flyleaf of Volume I.

[50] Information gained during discussions with Jeremy Godwin and former archivists at CAC(C).

[51] Richard Burn (1709–1785) was born in Winton, Kirkby Stephen. He matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, in 1729 (BA 1734), and in 1736 was instituted to the vicarage of Orton, Westmorland. He became a justice of the peace for Westmorland and Cumberland. In 1762 he was made a DCL by Oxford, and in 1765 Bishop Lyttelton appointed him chancellor of Carlisle diocese. He died at Orton in 1785. See N. Landau, 'Burn Richard, legal writer and Church of England clergyman'. ODNB.

[52] Carlisle Cathedral Dean and Chapter Minute Book (1752-1792), CAC(C). DCHA/1/1/11, 129.

This suggests a possible answer to a serious editing problem. Volume I of Nicolson and Burn's History and Antiquities of the Counties of Westmorland and Cumberland contains a long, passionate passage describing, first, Oliver Cromwell's imposition of a charter on Appleby and, second, the town's joy at the restoration of the monarchy.[53] The passage, which contains strong terms such as 'bloody regicides', begins, 'The Reverend Thomas Machel, speaking of the plundering and devastations which Appleby had sustained in former ages, adds…'. Two pages are then taken up by a transcription (written between quotation marks) of Machell's text;[54] yet, to the present knowledge of this editor, the passage does not appear in Machell's six volumes. In this edition, therefore, the 'missing' text has been transcribed from Nicolson and Burn into passages criticising Cromwell's Commonwealth in Machell's chapter on Appleby Town and Parishes.[55] The transcribed passage is wholly authentic, but, unless the pages were misfiled into another Machell document collection, their present location is unknown to this editor.[56]

Modern reception of Machell's volumes, Part 1.

After the publication of Nicolson and Burn's History and Antiquities of Westmorland and Cumberland, in 1777, Thomas Machell appears to have been completely overlooked by scholars. In 1827, for example, while entering a footnote into his edition of The Life, Diary and Correspondence of Sir William Dugdale, William Hamper remarked of Machell:

> In the Philosophical Transactions Vol. xiv., p.555, is a letter from Mr Thomas Machel of Kirbythore in Westmoreland … concerning some Antiquities found there; but not of sufficient interest to deserve reprinting.[57]

Although he later revised his opinion, even Richard Saul Ferguson, distinguished chancellor of the diocese of Carlisle and a president of CWAAS, initially described Machell as 'our great local drya[s]dust'.[58] Machell's diminished status can be attributed partly to William Nicolson, whose patronising preface to Volume I of Machell's 'History', transcribed above, reveals this famous antiquary's attitude toward his colleague and former mentor. Similarly, a perusal of Nicolson and Burn's volumes might have convinced some scholars that Machell had no more to add to history than proto-Toryism, pedigrees, pots and property. And, as has been noted above, while the fact that Machell failed to publish his complete 'History' is tremendously helpful to today's scholars, it was obviously a critical factor in the burying of his reputation.

CWAAS Transactions 1874-1918[59]

From its inception in 1874, CWAAS Transactions recognised the importance of one of its very own scholars. Nevertheless, Charles J. Ferguson, who quoted more than a dozen times from Machell's text on architecture within his article, 'The development of domestic architecture: Rose Castle and Dalston Hall' (1876), was one of the few contributors who appear to have actually studied the volumes.[60] Others quoted Machell in circuitous ways. In 1874, for example, Rev. James Simpson, vicar of Kirkby Stephen, consulted Machell's text within the Hill manuscripts, which had been compiled [53] See Michael Mullett, Patronage, Power and Politics in Appleby in the era of Lady Anne Clifford, 1649-1689, CWAAS Tract Series 25 (Kendal, 2015), 24-26.

[54] See N&BI, 315-16.
[55] Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby Town and Parishes, from I.507.
[56] For instance, CCA(C), DCHA/11/3, Machell family of Crackenthorpe: Chronological Series of records filed and bound into eight volumes with separate card indexes.
[57] Anthony Wood to William Dugdale (19 July 1684), in William Hamper, The Life, Diary and Correspondence of Sir William Dugdale (London, 1827), 434.
[58] Taken from Rogan and Birley, 'Thomas Machell the Antiquary', 138.
[59] Analysis of Transactions articles mentioning Thomas Machell was carried out by searching all the articles in CWAAS Transactions 1874-2020, accessed from 'Cumbria Past', Online.
[60] C.J. Ferguson, 'The Development of Domestic Architecture: Rose Castle and Dalston Hall', CWI, 2 (1876), 152-71.

during the nineteenth century.[61] Between 1874 and 1918, 35 articles cited Machell's name, but 10 of them mentioned his research without giving volume or page number, and 20 (57 per cent) quoted him through other sources, such as Nicolson and Burn's History, parish registers and, increasingly, articles published in previous volumes of Transactions.

As chancellor of the diocese, Charles Ferguson's brother, R.S. Ferguson, was in a better position than others to view the Machell volumes in situ. The Carlisle Cathedral 'Dean and Chapter Order Book' (1874-1901) reports his having done so on 16 April 1874.[62] He studied the Machell volumes in the cathedral library on other occasions, as revealed in his letter to the secretary of the Society of Antiquaries of Newcastle upon Tyne:

Carlisle December 17th 1885

> Dear Mr Blair
> I recently searched the Machell Manuscripts in possession of the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle, for the purpose of ascertaining if they contain any Romano-British inscriptions not yet published. The volumes are six in number, and refer mainly to the county of Westmoreland. In the 6th volume is the following letter from Dr J. Mills, Principal of St Edmund Hall, Oxford…'

Ferguson then added a transcription of the letter he had found, described other communications between Machell and John Mill, and voiced his disappointment on finding that Machell's drawings were 'few' and 'rough'.[63]

In 1894, Ferguson's monograph, A History of Westmorland, quoted Machell's research on six occasions, predominantly by citing Transactions articles and Nicolson and Burn's History. When referring to illustrations of the seals of Robert and Idonea de Veteriponte, however, he guided the reader to 'the first volume of the Machell manuscripts in the library of the Dean and Chapter at Carlisle, p.187,' and 'the first volume of Machell's MSS., pp. 238, 26.'[64] Ferguson had not found admittance to the cathedral library an easy matter. As researchers know, obtaining access to certain archives is not always uncomplicated. Ferguson vented his exasperation within an article on the stained glass at Windermere parish church, published in CWAAS Transactions in 1880.

> The earliest account of this glass is to be found in the second volume of Machell's MS. Collections, in the Dean and Chapter Library at Carlisle. I have some rough memoranda I made long ago of his notes as to the coats of arms. I regret that I have been unable to verify them, or obtain a glimpse, even for a few moments, of the originals: this is due to the obstructive regulations placed by the Dean and Chapter of Carlisle, in the way of access to manuscripts of which they are the trustees for the public.[65]

Perhaps the obstruction occurred because R.S. Ferguson, though chancellor of the diocese, was the first layman ever to be appointed to that role;[66] but whatever the reason, his experience of admittance differed markedly from the free access experienced by that earlier chancellor, Rev. Richard Burn.

CWAAS Transactions 1919-1958

During the first half of the 20th century, Thomas Machell's name appeared in Transactions less often than before, and local authors who cited his work did so only in passing, in support of their own specific historical concerns. During the years 1919-1958, Machell was mentioned in 22 articles (as distinct from 35 during the period 1870-1918), only four of which cited volume and page numbers, [61] Hill MSS, CAC(C,) DCHA/11/11/1-9: 9 volumes of collections for 'The History and Antiquities of the County of Westmorland' by John Hill of Castle Bank, Appleby (died 1861). See Rev. J. Simpson, 'Appleby Castle', CW1, I (1874), 242-54, at 247.

[62] Chapter Order Book (1874-1901), CAC(C), DCHA 1/1/15, 4.
[63] Letter from R.S. Ferguson (then editor of CWAAS Transactions) written in Carlisle on 17 December 1885 and read to the Society of Antiquaries of Newcastle upon Tyne. See Proceedings of the Antiquaries of Newcastle-upon-Tyne Vol. II (South Shields, 1887), 142-43.
[64] R.S. Ferguson, A History of Westmorland (London, 1894), 99, 101.
[65] R.S. Ferguson, 'Windermere (Bowness) Parish Church, and its Old Glass', CW1, 4 (1880), 47.
[66] See E. Carlyle & A. Winchester, 'Ferguson, Richard Saul (1837-1900), antiquary'. ODNB.

while others merely referred to his name, cited previous Transactions articles, or had gained their information from Nicolson and Burn's History. R.S. Ferguson had demonstrated the difficulties involved in gaining access to the original volumes, even for local scholars, however distinguished; how much harder, then, would it have been for those who lived many miles from the far north of England?

CWAAS Transactions 1963-1998

During the 1960s, a sea-change in local interest in Machell's volumes occurred when Jane M. Ewbank, daughter of Walter Ewbank (then domestic chaplain to Bishop Thomas Bloomer and Vicar of Raughton Head, Cumberland),[67] was given access to the Machell documents, in particular Volume II. Consequently, in 1963, Jane Ewbank published a scholarly edition of Machell's notes on the Barony of Kendal, Antiquary on Horseback. The First Publication of The Collections of the Rev. Thos. Machell Chaplain to King Charles II Towards a History of the Barony of Kendal.[68] The publication was highly appreciated by local scholars, as shown by the rising number of articles concerning Machell in Transactions during the period 1964 to 1998. Over three quarters of the 31 articles mentioning him cited only secondary sources, and, of these, 71 per cent cited Ewbank's book. Nicolson and Burn's History ceased to be cited as a source for Machell's research during this period.

CWAAS Transactions 2000-2020

Of the 22 Transactions articles utilising Machell's research during the years 2000-2020, 64 per cent cited Ewbank's Antiquary on Horseback, while just 14 per cent cited Machell's volume and page numbers. This is thought-provoking for several reasons. First, circa 1988-90 the whole of Machell's collection was moved from Carlisle Cathedral Library to the Cumbria Record Office at Carlisle, where it has resided ever since; yet, despite this, scholars have still preferred to use secondary sources. The irony of this situation was made clear in 2014, when an author who had used Rogan and Birley's Transactions article, 'Thomas Machell, the Antiquary', as his main source[69] thanked Carlisle archivist, Tom Robson, for finding and sending to him the extra information he needed from Machell's volumes; an admission, perhaps, that Carlisle was still too far away for some scholars to venture.[70] The second obvious result of the publication of Antiquary on Horseback is that from 1964 to the present, Transactions articles which quote Machell have shown a pronounced leaning towards seeking evidence only from the Barony of Kendal: this, of course, can be found much more easily in Ewbank's book than in Machell's muddled MS. Machell's research notes on Kendal Barony fill little more than one of his six volumes, but only a few scholars during this period appear to have utilised the other five.[71]

Difficulties of Transcription

Notwithstanding difficulties of access, there is another, graver, difficulty; one which all scholars who have actually consulted Machell's volumes acknowledge. It is the notoriously illegible text. Contemporaries such as Nicolson, and later scholars such as Rogan and Birley, described the chaotic nature of the volumes' pages, many of which had been altered, added to, overwritten and scored through to a bewildering extent.[72] When Machell's handwriting is also considered, it is not surprising that few scholars ever attempted to unravel the mess. As noted above, in his letter to William Nicolson, Machell himself had confessed:

---

[67] Obituary. 'The Ven. Walter Frederick Ewbank 1918-2014', Church Times, 9 May 2014.
[68] Ewbank (ed.), Antiquary on Horseback, see fn. 4.
[69] Rogan and Birley, 'Thomas Machell, the Antiquary', 132-53.
[70] See Peter Lucas, 'A South Westmorland Medieval Holy Well? The Case of St. Gregory's Well, Preston Patrick', CW3, 14 (2014), 125-28, at 125 n.6. Another such example is C.S. Colman, 'The Paralysis of the Cumberland and Westmorland Army in the First Civil War c.1642-45', CW3, 1 (2001). Having quoted Machell's Vol. II, 342, Colman remarked 'I am grateful to Richard Hall at the Cumbria Record Office, Kendal, for this reference.' [see 126, endnote 13].'
[71] For example, Angus Winchester, 'Personal Names and Local Identities in Early Modern Cumbria', CW3, 11 (2011), 29-50 [Angus Winchester is the author of Machell's biography in ODNB]; Mark Blackett-Ord, 'Growth of a Manor House: the early history of Warcop Hall, 1580-1745', CW3, 20 (2020), 137-50.
[72] Rogan and Birley, 'Thomas Machell, the Antiquary', CW2 (1955), 142.

> …the notes … are so ill writt (for want of Convenient time & place) and so full of Blotts & Interlineations … no body besides my selfe can Compose & Bring them in Order.

This is not to claim that all of Machell's manuscripts are difficult to read; he had several handwriting styles, depending on whether he was writing a note, a draft, a fair copy, a letter, or a finished piece for publication. Considered in that order, the handwriting grows more legible and, indeed, more beautiful, as the texts approach publication standard. Unfortunately, most of the manuscripts are in note or draft form, and, as Eric Birley commented in 1951:

> [Machell's] MSS. collections, in the Dean and Chapter library in Carlisle, have been the delight and the despair of a long succession of scholars, from Bishop Nicolson to Chancellor Ferguson (to say nothing of people still living).[73]

In his article written with John Rogan in 1955, Birley expanded on this theme.

> An analytical study of the rough drafts would undoubtedly yield interesting information about Machell's mind, but it is one of the tasks which we can only indicate now, in the hope that someone may be prepared to undertake it. [74]

As noted above, in 1963 Jane Ewbank undertook part of that task by transcribing Machell's 'Barony of Kendal'. Sixty years on, this edition provides a transcription of Machell's research on the whole of Westmorland. Nevertheless, the problems of transcription remain the same. Jane Ewbank's edition, like that of Nicolson and Burn, omits some of Machell's margin comment, interlineation and 'difficult' text, while Machell's notoriously opaque handwriting has led to transcription errors. Hence, it would be miraculous if this edition of Thomas Machell's Collections towards a History and Topography of Westmorland were to escape the same fate, despite its editor's determination to strive for accuracy. To echo Machell himself,

> Nor will I promisse to be so accurate my selfe as to scape all oversights; som can not be avoided. But I will doe my \ best / endeavour, and be very much beholden to those who shall take the paines to correct these papers where they are amiss…[75]

Modern reception of Machell's volumes. Part 2. Wider publishing

There has been no published volume devoted solely to Machell's research since the appearance of Jane Ewbank's Antiquary on Horseback in 1963, notwithstanding late-20th-century and 21st-century interest in the history of antiquarianism, which has led to the publication of a significant number of volumes on the subject.[76] It is unsurprising, then, that whenever Machell's name is found in such books, it appears as an aside.[77] Ignored or overlooked for centuries, Machell's dubious status among today's scholars appears to remain just as it was in his lifetime. A well-received recent edition of Sir Daniel Fleming's memoirs from 1633 to 1688 exemplifies this. Fleming mentions Machell, but only briefly; he appears to have had a closer acquaintance (though mainly in an official capacity) with [73] Eric Birley, 'Notes: Thomas Machell and Hadrian's Wall', CW2, 51 (1951), 180-82, at 180.

[74] Rogan and Birley,' Thomas Machell, the Antiquary', CW2 (1955), 142.
[75] See Part 3, Ch.4, Heraldry, 'Of Familyes', VI.373.
[76] See examples of a wide range from 1951 to 2015: David Douglas, English Scholars 1660-1730 (London, revised edition 1951); Stan A.E. Mendyk, Speculum Britanniae: Regional Study, Antiquarianism and Science in Britain to 1700 (Toronto, Buffalo, London, 1989); C. R. J. Currie and C. P. Lewis (eds), English County Histories: A Guide (Stroud, 1994); Jan Broadway, William Dugdale and the Significance of County History in the Early Stuart England, Volume 39 of Dugdale Society Occasional Papers (Chicago, 1999); Graham Parry, Trophies of Time: English Antiquarians of the seventeenth century (Oxford, 1995 and 2007); Rosemary Sweet, Antiquaries: The Discovery of the Past in 18th-century Britain (London and New York, 2004); Ruth Scurr, John Aubrey: My Own Life (London, 2015).
[77] See, for instance, Mendyk, Speculum Britanniae, 318; Sweet, Antiquaries, 208.

Machell's elder brother, Hugh, lord of Crackenthorpe.[78] Younger brother, Thomas, appears in an incident in October 1684, when Fleming visited the Earl of Thanet at Appleby Castle to arbitrate in a dispute between Hugh Machell, his mother and his sister, 'by reason of a flaw Parson Machel discovered in the Bond of Reference entered into at the instance of the Earl of Thanet, which did offend his Lordship very much.'[79] Note that the antiquary is here merely 'Parson Machel', although he and Daniel Fleming had corresponded on Machell's proposed History from at least 1677.[80]

Machell's Renaissance

As already noted, some of those commenting on Machell's research papers did so with a certain condescension. In 1899, Lancaster Herald, Edward Bellasis, thought them inadequate, perceiving Machell's approach to family pedigrees as 'quaint' and 'confused'.[81] Redressing the balance, recent British historical journals have revived interest in Machell's volumes, thanks to Professor Adam Fox, whose articles in Transactions of the Royal Historical Society, Cultural and Social History, and in the Historical Journal have illuminated content that had been previously discounted. Fox's scholarly interests have been crucial to Machell's renaissance. His study of antiquarian method led him to examine the first antiquarian questionnaires, in the planning of which Machell played a crucial part. Fox has also researched oral tradition in early modern England; a theme embedded in Machell's writing.[82] Fox's ground-breaking article, based solely on original observations gleaned from Machell's volumes, 'Vernacular Culture and Popular Customs in Early Modern England: Evidence from Thomas Machell's Westmorland', has raised Machell's profile to a more significant level.[83] As Fox has observed:

> Naturally enough, the focus of [the local historical societies] is on the history of the north of England as a region … Machell's fascination with popular practices and beliefs is inextricably bound up with locality. The two obviously intersect but they represent rather different emphases nevertheless.[84]

Fox accentuates the importance of vernacular culture in British history, applauding Machell as 'an original and sympathetic recorder of the beliefs and prejudices, customs and practices of his neighbours'. He believes him to be an antiquary who shared a common interest with John Aubrey 'as an important, and sometimes unique, commentator on vernacular traditions, children's games and calendar rituals'.[85] Using his cherished county of Westmorland as a source, Machell was able to draw on what he judged to be its people's distinctive character. 'He was the painstaking and sympathetic observer of a culture with which he was intimately familiar.'[86]

Fox has expressed regret that Machell still remains 'a relatively obscure and neglected figure', noting that he is remembered for his site excavations, his recording of gentry families, and 'his role in the introduction of classical architecture to Cumberland and Westmorland'; 'but', he argues, in addition to these achievements, Machell was

---

[78] In 1685 Hugh Machell was one of four members of the grand jury at Appleby who wrote a congratulatory address to James II. See Scott Sowerby and Noah McCormack (eds), The Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal Hall from 1633 to 1688, CWAAS Record Series 23 (Kendal, 2021), 239.
[79] See Sowerby and McCormack (eds), Memoirs of Sir Daniel Fleming, 214-15. For more on this dispute, see C. Roy Hudlestone, 'Thomas Machell, his Wife and Children…' CW2 (1970), 137-44.
[80] See J.A. Bennett and Richard Ward (eds), The Manuscripts of S.H. le Fleming Esq. of Rydal Hall (London, 1890), 135-39.
[81] Edward Bellasis, 'Strickland of Sizergh', CW1, 10 (1889), 75-94, at 90.
[82] See Adam Fox, 'Remembering the Past in Early Modern England: Oral and Written Tradition', Transactions of the Royal Historical Society 9 (1999), 233-56; Oral and Literate Culture in England 1500-1700 (Oxford, 2000); 'Printed Questionnaires, Research Networks, and the Discovery of the British Isles, 1650-1800', Historical Journal, 53 (2010), 593-621.
[83] Adam Fox, 'Vernacular Culture and Popular Customs in Early Modern England: Evidence from Thomas Machell's Westmorland', Cultural and Social History 3 (2012), 329-47.
[84] Quotation from email correspondence between Adam Fox and the editor, March 2017.
[85] Fox, 'Vernacular Culture, Westmorland', 329.
[86] Fox, 'Vernacular Culture, Westmorland', 330.

> an important and original commentator on vernacular traditions and local customs. His manuscript writings add not only to our knowledge of landscape and society in the north-west of England during the late seventeenth century, but also to our understanding of early modern popular culture more broadly. They provide earlier references to a number of usages and recreations than otherwise known and represent a valuable witness from the north of the country to set alongside similar sources that derive predominantly from the south.[87]

That Machell did not confine his queries and conversations to the county elites is crucial to the argument for a renewed scholarly interest in his work. As Fox remarks, Machell's 'inquisitive' approach and willingness to converse with 'the vulgar', even if their tales stretched his credulity, are relevant and fascinating in their own right. Inevitably this approach did not impress his peers, particularly William Nicolson, 'in whose hands his posthumous reputation lay. "A very foolish tale", wrote Nicolson beside the story told to Machell by the villagers of [Ravenstonedale] about how a former lord of the manor had been providentially struck blind after enclosing their common field.'[88] Here, Fox neatly exposes two very different emphases concerning the history of locality, a dichotomy personified in the difficult relationship between these two intertwined antiquaries.

Machell's Methods. 1. Questionnaires

When writing their county histories, antiquaries made greater discoveries when they began to send out printed questionnaires containing numbered 'heads' or 'articles of enquiry' to would-be assistants in every corner of their chosen county.[89] This was not a new phenomenon; the practice came into being through Francis Bacon (1561-1626), whose ideas relating to natural philosophy led to his development of an empirical approach to scientific enquiry by means of observation and induction.[90] Moreover, after the Restoration, diocesan clergy of the Church of England were often required by their bishop to respond to a series of questions on their parochial provision in advance of visitation.[91]

Given the lofty beginnings of the antiquarian questionnaire, some might find it surprising that Thomas Machell's questionnaires, 'were the first to specify the study of antiquities, history and geography at the parish level and … were more elaborate than their predecessors'.[92] This came about through antiquarian collaboration at the University of Oxford from the 1640s, during the era of the evolution of scientific method, in which Francis Bacon's ideas were seminal. Bacon had compiled a series of 'directions of invention and enquiry' in the early 1620s, setting the scene for research into 'natural knowledge', which deliberately mixed antiquities and natural history while also encouraging collaborative methods. In 1673 the scientist Robert Hooke, who used such approaches in his own research, joined the publisher and cartographer John Ogilby, the surveyor Gregory King, the lawyer John Hoskins, the architect Christopher Wren, and the antiquary John Aubrey, to create some 'Queries in order to the description of Britannia'; a scheme invented by Ogilby in his capacity as the new Cosmographer Royal.[93] The first fact-finding documents to be directed at individuals in the British regions, these queries were used by John Aubrey in his survey of Surrey later that year, and by the natural historian, Robert Plot, when researching the Natural History of Oxfordshire, published in 1677, and the Natural History of Staffordshire, published in 1686.[94]

---

[87] Fox, 'Vernacular Culture, Westmorland', 330.
[88] Fox, 'Vernacular Culture, Westmorland', 343. See also Part 1, Ch.21, Ravenstonedale, II.307.
[89] Adam Fox, 'Printed Questionnaires, Research Networks, and the Discovery of the British Isles', 593-621.
[90] See M. Peltonen, 'Bacon, Francis, Viscount St Alban (1561-1626), lord chancellor, politician, and philosopher'. ODNB.
[91] W.J. Sheils, 'Bishops and their dioceses: reform of visitation in the Anglican church c.1680-c.1760'. CCED Online Journal 1, 2007.http://www.theclergydatabase.org.uk/cce_a1/
[92] Mendyk, Speculum Britanniae, 318.
[93] See Machell's Preface, I.42A.
[94] This paragraph has been calendared from Fox, 'Printed Questionnaires, Research Networks, and the Discovery of the British Isles, 1650-1800; 595-99; see also, Fox, 'Vernacular Culture, Westmorland', 330.

While a fellow at The Queen's College (he was elected in 1673), Thomas Machell mixed with many leading Oxford antiquaries; for example, a letter to Anthony Wood (a copy of which is retained in his papers) addressed Wood as 'my old friend'.[95] In a letter to Daniel Fleming, dated March 1677, Machell explained that he had extended Ogilby's 'Queries in order to the description of Britannia' to help his own research,

> … that I maybe both able to satisfy them and myne owne curiosity. The end of which is To have in readiness a Local Account how things stand at this day in each Parish & Lordship; to which I may refer (as a Common-Place) all those Collections I have in readiness; and what ever else shall hereafter occur, either in Historyes or ancient Records.[96]

It is possible that Machell had received the queries from either Wood or Robert Plot; he had already conversed with the latter on introducing natural history into his northern research. He touched on this connection much later, in a letter written in January 1686 to the cartographer John Adams.

> … if I had met with a kind reception among my relations (the Gentry of the Countrey) & but any returne (tho' never so sleight) from the Country Ministrey, to the Queries I sent there (which were design'd partly to assist Dr Plot my friend and consociate in his Natural History; partly to gather where ancient writeings, & other ancient Antiquities might be seen by me; but principally, to gaine the Topographies (or locall description) of these two sister-counties to which I might refer my collections) …[97]

The information given to Adams reveals that Machell's own questionnaire had been partly designed to assist Robert Plot's research; it also underlines comments he had made years earlier, in a letter to Daniel Fleming, that his written queries had not been well received by local gentry and clergymen: 'Many are cold. If this continues I shall retire from the enterprise.'[98]

As he began his History in Oxford, Machell was obliged to rely on others for information-gathering in Westmorland. That some local worthies were unwilling to complete his queries did not bode well for their financial aid towards publication, nor for Machell's hopes of completing his study. But Machell was to highlight another approach. 'As to the Queries', he wrote on 26 March 1677 in another letter to Fleming,

> Tis true you will find them very long and tediouse, many Tautologyes conteined in them, & somthings allso which may be litigiouse & not fit to be Answer'd : But tho you (the Gentlemen & Ministers of the Countrey from whom I hope the Greatest Assistance) are men of Ingenuity, so that a word might seeme to suffice; yet They are Contriv'd for Ordnary Capacityes, That the Vulgar (possibly of slow apprehensions) who must be consulted in this undertakeing By giveing their Answers to severall Queries in Different Terms tho to the same purpose, may luckily hit of som little Circumstance fully discovering all that is sought for in 2 or 3 Questions: And as for those which are very dubiouse, and therefore may seem unfit to be Answer'd, The Respondent in this Case may use his Discretion.[99]

The interesting point here is that Machell wished to extend his queries to the 'vulgar' and those of [95] Machell to Anthony Wood, enclosed within a letter to John Mill, 7 October 1692; see Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, VI.253. Please note, however, that Machell's letter to Mill is critical of Wood's lack of generosity towards him, hurt feelings being a common feature of Machell's correspondence with Oxford colleagues.

[96] Machell to Daniel Fleming, 26 March 1677, in J.R. Magrath (ed.),The Flemings in Oxford I (Oxford, 1904), 214-17; see Machell's version of the 'Queries in order to the description of Britannia' in his Preface, 'Part I of Collecting in order to a Preface', I.748, I.42A.

[97] Machell to John Adams, written at Kirkby Thore, 26 January 1686; see Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, I.516-17.

[98] Machell to Daniel Fleming 1 August 1677, in which Machell wished that all were as ready to assist him as DF. See Bennett and Ward (eds), The Manuscripts of S.H. le Fleming Esq. of Rydal Hall, 139. See also, Machell to Daniel Fleming, The Flemings in Oxford I, 26 March 1677, 214-17.

[99] Adam Fox, 'Vernacular Culture and Popular Customs in Early Modern England', 331.

'ordnary capacityes', and there is ample evidence in the volumes to prove that he did so. His printed questionnaire follows below. The Rev. Richard Singleton of Melmerby in Cumberland sent the only complete reply to be found in the Machell volumes, though there are examples of partial responses throughout.[100] Although Machell initially criticised their response, some local clergymen were prepared to help. Singleton was particularly keen, returning his 17-page reply in June 1677. Machell immediately bombarded him with another ten questions. Nor did he stop there. Singleton, as requested, had tried his best to provide drawings of various objects inside his church. Machell replied encouragingly, 'The uppermost course in the 3d light at the west end of the church & the 3rd which is imperfect, by all means draw me them. You do excellent well.' But these images were poor compared to those completed in Machell's draughtsman-like hand, so it is unsurprising that, in 1688, a few years after Singleton's death, Machell went to Melmerby church to see its interior for himself.[101]

Thomas Machell's Official Questionnaire

[1]
That the Northern Counties which abound in Antiquities and Ancient Gentry may no longer be bury'd in Silence[102]

Information is desir'd concerning the following Queries as they lye in order, viz. either. By

1. Report and Tradition.	} noting	{	1. T.	}
2. Evidence or Record.	} them	{	2. R.	} before the Answer.
3. Experience of know-ledge of the present Age.	} with	{	3. E.	}

And it being design'd for the Honor of your Parish among others, your outmost Endeavours are desir'd in order to a true Information. Which may easily be procur'd by calling some of your Ancient men (who have gon Procession or know the Boundaries of your Parish) And the Lord or Balive, with some of the Tenents (of good Repute, Knowledge and Honesty) in particular Lordships: from whose mouths you may please to write your Answer on a sheet of paper, folded (as this) with margins on both sides. And to give the more Authority to the work, the Names of those from whom you receiv'd your informations may be return'd at the Conclusion of the Accounts of their Respective Parishes, Lordships, Villages &c. And it is to be wished that the Minister, and Church-wardens or some of the Parish would subscribe their names to the General Account of the Parish: And the Lord (or his Balive, Steward &c.) with some of the Tenents the Accounts concerning their Respective Lordships.

Chap. 1. Queries concerning the Parish in General.

1. The name of the Parish, & why so call'd? how written in ancient Records? In what Diocese, Barony, Hundred or Ward it is said to lye? How is it bounded & divided from other Parishes on the E. W. N. & South &c? by what Rivers, Hedges, Walls, Cause-ways, or common and well known Land-markes, Meets and Boundaries &c. or are they (or any of them) Litigious or Doubtfull?

2. What form and figure does it most resemble. as Square, Oblong, Oval, Triangular, &c. with the Length and Breadth in the largest parts of it, nameing the places where you begin and end your computation, as also where they lye, E. W. N. or South, and the circumference (by moderate Computation) if you can guess at it;

3. What the Quality of the Soyl in general; as clay, mold, sand, gravel? and of what sort. Red, yellow, blew, black, white, &c. And if it be stony, of what kind, as Lime-stone, &c. Also whether is it for the most part Arable pasture, meadow or wood-land? is it very fertile, barren or indifferent? Also what sort of mines, quarries. fuell. &c. doth your parish afford? At what distance do you fetch your fireing? what plenty of it? what general Customs, as Rush-bearing, Hollyes, Bonfires &c? what games, sports &c. and when celebrated?

[100] Machell MS.VI, 699-722, at CAC(C).
[101] 'Melmerby Church, Aug. 13 1688 {Ad Cumberland}', MS.VI.701 at CAC(C).
[102] 'That the Northern Counties which abound in Antiquities and Ancient Gentry may no longer be bury'd in Silence' (1677), CAC(K), WD/Ry/1904. This document can be viewed online at Text Creation Partnership, https://quod.lib.umich.edu/cgi/t/text/text-idx?c=eebo2;idno=B26409.0001.001.

4. The name of the Church. Why so call'd, to what Saint dedicated? near what Saints day do you keep your Feast or Wake? what manner of building is it, great or smal; Elegant or mean? how many Rows of Pillars? hath it a Spire, Square-steeple, or neither? how many Bells? when and by whom founded, endowd, rebuilt, or extraordinarily repair'd? what Chanteries or Oratories in it, with their Foundation, Dedication, Endowment and Dissolution? Item, what monuments & monumental Inscriptions with coats of Arms &c. of Nobility and Gentry? what witty strange and uncouth Epitaphs either in the Church (1. Body. 2. Chancell) or without it, whether on the walls, or in the Church-yard? Be pleas'd to draw them out or describe them according to their Figure & Colors, as well as you can. What number and names of Chappels belonging to the Church or Parish?

5. Whether your Parish be a Vicaridge, Parsonage, or both? An Impropriation, or not? if it be, who is Impropriator? and what Allowance to the Vicar or Curate? whether hath it Tythes in kind or not? what value is it of by common Estimation? what succession of Patronage? and how transferr'd from one family to another? with the name and Habitation of the present Patron.

6. The Parsonage, or Vicaridge-house in or near to what Town or Village? at what end or side of the same E. W. N. or South? or how far distant otherwise from it? by what name & whence so call'd? how writ in antient Records? of what sort the building fair, mean or indifferent; wood, clay, brick or stone? slated or not? and in what repair? how situated? High or Low; on the top, side, or at the bottom of an hill? By what Springs, or Ponds, Rivers, (Navigable, or otherwise) with what Commodities as mills, fish, fowl, and the sorts they afford? also near or upon what great Road? & how far distant from any of them, E.W.N or South? how far from the nearest Chappel, Church, Parish-church, Market? what Gardens, Orchards, Dove-coats, Warrens, Parks, Forests, Woods, (Standing or lately cut down) with other Perquisits belonging unto it or are there any such near at hand (tho belonging unto others) which render the place more Commodious or pleasant? what kind, and plenty of fuel? and from whence brought? Item when and by whom was it built, mended, rebuilt, or extraordinarily repair'd and upon what occasions? (And if it be a Mannor House? what Rent doth it pay, and what Courts are there kept?)

[2]

What Remarkable about it either within or without?
* Within, as ancient Inscriptions, Coats of Armes in Glass, Wood or Stone.
* Without, as Fortifications, Bulwarks and Trenches round or square; places where battles have been fought, or other Accidents have happen'd, Heaps of Stone or Earth trench'd about in manner of a Ring or otherwise; Mounts of War, ancient Ruines; Beacons; Coyns digg'd up; with other Rarities of what kind soever; as springs cold, hot, Medicinal, Bituminous, Petrifying &c.

7. How much Glebe belonging unto it; with the Quantity of an Acre by the account of your Parish? the Quality of the Soyl, viz. of what sort for the most part, Arable, &c. asking and answering the same Questions as in Query the 3d. What Woods, Forrests &c? asking and answering the same Questions as in Qu: 4th of the 3d. Chapt.
And what Priviledge extraordinary your Ministers hath? What notable Remarque of Antiquity upon the Glebe, as Fortifications, &c. see above in Query 6th at the word without, and be pleased to answer those Questions. &c.

8. How many Lordships or Mannors in the Parish which you are desir'd onely to enumerate and write down their Names; alwaies observing to put the first where the Parish-Church stands, if it happen to be one.

9. Informers Names; and their Information confirm'd by the Subscription of the Minister and Church-Wardens, if it may be had.

Chap. II. Concerning every particular Lordship enquire of the Lord, Steward, Balive, or experienced Tenents

1. The name of the Mannor or Lordship; how written in ancient Records? how at present? and whence deriv'd? In what Barony, Ward, or Hundred? How bounded with other Lordships?

2. What Form and Figure &c. asking and answering the same Questions as above Query 2d.

3. What the Quality of the soyl &c. asking and answering as above in Queries 3d. to which adde the measure of an Acre with the yearly value of the best, worst, and middle sort of Arable. Pasture. Meadow; excluding the Commons, Moors and Fells.

4. What general and Remarkable Customes of the Lordships? and how many free-holds?

5. How, and of whom doth the Lord hold the Mannor? and by what service of the King in Capite, or some Castle or Barony? And if so, of what Castle, or Barony? by Escuage, Knights-Service, or Cornage? and what Rents or Acknowledgments doth he pay? when, and to whom?

7. What priviledges hath he, as waifes Strayes, boons, &c. and what sort of Finable Rents, fines certaine or uncertaine? Green-hew, &c (or are they bought off or belonging to others) what Courts doth or may he keep? as Baron, Leet, &c. and where? Concerning the Lords privileges when you have got his Information, be pleas'd to enquire also of some of the Tenents for Confirmation, lest he pretend to more than is his right.

6. The mannor house, what Rent pays it, and what Court may be holden at it? In or near to what town or village is it and so on, asking the same Questions which occur in Qu. 6th. Concerning Parsonage or Vicaridge-houses In cap. 1. vide.

7. How many Demaines belong to it with the Quality of the Land &c. Answering the Questions in Query the 3d of cap. 1. Its peculiar priviledges; and what is remarkable therein; as Fortifications? &c. answering the same Questions as in Query 6th Chap. 1. at the word without.

8. Who the ancient, modern, and present Proprietors, and when and how they came unto it? And for the present Proprietors especially. What coats of Arms do they bear? What number of Evidences have they belonging to the family? with the date of the ancientest. What Quality are they of; as Earls, Lords, Knights, Esquires, Gentlemen? And when the first of any of Those were known in their Family? What matches out of it (either by sons or daughters) into other families, with the time when, and place where they liv'd? Item, what Pedigree do they shew, with a Copy of it; at least an account of the first and last Generation in it, according to Date; or where it may be seen? and if they have none, an account may suffice for three or fower Generations (down to themselves, their Wives and Children;) of their Matches and Issue, with the Age, birth and buriall of every one of them, as near as may be. N[ote]. but if they have enter'd their Pedigrees in Mr Dugdales Visitation 1664. (which Book I can have the use of at any time) they need not give any further account concerning their families than what hath been since.

9. How many Towns, Villages, Constable-wicks, Hamlets, &c. are contain'd in the Lordship (which onely enumerate), putting that first where the Mannor house stands. And then in particular Chap. 3. Concerning Every City, Town, Village, Hamlet, &c.

1. The name of the Place, modern, and ancient out of Records; also whence deriv'd? the distance from the nearest Chappell, Church, Parish-Church, Market? how situate for traffique? how for pleasure? viz. high [⋯] low, &c. answering the same Questions, as in Query 6th. of Chap. 1.
[3]

2. When and by whom built, and repaired? with the notable accidents and Calamities which have happen'd thereto by fire, water, sword, famine, Pestilence? & when? And if It be a City; or Market Town; what streets have been formerly, or are now in it? with their names and Etymologyes, as much as may be. Whether a Borough, Corporation, or neither? When the first Charter granted? with an Extract of what great Priviledges it formerly hath, or at present does enjoy; as waifes, Strayes, felons, goods, Markets, Faires? How many Burgesses they send to Parliament? (their names in succession if it may be had; or at least the Names of the present Burgesses) how is it govern'd, as by Mayor, Balives, &c. and what other officers and Attendants, with the Ensign of Magistracie carry'd before Him? What is the Town-Seal, and Arms? with the succession of your Mayors and Bailives, as far as Record and Knowledge can supply.
But whether soever it be, viz. Market Town or Village &c. you are desir'd further to enquire as followeth; &c.

3. What places remarkable in or about it, as Churches, Chappels, Monasteries, Hospitals, Colledges, Scholes, Mout-hals, Correction-Houses, Prisons, Crosses, Bridges, (whether standing or demolish'd) with the places or streets where? of Every of which in particular and according to order, Foundation, Dedication, Endowment, Dissolution; with Armes &c. asking and answering the same Questions, as Concerning Churches Ch. 1. Qu: 4. Of every particular Church, Chappel &c. And remember to annex the stipend or Allowance to Chaplains or Readers from the Parish &c. as also the names and succession of such, (so far as is possible) as have bin Masters and Governors of any of the other places which are of Note, and require Government – Item what Castles, Towres, Halls, and other houses of Gentlemen of Quality? Whether standing or Ruinous? of which in particular asking &c. The same Questions, as in Query 6th of Ch. 1. concerning the Parsonage-house scilicet. What its name &c. But if the Manor or Parsonage-house chance to be one of those houses of Note, it may suffice only to Name it, as having spoken of it more at large in its proper place. It[em] what men of great Eminence for Arts, Arms, or blood? as Doctors, Bishops, Authors of Books, famous Lawyers, Judges, Serjeants at Law, Noble Warriors, Generals; &c. Kings, Earles, Princes, Lords, &c. Have any such bin born, bred or Buried in your Town? with the place where. It[em] What famous Acts done by Archers? what by witches, Spirits and Conjurers, which are own'd to be true, and are very remarkable? otherwise none of them.

– It[em]. what Fortifications, &c. Answering the same Questions, as in Qu: 6. Ch: 1. of the word Without, or as in the next following Query at the place marked Thus *

4. What Fells, Moors, and Commons (with stint, or without) belonging to the Village or Town &c, and how far distant? What profits and Commodities (beside pasture) do they afford? as Fern or Brackens, heath or Ling, furrs or whins, turf or Peat? * What Woods, Forrests, Chaces, Parkes, Warrens, Groves, now in being or lately destroy'd? But if any be spoken of with the mannor house, only mention them here.
– It[em]. what Springs Cold, or hott, Medicinal, Petrifying, or Bituminous? What Ponds, Tarns, Lakes, Rivers? with the sorts of Fish and Fowl they afford. And who reaps the benefit?
– It[em]. What Quarries, Mines, Pitts. &c. of Marble, Black, white, or Gray? Jeat, Precious Stone; Limestone, hewing-stone; Milstone; slate, (white red, or blew;) Coal; Gravel; Lead; Tin; Iron, Brasse, Copper, Silver, Gold, &c.
– It[em]. What Fair thereupon? when kept? Who has the profits?
– It[em]. What Horse-Races? where? for what prize? by whom first appointed, and how long ago?
– It[em]. What memorable places where Battles have been fought? Round heaps of Stone, or Earth cast up in Hills, trench'd round about, or otherwise? What Fortifications, Camps? &c. Answering the same Questions, as in Chap. 1 Qu: 6. at the word Without – It[em]. What accidents and strange Occurrences have happen'd thereabout? With other Notable Remarks of what kind soever. And what you can say of any of them by your own knowledge, Report, or otherwise. Referring each thing to its proper head as near as you can.

5. How many Freeholders belonging to it (or if a Borough, how many Burgers, or what fee-farm Rent doth it pay, and to whom?) What other sorts of Tenants in it? at whose Courts do they [do] suit and service? By what Tenure do they hold? as soccage, Border-service, &c. or how? in what manner are they admitted unto their Estates? and how do they passe or Convey them away? as by surrender and admittance in Court, Copy of Court-Roll, will, or Deed? What Rents do they pay to the Lord of the mannor, or unto others? And what sort of Fines (Certain or uncertain) with other sort of Duties; as Oxgeld, green-hew, Reliefs, Heriots, &c? What services do they, not mention'd before amongst the Lordships Priviledges Chap. 2d. Qu:5th?
− Do they pay any things to any other Lord than the Lord of the mannor? or have any of them purchas'd their Fines and Services? if so, when, and of whom? and what their tenure is now call'd?
− Have they any extraordinary Priviledge or Custom in the place, (not mention'd before amongst those of the mannor in general) whereby any benefit doth accrue to themselves, their Widdows or Children?
When You have got the Information of Tenants concerning Priviledges: be pleas'd to inquire of the Lord, or his Steward for Confirmation, lest they pretend to what is not their right.

6. Informers Names.

7. Confirmation of Lord and Tenents by Subscription.

8. What Notable Proverbs, or peculiar expressions are us'd in the Parish, Lordship or Village?

9. The Names and Course of Every River or Beck in the Parish, with all its heads whence it springs? What way it runns E. W. North. or South? and the Parishes or Lordships it runns by or through? also the Towns, Halls, or Gentlemens Houses it visits by the Way, and how far it leaves them (or any of them) on the E. W. N. or South? The number of Mills and Bridges upon it? The sorts of Fish in it? Lastly where it takes the Sea, or loses it self in some other River or Lake?

[4]

10. The high or great-Roads which go through your Parish; Whence they come? To what place they go, and where they end? With the Parishes, Lordships &c. they passe by or through? Also Gentlemens houses or Notable Antiquities which occure in, or near unto them. Of all these (or as many as you can) Information is desir'd. And you may please to return your Answer, together with the Paper of Queries, as soon as possibly you can to Thomas Machell of Cracanthorpe in Westmerland. A.M. and Fellow of Queens Coll. in Oxon. 1. Jan. 1676-7.

Questionnaires: comment

Having read all four pages of Machell's questionnaire, the reader might well agree with Adam Fox that its length could have been very off-putting, or that the recipients could see no value in it, or that they were suspicious of giving away too much of a confidential nature.[103] Nevertheless, there is overwhelming evidence within the six volumes that Machell made extensive use of these queries, not only by sending them out to recipients, but also by using them as a means of organising his work methodically, in conjunction with the published county histories of others. A mere glance at his Preface will demonstrate that Machell reworked his method many times over different periods.[104] He also repeated key parts of it when collating information on particular parishes, as in Appleby, where he covered four pages with queries,[105] and in Kirkby Thore, where there are three.[106]

Machell's use of Informants

Informants were the key to Machell's whole enterprise. As already noted, county landowners were not always helpful; neither were some town councillors, as his uncle, John Thwaites, a mayor of Appleby, ruefully informed him in a letter written in September 1673.

> My kind respects salute you. I have endeavourd to satisfie your desires to give you an account of … Kendall & their Immunityes, but cannot prevaile therein.
> Your affectionate uncle
> Jo: Thwaites.

Such difficulties caused Machell to rely on the goodwill of local parish clergy, schoolteachers, friends, and members of his family, to help him gain the data he sought. His family's status enabled him to consult clergy of high diocesan office, as seen in this report of his correspondence with a future dean of Carlisle.

> I was of opinion that Nine Church took its name of St Ninian, and to that effect sent a letter to Archdeacon Musgrave, afterwards Dean of Carlile,[107] desireing him to enquire of his friend, one Mr Savage,[108] sometime parson there, what he could say of it. And received an answer dated from Edenall December 15, 1673, in these words.
> … Your apprehension of Nine Church is right, for not onely his name, Sc. De Ninianus, but his picture also, was seen by Mr Savage on the partition betwixt the chancel & body of the Church, who refers you to the Aurea Legenda, for an account concerneing that same.[109]

Sir Daniel Fleming allowed Machell to consult the books and papers in his library at Rydal Hall, and was himself a source of local information for many years, despite his cool demeanour.

> Rydal, Feb. 9. 93/94
> Sir
> Having often occasion to consult Dugdale's Baronage of England, I hope you'l be pleased to return mine hither as soon, & as safely, as you can. I am glad to know that you, Mr Arch-deacon and Mr Todd are concerned for Westmorland, Northumberland & Cumberland in the new edition of Mr Camden's Britannia; not doubting but that those three counties will be very well done. I long to hear of that book being published. I have here sent you a copy of a pedigree, which I omitted to deliver unto you at your being in this country, and which is more correct than that which was more hastily taken here by Sir William Dugdale. I wish we had any thing in these parts that would invite you to

[103] Fox, 'Printed Questionnaires, Research Networks … 1650-1800', 616-18.
[104] Machell's Preface. Pages on method: I.1; VI. xii; I.748-49; I.42A; I.3-4; I.750; I.767C; I.767D; I.153-54; IV.60B; I.197-98; I.229; I.148-49; I.41-43; I.127-28; I.46.
[105] Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, I.57; I.171; I.172; I.172A; I.172B.
[106] Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.508; I.548; I.744.
[107] Thomas Musgrave, Archdeacon of Carlisle, 1669; Dean of Carlisle, 1684; died, 1686. CCED.
[108] Arthur Savage, ordained Deacon at Rose Castle, 1637; Rector of Brougham, 21 August 1643 to 8 October 1662; Second Prebendary at Carlisle Cathedral and Rector of Caldbeck, 1665 until his death in 1701. CCED.
[109] See Part 1, Ch.7, Brougham, I.479-80. For information on the Legenda Aurea (the Golden Legend) consult those pages.

> cross our mountains, your company being very acceptable unto
> Sir
> Your most faithful servant
> Dan: Fleming.[110]

Machell also consulted women, those keepers of the oral tradition relating to family pedigrees. In 1689, for example, when researching the Wharton family's ancestors, he turned to 'old Isbell Wharton of Wharton Dikes – aged 93'. He was interested in longevity in general, recording 'old Thomas Walker 112, his wife 109' at Crackenthorpe, among a host of older people named throughout his notes.[111] The provision of such a vast number of local names is worthy of further study. The inclusion of a poll book related to an election at Appleby offers the researcher names and addresses of voters, as well as their voting preferences. Such information on local people is ripe for wider investigation alongside parish registers (those at Kirkby Thore commenced in 1593),[112] to promote further scholarship.[113]

Informants came from many backgrounds. In two pages of text on Windermere, for instance, Machell retold a story heard at Holker; then gave the names of two Troutbeck informants – a clergyman and a yeoman farmer – and, lastly, copied a line written by local poet, Richard Braithwate.[114]

> Memorandum. To Enquire of a store about a Hagworme who bit a man in the legg – of which he could get no cure; and about a year after the hag worme came to the doer, & the man ordered them to set it open; & so it came to his leg which he exposed, & licked it, & went away, after which he mended forthwith. Told me at Mr Prestons of Howcar, I thinke per Mr Marsden.
> [Informants] de Troutbeck: Mr Walker curate – George Brown yeoman.
> Ad Kendal et Kentmere. Poet Brat:
> 'Kendal from Kent derives Its name, & Kent from Kentmeres springing fountaine came.'[115]

Having examined the hag-worm narrative, the reader will perhaps judge with William Nicolson that Machell was somewhat credulous, and, indeed, his volumes contain dozens of similar tales which support Nicolson's opinion. Stories of ghostly appearances, punishment inflicted from the grave, premonitions, witchcraft and much more were relayed to Machell by gentry, yeomen, tenants, miners shepherds and others, some known to him and others whom he had met for the first time.

Machell: pride, place and prejudice

For Tory Anglicans like Machell, exploration of the past formed one way of making sense of the turbulent events of the later seventeenth century. 'Place' for him was both a physical and an intellectual engagement. The failures in heraldic visitation, the rise of a mercantile class, the regicide and the fall of James II were to him, signs of the collapse of precious pedigrees and traditions, soon to be forgotten. Like John Aubrey, William Dugdale and others, Machell worked to preserve the past as he understood it, at the end of a century of great change.

As already noted, because Machell did not live to complete his project, his volumes contain many personal revelations that, had he lived to publish, would have almost certainly been omitted. His correspondence gives a measure of this, but, hidden among the pages of all six volumes, there are also nuggets of fascinating detail relating to Machell's daily activities and opinions. Life revolved around the rectory. Machell demonstrated a fondness for it, describing some of the changes he had introduced to make it more congenial. Fond of inventing devices, he explained (writing in the third person) that [110] II.145. Note that Fleming desires Machell to return his book, a situation well-known to scholars everywhere.

[111] See Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.548.
[112] See R. Bower, 'Notes on the Kirkby Thore Registers', CW1, 4 (1880), 305-11, 372-86, at 372.
[113] For an example of such research see Pauline Wharton, The Disappearing Yeoman: Windermere 1640-1841 (self-published, Amazon, 2017), Appendices.
[114] Richard Braithwaite of Burneside Hall: see Mary L. Armitt, 'Ambleside town and chapel: some contributions towards their history', CW2, 6 (1906), 1-96, at 28; see also H. S. Cowper, 'Notes on Richard Braithwaite of Burneside, the Poet and Writer, and his Portraits', CW2, 22 (1922), p.78.
[115] Part 2, Ch.9, Windermere, II.317-19.

he had 'made a contrivance in his dining-room chimney that they waste not one cinder, nor never carry any ashes out of it':

> It is done by a funnel under the grate, which goes downe behind the corner of the hall-chimney; having […] small iron-barrs at the top of it to divide the cinders from the ashes, and a door of stone at the bottom to take them out at once in a yeare, which in the meane time is close daubed up & stopp'd, to prevent inconvenience.[116]

Like other Oxford scholars of his era, Machell was fascinated by machines and inventions.[117] He designed a font cover for his church at Kirkby Thore:

> A dillicate Font where \ at the Rectors charge which he [had] / made of huen stone, the designe of which to have a fountaine p\l/aying up in the bason and a dove appendant to the cover \ of it, / which (when it ascend by the help of a pully whose counterpoyse is hid in the steepel tower), will seem to stand hovering over the water …{The counterpoise goes up in the steeple where it is not seen: a proper emblem of the Holy Ghosts descending upon & sanctifying of the baptismal water to the mystical washing away of sin.}[118]

In a list of the prominent males in his family, he dubbed himself 'Thomas, the Contriver'.

> Guy & Hugh, the warriers.
> Henry, Doctor of Laws – Phil[osopher]
> Lancelot & John his brother, the soljer.
> Hugh, the builder.
> & the last & the least … Thomas, the Contriver; rector of Kirkbythore.[119]

Wherever he went, he was happy to engage with men as 'ingeniouse' as himself, such as Thomas Blenkinsop of Brough, 'an ingeniouse Gentleman for any sort of mechaniks.'; George Browne of Troutbeck, 'an Ingeniouse Countryman'; and James Dawsons [of Bridgend near Hutton]:

> an ingeniouse contry man who has made a milne which grindes Corne, Tempses[120] & Winnowes, & Turnes a Grindestone & polish wheale, & bores Gun-barrells; He having a Whitesmiths shop in his mill, in which he works Gun worke to Admiration, as also Clock work and Watch work – all which he tooke up of his own hand.'

Machell's volumes also reveal a great interest in gardens, fields, mountains and woods, and the particular plants that grew there. He described the deforestation he encountered,[121] and considered what improvements could be made to the gardens of large country houses.

> Sockbridge Hall is the manor house; which standeth North from the River Emot about a Bowshot … It is scituate upon a descent, in so much that you goe downe 3 descents in the very Court ere you enter the Hall…{Trees growing without the Court Wall which renders it somwhat more gracefull} – But if ever this be made a Stately house indede – they must build front to the river of Emote; carry [116] Part 1, Ch.4, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.537.

[117] For example, Robert Hooke (1635-1703). Named 'England's Leonardo' by Oxford's Allan Chapman, he was a gifted creator of mechanical devices, creating a clockwork machine to record astronomical observations, measuring the weight of air and inventing a spring-regulated watch. He became curator of experiments at, and secretary of, the Royal Society, performing scientific investigations; he coined the biological term 'cell'. His Micrographia – on the natural world seen through a microscope – founded a new scientific discipline. Extracted from Pete Wilton, 'Oxford and the Royal Society's Origins', https://www.ox.ac.uk/news/science-blog/oxford-and-royal-society%E2%80%99s-origins (2010).
[118] Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.561.
[119] Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, III.82.
[120] 'Tempse': a sieve, esp. one used for bolting meal; a strainer. In modern local use, especially a sieve used in brewing. OED.
[121] See Machell's Preface, II.456; IV.28-29.

> the way in a streight line by the end of the house; and turne the Courtes and as far as the outer gate into Gardines & Orchards.[122]

Nevertheless, Machell appeared to like his own garden best. His study overlooked it and he was extremely proud of the plants he grew there, extolling the climate and soil which had produced them.

> And in his gardine which his study looks into, which being a piece of ground ornamented (forced),[123] doth show the benignity of the air & soyle to be extraordinary.[124]
> Nature alsoe hath sported herselfe, having gratified him with two rare productions: a dasie, four-inch and an half in circumference … & severall gilly flowers full blowne at Shrovetide, … without any help of […] dunging, or other improvement; which shows the benignity of the aire & soile to be more in this county than has been reported by other authors.[125]

Here, in his study, Machell was able to sit down to work. Always 'ingeniouse', he designed a revolving bookcase cum writing-desk which he sketched and described twice.

> He hath alsoe contriv'd an octagonall deske with a small writeing table running beneath it by means whereof he can consult many authors at once without moving his foot, & compare them together with a turne of his hand.[126]

Embedded in Machell's commentary is an enormous sense of local patriotism and pride. To Machell, there was no county as fine as Westmorland; no social class as fine as the Westmorland gentry; and no gentry more deserving of praise than the Machells of Crackenthorpe Hall and their relatives. As he avowed:

> It will not becom to boast of this family, but I dare aver that there is not a gentleman in either county of any antiquity that is not related to the Machells of Crakenthorp. He is not a gentleman that is not of kin to the Machells of Crakenthorp.[127]

He traced his ancestry back to the Roman presence in the north of England, suggesting that his family was descended from Roman stock.

> … the proprietor of [Whelp] Castle (with the lands round about it, whom the Saxons call'd Whelp \ in Latin, Catulus / might be a Branch of the old Romane Catuli, left here in trust with their British bands where when the Romans made their recess into Gaul, Anno Christ 443 \ in about the year 440, then destitute of aid, / there being but the space of \ about / 600 years \ (and many familyes have continued so long) / from betwixt their departure and the Norman Conquest \ Sc. 627 years.[128]

This sounds like special pleading. To quote Edward Bellasis:

> The Antiquary contends for a descent from the Roman Catuli. His argument is briefly:—Whelp Castle is hard by Crackenthorpe, Ulf and Whelp (Catulus) are synonymous, the Machell and Whelpdale arms are similar, Malus Catulus and Mauchael appear indiscriminately in the deeds, and Kirkby Thore was a Roman station.[129]

As Bellasis then remarked, 'the evidence seems inconclusive'. Nonetheless, Machell's strong sense of family exceptionalism coloured his attitude. It can be seen most particularly in his admiration of his male relatives. Besides praising his father's political loyalty, he frequently recorded his fearless

---

[122] Part 1, Ch.5, Barton, I.732.
[123] 'Forced': of plants, a crop, etc; made to bear, or produced, out of the proper season. Alternatively, fortified, made strong against attack. OED.
[124] See Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.563.
[125] See Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore … I.537.
[126] See Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore … I.563.
[127] See Part 1, Ch.13, Kirkby Stephen, III.210.
[128] See Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore … I.560.
[129] Edward Bellasis, 'Machell of Crackenthorp', 417 fn.

exploits, not only when horse-racing and deer-hunting, but also in sports which are now less well-known, as seen in this passage on otter hunting.

> In this … river are many otters which afford the gentlemen som fine recreation. They hunt em to great hounds & spears, or with water spaniels traned up for the purpose. My Dear Father, Sq' Machell of Crakenthorpe, being a great hunter of this and all other game and that delighted in all sorts of activity, kild an otter once, 2 yards long. The skin was menald or spotted like to a leopard, and was so much esteemed of for the rarity \ of it / that he might have sold \ the same / for 10li. [130]

Machell's admiration of his family was matched by his waspish condemnation of those he considered social upstarts, his intense loyalty to the crown (a trait exhibited by all his family), and his enormous dislike of parliamentarians and others who had benefited from Cromwell's rule.[131] Such prejudices are described in the following paragraphs.

Social Climbers

Machell resented the rising tide of lawyers, merchants and successful artisans who desired to possess the armorial bearings of gentlemen. Their wealth could buy land and large residences but, if they wished to impress the College of Arms with their ancient lineage, these men sometimes resorted to subterfuge.[132] The College of Arms is an ancient body which has the oversight of all aspects of heraldry, but during Machell's lifetime it became known that individual heralds could be hoodwinked into accepting bogus family trees. As Machell wrote in one of his letters to the cartographer, John Adams:

> … you must expect to meet with many [pedigrees] that are false & spuriouse, for I have read somewhere …that there was a mendicant, illiterate fellow went about in these parts making false pedigrees; & I have found it true by experience, having had occasion to correct some of them for the Heralds themselves.[133]

Machell was contemptuous of those who made false pedigrees. One recipient of his scorn was James Bird of Brougham. We learn that James Bird was a Penrith lawyer who bought dwellings in Brougham and, in demolishing them, demolished a community; that his pedigree had been accepted by William Dugdale (Norroy, King of Arms) but that Machell had been unable to authenticate it; that he had married the daughter of a tanner; and that local information said that he had begun life with three hen chicks (this probably referring to the advantageous marriages of his three daughters). When Bird presented his grant of arms, Machell's contempt knew no bounds:

> And this being the original of … James Bird. Query: whether three hen chickens had not bin a more proper coate for him, than 3 demi lyons. But that he is a Bird of prey. He had the confidence to boast of the antiquity of his family to old Sir John Lowther, a wise & sober gentleman … affirmeing to him that there were Birds at Browham ever since the Conquest; to which Sir John gravely replyd, 'Yes, I believe there have bin Birds there … an longer too, yea, ever since Adam': meaning of featherd fowl. 1691? Sept. circa 20. James, the eldest son & heire of James, hangd for cutting his wife's throat in Kinsington Fildes near London.[134]

Note the last sentence, which leaves us in no doubt as to Machell's opinion of one who had the temerity to aspire to gentry status.

Parliamentarians

To Machell, the gentlemen who had sided with Cromwell in the Civil War were far more despicable than social climbers; to staunch royalists, such men were traitors. We see this in the scorn poured out [130] See Machell's Preface, II.463.

[131] I thank Timothy Sykes for suggesting the highly apposite term, 'waspish', in relation to some of Machell's critical comments.
[132] The College of Heralds.
[133] See Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence: Machell to John Adams, 26 January 1686, I.518.
[134] Part 1, Ch.7, Brougham, I.618.

on Major Arthur Scaife of Hellbeck, who claimed a grant of arms for a pedigree (authenticated by Dugdale) demonstrating that the Scaifes had been gentlemen for four or five hundred years. 'On the contrary', wrote Machell, Dugdale had said he had 'never heard of any gentleman named Scaife.' Moreover, Machell dismissed the major's title, '… he had that command under Oliver Cromwell in that Horrid rebellion & Civil War.'[135] Interestingly, Machell was not unduly critical of Philip, fourth Baron Wharton; a prominent parliamentarian, puritan and favourite of Oliver Cromwell. The aristocratic lineage and large landholdings of the Whartons were probably enough to encourage a diplomatic silence most of the time, despite Lord Wharton's dissenter status; but Machell could not resist adding the following disparaging passage, when compiling material on Ravenstonedale:

> In Russendale Town, S. ab Ecclesia ½ a quarter of a mile, near the midle of it is the East Row stands a meeting-house, being an house lately purchased & put in repare by Philip, Lord Wharton & his discenting tenants in 1691 \ for a meeting house which is / vastly distant from the church but not far from the alehouse. A man was slane \ at the repareing of it / by a piece of timber, so that its foundation, like that of old Roome,[136] was not without blood. Thus, the Lord Wharton continue in blindness – in hunc usque [right up to this moment].[137]

Thomas Barlow, bishop of Lincoln

Machell also disapproved of Thomas Barlow, the Oxford academic and bishop of Lincoln. Barlow was born in 1608, of what Machell termed 'mean' parentage, in the parish of Orton, Westmorland. Like Machell, he attended Appleby Grammar School and progressed to The Queen's College, Oxford. A man of huge intellect, he was already well-known as a scholar (he was provost of Queen's) before becoming bishop of Lincoln in 1675. This, Machell faithfully recorded in his chapter on Orton. Then we hear what Machell really thought of Barlow.

> He had many good qualityes, but courted fame so much that he would doe anything almost, to cheat the world into a good opinion of him, being … one that could rub o[f] any shame with a few fawneing words and fair pretences full of promises, but very barren & empty in performance {A man whose deed consists all together in the words & liberality in promises, for when he hath said, he hath don, & ye get no more.} He was in crafty witt subtill enough, in speach pleasing, in entertainment liberal, & beloved of all but those that knew him; to his friends treacherous, to his foes irreconcileable. Thus he was before consecration. God make him better for the time to come.[138]

Barlow had created enemies because he was seen as a 'trimmer': a man who trimmed his sails to the prevailing winds of religion and politics to survive and prosper, just like the Vicar of Bray.[139] Despite his strong Calvinism, he courted royalist and parliamentarian alike, which clearly appalled Machell. But would Machell have published his negative views of the man? He knew very well that authors were dependent on wealthy supporters to subsidise their publication costs. As he wrote to John Adams:

---

[135] Part 1, Ch.6, Brough, I.395.
[136] Rome.
[137] Part 1, Ch.21, Ravenstonedale, III.308.
[138] This passage is so well composed and ironically written that we could be excused for wondering whether Machell had 'borrowed' it. Nonetheless, it is there for a reason, i.e. Machell's hearty dislike of a cleric who aimed to dodge any expression of bias. See Part 1, Ch.20, Orton, I.619.
[139] 'The Vicar of Bray': a 17th-century country melody to which satirical verses were later added. The first two verses are as follows: 1. 'In good King Charles's golden days, When Loyalty no harm meant; A Zealous High-Church man I was, And so I gain'd Preferment. Unto my Flock I daily Preach'd, Kings are by God appointed, And Damn'd are those who dare resist, or touch the Lord's Anointed. [Chorus] And this is law, I will maintain unto my Dying Day, Sir. That whatsoever King may reign, I will be the Vicar of Bray, Sir!'
2. 'When Royal James possest the crown, and popery grew in fashion; The Penal Law I shouted down, and read the Declaration: The Church of Rome I found would fit, full well my Constitution, And I had been a Jesuit, But for the Revolution.' [Chorus] Four more verses follow the triumphant progress of the Vicar of Bray through the reigns of William III, Queen Anne and George I.

> Truth is noe worse for being attyr'd in a comly dresse. Gentlemen should be gently dealt with, & what ever seems to reflect upon them should be related with candour & modesty, which I ever propose to my selfe, as a Rule.[140]

Local stresses and strains

Clearly, Machell exhibited both local and national prejudice, yet he too should 'be gently dealt with', for his professional life was by no means devoid of anxiety. Although he appears to have been a diligent clergyman, toward the end of his life he entered into deep disagreement with one of his wealthy parishioners, his churchwardens, and his patron, the Earl of Thanet, in matters concerning income and responsibilities related to the parochial chapel at Temple Sowerby. This affected him deeply and interfered with his research. As he confessed in a letter to John Mill, written on 1 July 1692:

> I have Laboured all that I could (even under the Pressure of som mighty affairs that intervened & of diverse Disturbances & Interruptions) to gratify you in Your Request, with such inscriptions as occur in These Parts; but have not had leisure to compleat and finish them as I Intended.

An impassioned letter to Lord Thanet, dated 5 June 1697 (only one year before his death), set out Machell's parochial and financial concerns in great depth; that he was fobbed off is made obvious in the reply he received from Thanet's chaplain. This correspondence, plus all the evidence that Machell had gathered in his defence, is set out in detail at the conclusion of his research on Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin parishes.[141]

Conclusion

Machell's volumes offer all the insights noted here, and many more. Readers will thoroughly enjoy the humour of the antiquary's frequent dry and testy asides, of which this last should give them a taste for more. He seriously questioned the history of Rey Cross on Stainmore: was it here that 'King Westmer slow the king Rothingar', or did it serve 'as a meare [boundary] stone?' He added in the margin,

> When after aiges begin to consider how our young prodigal Gentlemen by coming up to London & playing the foole there destroy their estate: they will rather thinke that the ancestors erected this as a ne plus ultra to eldest sons, who except they be sober ou[gh]t never to travil beyond this.[142]

Machell's notes offer a cornucopia of such insights. He writes as a man thoroughly at home in his own place and glad to share his deep understanding and knowledge of it. That his notes are unfinished should be celebrated. They offer a rare gift to posterity, allowing the reader access to both unpolished and well-crafted prose; repetitions and errors; ancient monuments; architecture; manors and towns; religion; the state of the Church and of national politics; ideas of great importance and passages of throwaway humour; ancestral and questionable pedigrees; wealthy and poor families; forests and gardens; animals and birds; soil, rocks and their products; unbridled gossip and bawdy behaviour; folklore and vernacular speech; ghosts and witches; oral testimony and medieval documents; regional patriotism and civil war; and above all, intense pride in place. There is much more to explore than this brief Introduction will allow, and there are more conclusions to be drawn. Until now, scholars have known Machell's name, his life-story and his research on the barony of Kendal, but few have read all of his original notes, the handwriting of which would frustrate almost anyone. The situation has now been somewhat rectified through the publication of this edition. It has been a privilege to have revealed Thomas Machell's Collections towards a History and Topography of Westmorland to a wider readership.

[140] Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence: Machell to Adams, I.517.
[141] Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, Part IV.
[142] Part 1, Ch.6, Brough, I.401.

Preface

[I.746][1]

Sydus Boriale[2]
The Ancient & Modern Estate
of WESTMER-LAND[3]
By
T.M. Rector of K.,
sometimes Fellow of Q. C. in Oxford
one of the Philosophie Society of the said University
& Chaplain Ordinary to King Charles the 2nd

[I.1]

T.M. Vol. I.
[A.] Part I of Collecting in Order to a Preface.
For the Intended Method,[4] See Part the 3d pag.1t

Because peradventure I may take occasion when I live in the Country,[5] to methodise those Notes concerning Westm'land, which I hastily gathered now and then when I was in that Country I thought fit allso to collect these historical observations concerning
1. The Britans & particularly of Brigants
2. The Romans with a Catalogue of Emperors & Lieutenants
3. The Saxon[s] with a Catalogue of their Kings
4. The Daines with a catalogue for the Knights; & so of
5. The Normans from whose Arrival my particular Account must att the highest take this Original.

This peradventure it may doe by way of place if I should take an hum[our] to transcribe my Notes: & because tis like I may want Bookes conten it in the Country (for then or never I thinke I shall doe it). I have scribbled these after a Rude Manner.
! Method! – a chapter of parishes \ & churches / out of Dugdal p.10 col[umn] 2 & 11. col. 1.[6]

[Machell's Notes: I.2]
N.B. There are no Queries to be solved in this part, but what Verstegan, Speed & Camden will Answer.[7]

---

[1] This title page typifies much of Machell's writing in that, beneath the title, the page has been completed in faded pencil, most of it illegible. This faded text appears to comprise a series of notes relating to the material on I.768, below.
[2] MS: 'Sydus Boriale ~~Antiquitates Boriales or~~ The Ancient & Modern Estate of the 2 sister Countyes…': 'Northern Star, ~~Antiqyuities of the North~~'. After this title sequence, the body text is written in red crayon and faded pencil and is legible only in parts. The content forms rough notes for the information which follows on I.748.
[3] MS: 'Sydus Boriale. The Ancient & Modern Estate of the 2 sister Countyes of WESTMER-LAND & CUMBER-LAND.' Because this edition concerns Westmorland, Machell's title has been edited to suit, but his remarks in the Preface on Cumberland have been allowed to remain as seen.
[4] Extended references to method begin on I.748.
[5] Machell was instituted to the rectory of Kirkby Thore in 1677. Notes and correspondence demonstrate that document research, site visits and early drafting of his county history began well before that date, during short visits home to Westmorland, and in Oxford, during his fellowship at The Queen's College. N.B. In this edition, the college name is almost always given in a shortened form – 'Queen's College, Oxford'.
[6] Dugdale, Warwickshire was Machell's favoured source for method when writing his own county history.
[7] Richard Verstegan, A Restitution of Decayed Intelligence in Antiquities concerning the most noble and renowned English Nation (1605); John Speed, Historie of Great Britaine (1611, augmented 1623*)*;William Camden, Britannia (originally published in Latin in 1586 with later additions in English, such as the edition translated by Philemon Holland (London, 1610 and later editions). The Holland edition of 1637 was purchased in 1656 for £1.10s. by Thomas Smith, bishop of Carlisle; it remains on the shelves of Carlisle Cathedral Library

Nom. Autheru[m]: A. Mundy's Cronicle of the Success of Times printed at London ~~8°~~ ~~Reg~~ 1611.[8] He promised also a Cronicle of London exceeding Stowes, p.572.[9]

[VI.xii]

[Cumberland]

I purpose to treat:
1. Of the county in general; its division into Baronyes, following the course of the River Eden which 1ˢᵗ entering the county, heads on the west side the Sig[nory] of Penreth;[10] on the East, at Anstable.[11]
The Barony of Englewood W. of Gilsland NW.
At Warwick Brig the Barony of Linstock . }
At Carlile Brig the Barony of Liddal. } North
On the south the Barony of Dalston by Cauda F[lu].[12]
On the west the Barony of Burgh Bound.
From Allardale Barony by the river Wampul.
Then:
Of Allerdale by the sea twixt
Copland by the sea twix
Grastock by Pettterell.

Of these in order and in every one:
1. The ancient demesnes, but afterwards chang'd, as in the proper places.
2. How many lordships held of it, all which are conteined in parishes.
In the parish of {?} Or I may follow the Lordships as Dugdale doth, without medling with parish in general.

[I.748]

Notes for The Preface to Westm'land and Cumberland!

{Method: relate to both Westm'land & Cumberland}
The relation I have to these 2 sister Countyes (being of Westmorland, by the father's side, & of Cumberland, by the mother's and grandmother's) ~~and obliged to both for a~~ \ and the paternal estate of my ancestors / ~~liberall Maintenance out of the ancient estates~~ \ being in both Countyes, obliegeth me / ~~Counytes of my ancestors which lyes in Both Countyes~~) \ to have an equal concerne for them both. / ~~of them has made me have an equal Concerne for the Honour of them~~, and the Importunity of Sir William Dugdal, and som other friends, who thought me more fit for this undertakeing than I did my selfe, has prevaled with me to make some Collections in order to the discovery of them. ~~And being related to most of the familyes in either County, they need not be a feard but to have justice don them so far as I can infor[m] my selfe~~ in which I purpose to follow this method.

To speake of them both in General and therein shew,
1. Their site and bounds.
2. The comodityes they [blank]
3. Their inhabitants from the Brittaines till of late dayes: \ Romanes, Saxons, Scots ut agunt saltem Norman[13] / of the Brittaines and their works, The Romans and theirs, the Saxons and theirs, with the Normans & theirs. Their rest. Kings. Success[ion] & armes of Kings}

(CCL, 6A. 9.7) and was consulted during this transcription of Machell's collections. I thank the Dean and Chapter for permitting me to use this volume (Ed.).
[8] Anthony Munday, A Briefe Chronicle of the Successe of the Times from the Creation of the Worlde to this Instant (1611).
[9] John Stow (c.1525-1605), The chronicles of England from Brute unto this present yeare of Christ. 1580. Collected by Iohn Stow citizen of London (London, 1580).
[10] The Lordship of Penrith.
[11] Although Anstable (Ainstable) is to the east of the Eden, the settlement is nowhere near the river itself; the settlements of Kirkoswald and Armathwaite lie closer to the River Eden, in the same vicinity.
[12] The river Caldew.
[13] 'As at any rate the Normans [have it].'

(They had 4 collonyes[14] in the bottom of Westm'land: Sc. Brough Apleby Kirkbythore Browham but 2 in Kendall: A[m]b[le]side & Watercrooke, lately discovered.)
{Both are said to have had their Kings or rather one King to have had them both} {for Ralf Meschens had them both.}[15]
The Public Buildings &c. – as the Roman way which goes through both Countyes. The Maiden way which does the like. And the Picts Wall which joins[16] them together.

Of Eden, which waters both but springs in th'one and ends in the other. This, and Cumberland where the river runs may be calld the Garden of Eden,[17] notwithstanding Mr Fuller's joake, who never sees the place he w[r]itt of and following the account which Speed and Camden gave of the place pleasantly said it had much of Eden, but little of Paradise.}[18]

Tis England in Epit[ome]} haveing all those things that she so much boasts of in great abundance. Anglia Ma[i]us [19]– penes fon[te]s[20] – (See Math. Paris. 1. Henry Hano Gemeticensis,[21] Hector Boethius[22] Ib. 12. Cap. 10). Abund[ant] peat coale, lead, blew stone or black pearle.

Westm'land was Westm'land then.[23]

---

[14] Sites of Roman colonies.
[15] Before 1092, Cumberland, Allerdale and Westmorland belonged to the diocese of Glasgow and appear to have been ruled as one. When the Scots were dispossessed by the Normans in 1092, the acquisition contained all the areas excluded by Domesday Book six years earlier. Around 1098, the Norman, Ranulf Meschin (d. c.1129), earl of Chester and lord of Carlisle, had begun to govern the region from either Carlisle or Appleby. As Lord of Carlisle, his grant of land included the Barony of Westmorland. Through marriage, he was also said to have held the Barony of Kendal. Ranulf Meschin had wide powers over Cumberland and Westmorland under the king. He surrendered his role in 1121-22, and from then until 1133 Cumberland and Westmorland were run by minor local officials answerable to the Exchequer (pipe roll, 1129-30). See CFH, 225; see also, Richard S. Ferguson, A History of Westmorland (London, 1894), 74-76; see also Charles Phythian-Adams, 'From Peoples to Regional Societies: The Problem of Early Medieval Cumbrian Identities', CW3, 11 (2011), 51-64, at 55.
[16] MS: 'Jones'.
[17] The page contains another similar passage: MS: 'Being for the most part one continued vaile down which Eden runs and only divided by the said river \ which so impregnates the Bankes thereof, / that these 2 Countyes \ and Emote & Blenkerne, which run into it / if all were like them, might well be called the Gardine of Eden': See Camden's account in Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), I.760-62 and I.776-81.
[18] Thomas Fuller wrote an early dictionary of national biography: The history of the worthies of England who for parts and learning have been eminent in the several counties: together with an historical narrative of the native commodities and rarities in each county, endeavoured by Thomas Fuller (1662). In Vol. 3 of Worthies (ed. P.A. Nuttall, 1840, 301) he remarked of Westmorland, 'Though this county be sterile by general rule, it is fruitfull by some few exceptions, having some pleasant vales, though such ware be too fine to have much measure thereof; insomuch that back-friends to this County will say, that though Westmoreland hath much of Eden (running clean through it), yet hath little of Delight therein'. Towards the end of his thoughts on Westmorland, Fuller addressed the reader: 'Reader, I must confess myself sorry and ashamed that I cannot do more right to the natives of this County, so far distanced North that I never had yet the opportunity to behold it. Oh, that I had received some intelligence from my worthy friend Dr Thomas Barlow, provost of Queen's College in Oxford, who for his religion and learning is an especial ornament of Westmoreland.' (Nuttall, 311). That commentators of previous times had failed to visit all or any of the county, annoyed Machell greatly. For more on Barlow, see Part 1, Ch.20, Orton, I.639.
[19] 'A greater place than England.'
[20] 'So likewise, my sources.'
[21] Guilelmus Gemeticensis, 11th/12th century.
[22] Hector Boethius or Boece (or Boyce or Boise) c.1465-1536, Scottish philosopher and historian, was the first principal of King's College in Aberdeen. In 1527 he wrote the Historia Gentis Scotorum (History of the Scottish People). See N. Royan, 'Boece (Boethius), Hector, historian and college head'. ODNB.
[23] As written. Machell's arguments relating to the meaning and spelling of the name of 'Westmorland' form a large portion of his Preface, see below, 'Ten draft passages relating to the name 'Westmorland', the county's fertility, and perceived inaccuracies in the writings of previous historians.'

The[y] have the same seminary of religion & learneing – Queens College in Oxford, of which hath bin many \ great & / learned men; found by Mr R.E., a Cumberland Gent. \ Chaplain to K. Ed. 3. / but whose preferment was in Westm'land at Brough under Stanemore the impropriation of which he procured for the 1^{t} endowment of his College or Hall (as twas then called). Ordained Deacon at Ap[pleby] in Westm'land, Ordained priest at Carlile in Cumberland. And so he ordained his College for both & for them alone \ and those of his blood / so long as their schooll shall be able to send such schollars up thither as are qualified for it in the founders sense.[24]
The Greatest part of them under one Bishop who has one [palace] at Buly in the County of Westm'land & another at Rose in the County of West[25] both ancient Castles.[26]

[I.749]

{?} Both held by Cornage or Border service[27], till of late it was in an other Tenure, which they call [blank] by Act of Parliament – & were liable to wardship &c. This Cornage was an Honourable service under one Lord Lieutenant, {to which drengage is opposed} & joyned together in the militia, both Horse & Foote.

2. In Particular of each of these Countyes and therein
    1. Of their division into severall Baronyes.
    2. Of those Baronyes, \ & in which diocess / into severall Hundreds or Wards.[28]
    3. Of those into several parishes.
    4. Of those parishes, into several Lordships, Constablewicks, Villages and Hamlets.

With what is remarquable in Nature or Art in any one of them; refering it to the proper place whereunto it belongs with its distance & beareing \ together / with an History \ an account / of places persons & things according to the Order of Time. And at the Last (where they may be had) the Pedigree of the Proprietors, and owners of the respective \ Lordships / places, which may be continued by their posterity in after aiges.
But in this they differ:
Several Assises – Justices – several ways of Assessments. This by a booke of Purvey;[29] that by a Booke [of] Rates.

{They afford:}
{Birds – Egle or Vulters Hawkes, no phesants – wild ducks cormorants doterals – ospreys – speckled raven, Herinseas.
Beastes – otters marts wilde cats.
Fishes – salmon oysters cockles \ golden trout / Gray Trout muscles Eales large chars.
Stones plaster of paris marble gagates[30] or jet common plaster limestone frestone slate – blewwhi[t]e wad – Black lead – Rudoker[31]

[24] '"Hall of the Queen's Scholars at Oxford" was founded in 1341 by Robert de Eglesfield, a chaplain in the household of Queen Philippa, who named it in her honour': see queens.ox.ac.uk.
[25] A slip of Machell's pen: Rose Castle is in Cumberland and was well-known to Machell as the bishop's residence; not only did he visit regularly, but also he worked on its architecture.
[26] Buly: Beaulieu or Bewley Castle near Bolton in Westmorland, was an episcopal manor of the Abbey of Carlisle, possibly named to commemorate the abbacy of Hugh of Beaulieu Abbey in Hampshire, who, in 1219, was enthroned as Bishop of Carlisle. Henry Summerson, 'Hugh [Hugh of Beaulieu] (d. 1223)'. ODNB.
[27] For Cornage and other such terms, see the English Glossary.
[28] Hundred: see the English Glossary.
[29] The Cumberland Purvey was an ancient local tax: see note from Daniel Fleming, N&B1.13.
[30] 'Gagates': Obsolete term for jet. OED.
[31] Rud oker = a red variety of ochre. OED.

pearles
Minerals sulphur lead copper silver
Onely money scarce: much out little in.
& Shrubs Trees Herbs Maidenhair Juniper Holly Ewe Bayes – Lignum vitæ.}

[I.42A][32]

Queries in order to the description of BRITANNIA[33]

1. Of the County in generall.
2. The severall Hundreds, Parishes, Villages and Hamlets.
3. Peculiars or Priviledg'd places.
4. Citties, Towns, Corporations, Market-Towns & Fair-Towns. \ Manner-houses. Sundial. /
5. Houses of Nobility & Gentry.
6. Castles, Churches, Chappells, Monasteries, Hospitalls, Schools, Colledges.
7. Mills, Beacons, Bridges, Mountaines.
8. Chaces, Forrests, Woods, Groves, Parks, Commons, Warrens, Heaths. 4. 5.
9. Valleys, Dales, Rivers, Brooks, Meres, Ponds. 7.
10. Places where Battles have been, Lodges in Forrests &c. \ 4. 5./
11. Works and mines of Salt, Lead, Tin, Iron, Coal, Lime, Alabaster, Marble, Freestone, Grindstone, Mill-stone, Silver, Gold, Copper. \ 4. 5./
12. Waters, Springs & Baths, Cold or Hot, Medicinall, Bituminous, Petrifying &c. \ 4. 5./ \ a spae near Barton /
13. Praecincts or Dioceses \ 1. 2. /
14. What part of the Country is arable, Pasture, Meadow \ 1. 2./
15. Roman Ways & Stations, Coyns & Monuments &c. \ 1. 2. 4. 5./
16. Accidents, Calamities or Casualties &c. \ 4. 5./
17. Improvements in Husbandry, Housewifery \ 1. /
18. Peculiar Customs or manners of the Country \ Yeule, Curne, Hag, down a stang. It is not for myne own fau[l]t &c. /
19. Places of Birth, Education or Habitation of Eminent Persons in all ages. \ 4. 5./ \ Se Fuller's Worthyes; Gilpin.[34] /

Of these or any of them, information is desired in writing, either upon certaine knowledge or other good authority, directing each remark to the number relating to it, & annexing thereto the Country & Hundred wherein the remark falls.[35]

[I.3]

[ANCIENT HISTORY]

[B.] Part the 1[t] of the Preface

Of the Ancient Inhabitants of England: the Britaines and of the Brigantes in particular who inhabited the northern parts

[32] Notes, some written in another hand.
[33] In 1673 the scientist Robert Hooke joined with the publisher and cartographer John Ogilby, the surveyor Gregory King, the lawyer John Hoskins, the architect Christopher Wren, and the antiquary John Aubrey to create some 'Queries in order to the description of Britannia': a new scheme projected by Ogilby, the Cosmographer Royal. These were the first fact-finding documents to be directed at individuals in the British regions. Thomas Machell sent out these questionnaires when planning his research. More elaborate than their predecessors, they were the first to specify the study of antiquities, history and geography at parish level. See Editor's Introduction, 'Machell's Methods. 1. Questionnaires.'
[34] Nuttall (ed.), Fuller's Worthies, Vol. 3, contains information on, 1. Bernard Gilpin (see 'Writers', 307-08); and 2. Richard Gilpin (see 'Memorable Persons', 310-11).
[35] Machell refers here to his questionnaire, which was based on these queries.

Of the Rom[ans]

1. Their coming into England.
2. Their progress & spreading over the Nation.
3. Their severall divisions of the Iland.
4. Under which division the Northern partes and particularly Westm'land. By whome – and how Governed. A catalougue of the Roman Emperours under whome Britan was, together with their lieutennants. Their names, and particular notise of what they did against the Brigantes.
5. Their departure out of the land with the fortress they made - & herin of the 2 great walls. Hadrian & Severus.

[Machell's Notes: I.3]

{pro genealogia}

{Will[iel]mus […] genuitque
|
Bonifacium e quo natus
|
Gulielmus qui duxit Sibillam filiam Balvini quæ ei filium peperit unicum nomine […]
|
Gulielmus qui sine liberis obijt. Sine prole exti[n]ctus
|
Reinerus post mortem eius duxit filiam hæredemque Emanuelis quæ peperit
|
Bonifacium qui e filia […] suscepit
|
Bonifacium qui e Beatrice filia […] genuit
|
Johannem qui talia præstitit ex hoc natus Willielmus qui duxit Johannam unde natus […]}
|
Isabell quæ nupsit[36]

Memorandum to insert a Catalogue of the British Kings out of Speed.[37]

[I.4]

Note. Lett these notes following be reduced into a compendious relation.
{1} 1. Of the Britans the ancient inhabitants of \ this / Iland.
{!} 2. Of the Romanes, with their Emperours Consuls & lieutennants or praetors that had to doe in this Kingdome and what happened remarkeable conserning any of them in these Northern parts.
{!} 3. Of the Saxons the originall, comeing in, progress, Kings in these parts, extirpation &c. therein of the Danish incurtions.
4. On the Normans, the original arrival Conquest, from whence a more particular relation*.
(a) And allso from the affinity which he has observ'd to be, betwixt the language & customs of the ancient Gauls, and those of the Britanns, who are yett in being and possess that part which wee now calle Wales, from the Latin word Wallia, which is derived from Galia; & signifyes as much as the Country of the Gauls.

[36] 'As a Genealogy. Will[iel]mus [...] and fathered Bonifacius from whom was born Gulielmus who married Sibilla daughter of Balvinus who bore to him an only son named Gulielmus who died without children. Deceased without issue. Reinerus after his death married the daughter and heir of Emanuel who bore Bonifacius who from his daughter […] acknowledged Bonifacius, who from Beatrice daughter of […] fathered John who upheld this state of affairs. From him was born Willielmus who married Johanna whence was born [...]. Isabell who married [...].' Some of this text is obscured by the binding; some has been left blank by Machell.
[37] John Speed (1551/2-1629), English cartographer and historian, belonged to a circle which included members of the original Society of Antiquaries and scholars such as William Camden and Robert Cotton. As all were involved in the methodological study of the history of the British people and institutions, they were able to help Speed in his research. Through Robert Cotton, Speed developed an interest in coins, and was responsible for those described in Camden's Britannia. His best-known work includes the Historie of Great Britaine (1611, augmented 1623), with its accompanying atlas volume, The Theatre of the Empire of Great Britaine. See Sarah Bendall, 'Speed, John, historian and cartographer.' ODNB.

For Brith, in We[l]sh, doth properly signify that which is painted; whence the word Brit (of which Brito a Britann) may be easily drawn by casting away the asperate only†. And as the inhabitants had The name of Britanns upon this occasion; so the Iland itselfe tooke it[s] denomination (of Britann) from them; and was calld Britannia by the Greek Geographers, from adding ταvι/α: a particle much in use amongst them, whereby they express a nation or Country to the word Britton. Brit.[38]
(b) And of this usage we have diverse examples:
His adde Capitania et Occitania;[39] et Isac Causabon[40] (in epistolas a Joh. Georgio Gravio editas; epistola 101, p. 118) dicit tamen nullibi Regionem significare aliquando autem ponitur (ut inquit ille) pro terra singula vel ora per Strabonem et alios depravate, unde figmenti huius et somnij origo.[41]

[Machell's Notes: I.4]
*Se it somewhat compendious pag. 14 hujius.[42]
†This may give us som insight into the occasion of calling the northern Brittans, Picts, because perhaps peteneing[43] their custom of painting themselves after the others had left it of & were civilized & conforming to the Romans; they might from thence be called Picti in opposition to for distinction's sake from}[44]

[I.5][45]

Of the Britans
Of the inhabitants ancient [46]

{Brit. 1[t] inhab.}
The first inhabitants of this place ~~together~~ (with the rest of this Iland) were the Brittans, concerning whose original neither could Caesar nor they themselves give an account,[47] & so much ancienter are they than att \ any / History. But the judiciouse & learned Camden derives them[48] from the next neighbouring nations \ Sc. from / the Gauls, who were formerly called Gomari & Gomerot[49] from Gomerus the eldest son of Japhet*;[50] and he confirmes it, from the Britons calleing them selves (Kumero) & Kumeri, & their women Kumeraes, and \ the / very language which they yett speake Kumeraec, whence these later words (whereby we express the people and nation) Camber and Cambria have their original. And this conjecture is more than probable if we believe (as ~~many~~ \ som / writers affirme) (a.) that ~~England~~ \ Britann / was once joyned

[38] MS: \ '~~to the / vulgar name~~ a particle much in use amongst them, whereby they express a nation or Country ~~to the vulgar name~~ to the word Britton. Brit.'
[39] Occitania is an historical and cultural region in Western and Southern Europe where the Romance language, Occitan, was historically spoken and where it is occasionally used as a second language. OED.
[40] Isaac Casaubon (1559-1614), born in Geneva of Hugenot parents, was a professor of Greek (among other subjects) at Geneva and Montpelier universities. In 1598, Henri IV of France invited him to Paris 'pour la profession des bonnes Lettres', but, as a Protestant, his involvement in formal religious debate made his position at the French Catholic court uncomfortable, and in 1610 he accepted an invitation from Richard Bancroft, archbishop of Canterbury, to base himself in England. His correspondence was extensive, some of it controversial. His collection of letters ('epistles') was published posthumously in 1709. See J. Considine, 'Casaubon, Isaac, classical scholar and ecclesiastical historian'. ODNB.
[41] 'To these add Capitania and Occitania; and Isac Causabon (in letters published by John George Gravius, letter 101, p.118) says however that ταvι/α sometimes signifies no particular region but is wrongly used (as he says) for an individual land or coast by Strabo and others, whence the origin of this figment and illusion.' John George Graevius (1632-1703) was a German classical writer and critic. At the University of Utrecht he occupied, first, the chair of rhetoric and, from 1667 until his death, that of history and politics. William III of England made him Historiographer Royal. As well as writing admired books on the classics, he also edited many of the writings of contemporary scholars. The Oratio funebris by P. Burmann (1703) contains a list of his works. See Encyclopædia Britannica (1911) Vol. 12, G. Graaff Reinet – Gräfrath.
[42] 'Of this [chapter]'.
[43] Pertaining [to].
[44] Foxing prevents clear reading of text after this point, but very similar text appears on I.5.
[45] Also numbered p.1.
[46] MS: 'Of the inhabitants ancient (~~and modern and of the present Customs & Constitutions of this Country~~).'
[47] MS: 'the Brittans, concerning whose original neither ~~their~~ \ could / Caesar, nor they themselves knew anything att all \ ~~could~~ give an account… /'
[48] MS: 'But the judiciouse & learned Camden ~~will have them to hav taken their original~~ \ derives them' / to the Continent by a little \ isthmus or / neck of land, and was ~~only~~ a peninsula. But then as we ~~allwaye~~s see, that people and ~~Nations~~ \ Countryes / which do aggree in one \ som / general name, have other particular ~~names~~ \ names of their own / peculiar to them selves \ alone / whereby they are ~~distinguished~~ \ known / from ~~their~~ \ other / neighbouring Nations so tis not unlikely that these Cimbri or Cumeri, which inhabited \ here within / this Iland were caled Brittanns for distinction sake, the name being taken from their frequent custome of painting their bodyes, for which they are noted by those excellent authors, Caesar Mela & Pliny†.
[49] MS: 'Gomery\ot'.
[50] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 10-11.

{Britan whence so called}
The Ile had the name Britan\n/ia \ query Britania / from Greek impos[it]ion, ~~with whome it was usual to~~ for the Greeks were wont in nameing of nations to add the particle Βριτανι/α signifying a country, as Mauretania, Lussitania, Aquitania, & I think they were the first that called it Βρετανι/α, for which ~~the~~ […][51] is writt \ corruptly / Βρεταννι/α. But Caesar and Lucretius – the first Latin authors that take notise of it, \ doe write it / Britannia ~~we calld it Britan~~. And the Germans allso have a custome \ amongst them / not much unlike this, who add the word landt to the names of Countryes as \ may appear from / this very Iland, which the Germain Saxons did first calle Englandt, and this very County, which they called Westmorlandt \ & Cumberlant / (with many other places that I could mention) if it were needful.'

{It[s] Ancient Division}
Concerneing the division of Government of this land and people of old, it is not so exactly knowne as might be wished: for Caesar himselfe makes so little mention of it, that upon his account little credit is given unto Florus when he make Livie say (Epit. Livij, li. l50)[52] that Caesar, having slane a great multitude of Britanns reliquam insule partem

[Machell's Notes: I.5 & I.6]
*unde forsa comrade [whence perhaps comrade]. And allso from the affinity with &c.
†{Britannos se Glasto[s] (et Glast etiam nu[nc] apud illos caeruleum significat) depingere iste legitat.}[53]
[I.6]
If Horace was not before Caesar's time or Conquest he was but borne about 12 years before Caesar made his expedition into Brit[ain]: Sc. Natus Anno Mundi 3901/ Britannia a Caesare – Subacta A.M. 3912.[54]
Wee have many Roman Inscriptions found about Yorke with the name Eboracum on them. I doubt it? q[uery]?

[51] Scored-through illegible text follows.
[52] [The reference is to Florus, Epit. Liv. XLV.16-19]: 'Omnibus terra marique peragratis respexit Oceanum et, quasi hic Romanis orbis non sufficeret, alterum cogitavit. Classe igitur conparata Britanniam transit mira celeritate; quippe qui tertia vigilia cum Morinorum solvisset a portu, minus quam medio die insulam ingressus est. Plena erant tumultu hostico litora, et trepidantia ad conspectum rei novae carpenta volitabant. Itaque trepidatio pro victoria fuit. Arma et obsides accepit a trepidis, et ulterius isset, nisi inprobam classem naufragio castigasset Oceanus. Reversus igitur in Galliam, classe maiore auctisque copiis in eundem rursus Oceanum eosdemque rursus Britannos. Caledonas secutus in silvas unum quoque e regibus Casuellanum in vincla dedit. Contentus his (non enim provinciae, sed nomini studebatur) cum maiore quam prius praeda revectus est, ipso quoque Oceano tranquillo magis et propitio, quasi inparem ei se fateretur.' 'Having penetrated everywhere by land and sea, he turned his gaze towards the ocean and, as if this world of ours sufficed not for the Romans, set his thoughts on another. He, therefore, collected a fleet and crossed over to Britain with wonderful speed; for starting from the harbour of the Morini at the third watch he disembarked upon the island before midday. The shores were crowded with a confused throng of the enemy, and their chariots were hurrying to and fro in panic at the strange sight before their eyes. This panic was as good as victory for Caesar, who received arms and hostages from his frightened foes and would have advanced further if the ocean had not taken vengeance on his presumptuous fleet by wrecking it. He, therefore, returned to Gaul and then, with a larger fleet and increased forces, made another attempt against the same ocean and the same Britons. Having pursued them into the Caledonian forests, he made one of their kings, Casuellanus, a prisoner. Content with these achievements (for he sought a reputation rather than a province) he returned with greater spoil than before, the very ocean showing itself more calm and propitious, as though it confessed itself unequal to opposing him.'
[53] 'The Britons describe themselves as Glast[i] (and among them even now Glast means blue)', see Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637). 26.5cm of heavily scored-through text follows: it has not been transcribed.
[54] 'That is, born in AM 3901, Britain being conquered by Caesar AM 3912.'

[I.7][55]

in potestatem subegit:[56] and many take occasion to adhere rather unto the poet than Historian, who ~~tells us that~~ gives the Epethite of Intacti[57] to the Britains, as tho they had not been touched by the Roman Intactus aut Britannus ut descenderet / sacra catenatus via.[58] {Epod. 7 V. 4.}

{Caesars Towers}
Notwithstanding we have several places in this island, and particularly in Westm'land, which bear Caesars name: But all the Emperours stileing themselves Caesars, they might borrow that denomination from any other as well as hee. But tho wee have not very particular accounts of the state {& affars} of our Nation, before his time; yett we finde here were Kings in severall parts (when the Romaines came first into these our territories) : 'who made \ a / noble ~~resistance~~ \ & vigorous defence / against their ~~Romans~~ \ ~~armies~~ incursions, /~~ one whereof was the famous Caratacas~~, but the cause of their universal overthrow ~~was~~ \ is / said to be this: that they could not aggre amongst themselves & and so att lenth became a prey to the Common Enemy. Yett so great was their courage that \ they / held them in play about one hundred and 36 years.

{Their names are these}
We have not \ I confess / the particular names of each of their Kings. But the Limits and Bounds of most of their Kingdomes which had their names from their inhabitants, are prety well dyscovered in Camden & Speed,[59] to whome I shal refer the further inquisitive, minding only to concern myself att present with the Brigants, who were the 1st inhabitants of this part of Britann, which now is called Westm'land; for they had in their territories, Yorkshire, Lancashire, and the Bishoprick of Durham, with Westm'land and Cumberland; In briefe; all that part which we now call the North of England, excepting North-Humberland which was in those dayes of the Kingdom of Ottadini[60] \ whose Regia Oppida or / principle seat was at Bremantium, thought now to be Ridsdall or Rebchester.

{Brigantes chief seat York}
But as to the Metropolis or chief Towne of the ~~Brigantes~~ Brigantine Kingdome; it is thought to be Yorke, which Ptolomie (in lib. Magnae Constitutionis 2[do]) from them calls Brigantium; ~~But~~ \ only / Mr Camden suspects the Booke not to be his: B114.[61]

{Gallagum in Westm'land, Whelp Castle; q[uery] for authority; see Speeds maps.}[62]
However the matter be, it cannot be doubted that Gallagum now Kirkbythore was a principle Towne in this part of their Kingdome, haveing so many camps & fortes.[63] And I am of opinion that the Romaines (who having as yett made no further progress in their \ Northern / Conquest kept their

---

[55] Also numbered p.2.
[56] '… brought the remaining part of the island under his control.'
[57] 'Untouched'.
[58] 'Or that the unconquered Briton might descend the Via Sacra in chains': Horace, Epodes 7, line 4. The context is Horace's outcry against the threat of civil war. He contrasts this with legitimate, honourable wars against uncivilised foreigners like the Britons, addressing his fellow countrymen: 'Villains, where are you rushing to? Why are your hands / Grasping those swords that were sheathed? Hasn't enough Roman blood been shed over / The fields, and Neptune's waves? / Yet not so that Rome could burn the proud towers / Of an envious Carthage, Nor that the as-yet-unconquered Britons, might descend / The Via Sacra in chains.'
[59] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 37, 41, 43-44, 48-53, 111-27; see also Speed, Historie, Book 6, 43-185.
[60] There follows a scored-through, illegible word.
[61] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 701: 'Eboracum … which Ptolemee in the second booke of his Great Contruction called Brigantium (if the said booke bee not corrupted).'
[62] John Speed, Theatrum Imperii Magnae Britanniae: The theatre of the empire of Great Britaine presenting an exact geography of the kingdomes of England, Scotland, Ireland, and the iles adioyning: with the shires, hundreds, cities and shire-townes, within ye kingdome of England, divided and described by Iohn Speed (London, 1611/12).
[63] MS: 'It cannot ~~yett~~ \ be / doubted that \ Gallagum now Kirkbythore was a / principle Towne in this part of their Kingdome, ~~was Callatum, \ Gallagum / otherwise Callatum \ Gallatum /afterwards Whealop Castle, and now Kirkbythore~~ \ haveing so many camps & fortes… /'

Station att Appleby) cast up that Great Camp on Speedy-Moor in Crakenthorpe Lordship[64] against this Gallatum; for the Campe lyes at ~~halfe~~ \ but / a mile's distance from Kirkbythore by the high way side confronting the Towne but ~~I shall~~ \ in this / submit to better judgments.

[I.9][65]

{Note of the Brig[antes]}
The Brigantes were a numerous and most valiant people apud meliores notae authores imprimis celebrati[66] and their name is ~~Consonant and~~ agreeable to their natures for it implies as much as Hardy, Bold, Fierce and Cruell, as Mr Camden has ~~ingeniously~~ \ well / observed. Britanni enim nostri (sayes he) si quos pravo ingenio et audacius grassatos viderint, wharret Brigans ie Briga[n]tem agere dicunt. Gallique hodie ex prisca ut videtur Galloru[m] lingua eiusdem farinae {Whence so-called} homines Brigand, et naves praedatorias Brigantines, vocitant. An vero ea vis fuerit verbi olim in Gallia vel Britannica lingua, vel nostri Brigantes eiusmodi fuerunt non ausim affirmare. Si tamen non male memini Brigantes Alpinum populum grassatores, vocat Strabo, & Julius Belga, Juvenis projectae audaciae (cui vis authoritas et virtus nomen videbatur) Briganticus apud Tacitum cognominatur. etc. ie reddatur A[n]glic[e].[67]

{A people in the time of Ant. Pius}
For which sort of vice (if it may be \ so / called ~~one~~) (hoc enim nullam ignominiam habuit Bellicosa illa civitate, cum jus in viribus omnes gentes haberent)[68] our ancient Brigantes, ~~were very~~ seem'd not ~~very~~ far ~~distant~~ \ remote when they preyd so much upon their neighbours, and made incursions in Genouniam (Romanorum in Britannia provinciam)[69] which Camden takes to be Guineth in Wales because it layes \ situate / bounded within the \ borders & / confines of Brigantia:[70] In punishment of which\ attempts / Antoninus Pius tooke no small part of their country from them as Pausanius relates > ɘΑπετε/μετο η] 0Αντωνι=νοφ ο(Ευ0σεβηφ και∴ τω~ν ε0ν Βριττανι/α Βριγα/ντων τη∴ν πολλη/ν, ο/9τι ε0πεσβαι/νειν και∴ ου[(~τοι συ∴ν τοι~φ ο/9πλοιφ η0/ρχαν τη∴ν Γενουνι/αν μοι~ραν υ(πεκο/ουφ Ρομαι/ων.[71]

[64] Speedy Moor is a field in Appleby St Michael parish, known also as Langespedy; spēd ēg: 'rich water meadow'. Smith, Place-Names 2, 102.
[65] Also numbered p.3.
[66] 'especially celebrated among the better critical authorities.'
[67] 'For if our Britons (sayes he) see people of aggressive character, brazenly swaggering around, they say 'he's playing the Brigans' i.e. acting the Brigant. And the Gauls today, from the former language of the Gauls, as it seems, habitually call men of the same character Brigand and pirate ships Brigantines. Whether there really was that meaning of the word once in Gaul or in the British language, or whether our Britons were of that sort, I would not venture to state. If, however I rightly remember, Strabo calls the Alpine Brigantes robbers, & Julius, a Belgian, a conspicuously reckless youth (to whom power, authority and valour seemed mere names) is called Briganticus in Tacitus etc. i.e. let it be rendered in English.' See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 685-86.
[68] '(for this held no shame in that warlike state, since all peoples considered right [to lie] in might)'.
[69] 'into Genounia (a Roman province in Britain)'.
[70] Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 659-60.
[71] Pausanias VIII.43.4: 'Antoninus Pius, indeed, expropriated also most of the lands of the Brigantes in Britain, because these people began to enter with arms into the Genounian district subject to the Romans.' Machell's version of Pausanius VIII.43.4, copies Camden's: 'Antoninus Pius cut the Brigantes in Britain short of a great deal of their Country, because they began to take armes and in hostile manner to invade Genunia, a Region subject to the Romans' (Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland,1637, 686) but the veracity of the original Greek text has been challenged: 'A much disputed and somewhat obscure passage in Pausanias appears to refer to a serious disturbance among the Brigantes, for he says that Antoninus deprived them of part of their territory after they had launched an attack on 'the Genounian district'. There is good reason to think that Pausanias might have confused the British Brigantes with the Brigantes of Raetia and their neighbours the Genauni, but other evidence that something fairly serious had happened in the Pennines at this time suggests that Pausanias really was reporting an incident in Britain, and had merely made a mistake about the name of the people attacked.' Peter Salway, The Oxford Illustrated History of Roman Britain (Oxford, 1993), 148.

Whence we may collect that they were not quite dispossessed of their Country even in the time of Antoninus Pius, which was [blank] year after the Romaines gott footing in Brittain*. Before I had acquainted my selfe well with the historie of these former times; alltho I had \ red / that Caesar subdued the whole Iland of Brites as has bin said ~~before~~,[72] yett I could not imagin that to be true: for it seemed strange ~~to mee~~, that he landing first in the Southern parts, should pass ~~unto~~ \ into / the North, without some years labour haveing to doe with such a hardy & warlike people especially these Brigantes, who I supposed were able to make[73] some resistance against the Romaine ~~Armies~~; and therefor I did conclude with my selfe, that the Conquest must needs

[Machell's notes: I.9]

*See Camden's preface to Yorkshire: It is all very good and pertinent to this purpose.[74]

[I.11][75]

\ proceed by degrees which / gradually I afterward found it to be for it seems that Caesar did rather, discover then subdue the Country*.[76] And that their were many Conflicts and ~~Bloody~~ Battles before it was subject to the Romaine yoake. For the people were so averse to subjection, that they hated their \ very / owne native kings if \ at / any time they chanced to ~~compound~~ \ capitulate / with the Romains ~~armes~~ & not fight it out; as appeares from that instance of Cardanus whome the Romaines (haveing conquered the nearest part of the Island) reinstated and made King thereof; ~~who~~ \ He / was faithful to and much respected of them; but disestemed and hated of his countrymen, as a pusilanimous prince and betrayer of their \ countrys / libertyes. But tho some of the British Kings were easily prevailed upon (after some Batles lost) to yeald to the Romaines, and ~~resume~~\ hand / their Crownes & septers to them ~~att their hands~~, \ from them / yett some ~~were more~~ \ on the contrary / were every whit as obstinate.

{Noble Caractacus}

And in particular that noble Caratacus: King of the Silures who ~~waged~~ wared against them ~~for severall years~~ \ 9 years together, / but att last (with his whole family) was taken, ~~captive~~ or rather ~~indeed~~ given up captive to the Romaine forces by ~~perfidious~~ Cartismandua. And so was carryed in Tryumph to ~~their Imperial City~~ \ Rome. / Concerning whome Mr Camden tells us out of Zonoras how he reproved the Romaine avirice \ coveteousness / in these words \ following: / Cum Romae (says he) splendorem et amplitudinem captivus perlustrasset itane (inquit) Cum hæc et hujusmodi habeatis; nostra Tuguriola concupiscitis? {Camd. de Cardiganshire ad princip}‡.[77]

He is reported to have \ kept / the field & held out against the Romans, with his Silures & Ordovises only, when the Icenias Cangij & Brigantes[78] began to faint and give over (so Mr Speed unadvisedly tells us) ~~how be it~~.[79] \ And that he was betrayed by faithless Cartismandua, Queen of the Brigantes; how be it in the next section he ~~tells us~~ declares how Venutius that famous King of the Brigantes and husband to Cartismandua who betrayed brave Caractacus unto the Romanes ~~after~~ he haveing ~~put him~~ \ comited / himselfe ~~the wife~~ to her protection) \ his Brigantes / give Battle to the Romaines ~~with his Brigantes~~, with whom she joyned her selfe against her husband, in which Battle they gott the victory he […] she the shame. – Whence it appears that the Brigantes were in armes after Caratacus was taken prisoner, for it is not likely, that he would seeke for protection from the Queen, after she had side with [72] Speed, Historie, Book 2, Chapter 6.

[73] A scored-through illegible word follows.
[74] Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 689-70.
[75] Also numbered p.4.
[76] MS: 'for it seems that Caesar did rather, discover ~~the Country~~ then subdue ~~it to the Romans~~ \ the Country / Iland.'
[77] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 657: 'What mean you (saith he) when yee have these and such like stately buildings of your owne, to covet our small cottages.' Also quoted in Camden, Remaines concerning Britaine (London, 1637, 1st edn, 1605), 232, and attributed to Zonaras: 'Why doe you so greedily desire our poore cottages, when as you have such stately and magnificent palaces?'
[78] For the Iceni, Cangi, Brigantes and other British tribes see Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), from 43.
[79] Speed, Historie, Book 6, 34.

the common enemy, aganst her husband and Country.[80] Hence it appears that the Romaines did not perfectly overflow this nation; nor \ did / the Romanes obtaine their Conquest with dry blowes (as wee say) over the Brit.[82] In all probability this Country or Nation of the Brigants was one of the last which \ held / out against them, being out of ~~subjection~~ \ their power / till Claudius his reigne, who came in person to \ assist & / relieve his Lieutennant Plautius ~~by name~~ \ then / all most ~~vanquished~~ \ overcome / with the British valour.' A margin comment here gives, '{Bri\n/g. in Claud. His Reigne Plautius.}

[I.13][81]

[Machell's notes: I.11-I.18]

*Ut Tacitus.
†his perfidious w[ife], who took part with them against her owne husband, the famous Vinutius, King of Brigantia.
‡(Carry on the story of him. Se libet è Speed vol 2. C6. §)[83]
[I.12]
{Gallatum} Why not from Galgacus? Because the Brigantes were seems to me before the Calidonii & therefore it seems to have bin in subjection to the Roman yoake, before his time; being a noted town in Brigantia.
Of the Brittish Manner:
Incampenis Building Burying Coyneing
Claudius and Plautius
[I.14-18] {Domitian} {Claudius}{Vespasian} {Severus}[84]

[I.13]

{Galgacus}
But the last resistance that was made against them, as being the furthest bounds of their Conquest; was by Galgacus, a worthy and most valiant prince of the Calidonians who for virtue, and Birth, \ was justly / preferrd before any other in that part of the Iland; upon which account he was made Generall against the Invasion of Julius Agricola.

{Agricola Subdues all to the Frith}[85]
~~From all which it appears~~, but being overthrowne the Romaines possessed them selves of these parts, ~~of the Iland~~ \ as far as the frith / or att least the \ best & richest part / of it, suffering the Britanes to inhabit the mountains, but themselves the planes or ~~what~~ \ as much / they pleased of them – and are therefore to be reckond as the next Ancient Inhabitants of this part of Brit.

[I.15]

Of the British Characters[86]

In Bishop Usher's Collection of Letters p.55; in a letter writ to him from Dr Langbaine the learned Provost of Queens College in Oxford, wee have this account – which \ I / have subjoined – of the British Character; which was taken out of a Manuscript Booke belonging to St Dunstans, writ by one Memnings or Memnius, but is supposed to be a mixture 'twix Irish and Saxon, & the Britans indeed to have no* rudiments.
*But if so, query: how the Druids & Bardes become so learned, as they are reported.
T.M. answer: They are said to have taught somthings by heart, which were held unlawfull to be put in writeing: & for other things to have used the Greek Character, whereby their skill was hid from the vulgar sort of people. Speed p.168. Col. 1.

[80] Machell gave this paragraph a border and crossed it through, a device (seen throughout the volumes) to erase drafts when he had finished them elsewhere.
[81] Also numbered p.5.
[82] 3 lines of heavily scored-through text follow, partly repeating the previous passage.
[83] Scored-through text on the lower third of this page has not been transcribed.
[84] These headings relate to text which appears elsewhere. I.16-18 comprises rough pencilled notes; two pages have been scored through. The first page (16) is the reverse of a page of notes on Ussher (15); dated 1686, it contains quotations as part of Machell's personal notes relating to philosophy, Christianity and preaching. On the other pages are notes for material discussed on I.3, 5, 9, 10, 21, 24, 28, 34, 39, 41, 45, 46, 48, 50, 51.
[85] Frith = Forth.
[86] British typographical symbols.

Figure 1. 'Of the British Characters'. I.15.

[I.13]

Of the Romans

The Romans had their name from Rome the famous City from whence they came, and that was so called from Romulus, the son of Mars & Rhea Syl\via / of Trojan extraction; but to lett those things pass \ Tho som will have it / {See my Hildebrand}[87] they haveing conquered most part of the world, came into Britan under the conduct of (c.) Julius Caesar Anno Ante C. N. ~~be~~ 54. which according to […][88] and the Cronolog[ie] must be Anno Mund. 3909, for Our Saviour was b\orne / An~~no~~ 3963, out of which 54 being ~~subtracted~~ \ deducted, / there remaines 3909, which must be the year of his arrival; howbeit, we have not any \ very exact & faithfull / accompt {concerning the mat[ter]} for ~~some~~ \ others / will have it \ ~~to have happened in~~ / in 3917. But ~~it is not much material~~ \ the matters not great / their being noe more than 8 years difference \ in these computations. /

The first time ~~that~~ he came~~, being woryed with a bitter fight~~ (says Eutropius)[89] acerba pugna fatigatus, et adversa Tempestate correptus nihil fere prestitit; He did little or nothing Anno autem insequente (Camden goes on) immo vero, majori classe, et Auctis Copijs redijt, et Cassibellino nostro multis detrimentis fracto, partem aliquam insule in deditionem ~~red~~ accepit, obsides imperavit, quid in annis singulis Romanis funderetur constituit, reversus est ad mare calendas septembris. ad VI calendas octob~~ris~~ solvit et exercitum in Gallias reportavit.[90]

[87] Friedrich Hildebrand, Antiquitates Romanae: in compendium contractae, et juxta ordinem alphabeti dispositae, bono juventutis (3rd edn, Oxford, 1673).
[88] An illegible letter is interlineated here.
[89] Eutropius (fl. 363-87 AD), Breviarium Historiae Romanae, VI.17: 'Britannis mox bellum intulit, quibus ante eum ne nomen quidem Romanorum cognitum erat, eosque victos obsidibus acceptis stipendarios fecit' (translated as) 'Then he made war on the Britons, to whom not even the name of the Romans was previously known, and after subduing them and receiving hostages he made them tributary.'
[90] 'Exhausted by bitter fighting, and overtaken by stormy weather, he achieved almost nothing (he did little or nothing). But in the following year (Camden goes on) on the contrary, he returned with a greater fleet, and with increased forces, and when our Cassibellinus was broken by many losses, he received the surrender of a certain part of the island, took hostages, decreed what should be produced for the Romans on an annual basis, returned to the sea on September 1, set sail on 16 October and conveyed his army back to Gaul.' [Continues I.19].

[I.19][91]

Sed haec fuse persequitur ipse Caesar - lib[er] 4 Ep[isto]la[rum] ad Atticum Ep[isto]la 14.[92]
Veruntamen aliorum Judicio Britannos tantum prospera pugna terruit vel ut Lucanus cecinit Qui Caesar[um] familiae iniquior Territa quaesitis ostendit Terga Britannis.[93]

However it was, we are satisfied ~~out of~~ è (Dion. Lib. 42)[94] that for 20 years after Caesars arrival this Iland of ours had not only her Kings, but used her owne Laws, without any praefects. But they being emulous one of an other ~~and every one desireing to be~~ \ and striving together who should be Greatest, were ready to fight ~~upon every occasion~~ among themselves upon all sleight occasions. / And this (says Tacitus) was the cause, which brought that puissant nation into Bonndage \ subjection, / and was the only help to the Romans \ in obteining / the victories. {The whole process I thinke you may have in Speed 2nd Vol. Cap. 5. §.1. & 3. Ita est} for seldome it chanced ~~saith he~~ that 2 or 3 states met in Counsell \ and agreed / together, ~~and concurred~~ in one opinion to repulse the Common Enemy; so that \ fighting severally they were all over come / Dum singuli pugnabant universi vincebantur.[95]

{Domitian}
But this was not don att once (~~because Caesar)~~ \ & as it wer of a suddan / for they held the Romaines back \ from Caesar's arrivall / till the days of Domitian with so much valour, that \ but / subduing some smale part of this Iland was accounted (by themselves) to match the conquest of other Great Nations. But after they had by ~~degrees~~ \ little by little / obteined the Conquest of most of this Island, they made division thereof into 2 parts, the One called Britannia Superior (or proximior) the other caled Britannia Inferior (sive remotior).[96] Britannia Superior was the more southerly part of England together with Wales, & in it were 2 Legions ~~which I take \ to / amount to 12000 \ men~~. / Legio 2da Augusta, at Caerleon in South Wales, and Legio Vicissima Victrix att Chester ~~in Cheshire~~ \ in the west.' Britannia Inferior was the northern part, and in it was seated One Legion only, Legio Victrix 6^{a} which resided att Yorke. But under Claudius the emperour (who came to the assistance of Plautius his lieuttenant) there were 2 other legions (beside those named) plac'd in this Island, viz. Legio IX Hispaniensis, & Legio XIIII Gemina Martia Victrix; yea even in the time of Vespatian the Emperour \ there / were no less than 4 Legions \ in it / so that the Romaines had once in ~~England~~ \ Britan / 5 Legions of Soljers, chosen men, which I take to be \ about / 30 thousand in a modest ~~computation~~ \ account, / reckoning onely 6 thousand in every Legion ~~the~~ \ whereas / some \ doe / compute 6666 \ some 6826. / This division ~~of their Conquest~~ into these 2 parts was made as it seems by Severus the Emperour*, who haveing vanquish'd

[Machell's Notes: I.19]
*N. Tis said on the following page to be don by Const[antine]. Ergo consider.
Constantinus; Julius Agricola.
{Division of Britain

[91] Also numbered p.6.
[92] 'But Caesar himself followed this up extensively: Book 4 of Cicero's Letters to Atticus, Letter 14, "To Atticus, on a journey from Cumae, May 54 B.C. Pray, if by chance you have any news, principally from my brother Quintus, next from Caesar, and, finally, anything about the elections or about politics ... write and tell me about them."'
[93] 'Notwithstanding, in the judgement of others he merely terrified the Britons by a lucky victory, or as Lucan, who was hostile to the family of the Caesars, wrote: "He turned his back in terror on the Britons he'd gone to attack."' See Lucan, Bellum Civile II.572: Pompey's speech to his men, deriding Caesar: [quod] 'territa quaesitis ostendit terga Britannis?' ['Shall Caesar overthrow the senate? ... No, Fortune does not act so blindly... Have ten years vainly fighting Gallic rebels ... emboldened him? Or the fact that he turned his back in terror on the Britons he'd gone to attack?'] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 35-38.
[94] Dio Cassius, Historia Romana, 40. 4.1-2: 'Thus Caesar departed entirely from the island and left no body of troops behind in it; for he believed that such a force would be in danger while passing the winter in a foreign land and that it might be inadvisable for him to remain away from Gaul for any considerable period; hence he was satisfied with his present achievements, in the fear that if he reached out for more, he might be deprived even of these.'
[95] 'While they fought separately they were conquered all together', Tacitus, Agricola XII.
[96] 'Proximore': 'nearer'. 'Sive remotior': 'or further'.

Superior Inferior
Et Prox. Et Rem}
Higher Brit.
II. AVG.
XX. VIC.[97]
VI. VIC.
IX. HISP.
XIV.GEM[98]
Cohortes in qualibet legione X erant; et haec armatos minim. pedites habebat 6100. Equites 726. Hildeb. centurione.[99] According to this there are 6826 men in a Legion so that in England there were 30440 men of […] armes,[100] & select soljers – for of such men their legions were made.

[I.21][101]

Albinus, General of the Brit. and reduced the State under his obedience, divided the Government into these 2 provinces* placeing a praefect (i.e. a lieutennat \ generall / or Chiefe \ ~~Comander~~ / Governour over either of them (puto praefectum praetorio) quod vide†.[102] Whence it will appear that this Iland being become provinciall, was not under the same Government that other nations were; being neither Consulary, nor Proconsulary but praesidial, and govern'd by Caesars. And it is to be noted that the first men who made it a province (I mean that part which the Romans conquered for they were never ~~had it all~~ \ masters of all / was Julius Agricola (Domitian then being Emperour ~~att Rome~~) and that was 130 years after they first gott footing in Brittane.[103] He was the first also who saling about it[104]with his ~~Romane~~ fleet, discovered the Country to be an Iland.[105] And this may suffice concerning the first division according to which That place ~~of part was now called Westmerland~~ \ I treat of / (~~and concerning which I am to discourse~~) came under the 2nd partition \ denomination / being placed in Britannia Inferiori in Lower Britann, and under the ~~subjection~~ \ constraint protection / of the Legio 6th Victrix: the 6th conquering Legion‡.

{LEG. VI. VICTRIX}
{2 Division – 2, 3.}[106] It was after divided into three parts or provinces, whose limits Mr Camden endeavours to gather from the praecincts or bounds of the Archepiscopall Sees, building \ himselfe upon / the authority of Pope Lucius; according to whome the ecclesiastical jurisdictions of Xtans is said to accord with the praecincts or libertyes of the Rom[an] magistrates, Archbishops resideing att those very places, where the presidents ~~aboad~~ \ livd. / And those with us were in Carleon, \ in the west; / London, \ in the east; / & Yorke, in the south.[107] howbeit ~~computation~~ \ the Archbishop's see is

[97] XX Victrix.
[98] XIV Gemina.
[99] 'The cohorts in any legion were ten; and this [legion] had under arms at least 6100 infantrymen, 726 cavalry.' Friedrich Hildebrand, Antiquitates Romanae: in compendium contractae, et juxta ordinem alphabeti dispositae, bono juventutis (1st edn, 1647).
[100] An indistinct word appears between 'of' and 'armes'.
[101] I.20 contains headings for notes written up elsewhere.
[102] '(I think a praetorian prefect) see this'.
[103] For the provenance of this paragraph see Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 62.
[104] MS: 'He was \ 3 / allso the \ 1 / first \ 2 / who saling about it': Machell corrected his word order using numerals.
[105] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 61.
[106] A note, partly obscured by the binding.
[107] Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637) says: 'After this, the Romans did set out the Province of Britaine into three parts, as is to be seen out of a manuscript of Sextus Rufus: namely, into Maxima Caesariensis, Britannia Prima, et Britannia Secunda. Which, as I take it, I have found out by the Bishops and their antient Diocesses. Lucius the Pope, in Gratian, insinuateth this much, that the Ecclesiasticall Jurisdictions of the Christians followed the Jurisdictions of the Roman Magistrates, and that Archbishops had their Seas in those cities wherein the Romane Presidents in times past made their abode. The Cities and places (saith he) in which Primats ought to sit and rule, were appointed not by the Moderne, but long before the comming of Christ, to the Primats of which cities &c. the Gentils also appealed in matters of greater importance. And in those verie cities after Christs comming, the Apostles and their Successors placed Patriarks or Primats, unto whom the affaires of the Bishops and greater causes ought to be referred. Whereas, therefore, Britaine had in old time three Archbishops, now translated from / London ~~is now translated~~ to Canterbury. According to this account \ London / is where The place of residence ~~of that~~ \ assigned to The / President who was sete over Britannia prima⸸.

{Divisions 3,4,5.}
In after times, because of the Presidents growing great and \ Countryes / popular, they divided it agane into 5 parts, adding 2 more (Valentia & Flavia); \ 2 to / the 3 former. The bounds Mr Speed being about to describe (by I know not what faite) forgetts one of them.

[Machell's Notes: 1.21]

*{ad 1ᵗ. Divisionem. The division is said before to be made by Severus Imperator Constantinus.}
†{Se Speed} To which I shall add out of Mr Camden (for these things praemised may be of some use to the understanding of coynes ~~& ancient~~ & inscriptions \ hereafter /) that Cum novam Reip[ublican] firmam descripsisset Constantinus, sub praefecto praetorio, Galliarum vicarius praefici\e/batur, et cum Illo in Rebus bellicis comes Britanniarum, Comes litoris Saxonici, per Britanniam et Dux Britanniarum praeter praesides, Rationales.[108]
‡Memorandum vide which of the Emp. were 1ᵗ &c. in order.
⸸ II. Carleon, to him whose concernes were ~~to manage~~ in Brit. 2dᶜᵉ; and [III] Yorke to him who had the Governor of Britannia Maxima Cæsariensens, under which partition, Westm'land (however then called) \ & Cumberland / are supposed to bee. And these seem to have their distinction from the order of time in which they were conquered. T.M.[109]

[I.22]

Maxima Caesariensis and Valentia were governd by Consuls ~~onely~~, the other thre[e] by presidents; for tis observable at the decay of the Empire that those provinces onely were governed by Consuls which lay exposed or opposite to the enemye, as is evident from the Booke of provincial notises not only in France but in Affrica allso, and with us Valentia and Maxima Caesariensis. Flavia Caesariensis was in the midle of this Kingdome and Camden & Giraldus Cambrenses, doe conjecture. Mr Camden (from whome Mr Speed takes his information as more exact) setting downe the limitts of all the 5 provinces after this manner:
BRITANNIA 1ª (sayes he) dicta fuit omnis regio australis quae hinc Mare Britannium, illinc Tamisim et Sabrianum fretum interjacet Secunda quae nunc Wallia. Flavia Cæsariensis à Tamisi ad Humbrum[110] porrecta fuit, Maxima Cæsariensis ab Humbro ad Tinam flu[men] sive Vallum Severi. Valentia a Tina ad Fossam[111] Juxta Edenburgum quam Scoti Gramesdike vocant ubi Rom. Imperii limes ultimus - p.54.[112]

[Machell's Notes: I.22]

{This may give som light to the inscription at Crawdundale, the Consuls there mentioned being not of Rome, but perhaps of Valentia & Britannia Caesariensis CRAWDVD}[113] {Query: CN. COTTO Coss} Concerning these 2 – &c. Severus his wall. See Speed p. 229.

---

to wit, of London, of Yorke, and Caerleon in South Wales, I suppose that the Province which now we call of Canterburie (for thither the Sea of London was translated) made Britannia Prima; Wales, under the Citie of Caer Leon, was Britannia Secunda; and the Province of York, which then reached unto the Limits or Borders, made Maxima Caesariensis.' The information Camden quotes here is derived from Gratian (a Benedictine monk from Bologna), Concordantia Discordantium Canonum ('The Concordance of Discordant Canons or Decretum'), a collection of canon law completed around 1140.

[108] 'When Constantine had firmly established the new Republic/State under a praetorian prefect, a deputy was put in charge of the Gauls, and with him for military matters a commander of the Saxon Shore throughout Britain and a general of the Britains except for garrisons [and] finances.' Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 76.

[109] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 155.

[110] This word is partly obscured by the binding but Camden supplies 'humbrum'.

[111] Camden writes 'vallum iuxta' here.

[112] 'All the south coast which of one side lieth between the British sea, and the river Thames with the Severn sea on the other side, was called Britannia Prima. Britannia Secunda was that which is now Wales. Flavia Caesariensis reacheth from Thames to Humber. Maxima Caesariensis from Humber to the river of Tine, or the wall of Severus. Valentia from Tine to the wall or rampier neere Edenburgh, which the Scotch call Gramesdike, and was the utmost limit of the Roman Empire in this Island, when this last division was in use.' Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 156.

[113] Initials partially blotted.

NB – Speed. 220. He quotes there (& gives his approbation to it) an author called Julius Capitolinus who affirms that Lollius the Legate[114] to Antoninus (circ. An. Xt 139) overcoming the Britannes, built another Turf Wall to divide the Province & impeach the Incursions of the Barbarians, which Mr Camden he sayeth thought himself to have been in an ancient chorographical chart, drawne between Carlile & the river Tine.[115]
T.M. But I suppose him to be mistaken: for the Turfe Wall is rather to be ascrib'd to him: & Mr Speed is of the same judgement – that betwixt Carlile & Tine being all of stone. Query: where Genovia is a province adjoyning to the Brig. The occasion of Lollius fighting the Brittans.
{? q. Then see Gramesdike.}[116]

[I.23][117]

Of them. Brit[annia]
1. Saye he &c. conteines those coasts which lay betwene Thamesis, the Severne & the British Sea.
2. Brit. Secunda extended from Severne unto the Irish Sea, conteineing the Country that wee now call Wales.
3. {Flavius Imp} Flavia Caesariensis was that which lay betwixt the rivers Humber and Tine.
& 4. {Valens Imp} Valentia extended from the said river and the Picts Wall ~~reached~~ unto the Rampiere near Edenburge \ frith which is / in Scotland, the farthest ~~part that~~ \ limit of / the Roman Empire ~~possessed when~~ \ at / this division ~~was in use~~.[118]

But tho he has omitted the other part which is the Maxima Caesariensis, yett tis easi to ~~collect~~ \ gather / that all the other being ~~particularly~~ \ thus / described, the residue of the Ro[man] Dominion, must make up this province. \ But Mr Camden from &c. a. / concerning those 2 that were added (Flavia Caesariensis, & Valentia) it is to be noted that the first seems to have taken it[s] name from Flavius the Emperour son of Theodosius, for wee read not of Flavia before his time:[119] the latter from the Emperor Valence, in whose time Theodosius the Generall recovered that \ of the Rom. forces / from the Picts and Scotts, which was called Maxima Caesariensis, compelling them agane to remove from the nearer Rampire (called the Picts Wall) to the ~~furthermost near~~ \ more remote one / and that was betwixt Clyd & Forth. Concerning which tho they be not in Westm'land \ or Cumberland / yett for as much as they were the ~~utmost~~ limits of the Romaine empire, and particularly (att some time or other) \ a part / of that province \ ~~Valentia~~ / where ~~of~~ to these Countrys (I am to treat of) ~~was a part~~ \ did somtime belong / allso because they are ~~very fine~~ \ noble / antiquities, I am resolved to speake ~~a few words~~ somewhat of them.

{A digression: Annotata praetenturas quae Scotos & Pictos a provincialibus distinguebant.}[120]
There ~~being~~ are 2 famous bulworkes or Rampiers in the northern parts of this Iland; which are oftentimes confounded together by ancient and modern writers. But the Best account which I meet with of them is from Mr Gordon, a Scotchman, in Blaeus Theater pag. 4 part 5,[121] calling the one, i.e. that further up in Scotland, Val Severii and this near in England Val. Hadriani.[122] Concerning this he[123] is of opinion that it be\gan / ~~sayed~~ to have bin made by Julius Agricola, who beat back the Picts and Scots, one whereof inhabited the Eastern and the other the West coasts of this Country, to beyond the Friths of Clyd & Forth where this rampire is made as a limit. That he did rather begin than perfect the worke, for Tacitus sayes indeed, ~~that~~ he strenthen'd the frontiers twixt Glotta & Bodotria (i.e.

[114] Quintus Lollius Urbicus was a Berber governor of Roman Britain from 139 to 142.
[115] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 157.
[116] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 156.
[117] Also numbered p.8.
[118] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 156.
[119] A crossed-through word follows.
[120] 'Note the ramparts which used to separate the Scots and Picts from the provincials.'
[121] Robert Gordon of Straloch (Scottish cartographer) contributed maps to Joan Blaeu's Theatrum Orbis Terrarum, sive Atlas Novus (1654); see C. Fleet, M. Wilkes, C.W.J. Withers, Scotland: Mapping the Nation (Edinburgh, 2011), Chap. 3.
[122] MS: '*b / Val. Hadriani, and this near in England *Val Severii.' The asterisks and letter 'b' were placed here because Machell wished to reverse his original ordering of the two walls. Following this sentence a castellated line is drawn across the page.
[123] I.e. Robert Gordon.

Clyd and Forth) with garrisons; but not one syllable of a trench or wall. Nor does it appear that it was finished in the time of Trajan.

Of Val. Hadriani
But wee read of

[I.25][124]

Hadrian who was next to him; That he made a famous fortification athwart the Ile, and that it was a tre[n]ch or bulworke like those of Castles, but of greater strength for duration ~~sake~~; with turrets here and there, where the Cohorts (who did not watch) might refresh themselves, and yett be in readiness against an assalt. as may be gathered from Spartianus.

{He did not build it}
Mr Camden contends that this was made in the same place where Severus afterwards builded his. But he brings these reasons against him:
1. That there is no place more narrow than this betwixt the 2 friths which might invite him to the undertakeing; & 2. that it is not imaginable that he would part with so large a Country as betwixt these 2 Rampires which just before his time was part of the Empire.
And to ~~infringe~~ \ invalidate / Mr Camdens reasons, he makes use of \ Mr Camdens / his owne Art (coating some examples out of Camdens \ his / workes) of changing numbers and sayes that for 80 miles it should be writ 30, as Mr Camden corrects Eutropius about Severus his trench, putting 80, for 35: and he adds more over that the names of Legions found thereabouts doe not signify much, because tis usuall with them to re-tane their names which they had given att first, notwithstanding the Imposers be long since dead.[125] He has allso a relation of this trench in Scotch (è Scheda Tim[othy] Pont),[126] which aggres so well with Pausanias his description ~~of Hadrian's Trench~~ concerning Hadrianus, that I thinke very fit to be here subjoyned (a).

The trace of this fortification &c.
(a.) This trench was walled and fortified by Gallio Ravennas (as is clear from Beda)[127] and the ruines thereof are yett to be seen ~~in~~ to Britonodunum, which Mr Gordon (if he had not bin old) would have traced, and probably given us a further account of*. But Lolius, his opinion concerning a trench or bulworke in the midst betwixt these two, must not be forgott; which the same author condemns as no way probable because there is no appearance of it ther, & the nature of the ground in that midle part is so horridly moutaneouse that it will not admitt of such a worke, ~~and beside~~ in so difficult a place; And besides he had but 2 Legions under him as stones of that age not long since digged up doe testify unto us. Viz. Legio 2 Augusta & Legio XX Valens Victrix. One of them found here has this Inscription

LEG II
AVG†

(b.) The other is to be seene in porticu Dunotrij and doth testify that Lolius Urbicus raised noe new wall or fortification but superstructed his worke[128] (which carrys the name of Antoninus the Emperour

[124] Also numbered p.9.
[125] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 790-91.
[126] '… from a sheet of paper of Timothy Pont.' Timothy Pont (Scottish cartographer and topographer) was the first to produce a detailed map of Scotland from an actual survey. His collection of manuscript maps was probably passed to Johanis Blaeu in the early 1630s. Before 1636, Robert Gordon of Straloch in Aberdeenshire began to work on the completion of Blaeu's Scottish coverage. Gordon prepared up to ten draft maps for inclusion in the Blaeu Atlas, using Pont's maps as virtually his sole source. J. Stone, 'Pont, Timothy (fl. 1574-1611), map maker and chorographer.' ODNB.
[127] The Venerable Bede.
[128] MS: '{Lolius built on the fortress or Hadrian he says} … Lolius Urbicus, raised noe new wall or fortification, ~~but built upon the old one of Hadrian the Emperour, which worke hereupon doth cary the name of Antonius the Emperour, because he was his Legate unto him~~ But superstructed his worke…'

whose Legate he was) upon the ancient fortress (or rampire) of Hadrian the Emperour and is a[s] followeth:[129]

[Machell's Notes: I.25]

*{But there is a third to my knowled[ge] – Sc. one within the Picts wall but not far distant from it, upon which sto[od] Drawdikes and the City of Carlile.}
†{How makes he this out from the Inscription.}
{Digres of the Picts Wall – see Speed p.219.}

[I.24][130]

Hadrians Dike

Fritharis* Brother of Fergusius, King of Scotland, was crowned with a crown of gold in form of a Rampier (Mondy p. 448). Donald circa Xt 211, their first Christian King, was the 1st that caused gold and silver to be coyned in his Realm, stamping a X on the one side and his face on the other: è Mondy's Chronicle 451.[131] In the time of Eugenius, son of Ferguse (Sc. circa 440 in marg[in]) the wall call'd Adians was undermined & overthrown, & the Brittaines made tributary to the Scots & Picts above 500 years after Julius Caesar had brought them in subjection to the Romaines in the 7 of Eugenius. 2. King of Scots,[132] p.447. He tells us of an ancient Prophesie, that the Scots should in the end destroy all the Pictish projeny, p.448.

The Scottish crown was made of gold in form of a Rampier for preservation of the Countries liberty till the dayes of Achaius King of Scotland circa An. Xti 819 {Anno 819} who confirming a perpetual League with Charlemigne Emperour and King of France to last forever betwene Scots & French added to the crown 4 floure de Lices with 4 crosslets divided in sunder with equal spaces, riseing somewhat higher than the foure de lices that thereby the observeing of Xtan religion & sincere faith (maintaned by the Scottish Nation) might be the more apparent to all that beheld it (p. 455). In his time allso had Hungus the Pictish King the vision of St Andrew and his X, as is reported, whereby St Andrew became Patrone both of the Scots & Picts.}[133]

De vestigia Hadriani haec sequentia habeo e sheda Timothy Pont, quae Quia Barbaris nominibus Conflant neque Leporem latinum patiuntur, descripsi sermone nobis vernaculo.[134]
pag. 4. Johanis Blaeu, Theatri Orbis, Part 5.[135]

> (a.) The trace of this fortification beginneth betwixt Albicorn and Queensferry besyd the Rampire & ditche with the ł grownds slott all along. It had many square fortifications in forme of a Roman Camp. It went west from Albircorn towards Kinneil, then to Inner-ewin: at Langtoun a myl be-east Falkirk a fort, att the rountree-burne head† a fort at Wester Cowdon above Helms Chapple one, att the Crayhill one, and at Cailly bee (that is the Dick wood over against the Crayhill) on the top of the Bar-hill a great one: And (such like) at Balchastle over against the Bar-hill (one) att Achindevy, att Kirkintillo, att East Caldar, at Hiltoun of Caldar, at Balmuydie, at Simmerstoun and ovir Kelvin river, at Car\r/stoun, at Achter-minnie, at the Roch-hill ovir against the Westerwood, at Bankir over against Castelcarry (&) at Dunbas.

[129] See I.24.
[130] Also numbered p.4.
[131] Anthony Munday, A Briefe Chronicle of the Successe of the Times.
[132] The name of the author/authority cited is obscured by the binding.
[133] Hungus is a Latinised form of Oengus (d.834?). The building of the church of Kilrymont (St Andrews in modern Fife) is attributed to him. The foundation legends name the founder as a Pictish king, (H)ungus, but it is impossible to be sure which king, Oengus I or II, the authors had in mind. See M. Anderson, 'Kings of the Picts c.300-c.900'. ODNB.
[134] 'Concerning traces of Hadrian, I have the following from a piece of paper of Timothy Pont, [but] because they are mixed up with barbarian names and do not allow smooth-sounding Latin I have written them in our vernacular speech.'
[135] Arguably the first modern atlas: Theatrum Orbis Terrarum: 'Theatre of the World', was produced by Abraham Ortelius in 1570; from the 1630s the Blaeu family issued their work under a similar title, Theatrum orbis terrarum, sive, Atlas Novus.

Hactenus Chartula illa, & multum ad huc ad Britannodunum superest, quarum rerum investigationem optarem, cum his mihi nunc aetas interdixerit … Inquit Gordonius.[136]

(b.)

IMP.CÆSARI.T. ÆL[137]
ANTONINO
AVG. P. PP. VEXILLATION
LEG.XX.VAL.VIC. F.P.M.
P. III

Haec inscriptio extat in porticu Dunotrij quae Comitis Marescalli arx est in provincia Mernia, et veritatem de Lolio Urbico testatur, Illum nimirum nullum novum' murum aut praetenturam excitasse sed suum opus quod Antoninum Imperat præfert Cujus ille erat Legatus, Veteri Hadriani praetenturæ super Struxisse ibidem p.4.[138]

[Machell's Notes: I.24]

*{Cir[ca] A.M. 365– 352 Ante Xt.}
†{Rowentre water head.}

[I.26]

Eugenius the 3rd of that name King of Scotland – son of Congal – was contemporary with King Arthur and in his time was the bloody Battaile betwene the Brittaines, Scots, and Picts: where above 20000 men were slane, with Mordred, King Arthur, and Gawan, brother to Mordred, and most part of the Brittish nobility. p.452 Mondy. Eugenius 6. son of Fequhard circa xti 697[139] reigned over Scotland 10 years. In whose time milke was turned into blood in diverse places of Pictland and cheese converted into a bloody mass or cake, p.454.
Mordaike nephew to Eugenius the 7. Anno 734. In his time (according to Venerable Beed) 4 several People[s] livd in peace & Quietness within the Bounds of Albion, though differing in Manners, Language, Lawes & Ordinances, Sc. Saxons (whom he calls English men) Brittaynes, Scots & Picts. & concludes his history with King Mordak's life p.454.

In \ Xti / 762 in the reigne of Ethfine son to Eugenius the 7th – who had 4 Governours under him: wee read that ~~the~~ Conrath the Thane of Murreyland was one. And (Ibid)
In \ Xti / 839 in the reigne of the famous and renowned King Kenneth the Pictish nation were utterly destroyed, the city of Camelon cast down, the Castle of Maidens forsaken by the Picts {? Maiden Castle} and none or very few left alive in Albion. In memory of this famous victory King Kenneth \ p.455 / brought the (Prophettick) marble stone out of Argile into Gourie and plac'd it a[t] Scone, near to the place where he prevailed aganist the Picts, p.456. The marble chair or seat of Gathelus on which the Kings of Scotland were Crown'd till Rob. I[t], haveing (as is said) such a fate thereto belonging that wherever it should be found, there should the Scotchmen reign. For upon it was this inscription. Ni fallat fatum, Scoti, quacunque locatum Invenient lapidem, regnare tenentur ibidem.[140]

---

[136] 'Thus far that document and much still survives regarding Britannodunum, of which matters I should desire some research, since age has now made this impossible for me, says Gordonius.'
[137] 'IMP[ERATORI] CAESARI T[ITO] AEL[IO] ADRIANO ANTONINO AUG[USTO] P[IO] P[ATRI] P[ATRIAE] VEXILLATION[ES] LEG[IONIS] XX VAL[ERIAE] VIC[TRICIS] F[ECERUNT] P[ER] M[ILIA] P[ASSUUM] 111': 'To the Emperor Caesar Titus Aelius Adrianus Antoninus Augustus Pius Father of the Fatherland. The standard-bearers of Legion XX Valeria Victrix built [this wall] for a length of 3 miles.'
[138] 'This inscription is to be found in the portico of Dunotrium, which is the capital of the Earl Marshall in the province of Mernia and testifies to the truth given by Lolius Urbicus, that he in fact constructed no new wall or defence but erected on top of the old wall of Hadrian, in the same place, his own work which he attributes to the Emperor Antoninus, whose legate he was.' Taken by Machell from the Blaeu Atlas of Scotland (Theatrum Orbis Terrarum Sive Atlas Novus, Vol. V.) compiled by Johannes Blaeu, containing 49 engraved maps and 154 pages of descriptive text (1654). Blaeu's description was well known For instance, it was used by William Stukeley in An Account of a Roman Temple and Other Antiquities, Near Graham's Dike in Scotland (1720), 9.
[139] 'Son of Ferchard', George Buchnan, The History of Scotland …, 138.
[140] If Fates go right, where'er this stone is found, The Scots shall monarchs of that realm be crowned': http://www.westminster-abbey.org/archive/visit-us/highlights/the-coronation-chair.

Except old sawes do faile,
And wizards wits be blinde,
The Scots in place must reighn,
Where they this stone shal find.[141]

{The Cron. of Success of Times, p.481 affirms that Madan* so[n] of Locrine by Guendolen, who was eldest son of Brute and King over the Britains Anno M[undi] 290, a man who used great Tyranny among his people and Builded Madan Caistre now called Dancaster.[142]

[Machell's Notes: I.26]
*Qu. If this can be he, being a S[cottish] King? rather [than] Romain, and that Ebranke, son of Me[m]pricius son of Madan[143] built Caerbrank i.e. York & Maidens.}[144]

[I.27][145]

Roman. The Picts Wall. Vall. Severi.
The other famous Rampier, ~~some part~~ the ruines wherof are yet to be seen in some parts of Northumberland and Cumberland haveing several names in severall places, as the Audiva w. the Roman waw, the Langwaw, the Picts waw, doth cutt the Iland twix Eden Bay[146] and [blank] near to Newcastle, many people plowing near the place doe breake all their harness and tacke with rubbish and stones which are reliques \ rubbish /\ of fortification. / It is [blank] in lenth and [blank] in Breth but \ not / supposed of so great antiquity as the former, for by the name it should be a worke of Severus the Emperour. But Mr Gordon declares himself of an other opinon. Tis confess'd (sayes he) that he or his sons built this most famous wall \ extending it selfe / betwixt Eden and Tine a great part wherof is yett to be seen. But I cannot understand how he should be induced to bestow so much ground upon his enymes whilst they were att war with him, the soyle being such as succeeding Emperours thought worth the recovering. And yett authors will have it to be his worke. If they had sayd that his sons disaggreing and hastening to Rome[147] for receiveing ~~of~~ the Empire, had compacted \ and agreed / with their enemyes and so built this wall, they had spoken that which is much more credible. So you have his opinion which seemeth ~~me to be~~ very pla\u/sible\ *. / He proceeds in the next place to give some reasons of the perpetuall feuds and incurtions of the Picts, grounded upon this former conjecture, after this manner.

[141] Often phrased as: 'Except old seers do feign and wizard wits be blind, the Scots in place must reign where they this stone shall find': traditional bardic rendering of the Latin above.
[142] Anthony Munday, A Briefe Chronicle of the Successe of the Times. See also, Raphael Holinshed, Chronicles: The firste volume of the chronicles of England, Scotlande, and Irelande conteyning the description and chronicles of England, from the first inhabiting unto the conquest : the description and chronicles of Scotland, from the first original of the Scottes nation till the yeare of our Lorde 1571 : the description and chronicles of Yrelande, likewise from the first originall of that nation untill the yeare 1571, Vol. 1, (London, 1577), 17.
[143] Holinshed's Chronicles describe this family thus: 'Mempricius the eldest sonne of Madan, began to raigne over the Britaynes in the yere of the world 2949. Hee continued not long in peace. For his brother Manlius upon an ambitious minde provoked the Britaynes to rebell against him, so that sore and deadly warre continued long betweene them. But finally, under colour of a treatie, Manlius was slaine by his brother Mempricius, so that then he lived in more tranquilitie and rest. Howbeit … he fell into slouth, and so into unlawfull lust of lecherie, and thereby into the hatred of his people, by forcing of their wives and daughters. And finally became so beastly, that he forsooke his lawfull wife and all his concubines, and fell into the abhominable sinne of Sodomy. And thus from one vice he fell into another, till he became odible to God and man, and at length, going on hunting, was lost of his people, and destroyed of wilde beastes, when he had raigned twentie yeares, leaving behinde him a noble yong sonne named Ebranke, begotten of his lawfull wife.' Holinshed, Chronicles, Vol. 1, 17.
[144] Alongside this margin comment is a small drawing of the Stone of Scone beneath a coronation chair.
[145] Also numbered p.10.
[146] Presumably Bowness-on-Solway, where the Eden joins the Solway Firth.
[147] MS: 'hainstining to Roome'.

{Hadrians Dike & Agricolas}
Tis certain (sayes he) that this fortification and new made boundarye, gave occasion ever after of contention, war & slaughter; for when the Scots, Picts, Attacots, Dicalidons, Verturions & Maeates, divided \ among them yett / in their severall Countryes but under the Government of 2 princes onely, this of the Picts and that of the Scots were first of all forced beyond ~~Clyd and Forth~~, Glotta & Bodotria, by the ~~force~~ \ power / of Agricola, the Scotts being dispossessed of their western Coast, & the Picts driven from the east ~~end~~. They being intent on every occasion of recovering their owne made great disturbance under severall Emperours, but were ever suppressed and kept beyond the Trench of Hadrian or Agricola (~~for~~ it bear[in]g both those names for the reasons above) untill Severus granted them as much as they could have wished but more indeed than they could have expected (he means all that territorye betwix the 2 Trenches), and tis like, if the Romans had conteined them selves afterwards within the Trench of Severus, they would not have had them their enemyes but neighbours. But after that Carausius (as good Historians informe us) in Dioclesians time who after \ wards / ~~this~~ established tyranny in the land, had translated their Bound[148] \ marshes / to Bodotria againe; and Valentinian being emperour, Theodosius the father

[Machell's Notes: I.27]
{*But for all this I found a stone in my traceing of the Picts wall inscribed to Hadrian}
Severus[149] seemeth to have fortifyed Hadrian's Trench, with [a] stone wall & to have cast sever[al] dike allso, as a marke of his conquest & the composition which the Caledonia[n]s then made with him. T.M.! See Speed p. 229 p. 7 and 6.8.9!!!!
{Nennius Britannicus qui vixit An. 620.}[150]

[I.29][151]
of Theodosius the Emperour, as Marcellinus witnesseth, had reduced all that space which layes twixt those Bulworks into the forme of a province called Valentia.

{Valentia}
The enmyes (lieveing nothing unattempted against the Romans whome they looked upon, a~~nd~~s as perfidious and Baise as breaking of covenant) did endeavour to regaine what they had thus lost of their owne proper right. But all invane, for \ lately / the Romaines, still bearing the sway, did constantly defend what they had obteined, as long as the Empire continued prosperous. And that Rampier which Agricola made at the first; (or rather according to his opinion began or marked out) remained \ their / Boundary allmost to the last &c. But when the Roman Empire began to decline and they called home their soljers to defend their dominions, which were not so remote, The Picts & Scots repossessed themselves of all they had formely lost \ quit under / the Romans, contracting themselves to within the limit of Severus, his trench. Nevertheless, their enimes, being used to slaughter, and growne familiar with war, did cruelly raige against the provincalls, making perpetuall incurtions \ upon them / till the ~~Time of of~~ the Saxons ware called in, and ended the controverse by takeing all from ~~them~~ both \ to themselves. /
{Haec de muro pictico sed exhibit relationem multo breviorem et elega[n]tiorem infra p.14 quam cum hac confer}[152]
But these are the reasons which he doth alledge (neglected utterly by other writers) ~~of the~~ of the wars and constant feuds twixt the Picts and Romans,[153] viz. their covetousness in transgressing those bounds which were sett by compact. But it is not impossible that the Romans beginning their Conquest in the south and so driveing it on further and further, must of necessity compell a great many into the northern part (all those who would not live under their subjection) where they being very numerous and haveing little good land except this Valentia which was so often fought for, were [148] Borders.

[149] A sketch of a castellated line appears here.
[150] 'Nennius Britannicus who lived AD 620.'
[151] Also numbered p.11.
[152] 'This much concerning the Pictish wall but he gives a much briefer and more precise account below, p.14, which should be compared with this.'
[153] An illegible scored-through word follows here.

allmost compeled to endeavour an inlargement; and that together with the hatred they had to the Romans (the spoylers of their Country) might be a reason of those durable wars (for I take not the Picts to be anything but Brit. so called (a pingendo) by their enemyes* the Romans and that (may be) for distinction, when they be came mixed with the Irish, their confederates. But however, there is noe doub[t] to [be] made, that the Romanes, being perpetually infested by them, and being att peace with the more southerly people, drew most of their soljers into these parts \ Hereabouts, / and had more fights Hereabouts than elsewhere in the nation. So that although the \ chief / stations of the Romans were ~~south at Carleon &c~~ \ at Carleon London and Yorke /as has bin said –

[Machell's No tes: I.29 & 30]

*{vide hujus paginas15, §.3 & 4}[154]
Query if Vortiger was Duke of Cornwall.

[I.31][155]

yett they were drawne out in \ to / this part of the ~~nation~~ \ Iland / (as occasion was offered) even to the last: And [er]go wee may imagin that the Romaines \ soljers / resided more in these northern parts, having their stations att severall places, whereof Apleby was one {& K\ irbythore / for cert[ain] another.}

Watercrooke and Brouham, Broug un[de]r Stane. Plu[m]pton.
But tho they were in greater numbers here than any other part of the Iland, yett they did not quite depopulate the place and extinguish the Britans, but 'twas freq[uent] with them to be Indulgent and Civil \ unto / their captives and those whome they had conquered, insomuch that the Government ~~shoud~~ \ was / often be committed [to] those very Kings whome they had overcome, as is showne before. So that tis easily supposed that the inhabitants of this place were in those times a mix sort of people, except amongst the mountains (which the Britans noe doubt entirely possessed) they being unaggreable to the Roman constitution. From which places after the Roman departure they drew themselves downe ~~agane~~ into the plaines, inhabiting that which the Romanes had left. But after this they could not be att rest[156] by reason of the Picts and Scots; the former whereof by long seperation, had forgott all affinity, not to mention their natural disposition to prey[157] \ & rapine, / and the other were mere strangers \ unto them / called in from Ireland \ in defence of / the Picts, as is aggred upon by the best writers. And beside this they were the more Cruell because they had bin so long pinnd up in a barren corner, and were allso disgusted att the Britans them selves as well as Romans {concurrit – Camden p. 33 §1.}[158] for being conciderate, and submitting to their yoake, thereby incorporateing themselves into the Empire. And this barbarous people, did so much vex and molest ~~the~~ the Province's neighbours \ inhabitants / that \ they / were forced to send to ~~the~~ Rome \ from thence / ~~Romans for assistants~~ \ to give them assistance. / And Constantius coming over with a powerful Army, & setting them free (by repulsing the enemy from them into their old territories) was thereupon (being a Briton himself by the mother's side) made King of the Britans by a compact with them and that part an ende of the Roman title to this nation of ours after, which now returned to its liberty agane. But continued not long soe, for Constantius being slane by a treacherous Pict in whom he confided,[159] Lef[t] 3 sons behinde him. Constantius, Uter and Aurelius. Constantius the Eldest was a simple youth & of too \ facile / easye a nature, \ disposition, / whereupon he was putt in a monastery \ shut up / but the other 2 were very hopefull & of great ingenuity. But they being young, the Duke of Cornwall a rich and potent man toke upon him to setle the Government, and so called Constantius from his sel to the throne; but \ it was / ~~onely~~ to destroy him; for he hired

[Machell's Notes: I.31 & I.32]

Constantius. Arthur calls him Constantine 136 cujus

---

[154] 'From painting.' {'See on this page 15. §3 & 4.'}
[155] Also numbered p.12.
[156] An illegible scored-through word follows here.
[157] MS: 'pray'.
[158] For such events after the Romans' departure, see Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 86-87 & 107-08 (quoting Gildas).
[159] A scored-through word beginning with 'm', follows.

Constantius Uterr Pendragon Arthur Aurelius}

[I.32]
Mem. Arthurs Bury. at Caerlile King Arthurs Seaste[160] at Edenbrough.

[I.33][161]
~~certane~~ \ some / Picts to put him to death, promising ~~great~~ them an ample reward; but when the murther was com[m]itted he tooke the Traytours & put them to death ~~instead of and ward~~ Hereupon the ~~traitors of the~~ Pictish \ nation / proclamd war against him; and the \ other / brothers for fear ~~of the like practise~~ \ he should practice the like upon them / fly into Britony.'

{Saxons called into England under Hengist}
Vortiger to suppres his enemyes (because he durst not confide in his Country men) called in the ~~German~~ Saxons \ ~~out of Germany~~ / a warlike and valiant people \ of Germany / promising them \ very / great rewards; \ for their assistance. / To be brief, they haisted hither under the conduct of Hengist, their General, & beating ~~the~~ \ back the warlike / Picts back, found kinde entertanement from Vortiger; But ~~they~~ made Ill use of it ~~his kindness~~, for they swarmed hither in such great multitudes (that ~~I may be short did~~) \ they / att last rooted him out of his Kingdome and made him fly to Walles \ for saifty. / In the mean \ time / the 2 \ royal / Brothers \ Uter and Aurelius / returnd; and first (falling upon \ foule / ~~him to punish~~ the murtherer of Constantius \ their brother /) they Burned him in his Castle; and after march\~~ing~~/ against the Saxons, & gave them an Over throw & take Octa the son of Hengist ~~&~~ \ whom they / putt him to death. But my history ~~carryes me no farther~~ \ reacheth no farther / save only ~~that it tell me how~~ \ to tell us that / under these brothers the Britons had space to breath a ~~little~~ \ while / and recover their strenth.

{Would not do it, whence a Proverb.}
We may suppose [er]go that they marched on northwards to roote out \ & / conquer the \ rest of his / enemyes, and therefore the rather, Because if stones may ~~be heard~~ \ have learnd to speake / where books are silent, there is an old Castle in the County of Westm'land ~~which Bears his name~~ not far from the head of the River Eden which bears his name {being called Pendraggon which it seeme he endeavoured to surround with the river}, and a proverb concerning it ~~taken notise of by all writers~~ \ observed by all authors which have writt of the place / and still in much use amongst \ the Country / ~~the~~ people, whence vaine attempts \ when any improbable / thing is attempted.'

Let Uter Pendragon doe what he can
{the river} Eden still will run where it ran.[162]

Occasiond by Uter's attempting to draw the river round about the Castle, which he found ~~was be~~ impossible.

{Arthur's Castle} {Round Table}
And att the other end of this County is a famous Bulworke of a round forme called King Arthurs Castle, and by some his Round Table from the figure of the fort. This may seem to have ~~the &~~ had it originall from Arthur son to Uter \ Pendraggon / who was the last of of the British Kings and obtened as we red 12 great Conquests \ noble victoryes / over the Saxons in 11 years \ space, / for tho historyes of credit be very silent [160] Presumably, 'Seat'.

[161] Also numbered p.13.
[162] More usually remembered as: 'Eden will run where Eden ran'. See N&B1, 562.

[I.34]

yett it is not improbable that in the prosecution of his Conquests over them he might march thus far[163] and place this as a fort upon his frontiers (whether as a defence or for post by the highway or for […][164] Turnaments I dar not th[ink]) & near the water which parts the 2 countries of Westm'land and Cumberland. I must confess I have not red any thing of his being \ marching / further \ into the / north than some part of Lancashire; ~~but~~ nor \ of / Uter's marching any further than Yorke. But ~~such monuments as these do signify some thing~~, \ these silent witnesses may be of some credit / and we must be content ~~with the light their names give us till better evidence can be had~~ \ for want of better information & proofe with what they impart by signes unto us. /

However, it is not att all to be doubted that there were Brittanes in some part of the County of Westm'land on the mountanes called Cartmel Fells, noe less than 28 years after the coming of the Saxons.[165] And not far from this place wee have 2 little rivers amongst the mountaines which retaine British names unto this day. {Glenkrodden; Glenkwen} {And all Cumberland seemeth so called from the Cumbri or Brittanes: & therefore tis likely they possesed these parts \ were part of them / in King Arthur's time, who was their last King, \ of the Brittish race / after whose decease they presently ~~fell~~ presently ~~decayed~~, \ fell / and \ were / forced (I mean the generality of them) to fly into Wales, and lieve the best part of their native Country a prey to ~~the enemy~~ \ their enemyes / the \ English / Saxon concerning \ whome / I shall ~~to~~ speake in the next place.

Of the Romans & Brit. Finis

What I have supposed above is confirm'd to me in part by what I have met with since in Mr Speed concerneing King Arthur, who gives it out of Ninius {He chased Colgerne, Captain of the Saxons, from Northumberland to Yorke about Anno Dom. 516} – a particular account of those Batle[s] which he won against the pagan Saxon, viz.

1. At the mouth of the river Gleyne; 2, 3, 4, 5, upon the bankes of Douglass in the County of Lyneax; 6. upon the river Bassus; 7. in the wood Calidon; 8. near the Castle Cumnien; 9. in Wales at Cairolien; 10. at Trachenith or Rothwood upon the sea side; 11. upon an hill named Agnot Cather,[166] Cathergonien; xii. at Bath or Bather Hill, wher the Britaines gave the Saxons a very great over throw: Bede's History Ang. Lib. 1, cap. 16; è Speed \ Cronolog. / Vol. 1. p. 316.

So that tis clear his conquests extended further than this place, even into Scotland; & therefore tis more probable that this fortification might have him for its ~~author~~, & be called Arthur's Castle from that excellent King.[167]

[Machell's Notes: I.34]

The manner of the Romanes.

1. Coyneing.
2. Building.
3. Incamping.
4. Burying.

[I.35][168]

[Picts and Saxons]

When our 1[t] ancestours and before them the Picts kept their stations in this Iland, they spred them selves \ abroad / by little & little &, their offspring encreasing, extended their bounds, Both these people were first comprised ~~betwixt~~ \ within / the friths of Foth and Clyd, as in their naturall boundarye beyond which ~~both parts went~~ the Picts following the Eastern shore challenged Lowthian

[163] MS: '~~Yet who can tell, but in~~ Yett it is not improbable that in the prosecution of his Conquests over them / ~~proseeuteing these Conquests~~ he might march thus far.' An unclear interlineation occurs here, as follows: '\ tho his place of residence was [...]alfeton […] /'

[164] Two indistinct words appear here.

[165] MS: '... in some part of the ~~County of Westm'land~~ \ countries of this / on the mountanes called Cartmel Fell noe less than 28 [?] years after the coming of the Saxons.' The sentence has been much altered and is also obscured by the binding.

[166] There is an illegible erased word after 'named'.

[167] See I.34.

[168] Also numbered p.14.

with much on that side, for theirs. If you would know their Limit, they seem to have possessed (totum illud in quod pulsis illis nostri successêre) or all that in which ours sucseded after they were beaten out. But the Scots had to them selves the western Ocean opposite to Glotta.

{Julius Agricola}
Their first \ joynt / conflicts were with the Brittans, till Julius Agricola (with his Romane Armye) made an end of the controverse so that our Picts were throwne \ driven / back to betwix the 2 friths.

{Severus}
And thus their limit continued till the time of Severus; Into whose territoryes their being many inroads but noe settlement, destruction of the Country was the end of the war.

{Maximian; Dioclesian}
Severus did first change the Limit, and either he or his sions cast up a trench called after his name. But Carausius (under Diocles[ian]; and Maximian) did extend the fortifications and remouved the Bound to the Trench of Hadrian againe, which the following Roman Capt did constantly maintaine as long as they poss[ess]ed Britan. But ~~that~~ att the last it was translated againe to Severdike, because (the Romanes being gon) the former limit could \ not / keep in the enemyes of the Picts.

{Coming In of the Saxons} {Forsaken}
Then the Saxons were called, a remedy worse than the desease, for the trechery of these assotiates, brought more misery to the nation than the cruelty of their enemyes: for they, not being content to keep the cov[ena]nt \ to stand to their covenants, / challengd all to them selves, ~~nor will they~~ \ and would not / rule as the Romanes did; \ nor / or by a mild sort of vitorie ~~grow into~~ incorporate themselves with the conquered as the French did with the Galls and the Danes afterwards with their nephews (& kindred) ~~they~~ would not rest till \ the nation was cutt of[f] & till / they had depopulated & destroyd all the Country, that they might succeed in the empty \ forsaken / possesions. They invaded severall parts under severall captanes, but all aggred in depopulateing the Ile and making a New Kingdom. They who invaded the North (Haveing taken to themselves the name of Northumbrians) with a strong army led by 2 Captanes made the 2 Kingdoms of the Deiræ & Bernicæ; \ & / they took \ againe / from the Scotts & Picts whatsoever Severus had left them, ~~and~~ about which formerly was so great contention. They advanced their bounds to the 2 friths {Sc. 660} and could not be moved ~~there~~ thence by means (no not after they were Xans) till they were 1[t] weaken'd with civill war & after by the incursions of the Danes, and they being thus broken, the Scotts \ & Picts / att lenth came their owne againe and using their victorie with lenity, granting to the \ common / people their posessions, for the most part \ holding of them as / Lords of their Country which they have ~~defend~~ kept constant from the Danes & English to this very day […][169]

[Machell's Notes: I.35. I.37]
The §6. Cum primum majores nostri:[170] i.e. The Scots &c. pag. 6.
It gives us a more brief account \ & caus / of the matter in the following cap.[171], which is: De Origine Linguae Saxonicae apud nos:[172] A more compendiouse account of Scots & Picts.
2 great Trenches, Romain victories & coming of Saxons

[169] In the MS, three words have perished here. Added to them is the deleted phrase, 'looked amongst the common sort to this very day.'
[170] 'When first our ancestors'.
[171] 'Chapter'.
[172] 'Concerning the origin of the Saxon language among us.'

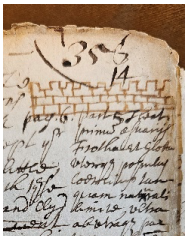

Figure 2. Sketch of the Picts' Wall. I.35.

[I.36]

{So he says, sed contusis et fractis Saxonum opibis nostri pictique in sua Rediere &c.}[173]
This Conq[est] (he speaks of) must be since the time of Beda, for He tells us of One Osuerin, who brough[t] a great part of the Picts' Kingdom in subjection to the English: Anno 660. He tells us allso that Idamus King of the Scots, had an unfortunate battle ~~against~~ with the Northumbrians, from whence there were none afterwards that durst contend with them for those provinces they had won. For what he relates after the coming of the Saxons, he referrs you to Beda, out of whome sayes he much may be gather[ed] to confirme this truth, alltho this change hapned above 600 years after his time.

{The Picts Wall: when, why? And by whome.}
It seems to me a naturall process, that as they made their advances & Conq[uests], so they should make their pretenturæ[174] for secureing of them – which makes me suppose (what others may write or fancy to the contrary) – that the Dike by Carlisle was 1ˡ made – then that in Scotland – and at the time of the Roman recess than the Romans were possessed of the other as far; yett they thought fitt to reinforce and strenthen this latter; as soone as don to lieve the front – unto the Picts – ratio – the stone which has built it twixt Bowness an[d] Brough fetchd out of Scotland which they could not do, unless masters there, or at least in friendship.*

[Machell's Notes: 1.36]

*quod Iniquun. T.M.
X he sayes in the other paper that it was rather attempted or begun than finished by Agricola.[175]

[I.37][176]

{Eulog. Saxonor'}
§2. Their praise v. vol. 2, pag. 178, col. 1, §2.
When the props of the Roman Empire began to faile, the Saxons for their valour a 2ᵈ tryumphant nation, began, as it were where the Romans left. For besides the continuall possesion of their Owne Country (out of which they could never be beaten) as unpartial Tacitus doth tell us; their Legions were transported into all parts of the world, and without them allmost noe vict[ory] was won. Of whose power & prowesse in the expedition of war both Dionysius, Arrianus & Seneca doe speake. To these then likewise if the Britons gave place, the Conquest was bought att as dear a rate as any part of the world beside. Neither was Britain subdued by either of these nations, or their policye or government changed, but with an unwilling subjection and great loss of \ blood / enough to make a mightier nation faint and give over.

{Pic[t]s driven into the Nor[th]}
§3. Tacitus sayeth that Agricola drove the Roman enemyes (to mean the obstinate & untractable Britons) into the Northern parts, as it were into an other Iland. They sent forth an army against him of [173] 'When Saxon forces were beaten and broken, our men and the Picts returned to their own places.'

[174] 'defence'.
[175] An 'X' usually signifies that Machell (or other unknown individuals) later judged this information to be in error.
[176] Also numbered p.15.

30000 and made such resistance against Severus that in one expedition he lost 70000 of his Roman sold[iers]. 181, col.1.

{Picts why so called & whence descended}
§4. The Picts language Manner & Government was the same with the Britons & never had the name of Picts till excluded from their fellow Britans by the Roman Conquest. And those whome they \ had / reduced into provinces had possibly left of that custome of painting them selves, being civilised ~~by~~ \ & confirmd to / the Romans. And they were knowne by no other name than that of Britannes to ancient writers. Nor was Commodus, Severus, Bastianus, Geta upon their victories over these northern inhabitants called Pictish but British Conquerours, which showes the name Pict to be of later imposition, and used only for distinction sake. & Bishop Wilfride in the Convocation before King Osway of Northumberland (concerning the Celebration of Easter) calls Britans Picts: see vol. 2, p.331, lin.1: Speed in Fuller.

§5. The Cæsars landing was upon a plane & open shore, thought to be Deale. 184. He landed att the same place \ or / near \ it the / year following setting out from Callis[177] and encountered the Britans 12 mile inland at the River Stower. {He had but Cityes that submitted to him.}

§6. The Britanns insteed of money used rings of Iron & plates of Brass which passed currant as Cæsar.[178] {Ref[erence] Cuneboline was the first that stamped his image upon m[oney] in Britain.}
[I.38][179]

[Roman Consuls and Leaders in Britain]

1. In the battle under Queen Bodicea or Boudice against Paulus Suetonius, 80000 Britans lost their lives.
2. King Arthur Arms v.2: 207: C.1. His Banner displayed often against the pagan Saxons. 26: c[l]2.
3. Vespasian under Claudius was sent lieutenant of a band into Germany, thence into Britann where he fought 30 sett battles conquered the Ile of Whight, subdued two mighty nations to the Ro[mans] and wonn 20 Townes from the Britanns. He came afterwards to be Emperor, Anno Domini 72: Suetonius.
4. (Vitellius sent Vectius Belanus to be lieutenant of Britann.)
5. Vespatian Imp. sent great Captains & good soljers into the provinces, and into Britann Petilius Cerealis, who had formerly served here in the wars against Boudicea. He struck great terrour into the Britanns at his coming; and at his 1[t] approach fought many Battles and some of them Bloody against the Brigantes i.e. Yorkshire Lancashire West[morland] & Durham, the most populous state of the whole province, in which Battles the greatest part of these people were wasted and their Country came into the Roman subjection (211. Col. 1.)
6. After him succeeded in the time of Vespasian Julius Frontinus who subdued the Silures i.e. South Wales.
7. After him Julius Agricola the year before the Emperors death. He subdued the Ordovises, conquered Mona, & being a good & prudent man, moderated the Tribute, which lay soe heavy on the poorer sort. And incouraged the Britanns to Build temples & publique houses, \ taught / their nobles sonns Arts and Sciences, and brought them even to the wearing of a gowne.
8. Titus Emperor, son to Vespasian. In his ~~use~~ \ life / served in Britann with exceeding commendation. – His lieutenant in Britann was Agricola. In the 3[th] year,[180] he marched norwards to the Frith of \ Taus / Tweed \ & / wasted all as he went without any resistance fortified the places with Castles & bulworkes (which \ he / stored with sufficient prov where every Garrison wintering Garded itself. & if any losses hapned they were repaired all agane by their next soljers serving sommer service.) The fourth summer he spent in disposing & ordering what he had won, garding and fortifying that narrow space of ground twixt Glotta & Bodotina (2 armes of the 2 opposite seas, which shoot far into the [177] Calais.

[178] There is a small sketch of a ring in the margin here,
[179] Also numbered p.16.
[180] MS: '3[th]' (because Machell originally wrote '4[th]').

Land) with castles & garrisons, so that now the Romans were absolute Lords of all the South side of Britann having cast their enemyes as it were into an other Iland.
Virius Lupus built Bowes Castle in the time of Severus about the year of Xt 197, & strength[ened] the northern part with many other, hold either under or repaired by him: may be Apleby &c. See Speed's History p.228.
{Agricola præsident. Builde castles about the yere of Xt 84. Imperat[or]e Tito Vespatiano Flavio Agricola being Lieutenant.}[181]

[I.39][182]

Domitian suceded Titus his brother in his Empire but not in vertue; howbeit Agricola (remaneing Lieutenant in Britann) went on in his victoryes, fighting against the Caledonians in 2 Batles, & dispatching ships to discover the Coasts & Creeks of the \ more / northern parts.

{IX LEG.}
In the first Battle the Caledonians fell in upon the Roman conquerors where the 9 Legion was lodged. But they were rescued by Agricola's light horse. In the later, Galgacus being General, 10000 of Britanns fell & but 340 of the Roman Armye. After which Agricola wholy discovered the British Coasts. But after these victories least he should be too pop[ular] Domitian sent him home under pretence of making him Lieutenant of Syria. He left the nation setled in peace and Salustius Lucullus came in his steed.
The fourth part of the Ile in the 4th year of Domitian (Xt 86) was reduced into a full province (by Agricola) the Government whereof was ever annexed and appropriate to the Roman Emperors themselves, & not at the disposition of the senate, as other provinces were.

XII [Legion]
~~Trajan~~ Nerva was the next. A good Emperor but reigned not long. Who his lieutenants were & Trajans allso, is not well knowne, but the Arch Deacon of Monmouth brings a succession of British Kings,[183] and amongst them Marius who conquered Roderick King of the Picts accompanyed with the Scots,[184] whose trophe erected near unto Carlile remained a long time afor, bearing ~~bering~~ the Inscription of his victory. {An Trophy erected at Carleol: MARII VICTORIE. T.M. sic conscribit.}[185] Maybe the battle was fought thereabouts.
{2. It may seeme to be fought at Rere Cross: HERE KING WESTMAR SLOE KING ROTHINGER: Bishop Ussher}[186] & here some wil have Westm'land \ viz. from Marius king of that place. / And after him, his son Coilus Brought up att Roome. But in these things histories are very dubious and sterrill.

{3. Via Rom.} XIII
Vepius T\r/ajan adopted by Nerva. Honoured with the epithet of Optimus Augustus. He raised the empire unto the highest pitch. He caused the famous casways to be made in Our Iland concerneing which Hear Gallen 218 Col. 1. Speed 2 vol.
4. Tho histories be silent, yett there is litle doubt to be made that he sent His proprætors Lieutenants præsid[ents] prætors & proconsulls & municipal magistrates of Cityes into this Ile as well as other places. The prætors sat upon High throne attended on by their Rictors, haveing Axes & Rods called [181] In the MS here, there is a small sketch of a Castle keep.

[182] Also numbered p.17.
[183] Geoffrey of Monmouth, The History of the Kings of Britain. The author's name appears on six charters, dated between 1129 and 1151, in the Oxford area, sometimes styled magister ('teacher'). He was probably a secular canon of St. George's College. All the charters signed by Geoffrey are co-signed by Walter, Archdeacon of Oxford, also a canon of that church. See J.C. Crick, 'Monmouth, Geoffrey of [Galfridus Arturus] (d. 1154/5), bishop of St Asaph and historian. ODNB.
[184] See also Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 11.
[185] 'The Victories of Marius. T.M. [Thomas Machell] thus wrote it.'
[186] James Ussher (1581-1656), Church of Ireland archbishop of Armagh and scholar. In 1639 he completed his research into the early history of Britain and Ireland by publishing his monumental Britannicarum Ecclesiarum Antiquitates, in which he attempted to trace the development of Christianity in Britain from its beginning to the end of the seventh century. see A. Ford, 'Ussher, James (1581-1656). ODNB.

fasses for the common people, who were to receve a new Governour every 7 year which was a great Burthen to the province. & perhaps on occasion of the Britons revolt whoe notwithstanding were soone suppressed.

[I.40][187]

XIIII.

Ælius Hadrianus suceed his uncle Trajan. A universall Scholler & excellent Artist. In his time the Britons impatient of servitude Began to revolt, for his lieuetennant Creus Tribellius successor to Agricola could not prevent \ keepe / his soljers from Oppresion & Mutiny; upon whose abuses the northern people imboldened by Bogs & Rocks inaccessible were resolved to defend themselves, finding many confederates & it was disputed with loss of Blood. Hereupon Julius Severus was sent, but before all was quieted, called home \ agane / to goe into Syria. Then the Emperor came in person \ him selfe / with 3 legions in the 3[d] year of his Consulship. Anno Xt. 124. And recovered all the holds \ agane / which they had taken, forceing them into the woods & mo[untains], and perceiveing the aer further North too sharp for the Roman constitution he made a Bulworke twix Eden & New \ Castles / sayes Lampridius).[188]

He made Livinus Priscus Lieuetenant, and the southern Britons being glad to be secured from the inroad of their Countrymen {?} conformed to \ the / Roman Laws in martiall & civill aff[airs]. This Priscus was proprætor of Britan and imployed in the Journey of Jewry with Hadrian, as appears from an old Inscription*.

[Machell's Notes: I.40 & I.41]

*{& what \ he / him selfe hath writ [in] the margin of his Britannia & by the name which ~~the People yett give it~~ \ it commonly beareth / & he him selfe hat[h] writ in the margin.}

I think an account of Roman emperors with their lieuetenants & what they performed in the north might not be amiss.

Here I want a list of the Roman Emperors related to England and their Lieuetennants or prefects especially in these parts, which must [be] extracted out of Speed's History att Leisure. And then lett the British Kings follow as they are, pag. 33. &c.

[I.41]

de metis et divisis Inter comitatum Eboraci et Westm'land faciendis. See my Coll MS. VI. p.56 out of Sir W. Dug[dale] 'e dorso patentis 13 Ed III p. 1.[189] Est etiam divisio post in eodem MS. V. inter Furness et Kendallum q?[190]

Queries observ'd.

June 1 1688. I observ'd that Mr Speed agrees with me in my possision of 30 years being a Rational Limit for a descent, for Hist. p.164. col. 2. allows[191] – 120 years for 4 descents.

[I.135B]

[Roman Lieutenants, Consuls]

[1.] {First Lord Lieutenant of Britain, Aulas Plautius; his wife Pomponia Græcina – caryed the X[t] Principles to Rome with her, whereof she stood accused and indicted upon life and death.}

The first Lieutenant authorised over The British who when upon som occasion was sent for home, (the wars not quieted) and with a small Tryump[h] (as Tacitus sayeth) entered Rome. To whom succeeded

2. Publius Ostorius Scapula: Lieutenant or proprætor. Som of the British [who] were then unconq[ered] raugeded[192] the Countreys of the Confederates. The Icenians began (Norf. Suff. Camb. & Hunting[donshire].) He subdued them & the Cattuvellauni. And a final resistance was made by the Brigantes; but without much trouble soone quieted by the execution of som few & pardoning the rest.

[187] Also numbered p.18.

[188] Aelius Lampridius was one of the six authors of the Historia Augusta (biographies of Roman emperors of the 2nd and 3rd centuries). He authored four of the chapters (on Commodus, Diadumenianus, Heliogabalus and Severus Alexander); his writing is frequently quoted in Camden's Britannia.

[189] '… from the back/reverse of letter patent 13' etc.

[190] 'Concerning the boundaries and divisions to be made between the County of York and Westmorland,'… 'There is also a division later in the same MS. V. between Furness and Kendal. Q[uery]?'

[191] MS: 'How allows.'

[192] 'marauded' or 'raided'.

But the Silures (those of South Wales) could ~~o~~[193] be brought to bear the Roman yoake but withstood them manfully under Caractacus their King – who remo\ved/ the war unto the Ordovices (i.e. North Wales), where all joynd with him who either fear'd or disdained the Romans, but was overcome, being betrayed into his hands by the Brigantes Queen &c. after the British took heart agane & so vexed Ostorius that he dyed of griefe \ & they worsted Manlius Valerus with his legion. \ Gallus stilling these forigines (Brittannicæ p. 5.) /

{Temp. Claudius et Neronis}
To him succeeded by Claudius his order, and was sent to Britain:
3. Aulus Didius, in whose time Venutius, a very expert man in military affairs, ~~began a new rebel~~ (justis to the Romans so long as his Queen Cartismandua, was faithfull to him) began a new rebellion for she \ being / in favour with the Romans for delivering Caractacus, & abounding in welth peace & ple[nty] & fel in Love with her husband's serv[ant] & Harnessbearer, Velocatus, & endeavoured to make him King; who raised a power against her & \ her / paramour – & she in the meantime tooke her husband's Brother with som of his nearest Kindred, prisners whereupon the next neighbours declared against her [and] with a Choyce band of youthful soljers invaded her teritories: whereof Didius haveing intelligence sent certain cohorts to secour[194] her & incounter them, which they did with som success – yett he kept his Kingdom, for the Silures were not altogether Quieted {Tacitus History, Lib. 3, C.9.}

{Nero 4}
To him Verannius in time of Nero succeeded who mad[e] small inroades into the Silures \ & dyed / anno primo ~~mort~~ 197. §6.

[I.136][195]

{What kin to Suetonius Tranquillus}[196]
To whom Paulinus Suetonius; \ of / great skill in service and great allso in the op[inion] of the people – who invaded Anglesey – caled then Mona – & separated from the continent by the \ River / Meni fronted on the Midst of ~~Mona~~ Ireland. {Query if this be not Man – see the map.}[197]
! Then was Catus Deciamus procurator (i.e. Receiver of the Tribute \ ~~cui sui Julius Clascitianus~~ / in the office of receipts. / It seemes the Centurians had the spoyles of the Kingdoms & the slaves of the Houses of Kings as Lawfull beauty[198] – they craved aide & Catus Deciamus the Procurator, when the Iceni stirred up rebell[ion] against; in the absence of their Lieutenant it seems there were Lieutenant of Legions, as, Petrilius Cerialis Lieutenant of Leg. IX – all foot but a Troup of horse.

{198 §15. 200 §21}
This Paulinus overcame Boduora Boadicia near unto London, & slew of the Brit. 80000 men (Pænius Posthamus a captain master of Leg. 2.) – This Paulinus being suspected & fear'd of Nero, was commanded by him (the warrs yett continueing) to deliver up his army to [193] 'not'.

[194] 'Secure'.
[195] Also numbered p.15.
[196] Gaius Suetonius Tranquillus (born 69 AD) probably in Rome, died after 122) was a Roman biographer and antiquarian whose writings include De viris illustribus ('Concerning Illustrious Men'), a collection of short biographies of celebrated Roman literary figures; and De vita Caesarum ('Lives of the Caesars'). The latter, seasoned with bits of gossip and scandal relating to the lives of Julius Caesar and the first 11 Roman emperors, secured him lasting fame. https://www.britannica.com/biography/Suetonius.
[197] In 58 AD Gaius Suetonius Paulinus was appointed governor of Britain and began a forward movement to the Irish Sea, subduing Mona, a stronghold of druidism. When he learnt of Boudicca's revolt (60 AD) he returned with his advance-guard but with this inadequate force he was compelled to abandon Londinium and Verulamium. Retreating (along Watling Street) to his main force, he routed Boudicca's attack. His severity towards the rebels led to discord with the procurator Iulius Classicianus and his own recall (61 AD). Oxford Dictionary of the Classical World, 2104. Online.
[198] Presumably, 'booty'.

{6. §24}
Petronius Turpilianus, who had lately given over his Consulship at Rome – & who being a quiet and peaceable man gave up his charge to {Obijt Nero \ last Cæsar by descent.[199] /

7. {anno æt 31. X^{t}. 70.} Trebellius Maximus (who continued during the Emp. of Sergius Galba, & Otho & Vitellius) (de Niniano Bernicio vid. P.204, §9)

{8.} To whom succeeded Vectius Bolanus in the province of Britain – in Vitellius his reigne; to whom (sending for aid against the Illurian Bands) he returnd answer that the Country of Britain stood not so quiet that he might spare any number thence, the soljers & confederate having their hands full to hold all upright. He continued till Vespatian was saluted Emperur, who sent into Britain:

{9.} {211. §8}
Petilius Cerialis, who had bin here in the warrs against Boduo in the time of Nero – He warrd against the Brigantes &c. – Yorkshire Lancashire Westm'land & Durham {The most populous state of the whole Province} & in many Battles, som of them bloody, the greatest part of these people were wasted – to whom succeeded Julius Frontinus, a great soljer allso, who subdued, the strong & warlike of the Silures i.e. South Wales – after whom Julius Agricola {! 212. §5. Castles & Bulworkes; 211. §10. He had served under Cerialis} sometime Questor Tribune & Prætor in Rome & lieutenant in Aquitania was sent by Vespasian into Britain to be General …[200]

[I.138]
Chronicon Regum Brittanicorum ad Mor, Morum sive Marium et Inde ad Lucium ipsius Nepotem[201]

A.M. 3912 V.C. 700 Ante Xtum Natum 52*	Cassivela\u/nus Britanniæ Imperator, Cæsari se dedidit. A[n]no Urbe Rom[a] Cond[ita] 700, Mundi 3912. Ante Xt natum 52 = Reg[navit] autem past hoc. Cum filio 93[202]
Tem[pore] Julij I. Imper[atoris] Tem[pore] Oct[aviani] Aug[usti] II. Imper[ator] et Tib[erius] Nero III Imp[erator] Caius Calig[ula]	Kimbellinus
IV. A.D. 43 Claudius Dru[sus]. IIIII Imperat[oris] 1^{0}.	Guidericus (Kimbellini F[ilius] nepos Cassalauni) Pacem cum Julio irritam fregit Anno Xt 43. et 3^{0} ab hinc anno, bello cecidit cuj successit[203]
A.D. 46 4^{0} Claud[ij] Drus[i] V. Imper[atoris]	Arviracus Anno X^{ti} 46 – 4^{0} Claudij, qui (Anno insequent[i]) Vespasianum cum exercitu in Britt[aniam] misit, qui Insulam Vectis cepit, resque Brittannicas adeo compos[uit] ut paulo post, Anno Claudij 7^{0}, Aulus Plautius Primus, ex consularibus, missus est in Britt[aniam] Præfectus. Anno Xt 52. Claudij X^{0}. P[ublius] Ostorius Scapula Caratucum Silurum Regem vicit captumque cu[m] uxore et fratribus ad Ro[mam] misit […][204]Defuncto autem \ ibi / Ostorio A[ulum] DIDIUM Cla[u]dius in Præsidem misit, qui statim motum Silurum

[199] Publius Petronius Turpilianus (died c.68 AD) was the successor of general Suetonius Paulinus as governor of Britain in 61-62 AD. Previously a consul in Rome, he advocated a more peaceful policy than his predecessor. He was recalled to Rome in 63 AD: Matthew Bunson, A Dictionary of the Roman Empire (New York and Oxford, 1995), 322.
[200] Words obscured by the binding here include, 'ordovic[e]s subd ... rebell'.
[201] 'The Chronicle of the Kings of Britain to Mor, Morus or Marius and then to Lucius, grandson of Marius.'
[202] 'Cassivelaunus, ruler of Britain, surrendered to Caesar in the year 700 from the founding of the city of Rome, in the anno mundi 3912 and BC 52. But he reigned after this with his son [until] 93.'
[203] 'Guidericus, son of Kimbellinus, grandson of Cassivelaunus, broke the ineffective peace with Julius in AD 43, and in the third year after this he fell in war.'
[204] There is an unclear interlineation here.

AD 57 Claud[ius] Domitius Nero Caes[ar] VI Imper[atoris] Anno 1^0	compescuit. Anno Xt 54. Cla[u]dij 12 et Anno Insequenti Cogidulo Brittaniæ Regulo aliquæ civitates ab Imperatoræ donatæ sunt; qui deinde usq[ue] ad Tempora Domitiani fidiss[imus] mansit Anno autem Domitij NERONIS Cæsaris 1^0 X^{ti} 57.[205]
	AVITVS Brittanniæ præfectus extitit, sub quo Romani magnam cladem accipere:
	Anno proximo VERONIVS Brittanniæ legatus missus, ibi moritur cui sucessit.
	SUETONIVS PAVLINVS, Neronis 3^0 Arviraco adhuc Principe ~~Brittanniæ~~ [et] Rege Brittann[iae] cujus Regni anno XV, Neronis 4^0 Xt. 60^0, Multi Britonum ad fidem X^{ti} conversi sunt ut quidam tradunt per {Tacit. XII:[206]} Josephum de Arimathiâ, qui X^{t}um sepiliverat. Vixit etiam et supervixit Aviragus Reg. Britt. ~~Duos~~ \ Tres / alios Imperatores [207]
VII	Sergius Sulpitius Galba VII. Rom[anorum] Imp[erator] Qui reg[ebat] menses 7.
VIII	Sylvium Ottonem – VIII Rom[anorum] Imper[atorem]. Qui reg[ebat] dies – 95.
IX.	Aulum Vitellium IX Rom[a]n[orum] Imper[ator]. Qui reg[ebat] menses fere 8 Primo autem [anno] [208]
X	Vespasiani – Othonis – Titiani \ X Imper. / moriebatur et ej successit[209]
	postquam regnasset an[nos] XXVI[210]
	Marius Arviragi filius Britonum Rex ~~ob~~ an 48. ~~Incepit Regis Vespatiani~~ Incepit Regnare Otho / Xt 72. Vespasiani Othonis 10 per quem Julius AGRICOLA anno ejus circ. 8^0 datus est Brittanniæ Legatus.[211]
AD 81 Xt Tit. Vesp. XI Imperator	Qui totam fere Romanis subegit anno autem Marij X0 Imperator Otho objit cuj Titus Vesp[asianus] succesit. Anno Xt 81, et ejus 50 marij 16, Picti Roderico duce e Sythi sedes novas quer[…] in Brit. Coyllus Marij filius Britt Rex an[no] 45, 30 Adriani Xti 120.[212]
AD 120 3^0 Adriani XV Imp[eratoris] T[itus] Ant[oninus] Pius XVI incep[it] An[no] D[omini]139 AD 165 4^0 M[arci] Aur[relij] XVIII Imp[eratoris] Regnabat cum M. Ael[io] Aurelio Antonino	Coyllus – Marij filius, Brit. Rex anno XXXXV. Quem, Ara[m] suppono Instituitisse. {2^0 Antonini Pij XVI Imper[atoris] Britt[anni] libertatem affe[ctam] a LOLIO Urbicio, divers[is] [proel[ijs] retin[end]o [au]ferebant}. 5^0 Adr[iani] Brittan[i] deficientes, Trebellio duce frenati sunt. Hinc (ut Spartacus) Brit[tania] a Scot[tis] muro divisa est. quod tamen plerumq[ue] Severi.

[205] 'His successor was Arviracus AD 46, 4th year of Claudius, who (in the following year) sent Vespasian to Britain with an army. He took the Isle of Wight and so settled affairs in Britain that a little later, in the 7th year of Claudius, Aulus Plautius Primus, one of the consuls, was sent to Britain as governor. In AD 52, 10th year of Claudius, Publius Ostorius Scapula overcame Caratucus King of the Silures and sent him prisoner with his wife and brothers to Rome. After the death of Ostorius there, Claudius sent Aulus Didius as governor, who immediately settled the disturbance among the Silures, AD 54, 12th year of Claudius. And in the following year certain citizen rights were granted by the Emperor to Cogidulus the client king of Britain: who then remained entirely loyal right up to the time of Domitian.'

[206] Words here are obscured by the binding.

[207] 'In the first year of Domitius Nero Caesar, AD 57, Avitus was governor of Britain, under whom the Romans suffered a great defeat. In the next year Veronius was sent as Legate of Britain and there died. His successor was Suetonius Paulinus, in the 3rd year of Nero, while Arviracus was still Ruler [and] King of Britain. In the 15th year of his reign, the 4th year of Nero, AD 60, many of the Britons were converted to the Christian faith, as certain [people] record, through Joseph of Arimathia who had buried Christ. Arviragus lived as ruler of Britain and survived three other Emperors.'

[208] 'Aulus Vitellius 9th Roman Emperor, who reigned about 8 months. But…'

[209] '…he [viz. Aviragus] died in the 1st year of the 10th emperor Vespasian – Otho – Titian and was succeeded,'

[210] 'after he had reigned 26 years, by'

[211] 'Marius son of Arivagus, King of the Britons, in his 48th year. Otho began to reign in AD 72 in the 1st year of Vespasian Otho, by whom, in about his 8th year, Julius Agricola was appointed to Britain as governor.'

[212] 'He subdued almost the whole [island] to the Romans. But in the 10th year of Marius the emperor Otho died, succeeded by Titus Vespasian in AD 81 and in his 5th year, 16th year of Marius, the Picts under the leadership of Rodericus [came] from Sythia seeking new settlements [and entered] Britain.'

Philos[opho] ideo Como[dus] XVIII numer[o] et Antoninus ejus Pater est XVII	Lucius (Coylli filius) Princeps Rex Brittanniæ, An. XXII. In an[no] 13 ejus regni (M[arci] Aur[elij] et Comodi 16. Xti 178) fidem Amplexus est Xt[i]anam, Beda et Gildas, Author[es].[213]
AD 187 7^0 L. Au[relij] Ant[onini] Com[modi] XIX Imp[eratoris] regnabat 13	Post cujus mortem Anno Xti 187 Duces Brittaniæ Inter se discordes Romanis ad totam fere Insulam occupandam ansam praeposuerunt, Anno Imper[atoris] Lucij Aurelij Antonini 70 Christ[i] 187.[214]
XX	AEL Pertinax – 2 mens. 25 diebus.[215]
XXI	DIDIUS IVLIANVS – 65 diebus.[216]
XXII Imp. AD 195 AD 208	L[ucius] Septim[ius] Severus r[egebat] anno[s] 18. an[no] ejus 9^0 Scoti primo fidem ampl[exi sunt] 2^0 CLOD Albinus Brit[tannorum] exerc[itus] Dux {erat sed q an B} 14^0 S[everus] Bellum in Britt[anniam] transtulit ut eos ab incursione Barbarorum liberaret. vallum CXXXII M[ilia] P[assuum] a mari ad mare duxit. s[ed] d[icit] Polyd[orus] 200 fore post an[n]is [...]'[217]

[I.139]

A Cronickle of Rom Emp. Propriæt. and Brit. Kings

{My booke of maps sayes about 54 ante Xtum natum. ergo see again in favet.}

Anno Xt.	Anno Imp.	Emperors of Rome & Proprætors of Britain	Lieutenants of Britaine	Kings of Britain
		One & fifty years before Christe's Nativity, Anno M 3912. Julius Cæsar subdued Cas. Emperour of Britaine & 6 years after the said [blank]
M. 3918	Cas. 1^0 2 3 4 5 6	Julius Cæsar (The Romane Republic then being oppressed) & he one of the first obtained the sole empire thereof, which before was by Consulls; they notwithstanding still continuing, their name and holding the place, but \ in / subordination to their Emperours for [blank] years after. He reigned 5 yeares. To whom succeeded		Cassivellaunus, emperor of Britaine
3923 3925 3947 3955	Octav 1^0 2 3 23 33	C. Octavius Augustus (II Roman Emperour) who reigned Ann. 56 In the Third year of his reign the Famous Poet Ovid was born. And in the 23, the no less admired Virgil dyed. In the 33	26

[213] 'Coyllus son of Marius became king of the Britons in his 45th year, whom I suppose to have set up an altar. In the 2nd year of Antoninus Pius, 16th emperor, the Britons retained and recovered their liberty, eroded by Lollius Urbicius, in several battles. In the 5th year of Hadrian, the Britons rebelling under their leader Trebellius were restrained. Henceforth (as with Spartacus), Britain was divided from Scotland by a wall, which, however, was for the most part the work of Severus. Lucius (son of Coyllus) became High King of Britain, in his 22nd year. In the 13th year of his reign (the 16th of Marcus Aurelius and Comodus, AD 178), he embraced the Christian faith. Beda and Gildas are the sources.'

[214] 'After his death in the year AD 187, the British chieftains, being at odds with each other, gave the Romans an opportunity to occupy nearly the whole island, in the 7th year of the emperor Lucius Aurelius Antoninus, AD 187.'

[215] 'Aelius Pertinax – 2 months 25 days.'

[216] 'Didius Julianus – 65 days.'

[217] 'Lucius Septimius Severus ruled for 18 years. In his 9th year the Scots first embraced the faith. In his 2nd year Clodius Albinus was leader of a British army {but query whether B.}. In his 14th year Severus carried war into Britain so that he might liberate them from a barbarian invasion. He constructed a wall of 132 miles from sea to sea. But Polydorus says it would be 200 after [...] years.'

M. 3963 et domi Nostri Jesu Christi Anno 1[0]	38 40 Dicitur circa 41 annum Augusti 53 56	Claudius (afterwards Emperour) was brought into the world. In the 38 Sergius Galba was Borne. In the 40 ~~this famous Cæsar~~ \ ~~year of his reign, Augustus~~ / he shut up the Temple of Janus the 3 third time; & so there was peace \ all / over the world ~~about~~ which \ time / The Lord of Peace \ our L. & S. J. C. / was Borne \ of a virgin; / (Irenæus Lib. 3 cap.25) from whom wee Begin our next computation, changeing it from the year of the world to the year of Christ. In the 53 year of Octavius \ Augustus / Caius Cæsar (afterwards emperour) came into the world And In the 56 Octavius dyed XIV Cal. Sept at 9 a clock of day. To whom succeeded
Anno Christ Nati 17 21 30 16 32	Claud. 1[0] 5 14 <

43	1	Tiberius Claudius Drucius the V Romain Emperour who reigned XIII yeares VIII month & XX day. In the first year of whose R. Titus Vespasianus was Born.	And	Guidericus, son of Kimbelinus \ & / nephew \ or Grandchild of / Cassi[vel]launus, King of Brittan, broake the Peace which \ was / made with Julius Cæsar, the first Invader, & Cassa[vel]launus; upon which the next year great warrs ensued […][219] &
44	2	And the next year many say Peter ~~som say~~ came to Rome and governd the Church, 25, which how trew it is commentatours will show. And if so, Peter was Bishop of Rome, before		Guidericus was slaine in the wars; to whom succeeded ARVIRACUS[220]
45	3	E'vodius was Bishop of Antioch: which hapened not \ till / the next year following that he was made the first Bishop there as Eusabius tells us. in which year allso Marc (Peter's \ Disciple / schollar preached in Egypt. And the next year following.
46		The nex year after Vespasianus was sent
47	4	into Britane with a great army, [he] tooke
	5	the Ile of Wight & composed affaire there: so that ~~Vespasian~~ \ Claudius / within 2 years after haveing reduced it
	7	into a province, sent Ola came himselfe into Britaine, Conquered & settled it within VI months
	9	space: Speed. Primus ex-consularibus Brittan præfectus	Ad Brittan A. Plautius, a Roman senatour to be the 1t Praefet there.

[Machell's Notes: I.139]

*{To make this Cron[ickle] perfect, add Consull next to Emp[eror] & Lieutenant of Brit. before K[ing]. Caesar. Lib. 5}

[II.448][221]

[TOPOGRAPHY]
Of Westm'land

[General Notes and Method]

{For ancient Gentlemen see the Note Rol}
{This should belong ad Part II of my MS, which is som what bet[ter]}

[219] The next 1cm of this sentence is illegible.
[220] Aviragus.
[221] Also numbered p.1.

{1.} Of the county in general se Camden.[222] Correct where amiss & add where deficient. V.P. 6, 9, 13. P.26. Ap p.9, 11.
{2.} It is divided into 2 generall partes, the Bottome of Westm'land \ the Barony of Westm'land / & the Barrony of Kendall, \ which is more mountainouse. / In the Bottome of Westm'land, which is champion ground,[223] and, because in a vale free from mountaines, therefore called the Bottom ~~of Westm'land~~ are 3 Wards or Hundreds: E. Ward, W. Ward & Midle Ward. & so, answerably, 3 High Constable: to each ward, one. Petty Constable, 132. {a. vid. N. ad Fig. 2.} {esp part \a / ratio per person in kind.}[224]
In the Barony of Kendall, which is more mountainouse, consisting of hills & dales, & ergo called the Barrony of Kendall or Kandall, are onely 2 Wards or Hundreds, viz. Kendall Ward & Loansdall Ward. To each of them there is one High Constable. Petty Constable, 51. Particularly in Kendall Ward, 39; in Loansdall, 12. (b) Se the particular petty constablewick, p.7.
So that in Westm'land there are 5 Wards, Hundreds or High Constablewicks; Petty Constablewicks 183.

Bottom of West.		Barony of Kendall after
Parishes	Villages or Hamlets	Parishes	Villages or Hamlets
33 with churches of ease & 7 chappels	Take them from the map p.5.	7 with 18 chaples & churches of ease 1. Gresmire has chaples of ease 2 2. Windermere: 1 church of ease, voc. Troutbeck Ch. 3. Kirkby Kendall has 13 chap. of ease 4. Heversham: 1 church of ease call'd Crosthwaite Church 5. Betham: 1 church of ease, voc. Wither Church: given by Dr Barwick, Dean of St Paul's, & consecrated by Bishop Wilkins, late of Chester anno 1671 6. Burton Chap.	Se the map p.5 but I suppose ther is no distinction twixt the Barony & the Bottom of Westm'land Tis a Chapel of Ease only.
{if we particular […] we must 1[t] doe Bot[tom] & then the Bar[ony] distinct}[225]
(c.) A Chaple at Crakenthorp (besides private chap.) Winderworth	A Garth at the Town Head, where cherries – called Chick croft[226]
Parishes	Churches of Ease		Chap. of ease
{in all} 40	6	There are 18 churches and chaples of E. besid[e]	23

Churches and chappells, 69.

[222] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 'Westmorland', 760-63.
[223] Champion: 'champaign'; an expanse of level open country, as distinct from mountains or woods. OED.
[224] This comment is partly obscured by the binding.
[225] Part of this comment is obscured by the binding.
[226] 'Chick' is indistinct.

[II.449][227]

{Sheriff}
3. It is peculiar to this county of Westmorland to have one perpetual sheriff (tho it was formerly paternall ~~through~~ \ in all / England), which office is intailed on the family of the Countiss of Penbrroke ~~whose~~ \ Her / residence is now att Apleby;[228] yet they rather the[y] had Cliffords, a sort of Roy[a]lty, to prick or appoint, than official.
{Adde ad 3[d]} {See the der[ivation] & significance of sheriffs in Preface to Warwick.}[229]

[I.750]

Of the County of Westm'land
1. Its Bounds.
    1. Why Westm'land; whether even a Kingdom of it selfe; whet[h]er part of Scotland.
    2. Why Countyes.
    3. What Countes or Earles.
    4. What shereffs or vicountes (or Barons).

Mr Lawson calls it the Garden of England for the choice Herbs that it affords {and Sledall the Gardine of W[estmerland]}

Of the division of Westmorland into Baronyes, and! By Way of Em[phasis]}
It is divided into 2 Baronies:
    The Barony of Apleby which is anciently termed (by way of emphasis), 'The Barony of Westm'land' – more soft and Champion – which lyetth north.
    The Barony of Kendall, commonly called by the name of 'The Barony'; more strong & mountaneous, which lyetth in the south part.

[I.767C]

1. Of the County of Westm'land in General with a Map – and therein, of its \ name and / Civil & Ecclesiastical government, with a Catalogue of shirefs.
2. Of its division into 2 Baronyes: Sc. Westm'land, Kendal.
3. The subdivision of each into so many Parishes conteined in them.
4. Of each Parish in particular.
    1. In General.
    2. In particular as on the other side.

[I.767D]

1t. In General, \ Notation & in what Denary Ward or Barony. /
1. Valuation with yearly deduction: olim; nunc![230] If not more appositely at the the account of the church and bounds. Q. Which first.
2. Advocation olim; nunc.
3. Situation et extent E. W. N. & S. and how far distant from other churches or market townes.
4. Perambulation or bounder.
5. Division into Manners. Townes, Villages Hamlets & other out houses perteineing to each & in what Constablewicks and how far distant from the church or manner house: E. W. N. or S.

II. In Particular Concerneing each Manner
1. Notation or Ratio Nominus.[231]
2. Situatio et Extentio sue contonens: In length & breadth & how bounded E. W. N. S.
3. Res Contentæ opida et fam: If the church not in it; how far ab Ecclesia.
how many fam[ilies] Fre[e]; Customary. Fine: certe; arbt.[232]

---

[227] Also numbered p.2.
[228] Machell is referring to the Countess of Pembroke (Lady Anne Clifford, 1590-1676). He referred to her throughout as the Countess of Penbroke, an archaic form of the name based on the Welsh word 'pen': head or chief part, and 'bro': a valley. See E.&T. Williams (eds), The Cambrian Register 2: 1796 (London, 1796), 62.
[229] Dugdale, Warwickshire.
[230] 'Once; now!'
[231] Ratio nominus = reason for the name.
[232] Fine certain; fine arbitrary: see the English Glossary.

1. Olim; 2. Nunc: How it is accommodated or adorn'd, by art or nature.
Customry & Priv. ten[ancies]; Priviledges waifes strayes &c. deodant.[233]

4. Places & Things of note in Art; Nature &c.
1. Persons of em[inence]; Dr; general; Kgs.
2. Springs, birds, eagles, hawkes, Beasts, \ marts, /w[ild] cats, otters. Fishes. pike, salmon, pearch, Trout eale extraordinary grown. Strange accidents.

That it more general, as
1. Church \ and p[arsonage] house / or chaple foundation. It dedication, \ duration / extention, Indowment, prescriptions, Reparations \ i. br. / with Arms & Inscriptions, or other raritye with succession of ministers.
2. Scholl: Foundation \ Reparation / extent. Arms & Inscriptions. Endowment.
3. Hospital.
4. Common Halls, Correct Prisons: foundation, reparation, scituation, description.
5. Gentlemen's houses: arms & inscriptions.
[6.] An Historical account of the \ descent of / the manner.
1. Olim 2. nunc; with their Armes & Pedegres especily of the present Proprietors or familyes, & of famous men in them for Arts or Arms.

[I.153]

See Dugdall of Warwickshire, Burton of Leicestershire, to help method & order.
If I could spare time to Methodise these Rude Notes which are conteined in my severall books of Collections marked thus [blank] I would:

1. Speake of the Country in Generall[234]
1. Of its division* into 2 parts viz. the Barony of Appleby commonly called the Botom of Westm'land; Barony of Kendal.
2. Of its division into Hundreds, commonly called the Barony.
3. Of its division into Parishes.

In speaking of the County in General I would shou:
1. Whence it takes its name.
2. Its Bounds.
3. Its Forme what Lenth Bredth & Circumferance.
4. \ The ancient inhabitants and modern: their Natures. /
5. The Nature of the Aire.
6. The Nature of the Soyle \ Helped by rivers & mountaines / with the benefits & rarities ther of wood Arable pasture mineral. Query: the worth per Acre.
7. The Nature of the people & Customes of the Country; course of rivers; tract of highways.
8. It divition into 2 parts; the Barony of Appleby, \ commonly called the Botome of Westm'land / and the Barony of Kendall, which tho a Barony of it selfe was subordinate to the other \ and tis commonly knowne by the name of The Barony. / (As appeares from Lancastres doeing service in Appleby Court, which must not be mentioned till I come att its proper place; viz. either in treating of the Barony of Appleby or Kendal or both.) In which 2 are conteined, 3 Hundreds or Wards; viz. In the Barony of Appleby, 3: E[a]st Ward West Ward & Midle ward – In The Barony 2: viz. Kendall Ward and Loansdal Ward.
9. Market townes, yeomanry, how many, nameing them; whereof Apleby is chief.

[233] In English law, a deodand (sometimes deodant) was a personal chattel which, having been the immediate occasion of the death of a human being, was given to God as an expiatory offering, i.e. forfeited to the Crown to be applied to pious uses, e.g. to be distributed in alms. (Abolished in 1846.) OED.
[234] The numbering in this section has been edited for the sake of clarity.

10. Religious Houses their number & names of which hereafter.
11. Castles & Halls, to which formerly belongd Towers for stre[n]th. \ See Mr Burton of Lestershire. /[235]
12. Parish churches. How many – nameing in Order Alphabet[ical] / concerneing which:

2. Of the County in Particular and therein of the respective Parishes & Lordships
In speakeing of each particular parish:

1. Of the Church, with Tower or none, fair or not. How tis commonly called, to whom dedicated? By whome & when Built, what value, who Patrone?
2. {The nature of Chaples & 1st Indowments} Appurtenances, as what Chaples thereto belonging, of which more at Large in their respective Lordships.

{3.} In the particular Tract
1l: Speake of Heraldry in order to understanding of Coates of Arms.

1. Repeat the number.
2. Speake of them in particular with the severall Lordships & Manners conteined in the parish.
3. \ Order in Alphabet. /

[Machell's Notes: I.153]

*{Civil into 2 Barronyes Wards & each Ward into Constablewicks:
1. Shap. Ap[pleby] Midle Ward.
2. Ecclesiastical into Denaries, & those into Parishes.}

[I.154]

What things most remarkeable, as Armes or Monuments.
4. How many Lordships or Gentlemens seats conteined in the parish, their names, of which in Order Alphabetical, after the church Towne is spoke of, for that I designe to mention still first.
*N.B. Note to speake of Chapples as of Churches, except the 2nd & 4th Head.

In treating of particular Lordships and Families show:

1. The Name of the Manner, whence taken?
2. It Appurtenances; as \ villages / Hamletts &, if any thereto belonging Places and things most remarkable \ in them; / as Chaples Schools Hospitalls Religious houses places of Battles, of Coyns found, & of Roman inscriptions, Camps &c.
3. {Horse races &c.}
4. \ Accidents & Calamityes in the proper place. /
5. The ancient inhabitants, with their Armes \ or seales / mentioned if they be knowne.
6. The Modern Inhabitants.
7. The Manner House: Its situation & distance from Church and market, what remarkeable in it, Mention the present owner whose seat it is, and then proceed to:
8. The Armes & pedigree of the present owner and proceed to the next Manner.

[IV.60B]

After the preface:
1. A general description
2. After which add it were easy for me to prosecute my method as ~~Mr Cambden~~ others have done by the Course of these Rivers. But because this way is no[t] satisfactorie to those who have not Leisure to peruse the whole booke, I will rather proceed in Alphabeticall Order, so that they [who] have not a minde or ~~because~~ so much time as to follow the windeing courses of Rivers, may have a near Cutt[236] to their desired Inquisition.[237]

[235] William Burton (1575-1645), The Description of Leicester Shire. Containing Matters of Antiquitye, Historye, Armorye, and Genealogy (1638, 1st edn, 1622).
[236] Short-cut.
[237] As the text on the rest of this page is similar to information given elsewhere, it is not transcribed.

[I.154]

N.B. Haveing despatched all the manners in one parish, as in the parish of Ashby, proceed to next in order of alphabet, as for instance to Askham, following the foregoing method in every particular. This order I purpose to follow, excepting only in Appleby \ the chiefe Towne, / wherein I shall speake of bothe the Parish Churches which are conteined \ therein / and consequently of the Manner and Lordships allso. But in all other places I shud stick close to my Method proposed. and 1[t] of Ababy & its 2 parishes: St Lawrence & St Michaels. 2. of Ashby. 3. of Ascome &c.
N.B. See a Method elsewhere in better order: But this is not yett to be quite rejected, but compared with the other for the General Tract.

[Machell's notes on the recording of manors]

[I.197]

This must be corrected accordeing to the foregoeing method.
Manerium de M[o]rton
Morton takes its denome[na]\tion/ from the situation thereof upon a Moore, and has given name to a family of old, which was called de Morton. But I finde that in the 8. of Edward 2.[238] Thomas Musgrave, then a minor, held this lordship with Great Musgrave, halfe of Rookeby & proparte de Sandford, in which family of the Musgrave yett in being (as you shall finde in its proper place) it continued till of late yeres, that it was sold by [blank] Musgrave, to [blank] Helton. The ancestour \ Mr / Robert Helton, now justice of peace & coram,[239] whose Armes are [blank] and the pedegre of this family is as followeth {See the armes in a paper at Cap. de Kirkbythure.[240] There pedegree amongst my pedegrees.}
Hilton ... [blank][241]
Robert Hilton, justice of peace & coram = Mary \ 1 of / the daughters of [Blank] Hilton of Hilton Castle.[242]
{Johan. Hilton amicus meus dilectissimus immatura morte pracreptus:[243] anno 1676, flore ætatis & S.V. [sub verbo] mense junii in fol[io]}[244]
The manner house is Morton Hall \ 2 miles from the church,[245] / seated by brooke side under the high mountaine called Meal Fell, and near to that remarkeable hill called Murton Pike, out of which doth Isue a fluent spring, which is conv[ey]ed into the ~~house~~ Hall. This lordship yealds great plenty of limestone & of lead oare.

[I.198]

[Newby]
The manner house is a very fair one, built (of he[w]n stone) by R. N.,[246] 16[blank], att the high end of the village, 2 miles distant from the parish church & [blank] from Apple[by] which is the market they most frequent, and is [blank] from Penrith. It is now the seat of Mr John Nevinson, whose Armes and Ped[igree] take as followeth.

Note. Method for particular Lordships & Families

1. Name of the Manner; whence taken?
2. Its Appurtenances if any other Hamletts belonging there to.

---

[238] 1314-15.
[239] 'Coram' = 'before, in the presence of': often used in confusion with 'quorum': a senior Justice of the Peace. See 'quarum' and 'coram'. OED.
[240] Capital mansion of Kirkby Thore.
[241] Machell left space for a complete pedigree, but four generations remain blank until 'Robert Hilton = Mary Hilton the daughter of [Blank] Hilton of Hilton Castle' [n.d.]
[242] Hylton Castle in County Durham.
[243] MS: 'præerinptus'.
[244] 'John Hilton, my very dear friend, was swept away by early death in the flower of his age in 1676: under the heading of the month of June in the folio.'
[245] From St Michael's Appleby?
[246] Nevinson.

3. Places and things most remarkeable […][247]
4. The Ancient Inhabitants with their Arms.
5. The modern inhabitants ~~with there pedegre.~~
6. The Manner house its distance from Church and Situation, what Remarkeable in it. Whose Seate.
7. Their Arms & Ped.

This is that it may be Continued and Augmented.

1. Of the Country in General
   - Situation
   - Commodity
   - Number of parishes
   - Numbers of Castles and houses only nameing the nobility
   - Schools & Bridges
   - The Rivers and their Course
2. Division Into
   - Partes – 2
   - Hundred –3
   - Parishes – the manner of tenure
   - Lordships – in the respective parishes
3. An Index of Sirnames, of Places, of things remarkable.

{Method for the Parish

1. The church, how com[mon]ly called, to whome dedicated, where and by whome built, what rate, who patrone.
2. Appurtenances. What chaples thereto belonging of which in the Lordships where they are.
3. Things most re\m/ark, as Armes & Monuments.
4. How many Lordships or Townships belonging thereto, of which in order & 1^{t} of [blank] the first according to this method.}

[I.229]

Note. {I have don this into queryes in a Better Method – vide:}

1. The Church; It[s] dedication: Discribe it by Iles, Body, Quire & Stepel. with Belles. Note the windows & other monuments: 1. without. 2. within. Who Founder Benefactor? Patrone.What Chaunteryes in it.
2. What Chaples belonging to it {Whether demolished or in repare, & when & By whome founded when you come to speake of the place where they are Built.}
3. What Villages or Hamletts Belonging to the church. Name them with the Lords or Lordship they belong to.
4. How many manour ~~houses~~ or Lordships. and reduce the villages to the Lordships or mannours. Houses of Nobility and Gentry: to whome anciently, to whome now? with there Genealogies &c.
5. What remarkable as rarities: Accidents, Antiquities, Mines, Quarries, pitts &c. {each of them.}

Of Families

Lett this bee the method, in the list of Familyes.

His name; whence taken. His:

1. Descent & Time of Birth.
2. Honour dignity & preferments or Estate Acts and mon[uments].
3. His Armes, taken from seales or otherwise.
4. His Marrige, with his wifes Honourable estatate \ Acts & / Armes.
5. His & Her death Time they lived place of Burial.

[247] Five illegible words have been scored through here.

6. His & her Isue, and How disposed of.

N.B. This will be a Better method and therefore a Change, which is amiss in the Account of Viponts & Cliffords. It seemes they descend from the Viponts Lords of Westm'land a younger house for I mett with Robert son of Lawrence de Veteripont, 13. of King Edward I. [1284-85].

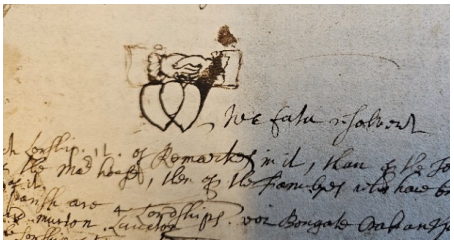

Figure 3. 'hec fata resolvent'. I.229.[248]

[I.157 & I.158]

Witnesses to the Writeings of Viponts.
A. Radulfus de Arincourt, Joh 9[0] [1207-08]
Simon Briton & Will[iam] filius Simonis B J; Philippus de Burgo, marryed Matild the daughter[249] of Sophin de Waldby; Simon Briton 9. John; Dominus Richard de Bellocampo (Dominus Thome filius Thomæ); Reginald Bellocamp Joh. R; Alexander de Brakestan (for Brakenbur) John 9. Henry de Cundale 9. J[ohn]; John clericus 9. Joh.

Anselmus de Barneis 8. J. [1206-07]
Gervise Damecourt: 8. John; G. Galfrid de Wateley, 9. J
Guido de Hellebeck: 9. John; John 9.; John de Harclay: John 9.
Robert filius Robert de Kaberghi: 8. John; Henry de Kabye (forsan pro Taby)[250]

[I.148]

The County of Westmerland in its present state as now.
Consider of a chapter de Schire Countys Wards Parishes Lordships – by selves, to present & then draw.[251]

Of the Division of Westm'land
It is divided into 2 \ great / Baronyes:
The Barony of Westmerland (KαT)[252] by way of eminence ~~as the principle~~ (Because its being the Chiefe, both for quantity & quality, both in greatness & goodness) leveing at the Bottom of Westmorland, the ridge of which hems them in as i[f] with a bulworke; and The Barony of Kendale, which lyetth S. of it, [be]yond the mountains, or rather amongst them. These subdivided into 5 Wardes or Hundreds whereof 3 doe pertaine to the Barony of Westmorland ~~& r[elate] only to The Barony of~~ Kendale, ~~and conteined in Both~~ with conteineing in \ them / 25 parishes. & in 2 only to The Barony of K. wherein are but [blank]; but that of Kendale is a very large one.

[248] 'They will resolve this fortune.'
[249] As written.
[250] 'Perhaps for Tebay.'
[251] This sentence, with an indistinct final word, has been placed within an inked border.
[252] Kα/T[ω]: In several places Machell follows the phrase 'Barony of Westm'land' with the letters KαT. The vowel is clearly written as the Greek letter alpha. This suggests that all the letters are meant to be read in the Greek (not the Roman) alphabet and that the word is abbreviated from the Greek adverb κα/τω meaning 'below'. Classical Greek authors sometimes used this word in a geographical connection to mean 'lower'. It is likely that Machell's meaning is similar and that this is a way of referring to the 'Bottom' of Westmorland.

{? } Query of the Barony of Apelby. If the Corp[oration], if Castle &c. If not before in a Chapter by itselfe. Here speake of a Barony out of Dugdall's Baronagium;[253] And a Court Baron; & describe this Barony by meets & boundes, & speake of the Messuagium Capitale & Baron of it.

[Dioceses]

1. In what Diocese. N.B. Here 1[t] describe it.

The Barony of Westm'land as to its ecclesiasti[cal] government is wholy under the Bishop of Carlile, & within that Diocese \ & is but one Denary / commonly the Denary of Westm'land.[254] And is divided into 3 wards \ or 100s: / East West & Midle, which are subdivided into severall parishes ~~and they agane~~ consisting of severall Manners & Lordships – of which hereafter.

[25 parishes 'with the Value and Patrones',[255] in Carlisle diocese]

	Ecclesia	Patronus	Valor Annu[256]					Decima Inde[257]
			£	s.	d.	ob.	q[u]	£	s.	d.	ob.	q[u]
1	Apelby 2: St Laurent (Vic.[258] both)	Dean & Capit Car.	009	5	1	ob	0	000	18	6	0	q[u]
2	St Michael	Episcop: Carliol	020	12	9	ob	0	002	1	4	ob	0
3	Askeby: Rectoria	Sir George Fletcher	023	13	4	0	0	002	7	4	0	0
4	Askam: Vic.	Not correct: the crown[259]	006	0	0	0	0	000	12	0	0	0
5	Bampton: Vic.	Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge	007	5	0	0	0	000	14	5	0	0
6	Barton: Vic.	Sir John Lowther de Sockbridge	011	1	0	0	0	001	2	1	1	q[u]
7	Burgh: Vic.	Queens College in Oxon	008	18	9	0	0	000	17	10	ob	0
8	Burgham: Rect.	Lord Baron of Westmorland	016	17	10	0	0	001	13	0	ob	q[u]
9	Cliburne: Rectory	Episcop. Carliolensis	009	1	4	0	0	000	18	1	ob	q[u]
10	Clifton: Rect.	Episcopus Carliolensis	008	3	4	0	0	000	16	4	0	0
11	Crosby Garret: Recto.		019	14	4	0	0	001	9	5	0	q[u]
12	Crosby Ravensworth: Vic.	Sir Ph. Musgrave {dub Patron de Crosby Garret}[260]	007	13	4	0	0	000	15	4	0	0
13	Dufton: Rect.	Lord B[aron] of Westmorland	009	9	6	0	0	001	18	0	ob	qu
14	Kirkby Thore: Rect.	Lord B \aron/ of Westmorland	037	17	8	ob	0	003	15	9	ob	0
15	Kirkby Stephan: V.	Lord Wharton	048	19	2	0	0	004	17	11	0	0
16	Lowther: Rect.	Sir John Lowther de Lowther	025	6	2	ob	0	002	10	8	ob	q[u]
17	Marton: Rect.	Lord of Westmorland	021	15	5	ob	0	002	3	6	ob	q[u]
18	Morland: Vic.	Dean & Capit. Carliol	011	18	0	0	0	001	3	9	ob	q[u]

[253] Dugdale, Baronagium. For the full title see 'Abbreviations'.
[254] An almost identical sentence is found in N&B1, 13.
[255] This quotation was originally placed on MS. I.160.
[256] 'Annual Value.'
[257] 'Value of the Tithes.'
[258] 'Vicarage.'
[259] Addition, probably in a later hand.
[260] 'Or is he patron of Crosby Garret?'

19	Musgrave: Rect	Episcop. Carliolensis	016	8	1	0	q[u]		001	12	10	ob	q[u]
20	Newbigging: R.	Mr Crakenthorpe	004	14	0	0	0		000	9	5	0	0
21	Ormside: Rect.	Episcopus Carliolensis	017	17	8	ob	0		001	15	9	0	q[u]
22	Overton: Vicar.	Parochia de Overton	016	17	4	0	0		001	13	8	ob	q[u]
23	Ravenstonedale	[Blank]	[blank]						[blank]
24	Shap: Vicaria	[Blank]	008	15	7	0	0		000	17	6	ob	q[u]
25	Warcop: Vicar.	Mr Brathwate	009	5	1	ob	0		000	18	6	0	q[u]

[I. 619][261]

A Catalogue of the Dignities of Carlisle Church

The Rev[d] Mr Machell Rector of Kirkbythore in Westmereland, this

[I. 616]
{ad Buly et dat.}

A Catalogue of the Bishops of Carlisle

Anno Domini 1133
33 Hen. 1 — 1. Athelwold, Adelwaldus, Adelwulphus or Adelwoldus
Anno Domini 1157
3[0] Hen. 2 — 2. Bernard
Anno Domini 1218
1[0] Hen. 3 — 3. Hugo, Abbot de Bello
4. Walter Malclerk
Anno Domini 1247
30 Hen. 3 — 5. Sylvester de Everdon
Anno Domini 1255
38 Hen. 3 — 6. Thomas de Veteri Ponte or Vipount
Anno Domini 1258
41 Hen. 3 — 7. Robertus de Chancy
Anno Domini 1280
7 Ed. 1 — 8. Radulphus de Ireton or Irton
Anno Domini 1288
15 Ed. 1 — 9. Johannes de Hal\a/ughton or Halton
Anno Domini 1325
18 Ed. 2 — 10. Johannes de Rosse or Ruse
Anno Domini 1332
6 Ed. 3 — 11. Johannes de Kirkby[262]
Anno Domini 1353
37 Ed. 3 — 12. Gilbertus de Welton
Anno Domini1363
37 Ed. 3 — 13. Thomas de Appleby
Anno Domini 1396
20 Rich. 2 — 14. Robertus de Reed
Anno Domini 1396
20 Rich. 2 — 15. Johannes de Merik's or de Novo Mercatu

[261] This page consists of the sealed outer paper of the list that follows; it is not in Machell's hand but appears to have been obtained from Bewley Castle, once a residence of the bishops of Carlisle. Compare this list with the longer, detailed list in N&B2, 251-300.

[262] MS.IV.85 contains a narrative relating to this bishop in William Nicolson's hand. Viz. '1343. A significavit is sent by Bishop Kirkby against John Aglionby; who had incurr'd excommunication ipso facto (by the Canon) by strikeing and drawing blood on the body of William Hare a Clergyman, and had continued above 40 dayes under that sentence. Reg. de Kirkby, p.478.' A significavit was a writ employed in ecclesiastical cases, issued by Chancery for the arrest of an excommunicated person; also, the bishop's certificate on which such a writ was based. OED.

Anno Domini 1400
2 Hen. 4	16. William de Strickland
Anno Domini 14\19/
6 Hen. 5	17. Roger Whelpdale*
Anno Domini 1423
1 Hen. 6	18. William Barrow
Anno Domini 1430
8 Hen. 6	19. Marmaduke Lumley
Anno Domini1450
28 Hen. 6	20. Nicholas Closs or Close
Anno Domini 1452
30 Hen. 6	21. William Pearcy
Anno Domini 1462
2 Ed. 4	22. John Kingscot
Anno Domini 1464
4 Ed. 4	23. Richard Scroope[263]
Anno Domini 1468
8 Ed. 4	24. Edward Story
Anno Domini 1478
18 Ed. 4	25. Richard Bell
Anno Domini 1496
12 Hen. 7	26. William Senhouse
Anno Domini 1503
19 Hen. 7	27. Roger Layborn or Layburn
Anno Domini1509
1 Hen. 8	28. John Penny
Anno Domini 1520
12 Hen. 8	29. John Kyte or Kite
Anno Domini 1537
29 Hen. 8	30. Robert Aldrith or Aldridge
Anno Domini 1556
1^0 Mary	31. Owen Oglethorp
Anno Domini 1561
3^0 Eliz.	32. John Best
Anno Domini 1570
12^0 Eliz.	33. Richard Barnes
Anno Domini 1577
19 Eliz.	34. John May
Anno Domini 1598	35. Henry Robinson
Anno Domini 1616	36. Robert Snoden
Anno Domini 1622	37. Richard Milburn
Anno Domini 1624	38. Richard Senhouse or Senos
Anno Domini 1626	39. Francis White
Anno Domini 1629	40. Barnaby Potter
Anno Domini 1642	41. James Usher
Anno Domini 1660	42. Richard Sterne
Anno Domini 1664	43. ~~R~~Edward Rainbow

[263] MS.IV.85 contains a narrative relating to this bishop in William Nicolson's hand. Viz. '1465. Bishop Scroop (in his Chappal at Rose) enjoyn'd \ Christopher Curwyn of Cammerton / a penance of being lash'd round his parish church and afterwards entering with a Wax Taper (of 1.li weight) burning in his hand, and cover'd with a white sheet &c. Entering also into a Recognisance of 40 marks not to converse any more with Alice Grayson, the other Fornicator. Reg. Epi. R. Scroop.'

Anno Domini 1684	44. Thomas Smith

A Catalogue of the Priors of Carlisle[264]

Anno Domini 1304	1. Ethelwold or Adelwold
	2. Walter, Prior
	III. John, Prior
	IV. Bartholemew, Prior
	V. Radulph, prior
	VI. Robert de Morvil
	VII. Adam de Felton
	VIII. Alanus, Prior
	IX. John de Halton or Halaughton
	X. John de Kendall
	XI. Adam de Warwick
	XII. William de Hautewyssel
Anno Domini 1308	XIII. Robert de Helpeston
Anno Domini 1325	XIV. Simon de Hautewyssel
	XV. William de Hurtchworth or Hustword
	XVI. John de Kirkby, Prior
Anno Domini 1350	XVII. Galfridus
	XVIII. John de Horn-Castle
Anno Domini 1350	XIX. John de Bothcastre
	XX. Thomas de Hextildesham
	XXI. John de Penrith
	XXII. William de Dalston, Prior
	XXIII. Robert de Edenhall
	XXIV. Thomas de Hoton
	XXV. Thomas Barnaby, Prior
	XXVI. Thomas de Haythwait
	XXVII. Thomas Goudibour
	XXVIII. Simon Senous or Senhouse
	XXIX. Christopher Slee.

A Catalogue of the Deans of Carlile[265]

	1. Lancelot Salkeld
	2. Sir Thomas Smith, knight[266]
	3. John Woll'y Esq.
Anno Domini 1610	4. Christopher Parkins
	5. Francis White
	6. William Peterson
	7. Thomas Comber
Anno Domini 1660	8. Guy Carleton
Anno Domini 1671	9. Thomas Smith
Anno Domini 1684	10. Thomas Musgrave
	11. William Grahme

[264] Compare with N&B2, 301-03.
[265] Compare with N&B2, 303-05.
[266] See Part 1, Ch.14: Kirkbythore and Newbiggin,

Chancellours[267]

Anno Domini 1220	1. Adam de Kirkby
	2. Walterus de Ullesby
	3. Adam de Appleby
Anno Domini 1337	4. Robert de Southayks
Anno Domini 1355	5. Adam de Caldbeck
	6. John de Appleby
Anno Domini 1378	7. William, Rector of Bownes
Anno Domini 1379	8. William del Hall {NB* Here is a defect in the records near 200 years}
Anno Domini 1552	9. Henry Dethick
	10. George Dethick*
Anno Domini 1622	11. Isaac Singleton
Anno Domini 1660	12. Robert Lowther
Anno Domini 1666	13. Henry Marshall
Anno Domini 1667	14. Rowland Nicols
Anno Domini 1685	15. ThomasTullie

*Thomas Burton, Anno Domini 1581, out of the probat of Mr Knipe's will in the custody of the Vicar of Warcop.

[I. 618]

A Catalogue of the Arch-Deacons of Carlile[268]

A.D. 1230	1. Robertus
A.D. 1233	2. Petrus de Ros or Ross
A^0 17 Henry 3	3. Gervasius de Lowther
A.D. 1293	4. Magister Richardus
A.D/ 28 E.1	5. Petrus de Insula
A.D. 1311	6. Gilbert de Halaughton (or Halton)
A.D. 1318	7. Henry de Karliol
A.D. 1323	8. William de Kendale
A.D. 1354	9. Richardus de Arthureth
A.D. 1363	10. William de Rothbury
A.D. 1364	11. John de Appleby

{here is a defect in the registers for above 200 years to Eliz.[269]}

1548	12. George Nevill
	13. Edward Threlkeld
	14. Henry Dethick
	15. George Warkwic
	16. Robert Wright
	17. Isaac Singleton
A.D. 1660	18. Peter Wentworth[270]

[267] Compare with N&B2, 305-07.
[268] Compare with N&B2, 307-08.
[269] Elizabeth I's reign began in 1558.
[270] Peter Wentworth is not listed as an archdeacon by Nicolson and Burn but Nightingale includes him in his Ejected of 1662, Viz. 'Peter Wentworth, M.A., D.D., 1645-1660 (?), son of Thomas Wentworth of Oxford, and related to the Earl of Strafford. Magdalen Hall, Oxford, 1617-18, matriculated at the age of 16; Fellow of Balliol 1621; took his MA at Cambridge in 1623 ; B.D. 1631, and D.D. 1633. Rector of Riseholme, Lincolnshire, 1633. Dean of Armagh from 1637 to 1641. The Ulster Rebellion in 1641 necessitated his flight from Ireland; his appointment to the Archdeaconry of Carlisle and the Great Salkeld living followed. Whether he was resident is not clear, still less is it whether he held these appointments until the Restoration. He was in charge of Buriton in Hampshire, in January, 1658 …At the Restoration, reinstatement in his former deanery or an Irish Bishopric was offered to him, but he declined to return to Ireland, and accepted only the rectory of Haseley, in Oxfordshire. He

A.D.1660	19. Lewis West
A.D. 1667	20. Thomas Peachel
A.D. 1669	21. Thomas Musgrave
A.D. 1682	22. William Nicholson

[I.160A][271]

[Churches and Chapels in East Ward]

A Perfect Shedule of all the Churches & Chappelles within the East Ward within the Bottome of the County of Westm'land and what ~~churches~~ Constablewicks as in each Parish.

{Westm'land East Ward}

{ad 9? 12}

	Constablewicks	Parish Churches	Chappelles
{Mr Pety.}	Orton	}
	Raisebeck	} Orton
	Langdale	}
	Bretherdale	}
	Ravenstonedaile Parish divided into 3 Angles	Ravenstonedaile
{Pendragon Castle}	Mallerstang		Mallerstange
{Lord Wharton}	Wharton & Nateby	Kirkby Stephen
	Kirkby Stephen
{Sir Musgrave}	Hartley
	Soulby		Soulby
{Scaife}	Smardale & Waiteby
{Neatby}	Winton
	Keyber & the Outside
	Crosby Garrett	[perished][272]
	Musgrave
	Stainmoore	Brough puto	Stainmoore
	Brough Sowerby
	Market Brough
{Lord Thanet}	Church Brough
{Scaife}	Helbeck
	Musgrave Great &
	Flitholme & Langrig	Musgrave
{Mr Brath[waite], the Hall}	Warcopp	} Warcopp
{Scaife, the Tower}	Blaytarne
{Mr Hilton; demolishd schoolmaster house cald New Hall}	Burton & Sandford died at Bath, July 22, 1661, at the age of 60; and was buried in the Abbey Church. A brass plate there bears the following inscription: Petrus Wentworth S.T.P. Patriciorum proles, doctrinae maritus. Summus Hyberniae decanus, Angliae praeconium primns. Ob. 22 Jul. 1661.' Extracted from Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 360-61.

[271] In the MS, this is written on a long, narrow piece of paper, folded at the foot and later repaired.

[272] I.160A has been restored here; some text is illegible.

{Mr Hilton}	Hilton & Murton		Murton Church demolished
	Bondgate	} Bongate
{Machell Esq.}	Crackinthropp		Crackenthorpe Chaple demolished
{Mr Clapham}	Dufton Parish	Dufton
	Long Marton
{Mr Cole}	Brampton	} Long Marton
{Jone Armstrong}	Knock
{Mr Warton, Hall Mr Machell, Rectory}	Kirkbythore
{Sandford, Barw. H[owgill] Castle}	Milburne & Grange	} Kirkbythore	Milburne Chappelle called Kirkhouse
Mr Dalston	Temple Sowerby		Temple Sowerby
Castle, Lord Thanet	Appleby		Note: Appleby is divided part in the East and part in the West Ward
	Scattergate & Burrells	} Appleby
	Hoffe & Drybeck
Mr Warcop	Cowby part of Appleby parish but in the West Ward

[I.160B]

	East Ward	Parish Churches	Chappelles
	Constablewicks
	~~Colby~~
Mr Hilton	Ormside Greate & Ormside Little	} Ormside
	Asby & Winderwath
	Asby Coatsforth	} Asby
Mr Musgrave, Asby Grange	Asby Little
Mr Crakenthorpe & Crak.	Newbygin Parish	Newbygin

Westm'land Midle & West ward

	Hartsopp & Patterdaile		Patterdale
	Martindale	} Barton	Martindale
	Barton & Powley
Lowther of Whit[e]haven	Sockbridge & Low [W]inder
Lowther of Lowther	Yanwath & Bridge
Mr Sandford	Askham
	Helton & Dale	Askham
	Bampton Parish with Swindale & Mardale
	Being part of Shapp parish	Bampton

	[perished]
	[perished]
	[Di]vides there
Abbey	Shapp Rosegill
	Sleddale, Hardendale & Wastdale	Shapp	Mardale
Lowther	Lowther, Hackthorp & Whale	Lowther
~~Dalston~~	Melkinthorp
Wiber	Clifton[and] Dikes	Clifton
Bird & Hospital	Browham
	Woodside & Moorhouses	Ninekirks	Browham
Lowther Sir John Mr Wivell	Cliburne & Winderwath	Cliburne
Halton	Bolton
	Kings Meaburne
	Sleagill
Jack Nevinson	Newby	Morland	Bowlton
Mr Backhouse, Atkinson	Morland
Crakanthorp & Fletch[er]	Grate Strickland
Mr Dalston	Little Strickland
	Thrimby		Thrimby {to Morland puto}
Captain Lowther	~~Colby~~	In St Michaels Apleby
	Mauldsmeaburne & Reagill
Mr Dodsworth	Crosby Ravensworth	Crosby Ravensworth
	Bancke & Rowe
	Birckbeck Felles

[I.148]

Division into Wards

{Here speake of Wards or Hundreds. But now to notifye these severall into which the Barony is divided}

[I.751]

This Barony of Westm'land ~~commonly called the Bottom of Westm'land~~ Is subdivided into 3 wards – east ward West ward & Midle ward whereof the Last is quite lost & extinguished nor can wee tell how or where to finde it, unless wee ~~may take leave to~~ suppose, that the town of Appelby (which lyes in the midst betwixt the 2 wards) has ~~have~~ bin ~~called~~ \ accounted / whilst it was in its Glory, the Midle ward. of which I seeme to reteine som reliques; for it is not oblieged to repare any Bridges \ in either ward / excepting its owne. The East ward lyes, for the most part, on the East side of the River Eden, whence it taketh its name; and conteineth in it [blank] parishes.

[Machell's Notes: I.751] {Method: Consider?}
The Best may well be to follow Eden with the stremes that flow on East side into it from several Parishes But then Crak[enthorpe] come afor K[irkbythore] que injuriam fecit familiae Machellorum. Non mors.[273]
A list of High Constables, & Coroners. {Query: where sh[ould] this come in?}

[273] 'Which is an injustice to the Machell family. Not death.'

[I.148]

The East Ward is that \ tract of ground / which lyes on the east side of The Great River Eden, the West Ward, that which lies opposite to it. And the Midle Ward \ I take to be / ~~is~~ the \ ancient / Town & ~~Corporation~~ \ Burrow / of Apleby (which lyes in the Midle on each side of the river; & \ being som times / ~~which once was~~ answerable to a \ full / 5th \ part of / the County \ of Westmorland /~~when it was in its Glory~~ \ as shall be shown when I com to hear of it. / {Speake of this in the particular description of Apleby.}And yett continues the shire \ County / Town of Westm'land; being free from the \ all / Taxes & Contributions towards \ highways & / bridges & ways \ &c. / in the other 2 wardes, & repaireing her own: whence I doe conclude it The Midle Ward, which other wise is quite swallowed up of the other 2. For \ now / no man ~~now~~ liveing can certainely tell me (if this be not it) where the Midle Ward was,[274] although its name remanes on record in the Rolls of the County to this very day.[275]

[I.160]

In the East Ward
Apleby, Bongate, Colby, Overhoff, Rawe, Asheby, Little Musgrave, Crosby Garrett, Knockes, Doffton, Langton, Marton, Bra[mp]ton, Murton, Hilton, Crakenthorp, Ormside, Warcop, Neatby, Soulby, Kirkby Thore, Temple Sowerby, Newbigging, Mylborn, Great Musgrave, Kirkby Stephen, Winton, Hartlay, Sowerby, Waytby, Caber, Burght.
The sume of all grane to be sold in the Eastward: 106 quart. 2 bushels.

In the Midle Ward
Lowther, Emontbrigg, Yanwath, Winder, Burbanke, Bruham, Morland, Ascome, Hilton Fleyhun,[276] Clifton, Hagthorp, Mekyl-Strikland, Thrynby, Bolton, Mebron, Morehouses, Newby, Whytbor, Maldys Meborn, Crosby Ravensworth, Clybborn, Shap, Whale, Melkinthorp.

[I.135]

Ad Generalem Westmorlandiæ Descriptionem[277]

And \ now / to proceed to a more particular description of Westmerland. I shall begin with The East Ward of it: And therein first with the Kirkbythore Parish (which lyes in the very north pointe of this ward, \ & / next unto Cumberland) both because it is the place of my residence,[278] and allso it falls out to be that parish wherein the ancient Gallatum stood, which was the iiij city of the Brigantes i.e. Counties Yorkshire, Lanc., Bishoprick of Durham, Westm'land, when the Romans first Invaded Brittan & som time after.[279] {And this is confirmed by a stone set up in the Gardine house at Apleby School thus inscribed:} {Claudius Drusus Caesar Emp.}[280] {Speed p.194.}

---

[274] MS: 'where \ it should befored {stand} / the Midle Ward was \ stood.'/
[275] See also I.751, below. Nicolson and Burn describe the wards thus. 'Wards …four in number… being the districts of the like number of High Constables, who presided over the wards … for repelling plundering parties out of Scotland. Two of these wards are in the barony of Kendal, to wit, Kendal and Lonsdale Wards; and two in the Bottom, called East and West Wards: There was anciently a Middle Ward between these two last; but since watching and warding ceased, that hath fallen into and been absorbed by the other two.' N&BI, 12-13.
[276] Helton Flecket, now known as Helton: N&B1, 427.
[277] Here, Machell tells us that he intends to begin the parish sections with his own parish of Kirkby Thore; specifically, the village of Temple Sowerby. His settled method, however (described in detail in several parts of the six volumes), was to place the parish sections in alphabetical order within each barony, after describing the major town.
[278] Machell was presented to Kirkby Thore in 1677, see Editor's Introduction.
[279] MS: 'and allso ~~because & Because~~ it falls out to be that parish wherein the ancient Gallacum stood, which was the ~~Chief place not only~~ \ iiij city of the Brigantes / ~~In these Westmorland But in~~ \ i.e. / C. Yorkshire Lanc. ~~&~~ \ Bishoprick of / Durham, \ Westmorland ~~& Northumberland~~ / when the Romans first Invaded Brittan & som time after.'
[280] The last two margin comments have been moved from the top of MS.I.135B.

{Having spoke of the Parish with it[s] description by Meets & Boundes & what it affords, mention, in Generall, then divided thus: It is divided in 3 Lordship[s]: K[irkby Thore], Milburne & Temple S[owerby] – I shall begin with S[owerby] first because the place where my B. began {And so follow Eden (& the Military Way, calld the Hee Street) Till I arrive at far end of this Easterne Ward. I will begin at Eden Side. Thus, haveing made my perambulation I will tell you what I have observd.}

[Machell's Notes: I.135]

But Query: whether I shall begin my perambulation from west to north & so on with the son[281] as I doe the ward, or the contrary way.}

[I.750]

{1. The Barony of Westm'land described}

The Barony of Westm'land is otherwise called The Bottom of Westm'land from its low situation & is a most delicate Champion Countrey with mountaines as with a fence or Bulworke.[282] And lyeth in the N. part of Westm'land / extends in length from Brough under Stanemore eastwards to Emot Bridge, westwards about [blank] \ being watered with Eden, Emote & Lowther alius / And from ~~K which~~ Newbying, which is the North \ north point of Kirkbythore Parish / to Greata brig in the south about \ 12, in which you are as in a Gardine. /

{Sleddall, Loan and many less principall Brookes of Westm'land, is cald the Garden: The Garden of Eden.}

{Apalby Castle}

{Caput Baroniæ[283] & wherein formerly the Sessions Assises & prisners were kept.}

The Principal Seate of this Barony of Westm'land is at Appelby Castle which is Caput Baroniæ – to which is annext the shirefalty of the County ~~of Westm'land~~ by ancient Inheritance ~~being Granted~~ \ given ~~&~~ by King John / to Robert de Veteripont in the iiijth of his reign [1202-03]. And so has passed by the Heires general from him to the Cliffords.

{The Tuftons}

And from the Cliffords to The Tuftons of Tufton; now Earles of Thanet, Barons of Westm'land & shieriffs by inheritance, & Lords of the Honours of Appelby & Skipton – of whom wee shall give a particular History when wee com to speake of Appelby Castle.

There are 2 other places which beare the names of Baronyes, Sc. Dufton & Barton, But I thinke they are only called so because they belonged to Dakers of Daker who were sometime seald Barons} {And the other to the Barons of K[endal.]}*

[Machell's Notes: I.750]

*{Q. whether here or there? The Succession of the Barons of Westm'land

[281] 'sun'.

[282] MS: 'The Barony of Westmorland is ~~commonly~~ \ otherwise / called the Bottom of Westmorland from Its \ low / situation ~~being plane and Champion lyetth in the N. part of Westmorland~~ & Is a \ most / delicate Champion Countrey ~~excepting the mountains with which it is~~ encompassed \ with mountaines / as with a ~~Girdle wall~~ \ fence / or Bulworke/ ~~and~~ \ ~~this Bottom of W. it'~~

[283] For 'caput baroniæ', see the Latin Glossary.

[I.41]

II
Part 2
Collections in Order to the Generall Discription
&
Division of Westm'la

Figure 4. Proposed Title Page, 'These Armes with the Pedigrees adjoyned will make a pretty Booke.' I.41.

[A.] The Method may be thus

1. A prefatorie epistle vindicateing the County from aspertions and showing that it is called Westmoreland from Mo\o/res whether fe[r]till or otherwise \ If not from Morus the King. /
2. Procede to speake of the County of Westm'land and there show: 1[t]. Why tis called a County, where Cont. & shireve, when this division first begann. 2. Why Westm'land. 3. Proceed to its description – By bounds & Limits, by figure & extent, by Quality of the soyle (1. hill, 2. daile, 3. vaile) and allso of the inhabitants \ Their customes Tenures & sports. /
3. Proceed to the division into Botom & Barony; Hundred or Wards: general parishes & Lordships.[284]

[284] 4^0 = quarto.

4. Partic[ular]. Proceed to speake of parish & Lordships therein as the more particular Tract de Westm'land and that according to alphabeticall order in the parishes, except in the shire towne, which requireing a more particular tract than the rest and haveing 2 parish churches in it, will oblige me to treat of them under the Na[me] of Appleby.

[Machell's Notes: I.41]

*These Armes with the Pedigrees adjoyned will make a pretty Booke[285] & See my Notes on Heraldry out of Boswell.[286] It is in 4^0.

[I.43][287]

Discriptio Generalis

1. Of Westm'land in Gennerall.
2. It[s] Limits.
3. Why so called? 1. Why County? 2. Why Westm'land?
4. The Quality of the soyle.
5. The Commodityes
    1. Westm'land why soe called? Sc. from the moors but Camden's sense of moor refuted & the fertility of the soyle vindicated §2. 3: p. 6. & 7. {2. Dales 3. Vailes 1. Hills}[288]
    2. It General description:
        i. By Bounds & Limites.
        ii. By figure & extent.
        iii. By it qualities – pag. 7. §8. {Sheep, mines, quarries, peeks, woods, turfes, deere, Coal} Why called a County §3. Whence the word comes, whence shire & shireue?[289] ibidem. When England was first devided into shires §4 \ p. 4 / (How many shires it was 1st divided into? How many att the Conquest? §5. & why this with some other Northern Counytes were not then taxed) \ and that Westm'land never belong'd to the Scotts §6.[290] /
        iv. {Here a Catalogue of Earls & Sheriffs.}
        v. Thence occasion to condole his want of assistance that shall undertake to write of this subject, with other imped[iments].
        vi. & here I may take occasion to share it never did belong unto Scotland.

    3. Of the rivers in Westm'land, their courses with mention of Gentlemen's seats upon them, as allso Milns & Bridges. p.15.
    4. Of the highwayes or great roads immediate post Fluvi.[291]
    5. A Table of Raites of One division in the East Ward which showes the \ proportion / rent of every towne therein {not to be published} & the Royal Ayde which they payd {not much pertinent} as allso of Demaines & their ~~rent &~~ \ proportion to the / Ayde: p.1.

[285] In the MS, Machell lightly sketched a coat of arms (5cm x 4cm) on either side of his title.
[286] John Boswell (or Bossewell), heraldic writer and author of the Workes of Armorie (Three volumes: 'The Concordes of Armorie', 'The Armorie of Honor', 'Of Coates and Creastes' (1572). 'Contains between three and four hundred coats of arms particularly well cut in wood': John Holmes, Descriptive Catalogue of Books in his Library, Vol 2 (London, 1830), 15.
[287] Also numbered p.4.
[288] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 759; see also N&B1, 1, 3, for similar text.
[289] Shireue: sheriff.
[290] MS: §5.
[291] 'After rivers.'

[III.vii]

A collection of what relates to Westm'land
Out of Mr Adam's Index Villaris, London 1680[292]

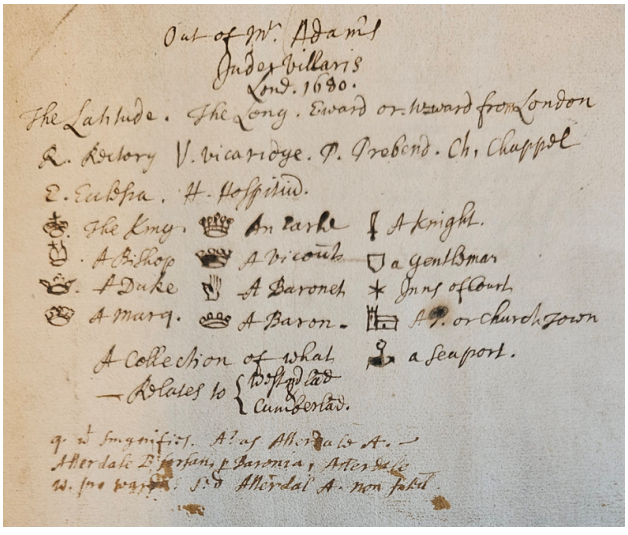

Figure 5. 'Out of Mr Adam's Index Villaris'. III.vii.

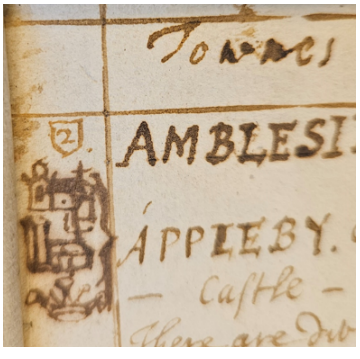

Figure 6. Examples of symbols, based on the Index Villaris. III.1.

[292] Machell conducted a highly charged correspondence with John Adams, see Part 3, Ch.2, E. Correspondence with John Adams, cartographer, 1686/7. In 1680, Adams published the Index Villaris, or, An alphabetical table of all cities, market-towns, parishes, villages, private seats in England and Wales … (reprinted with additions in 1690 and 1700). It was compiled from sources such as hearth tax returns, navigational works, and works to aid land travellers, notably those of John Ogilby, and designed to be used in conjunction with the map. It refers to 24,000 places using geographical co-ordinates, see Elizabeth Baigent, 'Adams, John (d.1738)'. ODNB. The full title gives some idea of the scope of this work: An exact register, alphabetically digested, of all the cities, market-towns, parishes, villages, the hundred, lath, rape, ward, wapentake, or other division of each county the bishopricks, deaneries, churches, chappels, hospitals, with the rectories and vicarages in England and Wales and their respective valuations in the King's books, the private seats of the King, nobility and gentry, the number of Parliament-men sent by cities or burroughs, the inns of court, colleges, inns of chancery, or other societies, the latitude of each particular place, and difference of longitude, East or West from London : explained by words at length, and symbols or characters, in a plain and most intelligible method : hereto is added a perfect catalogue of the nobility of England and Wales to the present time, Feb. 20, 1700, with their respective seats, and the counties wherein they are situate.

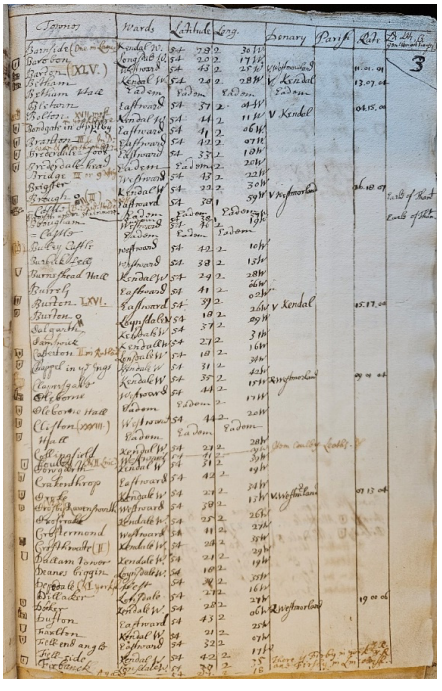

Figure 7. Part of Machell's Township Chart. III.3.

[III.1]

Towns, Wards, Latitude and Longitude, Deanery, Parish, Rate and Lords
[Chart inspired by the Index Villaris of John Adams]

⛊ In the chart below denotes a gentleman
[† in the chart below denotes a parish or church town]

	Towns	Wards	Latitude	Long. from London e. or w.	Denary	Parish	Rate	Lords & Gentry houses
⛊2. †	AMBLESIDE	Kendal	54-35	2-40 w.
An earle	APPLEBY	Eastward	54-41	2-08 w.	Westmorland	St Lawr. V. St Mich. V.		Earls of Thanet
	Castle	eadem	eadem	eadem	eadem
There are diverse other towns of this name: Sc. ~~Appellby~~ in Derbyshire in the Hundred of Ripington; in Lincolnshire in the Hundred of Manlake, & Appleby Magna & Parva in the counties of Leicester, & Hundred of Sparkingho; and Appleby Street in the county & Hundred of Hartford. From all which that this may be distinguished I would rather choose to write it Appelby, as it has bin of old. Q: Locus Appellationum or Apalby from Aballaba, its ancient name, tho I must confess that I never met with it writ in this manner.
⛊1	Applethwate	Kendal W.	54-31	2-38 w.				1.
? 0	Armside ? Ormside	Eastward	54-34	2-09 w.				1.
? 0	Arnwith	Westward	54-43	2-22 w.
† 2	Asby: He calls it Cotsford, the church town

⛊3	Asby Cotsford	Eastward	54-35	2-10 west	Westm'land		R. £33. 13s. 4d
1	Asby Magna	eadem	54-36	eadem
1	Asby Overgrange	eadem	54-34	2-09 west
0	Asby Parva	eadem	54-35	2-08 west
⛊?	Ashthwate	Kendal	54-30	2-21 west
⛊1	Askham	Westward	54-43	2-22 west
There are ~~many~~ \ IIII / other townes of this name in Yorkshire and Notingham
⛊2	Bampton Patric	Westward	54-39	2-22 west
There are 2 more BAMTONS both as I take it market towns, the one in Devonshire, the other in Oxfordshire
0	Banck	Westward	54-37	2-23 west
There is also a place in Cumberland in Lethward of the same name, where ⛊ 1 and another in Staffordshire in the Hundreds of Pirehil: 0
† 1	Bamton	Westward	54-39	2-23 w.		v.	7:1:4
There is also Bamton Parva & Bamto Kirk or rather Kirkbamton in Cumberland
								[III.3]
	Barnside (one in Lancashire)	Kendal W.	54-28	2-30 w.
⛊1	Barobon	Longsdale w.	54-20	2-17 w.
†	Barton (XLV)	Westward	54-43	2-25 w.	V. Westmoreland		11:01:01
†	Betham	Kendal W.	54-20	2-25 w.	V. Kendal		04:15:00
	Betham Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem	eadem
	Bletarn	Eastward	54-37	2-04 w.
†	Bolton XVII Most in Yorkshire	Kendal W.	54-44	2-11 w.	V. Kendal		04:15:00
⛊1	Bondgate in App\e/lby	Eastward	54-41	2-06 w.
⛊1	Branton III Sc. in Devon & Northumberland	Eastward	54-42	2-07 w.
⛊1	Brederdale-Foot	Eastward	54-33	2-18 w.
⛊1	Brederdale-Head Bridge III or 9 de[…]	eadem	eadem	2-20 w.
	Brigster	Westward	54-43	2-22 w.
⛊1	Brough o (III) (B. East Rid. Holderness)	Kendal W.	54-22	2-30 w.			16:18:07
An Earle	Castle	Eastward	54-38	1-59 w.	V. Westmorland			Earle of Thanet
	& Brough upon Stainmore	eadem	54-38	1-19 w.
	Brougham	Westward	54-46	2-19 w.				Earle of Thanet
	Castle	eadem	eadem	eadem
A Bishop	Buley Castle	Westward	54-42	2-10 w.
	Burbeck Fells	Westward	54-38	2-13 w.
⛊	Burne Head Hall	Kendal W.	54-29	2-28 w.
	Burrels	Eastward	54-41	2-06 w.
⛊1	Burton (LXVI)	Eastward	54-39	2-02 w.

⛊1	Burton 0	Loynsdale w.	54-18	2-26 w.	V. Kendal		15:17:00
	Calgarth	Kendale W.	54-37	2-29 w.
	Camswick	Kendall W.	54-27	2-31 w.
⛊1	Casterton II in Rutland	Lonsdale W.	54-18	2-16 w.
⛊1	Chappel in the Ings	Kendale W.	54-31	2-34 w.
	Clapergate	Kendale W.	54-35	2-42 w.
†	Cleborne	Westward	54-44	2-15 w.	R. Westmorland		09:01:04
⛊1	Cleborne Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem
⛊1	Clifton (XXXIII)	Westward	54-44	2-15 w.
⛊1	Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem
	Collingfield	Kendal W.	54-27	2-28 w.
⛊1	Coulby (& II Linc.)	Westward	54-41	2-09 w.	Item Coulby Leaths
	Congarth	Kendal W.	54-31	2-39 w.
⛊1	Crakenthrop	Eastward	54-42	2-09 w.
⛊1	Croke	Kendale W.	54-27	2-34 w.
⛊1	Crosby (VI) Ravensworth	Westward	54-38	2-13 w.	V. Westmorland		07:13:04
	Croscrake	Kendale W.	54-25	2-26 w.
	Crostermond	Westward	54-41	2-27 w.
⛊1	Crosthwate (II)	Kendale W.	54-24	2-35 w.
⛊	Dallam Tower	Kendale W.	54-21	2-29 w.
	Deanes Biggin	Loynsdale W.	54-18	2-19 w.
	Depedale (& 1 Yorksh.)	West	54-39	2-35 w.
	Dillaker	Lonsdale	54-27	2-16 w.
⛊1	Docker	Kendale W.	54-28	2-27 w.
†	Dufton	Eastward	54-43	2-06 w.	R. Westmorland		19:00:06
⛊	Farlton	Kendal W.	54-21	2-25 w.
⛊1	Fell-end Angle	Eastward	54-32	2-07 w.
	Fell-side	Kendal W..	54-42	2-17 w.
⛊1	Firbanck	Lonsdale W.	54-27	2-35
	Agane		54-27	2-18	There is Firby in Yorkshire & Firsby in Lincolnshire

[III.4]

*There are many places ~~in England~~ which begin with Glen, as first Glen, in Northamptonshire; 2. Glen Magna & Parva, & Glenfield in Leicester; 3. Glenrumney in Glamorgan in Wales.
⛊ > Graveship – Kendal Ward: 54-25/ 2-26 w.
+ many towns begin with Grisi, as Gresby in Lincoln; 2. Gresfords in Denbigh, Gresham in Norfolk & Gresham College in Midlesex, & Gresley, & Greshey Castle in Darby. Q: de Gres?
Bewcastle Nixon in the same ward & same degree of latitude; long. 02-16 w.
Birkby ⛊ 1; Allendale A. 54-27/ 3-07 w.

Birkby ⛊ 1; Allendale B.. 54-50/3-04. w.[293]
Hutton: there are xxx places of this denomination, several of which have distinguishing termes aded unto them. Sc. in Essex, Lancashire, Somerset, Yorke, Cumberland, Durham, Dorset, but most in Yorkshire.

[III.5]

⛊	Glenkwen	Westward	54-40	2-38 w.
⛊	Grazinghall*	Kendall War.	54-30	2-19 w.
†	Gresmere +	Kendal War.	54-36	2-45 w.	R. Kendal		28:11:05 ½
⛊[294]	Hackthrop (14 or 15)	Westward	54-43	2-20 w.
⛊	Hall	Eadem	Eadem	Eadem
	Harberwen[295] (3)	Westward	44-37	2-16 w.
	Hardingdale (7)	Westward	54-37	2-21 w.
	Hartley (xi)	Eastward	54-33	2-00 w.
	Castle	eadem	eadem	eadem
	Hartshop	Westward	54-38	2-35 w.
⛊	-Hall	Eedem	eadem	eadem
⛊	Haverbrack Hall	Kendale War.	54-21	2-29 w.
⛊	Harose House	Kendal War.	54-31	2-16 w.
	Haye (VI or VII)	Kendal W.	54-28	2-24 w.
⛊1	Hedcorne (1 in Kent)	Eastward	54-40	1-58 w.
	Helbeck	Eastward	54-39	1-58 w.
⛊	Helbeck Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem
⛊1	Helsington	Kendal War.	54-26	2-28 w.
	Helsington Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem
	Helton (1 in Dorset)	Westward	54-41	2-23 w.
†	Helton-Bacon	Westward	54040	2-02 w.	R. Kendall		20:00:06
	Helton Dale	eadem	eadem	2-25 w.
⛊1	Heversham	Kendal W.	54-21	2-29 w.	R. Kendal		08:09:02
⛊	Highhouses	Kendal W.	54-31	2-34 w.
⛊1	Hilton (XVIII)	Eastward	54-40	2-2 w.
⛊1	Hincaster	Kendal W.	54-21	2-26 w.
	Hoff	Eastward	54-39	2-09 w.
	Hollinghall	Kendal War.	54-29	2-33 w.
⛊1	Holme (XV or XVI)	Lonsdale W.	54-19	2-26 w.
	Holmescales	Kendal W.	54-20	2-22 w.
⛊1	Hoaf	Eastward	54-38	2-10 w.
⛊1	Horlay (& 3 Horleys)	Eastward	54-36	2-24 w.
⛊	Horlay Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem
	Hornby	Westward	54-47	2-17 w.
A Baronet	Howgill Castle	Eastward	54-45	2-07 w.
	Hudfoot	Westward	54-46	2-14 w.

[293] This paragraph (relating to Bewcastle and Birkby) has been scored through.
[294] This symbol has been scored through.
[295] Harberwain.

A Baronet 0	Hugill ⛊1	Kendale W.	54-31	2-34 w.
⛊1	Hutton in the Hay x	Kendal War.	54-28
⛊1	Hutton Roofe	Lonsdale W.	54-18	2-17 W.
⛊1	Hutton Old	Kendal W.	54-24	2-23 w.
	St Katherines (VI)	Kendal Ward	54-25	2-32 w.
	Kellath	Eastward	54-32	2-12 w.
⛊2	Kendal 0 11	Kendal W.	54-28	2-27 w.	v. Kendall		92:05:00
	Castle	eadem	54-27	2-25 w.
⛊1	Kentmere	Kendal W.	54-33	2-34 w.
⛊1	Killington (8 beg)	Lonsdale W.	54-25	2-18 w.
⛊1	Kings-Meburn	Westward	54-41	2-13 w.

[III.6]

> Langdale: Eastward, 54-32; 2-13. W. There are no other places in the villars of this name, excepting only Longdale End in York N.R. & hundred of Whitby, 54-23; 01-19.
⛊ > *Mayburgh Castle, Westward 54-45; 2-21
+ The name of Medep: […] in Yorkshire is Middop: W.R. in Stanicliff hundred.
Mortons in England & Wales XXXIV. There is Morvale in Cornwal, Morvil in Penbrock, & Morvil in Salop.
†> 0 Musgrave Magna, Eastward: 54-36; 2-2 w. R. […] 16:8:10½
A Baronet: Musgrave Parva Eastward: 54-36; 2-3 w. (Westm'land Deanery)
*4 Ormsbys. Sc. 2 in Lancashire & 2 in Northfolk. & Ormskirk in Lancashire, a market town in Darby Ward.

[III.7]

A baronet	Kirby-Kendall	Kendal W.	54-28	2-28 w.
⛊1	Kirby-Lonsdale 0 11	Lonsdale W.	54-17	2-18 w.	V. Lonsdale		20:15:02
⛊1	Kirbysteven 0 11	Eastward	54-34	2-03 w.	V. Westmorland		48:19:02
⛊2	Kirkby-Thure	Eastward	54-43	2-08 w.	R. Westmorland		37:17:08½
	Kirkland	Eastward	54-47	2-08 w.
⛊1	Kirk-land	Kendal War.	54-28	2-27 w.
	Knipe	Westward	54-38	2-23 w.
⛊1 ?	Knock (no no) Knock Torum in Chest[er]?[296]	Eastward	54-44	2-27 w.
	Lady-ford	Kendal W.	54-28	2-27 w.
	Lamrige	Kendal W.	54-29	2-20 w.
⛊1	Langdale Magna[297]	Kendal W.	54-36	2-46 w.
⛊1	Langdale Parva	eadem	54-35	2-48 w.
	Lanton (XX Langtons)	Eastward	54-40	2-05 w.
	Leith ~~Kend~~	Kendal W.	54-24	2-35 w.
A Baronet 0	Levens ⛊ 1	Kendal Wa.	54-22	2-29 w.
	Long-sleddale	Kendal W.	53-34	2-31 w.

[296] Knocktorum is Noctorum, a suburb of Birkenhead; see F. Sanders and W.F. Irvine (eds), Wirral Notes and Queries ... Relating to the Hundred of Wirral, Vol. 1 (Birkenhead, 1892), 40.
[297] A horizontal line here, and also beside Langdale Parva, denotes information on Langdale on III.6.

	Loughrigg	Kendal W.	54-36	2-44 w.
	Lowther	Westward	54-43	2-21 w.	R. Westmorland		25:07:02½
A Baronet	Lother Hall	eadem	eadem
1	Lupton	Lonsdale W.	54-24	2-17 w.
	Lythe (V or VI)	Kendal W.	54-24	2-34 w.
	Malsborn	Westward	54-39	2-15 w.
⛊1	Mansergh	Lonsdale W.	54-20	2-17 w.
⛊1	Martindale	Westward	54-40	2-30 w.
⛊1	Marton	Eastward	54-43	2-08 w.	R. Westmorland		21:15:05½
	>*[298]
⛊1	Meborn Mauds	Westward	54-41	2-14 w.
+[299]	Methap	Kendal W.	54-20	2-33 w.
⛊2	Midleton	Loynsdale W.	54-23	2-17 w.
A Baronet 0	Milborn ⛊ 1 (VIII) Milborn[300] Grange Warwicksh.	Eastward	54-23	2-17 w.
⛊1	Milthrop (III)	Kendal W.	54-21	2-30 w.
⛊1	Mollerstang	Eastward	54-30	2-04 w.
† 2	Morland	Westward	54-42	2-13 w.	V. Westmorland		11:18:00
⛊	Morton Hall	Eastward	54-33	2-09 w.
⛊1	> 0[301]
	Naitby	Eastward	54-33	2-02 w.
	Nanesergh	Kendal W.	54-22	2-29 w.
	Nanerooth	Westward	54-45	2-22 w.
⛊2	Natland	Kendale W.	54-25	2-26 w.
⛊1	Newbiggin (VI) all in York, W. C. & Nor.	Eastward	54-46	2-10 w.	R. Westmorland		04:10:04
⛊	Newby Stanes VI in W. & Y.	Westward	54-02	2-14 w.
	Oddledo[…]	Westward	54-36	2-15 w.
	Orald [?]	Kendale W.	54-22	2-33 w.
⛊1	Ormeshead Magna	Eastward	54-37	2-06 w.
*[302]	Ormeshead Parva	eadem	eadem	eadem

[III.8]

*There is Pater Church in York &Patrick Brampton in the North Rideing of Yorkshire; Patricksborn in Kent, & Patrington, a market town in the East Rideing of York.
2 Shapwicks: one in Dorset & the other in Somerset.
*There is Skallingdam in the north; k in York; Skalshal, Leth Ward in Cumberland.

[298] Symbols here point to information on places beginning with the letter 'M' on III.6.
[299] A symbol here refers the reader to further information on III.6.
[300] Milburn Grange, Warwickshire.
[301] Symbols here refer the reader to information on places called Morton on III.6.
[302] A symbol refers the reader to settlements called Ormsby on III.6.

There is Sock in Somerset; Sockborn in Durram in Stricklan Ward
								[III.9]
⛊1	Orton 0 11 (VI)	Eastward	54-33	2-18 w
	Oxenholme	Kendal W.	54-27	2-25 w.
⛊1 x	Patterdale	Westward	54-39	2-36 w.
⛊1	Patton	Kendal W.	54-29	2-24 w.
An Earle	Pendragon Castle XLI	Eastward	54-30	2-03 w.
⛊	Powley	Westward	54-42	2-26 w.
⛊	Preston Hall (LIII)	Kendal W.	54-22	2-26 w.
⛊1	Preston Patrick	Kendal W.	54-22	2-26 w.
⛊1	Preston Richard	Kendal W.	54-22	2-25 w.
⛊	Raisgil Hall	Eastward	54-32	2-15 w.
	Rasbeck	Eastward	54-33	2-12 w.
⛊1	Rasgill	Westward	54-39	2-22 w.
⛊	-Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem
⛊1	Ravingstone-dale	Eastward	54-32	2-07 w.
⛊1	Regill	Westward	54-39	2-17 w.
⛊	Regill Grange	eadem	eadem	eadem
⛊	Rigmadon	Lonsdale	54-35	2-40 w.
	Runthwate	Eastward	54-32	2-17 w.
⛊1	Rydal N. R. York	Kendal W.	54-36	2-42w.
⛊1	Rydal Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem
⛊1	Sandford (VI)	Eastward	54-39	2-03 w.
⛊1	Seggeswick	Kendal W.	54-24	2-27 w.
⛊1	Selside (VIII)	Kendal W.	54-41	2-07 w.
⛊	Selside Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem
⛊	Selsted Hall	Kendal W.	54-31	2-26 w.
⛊1	Shap[303]	Westward	54-39	2-20 w.
⛊	Shap Abbey	eadem	eadem	eadem
⛊	Shap Grange	eadem	eadem	eadem
⛊1	Siserge	Kendal W.	54-24	2-30 w.
⛊1*[304]	Skalthwate Rigge	Kendal W.	54-30	2-15 w.
⛊1	Skattergate	Eastward	54-39	2-03 w.
⛊1	Skelsmore (XV)	Kendall W.	54-29	2-25 w.
⛊1	Sleddale Sledmere E.R. York	Westward	54-33	2-32 w.
⛊1	Slegill	Westward	54-41	2-16 w.
A Baronet 0	Smardale (Smarden Kent)	Eastward	54-34	2-05 w.
A Baronet 0	Sockbridge	Westward	54-45	2-23 w.
⛊1	Soulby (I Cum.)	Eastward	54-36	2-03 w.
⛊1	Sowerby (VIII)	Eastward	54-36	2-00 w.

[303] A symbol here points to information on ‘Shap’ place-names on III.8.
[304] The symbol here refers to information on place-names beginning with ‘Skal’ on III.8.

⛊	Sowerby Castle	Eastward	54-36	eadem
⛊1	Temple Sowerby	Eastward	54-45	2-12 w.
	Spittle	Kendall W.	54-28	2-26 w.
	Stainbanck Green	Kendall W.	54-28	2-26 w.
⛊1	Stainmore	Eastward	54-36	1-54 w.
⛊1	Stainton (X all N.W.)	Kendal W.	52-22	2-29 w.
	Stanley (XI)	Eastward	54-40	2-08 w.
⛊1	Staveley (I in Darby)	Kendal W.	54-31	2-31 w.
⛊	Strickland Hall	Westward	54-42	2-18 w.
	Strickland Kettle	Kendal W.	54-24	2-30 w.
⛊1	Strickland Magna	Westward	54-42	2-19 w.
	Strickland Parva	Westward	54-42	2-18 w.
	Strickland Roger	Kendale W.	54-24	2-31 w.
	Sunbiggin	Eastward	54-34	2-12 w.
	Tebay	Eastward	54-32	2-15 w.
	Thistlethwate	Westward	54-29	2-25 w.

[III.10]

a. Thurn in Norfolk, & Thurning in Northampton & Huntington; Thurnham in Lancashire; Thurnby & Thurnenaston in Leicester.
b. There is Ullesby, a rectory in Cumberland in Allerdale; Uldale another; Ulleskelf in the N. R. in Yorkshire; Ulseby: 2 towns of that name in Lincoln; Ulsthorp in Leicester & Ulvescross Abby.

*Qu. How this mistake? For Wharton is in Kirkby Stephan parish, which is a V. rated as above.

> + Whitwell (IX) Kendal: 54-42; 2-17 w.
> 0 Winander-mere Kendal W.: 54-30; 2-40 w. R. Kendal, [£] 24:6:8.

Ad Winder: There are townes of this name, one in Lanc., another in Cumberland in Allerdale, and a place in Warwick and Wriderton in ? in Kington Hundred.

d. There is Winton in Southampton, Sussex & N. R. in Yorkshire.

[III.11]

⛊1	Thornthwate	Westward	54-38	2-27 w.
⛊	Thornthwate Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem
a.[305]	Thurnby \ Cumb et W. R. York /	Westward	54-41	2-18 w.
	Thranthwate	Kendal W.	54-25	2-18 w.
	Trantram	Westward	54-28	2-21 w.
⛊1	Troutbeck (I in Cum.)	Kendal W.	54-33	2-26 w.
	Ubarrow	Kendal W.	54-28	2-29 w.
⛊ 2 b.[306]	Ulva	Kendal W.	54-29	2-30 w.
	Underbarrow	Kendal W.	54-25	2-33 w.
	Underley	Loynsdale	54-18	2-19 w.
	Waitby	Eastward	54-43	2-18 w.

[305] See III.10.
[306] See III.10.

⛊1	Warcop	Eastward	54-38	2-03 w.	V. Westmorland		09:15:01½
⛊	Warcop Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem
	Wastol Foot	Westward	54-35	2-19 w.
	Wastal Head	eadem	54-36	2-23 w.
	Watchfeild (I in Bark.)	Kendal W.	54-28	2-26 w.
	Watland	Kendal W.	54-25	2-26 w.
Q.	Wellop	Westward	54-44	2-11 w.
	Wharton	Eastward	54-33	2-05 w.	R* [307] Westmorland	*	74:10:01	No suer
	Wharton Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem				Lord Wharton
⛊	Whinfield	Kendal Ward	54-30	2-22 w.
	> + 1[308]
	Wickerslack	Westward	54-38	2-16 w.
	> 0[309]
	Winder	Westward	54-41	2-38 w.
⛊1	Winstar (I in Darby by M.)	Kendal W.	54-26	2-38 w.
⛊1	Winton	Eastward	54-34	2-02 w.
	Witherslake (field in Sussex)	Ken W.dal	54-22	2-33 w.
	Yanewith	Westward	54-43	2-26 w.
⛊	Yanewith Hall	eadem	eadem	eadem
There is Yeartor & Yearton Court in Devon
Addenda
	Woodside
†	Windermere

[III.12]

N. Alsten Moore cannot be in Westm'land Denary.

[I.600]

[B.] {Ad Generall} Pars. 3[a]}

[I.149] [310]

[General Notes 1.]

There are few places of the Compass of Westm'land which have produced so many viri clari[311] for Learneing & otherwise, as Westm'land & Cumberland; so well has the erecting of Queen's College in Oxford answerd the expect[ations] of the Piouse founder – who did it amongst som other reasons for this more especially.[312]

Par. III. A Common Place Booke for the Antiquities of Westmerland.

[307] See III.10.
[308] Symbols to denote information on III.10.
[309] Symbol to denote information on III.10.
[310] Much of the marginalia are blotted and overwritten; consequently, some of the transcription is insecure.
[311] 'Outstanding men'.
[312] The "Hall of the Queen's Scholars at Oxford" was founded in 1341 by Robert de Eglesfield, a chaplain in the household of Queen Philippa, who named it in her honour. He envisaged an establishment of fellows, chaplains, 'poor boys' and various officials and servants, headed by a Provost. Membership was to be open, but with a preference for inhabitants of Cumberland and Westmorland. Initially The Queen's College was poor, but the endowment slowly grew … After 1400 the preference for people from Cumberland and Westmorland became a monopoly, making Queen's a community of north-westerners. During the 15th and 16th centuries it prospered. Benefactors were Bishop Thomas Barlow (Provost 1658-77) and Sir Joseph Williamson (Charles II's Secretary of State). See https://www.queens.ox.ac.uk/history.

Memorandum: to paist the Map so that it may turne up out of the Booke while you are a-reading, so that you may consult it before your eyes in any part of the Booke.[313]

In the next General, speake of Hyde &c. See this at ~~Brough~~ \ Merton / p. 1.
Cornage.
Border Service.
In Brough as novell scutagij.[314]
Allso in the beginning de Bowes.

{Method}
{South from K.[315] lyes the [blank] of Bondgate – so calld from the Town where the church stands, which is Part of Apleby & ~~and there I shal treat of~~ which hath in it 2 parish churches – St Michael and St Lawrence; ergo I shal treat of this Town – 1st of St Michael, cont[ained] in the Lordship Bongate, Sc. Crakenthorp, Murton, Hilton, Langton & Bat.: of which in order the last, of Batleber, as part of the SW.[316] And in these,

1. of Antiquities & rarityes.
2. of [317]& houses Armes & Pedegrees.}[318]

[I.41B]

Query. at London

1. Of Manner houses in the Tower Rolls;[319] to finde out the Antiq[uity] of the Gentlemen in Westm'land. Write an alpha[betical] Table. both of them and the Gentlemen.
2. Search the Her[alds] for Knights, Matches, Armes.
   i. Of ancestry of families, which were Knights?
   ii. Of Matches – belong to each family?
   {Se the Arms of Sled Becks.}

[I.42]

Ogleby[320]

---

[313] There is no pull-out map but the memorandum suggests Machell's plan for the finished work.
[314] 'Scutage': money paid by a vassal to his lord in lieu of military service.
[315] Kirkby Thore.
[316] Insecure transcription.
[317] The next two words are illegible.
[318] This margin comment is very unclear.
[319] MS: 'Rools'.
[320] Several notes in these volumes refer to John Ogilby (1600-1676). They begin in 1673, when 'a group comprising the publisher John Ogilby, the lawyer Sir John Hoskins, the architect Christopher Wren, the antiquary John Aubrey and the surveyor Gregory King, held a meeting to devise a list of research topics for a projected series of county studies which were to form part of a volume on 'Britannia' envisaged by Ogilby in his capacity as Cosmographer Royal. The result was a printed sheet, 'Queries in Order to the Description of Britannia', containing headings under which information was to be sought. These were the first fact-finding requests to be specifically directed at individuals in the regions of Britain. Among listed questions on antiquities, topography, buildings and natural resources was one reflecting John Aubrey's particular interest in 'Peculiar Customs or Manners'. The Queries served as a blueprint for Aubrey's own survey of Surrey undertaken later in 1673 and were influential in structuring the research agenda of county studies in Britain and Ireland over the next generation. One young scholar influenced by them was Thomas Machell. In June 1673 Aubrey sent Anthony Wood a copy of one version of the 'Queries in Order to the Description of Britannia', and it might have been through Wood that Machell became aware of them. Their contents clearly inspired him to work on his own research design; he later admitted to having "enlarg'd Mr Oglebyes Queries, that I may be both able to satisfy Them, and myne owne curiosity." The result was his four-page pamphlet, "That the Northern Counties which abound in Antiquities and Ancient Gentry, may no longer be bury'd in Silence, Information is desir'd concerning the following Queries as they lye in order." Although it carried no imprinted date, at the bottom of one of only two extant copies Machell wrote, "1. Jan. 1676-7."' See Adam Fox, 'Vernacular Culture and Popular Customs in Early Modern England: Evidence from Thomas Machell's Westmorland', Cultural and

Query de: These belong to the Queryes By Ogleby
Westm'land:
Gray-Troutes in Ullswater their nature – and bigness.
25. Where slates &c.
29. See Cross Fell; altar the Leap measure at Woodside.[321]
31. How much money every year paid at the piller.
33. The mason's name that broke the stone writ upon at Br.
35. How ma[n]y men, how long a fulling the hole at Brampton yeat.
36. How much an Oxgang; as much as one ox can plough threwot the year; halfe a Quarter of a carucate[322] or Hyde land. 15 acres.[323]

[I.600]

[General Notes 2.]

A Collection of Miscellany Notes to be refrd to their respective Heads in the 2nd Part.[324]

For the:
Hyde Sax[on][325])
Caruca N[orman])
Carucata) \ the same / terrae, vid. Speed & mapps Huntingdonshire §3.
Virga)

A Family:
Manse Saxon)
Hyde Saxon)
Carucate Norman) 100 acres (i.e. 6 score) num certo gr[adu.][326] Plowland Anglice)

Really and Truly as much as a Plow with a Teame (of 8 o[xen])[327] can till round the year; & ergo according to the stiffness [and] loosness of the soyle, sometimes greater, sometimes lesser.
A virgate (or Yardland) is a 4r of a Carucate: as much as […][328]
A Bovate (or Oxgang) is ½ a Quarter of a Carucate, as much as […][329] can plow.

Social History, 9 (2012), 329-47, at 329-31. Ogilby's best-known work is Britannia, volume the first, or An illustration of the kingdom of England and dominion of Wales: by a geographical and historical description of the principal roads thereof actually admeasured and delineated in a century of whole-sheet copper-sculps : accomodated with the ichnography of the several cities and capital towns, and compleated by an accurate account of the more remarkable passages of antiquity : together with a novel discourse of the present state (London, 1675). Chiefly a road atlas, it was securely based on contemporary and collaborative research. See C. Withers, 'Ogilby, John (1600-1676), publisher and geographer.' ODNB.

[321] See II.475.

[322] Carucate: originally an amount of land such as one team of oxen could plough in a season: see the English Glossary.

[323] N&B1, 2, remarks that in some parts of Westmorland the customary acre measured 7840 yards, which varied from the statute measure: 'as if where the land is bad they are willing to give so much the greater measure'.

[324] 'Mixed Notes Relateing to Armory & familyes to be referd by Index' is also part of this scored-through heading, but has been omitted here. For Machell's notes on families, see II.486-88, below.

[325] A hide or hyde was a Saxon land measure which continued in use after the Norman Conquest, varying in extent with the nature of the ground, etc. Primarily, a hide represented the amount considered adequate for the support of one free family with its dependants; at an early date this was defined as being as much land as could be tilled with one plough in a year. OED.

[326] It is possible that these are three Latin words meaning 'presumably in fixed proportion' but the edge of the page has perished here.

[327] This word has perished.

[328] The rest of this sentence has perished.

[329] A word here has perished. The phrase probably reads, 'as much as an ox can plough'.

È Dr Thorotons Antiq. of Notinghamshire.[330]

[I.618]

[Letter in another hand][331]

As to your Quaere's:
Sir
1. To the 1st servicium seculare, dicitur in opposione ad spirituale et ecclesiasticum servicium &c.[332] Stat1. E. 4. C. 1. Which is a [e]stirmacon of Magna Charta where (C.1) tis said the Church of England shall be free and have its rights & liberties inviolable. So that to be free from all Secular Service is to enjoy the Liberties & privileges of Church Poscessceons, for which you may consult the Canon Law.

2. Blodwita[333] or Bloudwit is an Amerciament[334] for bloodshed: from blood & wyte, or blame. He that hath Blodwite granted him, hath power to take all Amerciaments in Courts for shedding of blood. ~~Fleta L1 C 47~~ si aliqui pugnantes &c. extraxerint sanguinem prior habebit Bloudwit i.e. Amerciamentum inde in Curia sua. Ex sig[illo] Priorat[i] de Cockesford Cowill v[er]bo Bloudwit.[335] Fleta L.1 C. 47, sig[nifica]t Quietantiam misericordiae pro effusione Sanguinis.[336]
3. Serviciu[m] Extrinsecum, or forinsecum is that Service which[337] is due to the King & not to the Capital. Lord or Intrinsecum is that which is due to the Capital Lord of the Mannor.

N.B. Bovata Terrae, an oxgang of land; that is, as much as an ox can plough, which is said (by Skene) to be 13 acres, some say 18 acres.[338] Eight Bovates make one Carrucate: 144 acres, accounting 18 to the bovate.

---

[330] Robert Thoroton (1623-78), The Antiquities of Nottinghamshire (1677). As a contemporaneous antiquary, Thoroton's references have clear similarities to Machell's. viz. 'Roger the Man or Tenent of Roger de Busli, had two Carucats in demesne, thirteen sochm., three Vill, seven Bordars, having eight plows or Carucats.' (121); 'The land was sufficient for two plows (or two carucats)' (5); 'One virgate or yardland' (9).
[331] The author of this letter is at present unknown.
[332] 'To the 1st secular service, it is meant in contrast to the spiritual and ecclesiastical service etc.'
[333] Or 'bloodwite': a fine payable for the offence of shedding blood; also, a legal action for this offence. OED.
[334] Or 'amercement': a discretionary penalty or fine; originally one imposed on an offender at the discretion of the court of his or her lord, as opposed to a statutory fine. OED.
[335] 'If individuals while fighting etc. shall draw blood, the one who initiated it shall have Bloudwit, i.e. a fine for it in his own Court. On the authority of the Prior of Cockesford. Cowill, on the word Bloudwit indicates immunity from a fine for [in proportion to] the spilling of blood.' For this passage, see John Cowell: 'Bloodwit (blodwita) is compounded of 2 Saxon words (blout. i. sanguis) and (wit) for the which we have the word (wite) still in the West parts of England signifying a charging of one with a fault, or an upbraiding. And Speight in his expositions upon Chawser saith, that (to wit) is as much as to blame. (To wit) in some other places of this land signifieth as much as (to hitte in the teeth) or to upbraide. This bloodwit is a word used in charters of liberties aunciently graunted, and signifieth an amercement for shedding of blood. So that whosoever had it given him in his charter, had the penaltie due for shedding of blood graunted unto him. Rastall in his exposition of words. Skene de verbo. signif. writeth it (bludveit) and saith that (veit) in English is injuria vel misericordia: and that (bludveit) is an amercement or (unlawe) as the Scottishmen call it, for wrong or injurie, as bloodshed is. For he that is infest with (bludveit) hath free libertie to take all amercements of courts for effusion of blood.' John Cowell (1554-1611), The Interpreter: or Booke containing the signification of words wherein is set foorth the true meaning of all, or the most part of such words and termes, as are mentioned in the lawe writers, or statutes of this victorious and renowned kingdome, requiring any exposition or interpretation. ... Collected by Iohn Cowell ... (Cambridge, 1607), Letter B.
[336] 'Fleta saith, quod significat quietantiam misericordiae pro effusione sanguinis. li. 1. ca. 47.' Fleta (fl.1290-1300), is the name sometimes used to designate the author of a Latin treatise on English common law (written between 1290 and 1300) entitled Fleta, which updates and abridges an earlier treatise (De legibus et consuetudinibus Angliae) ascribed to Henry of Bratton (d.1268). The author of Fleta drew scattered passages from the Bratton treatise into a coherent order, omitted some content, and incorporated some of Edward I's legislation. See D. Seipp, 'Fleta (fl.1290-1300)'. ODNB.
[337] 'External or foreign service is that service which…'
[338] Sir John Skene, De Verborum Significatione: The Exposition of the terms and difficill wordes conteined in the foure buikes of Regiam Magistratem, etc. (2nd edn, Edinburgh, 1599). Skene's changing pronouncements on

[I.42]

Ad Hunc Librum[339]
Westm'land – p.2b. How Westm'land divided from Yorkshire? Why \ called / County?
Dugdale of Warwickshire – Warwickshire govern'd by a vicount ante conquestum?[340]
London or Oxon Lib. – p.5b. Ypodigma Neustriæ by Walsingham[341] concerning 12 Towne in Cumberland granted to the Scot[s], q. an 12 et nihil amplius.[342]
Mr Dugdall Westm'land 14.d. If rushbearing at midsom[mer] may not allude to John the Baptist?
15.a. Where Eden riseth, with many Queries about all the Rivers.

[I.42B]

Martendale F[orest] Parke & Forests. Hall. Towers.
1. Whinfield F[orest]. 2nd. Lowther P[ark]. 3. Crosby Ravenwaith?[343] 4. Hartley Park. 5. Whar[ton]. 6. Colnhead P[ark]. 7. Sleemere. 8. Firbanke \ forsan Grarig. / 9. Midleton. 10. Kendal. 11. Camswick. 12. Watland. 13. Barborn. 14. ~~Leek~~ Croscrake. 15. Preston Chapel. 16. Siserge. 17. Brigster p[ark]. 18. Witherslack 19. Bethan.

[I.127][344]

[C.] The Division of the County

{Why County? vid paref. ad County et p.12 in A}
This County is severall ways divided, as:

1. Into 2 part: The Bottom of Westm'land & Barrony of Kendal.
2. Into 5 Wards or Hundreds: 3 in the Bottom, 2 in the Barony.[345]
3. Into parishes [blank] in the Bottome and so many in the Barony.
4. Into Lordships or mannors.

{Hon[orius] divided Kent into parishes about the 640 [A.D.]: vid V.2 Sp[eed] 294, et Lothairs.}[346] how many acres an ox could plough were reproduced in John Jamieson, Supplement to the Etymological Dictionary of the Scots Language (Edinburgh, 1841), 607-08 (HUS).

---

339 'In this book'.

340 'Before the Conquest?' See Dugdale, Warwickshire, f.2: 'Before the Normans entrance the Bishop sate in the Hundred Court, with the Lord of the Hundred, as he did in the Countie-Court with the Earl, and in the Shireeves-Turn with the Shireeve … Primi igitur sedebant, saith Sir H. Spelman, in omnibus Regni Comitatiis & tribunalibus Episcopi; in Regali quidem palacio cum Regni magnatibus; in Comitatu unà, cum Comite, & Justiciario Comitatus; in Turno Vicecomitis cum vicecomite; in Hundredo cum Domino Hundredi; sic, ut in provenda Justicia usq; quaq; gladius gladium adjuvaret, et nihil inconsulto Sacerdote (qui velut Saburra in Navi fuit) ageretur. [Therefore the leading men used to sit, saith Sir H. Spelman, in all the assemblies of the kingdom and tribunals of the Bishop: in the royal palace with the magnates of the realm; in one assembly, with the earl and judiciary of the assembly; in the Turn of the Viscount with the viscount; in the Hundred with the Lord of the Hundred; in such a way that in providing justice on all sides, sword might help sword, and nothing be done without the Bishop (who was the ballast in the ship) being consulted]. And so likewise after the Conquest, till William prohibited it.'

341 Thomas Walsingham, prior of Wymondham, said to be the last of the great medieval chroniclers, dedicated his Ypodigma Neustriae, to Henry V, c.1420. See J. Taylor, 'Walsingham, Thomas (c.1340-c.1422)'. ODNB.

342 'Whether 12 and no more.'

343 An indistinct letter or numeral appears before the question mark.

344 Also numbered p.17.

345 Nicolson and Burn refer to the number of wards being four, 'being the districts of the like number of High Constables who presided over the wards … Two of these wards are in the barony of Kendal, to wit, Kendal and Lonsdale Wards; and two in the Bottom, called East and West Wards: there was anciently a Middle Ward between these two last; but since watching and warding ceased, that hath fallen into and been absorbed by the other two.' N&B1, 12.

346 Honorius was Archbishop of Canterbury, 627-653. For events surrounding the conversion of the Anglo-Saxons and the later spread of Christianity see 'History of the Kings of Kent' (including Lothaire), in John Speed, Historie, 214-17.

{Method}
Now because most places of note are situate upon rivers, before I speake of particular places I shall present you with a scheem of the course of each river, with what mills & bridges there be upon it; which otherwise I would have taken notice of in the generall description. And haveing don that, I will speake of each parish as they laye in order:

1. Of the church with what is remarkable therein and who have bin patrons.
2. Whatt Lordships or manners in the parish \ or Gentlemen's houses / & to whome they doe or have belong \ armes & descent &c. / with an accompt of what I have observed remarkable in each of 'em, whether monuments of antique; accidents or calamityes; or whatsoever else \ & schooles or hospitals. /

And least the rivers should turne away from anything remarkable, I will give you an account of the high-wayes, more especially of the Romane, with occurrences I can remember, which may serve the travaller to divert himself withall. {Dout whether by highwayes or rivers}.
Lastly, I shall annex the coates of armes of all the gentry with their blazonry, and that to prevent all exceptions, ordine alphabetico,[347] together with their ma[t]ches and pedegrees.

{ad Stanelands Burwens}
{Bottom} Sunt glebae [prove[ntus]] novi] quae agriculae imperio numquam recusant*, sed cumulation[is] mensura quod recipiunt reddunt (viz. Stanelands). (Turfs Peats Lings Coales Whins copses.) Hyemes hu[ius] loci sunt satis clementes, frigoris enim vim carbonis fossilis ligni et cespitum abu[n]dantia, ita disolvit, montesque in altum circumfusi ita moderato te[m]pore terram fove[n]t, ut multo rimosius sit apud eos frigus, quam in non nullis Angliae regionibus, ~~xxx~~ in Septentrionali parte possitis.[348]

[Machell's Notes: I.127]

*Cf. Cicero de senectute XV.51: ...terra, quae numquam recusat imperium nec umquam sine usura reddit, quod accepit.[349]
{Shires 100 & tith[es] 358, col. 2, f. 25}

[I.128]

{Bottom}
In 2as partes dispertita Westmaria est, Inferiorem et Superiorem quarum inferior, Westmariae fundus est ie The Bot[t]om of Westm'land; superior autem Barony de Kendal ie The Barony of Kendal vulgo appellatur. pars inferior praeruptis at cerulei coloris montibus circumcincta qua mirum in modum occulos delectat est magis culta magis consita, ideo laetior, nor per libratata planetie, sed modice plana plurima imo tota (nisi qua sylvas copiosessime progignit, pratis pascuis et frumentariis jacet ca[m]pis), Hordeumque laudatissimum ibi Big vocatum, Triticum Avenas, cum omni granarum genere copiosissime effundit, adeo ut circum-vicin[i]s comitat. 69 Saepissime subministrat. 27 {magnum frumenti numerum et farris copiam non exiguam, ad vicinos alendos quotannis exportaveri[n]t. 229 vid.} (Hic piscium tanta multitudo, salmonum, […][350] et praecipue Truttarum; ut advenis sit miraculo carnis bovinae ovinae et ferinae, saporis optimi ut Advenis sit miraculo, Indigenis pro Illorum admiratione ludibrio.277) Colles etiam quibus includitur sylvis vid. The Adventure of Mr J. Smyth, London 1670 p.114 olim utrimque amicti fuere, nu[n]c vero pecoribus: jis subsunt utrimque a[r]va, arvis floridis[si]ma prata at pascua, et in medio Ituna fluvius limpidissimus interlabitur quae circumvienis agris quasi vim vitalem infundit 349. Laudatissimarum aquarum faecunda olim Genetrix. Vallis Amplissima per 12 ad min[imum] fere miliaria a Burgo sub Sax et ad pontem Emoti in longitudine jacet, latitudinem alicubi supra 11 a … extendit; alendis frugibus

[347] 'In alphabetical order.'
[348] 'There are lands which never refuse the farmer's demands, but, by the measure of their accumulation, what they receive they again release (viz. Stanelands). (Turfes Peats Lings Coales Whins copses.) The winters of this place are quite mild, for the abundance of coal, timber and turves so far diminishes the force of the cold, and the high encircling mountains so far warm the earth with their moderate climate, that among them the cold weather has far more remissions than in many regions of England located in the Northern part.'
[349] 'Land which never resists mastery nor ever returns without interest what it has received.'
[350] Here, Machell left space for additional text.

pascendis pecoribus mitissima frequentibus opidis, et nobilium virorum Domubus exculta crebrisque fluminibus rigata. Lincolnsh[ire] 297.[351]

{Cantridum} vocant Britanni terrae portionem, quae 100 villas {complectitur, inde} Cantrid Bickam centuria minor. Caer Nerv. Denbysh. 371.[352]
{Kendal} Licet hac per montibus plurimum emineat, convallibus tamen grata fecunditate, tum pascuis tum arvis faelix est regio.[353]
{Dales}A fluminibus valles apud nos denominantur (says Cam.) unde Wensedall quasi Vents dale, ie vallis ad ventum (Sic Kendale, quasi Kent dale, ie vallis ad Kent. sic denique Loansdale, q[uasi] vallis ad Loane.) 223.[354]
{Westm'd} Frugibus satis fertilis, gregibus abundans fossilium carbonum et metallorum, plumbi praecipue, alicubi ferax 370 et ut res est Dicam est Regio, nisi in montes amoena et fertilis, sua semper in principem fide et in exteros humanitate inter celeberrimas Britanniae regiones connumeranda. u[t]pote in qua[355]

[D. Passages concerning the Division of Westmorland]

[II.464][356]

Kendale Barony, tho it contane it Loansdale allso, and Langdale? with severall ~~littell vilages~~ \ other / dales & hamlets here & there. There is but one considerable valley ~~commonly~~ and because it is so incompassed with hills, is ergo called the Bottom of Westm'land. It begins at Brough and so extends it selfe in Length to Browham Castle [blank] miles in Bredth from [Blank] to [Blank], [Blank] miles.

[II.463]

From the Roy † to Browham Castle, 21 miles, and so from Hellgill brig to Browham, 21.
The bredth from Teeswater to Raflen Forrest near Shap, 16 miles.

---

[351] 'Westmaria is split into two parts, Lower and Upper, of which the lower is the bottom i.e. The Bottom of Westmorland; while the upper is commonly called the Barony of Kendal i.e. The Barony of Kendal. The lower part surrounded by steep, blue-coloured mountains, which make it a wonderful delight to the eyes is the more tilled, more cultivated, and therefore more prosperous, and not because the plain is level, rather, most of it lies only more or less flat (except where it produces woods in abundance), but all with meadows, pastures and corn fields. And it brings forth a barley called Big most celebrated there, [also] Wheat [and] Oats, with every kind of grain most abundantly, to such an extent that it furnishes the neighbours round about. Very often it supplies [them]. {It exports a great quantity of corn and no small supply of spelt for the sustenance of its neighbours every year. 229 see.} Here is such a quantity of fish, salmon … and especially trout; [and] of beef, mutton and game, of [such] superb flavour that to strangers it is a miracle, though their admiration makes the natives smile. And the hills by which it is enclosed, see The Adventure of Mr Smyth (London 1670), p.114, were once covered on either hand by woods, but now by flocks: next to them on both sides is arable land, in the cornfields, lovely flowery meadows and pastures, and in the midst slips by the river Eden, crystal clear; which pours out its vital force, as it were, on the surrounding fields .349 … once the fertile Mother of the most celebrated waters. A very broad valley lies about 12 miles at least in length from Brough under Stainmore to Eamont bridge; it extends in breadth in some places over 11 [miles] from [Blank]; it is very mild for cultivating crops and pasturing flocks, with numerous towns, and adorned with the mansions of noblemen and watered by many rivers.'
[352] 'The Britons call a portion of land which embraces 100 houses, a cantrid, hence Cantrid Bickam; a lesser hundred.' A cantred, cantrede or cantref (a noun associated with the English land area 'Hundred') is an area of ground containing 100 settlements. A half or other portion of a cantred is called a cymwd. OED.
[353] 'Although lofty mountains rise up here, in the vale, however, the region enjoys a delightful fertility, blessed both in its pastures and also in its cornfields.'
[354] 'Among us the valleys are named after the rivers (says Camden), hence Wensedall like Vents dale, that is, the valley of the Vent (thus Kendale, like Kent dale, i.e. the valley of the Kent, thus, finally, Loansdale, like the valley of the Loane.)', 223.
[355] 'Very fertile in its crops and its flocks, rich in coal mines and minerals, especially lead, in some places fruitful 370, the fact is, I would say, that the region is a pleasant and a fertile one except in the mountains, ever, through its loyalty towards the monarch and its civilised attitude to strangers, to be reckoned among the most distinguished regions of Britain. Seeing that …'
[356] Also numbered p.17.

[I.43]

The Barony of ~~Apleby~~ Westm'land for the all or most part thereunto held Lands of the Barony commonly called the Bottom of W. and by the Barony men called Westm'land: & so the Barony of Apleby was anciently called the Barony of West[morland].
The Barony of Kendall commonly called the Barony for distinction sake from the Bottom of Westm'land commonly so called: yett these are not soe different but that even the Baron of Kendal himselfe was obliged to doe sute in the Court of Apleby as you will finde in my Notes of one of those places.[357]

[I.129]

{Division Gen. v. p.19. H.}
The most generall division of it is into 2 part which we may cale Alpina and Transalpina. The one mountaineouse, tho hear and there intermixed with little valleys; the other Champion, yett here and there swelling with hills. The Champion ground is frequently called the Bottom of Westm'land, and Westm'land,[358] the Hilly Country {which is so calld}, is called the Bar-rony, and more particularly the Barony of Kendall, and they call the Bottome, by way of eminence, Westm'land denominatione a majori simul et majori parte descripta[359] the Bottom, of both more fertill and popularis.

{Whence Wards p.56 et quaere? Which is so calld q. p.}[360]
It is otherwise divided into ~~Hundred~~ Wards or Hundreds \ a p.13 col. 2 / whereof in the Bottome are 3 Wards: Eastward, Westward & Midle Ward, and answerably 3 High Constables, to each ward, One. Petty Constables,132. v. Note (a) p.4.
{So called p.1} In the Barony are onely Kendall Ward & Loansdall Ward; to each of which one High Constables; Petty Constablewick, 51. So that in Westm'land there are 5 Wards 8 Hundreds or high Constablewicks; Petty Constables, 183.

{Whence Pari\shes/ Camden p.57}[361]
The next division is into Parishes. And of these we finde [blank] in the Bottom of Westm'land with [blank] Chapels of Ease. In The Barony [blank] with [blank] Chapels of Ease. So that in the whole County are [blank][362]
The 4th and last which I shall take notise of is, if parishes, into Lordships or Manners, whereof there are for the Bot[tom] [blank], in the Bar[ony] [blank]. so that in the whole County there [blank] manner houses, or seats of Nobility and Gentry, as will more particularly appear from this following[g] schedule.
{Whence Manners?}

	Wards	Parishes	Manners
Bottom
Baron

Now if I had ~~a minde to write a Booke and leisure~~ leisure sure to doe it I would speake of every parish within the Church, what Lordships to whome they belong and what remarkable in each Lordship.

[I.131]

~~But because I am att too great a distance I shall \ to have other business / rather proceed by way of answer to these queryes which cam lately to my hand, & put me upon this unnecessary imployment.~~

[357] This is followed by information on Constablewicks, also found on MS.I.129.
[358] A crossed-through Latin phrase here, '~~late\[rn]tu/bis~~', might mean 'latent; concealed'.
[359] 'Named, and at the same time apportioned, from the greater portion.'
[360] Wards: See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 158.
[361] Camden numbered the ecclesiastical parishes in England and Wales, quoting Matthew Parker (1504-75), Archbishop of Canterbury, who counted them in the archdioceses of Canterbury and York. As Westmorland was divided between the Dioceses of York and Chester, Machell could not ascertain the number through this means: see Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 160-62.
[362] Camden gives the number of parishes as 26, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 763.

~~Haveing reduced them to this closer method. Crackenthorpe ita fuit arbores fructum proferentes, non insitivae manus industria sed Ipsiuss humi natura?~~[363]

[I.59]

{Unde dicit Westm'land?}[364]
It is indeed a thing to be lamented, and the greatest occasion ~~regarding working to write a book~~, \ which discourages me from writeing concerneing this county / is that Historyes are so silent: and that I should be deprived of the assistance which other men have \ so easily / bin happy in from Doomsday Booke. And therefore, not knowing where to begine I must content my selfe with takeing some rude notes of those monuments of antiquity which yett remaine, they being the onely evidences I know of the famous exploits which have bin performed here in former aiges. But to proceede I must show in the next place why tis called Westm'land.

[Machell's Notes: I.59A]
Anno 1175, 17 Kal. Sept. apud Ebor[acum] facta fuit conventio et finis Inter Henricum Filium Imperatricis et Willielmum Regem Scotiae […][365] qui ~~redidit sit~~ liberavit. Regi Henrico Castellum de Be[r]wick, C[astellum] de Jedeworth, C[astellum] puellarum et de Strouelin in misericordia. Regis Angliae et Inter alios Richardum de Morevilla constabularium et Richardum Comitem & Johannem de Vaux, et Hugonem Rydell, p.493, Ed. 1.[366]

[E. Passages relating to the name 'Westmorland', the county's fertility, and perceived inaccuracies in the writings of older historians][367]

[I.44A]
For the \ lesser and more / southerly part (The Barony of Kendal) is confessd to be sufficiently fertill in the valleys thereof. And the \ larger / more northerly \ The Barony of Westm'land / (of which he[368] takes no manner of notice) cannot be denyed \ by any that see it / to exceed in ~~fruitfulness~~ \ fertility, / being a large Champion Country [blank] miles long, & [blank] miles broad {surrounded with a ridge of high mountaines \ which are here calld fells /as it were upon a mound \ & within which ~~one can~~ is divers / full of rich meadows cornfields pastures, here and there interspersed with woods[369] and washed with a number of rivers and ~~other such~~ \ swe[e]t / brookes (which branche themselves like so many veines into the noble river of Eden (~~as the vena cava~~): which springeth in the head of Westmorland, \ at Hewseat Hill / & runneth down the midst of this barrony like the vena cava in a man's body,[370] & impregnates the same with life & vigour) by reason, \ which it becomes / of which It becometh so fruitfull that it hath not only enough of it[s] own to susteine it selfe \ withall, / but allso to supply ~~& support~~ the neighbouring Partes of Yorkshire[&] Bishoprick upon all occasions with corne and hay, & severall other partes of the Kingdom with cattle, & sheep, which have the report of the sweetest muttons that are in the nation. And tis commonly calld the Bottom of Westm'land.

[I.60]

[Moors or Meres]
Loca etenian inculta (sayes Camden) et quae non facile agricultura sublevari possint moors Angli septentrionales vocant et idem quae tota inter montes alter pertingentes ad occasum sita est hoc nomen

---

[363] 'Crackenthorpe was thus, the trees bearing fruit not by the labour of another's hand but by the nature of the soil itself.'
[364] 'Below, speak of Westm'land?'
[365] Some words in this Latin passage are obscured by the binding.
[366] 'In the year 1175, 17 Kal. Sept., a meeting and final concord took place between Henry son of the Empress and William King of Scotland, who liberated to King Henry the Castle of Berwick, the Castle of Jedeworth, the Maidens and of Strouelin, in compassion for the King of England, and, among others [Sc. liberated] Richard of Moreville, Constable, and Lord Richard, and John of Vaux, and Hugo Rydell.'
[367] This text, musing on the name of Westmorland, is included here as one of at least 10 such references in Machell's MS. All repeat aspects of the extracts above; see MSI.43A; MSI44B; MSI.44C; MS.II.451.
[368] William Camden.
[369] See N&B1, 3, for the same information.
[370] 'Like the hollow vein in a man's body.' Venæ cavæ (Latin) = 'hollow veins.'

Invenit. i.e. …[371] Nor am \ I / willing to derive it from those famous meers, which are in \ the western parts of / this County (tho it has bin writ formerly Westmerland, & not Westmorland).

[I.45][372]

[Criticism of John Speed and William Camden]

Before I proceed to give ~~an account~~ a description of this Country \ of W. / I must endeavour to correct the errours of former writers, \ or late antiquarij / and especially of Mr Speed, who does not onely make the soyle for the most part so barren {magna ex parte sayes Camden}[373] that it cannot be brought to any fruitfulness by the industry and painefull labour of the husbandman: But allso confines the whole plenty thereof, within the narrow bounds of the Vailes near Kendall situate between the river Loane[374] and Wind\nand/ermere.[375] Whereas tis most certane that the Country in Generall is sufficiently stored with all sorts of Commodityes for supplying the necessityes of humane nature \ & to susteine themselves and others / and that in such abundance, that it often ~~supplies~~ \ assistes / the neighbouring Counties (~~& Durham in particular~~ \ & Yorkshire & Bishoprick / with Corne and Hay {even from the more Northern part of Westm'land which he Take no manner of notice of} from that part of Westm'land as which lyes more northerly, & is {commonly calld the Bottom of Westm'land ~~which~~ from it situation being a large Champion Countrey} within the Beayes of Westm'land.[376]
And for that part of Westm'land which lyes about Kendall, \ and therefore, though the more Southerly part; / tho it be in deed a plentifull Country, he was ~~guilty of a very~~ grossly ~~oversight~~ \ mistake when he neglected that spacious vaile called the Bottome of Westm'land, which does not onely exceed it in bigness butt frutefullness ~~too~~ \ allso, / as must easily be granted, by any who considers \ the advantageous situation of it being / how it lyes – environed with lofty mountaines to keep of the cold, \ on every side / & how well it is watered with a number of rivers, whose bankes swell with fatness. {Yett the more sothern part is not reported (sayes he) & here writes upon report, notwithstanding he pretends in the Preface to have seen every province of England and Wales and for the most p[art] transcribes out of […][377] who does not [pre]tend to so much [ex]perience, tho I [thin]ke he had more.} But I suppose the ground of this mistake was partly his want of good information, for he writt upon hearsay; and partly the authority of our Incomparable Antiquarie, who will have it calld Westm'land, quia tota inter montes alte pertingentes\ ad. occasum / sit sita et magna ex parte inculta jaceat, loca etinim inculta\ (sayes he) / et quae non facile Agricultura subleuari possint Mores Angli septentrionales vocant. Unde Westm'land; quae nihil aliud est, quam inculta ad occasum regio.[378] In which Mr Camden ~~comes very near the matter as to it denomination~~ but is somwhat mistaken (pace tanti authoris)[379] in the use of the word whence he derives it; for the northern people ~~mongst whome I have liv'd a considerable time, and~~ with whose language I am very well acquainted, never call their lofty and towering mountains, by the name of Moors {only Stanemore ~~which is a place on Yorkshire side~~ a mountane towards Westmerland}, for they are call'd Fells; nor

[I.47][380]

---

[371] 'For (says Camden) such barren places which cannot easily by the painfull labour of the husbandman bee brought to fruitfullnesse, the Northern Englishmen call moores; and Westmoreland is nothing else with us but a western Moorish country. Let that dream therefore of touching King Marius, bee excluded out of the schoole of reverend antiquity.' Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 759A.
[372] Also numbered p.1.
[373] 'For the most part, says Camden': Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 759A.
[374] Lune: see N&B1, 3.
[375] This text resembles John Speed's description of Westmorland: The Theatre of the Empire of Great Britaine (1611-1612), 85-86.
[376] 'Beay': 'a recess in a range of hills', in OED as 'Bay'. Alternatively, 'Brea' is a variant of brae: a steep, a slope, a hillside: Dictionaries of the Scots Language. Online.
[377] The name given here has perished but see I.47, below, where John Leland's research is discussed.
[378] 'Because it is situated entirely among mountains that stretch right out to the west and lies for the most part uncultivated, for places which are uncultivated and cannot easily be improved by agriculture, the northern Englishmen call Moors. Hence Westm'land, which is nothing other than an uncultivated region to the west.' See Camden, Britannia (1587 edn), 517-8.
[379] 'With respect to so great an author'.
[380] Also numbered p.2.

yett their places, which are either Barren or unfit for Culture, for they are commonly either Lings or Mires*: Butt their Other waste grounds (be they never so fertill ~~&~~ \ or convenient / fitte for tillidge) which are not inclos'd, but lay waist and in Common; these they call Moors. \ ~~as you know very well~~ / But neither Mr Speed nor yett Mr Camden for anything I \ can / finde \ to the contrary / have had the happiness to write of this place by their Owne experience (~~they not being there~~ \ the one haveing never bin in the country the other only in the more southerly & mountainouse part, calld the (c) Barony Kendal /†.
Whereupon adhereing too much to the name, and playing a little too much ~~with the Name~~ with the word {the onely thing which Mr Camden seems to be afraid off},[381] they have renderd Westm'land more fruteless and Barren than indeed it \ really / is (as will evidently appear when I come to particulars.) Onely here give me lieve to remarke, that if Cumberland (which ~~they truly represent as~~ \ owne to be / a plentifull ~~and fertill~~ Country) had hapned \ chanc'd / to have \ had / the same denomination, it had scaped \ fared / no better. For there can no reason in Nature be given, why that County should abound so in all things \ necessary (~~as they have represented it~~) / and Westmerland \ pass for a / barren \ place / whereas the soyle is (for \ the / most part \ of / the same \ nature ~~which~~ / ~~these~~ and as full of mountaines every whitt as well watered as that; and of the more southerly situation ~~remote from the north~~ \ and to satisfy them of their ~~ignorance herein~~ \ mistake in this particular. /

[Mr Camden \ & Mr Speed as little more than his translator / as far as I ~~am~~ \ ~~able to~~ / conjecture, came into Bishoprick and Yorkshire; but turnd of into Lancashire – &[382] so entered upon that part of Westm'land towards Kendall; whence he seems to have pass'd to Millum & so travalled on by the eastern-shore,[383] even to Bulness,[384] where he trac[ed] the Ruines of the Picts wall & had a view [of] a great part of Cumberland & Northum[berland], no dout allso that he st[epped] into Scotland.[385] But whether he returned by Newcastle or (which is more likely) pass'd over into Ierland and thence by shipp came to London againe, lett others determine \ enquire. / ~~But~~ However I doe affirm that he never came in the Bottom of Westm'land, there being not the least probability of it, \ for / if he had, those many monuments of antiquity which lay so obviouse in that part of the Country \ even in the highway / had not bin conceald \ or omitted by him / nor so plentifull ~~a soyle~~ \ & pleasant a plasse / pass'd over without his observation. Much of what he has writt about Westm'land he had out of Leiland, & in particular his description of Apleby.[386] And yett Leiland himself was no whit more fortunate for he travailed no further than Barnards Castle, & where made his enquiries concerning Westm'land \ and tooke them on heresaye. / ~~and these~~ I imagin Camden did allso where he had not a view of the whol Country. But to excuse himselfe he has this expression in His Epistle: Fieri tamen potest ut a nonullis quibus fidem adhibui, perperam sim edoctus.[387] {Int. Cambden ad Lectorem}[388] And soe doubtless he was concerning this place.

---

[381] See Camden: 'Many happily will insult over me for that I have adventured to hunt after the originals of names by conjectures, who if they proceed to reject all conjectures, I feare me a great part of Liberall learning and humane knowledge will be utterly out-cast into banishment': Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), Preface.
[382] Four words have been interlineated here but they are illegible, apart from 'in Lancashire'.
[383] The text has perished here, but the letters 'Ea … ern' can be seen.
[384] Bowness. See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 775.
[385] Part of this margin comment has perished: the words 'Furness' and 'Northumberland' are partially lost.
[386] John Leland (c.1503-1552) was an antiquary who made several journeys in England, recorded in his notebooks as 'Itineraries'. Though unpublished in his lifetime, most of the notebooks were preserved, for example, in the Bodleian Library. During the late 16th century, Leland's antiquarian writings were championed by William Camden, William Lambarde (in his Survey of Kent) and John Stow (in his Survey of London, 1598). In the 17th century, antiquaries such as William Dugdale, John Aubrey, Robert Plot, and Anthony Wood greatly admired his work. See J. Carley, 'Leland, John, poet and antiquary'. ODNB.
[387] 'It may be that I have been misled by the credit of authors and others whom I tooke to be most true, and worthy of most credit.' Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), Preface, final paragraph.
[388] Camden, Preface.

These things I thought fitt to premise; that if any should happen to meet with these papers and be so vainely prodigall of his time as to give them the reading; he may plainly discover that I goe not about to thwart such grave Authors whose Learning & Industry I shall ever admire, without ~~some appearance of solid reason~~. \ good grounds. / And I was the more imbolden'd thereunto, not onely because I have Truth on my side but their invitations allso, who would \ not / willingly impose upon us, but have ~~all that is~~ \ what's / amiss to ~~our gentle correction~~ \ be corrected hereafter. / Cambden in Epist. dedico. In plurimis me posse errare fateor, nec erroribus indulgebo; quis totam diem iaculans semper colliniet?[389] I shall therefore proceed to the general discription which both confess were fertill enough in the valleys thereof, ~~but~~ yett supposeing the northerly part of Westm'land to be more mountainouse & by consequence ~~more~~ less fit for tillage. And mistakeing the notion of the word Moore, which they would insinuate have to imply barren mountanes which cannot be cultivated, they have represented the County in general.[390]

[Machell's Notes: I.47]

*Heaths or Boggs.
†{Si vero ex Platonis praecepto rei naturam non exprimant, si non sint liquidae purae ex natura ipsa petitae (loquitur de etymologia conjecturis suis) explodantur ejiciantur exulent. Ibid.}[391] {Mr Camden was in Yorkshire. & see my Booke of Inscriptions} {Partem Regni longe maximam perlustravi: Camden in praefat Epist.}[392]

[I.141][393]

But to proceed:

Descriptiones of the name of Westmerland

[Moorland]
[1.] The County of Westm'land \ is so called / sayeth Mr Camden, from being a Western moorish Countrey &c. But here I ~~crave here to~~ must needs dissent from his Judgment, {because (being better \ ~~both~~ / known to the place & the language of it) I am well assured that a moore \ or more / with them is a Generall name for what lieth in Common, being never so fertall & more the surpluss sayd.} \ Besides / (in the mane) tis Plentifull Countrey & affordes great store of good arable ground meadow & pasture, not only in the Barrony of Kendall, but much more \ ~~allso~~ / in the Bottom of Westm'land, \ ~~as is obvious to any consider~~ / considering the small extend of the Countrey[394] where their very moores, as they were called, if as by the ridges it doth appear they have bin formerly, would bring forth good corne.[395] And their Mountaines ~~afford~~ \ allso yield very / Good Pasture for \ cattle / sheep & ~~besides~~ many rich veines of Lead & Coale ~~they yield underground which~~ are ~~conceald~~ in them, and som brought to light; which in due \ time / place shal be made apear: nihil nobis de est praetor.[396]

[King Westmer]
2. that it is so calld from one King Westmer; who should have ruil'd here, & in a fierce Combate on the Top of Stane Moore, ~~where this County & Yorkshire parteth \ meeteth / should have~~ \ should have

[389] Camden, Britannia, Lectori, 10: 'in plurimis me errare posse … fateor, nec erroribus indulgebo. Quis totam diem iaculans semper collinet?' Translates as, 'And so I right willingly acknowledge that I may err much; neither will I sooth and smooth my errors. Who shooting all day long doth always hit the mark? See Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), Preface: 'To the Reader'. Machell's 'colliniet' should have been written as 'collinet'.
[390] MS: 'they have \ Ms / represent the C. in gen.'
[391] 'But if according to Plato's rule they do not express the nature of the thing, if they are not pure liquids procured from nature itself (he speaks about etymology from his own conjecture) they are rejected, thrown out, excluded. Ibid.'
[392] '"I have surveyed the greatest part of the Realm far and wide": Camden in the Preface to his Epistle.'
[393] A page of (mostly illegible) interlineation and scoring-through. What is legible has been reproduced.
[394] An indistinct interlineated phrase appears here.
[395] Nicolson and Burn concur with Machell's judgment: 'There is not one ancient record that we have met with, wherein it is not expressly called Westmerland, and not Westmorland; which doth not altogether favour Mr Camden's supposition: the Latin termination is Westmaria, sometimes Westmeria, which hath still less resemblance of the moor.' N&BI, 1-2.
[396] 'We lack nothing except'.

slane / ~~subdued a~~ King ~~called~~ Rothinger, ~~upon which victory this verses (tis sayd) writt~~ another \ great / prince ~~who~~ \ that /contended with him, & endeavor'd to drive out of his Kingdom, whereupon (as they say), a Cross was reard up \ erected & sett for a \ on a long stone rather now is calld a † of very place where combat was fought. / In the ~~rear of this Country where it Joyneth~~ \ very place where this combat was fought, with this Inscription: Here King Westmer sloe King Rothinger which how true it is I ~~cannot~~ shal not determine \ shal not concerne myself \ now / much to enquire, the † ther being had no devision. / But the ~~cross~~ \ stone / standeth still as a meet or Bounder betwixt this County \ & the County of / ~~&~~ York~~shire~~; ~~& Is~~ \ being / called \ by / the name of Rear Cross upon Stane-moore.Yett Hector Boetius, a zealous Scottish author, tells a contrary story.

[Machell's Notes: I.141]

{Neither is it a barren but a plentifull Country, affording great store (for the compass of it) of good arable land, pasture and meadow and that not onely ~~as is very obvious~~ for the Barony of Kendal but allso much more &c.}
{But what is tilled already affords so much of it, & mont. fells, that it yields like money, ~~this County may~~ Served by quits the cost of husband[ry], Westm'land might say of itself did: Inopem me copia fecit[397] which I suppose might be amended if they would convert more into pasture – But tho their breed would over: Up Corne – Down Horne – Up Horne – Down Corne …}
{With the stat of 7 yeares exemption from tithes & fit for tillage; If it were needfull; but the ~~Country~~ fields doe yield so much corne already that it bear but smal price: will hardly pay the Hus[band]man for his cost to till.}
{So that it being not be called Westm'land from being a western mooreish County in their Barony sense \ or so / though it might in the other, as abounding \ with /many ling moores or commons, which are fit for tilledge but for want of people (to spend & take the fruites of the earth), doe lye uncultivated, ~~They~~ are called Mores ~~therein~~, \ whereby Moores ~~import~~ meane, \ according to his own fashion, / barren heath \ ground of / in he sayes of this c. ~~county~~.'

[I.142]

He[398] saith it was sett as \ affirmeing that this † was erected for / the Outmost Limit of the Kingdom of Scotland, ~~& calls its~~\ & to collour the matter / ~~&~~ calls it Roy Cross; affirmeing ~~that~~ the English & Scottish armes \ to have bin formerly / ~~were~~ Ingraved upon it \ carved either side: one on that side & the other on this! {But I doe belive ~~that he steps too far~~, that being ~~a zelot~~ \ zealous / for his own Countrey he steps \ but step'd / too far to Inlarge the Boundes of it, & has made an inroade with his Pen. For not concerneing to inflict myselfe with the misnomer, I have often viewed it with the greatest dilligence and could never perceive the least vestigia,[399] so much as the shape of a shield or scutchion on either side of it, much less the Inscription that wee spoke of before. Nor did the Kingdom of Scotland reach hither, In any aige; for all they \ could ever with any colour / pretend or to or was, the Countys of Cumberland \ & Northumberland / – wherein (when \ we com to examine this manner it strictly / it comes to be examend) {and my reasons are in the Latter, of which they had Tindal formerly in the other} ~~it will~~ \ ~~we shall~~ / \ it will be / discovered that \ in all probability / they had but five Townes, which \ & those / they held in Homage of the Kings of England; tho perhaps with the Tithe of Dukes of Cumberland, \ theretofore / annexed therto. For their authors \ affirmeing / say that it was a Dukedom. \ Howbeit, this, & (the other story) make way & give light to \ an other / conjecture (which I will adventur to insert of myne owne;[400] that this Tract of Ground might be called Westm'land; (I doe not say the County of Westmerland \ for thats an addition of later date; for the division of this Ile / into Shires & Countys is ascribed to King Egbert the first Saxon monarch – by H. Huntington[401] – who began his reigne Anno 800 – or […][402] Now the Highest wee can go for it, is to [397] 'Plenty has made me poor'.

[398] Hector Boetius.
[399] MS: 'For not concerneing \ ~~to notiss~~ / \ to inflict upon the / myselfe with the misnomer, I have often viewed it with the Greatest dilligence, and could never perceive \ the least vestigia. /'
[400] MS: 'Howbeit, this, ~~Contest (on the Scottish side)~~ & (the other story) ~~& the other may way~~ make way ~~story~~ & give ~~unto~~ light to ~~another~~ \ an other / Conjecture ~~of my~~ (which I will adventur to Insert of myne owne.)'
[401] Henry of Huntington (c.1088-c.1157), Historia Anglorum or The Chronicle of Henry of Huntingdon. Comprising the history of England, from the invasion of Julius Cæsar to the accession of Henry II. Also, The acts of Stephen, king of England and duke of Normandy (1129-1154).
[402] The following blotted word is illegible.

King Ina – Anno Dom. 720 – as Mr Dugdall doth show more at Large {in his Preface}. Tho Ina is strictly fixed there.)[403]

[3. Marius or Morus]
This Tract of Ground might peradventure be called but Westmerland – e Terra Maris Occidentalis / from Marius or Morus, a Brittish King; {It might be his territory} ~~especially if he ruld of the Brigantes~~ & as som say, Præfect to the Romans themselves – for Westm'land in the Roman Language is Terra Morij Occidentalis. And the ground I have for it is this Inscription, which is ~~supposd~~ \ tooke / kept at Ilekirke. But whether fo[u]nd in this County or that is not now [known][404]

[Machell's Notes: I.142]
{! Qu. An non Pictorum ubi q. Regum Pictorum. ubir – Reg – Scotorum.}[405]

[I.143]
nor much material. But it planely shows us there was such in this western Country. \ D.M. /[406] That this Tract of Ground \ whereof I now treat / might be called Westm'land (I doe not say the County of Westmorland for that's an addition of later date, but onely Westm'land from Marius or Morus, a Brittish King who sometime stoutly resisted the Romanes.[407] But after, he (or at least his son Koyllus & who was Bred-up at Roome in the Emperour's Court) was a great \ favourite of & / frend unto them. ~~And tis thought~~ \ Hence ~~this Part of the Brittish Iland might~~ / {of ~~whom~~ \ him / I suppose it might be called by the Romane soljers, Terra Maris Occidentalis being seated in the west of Brigantia Ulna. And from I suppose being in this best of part of Brigantia ~~Kingdom~~. It might be \ say the Romanes / it might be called Terra Maris \ Occi[dentalis,] / or Terra Mori Occidentalis: ~~which is~~ in English, Westmorland.}

I know it may be objected against he never was King of the Brigantes, of the Brigantes time; not while the Ileland was in diverse Kingdoms. But now I suppose them all ruind, beinn all destroyd by the Romane armyes, because wee had nothing of a successor except in this family. However, that there was such a King our Historyes witness. And that he had to doe in these partes (though they they derive him from \ hence into / ~~the~~ South Brittain & place him there) may be strongly praesumed from may be strongly praesumed from this altar {a stone thus inscribed} which Mr Camden met with \ at Ile Kirke / in Cumberland (~~not far from hence~~) (in ædibus Barhousiorum) \ de / Ilekirke \ a Westm'land family translated from Barwise {within the Parish of St Lawrence Apelby & perhaps cary[d] with them} perhaps caryed Hence when they were translated from Barhouse Hall in the Parish of Apleby, which gave their sirname. {That ancient family was transplanted from Barhouse Hall in ~~the County of~~ Westmerland which gave them their Name, to Ilekirk in Cumberland where they now are, which Altar he saith was thus Inscribed To Ilekirk in Cumberland where they now ~~reside & where Mr C. met with this stone~~ are, which Altar ~~is Inscribed thus~~ he saith was thus inscribed.}.[408] Which Altar he saith was thus Inscribed.

[403] See Dugdale, Warwickshire, Preface, 2, where Dugdale ascribes this passage on Ina, king of the West Saxons, to Selden.
[404] Another note on Marius [MS. I.145] expresses similar views. 'There was one Marius King of the Brittaines \ who is stiled / Aviragi Regis filius, anno Xt 72 Vespasiani ~~primo~~ \ 2^0. / But this could not give name to the County of Westm'land because ~~it~~ \ the land / was not then divided into Countyes or Shires. Yett ~~we have~~ it might be called the \ Terra Mori Occidentali[s] / the \ West / Land of Marius. {It might be so, he being lieutenant to Nerva}. If so be, \ then / he was King of the Brigantes, for it lyes in the western Part of that Kingdom & I take this Inscription to be made ~~by the~~ \ More / Romano [Roman custom] in Memory of him, being then in league with them.'
[405] 'Query. Whether or not of the Picts, where the kingdom of the Picts, where the kingdom of the Scots.'
[406] D.M. See the Inscription below.
[407] MS: '\ but afterwards Hel. /'
[408] The same text occurs in the margin of MS.I.142.

D.M.
MORI REGIS
FILII S HEREDES
EIVS SVBSTITVE
RVNT.VIX.Λ.LXX.[409]

Which I read ~~thus~~ \ in this wise: /

Dis Manibus
Mori Regis
Fillij – et Heredes
ejus substitute-
-runt. Vixit. Annis septuaginta

In English thus:

To the Household Gods
of ~~Moris the King~~ King Mor, (or Morus) his sons & heires did substitute this. He lived – years seventy

Qua Inscriptione, says Mr Camden (fruitfull which is all the use that he makes of it) breviter observare Licet Antiquitatis Lusum; Quæ Ideo literas vocum dislocavit, ut Lectori Crux figeretur. Sic enim (Hîc) vocabulum substituerunt ceu a Bacchis pentheus discerpitur, et ejus prima litera S dirempta ponitur in superiori Linea.[410] But I tak[e] S. to be put &S: & the other ~~to be~~ \ being just supplyed from éjus. /

[I.145

But I have farther to note concerneing it, that the Letter A, which stands for Annos – haveing no line or ~~dashing~~ \ or stroake / passing through it, may serve (as he sayeth in another place) to show the date of it: observavi a Severi ætate usque ad Gordiani, et postea Literam Λ ubique in hac insula in omnibus Inscriptionibus transversam lineolam non habere.[411] Camden: e Libro Meo Antiquorum Inscriptionum, p.5*.[412]

[Machell's Notes: I.145]

*{But this makes nothing at all for my purpose.}
{Cassivellanus – Cæsa[ri] se dedidit anno Xt n. 52}[413]
{Kimbelinus in vita Pat Guidericus Rex pacem egit 43; et bello cecidit anno Xt. 46 cui successit Reg. Arviragus anno Xt. 46 4º Claudij.}[414]
{Quid nom} Westm'land is thought \ by som / to be so calld from one who is stiled King Westm'land.} {Terra Marij sive mori occidentalis.}[415]

[I.143]

{Marius the King}[416]
But I have farther to note concerneing; that he seemeth (by this) to have had many \ sons, / tho there is [409] Camden provides the inscription relating to King Morus amongst several found at Ilekirk: 'D M. MORI REGIS FILII HEREDES EIVS SVBSTITVE RVNT VIX. A. LXX,' but without comment; neither does Camden use the word 'fruitful'. See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 772C.

[410] 'From which inscription … it is possible briefly to observe the games antiquity plays; for it has displaced the letters of the words so far as to make a torment for the reader. For here they have substituted a word, just like Pentheus is torn apart by the Bacchae, and its first letter S is ripped away and placed on the line above.' This passage is not to be found in the 'Cumberland' chapter of Camden's Britannia.
[411] 'I have noticed from the age of Severus right up to that of Gordianus and later, the letter Λ everywhere in this island in all inscriptions has no cross-bar.'
[412] 'From my book of Ancient Inscriptions.'
[413] 'Cassivellanus surrendered to Caesar in AD 52.'
[414] Most margin comments on this page have been omitted; they repeat text on I.138 and I.143.
[415] 'The western land of Marius or Morus.'
[416] As this passage, crammed onto the page foot, contains much interlineation and scoring through, the transcription is, in part, impressionistic.

but one recorded in \ our / history, whome he made his co-heres,[417] divided his substance & Crown Landes (which were then very large for the British Kingdom) amongst them{!} \ & why might not he to som part of them. / & that they in gratitude erected this monument according to the Romane fashion. & being educated, his eldest son, at least on tel of R., as far as Bodotria being run into one, for wee read – and as Speed thinketh – succeeding him in the Iland of Brittain. No more of any succession but in his line, where he is not only as the Brittish King but the Romane præfect in whom they \ followeth / confided. For speakeing of ther emperor, Nerva, \ who succeeded Domitian / he wateth thus[418] under him.

[I.145]

And he might well be called Regis filius; note: The son of the King – His father being the only King ~~in his time~~ \ the chief King in his time / that som writers have noted – a valiant and judged an object worthy the incounter of the Roman Emperour – whom the Poet {Juvenal} flatters after this sort:

[I.146]

It Boades Great Honour to thy self
Som King thou shalt deprive[419]
Or else Arviragus from Rule
Of Brittaine's wain shalt drive.

Speed hath inserted and old British lyne which seems to be his: 177. §3.[420] & I shall not disdane to adorne this place with it.

{Anno Domini 98 Galfridus Monmothenis}

Speed (227. §3) speeking of the Emperour Nerva, sayetth what liege Tenants under him were in Brittain or under his successor Trajan.[421] I finde not in record but [in] our English writers from the Archdeacon of Munmouth,[422] being a succession of British Kings & amongst them Marius, who conquered Roderic King of the Pickts accompanyed with the Scotts; whose Trophy erected near unto Carleile remaned a long time after, bearing the Inscription of his victory*.

And after him his son Coilus, brought up in Rome all the time of his youth, returned their favours & payed them Tribute without Constraint. Albeit by Juvenal it seemeth that Arviragus (the father of Marius) a great resister of the Romanes & lived in the reigne of Domitian, as hath been touched (Cap. 6 §12),[423] unless you will say that Muragus & Arviragus was the same Marrus. But through the uncertaintyes & disagrements {!} occasioned by the silence of Better authors, our Historyes rest doubtful & soe wee must leave them – returneing to finish.

I wish I could see this monument, or finde it described in any author. May it not be that ~~same~~ which, or that for which, or in whose place this was erected as superstition doth imply, is said to have bin graved on Ray ✝ upon Stanemore. Here, King Westmer slew King Rothinger; which has som affinity with Mar[ius] & Rotheric? Or may it not be this very stone which I have described? If so, it agrees well with this relation: His son & heire being bred at Rome, might erect this for him \ intre Romano / but [417] Two or three scored-through words are illegible here.

[418] The page has perished here; text is difficult to decipher.
[419] The centre of this word is blotted.
[420] Speed: 'Notwithstanding by Iuvenal it is plaine, that this Arviragus was in his fame in the daies of Domitian, unto whom the Poet, as a Prophet, would foredoome his happy successe in the dispossession of his government over the Britaines, as in these his verses are seene; "It bodes great honor to thy selfe, some King tho[u] shalt deprive, Or els Arviragus from the rule of Britains waine shalt drive." An ancient British Coyne of silver is here inserted, and a mans head thereon instamped, which is supposed to be his, the letters alluding so neere to his name.' Speed, Historie, 177.
[421] Speed, Historie, 217, section 3.
[422] Geoffrey of Monmouth (d. 1154/5), bishop of St Asaph; historian. Author of Historia regum Britanniae 'The history of the kings of Britain' completed c.1139. See J. Crick, 'Monmouth, Geoffrey of [Galfridus Arturus]. ODNB.
[423] See I.19 and I.39 for other references to Domitian's rule.

[Machell's Notes: I.146]

*{Flores Histor.[424] Will. Malmsb[ur]y[425] ascribeth this memorial to be erected for Marius, a consul at Roome: Polychr[onicon] lib. 4: C: 12.}[426] it cannot be applied to Marius the Consul, because he was neither King nor Kings son. The great doubt is raised by the poet Ju. ~~and~~ \ yett / he lived I thinke both in Domitian & Nerva's Time, who succeded each other – consider it well. {He seems in great f[avour] stil with the Roman R[ulers]. He & his post continued still Kings} See Juvenal &c.

[I.147]

Might DM MORI REG. warrant the spelling it Westmorland, as the writeing it, as Marius doth Westmaria. And he might be calld Marius by the Romans according to the Lattin form, that being a common name amongst them, insteed of Mor \ or / Moras – as it is on the stone. As his father is called Arviragus insteed Arivag upon his Coyn. & BODA Boadicia insteed of BODAC {upon a stone which ~~I would have the Welh as~~ may be her monument & which the Wesh antiquaries may enquire more into.}[427]

[Machell's Notes: I.147]

Query: of Pen-mor – Pennigent. Speed's \ Booke of / Maps,[428] or Cambden.

… Est etiam Locus Antiq[uus] in Cumb[erland] Morisby vocatus quo \ multa / opido ~~multa~~ Antiquitatis veneranda reperiunt[ur] vestigia et Lapis a Camdeno editus sic Inscribitur DEO SILVANO &c. {MS Inscrip[tiones], p. 1111}[429] Hic forsan Locus a Moro rege nomen desumpserit quasi Mor'sby – i.e. locus seu villa Mori. Et Morland in Westm'land.[430]

Camden rejects the former opinion of Marius.[431] This, tho Mr Camden hath exploded, I doe make bold to revive it for these following reasons:

1. [blank]
2. An Inscription which he hath collected but not observed.[432]

---

[424] Florus (fl. time of the emp. Hadrian), an Epitome of Roman History.

[425] William of Malmesbury (c.1090-c.1142), was an Anglo-Norman monk and historian, author of Gesta Regum Anglorum ('Deeds of the Kings of the English', 1125-34), and Gesta Pontificum (1125). R. Thomson, 'Malmesbury, William of, historian, man of letters, and Benedictine monk'. ODNB.

[426] Polychronicon (or Ranulphi Castrensis, cognomine Higden, Polychronicon (sive Historia Polycratica) ab initio mundi usque ad mortem regis Edwardi III in septem libros dispositum) written by the English Benedictine monk, Ranulf Higden (d.1364). See John Taylor, 'Higden, Ranulf'. ODNB.

[427] The 'Welsh antiquaries' included Edward Lhwyd, an Oxford naturalist and philologist who from 1693 updated information on Welsh counties for Edmund Gibson's new version of Camden's Britannia (1695), to which Machell also contributed. See Graham Parry, The Trophies of Time: English Antiquarians of the seventeenth century (Oxford, 1995), 345-54.

[428] John Speed, The theatre of the empire of Great Britaine.

[429] Camden refers to 'this altar I saw lately digged out there [Moresby], with a little horned image representing Sylvanus, erected to his honour by the Second Cohort of the Lingones'. And in his margin: 'Deo Sylvanus cohors Secunde Lingonum, cui præst G. Pompeius M. Saturninum', Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 766.

[430] 'There is also an ancient place in Cumberland called Morisby in which town are found many venerable relics of Antiquity including the stone published by Camden inscribed as follows: TO THE GOD SILVANUS etc. {MS Inscriptions p.4}. This place perhaps took its name from King Morus, Mor'sby as it were – i.e. the place or estate of Morius. Also, Morland in Westm'land.'

[431] Camden describes an inscription found at Carlisle thus: 'This Marius some will needs have to be Arviragus the Britain: others that Marius, who being claimed emperor against Gallienus, was named to bee of wonderfull strength… Yet have I learned, that another, making mention of this stone, saith it was not inscribed MARII VICTORIÆ, but MARTI VICTORI, that is, to victorious Mars, which …seeme to come nearer the truth': Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 779D. See also 759: 'Let that dreame therefore as touching King Marius, bee excluded out of the schoole of reverend antiquity, who forsooth, as our Chroniclers have dreamed, subdued the Picts and called this countrey after his own name.'

[432] A paragraph written in larger letters than the rest. Presumably Machell was referring to the inscription transcribed but not discussed by Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 772, which Machell copied into his history as evidence for Marius/Mori (see I.145).

But whence soever it taketh its name, since the division of this Land into shires – it hath bin calld the County of Westmerland:[433] 'and \ hath / Given title to a Count or Earle ~~calld by name~~ ~~which is now in the Formerly~~ of Westmorland,[434] which Honour was formerly in the Name of the Nevill, {a Yorkshire family} whose armes are seen in som part or other of most churches in Westm'land, Sc [blank]; But is now in the name of the [blank] of whose armes & pedigree I here subjoyned. But when soever it takes its name, since \ & / tho […][435] the land into Shire w[h]ich it has bin called the Co. of W.
But Will. of Mal[mesbury]
– land 20 li per acre.

[I.61][436]

{Moore – More}
It is called Westmorland, from Marius (say some), ~~the~~ a King of this Country, who fought with the Picts; and haveing vanquished \ or overcome / them, called these ~~place after~~ \ partes by / his Owne Name. But since this opinion can not please Mr Camden [~~who was such a master of History~~] it shall not \ contend, / ~~to give it countenance~~: neither finde out a new one \ of my owne query / Terra Maurorum Aureliorum from the Aurelian Maurs who resided at Apleby; tho some peradventure, ~~that delight in Etymologie, would take up the cudgels~~ ~~and contend \ much / for it~~ would be pleasd with it. But I am content \ myself at present / to walke by his light, ~~and had rather play the sceptic than use as far as it will carry mee~~ \ and to goe along with him as far as I can, deduceing it / ~~And~~ rather ~~deduce it~~ \ ~~with that worthy book q.~~ / from the word moore.
But I must begg \ his / pardon, if my experience of the use of that word \ in the northern parts / urges me ~~to be so bold as~~ to contradict him a little. For ~~notwithstanding all that their Etymologists and Lexicographers have writ, concerning the original and meaning of the word \ moore~~ / ~~yett none knows so well the use thereof in those parts of England, as one who has had a great while amongst them; (which I have don.)~~ ~~And I know very well that~~ a more ~~there is the selfe same thing with common in the south~~ \ signifies the same that \ a / Commone doth with us, being 2 different names for the selfe same thing, / and is never used ~~in any~~ otherwise ~~use by north Country men~~. (of \ which / I could give \ a great many instances all over / ~~instances through all~~ this Count\rey, / ~~where~~ their Commons ~~alway~~ allwayes \ being /called moores: altho the soyle be never so rich \ fertil.) / ~~and some I am sure are as fitt for tyllidge as their common fields; they were not inclosed~~. And Stanemore it selfe, has not the name ~~of moore~~ on any other ~~accompt~~ \ score, / but because tis a Common ~~the only instance I can give for his discription of it is a Common. There is a great difference~~; And there is not a village in all this Countrye that ever I heard of ~~that is destitute of~~ them, which has not a Common.
And wherefore I presume our Learned Mr Camden being not often in this Countrey is a little mistaken when he informes us that Loca ~~ista quae inculta jacent~~, et \ quae non facile / Agricultura ~~facile~~ sublevari ~~in~~ possint moores angli septenrionales vocant,[437] i.e. that places unfit for culture in the northern language are called Moors: for most of their Commons, which they calle so, are as good soyle and fitt for tillage, as their Common fields, \ are / if they were ~~but~~ inclosed & \ accordingly / husbanded ~~somewhat accordingly~~. So that mores are nothing but loca inculta,[438] ~~and so they always take them to be~~ wast places ~~laying waist~~ \ uncultivated, / however ~~unfit or~~ \ fertill or / fitt for tillage. But if those places be montes Alte pertingentes, et quae agricultura sublevari non possint[439] (as most of their mountaines are) They challenge to them \ selves / a peculiar name which the northern people never give to the Commons ~~or moors that are not mountains~~ for they are ~~and that is~~ \ calld / Fell. Since ergo we see the true sense

[433] The name of the county is given in full here, rather than in the usual contracted form.
[434] The name of the county is again written in full.
[435] A small amount of text has perished here.
[436] Also numbered p.7.
[437] 'Such barren places which cannot easily by the painfull labour of the husbandman bee brought to fruitfulness the Northern English call moores', Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 759.
[438] Waste places.
[439] 'Far extending mountains, which cannot be improved by agriculture.'

[Machell's Notes: I.61 and I.62]

{There was one King [of] Westm'land who is noted in Ussher's Antiq. Ecclesae Britan. pag. 582[440] who slew King Rothinger on the Top of Stanemore, whence this rithme: HEERE KING WESTMEER SLOW THEE KING ROTHINGER. Se allso Burton upon Antonin[us][441] for the Limits.}

{Except Stanemore. Query if it extends to the fell – yes. Stanemoore dale & Stanemore fell.}

[I.62]

Maden Castle. Endenburge. Castrum alatum Aden. But Alain signif. forsan \ in / Aden pro Eaden.

[I.63][442]

of the word, Moore is nothing else but a waist place\ or Common,[443] / What if I should derive ~~it from~~ \ it ~~mean~~ / of the English word more (their being little or no difference betwixt them either in \ sense or / sound or signification)? For More, we know, is an over plus, \ remainder / or residue.[444] And moore is ~~somewhat~~ left behind \ such a parcel of ground, / ~~behind, viz a portion or parcel of ground as which~~ \ as /~~which~~ was not thought fit to be inclosed, with the fields an Demaisnes ~~were when they~~ first ~~of all divided & separated them from the Great waist places~~ \ taken up, but was left as a pasture in Common for ther beasts to goe on. \ Now this Country of old being the seat of war \ q. Morandi Locus / both in time of the Romaines & Saxons, \ the / Danes\ & Normans; / and perpetually \ since that / infested with ~~incursions of the~~ Scotts till of late years* could not husband their ground & improve it so much as \ those which lay somewhat remoter from them / ~~remoter places, so that their fields~~ \ ~~Whence it comes to pass that our fields / were little, and their moors our Commons great. Whence your southerly people in some part of Yorkeshire, and easterly in Bishoprick where the people of Bishoprigg to whom it layes west (and some part of Yorkshire) \ to whom it lies west / called the place Westm'land, and they doe to this day calle the people of this County and & the inhabitants of Cumberland, West-Country men~~.{Compared with our neighbours in Y[orkshire] & Bishoprick of whom wee lye West, whence they call us West countery men & C[ounty] Westm'land}. It appears then that Westm'land is so called, from it[s] \ western / situation – and great store of Moores and \ i.e. / Commons, \ ~~therein & unimproved places~~ / many of which notwithstanding are arable \ ~~which are therein~~ and have bin ploughed, as appears by the ridges & furrows upon them / held non quia inter montes alte pertingentes ad occasum sita est.[445] But not from lying amongst high mountaines[446] \ alltho it be enviorenned with them / for they are commonly called Fells, not Moors.[447]

[Machell's Notes: I.63]

*Usus ad tempo Jacobi Regis [James I.]

[I.46][448]

[F.] County of Westm'land
Why tis called a county; why Westm'land; Describe in generall; Divide it, and Speake of the particular Parishes & Lordships

Thus Sir,[449] haveing given you my thoughts concerneing the mistake of those 2 worthy authors in this particular, who otherwise in the general have writ beyond compaire: (yett even the better of them (as all men must doe) doth acknowledge himself, subject to errours) \ mistakes / (In plurimis me posse

[440] James Ussher, Britannicarum Ecclesiarum Antiquitates (Dublin, 1639).
[441] William Burton (1609-57), A Commentary on Antoninus his Itinerary, or Journies of the Roman Empire, so far as it concerneth Britain (London, 1658).
[442] Also numbered p.7.
[443] For Camden's opinion see Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 749.
[444] This is repeated on MS.II.460.
[445] 'Not because it is situated among mountains extending far towards the West'.
[446] Here, Machell translates the Latin above.
[447] See the same comments in N&B1: 1, 3.
[448] Continuation of I.44A.
[449] Machell was addressing the reader here.

errare fateor, nec erroribus indulgebo; quis totum diem jaculans semper colliniet?)[450] I shall proceed to speake of the County of Westm'land, & therein show you [1.] Why tis called a county. 2. Why Westm'land. 3. Describe in generall. 4. Divide it. 5. Speake of the particular Parishes & Lordships.

[I.48]

Tis divided from Bishoprick by the River Tease which springs in this Country*. It semes parted from Yorkeshire by a direct line from Argillhouse to Rear Cross;[451] & so by the Romaine Way to Bowes Castle whence in a direct line to Holme Cross.

{Why County?}
This, with Cumberland and Northumberland, are not called shires as others in England, but Counties: yet I finde Cumberland caled by Leland, and that not unfrequently, Carluelshire. & \ Westmorland-by is Apalbyshire. / They are called Counties: in Latin Comitatus, from Comes, a Count or Earl, of which every shire in England \ have one / as Governor thereof: and under him was the Vice Comes, Viscount or Sheriff; Sheriffs to this day being called Vice Comites, notwithstanding that the ~~title~~ \ word / be now transmuted to signify principly a title of honour rather than office; howbeit in this County the office & honour go together, for &c.

[Reign of Richard I. 1189-1199]
\ John de Crakenthorpe 21 Rich. at Berewise witness penes Blenkinsop /

[Reign of King John. 1199-1216]
Phillip Scroope 5^0. Johais
Joha de Ormsheved: Temp. Jo.
Reymund de Dernford t. Joh.
Eudo de Bellocampo t. Joh.
William de Ireby temp. Joh.

[Reign of] Hen. 3. [1216-1272]
Gilbert de Kirkington
Thomas filius Johannis
Robert de Morvil vice comitus
Thomas de Musegrave 36. H.3
Randulphus de Notingham \ alibi 27. H.3 / clericus \ vice com. Westmorland / in Cart. s.d. Cum. Willielmo de Goldrington. Testis (penes Mr Blenkinsop) in which Thomas de Hellebeck purchased Lands in Asco \ Ascome* /
Richard de Notingham clerk s.d.

[Reign of] Ed. 2. [1307-1327]
Henry de Warthecop 10. Ed. 2

[Reign of] Ed. 3. [1327-1377]
Henricus de Threlkeld vice com.
et Johanes de Burgh forsan Burgham sub vice com. 35. Ed. 3.

[Reign of Richard II. 1377-1399]
Johi de Crakenthorpe, 21. Rich. \ at / Berewise. Witness, penes Blenkinsop

[450] 'I confess that in very many matters I am capable of making mistakes, nor will I condone my mistakes; who, when aiming all day long, always hits the mark?' The Latin word 'collinet' has been written by Machell as 'colliniet'. The quotation is repeated on I.47 and I.48.
[451] Argill house lies on South Stainmore, Kirkby Stephen, CA17 4DH. Rey Cross (Rere Cross or Rear Cross) is located on Stainmore towards the western edge of County Durham, approximately 1 kilometre (0.62 mi) east of the border with Cumbria along the A66 road.

[Machell's Notes: I.48]

*{Sed de hoc qua?[452] see the Bounder penes Jac. Bird. Jo. Hall.}
Shirerifs Tarne?
As I remember, Warwickshire was governed before the Conquest by a viscount – Sed dub[ito]?[453]
Shireriff & Lieutenant. 57: Camden.[454]
Com\it/es 2. 345. Officiales in Saxonum Tempor[ibus] Hereditarij in Normanorum.[455]
Vice comites Westmor[iae] sub fam[iis] Vipont & Clifford in Antiquis Cartis Memorandum.[456]

[I.49][457]

{§1. Bounds}
{E Cart. penes Thomas Sandford de Askham}
The County of Westm'land \ sometime writ the County of Appleby / is bordered on the north and west side theirof with Cumberland; on the south with Lancashire; and on the east with \ part of / Yorkshire and the Bishoprick of Durham. It is separated from Cumberland by \ Tees / Emote and Blenkarne Rivers, and part of Eden, to wit from the Bridge […][458] where Blenkarne comes into it till it meets with Emote [blank] mile below. It is divided from Lancashire by \ the western bankes / Windermere Water \ which is all in Westm'land. / And the River Winster. Some take Roy Cross on the Top of Stainemore to be the Boundary twixt Westm'land & Yorkshire; yett I find that Bowes Castle \ was said to be / in this County. Vide Dugdalle Baronagius de Roberto de Veteriponte, qui fuit custos Castelli de Bowes \ in Westm'land* / tempore Joha[nnis] Reg[is] 2.}[459]

[Machell's Notes: I.49]

* Treat of Bowes Here.

[I.388]

Bowes Parish in Westm'land[460]
{ad Brough, on the General Description of W[estmorland]}
Tho Bowes be generally reputed in Yorkshire, yett for as much as I finde it – in evidences of great Antiquity, \ ut patet[461] = Baronagio, Dugdall: de Robert de Veteripont / viz. in the Time of King John – to have bin in Westm'land, & cannot finde[462] when or by what Authority alienates thence, I shall take occasion to treat of it Here (or by the by in the Limits of Westm'land, or in speakeing about Cæsars Tower Apud Appleby.)

Virius Lupus, Lieutenant under Severus & Successor to Heraclianus about the yere of Christ 197, strenthened the province especially in the north with many Strong Castles ~~amongst~~ and repaired many places ruined either by fyre or furie of the Bordering Swords & of which Lavat Ræ (i.e. Bowes under Stanemore)[463] where the 1[t] Cohort of the Thracians lay, was one; as appears by this Aultar there erected for The Goddess Fortune* now at the House of Sir Rob[ert] Cotton of Conni[n]gton in Huntington Shire†. And tis not unlikely that either he, or \ the Emperoure T.M.[464] / Severus who [452] 'But which way from here?'

[453] 'But I doubt it'.
[454] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 763C-E.
[455] 'Officials in Saxon times; heirs in Norman times.'
[456] 'The viscounts of Westmaria [were] under the families Vipont and Clifford in ancient deeds.'
[457] Also numbered p.3.
[458] Two illegible words have been scored through here.
[459] 'Who was guardian of the castle of Bowes in the 2nd year of King John.' [1200-01]: See Dugdale, Baronage (1675), 347: '[In 4. John] he first had a grant from King John of the Castle of Appleby and Burgh, with the whole bailiwick of Westmerland, to hold during pleasure'; 348: 'In the … fifth year of King John this Robert de Vipount had also the custody of Windsor Castle; so also, of the Castle of Bowes in Com. Westmorl.'
[460] According to Machell's instructions (*on I.49), this edition has placed notes on the parish of Bowes here.
[461] 'To make plain/to be clear.'
[462] Machell has interlineated the figure '0' here, perhaps to indicate that he found no evidence.
[463] Lavatræ or Lavatris.
[464] These are Machell's initials, placed alongside an interlineation.

reedifyed Olinaca (which is Heckley in Yorkeshire)[465] as appeareth by \ an / Inscription \ which was / found there) were the founders, or Repar[e]res of of those Castles in Westm'land, whose mighty Towers bear the name of Cæsar. Se the inscription ibidem IM. SEVERVS‡.

[Machell's Notes: I.388]

*DEÆ FORTVNÆ &c. se Speeds Cron, 228 or Camden.[466] {Memorandum: I heard one found at K[endal] Fortunæ Servatrici. 1 seemes before an Ingaigement, the other after.}

†{Query if not Brough under Stanemore? Send to Cottones Sc.}[467]

‡{See also what is said of Theodosius Civilis, Lieutenant Flavius Valentinianus, who Reedifyed Cityes Castles &c. Book 6. Cap. 50 p. 270. §8.} See more there in Speed, How Severus warred with noe great Glorie against the North Brit[ons].

[I.49]

{[§2.] Figure and Extent}

The figure of this County is somewhat oblong, reaching from Kirkland in the north to Burton in the south about 30 miles; and from ~~Eden~~ \ Hewseat Morvill / {Hill} to the head of Gresmere near upon 30, which makes the measure of the whol circuit much upon 120 miles.[468]

{§3. Why County?}

It is called a County (which is peculiar to Westm'land Cumberland & Northumberland)[469] from the word Count, which signifies an Earle: In Latin Comitatus from Comes, and implyes as much as Dignitas Comitis, vel tantum spatium Terrae, quantum ad comitem pertinent;[470] i.e. The jurisdiction of an Earle, or so much land as was allotted unto him. (See more in Spelman's Gloss[ary][471] Titles of Honor:[472] sub title: Comitatus.) Now tho the word cannot be out of use amongst us to express an Earle by, yet 'tis very frequent in forreine nations, and we calle his wife Countess & his deputy Vi-Count (which are reliques of the word) to this very day.[473]

{Comites; Whence Shireref}

These Comites, Countes or Earles had their \ County Courts as wee have to this day / wherein matters

---

[465] Machell appears to have taken his information from Speed's Historie, which spells Olicana as Olinaca, and Ilkley as Hekeley; see Ralph Thoresby (1658-1725), Biographia Britannica, or The Lives of the most eminent Persons who have flourished in Great Britain and Ireland from the earliest ages down to the present times, collected by the best authorities, both Printed and Manuscript, and digested in the Manner of Mr Bayle's Historical and Critical Dictionary Vol. 6, Part 1 (London, 1763), 3931-43, at 3938, where these names are correctly written.

[466] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 732. Camden placed Bowes in 'Richmondshire'.

[467] Sir Robert Cotton (1571-1631) was an antiquary and politician. In the late 1580s, having already collected material for a history of Huntingdonshire, he became an early member of the Society of Antiquaries, together with his former teacher William Camden, and began to lend volumes from his growing library to fellow antiquaries. In 1599-1600 Cotton accompanied Camden on a tour of northern England, surveying and collecting Roman remains from the area around Hadrian's Wall; reports of their findings were later added to an edition of Camden's Britannia. In November 1629 Charles I ordered the closure of Cotton's library, and for a brief period Cotton was imprisoned because he had allowed his collections to be used for the production of arguments thought detrimental to royal interests. Cotton published little under his own name but acted as a source for many scholars engaged in their own work, for which 17th-century writers praised him. At his death, Cotton's library consisted of around 800 volumes of MSS, mainly Anglo-Saxon manuscripts, monastic registers, biblical works, lives of the saints and martyrs, genealogies and heraldic materials. See S. Handley, 'Cotton, Sir Robert Bruce, first baronet (1571-1631), antiquary and politician'. ODNB. Graham Parry describes Cotton as 'a magnificent specimen of the full-blown Jacobean antiquary,' Parry, Trophies of Time, 92.

[468] The length of Machell's 'mile', in this paragraph and throughout the volumes, is open to interpretation.

[469] 'Shire' does not appear in the names of these counties.

[470] 'The dignity/jurisdiction of an earl, or as much area of land as pertains to an earl'.

[471] Sir Henry Spelman, Glossarium Archaiologicum (1626, completed by William Dugdale 1664).

[472] John Selden: Titles of Honor (1614).

[473] Machell here digressed to discuss the office and dignity of persons with the title of 'Count' in England and mainland Europe: see Part 3, Ch.4, Heraldry.

{Anno 1068. 2. William}[484]
Wee read that the northern English conspired att Brough against William the Conqueror in the beginning of the Norman government, which in all probability was[485] 1068 – the 2nd yere of the Conquerors reigne, when Edgar Athling the right heire to the crowne came out of Scotland to Durham, where he slew Robert Cumin & 700 Normans placed there on purpose to withstand all dangers which might arise from Malcolm King of Scotts or Edgar himself, whose sister Malcolm had espoused.

{Anno 1069. 9. William}
But notwithstand winter wether he posted into ~~his /or in~~ the north & appeared further towards 1069 when the English fugatives brought in the Daines to their succour, under the conduct of Osburne Brother to Swaine King of Denmark, & Harold & Canute his 2 sonns, who arrived in Humber & landed their men.

[I.51][486]
It is very dubious ~~when~~ whence the first division into Shires or Countyes tooke its rise: but ~~no doubt~~ \ probably / it was in the time of the Saxon, because the word is puerly Saxon, and signifyes as much as a division: however wee will run it as high as wee can. Not to mention Ignulphus: his mistake (which we shall have occasion to speake of hereafter and which is indeed of later date than what I purpose to produce),[487] Mr Seldon observing in his Titles of Honor, p.2 c.5. {? vid} § 3, an old law of Ina's King of West Saxons, Anno DCCXX: That if any Ealdorman ~~were~~ bee guilty of an escape, perdat suum Comitatum[488] ~~Lett him~~ \ he was to / forfeit his shire. Which ~~learned~~ Mr Dugdall has taken notice of, and afforded ~~us~~ \ me / allso an other proofe of greater antiquity ~~of H Huntington his folio 170 which he refer to King Egbert by a circumstance of time~~, ~~who began his~~ reigne, who made Egga and Learicus witnesses to his foundation Charter of Crowland, by the titles of Comes Lincolniae, & Comes Leicestriae;[489] and if theire were then Counts or Earles, no question but there were Shires or Countyes also. However Here Huntington, lib. 1. fol.170,[490] speakes more clearly concerning this division, tho of later date, for sayes he: postquam autem Reges West Seaxe cæteris praevaluerant, at monarchiam obtinuerunt (which was of Circumstance of time in the reign of King Egbert, who began to rule Anno DCCC) Terras per 35 provincias sibi diviserunt.[491] So that in probability there was a division into shires or Counties in the year DCCXVI, or DCCXX. But beyond all controversie in the year DCCC, the land there being divided into 35 Provinces, Shires or Counties.
{§ 5. The several Kings haveing severall shires in their several D.[492] – But [they] were then divided into 25 shires, as they are at this day.}[493]

{Number of shires}
But then againe we are allmost as much at a loss about the Number of Shires in this Kingdome as we

---

[484] The second year of the reign of William the Conqueror.
[485] An illegible word here is possibly, 'either'.
[486] Also numbered p.4.
[487] Ignulphus/Ignulf (c.1045-1109), a royal scribe to William I, became Abbot of Crowland c.1086. He was supposedly author of the Croyland Chronicle, which bears his name and is written in the first person. The Chronicle deals with events and documents, particularly charters, relevant to Crowland Abbey, from the eighth to the eleventh centuries, but has since been found to be a 15th-century forgery (now named Pseudo-Ingulf). Pseudo-Ingulf draws at times on reliable chroniclers and may at times reflect authentic traditions. See E. King, 'Ingulf, abbot of Crowland'. ODNB.
[488] 'He should lose his shire'.
[489] In Dugdale, Warwickshire, Preface.
[490] Henry of Huntington, Historia Anglorum or The Chronicle of Henry of Huntingdon.
[491] 'But after the Kings of West Saxony had prevailed over the others and obtained the monarchy … they divided the Lands for themselves into 35 provinces.'
[492] Dominions; domains.
[493] The MS. appears to read, 'But when they run al into and have them were then divided into 25 shires, as they are at this day', but, as this margin comment is mixed with body text it is difficult to decipher.

{Anno 1068. 2. William}[484]
Wee read that the northern English conspired att Brough against William the Conqueror in the beginning of the Norman government, which in all probability was[485] 1068 – the 2nd yere of the Conquerors reigne, when Edgar Athling the right heire to the crowne came out of Scotland to Durham, where he slew Robert Cumin & 700 Normans placed there on purpose to withstand all dangers which might arise from Malcolm King of Scotts or Edgar himself, whose sister Malcolm had espoused.

{Anno 1069. 9. William}
But notwithstand winter wether he posted into ~~his /or in~~ the north & appeared further towards 1069 when the English fugatives brought in the Daines to their succour, under the conduct of Osburne Brother to Swaine King of Denmark, & Harold & Canute his 2 sonns, who arrived in Humber & landed their men.

[I.51][486]
It is very dubious ~~when~~ whence the first division into Shires or Countyes tooke its rise: but ~~no doubt~~ \ probably / it was in the time of the Saxon, because the word is puerly Saxon, and signifyes as much as a division: however wee will run it as high as wee can. Not to mention Ignulphus: his mistake (which we shall have occasion to speake of hereafter and which is indeed of later date than what I purpose to produce),[487] Mr Seldon observing in his Titles of Honor, p.2 c.5. {? vid} § 3, an old law of Ina's King of West Saxons, Anno DCCXX: That if any Ealdorman ~~were~~ bee guilty of an escape, perdat suum Comitatum[488] ~~Lett him~~ \ he was to / forfeit his shire. Which ~~learned~~ Mr Dugdall has taken notice of, and afforded ~~us~~ \ me / allso an other proofe of greater antiquity ~~of H Huntington his folio 170 which he refer to King Egbert by a circumstance of time~~, ~~who began his~~ reigne, who made Egga and Learicus witnesses to his foundation Charter of Crowland, by the titles of Comes Lincolniae, & Comes Leicestriae;[489] and if theire were then Counts or Earles, no question but there were Shires or Countyes also. However Here Huntington, lib. 1. fol.170,[490] speakes more clearly concerning this division, tho of later date, for sayes he: postquam autem Reges West Seaxe cæteris praevaluerant, at monarchiam obtinuerunt (which was of Circumstance of time in the reign of King Egbert, who began to rule Anno DCCC) Terras per 35 provincias sibi diviserunt.[491] So that in probability there was a division into shires or Counties in the year DCCXVI, or DCCXX. But beyond all controversie in the year DCCC, the land there being divided into 35 Provinces, Shires or Counties.
{§ 5. The several Kings haveing severall shires in their several D.[492] – But [they] were then divided into 25 shires, as they are at this day.}[493]

{Number of shires}
But then againe we are allmost as much at a loss about the Number of Shires in this Kingdome as we [484] The second year of the reign of William the Conqueror.

[485] An illegible word here is possibly, 'either'.
[486] Also numbered p.4.
[487] Ignulphus/Ignulf (c.1045-1109), a royal scribe to William I, became Abbot of Crowland c.1086. He was supposedly author of the Croyland Chronicle, which bears his name and is written in the first person. The Chronicle deals with events and documents, particularly charters, relevant to Crowland Abbey, from the eighth to the eleventh centuries, but has since been found to be a 15th-century forgery (now named Pseudo-Ingulf). Pseudo-Ingulf draws at times on reliable chroniclers and may at times reflect authentic traditions. See E. King, 'Ingulf, abbot of Crowland'. ODNB.
[488] 'He should lose his shire'.
[489] In Dugdale, Warwickshire, Preface.
[490] Henry of Huntington, Historia Anglorum or The Chronicle of Henry of Huntingdon.
[491] 'But after the Kings of West Saxony had prevailed over the others and obtained the monarchy … they divided the Lands for themselves into 35 provinces.'
[492] Dominions; domains.
[493] The MS. appears to read, 'But when they run al into and have them were then divided into 25 shires, as they are at this day', but, as this margin comment is mixed with body text it is difficult to decipher.

are about there original; for though, H. Hunting\ton/ tells us planely of 35 provinces in those dayes, we finde the account to alter in after aiges; for Mr Camden has coated to our hands that "in the year 1016 {?} There were in England XXXII shires. (è Malmsburiensi)[494] When William the Conqueror taxed the Kingdom (which was about 15 years after his arrivall) XXXVI (ut habet Polychronicon Acta tamen publica in qu[ibus] Censum ille retulit dum taxat XXXIIII percensent.[495] {Censum egerint Take the Lat[in].} For Durham Lancaster Westm'land Cumberland and Northumberland, were not rec[k]oned in the Number Because these 3 last, as some will have it, were att that time in subjection."[496]

[Machell's Notes: I.51]

! ! ! ! ! Westm'land Cumberland Northumberland. I thinke Meschines gave the Barony of Brough to Raife de Engayne temp Conquestis, the Conquerer gave land in Kendal, and founded a Nunery in Cumberland, so that this should se[e]m falce {Se Dugdale Barony Se allso Ewbank ped[igree]. Ep. 1. in the parish of Bro[ugh.}[497]

[I.52]

It should seem by this account that these 3 Northern Counteys (of Westm'land Cumberland and Northumberland) did not then belong to England att all \ in the Conqueror's time / But the Contrary will appear from severall circumstances, as 1st.

1. 'Tis certain He had both Cumberland & Northumberland in the 1st yere of his reigne Anno 1066, as appeares by his takeing along with him into Normandy (to the ende he might secure peace in England) such nobles as were most potent & powerfull, amongst whome are re\ k/oned: Edgar, sirnamed Ethling, who was \ right / heire to the Crowne ~~if not hindered by Conquest~~; Walheof the sonn of warlike Siward, Earl of Northumberlan; Gospatrick, Earl of Cumberland, with others*.

2. 'Tis certain that in the 2nd yere of William the Conqueror he founded a Religious house in Cumberland (called Nunery to this day & now the seat of the Grahams) endowing it with large priviledges; as appears by his charter bearing that date, penes Mrs Graham de Nunery: & ergo Cumberland was the Conquerors then.[498]

3. In 1073: which was the 7th of his reign tis objected to Malcolme King of Scotts, that he did not onely entertaine Egarethling the chief pretender to the English crown & his adherents; but led them on in person, and entering Cumberland waisted the Country all before them, even as far as Durham: i.e. Cumberland & much of ~~Northumberland~~ \ Bishoprick / which show they were both subject to the Conqueror.

4. He sent Gospatrick against them (lately reconciled) whom he then created Earl of Northumberland; who putt them to flight and the Conqueror pursued as far as Galloway; whereupon Malcolm sent an embassy of peace & aggrement was made, says Hector Boetius, an author of theire owne,[499] that the Scotts should have Cumberland. Our late writers give him into the Bargan (for the sake of Rere Cross which they \ falsely / call Roy) by force of conjecture, Northumberland & Westm'land. But I am \ noe writeing on this subject / of opinion that He had onely 12 Townes granted in the Kingdome of England; and those likely in Cumberland, his neighbouring. My reasons are

1t. Because he was beaten when this peace was concluded and the enymy entered into his owne Kingdome & therefore I suppose he could not capitulate upon so great advantage as the accession of a whole County (much less of 3, 2 of which the General was Earle of) to the Crowne of Scottland.

---

[494] Camden took this figure from William of Malmesbury: see Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 159: 'For in the year … 1016 whiles Ethelred raigned, the Chronical of Malmesburie reporteth …in England thirty-two Shires'.
[495] 'As the Polychron has it, however, the public Decrees [in which] he recorded the Census while he was levying the tax record, 34'.
[496] The paragraph is based on Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 159.
[497] The foundation of the Nunnery at Armathwaite as proof of the Conqueror having taken Cumberland c.1067, has been found to be false; see Part 1. Ch.6, Brough, I.396, I.399.
[498] The walls of Nunnery House, Cumberland, are partly mid-13th century, with 16th- and 17th-century additions and alterations by the Graham family. George Graham Esq. sold Nunnery c.1690 to Sir John Lowther, for £1,436, who later exchanged it with John Aglionby Esq., for Drumburgh Castle. Further alterations were made for John Aglionby (1694, date-stone). https://historicengland.org.uk/listing; see also N&B2, 431.
[499] Hector Boece, Scotorum Historia (1527).

2. Because in 1092 when Malcolm King of Scottland advanced into England as far as Chester (Reg. Will. 2.) & had a great advantage He lefte no more for a peace than 12 villages (and sure he would aske all that belonged him) which he had formerly held of his father (viz. the Conqueror,) which he required should be restored: and upon restitution returned home again. ~~In some place contradicted~~ The reason why this and the other Northern Countyes were not taxed, was, no question, least they should adhere \ to the Scotts to keep quiete & free from rebellion. /

The destruction of the Saxon Library att Yorke (Cam[den] p. 412) & Wolsty Castle in Cumberland, which was built on purpose to secure the treasure and writeing of the monkes at Holme Cultram, with the Tower at Yorke where they \ saye the / evidences of the northern parts were kept, and Mr Dugdalls informacion that there is noe thing to helpe me \ in / the Tower att London, has undon us for any historicall account. And Doomsday Booke (which has stood all Antiquaries in so much steed) is silent as to us, so that what I write must be scratched out of the earth, & mere conjecture, nisi quae sunt superioris seculi.[500]

[Machell's Notes: I.52, 52A & 52B]

*[See}§9 of King William the Conqueror in Speeds History, ergo he had Cumberland & Northumberland.

[I.52A]

1. Road.
2. William Longspere 2nd Duke of Normandy so called of the long sword he wore.
3. Richard of Hardy 3rd Duke of Normandy so called from his admirable fortitude.
4. Richard the Good 3rd Duke of Normandy He marryed = Judith Sister of Gefferey Earle of Britaigne.

[I.52B]

Marlesuein & Gosspatrick noblemen of Northumberland, went into Denmarke upon the defeat of the English after King Williams returne out of Normandy. Queen Agathas 2 brothers Mocar Earle of Chester, & Edwine Earle of Yorkshire, who were the heads of the conspiracy went for saifty into Scotland. The Queen likewise which Edgar Atheling her son & right heire to the Crowne and Her daughters Christian and Margrett, who were courteously entertained by Malcolme (sirnamed Canmoir)[501] King of that Country who maryed Lady Margaret (2nd of King William's reigne). I am sure the Conqueror had Cumberland then for he founded Nunnery that he might be near to the English Crowne. Hence Scotland became a refuge & sanctuarye to the English who fled from the pressures of the Normans. Robert Cumin with 700 of his Normans were slane in the night time at Durham by Edgar Atheling and his followers January 28 1068. 3rd Willielmi.[502]

[I.53][503]

{Gospatrick Earle of Cumberland}

The Conqueror had Cumberland, and then doubtless Westm'land allso in 1066. which was the 1st yere of his reigne (his being Crowned at Westminster on 'Monday Natalis X^li^ anno praedicto).[504] For when he had setled affairs in this Nation, and reconciled himself to the Kentish men; he tooke saile in the Lente following towards his owne Country, take[ing] with him several pledges of the English fidelity, with many Nobles whome he feared to be potent,[505] amongst whome was Gosspatricke, Earle of Cumb'land.

{Seised Estates 1067, Reg. 2^0^}

In 1067 dureing his absence, the Welshmen under Edrick Sylvaticus rebelled against the Normans; whereupon King William returned, & toke this occasion to give the possessions of the English nobility to his owne people, as a reward of the ones service & the others disloyalty. & ~~being torn with~~ dealing severely with them, many fled the nation and found protection under Malcolme King of Scots in the yeres 1068 & 1069. 1070, 1072. He was then in person as far North as Selby {where his son Henry was Borne; afterward King of England. ~~May be fore this time Malcolm held Cumberland~~.}

[500] 'Except what there is of an earlier age'. For Domesday see https://www.nationalarchives.gov.uk/domesday/.
[501] Some of this word is obscured by the binding, but it is probably the name 'Canmoir'.
[502] MS: '1608'. Machell reversed two digits here.
[503] Also numbered p.5.
[504] 'In the year aforesaid'.
[505] MS: 'poten', but perhaps 'potent': powerful; mighty. OED.

{Gosspatrick Earle of Northumberland}
And about the yere 1073 Malcolme did not only entertaine Edgar Etheling, the chiefe pretender to the English Crowne with his adherents as he had don hitherto; but ingaiged himself in person as their Leader & entered into Cumberland, ~~where then~~ waisteing the Country all before them, even as far as Durham: whither King William sent Gospatrick, lately reconciled unto him and by him created Earle of Northumberland, who payed the Scotts in their owne coyne: & the Conqueror was so incensed against them that he entered their Kingdome as far as Galloway; but being wearyed with the Marches & Mountains thought fitt to retire.

{Cumberland granted to the King of Scotts}
And Malcolme upon that sending an Embassy of peace; it was kindley received & King William granted Cumberland unto ~~that~~ \ him / ~~Malcolme~~ upon Condition that the Scotts thenceforward should [not] (continue or) attempt anything which might be prejudicial to the Crowne of England, upon which grant Malcolme did Homage \ to King William / for it, and as some thinke, Rear Cross upon Stainemore was then erected as a meet or bound betwixt the 2 Kingdoms, haveing Williams picture & the armes of England on one side butt Malcolmes & the Scottish Ensigns on the other, which I should willingly believe if any vestigia of those {things} were upon it, or if it could that Cumberland did [af]ter extend thus far. Sure the Conqueror upon the grant of one

[Machell's Notes: I.53]
Westm'land never part of Scotland ad page 5.

[I.54]

County, would not permitt him to incroach so much upon him as to take away 2.
In the foresaid yere 1078, the Rowle of Winchester, or Doomsday booke, was made, so called partly because of the heavy taxes (6s fore every hide land) partly because noe man was exepted from that survey. & the English men were so oppressed that they invited Malcolme once more to enter King Williams Confines, wasting all before him unto the River Tine \ i.e. Northumberland. / Against whome the Conqueror sent his son Robert, who layd the foundasion of a Castle there, which gave both name & beginning to the Towne. Yett there was a place there called Monkches[ster] before – an habitation of Monkes.

William the Conqueror Anno 1067 built Hastings Castle; Lincolne Castle; Notingham Castle; & Yorke Castle. In 1072 the Castle of Wysbech, near Ely & Hereward Castle of wood and turfes was then reared against him. The Castle at Durham much about the same time, or in the yere following after he had made a Truce with Malcolme King of Scots. In 1078 he built a strong castle on the east side London with deep trench, Gundulphus Bishop of Rochester being surveyor; the same wee now call the Tower of London said to be builded by Julius Caesar, so far comes it short excep wee should thinke that William onely added to the old worke. Newcastle founde[d] by Robert his son, Anno 1079. Allain Fergent (i.e. Red) Earle of Little Britaigne, had for dowry with the d[aughter] of King William & good service don at the Conquest, the Earldom of Richmond, where he built the [cast]le.

Walter Bishop of Durham bought of King William the Earledom of Northumberland so that Gosspatricus had it not long. (Henry 3. son of King William was borne \ at Selleby in Yorkeshire in 1017. 3^0 Conquest / & there the Conqueror founded the Abby of St Germans.)

{William 20. Malcolme. 12 townes in Cumberland belonged to the Scotts}
In 1092 Malcolme entered into the English Marches as far as Chester in the Street: but returned again upon the ~~restauration of~~ \ restitution of / 12 villages, which he had held in England under his father. N.B (I believe these 12 were in Cumberland, and all that he had upon the 1^{t} composition which William the Conqueror esceated maybe to the English crowne by reason of his inroad in aid of the English conspiratours after the Great Tax)*.

[Machell's Notes: I.54]

*_Ypodigma Neustriæ_.[506] Vide? Author.
(See Math. Paris. 1. Henry Hano Gemeticensis,[507] Hector Boethius[508] lib. 12. Cap. 10). Westm'land was Westm'land then.

[I.55]

{Walsingham in his _Ypodigma Neustriæ_}
And this is confirmed from the following passage, namely, that King William then repaired those castles which the Scotts had destroyd, new built in Cumberland the City Carlisle, & built a Castle there &c, which if \ all / Cumberland had belong'd to Malcolme, \ he / would not have \ suffered / permitted; nor is it likely that, comeing into England with a great power (as he did) & att such time as the English \ fleet / sent against them was torne by a Tempest and the Horsemen perished through hunger & cold, I say tis not likely that he haveing these advantages, should demand less than he \ & his ancestors / formerly injoy'd; wherefore I conclude that the Scotts were so far from haveing Westm'land & Cumberland too, which they allow them, who grant Rear Cross, or as they calld it (to palliate their fiction) Roy Cross \ upon Stanemore / for the Limit of their Kingdome, that \ they / had not all Cumberland, nor any considerable part there \ But / onely 12 villages; which the Scotch Author Hector Boetius, to inlarge the Bounds, & extoll the valour of his \ Nation / Countrymen, by ~~an unluky~~ synecdoche,[509] expresses by Cumberland; and to make out the matter, Westm'land must be \ com / in to the Bargain, \ & / Reare Cross must be called Roy Cross, & be bravely garnished with p[…]net[510] and armes, wherein all likelyhood there never was any, T.M. But Hector Boetius is not very au[then]tick*.[511]

{Malcolme killed 1093; R. Mowbray of Northumberland.}
In 1093 Malcolme King of Scots came to Glocester to treat with King William \ 2 / Rufus about affairs of theire Kingdoms, but takeing ~~some~~ distaist att \ somthing or other in the / ~~his~~ manner of \ his / rea[…][512] returned ~~without~~ \ suddenly without so much / [as] speakeing to the King; & thereupon immediately entered the Kingdome \ of England / with a great hoast, destroyd in Northumberland as far as Alnwick Castle which [was] near upon the western shore: But Robert Mowbray then Earle of Northumberland, made head against him & without expecting the King's lieve \ for it / fell fo…[513] upon \ him / and killed both him & Malcolme & ~~his sonn~~ Edward his son. Holy War was meditated upon 5 yeares before, but not pursued till this yere – by […][514]

[Machell's Notes: I.55]

*See Speed Historie, pag. 430 col. 2.

[I.56][515]

King Henry 1st maryed for his 1st wife Maud the daughter of Malcolme the 3rd King of Scotts sirnamed Canmoir (i.e. Great Head), by St Margaret, daughter to Edward, son of Edmund Ironside, [506] Thomas Walsingham (d. c.1422) was an English chronicler who emulated the writing of historian, Matthew Paris (d. 1259). His last work, Ypodigma Neustriæ, dedicated to Henry V in 1420 (see published edn, 1574) is an epitome of English history from 911 to 1419. J. Taylor, 'Walsingham, Thomas (c.1340-c.1422), historian and prior of Wymondham'. ODNB.

[507] Guilelmus Gemeticensis (fl. c.1137): contributor to the Gesta Normannorum Ducum; see Oxford Medieval Texts 21 (Oxford, 1992,1995).
[508] Boethius (Boece, Boyce or Boise), Hector, Historia Gentis Scotorum ('History of the Scottish People'), see Nicola Royan, 'Boece [Boethius], Hector'. ODNB.
[509] Synecdoche: a figure of speech in which a more inclusive term is used for a less inclusive one or vice versa, as a whole for a part, or a part for a whole. OED.
[510] Part of this word has perished.
[511] The rest of this sentence has perished.
[512] The rest of this word has perished.
[513] The rest of this word has perished
[514] A line of text has perished at the page foot; some words appear to be '… the 2 set forward.'
[515] I.56 and I.57 comprise rough notes written on paper previously used as letters to Machell from two of his students (see Part 3, Ch.2. Correspondence).

King of England \ 1000 / to whome he was maryed the 2nd yere of his reigne \ 1100 / and hereupon I suppose it was, that Alexander King of Scotts was trusted with part of his army against the Welsh in 1114 & called a parliament for the Dowry of Maud his daughter maryed to the Emperour Henry 4 in 1126 in the presence of himself & Davyd King of Scotts. He was borne in 1070 3^0 Conquestoris.[516] Dyed in 1135.[517]

Besides the tax in Doomsday booke of 6 shillings an Hyde per Angliam, there was an other about the yeere 1112, i.e. the 13. of Henry 1t, at 3 shillings the Hyde, upon the completion of the marriage of Maud his daughter with Henry the 4. Emperour of Germany. Q? where to be seen.

The 1st Parliament of England was in 1116, called at Salisbury by King Henry 1st consisting of the estate spiritual & temporall, the Kings of England in former times ordering their affairs by Edicts, by their Officeres and Governo\u/rs of every County. p. 439 Col. 1 am sure he means since the Norman Conquest; otherwise, I have reson to doubt of the truth of it.

[I.57]

The King of Scots, William which of right he said belong'd to his ancestours: which He ~~proposd at his~~ \ answerd after he had ascembled / his parliament at Northampton Reg. Ejus 50 {Anno 1194} that he could not by any means satisfy his petition in that Juncture of Affaires least his enemyes in France should raise a report that he did such a thing rather for fear than love & friendship. But granted a Convoy to him & his Heires in ~~every~~ \ the / Countys when they should com by summons to the Court of England.
Yett allthough Mr Speed as tells us out of William of Newburg that Appleby & Brough were surprised by William King of Scotts & recovered by King John & Liberall bestowed upon Robert de Veteriponte: yett I finde they came to King John ex forisfactura[518] Hugonis de Morevill, who did (maybe) confederate with the Scotch King. T.M.*

[Machell's Notes: I.57]

*{See other Priviledges granted the King of Scotts: Hollinshed, eodem An[n]o.}
See more of the Affairs twix Scotland and England from this time till the reigne of King Henry 3d – In the reigne of King Stephen read Section 7. 11. 12 lines 6. 14. 16. 31. 35.
In Hen. 2 reigne §7. 10 sed parum ad rem[519] 65. 67. 73.76. 78. 80. 83.
In Richard the Ist §13. 56: Speed.
In King John §10. 41. 45 sed parum ad rem.

[I.58]

{The Descent of King Stephen}
King Stephen who \ was Earle of Montaine & Boloine / began his reigne 2nd of December 1135: Contrary to the Just title of Maud the Emperess daughter to King Henry 1t & her son Henry Plantaginet after King of England. For Stephen was Nephew onely to Henry the 2nd, as \ 3 / son of Adela, Adelicia or Alice as some variously terme her: daughter of William the Conqueror & sister to the 2 preceeding Kings, whose Husband was Stephen Earle of Bloys & Champaigne. The son of Earl Eaudes[520] the son of Earle Theobald, the son of Gernon the Daine companion of Rollo, the Conqueror's ancestour. He built many castles all over England, thinking theirby to strengthen his Kingdome, but they proved the baine of subjective obedience; which Henry sirnamed Fitts Empress very well understanding, when he came to ~~the Crowne~~ make a peace with him & caused 1115 castles to be razed & cast downe. These should be some of the castles built by King Stephen:[521]

[516] 'In the third year of the reign of William the Conqueror.'
[517] The rest of the page has partly perished but reads: 'Dyed in 1135 ætat suæ […] Henry may for all this […] 2 William Rufus ætat suæ 1. William […]'
[518] 'Forfeited of Hugo…'
[519] 'But little to the point.'
[520] This word is blotted.
[521] MS: 'These should be some of the Castles built by King Stephen: ~~§7. §11. §12 6 lines §14. §16. §31. 3 &c.~~'

Hereford C. Caris C. Ludlow C. Dunestor C. Warram C. Meltune C. Shrewsbury C. Dovre C. {p. 447.} Salisbury Cast. Sherborne C. & Malmesbury C. built by Roger Bishop of Salisbury. The Devises, allso as is probable, being then accounted one of the goo[d]lyest castles in Europe.

[Machell's Notes: I.58 and I.58A]

Henry 2?[522]
Query: whether the Scotts ever had so far as to Rerecross.
Answer in short:
They had Cumberland granted (says Hector Boetius); yett I have reason to believe that they never had more granted them then 12 Townes, and as for the conjecture about Roycros, tis very false taken up~~on~~ of his owne head to extend the Limits of his Country & their Conquests: for tis Rerecross & noe signe of armes or figures upon it. Besides tis not said in any place that they had Westm'land {and beside, I finde in [blank] that the castles there came unto him ex forsfactura Hugonis[523] of taking part against King John. {Tho tis very true that the King of Scots rog[avit][524] of King Richard the first after his returne from the Holy War, to have restor'd to him the Countyes of Northumberland, Westm'land & Cumberland & the County of Lancashire.}
[I.58A]
Not[ae] de proelijs inter Malcolmum et Willielmos Angl[iae][525] Reges Anno 6. Will[iellmi] Bastardi Malcolmo Rege Scotorum Rebellante, per Terram et mare exercitum duxit in Scotiam, et eidem Malcolmo in Loco qui dicitur Abrenithes occurrit et Malcolmus suas homo devenit. è Cronicis Mariani Scoti.[526] Rogeri Hoveden,[527] Hen. de Huntington.
In Cronicis Mariani Scoti et Rogeri de Hoveden in multis Libris intenitur. Quod Anno Domini 1086 successit eidem Willielmo Bast, Willielmus Rufus f. ejus qui anno 14 regni sui Rebellante Malcolmo Rege Scotorum & Northumbriam Invadente cum Roberte fratre suo acies in Scotiam direxit cuj Malcolmus occurrit, & pax inter eos facta è conditione tali; ut Idem M. Rex Scotiæ eid. W[0] regi Anglie, sicut patri suo[528] obediret p. 491.[529] in subjection to \ the / Scots ~~as some will have it~~; and the other 2 were either freed and excepted from tax or comprehended under Yorkshire*. But afterwards, they were all brought in and so made up the number xxxix.[531]

[I.59][530]

It seems by this relation that in the Conquere\r/s time these 3 Northern Countryes did not att all belong to England, but rather to Scotland, except they were a principality of them selves, and laying betwixt two \ crisdoms / resolved to pay subjection unto neither and it is not unlikely that Durham and Lancaster, were ~~omitted~~ \ freed / from the tax least by Burthening of these Remote Countryes, the Conqueror might give that stubborne people occasion to revolt; for I remember a passage in Mr

[522] MS: '~~Hen. 2 §7. (§10.) §65. 67. 73. 76. 78. 80. 83. Rich. 1t §13. 56 King John §10. §41. 45x~~ Henry 2?'
[523] 'Forfeited by Hugh.'
[524] 'Asked'.
[525] 'Notes on battles between Malcolm and the Williams, Kings of England. In the 6th year of William the Bastard, when Malcolm, King of the Scots rebelled, he led an army into Scotland by land and sea and met the same Malcolm in a place which is called Abrenithes and Malcolm came down… From the Chronicles of Marianus the Scot, Roger Hoveden, Henry de Huntingdon.'
[526] Chronicis Mariani Scoti ('Chronicles of Marianus Scotus') d. 1082.
[527] G. Bishop, R Nuberie & R. Barker (eds), Rogeri Hovedeni Annalium Pars Prior & Posterior, in Rerum Anglicarum Scriptores Post Bedam Praecipui, ex vetustissimis codicibus manuscriptis nunc primum in lucem editi (London, 1596).
[528] A Latin word here is illegible.
[529] 'In the Chronicles of Marianus the Scot and of Roger de Hoveden in many books it is … that in the year of our Lord 1086 William Rufus, his son, succeeded the same William the Bastard, and in the 14th year of his reign, when Malcolm, King of the Scots, rebelled and invaded Northumbria with his brother Robert, he led his army into Scotland and Malcolm met him, and peace was made between them on a condition such as this, that the same M[alcolm], King of Scotland. should give obedience to W[illiam], King of England, just as he had [formerly] done to his father. 491.'
[530] Some text here completes the subjects raised earlier; most words on this page have been scored through, suggesting a draft version.
[531] Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 159E.

Camden concerning Bishoprig men, that they stood upon their priviledges saying they were Hali warke folke.[532]
But if it be so that Westm'land was under the Scotts, How could the [blank] att Brough make a conspiracy against the Conqueror, whose subjects they were not, that being in Westm'land [blank] miles on this side the Rere Cross, or Roy Cross as some will have it (which they \ say / was a boundary 'twixt Scotland and England, having the armes of each nation upon ~~its severall sides~~; and tho we read that Cumberland was given to the Scots, yett never findeing any gift made of Westm'land, wee must either deny that the Scotts Dominions extended to this Cross, or confess that Westm'land and Cumberland were all one and had but one name, which have no aut[h]ority for; And besides if the King of England gave them he must be supposed to have had them: So that there is nothing but uncertainty concerning this matter; nor we can wee possitively determin any thing till the reign of King [blank] who won it from the Scotts with the other Countyes & so annexed it to England for ever.
{And this seems to be the reason why §6. Westm'land & its neighbouring counties were not taxed, which however advantageous then we have reason to lament & be sorry for now.}

[Machell's Notes: I.59]
*Camden p.57 (an ita sit vide Doomsd. Booke).[533]

[I.63]

[H.] Now of its bounds, Limits, figure & extent, Quality \ of soyle / & inhabitants

{§ 8 ~~Soyle~~ The Nature of the Country}
The next thing to be taken notise of is the soyle which for the generality is in no way dispicable, produceing great plenty of Corne and Hay allmost in every place; & where these commodityes are awanting, the defect is supplyed with pasture for cattle; or, which is allmost as necessary, woods coalpits mines or quarries which this Country affords in great abundance.

{The Barony of Kendal}
As to the more southerly part of it, tis confessed (by those who have allready writt) that there is no want of any thing necessarie; and tis very well know to those who have seen it, that northern part doth ecceed ~~the~~ \ other / in all \ sorts of naturall commodityes, / being a more Champion ground, better watered, and (bye reason of the hills wherewith tis incompassed) of a more calme and prolifique temperature: which Mr Camdens and Speeds maps doe demonstrate, however they came to ommitt \ it / in their writeings. So that speakeing in general and considering one part with an other, it is a Country plentifull enough and sufficiently frutefull, affording all things necessarie for the sustenance of humaine nature. (For if here it be naked and destitute of trees, there it is clad with thick woods & copses. If here be mountaines and hills without any corne, there are vales and dales which abound therewith. If here be want of one thing there is plenty of an other, so that nature may seem to have sported her selfe Here, adorning the Countryes with such varietyes as render it at once both commodious and pleasant*.)

[I.65][534]

{Dales}
{It generally consistes of mountains and vales, or rather dales as they calld them there ansiently.}
And they are little planes Hedged in on each side with mountaines, haveing a river runing through them, \ from which they usually take their names / which renders them fruitefull not onely for grass

[532] 'Haliwerk-folk', also written 'Halywerc folk': people who held their lands by the service of defending the body, relics and territory of St. Cuthbert; also, the county of Durham wherein they lived. OED. Machell's reference is to Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 736B: 'For they pleaded (the Storie of Duresme shall speake for mee) that they were Haliwerke folkes, and held their lands to defend the Corps of St Cuthbert; neither ought they to goe out of the precincts of the Bishopricke, namely beyond Tine and Teese, for King or Bishop.'
[533] 'Whether it be thus, see Domesday Book.'
[534] Also numbered p.8.

and hay, but allso sortes of grains – as wheat rye beans pease; a sort of barly, which growing with a greater head than that in the south they usually call Big: {Bigg so called from it Bigness ~~& there~~ hav 4 rowes of Corne, whereas Barly has but 2}; but espicially Oats which in the Language of the Countrye are called Haver, of which sort of graine the Mountaineres and Dalesmen ~~doe for the~~ generally make all their Bread.[535]
And of these little valleyes (which are therefore more ~~plentifull~~ \ fruitfull / because sheltered from the cold by towering hills betwixt which they lye) there are a great Number, as Bretherdale Hegdale, Hickabdale (where are no hab[itations]) Langdale, Mardale, Matterdale, Martindale, Mallerstangdale; Oddendale, Patterdale, Ravenstangdale, Swindale, Smardale, Stainemoredale; all which lay amongst those mountaines ~~that are about~~ \ that environ / the Bottom of Westm'land \ which is the / onely place within this Country that can deserve the name of a vaile \ both / for it evenness and \ noble / extent.
And besides these are 2 greater dales than the rest viz. Loansdall & Kendale, both which are comprised ~~together~~ \ under / the Barony of Kendall. And Here 'tis to be observed that in these dales are not many villages, or Townes, but for the most \ part / loane houses which stand very frequently one from an other \ at a 4^{r} / halfe a mile distance.

[Machell's Notes: I.65]

* {Insert here water & fish p.12 col. a.}

[IV.55-56]

Ancient Value of land and cornage in the Bottom of Westmorland

Inquisition Post mortem of Robert Lord Clifford[536]

[1. Notes]
Then out of an inquisition about the quantity of corne in Westmorland, [in] which every particular made had to sell at a reasonable rate over and above it was necessary, for seed & the maintenance of his owne house. 25 xi \ & 10 xii / 27 Hen viii [1535].
The total sum of all grane to be sold in the Midle Ward: 305 quarters: Decemb. X. xxvij of Hen viii.[537] (In the Barony of Kendall 700 quarters & ½: 25 of November 27. Hen. 8) [1535].
The sum of all corne & granes \ to be / sold within the county of Westmorland is MDLXXI quarter 9 bushell: i.e. 1571 quarter 9 bushell.
I thinke the Midle & West Ward go together. Yes.[538]
It was also presented by the Justices of the said County that there were no common keepers of corne at Xtmas last past, nor noe Ingrossers of corne in the said County, nor noe wheat carried over the sea at any Port or Creke since Xtmas last past, which shows the occasion to have bin the transportation of corne, & want thereby, in the kingdome att that time.

[2. Table]

Owner	Manor (villa de)	Value	Cornage
Alan de Kaber	Kaber	20li	17s 8d
Andrew de Harcla	Harcla	40[539]	1li 6s 0d for both
	Smardale	6li 13s 4d
Richard de Blenkinsop }	Helbeck	8li 0s 0d for his part	6s 0d between them
Isabel de Slekeburn }	1 part each	3li 0s 0d for her part
Robert de Swinburne	Askham	20li	5li 0s 9d
T. Musgrave Infant	Great Musgrave & Murton	42li	1li12s 4d I have seen it as 45s 10d but this I take to be right
Do	Rookeby (½ of) & Sandfoot	7li
T. de Helbeck	Half of Soulby	30li	17s 8d

[535] See a reference to oat bread in N&B1, 11.
[536] There were several Roberts de Clifford in the 14th century: see N&B1, 275-79.
[537] MS: 'Decemb. x. xxVij: Hen. 8 x. xxvij of Hen viii 27th of Henry VIII.'
[538] A surmise on Machell's part; the answer was added in different ink.
[539] Unit not given, but probably in pounds as per the other amounts.

Henry de Warcop	Warcop & ½ of Wateby	30li	17s 8d
Do	Propertyes in Helbeck	40s 0d	[Blank]
William de Dacre	½ of Wateby & ½ of Overton	40li	12s 6d
Richard de Musegrave	Crosby garratt & part of Musgrave	34li	26li 0s 3d for all his holdings in these
Do	½ of Overton	30li
Robert Bacon } Andrew de Hellerton}	Hilton	13li	13s 8d
Robert de Asby	½ of Asby Winderwath	10li	19s 0d
John de Cottesford	½ of Great Asby	6li 13s 4d	4s 2d
Robert D'Englays	Little Asby & ½ of Helton Flecket	21li 13s 3d	13s 6d ½ (I have seen 3s 0d)
Nicholas de Hastings	Crosby Ravensworth & Nateby	40li	1li 7s 2d
Gilbert de Culwen	Shap Bampton PalKnipe & I have seen Bampton Patrick & Kings Patrick as his	5li 2 the lot	1li 6s 7d or 1li 6s 8d
Henry de Cundale	Bampton Cundale & PalKnipe	13li 6s 8d	15s 3d
Walton de Wessington	½ of Helton Flecket	6li 13s 4d	16s 4d
John Godberd	Brougham	3li 6s 8d	13s 6d
William Crackenthorpe & Henry de Reddings
Ralph filius Willelmi (held by Ralph Lord Greystock in 1464-5)	Bolton Yanwath (& elsewhere held in chief)
John de Boyville	Knock	13li 6s 8d	3s 4d
Luke Tailboys	½ of Cliburn	13li 6s 8d	12s 4d
Thomas de Colby	Colby	13li 6s 8d	6s 10d
The heir of Thomas de Multon of Gilsland	Hoff & Drybeck	30li	9s 2d
John de Derwentwater	Ormside	10li	13s 6d
Robert de Newbiggin	Newbiggin	10li	20d
[deleted name]	Milburn by Howgill	6li 13s 4d	1li 1s 7d
John Kirkbythore	Kirkby Thore	10li	1li 12s 0d
Thomas Mauchell	Crackenthorpe	13li 6s 8d	6s10d
Robert de Bradewood	1 carrucate in Appelby	1li 10s 0d	2s 0d
The heir of Walter de Spencer	8 akers in Apelby	–	4d
John de Harcla	Kinkber	2li 10s 0d	2s 0d
Adam de Coupland	Lowther	2li each except the Prior's	1li 0s 4d
Henry de ~~Hardington~~ Harrington
Hugh de Lowther & the Prior of Watton
Richard de Fraunceys	Maulds Meaburn	2li	1li 13s 0d
William de Tylia	½ of Cliburn	6li 13s 4d	7s 8d ½
John de Staffield
Robert de Sowerby

William de Helton	Halletun de Burton	10li	13s 4d

[I.64]

\ A short / description of the Bot[tom of Westmorland].

Through the run in the river Eden, which receives into it a great many rivuletts on each \ side, / which infuse into the ground such vital spirits Being plenfully stored with granarys pastures \ woods / meadows cornefields, & cleare runni[n]g rivers, amongst [which] Eden Is counted the chief which running dow the midst of the Country, it riceves the Other here & there Into it bosom & putts such vitall spirits into the ground, and it does not give place to any part of England, for richness of soyle.

[I.66]

Fells

But notwithstanding they bee viarable, and less fit for Husbandry; yett they bring their comodity along with them. For they are a great defence against winde and cold; which is why the Lower pla\c/es are so fertill, notwithstanding the clime, which other men having only respect to, and not knowing the advantage of it situation, have for which concluded the Country to be barren: And besides their defence against in the winter &c.

In these fells are allso stones of all sorts necessary & usefull: Free stone, Grindstone, Milstone, Limestone & slate ~~or tile~~ which are allso in great plenty in the Low Country. In the fells allso where they digg for Ore is found great plenty of a transparent stone which shines like Cristall and might be of \ some /use to the Lapidaryes, tho not regarded there. But the \ generality / is a soft and Blew stone, which is very fitt for make[ing] moulds for Buttons or Bulletts and allso for whetstones, \ & is used so by them. / These are so plentifull that they laying \ spred / upon the mountains, make them seem at a distance of a perfect \ azure / Blew colour, which is very pleasant to the Ey & renders the prospect wonderfully delightfull.[540] But the most miraculous stones that every I see were dugg up \ in the fell / at Harclay,[541] representing the fig[ure] & col[our] of Owles*, of which more there I shall speake in their proper place, vi[de). Kirkby Stephen parish, Manner[ium] de Hart.[542]

[Machell's Notes: I.66]

*Stones like Owles. Some at Harclay. Kept by Sir Phillip, & gett the picture drawne from Mr Provost:[543]

[I.67][544]

{Mountaines}

{In Caves of Mountains are ingendered cold windes*. And the greatest difference I ever observ'd thwixt these parts & south of England (in which I have equally shared my time) is in great \ high / winde in winter that oc[curred].}[545] The mountains here are very high & steep, and in some places full of Rocks and Craggs. And tho they be such for the generality as can not bee improvd by the plough, 'yett they bring their Commodityes ~~sufficiently along~~ with them; for they ~~are a defence against cold in the winter and~~ afford Good pasture for Cattle in sommer especially for \ cowes / sheep, ~~of~~ which are bred here in great abundance, yealding very good wooll. But the sweates[t] mutton in all the world;[546] inso much that King Charles the 2[d] as I have bin inform'd preferd this Country mutton before all daintyes that were brought to his Table. (Infor. Lady Tyr.)

[540] MS. II.454: 'The[y] are blew & pleasant to behold.'
[541] Hartley.
[542] Manor of Hartley.
[543] See Part 1, Ch.13, Kirkby Stephen, I.584: Figure 1.13.12. Stone 'howles' (owls).
[544] Also numbered p.9.
[545] Machell shortened the last word to fit the page; its transcription is therefore unsafe.
[546] See N&B1, 3, for the same information.

(a.)[547] Amongst these fells are allso bred staggs of an incredible bigness, with wild Bulls & Cowes ~~with which this~~ by some called Bugills, with which this Country of old did very much abound; and some continued till the late Civil Warrs.[548]

{Lead Mines}
~~But beside these commodityes~~, they have \ allso / rich treasures which lay hid within them, to wit, \ of mettall but especially / lead mines allmost in very place where they take the paines to dig and discover them, ~~which have alloys of silver and gold~~.

{Gold Mines}
And some \ shepherd[s] / are sayd to have found Gold Ore in seeking their sheep. Concerneing ~~which I must observe one thing that in~~ a sheep's head brought up to the table, I have seen ~~there the~~ all the teath gilded \ over as it were /~~as~~ with gold; but I doen\t/ use this as any argument to confirme their report. ~~But I am of opinion that if there Be plenty of gold and silver it must be under ground, for it is not possible money should abound in~~ those northern parts as it doth in south ~~by reason that~~ it is so far remote ~~and all land sute tried att London which make a great vent for money. But the Best of it is that that if they have less they need less, for all sorts of provision, are plentifull and cheap even to a wonder~~.

{Wood, Coale, Turfes}

[I.174]

In our island, as som ancient writers doe tell us, Westm'land, Cumberland and all the Northern parts of England were full of woods, trees & bushes, especially upon the mountains, where scarce any wood is now to be seen‡.

[Machell's Notes: II.510]

*Speed.
†Heilms Cosmog[raphie] p.226, Col. 3.[549] Brigantum Yorke dub ver[um] Camden 40?[550]
‡e lib. voc \ the adven[tures] of Mr J. Smith, putt forth by 4 Robbers, printe at London[551] pag. 114.[552]

It is though[t] allso that upon these mountains, in former times have bin a great store of ~~oakes~~ \ wood / and there still remaines some probabilityes of it, as anon shall appear: And tho all in the mean times \ or most of / be now destroyd, yett they have enough left in the Lower Countryes, there being the less need of cutting them there, by reason of their other sorts of fewell which Latter Aiges have brought to light to witt, Coale and turfes \ & peates / which are gott in great plenty upon the mountanes allmost in every place – and in some part of the Bottom of Westm'land.[553]

[Machell's Notes: I.67]

*See Pallad[io] 10. 193.[554]

---

[547] Machell employed the letter '(a)' here as a memorandum to reposition the text when completing his draft document; this edition has obeyed his instruction. MS. I.67 also contains the following crossed-through sentence: '~~Staggs and wild Bulls & Cowse, if not all destroyd in the warrs~~.'
[548] Bugill or bugle: a wild ox or young bull. OED.
[549] Peter Heylin (1600-1662), Cosmographie in four bookes: containing the chorographie and historie of the whole world, and all the principall kingdomes, provinces, seas and isles thereof (London, 1652).
[550] 'Was York of the Brigantes? I doubt it, yet Camden p.40?'
[551] The rest of the page has perished.
[552] John Smyth (Smith), England's improvement revived; plainly discovering the several ways of improving all sorts of waste and barren ground and of enriching all earths, with the natural quality of all lands; and the several weeds and plants which naturally thrive therein observed &c.; together with the manner of planting all sorts of timber trees and underwoods experienced in 30 years' practice. 6 vols (London, 1670).
[553] See comments on deforestation and peat mosses in N&B1, 7.
[554] Andrea Palladio (1508-1580), The Four Books of Architecture (Venice, 1570). Book I was first published in English in London in 1663.

[I.69][555]

But the best Coale that this Country affords \ I thinke I may [say] or England either / is gott in the fells, and particularly on Stanemoore; it burnes \ as if it were / pitch blaseing and giveing light like a candle, but without that noysome and sulfurious smel which other Coals have; and lieves behinde it a sort of sinder after it is Burned, which will make a 2^{d} fire as bright as charcoale. And this plenty of coale makes wooden fewell so cheap in this County, that you may have underwood for cutting ~~upp~~ \ down, / for it serves them in noe steed, save only for Hedging: But their underwoods are frequently Haszell, and therefore here is great plenty of nutts, yett so little reagarded that they yeald noe commodity to those who owen them.

{Peets upon the fells}

In the Boggy places amongst the mountaines which are spongie and viscous, commonly called mosses, they digg a sort of \ black / turfes about a foot in lenth \ & ½ diameter / like to a Brick or their tanners turfes,[556] by them called peets; \ for turfes with them are a distinct thing, i.e. broad flatt taken of[f] the surface / which are excellent fuell, but the smoke thereof ~~not~~ somewhat unpleasant att least to those which are not used to it. And these pitts (or potts as they call them) tho of a considerable depth shall grow up againe in 7 year time and be fitt ~~againe~~ for a 2^{d} harvest (se Surv. Dial[ogue).[557]

{Woods upon the fells}

In digging these peet mosses are often found Great Oken Trees, which have laid so long that they are buried very deep in the Boggs, and the water (which in such places is Black from the nature of the soyle) hath given them a tincture like ibony and rathere added very much than taken any thing away from their naturall hardness, which may be some argument of the great store of wood that in former times was upon those mountains; for in Our Iland, as some ancient \ old / writers doe tell us \ testify, / Westm'land and Cumberland and all the northern parts of England, were full of woods trees and Bushes, especially upon the mountains, where scarce any wood is now to be seen. Verum ex quo Opulentæ ferri aliorumque metallorum venæ, hic sparsim aliisque \ vicinis / Regionibus fuerunt repertæ, sylvæ illæ Condensæ paulatim ut opinor rarescere ceperunt;[558] to which may be added an other probable reason \ also* / viz. that they being a receptacle for thieves and robbers & for enemyes allso either to lye wate in or make

[Machell's Notes: I.69 and I.70]

*{adv. of Mr J. Smith London, 1670, p.114}[559]

[I.70]

Crakenthorpe furne & woods demoll.

[I.71][560]

escapes unto, might upon that account be Burned & Cutt downe for the better security of the neighbouring inhabitants, for the Scotts have ever made inroads here, and doe to this day make certane sally to steale and drive away cattle, tho not so frequently as in Cumberland because \ this Country is / more remote from them.[561]

---

[555] Also numbered p.10.

[556] For tanners' turf, see Andrew Steele, The Natural and Agricultural History of Peat-Moss or Turf-Bog (Edinburgh, 1826), 12-13: '[Trees] generally found in mosses, are sometimes used as a substitute for oak in tanning leather; and peat mosses being an accumulation of a variety of vegetable matters … perhaps preserved by the stagnated water … continues to receive, by infusion, fresh supplies of tanning matter…' OED offers a helpful quotation from 1688: 'The Bark cast out of the Tan-Pits, wrought into Turfes, which, dried, is good fire Fuel.' OED.

[557] John Norden, The Surveyor's Dialogue (London, 1607).

[558] 'But from the time when rich veins of iron and other minerals were found here and scatteredly in other nearby regions, those thick woods gradually, as I reckon, began to grow thin.'

[559] John Smyth (Smith), England's improvement revived …

[560] Also numbered p.11.

[561] A point also made in N&B1, 7.

And the Picts no question were \ heretofore / apt enough for to doe ~~att the Comeing in and Goeing out of the Romaines, for they were men of the same sort of manner in that respect with the Scotts now a dayes~~ (if the were the old Brittaines & particularly Brigantes, which I doe really suppose them to bee) at such time as the Romaines po[sses]sed themselves of their Countrie; who for any I know destroyd the woods upon this account haveing left one great mountaine \ viz Romane Fell / which bears their name to this very day – Roman Fell. And some of the Scotts doe still drive away cattle from those people which live near or upon the mountaines, secureing them selves now by Boggs and Mosses instead of woods, through which they have dangerous & unknowne paths except to themselves (their horses being so well disciplined that they will leep from seeve bush to seve bush, {so they call your rushes} contracting their feet into the compass of a Bushel, whereas if they shoul[d] miss of those little Ileletts, horse and man would be swallowed up quick.[562]

[Borderers]
And that I suppose which animates them the more to this practisse of thievery, is that they doe not beleeve it to be a sin, as the Borderers heretofore being taught by their ancestours \ who / told Mr Gilpin (that Honest parson) ~~that~~ Thou shalt not Steale was not God's old Law but a new Law of King Henryes makeing {Henry 8}.[563] And in like manner, as I have bin informed by one who lived amongst them, doe the Highland Scotts prey upon the low and yett thinke them selves so far from sining in it, that when the husbands

[Machell's Notes: I.71]

Roman Fell alias Rut-man Fell.

[I.73]

prepare and make them selves ready for a sally, their poore wifes will fall downe on their bare knees, and begg of God to prosper their attemps and send them good success \ booty. /

[I.72]

(a) And this sort of \ way / plundering, which they openly profess, is authorised amongst them by this tradition: that they indeed are the old inhabitants, and true owners of the Country; the Lowlandmen being strangers and lowly usurpers who possessed \ the / land not by right but by might.

But to returne againe to the Lowland Scotts and mostroopers with whome ~~we~~ \ the English / are infested, or att least ~~or at least~~ have bin, as much as the Lowland Scotts are by the Highlanders.

[I.73]

But for the avoyding of Inroads and suppressing of ~~those~~ moss troopers ~~theeves.~~
Nobiles fere omnes in hoc tractu Du\c/es limitanei erant, tenentes enim dominos suos defendere, et sub illis signo Dato merere in membranulis tenebantur, sicut etiamnunc videre est in Antiquis manerijs; et privata sua Jura quodamodo regalia, eorum aliqui habuisse videantur, quae paulatim pacis tranquilitas, uti Regnorum Connub. Iam antiquavit. Adhuc autem in Cumbria et Northumbria contra Scotorum abactiones Conscripti sunt milites*, (sicut olim fuere).[564] For I read of one Gray who did soe and soe (b.) (c.)

(c.) And they have still a Troope in Cumberland kept in pay for suppressing mos[s]troopers; howbeit, I suppose in former times, they made provison rather against the Scotch Kingdome who was very apt

[562] 'Moss troopers': members of the marauding gangs which, in the mid-17th century, carried out raids across the 'mosses' of the Scottish Border; border pillagers or freebooters. OED.
[563] Bernard Gilpin (1516-1584), born of a gentry family at Kentmere; at Queen's College, Oxford, from 1533; a well-known itinerant preacher known as the 'Apostle of the North': D. Marcombe, 'Gilpin, Bernard, Church of England clergyman and preacher'. ODNB.
[564] 'Almost all the nobles in this territory were border guards, for they were held by written documents as retainers to defend their masters and to serve under them at a given signal, just as even now can be seen in their ancient manors, and some of them seem to have had their own private laws [and] in a certain manner, regalia, which gradually the tranquillity of peace-time has made obsolete, as has the 'Marriage of Kingdoms'. And to this day in Cumbria and Northumbria, soldiers are conscripted against the raids of the Scots (just as once they were).'

to Quarrell with England and there was nothing more common than for pursons of quality upon private quarrels some times as well as publiqe, to come with all ther men & tennantes in troopes \ & regiments / killing all they could, & driveing away what cattle they mett with; and sometimes takeing away children which they kept till redeemed, and this practised on Both sides, ~~both~~ \ ours as / well as theirs; especially if a father was slane in such an encounter, the sonn thought him selfe obliged to revenge his father death, and that I looke upon as a great reason why all the Gentlemens houses, or most of them, were formerly built with Towers, & in which their under roomes were vaults.

[I.72]

(b.) {Not far from Apleby} there is a place within the Lib[erty] of the Machell of Crackenthorp, which they call Hang-man Close, where some say a pair of Gallows stood, & there are 2 little hills supposed to be the places where the posts were fixed, which they show to this day. The place seems to have had it[s] name from being bestowd for some certaine time as a reward to the executioner, but whether this Lordship had an extraordinary prerogative (for it is an ancient one) or whether some of the Machells had bin Shiriff and upon that account might maintane an Executioner (haveing no aut[h]ority) I dar not determine but than (my thinkes) it is some thing odd that the Gallow should [be] placed in his owne Dom[aine]s if he was only [s]hireve.

[Machell's Notes: I.73]

*{Translate this.}

[I.74][565]

{Marshes are called in Latin arcifinales et limites ab arcendis finitimis sic uti}.[566] wherein they kept their horses and other cattle. And truly I cannot say but that Westm'land was as much or more trubled with these inRoads noe longer since than Henry 8 times, as Cumberland or Northumberland are now. For in amongst the writeings at Crakenthorpe Hall I finde that Hugh Machell of Crakenthorpe Esq. was appointed an assistant to Sir Thomas W\harton / Knight, deputed Warden of the Westmarshes of Scotland (June 28, 29. Henry 8.) [1536/7-1537/8] by a speciall warrant under the said Kings signet and signe manual, and the Tenants of the Lordship ever did and doe yett hold their estates (amongst other conditions) by military (if I may so say) or, as it is commonly called thereby, Border Service. But now in Westm'land they live in more securitye, so that those Tennantes who heretofore held their lands at a deare rate (the Hassard of Armes) doe now live in saifty and Eat their bread in piece and Quiettness \ in a peacefull land. / Howbeit there is nothing more hatefull to them \ at this day / nor ~~nothing~~ noe man in the world they sett less by than a Lowland Scott, whom they looke upon both as treacherous and cowardly, 2 sordid vices / which they mortally abhor; but of this, more in the next particular.[567]

Concerning the Inhabitants \ ancient & / moder[n]; their disposition*[568]

When wee come to speake concerning the Inhabitants ~~ancient and~~ modern, this Country for it[s] better security & strength has yett [blank] Castles, beside [blank] which are demolished, al in good repaire. And to give warning of the approach of an enemy, [blank] Beacons.
It has 8 large rivers well-stored with fish of all sorts, as Salmon, Trouts C[h]ubs, Pikes, Brass Trouts, Gray Trouts, Gold Trouts &c. Vid the Query's?[569]
Over these rivers are a many Bridges & most of them Stone, with a great number of mills for lead, corne & cloth: Concerning all which I shall speake more large in som other place (cheepness of fish.).
It affords allso great store of cattle, as sheep cows oxen and deere in Great Plenty with staggs & wild couse on some of the fells; wild foole[570] as duk & mallar[d], teele & widgion, wild geese, herrinshoes &c. which I shall speake of hereafter.

---

[565] Also numbered p.12.
[566] 'Lands that protect [or hold] the boundaries and borderlands, because they ward off the neighbours'.
[567] See N&B1, 9-10 for Border Service and assignment of land.
[568] Perished marginal content includes headings on market towns, improvements and free schools. The text is a draft of material on I.75.
[569] 'See the queries.'
[570] Wild fowl.

The aire, which tho otherwise would be sharpe and cold, is more warme and temperate by reason of the mountaness and is very w[hole]some & healthy in so much that men usually live 100 yeares.[571]

[Machell's Notes: I.74]

*See notes for Ogleby.[572]
{There are in the County [blank] houses – nobil[ity] & gentry; Castles [blank] churches [blank] chaples [blank] [perished illeg.] sch[ools] [blank], mills [blank] Bridges [blank], chases [blank] woods [blank] forest [blank] grounds [blank] parkes [blank] heath [blank] warrens [blank] Nework [blank] salt [blank] lead [blank], Iron [blank] lime [blank] plaster [blank] freestone [blank] grindstone.}

[I.75][573]

§1. The Inhabitants of this County are by speech Saxons, by their names Normans & by their nature both. They doe not affect any thing of novelty, either in habitt or Language, and that is the reason why new fashons and refined expressions are nott allowed, except amongst Gentlemen. And tis very remarkable that about Ableby,[574] tho they gennerall adhere to the old English Saxon as for their words, yett they \ neither / make use of the Yorkshire Lancashire nor Scottish Dialect ~~which some of which their neighbour are infected~~, as some of their neighbours ~~were use to~~ \ most frequently / doe (~~For about Carlile they speak very Scottish & about Kendall, yea even in Orton which is but [blank] distant from Appleby, they are very much addicted to the Lancashire tone~~) but they on the Contrary give every vowel its true & full sound.[575] {Scots pronounce myne as mein; Lancs pronounce ou as au, now as naw; Yorks pronounce oo as oi, foot as foit.}

§2. They have this great advantage of Southern people, that tho they speake in their owne uncouth language (for such the true English is accounted nowadayes); yett they understand the refined tone, ~~& tho many of them can speake it too, yett except they~~ […] ~~tis counted pride in them & called~~ […] and are able to speake it if they would but practiss and ~~accustome~~ \ use / them selves to it. But by their avertion to all innovations they obteine this advantage: that they easily arrive to the knowledge of the Saxon; & have a greater propensity to pronounce French right, than any people in this nation besides.

§3. The generality of them are of a kinde and courteouse disposition, so long as they are not affronted or abused: but otherwise much addicted to revenge. They are very true & faithfull to their friends, & wonderfully Hospitable to strangers & others.[576]

§4. They love any man that dares to fight, so that a stout rober ~~when taken & imprisoned shall be company for a knight~~\ is estemed of by them: / for if he have valour he's counted a Gentleman, & the sence of ~~that is~~ \ his valour / is enough to wipe of all ~~his~~ other indignities.

§5. A schollar or a soljer they have in Great reverence but a pilfering theefe, & a dastardly coward they hate above all things ~~and have more great kindness for the Lowland Scotts. But love the Highlanders because they are~~ valiant'.[577]

[Machell's Notes: I.75]
Memorandum: the manner of holding. Clifford Knights Service: rel[i]qui per corna:[578] write the tables.

[I.76]

[§6.] A[s a] people they are Strong Active and Hardy, fitt for Labour & Lovers of industrye, yett so much addicted to masculine recreations; as Fishing Fowleing Hunting Hawkeing Horse Coursing & the like; that for these they will lieve their more necessary imployments. & love musique so well

[571] This paragraph alos appears in N&B1, 2-3.
[572] See the Editor's Introduction and this chapter, I.42, for Machell's connection with Ogilby's Queries.
[573] Also numbered p.13.
[574] Appleby.
[575] See this theme in N&B1, 11.
[576] See N&B1, 9, for similar attributes.
[577] The last scored-through sentence was originally placed on MS.I.76.
[578] 'The rest through cornage:'

(especially the Baggpipe) that heareing one play \ at night after worke / they will straight fall a dancing, ~~when they are most weary with workeing & Labour~~ as if they knew not what \ it were to be weary. / {!} Gens pervalida, pro loco et Tempore, nunc aratra hunc ad Arma Promptissima.[579]

§7. Their gentry are men ~~of~~ more gallant~~ry~~ in their actions than in words & clothes,[580] \ ~~or houses~~ / true to their Country & Loyall to their Prince. Witness their behaviour in the late Civil Warrs, & unda[u]nted suffering ~~in the~~ \ during / Tyranny of Oliver, for I thinke this little \ County / may say it with glorie that their was not one \ 3 /[581] Gentleman, perfidiouse in it. {An in Cumberland? Onely 3: Cholmley. Punsenby. Lawson. Roundheads in West[morland] Totidem.}[582]

§8. As \ to / ~~for matter of~~ Education, not onely the Gentry but the very commonalty bring up their children in much subjection \ to their parents & superiours; / putting them to schoole whilst they are young wher \ the / most learn English & many of them Latin before they lieve schoole and betake themselves to traides; \ & / some Greek & Hebrew, \ whose parents are able to proceed farther to, / and thence are sent to Oxford or Cambridge where they improve to a very great eminency; and for this their education is the more acquirable because of the number of free schools \ & chapel / in this Country, whereof there are ~~many~~ \ lot, Sc. / that of Appleby being \ counted / chiefe.[583]

{Ther customes}

§9. They plow here allwayes with oxen, haveing onely in ~~their~~ \ a / teame 2 Leading horses; & this is the old way, whence wee have the word Oxgan[g]. Bovata Terræ[584] that is to say [blank]

§10. They carry their corne \ commonly on horse back / & other Burthens commonly in wains carts but never in waggons by teames of horses, which is one reason why they use not coaches \ so / much \ in this Country; / yett it is to be noted that they carry as much or more \ sorts / with their single Horses, than the southern people doe with their waggons, computeing Horse for Horse. But though there were an inconvenience in it, they would scarce have any regard thereunto; for they hardly give way to any innovation.

[I.77][585]

{§11.} They have \ some / particular customes \ of their own / which I doe not finde practised in the south of England; as of shooting[586] yeale[587] {Yeule see Bishop Usher in som of his works} (which in this Country Language signifies Oyle and may ~~signify~~ \ denote / joy and gladness) as soone as ever they come out of the Church on Christmas day and such like the common sort when feasted by their Landlords, come forth after dinner all together, & shoote Yeule yeule yeule 3 severall times, and if any be within doore & not present att the solemnity, ~~they to~~ man or woman \ or child, / they inflict a punishment, which is stanging or swilling.

---

[579] 'A people particularly strong for their place and for their time, most ready at one moment for the plough, at another for the fight.'

[580] According to Nicolson and Burn, 'In the article of cloathing, they have departed of late years from their ancient simplicity.' N&B1, 11.

[581] Inserted in another ink, possibly suggesting that the number of Roundheads in Cumberland and Westmorland was the same, but the passage appears muddled.

[582] 'Just as many/all the same.'

[583] Nicolson and Burn stress the number of good schools in 'almost every village. And in the larger towns … there are free schools handsomely endowed. Insomuch that it is a rare thing in this county, to find any person who cannot both read and write tolerably well.' N&B1, 9.

[584] 'Ox-ploughed land.'

[585] Also numbered p.14.

[586] Shouting.

[587] Or yeule: Machell's 'a' is often left unclosed, thus resembling 'u'. Additionally, 'Yeal' and forms of 'yeul' were interchangeable in Durham, Cumberland, Westmorland, Yorkshire and Lancashire: See Joseph Wright, English Dialect Dictionary (London, 1898-1905), 6., 573, 592-94: 'Yeal… also written yewl, yool or yeel in Scotland, was a northern variant of 'yule' i.e. Christmas.'

{‘Stanging’}[588]
Stanging is proper to the men, not onely upon such delinquencies, but allso upon other occasions in X^{t}mas, & as being found inbed a morneings, or any ~~delinquency~~ or \ any / misdemeanour whatsover committed against the custome of the places, or the persons their {dwelling} ~~resideing~~; and tis nothing but takeing up a man ~~up~~ upon a coltstaff which they calle a stang & carry about upon their shoulders, either into a Gentleman’s ~~hou~~ \ seller, / where they make him drinke of a great charger, or to an ailehouse, where ~~they~~ \ the / make him drinke, defraying the charges of the whole company.

{‘Swilling’}[589]
& so swilling is much the same save that tis for women who are carryed in a Swill or Basket & sometimes (if persons of quality) in a chaire, by the men, who either cause them to pay a forfett or cary them for a punishment into some water or poole near adjoyneing, for refuseing soe to doe. But they have allways musique with them; & sometimes the young men of one towne will goe to an other & stagg all they meet with in their Bedds after midnight, & Gentlemen themselves will in like manner for a Xtmas frolique thus visit one another, both in Westm’land and Cumberland.

[I.78]

[Christmas]
They keep their Christmases with great Entertainements and always musicans ~~those never absent~~ \ being calld upon eve morning about X a clock in every village all the xii days. / The Lords ~~doe most frequently~~ invite \ not only their friends but / allso their Tenants ~~together~~ to dine & be merry ~~with & the Tenents~~ \ who in requitall present their Lords with \ eggs & / poultry and \ other / such things &c. \ as / they can ~~Tenements~~ afford.[590] {N.B. Take in Here §18.}Paying allso, beside other rent services as ploughing Harrowing reaping & mowing (coales & pout Henns),[591] when \ every yere att what time / their Lord is pleased to require them. They pall for annuall rents of a smale value, & fines upon the death of the Lord and change of the Tenant.

[‘Merry Nights’]
§12. And the common sort, besides their feasting of one another (especially the young ones) have certaine sett Nights appointed for Mirth \ which they call Merry nights, in / ~~upon~~ which they all meet, att some \ public / place ~~or other~~ where a cupp of \ good / aile is sold. & there pass their time in mirth and danceing; ~~& these they call their merry nights.~~

{Boys and Childrens accustomed Sports}
§13. On New Yeres Eve the Lesser Boyes \ calld New Year Barns[592] / goe about the Neighbourhood, and gather such gifts as every Household thinke fitt to bestow; some giveing them candles, some pyes, some ro[a]st, \ some money, / some one thing & some another \ as they are disposed / which when they have \ made their / collected \ round / they make merry therewith amongst themselves. ~~They are called the New Yere Barnes, and~~ \ and in their procession or going about / one of them

[588] Stanging: a New Year’s Day custom, apparently unique to Cumberland, Westmorland and Yorkshire;one of a range of customs in which the working classes claimed the right to ‘manhandle’ their superiors. ‘Riding the Stang’ was a form of punishment inflicted on faithless partners by their community as a kind of rough justice at any time of year in many other parts of the country: Oxford Reference, https://www.oxfordreference.com.
[589] Swilling: a form of stanging where women were carried shoulder-high in a basket (swill) to the nearest ale-house, where they were expected to buy drinks. The only way to avoid this treatment was to pay a fine immediately, Gentleman's Magazine (1791); Oxford Reference. https://www.oxfordreference.com.
[590] MS: Following this is a crossed-through paragraph on boon services and rents, taken up again in §18.
[591] Pout hens (poults, pullets): young of the domestic fowl; chicks. Sometimes also a kind of game bird (apparently without regard to age). OED. The young of the moor-cock/moor-hen were also named pouts, especially in the North of England: see R. Brookes, The Natural History of Birds: with the Method of Bringing Up and Managing those of the singing kind, Vol. 2 (London, 1763), 149.
[592] Bairns = children.

~~repeats~~ \ sayes / a great many Stanzayes of old ~~Saxon~~ English rimes att every doore, all the rest joyning \ with him / in the chorus, whereof I will onely give you this taist, viz. ut seq.

To Neeight it is the Newyeres Neeight
To moarne it is the Day
Wee'r com'd to laite our Newyeres gyft gitt it gin we may
(Chorus) With an Hagdown aye \ Hagmanay, Hag neun ay* / \ an Have no nay /[593]

And where they meet with a disappointment & have nothing bestowed upon them they all cry alloud:

Hunger Ith Midding
Fyer Ith House Rigging

& soe pass to the next house. And the Scotts have the selfe same custome but with som little variation in the rhyme.

['Scotch and English']

§14. And the Boyes in this Country have allso a play or sport, which of all others I must not forgett. Namely that after Schoole, or att any leysure time; they divide themselves into 2 Companyes under 2 Captaines who chuses ~~man~~ \ boy / for ~~man~~ \ boy, / whome they thinke the best for their

[Machell's Notes: I.78 & 79]

The New-Yer Gift Sang

This neeght's never eene, Hog non a
The mo'rn is King Henry's day Trol, lol a Gang to yer breead heap. Hog &c.
Bring us down a heal heap. Trol &c.
Gang te yer Hen fleakes. Hog &c. {roostes}
Bring us Toppock & her meak. Trol &c. {an hen's name}
Gang te yer Befe-tub. Hog &c.
Cut round, cut sound, cut not yer muckle
thaum -Trol lol la.

*Hag newn a.: i.e. Have no nay, et put[o] L. Bland?

24 September 1675

From Hugh Anderson a Scottch pedlar. Compare this with the New Yeare song used in Westm'land.

[I.81]

purpose: then they strip them selves into their dubletts and drawers, each party \ the one calleing them selves Scotts & the other English, / laying their clothes all on an heape a[nd] sett a stone as it were a bounder betwixt the 2 kindomes exactly in the midle betixt their heapes of clothes. Then they begin to make incurtions into one another's territories the English beginning with this revileing expression

Here's a loup in thy Land dry bellyed Scott. {i.e. a Leape.}

& soe they plunder and steale away one from another all that ever they cann lay their hands upon. But if they can ~~catch~~ \ take hold / of any invader within their own jurisdiction either before he catches his booty (which they call a wed) {i.e. a weed or garment} or after, Except he escape clear into his owne province, they take him prisoner & carry to the weeds (i.e. their treasure or heape of clothes); whence he is not to move till some of his owne party [come] & breake in and by speed of foote lay hands on the prisoner before he \ himselfe / be touched by any of this adversaries \ party, / which if he doe, he has rescued his man & may carry him of without molestation. & thus som times one party will so farre prevaile upon the other, what with plundering & what with takeing prisoner, that the other shall have nothing att all left. This is a very active & violent ~~recreation~~ \ Sport, / which when they are suffised withall, every one take his owne clothes agane upon a truce made till the nextime and so they conclude.

[593] For 'Hagmanay' as a variant of 'Hogmanay' (New Year's Eve) in the north of England, see Peter Hempson Ditchfield, Old English Customs extant at the Present Time: an account of local observances, festival customs and ancient ceremonies yet surviving in Great Britain (1896), 32. New Year songs were once common: see Ditchfield (32) on this custom in the Isle of Man.

This Sport they call Scotch & English, & I am persuaded that Heretofore, when incursions were so frequently \ made / betwixt the 2 Kingdomes: 'The~~ir~~ children \ either / tooke this up in imitation of what their parents did really act, or else the parents taught it to their children, as a means to instruct them in the ~~and render them active in depredation~~ prædatory art, & ~~as it were~~ inspirit them \ from their very cradles / against the Scotts \ whose fein[d]esh incursions wer so frequent, troublesome, that before King James came they called [it] the Ill Ward i.e. the ill world, and said such & such things were don th'ill Ward.[594]

['Burning Hollies']
§15. On the 12 Eve they have allso a custome of Burning Hollies (as they calle it) and this they doe all over the Country \ in every village / whereat you may see 20 or 40 fires all at once.

[I.82]

The occasion I suppose is in memorial of the wise men ~~comeing to~~ \ who came at that time / to see Our Saviour: and If I mistake not they are called Hollyes upon this account \ Sc. holy lights / {No, sed Ignus Sanctus: the holy fier, which by a mistake is converted to holly: & thence the abuse.} That formerly they were made of severall linkes or torches, tyed to severall bowes or Branches of Hollie tree, which they provided on purpose, and so carryed it about, especially upon Hills where they might be most seen, and tho att other places of late they content themselves with burneing \ whins or / furse (~~which they call whins~~) or straw or any other ~~combustable~~ matter \ stuff / which will make a great Blaze; yett att Brough they make use of an Holly \ Branch / in a manner aforesaid to this very day. I see it \ myself / on the 12 eve 1674.

['Bean Fires']
§16. They have an other custome of makeing bone fires (which they call bean fires) either from Bones, by them called Beanns, of which they gather as many as they cann of Dead Doggs Horses or the like, & Burne them in their fires; or else from the Fre[n]ch [word] Bien, which signifies good, they being usually made upon some \ Boun / good News. But whatsoever they take the word from, 'tis very certaine that they will make 2, or 3, or more of these, in a Towne \ or village / according to the bigness of it, but never less than 2, one at one end of the Towne & the other at the other; and the Boyes being divided, will robb the fires & fight as heartily for it as if it were for life and death; so that it may seem to have bin continued in memory of some great fight and of Victorie obtained; but when or what or where it was I have not yett learned. Onely it is to be Noted that [they] constantly observe this ceremony all the Country over of St John Baptists day Eve – calld Midsommer over.

[Rush Bearing]
§17. Which day \ doth allso / putt me in minde of an other custome, formerly much used amongst them, both by Boyes & Girls; and that was of Rush Beareing. For upon this day the young fry in every parish, did gather rushes (which they calle seives) as many as would Straw the church all over, & Brought them & strowed [them] on St John's Day. this methinke may be in memory of St John Baptist's being [594] For a similar passage, although not attributed to Machell, see N&B1, 10.

[I.83]

An Hantshire Piper, taken at Sherborn Monach[595]

Figure 8. 'An Hantshire Piper'. I.83.

[Machell's Notes: p. 83]

For my L[earned] Friend, Mr John Mill.[596]

[I.85]

in the wilderness, But I have read somthinke more in Kings Vaile Royal of the Ile of Man:[597] vid my notes & insert it. (Memorandum allso that they calle the procession weeke \ in som places, / Gang Weeke, from goeing their Bounders then) & Cross Weeke, from their resting & praying att every cross which was in their circuit.

There is butt Little Land in this Country Held by Knights Service of the King in Capite: onely Apleby[598] with the castles thereto belong[ing] as Brough Brougham & Pendraggon; & Kendal Castle; which notwithstanding was in som respect subordinate to Appleby. And all the Lords or at least most of them Held by Cornage of whence take these lists {se in part 5[l]} of Apleby Brough & Kendall.[599]

[Kurne-day]
§18. The Tenents in [this] Country ~~hold frequently~~ for the most part Hold of their Lords by [blank] and many of them are bound (besideing fighting for their Lords) to severall services, as ploughing Harrowing reaping mowing &c. besides coales & pouthens, & a smale annuall rent which they pay to their Lords: as allso a fine upon death of the Lord or chainge of the Tennant. They call the Lord of the manor, speakeing ~~in the 3 person~~ \ of him / usually the Lord, & his wife the Lady. ~~But speakeing to them, Master & Mister~~. And on the kurne-day* The Tenents will come with their wifes & children, & soe will the neighbours who are nott tennants, to helpe him that day; so that he shall [have] above 100 \ or 200 reapers / att ~~once~~ a time, whome he entertaines with good ~~victuales~~ \ meat & / dri[n]ke and musique \ with a piper amongst them. / And when they have finished, they all go together upon some near Hill, where one of them (commonly the Lord's Balife) repeats this old rime, & all the rest joynes with him in the chorus, which they shout aloud. ~~The rime is thus:~~

Balife	Blessed be th' time that God was boarn
	we have gitt aw Mr …'s coarn shoarn
Chorus	A churn a churn a churn, a whowe!

[595] Monk Sherborne.
[596] Dr Mill, Principal of St Edmund Hall, Oxford. See Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence.
[597] James Chaloner, A Short Treatise of the Isle of Man, digested into Six Chapters, published as an Appendix to King's Vale Royal of England, or, The County Palatine of Chester… (1656).
[598] I.e. the Clifford estates.
[599] No list appears below.

which they repeat 3 times over: And then goe to the Gentleman's house in a Troupe,[600] the piper playing \ still / before them, where they have a supper provided \ for them / ~~and for their last~~ \ at which the last / dish, [to] every one a mess of cream out of the churne as a reward of their conquest: & then they fall to danceing (frequently in a O,[601] a man & woman mixed) as tho they had not wrought att all.

[Machell's Notes: I.85]

*{Churne: a mistake (forsan) for corne-day, But the custome of creame has come from the mistaken word} (as they calle it), that is the day upon \ which / the Lord ~~has likelyhood~~ of reape~~ing~~ \ &c. / his last corne.

[I.86]

[Dances]

Their dances ~~is~~ \ are / frequently in a circkle, a man & a woman, which they call a Westmorland round: or a sort of gig dance, in which the man haveing chosen the woman, leades her in his hand and gives her a Turne over the floore like a Corant;[602] and then, haveing placed her on one side the rome, where she stands all the while that He is dancing his gig, ~~&~~ \ which / haveing don he gives her a ~~salute~~ \ kiss, / & changing places, ~~then she begins and~~ \ she / danceth her Gig. And that being ended they \ both /dance ~~a Gig together~~ \ one against the other / but take not hands as they did at first – ~~where the women frequently dance realls as well as the man~~. & so, haveing don, they salute & ~~depart~~ \ sit down. Their third dance is a reele, 3 or 6 running the figure of eight. ∞.

[I.149]

{General}

['Unaccountable Arts']

They have many in these partes which Pretend to Conjuring and som have the hard reputations of witches, and much sought after, yett much hated for it.

They have several unaccountable Artes practiced by the vulgar, without any Compact with the Devil or any apparent wickedness in it, of discovering Thefts; as by a bowle or wooden dish that hath never bin wet, which they fill with water; and write the names of the suspected & other with them who in any wise might be guilty of it, in Pieces of Paper like unto Valentines, the which they put on the surface of it, & after the reading of a verse – I suppose in the Psalmes – that which sinkes first is guilty of it.

[1.] This was tryed at Warcop Tower, at Mr Farer's, for som thred that was stolne from the Talours. They suspect a maid, but her name would not sinke – though som foule play was offerd in pressing down unto it. At last a mans sunke; who \ though / [he] denyed & forswore the fact, ~~but~~ \ yett, / serching h[is] chamber, they founded it \ wrapt up in / a stocking top hid behind his bed.

Inf. Jo Wiber, sutor (Testis occulatus) Jan. 27 1686.[603]

[I.150]

2. They performe the same with a Ridle & Sheres.[604] The Ridle is a sort of Sieve which they dress their corne with, and the Sheres they commonly use are such as they shere \ clip / their sheep withall. They stick the sharp pointes of these Shere, into an hole in the side of Rudle which they hang ~~them~~ it up by – & 2 people opposite, one to the other, putts their long finger under each shoulder of the Bow of the sheres, supporteing them by \ the ends of / their fingers ends. Then another names a suspiciouse person and redes of the Psalme: Thou sawest a thefe & consentest unto him &c. If it prove not the person, the Rudle stands still, and they name \ or thinke upon / others – still reading the verse after every name – And when they hit on the guilty person it will whirle about & fly of their fingers. {Which thing I never experienced my self least I might offend God [by] it, but have had it related from several that have.}

---

[600] The main text is superimposed over several other words, including, 'manner for them'.

[601] In a ring.

[602] Courant: A kind of dance characterised by a running or gliding step (as distinguished from leaping). OED.

[603] 'Informant, John Wiber, cobbler (an eyewitness).' This edition removes the phrase from the foot of the previous page of the MS.

[604] Riddle: a large coarse sieve, see Wright, English Dialect Dictionary 5, 99-100; also named a 'ruddle' in Cumberland. Divination by riddle and shears was a common method of divination in Scotland: Dictionaries of the Scots Language. Online.

[3.] This hath often times [been] tried in [Temple] S\owerby / within the parish of Kirkby Thore, Ch[ristopher] Lowson, who is my Informant, being once ~~time~~ an operator in ~~performeing~~ \ it / & Mr J. H. declared to mee that he tryed the same for som soape ~~that was lost~~ \ which they wanted / which he charged his mades with, but they denyed; whereupon they cast the Rudle & sheres, & nameing the mades (whom they most suspected) in stirrd not all. Then they \ named every / every body about the house, & still they stirr'd not. Lastly they named the mastiff dog, being the only remaneing Creature which could be suspected (& hardly that) of medling therewith, and presently they wirled about & flew of their fingers. He [to] satisfy himselfe farther calld the dog to him, smeld at his mouth, & it savourd of soap.

[Machell's Notes: I.150]

A County of sportes, a Horse race almost at every Town on som of the Holy dayes & sommer time, as will be see[n] in my particular discourse of places & parishes.

[I.145]

[Houses]

There houses are generally low, and so were formerly, even in France itselfe – till Hildigastus, an eminent man upon this account in the time of Hildrick, King of France, circa An. Xt 224, reduced them (as Herodian libro 6^0 ad Cultiorem Vitam & Mores; tam in amictu, quam in Ædificijs)[605] to a more elegant manner of living, both in their habits & houses also; whence the Proverb concerneing strong but unpolished worke: Das ist ein gut alt Frenchisk werk. This is one geud auld French warke: Trithem[ius].[606]

[I.137]

[Produce]

{The fruites are aples pear plumes cherryes black & read apricoths peaches &c. though not very common, because since Scottish invasions & civill wars, few have delighted in gardines & orchards. But there are allso naturally, which show the benignity of the soyle & air – Cherryes, wine berryes, & raspberryes also very fragrant & juyey.[607] Strawberryes are common in every wo[od]. & there are beside which tho plentiful here are not heard of else-where, Hinds berryes[608] & Bleaberryes which are very pleasing.}

{For flowers, clove gilly floores have bin here at Shrove-Tide, & double daysies above fower inch aboute; But to pass these by to show what it naturally doth produce: Here in the medow lands and likewise in the fields are your grait colourd violet, which are calld hearts ease & love & Idle;[609] & In the medows your Golden Globes in great abundance, & a sort of R.[610] colour.}[611]

---

[605] 'As Herodian in his 6th book concerning the more Civilised Life and Customs: so in dress as in buildings'. This refers to the 6th book (on Severus Alexander, 222-35 AD) of Herodian's 8 books on Roman History.

[606] In his Compendium sive Breviarium primi voluminis annalium sive historiarum, de origine Rerum & gemis Francorum (Paris, 1539 edn, Lib I, 38: 35), Johannes Trithemius describes Hildegast thus: 'And Hildegast, remembered as a sage among the Franks … taught the people to live in civilised ways, to build houses and to dress with greater refinement, and he told them to lay aside their savagery. For the Franks cared so little for culture or ornament, in clothes just as in their buildings … From that time the Franks began to build their houses both larger and lovelier, and distinct in separate dwellings. For whatever they constructed in former times was lowly and rustic and excessively plain, since, indeed, on account of frequent changes of settlement, they were more accustomed to live in the open countryside than in townships. Hence the Germans, whenever they see something made or depicted with old-time simplicity, reciting a proverb which praises antiquity, are accustomed to say: "Das ist ein gut alt Frenchisk werk."' ["That's real old Frankish stuff."]

[607] Juicy.

[608] The hindberry is another name for the raspberry. OED.

[609] Love-in-idleness is a type of purple heartsease.

[610] 'Red'? Golden globes or globe flowers (Trollius: family Ranunculaceae) are usually yellow: see George Don, A General History of the Dichlamydeous Plants, Vol. 1 (London, 1831), 44.

[611] For a catalogue of Westmorland's 'scarce or curious plants growing wild', see N&B2, 587-90.

For fish it affordes of Trout, Chevins,[612] Pikes, \ monster eles, Charres which are a great rarity, / Smelts,[613] Salmons, & a Trout which for largeness is their competour, calld a Gray-Trout.

For flesh: Beefe, large & good; \ som of which dry & hung; / mutton of all sortes, both great & little: but generally small, which yet is ~~the sweetest in~~ far sweeter th[an] the great, & preferd (I am told by the now Earle of Thanet) by King Charles the 2, for its dillicate taiste before all the muttons in the Kingdom of England.[614] I shall not mention the other sortes which are common every where but only observe that Brawn & venison are very \ plentiful / common dishes in their proper seasons Xmas \ winter / & Lammas \ sommer / all over this Countrey.

{Beastes} {The hart \ & bore /; the buck & doe; the fox \ hurtfull: / I wish wee had none. The homeless sheepe;[615] the mart[616] & the otter. All these in the Bottom of Westm'land. The Gardine of Eden.}

For fowle they have woodcock, partrige fine, all sortes of plovers ~~And what is mo~~ \ curlews, moor h[en] / mawes[617] & wilde ducks, which doe not only appear here at seasons, but breed in the Countrey. And so likewise do your gorfowle,[618] more pulates. \ But which are yett for greater rarityes / Herins (or Cranes), orspreys & Eagles or ~~rather~~ vulturs; & the mical \ comical[619]/ Doterall. But they have no Phesants, that species of them – being so tame a fowl – are long since destroyed and since the great forrest have bin depoupulated of their wood & verdure so that there is little or none on the mountains for want of Copses & Covert, to fly too at severall stages, they could never yett be restored agane. But it hath bin lately attempted by Mr Lowther to restore that game ~~in which~~ he who 2 or 3 yeares since brough[t] young one[s] over out of Yorkshire hither; But the Countrey people destroyed them before they increased to any considerable replennishing number.

[Machell's Notes: I.137]

{The River Eden running down it & being wald in on every side. It be calld the Gardene of Eden, & that not undeservedly.}

[VI.462B]

Regio est aut pascendis pecoribus aut alendis frugibus n[um]quam non mitissima, et ab omnibus vitæ necessarijs instructissima, ad quas etiam com[m]oditates flumina ista pr[rae]ter alia accedunt eximia Eden, Lowther & Emot qu[ae] cum floridissima prata et lætissima arva placide irrig[av]erint demum confluent et per Cumbriam uno Itunæ nomine praeterfluunt.[620]

It is a country very productive of corne and cattle, abounding with all sorts of necessarys for humaine life, being very much inriched by those famous rivers, Eden, Emot & Sleddell, which though not navigable, yet full of fish & of trouts especially. After they have pleasantly watred many flourishing meadows & smileing cornfields, doe meet all in one, and so run through Cumberland by the name of Eden. \ It has of old been a plentifull country for the breed of good horses. /

---

[612] Chubs.
[613] Smelt, sparling, sperling: a small fish like the salmon, emitting a peculiar odour. OED.
[614] MS: '& preferd (I am told) by King Charles the 1t \ 2 / sure I am by the now Earle of Thanet, for its dillicate taiste before all the muttons in the Kingdom of England.'
[615] Perhaps, unheafed.
[616] Clean mart = pine marten; foul mart = pole cat.
[617] Machell was probably referring to the sea-mew: the common gull. OED.
[618] The gorecock, or red game, was the moor cock (female: moor hen); the young were named gorfowl and pouts, Brookes, Natural History of Birds 2, 149.
[619] In another hand. A suggestion for an extension to 'mical'.
[620] 'The region is always very mild for the pasturing of flocks or growing of corn, and very well provided with all the necessaries of life, to which products those marvellous rivers also contribute beyond anything else – Eden, Lowther and Eamont, which, when they have peacefully irrigated the flowery meadows and happy fields, at last flow together and run through Cumberland under the single name of Eden.'

That part of Westmorland which layes N. & N.E. is more frutefull and woody; the other towards the south if you take in the fells is much greater but soyless worth, yet no way contemptible, for even this doth bring forth great plenty of corne, especially of bigg & oates & has very good pasture, with some shaddye woods and many coppeces. A. p.2.
It hath plenty enough of corne, abounds with cattle, and in many places has store of pitt cole. A.14.
And ergo it scarce seems strange to me att all that the Romanes ~~should pitch here and defend these places from the Scotts & Picts of old.~~ and the Kings of England in later times, should so much esteem of it \ as / allwayes to contend for keeping this (& its sister county) in their dominions. It is a country temperatæ ubertatis, plentifull enough and sufficiently frutefull.[621]
{[Rea]dy for the approachin[g] enemy especely the Scotts; there are severall beacons.}

Regio nisi in montes amoena et fertilis, pars huius Borealis Colibus
[...]ncta in fertilissimam subsidet planitiem Itunoq[ue] nobilissimo flum[ine]
[...]lebis quasi vim vitalem infundit irrigatur. Australior pars quæ
[...]ntes, salis etiam ferax est et sylvis obumbratur.}[622]

[I.87]

Of Rivers & their Courses[623]

A Cataloge of Rivers and Brookes in Westm'land with the milns that are upon them, and the Bridges which they run under, showing allso what vilages & Gentlemen's houses are near or upon the Course of the Rivers & to whome the Milns doe belong

There are 6 Principle Rivers in Westmorland and many Riviletts which run into them as followeth:

Rivers	Bridges	Milns	What Sort?	The Owners
	Upon Eden Are
The chief river in Westm'land is Eden, which springs att Hewseat at Morvill hill, and runs downe the midest of the Bottom of Westm'land, by many fine places and pleasant seats, as Pendragon-Castle, Harcley-Castle, Kirkby-Stephen – a market Towne, Warkop Tower \ Warcop Hall / Ormside Hall, Apleby Castle \ where there are 2 pleasure boates, ~~Colby Tower~~, Crakenthorp-Hall \ where there is a pleasure [boat] / opposite to which is Buly Castle* \ Barton / [Machell's Notes: I.87] *Opposite to which at half a mile's distance is Buly Castle, on the west on [blank] & Colby Tower on the south side thereof. _____ Kirkbythore – where there is an Hall & where formerly was a castle, Temple	8. 1. Hellgill-bridge 2. Pendragon-bridge 3. Strengthrett-bridge[624] 4. Kirkby Stephen-bridge 5. Musgrave-bridge 6. Warcop-bridge	6. 1. Att Neatby 2. Att Kirkby Stephen, 2 3. Att Bongate under Apleby Castle, a great one being a double miln 4. Att Crakinthorpe	Corne, Cloth Both for Corne Corne Corne Cloth	Countess of Pembroke Viscount Westm'land Squire Machell

[621] The page foot has perished here
[622] Partly perished Latin text: 'Except in the mountains, the region is pleasant and fertile; the northern part of it [...] slopes down from the hills to a most fertile plain and is irrigated by the noble River Eden [...] as though it pours upon it a vital force. The more southerly part which [...] is also plentiful in salt and shaded by woods.'
[623] Title, moved from MS.I.106.
[624] Stenkrith.

Sowerby, Winderwath Hall, – Betwix which place and Hornby-Hall it receives the River Emote, & so enters Cumberland, passing by a great many seats of the Gentry of that County. & about ~~Roweliff~~ \ Bowness / it taketh the sea, retaineing it name all along without any allteration. It is render passable by 8 stone Bridges, & has 6 or 7 milnes builded upon, as you may see in the column opposite. Into Eden doe run on the east and nor-east, these riviletts following:	7. Apleby-bridge 8. Eden-bridge below Temple Sowerby & All these bridges are built of stone.	1 & 1 gon downe 5. Att Bolton 1	Corne	idem
Upon Bel. & Augill are
1.Below:[625] which springs upon Stainmore, runs by High-Ubainke and haveing inlarged it selfe by a little Brooke called Argill[626] Water, discharges it selfe into Eden att Great-Musgrave.	2. 1. Belah bridge betwixt Brough & Brough Sowerby. 2. Argill Bridge in the High Street upon Stainemore	2. 1. Att Ewbanke one 2. Att Argill one
2. Helbeck (or Brough-beck) which springs in Helbeck-Fells; runns downe by Helbeck-Hall; Brough (a Market Towne) and Brough Castle. And this allso dischargeth it selfe att Great Musgrave, where 4 rivers meet, viz. Eden, Below, Helbeck & Soulby	1. Helbeck-bridge 2. Brough bridge 3. Musgrave bridge	1. Att Hellbeck two 2. Att Brough two Att Musgrave two	One Corne One lead Corne corne 1 Corne 1 Lead
				I.89
3. Barton Beck, which springs [blank] runs downe by Barton-Hall and thence to Warkop, where it enters Eden		2. 1. Att Burton one 2. At Warcop one	Corne Corne
4. Helton-Beck, which springs (I suppose) about Roman-Fell att the ~~wes~~ northend thereof. runns by Helton-Hall and Lancton deschargeing it selfe into Eden, 'twixt Ormside and Apleby	2. 1. Helton-Bridge 2. Couplandbeck-Bridge	2. 1. Att Helton one 2. Att Langton one	Corne Cloth
5. Is Troutbeck (or Morton-Beck) springing in the mountaines twix Meal-Fell and the Pikes. It runs downe by Morton-Hall \ through the Towne by / Flakebridge Wood, Brampton Hall, Long Martin \ church / & Kirkbythuer Hall, where it takes the river.	3. 1. Stockbridge 2. Morton-bridge,[627] stone 3. Kirkbythore bridge of wood formerly; now stone	3. 1. Att Brampton one 2. Att Longmarton one 3. att Kirkbythore one	Corne Corne Cloth

[625] Belah.
[626] Augill.
[627] Long Marton.

6. Kieslay-beck, which springs on the other side Morton Pike, i.e. North Westm'lan. The true name thereof I know not & therefore call it Kiesley-beck (may bee tis Hikab). It runs downe by Kiesley towards Flakebrig wood (sed de hoc query)[628] where meeting with Troutbeck, it looseth its name. Knock q?
7. Swindall-beck. It springs betwixt Dufton & Knock-Pike, runns by the Church and The ruines of an Old-Hall, att Dufton Towne End, and meets with Troutbeck a little before it comes to Long Marton where they both loose their names and are called Marton beck; but Kirkbythure beck when they come att Kirkbythore as it is usull with these little Brookes to take new names from all places they come att.		1. Att Dufton one	Corne
8. Grainge-beck (so I name it cause that's the first village this rivilett calls att.) It springs in the fells on the North side Knock Pike, comes in att the higher end of Grainge, and runs even downe the streat; Leves Howgill Castle a little of[f] on the right hand, and so runs along to Newbiggin Hall, \ having met & joyneth it selfe with / where it meets with Blenkarn.[629]		2. 1. Att Gullham Holme 2. Att Milne-burne	Cloth Corne
9. Blenkarne-beck. It spring about Cross Fell, runs downe twixt	2	3
				[I.90]
There are more [mills] sure upon Livennat. Memorandum: Woodhead Mill
				[I. 91]
Blenkarne and Lownthwate Wood, thence to about Newbigin, where it meets with Milburne [Beck], and so they pass on by Ackorne-banke and Milln-rigg, change name att every place, and att Edenbridge a little below Milnrigg they take the river. This Blenkarne is a boundary on the North 'twixt Westm'land and Cumberland.	2. 1. Newbiggin Bridge 2. Mil Rigg Bridge	4. 1. Att Newbiggin one 2. Att Acorne banke two 3. Att Milnrigg, one	Corne Corne, both Corne, but now gon downe	? Squire Crakinthorp ? Squire Dalston Mr Burbek but now Esq. Dalstons
Into Eden doe run, on the west and southwest, these	Bridges	Milns	Sorte	Owners
1. Soulby-beck. Or (maybe) ~~Mallerstang-beck~~; it springs I thinke in the Forrest of Mallerstang \ no / runs by [blank] and glides into Eden att Little Musgrave, being one of the fower that rondevouse there.	2. 1. Soulby Bridge 2. Sowerby Bridge	2. 1. Att Soulby one 2. Att Sowerby one	Corne Cloth	{?}
2. Ormside-beck, which springs not far from Piper Cross. It runs \ or rather springs / by Breeks att some little distance [blank] and enters Eden att Ormside Hall.		2. Both att Ormside	Corne Cloth	? Squire Hilton of Ormside

[628] 'But query this'.

[629] Machell gives an alternative here; the pecked line demonstrates his uncertainty. The word 'met' is unclear.

3. Colby-beck (or rather Asby beck). It springs in Ashby Towne Gate & hath a fine head called St Ellens Well, near Great Ashby church; runns downe by Rutter, where there is a great force or waterfall, and there it receives \ Dribeck / which ~~doth~~ runns \ not / in the sommer time, and thence has its name. So it passeth along by Barhouse-Hall, and Coulby Tower, a little below which it enters Eden.	3. 1. Bow-bridge 2. Upper Hoff-bridge 3. Colby-bridge	4. 1. Att Ashby 2. Att Rutter two 3. Att Colby one	 Corne Corne Cloth Corne
4. Livennett: riseth near Gilse by Oddenden Parke. Runns downe by Crosby-Ravensworth Mauds-Meaburne, and Morland, wher are 2 halls, and a Great Force or waterfall, and meets with Shap-water a little below Cleaburne, and then enters Eden att [blank] betwixt Kirkbythore and Temple Sowerby {crawfish}	3. 1. Crosby Bridge 2. Meaburn bridge 3. Morland bridge	4. 1. Att Crosby 2. Att Meaburn 3. Morland two. One called Pow donnett	 Corne Corne Corne Corne	{see the description of Crosby}[630]
				[I.93]
5. Shapwater springs in 2 places near \ victa / Shap, viz. att Hardendale and Midlerigg-well. It runns by Shapp ~~Abby~~ \ where was an Abby / Strickland where are \ now / 2 Halls \ & / Melkinthorpe Hall otherwise called [Blank] and Cleburne Hall, a mile below which it meets with Livennatt & soe runns on to Eden.
2. Sleddall flu. or Lowther flu.[631]
An other Great River in the Bottome of Westm'land is Sleddall, which is commonly call'd Lowther. It springs att Wett-Sleddall, & soe runns along by Shapp Abby, Rosgill-Hall, Bampton ~~Hall~~ \ Grainge / Askham & Lowther Halls, Clifton Hall; & the 2 famous forts, Mabrough-Castle, & Arthurs Castle, otherwise called King Arthurs Round Table: near to which places betwixt Emote Bridge & Browham Castle, leveing Browham on the right hand It falls into Emote, \ where it looseth it name / and there looseth its name. \ And which Emot dischargeth it self into Eden 2 or 3 miles below near Hornby /	3. 1. Abby-bridge 2. Bampton grainge bridge 3. Lowther bridge near Browham	5. 1. New-milne 2. Abby-milne 3. Rosgill milne 4. Clifton milne 5. Askam milne	 Corne Corne Corne Corne Corne
On the east side it has but one Branch or Rivilett, viz. Harberwen (or Milbeck), which springs att a place of that name runns by Bampton-Hall, & meeting with Sleddall (or Lowther) near Shap, it there leves its name.		1. Miln-beck milne	 Cloth
Into Sleddall doe runn on the west & southwest:	1. Hoffa-bridge	2.	 Corne

[630] I.e. Crosby Ravensworth.
[631] 'Flumen' = river.

1. Hall-water (alias Haw-water), so call'd from the place near which it springs; ~~that is~~ \ viz. / Thornthwate-Hall. This takes no long course before it enter the river near unto Bampton, and looseth it name.		1. Att Thornthwate one 2. Att Bampton one	Corne
				[I.95]
2. Swindale Beck
3. Heston Beck [blank] which goes into Sleddall Water a little below Askham.

3. Emote or Emont flu.

An other great river in the Bottome of Westm'land is Emote, by some called Emont: q[uery] e montibus, because it comes from amongst the mountaines. The 1ᵗ rise hereof is out of the mere called Brotherwater, {no} which sends forth a streem N'wards by Patterdale-Hall into that other great meere or lake which is called Ulswater, att the low end whereof this said \ river / takes the name of Emote, being as a sluce to that great mote or waterplash. And so it runs along with a very swift and rapid motion by Stockbridge-Hall, Yainworthe-Hall, Mabrough Castle & Browham Castle (~~with severall pleasant seats on Cumberland side~~) \ where it after entertaines the River Lowther / till it ~~come att~~ \ so by / Hornby-Hall, a little Below which it yealds up its name to the noble River Eden, where it enters upon Cumberland.

On the southeast it has running into it these rivul[ets] foll[owing]:

1. Glenkrodden

[I. 97]

1. Glenkrodden, which springs at [Blank] and thence runs Norwest into Ulse-water
2. Glenkrowen, which springs at [blank] and runns eastward, by [blank] towards Ulsewater.
3. [Blank] which springs att [Blank] and runns directly east, by [Blank] into Ulse-water.

Besides these, 2 rivers more are powered in Ulse[water] on Cumberland side viz: Downthwate & Wether-meleck; and Daker beck into the river Emote a little below Dalemane. But they doe not ~~in Westm'land~~, belong to my present designe.

Emote and Ulse[water] are a Boundary twixt Westm'land and Cumberland.

4. Burbeck or Leun Flu.

An other great river which springs allso within the Boundaryes or Breas[632] of the Bottome of Westm'land (yett amongst the mountaines) is Burbeck ~~Water~~, which in the Barony of Kendall obteines the name of Lean ~~this being the greater of its 2 Heads~~ or Loane; whence we have Loansdale & Kirkby Loansdale, so called from the river. This Leun or Loane has an other head in Ravenstondall, which meets with Birbek about a mile or somthing more below the Hause-house, & is a boundary twixt Westm'land and Yorkshire. But because Birbeck is the greater, I rather take the denomination from thence. It springs in Birbeck Fells 2 or 3 miles from Thornthwaite Hall, & runs thence for the most part southward by [blank], Midleton Hall and Kirkby Loansdale, a great markett Towne a mile below which, or thereabouts, It enters Lancashire, & takes the sea att or about the Towne of Lancaster, which is caled so from the River Leun. q. Castrum ad Loane.

[I.99]

Into this River doe runn on the E. & Nor.E.

1. Ortonbeck which spring in or about the Scar, and runns directly southward downe to the Towne,[633] which is a mart. and so on to Tybay, or Teba, where is meets with Teba-beck, & mixeth with it.
2. Tebay beck hath 3 heads: viz. Raisebeck, which runns from N. to South, by Rosgill (or rather Raisgill) Hall; Malerstang Water, which runns from E. to W. by [Blank]; and Langdale-beck, which runns from South toward the Norwest. & these 3 haveing mett alltogether about Tibay, obteine that name but keep not above have a mile,[634] till they loose it in the river.
3. Barborne, forsan Barburne for burne doth signify a water or brooke (Anglo-Saxon). It springs in Yorkshire, and after it has runn through some part of Westm'land it enters the river in Barburne-Parke.

Burton beck allso springs in Yorkeshire and runns through a little corner

[I.101]

[632] 'Brea', variant of brae: a steep, a slope, a hillside. OED. See also, Dictionaries of the Scots Language. Online.
[633] Orton.
[634] As seen. Perhaps Machell meant, 'half a mile'.

of Westm'land into Yorkshire againe, where it enters ~~this river~~ \ Leun / att a place called Burton. Severall other power themselves into it[s] boosome from East to Nor-east, but they are in Yorkshire and therefore not pertinent to my present purpose. On the W. & Nor-w. these 2 runn into it: viz.
1. Brether, which runns downe the dale from W. to East, by [blank] and falls into the river hard by Schales.
2. Barow, which springs att an [blank] and runns eastward by [Blank] till it meet with the river a little above Hause-house.

5. Can or Kent Flu

An other great river belonging to Westm'land, but peculiar to the Barony, as that which has its life and ending therein, is the River Kent. This Mr Camden, upon the 1ᵗ conjecture (being very willing to finde out a place for the old Concangij) would needs have named Can; and so Kendale to be falsely writt in steed of Candale; for Kendale (sayes hee) is nothing else but vallis ad Can. But he, having confuted himselfe \ long agoe / in that Early opinion about the Concongij. I must (tho unwillingly) oppose him so far, as to calle it Kent rather that Can; for Kent is the place from whence it springs; and Kendall I thinke may as well bee be derived from the ~~fountain~~ River Kent as the River Can; and so be writ Kent-dale, or rather Kendall, ut meliorem sonum[635] which is easy and naturall, as well as Can-dale, or Kendale, which is \ more / harsh and ~~far-fetched~~ uncouth. Sed valeat (per me licet) Tanti viri Autoritas, quae omnibus omnium conjecturis præponderare videtur.[636]

[I.103]

This river takes it rise and originall att Kent-meere in the Barony. And runs along southwards, upon a craggy & uneven channell by [Blank] Colnhead-Parke, The Towne and Castle of Kendall, and so hurryes along towards Milthorpe, the onely ~~place~~ \ creek / where the sea touches Westm'land.

On the E. & Nor east it receves into it these riviletts:
1. Spritt (or [Blank])[637] which springs at ot near unto Sleddall in the Baronye, and runns S. East by [blank] till it come into the river near unto Burneshed.
2. Fawsett [blank] which springs in Fawsett Woods, runns S. East by [blank] till it comes just opposite to Selmire Parke, where it meets with ~~Grarigg Beck~~ Gra– {?}
3. Grarig-Beck, which springs in the fells above Grayrigg ~~Hall~~, runns South-west downe the gille by ~~it~~ \ Grarig Hall / till it meet with Fawsett, with which being united; they haist toward the river, and are receivd by it a mile above Kendal.

On the West it receives only one, which is [blank] Chappolon-Water. It springs at [Blank] and running directly East Enters the river over against Colon-Head Parke.

[I.105]

G. Winder or Windermer-Water

{?} The 6th Great River and receptacle of others, is Winder ~~Water~~ or Windermere Water, so calld from Its fountaine: or rather (may be) from the Lake which it makes. The spring head is near Dunbalrase-Stones, where there is a mere or broad plash of water (caled [Blank]) out of which there flows a quick running stream and hastens to Gresmere, where it makes a flood with an Ile in the midst caled [Blank]. Then agane it takes its course by [Blank] till it come in the great water flood (which is part in Westm'land & part in Lancashire) call'd Winender-mere, on the Bankes of which are [Blank] Hall [Blank] Then it contracts itelf againe att Newbridge in Lancashire, and with great strenth haistens to the sea.

This Wind[ermere]-Water receives on the East & Nor-E, 4 [becks]
1.}
2.} [Blank]
3.}
4.}

[I.106]

On the West it receives
1. Great Langdale f[lumen]
2 [Blank]; [both of] which meet together, and runn into Winder a mile above the meere.
There are 2 or 3 more \ which power themselves into it / but all in Lancashire.

7. Winster, is noe Great River

635 'As the better sound'. For Camden's understanding of the name, 'Can', see Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 759C. As Machell noted, Camden decided against naming it after the Congangii: Britannia, 759F.
636 'But the authority of so great a man should prevail (and I accept it) since it seems to have greater weight than all the conjectures of everyone [else].'
637 The river Sprint, springing above Sleddale. Historical forms include Sprate, Sprett, Spritt and Sprent: see Westmorland Place-Names.

Winster is butt a little river receiveing few or noe supplyes. It springs att [Blank] and runns Southwardly by [Blank] Wither-Slack Hall & allso by Meathop Hall, about which place it enters the sea. N[ote] It is a boundary 'twixt Westm'land & Lancashire.
So much for Rivers [in Volume 1]

[II.463]

[Fish and Otters]

There \ are / a multitude of rivers & brookes, the chief whereof is Eden, which Camden calls Nobilis Ituna.[638] It takes its Rise at Hugh Seat* hill ~~in Mallerstangdale~~.[639] (Note this hill in the litle mountanes for the rise of 3 great rivers) and so runs all along downe Westm'land & Cumberland to beyon Carlile, retaneing still its name, and discharges it selfe into the sea ~~at~~ \ near unto / Bownes in Itune Bay \ where it is called the Bay of Eden. / This river is abundantly stored with fish, especially trouts, which by reason of the clearness of the water & cleaness of the lands & channels whereon it runns \ glides, / have a \ more / sweet~~er~~ \ & delicate / ~~& more refined~~ taste ~~than any~~ \ than others elswhere / ~~we have in England beside~~s \ in so much that / an Eden trout ~~being~~ \ is / famous every where.

[II.463]

The trouts hereabouts \ are not / very large, but the greatest that I hear of was taken att Ormside by my father L.M. Esq. {who being a gentleman that loved all sports & recreations} and Brought to Mr Lowsons att Batleburrow att Apleby, where the lenth thereof is notched out upon the table and was 25 inches long.

[II.464]

I have seen 8 score taken att one draught in halfe an hore's space. It abounds also with salmon, ~~&~~ smelts, chevens or chubs, other sorts of fish, \ but ~~such~~ few salmons ~~in it as~~ beyond / ~~there are stop at~~ Arma. Bay'[640] & those that get through are apt to follow the strongest. /& co\habbit/ together; / And tis remarkeable that your trouts and chevens doe not consort, yett you shall have them \ chevens / in great sholes \ abounding / within a stone throw of those very dubs (for so they call ~~your~~ \ their / deeper & calmer places ~~of water~~) where the trouts are taken;[641] \ which, tho they be very full of bones, yett with bakeing & soakeing they become inoffensive.

{Golden Trout}

There is a one sort of trout eminent above \ all / the rest, of a yellow-ish or golden colour, whence they are termed golden trout \ which ~~they~~ cut as red and free as a salmon; / and these seldom [con]sort with the other, but have peculiar ~~places to themselves~~ / dubs of their own, / as that near the mill in Crakenthorpe Lordship calld Teald-Pike-Dubb \ as where it should seeme there have bin Pikes also, tho now I know of none hereabouts but in the forsaken channels of Eden, ~~in the lords~~ at a place calld Ellerkar in the lordship of Crakenthorpe.

[II.463]

{Otters Menald}[642]

In this & the other river are many otters which afford the gentlemen ~~som~~ fine recreation. They hunt

[638] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 760: 'Among these hills that notable river Eden which Ptolemee calleth Ituna, sheweing his head first in Yorkshire, carrying a small and faint streame in the beginning, but afterwards growing by little and bigger, with sundry beckes still augmenting it, seeketh a way North-west.'

[639] An interlineation gives the alternative spelling: 'Hew Seat as on west'.

[640] Armathwaite Bay, on the Eden in Cumberland, lies several miles downstream from Appleby; its weir now forms a salmon leap but it was formerly much higher, as seen in an etching by William Bellers, 'A View of Armathwaite Bay in Cumberland from the Road, to William Milbourne Esq. of Armathwaite Castle' (London, 17 Jan. 1774). See the print at https://www.britishmuseum.org/collection/object/P_1869-0612-528.

[641] Machell's local derivation of dub – a deep & calm pool within a larger body of water – differs slightly from OED and Dictionaries of the Scots Language, Online, both of which offer the meaning, 'small and stagnant pools of water'; 'puddles'. On the river Eden today, a 'pool' has the same meaning as Machell's 'dub', as in 'Channel-Pool' at Armathwaite, where salmon and trout linger between rapid currents.

[642] 'Menald': menal'd, meneld, meneled, menelled, menild, described an animal which was spotted, speckled or dappled. OED.

em to great hounds & spears, or with water spaniels traned up for the purpose.[643] My Dear Father, ~~Sq' Machell of Crakenthorpe~~, being a great hunter of this and all other game, and that delighted in all sorts of activity, kild an otter once, 2 yards long. The skin was menald or spotted like to a leopard, and was so much esteemed of for the rarity \ of it / that he might have sold \ the same / for 10^{li}.

{Held by the Proder}
Miles Graham & Hugh, his son \ who is now liveing, / tooke a live otter by his prodder, or tac[k]le, & swunge him about till the dogs ~~& men came~~ came & killd him at the parke dub.

[Machell's Notes relating to II.464]

[II.463]
*Hewseat is in Westm'land, tho the maps seeme to show the contrary.[644]
{A trout 2 feet & 1inch long}
There are salmon in Leun, Eden & Kent. Plenty of fish, see A. p.7.

[II.466][645]

{Rivers in Westm'land}
The other rivers are Lowther, Blenkarne & Emote, whereof the two latter part Westm'land & Cumberland, those sister countys, ~~which disaggre onely in the map~~.

[The Tees. (a.)]
Besides these are Tees Water head springing out of Cross Fell (~~which has the peculiar)~~ 2 or 3 miles from Howgill Castle North, and has this peculiar, that it tans \ leather / ~~the~~ best of any in England, especially for boots ~~sadle~~ & bridles, whence it is that ~~Band~~ \ Bernard / Castle in Yorkshire, whose walls it washes, is so eminent above other place for these sort of utensels; and for their excellences the King him selfe has had bridells thence as presents. It is a boundary twix Westm'land and Cumberland on the north side west till it comes to a place calld the Caldron Snoute, and there 3 diocesses, 3 parishes & 4 lordships all meet together. The diocese[s] are Durham {Doun-holme}, Carlisle & Chester, and carrying its name to the sea, vid ubi (b.)[646]

[II.465]

[The Tees (b.)]
T.J.[647]
Tees Water head spring in Westm'land near \ Crosfell over topps & commons, all mountanes you may see from hence* / fells & parks Westm'land & Cumberland for 3 miles in K[endal]P[arish] (se the map) till it comes to a little brooke (it discharges it selfe into Tees.) And from that place it parts Westm'land & Bishoprig[648] for 3 miles til it comes to the Cauldron-Snout; and there the countys of Westmorland, ~~the county of~~ Durham & Yorkshire ~~doe all meet~~ \ & the / \ bishopric / Diocesses of Carlisle, Durham and Chester doe all meet ~~att the same place~~ \ together. / And the parishes of Rumacurke, Midleton, Dufton and Bongate doe all meet att the same place. The Lordship of Dufton, the Lordship of Barnard Castle and the Lordship of Midleton doe all meet at the said place, to wit: at the Cauldron Snout, & from thence the Tees parts Yorkshire and Bishoprick till it come into the sea ~~att Tine Mouth Shield below Newcastle~~ at Hartlepool near unto Stockton: per mappam.

---

[643] Otter-hunting locally has a long history, see Lyn Murfin, Popular Leisure in the Lake Counties (Manchester, 1990), 95-98; see also, https://lakelandhuntingmemories.com/LostOtterhoundsNew.html.
[644] For the deficiencies of 17th-century maps, see Blake Tyson, 'John Adams's Cartographic Correspondence to Sir Daniel Fleming of Rydal Hall, Cumbria. 1676-1687', Royal Geographical Society Journal, 151, March 1985.
[645] Also numbered p.19.
[646] II.465 and II.466 are facing pages. On II.465 Machell indicated text (using the letter b.) belonging to a passage on II.466.
[647] Thomas Jackson senior, of Dufton. As one of Machell's trusted informants, his notes and initials appear frequently in the passages below.
[648] Bishoprick: diocese of Durham.

[Machell's Notes: II.465]
*{Over Skidday Pike far into Scotland &c. To Rose […] Toppin &c.[649] and yet L. Robinson sayes there is a spring ~~in the very~~ \ near the / top of it would drive a miln in Cumberland.}

[II.466]

[Tine Bogg]
There is a spring also, about a bow-shott from Tees Water head \ but not in Westm'land, / call'd the Tine Bogg, whence the River Tine, which is a boundary twixt Bishoprigg & Northumberland, & it beares its name from hence to the sea att Tinmouth \ Shields below / by Newcastle.

{Leun Flu}
An other river belonging to this county which takes its rise also ~~from the Bottom of~~ \ Barony ~~or Bot~~ of Westm'land / is Loyn or Leun, which ~~gives~~ takes its rise in Birbeck Fells {?} & thence runs Southw. into the Barony, where it gives name to the dale called Loansdale & Kirkby Loansdale, which stands upon it ~~so doth~~ \ & to / Lancaster also, ~~about~~ \ near to / which place~~s~~ it taketh the sea. This has salmon in as far as Tybea[650] in Orton parish.

{Kent}
An other river more proper & peculiar to the Barrony as that which hath its original there, is Kent, whence Kent-dale suie Kendal. This river Camden calls Can. And thereupon he would have ~~the would have~~ the place Candale or Kandale.[651] ~~But the thing is not materiall~~. It derives its name from Kentmere, of which hereafter*, and has 2 smale rivers which come into it ~~about~~ a mile above Kendall, viz Mint and Spritt. ~~And~~ In the river of Spritt there is a very great waterfall, which is call'd Garnett-Waterfall, by which the people doe ~~commonly take notice~~ \ prognosticate / (when as the sound thereof is h[e]ard downwards, i.e. towards Kendall, that it will be faire weather. And in Kent \ about 3 miles / beneath Kendall ~~about~~ [blank] ~~miles~~, there is another called The Force, where they take salmon

Machell's Notes: II.466]
*Se if it sprink there, & if that be in the Barony.

[II.468][652]
in the aer, & som shows them flying – T. Will. Clerke.[653] And when the noyse of this ~~the force~~ is heard up wards more loud than ordnary, they expect very fowle & rany weather. This River Kent retaines its name from the place whereof it springs \ se my Itinerary / till it falls into the sea ~~i.e. about~~ \ which is below / Millthrop, the only hav[e]n that is in Westm'land.

Brookes

{Of the Becks in W.}
Now beside these great rivers there are many brooks which the natives ab antique[654] doe still call [649] Part of this phrase is unclear. Machell was perhaps referring to Roseberry Topping, a landmark in the Tees Valley in North Yorkshire.

[650] Tebay.
[651] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 759: 'The more Southerly part of this shire, contained in a narrow roome betweene the river Lone and Winander mere, is reputedly fruitfull enough in the vallies, although it can shew many felles, with rough and stony rocks, lying ever bare without grasse: and is all tearmed by one name, The Barony of Kendale and Candale, that is, the dale by Can: for it took the name of the river Can, which running rough upon stones, cutteth through it.'
[652] Also numbered p.22.
[653] The informant was 'T. Will.' If by 'clerke' Machell meant a clerk in holy orders, perhaps this informant was Thomas Wilson, schoolmaster, reader and curate in Brough and Warcop in 1667 and 1681, ordained at Carlisle in 1686. CCED. However, Wilson was from the barony of Westmorland, not Kendal. After the Reformation, the title, 'clerk' was often applied to laymen who performed offices in cathedrals, churches, or chapels. OED.
[654] 'From of old'.

burnes \ & becks, / ~~&~~ i.e. riviletts which together with the great ones are generally calld becks: as Milburne, which comes off the fell downe by Howgill. And the beckes usuall[y] have there names from the places they run through, & change their names frequently att every little village they goe by.[655] So Coupland or Ketland Beck at Hillton is called Hilton Beck; so Kirkby Thore Beck att Long Mertin[656] has the name of Mertinbeck. I must therefore call them by some one name, immitting the rest since there primitive names are washed out of rememberance ~~But if I were sure where there fountains were I would goe no further to baptise them anew~~ beside other Rivillets allmost att every Towne which convey themselves into the greater, as vaines in a man's body.

Add here the Cal[endar] Table.

Becks or Rivers Minors

[Becks]	[Rivers (flumen) Minor]	[Forces]
Kirkbythore B[eck]	Troutbeck flu	Morland B. and
Grange Beck	Brough B. flu	force
Murton B.}	Coupland B. flu	b. p 55![657]
Helton B.} the head I sup[pose] of Coupland	Soulby B. flu
Brough B.	Langdale flu
Ormside B.	Livennet flu
Colby	Sleddall flu
	Swin~~dal~~ flu

[II.500]

[Machell's further notes on Rivers]

{Eden 1.+Below.[658] 2. Helbeck. 3. Helton b. 4. Trout b. 5. Dufton b. 6. ~~Milburne~~; ~~Mul~~ b. 7. Howgil b. 8. Blenkern.
On the east:
Mallerstang. Soulby b. Crosby b. Colby b. Ashby. Liven flu. Shap for[ce]. Wetsled. Flu.
On the West:
Burbeck obteines in the barrony the name o Leun? 1. Orton b. 2. Raise b. 3. [Blank]. 4. Dent.
on the E.
5. Skales. 6. Brother. 7. Barow.
On the west.
Kent. 1. Spur flu. 2. Fawcet b. 3. Graing[e] b. On the E.
4. Chappellon. 4. Winster on the W.
0 name in Camden}[659]

[Eden]

Eden spring at Huseat, Morvil Hil, runes downe by Pendraggon Castle, Wharton Hall, Hartley Castle, Musgrave, \ Kirkby Stephen, / Warcop Hall, Apleby & Castle, Colby Tower \ Buly Castle / Crakenthorp Hall, Kirkby Thure, Temple Sowerby, Hornby Hall.
In Westm'land into it run:
On its East side:[660]

[655] MS: '& ~~not seldome~~ change \ their names frequently / ~~name~~ att every \ little / village ~~where~~ they goe by a ~~call~~.'
[656] Long Marton.
[657] Machell's note refers to II.500, also numbered p.55.
[658] The Below or Belowe = the River Belah, which flows into the Eden. See Smith, Place-Names 1, 3.
[659] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 760: '… this region, which westward is bounded with the river Winster, and the spacious Lake Winandermere …'
[660] MS: 'In Westm'land ~~Kirkby Steph~~ into it run ~~from the~~ \ on its / E. side.'

1. Belowe, over which 1 bridge at Brugh Sowerby. Spring in Stanemore; discharge att Little Musgrave.
2. Helbeck Spring in Helbeck Fell; discharge att Great Musgrave. Allso it runs by Brough.
3. Helton beck, which take Eden. Twix Ormside & Apleby tis cald Coupland beck.
4. is Morton, calld Trout beck. Spring in the fells & com down twixt Meal Fell and the Pike; runs (cont.) by Flakeb[ridge] Wood.
5. So downe to Dufton Wood where it meet with Dufton beck. Soe they goe along by Merton[661] & Kirkbythet[662] where they take the river.
6. is Milburne or Milbeck, which comes from about X fell, goes along by Howgil Castel & Newbigin, where it meets with Benkerne, which runns into Eden att Eden Brigg.

On the West

{Parish of Ravenstonedale} 1[t] ~~Mallerstang~~ \ Ravenstond. / beck called Soulby beck springs in the Forrest \ of Mallerstang / (puto) and endes in Eden at Little Musgrave {p[arish] Ravingst.} about which place 4 rivers meet.

Viz.

Eden below Mallerstang & Helbeck.

1. Crosby beck begins at Crosby Gar[rett], endes at Orm[side] Mag[na].
2. Asby / Colby beck begins about Great Asby & enters Eden at Colby.
3. Livennant[663] begins near Orton at […][664] Parke and meets with Shap Water about Cleburne.
4. Shap Water, which has 2 heads: at Shap \ Midle rig Wel / & ~~Regill~~ Hardendale. It goes by Morland, Melkin & Cleborn, meets with Livennet & enters Eden a ~~little short of Kirkby Thr~~ about Temple Sowerby.

[Burbeck]

The next great river is Burbeck, which obteines in the Barrony the name of Leun. It springs in Birbeck Fells {?}, and enters the sea near the towne of Lancaster, tho some will, as Camden, have Leun to spring in Mallerstang Forrest & meet with Birbeck about a mile below the Hawse House.[665] Into it doe run on the E.

1. Orton beck. ~~Skales beck~~
2. Raisbeck
3. \ E. / Langdale beck with an other betwixt them & enter the river at ~~Tibah~~ \ Dent. / It has no more branches on the East excepting Yorkshire for from hence[666] to Midleton. It is a Bound on east S.W.
4. Ent[ers] on E[ast], Dent.

On the W.

5. Skales
6. Bretherdale & Bar\ow. /

[Kent]

The 3d is Kent. It springes at Kentmere & enters the sea about Milthorp. It has ther:

1. the river Spur\ or t / springing above Sled.[667]
2. Fawcet Wood beck.
3. Graing beck spring in Whinfell Hill.

---

[661] Long Marton.
[662] Written as seen.
[663] The river Lyvennet.
[664] This word is unclear.
[665] Machell's source was probably Camden's map of Westmorland, see Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 758-59.
[666] Illegible interlineation.
[667] The river Sprint.

4. & after a while meeting with Fawcet beck they discharge themselves into Kent a mile above Kendal.

[II.501]

On the West 2.

1. Chapollon.
2. Winster flu.

{Draw a map but 1ᵗ comp[lete] names of places.}

[Lowther]

The 4. is Lowther, which springs at \ or about / Thornthwaite: enquire of Mr Mil. if there be a beck from Herberwen ~~or Wither Slack or Barton~~ which comes into Lowther there E[ast].[668] There is one head of Lowther called Sled \ from Wetsled[dale], / another from Thornthwaite, cald Hawater i.e. Hall. [Query] Enquire if neither of these be the same which is called Swindale flu ~~or Sleddall flu~~.
[Answer] No.
On the west, Hel\t/on Beck. It comes into Emot near B[rougham] Castle, where it loses its name in the other, an the other in Eden near Hornby Hall.

[Emote]

5. The next is Emote, which is ~~but~~ as a flue to that great mere cald Ulsewater, into rest [of] which there runs 1. Martendale beck; 2. Patterdale beck ~~&~~ Brother water which is the head of both Usl[water] & Emote.
On the west: Glenkerden & Glenewen rivers in Westm'land.
Downthwaite beck, Watermelak & Daker beck in Cumberland.
Emot.

1. Martindale beck
2. Patterdale
3. Glenkren } in Westm'land
4. Glenkwen }

5. Downthwaite beck }
6. Watermelak } Cumberland
7. Daker in }

[Windermere]

The 6. is Winendermere, the head of which is near Dunbalrase Stones, where it [is] a \ broad / plash of water, out of which there was a streeme downe to Gresmire, which mere continues hence to Langrig, where there is an Ile in the \ Windermere. / Thence agane it continues in a stre[am] to the great flue which is part in West[morland] part in Lancashire, & goes into the sea about Logbarrow. It has branch into it N.E. 4: Gresmere beck {?} Fell beck, Ambleside beck & to Troutbeck Hill flu. / On the west it has in West, Great Langdale & Litle Langdale which meet together[669] & run along into Wind[ermere] a little ~~below~~ behinde Ambleside beck. Quo m[odo] vocatur?[670]
Branches into Windermere

1. Greshmere beck }
2. Fel-beck } N. Est
3. Ambleside beck }
4. W. Troutbeck Hill flu }

[668] Dr John Mill, principal of St Edmund Hall, Oxford, born in 1644/5 in Hardendale in Shap Parish, son of Thomas Mill, a weaver. When the family moved to High Knipe, Bampton, Mill was educated at Bampton School. See S. Handley, 'Mill, John (1644/5-1707), Church of England clergyman and college head'. ODNB. For more on John Mill, see Part 1, Ch.4, Bampton, I.369-I.370B; see also Part 3, Chs 2. and 3.' This reference to 'Mr Mil' would seem to suggest that one of Machell's informants might have been a relative of Dr Mill.
[669] Some words here have perished.
[670] 'How' / 'In what manner?'

5. Great}
6. Little} Langdale becks

[II.468]

[Meres]

{Of the Meres in the Barony of W.}
{Brother Water, Ulfswater, Aweswater or Hawsewater i.e. the Halls water: aqua ad Aulam phlumens}
There are 3 standing meres ~~of ponds~~ belonging to the Bottom of Westm'land. Viz 1. Brother-Water, about a mile long & halfe a mile in bredth. 2. Ullwater about 7 miles in lenth and one in bredth. Both of these are in the head of the River Emote, which ~~should rather~~ may peradventure be derived as well from the mote or mere whence it descends as è montibus,[671] for tis also usually called Emote. The 3[d] is Ause \ or Hawse Water near Thornthwaite Hall in Bampton Parish (q. ubis) * 2 miles at least in lenth & 1mile bredth.

[Machell's Notes: II.467 & 468]

Method
Nec alia mihi comodior videtur ratio hanc partem, describendi quam si Itunæ Loderi Emoti W Loni fluenta ~~cum ceteris~~ persequar quae poti[o]ra sint flumina. Et locis potionibus affundantur.[672] See A. p. 14.
*Query: Where Haswater [673]
(His Answer:) Ha[we]s / springes out of the top of Kidsey Pike on the west side thereof. This mountain is above ½ mile in hight & picked on the top, whence tis called (as other hills of that forme) a pike. There is also a stone pike on the very top of it, and out of the midle of the stone isues out a little spring, wonderfull to see, for there stands not much above a q[uar]t of water in the top of the stone, & tis no greater, winter nor sommer. It descend by little grevets[674] in the stone downe the hill into Haswater. There are many brookes {but no spring save onely this, which is a memorable one.}
[II.468]
{Memorandum: query Eales.}

[II.470]

1. {Of meres in the Barony of Kendal}
   In the Barony are 4 meres or standing waters, viz.
   Windermere, in lenth 7 miles or ~~thereabouts~~ \ or rather xi / and about a \ 2 / mile broad; which water hath bin of late frozen over so strongly that the people hereabouts have led timber over it with draughts consisting of 8 beasts a piece.[675] In this as in the other are store of chars, scarce in any country except these northern one of England beside.
2. Kentmere Water, whence the river Kent & Kentdale had their names, in which is very great store of trouts. \ Yet that has 2 feeders. /
3. Langdale Water.
4. Greshmere Water in [both of] which also is plenty of fish.

[II.469]

[Tarns]

Lacus diffusiones nostra lingua Tarns vocamus. Camden.[676]
(a.) To the meres, ponds and standing waters may be referred those water plashes which commonly lay upon their mores and are called tarnes*, of which there are several, as:
Randale Tarne
Bongate Tarne
Crackenthorpe Tarne
Martin Tarne

[671] 'Out of the mountains.' The etymology of the name Eamont is now thought to be as follows: 'Originally the place was called æt Ea motum, 'at the river-conflu-ences'; ēa-mōt was replaced by á-mót. The confluence is that of the Lowther and the Eamont'. See Westmorland Place-Names.
[672] 'Nor does any method of describing this part seem to me to be more convenient than if I follow the streams flowing from Eden, Eamont and Lune, which are drunk. And in places they flow with drinking water.'
[673] Query to Machell's informant (on the location of Haweswater), with the answer.
[674] Trenches. In Old English, this word can appear as grafet(t) and explained as 'trench'. OED.
[675] This is one of several references to very cold weather at this time, see Part 2, Ch.9, Windermere, II.340.
[676] 'The overflow of a lake in our own language we call Tarns.'

Newmill Tarne
Winter Tarne?
Little Water Tarne? &
Lanton Tarne in which there are trouts, eeles and tenches.
But most of these either have noe fish, or are not taken withal, for fish in this country are not much regarded. Howbeit they are stored with wild foole[677] and geese which breed in this country at the season of the year.[678]

Gold Arke[679]
Concerneing Lancton Tarne, which I name last, there goe a strange fab[ulous][680] story of a golden Arke,[681] which was seen therein \ on a sun-shiny day, / and one man formerly attempted to draw it out with a yoake of oxon called Sprinke and Sparke.[682] But when he had almost got it out, instead of returneing \ thankes to / God ~~thankes he began to applaud his oxon in this rime~~ he presumptuously said:

> Up wêe'l Sprinke, and draw weel Sparke.
> Whether God will or not, wee'l ha' this gold Arke.

With that, his tackle broke \ all in pieces / ~~this~~ [and] the Gold Ark ~~& it retreated back againe in to the tarne~~ \ returned to its place, which som are so credu as to believe, & therefore goe on sun-shine dayes to try if they can see \ or discern / it. But they may looke long †.[683]

[Machell's Notes: II.469]

*(quare?)
†{q.} Sed facessant hujus modi fabulæ: x nolumus fabulæ licentia veritatem aliarum rerum vulnerare.[684] 295. Camden.

[II.501]

In all, 52 rivers.
In all, 7 meres. Tarnes severall; the greatest is Langton?

[II.470][685]

[Fish]
Hic piscium est tanta copia et præcipue soporis optimi Truttane, ut sit advenis miraculo, Indig[u]is pro corum admiration, Ludibrio nec minor carnis, utilitas, ut pro uno [blank] 10 homines non solum famem pellant sed ad satietatem se expleant. 227. [686]

---

[677] Fowl.
[678] MS: 'But most of these either have noe fish, or are not ~~sought after~~ \ taken withal / for fish in this country [and] are ~~little~~ \ not much / regarded. Howbeit they are ~~very~~ stored with (2) geese and (1) wild foole ~~also~~…'
[679] MS.I.341 contains a shorter passage on the 'golden arke': not transcribed.
[680] Or 'fable'.
[681] In northern dialect an 'Ark' was a large wooden bin or hutch for storing meal, bread, fruit, etc. OED.
[682] Oxen were usually yoked in pairs and often given paired names. In southern England the near-side (left) ox of a pair was called by a single-syllable name and the off-side (right) ox by a longer one (for example: Lark and Linnet, Turk and Tiger). See Bob Copper, A Song for Every Season: A Hundred Years of a Sussex Farming Family (London, 1971), 95-100. See also the will of William Sisson of Waterside, Barton, 1592: CAC(C), PROB /1592/WINVX, 76: 'I give unto my sone Percivell two oxan one called Burgess another Spinke … and a great ark with all my husbandry geare…' The names of Machell's oxen do not appear to have quite conformed to this tradition, but there are similarities.
[683] Another version appears on the same page of the MS.
[684] 'But stories of this kind are fictions; we do not wish to injure the truth of other matters with the liberties taken by a story.'
[685] Also numbered p.23.
[686] Machell's handwriting is unclear, but the Latin appears to read: 'Here is so great an abundance of fish, and especially trout of excellent flavour, that the bounty of the flesh, which is almost ridiculous, is like a miracle to {! Several sortes of troutes (a.) & fish}

In all of these are several sortes & great store of fish, as chars, skellyes,[687] brass trouts. Gray? Troutes & several others. In Elleker also near Kirkby thore in Crakenthorpe Lordship is a pond left by water turning its course, wherein are great stores of pikes, which fish is very rather in other parts the country, the waters there aboutes being not still and mody[688] enough for such sort of fish, but some now & then \ escape / out of this into the River Eden, tho very rarely.
Finally, all the rivers in Westm'land have great store of severall sorts of fishes: as salmon, pikes, chevens, trouts and others. And in Ullswater are troutes of an incredible bigness equivalent to salmons, which are called by the name of Gray Troutes: vid. pl. p. 55.

[I.106]

[J.] Of Highwayes[689]

{Roman Way from Bowes to Browham Castle \ and where thence; / Apleby Way – to Kendal from Apleby Maden Way; Kendall Way from Kendal to Penrith in the prospect and remarkeable things therein.}

[Notes on the Roman Way 1.]
The chiefest highway in this County is that great & fair casway by some called the Street, by others the Romain Way, in evidences since the Conquest Via Regia, which comes through the Roman Campe on the top of Staine [blank][690] \ a quarter of a mile distance from the castle / through Maden Castle & Underbrough, all in the parish of Brough. Thence by Brough Hill where a great fair is kept once every yere, lieveing Helbeck Hall (an old seat of the Helbecks & Blekinsopps, now of Arthur Scaife) on the right hand. Soe on towards Apleby by Warcop Hall (a seat of the Warkops, now of Mr Brathwate; Warcop Tower, now of Mr Fairer; & Warcop Castle, formerly of the Earles of Westm'land, but now demolished & turned into a Tenement.)
In the parish of Warcop all on the left hand soe it passeth \ through the forest of Kitland / by Sandford, and ancient seat of the Sandfords, but now quite demolished. On the left & opposite to that close by the Roman Way on the left hand allso, are 2 or 3 large Berryes or Tumuli, cast up there upon some great defeat, and a little of that on the right hand a \ large / Rotundo with round stones pitched much upon an equal distance. \ Here an Horse race &c. /
Then att Coupmanbeck bridge, where [blank] of Scotts was slane by one Coupman, & wher Clem Armestrong of Appleby with his ~~warfaring~~ \ quarter / staff beat 6 Scotts with their sword tho with the loss of his crowne.[691] Before you come att this bridge near the water side are the ruins of a large round castle the wall 10 yards thicke of lime and stone, & on the left an Hospital long since decayed. When you are over this bridge, the righthand way carryes you into Appleby & mettes the Romane Way near the gallows there of in, goe through St Nicollas upon Crakanthorpe More at Laine Head: But the Romain Way goe stright forward from the brid[ge] lieveing Appleby, the Castle whereof is fair in your view close on the left hand, Murton Hall.

[I.109]

[Notes on the Roman Way 2.]
The Romane Way which leads through this Countrey is commonly called by The Street quia lapidibus servitur[692] and the Hee-Street, i.e. The Hight \ Street / ~~it~~ from it[s] eminence, being somewhat raised above the level here in this Countrey (but much higher elsewher) and pitched with stones; it is allso called by some, the Geate, and it I belive* is the same which leadeth to London through ~~the place calld~~ Higate, which takes name from hence. So that I looke upon this as a Way of the greatest visitors, as needy as they are amazed, so that for one catch [?] 10 men not only may stave off hunger but may fill themselves to the point of satiety.'

[687] The freshwater herring.
[688] Muddy.
[689] I.106 contains a scored-through draft on highways, completed elsewhere: see I.111-12.
[690] Stanemore. For a description of the Roman Way, see N&B1, 8.
[691] Repeated below, I.113.
[692] 'Because it is served [i.e. paved] with stones.'

eminence from whence all others may seeme to have borrowed the names of High-Ways \ (calld roads allsoe) by which is now signified Common Passages. / This being so they are calld roades, whether from the rideing, which is roade in the preterperfect tense: or from rod or rood – a measure of 16 feet ½ {? of attorneys and by measure} \ & sometimes more / which perhaps might be esteemed a sufficient breadth for an High[way] as now 8 yards is appointed by statute (14. Car. 2. C.6), [1662-1663], which is 24 foote. See Surveyors Dial[ogue][693] About the rod {?}Which is the statutable breadth of a r., I shal not determin.

But now by use it hath so obtained, that a Bridleway is contra distinct from that of a road & signifyes a private way for a single horse &c. and not for Droves, Cartes or Carriages; & needs be no broader than a foot path, whereas a road must be sufficient for Carts & Carriages ~~passing~~ \ to pass & repas one / by one another. Query? in Blou[n]t's Law Dictionary.[694] And Haveing observd this of Highwayes, I should proceed to a more particular account concerneing them in the County of Westm'land of which there are many, but 3 more remarkable Sc. [blank][695]

[Machell's Notes: I.108, 110, 110A] [696]

Highgate village in Midlesex, so named from a kind of toll gate enterd there in early times – see Thorpe's Survey of London & its Environs.[697]

*(de hoc tamen queare)[698]

[I.110-I.110A]

{N.B.} This relation of Highways may doe well in Oglebye's Notes;[699] but in these the relation of the Gentlemen's houses as to their former owners may be omitted here becase it in som measure forestalles the particular relation.

{Note.} Bowes comes best to be treated on in the Limits; Because not absolutely determined whether in Westm'land or noe? This Bowes, (in Antonine's Itinerarie)[700] is called Lavatrae or Levatrae (both by the account of distance & \ site thereof by the / High Street of the Romans), the antiquitie whereof is allso confirmed by a large stone found in the Church somtimes used for an Aultar, with an Inscription upon it, in Honorem Hadriani Imperatoris. See Camden, Richmondshire.[701] N[ote] The Best for Bows is Camden upon the place.[702] And is allso remarkable for this, that the first Cohort of the Thracians lay here in garison whilst Virius Lupus lived as lieuetennant and proprietor of Briton under the Emperour Severus, as appear by this inscription.[703]

---

693 John Norden, The Surveyor's Dialogue (London, 1607).

694 Thomas Blount (1618-1679), Nomo-Lexikon, A Law-Dictionary and Glossary: Interpreting Such difficult and Obscure Words and Terms, as are Found either in Our Common Or Statute, Ancient Or Modern, Laws. With References to the Several Statutes, Records, Registers, Charters, Ancient Deeds, Manuscripts, and Law-books, Wherein the Words and Terms are Used (London, 1670).

695 Continued on I.111, below.

696 The contents of I.110 and 110A comprise memoranda relating to Bowes and Stanemore, Roman antiquities on the Yorkshire border, and the Maiden Way.

697 This comment is in a hand resembling William Nicolson's. John Thorpe (1565-1655) was an architect who designed houses in and near Highgate: https://www.british-history.ac.uk/vch/middx/vol6/pp122-135. His book of plans c.1603 may be found in Sir John Soane's Museum: See John Summerson (ed.) 'The Book of Architecture of John Thorpe in Sir John Soane's Museum', The Walpole Society, Vol. XL (1964-66), 106. John Stow's more famous A Survey of London was published in 1603.

698 'However, check this.'

699 John Ogilby (1600-1676), see I.42, above.

700 The Antonine Itinerary (Itinerarium Antonini Augusti – 'The Itinerary of the Emperor Antoninus') is a famous Itinerarium, a register of the stations and distances along various roads. Seemingly based on official documents, possibly from a survey carried out under Augustus, it describes the roads of the Roman Empire.

701 Here, Machell has drawn a small sketch of the stone. Camden gives the inscription: 'IMP. CÆSARI DIVI TRAIANI PARTHICI. Max. filio / DIVI NERVÆ NEPOTI TRAIANO. Hadria/ NO AUG. PONT. MAXIM – / COS. I. – P. P. COH. IIII. F. – / 10. SEV', see Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 731E.

702 See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 731-32.

703 Here, Machell has drawn another small sketch of an altar. Camden gives the inscription:' DAE. i. FORTUNÆ / VIRIUS LUPUS / LEG. AUG. PR. PR. / BALINEUM VI / IGNIS EXUST- /UM. COH. I. THR- / ACUM REST- / ITUIT. CURANTE / VAL. FRON- / TONE PRÆF---- / EQ. ALÆ VETTO', Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 732B.

And here I thinke fitt to begin to trace \ the Great Roman Way / because that ~~Westmorland~~ \ Bowes Castle / notwithstanding the vulgar estimate to its relation of the Bounds of Westm'land begining att Rere Cross, has a relation to this County. For Mr Dugdall in his Baronagium coates[704] out of a Record in King Johns time, that Bowes Castle in Westmorland was given in custody to Robert de Veteripont, Anno ejus [blank]. Hence therefor it leads you to a place called Spittle (formerly an Hospitall belonging to the [blank]) as I have bin informed, but now a house of refreshment for passengers; and a little way hence, on the very topp of Stane More, it carryes you directly th\rough / the great Romane Camp in the rear of which, stands Rear Cross upon the very Cassway. & soe ~~over~~, through a little \ square / fort of Romane extraction called Maden Castle to Under Brough.[705] ad Rere †: pag. 582. Here the King Westmer Slow the King Rothinger: Usher's Antiq. Ecclesiæ Britanniæ penes Mr Walker, Dublin 1639.[706] Burton Upon Antoninus for the limits.[707]

[I.111]

Of Highwayes in Westm'land and things remarkable in them

The chiefe high-wayes that I remember in this County are:
1. The Romain-Way \ from Bowes to Browham /[708]
2. Maiden-Way \ from Kirkbythore to Newc[astle]
3. Appleby-Way \ to Kendal /
4. Kendal Way \ from Kendal to Penrith / which 4 wayes do coast in a manner the whole County of Westm'land[709]

Via \ Regia / Romana Sive strata

1. The Romain-Way is part of [blank] Street and fairer to be seen in this Country than any \ other / that \ I finde /of in England beside: for any stranger may travil by it through the Bottome of Westm'land without guide or direction. It continues very conspicuous from beyond Doncaster in Yorkshire till you come opposite to Carlile in Cumberland \ as I have observed / which it leves on the left hand att some miles distance, & thence (as I thinke) takes into Scotland. It is called by the inhabitant of this County The Street, and in ancient evidences since the Conquest, Via Regia, or the King's High way. It comes into Westm'land {from Bowes Castle} over the great mountaine Staine More, & strikes directly forward, through the Bottom ~~of Westm'land~~ \ thereof, which is the vail Country / from E. to west towards Penrith \ & Carlile / in Cumberland, but leaves this County / ~~upon som more~~ {att Browham Castle where it passing Emote it sinkes into Cumberland. Mr Dugdale in his visitation makes it to goe by Lowther Bridge: query.} ~~It goes through the great Roman Camp, which is cast up upon the very topp thereof, and soe goes along through Maden Castle and~~ Under Brough (a market Towne formerly), lieveing \ Brough Church & / Brough Castle (one of the chief seats of the \ Lords of Westm'land) att a quarter of a miles distance on the left hand; and Helbeck Hall (which is under the craggy mountaines) formerly the seat of a family of that \ name / and a long time after of the Blenkinsops, but now lately purchased by one Arthur Scaife) {Sold to Arthur Scaife, 1675} Just opposite to the Castle, halfe a mile distant on the right hand. Soe it goes on directly towards Appleby ~~through Kirkland Forrest (forsan pro Kirk land~~ by Warcop Hall (formerly a seat of the Warcops, now of Mr Brathwate), Warcop Tower (an other seat of the same family, but now Mr Fairer), & Warcop Castle, formerly of the Nevills Earles of Westm'land but now demolished & turned into a Tenement;[710] \ & Warcop Church / all these in Warcoop, which is on the left hand a quarter distant: \ and through which there is a roade frequently {made use of which metts with this again at the end of Sandford Field opposite to Sandford, wher was formerly a Hall, the seat &c. of[f] the ride up into the way.} & soe it goes a long through Kitland Forrest, leiveing Sandford Hall, the ancient seat of the Sandfords (but now quite demolished) on the left hand att about the same distance: & directly opposite to that 2 or 3 Tumuli or Berryes trenched about in memory of some slaughter committed [704] 'Quotes'.

[705] Machell's description of Maiden Castle is quoted in N&B1, 8.
[706] Archbishop James Ussher (1581-1656) Britannicarum ecclesiarum antiquitates (The Antiquities of the British Churches) (1639), the most substantial history of Christianity in Britain to that date. N&B1.1, cites p. 303 of this volume on the same subject.
[707] William Burton, Commentary on Antoninus, his Itinerary (1658).
[708] Compare Machell's description of the Roman Way with N&B1, 8.
[709] N&B1, 8, lists 8 good turnpike roads in the county in 1777.
[710] I.e. land or real property, held of another by any tenure; a holding. OED.

there,[711] close by the way on the left hand allso \ and a little off that on the right hand is a large {rotundo or ring with round stones upon it, pitched much upon an equall distance.} Soe it passeth allong the moore called Sandford-More, where a \ free / plate is runn for every Thorsday

[Machell's Notes: I.111 & 112]

{See Burton On Antoninus}
White Burwins

[I.113]

before Whitsuntide att the sole cost and charges of the Major of Appleby \ then being, who / delivers ~~by~~ \ it / him selfe, to him that wins ~~it~~ upon the Towne Hall staires,[712] lieveing an old Hall ~~on the other side Sandford More~~, but called by the name of Newhall (a seat of the Warcops & where some of that name do yett reside) on the left hand beyond Sandford mire. Then it Brings you to Coupman Beck bridge,[713] where they say a King of the Scotts was slaine by one Coupman, whence it had that name; and ~~near to that place on the right hand~~ & where Clem Armstrong of Appleby did of late yeres defend the passage with his quarter staff against 6 armed Scotts, tho with the loss of \ a piece of / his crowne which one of them cutt of by an unlucky blow.

{de voc vide in Warcop or Bongate parish[714]

Clem. Armstrong
|
George Armstrong a Butcher
|
John Armstrong a Butcher, now liveing 1675.}

Before you \ come at / this bridge \ near the water side, / are the ruines of a large, round castle, the walls whereof (if the rubbige have not contributed thereto) are 10 of my passes[715] \ in bredth /: And (on the lefthand if I mistake not) an Hospitall, butt long since demolished.[716] Att this bridge a way branched out (since Appleby grew less & contracted it selfe) on the left hand, levein[g] Ormside Hall (a seat formerly of the Or[m]sides), after of the Burtons then of the Pickerings & now of Hiltons of Burton & Hilton; on the left hand beyond the river Eden, but within view both of this and the Romain Way, which it meetes with againe near Appleby Gallows if you Goe by Crakenthorpe (the ancient seat of the Machells, formerly called Ma Catuli ~~In the family it has ever~~ \ ~~for finde ever it belonged to any other family ther~~ / ~~ever contented~~, for the Crakenthorpes descended from them many hundreds of yeeres since, who have continued there since the Conquest {without interuption: ut è cartis putet.}[717] Then it meates near Kirkbythore in the Lordship of Crakanthorpe. But the Roman Way it selfe runns [711] Berryes = barrows. Machell thought that the tumuli marked 'some great defeat'; see I.106.

[712] See I.106 for another reference to this horse race.
[713] Coupland Beck. An historical form of this name is, 'Coup(e)manebec', see Westmorland Place-Names; see also n.892, below.
[714] 'For the name, see', Part 1, Ch.23, Warcop, and Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby: Bongate.
[715] Passes: paces; rate of stepping. OED.
[716] See MSI.347: 'In a dead with boundary sans date wherein Thomas de Hellerton gives his halfe of the manner of Helton Bacon to his cosan Andre de Hellerton … Copland Beck is called Copmanbeck, where the same boundary testifies there was an Hospitale deinde: in Creskeld et sic descendit usque hospitalem apud Cupmanbeck.' See also, W.G. Wiseman, 'The Medieval Hospitals of Cumbria', CW2, 87 (1987), 83-100, at 89. 'There would appear to have been a small hospital, possibly a hospice for travellers using the route over Stainmoor, near to Coupland Bridge, two miles south-east of Appleby. Little is known of this house, but it is thought to have been founded by the Veteriponte family. When Robert de Veteriponte died in 1261 he left two infant daughters, Isabel and Idonea. When they came of age Isabel married Roger de Clifford and Idonea married Roger de Leyburne and at the Partition of Fees of Westmorland, made at Great Asby church in 1286, that portion allotted to Isabel included the advowson of the hospital of Coupmanbeck. In a slightly later gift, c.1290, the hospital is referred to in boundary details and would appear to have been situated at the confluence of Coupmanbeck and Creskeldbeck, but no trace can be found today.'
[717] 'As is plain from the family deeds.'

directly forward \ from the said Bridge, close / by Bongate Tarne, & soe on by Appleby on the left hand, haveing 3 or 4 ways out of it into the Towne. It gives then upon ~~Gallow Hill~~ a very fair view \ of the 2 churches in Appleby, and there upon the Hill / of Appleby Castle ~~there~~, the chiefe seat of the Lords of Westmorland & Barons of Appleby & Beauly Castle \ the seat of the Bishop of Carlile and Howgill Castle / {a seat of the Sandfords olim Lanc. / which ~~you have in view~~ is so finely situated that you have it in view all along in a manner.}
So on close by the Gallows till you come at a large \ round / fort with deep trenches & out works on the right hand allmost opposite to Crakanthorp Hall & Beauly Castle, or rather to St Giles his chapple, which belongs to Crakanthorpe & Colby Tower \ on the other side Eden / a seat of the Colbyes, but now of the Warcops; \ and on the right is Brampton Hall, built by [Blank]. / Soe on to Kirkbythore, where a little before you enter the Lane, it leads you close by a Roman Camp in the Lordship of Crackenthorp, one of the fairest & largest in England, a little beyond which is a square fort with ingress & egress which they call Maiden Hold. Here allso has bin an Horse course whence the place is called Speedy More. & opposite to this is Bolton chapple belonging to Morland, & Bolton Hall, a seat [of] the Wibers and branches

[I.115]

{on the left hand, but on the right [is] Long Merton church, & the parsonage hall.}
And so it brings you to Kirkbythore, which was Callatum or Gallatum with the Romans & looked upon by authors as the Chief place, of the Brigantes in this parte of Britane when the Romanes possesd them selves of it. (Here Maiden Way Branches out of the Romane [Way] on the right hand \ by the church, / but of it wee shall speake anon.)[718]

Here ~~the Rom. Way~~ is a woden Bridge, & Hence the Great Way caryes you close by ~~some grounde which they\ call /~~ Burwins Hall where formerly was Whellop Castle, a seat as some say of the Machells ~~formerly~~ \ & was called Whelp Castle, / but long since destroyd, out of the ruines of wh'ich (as appears by the stones) most of the Houses now in being are built. & Kirkbythore Hall, (which belongd to a family of that [name], after to the Whartons, and now to one lawyer Wharton who bought it lately) is a little remote on the left hand. Thence it carryes you over Kirkbythore More, commonly called Sowerby More,[719] where are races of men women & Horses ever[y] St James day,[720] with other active sports in the village of Sowerby, \ by the chapple / to Eden Bridge, lieveing Acorn-Banke, a sweet but late seat of the family of Dalstons, & Millnrigg, a pretty little House formerly belonging to a Branch of the Birkbecks out of the house of Hornby, but now to Mr Dalston of Acorn Banke, who bought it lately.[721] Thence all along by Whinfield forrest, \ where the 3 Bretheren are remark, / to Browham Castle \ an other seat of the Lords of Westm'land / {& an excellent house} directly forward; lieveing Winderwath Hall (a place which formerly belonged to the Clifford, Lords of Westm'land, afterwards to the Brathwate of Warcop and now to Mr Wivell who purchased it lately & has beautifyed it much) on the right hand a 4^{r} of a mile distant.[722] And Woodside an Hamlett belonging to Browham Castle on the right hand allso, a little further on: \ and about the same distance / where one Scott Jumped 24 foote (8 yards) att one single leap, in memory of which 2 posts are sett up there.

[Two narratives. 1. The 'history of the Harthorn Tree'. 2. Machell's father's hunting prowess]

Likewise on the right hand, but not very percieveble, is Hornby Hall att halfe a mile distance, the seat of the Birkbeckes a worthy family; opposite to which is a Great Tree \ called Harthorn Tree / in the [718] Machell's description of the Maiden Way begins on I.119.

[719] Temple Sowerby Moor.
[720] 25 July.
[721] For John Dalston of Acorn Bank, see Michael A. Mullett, Patronage, Power and Politics in Appleby in the Era of Lady Anne Clifford, 1649-1689, CWAAS Tract Series 25 (Kendal, 2015), 26-27.
[722] For Wivill/Wyvill, see N&B1, 400. Shortly before his death in 1658, William Wyvill of Johnby Hall, Greystoke, bought the Winderwath estate from Thomas Braithwaite of Burneside. Winderwath was sold to Edward Hasell of Dalemain in 1787. See CFH, 377.

Rome Way by the parke side where The hornes & head of a stagg & greyhound were naled up some hundreds of yeres since, part of which doe still reman; in a memory of an Hart that was coursed out of Scottland from the Red Kirke[723] hither by a single greyhound the one dyeing with the leape on one side the paile and the other on the other; whence this rithme:

> Hercules kild Harta grese.
> Hart a Grese killed Hercules.[724]

[I.117]

The \ most famous course tha ever was / {& the like of which has not} ~~like of which has not~~ bin heard of before or since. But som thing like it was lately performd by ~~Squire Machell of Crakenthorp~~ \ a gentleman of this Countrey; / who in Olivers time (alone for it was not permitted Cavaliers to meet upon any pretence) and with a single greyhound called Winfield \ ~~of which name they allwayes have a dog~~ / coursed a stag ~~upon~~ upon Dufton Murton & Cross Fell 4 or 5 hores,[725] and came in \ with him / att last att ~~Whinfield~~ \ Flakebrig / Parke Head, where he found the Buck & Dogg on their bellyes face to face, the Dogg snapping \ att his nose / the Buck ~~tho~~ sore wounded endevoreing to defend himselfe, but both soe weake, that the Dog could not kill nor ~~he fle from the dogg~~ \ the Buck escape. / Whereupon Mr Machell, \ He quitting, / quitting horse ~~for the horse was not in much better plight~~ (which was att that time, very weary of his burthen) ran up to them on foote & killed the stagg with his owne hands. ~~The dogg lept upon lapped a little blo[ood]~~. Upon which course this rime was made but noe trophie erected:

> Buck rann well so \ well / Winfield ran;
> Neither Buck nor Winfield wan.[726]

The dogg lapped ~~a little~~ \ some / of the blood, and layd him downe panting \ for breath / (whence, being not able to stir) he was left for ded: but recoverd ~~himself~~ again after a little rest, and missing his master, ran straight to Dufton, where he mett with his cloake att a little \ ale / house, being left there in the morning, & he would not part ~~from it~~ \ thence but layd downe upon it / till the Gentlemans man (which was three days' after) came for it home ...[727]

[II.476] [728]

Near to this place in the very High Way, I mean the Roman Way, is an old oake calld Hart Horn tree, to which were nailed a harts head and a greyhounds, som part whereof ~~may~~ \ is / yet to be seen. And

---

[723] The Red Kirk, Gretna; see Fullerton's Topographical, Statistical and Historical Gazetteer of Scotland, Volume 1 (Glasgow, 1842), 715.
[724] See N&B1, 398-99.
[725] Hours.
[726] The incident was recorded in verse by William Wordsworth:

> 'Here stood an oak, that long had borne affixed
> To his huge trunk, or, with more subtle art,
> Among its withering topmost branches mixed,
> The palmy antlers of a hunted hart,
> Whom the dog Hercules pursued, —his part
> Each desperately sustaining, till at last
> Both sank and died, the life-veins of the chased
> And chaser bursting here with one dire smart.
> Mutual the victory, mutual the defeat!
> High was the trophy hung with pitiless pride;
> Say, rather, with that generous sympathy
> That wants not, even in rudest breasts, a seat;
> And, for this feeling's sake, let no one chide
> Verse that would guard thy memory, HART'S-HORN TREE!'

See Jared Curtis (ed.), Collected Reading Texts from the Cornell Wordsworth III (HEB, 209,2014), XXI, 482.
[727] Machell's own punctuation.
[728] Also numbered p.29.

the Ho[nourable] the Countiss of Penbroke keeps a great piece of the horne \ which lately fell off / as a rarity \ for her. / The occasion of this memorial was that a grahound coursed a hart out of this parke to the Red Kirke in Scotland, & ~~returned again~~ \ pursued him back / to this tr[e]e, where he lept \ hurt / but / ~~&~~ dyed with the fall on the other side \ of the parke pale; / the dog lept \ after him / & fell backward and dyed on this \ side the pale. /
Nor may it seem uncredible to you, for a gentleman {My own father} coursed a stagg on Dufton fells with a greyhound of his \ own[729]

[II.478][730]

{for} 4 or 5 hors and at last ~~when they come~~ \ brought him at / to Flakebrig wood head ~~morning till evening & att last when they came to a close, they~~ \ where the dog, harte &c. \ were ~~also~~ so \ & tyerd \ & spent / ~~both horse, man, dog & stag~~ that they ~~could~~ not ~~tell which to whip~~ on \ thus he tell which stood most need the gentleman \ of his whip; / so lieveing ~~their~~ \ his / horse / cut him ~~dow~~ up \ ~~with their swords~~ / & the dog lapped some blood & ~~so~~ layd ~~him~~ \him down ~~to dye~~ / downe there \ ~~where~~ being left there / they left him for dead. But hee recoverd \ his strength / againe a[nd] came \ ran / ~~downe~~ to an alehouse to \ where my father had / had left his cloake, & finding it there lay downe upon it and would not stir from it till the cloake was sent for; which was 3 days after; and \ so came home with it. / But to returne from this ~~impertinent~~ dig[r]ession ~~which will be no way serviceable to your designe~~.

But to returne from this digression:

[I.117]

And now to returne to the Romaine Way out of which I have wandred ~~too far~~. The next thing[731] remarkable is \ Nine Church /{so called from [blank] on the right h[and]} {And a little farther on in the very High way} a fair pillar \ with dyalls & inscriptions upon, / erected by the Honourable Lady Ann Clifford Countiss Dowager &c. in memory of her parting with her dear mother Anno [blank], the last time that ever she saw her alive. Where allso is a Table of Stone with stairs upp to it for travailers to mount their horses withall; upon which is yerely payd a certaine sum of money to the poor,[732] by the charitable appointment of the said Countiss.[733] Near that place in the Demaine wall on the right hand which goes all along by the Roman Way are 2 figures, digged upp there in serching for stones when that wall was made, & besides them were many Inscriptions found, but beaten to peaces by the \ careless / work men, who regarded nothing but their owne advantage. {Item: a Roman Inscription upon a stone lying over a smoote[734] near the corner & not far from the piller; opposite side to Hornby & Nine Church.} These stone were of the ruines of old Brovacum, a great towne in the time of the Romaines, & the further off the figures as you goe to the castle is a Caesar's head: I drew them both soone after they were found & have them to show.

[I.119]

Then this Great Roman Way Brings you to the Castle,[735] near which was a Great Roman Campe as I have bin informed \ leven[736] on the left. / {Browham & Browham Hall the seat of the Browhams, & after severall conveyances passed to the foresaid Countess, who gave to Appleby Hospitall: & allso a fair house, newly built in Browham by James Bird an attorney att law.}[737] & close by this castle runns the River Emote, which the way crosses & so goes through Carleton by Penreth, which it leeves on [729] MS: 'My own father. Nor may it seem uncredible to you, for ~~my own father~~ \ a gentleman ~~of my acquaintance~~ / coursed a stagg on Dufton fells, ~~till neither~~ \ ~~my father~~ / with a greyhound of his \ own / ~~from morn~~'.

[730] Also numbered p.31.
[731] MS: 'think'.
[732] MS: 'power.'
[733] See N&B1, 394.
[734] A hole or opening at the foot of a wall, the bottom of a fence or hedge, etc., esp. one allowing the passage of hares, rabbits or sheep. OED.
[735] Brougham Castle.
[736] Leaving.
[737] For Machell's true feelings concerning Bird, see Part 1, Ch.7, Brougham, I.447.

the left near to Carlile as I sayd before. From this castle you have the prospect Lowther Hall \ the chief & ancient seat of the L[owthers] / & Clifton Hall, which ~~are~~ \ is / to be referd to [in the description of] Kendall Way. & likewise of Penrith & Penrith Castle & Carleton Hall on the other side the water in the County of Cumberland. Likewise, of Browham Hall, \ Browham chapple / & Mr Birds house, which lye in the way if you goe by the Bridges from hence to Penrith, at the end of which Towne you come agane into the Romaine Way & in goeing meet with pretty divertisments, as King Arthur's Round Table & Mabrough Castle,[738] betwix the 2 Bridges of Lowther & Emote on the left hand, beside a fine prospect of the Countrye which lyes upon the bankes of the River Lowther or Sleddal \ wher you see Clifton Church & the Hall.

[III.261]

The Roman Way from Kirkbythore Bridge to Brough Town End

It goeth from Kirkbythore bridge in a streight line S.E.

	Miles & ½	Quarters & ½
1. To a Dikestead in Machel's Banke, where the Roman urnes & ashes were found	0	1 q.
To the know[739] or pitch of the hill	0	1 q.
To Maiden Hold, which stands directly like Appelby Tower E. W. N. & S.	0	1 q.
To the Roman camp which flankes the way at about 20 yards distant from it: the fower corner if I may so call them (being rebated), standing directly East, W. N. & S. And opposite to the West corner of it stands Boldton Chapel at ½ a mile distance; & Marton church som what more from the East corner. Near this place I measur'd the way to be 7 yards broad.
The camp is about 11 score in length.	0	½ q.
Thence to the riseing of Owsley .	0	½ q.
Thence up the hill to over against Beacon on Owsley where you have a fair view of Crakenthorp Hall to the front; and at a distance, if you looke about, you may see Buly Castle, Howgil Castle & many other places.	0	½ q.
Thence to Annest Johny Close Neuke	0	½ q.
Thence down the hill to the turnpike	0	1 q.
Thence to the top of the Banke End (which is over against Crakenthorp Hall at ½ a mile distance)	0	1 q.
(Opposite to which on the other hand is the West end of Brampton, above ½ a mile distant.)
Thence to white Burwens, an irregular fort on the North E. side of the way about 20 yards distant from it, where ye see Appelby, Buly, Hougil Castles, Crakenthorp Hall & many other places, being a stately prospect.	0	1 q.[740]

[I.119 Cont.]

Thus I have don with the Great Romaine Way, which in 18 miles rideing presents you with all the seats & rarityes whereof I have given you a brief account (& concerning which I shall speake more fully in their proper places) \ besides of / {5 Castle-Halls; 10 churches & 2 chaples: Brough church, Castle; Warcop Church; Browham Chap; St Lawrence & St Michaels at Appleby; Clifton Church; Marton Church; Kirkbythore Church; Temple Church; Nine Church}[741] the like of which will scarce be found in any other County; much less in soe little a spott of ground as this Bottom of Westm'land, [738] Mayburgh.

[739] Variant of knowe or knoll; a mound, a hillock; an area of rising ground, a rise. OED.
[740] The page has partly perished here.
[741] The two chapels were Temple Sowerby and Brougham.

which former writers have quite overlooked & taken noe notice of \ which I thinke is a sufficient argument that Mr [Blank] (that great lover of Antiq.)/ {never saw this place indeed}[742] I proceed now to the 2nd High way, viz.

The Maiden Way

The Maiden Way goes not far in this County, ~~so that it may well be called~~ \ being as it were / a Branch of the ~~other which~~\ Roman / but it extends it selfe very farr into Northumberland \ directly North / viz. to Caervorran ~~directly south~~ \ near / by the Picts' Wall \ not far from ~~the wall~~, paved with stones all along (and as some have reported tho the scarcity of that sort of stone here will not ~~give~~ permitt mee to give credit unto them) with flinty pibles (vid. Camden, of Northumberland). ~~And~~ What the name of this Caervorran was formerly is nott knowne, but here ~~is~~ the ~~foundation~~ \ vestigia / of a Romane campe 140 paces square; with foundations of houses built there since that time (maybe when it tooke the name of Caervorran)† \ is / planely to be seen.[743]
And the Picts Wall here\a/bouts is more high firme & strong than in any other place;[744] for 2 furlonges hence upon a great hill, it doth still remaine 15 foote high & 9 Broade alltho Bedius[745] declares that

[Machell's Notes: I.119]

*{Caervorran, forsan quasi caer ar bhron, i.e. a Tower on the side of an Hill; for so this was situate. Or rather Cairveron: i.e. Veronis, the cit[adel] of Veron.}
†{Upon the recess of the Romans.}

[I.121]

the hight thereof was one 12 \ feet / and tis built of square stone on both sides the wall. Some are of opinion that this ~~Castle~~ Way ~~ex~~wended it selfe betwixt Maiden Castle & this Caervorran, and that there upon it was called Maiden Way. But the contrary appears from this; that the way which leads from Maiden Castle runns directly Nor-west, and is a larger casseway by much; And this from Kirkbythore to Caervarran runns directly North through the Lordship of Millnburne, lieveing Hougil Castle on the right hand, which was formerly a seat of the Lancasters & now of the Sandfords. Newbigin on the left, which was the Habitation of a family of that name extinct in an Heiress and married \ 10. Ed. 2. 1317 / to Robert de Crakenthorpe, descended from ~~the Machell~~ Alexander, Brother of William Ma[lus] Catulus (or Mauchael) Lord of Crakenthorpe; and so \ on / directly over Lower-Cross Fell, lieveing High Cross Fell on the right, upon the top of which is an aultar say some; but I rather thinke \ it / to have bin a Cross & that the mountaine (which is thought to be the Hiyest in this part of England) tooke it name from thence. But tho this way doe not lead directly from Caervorran to Maden Castle, yett it leads to Kirkbythore; & the great Romane Way will carry you thence by Maden Hold & the Campe ~~thence that place~~ \ upon the moore belonging to Crakenthorp / directly forwards to Maiden Castle which is upon Stainemore. Howbeit I dar[e] not determin, whence Maiden Way, Maden Hold & Maden Castle doe take their ~~names~~ originalls & denominations, but I know very well, that the Castle att Edenburrow is called by the name of Maiden Castle allso, but in Latin Alatum: & I make noe doubt that this Maden Way was made by the Romaines.[746]

[742] A reference to an earlier criticism of William Camden.
[743] Much of this paragraph, including the measurement of the camp, is taken from Camden. See Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 800; e.g. Camden refers to having heard of 'a great port-way, paved with flint and bigge stone' which, 'led from hence through wastes unto Maiden Castle in Stanemore. Certainly, it passed directly to Kirkby Thor'.
[744] The Picts' Wall = Hadrian's Wall.
[745] Bede.
[746] On MS.I.62, Machell wrote: 'Maden Castle. Endenburge. Castrum Alatum. Aden.' Nicolson and Burn also attempted to derive both the meaning of the name and its geographical spread, see N&B1, 8-9.

[III.66]

{A cohort is 500 \ men / the x part of a Roman legion; ergo, a legion is 5000 men: Coles' English Dictionary.[747] Yet I have seen (I thinke in Haywood of Angels)[748] that a legion is 6666.}
They had cohortes, which warded before their capites, (at what distance I know not). These gave notice to Cæsar of the skirmish which the British had with the VII legion ~~of Romanes~~ being surprised at harvest work. Query \ Speed, pg. 184. / Might these fortes calld Maden Hold & M. Castle be a station for the cohorts?

[I.121]

[Unpaved Highways]

I shall now proceed to the other highwayes, which are not paved, nor pretend to any thing of Antiquity in them. & those are Kendal Way, which leads Betwixt Penrith, where I left the Romaine, & the towne of Kendall, whence it takes its name; & Appleby Way, which leads from Kendall to Appleby, whence it has its name.

Kendall Way

It begins att Penrith a confirmd[749] market in the County of Cumberland, and enters Westm'land att Emote Bridge: wher on the right hand up the water, besides other places in Cumberland, you have

[I.123]

view of Yanewath Hall formerly a seat of the Dudley but now purchased by Sir John Lowther of Lowther, the family of the Dudley being quite extinct.[750] And a little higher, of Sockbridge, a seat of the Lancasters, which family (tho some of the name remane still alive) is quite extinct, and the Hall now belong Sir John Lowther of Cokermouth, a Branch of the other House: & soe it goes on directly south to Lowther Bridge so called from the river which runns through it lieveing att a little destance on the right behinde the towne of Emote[751] a round fortification with a spatious entrance & 4 huge stones pitched up in it, called Mabrough Castle; and a little further up a rou[n]d fortification close by the high way on the right hand call[ed] King Arthur's Castle, & by some, the Round Table, and supposed to be a place of Justing:[752] Soe from Lowther bridge to Shap, lieveing on the left Browham chaple & a fair house near to it built by James Bird, and likewise Browham Hall, & the Castle all which I spoke of before in the Romain Way: And in Clifton it goe through the village betwixt the church & Clifton Hall which was anciently the seat of the Engaynes, and after for many generation of the Wibers, a family not quite extinct but very much decayed; & now sold or mortgaged to Sir John Lowther of Lowther Hall{Sir John [Lowther] of Sokbridge I thinke has a share in it} a place near att hand and the ancient seat of that worthy family; but so covered with wood that tho it be a very ellegant building & hath 2 stately towers, yett they cannot be seen, neither can Ascome, which is over the water opposite unto it: a seat of the Askomes after of the Swinburnes & lastly of the Sandfords,

---

[747] Elisha Coles, An English Dictionary, explaining the difficult terms that are used in divinity, husbandry, physick, phylosophy, law, navigation, mathematicks, and other arts and sciences. Containing many thousands of hard words (and proper names of places) more than are in any other English dictionary or expositor. Together with the etymological derivation of them from their proper fountains, whether Hebrew, Greek, Latin, French, or any other language. In a method more comprehensive, than any that is extant (London, 1676). This was the largest English dictionary of the late-17th century and was the first to recognise the importance of slang. In addition, it offered lists of dialect words and obsolete terms. It also discussed the proper names and histories of classical figures.

[748] Thomas Heywood (c.1573-1641), The Hierarchie of the blessed Angells (London, 1635).

[749] 'Confirmed market': a market 'established firmly'. ODNB. The market was confirmed in an order by Henry III in 1223. See Michael A. Mullett, A New History of Penrith Book 1: From Pre-History to the Close of the Middle Ages (Carlisle, 2017), 44-45.

[750] For Sir John Lowther, see Michael A. Mullett, A New History of Penrith Book III: Penrith in the Stuart Century, 1603-1714 (Carlisle, 2018), 31.

[751] Eamont Bridge.

[752] Jousting.

who have continued ther since the [blank] yere of Edward the [blank].[753] Hence the way leads you directly to [Blank][754]

[I.134][755]

[K. Sheriffs of Westm'land]

I shall in the next place proceed to the particular description of Westm'land by parishes and manners and therein show you the ancient possessors of each Lordship together with the moderne with their armes & pedegrees. ~~But first give me lieve to speake a word or two in order thereunto concerneing of Heraldry~~. \ But before I doe this, let mee add what observations of I have other, concerneing the sheriffs of Westm'land. For though it was anciently called a County (as it is at this day), and there have bin of it severall Earles, in Latin calld Comites: as Nevils & Faines, whose pedegrees I have inserted (And Langdale, Lord Westm'land) which are all but titular. I find that anciently it has bin really under the Jurisdiction & Government of Barons, \ Lords & Signors Castelans. / and ~~if I may have leave for~~ the Hon[our] was united with the office of sheriff (which is very probable) vicountes of Westm'land. For, as to the execution of that office, the Cliffords had power \ derived / I doubt not from the Viponts & Morvills {& perhaps Ralph Meschines who at the least} to appoint their sheriffs, who were frequently ~~writ~~ \ called / vicecomites &c. See my MS. VI, p. 96; And were in those times of the best sort of Gentry for the greater honour the place & fam[ily].

[Machell's Notes: I.134]

And for this reason, I thought fit to insert a catalogue of Sherives here in this place e Libro Rubro Scaccaris[756] – with my own addition. And the manner & form of presenting them out of my MS VI.

[VI.593]

A Booke of Sheriffs
In order to the Antiquitye of the Countyes
of Westmerland & Cumberland
1678

[Preliminary Notes]

N.B. by this som Deeds sans Date may be found to have bin in such a yeare, for the vicecomites are frequently witness. And allso by old deeds beareing Date this Catalogue of Sheriffs may be completed T.M.

[VI.584][757]

Dacre: The famous Treaty which followed upon King Athelstans victory over Constantine, King of Scots (so loftily described by the Saxon Chronicle A.D. 938),[758] is said to be ad locum qui Dacor vocatur:[759] W. Malmesbury de Gest, Reg. Angl. p.50.[760] Hoveden saies it was in 921 and in loco qui dicitur Eamotum,[761] p.422. Vid.Chron. A.S. ad an. 924.[762]

---

[753] Robert Sandford of Askham is reported to have been Acting Sheriff, 16-17 Edward II (1322-23). CFH, 294.
[754] … to Askham.
[755] For Machell's information on sheriffs of Westmorland, see Sir G. Duckett, 'The Sheriffs of Westmorland, with the early Sheriffs of Cumberland', CW1, 4 (1880), 285-305.
[756] 'From the red book of Scaccaris.' Dialogus de Scaccario, or 'Dialogue concerning the Exchequer', is a mediaeval treatise on the practice of the English Exchequer, written by Richard Fitzneal in the late 12th century. Machell also used it to research 'the booke of Knights fees …given in temp. Ed. I', see Part 3, Ch.1, VI.432.
[757] Text on this page appears to be in Bishop Nicolson's hand.
[758] 'The Anglo-Saxon Chronicle is an annual record of events, first compiled around 890 during the reign of King Alfred the Great. It was the first attempt to give a systematic year-by-year account of English history, and it was later maintained and added to by generations of anonymous scribes until the middle of the 1100s.' BL.
[759] '…at a place which is called Dacre.'
[760] William of Malmesbury (c.1090-c.1142), Gesta Regum Anglorum (1125-34).
[761] 'In the place which is said to be Eamont.'
[762] Roger of Hoveden or Howden (d.1202), Gesta Henrici II et Gesta Regis Ricardi ('Deeds of Henry II and King Richard'); revised in Chronica magistri Rogeri de Hoveden ('Chronicles of Master Roger of Howden'): the story of England before Henry II's reign, continuing until 1201.

[VI.585]

{? Query how it comes to pass that the catalogues of Sheriffs begin at Henry 2: ?Mr Dugdall}

A Catalogue of Sheriffs of Westmorland & Cumberland ab anno 1^0 Henry 2 and ad anno 1^{um} Jacob

Memorandum
In the Catalogue of Westm'land (where the Shrievalty has bin hereditary) that I leave an column for the Provicecomites (for those that serv'd under the Viponts & Cliffords were properly soe; however, frequently writ vicecomites, and as other sheriffs had their deputyes under them, call'd undersheriffs) And it is to be noted that N.B. {~~Note that there was one Robert Veteriponte anno 80 Richard 1, which was the reign before King John~~.}

1. Robert de Veteri-ponte was Sheriff of Westmorland anno Kg John 4^0 [1202-03]. And in the next year following it was granted to him & his heires forever by the said King. To the Viponts succeeded the Cliffords by maryage of an heiress \ Query if not by Royal Grant? Sc. Dugdal, Baron[age] in Vipont & Clifford, p.349. /
To them, the Tuftons, by the same means, who now enjoy it by virtue of the said King's grant in the 5^{th} year of his reigne.
Wherefore (tho the office was executed by gentlemen whom they employed) wee must not looke upon Adam Deppedal and the rest inn the following catalogue as vicecomites, ~~but~~ \ tho they be stiled so; but in reality / pro-vicecomites.

2. The Viponts continued Lords of the Honour of Apelby & Sheriffs of Westmorland (for 5 generations) till the line was extinct in 2 coheirres: Isabella & Idonea, daughters of Robert, son of Robert, son of John, son of Robert, to whom King John gave the said Honour with the office of Sheriff & \ the / old-rents of Westm'land. Robert de Veteriponte (the last of that name) tooke part with the Barons against King Henry III, and dyed of a wound receiv'd in the wars, about the 43 of his reign [1258-1259], so that his Estate, with the former-grants ~~with all his estste~~ became forfæct, and were seis'd upon for the Kings use, who made his daughters (Isabel and Idonea) wards to 2 noble-men: Roger de Clifford & Roger de Leybourn, who maryed them afterwards to their owne sons, the king having granted them all their Estate about the 50^{th} year of his reigne. And Clifford, being guardian to the elder daughter, is said to have executed the office of Sheriff dureing their wardship. Idonea, the second daughter, dyed without any isue surviveing so that the whol Estate with all the profits & perquisites thereof came to Robert de Clifford in the 8^{th} year of Edward III [1334-35]; which Robert was brother & heire of Roger, son & heire of Robert, son & heire of Roger who maryed Isabella de Veteriponte: sister of Idonea de Leybourne; so that it should seeme:

[VI.586]

1. Roger de Clifford (her husband's father) was Sheriff of Westmorland from her owne fathers death, who was Robert de Veteriponte, till the time that she maryed; Sc. from about the 49 of Henry III till the 54^{th} (or then about) of the said king's reign [1264-70]. To him succeeded her husband, Sc.
2. Roger de Clifford (son of Roger) in right of his wife, Isabella de Veteriponte. Hee dyed the 11^{th} of Edward the 1^{st} [1282-83], & to him succeeded
3. Isabella de Clifford, widow of Robert. She sate (as is said) in person at Apelby, as Sheriff of the countye, and dyed about the 20 of Edward 1 [1291-92]. To her suc[ceded]
4. Robert de Clifford (son of Roger & Isabella). He was slain in Scotland (at a place call'd Strivelings) the 4^{th} of June 1314. And to him succeded
5. Roger de Clifford, son of Robert. To him:
6. Robert de Clifford (brother of Roger & son of Robert, in whose Isue male it hath continued until this very time.
Ann, Countess Dowager of Dorsett, Penbrooke and Montgomery, daughter & sole heire to George, Earle of Cumberland, was the last of the Cliffords that held this office (Mr Thomas Gabettas being pro-vice-comes).[763] She departed this life March 22 1676/7, and left the shrievalty (with then Barony of Westmorland &c.) to the family of the Tuftons, into which the first daughter (the Lady Margaret Sackvil) was matched, and had Isue: sons & daughters. The second daughter was maryed to [Blank] Compton, Earl of Northampton, & had Isue, the Lady Alethea, who dyed unmaryed temp. Car. 2 {The honourable John Tufton Esq., 2 brother to the Earl of Thanet, is at this time High Sheriff of Westm. & Lord of all that ancient esate which belong'd to his ancestours. T. Gabetis, vice-com.}[764]

[VI.587]

Sheriffs of Westmorland {Ad Tract Ge. de Westmorland}
A Catalogue of the Sheriffs of Westmorland from the 1^{t} years of King Henry 2
E lib. MS in folio: cajus tit. of Sheriffs, fig. 47, penes Mr Sheldon

Anno: Henry 2^{t} Reg^{s} Ang.
18.[765] Elias de Appelbi
23. Randulphus de Glanvill
24-25. Idem

Anno Richardus 1^{t} Reges Ang.
1-4. Osbertus di Longo-Campo {No one of this name came in with the Conqueror: se Batle Abby in Hollinshed. And another Sc. W.? Longchamp was Bishop of Ely and Chancellour of England in the time of Roger Machel being at the same time keper of the Great Seale & Vice-chancellour to the King in his expedition to the Holy War.}
5. Hugo Bardulpha
6. Idem
7. Hugo Bardulphe & Richard de Cartrai
8-9. Hugo Bardulphe
10. Idem & Johes Laleman {There are yet upon Stanemore tenants belonging to Brough Castle of the name of Lademan. Quere whether the same name.}

Anno Regis Johannis
1. Hugo Bardulphe & Richard de Carterai (v^{c} Carthenat) {Hale Charter}[766]
2. Galfr. fil Petre; Rogerus de Bello Campo; Willielmus de Stutevill & Johannes Lealeman
3-4. Willielmus de Stutevill & Ph. Escrop.
5-9. Adam Deppedal
10-12. Robert de Veteriponte
N.B. This catalogue must be false, for Robert de Veteriponte had the shrivealty {q. ideo} 4^{0} Johannis [1202-1203], & the same was settled upon him & his heires forever by the said king in the next year following; so that I take Deppedal & all that follow except the Veteriponts & Cliffords to [be] sub-vice-comityes under those familyes. T.M.

[VI.588]

Johannis
Pro-vic.
13. Eudo de Bello-Campo vice-com Westmorland. Testis apud cartam Confirm. Abbey de Hep[768] by Robert de Veteripont. T.M.

Vice-com[767]
sub Roberto de Veteriponte

[763] The tomb of Thomas Gabetis (d. 1694) is in Brough church, where there is an epitaph on a monument on the wall. See Nicolson, Misc. Accts, 46-47.
[764] Acting sheriff.
[765] MS numbers 1-17, 19-22 and 26-35 are blank.
[766] Hale Charter Roll: a cartulary of three membranes containing the claims of the Ireland family of Hale to its lands, from the time of King John into the early 15th century: Michael Johnson, Romance and the Gentry in Late Medieval England (Oxford, 2014), 217.
[767] A scored-through line of text here, is illegible.
[768] Shap Abbey.

[VI.589]

Westmorland Nom[in]a vicecom[itum], tem[pore] Regis Hen[rici] Tertis F. Rot.
1. ~~d~~
2. n~~l~~
3. ~~d~~
4. Ebor non Westm'land.
5. n~~l~~ de Westm'land.
6. Ebor n~~l~~ de Westm'land.
7. Galfrus de Neovil Symon de Hal pro eovic Ebor. Westm'land non norat?
8. Symon de Hal reddit comput[um] Ebor &c. nl de Westmorland.
9. Ewflacius de Ladhm ut Custos Everwikesir nl de Westmorland.
10. Idem ut custos p[ro] se et Robert de Cokefeld pro Eo red[dit] comput[um].
11-12. Robertus de Kokefeld firmar[ius] Ebor nl de Westmorland.
13. Rob. De Kokefeld ut firmar[ius] pro dim[idio] Anni W. de Stutevill .
14. ~~d~~
15-16. Will. de Stutevill [blank] et Philip de Ascillis pro eo r[eddit] co[mputum] Ebor nl de Westm'land.
17. Petrus de Ryval [blank] Johes Bonot pro eo pro dimidio anni. Brian de Insula pro Altero Dimidio Anni de Westm'land18. Brian de Insula r. c. p. Ebor n~~l~~ de Westm'land.
19. Johes fil Galf. & dim An^{t} et Brian fil Alari Ragus de Stapleton ut custos & Eo Ebor.

Sic in Res[ponsionibu]s de Ev[er]vic
Idem Joh[ann]es r[eddidit] computum de sexies XX et viij^{li} ij^{d} et ob - de Catallis Hugonis de Burgo, et de XX ij^{li} de Equirio patris sui, sicut continetur in Rotulo quem Willielmus Ruffus lib[er]auit in Tho[mam]. Sic[769] non debet sumoniri quia recordatu[m] coram rege quod Catalla prædicta fuere patris sui et not Hug[on]is de Burgo. Sic [forsan pro sed][770] H. de Burgo seisierat Catalla ista post mortem Roberti de Veteriponte tanquam custos Comitatus Westmorland per regem, et ea ante captionem suam reddiderat

[VI.590]

Joh[ann]i de Veteri-Ponte tanquam catalla Patris sui.[771]

Res[ponsione]s de Everwit Rot R[otul]^{o} 20 Regis Hen[rici] III^{i}
1. Robertus de Veteriponte debet m.^{li} ix$^{c.}$ iiij^{xx} xvij^{li} xi^{s} vj^{d} et v dextr[rarios][772] de precio pro v tonellis vini (sicut continetur in Rotulo principali.) De Quibus Idonea de Veterip[on]te filia et haeres Joh[anni]s de Builli debet lxiiij^{li} xix^{s} de debit[is] Aaron[i] [forsan Arearagys],[773] pro predicto Joh[ann]e de Buyilly, sicut continetur in Rotulo xiij$^{c[es]i[m]o}$ Regis Joh[anni]s; et xx mar[cas] pro eodem Jo[]h[ann]e ne transfretet; et xx marcas pro eodem J[o]h[ann]e pro habenda Terra patris sui; et cl^{s}[?]

[769] Machell underlined and copied various unusual symbols and letter-forms that he found in this document. His list of abbreviations, taken from Dugdale and Pettit, can be found on MS.V.97-102.
[770] The Latin word was perhaps originally 'se'.
[771] 'Thus, in the Returns of Yorkshire: The same John rendered an account of six score and eight pounds two and a half pence for the cattle of Hugo de Burgo, and of twenty-two pounds for his father's title of squire, as is included in the Roll which William Rufus delivered to Thomas. Thus he should not be summoned because it was recorded in the presence of the king that the aforesaid cattle were his father's and did not belong to Hugo de Burgo. Thus [perhaps for himself] Hugo de Burgo had become possessed of those cattle after the death of Robert de Veteripont as Guardian of the County of Westmorland for the king, and had restored them to John de Veteripont as being his father's cattle.'
[772] 'Dexter': Middle English 'destrer'; late Latin 'dextrārius'; in full, 'equus dextrārius'. dextra = right hand: so-called from being led by the squire with his right hand. See J. Saunders Cabinet Pictures of English Life: Chaucer (London, 1845), 76. See also, 'The war horses were led by the squires, who always keeping them in their right hand, they were called dextriers.' OED.
[773] Machell possibly misread the phrase 'de claro', meaning 'net', as 'Aaron', and then tried to make sense of the name.

pro eodem Joh[ann]e de vij scut[agijs][774] Reg[is] Joh[ann]is sicut continetur in Rot[ulo] iiij Regis Henrici nunc, inter debita predicti Roberti. S[um]m[a] quatuor xx & xvj^{li} xij^{s} iiij^{d}, de qua sum[m]a predicta Idonea respo[n]d[et] infra. Et deb[et] Robertus iij^{li} et ix^{li} xix^{s} et v dext[rarios] pro v dolijs vini. De quibus Joh[ann]es de Veteriponte r[espondet] infra.[775]
Idonea de Veteriponte fil]i]a et heres Joh[ann]is de Builly quatuor xx et vj^{li} xij^{s} iiij^{d} de quatuor deb[itis] sicut supra continetur.
Joh[ann]es de Veteriponte fli[ius] et heres Roberti de Veteriponte deb[et] m.^{li} ix.^{li} xix^{s} et v dextr[arios] pro v tonellis vini sicut supra continetur. R[espondet] infra.
Idem Joh[ann]es deb[et] xv^{li} ix^{s} et ij^{d} de padnagio de pluribus annis, qui requir[untur] et cl mrc[?] in R[e]s[ponsione] precedenti. Sic r[espondet] infra.[776]
Idem Joh[annes] […][777] {respondet forsan} de cl[?] etiam lxiiij^{li} xviij^{s} x^{d} de duobus Itineribus Insti[tutis] in Westmorland sicut continetur in Rot[ulo] principali {T[a]ll[ag]ij]} pro Henrico de [T[i]rello] sicut continetur in Rotulo principali; et de xxviij m^{a}rc[is] iij^{s} de pluribus p[re]stit[is] sicut continetur ibidem; et de xv^{li} ix^{s} ij^{d} de Padnagio de pluribus annis sicut supra continetur; et de m^{li} ix^{li} xix^{s} et v dextr[arios] pro v dolijs vini sicut continetur ibidem.[778]
In Thelonium – Thelonio talles – {i.e. R. Comp. reddit comput[um]}et xlj^{li} et j m[a]rc in viij taill[ijs] et debet m^{li} et viij^{s} et lxij^{li} et x^{s} et v dextr[arios] pro v dolijs vini ; et xx^{s} qui requiruntur in Rot[ulo] Principali sup[ra].[779]
{Thomam filiu[m] Joh[ann]is de (verbum deesse videtur, forsan Veteriponte. vide cat.) prestit[um] sicut contin[etur] ibidem.} p[er] ann[um] q$^{[uatuor]}$xx m^{a}rc[as] p[er] bre[vem] Regis.[780]
2. ut infra:
Rot^{o} xiij^{cio} R[e]g[is] Joh[ann]is Ev[er]wicshir.
Robertus de Veteriponte deb[et] vij m^{a}zc. de vj^{o} scut[agijs] de feod[o] Hugonis de Gernegan [nomen idem alibi occurrit.][781]
Robertus de Veteriponte. Simo clericus suus pro eo r[eddit] comp[utum] etc.[782]

---

[774] 'Scutage': tax paid by the holder for a knight's fee, usually in lieu of feudal military service.
[775] 'Returns of Yorkshire. Roll 20 of King Henry III: 1. Robert of Veteripont owes £1,980, and £17 11s 6d and 5 warhorses at the value of 5 casks of wine (as is included in the principal Roll). Of which Idonea de Veteripont, daughter and heir of John de Builly owes £64 19s of the debits of Aaron [perhaps Arearagys] on behalf of the aforesaid John de Buyilly, as is included in Roll 13 of King John; and 20 marks on behalf of the same John so he shall not alienate; and 20 marks on behalf of the same John to keep his father's land; and 150s on behalf of the same John concerning 7 shield moneys of King John, as is contained in the 5th roll of King John. Which are, indeed, now included in the 4th roll of King Henry, among the debits of the aforesaid Robert. The sum is 4 score and £16 12s 4d, about which sum the aforesaid Idonea answers below. And Robert owes £1,000 and £9 19s and 5 warhorses at the value of 5 casks of wine. Concerning which John de Veteripont answers below.'
[776] 'Idonea de Veteripont daughter and heir of John de Builly: 4 score and £16 12s 4d of the four debits, as included above. John de Veteripont son and heir of Robert de Veteripont owes £1,009 19s, and 5 warhorses at the value of 5 casks of wine, as is included above. Thus, he answers below: The same John owes £15 9s 2d concerning the pannage of several years which are required in the previous return. Thus, he answers below.'
[777] The text here is unclear.
[778] 'The same John [...]{answers, perhaps} concerning 150 also £64 18s 10d concerning two journeys undertaken in Westmorland, as is included in the Principal Roll, for Henry [of Tirell] {of tax} as is included in the principal Roll; and concerning 28 marks 3s relating to several payments, as is included in the same place; and concerning £15 9s 2d concerning the pannage of several years, as is included above; and concerning £1,009 19s and 5 warhorses for 5 casks of wine, as is included in the same place.'
[779] 'To The[lonius] {taxes to Thelonius} {i.e. he is answerable for an account} also £41 and 1 mark in 8 tax payments and he owes £1,008 and £62 10s, and 5 warhorses at the value of 5 casks of wine; and 20s which are required in the Principal Roll above.'
[780] 'Thomas son of John (a word is missing, perhaps Veteripont; see the catalogue.) Payment as included in the same place. 4 score marks yearly by the king's writ.'
[781] '2. As below. In the 13th Roll of the Returns of John of Yorkshire. Robert de Veteripont owes 7 marks in respect of 6 shield-moneys in fee of Hugo de Gernegan (the same name occurs elsewhere).'
[782] 'Robert de Veteripont … Simo the clerk answers the account for him etc.'

[VI.590A]

Pro-Vicecomites

[1.] Simo Clericus suus anno è Rotulo 20 Regis Hen. III. Rested Everwickshir.[783]

[VI.591]

Of Westmorland: Pro-vicomites

Anno Regis Henry 3[i].
1. Rob[ertus] de Veteriponte T.M.
12. Joh[ann]es de Veteriponte circa 12 vel 13m T.M.
26. Robert[us] de Veteriponte infra aetatem Gardin[o] reg[e] sub custodia prioris Carliolensis T.M.[784]
49. Hoc anno objit Robert[us] de Veteriponte et omnes possesiones suae una cum Baliva de Westmorland fisco Regi[?] redierunt. Ei successit Rogerus de Clifford.[785]
54. Rogerus de Clifford Junior qui hoc an[no] matrimoniam contraxerit cum Isabella filia & cohær[ede] Roberti de Vet[eriponte].[786]

Anno Regis Edvardi 1[i].
1-11. John Kirkeby.
12-13. Isabella de Clifford vidua.[787]
14. Richardus de Medborne.
15-16. Robertus de Morevil.
17. Robertus de Parick.
18-19. Gilb[ertus] de Brimulneshend.
20. (obijt Isab[ella] n[ulla] fal[lonia]) Thomas Hellebeck.[788]
21-23. Idem.
24-26. Rad[ulph]us de Manby.
27-28. Robertus de Clifford; P[one] Idonea Leyburne.[789]
29-33. Rob[ertus] De Clifford.

Anno Regis Ed. 1[i].
1-5. John Kirkeby.
6. Idem. Ds Mich. de Harclay.
7. Idem. Carte Crac[kenthorpe] 25. Gilbertus de Kirketon.[790]
8-11. Idem.
12-13. Idem (Isabella de Clifford vidua).
14. Ricardus de Medborne.

---

[783] 'Everwickshir': The earldom of Northumberland was not divided into counties until the time of Edward the Confessor, when it was divided into six or seven shires with a chief town at the head of each, the whole of which Domes-day Book calls Everwickshire. I.e. Yorkshire, Richmondshire, Lancashire and Durham (styled Copland), Westmorland, Northumberland and Cumberland. The city of York under the Romans was called Eboracum; under the Saxons, Everwick; and under the Danes, Jorvik. See Francis Drake, Eboracum or the History and Antiquities of York (London, 1736), 85. Drake took much of this information from Hoveden.
[784] 'Robert de Veteripont in his minority a ward of the king in the care of the prior of Carlisle T.M.'
[785] 'In this year Robert de Veteripont died and all his possessions along with the Bailliwick of Westmorland reverted to the King's treasury. Roger de Clifford succeeded him.'
[786] 'Under Sheriffs of King Henry 3rd. 1. Robert de Veteripont T.M. 12. John de Veteripont, about the 12th or 13th year T.M. 26. Robert de Veteripont, under age, ward of the King, in the custody of the Prior of Carlisle T.M. 49. In this year Robert de Veteripont died and all his possessions along with the Bailiwick of Westmorland, reverted to the King as tax. He was succeeded by Roger de Clifford. 54. Roger de Clifford Junior, who in this year contracted a marriage with Isabella, daughter and co-heir of Robert de Veteripont.'
[787] 'Isabella de Clifford, widow.'
[788] '(Isabella died with no forfeiture) Thomas Hellebeck.'
[789] 'Robert de Clifford; alongside Idonea Leyburne.'
[790] 'The same. Charters of Crackenthorpe 25. Gilbert of Kirketon.'

15-16. Robertus de Morevil.
17. Robertus de Paunwick.
18. Gilbertus de Brimulsneshend.
19. Idem. Obijt circa 20 Rob[erto] De Clifford filio Rogeri infra aetatem existente.[791]
20-23. Thomas Hellebeck [sub eo].[792]
24-26. Rad[ulph]us de Manby.
27-28. Robertus de Clifford; pone de Leighburne {forsan pro Idonea de}.[793]
29-34. Robertus de Clifford.
{Gilb. de Crak. Will[ielm]o fra[tre] *in castra Ellene et Agnetis fil[iarum] Galfrid[i] de Crakathorp Walt[ero] filio Walt[eri] de Meburn}.[794]

[VI.592]

Regis Ed 2[i].
1-7. Robertus de Clifford.
8-9. Idem (Rogerus de Clif[ford] fil[ius] Rob[erti]).
10-18. Henricus de Warthecop (Warc\o/p) Henry de Warthecop. e cart[a] Barforth Mauchell) Rogerus de Clifford obijt innuptus a[nno] 10 Ed. 3i ade[o] ut ei Robertus frater et haeres successit in vicec[omitatu].[795]
{Rob[ertus] trucidatus apud Stiriveling in Scotia 24 Junij 1314.}[796]

Anno Regis Ed 3[i].
1. Henricus de Threlkeld.
2. Tho[mas] de Clifford.
3. Robertus de Clifford.
4-15. Robertus de Clifford (frater Rogeri fil[ij] Rob[ert]i).[797]
16. Idem Tho[mas] de Musgrave 1342 in cart[a] Machell Valeri Sc. Raiour.[798]
17. Idem T. de Mus[grave] (Machell cart[a]).
18-19. Idem (RC. obijt hoc an[no]: ex Gen. Clifford).[799]
20. Idem Will[ielmus] de Langwathby. Cista Mac. Sc. Ad[am] de Apelby.
21-24. Rad[ulph]us de Nevill (forsan pro tunc infra aetat[atem] nupt[iarum] Sc. aetat[atem] 13) Will[ilelmi] de Langwathy cista.[800]
25-29. Thomas de Bello-Campo. Comes Warwick. forsa[n] pro Roger[o] de Clifford frat[re] et h[erede] Roberti fil[ij] Roberti tunc temporis in bello contra Franciam vel Scotiam.[801]
30-51. Rogerus de Clifford.

[VI.593]

Anno Regis Richard 2[i].
1-10. Rogerus de Clifford.
11-12. Rogerus de Clifford et Walt[erus] Strickland Chr. N.B. per ipsum Rogerum præsentatus.[802]

---

[791] 'The same. He died about 20, Robert de Clifford the son of Roger being under age.'
[792] 'Thomas Hellebeck (under him).'
[793] 'Robert de Clifford; alongside de Leighburne {perhaps on behalf of Idonea de}.'
[794] '{Gilbert of Crakenthorp, William his brother, in the castle of Ellen and Agnes, daughters of Galfrid of Crakenthorp. Walter, son of Walter de Meburn.}'
[795] 'Roger de Clifford died unmarried in the first year of Edward 3rd, with the result that Robert his brother and heir succeeded in the shrievalty.'
[796] '{Robert [was] slain at Stirling in Scotland 24 June 1314.}'
[797] 'Robert de Clifford (brother of Robert son of Robert).'
[798] 'The same. Thomas de Musgrave 1342, in a document of Machell Valerius Sc. Raiour.'
[799] 'The same. (RC died this year: from Gen. Clifford.)'
[800] 'Radulph de Nevill. Perhaps on behalf of […] then below the age of marriage, Sc. age 13. From the chest of William de Langwathby.'
[801] 'Thomas de Bello-Campo. Earl of Warwick. Perhaps on behalf of Roger de Clifford, brother and heir of Robert son of Robert, at that time engaged in war against France or Scotland.'
[802] 'N.B. presented by Roger himself.'

13. Idem obij[t] Rogerus et successit fil[ius].[803]
14. Thomas de Clifford.
15.Walterus Strickland chr.
16. Elizabetha d[o]m[in]a de Clifford nup[er] uxor Thomae domini de Clifford.[804]
17-22. Eadem (Il[lorum] fil[ius] ejus erat infra aetatem).[805]

[A[n]no] Regis Hen[rici] 4ti
1-12. Elizabetha domina Clifford prædicta.

Anno Hen[rici] 5ti
1-2. Willielmus de Lancaster (pro Joh[ann]e de Clifford iam plenae aetatis).[806]
3. Christopher Moresby.
3-8. Willielmus de Lancaster.
9. Idem (ultimo H.5i trucidatus).[807]

Anno Regis Hen[rici] 6ti
1. Joh[ann]es de Lancaster.
2. Willielmus de Lancaster.
3-5. Idem (pro Elixabetha nuper uxor[e] Johannis de Clifford, postea uxore Rad[ulphi] de Nevil, Com[itis] Westm'land).[808]
6-15. Tho[mas] Par: Chr; Subvic[ecomes].[809]
16-23. Thomas nunc d[o]m[inu]s de Clifford (plenae aetatis).[810]
24-32. Thomas nunc Dominus de Clifford.
33-38. Obijt in bello idem Thomas Dominus Clifford anno 1455. Successit ei Joh[hann]es de Clifford fil[ius] et haeres, plenae aetat[is] a[nn]o sequenti qui obijt in bello contra Ed. 4um pro Reg[e] Hen[rico] 60 a[nn]o 1461.[811]

Anno Regis Ed[wardi] 4ti
1-14. Johannes Par ae[tatis] (Cliffordiorum familia ab officio expulsa tanquam laesae majestatis reâ.)[812]
15-22. Will[iel]mus Par miles.

Anno Regis Richard 3ti
1. Will[iel]mus Par miles.

Anno Regis Hen[rici] 7mi
1-2. Henricus Clifford (fil et haeres Johes Dominus Clifford […] restitutus).[813]

---

[803] 'The same Roger died and his son succeeded.'
[804] 'Lady Elizabeth de Clifford late wife of Lord Thomas de Clifford.'
[805] 'The same (their/her son was under age).'
[806] 'William de Lancaster (for John de Clifford, now of age).'
[807] 'The same. (Slain in the last year of Henry 5th).'
[808] 'The same (on behalf of Elizabeth late wife of John de Clifford, subsequently wife of Radulph de Nevil, Earl of Westmorland.)'
[809] 'Thomas Par […]; under-sheriff.'
[810] 'Thomas now Lord de Clifford (of age).'
[811] 'The same Thomas Lord Clifford died in war in the year 1455. He was succeeded by John de Clifford his son and heir, of age, in the following year. He died in war against Edward 4th fighting for King Henry 6th in the year 1461.'
[812] 'John Par, of age (the family of the Cliffords had been exiled as being guilty of lese-majesty).' Lèse majesté: a crime committed against a monarch or other ruler; insult of or affront to a monarch or other ruler, especially when constituting a crime; treason. OED.
[813] 'Henry Clifford (son and heir of John, Lord Clifford, [...] restored.)'

3. Henricus Dominus Clifford.[814]
6. Henricus Clifford miles.
8-13. Rogerus Bellingham miles subvic[ecomes].[815]
14-15. John Fleminge ar[miger] subvic[ecomes].
16-20. Henricus Dominus Clifford.

[VI.594]

21-24. Hen. Dominus Clifford.

Anno Regis Hen 8^{vt}
1-6. Henricus Dominus Clifford.
7. Henricus Clifford.[816]
10. Henricus Dominus Clifford.
11-13. Hen. Clifford.
14. Hen. Clifford miles Dominus Clifford.
15. Obijt Henry Dominus Clifford 20 Aprilis.
16. cui successit Hen. Dominus Clifford fil & h.
17-20. Henry Comes Cumbrae.
21. Idem. John Lowder Esq. Provic.
22-38. Idem. Obijt 22 April 1542 ei successit Henry Dominus Clifford f & h comes Cumb. Id nominus 29.

Anno Regis Ed. 6^{ti}.
1-6. Henricus Comes Cumb.

Anno Philip & Maria R.
1-6. Henricus Comes Cumberland.

Anno Elizabeth Regina
1-2. Henricus Comes Cumb.
3-9. Henricus Comes Cumb.
11. Lancelot Pickering ar.[817]
12. Henry Crakenthorpe ar. (ab hoc ad temp. anno 21 Elizabeth sub custodioet gard fuit comitis de Bedford Anno 1570 Jan^{ri} et obijt Hen. 2^{0} cuj successit Georgius Co. Cumb. Infra aetatis).
13. Allunus Bellingham ar.
14. Humf. Musgrave ar.
15. Edward Lancaster ar.
16. John Midleton ar.
17-20. Simon Musgrave miles.
21-43. Georgius Comes Cumb. (ia' plaenae aetatis vicecom. Westmorland).

Anno Jacobi Regis 1^{i}.[818.]
3. (Obijt Georg comes Cumbriae vicecom. Westmorland 13 Octob. 1605.

[VI.595]

Temp Car. 1. Temp. Car. 2.
Anna Comitiss[a] Pembrokiæ, Dorsett et Montgom[erie] cujus vicom[es] Tho[mas] Gabetis.[819]

[814] Nos 4, 5 and 7 are blank.
[815] 'Roger Bellingham, Knight, under-sheriff.'
[816] Nos 8 and 9 are blank.
[817] No.10 is blank.
[818] Nos 1-2, 5-15 are blank.
[819] 'Anne, Countess of Pembroke, Dorset and Montgomery, whose sheriff [was] Thomas Gabetis.'

Joha[nn]es Tufton Arm[iger], Filius 2d honorabilis viri [blank] Tufton, comitis Thanet, cujus vicom[es] Tho[mas] Gabetis.[820]
Obijt Johannes Tufton comes Thanet apud Skipton in Craven com[itatu] Ebor[aci] 27^0 Aprilis 1680 circa horam 3am pomer[i]d[iani] cenotaphio commiss[o] per Thoma[m] Machell et alios 12^0 Maij tempore multo mane circa hora[m] 3am et Honorifice sepultus apud Ranham in Com[itatu] Kantis inter majores suos die martis 18^0 Maij An[n]o supradicto cuj successit.[821]
Richard Tufton (frater Joh[ann]is) comes Thanet ~~cujus vice~~ cujus vice Tho[mas] Gabetis[822] cui successit. Thomas Tufton comes Thanet, frater prædicti Johan[n]is et Rich.[823]

Cujus vice
Thomas Gabetis.
Jacobus Bird.
Joh[annes Hall.

[II.449]

[Mace Towns][824]

There are 2 mace towns in West[morland] – Apleby & Kendall – whereof Apleby is the County Towne, where the Assises and Sessions have bin kept and holden, even since the reigne of King John. The officers whereby it is governed or that belong thereto, are a Major & Recorder, a court of aldermen, the Towne Clerke & Common Council Men, 2 Chamberlins & Sergeant att Mace, 2 \ Baliffes or / Halberteners, a Coroner, & other officers. Apalby was allwayes for the King in the late wars, and so was the most part of the country, especially the gentry, amongst whome, I may speake it to their & the countryes glory, there was ~~not~~ \ scarce / one round-head, now (as I take it); ~~in Cumberland neither except that [blank] Sir William Lawson~~[825]

[II.450][826]

[Notes on] Cityes, townes, corporate markett & fair {se p.37}

{3.} Peculiars or priviledged places. I know not \ well / what is meant by them. \ Russendall a peculiar & priviledge; Sowerby a priviledge. Sowerby priviledged, being peculiar. / ~~But Apleby is a place of great priviledge, as appears from its charter.~~ Cartes were \ all forfeit by the interposing of Olivers, but renewed by King Ch[arles] 2. /

{4} Cityes ~~wh~~ they have none at present in Westm'land, Carlile being the see for all this county ~~& great part of Cumberland, tho som belong to the Bishop of Chester~~ \ except Kendal Barony. / D[urham]? {Pag. 37} But Apleby is the primarie opidum (ad the commend of Apleby)[827] and is called in Stephanus (e Liber Notitiarum)[828] Urbs Westmariæ Antiq. Tis a towne corporate, govern'd by a

[820] 'John Tufton Esquire, 2nd son of the honourable [...] Tufton Earl of Thanet, whose sheriff [was] Thomas Gabetis.'
[821] 'John Tufton, Earl of Thanet, died at Skipton in Craven in the county of York on the 27th of April 1680 about the 3rd hour of the afternoon, the funeral monument being unveiled by Thomas Machell and others on the 12th of May early in the morning at the third hour. He was buried with honour at Ranham in the County of Kent among his ancestors on Tuesday the 18th of May in the year given above and succeeded by…'
[822] 'Richard Tufton (brother of John Earl of Thanet) whose sheriff [was] Thomas Gabetis.'
[823] '… who was succeeded by Thomas Tufton, Earl of Thanet, brother of the aforesaid John and Richard.'
[824] Machell first named this section, 'Government of Apleby'. A mace is a sceptre or staff of office, resembling an ornamental version of the weapon of war, which is borne before (or was formerly carried by) certain officials. The sergeant at mace was an inferior executive officer carrying the mace as a badge of office. OED.
[825] Two words in the margin here have perished. For more on the 'perfidious' Roundhead, Lawson, see I.76, above.
[826] Also numbered p.13.
[827] 'To the credit of Apleby.'
[828] The Notitia Dignitatum ('The List of Offices') or Liber Notitiarum is a document of the late Roman Empire, detailing the administrative organisation of the Eastern and Western Empires. It describes several thousand offices from the imperial court to provincial governments, diplomatic missions and army units.

Maior &c. Vid. p. \ 2, / and send[s] out to the House of Parliament, 2 Burgesses \ sub finem. /[829] Here in this parish* about a mile and ½ from Apleby, is a pleasant seat belonging to the Diocess of Carlile cal'd Buly Castle, on the other side of Eden opposite to Crakentho[r]pe Hall
{*No. Buly Castle was formerly contriverted but now is reputed to be in Morland.}

\ Apulby / Its situation. How many churches? \ 2 / Castle, schoole, hospital &c. Apleby was allwayes for the King \ in the late wars / & so was the most part of this country, especially the gentry, there being not one who tooke armes aganst, but many for him, & sufferd, \ even / without hopes of reward [though] neither ever \ had or sought for any. /[830]

{A Corporation, p. 8}
Kendall also is an other market. I wish I could say \ not / so famous for loyalty, but ~~I hope hereafter they will wipe of that filth &c.; se its description pes~~. It was so unhappy! & which now I hope is engaged there unto, since the towne was honoured with a Prince of the Blood \ query of Mr King / for better so than to have it staned with their Prince's blood.[831]
{non possu[m] enim non fateri hoc nostram Kendal recentioris esse memoriae, licet non procul ab hinc, magna invenitur romanorum numismatum subinde effossata copia Sc. ad loca ...}[832]

1. A Bottome are 5 market townes: Apleby – Saturday; Kirkby – Munday; Brough – Thorsday; Orton – Wednesday; ~~market on Wednesdays fair~~ Shap.
Fare Townes
Att Apleby, 2 \ Whitmunday & 10 Aug. / beside a f[air] every fortnight from Whits[unday] till Mic[haelmas].
Att Kirkby St[ephen], 2: both towne & beasts. Whitsuntide & St Luke.
Att Brough ~~Thorsday~~ Fairs 19 & 21 of September.

2. In the Barony ~~besides Kendall~~ are 4 market townes.
\ Kendall, / Ambleside, Burton & Kirkby Loansdall.

Fare townes, 5.
Att Kendall, 2 }
Ambleside, 2 } in the yeare.
Burton, 2 }
Kirkby Loansdall, 2 }
{q.} Millthrop, 1. } May 1ˢᵗ perpet. It is no mark[et]

Orton: query? ~~Market on Wed.~~ A f[air] Friday before Whitsuntide.
Shap [blank]

[II.451][833]

(a.) Note ad (a) that here wants a catalogue of the names of the petty constablewicks \ of each Hundred / in the relation of the Bottome of W.
(b.) Which are compleat in the other relation of the Barony of Kendal, but that is not a thing very considerable.

[829] A scored-through addition here reads, MS: '(~~whereof the one is the Honorable Mr [?] & the other~~ {Dub?})'; the name is difficult to decipher.
[830] One word has been damaged here.
[831] See Part 2, Ch.1, Barony of Kendal, II.11.
[832] '{For I cannot but admit this, that our Kendal is of fairly recent memory, although not far from here is found an abundance of Roman coins that have been dug out from there, that is, at places ...}' Some of the Latin text is obscured by the binding.
[833] Also numbered p.4.

c. The names of the parishes are awanting, not so in the Barony of Kendall (sed porru[s] forsan ref)[834] yet tis to be noted that in the Barony in generall are sett downe 7 parishes where 5 onely are nominated, with one chaple to make 6. Query de Burton ~~chap.~~ if it be a parish \ as / there are 18 chaples ~~& churches of ease in the Barony~~ beside.
{ad \ fig. / 2.} Note that the Bottom of West[morland] is both more fertile & populous as may be gatherd from there [they] have more Hundreds, more parishes in those Hundreds, & fewer ~~churches~~ ~~&~~ chaples of ease, notwithstanding any thing that former wr[i]ters from falce suggestions have presented to the contrary. More Castles, gentlemen's seats, market townes, more Constablewicks – yet the other [has] richer rood[835] trade.
{c.} Vid. in map of W. He sayes we have 33 parish churches, & here T.J. he sayes we have 33 in the Bottom of W. Query: in Speed & Camden.[836]

[II.452][837]

Houses of the Nobility & Gentry [and other places] ad general

{Vid. imprimiss 5. Do this by col[umn]}
Wharton Hall, the seat of Lord Wharton; Howgill Castle, of Sir Richard Sandford; Lowther, of Sir John Lowther; Sokbrige, of Sir John Lowther; & houses of nobility and gentry.
Apleby, Brough, Browham & Pendragon Castles, the seates formerly of the Viponts, after of the Cliffords by marr[riage] & now, given by K.J., the habitation the Right Hon. Ann, Countiss of Pen[broke], Dowager of Dorset & Montgomery. Noble by nature as well as birth, the north star in whome that family is now ~~about~~ most gloriously ~~to expire~~ \ about to set. /[838] {Se Appendix p.3, par 6. Li[bro] tit[ulo] Haius.}[839]
Hartley Castle, formerly of that famous war[rior] Sir Andrew Har[cla] \ comm end melior ad Kendal Castle, seat of the Pars / who &c., now the seat of Sir Philip Musgrave, that worthy \ gentleman / who onely had the \ good / fortune to be rewarded or taken notice of.
Howgill Castle, the seat of the ~~Sandfords~~ Sir Richard Sandford, Baronet.
Buly Castle, the seat proper of the Bishop of Carlile, but let to Sir Christopher Musgrave, 2[d] son to Sir Phillip.
Crakenthorpe &c. whsoe Armes &c. are \ Sable 3 greyhound & de omnibus. /
Bolton, Kirkbythore, & vid. in my description of the gentry of Westm'land.
So on to the Barrony \ so S. back N. /

Castles
They have Apleby, Browham, Brough, Pen-dragon, Hartley, Howgill, Buly \ & Kendal in the Barony [of Kendal] / to which may be [added] those ancient ruines which still bear the names of castle, tho som of 'em are more properly ~~to be~~ castra: viz. Maiden-Castle on the top of Stanemore (vid. map; note sub finem)[840] & Maybrough Castle, near that noble fortification called the Round Table. {Vid. pag. prae prim.}[841]
Ad Kendall Castle \ & Whellop Castle of the Catuli, whence Machell / are ancient & noble ruine, the seat of Lord Par; the ancestors of Lord Parr of Rayland in Wales were borne here: vid. plu p.8 et ineo libello de Westm'land. ~~Get the names the parishes~~.

---

[834] '… but perhaps research [this] for definite.'
[835] 'Rood': a variant of 'road' in this context. OED.
[836] Westmorland was then divided between the dioceses of Carlisle and Chester; Camden calculated that there were 93 churches in Carlisle diocese, 256 in Chester diocese, and 26 parishes in the whole of Westmorland: see Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 162, 763.
[837] Also numbered p.5.
[838] Lady Anne Clifford died in 1676.
[839] Book with the title 'Haius'. Perhaps Machell was referring to Dr Hay: See Part 2, Ch.2, Kendal Town, II.41, Dr Haius (Hay).
[840] 'See the map, note, towards the end.'
[841] 'See the page before the first.'

{Places of Note}
Monastryes, one fryeredge att Apleby of the Order of White Fryers.[842] Vid libelo tract de Apleby; Shapp Monastery, vid. Speed; St Nicholas dub, vid. not de Apleby School; vid etiam in the Barony of Kendal but I thinke there are none.
{Se p. 66. Query} Hospitalls at Apleby, one. Its foundation; when endowed.[843] Kendal query?[844]
{Query?} Schooles: Apleby, & vid. Mr Wases, his note.[845] Some free, some private. Colleges, none.[846]

[II.454][847]

[Mills]
{Water mills, not numbered}
A country of river of water so plentifull that you can not place your selfe, I believe, a mile from a corne mill. There are great store of water mills in the bottome of Westmorland, almost at every village, by reason that this part of the country is so \ very / well watered. You can scarce to [be] placed \ at / a mile distance from one in any part of the country*? Such like in the Barrony there is no want ~~or scarcity~~ of them, for I doe not remember that I ever se a winde-mill in the county ~~of Westm'land~~, notwithstanding the advantage there hills would ~~give~~ \ afford / them ~~for such con~~ above other places. Se the particular number, p.8. Se upon Kent: 11 milnes†.

{Beacons}
There are 5 or 6 beacons in Westm'land; to witt, Apleby beacon, \ Owseley beacon neare unto Crakenthorp, / Orton beacon, Hayfel beacon, Farrleton Knot or Knok beacon, & Kendall beacon; and an other, I thinke, on Whinfell. They give or take warning from Penereth beacon in Cumberland or from Engleburrow Top in Yorkeshire‡.

{Bridges named in Kendal} ⸸
Viz. over Kent: 9. viz Barly-bridge, Boulston bridge, Burneshed bridge, Strammongate Brigg in Kendal, Nether bridge, Mill-brig, Haws-brig, Force-brig & Leaven bridge.
Over Leun: ~~7 over &~~ Streight-brig, Higland br, Marwith b., Kirkby brigg & Lancaster brigg, but that bridge is ~~in~~ \out of / the County of Lancaster \ Westm'land. /

{Mountaines not numbered}
The mountains are so numerous there, where they are commonly calld by the name of fells, that it would be tediouse to give accompt of them, the barony of Kendall for the most part consisting of hills & dales, and the Bottom of Westm'land being so invironed with a rainge of montaines that, when you are att Apleby or any part of the midle of that vaile, you would thinke your selfe incirckled by them as with a round bulwerke.

{Crosfell}
But the most remarkeable are Crosfell \ in Cumberland / which commonly gives us the first signe of the winters approach by putting on its snowy cap.

---

[842] Carmelites.
[843] See Wiseman, 'Medieval Hospitals of Cumbria', 88-89.
[844] Kendal: The hospital of St Leonard, founded by the Lancaster family, barons of Kendal, was primarily a leper hospital; it occupied a site in Scalthwaiterigg, north-east of the town, now known as Spital farm, Wiseman, 'Medieval Hospitals of Cumbria', 90-91.
[845] Christopher Wase's Survey, see II.10, above.
[846] II.453 contains brief notes as follows, MS: '3. Whinfell, Kendall, Farleton Knot near Haverigg. 4. Apleby, Orton Hay f. Farleton & Kendal an upon [obscured by the binding]. Fertill in the general description. Brig. the waters. Morton Pike, Knock Pike, Dufton Pike, Roman Fell, Cross Fell a Emoe forsan. Hugh Seat Hill for 3 rivers.'
[847] Also numbered p.7.

[Machell's Notes: II.454]
*If it be necessary to have the number & names, enquire of T.J. how many stand upon each severall river, with the bridges also.
†It were a better method to treat 1[t] of rivers, then of bridges & mills, then of mountains & beacons. Nay. 1[t] mountaines, then rivers, bridges & milnes.
‡Ep. 5 ad fin.[848]
⸸There are many bridges also in the ~~Bottom of W~~; to witt on Eden [blank], on [blank], on [blank] besides other lesser waters & brookes: as Colby &c. Vid. answer to the last query into the north.
Hascat Hill. 3 river.
Stanemore: Roman works.
Se my Booke de Altari[bus][849] at furrowes.[850]

[II.455][851]
{8} Warrens &c. Hornby to Birbeck; Woodside, Whinfel \ & Browham / to the Countiss; Lowther to Sir John Lowther; \ Cliburn, Crakenthorpe / Dalan Banke to Mr Dalston.

{8} Commons. \ Every towne & village has one. / There is one which belongs to Mouls Meaburne (alias Mauds Meaburne) which is remarkeble for a rare prospect; for att an uppinstone upon the midle thereof, ~~whence~~ you may see 5 castles: \ to wit, Apleby &c., / beside many gentlemens houses, and this ~~is~~ in the way twixt Kendall and Apleby. There is an other such like place at Husheat.

{8}[852] [Woods.] \ Woods lately destroyed. /
Dufton Wood flourished very lately, out which were cut above 6,000 oakes. And in this wood a strange sort of foole,[853] which they called an Osper\eay / (which was a great devourer of fish) used to build (se its nat.) Musgrave, Hartley, Morland ~~Parke~~ \ Wood / also, which belongs to the Dean and Chapter of Carlile, was quite cut downe since the King came in, & so was part of Lownthwaite which belongs to Howgill.
But there is yet standing these very remarkeble ones {all Oake} to witt Lownthwate, which belongs to Sir Richard Sandford; Bankwood, to Mr Robert Hilton; & other 2 greater than the rest: to wit Whinfeld & Flakebrigg, both which belong to the Countiss of Penbrooke. {And beside these there are many others.} And in Flakebrig tis observeable that great store of cranes build in the north end thereof towards Brampton, and no place I know of in England beside.

[II.456][854]
Staine More, where Maden Castle the Romane fort &c. Se my booke & the map of the Bot. of W. ad finem. & Knock Pike. 3 round hills ascending \ piked / in manner of a pyramid unde pikes appellatur.[855]

{Martindale M[ountain]s Fells}
The vast fells twix Shap & Kendall, which are [blank] miles over, barren ~~of corne & & wood~~, utterly unarable & destitute all over, both of trees & corne ~~whence is that Westm'land for the most part~~ \ inagistament peete[856] / is accompted barren; ~~for I thinke \ allmost / the greater halfe is taken up in mountains~~. But other partes, especially in the Bottom of Westmorland on the fertill bankes of the noble River Eden, are so plentifully stored with corne of all sorts, woods, meadows & pasturage, that it \ ever / hath ~~ever had~~ enough to supply its owne ~~wants & the~~ necessityes \ & / often times \ to supply the wants / of the neighbouring \ people / ~~countyes~~ in Yorkeshire & bishopric with corne & hay.-But notwithstanding the fells being un-arable and unfit for husbandry, yet they bring their

[848] 'Epistle 5, towards the end.'
[849] 'Book concerning altars.'
[850] The transcribed text here is accurate, but the meaning is unclear.
[851] This note-page also contains the margin comment, MS: '{Pike: why}'.
[852] All three '{8}' have been transcribed as seen.
[853] I.e. fowl.
[854] Also numbered p.9.
[855] 'From which it is called pike.'
[856] 'Without agistament and peats.'

commodity along with them. They are a great defence against winde & cold, which is a reason why the \ lower / places is so fertill, notwithstanding the clime, which other men having \ only / respect to, & not knowing the advantage of its situation, have forthwith concluded that it must of necessity be a barren place.[857]

[II.471]

Of Quarries & mines in W[estmorland]

{Several for free stone}
Apleby – bad – r[ed][858]
Dufton – good – r[ed]
Howgill – good – r[ed]
Bolton More – w[hite]
Heights (Hoff Linn) – w[hite]

Limestone
Bramton More
Nuby & Morland
And in all places, both of East & Westward, & such like in the Barony
Stanemore

Slates
Dufton & Stainemoore

Millstone & Grindstone
~~Hornby~~ near Udfoot Boote at Hornby[859]
Whinfield
Meldon
Meaburne

Coal
Stanemore
Regill, Slegill
Helton & som at ~~Howgill~~ Milburn

Lead
Helbeck, Dufton
Murton, Harkley
~~forsan Howgill~~ sed de hoc q?[860]
Milburn
{Applethwate, a Paper Mill ~~near~~ \ in / a little above Troutbeck brege}

[II.472]

{Lead mines}[861]
~~We~~ \ they / have great store of lead all up & downe our fells. They digg it in great plenty att Dufton, Murton & Helbeck in the Bottom of Westm'land.

{Iron Mines}
There are iron mines also in the said place at Buly Castle near Apleby.[862]

---

[857] This paragraph has been lightly scored through.
[858] An interlineated phrase here is partly illegible; the place-name has a query after it and 'Ind' for 'indifferent'.
[859] Udford boat ferry?
[860] 'But I query this'.
[861] MS.II.465 also references lead mines: '{Lead mines; also Murton & Helton Lordship.} For lead mines. Helbeck, Harcley & \ Milburn Fell / Dufton lordship present them with great plenty.'
[862] This is mentioned briefly on MS.II.471.

{Lime v. p.9}
Lime at Newby, Morland, Brampton & severall other places.

{Freestone}[863]
Freestone att Apleby \ bad, / Dufton, & Read {?}[864]
Bolton More; white & where Colby Tower stone came from,
Hoflun Heightes, White.
Slates or tiles at Kings Meaburne, Dufton, Warcop Fell, Brough.
Plaster of Paris:[865] K[irkby Thore] Murton.
Allabaster? \ or plaster / att [Blank]
Milston & grindston at Meaburne, Udfoote & Whinfell &c.
Silver, gold & copper. \ At Silveray – none but Lead. /

[II.456]

{Stone of the fells: coale, limestone, slate, ore}[866]
There is allso in these fells, which are no smale commodityes: great store of cole & freestone, grindstone, milston and lyme. (Particular upon Stainemore where / ~~the best coals diged, which we have in England~~ they \ have excellent coal / the best in the country, which / burne like pitch yet free from any unpleasant \ savour / ~~sulfurious smell~~; and they leve behind them a sort of sinder after they are burn'd, which will make a \ 2^{d} / fire as bright as charcoal \ and which is used for drying of malt. / Att Regill \ and Slegill / also they have coles, but not ~~comparable to these~~ so good, which ~~this~~ plenty of coal makes ~~your~~ wooden fewell ~~hereabouts as cheep that you may have there~~ \ of less account, being seldom sold but for gryves[867] & smelt mills / in copses for cutting them up, for they serve them in noe steed save only for hedging.
For limestone. Brampton \ Meaburne, Lowther & all or most of the west side /of Eden, ~~Mor~~ Morland & Newby, which stand upon rockes of that sort, & severall other places. See pag.24, infra.

[II.455]

{Cristall}
Also a sort of X'all, which if might be of ~~some~~ use if there were ~~stone cutters or~~ lapidaryes to dress \ & cut / them: Sc. Artem[is]. Sir Phi[lip][868] had one put in a ring.[869]

[II.456]

{Forrests; Parkes}

~~Valley dayles~~ Chases, forests, woods, groves, parkes, commons, warrens. Heaths: \ none but Cleburne, tho Whinfell & Woodside be very lingey[870] / se the collums.
The inhabitants of Westm'land have bin (and are) great lovers of hunting, & therefore this place hath very much abounded with forests & parkes, tho the greatest part be destroy'd att this day

[863] MS.II.456 also references free stone: 'Free stone: Apleby, Dufton, Bolton More, Howgill and severall other places.'
[864] Written as seen. Perhaps Machell meant to write, '& Dufton read'. Read = red.
[865] Gypsum.
[866] MS.II.472 also references coal: 'Coales att Stanemore Pitts & Regill \ & Slegill / and same to be found on Milburn fell.'
[867] 'Greaves': brushwood, branches, twigs. OED.
[868] Musgrave.
[869] The amethyst was named after Amethystos, a female follower of Artemis, who was turned into crystal to save her from attack by tigers loosed by Dionysus. His wine-stained tears of remorse turned the crystal purple. See E.L. Abel, Intoxication in Mythology: A Worldwide Dictionary of Gods, Rites, Intoxicants and Places (Jefferson, NC, 2006), 16-17.
[870] 'Ling' is the northern English name for heather, and also for heathland; therefore, 'lingey' is 'heathery'. OED. See II.460 below.

[II.457]

by incurtions of the Scotts – & wars, so that most of em now retaine onely the name of parkes or forests.

[IV.28]

{Great plenty of wood in the N[orth]}
I thinke the County of Westmorland and Cumberland has bin all clad with wood from the top of Stanemore to Carlile as it may thus be traced; the Forest of Stanemore, the forest of Ketland or Sandford (Owsley), the forest of Oglewood or Whinfell out of which [blank] were given away every yere to [Blank] which extend near to Brough Castle. Then the forest of [Inglewood] in Cumberland, all over the Penrith fell to beyond Hutton which is Hutton in the Forest, I think that I have heard say that it appeard from old evidence that the country people petitioned King J. that it might be cutt downe in several places to the end that [persons] might goe to markets with more securitye, many wolves being shelterd in those woods. Besides these, the forest of Mallerstang, Morland W[ood], Gilshuelin, Low Paneworth, Hornby, Acorn Banke, Lownt[hwaite], Howgill, Dufton, Marton, Flakebridge, Burthwate, Burton &c.

[IV.29]

But then it was as cheap as plentifull, for all that of Sandford was sold for [Blank] markes and an horse; And I heard my [blank] telling that his great grandfather bought in Lownthwate since Henry the 8th time, 100 large Oackes for 5li that then belonged to the Salkelds; & with this his grandmother B[r]ougham Hadd was, so that her husband made this jeast of her 'that \ she / carryed on her head an 100 Oake trees all att once.'[871]

[III.321]

Carta Antiqua [Forests and Wastes]

{Cart[a] Gilb[er]ti fil[ij] Rog[eri] fil[ij] Reinfr[edi]}
Richardus dei gratia Rex Anglie, Dux Norman[norum]. xc. Archiepiscopis, Episcopis, Abbibus, Comitibus, Baronibus, Justi[ciarij]s, Senescall[i]s, viris Com[itatus] Forestar[um], et omnib[u]s balijs, et fidelibus: Salutem. voluimus et concedimus, et p[re]senti Carta confirmavimus:
Quod Gilb[e]r[t]us fil[ius] Rogeri, fil[ij] Reinf[redi], et heredes sui post eum h[ab]eant et teneant ita integre libere et quiete totam forestam suam de Westmerland, et de Kendall, et de Furneissus [?], sicut Will[ielmu]s de Lancaster filius Gilb[ert]i ea[m] umqu[am] melius, et integrius, liberius et quietius tenuit, et h[ab]uit et per ea[sdem] divisas et quod h[ab]eant Forestam illam, quam dedi[mu]s eidem Gilb[ert]o et heredibus suis in Kendall cum 6 librat[a] terr[e], ita bene, integre, lib[er]e, et quiete, sicut Nigell de Albin[..] eam umqua[m] melius, integrius, liberius, et quietius h[ab]uit et tenuit : volu[imu]s et co[n]cedimus quod, id quod wast[um] fuit in boscis de Westmerland, et de Kendale, t[em]p[or]e p[re]fati W[illielm]i de Lancaster fili[j] Gilb[ert]i, totum id adhuc wastum sit, excepta purp[re]stura facta p[er] licencia[m], et Consens[um] d[omi]noru[m] feodi de Kendall et de Westmerland : Quare vol[uimu]s, et firmiter p[re]cipimus quod nullus iniustus forisfacere p[re]sumat ipsi Gilb[ert]o vel heredibus suis de suprano[m]i[na]t[i]s sup[er] forifactura[m] mea[m] 10 librarum.
Testibus W[illiel]mo Comit[e] de Arundell, W[illiel]mo Marescall, W[illiel]mo de H[?] Constabulario, Rogero de Pratell Dap[ifer], Stephano de Turnham. Datum p[er] manu[m] Joh[ann]is de Alencu[m] Archiadiacon[i] vicecancellarij Lexon[i]. xvo die Aprilis regni mei Anno primo apud Lvenes.[872]

---

[871] This extract can be found in a transcript of ancient Vipont deeds; see MS.IV.29-31.

[872] 'Ancient Charter {Charter of Gilbert son of Roger son of Reinfred.} Richard by the grace of God King of England and Commander of the Normans, etc., sends greetings to the Archbishops, the Bishops, Abbots, Earls, Barons, Judges, Stewards, men of the Forest Court, and all the bailiffs and loyal men. We have willed and granted and by this present Charter have confirmed: That Gilbert son of Roger son of Reinfred and his heirs after him should have and hold his whole forest of Westmorland and of Kendall and of Furness as completely, freely and peaceably as William of Lancaster son of Gilbert ever held and possessed it, better, more completely and peaceably and along the same boundaries; and that they should have that Forest which I gave to the same Gilbert and his heirs in Kendall along with 6 pounds worth of land, completely, freely and peaceably as well as Nigell of Albin ever had and held it, better, more completely, freely and peaceably. We have willed and granted

[II.458][873]

{Forrests}
Mallerstang Forest. Bar. W.[874]
Iu/EuBank For. On Stainmore. Bar. W.
Kitland Forrest. Belonging to Apleby. Bar. W.
Meldon For. Belonging to Dufton
Ogglebird Forrest: antiq, or Whinfell. Bar. W.
Martindale Forrest. Bar. W. R[eplenished]
Naddel Forrest. Bar. W.
Raflen Forrest. Bar. W.

[Parks]

All these in the Barony of Westm'land.

Whinfield parke, Bott. West.[875]	Replenished
Barton pk., Bott. West.
Lowther pk, Bott. West.	Replenished
Sattera pk.
Thornthwaite pk., Bott. W.
Ravenstondale pk, Bott. W.	Replenished
Wharton pk, Bott. W.	Replenished
Harcley pk, Bott. W.	Replenished
~~Hutton park~~
Crosby Gill pk. Bott. W.
Apleby Castle park. Bott. W.	Demolished
Crakenthorp Hall pk. Bott. W.	Demolished.
Buly Castle Pk.	Demolished.
Martin pk. Bott. W.
Hack Thorp, Bar[ony] W.

[Barony of Kendal]

Kentmere pk
Standley pk	? an for Standley
Troutbeck pk
Conswick pk	?
Witherslack pk.	Replenished
Syzer pk	?
Brigstere pk
Lakerig pk	An pro Loughrig
Natland pk
Leavins pk.	? Replenished
Cowhunhead pk	belongs to Bu[r]neshead
Skelsmergh pk	?
Docker pk
Lamrig pk	?

---

that the waste which was in the woods of Westmerland and of Kendall, in the time of the aforesaid William of Lancaster son of Gilbert, all this still be waste, excepting the encroachment made by licence and consent of the lords of the fee of Kendall and of Westmerland: wherefore we have willed and strictly ordered that none unjustly presume to exact forfeiture from Gilbert himself or his heirs concerning the above mentioned, on pain of a penalty to me of 10 pounds. Witnesses: William Earl of Arundel; William the Marshal; William of H[...], Constable; Roger of Pratell, Steward; Stephen of Turnham. Given by the hand of John of Alencum, Archdeacon; vice-chancellor of Lexon[?] XVth day of April, in the first year of my reign, at Levens.'

[873] Also numbered p.11.

[874] Barony of Westmorland.

[875] Bottom of Westmorland (Barony of Westmorland).

Killington Hall pk R??
Midleton Hall pk ?
Holme pk

[Addenda]
Grayrigg Forrest
Forresthall Forrest
Hutton parke
Sattera parke

Putt them both together
Parkes – 31. Forrests –10.

It is well wooded, both in the Barrony & Bottom of Westm'land, both with timber trees & underwood. Theire upper wood is gennerally okes or ashes or birches. For okes: Whinfell, Flake brigg and Lownthwaite are famous; \ but / Crakenthorp is so strong & tenatious, that a[ll] pale in c[ompariso]n.[876] Allso Dufton & Morland Wood, lately cut downe. For ashes, Crakenthorpe parke has been famous, & so for the generall are all the bankes of Eden. For birches, the forrest of Ogglebird, ut puto[877] in Whinfel.[878]

[II.460][879]
In Whinfell Parke att Julian Bower, is a very pleasant and stately grove of trees; so att Howgill Lordship.[880]

Warrens[881]
There are many warrens also, the best whereof are ~~Birbeck of~~ (2) Hornby & (1) Whinfield Woodside belonging to the Cliffords \ ~~de Apleby & Browham Cast[les]~~ / Ea[r]les of Cumberland ~~& High Sherifs of Westm'land~~, now to the Hon. the Countiss of Penbrooke, ~~in whome the family is extinct~~. ~~And att Lowther~~. \ No. /

[Horse and Foot Racing on Heaths, Moors and Commons]

{Act of Parliament} {Hence called Westmoreland: a natural reason}
Now this co/un/tryt ~~being~~ \ of old being the seat of war & / perpetually infested with the Scotts, even till of late yeares, could not husband there ground, & \ so well / improve it, so much as remoter places \ which lye further from Scotland; / so that theire fields were \ therefore fewer, & non so large as those in the south, / but ~~little and there~~ moores ~~great~~ in ~~their~~ commons \ were more large & more frequent / ~~great whence the more southerly people in Bishopric & some parts of Yorke called the place Westmoreland & / as they doe to this day~~, whence the people of Yorkshire & Bishoprick, which lyes east from hence & made better improvement of their part of the country, calld this \ Westmoreland. / And the ~~people of this country &~~ inhabitants ~~of Cumber~~, west country men, as they doe to this day.

{! Cliburn Ling}
Heaths also, there are not a few, commonly called in that country Lings, but the place which beares the name more especially is Cliburne Ling, a fine plane moore where theres a horse course, formerly [876] Severely truncated words, squeezed onto the end of a line.

[877] 'As I think', see the Latin Glossary.
[878] II.459 contains the note: MS: 'se Surveyors dialog. about mannors': John Norden, The Surveyor's Dialogue.
[879] Also numbered p.13.
[880] Most of this word has perished.
[881] Machell occasionally noted rabbit warrens (see Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, I.161); for rabbit husbandry in Westmorland, see Jeremy R. Robinson and Kevin Grice, 'Cunswick Hall: An archaeological and historical survey of a Lakeland manor', CW3, 18 (2018), 149-68, at 153-56, particularly Figure 6, an illustration of a medieval warren from Queen Mary's Psalter, BL, Royal MS, 2B, VII.

so famous that when they would commend a good horse, indeed they usually say, he's as good an horse as ever run over Cleberne Ling.[882]
{Memorandum: the[y] kill fat sheep of Crakenthorp & Kirkby Thore moors}

[II.462][883]

{Asby Maske; Sowerby – Games}
Now these mores or commons for the generallyty are not ruff & stony, but ~~very~~ plane & champion ~~ground~~, in so much that there is scarce one that has not an horse course ~~att some Holy Day or other yearly~~ upon it the people of Sowerby: as Sandford-More, Bram[p]ton-More, Speedy-More formerly ~~but now improvd to a better use~~ Kirkby Thore-Moore\ Sowerby More, / where on St James Daye[884] are Races for great horse & little; men & boyes & women; with pitching, throwing of the ham,[885] shooting with the bow, bowling, leaping, dancing and such like active exercises are constantly perform'd. \ Her[e] the proverb, now you lowse quoth Lance Machell, had its beginning. / [886]

{Foote Race at Shap Thorne}
So Strikland-Head, Shap Thorne, where a famous race was, twixt one \ Clousdall – a famous runner or footman / supposed to be the best, ~~runner in the country~~, & ~~a neighbouring gentleman who in his mirth, offerd to run with~~ \ my own father, LM of C Esq., who, one time, boasting of his agility was undertaken, ~~this country fell~~ by a country gentleman, a relation of mine, ~~who~~, upon some advantage given before, with the biggest & heavyest man in the county \ one Robert Pattison of Woodside: [on] his back, / ~~the proposal being accepted on~~ & he won the race; and afterwards bett him on even termes.

{Foote race at Apulby buts}
The same gentleman \ in a frolike / being at bowles att Apleby with a minister of the towne \ one Mr Rowland, a nauble gentle man / & som other gentlemen, bett him there with an ~~horse~~ \ colt / on his back. And this instance may serve to show they are hefty & active men in these northern parts.[887]

Vales & Dales

There are many dales I have formerly intimated: Bretherdale, Hegdale \ Hicabdale: a gill not inhabited but with eagles, / Hardendale, Langdale, Mardale, Martindale, Mallerstangdale? Odendaile, Patterdale,[888] \ Matterdale, Ravenstonedale, \ Russendale, / Swindale, Smardale, Stainmoredale, ~~in the~~ about the ~~Bottom~~ Barony of Westmorland. All the Barony \ of Kendall / consists of dales, and is generally called, as ~~I said~~ before, by the name of Kendall.
{Dales. Bretherdale; Hicabdale is a gill where non in-habit.}

[II.470]

[Notes on] places where battle have been fought

See my Itinerary &c. (This query must be sent to T. Jackson & have recourse to Camden & Speed) \ Brough. / Bring in there that of Orton; that of Martin Parke as supposed, Jock Green & Battleburrow. Clifton rutra et Low\ther/ Brig, Sandford More, a[nd] probably Bowton Owse-fould, description of this! The neighbouring people report an Horation battle twix 3 M.[889] & 3 other bro[thers] (th[is] had almost hapned at Brampton tue them & thre Craken.[890] But the Crak. declined it.

---

[882] MS: '… they usually say ~~doe it proverbially thus~~, \ say / he's \ as good an / ~~the best~~ horse \ as / ~~that~~ ever run over Cleberne Ling.'
[883] Also numbered p.15.
[884] 25 July.
[885] Hammer?
[886] For this proverb's meaning, see II.353, below.
[887] Machell scored through most of this paragraph's final sentence. The minister, 'Mr Rowland', does not appear in Carlisle Diocese in CCED.
[888] 2cm of illegible text is scored through here.
[889] 'Machells'.
[890] 'Crackenthorpes'.

[II.472][891]

Lodges. Arable Ground

{(a.)} I am so much a stranger to the forests in Westm'land that I know but one Lodge, i.e. in Whinfell parke calld Julian Bower.[892]

[The Sea]

The Sea doth not touch on any part Westm'land save on the South West where a little creeke comes upp at Milthorpe; & at Meathope over aganst the said place, they make salt. {Query: Haver in W. Salt made at Meathop.}

[Wells]

{Clifton Wells}
~~We~~ They have severall springs but few here will make use of 'em by way of medicine. Clifton Wells were once much celebrated, but are now layd aside; for the people commonly when they are not well will rather chuse to drink ~~fast than~~ \ a good posset than a cup of / cold water. There was a report \ said to be removed / that these wells were first discovered in a misers ground, who grudched[893] that the country should have access to them without paying him money \ for treading his ground; / after which they dryed up there & broke out ~~agane att another place~~. \ of a rock in another place where they now are. /
{New Well, Lady Well and Keld-Skell […][894] Chapel-Well}
~~The well at~~ Shap Well is a great rarity. The Lady Well at Apalby near which [was] a medicine well di[scovered] 1693 cures stigh wormes.[895]
Caud Kell att Apleby & the Chaple Well att Crakenthorpe, which sprinkes out on the top of an hill, ~~have bin much frequented of old~~ \ have known – [been] resorted to, with an opinion of once medicinal qualities. / But the wells of Clifton were in great repute non about 20 years since, concerneing them it was then reported.

[Notes on soil, crops and husbandry]

{Soyle in the Bottom of W.}
All the Bottom of Westm'land is ground fitt for all sort of husbandry, having plenty of pasture: arable & meadow ground. And the fells afford very good pasturage for them in sommer, of which this county breads ~~great~~ store \ of all sortes / both large & little.

[II.473][896]

All the Bottome of W. hath great store of arable and meadow ground & groweth great store of corn of all sorts. (And great improvements have bin made by industriouse husbandry but especially with lime, wherewith they usually manure their grounds.) T.J.

{Fells & Commons}
Upon the mountains & commons are kept great store of sheep; and likewise, great plenty of cattle in the country. {But the little sheep are here the greatest & most dilicate mutton.}

{Soyle of the Barony [of Kendal]}
And in the Barony, about Langdale, Loug[h]rigg, Ambleside, Troutbeck, Ridall & there about it is mountaineouse, in which places they keep very many sheepe. {P.10 Notes} About Kendall they have good store of arable ground, & in Loansdall Ward there is more, for the most part there is pasture &

[891] Also numbered p.25, a continuation of II.470.
[892] II.471 originally contained: MS: '(a.) Besides Julian Boors, there is Lammersed Hall lodge near my Lord Wharton's Parke (vid. if it have such a parke) and Wharton Hall'.
[893] 'grudged'.
[894] Four words are illegible here.
[895] Sty worm: an eye infection caused by an eye parasite. OED.
[896] MS.II.473-480, contains descriptions of the Roman road from Stanemore to Brougham, alluding to Roman finds, Whelp Castle, the Hartshorn tree and the leap by Michael Scott: all given fuller treatment elsewhere.

arable, and there they bread very good cattle. In this country they breed excellent horses, both for sadle & race.

[Notes on]Roman Wayes and Antiquities

{The Roman Way}
There is one which strike through the \ Bottom / of Westmerland. ~~I mean~~ the Bottom from Roy † eastwards to Browham Castle westwards. {P.5 Appendix. Maden Castle}
It is reported to goe twix Carlile & Yorke. It passes through the ruines of a \ [square][897] fort or / building (~~or fortification~~) called Maiden Castle, which is on the ~~top~~ \ edge / of ~~that huge mountaine~~ \ of Stanemore Fell and about / 2 miles distant from ~~Roy~~ Rere Cross ~~And~~ \ most of which lyes / on the North E. side of the cross, is a large Romane worke or fortification which is about 500 yards square with 3 or 4 enterances on each side. \ There are many old Romane workes.[898] /

{Brough Castle fall: a Tradition.}
This Romane Way carryes you through Burgh (or \ olim / Verteræ, a Romane station) where there is an old castle, som part thereof, the inhabitants ~~will~~ tell you, fell on that Friday which Our Saviour was crucifyed; and \ there is / ancient tower called Cæsars not long since repaird […][899] but lately demolished. […][900] Soe it goes along down the Bottom of Westm'land by Sandford More, where tis [II.474][901] very fair & conspic[uous].[902] & here is a Thorne & a Mire or Bo[g] on the east side \ of which moss. / So it leads by Apleby or Aballaby, a Roman station ~~allso~~ of the Aurelian Moaures, & so along on the same side Crakenthorpe (in which Lordship on Speedy More near Kirkbythore lane) till you com \ ponte sublicio[903] / at Kirkbythore, a plaice of great antiquity. And if it be indeed Gallatus, the principle station of the Brigantes, there has bin a very large castle*. Twas calld Whelp Castle, the seat of, they \ say, / Catuli, who gave \ William Ma. Cat. Sic dictum of Malo;[904] / gave Crak[enthorpe] to his brother Alexander \ hostibus illatum[905] / as appear's from that deed; & it continues in the family to this day, there names being changed into Machell. Here have been digg'd up severall coynes, whereof I have som†.

(On Speedy More is a place called Maden-hold; an other little [blank] called Whores Bound.) 216. Here was [a] Chayce.

[Maiden Bower, Dunstable]
Juxta Du[n]stable in Agro Bedfordiensi. Sic Camden.
In campis ad Austre[m] munitionem quandam castrorum quasi tumultuaria[m] Rotunda forma sed perexigua[m], Maiden Bowre vocita[n]t, ad ipsum chilternicoru[m] colliu[m] descensum vidim[u]s / Aniles de virgine bellatrice ejus incolae fabellas quas deca[n]tant vicinis ipsis relinquo / Romanis omn[ibus] Temporibus floruisse via consularis Romanoru[m], quae suo aggere hic conspicua, docet.[906]

---

[897] Machell has drawn a square shape here.
[898] MS. margin heading: '{Campe at Rere Cross: its dimention}'.
[899] There is an illegible word here.
[900] Initials placed here are partly obscured by the binding.
[901] Also numbered p.27.
[902] Insecure transcription of a blotted word.
[903] The bridge's name comes from the Volscian word 'sublica', meaning 'wood planks'. Ponte sublicio is also an ancient bridge in Rome.
[904] 'Thus, it is said of Malus.'
[905] 'Inflicted on the enemy.'
[906] 'Near Dunstable in the Bedfordshire countryside. Thus Camden: In the country to the south, we have seen a certain camp fortification, seemingly hastily constructed, in the form of a rotunda but very small - they name it Maiden Bowre - at the very descent of the Chiltern hills. I leave to the locals themselves the old wives' tales of its inhabitant which they repeat, concerning a warrior maiden. The consular road, which is evident here from its embankment, shows that it was in existence throughout the Roman period.' Camden's Latin translates

[Machell's Notes: II.474]
*Se my little b[ook] on Alters dig'd up; se my misselanyes.
†Se my cabinet.

[II.476]

{Madon Hold; Madon Way}*
Here also is a Way, which goes from Burwinhall, where Whelp Castle formerly stood, called the Maiden Way {vid p. præprim}.[907] And on Speedy More ~~near Kirkbythore~~ which is about ¼ of a mile hence \ in Crakenthorp / is a ~~round~~ \ square / fortification, with egress & regress, called Maiden Hold. This Maden Way goes from the said Whelp Castle or Burwin Hall directly northwards through \ Milburn Field How gill / ~~Sir Richard Sandford Lordship near Stourgill Castle formerly; now~~ the seat ~~of the Sandfords~~ and takes the \ Cross / Fell through the grounds att Kirkland, streight over the moss and more into Northumberland \ so to Cærvorran by the Picts Wall. /

{Roman Way}
\ But much less than this. / It is called by some the Maiden-Way-over-the-fell, & by som the Roman Way; but ~~not~~ to returne againe and not follow this trail too much out of my way.

{Roman Fell} Sed script[um][908] Rutman Fell
{c} They say thers an aultar {I can finde none} upon this Crosfell \ where is an other camp that has had a towne in it, / but I never had an opportunity to goe & see it.[909]

{Woodside Leap 8 yards}
{d} The other {Roman Way} or casway carryes you a long from Kirkbythore through Temple Sowerby and so by Winfell Parke, where on your right ha[n]d, att a place cald Woodside, there is a leap of one Michaell Scott \ no / which is 9 \ 8 / yards.
(d) The leap is 24 foote, T.J.; which is 8 yards, T.M.[910]

[Machell's Notes: II.476]
*{Som will have this paird with Flint: see Mr Speed: Pocketbook of the Maps of England.}[911]

[II.475]

[Cross Fell]
(c) It is thought there hath bin an aultar on Crossfell, but there not any stones which have characters upon them, T.J.[912]*
Cross Fell a †!!! I rather suppose that it is a cross and that the fell had thence its name, T.M.
Its plane for a great space, and furrow'd now, as tho it had bin plow'd in former dayes; yet it is one of the highest hills & consequently of the coldest places they have in this county. But even in barren differently: 'That this Dunstable was the verie same Station which the Emperour Antonine in his Itinerarie calleth Magioninium, Magiovinium, and Magintum, no man needs to make doubt or to seeke it else where. For besides that it is situat upon the Romanes high way, there are peeces of the Roman Emperors monies found otherwhiles in the fields adjoining round about by the swine-heards, which as yet they terme Madning money, and within a little of the verie descent of the Chiltern hils there is a militarie modell raised up round with a rampier and ditch, such as Strabo writeth the Britans townes were, conteining nine acres of ground, which the people use to call Madning-boure and Madin-boure, in which verie name with a little change Magintum most plainly sheweth it selfe.' See Camden, Britannia (1607, Dana Sutton online edn), Bedfordshire, 6.

[907] 'See the page before the first.'
[908] 'But written as'.
[909] The reference, 'c', is to II.475 (c), below; see comments made by Thomas Jackson (T.J.) and Machell (T.M.).
[910] This sentence was placed originally on MS.II.475.
[911] In 1619 George Humble published a small (10cm x 17cm) cartographic pocket book of Speed's maps entitled*, England Wales and Ireland: their severall counties. Abridged from a farr larger volume: by John Speed and are to be sold by George Humble in pops head alley*. This became known as the 'Miniature Speed': see Katarzyna Lecky, Pocket Maps and Public Poetry in the English Renaissance (Oxford, 2019), 66.
[912] Note from Thomas Jackson, Machell's informant.

places, by the industry of husbandmen, great plenty is procured, which brings to my minde that of the psalmes (Psalme 70.16.) An handful of corne shal be sowne upon the top of the mountaine & the fruite thereof shall shake like the trees of Lebanon.[913]

Machell's Notes: II.475]

*No none. T.M.; nor alters neither.

[II.474]

[Notes on] Monuments of Antiquity

Kirkbythore & its Antiquities

Will. Ma[l]icatulus sic dictus forse quia malu[m] hostibus Intulu[i]t. gave Crak[enthorpe] to his bro Alexa[n]d[e]r (in aplogie for) […][914] Se Append. p.5. Se the other montill descriptio[n] ibid si qua[n]ta Romanorum numismatum copia quot imagines ex auro et Argento conflatae, quot vasa, quot colonae marmoriae, quot epullilia, quot antiqui operis miracula hic eruta fuerunt ex val[or]is relatione percensere velim vereor sane ne omnem fidem superaret […][915] […] 1221 hereabouts, the greatest of which is this and that other in Speedy More in the Lordship of Crackenthorpe, which [is] the seat of that ancient ~~and loyall~~ family of the Machells.

[II.477]

[Brougham and its Antiquities]

{The [Countess] Pillar}

Every year 5^{li} on the 2^{d} of Aprill att 9 a clock, about which hore the Countiss parted with her mother there, and never see her after. Draw the piller & write inscriptions if there be any.

[II.478]

The [Roman] way carryes to Browham Castle demane, which was lately walled about by the Countiss. At the riseing of the hill where this wall meets you, is a pillar sett up which serves passengers by the dyalls there upon to know the time of the day; but it is a memoriall of last parting of the Countiss of Penbrooke and her dear mother Margaret ~~Clifford~~ \ Russell, / Countesse to George Clifford, Earl of Cumb'land. And a table of stone where money is yearly payd to the pooer: query, queiu[n]t?[916] {and 5^{li} payd yearly, but I want the Inscription.}[917]

{Browham Castle Demesne: when walled about [?]}[918]

A little beyond this you have a monument {2 figures in stone} let in the wall which I have sent you, and shall lieve you to the interpr[etation], and an other in the lane which goes to the castle, se lib. Par. V.

{The 2 Towers}

Here are 2 Towers ~~Cæsar &~~ \ the Tower of League & ~~Cæsaris~~ / Paga. The rain has worn it in very deep by its drops. The most beside these was built by Roger Clifford. Tis a princely & noble house.

---

[913] This is from Psalm 72:16, AVB, 'There shall be an handful of corn in the earth upon the top of the mountains; The fruit thereof shall shake like Lebanon: And they of the city shall flourish like grass of the earth.'

[914] The following few words are obscured by the binding.

[915] 'If I wished to enumerate how great an abundance of Roman coins how many statues cast from gold and silver, jars, marble columns, little epics, how many marvels of ancient workmanship have been dug out here with an account of their value, I fear, indeed, that the telling would pass all belief […]'. Blots on this paragraph make it almost illegible.

[916] Machell seems to have written 'quieunt' ('are they able'), but the meaning is unclear; if he had meant 'how much' he would have written, 'quantum'.

[917] See II.477 for more on the Countess Pillar.

[918] These pages are in Machell's hand with some information supplied by his informant, Thomas Jackson, whose words Machell might have copied, but, although not specified as such (but the style of this particular passage suggests it) it is probably a draft passage from a series of reports sent by Machell to Dr John Mill of Oxford University: see Part 3, Ch.3. Roman Antiquities.

[II.477]

{This Roger.}
The inscription over the door when you are in the Court concerneing Rodger is onely this ~~RODGER CLIFFORD DID THIS~~ \ 'This made Roger', in old Text, / for he added much to the castle, that part, I suppose, betwixt the enterance and Pagan Tower. Here the Roman Way crosses the water towards Carlile. Over the enterance of the Pagan Tower att the top of the castle are places for powering downe stones, such as we may suppose were in the tower of Tebez,[919] through which a certane woman cast a piece of a milstone and ~~slew Abim~~ & broke Abimelecks[920] braine peind,[921] so that in great gallantry, least he should be slaine by a woman, he caused his paige to run him through: Judges 9. 53 & 54.[922] Pagan forsan from a man call'd Paganus, a name not unusuall in the Conquer'rs time (se Index of Warwickshire),[923] since whose arrivall most of our castles are thought to have bin built. But see elsewhere I have an account that this castle was probably built since the Conquest, [Blank] de Browham having granted ½ of his demesne.[924]

[II.477]

[Knock Antiquities]
Patri \ suo / honoratissimo Lancelot Machel de Crakenthorp Armigero, tertio pretori opidi hujus Antiquissimi T.M. tertio pretori T.M. filius p[atri] D.D.[925]
I enq[uired] of T.J. whether there was not a gill about Knock where the[re] were some ruines of an old Hall, in order to the discovery of Jone Armestrong who is said to have lived in Knockgill Hall. And he returned me this answer, that there is a plattforme of an old Hallstead att Knock, & 4 tenements called Demaine Tenement and a gill \ ~~not far of~~ / at the towne end. But this does not well square with Jonyes condition; for hee had there neither lands nor leveings of his owne, yet 8 score men dyned in his Hall.[926]

[III.246A][927]

Knock
There is a place in Ireland \ of this name / where a plae is kept the 1^{t} day of June, Com. Longford; and the English n[ame] of it explaines the word, for it is Knock aliis Mons-town \ mestown / i.e. the hill or mountains.[928]

[II.479][929]

{Round Table}
And over the Bridge Att ~~Yeanworth~~ Towne End is a very large Bulworke which they call the Round Table, & not far from that on the right hand as you goe to Yeanworth is an other, where trees are growne up from amongst the stones, & this the Inhabitants call Mabrough Castle \ vid Camden. Opus Vandalorum absim[ile]…[930] 275. /

---

[919] Thebez.
[920] Abimelech.
[921] Peind: peak or apex; an arched or vaulted roof or canopy; a covered passage or entry. OED. Thus, 'the top of his head'.
[922] Judges 9.53-54, AVB, 'And a certain woman cast a piece of a millstone upon Abimelech's head, and all to brake his skull. Then he called hastily unto the young man his armourbearer, and said unto him, draw thy sword, and slay me, that men say not of me, a woman slew him. And his young man thrust him through, and he died.'
[923] 'Pain (alias Pagan)', See Dugdale, Warwickshire, Index of Men's Names, P.
[924] The fraction is blotted; it could be a third rather than a half.
[925] 'To his most honoured father, Lancelot Machel of Crakenthorp Esquire, third mayor of this most ancient town, his son T.M gives this gift.'
[926] MS: 'Yet 8 score men dyned in his Hall. This lordship belon'd of old …'
[927] A torn scrap of paper (6cm x 11cm) pasted onto the page at a later date. This edition places it here because of the association with Knock on II.477. MS.III.246B also contains text with marginalia, but the scrap is too small to read accurately
[928] Knock is an Irish word meaning 'hill': P.W. Joyce, Local Irish Names Explained (Dublin, 1870), 59.
[929] A stray line on II.479 is as follows, 'Here you may take in there such like allso but more fare; at Dufton and the like was in Orton parish.'
[930] 'Work quite different from that of the Vandals'. See Camden: 'the ruines of a Romane fort thereby called Maburg.' Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 776.

The Round Table by some Arthur's castle (sayes Leiland),[931] In vertice montis acclivis et assensu difficilis, vocati Camalot, in Comitatu Somerset, iuxta Evel opidum visuntur intermotui castri expressa vestigia, et egestae Terrae vallum triplex, quod suo ambitu xx jugera includit. Inde Arthuri palatiu[m] dicu[n]t Romanoru[m] autem opus fuisse numismata rom[anorum] docent .99. Mabrough. huic forsan non absimile est sepime[n]tu[m] Illud militare juxta Heilston in Cornwall. Cuius meminit Cambdenus: Illud emin[entia], e congestis sine cemento saxis magno ambitu constructa Garth [forsan yard vel gard] patria lingua vocat[a] Cuiusmodi et alia hinc ... currunt Danico Bello et credimus posita. Nec dissimile e munitionibus illis Brit[anorum], quas rudes et informes saxoru[m] compages vocat Tacitus. Vid. Camd. de Cornwall, p.73.[932] Se whether he build Verulamium in Hartfordshire.[933] Camd. p.222.[934]
{Som say that Winsor Castle was the most peculiar place where a Round Table was erected for the meetings of King Arthur's knights. Winchester, sometimes Carleon, and sometimes in the north. p. 96 […][935] out of Geoffrey of Monmoth.}

{Maybrough or Arthurs Castle} {a Druid Temple}[936]
I should think it an abbreviation of Maden brough the name (mabe) formerly of this vilage, and may have som relation to those other places mentiond before; to witt Maden-way – Maden-Castle & Maiden hold: But what this Maiden was God knows – Hence it carryes ore[937] Emot Br[i]d[ge] into Cumberland – & so to Carlile.

{No disgrace}[938]
Edenbrough Castle is allso calld Maden castle – in Latin "puellaru[m] castru[m]". Enquire [...] when & by whome that was built & why so calld. Their dominions some[time] extended thus far. No disgrace, fore whatever they be now they were then gens bellicosissima et eodem de sanguine. Se. p.35. Gentis fortissimae. Gens praeclarissima 42. sed cave ne sint alterius generis. Hiber pict vel Saxon.[939]

---

[931] Quoted by Camden, Britannia (London, 1587, Latin edn), 94.
[932] 'On the summit of a hill, steep and difficult of ascent, called Camalot, in the county of Somerset, near the town of Evel, are seen the marked traces of a marching camp, and a triple rampart of banked earth which encloses xx jugera in its circuit. Hence Arthur's palace, they say. But Roman coins tell it was a work of the Romans. Perhaps not dissimilar to this is that military enclosure near Heilston in Cornwall, which Cambdenus recalls. That eminence, constructed in a great circuit out of rocks piled up without mortar, is called Garth [perhaps yard or gard] in the native tongue. Other ... of this kind run from here, put up, as we believe, in the Danish War. This is not dissimilar to those fortifications of the Britons which Tacitus calls crude and shapeless structures of rocks. See Camd. on Cornwall, p.73.' Here Machell uses a Latin quotation from Camden concerning 'giants' work' nearby, i.e. stones of great antiquity. Other Latin extracts are from Leland and Camden, citing monuments comparable to the Round Table in Camelot (near Yeovil in Somerset), Cornwall and Verulamium in Hertfordshire See Camden, Britannia (1587), 91, 94. See also Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), Cornwall, 186.
[933] The text is difficult to decipher here; what can be made out is, MS: '(ut p [....] et the bo [...] of Brough [...] another name).'
[934] For 'Verulamium in Hartfordshire', see Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 408E: 'From Hertford twelve miles westward, stood Verolamium, a City in times past very much renowned, and as greatly frequented: Tacitus calleth it Verulamium; Ptolomee, Urolanium and Verolamium, well knowne this is in these dayes, neere unto St Albans in Caistho Hundred, which the Cassii of whom Cæsar maketh mention, in all probability, held and inhabited'.
[935] There is an illegible word here, before the page-number.
[936] This margin comment is not in Machell's hand.
[937] 'Over'.
[938] The rest of this margin comment is obscured by the binding.
[939] 'No disgrace fore whatever they be now they were then a most warlike race and from the same blood. Se. p.35: Of a most valiant race. A most illustrious nation: 42. But be careful lest they be of another race. Irish Pictish or Saxon.'

{Pendragon [Castle] the Inscription}
But by following the road I have missed of som things worthy observation to which I returne. Pendragon Castle tho it stand in obscure betwixt 2 great mountaines must not be omitted. It is supposed to have bin built in or before the time of Uter Pendragon. And is for those timed a very elegant and well-

[II.481]

-contrived piece, being tower in castle and having a gallery ~~quite~~ \ all along / about the top of the castle. The window[s] are so contrived on the highest romes, ~~as that you may escape~~ \ as to prevent / the danger of arrows; and the walls are att least 4 thicke, whose forme & plat is here represented*

[Machell's Notes: II.481]

{Tumuli or Berryes what they are & import see Dugd[ale] Warwick, at hic infra.}
Apleby is reported to have bin 3^{cc} burnd downe. By the certaine, twas destroyd By [blank] king of Scotts, and here was a great plague: anno [blank] as appears from a stone in the school garden house, inscribed thus: Aballaba &c.
Apud Barklow in com[itatu] Essex. Non procul a Stourifonte, sunt 3 tumuli aggesti: cuiusmodi defunctis militibus, quorum reliquiae non faciles erant repertu, extruxit antiquitas: verum cum quartus ex his jam pridem defoderetur, tria ut accepimus e saxo sepulchara, et in illis confracta hominum ossa sunt inventa. 248.[940]
The forme & plat of P.D. Castle
*~~You must~~ see my oblong pocket booke. The forme & plat of P.D. Castle in Morton Parke also \ Whiteacre in K. lordship / &c. libello meo.[941]
In Morton Parke also, which is placed in K. Lordship &c. libello meo Lowther Brigg & so near Orton. Which brings mee on my way to the Barrony where there are not so many Ancients mon[uments]

[II.483] [942]

[Kendal Antiquities]
Kendall does not much boast of antiquities. Yett there are som. Yett here has bin a noble castle, the seat of &c. And hereabouts, to witt at \ Watercrooke / many Roman coyness have bine digged & some presented mee by Mr Harry Guy of Water Creake, ~~former master of Arts~~ in Queen's College.[943] Se Camden & Speed.[944]

[Storms and Accidents]

[Violent Wind] {Whinfell Trees: the 7 Bretheren}
{16} In Aprill 1624: but I cannot learne upon which day of the moneth, happened a great and violent winde, which blew downe an infinite number of trees in severall places here aboutes, and in Whinfell, tis more remarkable that all the rest which grew one by another, and were called the 7 brethren, the least of which was twixt 7 & 8 fathom in compasse; & an other hollowe tree, which grew hard by, was left standing, in which a woman with child lodged. {That then I had heard of more [than] once.}[945]

---

[940] 'At Barklow in the county of Essex. Not far from Stourfont there are 3 elevated mounds: of the kind which antiquity built for dead soldiers, whose remains were not easy to find: but just when the fourth of these was being dug out, we came on three graves in the rock, and in those were found the fragmented bones of men.'
[941] 'My little booklet': probably one of Machell's pocketbooks.
[942] Also numbered p.35. The page contains an unrelated note. MS: 'This calld Conjers Blast, a Scotch horse running of Lancelot Machell.' '{Whinfell Trees: the 7 Bretheren}'
[943] William Guy of Watercrook, thrice mayor of Kendal, died in 1683 aged 84: Edward Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes: Heraldry, Epitaphs, and other Inscriptions, in the Thirty-two Ancient Parish Churches and Churchyards of that County, Vol. II (Kendal, 1889), 27; see also N&BI, 78-9. William's son, Henry Guy, matriculated at Queen's College in 1664 aged 17; BA 1667; MA 1670; incorporated at Cambridge, 1671: OAD.
[944] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 760; this sentence is a continuation of a short paragraph on II.481, above.
[945] MS: '{That ~~had heard~~ then I had heard of more once}'; this sentence is partly obscured by the binding. MS I.341 contains another allusion to the Brethren: 'Memorandum – the Brethrener – ~~Rabt~~'.

{Dufton accident 1.}
August 17, 1665, on a very clear sunshine day, that m[orning] about 11 a clock in the fore noone, there happened a terrible thunder-clapp and a great showre of raine; so that it made all aboute Dufton, Martin, Brampton & Apleby overflow with water, especially att Dufton, in a little brooke att the towne head, which is so smale of itselfe that for the most part a man may stop it with his foote. Yett it happened by this shower that 2 people, a man and a woman, (viz. Rowland Clarke and Annas Clarke his mother) with an horse and cart (into which they loading som flax which had layd to steep there, were all driven downe the water, & drowned, being not able (so sudden was the surprise) to help themselves. The horse was carried downe halfe a mile, the woman a whole mile, & the young man near 2 miles, on such a ruff, chinky and chraggy channell with wood and rocks, that a man would thinke it neere utterly impossible for anything to be carryd that way.[946]

{Brampton}
Like wise att Brampton Field Yeat there was a great stone sunke att the same time upon dry ground, and never seen after. The stone was so large that 24 yoake of oxen could not have drawne it, and 16 men were imploy the next day in filling up the hole \ which it made / vid etiam fig. (12) supræ, de Clifton wells.[947] It tore up the earth allso after a wonderfull manner in ~~Esqs M.~~ \ my father's / pastur called the high grounds \ at Crakenthorp / & yet his servants at the same time made hay in Elikar, which is a mead not halfe a mile distant from Brampton Field Gate, and had not one drop.

[Snow Storm, 1673]
A strange Storme happened in this county in 1673, whereof I had this account from my kinde friend Thomas Jackson of Dufton, senior.[948]
Sir
I should in some measure have answered your desire before this time, but that I have wanted my health often this winter and allso by reason of the great \ snow / winde & drift we had for 9 or 10 weekes together, the like whereof \ here / hath not bin knowne nor heard by any man living; both which together would not give me leave to stir abroad. There hath bin divers people in severall parts of this country lost with the drift. A very great death of sheep all overe these countryes; corne risen to a great rate; wheat 16s per bush[el] (note their bush[el]). Big, 7s; & oats, 4[s]. And 'tis thought will be dearer. The storme began the 14 of Jan. & held unto the 21 or 22 of this instant March. All the dailes people were driven into the country with their goods […][949]

{Memorandum: to tell what hapned hereabouts; man stealing at Winchester? Boy dying in Oxon streets, severall in hedges. Corn & meat & butter [blank] This storm was the only thing that ever prevented the Countiss in her determination, and so may be concluded a great one, yet she went to Pendraggon from Apleby on the 20. [Noted on] March 25 1674.}[950]

[II.484][951]
Accidents, calamities or casualtyes: \ Mr Branthwaites death in ~~1 by 6 at~~ Pendragon Castle by he leaping of the battlements there in a mel[ancholy] moode /.

[Dufton Accident 2.]
There hapned a shower of raine in the Year of Our Lord ~~1665~~ \ see on the opposite page / which made such a sudden flood that it drownd a man & his wife at Dufton, before they could move out of that little brooke which runs by the towne. {!!!} It tore up the ground on severall places by the fierceness

[946] Extreme weather is no stranger to Westmorland, see Jane Gregg, Ploughing in Latin: a History of Bampton (Bampton, 2nd edn, 2012), 126.
[947] 'See also the above Figure (12) of Clifton wells.'
[948] One Thomas Jackson was schoolmaster at Newbiggin from 1680 (CCED); this might have been Thomas Jackson junior, although the name was common, locally.
[949] Four words have perished here at the page foot; the last legible word is possibly 'goods'.
[950] Lady Anne Clifford died in 1676; she would have been aged c.84 when 'prevented'.
[951] Also numbered p.35.

of the torrents, and particularly att Brampton Field Yeat as you goe from \ thence ine to / Kirkbythure ~~to~~ \ not far from / the church. It sanke a stone so deep \ how big / in the ground that [blank] men were kept working a whole day to fill it up with earth. And within ¼ of a mile in Elekar they were making hay at the very same instant & had no raine. These the[y] call commonly, planet showers. But this was the greatest that ever was heart of in that country – Yes, one with thunder when Ketlewell suffered an inundation.[952]

[Dialect]

{17.} They speak in this ~~county~~ \ Bottom of Westm'land without any tone / the Anglo Saxon in great purity, and tho they can doe otherwise, yet they thinke it pride and therefore will not be induced to correct it. And it is remakeble that aboute Apleby they are neither speake according to the Lancashire, Yorkeshire or Scottish tone \ dialect / which some of which their neiburs are infected, who live in the compass of 6 miles round. This give their voice their full & proper sound.

[II.485]

Peculiar Customs

{18.} {Oxgangs & plowing}
They plow here always with oxon \ till about 1693*? / haveing but 2 leading horses att the most, which is the old way; whence we have the word Oxgan for a plowland, which according to comp[utation] is {?}† (4 of which) make a Knights fee. They knew noe teams of horses, useing them only for single burthens, single carts or the sadle, which is the reason the gentry here doe not soe often ride in their coaches, as in the south. Yet they will carry greater burthen by their single ~~burthens~~ \ cartes / than they doe in the south with their waggins \ & teams, / considering how many horses they use.

{Customs of West[morland}
They have some customs which I dow not finde practised in the south: to witt, on X^{t}mas Day to shout Yeule, Yeule, Yeule when they come out of the church and such like. The tenants at Crakenthorpe Hall, whome the Lord feasts allwayes on St Stephen's Day, they cry Ule after dinner is done, and if any man or woman stay in the house, they are to undergo a penalty, the woman swil'd, i.e. carried out in a bucket \ or swill, / & the men stang'd, i.e. caryed out upon a stang or colt staff. This may also be a custome att other great houses where I am not so well acquainted, but for stanging tis the custom for all the country at X^{t}mas time if one neighbour can catch an other in bed att any time of day or night […][953] On the 12 Eve they have bonefires, which they call hollyes in.

[Machell's Notes: II.485]
*See my horseb[ook]. I had this in K. parish, cost 30^{s} of 7.
†? Ord[er] surv[ey].

[II.486][954]

[Speech and Disposition of the People]

{Memorandum: this was transcribed into the Description General}[955]
They sooner speake in the southern dialect and therefore doe sooner accord with the P. than any other pla[ce]. They have this advantage over southern people, & that [they] can both speake to and understand them, whereas you southern[ers] in many words ~~are put to~~ \ cannot. / ~~stand~~. They haply attaine to the knowledge [of] the Saxon tongue, and have more prope[n]sity to pronounce French righ[t] than other English men.
{Latin in no place worse spoke than in Latin \ at Roome / nor English in no place worse spoke than at ~~England~~ London, the chief place of England, for as England had its name from the Saxons[956] so [952] A second version of the storm on the previous page.

[953] This is followed by an illegible sentence relating to the 'stang'.
[954] Also numbered p.37.
[955] The hand here is probably not Machell's.
[956] Some text has perished here.

English too. But the conflux of forainers and the French humour of the court has debauched the language in so much that, setting aside the tone of the English tongue, tis better spoke at Edenbrough in Scotland. But I thinke in most purity in the Barony of Westm'land.}[957]

The generality of them are not affected with novelty, either in speech or clothes; & therefore new words & new fashions are \ equally / here exploded, being no way tollerable excepting in gentlemen.

{At p.18}[958]
They are of a kinde & courteous disposition so long as they are not affronted or abused; and wonderfully hospitable to stranges or others; fathfull to their friends, but ~~very bitter cruel & bitter to ther enemyes~~ \ much addicted to revenge on their enemyes. / They love any man that dare fight, so that a stout rober \ when he is in prison / shall be company for a gentleman, and if he have vallor, that's enough to wipe of the other disgrace. \ indignityes abstulit vertus[959] / A scholler, or soljer, is the only man they ~~pay~~ \ have / true respect for \ to / and a thief or a coward, the only men they hate & abhor. {I.e. pilfering theefe, for those only they call them.}
Gens pervalida pro loco et tempore nunc ad aratra, nunc ad arma promptissima. / [I.e.] They are people ~~strong~~ \ stout / active & hardy, fitt for labour and ~~hardy very~~ \ no less / industriouse, yet very ~~affected~~ \ much addict / {to such} \ with those / masculine recreations as \ of / hunting & horse courseing, for which kinde of sports they will oft leave their ~~worke~~ more serious \ necessary / imployments.
They are great lover of musique, especally the pipes. They ~~Scots~~ cannot yet have affection for a Scot.[960]

Their Gentry are men of \ very / great gallantry, & loyall to Envy.[961] Witness their behaviour in the late wars, & their un-daunted suffering in Tyranny of Ollover. I thinke this county may say it with glory, that there was not one gentleman a tratour in it. & for matter of education the \ very / commonnally ~~of Westm'land~~ bring up there children in a great deale of subjection & obedience to their superiors, putting them to schoole in their minority, where \ they learn to read and /many of them to understand Latin before they lieve ~~schoole~~ off, they being very much helped by the number of freschole which are in the county: viz.

[II.10][962]
{Note. Free Schools in the Bottom of Westmorland. 8. Apleby. Brough. Bampton? Kirkby Stephen. Barton. Lother. Crosby Rave. Stanemore. Tybah. Vid plur. in Wases collecti[on].}[963]

[957] A margin comment, partly obscured, provides, MS: '{Saxons Scotts, Irish, H.L.S. Scots Coward.}' Part of this paragraph is repeated in Part 1, Ch.1, Appleby, II.510.
[958] Machell's numbering. Another draft relating to manners and customs is found on MS.I.75-86.
[959] 'Bravery removes (the barrier of) inferior station.'
[960] A partly obscured phrase here might read, 'most merth in meting', but this is uncertain.
[961] Envy: to seek to rival. OED.
[962] II.10 is part of a tabulated page in another hand but annotated by Machell. Measuring 35cm x 30cm, it consists of a large folded sheet, inserted vertically and read crossways. Its contents are numbered II.9 and II.10A-10D.
[963] See P.J. Wallis, '…Christopher Wases's Survey', 168-85. The first educational questionnaire was circulated by Christopher Wase. His dislike of post-Restoration attacks on grammar schools led him to ascertain real facts by collecting replies to such queries as: 1. Who Founder? 2. When Founded? 3. How Endowed? 4. What School-Master and succession of Masters? etc. Wase's complete Considerations Concerning Free Schools as Settled in England was published in Oxford in 1678. See also R. Hodges, 'Wase, Christopher (1627-1690), schoolmaster and classical scholar.' ODNB.

[II.486]

{Westm'land ancient families}[964]

Vid. Map of the Bottom.

{Ad Tit. 3} It is peculiar to this county to have the sherif's office in one family, which was formerly so all England, but now remanes onely here in the noble family of the Cliffords, Westm'land, of whome the former Countiss of Penbrooke is the last. Apleby is the county town & has priviledges. In omnibus sicut Ebor & ergo the major takes place of the judges & sit betwixt them.[965]

[II.487]

We looke upon these in the Bottom:

Wharton of Wharton		Lord
Lowther of Lowther		Baronet
Machell of Crakenthorpe	}	Gentlemen
Crackenthorpe of Newbigin	}	2[966] of Bol.
Sandford of Askham	}	1 Crakenthorpe of Strickland
x Wibergh of Clifton	}	Hiltons of Morton
Cliburn of Cliburn	}	Musgrave of Asby G.
x Blenkinsop of Helbeck	}
Hiltons of Barton	}
Barton of Breek	}
Birlocks of Hornby	}
Musgrave of Musgrave	}

We looke upon these to be the ancientest in the Barony {Thom. Jac. Account.}[967]

Midleton of Midleton \ gen /
Laburne of Skelsmergh
Strickland of Sizar
\ Thornburrough /
Gilpin of Kentmere, which is now g[…] nom[968]
Bellingham of Forrest gen
Phillipson of Calgarth
~~Brathwat of Burnished~~

{These families in Westm'land I mete with ~~sans date~~ in cartis s.d.[969] T.M}

Machael or Mauchael, sans date of Crakenthorpe, now Machell de Crackenthorpe now Crackenthorpe of Newbigin de Musgrave now Musgrave of Musgrave de Barwyse
de Hellebeck, now extinct
de Sulleby, extinct
de Bellocampe sive Beauchamp, extinct \ de Lowther / de Askeby }
de Morevilla } both extinct
de Sandeford now Sandford (Askham of Howgill) 2 families de Querton now Wharton, Lor Wharton of Wharton de Hartley }
de Smerdale } extinct

[964] This heading (moved from II.48) is placed here as a section heading.
[965] 'In all things just like York, and therefore …'
[966] The word after '2' is blotted.
[967] Thomas Jackson.
[968] Words blotted.
[969] Undated charters.

de Wateby }
de Helton, now Hilton of Helton & Ormside \~~Strickland,~~ Laborne /
{of which onely 3: Sc. the 2. Machells, the Lowthers 3. & Whartons, have had the honour to continue the antient seates of their ancestors unto this.}[970]

[II.488][971]

{19.} Places of birth or habitation of eminent persons in all aiges: \ Se Fathers Worth /
Gilpin[972]
Dr Langbane, Provost of Queen's College Oxon, born at Barton
Dr Crakenthorp – a famous author & chaplain to King James 1^{t}, Little Strickland
Mr Airay \ fellow of Queen's College / author of Fasciculus Lag[973] while Tab[arder] there, [born] Clifton
Bishop Strickland
Barlow – at Lang gill in Orton parish
Smith – see our Obit. Booke – at Whitwall in Ashby parish
Sir John Machell, Sheriff of London – at Crack[en]thorp?
Rogerus Malus-Catulus, keper of the broad seal – Ibid
Lord Wharton of the Marches \ at Wharton Hall /
H. Machell
Sir John Lowther P. C.
Sir ~~John~~ \? / Buckle – Lord Mayor of London – at Stanemore
Dr Joh. Mill at Shap
Dixon at Orrest Head[974]

[II.490]

Ad Westm'land in General et diversa loca ibidem, speciatim de Appelby Referenda[975]

Index: see 43.

Bottom of Westm'land

Places

O	Orton ph
O	Overclagill
L	Langdale
L	Langdale flu
E	Ellergill
R	Rounthwat
B	Bretherdaile
L	Loyn Flu
B	Birbeck Fells
G	Garegill
K	Killat, Rain \ Rain a Brooke /
T	Tegah
C	Colflatt

[970] MS: '{of which onely 3: Sc. the 2. Machells, the Lowthers 3. & Whartons (which I [illeg.] you in alphabetical order to [illeg.] Emulatio) have had the honour to continue the antient seates of their ancestors unto this.}'
[971] Also numbered p.39.
[972] Machell gives no information on Gilpin here, but see above, II.487.
[973] Christopher Airay, Fasciculus praeceptorum logicalium in gratiam Juventutis Academicae compositus (2nd edn, Oxford, 1633).
[974] Father of Thomas Dixon, see below.
[975] 'With reference to Westmorland in General and various places, especially concerning Appleby: Things to be referred'. All the entry letters have been crossed through individually, and the pages themselves also crossed through, probably to demonstrate that Machell no longer needed this information.

LS Lowscales
OS Overscales
P [Blank] Park d.
R Crosby
G Greenholm
B Bousfield
G Gill
O Orton
S Sunbigin
L Little Asby
AS Great Asby
BH Blatern Hight
B Breeks/Rutter
M Mardale
T Tothman
T Thorntwait Hall
N Naddell Forrest
T Talebert
G Goodcrost
W Walrighte
B Bonby
W Wetsleddale
R Forrrest of Ruslen
SA Shapp Abbay
K Keld
ST Thornshapp
M Milbeck
S Sleddall Flu
R Riggshole
S Sumdale Flu
R Raysid
B Bampton
B Bampton Grang
R Rosgill Hall
B BamptonHall
R Rosgill
B Butterwick
K Knipe
H Hegdale
H Helton Fleccat
A Ascam
A Askam Hall \Eamot and / Lowther flu joyne
W Whale Moore
O Odendale
HBH Bottom oth Hause
N Newintake Inclosure
G Gaud Busk?
K Kirkstone
H Hartsope & Hall
B Brother Water
U Ulswater
P Patterdale & Hall
M Martindale Forrest: what sort of wild beast were here formerly?

H Whick Winder
P Powley
Stanck
B Low Barton
W Winder Hall
S Sockbridge & Hall
Y Yeanwath & Hall
E Emot bridge
Emot
Emot Flu
H Hardendale
T Thrumby
S Little Strickland & Hall
S Great Strickland ~~& Hall~~
L Lother & Hall
C Clifton & Hall
H Hackthorp & Halls
M Melkinthorp Hall
M Ma\u/ls Meaburn
K Kings Meaburn
C Clearburne

[II.491]

Dale	R	Ravenstonedale
	C	Crosby Hill
	S	Soulby
Flu	SS	Soulby Beck
Mons	W	Willbert Fell
	W	Weatby
Flu	U	Une Flu
	S	Swall Flu
Pons	H	Hellgill Bridge
Flu	E	Eden flu
Dale	M	Mallerstang Dale
Cas	P	Pendragon Castle
	W	Wharton Hall & Parke
	N	Neatby
Pons	S	Strenkthret Bridge
	H	Hartly & Hall 2 Castle 2 parke
	K	Kirkby Stephen
	N	New Bridge
	M	Musbridge
	M	Litle Musgrave
	M	Great Musgrave
	W	Warkop & Bridge
	S	Sanforth
	O	Little Ormside
	G	Great Ormside
	B	Bongate
	S	Scattergate
	B	Burells
	A	Appleby & Castle
	A	Appleby Bridge
	B	Battlebar

C Crekenthrop & Hall & P.
C Colby
H Upper Hoff
R Raw
B Buly Castle
B Bolton
K Kirby thure
J Gillian Bower in
W Whinfield park
O Forrest of Oggle in Whinfell
B Bird dub an Oglebird
Hart horn tree
M Moorra Houses
B Browham
B Browham Castle
T Temple Sowerby
A Accaran banke
N Nubygin
M Milnerigg
W Woodside
H Hornby Hall
E Eamo~~nt~~
S Smardale Hall
B Brough Beck f.
S Stanemore Pale
B Brough 2 castles
R Ray Cross on Stanemore
C Couplin Bridge
E Eden Bridge
S Sanforth Moore
K Fforrest of Kitland
H Hellbeck
B Burton
B Burtergill
B Breckenber
H Hilton
M Murton
L Lanton
K Keisley
M Meldon Forrest
D Dufton
B Brampton
K Knock
LM Long Martin & Parke
C Closehouses
G HG Howgill Grang
HC Howgill Castle
M Milburne
K Kirkhouse
G Gullham Holme
B Blenkerne Flu
H Hughseat Hill

[Machell's Notes: II.490]
{ad Oglebys Quer[ies] which are Annex'd to Part 2.}
{Memorandum: I have 3 halfe crownes of Mr [?] 2 to buy Plaster of Paris, to pay car[riage]}
{[…] of Mr Mill in op o. flu.}[976]

[II.492][977]

An Alphabetical Table[978] of all the Townes, rivers and memorable places mentiond in Westm'land

{Names of places I thinke out of Speed}

Rivers, Bridges, Forrests &c. Names of places

	Town	Seats	Dema[sne]	Parke	Forrest
A.	Apleby	Castle	0	1	0

[Key to Machell's alphabetical table: br. bridge; c. castle; d. dale; flu: river; h. hall; p. park; t. tower]

In the Bottom of Westm'land

A.	c. p. br.	Apleby
		Asby, Great
		Asby, Little
	h.	Askham
		Akern Banke
	mere	Ause Water
		~~Ambleside~~
B.		Bretherdale Head Foot
		Burkbeck Fells
		Bousfield
		Blatarn (Hight)
		Breeks
		Bonby
		Bampton
		Bampton Grang
	h.	Bampton
		Butterwick
		Bottom oth Hause vel haus
		West Barton
	flu.[979]	Brother Water
		Low Barton
	At	Bongate
	Apleby	Burells
		Battlebar
	c.	Buly Castle
		Bolton
	h. for.	~~Bird & cham~~ Oglebird Forrest
	c. h.	Browham
		~~Brough Beck flu~~
	c.	Brugh
		Brough Sowerby
		Burton
		Burtergill

[976] The first words of this sentence are obscured by the binding.
[977] Also numbered p.47.
[978] MS: 'Alphabetical table… Alphabetically disposed'.
[979] Flumen = river.

		Breckenber
		Brampton
	flu.	Blenkerne
		[II.493]
C.		Caber
		Colflat Cotesflat
		Crosby Ravensworth Wath
	h.	Clifton
		Crosby Garrett
		Clearburne
		Crosby Hill
		Crekenthrop ~~Hall~~
	h. t. p.	Colby
	br.	Couplin Bridge
		Close House
		~~Clapergate~~
		~~Howgill Castle~~
		Crostermind
D.		Deepdale
		Dufton Dales
		Drive Evers; Dribeck
E.		Ellergill
	flu. br.	Emot, bridge
F.	for.	The Forrest of Naddell
		Forrest of Raflen
		Forrest of Ogglebird
		Forrest of Kitland
		Forrest of Meldon of Whinfell forsan
G	flu.	Glenkrodden & Glenkrowen
		Gresmere
		Gaze-gill
		Green-holme
		Gill
		Gils(e) (a cops ut puto)
		Goodcroft
		Gaudbuske
		G\r/ainge juxt Hougill
		Gullham Holme
		Gillian Bower v. Julian
H.		Hight
	d.	Hegdale
		Helton Fleccat
		Hause Bottom
	h.	Hartsope
		Hick-winder
	d.	Hardendale
	h.	Hakthorp
		II.494[980]
		Heltondale w.
		Hoff
	h.	Hackthrop
	b.	Helgil
		Harberwen
	c. h. p.	Harcley
		Hoff-superior

[980] Also numbered p.49.

		Hoff Lun
	h. c.	Hornby-Hall
	h.	Helbeck, query an opidum
		Ht Hilton
	c.	Howgill
		Hugh leat Hill
		West Hilton
		Heeght
J		Julian alias Gillian Bower Lodge
K		Kellath
		Keld a. Shap
		Knipe
		Kirkstone
		Kirkby Stephen
	h. c.	Kirkbythor
	for.	Kittland
		Keesley
	Q. a single if a towne that cald Kirkland	Kirkland forsan Kirkhouse
		Knock
		Kirkehouse
		Kings-Meaburne
		Kentmere
L.		Langanby (fors in Cumberland)
	flu.	Langdale Great
	flu.	Leun or Loyn
		Low-Skales
	h. flu.	Lowther
		Langton
		Long Mertin v. Merton
		~~Langrige~~
M.	d.	Mardale
		Meason
	flu.	Mill-beck
	d. for.	Martindale
	h.	Morland
	h.	Milkin[thorpe]
	c.	Maiden Castle, Hold & Way
	c.	Maybrough Castle
	h.	Milkinthorpe voc. Strickland Parva
		II.495
		Mauls-Meaburne
	d.	Mallerstangdale[981]
	br.	Musbridge pons
		Musgrave Magna
		[Musgrave] Parva
		~~Warcop Hall Tower Bridge~~
	More puto[982]	Moore-Houses
		Milnerigg, an house
		Murton
	for.	Meldon v. for.

[981] Machell has included a partially obscured phrase here: 'è gr…'?
[982] 'A moor, perhaps.'

	parke	Martin v. Long
		Milburne
N.	for.	Naddell Forrest vid. forrest
	for.	New Intack Inclos.
		Neatby
	br.	New-Bridge pons E.
	h.	New-bygin or Biggin
	h.	Newby
		Nine Churches
		Newbiggin \ south / east
O.		Orton
		Over-clay Gill
		Overscales or Sh[ales] opposed to Low Shales
		Odendale, Oddeldale neare \ to Low / Orton
	h.	Ormside Magni
		Ormside Parvi
	for.	Ogle \ Bird / vid. forrest
P.	p.	Parke (forsan Overskales P)
	h.	Patterdale
		Powley-stank where Ulswater breakes into a river
	c.	Pendragon Castle
	Parkes	Wharton Park
		Crakenthorpe Parke dud[um][983]
		Whinfield Parke
		Martin Parke
		Lother
		II.496[984]
Q.
R.		Roun-thwaite
		Raise: a brooke
		Reagill
		Rosswood memorandum St Michael Rutter
	for.	Raflen Forest vid forests
		Rigg-Hole
		Raysid
	h.	Rosgill or Raisgill
		Rosgill or Raisgill
		Ravenstone-dale
		Raw
		Runthwate
		Roy Cross on Stainmore
		Raisbeck
S.		S\k/ales super, subter v. Low over
		Sunebiggin
		Swindale
	abby	Shapp
		Shap-thorne
	flu.	Sledall vid. Wet-Sleddall
		Slegall
	flu.	Swindall
	h.	Sockbridge
	h.	Strikland Magna
	h.	Strikland Parva
		Soulby & beck

[983] 'A park formerly.'
[984] Also numbered p.51.

	flu.	Swale
	br.	Strenkthret Bridge
	moore	Sandforth
		Sowerby {v. Brough Sowerby v. Temple}
	h.	Smardell
		Stainmore
	dale	Stainmore
		Smardall
T.		Tebah or Tibay
		Tothman Thornthwaite
	h.	Thornthwate-Hall

[II.497]

		Talebert
		Thremby
		Temple Sowerby
		Troutbeck
U.		Uls Water
	flu.	Ure flu ubi
W.	c.	Whelp
		~~Woodend~~
		Wastelhead
		Walmgate
		Wastlefoot
		Wetsleddaile
		Wick Wickerslack
		Whalemoore
		Willbertfell
		Winderworth
		Weatby
	h.	Winder
	h. t. br.	Warcop
		Winton
	p.	Whinfield
		Woodside
	h. p.	Wharton,
Y.	h.	Yeanwath

[II.498]

In the Barony

G.		Gresmire
	h.	Grarigg
H.		Hugill
		Hutton ith-Hay
		Hutton Nov. vel New
		Hutton Vet. vel Old
		Holmscales
		Heversham
		Han'brack
		Hincaster
		Helsington
		Hutton Roof
		Holme
		Helston laith
I.
K.	c.	Kendal
		Kentmire
		Kirkland (in Kendal puto)
		Killington
	Kent flu.	Kirkby Loansdale

~~Kettle~~
L. ~~Lyth~~
Langdale
Long Sleddall
Lamb-Rigg or Lan rig
br. Leavens brigg
Loansdale
Lupton
Loughrigg
M. Meathopp or Methop
Milthropp
Midleton
Mansergh

[II.499]

N. Neather Stanely
New Hutton
Natland
O. Over Stanley
Ova
Underbarrow
P Parkes
Patton
Preston-Patrick
Preston-Richard
Preston chappell
Q.
R. Rydall
S. Sleddall
Sleddall Over Long v. Lo
Stanley Nether v. O v. N
h. Selside
Skelmergh
Strikland Roger
Skalthwaite Rigg
\ Steelmire /
Stanton
Sidgwick or Seggeswick
Siserghe
St Catherins v. C
T. Troutbeck
U. Under Milbeck
Under barrow
W. Witherslack
Whinfell
Windermere
Winstar chappell
Watland

{Culgith in Cumberland}

[II.502][985]

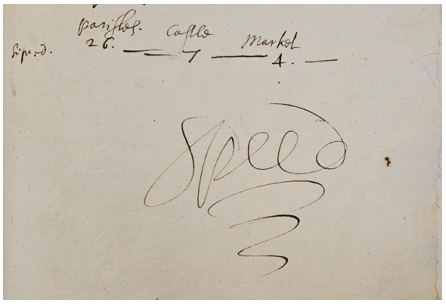

Figure 9. 'Speed'. II.502.

Forrests & Parkes marked out of Speed, in Speeds Map

In the Barony [of Westmorland]
Whinfield Forrest Out Parke nov.[986]
Lowther
Crosbyravenswith
Har[t]ley
Wharton
Mallerstang Forrest
To which add Martendale Forrest &c. in the Barony.

[In the Barony of Kendal]
Colnhead
Sheelmere
Firbanke
Midleton
Camswick
Barborne Chap
Preston Chap
Bethan
Sedgewick vel Croscrak parish
Watland
Sisergh
Brigster
Witherslack

Rivers.
Barrow
Below
Burbeck
Eden
Glenkroden
Glenkwen
Lune
Sprint
Raine

[985] Also numbered p.57.
[986] 'nov' = 'new'.

Speed [totals]

Parishes	Castle	Market
26	7	4

[II.505]

Rivers in the Bottom of W.
Bridges, Castles, Halls, Towers [987]

These must be tryed by my Booke & the maps of Westm'land.
These castles, halls & towers are the houses of their nobility & gentry.

	Rivers	Bridges	Castles	Halls	Towers
1.	Brotherwater	Apelby Bridge	Apleby C.	Askham Hall	Cæs. at Apleby
2.	Ulswater	Copelin Bridge	Buly C.	Acorn Bank H.	Cæs. at Browham
3.	Brough beck	Emote B. q. Emote	Browham C.	Barton H. de	Paga[n] at Browham
4.	Ble[n]kern flu.	Eden Bridge	Brough C.	Browham H.	Cæs. at Brough
5.	Emot f.	Hellgill b.	Howgil C.	Barhouse H. Dufton demolished	Warcop T.
6.	Eden f.	Musgrave b.	Harclay C.	Brampton H. & one demolished	Colby T. d[emolished]
7.	Langdale f.	Strenket b.	Maiden C.	Crakenthorp H.	For at Crakenthorpe
8.	Leun f.	Warcop b.	Maburg C.	Dufton H. demolished	Cæs. at Apleby
9.	Lowther f.	Kirkby \ th / Bridge	Pendragon C.	Hathop H.	Cæs. at Browham
10	Raine a broke[988]	~~Copeland Bridge~~	Whelp C.	Hercley H.	Paga[n] at Browham
11.	Swindale f.	Martindale	Apleby C.	Hornby H.
12.	Sleddall f.	Cleburne B.		Helbeck Hall	(2 at Low[ther] Hall)
13.	Soulby Beck	Newbridge W.		Hilton H. demolished (2 at Howgill Castle) ~~Burton H.~~	(2 at Howg[ill] Castle)
14.	Swale flu.	Apelby Bridge		Kirkby Thor H.	Wharton Low
15.	Ure flu.	Copelin Bridge		Lowther H.	Lowther
16.	Uls water	Emote B. q. Emote		Long Marton demolished
17.	d. Coup[land] beck Beside a great many brookes Torrents and riviletts			Murton H.
18.				Melkinthorpe H	Fallaf[ield]
19.	Brotherwater			X Musgrave H. par 2	Musgrave
20.	Ulswater
21.				Morland H[igh] H.
22.				Newbiggin H.	Crakenthorp
23.				Newby H.	Nevinson

[987] MS: 'D. ~~Whether Milbeck near Shap be a Brooke. Colby beck, Morland beck et force in Livernett. At Milburne a beck, Milkrig a beck. At Martin.~~ Rivers in the Bottom of Westmorland. Bridges, Castles, hall, tower Askham hal. & Acorn bank h'.'
[988] A brook.

24.		Ormside H.	Now Heltons
25.		Patterdale H.
26		Rosgill H.
27.		Smardale H.
		\Sokbridge H. /	In the Barony
28.		Thornthwaite Hall
29.		Winder Hall
		Bampton Hall
30.		Warcop H.
31.		Yeanwath H.
32.		Sokbridge
		Askham
	Ap Cast. parke	Besides those in
	q. parroke	the Barony
	a παραetock[989]

[Queries, Instructions and Narrative involving Machell's Informants][990]

[II.154A]

A. Orders & Q. given to Mr Dixon 19. II^r^ 1676[991]

{Kirkby Loansdale Kendal Mr Stuartson. Burton Bethom Heversham. Mr Lodge.}
{Mr Fleming (if writ to) will answer the rest & help in Cumberland.}

1. Remember to get information of these Parishes Sc. Burton, Bethom, Heversham, & Kirkby Loansdal: if all or part of them be in Westmorland.
{!!} 2. The \ names & / course of every River & Beck in the Barony; with all its heads where it springs \ at least the Principal, / what way it Runns E.W.N. or South & the Parishes or Lordships It Runns by or Through, allso the Towns, Halls or Gentlemens houses which it visits by the way; & how far it lieves them (or any of them) on East, W. North or S: The number of mills & bridges upon it; the sorts of fish in it; & (lastly) where it taketh the Sea, or looseth it selfe in som other River or lake?
3. The High (or great) Roads traced through the Barony. To what great place do they wend, with the Parishes Lordships &c. & Gentlemens houses, And notable Antiquityes which occur in or near them.

In Grosmer Parish
{Raise beck at the Head – & Rothey at the foote.}
X1. The Name of the River which Runns by the church.
X The Annual Stipend of Ambleside Chappel.
The Boundaries (on the South Side) of Grosmer Lordship: with the known marks from which divided from Ridal.

---

[989] 'Ap[pleby} Cast[le] parke q[uery] parroke from πα∴ρ and ock.' Machell is mixing languages here. He seems to suggest that 'parke' is from 'parrocke' and that 'parrocke' is derived from the Greek preposition παρα/ (meaning: 'by, alongside, next to'), with the English 'oke' (meaning oak).

[990] For more of Machell's queries and their answers, see his correspondence with Rev. Richard Singleton of Melmerby, Cumberland: MS.VI, 699-722.

[991] Two Thomas Dixons, father and son, collaborated with Machell in his research. The family came from Orresthead near Applethwaite, where the father had made a large sum of money out of his tenement (see Part 2, Chapter 8, Windermere, II.329, §43). The son matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, in1664/5 aged 15; BA 1669; MA 1672/3; fellow in 1673; BD 1682; was rector of Weyhill, Hants, 1682-1708; DD 1685, see OAD; see also CCED. At Oxford, Dixon junior corresponded with Sir Daniel Fleming, occasionally including comments about Machell, see See Maxwell Lyte, Stanley Hughes Le Fleming, James Arthur Bennett and Richard Ward (eds), The Manuscripts of S.H. le Fleming Esq. of Rydal Hall (London, 1890), 141: Dixon to D.F., 5 November 1677.

2. Lough Rig. What sort of Tenure, Sc – Richmond or Marquess, & what is meant by those foes. How are the Tenants of Grosmere Lordship admitted, & how do they pass away their estates. Baise brown – Lordship.[992]

[II.154B]

Ambleside fields on the South. Of whom is it held, & by what Tenure – Sc. soc~~e~~age, cornage or Knights Service? What Quit Rent doth it pay & to whom? What Mr Flemings uncles name who left him the Estate, & the names of his uncle['s] sons who dyed, & his 2 daughters who were marryed; together with their Husbands names, Arms & the place & County in which they lived
The \ Annual / prices of Land per Acre. Best, worst, & midlesort, excluding commons, Fells &c. And that of Arable, pasture, meadow.

In Windermer Parish
2. The Arms, X ~~Inscriptions &c.~~ – in or about the Church. Terrior of Glebe belonging to the Parson with the worth of Land per acre as above. How the Lordship came to the Crown? What the Ruines are of the Castle Att Ambleside? Whether it was not made a Market by Olivers Charter,[993] what the priviledges Granted them?
2. Calgarth Inscriptions there &c.[994]

[I.41A]

[B.] [Fragment of an] Alphabeticall table of Townes, Rivers & other memorable places in Westm'land[995]

[Key]
II⊙II a Towne
⊙ a Village an Hamlet
0 a Single house
r a River

In the Bot[tom]
II⊙II Appleby – Castle
⊙ Ashby – great
⊙ Ashby – little[996]
⊙ Askham Hall
⊙ Brampton – Hall
r. Blenkern – River

[II.530][997]

[C.] {Mr Mill}
{1} Write to Mr Bellingham query History \ or Dr Smith / whether Robert Lancaster & Miles Spen. Were LL.Ds.

[II.532]

{Mr Mill} If ther be a beck from Kerberwen, ~~Witherslack or Benton~~, which comes into Lowther on the E[ast]. What tarnes; there names & \ with / fishing \ in. /
{M. Mill} Negat Sir William Sanderson whether Millbeck near Shap be a brooke or village or both?[998] A cloth mill.

---

[992] The page here has been cut; the rest of the text is missing.
[993] Oliver Cromwell's Charter.
[994] The page here has been cut; the rest of the text is missing.
[995] The table of towns, rivers etc. using this formula, seems to have been left unfinished but Machell clearly used it when communicating with his informants, see below, II.432.
[996] The remaining part of the page has been torn away at this point.
[997] Also numbered p.85.
[998] 'William Sanderson says not.'

[D.] [T.J.][999]
{Parishes in Westm'land}
{2} The names of the Constablewickes & \ of the / parishes in the Bottom of Westm'land, with the value if you can of the parish or vicar*.
{3} You send me parish in the Bottom of W. 33. But I suppose there but so many in the whole cou[n]ty. Se Speed, se Camden, for Camden gives us 26 parishes,[1000] Speed 26. {?}
{4} So to satisfy me, sett me downe how many parishes in the Bottom of Westm'land‡ with there particular names; how many Churches of Ease, with their particular names; how many Chaples of Ease with their particular names? And so in the Barony.
{5} Whether Barton be a church or a chaple, for I finde 18 Churches & Chaples of Ease besides Barton, & if it be a church. It make but 6 in the Barony, whereas my information was 7†.
{7} {Fortnight Day} When the Fortnight Day begins att Apleby and how long that faire lasts.
{8} How governed? Bid them get a sword.
Whether Brough be a market towne. Fare at Brough. How many & when.
{9} Att Kirkby Stephan; at Orton.
{10} Who live \? / at these Halls, viz. Bottom & Barony.
{11} The names of churches.
{12} Helbeck \ What know you to the Cont. of Blenkinsops of Helbeck, Hiltons of Burton. What are the families Barton of Breekes and Birbeckes of Hornby. Enquire if you finde whether they & Brathwates of Warcop have had any knights?

[Machell's Notes: II.530]

*{T.J. send & received.}[1001]
†{He putt downe the new chaple for a church.}
‡{vid. Collect[ion] p.4.}

[II.531]

{ad T.J. [of] Knock}
\ Whether a Gill besides Knok where a great house has bin. Jone Armstrong. Se the aulter on Roman Fell \ there is a Gill at the Towne End. There is a platforme of an old Hall & 4 tenements called the Demaine Tenements /

{Ewebanke} {T.J.}
Whether there be not a towne or Hall upon Stan[emore] late Eubanke Hall. There is an hamlet & Hall with 2 places called High & Low Ewbanke belong to the Countess \ of Pmb.[1002] / The demanes with their names col. wise. Woods: there names, with sorts of trees which grow in em.

[II.532]

{Teas Head in Westm'land} {T.J.} Whether Teas\ Head / be in Westm'land ita.
{T.J.} Whether these places unmarked in the alphabeticall table be villages or hamlets. Send the names of the waters & enquire of mills & bridges upon every water.
{T.J.} {Midlerig Well by Shap about Hardendale}
Send the names of those places which are not marked ⊙[1003] to T.J. to know whether they are villages or hamlets.[1004] Send a map also that he may place right if he can, according to their situation on, rivers & distance from such & such places as are mentioned in the map.
T.J. Whether any Corporaco' pro libita may carry a sword {Ius gladij}[1005]

[II.533]

[999] T.J. = Thomas Jackson (senior) of Dufton.
[1000] Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 763.
[1001] Reference to the questionnaire sent to Thomas Jackson. For the general subjects of this questionnaire, see Machell's list taken from Camden's Britannia, on I.42A, and the Editor's Introduction.
[1002] Pembroke.
[1003] Circled, with a dot in the centre.
[1004] 'village', see Machell's key: I.41A.
[1005] 'Whether any Corporation at will…the right to carry a sword.'

{T.J.} {I had this from Mr Jackson.}
Enquire for that inscription over the cockloft dore, and for that over the Garden House window with that at Clifton.
{T.J.} For the inscription in the Tower. Over the Hospitall gate with the endowment. And dedication if there be any, with the manner of the letter the inscriptions are writ in. Get the best writer in the schoole. Se of Kendal. Hoff. Endowment. And found where?

[II.504][1006]

What mill upon every river?
There be great store of mills in the Bottom of Westm'land by reason that it is so well waterd, there being no place thereabouts where can be a mile distant from one, every viledge almost having one. But of this \ & bridges / send to Tom Jackson.[1007]

[E.] [Machell's Relatives]
{H.M. Regill T.J.}
Bid my bro[ther] collect all he can of antiquity, whether coals at Regil: yes. Where quarryes of frestone or limestone & [blank]

[II.530]

{Father or Brother}
What the prophecy concern Sandford More & Rear✝.
Draw[1008] the fort on Stainmore \ when you goe that way. / I have Maden Castle. & measure also the bredth of the bulworke which you may pace at any entrance as twix a. & b.

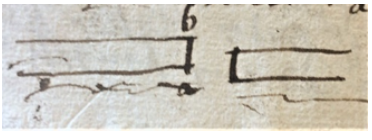

Figure 10. 'Father or brother … you may pace at any entrance as twix a. & b.' II.530.

{6} What time of the year my father putts his cattle into Eliker, & when taken out agane; what rent he payes, & what he payes not.

[II.504][1009]

Remember gray troutes as bigg as salmon in Ulswater and the dimention of the trout my father tooke & where. Great store of otters.

[II.532]

{Father or brother Hugh} What the bigness of gray-troutes & wher they are taken.
{Father or Brother: Hugh Seat, Mr Lowson} What the places, wher & what distance of the gray-trouts, & that trout taken by my father: the dimensions.

X The aultar on Cross Fell
{T.J. or Brother} Michell Scot's leap? How long; by whome: 24 feet.[1010]

[II.529]

Ad Howgil Castle
The oate stalke that was shown me att Howgill Castle was 2 yards & ½ long.

[II.532][1011]

[1006] Also numbered p.59.
[1007] This paragraph is scored through lightly
[1008] MS: 'Dray'.
[1009] Also numbered p.59.
[1010] See III.475.
[1011] Also numbered p.87.

{Increase of corne – see before ut Howgil}
{2 yd ½ v. Hugh or Bro.}What highness their oat or haver groeth. I have taken up a pea stem in Crakenthorp Field when I walked that way for recreation sake among the harvest, which because it seemed very well clad I had the curiosity to observe the increase, & there was from that single stalke besides had bin lost or cropped off – 8 score & 8 i.e. 168.

[II.535]

[F.] [Mr Sanderson]
{Wharton} I
\ Enquire of Mr Sanderson in what King's Reign: an Henry 8? one Lord Wharton was Keeper of the Marches and got many signall victories over them insomuch that he was calld in a by-name Lord Fortune \ by them. / One time upon a surprise, when his party was very inconsiderable to make them appear more numerous, he caused his men to run towards them on foot leeding their horses whereby they appeard to be twice as great a company as anded they were. & so putt them to flight. Mr R. Sanderson.

[II.533]

[G.] {Mr Dixon}[1012]
{The Great Planet Shower}
An account of accidents & calam[i]tyes by earth quakes, thunder and light[ning]. On flowing of rivers, great windes or sudden shower. Particular[ly] an accompt of that last great shower which drownd the people at Dufton, sunke the stone at Merton Field Yeat, and how many men were imployd to fill it. What year, month, & day it hapnd on. \ This answered at p.235 / The great trees[1013] in Whinfell: a description of them and conquering blast. In the end.

[II.534]

Mr Dixon.
Concerneing the val[e] between the River Leune & Windermere, which Speed sayes is fertill, tho conteined in a narrow compass.

You tell me of Demanes. Lett me have there names as

At	Dem.	Halls	Parkes	Forrest
Craken.	1	1	1	0
Apleb	1	Cast.	1	[Ruttlan]
Colby	1	Tower	0	0
Bar		1	0	0
Buly	1	Cast.	1	0
Bramp	0 dem	1 dem	1

{A Table of Houses and Castles, Demesne Parkes formerly ad Crakenthorp.}
{I suppose it con[tained] all the ground calld the Parke & the Hagg Brow, so that it came up to the garden walls on the back side of the house, for the millrace was not there in former times, for the corne mill stood in Millough till it was carryd away by a flood. The cloth mill was in the parke.}

II.488]

[H.] [William Hutchinson]
Young lads grow, trees grow & hemp grows, and they may \ all / meet together att the last.
This was spoke by way of retort by an old virginal master who was twitted concer[n]ing his aige by a young ~~fell~~ fool boy {Will Hutchinson. V.M. att Howgil Castle}

[II.488]

{Hutchinsons Story ad Acorn bank}
A pleasant story of Christopher Dalston, nephew of John, who used to dream & walk in his sleepe; & one night gave a great disturbance by crying out Theeves & falling down the stares; upon which the House riss & made sea[r]ch with such armes as they had. Hutchinson for fear hid himselfe behind a [1012] And see above, II.154A-B.

[1013] The word 'trees' is an editorial substitute for an illegible word.

courtain, haveing no shirt, and one of the people, seing somthing hid, tooke it for the theife, so they descended upon him, pulled him out of the courtain & exposed his nakedness* […].[1014]
*Rome infer the Booke ad AcornBanke.[1015]

[II.533]

[I.] [Equals and Experts]
{X Mr Guy}[1016]
Send to know where the coynes were found.

{X Mr Musgrave}
Enquire of Ninianus in Mr Musgrave's letter. Mr Savage informes what dedication the church bears now.[1017]

{Mr Wood}[1018]
How Bishop were desposed as to theire seas befor William Rufus, who made Carlile a Bishop Sea.
{Authors for Westm'land} Enquire for books necess[ary] for the discovery of the History of Westm'land. As for:
Saxon Dictionary
Poetical Dictionary Edit. Super. Scotch antiq. for Edenbr[ough]: Why Maden Castle
William of Newburrow
Speed's Cron[1019] for King John & William King of Scots, de recuperat Aballabae
Ptolom[y][1020] }
Beda[1021] } One in the Study de Bor.
Mat[eria] Parish }
Materia Westm. }
Liber Notiti?[1022] } It is in the library D1 9 Artib[us]
Dugdale Monasticon } for Apleby Fryory, Shap Abby, Schol, Wythyrall Priory
Dugdale, Of W[arwickshire]

[J.] [Anonymous Informants]
Whether moneys be not yearly payed to the poore upon that table of stone besides the Countiss Piller? And if so, how much & upon what day? Answered after.[1023]

Much of Browham Castle was built by Roger Clifford. Send me the inscription over the Hall dore and the inscription on Pendraggon.

{Ad Ab. Church & Scholl}
{House & land given to cort priest for singing pro def[functis] & vive[ntibus.]}[1024]
What a Chantry? The Major &c. of Apleby gave to one Gibson for to teach schoole & serv at the aultar, the Chantry of St Mary & of St Nicholas, with all lands &c.

[1014] The last two words have largely perished.
[1015] 'For the room, see the book at Acorn Bank.'
[1016] Henry Guy of Watercrook.
[1017] Arthur Savage BA, Rector of Brougham, 1643-62. CCED.
[1018] Anthony Wood, Oxford Scholar.
[1019] Speed's Chronology. Machell probably meant, The historie of Great Britaine under the conquests of ye Romans, Saxons, Danes, and Normans ... from Julius Cæsar to our most gracious soveraigne King James (London, 1611).
[1020] Ptolemy, Geographia.
[1021] An Ecclesiastical History of the English People (c.731).
[1022] Stephanus, Liber Notitiarum/Notarum (Book of lists).
[1023] This sentence is written in different ink.
[1024] '… For singing for the dead and the living.'

Whether hence may be gatherd any light of a monestry at St Nicholas Apleby, or a church. The house was the dwelling house of the Chantry of St Mary, & ground where the schoole stands belonged formerly to the Prior of Wetherall. Se if that Priory be in Cumberland and aske what a Priory is. It is [blank]

[II.531]

{Parkes in the Barony of Kendal}
Whether these in the Barony be parkes or forests: Sc. ~~Kentmere~~, Stanley, Conswick, Syzer, Leavens, Skelsmergh \ Great Staveley / Killington, Midleton. \? all parkes / & what is become of the Halls and demesns, severall places mentioned in the catalogue.

{Warrens in West[morland] – none in the Barony}
Warrens and there names. Low Horn Woods ~~How many lings, for that we mean by~~ heaths. Whether these be all dales or you can thinke of any more. B[r]etherdale &c. se p. 15. If you know any more let me have their names; whether a place cald Mat[…][1025] with the lenth & brea[d]th of the vale which is called the Bottom of West[morland]. The particular names of the 3 parishes and 4 lordships at the Caldron Snout.

{Kentmer}
Whether True-Bog be in Westm'land; whether Leun springs in Birbeck Fells or in ~~Maller~~ \ Raving / Stangdale? Or where. Whether there be a mere at Kentmere. If so, mark it up.

{Awsewater}
X where Aus-water is &c.[1026] What part of the country; \ marke it in the map. /

Places where battle have bin fought, either certane or supposed.
Whether any lodges beside Whinfell.
Whence came the stones which built Colby Tower.

[II.535]

Ad Shap
Shap Abbey had a graingе, i.e. an ~~place~~ \ house / where the monks had their dary.
{vid. Survey[or's] Dialogue + p.3}[1027] There are severall grainges in Westm'land: Shap Grainge, Asby Grainge, Regill Grainge. Lord of Shap was improp[riator] ~~Howgill Grainge~~ Sold to Sir John Lowther. Bamton Grange – enquire what more?

{Crosby Ravensworth}
Monks at Crosby Ravensworth.[1028] There are places bearing these names: Monks-garth, Mo[n]ks[barnes, Monks Bridges. Now in the possession of Bellingham of Garthorn (& Levins). He is impropriator.

{Mauds Meaburn!}
Meaburne: Kings. Mauds. From Maud, Queene of England, who kept Green Castl against her son, & made her es\ca/pe in a snow, being attired in the white habit of a nun. She would have Meaburne (where there is \ yet / a fine cross) a market towne, & would have brought which runs through on the west side, but I know not how prevented. Idem.

[1025] The rest of this word is obscured by the binding.
[1026] Repeated on MS. II.532.
[1027] John Norden, The Surveyor's Dialogue.
[1028] An unclear word here seems to read, 'few'.

Proverbs

[I.654A]

Take a Cow to the Hau and shel runn to the Bier.[1029]

[II.502]

Lang Streas are nae motes coth[1030] woman when she plug'd th'Tether out o'th curne.[1031]

[II.488]

Ill trusting to great men.
Its Sharp – ing o th' plane.[1032]
Its sharp mellin with edgeleams ~~o the dub by his sp. when he brakt ore a fe~~[1033]
Its parlish mellin with edge teules, co' the Devil when he brack his […] over a saw.[1034]
Lett ower send ~~the river~~ Eden [blank]
Never winter till ware enter: Sc. January.[1035]
Skill's a rare thing ~~to Kitte Keakson when he maide the wholl he left~~.
Slape hauding by the Haw Binkes.[1036]
That which is got over the devils back – or Ill-gotten ill gone.
When the wind's i'th west,[1037] the weather's at best.

[II.352]

There Proverbs
Heams[1038] heamely. i.e. Home is homely.
Sorrows Geud a frust. Sorrow Good upon trust.

[1029] 'Take a cow to the hall and she'll run to the byre.' A Scottish proverb: see Andrew Cheviot, Proverbs, Proverbial Expressions, and Popular Rhymes of Scotland, collected and arranged with Introduction, Notes and Parallel Phrases (Paisley and London, 1896), 71.
[1030] 'quoth'.
[1031] Taken literally, the words mean as follows, 'Streas'= straws; 'mote' = a single straw or stalk of hay; see Wright, English Dialect Dictionary 5., 807, and 4., 171. Wright quotes, 'lang straes are nae motes', as a proverb but gives no meaning. 'Plug'd' = plucked; see Wright 4, 558; 'th'tether' = the tangle; see Wright 6, 68. Thus, literally: 'Long pieces of straw are not small things, said the woman, when she plucked the tangle out of the churn.'
[1032] Whether this really means, 'It's cold sitting on the plain', as Adam Fox suggests, is debateable. See Fox, 'Vernacular Culture and Popular Customs in Early Modern England: Evidence from Thomas Machell's Westmorland', Cultural and Social History 3 (2012), 329-47, at 335. Compared with some of the other proverbs this meaning seems tame. Alternatively, it would indeed be sharp to sit on a [carpenter's] plane!
[1033] The last word is illegible.
[1034] 'Parlish'= dangerous. 'Melling'= hammering, pounding or meddling with. 'Edgeleam'= an edge-tool (sharp cutting tool). OED. This and the previous phrase appear to say, '"It's dangerous hammering/meddling with edge tools," quoth the devil when he broke his […] over a saw.'
[1035] 'Ware', is Scottish and northern dialect for the season of spring (OED), though the meaning is doubtful in this context. In 1674, John Ray used a similar word, 'to wear the pot' i.e. 'to cool it', which might fit this proverb, as in, 'It's never winter till the cold enters: i.e. January.' See John Ray (1627-1705), A Collection of English words, not generally used ... in two alphabetical catalogues, ... northern ... southern counties, with catalogues of English birds and fishes, and an account of preparing ... metals and minerals (London, 1674), 52.
[1036] MS: This saying appears twice on the page. 'Binks' = banks of earth or rock; 'haw' = a hedge or encompassing fence. OED. Thus, 'It's slippery holding by the hedge banks.' See also, 'Hall binks are sliddery', in John Ray (1627-1705*), A collection of English proverbs digested into a convenient method for the speedy finding any one upon occasion: with short annotations: whereunto are added local proverbs with their explications, old proverbial rhythmes, less known or exotick proverbial sentences, and Scottish proverbs* (Cambridge, 1678), 369.
[1037] MS: '~~when the weathers~~ When the wind's i'th west,'
[1038] Home, pronounced 'h'yam'.

[II. 353][1039]

(Northern Proverbs [1040]
{See the Dictionary of Northcountry Words.}[1041]

Dicere quæ puduit Scribere – justu[m][1042]

A wifes Geud Company be she never so bad.[1043]
Begg a [blank] of and old whore: Endeavour Impossibilityes.
Big to build.
Clow a clown oth' a[…] and hel Sh[…] in thy neafe.[1044]
Heams heamly gin't be never so bad.[1045]
Ill may the kill[n] caw th' mill Burnt arse.
Its ill beggin o' beggars.
Now or never qo'[1046] Bell when he hounded the Bitch.
Now thy Lowse![1047] Quo L. Machell when they would have man show the best he can doe in a Race.[1048]
Sorrow's Geud a frust.[1049]
Better threatned & upon trust than present.
Turn Gods Lether to Gods wether.[1050]
Wesh i th' tea hand & shite ith to'ther & by whilk'll be farst ful.[1051]
Whore'l ye sitt on yeüle euen?[1052]
Yee bread o' few of my Loards Tenna[n]ts.

[1039] Also numbered 'p.41.'
[1040] In the MS., this section is numbered '72'.
[1041] It is probable that Machell was referring to William Nicolson's Glossarium Brigantinum: see CAC(C), DCHA/11/10/1: 'Nicolson's dictionary of northern English (compiled while Nicolson was at Queen's College, Oxford, 1677)'. At Machell's behest, Nicolson, then acting as Machell's research assistant, collected a list of north-country words; see Part 3, Ch.1, Correspondence, Nicolson to Machell, (I.479), possibly referencing this list. An alternative suggestion is that Machell was referring here to Ray's A Collection of English words, not generally used (1674).
[1042] 'It's alright to say what it was shameful to write.'
[1043] 'A wife is good company; however bad she might be.'
[1044] 'Clow' = to wound with a nail; to spike; 'clown' = a mere rustic, a peasant; 'neafe' = a clenched hand or fist. OED. Thus, according to Adam Fox, 'Scratch a country-man on the arse and he'll shit in your hand', see Fox, 'Vernacular Culture, Westmorland', 334. John Ray is more refined: 'Give a clown your finger and he will take your whole hand.' Ray, A Collection of English Words, not generally used, 6.
[1045] 'Home's homely, be it never so bad.'
[1046] 'Quoth'.
[1047] 'Lowse': free from bonds, fetters, or physical restraint. OED.
[1048] Lancelot Machell: Thomas Machell's father, who appears often in the volumes as a keen sportsman and brave rider, among other attributes.
[1049] See II.352, above, where Machell gives the meaning as 'sorrow good upon trust'. Another version of this proverb is 'All ills are good a frist', see J. Jamieson, Etymological Dictionary of Scottish Language, where 'frist' means 'for a space of time'. OED. Adam Fox also suggests that the meaning of 'frist' is, 'to trust for a time'. See Fox, 'Vernacular Culture, Westmorland', 335. See also Ray A Collection of English words, not generally used, 19.
[1050] This is reminiscent of Adam and Eve leaving the Garden of Eden after eating of the tree of knowledge of good and evil: 'And the Lord God made cootis of skynnys to Adam and Eve his wijf, and clothide hem; and seide, Lo! Adam is maad as oon of vs, and knowith good and yuel': Genesis 3.20-22 (Wycliffe version). It quite possibly means, 'Wear leather to combat the weather'.
[1051] 'Wesh' = urine; 'Tea' = 'the one', as opposed to the other; 'whilk' = a variant of 'which'; 'farst' = the furthest. OED. Therefore, 'Urine in one hand and shite in the other and by which he will be stuffed full'.
[1052] Literally, 'Where will you sit on Christmas Eve?'

[74.] Strange words
To Leather } a mans hide; i.e. to stesh, lash with a leasl; beat Bacill.
Leashe }
Bensell }
A wandell; i.e. a bushell Windermer.
A Martindale potle: 8 quarts.[1053]
To Daker; i.e. to strive or contend, taken from men of that name; used also in Scotland. Testibus Mr Lawson.
To Spang-whew.[1054] Sc. to beat, they say it is takeing a spelke (i.e. a plyable stick) & bending it till both ends almost mete, & so letting it goe with all its spring & force upon a man, so that one end thereof may hurt him; but is commonly used for bating Leverets.

[1053] 'Potle' or 'potel': a unit of capacity used chiefly for liquids (but also for corn and other dry goods, and, rarely, for butter), equal to half a gallon. OED. At two gallons, clearly the Martindale potle had an enviable capacity.
[1054] To 'spanghew' or 'spangwhew': to throw or jerk violently; to cause an object to fly into the air; to toss with violence. OED.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 1]

[Town of Appleby and its Parishes]

Figure 1.1.1. Appleby Castle. I.57.

[Machell's Research Method: Appleby]

[I.57]

1st of Apelby: In respect to the Town, which is the County Town & hath in 2 Parish Churches: St Michael & St Lawrance; but 1st of St Lawrence in regard of the Castle which is the capital or chief house of Westm'land. The Parish of St Lawrence commonly Apelby, lyes on the west side the River Eden, and is a vicaridge rated &c.
Show when a parsonage, how & when changed, taxed for the vicar; what chaple pertaneing \ domestic or / parochichiæl. Describe the church; school; hospital; castle. Is St Michael in the Town of Apleby.
The chappels in the lordships?
In Barwis Lordship speake of chappells one for all, out of [blank] & confirm it by the writeing in our evidence chest.

[I.171]

1. The church with what observable in it: patrone.
2. How many hamlets & vilages.
3. How many lordships & manner houses & in them; \ each / one. 1. What fam[ily].
4. What things remarkable; as antique quarries, wood, wells, waters.

[I.172]

Method for Apelby
Because it is not wholy in one Parish but has 2 Parish Churches in it I must of necessity speake the Towne 1st & the Court in it \ & / then of the churches.
Abalby is the Countie Towne & chief place of Westmorland, haveing in it 2 Parish Churches. I will first speake of it in particular with the remarkable places there in; and then of the Churches with the villages & Lordships thereunto belonging, with other things which are worthy remarke;[1] Which is the method I propose to my selfe (the particular and previous account only excepted) in the other parishes of the County of Westm'land.

[1] MS: 'belonging ~~together~~ with other thinkes ~~& places~~ which are worthy remarke.'

[I.172A][2]

[Notes on Tottenham High Cross] [3]
Two parts.
2ly: Civil. Sc. into 4 wards with their names & boundaries.
3ly: into two unequal parts by the highway with an History of it.
5ly: by Lordships with an account of great Tenants, calld in the parsonage Court-Baron: & the other five Courts are joynd all in one & belong to my Lord Colerane.[4]
6: Of the Woods
7. Of the church: for a country village a reasonable large & fair one with a pleasant tuneable ring of 5 Bells standeth upon an hill envyroned on the West, North and East with by the River Mose[elle]. How accommodated to the Towne for distance.
8. The new river & History of it.
So much in general.

The second booke treateth in particular of diverse memorable historical things which doe sort themselves by Ternaryes or Threes. 1st Ternary are 3 Countreyes. The 2. Cross, Hermitage, Altar; the 3. Three proverbs; the 4th 3 Fountanes; the 5. three Bridges; 6. 3 Wonders; 7th 3 Characters &.[5]

[I.172B][6]

ad lib Fam Machell et Lib West…[7]
Nomen (.... ...) quasi .... quod notitiam facit. Nam per id quo quidquid nominamus, illu[d] agnoscitur:[8] i.e. & therefore divine [Providence] do willeth that names doe agree [to] things signified. That is, that such names be imposed, or given unto them which may express them (if it be possible) to the full. And that name or word which is not such, the same Author termeth o)/νομα γελοι~ον: a ridiculous & foolish name.

{Method}
Bedwells definition of Tottenham,[9] which he doth \ begin / by showing:
1. In the Definition (as he calls it): In what Hundred & County; how far from London; what Antiquities; what Quantity; How bounded; the Extent or Dime[nsion]; in Breth from N. to S.; in Lenth from [E. to W.][10] In the whol circuit or compo[sition] The forme.
2. The etymology
3. Longitude & Latitude
4. Soyle & aire
5. Division: 1. Natural by a River in 2 parts.[11]

---

[2] A small note-page, bound in at a later date.
[3] This page consists of Machell's notes on William Bedwell's research on Tottenham, Middlesex. An Arabist and mathematician, Bedwell was part of a circle of scholars at Pembroke College, Cambridge, concerned with biblical studies and Semitic languages. He was vicar of Tottenham High Cross from 1607. See Alastair Hamilton, 'Bedwell, William (bap. 1563, d. 1632)'. ODNB; and see below, I.172B.
[4] The 1st Lord Coleraine purchased the manor of Tottenham in 1625: see Jean Pegram, Jean (1987), 'From Manor House... to Museum', Haringey History Bulletin, vol. 28, Hornsey Historical Society (London, 1987); his son, the 2nd Lord Coleraine, lived in Tottenham for most of his life: see Nicholas Doggett, ' Hare, Henry, second Baron Coleraine (bap. 1636, d. 1708), antiquary and architect'. ODNB.
[5] The rest of the page has perished.
[6] Half of this small note page has been scored through, and the right-hand part lost in a later binding operation. The Latin is given with parts missing; much of the first line is illegible.
[7] The rest of this line is obscured by the binding.
[8] 'For something is recognised through that by which we name it.'
[9] William Bedwell (bap. 1563, d. 1632), A Brief Description of the town of Tottenham High Crosse Middlesex, together with an historical narration of such memorable things as there are to be seen and observed (London, 1631).
[10] Words in square brackets tentatively replace text obscured by rebinding.
[11] A margin comment placed here has perished and now reads, '{This Lordship was […] the Midle Ward when a great tow[n]}.'

[I.176]

[Of the more remarkable places in Apleby]

The most remarkable places are:
1. The 2 Churches I must speake of hereafter distinctly by themselves as the General heads of their respective parishes.
2. The Castle, 3. ~~The St Nicol~~ The Fryory; 4. St Nichol & St George; 5. the Hospitall; 6. the Schoole; 7. The Towne hall; 8. the Jaol; 9. the Bridge; 10. The House of Correction.

The Castle
It is situated [blank] & consists of 2 parts: viz. the Romane Tower, & the body of the castle. The tower is supposed to be build by the Romanes and has indeed bin a distinct thing of it selfe, moted & walled about circular wise {ut res est dic[tum] opidum est situ amoe[no], suaque semper in principem fide, et in exteros humanitate inter celeberrimas Britaniae urbes commemorandum.}[12]

[Machell's Notes: I.176]

(vid. when Yorke Charter granted? If it was in Henry I time) When London &c.
They are a Barony in themselves {Quaere?}
They have a Towne hall & Prison & House of Correction & the assises have bin kept here since before date se … ante parochias.[13] The Townes armes are 3 lyons passant gardant
{1. Situation; 2. Description, with relation of accidents in pa …[14] and repares; 4. Inhabitants with their descents}[15]

[B.]
Notes, [Charters and Documents] concerning the shreivalty of Westm'land and other liberties and rights in the same county[16]

[I.160]

{Sheriff}
The Shrivealty of Westm'land was of old a great regality & ever esteemed the most noble jewell in the cabinet till they re[n]derd it vile by putting it \ this jewel into a / ~~into~~ mean mens, which before was execute by the best of the gentry. A jewel, be it never so rich, is but sordid in a swines snout.

[I.161]

Inter Placita de Assis[is] & Iuratis &c.[17] De warranto[18] Anno 20 Ed. 1. [1291-92]
Idonea de Leybourne was impleaded in a quo warranto, for useing of free chases, free warren, amends for the breaking of the Assise of Ale;[19] wafes[20] in certaine townes there sett downe to the number of 20. She sayeth that she clameth free chace and free warren in Apleby and Marton, Kings Meburne, Kirkby Stephen & Lancton, and not anywhere else; and she clameth amends for the Assise of Ale broken; and waifes in Marton, Kings Meburne & Kirkby Stephen, and in the moyity[21] of the towne of Overton &c. And she sayeth that she clameth the premises as parcell of the inheritance of Robert de Veteripont, her father, whose coheire she is together with Robert the son of Isabell her sister, which [12] 'As the matter is, the said fortress is in a delightful situation, maintaining loyalty always to the Crown, and to be marked among the most famous cities of Britain for its civilised attitude to foreigners.'

[13] 'Before the parishes.'
[14] Indistinct word.
[15] Much of the margin comment at the page foot is obscured by the binding or has perished.
[16] This title originally appeared on MS. I.161.
[17] 'Among the pleas of the assizes and jurors etc.'
[18] 'By what authority'.
[19] For the Assize of Bread and Ale, see I.S. Hornsey, A History of Beer and Brewing (Cambridge, 2003), 292.
[20] Waifs: see the English Glossary.
[21] Moiety: see the English Glossary.

Robert is within aige; and the jury testify this clayme to be true, and say that Robert of Vepount died seased of the said libertyes. De warranto Ed. I.[22] {Robert Clifford son of Rodger and Isabell Vipont.}

§1. In placito de quo warranto et Rayman anno 20^0 Ed. I. Rot 2.0.[23]
The king demands by William Ing against Idonea ~~of~~ \ de / Leyburn, 1600 acres of wood, & 1000 acres of pasture in Kirkby Stephen and Brougham, & the Castle of Brough under Stanemore, and the mannours of Apleby, Kings Meburne, Browham & Kirkby Stephan. She sayeth that she clameth in cop[ar]tnary[24] with Robert of Clifford, the sonn of Isabell, her sister, & because Robert is within aige it is adjudged that the plea shall demur or stay.\ placita de Juratis &c: 6 Ed. 1. [1277-78]. /

§3. \ Placita de Juratis &c. 6. Ed. 3 [1332-1333] / Jurat et Assis Anno 7^o Ed. 1. [1278-79] / in Rot ultimo {Jurati presentant quod Henricus Senex i.e. Henry I}[25]
Burgus de Apleby venit per 12.[26] {Henricus Senex i.e. Henry 1. [1111-1112]}
The jury present that where \ as / Old Henry, granted to the Burgesses of Apleby such libertyes as the citizens of Yorke have, and King John confirmed the same, and they say that King John gave the Shrivaltye of Westmorland to Robert of Vipount and his heirs, who first hindred the said burgesses to use returne of writts and pleas of Wither~~m~~ \n/an.

II. An inquisition Munday after midlent Sunday: {Anno 3^0 Ed. I. [1274-75]}
Coram rege Ed. I. / Paschae Anno 3^0 [1275] majus et minus.[27]
Westmorland Rot. 12. Placitum Inter &c[28] {Entered}[29]
§ I. A plea betwene the Burgesses of Apleby, plantiffs, and Roger \ de / Clifford younger & Isabell his wife, & Roger \ de / Leyburne and Idonia his wife, defendants, for that the defendants exact of those Burgesses other services than they ought. The defendants say that King John gave to one Robert ~~of Vipont~~ \ de Veteripont / their ancestor Appleby & Brough [~~an Inq. upon this III^0 Ed. 1~~] see p. 48 Lib. 5 {Entered in Ap[pleby]}

§ 2. Paschae[30] 4^0 Ed. 1. [1276] Maius et minus.[31] Westmorland Rot. 30. Judgment is given for the defendants sherifes.

§ 4. Paschae 8^0 Ed. I. [1280] majus.[32] Westmorland Kendall Rot. 25.
An order made by the king and his councell how many servants the Shireue of Westmorland in Kendall ought to have for service of the king, and also an Inquisition lecta digna.[33] {Entered in Ap[pleby].}

[I.162]

{vide post Anno 13. Ed. 1.}[34]
Coram Rege Ed. I. Paschae, 14 Maius. Westmorland. Rot. 25.
A judgment given for the shrieue of Westmorland against the Burgesses of Appleby: For that the Burgesses clame to have retorne of writts & other libertyes; because the Burgesses appear not, Ideo

[22] From a warrant of Edward I. Crossed-through text here repeats the paragraph's title: '~~inter placita de Assisi & Iur &c~~.'
[23] 'Rotulus': roll.
[24] 'Copartnery': from 'coparceners' or 'coparticipates': 'those who are to have equal portion in the inheritance of an ancestor and by law are the issue female in default of heirs male, come in equality to the lands of their ancestors and make partition of the lands.' See Giles Jacob, A New Law Dictionary (2nd edn, 1732), C.
[25] 'In the last roll the jurors present that the old Henry (Henry I).'
[26] 'The Burgesses of Appleby came.'
[27] 'In the presence of Edward I., at Easter, in the third year of Edward I.: more or less.'
[28] 'Plea between.'
[29] 'Plea entered.'
[30] 'Easter.'
[31] 'More or less.'
[32] 'At Easter in May 1280.'
[33] 'Duly recited.'
[34] 'After November 1284.'

vicecomes sine die.[35] {Entered inter Cart no 1.}

Anno 15. Ed. 1. [1287] Coram Rege Ed. I. Pasch: 15. Westmorland Rot. 10.
§6. \ Williesmus de Goldrington & / William of Goldrington & others were attached to answer Isabell, who was the wife of Roger Clifford the Younger and Idonia, her sister, for causeing John of Apleby and others to be appealed in the towne of Apleby for the death of Nicholas Strange &c. Whereas appeales of Death of man ought not to be holden before any but the King or his justices de Banco,[36] Justices Itinerant in the shire or shires in their countries,

{§7. Ed. 1. [1287-88] confirm[atum] Antiquae cartae de Apeby vide post}[37]

{§8. 18. Ed. 1. [1289-90] carta libertatis pro diversis clameis Term Retro in Tur.}[38]
Whereupon the said Isabell Shrieuess complaneth. Judgment is given that the defendants shall forfaite to the said Isabell, and the Liberties of the towne of Apleby seised unto the Kings hands, and are in the same plea repleiaed.
{Entered in Cart de Appleby} Communia de Term Michs. Anno 23 finente & Incipiente 24 Ed. I Ro. 9 in dorso.[39]

Collections Henrie
Villa de Apelby sesita in manum Regis quia homines ejusdem villae tenuerunt formifica placita in villa sua sine warranto socii. Anno 24 Rol. 14. e Tur.[40]
That Appleby was a Corporation in the time of Henry 3., haveing liberties equall with Yorke, which privaledges wer confirmed by King John. And Robert de Veteripont, the first of that name and first hereditarie Shireve, was the first allso who hindered the said Burgesses to use returne of writts and pleas of Witherman.
Ranulfus de Langeton and Alicia, his wife, who was daughter of Thomas, son of Patritius, whose heire she was, had sute of c\l/ame coram jus warijs domini Regis apud Apleby, with Thomas de Hellebeck for 2 oxgangs of land in Hellebeck, which they released to Thomas & \ his / heires. His testibus Domino Willielmo de Bampton, tunc Vicecomite Westmarie, Domino Roberto de Askeby Domino Johanne de Montvile Domino Richard de Suleby, Thomas de Musgrave tunc senescallo Westmariæ,[41] Willelmo de Warthecop, Johe de Barton,[42] Hugo Carpenter, Richardo filio Beatricie, Willielmo de Sowerby et alys.[43]

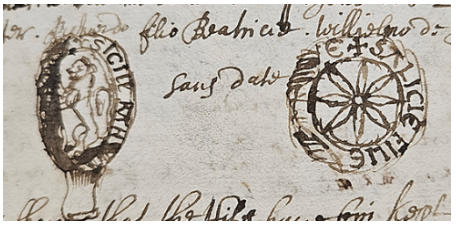

Figure. 1.1.2. Seals 'sans date'. I.62.

[35] 'Therefore, the sheriff at a later date.'
[36] Justices in the Court of Common Pleas.
[37] 'Checked at an old document at Appleby: see below.'
[38] 'A charter of liberty for various claimants in the Term Return Day, in the Tower of London.'
[39] 'The commons [court of common pleas] of the Michaelmas term at the end of year 23 and the beginning of year 24 of Edward I. [1295-96], in Roll 9 in the back.'
[40] 'Town of Appleby taken into the hand of the king because men of that town held [?] pleas in his town without warrant.'
[41] 'At that time Lord of Westmorland.'
[42] Or Burton; here there is an indistinguishable letter: a/u.
[43] 'And with others.'

This shows that the Asises have bin kept at Apleby anciently ever before the time of usuall dateing. I suppose it was in the I of Henry 3[d] [1216-1217] that this writeing was made. And it may be seen amongst the sine date[44] writeing of Hellebeck, upon the dorse of which I have writ: T.D.[45] & Lanheton, 6ost.

[I.163]

St Lawrence Appleby
Vid plura[46] in the Common Place Rolls, Booke of Pedegrees, Notes General

[I.164]

Mr Dugdall has drawn these without crownes, & I have seen a draught at an instrument of John Marshall, vicar of St Michaels,[47] to Thomas Lord Clif[ford] 4° November XXXI. of Henry 6. [1452] where the lyons in the flag are plane without crownes; the other in the shield seemd crowned: Sc. 2 upermost, the lower not. They appear'd to mee, when I saw the impression, to be crowned, & I have writ to be farther inform'd. Mr Dugdal was mistaken in Machells armes in Aple[by] church window (Sc. St Lawrence), putting the dogs without collers where as they are collerd, & several other things in that Visitation 1654, & he may possibly be out in this, sed quaere.[48] This in the reverse is better drawn than any I have seen.

[I.165]

Figure: I.1.3. Appleby Seal. I.165.

[I.167]

Inter Recepta Domini Regis Caroli in Curia Recepte scaear[ij] Sub custod[odia] Thesararij et camerarionis ibidem resident[ium]. Inter alia continetur ut sequitur. Placita Coram Domino Rege apud Westm'land a die pasche in quindecim dies. Anno Ed.1. 13[0] Rotul. 26 Preceptum fuit vicecomiti quod esset hic &c.[49] i.e. The Shireue was commanded to be present here, to an[swer] this day to the Kinges Burgers of the Towne of Appleby, concerning a plea. Whereas the wellbeloved the Kinges Burgers of Appleby by theire Charters of the Kings progenitours, Kings of England, ought to have returne of all the Kings writts concerneing themselves in their towne aforesaid, and there to make Summons and Attachments according to the Tennure of the said Brieves, and to Answer to the Kings writts which concerne themselves, before the King or his justices whomsoever, to be impleaded; by which our Lord the King might otherwise command[50] his Shireue to returne to the said Burgesses such like writts of the king, in due and accustomed forme, and in the same words that they are directed unto the [44] 'Without a date.'

[45] An indistinct word follows.
[46] 'See further' [or 'several'].
[47] Bongate.
[48] 'But query'. According to Edward Bellasis, this window had stained glass (put in wrongly, thus making the dogs run inaccurately to the sinister) of Thornburgh quartering Machell. It was seen as late as 1855, though it has since disappeared, E. Bellasis, 'Machell of Crackenthorpe', CW1, 8 (1886), 419 footnote.
[49] 'Received in the Court of His Majesty, King Charles. Receipts of the Treasury under the custody of the Treasurer and Steward resident there. Among other things, the contents are as follows: Pleas before His Majesty the King in Westmorland from Easter Day for fifteen days. In the 13th year of Edward I. [1284-85], Roll 26. It was enjoined on the sheriff that he should be here etc.'
[50] MS: '{alias whereby our Lord the King might formally command}by which our Lord the King might otherwise command'.

Shireue; & the Shireue should permit them to answer to the Kings writts before the King or his Justices, to be impleaded and to make Summons & Attachments in the Kings Towne aforesaid. The Shrieve, contemneing or setting att nought the Kings command aforesaid, hath don nothing of this kinde there to the manifest prejudice or wrong of the said Burgesses and their Libertyes, as is showne to the King in behalf of those Burgesses by their [~~long~~]complaint. Att which the King wondereth, and therefore doth recommand and firmly injoyne the said Shriue that he permitt and suffer the foresaid Burgesses to have such retornes in forme aforesaid, and to answer to the Kings writts before the King or the Kings justices, to be impleaded and to make their Summons & Attachmentes there without any difficulty, according to the tenore of the forsaid Charters, & the tenore allso of the Kings mandamus directed to the Shriue. And the foresaid Shrieue came & was ready to show & verify that the forsaid Baliues never had retorne of writts, sommons or attachments; and the Baliues aforesaid did not appear. Ideo dictum est vicecomiti quod eat inde sine die; et predicti Baluis et plegis {pledges or suretye} Ideo dictum est vicecomiti quod eat sine die, et predicti Balivi et plegij Sui {pledges or suretye} de prosequendo in mi[sur]a. Queratur nomina plegiorum.[51]
II Placita Coram R. de Heng\g/ham (Ibid reservata) de Anno 15º Regis Ed. Proximo die post med Quardragess. Rott. XIII.[52] {N.B. Entered in Cart. De Ap.}
Willielmus de Goldrington &c.: William de Goldrington, John his brother, Thomas de Breton, Hugh de Granger, William Le Tayler, John de Karliol, Will Berewys – Amicia the daughter of Mr Goldrington, Simon Kemp (and others I omit) in mia pro plur defaultis.[53]

[I.168]

{Nicholas de Hastigmont \ Alice vx /
Amicia – T. Goldrington
Christian = W. de Goldrington
Isabell = William Thrilkeld
Emma = Gilbert Wherton}

The same William Goldrington and others were attached to an answer to Isabell, who was wife of Roger de Clifford, the young Idonea, the sister of the same Isabell, touching a plea. Why and when an Appeale concerning the death and killing of a man & other fellonyes committed in the Kingdome) if the King may or ought or hath bin accustomed (according to the law and custom of same kingdome) to be instituted, pleaded or held before the King or his Justices of the bench, or before his itinerary justices by the kings writs, or before the Kings shrieves in his countyes & keepers of the pleas of his Crowne in the same Countyes without the Kings writts, & in no other court of the said King. The forsaid William de Goldrington and others, have by Amice, the wife of Thomas de Goldrington, Christian the wife of William de Goldrington, Isabel, the wife of William Threlkeld, and Emma, the wife of Gilbert Wherton, without the Kings writt & without any reasonable cause, procured Robert de Appelby, John le Fraunces & Robert the son of Alexander, to be appealed in the Kings Court of the Burrow of Appleby, touching the death of Nicholas de Hasting, the brother of the said Amice, Christian, Isabel & Emme, & plead & hold that Appeal in the same court. Although Alice, who was wife of the foresed Nicholas de Hastings, doth Appeal to the foresaid Robert de Appleby touching the death of the foresaid Nicholas her som times husband, in the county as the manner is. \ But they have taken by force & armes & / have[54] the forsaid John le Fraunces, & & Robert, fil Alexandri, soe appealed with in the Liberty of the forsaid Isabel & Idonea (~~taken by force Armes & have imprisoned~~) to the prejudice of the King and the said Isabel & Idonea, and the noe small hurt of their own libertyes, to the manifest contempt of the King, against the Laws and Customes of the Kingdom, and against the peace &c. Whereupon they complane that whereas all attachments of Appeal touching the death of a man ought to belong to the Shirieve, nor may the said Appeales be determined, nor indeed are they accustomed soe to be, without Justices (supplying the Kings place, otherwise called the)

[51] 'Therefore, it was declared to the Sheriff that he should depart without a date of return, also the aforesaid Bailiffs and their sureties to prosecute [matters] in due measure. He should inquire the names of the sureties.'
[52] 'II pleas before R. de Hengham (reserved at the same place) in the 15th year of Edward. On the day following mid-Lent. Roll XIII.'
[53] '.... in due measure according to a greater number of defaults.'
[54] A word here is obscured by the binding but the crossed-through passage following it suggests its meaning.

Lieutenants of the King, or Justices of the Bench, or Itinerary Justices, or Shirieves in their Countyes, or keepers of the pleas of the Crowne in some Countyes. The foresaid William de Goldrington & others, on Wednesday next before the Nativity of St John Baptist, in the 14 of our now Kings Reigne, held an Appeal touching the death of Nicholas de Hastings, at the sute of Amice, the wife of Thomas de Goldrington, Christian, the wife of William de Goldrington, Isabel, the wife of William de Thrilkeld, & Emme, the wife of Gilbert de Querton, which Amice or in truth, & others, appealed the foresaid John le Fraunces & others, touching the death aforesaid; by whose Appeale the foresaid John & others were attached and detayned in prison, and had a day given them, until Wednesday next after the feast of the Appostles Peter & Paul in the same yere at which they prolonged their Court of Appleby until Thorsday, the feast of St James the Apostle, att which day appeared personally the foresaid Isabel as shiruess of Westmorland, & brought the Kings Writt to the aforesaid Baliues of the Court foresaid, that they should not any further hold that Appeal or the like, in the Court aforesaid contra prohibitum Regis;[55] & allso an other Writ to the foresaid Amice & others, that they should not follow their Appeal &c. Notwithstanding the foresaid Baliffs held their Court touching the Appeal aforesaid, i.e. on Wednesday next before the Feast of St Lawrence; and afterwards came one John Cromwell & brought the Kings Writt to deliver the foresaid John & Robert, whome the Baliffs indeed delivered; & after, the same Baliffs at the sute of one Adam, being under aige, who appealed the foresaid John & Robert touching the death aforesaid, tooke the same John & Robert agane and held their Court concerning the same Appeale. Whereupon, they say that they are damnifyed to the value of 1000 li & theirupon bring their Sute. And ergo William & others appeared by their attorney, and could not gainsay or contradict it {Entered in Ap. Charters}. Therefore it is adjudged that the foresaid William de Goldrington & others should make satisfaction to the foresaid Isabell & Idonea, & the Liberty of the foresaid Towne of Appleby should be into the Kings hands et William et alij mia'.[56] Afterward appeared before the Lieutenants or Deputyes of Our Lord the King at Westminster, John de Goldrington, with the Baliues of Appleby, & desired the forsaid Liberty by Plevine,[57] & it was granted &c. until a moneth after Michaelmas Day, wheresoever &c. And that they might have a writt to repleuie &c.

[I.169]

Iter[um] Carta de An[no] 14. Ed 1. No. 21.
In Tur. London.
Confirmatio Antiquae Cartae de Appleby in Com[i]t[atu] Westmorland per Hen[ricum] 2 Johan[em] & Hen[ricum] 3rd.[58]

Rex Archiepiscopis etc. Salutem; Inspeximus Cartam Confirmationis quam D[ominus] Henric[us] Rex Pater Noster fecit Burgensibus de Appelby in Hec Verba ... Henr[icus] D[e]i gratia Rex Anglie Dom[inus] Hib[er]n[ie] & Dux Norman[ie] et Aquitaniae, et comes Andeg[avie] Archiespisc[opis], Episcopis, Abbibus, Prioribus, comit[atibus], Baronibus, Just[iciari]is, Forestariis, vicecom[itibus], Prepositis, Ministris, et Omnibus Balivis et fidelibus suis, salutem; Inspeximus cartam D[omi]ni I Regis patris nostri, quam fieri fecit Burgensibus nostris de Appelby in hec verba. Johannes D[e]i Gratia Rex Angl[ie], Dom[inus] Hib[er]n[i]e, Dux Normanie Aquitan[ie] et Comes Andeg[avie], Archiepisc[opis], Abbibus, Comitibus, Baronibus, Iust[iciari]is, Vicecom[itibus], et Omnibus Ministris et fidelibus suis salutem: Sciatis nos concessisse et p[re]senti carta confirmasse Burgensibus nostris de Appleby omnes libertates et liberas consuetudines, quas Burgenses nostri de Ebor[aco] habent. Quare volumus et firmiter p[re]cipimus quod p[re]dicti Burgenses nostri de Appleby h[ab]eant bene et in pace, libere et quiete, plenarie et integre et honorifice omnes libertates et liberas consuetudines quas Burgenses nostri de Eborac[o] habent sicut Rex Henricus Pater noster eas illis concessit, et carta sua rationabiliter confirmavit, et prohibemus ne quis eas inde disturbet. Preterea dedimus et concessimus eisdem Burgensibus nostris de Appleby, Libertates et Quietantias, de

[55] 'Against the king's prohibition.'
[56] Mia = misericordia, i.e. acquitted. 'Should be into hands of the King, and both William and the others acquitted.'
[57] Plevin or (French) Plevine: 'A pledge, assurance, or warrant; surety. Also, through plevin: on bail'. OED.
[58] 'Another Charter of the year 14. Ed 1. No. 21. in the Tower of London. Confirmation of the Ancient Charter of Appleby in the County of Westmorland, by Henry II, John, and Henry III.'

Theolonio et stallagio et pontagio, et lestagio per Totam Terram nostram Anglie qu[ae] ad nos pertinet p[re]ter quam in civitate London nisi forte cives Ebor[aci] quietantias inde habeant, per libertates suas, in civitate London. Concessimus eis Burgen[sibus] de Appleby, tenend[o] in manu sua; reddendo inde firmam quam debe[n]t vicecom[iti] nostro de Westm[or]land apud Appleby; sc[ilicet] medietatem ad fest[um] S[anc]t[i] Michael[is] et Alteram medietatem ad Pascha.
Testibus Gaufro fil[io] Petri com[itis] Essex, Will[iam]o Briweir, Hugone Bard, Will[iam]o Stutevill, Ric[ard]o constabulario castri, Hugone de Nevil, Simon de Patteshall. Dat p[er] manum Simonis Archid[iaconi] Wallen[sis] et Johan[n]is de Gray. Apud Ebor[acum] xxvj Marc[ij] regni nostri Anno 1o ... Nos igitur concessionem donatione[m] et confirmationem p[re]dictam gratam et ratam habentes, pro nobis et Heredibus nostris, eam p[re]dictis Burgensibus nostris de Appleby p]re]senti carta nostra concedimus et confirmavimus.
His testibus, venerabil[i]b[us] patribus P. Winton[ensi], J. Bathon[ensi], et W. Carliolen[si] episc[opis], H. de Burgo com[ite] cant[uarie] Justi[ciari]o nostro, R comite castr[i] et Lind[i], Johan[ne] de Lacy constab[ulario] castri, Stephano de Segrave, Rad[olf]o fil[io] Nicholai, Godefro de Gaucrum, Rich[ard]o fil[io] Hugonis et Alyis.
Dat[a] p[er] manum venerabilis patris A. Cicestr[ensis] epi[scopi], Cancellar[ij] nostr[i]: apud Westm[inste]r 5º Maij Anno r[egni] nostri 16º
Entered Inter Cartas de Burgo de Appleby. [59]
{H. 3d.[60] Henry the 3rd confirmed onely the charte of Appleby ergo they had it before.}
{1. John [1199-1200]}
{Henry 2. confirmed the charter}
{stallagio = toll, stallage}
{lastage}[61]
{The Burrow}
{Constable of Chester}

[59] 'The King to the Archbishops etc. Greetings. We have viewed the Charter of Confirmation which Lord Henry the King, our father, made for the townsfolk of Appelby, in these words ... Henry, by Grace of God King of England, Lord of Ireland & Ruler of Normandy and Aquitaine, and Earl of Anjou, sends greetings to the Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots, Priors, Earls, Barons, Justices, Foresters, Sheriffs, Reeves, Ministers, and to all the Bailiffs and his loyal people. We have viewed the charter of the Lord King the First, our father, which he caused to be made for our townsfolk of Appelby, in these words. John by Grace of God King of England, Lord of Ireland, Ruler of Normandy and Aquitania and Earl of Anjou, sends greetings to the Archbishops, Abbots, Earls, Barons, Justices, Sheriffs, and to all his ministers and faithful people: Know ye that we have conceded and by this present Charter have confirmed to our townsfolk of Appleby all the liberties and free customs which our townsfolk of York hold. Wherefore we will it and we strongly enjoin that our aforesaid townsfolk of Appleby hold well and in peace, freely and quietly, fully and wholly and honourably, all the liberties and free customs which our townsfolk of York hold, just as King Henry our father granted them to them and duly confirmed them by his charter, and we forbid that anyone should alter them from this. Moreover, we have given and granted to the same our townsfolk of Appleby the liberties and immunities of toll and stallage and pontage and lastage throughout our whole land of England which we govern except that in the city of London, unless perchance the townsfolk of York hold immunities, through their liberties, in the city of London. We have made grant to those townsfolk of Appleby, by holding in their own hand [and] by returning thence the payment which is due to our sheriff of Westmorland at Appleby; viz. a moiety at the feast of Saint Michael and the other at Easter.
Witnesses: Gaufrus son of Peter, Earl of Essex; William Briweir; Hugo Bard; William Stutevill; Richard warden of the castle; Hugo de Nevil; Simon of Patteshall. Handed over by Simon Archdeacon of Wales and John de Gray. At York the 26th of March in the 1st year of our reign ...
We, therefore, holding the grant, gift and confirmation aforesaid agreeable and valid, for us and our heirs, do grant and have confirmed it to the aforesaid our townsfolk of Appleby by our present charter.
Witnesses: The venerable fathers P. Bishop of Winchester, J. Bishop of Bath, and W. Bishop of Carlisle; Henry of the Borough [and] earl of Canterbury, our Justice; R. earl of the castle and of Lincoln; John of Lacy, warden of the castle; Stephen of Segrave; Radolfus son of Nicholaus; Godefry of Gaucrum; Richard son of Hugo; and others. Handed over by the venerable father A. Bishop of Chichester, our Chancellor. At Westminster, the 5th of May in the 16th year of our reign. Entered among the charters of the Town of Appleby'.
[60] Superimposed on '2nd'.
[61] See the English Glossary.

{16. Ed. I. [1287-88]}

[Machell's Notes: I.171] [62]

Se Appleby treated on per vicos Ogleb. Notes.[63]
Se the Charter pag[e] praecedent.
The County Court was kept in Apleby Castle, as by a verdict to Mr Elmore Machell 30th December Annis ~~Phill~~ et Mariae 4^0 et 5^0.[64]
Abbotts of Shap
Rich. Abbat 1426: 4. Hen.
Bishops of Carlisle: see at Buly: John, Bishop of Carlisle, 1426. 4. Henry 6.

[I.232]

[Charter] (occurit in Castro de Skipton)[65]
Apelby and Bur[66] cum omnibus pertinentijs suis, together with all the balifship (or Shriuealty) ~~of~~ and the rent of the county of Westmorland, and with the services of all our tenents there, who hold not of us by Knights Service: to have & to hold of us and our heires, to him and his heires who shal issue from him and his now espoused wife, by the service of 4 Knights for all service, reserveing to us and our heires all pleas which belong to the Crowne with our regal dignatie and saveing also that the said Robert nor his, shall not make any waste or distruction in Brullis de Winefeld {see a booke called Forest Laws which sayes no purlues till after his reign}[67] i.e. in the Purlews of Whinfeld, nor hunt in them so long as wee live, unlesse the said Robert be corporally present \ i.e. personally present / wherefore wee will and firmely command, that the said Robert and his heires, after him, have and injoy all the premises of us and our heires as is aforesaid: in woods & in planes, in wa[rrens][68] and in paths, in medows and pastures, in mores & in marshes (in stagnis et vivarijs) {In stanks & fish ponds} in ponds and in rivers, in waters & mills, and in all places with their libertyes and free customes, as is aforesaid. Test. Bald: Comite Albimer. William de Broos, Richard de Torneham, Petro de Stock, Allano Basset, Eudon de Bellocamp, Colino Clerico. Dat per manus Hugonis de Well, apud Troare 28 Octob. Anno R. nostri $5^{0.}$

From this Charter it appeares that Brough and Whinfell doe both belong to Apelby as Apendices thereof: and I suppose that Browham Castle is allso included*, tho not mentioned there:[69] For I finde not an particular grant of it to the Viponts, and yett in the partition of the 2 sisters which came to be coheres (as hereafter shall be showne) it is sufficiently manyfest that the Viponts were possessed of ~~this~~ that allso, & the Castle of Mallerstang which is called Pendragon.

---

[62] MS: '~~Apperby. Ascome. Akaby Windw. Askeby Mag. Askby Urb~~ [….] ~~Robert Swinburn 8 Ed. 2. Robert de~~ […] ~~8 Ed. 2. 8 Ed 2 p. 5~~ [...] ~~8 Ed 2. John D. Robert Bradewood R. 1. 2. 6. 2 6 8 acres 1 Ed 2 Hors Walteri de Somer o~~' In the MS; placed at the foot of the page upside down and scored-through.
[63] 'See Appleby treated on by small towns [in] Ogilby notes': John Ogilby, Britannia … an illustration of the kingdom of England and dominion of Wales: by a geographical and historical description of the principal roads thereof (1675, 1698). See C. Withers, 'Ogilby, John (1600-1676), publisher and geographer'. ODNB.
[64] The early regnal years of Mary I were 1: Alone, 1553-1554. 2: After her marriage to Philip of Spain, 1554-1558. As these periods were often calculated separately and 'Phill' is scored through, Machell's wording is opaque.
[65] 'Occurs in Skipton Castle.'
[66] Word blotted; presumably Brough.
[67] The book is probably by John Manwood: A Treatise of the lawes of the forest ... also a treatise of the pourallee ... whereunto are added the statutes of the forest (1615). During the reign of Henry II [1154-89] about 30 per cent of the country was set aside for royal sport. The forest laws were enacted to protect 'the beasts of the forest' (red, roe, and fallow deer, and wild boar) and the trees and undergrowth which sheltered them. The Assize of the Forest (also known as the Assize of Woodstock) in 1184, resulted in definitive forest laws. None could carry bows and arrows in the royal forest, and dogs' toes were clipped to prevent them pursuing game. Savage penalties for infringements (blinding, mutilation, and castration) were imposed. The forest laws became a major political issue in King John's reign, culminating in the Charter of the Forest (1217), but only in the 14th century, when large areas were disafforested, did the political issue subside. See John Cannon and Robert Crowcroft, 'Forest Laws', in, A Dictionary of British History (3rd edn, 2015). Online.
[68] The word is partially obscured by the binding.
[69] MS: 'tho not mentiond ~~made of it~~ \ there:' /

And the foresaid gift is confirmed to Robert de Veteripont† by the Kings discharge to the Barons of the Exchequer sans date (clause 6^0 Johs memb. 4^{th}), which tho placed there in the Tower yet should be referd in my opinion to the king for the \ very first / grant in these words.[70]
Rex &c. Baronibus de Scaccario &c. Sciatis quod dedimus dilecto et fideli nostro Roberto de Veteriponte.Westm'land‡ ad se sustentandum in servitio nostro, et ideo mandamus quod nihil ab eo exigatis, de preterito tempore nec de futuro \ T.G. filio Petri & apud London 14 April &c.[71] /
Which semes to me to be nothing else but a Certificate under the Kings hand, to satisfy his Barons of his grant & to prohibit theire exacting or demanding of any profits from that time forth out of the said County. Yet some are of opinion that this was meant of Custody & Wardship of Hellenisia daughter & heir of William Lancaster, Baron of Kendall.

[Machell's Notes: I.232]
*{See how they come to Browham by quit A. de Browham of Drengage}
†{He had it first in farme onely, which being given afor, the king here discharges the accounting for it}
‡{The bottom of Westm'land; called Westm'land in a peculiar manner.}

[IV.35]

In the Pipe Roll of 23 Hen III [1239-40]
They say that waste is made in the wood of Flakebrigg and two vaccaries or cowhouses carried away thence by the said Prior [of Wetheral], eleven bulls, nine cows and five woodcalves or wild calves 'calves of the woods' were taken thence by him. It seems there were wild cattle in Flakebrig then.
The Manor of Appleby. Concerning it they say: That the Tower there is much impaired and decayed, and the main timber (marennium) much rotted or decayed by default of the Prior because he would not distrain the pledges of the carpenters who ought to re-edify the Tower, who took of Lord John de Veteripont 22 marks for the reparation of the said Tower, and the Soldiers Room (the Barons Chamber) (Camera Item Militum) also, which was weak and decayed much in time of the said John, fell quite down in the time of the Prior and the main timber is annihilated and utterly wasted or destroyed; and of the 50 marks which our Lady the Queen assigned for the repair of the Castle there is not allowed above £10 as they believe.
It seems this was in the time of Henry IIIs Queen; that the Castle and Tower were both very much decayed then, and the Knights or Barons Chamber, as it was called, new fell at that time even to the ground: all which I understand to be meant of the timber, not of the walls. That the Queen did especially concern herself for the reparations of Appleby.

It seems in the 19^{th} of Edward II the Castle of Appleby was escheated into the hands of the King, for he writes to his Constable of his Castle of Appleby for to pay four marks yearly out of his cornage or horngeld to Shap Abbey (which Abbey was endowed therewith by Robert the son of John de Veteripont) due to him from these his tenants.

West of the Church, scarce a stone cast distant, stands the Free School founded by the Burgesses long ago to which were added the benefactions of 2 Queens one of sacred memory and the other of late, as I have more fully shown in my Notes concerning it, given Mr Wase: see his History of Free Schools.[72] It is a fair building 3 storeys high and a fair Dwelling house lately added thereto of 2 storeys.

[70] MS: 'And the foresaid gift is confirmed to Robert de Veteripont, by the Kings discharge ~~of~~ \ to / the Barons of the Exchequer sans date (clause 6^0 Johs memb. 4^{th}) ~~which tho~~ placed there in the Tower ~~yet should be referd in my opinion to the king for the \ very first~~ / grant in these words.'
[71] 'King etc. To the barons concerning the treasury etc. Let it be known that we have given to our beloved and faithful Robert de Veteriponte, Westmorland, to maintain himself in our service; and therefore, we decree that you exact nothing from him from time past nor in the future. To T.G. Son of Peter at London 14 April etc.'
[72] Christopher Wase, Considerations concerning free-schools as settled in England (Oxford, 1678). Christopher Wase (1627-1690) was a headmaster and classical scholar who conducted a national free-school survey, see R. Hodges, 'Wase, Christopher (1627-1690). ODNB. For Wase's use of questionnaires and his connections with Thomas Machell, see P. J. Wallis, 'Westmorland Schools about 1676: Christopher Wase's Survey', CW2, 67 (1967), 168-85. References to Wase's survey of free-schools can be found throughout Machell's notes; for example, Part 2, Ch.7, Heversham, II.170; Part 2, Ch.9, Windermere, II.346.

In Dugdales Visitation.
Prospect of Appleby and Castle; Arms in and about C[astle]; Arms in and about the Hospital; Arms in and about the Church. Query if he drew the monuments, else I must. If Addison have not [drawn] the North-west Castle I must draw it and the Cross.[73]

[I.304]

[Inquisition 1314-1315]
Concerning Appleby, take this account out of the Inquisition in the 8. of Edward the 2nd [1314-15], taken att Appleby upon the death of Robert de Clifford of Apleby, that famouse warrior & most loyall subject*. He held of the king in capite,[74] the Barony of Westmorland by the service of 4 knights fees; that is to say, the Castle of Apleby with its precincts of trenches†, of the trenches of the said Castle, the herbage whereof is worth by the yere Xs.[75] And there are 200 & 10 acres of demane land ~~of which an 100 at the least is~~ \ per minus centum, i.e. by the lesser hundred[76] / worth 4d per annum and amounteth to 3li 10.[77] There are allso 25 acres of demane medow, each acres whereof is worth by the yere 16d, and they amount to xxxiiijs‡.[78] There are allso xii free tenents who pay by the yere xxxiiijs & a 1d,[79] viz.: at the feast of St Martin & Pentecost. There are allso 25 tenents who hold diverse tenements in fee, which are burned by the Scotts; and they pay per annum att the same termes 4li⸸.[80] There are allso there 28 oxgangs of land whereof each is worth per annum 4s and amounted to the sum of cl xijs.[81] \ 36. Edward 3. [1362-63] pay 41 shill.[82] / Allso there are there 24 messuages cottarales bur[n]t,[83] each whereof is worth 6d per annum, and amounteth to the sum of xs 6d.[84] Allso there is there one water mill, & is worth yerely 6li 13s 4d. Allso there is there 2 petena {quid ?}[85] et valent per annum 6s 8d.[86] There is allso there 1 parke which is called Flakebrig, and is worth by the yere in prato agistamentis et alijs exitibus,+ Cs.[87] There are also there 2 vivaries,[88] which are worth by the year 2s. Allso the pleas & perquisits of the court are worth there 2s & 8d.
The sum is xxixli xix, iij.[89]

I cannot say this is an account of the whole demane & perquisites of Appleby, because I know well that the ancient estate of the Viponts was \ at this time / under a division, & this Robert seised only of his purpart[90] \ and tho he had the Castle yet [his share was] so much contracted that he had not anything of the Castle Park, / only of his purpart. Howsoever this renders ann undeniable proof of Flakebrig being in the Libertyes of Apleby; of land being then at 4d an acre, medow att 16d; that there were above 25 tenements (for there were 25 tenents which held diverse tenements and they all destroyd and burn'd by the Scotts, as allso 24 messuages. So that tis evident 59 houses were destroyd att the least. And by this allso it appears 235 acres of land belonged att that time unto the demane. And yett I take it to be only ½, for in the 11. of Edward, Roger Cliffords halfe of the demane was [73] For Edward Addison, see Part 1. Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.539.

[74] ' in chief.'
[75] 10s.
[76] 'Of which a hundred at least.'
[77] £3 10s.
[78] 34s.
[79] 34s 1d.
[80] Terms are rent days.
[81] 112s 0d.
[82] 41s 0d.
[83] Cottars' homes, burned down.
[84] 10s 6d.
[85] 'Quid': what are they? Petena = peat mosses.
[86] 'And are worth 6s 8d per annum.'
[87] 'And is worth annually in its meadows, grazing and other assets, 100s 0d.'
[88] Fishponds. See IV.36, below.
[89] £29 19s 3¼d; 'the court' is the manor court.
[90] Purpart = a share; a part in a division; that part of an estate formerly held in common, which is by partition allotted to any one of the parties. The word was anciently applied to the shares falling separately upon a division or partition of the estate: Black's Law Dictionary, http://thelawdictionary.org/purpart/.

valued att xxvii^{li} v^{s} iii. Qu.[91] The Scotts also burned several other places, as hereafter I shall show; & Burgh for one.

Demane of Apleby, given in to be Anno 8. Edward 2. [1314-1315]
\ 4d per acre / 210 \ per minus centum / & 25 medow: 16d per acre. I Edward 3. [1327-1328]
402 arable: 5d acre & 43 acre of medow 10d per acre: 19. Edward 3. [1345-1346]
Tot[al], 188 acre: 6d acre – 21 of medow:1s 6d an acre.
Wilde beast or deer in the parke of Flakebrig: Anno Edward 3. 1^{0} [1327-28]. St Laurence Parish in Apleby: see p.40 ubi plura.[92]

[Machell's Notes: I.304]

{I finde it called vicus de Scytergatt s.d. T. Tho. fil quondam magistri Willielmi de Goldryngton, majoris, puto temp. Henry 3.}[93]
*{8. Ed. 2. È Tur. Lond. Eiscaetria[94] Anno 8. Edward 2. n.62.
†1. Edward 3. 8 acres of waste within trenches herb[age] worth iiij^{s}}
‡{Arable 4d an acre; medow 16 per acres.}[95]
⸸{10. of Henry 5., the Castle & Ma[jor] of Apleby cont. in it selfe v. pag.)

[I.172]

[C.]
[Description of Appleby, primarily taken from Volume I.]
Apelbeya eo Conquestoris[96]

Abalby (for so I thinke fitt to write it) from Aballaba its ancient and Romane name,[97] is now called Apleby, Apulby or Apeby promiscuously and so I finde it writt from the ~~time of the~~ Conquest. A Towne it is of very great antiquity, being a station of Aurelian Moors, \ but of considerable[98] / yeres since then called Aballaba, and the antiquity thereof has bin confirmed, as former writers have testified, by British brickes and ancient inscriptions and of later yeres but Roman Coynes found there, whereof these are 2.

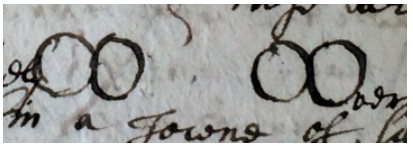

Figure 1.1.4. Sketch of Roman coins. I.172.

It has ~~probably~~ \ not unlikely / bin a Towne of \ very great & / large extent as may be discoverd from the tofts & garden platts which they call gards and which in old evidences \ are called […][99] Gardmae, [91] £27 5s 3¼d. Query. Machell is here referring to a major raid by the Scots in 1314-15.

[92] 'Where there is more.' See IV.35, above; see also MS IV.36.
[93] 'I find it called the town of Scytergatt (without date, perhaps in the time of Henry 3.). Testator, Thomas, son of one-time magistrate William Goldrington, mayor.'
[94] Escheats from the Tower of London.
[95] 34s.
[96] 'Appleby up to the time of the Conqueror.' For a description of the development of Appleby and its castle during this period, see W. Douglas Simpson, 'The town and castle of Appleby: a morphological study', CW2, 49 (1949), 118-33.
[97] This information is repeated on MS II.512. For an alternative view relating to the site of Aballaba and the meaning of Appleby, see Michael Waistell Taylor, The Old Manorial Halls of Westmorland and Cumberland (Kendal, 1892), 123-25. For example, 'There is no evidence that Appleby was ever a Roman station at all.' (123); 'The word now written Appleby finds utterance in the folk-speech of the country in a form which may be expressed in letters as "Yæpllbi," which in sound is as close as can be to Hiálpeby.' 'Hiálp was spelled by the monks, and ever after, as Whelp.' At this point, Taylor agrees with some of Machell's 'Malus Catulus or mischievous whelp' theories, but shears them of Roman ancestry (125).
[98] This word is partly obstructed by the binding; 'considerable' has been substituted.
[99] Two words following are indistinct.

\ which are / yet to be seen in many places adjoyneing. Besides that, Stephanus in his Poeticall Dictionaræ declares that it was of old Britaniae Insulae Urbs.[100] A city not of England – for that is a later name – but of Britania which was the old name of England in & before the time of the Romens, and \ that / tho there \ be no vestigia of walls, they are nott att all essential to a city; for wee read that Lacedemonia[101] the most beautifull & populous city in all Greece, had noe walls att all./ {Lacedaemonia sic dicit[ur] Lacedaemone Lege et fundatore: Sparta, a Sparto Rege et res – aurata – re eiusdem.}[102]

How be it, afterwards (as most old things doe) it lost much of that grandure and lustre \ which it formerly had / partly by the Romanes recess; who left it to the merciless mercy of the Picts \ & Scots / and partly afterwards as by the Danes? After that by the Saxons, who so much obliterated all that was Romane that excepting the Tower (yet call Ceesars) they left not anything that bere that name; changeing the names not only of the streets but the towne it selfe, calleing it Appleby; ~~partl~~ not so much in regard of its \ most / ancient \ Romane / name as of the plenty of orchards \ here / whereof every messuage or house had one as may yett be discovered; so that Apleby in the \ E[nglish] moder[n] / language, was as much as to say a place of apples.[103]

[I.173]

But to come near our present Aige in which writeing \ & letters / has bin more practissed \ in, / I mean since the time of the \ Norman / Conquest; for before excep by Saxons little was writt and even that they writt (att least concerneing these northern partes) had bin lost and destroyed by the Danish Incurtions; who burned all the Monastryes in which they were kep[t] and raged most furiously in these northern Counties. It has bin a Towne of good note and repute ever since then, the Castle there being ~~the~~ Domus Capitalis totius Westmariae: the chief house of the Countre of Westm'land, and Apleby \ Capitalis Burgus ejusdem comitati: / the Chiefe or Shire Town \ of the said County; / in so much that I finde in ancient evidence amongst the records of Mr Sandford of Ascome dated Anno Regni Joh 4^0 [1202-03] that Westm'land was called the County of Apleby {??} in a peculiar mannor, so that then it should seme it was be in a florishing condition; howbeit afterwards in the yere [blank] it was utterly destroyed[104] and burned it downe by the \ plundring / Scots, whereof this inscription remaines a monument, to be seen at the schoole house ~~set up by that worth learned man Mr Regnald Bainbrig schoolmaster there.~~

ABA LLAB
Q. CC. I J

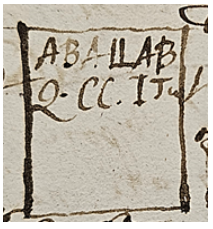

Figure 1.1.5. ABALLABA Inscription. I.173.

[100] Charles Stephanus, Dictionarium historicum, geographicum, poeticum (1553). This popular work was reissued throughout the 16th and 17th centuries. Stephanus was the chief source of information on proper names: historical, mythological, geographical, in Latin/English dictionaries from about 1570. See DeWitt T. Starnes, and Gertrude E. Noyes, The English Dictionary from Cawdrey to Johnson, 1604-1755 (Amsterdam, Philadelphia, 1991), 49.
[101] Sparta.
[102] 'It is thus called Lacedaemonia by Lacedaemonian law and from its founder: Sparta, from King Spartus, and a glorious thing by reason of the same.'
[103] Marginalia on the right of the page are partly obscured by the binding. What can be seen is noted here: MS: '3. Building. 4. Ornament within doores. 5. Streets. 6 Government. 7. Habit natural & artificial of the people.'
[104] This word has been superimposed over another; the word underneath appears to be 'demolished'.

And if tradition be of any authority this was not the first time they had served it soe; for the Scotts are said to have burned it doone thrice (~~for all which it doth~~)and yet it was rased up agane out of those ashes, I cannot say soe gloriouse & \ splendid, / but still to remane the shire Towne of Westmorland retaneing still its ancient priviledges which were never ~~as twere~~ forfeit by rebellion or called in question. ~~For Apleby~~ It was loyall even to the last in the late Civil Warrs and the Grand Usurpation of Oliver Cromell. One influence whereof \ amongst many others / is that the soljers could not prevale with the officers their upon any terme to proclame the King a tratour, so that they hired a stranger ~~to doe it, which they picked~~ picked up in the market ~~place~~ to doe that horrid & execrable act, to the great discontent & grief of ~~most~~ the people, who could not hear it but with tears in ther eyes, all the way they had left to express their indignation […][105] and dislike thereof.

It […] still what it is now. Apleby is now (as it ever was) the chief towne of Westmorland in which the asises […][106] have ever bin kept except by some accident prevented since befor the time that writeings have bin dated. It is most pleasantly situate upon the bankes of noble river Eden which gives vitall spirits to ever place which it toucheth upon; part on one side and part on another joined together with a fair stone bridge of 3 Arches at one end \ near the Church / and at the other with the mill frames under the \ Castle / which in sommer time serve as a foot ~~passage~~ \ bridge / where allso formerly there was a Boate.[107] But by reason of the water seperateing one part from the other and the streets being att some distance ~~by reason~~ \ because / of the uniteing lanes being long since depopulated and the houses destroyd, their Gardens & Orchards stubled up & plowed or turned into grassing,[108] it has bin by some late writers – who knew not the place so well as they should have don – represented to the world as a village or little better; those places which are indeed Vici not Villae, streets not villages \ as I can prove by re\c/ord being by them / taken for distinct and different places, as Skattergate Bongate Howgate & Battlebarrow: And it has so much prevaled of late that tho no longer since that Henry the 8 dayes, they used to write Bongate-in-Apleby Skatergate-in-Apleby, & Batlebar-in-Apleby: into all which places Liberty of their Mace doth extend it selfe and the Sheriffs Liberty a great deal much further); yett they looke upon Apleby as a distinct thing, confineing the Generall name to one ~~single~~ street; which is indeed the chief street \ of all / and Anciently called, as I thinke [they] doe still in their writeings; at the Highe End of which is the Castle, & at the Low end the Church and Free Grammar Schoole near unto it, and the Market place with the Towne hall. But I shall present that \ compared by Dugdal to a Noblemans Table, the Lord at the upper end, The Chaplain and Schoole at the lower end / with a map of whole, a kinde of immaginarie prospect \ thereof as it is now / ~~taken from Thornbur hill~~, wherein what is hid from the ey is supplied by judgment.[109]

[I.174]

[105] 3cm of text are illegible here.
[106] Here, there are 2cm of illegible text.
[107] A ferryboat.
[108] Grazing.
[109] See a rough sketch on 1.176A.

[I.176A][110]

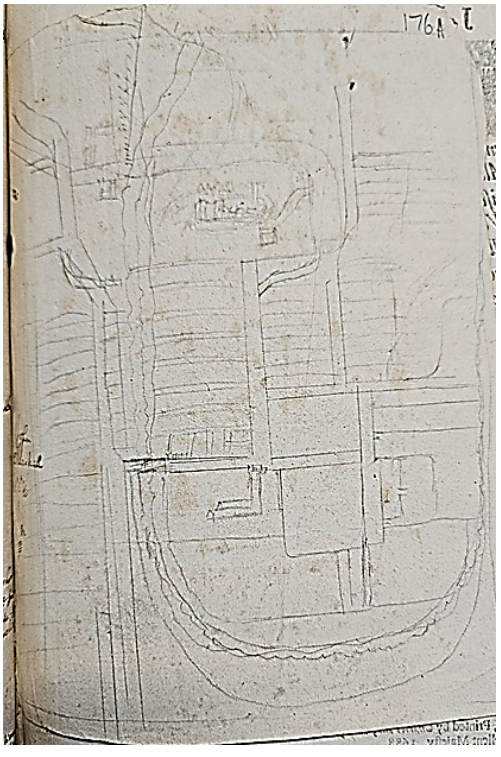

Figure 1.1.6. 'Platforme' of Appleby. 1.176A.

[I.174]

In this platforme you have [blank] number [of] streets*.
1. High Street because it is the chief and mounts allso on the top of the banke.
2. Dungate, because it is low downe betweene the 2 Bankes.
3. Skattergate – which is indeed a part of the Towne – consisting of many streets; but their names being lost is so called because the houses are sparsim[111] scattered as it were here & there; and this never came to be holy redefyned for I finde it so caled [blank]. It is allso caled Fincle Street.
4. The Windes wer litle lanes turneing or windeing from one street to another, whereof ther are 3.

[Machell's Notes: I.174 & 174A]

[I.174]
*{See in Lib. Fam. Machell ad Phil. Ma. de Batleburg in Ap.}[112]
[I.174A]

[110] This is the only draft plan of Appleby in Machell's six volumes. On II.506 he refers to a more elaborate draft, which was then in use.
[111] 'Sparsely'.
[112] Much of this sentence is obscured by the binding.

Burtons Itinerarium.[113] Blatum Burgu[m] \ p. 114. / is taken by Josias Simler[114] for Abalaba, a station in Cumberland, of which see more out of the Notitia of the Western Empire.[115] Mr Pattison at the Read Hart in Fetter Lane.
! Quaere de serv[itio] forinseco.[116]
? Serv[itium] secular.[117]
? Lib-ab omni Serv. Secul.
Quid ne Blatum-Burgum nomen daret – loco in Apeby vulgo vocato Battleburgh. Per mea […] Literarum. T.M. Ibi enim est vetus A[pleby]?[118]

[II.506][119]

In the draught these faults are to be corrected in graving. Viz.
Brigg Street & High Street are to be made longer: Brigg Street in the midle, & High Street att the upper end of the Towne Hall. Soe Skattergate is to be sett of further from the Castle, that the near row of houses may answer to the far row in Dungate. The [Castle] stables allso are to be set off to the utmost corner of the tower. That ~~place~~ lane twixt Nansons & the school Weend is to be sett of farther. Scattergate also ought to be lengthened.
In the 3 [e]s[c]utch[eons. 1. Clifford & Vipont; 2. The townes; 3. Machell cuj dedicatat.[120]
And in the table. Ab[allaba] olim fuit Britaniæ Insulæ hæc quantilla nunc olim extitit Britaniæ urbes (vide. Poet Dict Step.)[121] Nunc vero primarium est Westmariæ opidum, non muris, antiquis tamen munitum privilegijs.[122]

[I.175]

[Streets]
5. Bongate is many streets together, and as it were a little Towne of it selfe, haveing the name from the streete which leads \ from Ba[t]leburge / toward Coupland brigge; which is caled Bongate, \ either 1. / because seated upon an Hil, for Bon a Saxon sig[nifies] a Hil \ because / as if you should say, Bangate Bankgate. / Or 2. from the French word, pleasanse, which signifyes a beautifull good street;[123] \ or [3.] the Saxon word, bond, in opposition to the free burgh – and this may accord with Mr Camden who tells us that &c. or from / {the Saxon Bond, which signifyes a tenant or villager; these being tenants to the Castle of Apleby in opposition to the free Burgers; which interpretation has som

[113] William Burton, (1609-1657), A Commentary on Antoninus, his Itinerary, or, Journies of the Romane Empire, so far as it concerneth Britain wherein the first foundation of our cities, lawes, and government, according to the Roman policy, are clearly discovered ... with a chorographicall map of the severall stations, and index's to the whole work (1658).
[114] Josias Simler was a Swiss theologian who published an annotated edition of the Itinerary of Antoninus in 1575. P.5 of Burton's Commentary remarks, 'We make use of Simler's Edition, which we conceive the best, as bad as it is.' Page 114 comments, 'Josias Simler mistakes it for Aballaba, a Station also in Cumberland: of which see more out of the Notitia of the Western Empire. As I know not what Blatum means; so I know that to read it Blotum, with Holyoke, is against the Authority of all Copies. This and the like is noted for Schooles, that young men there may not be deceived, what ever the word Blatum stands for.'
[115] 'Notitae' were Roman lists or catalogues. The Notitia Dignitatum (List of Offices) details the administrative organisation of the Eastern and Western Roman Empires. It lists several thousand offices, from the imperial court to offices in the provinces: see Jeremy Norman, https://www.historyofinformation.com/.
[116] 'Ask about foreign service': i.e. service not due to an immediate overlord.
[117] 'Irregular service.'
[118] 'Does Blatum Burgum give its name to the place in Appleby commonly called Battleburgh? T.M.' The text at this point contains one illegible word, thus making a translation of it unsafe, but the text continues, 'For that is where old Appleby is.'
[119] Also numbered p.61.
[120] 'To whom it is dedicated.'
[121] Machell was referring to Charles Stephanus, see above. I.172.
[122] 'And in the Table of Appleby it was once [capital] of the island of Britain. How small now this town has long been among British cities! (See Stephanus.) Now indeed it is the principal town of Westmorland, fortified not by its walls but by its ancient priviledges.'
[123] MS: 'for Bon a Saxon sig[nifies] a Hil ~~and corruptly writ, Bangate for Bankgate~~.\ because / as if you should say, Bangate ~~or~~ Bankgate. or 2. from the French word, pleasanse It~~ / may be because formerly it has bin a very fore & well builded place & from the French Boone & gate~~ which signifyes a beautifull good street.'

authority – for – vetus Apleby ubi villani non ubi Burgenses habitant.}[124]

Here is a Carfax, Quadriaia, or a place where 4 streets meet together, near to the church. One leading from thence South E. toward Coupmanbeck.[125] An other Norwest toward Batlebar to Hougate. Another from the said place toward the Romane way which may [be] called Romane Street – a very spatiouse, but (as a Grove without trees) has never an house in it.

The 4th \ is Milstrees / opposite – extending Westward towards the Mill & Castle. And there is a Bak-lane all along the 2nd street to Howgate head, where an other lane called Stone lane comes in: being a Back passage from the Romane Street & allso from the Romane way as it layes along opposite to the place at the end of the field.

6. Howgate – So called because of \ an how / a \ hollow / passedge there hollowed betwixt ~~the~~ Rocks. {Here was a Milne in dayes of old.} And that has continued as far as Batle-bar on one side and to the Bridge on the other, and is ca[pa]ble of being made a very fine place by building their Houses \ close up to the Banke, & have[ing] Courts or garden before them. /

7. Batlebar – So called \ as som thinke from a batle / {!! Blatum Burgum} because of some Batle being fought in that place: I suppose against the Scotts upon some invasion; who pitcheing their tents upon the Common at the head thereof might give to it the denomination of Jockyes Gate, for there is a place at the head thereof called Joke green,[126] where probable they musterd & drew up there forces; and the inhabitants comeing out against them, the skermish and fight being here begun, it might give name to the place; for they calle the Scotts there Jockeys to this day – by way of derision.
{I take Burrow to signifye a brou anciently (forsan) writ Brugh. So through, thurrow this. And maybe Castleles, which are commonly upon an hil haveing a steep descent or brou, might thence be cald Burghs and not the Towns from Castles; as Spelman.[127] Hence Burgh-under-Stainmore; Burgham Castellum ad Burham. Batlebrough or Batlebrow? But if wee goe higher wee must looke upon it as Blatum Burgum.}[128]

Though I am not ignorant that I might derive the name from burrow as well as brow which signifies [blank] and by that means in Thornburrow and Gallowburrow; all anciently places inhabited belonging to the Town; but I am not vainly curious in etymology; and besides I know many places are corruptly called Burrow for Brow where it is not likely houses ever stood, as Whiteburrow, BLATUM BURGUM. Blat = Burg. \ There is Queens Street which leads in by Jock Street. The street therein conteines Saxon naimes. /[129] And thus have I perfected you a platforme & a relation. T.M.

But that what seemeth most likely to me is that this Place is part of the ancient and beautiful Street which Camden speaks of that leads by Appleby towards Brovonacum – which may well be, haveing so rare an advantage of water into their houses from the Lady Well.[130]

---

[124] 'Old Appleby, where the villagers, not where the burgesses live.'
[125] Coupland Beck.
[126] See Jock Green, II.508, below.
[127] Henry Spelman's works include Villare Anglicum: or a view of the townes of England (London, 1656); Concilia Ecclesiastica Orbis Britannici (1639), and Glossarium Archaiologicum (completed by William Dugdale in 1664). His papers were collected by Edmund Gibson after his death, and later (1698) published as Reliquiae Spelmannianae. See S. Handley, 'Spelman, Sir Henry (1563/4-1641), historian, antiquary.' ODNB.
[128] Essentially, this margin note derives 'bur' from 'burg'.
[129] The following indistinct margin comment has been omitted: '{The chief H. is – T.M. From the fam[ily] T.M. who … were q. fiefes in Q. \ E / th}'.
[130] As the text in this paragraph is closely written and highly interlineated, I am indebted to Jeremy Godwin's MS for part of the version offered here. Nevertheless, scholars may query it, as there is now an apparently superfluous phrase in the MS: 'And if I were not to [indistinct word]', which leaves the transcription of the paragraph open to question. See Jeremy Godwin, Machell MS: CAC(C) DX1974, Appleby.

[I.174]

\ & now / Haveing presented you with the platforme I shall in the next place acquainte you with the privileges of it – & charters - and then speak som thing of those places which are most remarkeable.[131] The places remarkeable in Apleby are the 2 Churches, ~~Castle~~ Schoole, hospital,[132] Towne Hall, Jayoll, St Nich. St George, the Friory.

[Machell's Notes on Appleby Streets: I.307]

I read of 2 street in Apleby, the one writt Bur\o/hgate, the other Borrigate (i.e. High Street?) in a lease of a burgage there, w[itnesses] Robert Warcopp tunc majore;[133] Willi[elm]o Vi'as tunc Ballio.[134] Johane Marshal Capellano Cantariæ Beatæ Mariæ in eam Ecclesia,[135] 1442: 21 Henry 6.

I found witnesses at an other lease of 2 burgages in Fynkilstrett: John Wherton tunc majore, Thoma Marshall & Johe Gifford, Baliuis dicti Burgi Will' Smyth &c. [blank] Burgensibus &c: 31 Henry 6. Inter Record Machellorum de Crakanthorp. {31 Hen. 6} [1452-53]

[D.]
[Narratives relating to places and 'things remarkable' in Appleby, in Volumes II. & III.]

[II.511]

Describe Appleby

[II.512][136]

1. Its situation in general.
2. The antiquity of the towne.
3. Of the corporation & privileges.
4. The streets & places remarkable.

Of Apleby in Westm'land

Apleby in Westm'land is the primary Westmarie regionis opidum, goverd by a m[ayor] having 2 baliefes to attend him, who with other officers usually rise[137] to the prætorian office, & lends 2 Burgess to the House of Parliament.

[1. Situation in General]

Apleby, the chief towne of Westm'land, is most pleasantly situated upon the \ ~~far &~~ / famous[138] bankes of the noble river Eden, which doth almost incircle the towne. The chiefe street that (which) \ now does / arrogate~~s to it selfe~~ the name of Apleby, as peculiar to it selfe, is long and large, having at the Low End a beatifull church, & att the High End \ is a free gramer shoole & garden, / a noble castle with stately ~~& glorious Tower~~ \ tow[er] so[me]what resembling the T. of L[ondon] / calld Cæsars \ Tower / ~~and now inhabited by the Countiss of Penbroke~~.[139]

At the Low End: Church, Schoole & a place for exercise – booles,[140] cock pits & butts environed with high bankes a[nd] a C[atadupe][141] of water.

[131] Machell in fact begins his narrative by describing the streets, then moves to the Corporation.
[132] MS: 'hospital ~~hospital St Nic St George~~'.
[133] 'Then mayor.'
[134] Possibly: 'William Vicars, then Bailiff.'
[135] 'John Marshall, chaplain of the Chantry of the blessed Mary in that same church'.
[136] Also numbered p.67. Two versions of Machell's description of Appleby appear between MS II.512 and II.525. In this edition they have been conjoined.
[137] The word 'rise' is insecure; the word it has replaced is illegible.
[138] The world 'famous' has been overwritten, but the substituted word is illegible.
[139] Originally written in or before 1676 (the year in which the countess died) but then scored through.
[140] Bowles.
[141] Cataract or waterfall.

[Machell's Notes: II.512]

{Formerly Roman Abalaba, contracte Apela, mut[ata] med[io] in tem[pore] Teu[tonum].[142] Apalby inde[143] Applebyd or by. An Italian who came into these partes declared that it was the most pleasant situation naturally that his eyes had beheld.

{Here Grass m[a]y be cut 2 in anno.}[144]

[II.511]

At the Low End is a Bridge; att the High End was formerly a large Boate to conveye corne from the mills & transport passengers, the reliqs of which are yet in the Castle. The[y] use to ride upon the warren.[145]

[II.507]

[2.] Its Antiquity[146]

ABALLABA. BRIT[ANNIÆ] INSUL. Urbs. Steph[anus]. E lib[ro] prev[iso]
Aballaba quam CC[147] fluit Ituna statio fuit. Ro[mana] temp[ore] Ma[rci] Aur[elij]. Hanc vastavit FF.[148] Guil[ielmus] R[ex] Scot[orum] 1176.
Hic pestis sævit 1598. Opp[ido] desert[o] Mercatus ad Gilshaughlin.
Quot mil[ia] hom[inum] sust[inebantur] Ab. Casst[ello] Q?[149]

[II.509]

{There never came any of the Emperours in[150] land from the time of Julius Cæsar to Claudius, who came to aid his lieutenant who was in danger to be vanquish[ed], and the reason for this vo[y]age said to be that he might win glory by fight[ing] against so warlike and so famous a people. Se Speed Vol. 2 Cap. 6 & 9.}

[II.510]

[Inhabitants]

The ancient inhabitants were the Brigantes* who were the greatest nation of this iland at the enterance of the Romaines inhabiting the northern parts (Yorkshire, Westmorland, Cumberland, cou[n]ty part of Lancashire and the Bishoprig of Durham). {All the northern tribes except Northumberland that has the Ottadini, whose chiefe towne was Bremuntium,[151] thought now [to] be Ribchester [in] Rydsdale.}†. Their principall towne in Westmorland was Galatum, now Whellop Castle.

[Modern Inhabitants]

Latin is no place worse spoke than is Latin \ at Roome, / nor English is no place worse spoke than att London. The conflux of foreigners has debauched the language insomuch that, setting aside the tone, the English tonge is better spoke at Endenbrough in Scotland, but I thinke in most purity in the county of Westm'land.

[Woodland]

In our island, as som ancient writers doe tell us, Westm'land, Cumberland and all the Northern parts of England were full of woods, trees & bushes, especially upon the mountains, where scarce any wood is now to be seen‡.

---

[142] 'Formerly Abalaba; contracted to Apela; changed during the time of the Teutons to Apalby.'The word 'time' is partly perished.
[143] 'thence.'
[144] The grass may be cut twice in the year.
[145] 'Warren': a mill dam in a stream: see Joseph Wright, The English Dialect Dictionary 6 (London, 1898-1905), 389.
[146] This heading has been taken from MS.II.511.
[147] 'Circum.'
[148] 'Funditus'.
[149] 'Aballaba, a city of the island of Britain (As Stephanus, in the book previously cited), Aballaba around which flows the River Eden was a Roman Station in the time of Marcus Aurelius. William King of Scots completely destroyed it in 1176. Here the plague raged in 1598; the town being deserted, the market moved to to Gilshaughlin. How many thousands of people were supported by the castle. Query?'
[150] A word here has perished.
[151] Brematennacum, now Ribchester, Lancashire.

[Machell's Notes: II.510]

*Speed.
†Heilms Cosmog[raphie] p.226, Col. 3.[152] Brigantum Yorke dub ver[um] Camden 40?[153]
‡e lib. voc \ the adven[tures] of Mr J. Smith, putt forth by 4 Robbers, printe at London[154] pag. 114.[155]

[II.524][156]

[3.] {Government} [Corporation and Priviledges][157]
It is a very ancient corporation & of great priviledges; for I finde it had a charter granted by Henry the 1t \ xa / called Henricus Senex 1, confirmed afterwards by the succeeding kings of England, with fredome from [blank]*.
Here the Assises have antiently bin kept, as I have observed in severall evidences*. Nor do I finde that ever the judges satt elswhere†, excepting once over in the time of King Charles the First, when my Lord Clifford, upon a disgust taken at the towne, for one year removed them to Kendall. But Kendall was never the chief towne of Westmorland, except for traideing, & in that deed it has far exceed Appleby of late yeres; for in Kendall is now a good trade of cottons, but in Appleby, none. The ancient government of this place was & is still, by a Mayor & 2 Balifves, or (Shireves) formerly called Provost, for such kinde of officers were under the Mayor, anno [blank] and I can not immagin them any thing else.

[Machell's Notes II.524]

*{in libro – collect[arum] chartarum familiæ Vipont & Clifford penes Commitissis.}[158]
†{Yes sometimes. See the mon[ument] in Kendal church in my collections.}

[II. 525]

{Baliffs; Provosts}
The Balives were formerly so considerable that noe Publique Act \ or Deed / of the towne was passed without them, their deeds running thus: Wee, the Major, Balives & Burgesses of Appleby &c. But since the towne became poor[159] and des[t]itute of traide, the office & dignity of these Balives or Shireves hath bin so farr forgot \ neglected that they now / serve only as attendants upon Mr Mayor, & carry 2 halbards or fasses[160] before him and follow the Mace.

{Mace Liberty; Staff Liberty}
There is also a record: a court of Aldermen, most of Gentlemen of the Country for the greater honour of the Corporation, who in time of majoralty keep proprætor there a Common Councill, 2 Chamberlans & one Sergeant att Mace. The Liberty of the Corporation is 2: Staff Liberty & Mace Liberty. The Mace Liberty goes no further than the 4 Crosses, but the Staff Liberty, farther. So to Flakebrig, where the Coroner of the towne has acted in the time of the old & honourable Countess of Penbrooke, who would never have suffered it, if it had not antiently belonged unto them.

The Places of Chief Remarke.

[II.511]

The Streets
In order & where the most remarkable house or places onely mentioned.

---

[152] Peter Heylin (1600-1662), Cosmographie in four bookes: containing the chorographie and historie of the whole world, and all the principall kingdomes, provinces, seas and isles thereof (London, 1652).
[153] 'Was York of the Brigantes? I doubt it, yet Camden p.40?'
[154] The rest of the page here has perished.
[155] John Smyth (Smith), England's improvement revived; plainly discovering the several ways of improving all sorts of waste and barren ground and of enriching all earths, with the natural quality of all lands; and the several weeds and plants which naturally thrive therein observed &c.; together with the manner of planting all sorts of timber trees and underwoods experienced in 30 years' practice. 6 vols (London, 1670).
[156] Also numbered p.79.
[157] Appleby's charters are described in W. Hewitson, 'TheAppleby Charters', CW1, 11 (1891), 279-85.
[158] 'In the book of the collected charters of the family of the Viponts and Cliffords, in the possession of the Countess.'
[159] MS: 'power.'
[160] 'Fasces': rods carried by lictors before the superior magistrates at Rome as an emblem of their power. OED.

This is by an account of the most remarkable places: 1. Churches; 2. Castle; 3. Schoole; 4. Hospital; 5. Town Hall; 6. St Nicholas & St George; 7. the Fryaredge; 8. the Gaol; 9. The House of Correction; 10. The Crosses & Butter House.[161]

[II.508][162]

Apleby Streets
1. High Street
3. 3 Weends[163] (High, Midle, Low) query Windes
2. B\r/igg Street
[~~Nansons Casway~~]
4. Loain; Casway
5. Wath Way & Green
6. Dungate i.e. Downegate
Skattergate; Finkel Street
Hoffe Way
Colby Way
Millbanke
Howgate Foote
Howgate
~~St Michaels~~
Banngate[164]
Mill Green
An other street leading toward Roman Fell
The Sands or Horse Fair
Battle Barrow past [blank] which joynes to [blank]*

Places Remakeble
Jock Gree[n]
Gallow Burrow
Thorn Burrow
St Nichol[as]
The Ruin in St Nicholas: George, Nicholas
White Fryers & Ladywell
St Laurence Church
The \ Queens / Free Schoole
The Hospitell
The Castle & Cæsars Tower
The \ Castle / Stables
The Mill
St George Dub[165]
Nobilis Ituna[166]
The Prison
The House of Correction
The \ Moote / Towne Hall
The Shambles
The Crosses
Caud Kell & the Bps[167] Exchange, now a building.

[161] The final MS sentence here: 'The government \ both / ancient & modern as hereafter,' has been omitted as irrelevant to this section, but see Section F. Government, below.
[162] Also numbered p.63.
[163] Wynds.
[164] Bongate.
[165] Dub = pool.
[166] 'The noble Eden.'
[167] Bps = Bishops.

[Machell's Notes: II.508]

*Query: what they call the Gards over the bridge
~~What Nansons Causway~~
What the towne seal?
What first charter & what extent?[168]
Whose seat? What benefactors?
Nullo hactenus Titulo Abal. inclaruere.[169]

[II.512]

[High Gate]
The chief bea[u]ty thereof now consists in one large faire and broad street, called Hi-Gate by the inhabitants. Argeait alias Hi Street. ~~And one end~~ It strecheth out it selfe from N. to south up a pretty high assent whence it is so called. At the High End, in the midst of a little parke, is the Castle, with stately Tower, in the area the roof exactly answering to the midle of this street [thus][170] sc. of the Castle. Stables & gard[en]. In the midle side the west of this street is a neat built Hosspitall, quadrangular wise. The founder hereof was […][171] & on each side at every dore is a Coate of Armes of som of her

[II.513]

Ancestors. Att the Low End is a fine large church, lately reparred – I may almost say re edified, by the said Countiss but made somewhat less than it was formerly, there being taken away on the south side a quire which butted towards the towne, called Warcops Quire,[172] & in the diging away the foundations hereof were found severall allabaster images & plaster roundells with figures thereupon, well gilded and polished, which were given away to children for to play withall, some whereof I my selfe got to give my little sister. But I have sufficient repented my ignorance since and am sorry there was none to preserve these things for curiouse posterity.
There was a vestry also, as I remember, on the N. side the quire.[173] Noe doubt att the reperation hereof, many things worthy noting were utterly lost. In the glass and other places some Coats of Arms yet remaining, which I shall sett downe to paper their like nature.
That glaseing & building with stone was nott knowne in England till Bennit the monke brought along with him an Italian builder 1004 years since †.

[Machell's Notes: II.513]

*{Remember the Crosses, Towne Hall, Market Place & the Cloister supported by co[lumn]s adorn'd with Arms of Gentlemen, on some of which was ingraved these letters: Stane Morie. Query: why. Her[e] now ar built the smiths shops because the slates were brought gratis by Stane Moore men.}
†Cannot be true because we had Roman building, Castles &c. Picts wall.[174]
Then the monuments. Then pat[ron] &c. incumb[ent].

[II.512]

{Higstreet with its branches: High X Weend Winde; Low X Wend \ Winde /}
On \ each / side this street, which extends it selfe longwayes from north to south, is a great descent on the east side, downe to the River Eden, which make the towne sweet & cle[an].

168 See Hewitson, 'Appleby Charters', CW1, 11 (1891), 279-85, at 279-80.
169 'So far, they have not made Aballaba famous with any title.'
170 Here Machell sketched a rhombus shape.
171 Two words are illegible here but Lady Anne Clifford was the founder (see above, II.509) in 1651 (Hyde & Pevsner, 211).
172 A transept.
173 The Chancel.
174 St Benedict (Benet) Biscop founded Monkwearmouth and Jarrow in 674 and 682. He is said to have introduced glazing to England: F.L. Cross and E.A. Livingstone (eds), The Oxford Dictionary of the Christian Church (Oxford, 2005), 185.

On the west \ another, / to the street called Dungate, which is scowred by a torrent {riseing opposite to the Castle on the other side of Skattergate}[175] which scowers the street clean & carryes away with it all dirt and filth and discharges it selfe into the River at the place cald the Wath: i.e. a riding place.[176]

[II.515]

{Dungate}[177]
{A street in London beares that name from its descent.}
That street so destitute of houses, which runs upon of the west side Higstreet, was formerly as tradition informes ~~mee~~ us, the finest street which was in the ~~Burrow~~ \ Towne; / for here men might walke dry on the wettest day, there being cloisters leaded over from one end to the other. Whether soe or noe, twas possible enough that there might be shelter against the raine, because the street is not broad as others ~~are~~. However it was, I doe conjecture it had its name Dungate, quasi Downgate, in opposition to High Street or He-Gate, for as that is placd on the top of a banke high betwixt 2 descents \ on an hill, / so this is placed in the bottom \ before the hill / or betwixt 2 ascents \ in a vaile; / notwithstanding which, the situation (excepting for prospect) is equally pleasant & very commodious, being warme,[179] and there gardens here {now calld gards} will a-ford them that pleasure which theire houses deny, so that one thing an another will render it comly & very delicious.

[II.516][178]

Such a place as this a tradesman would choose; where a shop might be equally[180] with the street – a kitchen, cellar &c. on the same flore but under ground by reason of the hill; then hall & lodging romes on the next flore where the hall or parlour might open upon a levell into garden or orchard. The riseing ba[n]ke on the west side this street, tho scarce an house be remaining thereon, yet retaines the name of Dungate Gards; & that with tradition compared together, ~~the places~~ & samples of hedges here & there, which formerly have separated one ~~tenement~~ \ burgage / from another, which now are joyned ~~the~~ of the rest \ in the Sand & Howgate Foot the best information that I get to give me \ light / in this little descover of so ancient & long since ruined a place. For it is \ has / reported from father to son; that beside other accidents that might conduce to impoverish this towne, that i[t] has bin 3^{c}[181] burn'd downe [by the] Scotts. The last attempt was 500 years since, and \ then / they gave it an utter Oher,[182] as appears by a stone which bears this memorial: ABALLABA QUA[M] C.C. ITVNA STATIO FVIT &c. HANC VASTAVIT F.F. WILL. REX SCOTT[ORUM] ANNO 1176.[183]
But there is little light to be

[II.517]

drawne from history, since the ignorance in learning in that part England, which for the most delight[t] in the pike more than the pen* is sufficient discouragement to deter any man from ransaking history ~~or ancient records.~~
However, to one ~~that~~ acquainted with the language of former aiges, espieciall the A[nglo S[axon], which [is] here yet spoke in ~~very~~ much ~~purity~~ \ perfection, / the names of the places near adjacent will contribute something†. For here wee may reed, tho writ upon the dust, that it has bin a towne of large \ extent / territories, \ I doe / not \ say / in the Roman times tho Stephanus declares that twas then a city‡. Brit. Insulae Urbs. For I doe not pretend to goe so far, since little is left – not the name of a street nor anything else to bespeak it Romaine except the Tower. All which places \ in it / had those names which ~~now~~ \ then / they bear from \ the / Saxons ~~imposition~~, as Batle Barrow, Thorne Barrow, [175] The margin comment replaces more than 20 scored-through words in the body text.

[176] MS: 'which washes ~~away all dert & filthines in~~ \ which scowers the street clean & / carryes away with it all dirt and filth ~~mess which may thence arise & powers it into the Great River att the wath to St Nicholas~~ and discharges It selfe into the River at the place cald The Wath \ i.e. a riding place. /' A wath is a fordable part of a stream. OED.
[177] Doomgate.
[178] Also numbered p.71.
[179] Here Machell continued with, '& low there', but placed the phrase within a box, as if to remove it.
[180] Flush with the street.
[181] Thrice.
[182] The second letter is unclear. Possibly the word is, 'Ohen' or 'ohern', meaning 'over', see Wright, English Dialect Dictionary 4, 334. Equally, Machell might well have written 'over' with a malformed 'v'.
[183] For a description of the full inscription, see I.507.

Gallow~~s~~ Barrow, Howgate, Bongate &c.; each whereof carry something observable in their very names, as I shall show in due time and place.

[The Wath]

Att the Low End of Dungate, this torrent turns of[f] westward[184] and towards the place which is called the Wath, a voce Teuto[nica], Wadt idem significans & for smoother pronunciation, watt;[185] for wath is a place passable in the water, where one may wade: in Latin, vadum; ~~which possible~~/ whence possibly all these

[Machell's Notes: II.517]

*{Se Dugd[ale] Preface to Warwickshire.}[186]
†{Poetical Dict[ionary.]}[187]
‡Stephanus quotes[188] e Liber Notitiarum.[189] {Its name sound Romane}

[p. 518][190]

words are derived. The broad piece \ of ground / on this side the water is called the Wath Green, and the end of which ~~is~~ by the waterside is ~~a pleasant fountaine~~ \ a very cold spring, which is therefore called the /Caud Kell, i.e. Cold Well, ~~from the coolness of the water~~. On the opposite part, beyond the water whither you have access by helpe stepp stones, is a farme house which the[y] call St Nicholas \ where lately were r[ui]nes of a church or ~~monastery~~ chaple; for there had bin an Hospitall in King Johns time. / All the grounds & woods, vaile & pasturage on that side the water till you come att the ~~Chief~~ territoryes of the Machells de Crakenthorpe, i.e. Halfe Mile Yate, ~~retaneing in general the name of St Nicholas and as you returne~~ from which of old it may seem to be taken / with which it is bounded on the north. ~~And the place~~ On the east, with the same. Jock Green \ & Battlebarrow /& Gallobar[row] Lane on the west with the River Eden. All this surface is general calld by the name of St Nicholas, notwithstanding 1 place thereof, i.e. the hill on west side the lane which brings you to Apleby from Crakenthorpe, has the name of Thorneburrow Hills.[191] I dar[e] not ~~swear~~ \ say / that some part of the towne has ~~extended hither~~ not come hither, for Burrow, a German voce Borgo \ quo / suburbicum denotat, a suburbe;[192] and many of our words being thence derived {Sc. Verstegan}[193] tis not ~~impossible~~ \ improbable / that both Thor, Gal & Burrow, being the suburbs of Apleby, were thence denominated – tho he evuds[194] Apleby so far as not to allow it that miserum fuisse: to have bin once great – may deduce from Brow, all of em being situate on rising hills. But if so, why were not others of like situation called Burrow too.

[II.519][195]

From of this hill you have a fair prospect of most part of Apleby. The way leads thence by Gallobar \ Fields / over a piece of common which is calld Jock Green, from the Scotts I suppose {the Scotts; in dirision we call Jockey} who possesd them selfes of it in ~~there last~~ assalting the towne, and the inhabitants coming out to give them battle*, have mett them in Battle \ B[ar]row, / which is not [184] This word has been overwritten. 'Northward' appears to have been covered by 'westward', though the superimposed letters are unclear. For the 'torrent', see II.212.

[185] 'From the Saxon language, 'wadt', from the same thing' [i.e. also meaning 'wath'].
[186] Dugdale, Warwickshire: The first page of the Preface remarks on the warlike nature of the English and their lack of learning before the Norman Conquest.
[187] Charles Stephanus, Dictionarium historicum, geographicum, poeticum (1553).
[188] MS: 'coat.'
[189] Stephanus quotes from the Liber Notitiarum (Book of Remembrances).
[190] Also numbered p.73.
[191] This passage is so impossible to read that even Machell realised the difficulty, helpfully rewriting it in another column; hence, it appears twice in the MS.
[192] 'Burrow, German: 'borgo', denotes a suburb.'
[193] Richard Verstegan, A Restitution of Decayed Intelligence in Antiquities concerning the most noble and renowned English Nation (1605; reprinted 1628, 1634, 1652, 1655, 1673). See also Part 3. Chapter 3, Concerning Heraldry, VI.394.
[194] Possibly from 'evoid' or 'evode': from French 'evuider': to remove. OED.
[195] A sentence written vertically down the right-hand margin of this page reads, 'Blounts Dictionary for Villares.' In 1656, Thomas Blount published the largest English dictionary up to that date, his Glossographia.

improbable called so a Bello ibi Commisso;[196] so Stamford Bridge in Yorkeshire is called Battlebridge†. This street is seated upon a declineing [hill] from north to south. On the east side tis watered with ~~flu~~ a delicate springe issuing out from the Laday Well \ & so runing through the scarce visible ruines of that friery which was built by Lord Cliffor[d] Percy & Vescy of the Order of White Fryers‡, dedicated, as I conjecture from the well, to Our Lady Mary, & vallued⸸.[197] Thence it takes its course directly

[Machell's Notes: II.519]

*Mr [blank] reports that there was great amity formerly betwixt the Scotts and the neighbouring countryes, till the Romanes broke covenant & incroached upon them, since which time? Se Uescher.[198]
†Se my Appendix, p.6. Eadem de causa[199] (vid. Camden). As that worthy antiquary relates: I fear this place was never to have [been] so happy as to lodge such a guest, for that quick sighted \ ancient / would have left nothing for me to descover. Reasons: because of his posting the fruitfulness of the countery, which about this place exceed all the rest & may compare, if it doe not exceed, with his so much cele[brated] Barony of Kendal.)
‡{Query: an idem nomen cum Perci?[200] Will. de Perci ten. in Lincolnshire, temp Conquest. Domesday Booke.}[201]
⸸Se Dugdale.

[II.520][202]

towards Battelebarrow,[203] glideing downe on the Back Side (where which it flourish [where] there Gardens have bin) sporting it selfe through the mids[t] of them.

{Battlebur}
Afterwards it enters into the street \ Cow Makett / which in that part has a rock for its naturall pavement, upon which, it slideing, ~~doth~~ tis rendered slippery & for this reason called the Slape Stanes, i.e. Slippery Stones. So it hastes on the east side the street towards the river, & turne of a sudden into its imbraces. The other side, this wants not its delight, for being placed on the top of a banke, it has a prospect no way contempteble, with a full view of the chefe street in Ableby, & att the bottem of the descent a pureling streme goes murmuring along in a glide, as they call it,[204] \ worne to that descent by force of the water / which parts ther inclosures & the bankes of St Nicholas. I am not certane whether this be [the] street which Camden would have formerly the chiefe, for, says he, it heads by Apleby towards Brovonacum, which we now call Brooham.[205] If this be it*, I suppose it continued to the farthest end of Gallobar Lane, elese I doe not se how it could

[Machell's Notes: II.520]

*Which make [what] I formerly deliverd more probable.

[II.521]

{Battleburg Street}
[be] the chiefe in any respect, having neither the large nor pleasant situation of the broad street. May be he take in the Sands to the Bargen, which if rebuilt after the manner described in Dung[at]e[206] with Courts before it to the Gards wall, I doe not se how any place could be more delightfull to live in or looke upon. But now there is scarce one house to be seen from the end of Batle Barrow, i.e. where the torrent turns of to the river to Howgate Foote.

---

[196] 'From the war committed there.'
[197] The sentence ends abruptly here.
[198] Probably a reference to James Ussher, Britannicarum Ecclesiarum Antiquitates (1639).
[199] 'From the same reason.'
[200] 'Query whether the same name as Percy?'
[201] See E. Cownie, 'Percy, William de (d. 1096, 99?), baron and administrator.' ODNB.
[202] Also numbered p.75.
[203] The route of the beck is correct according to the 1754 Appleby map: CAC(C) Ca; DLONS/L/5/3/1/1/1, 1754. My thanks to Jeremy Godwin for this observation.
[204] 'Glide': 'a stream; also, the gliding portion of a stream – a shallow.' OED.
[205] MS: 'for sayes \ he / it heads ~~from~~ \ by / ~~the place called~~ Apleby to\ wards / ~~the place~~ Brovonacum, which we now call Brooham.'
[206] See II.516.

[Battlebrow]
The street now calld Battlebrow or Battle-Burugh (vide) begins att the North End the Sands, where the purling streme of Lady Well runns, sporting it selfe into the river. I suppose it make its name from som great scuffle or skirmish there, and being situate upon a steep hill \ or from its being part of […][207] / may be thence called Battle Brough. And that which gives a great probability to this conjecture is that this street ends att Jock Green, which I thinke has borrow that denomination from the Scotts, by us still call'd Jockyes, they having come here unexpectedly and sett themselves in battle array. It is not unlikely that the native inhabitants came out upon them, and, to stop their entran[c]e, gave them battle in this street. ~~Few inh g~~
That the Scotts have often attacked it, there is no controver-sie, it being a generally receivd tradition by the inhabitants that they burn'd it downe 3 times to ground, the last where I finde on record a mill at Howgate – I have read of – and being destitute of History, which unless [it] be where the mill now standes was also so called!!! I am glad to read from writeings in The Sand; to take conjectures from the names of places so by comparing with received traditions, grose out the truth.[208]

[II.519]

On Wednesday Sep. 10, it came in my head that Bondgate signifies that streat of Bondmen, in opposition to the other places where the free Burgers inhabit. Vetus Appleby vel villam habitant.[209]

On the east ~~ripo~~ \ banke of / Eden, much of the towne has bin demolished, as it clear from those place which are yet called the Gards, to every of which, one house att least (if not more) has belong'd. That which goes southwards towards Houg[ate] Foote has bin a faire brod streght stret. When you are through Howgate you come into Bongate, which has bin built crosswise, 4 streets meeting together \ or 2 thwarting each other. 1 from the Castle, / but what they were formerly called, I can not tell. They now in general have the name of Bon Gate, which I thinke is peculiar to the street up the hill which carryes you on your way towards Warcop & Brough, for Bongate is as much as a street on a hill. The other part from the bridge, which runs along northwards to the

[II.520]

Low End of Batlebrow, is called The Sands, & has ~~lately~~ been a single row of houses fronting to the water. Except the river, which I cannot conjecture has bin ~~wall'd~~ \ hem'd / in by the walls and foundations of the houses there. But the soyle, being sandy, will give no ground for such a conjecture. Notwithstanding, Camden makes the principle street on this side the water leading by Apleby to a place calld Brovonacum*, which, whether it should be some part of Bongate or that space twixt Hogate and Batlebrow, & Batlebrow also taken in unto, I cannot ~~imagin~~ \ determin. / But if I could have discovered any vestigia of an Ancient Bridge, I should [believe], as some have, that wel might he then say that, It agro non inamoeno.[210] That High Street, which is now the principle, & together with the lanes & fragm[en]ts of Scattergate, peculiarly called by the name of Apleby, had full bin the chiefe.

[Machell's Notes: II.520]

*{Dub?}
{Henche.[211] If you looke through the high arches of the bridges, the towne stands so lofty, it seems to be advanced into the clouds. This I often delighted to take special notice of.}

[II.515]

{Scattergate}
The other streets which lay westward about the Tower are generally calld by the name of Scattergate, because till of late, and in some measure yet, the houses, being demolish ~~in that~~ \ by that / Influx of the Skott~~s~~\ish incursion / which I speake of annon, lay skatterd here & there. Both those streets which [207] Words here have been obscured by the binding.

[208] The last paragraph is written across II.521 and II.522 but the direction taken by the text is unclear. This transcription is therefore unsafe.
[209] 'They live in Old Appleby or vill.'
[210] 'It passes through a not unpleasant landscape.'
[211] Probably 'Haunche': 'the side of an arch between the crown and the piers.' OED.

goe out of Finkel Street – the chiefe in Scattergate to the right northwards – are so demolished that they will now hardly wear the names of street.[212] I therefore call em Wayes, and together with the houses, the names \ of the streets / ~~&~~ demolish[ed] & gon. That \ part of a / street att the upper end of Skattergate is called Mill Banke because tis situate of the side of \ the / banke which goes downe to the mills.

Schoole.
Thence ~~a stone~~ \ the Schoole lane / extends it selfe \ more / north; & south is a p[l]ane piece of ground to a considerable lenth on the [blank] ~~all most~~ with water environd in a ~~Bow or~~ \ semy circle / arch.[213] This is calld The Butts because of butts being placed thereon. It serves also for a bowlingree[n] and here are 2 cockpitts dig'd in the ground towards each end; one, that which layes southward, being very deep & cut in seats lik[e] to those which they have in theatres. Here L.M. beat \ out ran vicec…[214] / the Parson.

Hence you returne up a lane directly southwards towards Dungate, in which are remane no houses excepting the schoole on the east side thereof, with 2 or three houses more adjoyning; and the Ushers house was lately pulld down. Further you have a ~~cott~~ back house or barne belonging to Mr Thwates, Alderman of the towne, to whome belonges all the houses on the south side the Schoole Winde, there bein none on the other but the Vicars barne & Mrs Hose, which stands of in the court. On the west side the Schoole lane are no houses remaneing excepting the Masters kitchyn & Garden House, which stand of from the lane. Howbeit, there have bin others, as you may se by the Gardes over aganst it.[215]

[II.516]

[Carfax]
Here agane is Carfax, or meeting of 4 streets: as School Lane, Dungate, Wate & Winde. & then the returne to the east ripe,[216] or else begin with it.

[II.506][217]

[Appleby place-names]

{Batleborough}

[II.507]

(A Battle, suerly)

[II.506]

Battle Brough, Burrow/Battlebrow. Battlebrow – from its situation, and som battle fought there. So Standford Bridge[218] in Yorkshire is calld Battlebridge a Bello ibi commisso[219] but Camden, 331 Col. 1. alijs a Battle et Brough, a Borgo Germa[norum] Quod suburbium significat. Skin[ner], in voc[e] Borrough; sed a colle potius dictum puto, quia alia sunt loca ejusdem nominis ubi vix poss[u]mus Cog[noscere] suburbium fuisse &c. Galloburrow, Thornburrow. Sed ad suburbium vertatur[220] cum hac apel[latione]. Nisi potius dictum puto a usitat[o], Brow, quae declinationem coll[is] ibi vulgo

[212] MS: 'are so demolish that they will \ now / hardly ware the names \ ~~notions~~ / of street.'
[213] Jeremy Godwin gives a free interpretation of this difficult passage: 'Thence the School lane extends itself north and south to a plane piece of ground almost level with the water, to a considerable length, in a semi-circle or arch.' See Godwin, Machell MSS Research Notes, CAC(C), DX 1974/H9410.
[214] The text here is obscured by the margin.
[215] MS: '…as you may se by the Gardes over aganst ~~Jo~~. It ~~Nansons~~ house.'
[216] 'Ripa': riverbank.
[217] A margin note on this page consists of, MS: '~~Michel Scotts leap. Lang. Shap. Stenke head. Brampton~~ \ Temple Sowerby / Sandford Moore, Drybeck & other places where horse coursing is used.' Two lines concerning 'Things Remarkeable' have been scored through.
[218] Stamford Bridge.
[219] 'From warfare there.'
[220] MS: 'ver~~te~~te \oa/atur.'

significat ad supercil[i]um. Vero est reus Skinieras;[221] dedu\c/it enim ab Anglo-Saxon, Bræpe, palpebra supercilium.[222]

{Bongate villanor[um]}[223]
Query. Bangate, a Camb' Britannia Ban Altus excelsus (unde Banke etiam Anglo-Saxon deduci videatur) Et gate vicus platea via quod ab Anglo-Saxon gan Ire, which wee call Gang – vicus – villanorum.[224]

{Howgate}
Gate prius habuimus. How, autem apud nostrates, significat an Hollow \ depe / place,[225] & may peradventure be a contract[ion] of it, and the demin[utive] hereof may be the word Hovel, which notwithstanding Skin[ieras], would have to discend from Caveola, casting away C. & ad.

{Hoff}
Anglo-Saxon: Hofe, hoƿe; domus speluncæ.[226]
Belgian: hofi hoeve
Teuton: hoff prædium, villa item, item aula principis. Ergo non Jurabo (inquit Skin[ieras]) omnia ista vocata a Latino caveo ortum ducere, et nostram hovel a caveola. Est vox more Teutonica. Hoff, Lunn or Lum is a depe plow[227] of water in the northern language quam puto esse Anglo Saxon[228] i.e. Old English neutra occurrit apud Skin[ieras].[229]

{Colby}
Coldby, Cowby, Coltby.
If Colt by, ab Anglo-Saxon Cold: pullus equinus; et By: habitatio.[230] So Audby in York. Saxoni: Antiquae Habitationes.[231] If Cowby, a vaccarum frequentia; Cow autem Anglo-Saxon vocatur Cu; Dan[ish] ko. Non potest a Cole, nulla etenim ibi invenitur, sed forsan a Cold abjiciendo d., ut nos Coole: Anglo-Saxon Cole; Belgian, Koel; Teutonic, K\e/ul frigidus subfrigidus; Danish, kold & ko\a/ld; Belgian, kaud; forsan a Latin gelu. Sic Colby or Coldby erat locus frigidus. Habitatio frigida.[232]

---

[221] 'Skinieras': a latinised form of Skinner. Stephen Skinner (bap. 1623, d. 1667) was a physician and philologist who wrote philological treatises in manuscript, enumerated by Anthony Wood, edited by Thomas Henshaw, and published in London in 1671 under the title, Etymologicon Linguæ Anglicanae. Samuel Johnson acknowledged his indebtedness to Skinner in the preface to his Dictionary (1755). See B. Porter & M. Beva, 'Skinner, Stephen (bap. 1623, d. 1667)'. ODNB.
[222] 'From the German word Borg, which means a suburb. Skinner, in his writing, says Borough; but I think it is so called rather from a hill, because there are other places of the same name where we can hardly recognise there to have been a suburb etc. – Gallowburrow, Thornburrow. But it was turned to suburb with this name. Unless rather I think it so called from the usage Brow, which there commonly means the slope of a hill toward the brow. Indeed, Skinner is of the same mind, for he derives Brow from the Anglo-Saxon, Bræpe, an eyelid.'
[223] 'Bongate: of the country people.'
[224] 'Query Bangate in Camden's Britannia, Ban means 'high lofty', whence also the Anglo-Saxon 'Bank' may seem to be derived. Also 'gate': a village, an open street, because from Anglo-Saxon 'gan', 'ire' [Latin: to go], which we call 'gang'; a village – of the villagers.'
[225] 'Gate, we have had before. How, however, among our country folk, signifies a hollow [or] deep place.'
[226] 'Anglo-Saxon Hofe or hoƿe: a tunnel house' [possibly, a Saxon long-house].
[227] Pool.
[228] 'Saxon. Hoff: an estate, likewise a villa, likewise the hall of a chieftain. Therefore, I will not swear (says Skinner) that all these derive their origin from Latin 'caveo', and our 'hovel' from 'caveola'. It is a word of Saxon type. Hoff, Lunn or Lum is a depe plow of water in the northern language, which I think to be Anglo-Saxon i.e. Old English. Neither term occurs in Skinner.'
[229] 'Skinner says nothing on this.'
[230] 'If Colt-by', from Anglo-Saxon Cold, a foal; a young horse [colt]; and 'By: dwellings.'
[231] 'So Audby in York: so-called by the Saxons, meaning in Latin, ancient dwellings.'
[232] 'Cowby, from a place where cows were regularly kept. Moreover, a cow in Anglo Saxon is called 'Cu'; in Danish, 'ko'. It cannot be from 'Cole' [coal], for indeed none is found there. But perhaps it is from 'cold', by losing the letter 'd', as 'coole' with us; Anglo Saxon, 'cole'; Belgian, 'koel'; Teutonic, 'k\e/ul', meaning 'cold'

{St George Dub}
Dub signifyeth a deep place in the water. De hoc nihil loquitur Skin[ieras]. Dan[ish] & Teutonick frequently aupud Boreal[es].[233]

βύβλϑ ıι papyrus[234]

[II. 507]

{Dungate}
Forsan, ita appellabatur, \ a Tulliano, Dungeon / quia platea fuit a sole et caelo ut ferunt munita.[235] Tis reported that this was the finest street imediately before the last ~~desolation~~ \ devastation, / for here you might walk fre from raine att any season: forsan a Dung,[236] for here runs a leat to car[ry] of the stench.

{Wi\e/nd}
A turning out of ~~one~~ \ a / street. A winding, which is commonly pronounced E, which most nations – certe a venella Nome lat[i]ne.[237]

{Burrells} Non possum diricte.[238]

{Names of Places}
1. Stony Lane
2. Bon-gate
3. Mill Green
4. Castle Shewgh[239]
5. The Warren

[II.524][240]

Places remarkable

Castle, hospital, Church, School & Towne Hall, Gaol & house of Correction. The description of the situation of each & what remarkable [in] them.

[II.513]

{The Castle}
The Castle, as I sayd and so to the upper part of ~~towne~~ \ High Street / likewise, have Advantage of prospect, but lower ~~part~~, being environd [in] an a[m]phitheatre of Hills as well as water, is more warme & close. The Castle stands yet somewhat higher then all the rest, so that it doth easily command all the Towne. Tis built upon a rocky hill, being very steep on that side nex the water, & a low dissent on all other sides. It is stren[gthened] and fortified with wall, dich and bulworke.

{Castle Mantle}
On the banke twixt the mote & wall ~~are~~ \ were / planted frute trees of several sorts \ [and] have firs / which place they call the Castle Mantle, it being both of ornament & use. On the west side of the or 'coldish'; Danish, 'kold' and 'ko\a/ld'. Belgian, 'Kaud'; perhaps from Latin 'gelu' [meaning cold]. Thus, Colby or Coldby was a place that was cold. A cold habitation.'

---

[233] 'Skinieras has nothing to say about this. Danish and Teutonick frequent among northerners.'

[234] This Greek text has been placed upside down at the foot of the page; it is possibly an abbreviation of 'Bibliotheke': library. Machell could well have have been referring to a papyrus in a library but exactly why is not known.

[235] 'Possibly it was so called from the Tullianum, a dungeon, because it was an open space blocked, so they say, from the sun and sky.'

[236] 'Perhaps Dungate is from Dung.'

[237] 'In Latin this name is certainly from venella: a vennel or narrow alley.'

[238] 'I cannot immediately give its derivation.'

[239] Castle Scua: older forms = Castle scugh, 1649; Castle skews, 1740. See Westmorland Place-Names, Appleby.

[240] Also numbered p.79 and p.53.

Castle within the wall is Cæsars Tower, a most stately & lofty ~~build~~ and ~~indeed elegant~~ \ magnificent / building, rather one thinke for habitation than war, tho serviceable for both.

[II.509]

The Tower Inscription

There is this inscription in the lowest roome thereof (which is a vault) written in small Romane hand upon a plate of brass to shew the reparer:

> This Caesars Tower was began to bee repaired in and this midle wall (i.e. the wall athwart the tower wherein there are 2 chimes[241] on a brest in every roome: ~~to bee bu~~ nota merginaly) And this midle wall to bee built from the foundation in 1651, by Ann Baroness Clifford &c. Westmorland e Vesc, Lady of Honour of Scipton in Craven, & Countess Dowager of Penbroke, Dorsett and Montgomery, after it had layn ruinous & uncovered from the year 1569 \ untill now /

This as I remember in \ new / Romaine hand.

[II.513]

This tower no d[oubt] is of great antiquity, as the name doth import; and being more large & eligent than that of Brough or other of Browham, all which are called by same name & supposed to be of Romane original. It make me thinke that

[II.514][242]

Apleby to them was a place more select & of great accompt; yett there is a Tower at Browham Castle beside that of Cæsars \ caled Pagans / of venerable antiquity, supported by a single columne in the midle there, but of Roman order.[243] \ May be from Paganus. /

This tower att Apleby was so defaced ~~by the passage of time~~ that nothing thereof was left but a karkess, baire walls, which, ~~bid defiance~~ obdurate with suffering so many batteryes, became to hard for the teeth of time, and so remained a glorious tho useless monument of antient architecture till the Countiss of Penbroke repaired it againe, & made a habitation worthy of Cæsar, building a wall through the midle of it & divideing each 2 flores into 2 roomes, & each roome 2 chimneys apiece.[244] My father had a mare driven up the stares, which eat grass upon the walls in Olivers time*.
Here also in the Castle Parke ~~she built a fine~~ \ are stately / stables quadrangular, with a court in the midle. Here she chused to live rather than att court, he[re] to injoye the delicacie of nature \ luxuries / rather that elsewhere the \ apperances / of Art. And here she designes to end her dayes, and to be buried in St Laurence X^ch^ which att her owne cost and of her owne motion \ she was pleased to / repair ~~the same~~ together with St Michaels:[245] formerly they say a larger church than now it is, having a tower of bells, and Great Tom of Kirkbythore was translated thence; and several other places: castle and churches, which either built anew or repaired sufficient, her great designe being to sett people aworke, that they might have money, which yet she would give them for nothing – that be a charity which encourages idleness, debauchery &c. – and partly out of a respect to Antiquity, which would not ~~permit~~ \ suffer / her to se those ancient monuments lye grovelling in the dust. And her ~~great~~ care was not to \ so much / make neat building, as we doe now adayes & is highly commendable, but to make according to that owne Ancient forme, which upon

[Machell's Notes: II.514]

*Query an true.
Monument: a figure sett up in the wall with this inscription: Hic ja[cet] Ant[iquorum] Mac[hellorum] familia.[246] I must have the monuments in the church and Arms.

---

[241] Chimneys.
[242] Also numbered p.69.
[243] MS: 'supported by a \ single / columne \ in the midle there / ~~therein the midle~~, but ~~I cannot say tis~~ of Roman order.'
[244] MS: '& divideing each ~~rooms into 2~~ \ 2 / into 2 flores\ 2 / into 2 roomes & each roome haveing 2 chimneys apiece.'
[245] 'Here she designes' suggests that Lady Anne Clifford was still living (she died in 1676).
[246] 'Here lies the family of the Ancient Machells.'

[II.515]

that accompt is noe less ~~laudable~~ praiseworthy, in order whereto she had not recourse to the most expert Architects, but experiencd old men who mightest reforme, not how they should be, but how they were formerly.[247]

[II.512]

{Hospitall}

On the east side the ~~towne~~ \ street[248] / towards the upper \ side, / is a Hospital, built quadrangular wise, not high, \ tho placed [on] high ground / {Tho so well placed by the mun[ificence] of that noble Countess} but an Neat[249] building, which may teach the almes folke this lesson: to be neat not proud, humble not lofty.}[250]

On the bake side this Hospitall, which doeth containe 12 widdows & a Mother or Governess who have co[m]petent allowance, is a garden, where everyone have a particular platt[251] or portion to the[m] selves; & then in the ~~descent~~ \ on the plane op[posite] of the Banke / of the hill, which here made easy by stares, is an orchard planted, & then againe a little garden platt on the plane to the river, out of which the widows make considerable advantage by selling there frute. Nor has the Hospitall this advantage alone: Nature has provided as well for every messuage, there being ~~not~~ \ scarce / one housesteed in the towne which has not an incloser for garden and orchard belonging to it, and most of em with water; and the Lower Ends especially in this street, so that, if Industry \ & Art / would midwife to Nature, which has labourd abundantly to make it delightfull, it would produce a most delicate habitation and ~~make~~ \ render / it againe which it hath bin formerly: A Princely Hold*.

[II.513]

[II.509]

The hospital att Apleby is for 12 Sisters who have 6^{li} per annum allowed them, and they have a Mother over them, or Governess, whose allowance is 8^{li} per annum, and a Reader or Chaplain, whose allowance is the same. They have a Chaple and Common Hall and a bell to ring them to prayers. They live much after the manner of schollers in college saveing that every one provides their owne victuals & that they eat apart, except att som certaine times. For they are to be all within doors att 8 in winter & 9 in summer, after which time the gates are locked up. (The \ Baren /Inscription over the gate \ sheweth when & by whom i[t] was founded, ~~followeth~~ being in these words)

> This Almeshouse was founded & begunne in the year 1651, and was finished and endowed with lands, for the yearly maintenance of a Reader and 12 Sisters for ever (in 1653) by Ann Baroness Clifford, Westmerland and Vescy, Lady of the Honor of Scipton in Craven and Countiss Dowager of Penbrooke Dorsett & Montgomery.

But tis dedicated to none.[252]

The lands wherewith it was indowed were

1. St Nicholas, on the northside of Eden from which it is divided by Appelby. This was bough[t] of [Blank] Fielding of Stamford by Barnard Castle & sent to Mr Jackson for the Highest Inscription in the Garden House. Answers: younger eyes than his cannot read it.[253]
2. The Hall & manor of Browham.

[247] MS: 'not how they should be, but how they ~~ough to~~ \ had be[e]n / were formerly.'
[248] High Street.
[249] This word is superimposed upon another which is possibly,'Eleg[ant]'.
[250] MS: 'but an Neat building, which may teach the almes folke ~~this lesson~~ \ this lesson: / ~~a lesson~~ \ of / ~~humil~~ to be neat not proud, humble not lofty.'
[251] Platt = plot.
[252] It is now known as St Anne's Hospital.
[253] This references an answer to Machell's questionnaire, see Editor's Introduction.

[II.507]

At the Schoole

Here is a house which they call the Garden House, 3 stories high, all the front of which is adorned with Romain Inscriptions, the collections, I suppose, of Reg[inald] Bainbridge, whom I take to have built it,[254] and putt the north end thereof in the orchard [where there is] a little hole or setting of earth, occasioned, they say, by 3 boyes who came to digg her[e] for moneys which he had hid: one holding the lanthorn & other 2 digging. But just when they came to descover the coffer, there rose up 3 little creatures like ratts, and with a puf of wind issuing out of the hole. they were all 3 blowne severall ways a 4^{r} of a mile distant from the place. Viz.: One to The Gards, an other to St Nic. Backs and an other to [the] Vicar[age]. {I doe not vouch for the truth of this storie, which I thinke to be in some measure ground upon the opp[inion] some have to this day of his being a conjurer[255] & raiseing dobbies[256] which danced about the schoole. But I take him to have bin a very good man who hid his money in the wall of the schoole and the house which he had built for bon. pub.[257]} He is said allsoe to have buried a purse of silver under the foundations said schoole, which I take in the same sense.[258]

[II.509]

The Inscriptions att the Schoole over the cockloft[259] doore:

DE SCHOLA. B.M.
FRANCISCUS NOB[ILIS] COMES CVMBRIÆ
LIGNA DEDIT
MARGARITA COMITISSA CUMBRIÆ CL. F.
DEDIT SAXA[260]

{Memorandum: the Countess of Penbrooke oaked the Schoole & Tables}[261]

Over the new dwelling house doore:[262]

FUND~~AMENTVM~~ IACT.
JUN.[263] 10. 1671.
IN PERPETVVM VSVM
ARCHIDIDASCALI[264]

[III.57]

[Appleby Gaol: A Tale]

March 6 1688/9

One Joseph Thomson, born at Cow-Brow in Loansdal ward; was imprison'd here upon suspicion of steeling a mear,[265] and Tryed and Acquitted at the Lammas 'sise[266] last: yet continued in Jaol for want of suerties for his good behaviour, till he tooke occasion to set himselfe (and another fellon) one day at Liberty after a bold and unwonted manner; for he opned the doers \ by som art which he had / at [254] MS.II.514 contains similar text, not transcribed.

[255] Conjuror: One who practises conjuration; one who conjures spirits and pretends to perform miracles by their aid; a magician, wizard'. OED. Machell infers that Bainbridge's intelligence was thought by some to suggest occult practices.
[256] Local fairies.
[257] 'Public good.'
[258] The ways in which wise and educated men, often schoolmasters, could be seen by local people in terms of sorcery and superstition during the seventeenth century and beyond, is discussed by Ian D. Hodkinson, 'Science, Superstition and Sorcery: "Wise Men" in Westmorland during the seventeenth to nineteenth centuries', CW3, 18 (2018), 223-44. This should be borne in mind when reading Machell's 'Appleby Gaol: a Tale: III.57, below.
[259] A garret.
[260] 'Francis the noble Earl of Cumberland gave the timber and Margaret the Countess of Cumberland gave the stone.'
[261] I.e. gave the oak wood for the school furniture.
[262] Reginald Bainbridge's 1671 building.
[263] An illegible letter has been crossed through here.
[264] 'Foundation stone laid 10 June 1671, for the perpetual use of the headmaster.'
[265] Mare.
[266] Assizes. Lammas = 1 August.

noone time of the day, & tooke leave of the Debtors in the upper Jaol, askeing them if they would com out; & promising (upon their refusal,) that he would com & set them at liberty when ever they pleased ~~to require it of him~~; And so went his way, shakeing hands with som that he met. The other Fellon made his escape, & was heard of no more: But Thomson was taken in the Barony of Kendal, & sent to a Place in the Town of Kendal where they keep their prisners till they can be transmitted to Appelby Jaol; where they locked his hands behinde his back with Iron Manickles, Gives or fetters; & chaned him \ by the neck / to a great clogg of wood with a chain of Iron, thinkeing thereby to hold him fast. But before the morning, he had got himselfe free; & taken up an huge Oaken planke out of the floore by which he let himselfe into a shop that was under neath, & throwing the doer quite of the hinges, made his second escape.[267] He was taken agane in a short time after, & recommitted to his former lodgings, where to secure him by another method, they bough[t][268] about 20 yards of Rope, & tyed & trussed him up like a Pack, with his hands behinde him; & \ so laid him in straw & /set a watch over him, which was indeed their only security, for he had got himselfe loose the next morning, & but for That, might have made an Escape. Hereupon the Deputy Jaoler thought fit to Transmitt him (with all possible speed) to Appelby Jaol; & coming to Colby; while som were enquireing for Mr Warcop, \ the Jalour who liv'd in that place / the Prisoner asked one of his keepers to play a game at cards for Diversion, and playing with him, call'd him a Bungler & told him every card in his hand, which the other, admireing, bless'd him selfe \ from him / and threw up the cards.[269] But the prisoner wishd him to fall on agane & minde his business better than before, in order to which he gave him liberty to shufle & cutt and deale the cards; & when that was don told him agane every card in his hand by name & suit; upon which the other calld him a witch & would play no more. And while Mr Warcop was carrying him thence to Appelby Jaol; he wishd him to be kinde & civil to him, or it should be worse for him; which ~~the Jaoler~~ he, considering &[270] recollecting what Prankes he \ had / playd, fed him with possets or any thinge that he had a minde \ to. / And in the conclusion, opened the Jaol, set him at Liberty, and gave him a Treat at his departure, for fear of receiveing a further mischiefe.

[III.58]

This story, however strange it may seeme, I take to be a most Certaine Truith, haveing received the substance of it from the Pro-mayor of Apleby Mr John Atkinson; & afterwards from Mr Thomas Warcop the Jaoler ~~of Appelby~~ there, from whose report I thought fit to record it this 6th day of March, 1688/9.

[II.521]

{House of Correction}

The House of Correction is placed upon the end of the bridge opposite to the prison, with this inscription: (Porta[2] Patens[3] esto[1] nulli Claudatur honesto)[271] and then is destitute of building on both sides ~~till~~ \ to / Howgate Foote, where some houses on both sides \ with a few on the end / ~~some lately built, some of older continuance~~; and here a little torrent divides it selfe {it comes out of Stony Lane} one part running of on the right hand to[w]ards the river, the other seeking a smo[o]ther path. tho farther about, runs along the gards to beyond the bridge, where tis received into Edens imbraces. But to follow it higher and to let that pass which is all already gon by us:

[II.522][272]

---

[267] MS: '&, throw~~gh~~ing the doer quite of the […] hinges, made his second escape.'
[268] Or 'brough[t].'
[269] MS: '\ from him / out of his company and ny, and threw up the cards.'
[270] Two crossed-through words here are illegible.
[271] 'Let the door stand open; let it not be closed to any honourable man,' See N&B1, 319, which gives the same inscription, though Machell appears to correct the order of it to read 'esto Porta Patens': '2,3,1.' But there is more to this inscription than meets the eye: see the chapter on Roman Antiquities, VI.199.
[272] Also numbered p.77.

[Howgate]
If wee pass a little further we come to [H]owgate, ~~so called~~ being a way or passage cut through a rock & overshaded with trees, which ~~peradventure~~ doubtless is named from the hollow-ness thereof, how being a contract[ion] of hollow and hovel, the diminutive, which may be deduced from the Latin Caveola, casting away C & adding the aspirate.
Att the end of this Howgate* there is a Catadupe,[273] which partes from Bongate, the general name of the tow Cross Streets in that part of the towne, tho I am perswaded it formerly belonged to the South Street onely,[274] being situate on a very high assent which leades towards Brough and ought to be writ non Bon-gate, but Bangate, it being derived from the British word, Ban – altus excelsus – high, lofty; whence unde Banke etiam. A[nglo S[axon] Or not to truble you with so far a feth,[275] it is enough to derive it quasi Banke-Gate, i.e. the street upon the Ba[n]ke†. The other Cross Street goes from the Mill, or att least has don so, towards Roman Fell. {The other part is waterd on one side with this sike f[r]om Sto[ny] Lane.[276] On the other, benea[th] a great rock of good huw stone runnes the River Eden. But the descent by the church to the mill is ~~more~~ facill & easy.}

[Machell's Notes: II.522]
*The place where (if I mistake [not] ancient evidence) was formerly a mill. /
†{Bongate vide supra p. 74, an non potius Bond-gate villanorum pagus. And so it is vetus Apleby ubi villani habitant.}[277] May be this was the Best part of the Towne, and Anciently the Chiefe street, called Bongate since the Norman Conquest (Camden Britannia) from the French word bien, or Latin bona. Query Bona platea, the Good Street.

[II.523]

[Conclusion]
And so I have don with its description, which is in every[278] place so very commodious for carying of[f] any thing which may be noysome, that I wonder such a pestilence should ever rage in this place as it did in the yeare \ 1598. / Witness this inscription:

Hic Pestis Sævit 1598 Oppid desert Mercatus ad Gilshaughlin F[uit]*.[279]

But when God is pleased to visit to sin, where can we be saif?

{Jardine of Eden}.
The aire \ of it self / is most healthfull, ther being no fens near, nor any places for water to stagnise[280] about this towne. And as for the coldness, this part of the country is so well fenced with the towering mounta[n]es which enci[r]cle this part, cald the Bottom of Westmorland, with the Borders of Cumberland, that looke[ing] from Apleby round about, you would think your selfe in a spatiouse cock pitt. And if some men had there description, they would \ not / feare to give the title of, The Garden of Eden; but I shall content my selfe without any flourish thus, to present you with naked truth.[281]

[Machell's Notes: II.523]
*{Gilshaugh est locus juxta part[em] Stric[kland] \ Magna / quondam sed Fallafeildorum, quorum aliquis prætorem Abullabæ tunc temporis fuisse existimo; id autem in C.F.}[282]

---

[273] Cataract; a waterfall.
[274] MS: 'tho I am perswaded it formerly belonged to the ~~High Street former~~ South Street ~~former~~ onely.'
[275] Probably from 'feith': belief, trust, confidence. OED.
[276] Sike: 'A small stream of water, a rill or streamlet, especially one flowing through flat or marshy ground, and often dry in summer; a ditch or channel through which a tiny stream flows. In former times frequently used as a boundary between lands, fields, etc. OED.
[277] 'Bongate see above p.74, whether rather Bondgate, was the centre of the country folk. And so it is Old Appleby where the villagers live.'
[278] Part of this sentence has been removed from the foot of MS.II.522.
[279] 'Here the plague raged in 1598: the market fled the town to Gilshaughlin Forest.'
[280] 'Stagnize': 'to render stagnant.' OED.
[281] Two short headings have been removed from this page. Viz. MS: 'The places of chief remarks. ~~As to its government~~.'
[282] 'Gilshaugh is a place once next to a part of Great Strickland, but belongs to the Fallowfields, one of whom I think was mayor of Appleby at that time; and this is in C.F.' [Charter of the Fallowfields]

[II.507]

{[Things] Remarkeable to be writte.}

[Loyalty to the King]
~~Lancelot Machell of Crakenthorpe Esq.~~ \ A Gentleman of this county, / when chosen Mayor, would not accept of the prætoriall dignity till Olivers Charter, ~~which had bin~~ formerly ~~procurrd~~ imposed upon the Towne (\ to the /which Aldermen ~~& Major~~ of his owne gang), was brought before him, which he tore in presence in the open court.

[II.508]

Tanta fuit hujus loci honestas ~~et regiæ majest[at]i reverentia ut edita Oliveri contra regem nec \ et parliamenti infidelis~~ /{illegitimique} ~~praetor nec ipsius Balivi quorum~~ officium erant {se my little booke.}[283]
So great was the honesty of this towne and \ so great / theire reverence to ~~kingly~~ \ regal / majesty, that when a proclamation was issued out by Oliver Cromwell, absurdly pro-clameing the King to be a tratour, nor Major nor Baileves (whose office it was), could ~~by faire or foule means~~ be brought ~~to have my hand in so horrid~~, nor any of this towne, could be prevailed upon to pronounce such a tre[ason].

[II.510]

The fidelity of this place, which it hath ever borne to the kings of England, deserves very well to be had in remembrance and to be transfer'd as an honourable example ~~to all posterity~~ \ in future ages. / In the late civil wars it was allwayes for the king, and a smale garrison of {?} men defended the castle against [blank].

{Jock-Green}
Here, the Parliament Party, being in chase, had utterly been overthrowne, but thes[e] country gentlemen could not persuade the general – I thinke it was (Lashley)[284] to fall on: for his Answer to them was, When the hares kild, the game di[es]. But after Oliver \ Cromwell / had vanquished the Royall Party ~~and~~ & settled all changes to his owne likeing, the loyalty was such that many of the inhabitants suffered \ frequent / imprisonment & sequestration, together with the neighboring gentry, most of which were Aldermen of the Towne. But its Loyalty was chiefly remarke in those dismal times for 2 circumstances:
1. That no man, no, not the inferiour officers to whome it belonged to publish proclamations, would by any means proclaime the King a Traytor. So that soljer were constreyned to gett a vagabond fellow &c;
2. Tering Oliver Charter in pieces.

[II.511]

How much also & how worthy are they to be commended for their faithfull proceeding in election of a major in Olivers time, when Captaine Atkinsons[285] (afterwards hang'd, drawne & quartered there, his head being pitched upon the towne hale, the very place where offered that violence) could not \ over / aw them into an Election, according to his pleasure & Olivers intrest, notwithstanding he layd his hand upon his sword, saying, he would choose him by that, & was also backed with a gard of [283] Machell translates and adds to this passage immediately below; i.e. 'so great was the honesty' etc.

[284] Lashley could be a variant of Leslie (i.e. General Leslie) but the parliamentary army commander here was Major General John Lambert. Viz. 'In May 1648 the northern royalists took up arms again, and at the beginning of July the Scottish army [of 'engagers, i.e. supporters of the monarchy] under Hamilton invaded England. Against the former, Lambert more than held his own, driving Sir Marmaduke Langdale, with the bulk of his forces, into Carlisle, and recapturing Appleby and other castles. But the advance of Hamilton's Scottish army … obliged Lambert to fall back. Lambert led an organized retreat of his forces to Bowes and Barnard Castle, aiming to hold Stainmore Pass against Hamilton. From there he had to retire further to Richmond and then Knaresborough… On 13 August, Cromwell arrived, and their combined forces defeated the Scots at Preston (17-19 August 1648).' D. Farr, 'Lambert [Lambart], John (bap. 1619, d. 1684), parliamentary soldier and politician.' ODNB.
[285] Captain Robert Atkinson from Mallerstang, of Kaber Rigg Plot fame, was hanged 1 September, 1664, according to Lady Anne Clifford's diary: see Nightingale Ejected of 1662, 1, 116-17; see also Peter D. Clarke, 'The Sectarian "Threat" and its Impact in Restoration Cumbria', CW2, 88 (1988), 161-76.

soljers. And tho Apleby be little regarded (the unhappy faite of mos[t] that were loyal) yet this may truly be sayd of it: tho if other townes have received honour, this has deserv'd it. Nor must Carlile by me be forgot: the head of Cumb'land, as this is of Westm'land. For the Loyalty of these 2 places may very well expiate for ~~the desloyalty of all the little townes, tho there had bin more of~~ all other places, if there had bin more (as thankes be to God there were very few in both the countyes.)

[Extract from Joseph Nicolson and Richard Burn, The History and Antiquities of the Counties of Westmorland and Cumberland, Volume I (London, 1777), pages 315 to 316.][286]

[315]

'In the time of Oliver Cromwell, they seem to have had a charter imposed upon them , restrictive probably of their former privileges ; for they had been firm in their attachment to the royal cause. To which purpose the reverend Thomas Machel, speaking of the plunderings and devastacions which Appleby had sustained in former ages, adds,'

"And if you seek for a later instance, you may find one in the height of Cromwells tyranny; for when those bloody regicides, which made the very name of an Englishman odious in the world, were not content to bury their malice with that most pious and innocent king whom they most barbarously murdered, but would farther proceed to proscribe his son and proclaim their lord and sovereign a traytor, no man there (either by reward or threatning) could be induced to act or to appear in so horrid a villainy. The mayor withdrew himself, and the bailiffs (whose office it was) threw up their commissions, though but poor men, insomuch that the soldiers were glad to have recourse unto a fellow in the market, an unclean bird, hatched at Kirkby Stephen, the nest of all traytors,[287] who proclaimed it aloud, whilst the people stopped their ears and hearts, having nothing open but their eyes, and those even filled with tears. What should I speak of those perpetual persecutions which the neighbouring gentlemen, who are aldermen of the town, underwent for their loyalty to the king? I think I need no other argument both for their acting for the king and their faithful perseverance than their constant sufferings, sequestrations, and imprisonments; from which they were never free one fortnight together, during the unhappy usurpation of that cruel tyrant. And the townsmen were not far behind this gallant example of their noble leaders; who when captain Atkinson came down from the castle with his musketeers to chuse a Roundhead mayor, and clapped his hand on his sword , saying, *I'll do it by this, yet made resistance; for they then conferred the office (to prevent bloodshed) on a moderate man, who had acted on neither side, except in bearing that office before; and so he was mayor two years together. And though Oliver, through captain Atkinson's means, in order to make himself more absolute, gave a charter to this ancient corporation, which was rather imposed than accepted of, yet they preserved their old one to the last. And when the first gentleman, whose name I neither need nor am willing to mention†; after his many refusals in Oliver's time, accepted the place on the king's return, he would not handle the staff of authority, nor suffer the oath of office to be administred unto him, till he had sent for Olivers charter, and in the face of the court cut it in pieces with his own hands, and then looking about he espied some taylors, and cast it to them, saying it should never be a measure unto him.[288] What should I speak of those great acclamations and expressions of joy which the people could not smother, at the news of the king's return? What, of that wonderful pomp and solemnity (the like whereof was never seen in those parts) upon his coronation, when there were almost as many bonefires as houses, and two stately high [286] This highly important part of Machell's text can no longer be found within his bound MSS; for an analysis of how and why this might be so, see the Editor's Introduction.

[316]

[287] The label seems to have stuck. In 2009, while contesting the Penrith and the Border parliamentary constituency, Rory Stewart was told ' in five separate conversations that the people of Kirkby [Stephen] were Roundheads, and still hated Appleby for being on the Royalist side in the civil war.' See Rory Stewart, Politics on the Edge (London, 2023), 43.

[288] 'What the poor taylors had done to have this flung in their faces is not clear': a pertinent comment made by Lionel Cresswell, in 'Crackenthorpe: its Manor, Hall and the Machell Family', CW2, 33 (1933), 113-32, at 121. Part of Machell's passage is also quoted by Hewitson in 'Appleby Charters', CW1, 11 (1891), 283, but with no attribution. Presumably it was gleaned from N&BI, 316.

scaffolds at each end of the town, hung with cloth of arras and gold; whither, after service done at the church, the countess of Pembroke, with the mayor, aldermen, and all the other gentry of the county ascended, with I know not how many trumpets, and an imperial crown carried before them, where they proclaimed, prayed for, and drank the health of the king upon their knees ; the aged countess seeming young again to grace the solemnity. The expences of that day were very considerable. For throughout the town was kept open house, after the example of that noble countess, who thought not her gates then wide enough to receive her guests, which before had been too wide for receiving armies of soldiers."

[Nicolson and Burn: Notes]

*This captain Atkinson who was of Winton in this county, was afterwards hanged, for being concerned in Kaber Rigg plot.

†Hugh Machel esquire, brother of the said Thomas.[289]

[Government of Appleby]

[I.175]

I shall proceed to the privaledges of this Corporation and then speake something more particularly of those places which seeme more remarkeable. It is indeed a very Ancient Corporation: haveing a Charter granted by Henry 1. as is evident from the records of the Cliffords which I have red.

[I.176]

And there were a Corporation of Burgers before, for in Edward I. time {iurat … anno 7^0 Ed. I. [1278-79] Rot. Vetini…}[290] It was presented by a Jury upon sufficient evidence that old Henry {H. 1.} granted to the Burgesses of Apleby such libertyes as the Citizens of Yorke have, and that King John confirmed the same &c. \ vid. plura in notis[291] / ~~They acknowledge such~~. So that if the Towne could by trade advance their stake[292] and wer by that means able\ to maintaine / their grandure, it would not come short of any Corporation I know of in England.

They are governed by a Mayor \ the present Mayor being John Thwates Esq. Mayor of Apleby,[293] & / 12 Aldermen, many of them being Gentlemen of \ quality / [in] the County whoe keep their Propretors[294] (when they are elected) to officiate for them in their absence. And have \ 1 Sword Bearer / 1 Sargent at Mase, 2 Halbert Bearers &c.,[295] which wait upon the Mayor with other Officers \ Bali[ve]s or Shrives or Provos[t] / as Recorder, Chamberlins and Coroner, with other inferior officers.

[289] Nicolson and Burn are incorrect: it was not Hugh, but Machell's father, Lancelot, who tore up the charter (see Cresswell, 'Crackenthorpe: its Manor, Hall and the Machell Family', 121). See also I.290 in this chapter. For an analysis of Machell's political writing here, see Michael Mullett, who argues that 'it seems highly likely that Thomas Machell scripted a theatrical episode in which the newly installed restoration mayor of Appleby refused to accept the stipulations of the Cromwell charter. The account had a powerful purpose as adroit royalist propaganda.' See Michael Mullett, Patronage, Power and Politics in Appleby in the era of Lady Anne Clifford, 1649-1689, CWAAS Tract Series 25 (Kendal, 2015), 24-26.

[290] The rest of this sentence is obscured by the binding.

[291] 'See further in my notes.'

[292] Indistinct word.

[293] John Thwaites Senior was mayor in 1657 and 1658. John Thwaites, his son, was mayor in 1674, 1681, 1689 and 1698 (in which year he died in office). See http://applebytown.org/wp-content/uploads/2020/08/MAYORS-OF-APPLEBY-PDF.pdf.

[294] Proprætor: a person acting in place of a prætor.

[295] Alternative name: halberd. The halberd had fallen out of use as a fighting weapon by the 17th century, but was retained for ceremonial use.

[I.308]

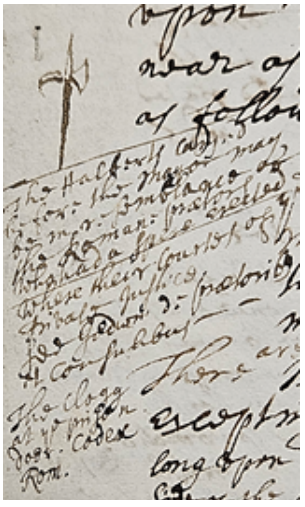

Figure 1.1.7. Margin sketch of halberd, with explanatory text. I.308.

{The halberds caryed before the mayor may be in resemblance of the Romane prætors who had a spere erected where their courtes of private justice.[296] See Joed[…], de Prætoribus et Consulibus.}[297]

[Machell's Notes: I.308]

{The clogg at the prison door. Codex Rom[anus.}[298]

[I.176]

And allso by 2 Balfs[299] whose office is allmost lost for want of clame & exercise but if I mistake not, of great authority and repute, being as in other places equall to the Balies or Shireves of Townes & Cities Corporate. For I finde that Gra[n]tes and other writeing were made by the Major Balives and Com[mons] of Apleby in Henry 8. Time. And I thinke they [Balives] were called Provosts, for I finde William Gold[r]ington Major of Apleby, and Thomas Gold[r]ington Provost of Apleby, witnesses att a deed amongst the writeing of Mr Blenkinsop (which except by Provost, Balives he meant, I cannot tell well what to make of them) the acknowle[dge]d statute marchant &c.[300] And may arreast[301] from [blank] to [blank] within the mase liberty which extends to these places and have all [blank] as far as the liberty of the staff doth reach, which is the whole extent of the Barony of Apleby, to wit to [Blank]

[296] The centumviral court (centumviri) was the chancery court (court of equity) of ancient Rome. It was a court of justice dealing with private law (civil law). See Agnes Clay, 'Centumviri', in Hugh Chisholm (ed.), Encyclopædia Britannica. Vol. 5, 11th edn (Cambridge, 1910-11), 683–84.

[297] 'Of Praetors and Consuls.' Machell was possibly referring to Josse de Damhouder, Praxis rerum criminalium, elegantissimis iconibus ad materiam accomodis illustrata, prætoribus, proprætoribus, consulibus, proconsulibus, magistratibus, reliquisque id genus iustitiariis ac officiariis, apprimè utílis ac necessaria, etc. With woodcuts by Gerard de Jode (Antwerp, 1554). In modern terms, 'a practical handbook of criminal justice for the use of officials such as praetors, consuls etc.'

[298] See Machell's tale of a gaol escape, III.57, above: 'They … chaned him \ by the neck / to a great clogg of wood with a chain of Iron, thinkeing thereby to hold him fast.'

[299] Bailiffs.

[300] Statute marchant/merchant: a bond of record, acknowledged before the chief magistrate of a trading town, by which a creditor has the power of seizing a debtor's lands in case of default. OED.

[301] Arrest.

[I.178]

[Charter Proclamations: James II. 1688][302]

[Proclamation 17 October 1688.]

JAMES R.

Whereas in the Charters, Patents or Grants made to several Cities, Burroughs and Towns Corporate, a Power is reserved to us to Remove, Displace, and Discharge by Order under Our Signet and Sign Manual, the Mayors, Sheriffs, Recorders, Town-Clerks, Aldermen, Common Council-Men, Assistants, Officers, Magistrates, Ministers, Freemen and other Members of the same: We do accordingly hereby Remove, Displace and Discharge all Mayors, Sheriffs, Recorders, Town-Clerks, Aldermen, Common Council-Men, Assistants, Officers, Magistrates, Ministers, Freemen, and other Members of our said respective Cities, Burroughs, and Towns Corporate, which have or claim such Offices or Places by Charter, Patent or Grant from the late King Our most Dear Brother of ever blessed Memory, or from Us since the Year One thousand six hundred seventy nine, except such Cities and Towns in Our Proclamation named, whose Deeds of Surrender are Inrolled, or against whom Judgments in Quo Warranto are Entred: And they, and every of them, are hereby Removed, Displaced and Discharged accordingly, in Pursuance of the Power reserved to Us as aforesaid: Whereof all Persons concerned are hereby required to take Notice.he issued a proclamation that Given at Our Court a Whitehall the 17th Day of October, 1688. In the Fourth Year of Our Reign.
By His Majesties Command.
Sunderland P.
London, Printed by Charles Bill, Henry Hills, ad Thomas Newcomb, Printers to the Kings most Excellent Majesty, 1688.

JAMES R.
Whereas in the Charters, Patents, or Grants made to several Cities, Burroughs and Towns Corporate, a Power is reserved to Us, Our Heirs and Successors, to Remove, Displace and Discharge by Order in Council, the Mayors, Sheriffs, Recorders, Town-Clerks, Aldermen, Common Council-Men, Assistants, Officers, Magistrates, Ministers, Freemen, and other Members of the same: We do accordingly hereby Remove, Displace and Discharge all Mayors, Sheriffs, Recorders, Town-Clerks, Aldermen, Common Council-Men, Assistants, Officers, Magistrates, Ministers, Freemen, and other Members of our said respective Cities, Burroughs, and Towns Corporate, which have or claim such Offices or Places by Charter, Patent or Grant from the late King Our most Dear Brother of ever blessed Memory, or from Us since the Year One thousand six hundred seventy nine, except such Cities and Towns in Our Proclamation named, whose Deeds of Surrender are Inrolled, or against whom Judgments in Quo Warranto are Entred: And they, and every of them, are hereby Removed, Displaced and Discharged accordingly, in Pursuance of the Power reserved to Us as aforesaid: Whereof all Persons concerned are hereby required to take Notice.
Given at Our Court at Whitehall the 17th Day of October, 1688. In the Fourth Year of Our Reign.
By His Majesties Command.
Sunderland P.
London, Printed by Charles Bill, Henry Hills, and Thomas Newcomb, Printers to the Kings most Excellent Majesty, 1688.

At the Court at Whitehall the 17th day of October, 1688.
PRESENT,
The King's most Excellent Majesty.
His R. H. Prince George of Denmark,
Lord Chancellor, Duke of Hamilton,
Lord Privy-Seal, Marquess of Powis,
Earl of Middleton, Mr. Pepys.
Lord Chief Justice Herbert,
Sir Thomas Strickland,
Sir Nicholas Butler,
John Nicholas.
Whereas in the Charters, Patents, or Grants made to several Cities, Burroughs and Towns Corporate, a Power is reserved to His Majesty by his Order in Council, to Remove, Displace and Discharge the Mayors, Sheriffs, Recorders, Town-Clerks, Aldermen, Common Council-Men, Assistants, Officers, Magistrates, Ministers, Freemen, and other Members of the same: His Majesty in this day in Council pleased to Order, And it is hereby Ordered accordingly, That all Mayors, Sheriffs, Recorders, Town-Clerks, Aldermen Common Council-Men, Assistants, Officers, Magistrates, Ministers, Freemen, and other Members of the said respective Cities, Burroughs and Towns Corporate, which have or claim such Offices or Places by Charter, Power or Grant from the late King of Blessed Memory, or from His Majesty since the year 1679. Except such Cities and Towns in His Majesties Proclamation named, whose Deeds of Surrender are Inrolled, or against whose Judgments in Quo Warranto are Entred; be Removed, Displaced, and Discharged, in pursuance of the Power aforesaid in aforesaid. And they and every of them are hereby Removed, Displaced, and Discharged accordingly.

Figure 1.1.8. Proclamation of James II, 1688. I.178-9.

[I.179]

At the Court at Whitehall the 17th day of October, 1688.
PRESENT, The King's most Excellent Majesty.
His R. H. Prince Geo. of Denmark,
Lord Chancellor, Duke of Hamilton,
Lord Privy-Seal, Marquess of Powis,

[302] During the reign of Charles II, and particularly early in 1688 under James II, many towns were required to surrender their charters and accept new ones, thereby allowing the monarch power to nominate or remove the principal officers. James changed his policy early in October 1688, by restoring the charter of London, and two weeks later, he issued another Proclamation directing that most town charters should be reinstated. See Robert H. George, 'The Charters Granted to English Parliamentary Corporations in 1688', English Historical Review 55, 217 (Jan., 1940), 47-56, at 47.

Earl of Huntingdon,
Earl of Craven,
Earl of Berkeley,
Earl of Moray,
Earl of Middleton,
Earl of Melfort,
Earl of Castlemain,
Viscount Preston,
Lord Godolphin,
Mr. Chancel. of the Exchequer,
Master of the Rolls,
Lord Chief Justice Herbert,
Sir Thomas Strickland,
Sir Nicholas Butler,
Mr. Petre.

Whereas in the Charters, Patents, or Grants made to several Cities, Burroughs and Towns Corporate, a Power is reserved to His Majesty by his Order in Council, to Remove, Displace and Discharge the Mayors, Sheriffs, Recorders, Town-Clerks, Aldermen, Common Council-Men, Assistants, Officers, Magistrates, Ministers, Freemen, and other Members of the same. His Majesty is this day in Council pleased to Order. And it is hereby Ordered accordingly, That all Mayors, Sheriffs, Recorders, Town-Clerks, Aldermen Common Council-Men, Assistants, Officers, Magistrates, Ministers, Freemen, and other Members of the said respective Cities, Burroughs and Towns Corporate, which have or claim such Offices or Places by Charter, Patent or Grant from the late King of Blessed Memory, or from His Majesty since the year 1679. Except such Cities and Towns in His Majesties Proclamation named, (whose Deeds of Surrender are Inrolled, or against whom Judgments in Quo Warranto are Entred) be Removed, Displaced, and Discharged, in pursuance of the Power reserved as aforesaid. And they and every of them are hereby Removed, Displaced, and Discharged accordingly.

John Nicholas.
London, Printed by Charles Bill, Henry Hills, and Thomas Newcomb, Printers to the King's Most Excellent Majesty, 1688.

[I.182A-183]

Proclamation for restoreing Corporations to their ancient charters & liberties, given to me by Mr John Hall, subsheriff of Westmorland, & proclamed by him at Appleby &c. in October 1688.[303]

By the King,
A PROCLAMATION.
For Restoring Corporations to their Ancient Charters, Liberties, Rights and Franchises.
JAMES R.

Given at Our Court at Whitehall the 17th day of October, 1688. In the Fourth Year of Our Reign.
GOD SAVE THE KING.

Figure 1.1.9. 'By the King: A Proclamation for Restoring Corporations to their Ancient Charters, Rights and Franchises, James R.' 1688. 1.182A-183.

[303] The proclamations bound into the pages of Volume 1 are contemporaneous printed handbills.

By the King, A PROCLAMATION.
For Restoring Corporations to their Ancient Charters, Liberties, Rights and Franchises.
JAMES R.
Whereas We are informed that several Deeds of Surrender, which have been lately made by several Corporations and Bodies Corporate, of and in Our Cities and Towns within Our Kingdom of England, and Dominion of Wales, of their Charters, Franchises and Priviledges, are not yet Recorded or Enrolled: And that upon the Proceedings and Rules for Judgment, which have lately been had upon the Quo Warranto's or Informations in Nature of a Quo Warranto, Judgments are not yet Entred upon Record; Whereupon, notwithstanding new Charters have been granted in the Reign of Our late Dear Brother, and in our Reign; Which said Deeds (being not Inrolled or Recorded) do not amount unto, or in Law make any Surrender of the Charters, Franchises or Liberties therein mentioned; And such of the said Corpora|tions or Bodies Politick, against which Rules for Iudgments have been made in the Life time of Our late Dear Brother, or since, in Our Court of King's Bench (but no Judgments Entred upon Record) are not Discorporate or Dissolved; And that it is in Our Power to leave such Corporations in the same Estate and Condition they were in, and to discharge all further Proceedings and Effects that may be of such Rules for Judgments, and Deeds of Surrender: We do hereby Publish and Declare, That upon due Search and Examination made, We have satisfaction that the Deeds of Surrender made by the Corporations and Bodies Politick of the said Cities and Towns, Except the Corporations following: (that is to say) Thetford, Nottingham, Bridgewater, Ludlow, Bewdley, Beverley, Teukesbury, Exeter, Doncaster, Colchester, Winchester, Lanceston, Lisderd, Plimpton, Tregoney, Plymouth, Dunwich, St. Ives, Fowy, East-Looe, Camelford, West-Looe, Tintegall, Penryn, Truro, Bodmyn, Hadleigh, Lestwythell, and Saltash, are not Inrolled or Recorded in any of Our Courts: And that though Rules for Judgments have passed upon Informations in Nature of a Quo Warranto against the Corporations and Bodies Politick of several Cities and Towns, in Our said Kingdom and Dominion; Yet no Judgments have been or are Entred upon Record upon any such Informations, Except against the City of London, Chester, Calne, St. Ives, Pool, York, Thaxted, Llanghour, and Malmesbury: And We of Our meer Grace and Favour, being Resolved to Restore and put all Our Cities, Towns and Burroughs in England and Wales, and also Our Town of Berwick upon Tweed, into the same State and Condition they were and was, in Our late Dear Brothers Reign, before any Deed of Surrender was made of their Charters or Franchises, or Proceedings against them or the Corporations or Bodies Politick, in or of the said Cities, Towns or Burroughs upon any Quo Warranto or Informations in Nature of a Quo Warranto had. We do hereby therefore Publish, Declare, Direct and Require, That the said Corporations and Bodies Politick and Corporate of all the said Cities, Towns and Burroughs, whose Deeds of Surrender are not Inrolled, nor Judgments entred against them as aforesaid; And the Mayors, Bayliffs, Sheriffs, Aldermen, Common Council-men, Assistants, Recorders, Town-Clerks, Magistrates, Ministers, Officers, Freemen, and all and every others the Members of or in every of them respectively upon the Publication of this Our Proclamation, Take on them and Proceed to Act as a Corporation or Body Politick, and where Places are vacant by Death or otherwise, to make Elections, Constitute and Fill up the same (Notwithstanding the usual Days and Times of Elections by the Ancient Charters and Constitutions shall happen to be past), and to Do, Execute and perform all and every Matter and Thing as they Lawfully might and ought to have done, if no such Deeds of Surrender, Rules for Iudgment, or other Proceedings upon any such Quo Warranto or Informations had been had or made. And for the better effecting Our said Intention, We have by Order made by Us in Council, and under Our Sign Manual; And We do also by this Our Proclamation made with the Advice of Our said Council, Discharge, Remove, and Dismiss all and every Person and Persons of and from all Offices and Places of Mayors, Bayliffs Sheriffs, Aldermen, Common Council-men, Assistants, Recorder, Town-Clerk, and all and every Office and Place, which they or any of them Have or Claim only by Charter, Patent, or Grant from Our Dear Brother, or from Our Self since the Dates of the Respective Deeds of Surrender or Rules for Judgment; Except such Corporations whose Deeds of Surrender are Inrolled or against whom Judgment is Entred; And that all and every such Person and Persons deliver up into the Hands and Custody of the said Persons hereby appointed and intended to Act and Execute the said Offices and Places, all and every the Charters, Records, Books, Evidences, and matters concerning the said respective Corporations.

And We do hereby further Publish and Declare, That We have caused all and every the said Deeds of Surrender which can be found, to be delivered and put into the Hands of Our Attorney-General, to be by him Cancelled and returned to the Corporations and Bodies Politick of the respective Cities and Towns whom they concern; And have also given to Our said Attorney Authority, and do hereby Warrant and Command him, not only not to proceed or enter Judgment upon the said Quo Warranto's or Informations, in Nature of a Quo Warranto, or any of them, but to enter upon the respective Records, Noli prosequi's, and Legal Discharges thereof: And We do hereby Publish and Declare Our further Grace and Favour to the said Cities, Corporations and Burroughs, at any time hereafter, by any further Act to Grant, Confirm or Restore unto them all their Charters, Liberties, Franchises and Priviledges, that at the respective times of such Deeds of Surrender, or Rules for Judgment made or given, they held or enjoyed. And in order to the perfecting Our said gracious Intentions, We do hereby likewise Publish and Declare Our Royal Will and Pleasure as for and concerning the restoring to such of Our Cities, Corporations and Burroughs within our said Kingdom and Dominion, which have made Deeds of Surrender, or have had Iudgment given against them, which Surrenders and Iudgments are Entred of Record, That Our Chancellor, Attorney-General and Sollicitor-General, without Fees to any Officer or Officers whatsoever, upon Application to them made, shall, and they are hereby required to prepare and pass Charters, Instruments, Grants and Letters Patents for the Incorporating, Regranting, Confirming and Restoring to all and every the said Cities, Corporations and Burroughs, their respective Charters, Liberties, Rights, Franchises and Priviledges, and for restoring the respective Mayors, Bayliffs, Recorders, Sheriffs, Town-Clerks, Aldermen, Common Council-men, Assistants, Officers, Magistrates, Ministers and Freemen, as were of such Cities, Corporations or Burroughs at the time of such Deeds of Surrender, or Judgments respectively given or had, and for the putting them into the same State, Condition and Plight they were in at the times of such Deeds of Surrender, or Judgments made or given. And whereas divers Burroughs that were not heretofore Corporations, have since the Year One thousand six hundred seventy nine, had Charters of Incorporation Granted and Passed unto them; We hereby further Express and Declare Our Royal Pleasure, to determine and annul the said last mentioned Charters and Corporations; And to that end, We have in pursuance to the Power reserved in the said Charters, by Our Order in Council, and under Our Sign Manual, Removed and Discharged; And We do also by this Our Proclamation, made with the Advice of Our said Council, Remove and Discharge all and every Person of or in the said last mentioned Corporations, of and from all Offices and Places of Mayors, Bayliffs, Recorders, Sheriffs, Aldermen, Common Council-men, Assistants, and of and from all and every other Office and Place from which We have Power reserved by the said Charters respectively, to Remove or Discharge them: And We do hereby Promise and Declare, that We will Do and Consent to all such Acts, Matters and Things as shall be necessary to render these Our gracious Intentions and Purposes effectual, it being Our gracious Intention to call a Parliament as soon as the general Disturbance of Our Kingdom by the intended Invasion, will admit thereof.
Given at Our Court at Whitehallthe 17th day of October, 1688. In the Fourth Year of Our Reign.
GOD SAVE THE KING.

[I.276B][304]

[The First Appleby Charters]

Appleby traditionally reported to have bin governed by a maior when London was onely a Balife but that I shall onely mention because still common in the mouth of the people*.
The 1t Charter as far as I could ever yett discover was in the time of Henry 1t [1100-35]: è cartis Clifford apud Appleby Castle,[305] who was otherwise called Henricus Senex, but this I have only seen in an Inquisition upon a sute depending, betwixt the barrons of Westmorland, Lords of the Honour of Appleby, & the Corporation of […][306]

[304] This page also contains the notes, MS: '[perished] Crakenthorpe [perished] Cherryes grow near Appleby wild in the woods.'
[305] 'From a charter of the Cliffords at Appleby Castle.'
[306] The end of this sentence is obscured by the binding.

The Charter of Appleby granted in Henry the 2nd times [1154-89] and confirmed success[ively] by the Kings of England, is with liberty &c. and freedom allso a pontagio lastagio &c. in omnibus &c. [307]& doe sometime returne writts of witherman.[308]
Alderman Smyth, senior
Alderman Smyth, Junior
Alderman Robinson
Alderman Lowson
Alderman Atkinson
Alderman Harrison
Alderman Warcop
Nevinson

[Machell's Notes: I.276A]

*{1st. I remember long ago that it was a tradition with the people thereabouts that Apleby was governed by a mayor when London \ by a Balive [blank] /} {before London, which was made a mayor towne in the first of Richard 1st [1189-90]} {Tis also said that York was granted on the forenoone & Apleby in the afternoon.}

[1.276A][309]

The Charter to Appleby granted in Henry the 2d time is whence liberty & free customes as fully wholy & honourably as the Citizens of Yorke did enjoye; which had been confirmd successively by the Kinges of England. {Carta habuit temp. Henrie Senicis 12[310] H.1. [1111-12]}[311]
~~That we~~ \ The Corporation /consists of a Maior, Council of Aldermen, Recorder and Common Councell \ I thinke of 2 Balifes allso / have power to arrest for any sume without limitation; \ as appears from my evidence of Apleby Schoole / to elect two Burgesses for Parliament; to acknowledge statutes m[er]chant before the manor.
Felons; goods; felo de se;[312] waifs & strayes; forfeitures; escheats, doe belong to the manor for the time being.

[Common Seal]

Figure 1.1.10. Appleby Seal. 1.276A.
'3 lyons a token of loyalty & courage[313] \ the crowne victorie / and St Lawrence on the Gryd Iron to show that it resisted even unto fire, with this devise, hic iacet Laurentius in Cratic[ula] &c.'

[307] 'Freedom also from taxes on bridges, trading at fairs etc. in all matters etc.'
[308] Writ of Witherman: reprisal of debt.
[309] See I.285-290, for Machell's expansion of this information.
[310] Unclear numeral.
[311] Machell dates this charter to the reign of Henry I, but the text immediately above contains a clear alteration from Henry I to Henry II.
[312] 'Felo de se': 'One who 'deliberately puts an end to his own existence, or commits any unlawful malicious act, the consequence of which is his own death; verdict of self-murder; suicide.'
[313] MS: '~~Q? Which of our kings 1st bore 3 lyons? Se Leland T1 supine 3 leopards. Kgs d. Angliter~~ 3 lyons a token of loyalty & courage.'

The inscription of our common \ seale: / Hic iacet Laurentius in Craticula pos[itus][314] and on that side is the three lyons passant \ gardant crowned / & St Laurence (to whome our church is dedicated) on the gridiron. {2ce burnd before this granted; peradventure because the Towne was burn'd but that last after the Charter granted in 1176.} On the other side, Sigillum Communitatis Burgi de Apleby, and there onely the three lyons passant on a flagg etc.[315]

~~This~~ Henry 2. is sayd to be the 1st that bore 3 lyons for his Arms and it must need be a great honour to Apleby & an undoubted marke of its loyalty that he should signalise it with his own Arms distinguished onely by a symbol of honour, viz. 3 crownes.[316] & theire burnd downe by the Scotts, it should seem to be in regard of its fidelity to the English intrest att that time as there were continuall fude betwixt these two nation, they \ pretending a right to Chief / County as well as Cumberland.[317]

[I.277]

Figure 1.1.11. Common seals of the Borough of Appleby. 1.277.

These are figures of the common seales of the Borough of Appleby*, which Queen Elizabeth by her letters patents bearing date the 8. of July in the 39 yeare of her reigne [1597] (reciting the Charter of King John dated the 6. of March in the 1st yeare of his reigne [1200]; which grants and confirmes to his Burgesses of Appleby all the libertys and free customes which the Burgesses of Yorke had by the grants of King Henry 2 as also the charter of King Henry 3 reciting and confirming the same, and of King Edward the 1st & King Henry 8) ratyfies & confirmes them†.

[Machell's Notes: I.277]

*The diamite[r] of both these seales being circles: see the true dimention p.108 patis V, MS de Westm'land.[318]
The inscription should fill in the round.
†22 Martis 1664: The present Mayor being Christopher Lowther, the Recorder Thomas Denton Esq.
This must be out Dugdales Visitation.

[314] A word here has perished.
[315] For a description of the Appleby common seal, see R.S. Ferguson, A History of Westmorland (London, 1894), 156; see also N&BI, 318.
[316] MS: '& an undoubted marke of its loyalty that he should signalise it with his own arms ~~Se whether all townes corporate have the knight kings arms on one side the seale~~ distinguished onely by a symbol of honour, viz. 3 crownes.'
[317] MS: 'continuall fude betwixt these two nation, they ~~having this~~ \ pretending a right to Chief / County as well as Cumberland ~~som time in past & often times being [illeg] which peradventure might move the king to honr this towne with his owne Arms & St Laurence &c~~.'
[318] 'See the true dimention p.108 patis V, MS de Westm'land': if 'patis' is correct, then it might well be an abbreviation such as 'pat[ent]is', giving the meaning, 'p.108 of letter patent V', but this is pure speculation.

[I.279]

[Correspondence relating to the government of Appleby]

[Thomas Machell; John Thwaites; Richard Blome, cartographer; Thomas Barlow, bishop of Lincoln]

[1. Thomas Machell to John Thwaites. Undated.][319]

Kinde Uncle
You promised mee some time agoe, that you would send the impressions both of your towne and schoole common seales; you sent mee a description of the townes (I thanke you) but the Impression would doe a great deal better, and therefore I pray be mindfull of your promiss & let me have them as soone as you can. I would allso know whether you have a Sigillum Secretum,[320] as well as com[m]une? And if you have lett mee know what it is? You need not fear to communicate them for tis noe new thing; and besides you may be sure that I am not a man who means any harme to your corporation. Sombody was telling \ me / that you are about to draw the quarter sessions wholy to Ap[pleby.]
I could wish in the 1st place that the sessions of assises were secured unto you by Act of Parliament as they are to Carlile by the 14 of Henry the 6th [1435-36], Cap. 3. And then you might saifly venter to stand upon your points and maintain your \ priviledges / both against the judges & justices too. But if it were not presumption in mee to direct your wise counsil, I would advise them to secure the main stake, & learne a good lesson from the dog in the fabel.[321]

You have 2 burgeses whose business it is to defend your priviledges in the House of Parliament, and procure you new ones, as far \ as / in them lyes; ~~and~~ Kendall has none. You have the president[322] of Carlile for it, and the same plea (old use & custome) which they had for theirs; Kendall has none. You have sufferings and loyalty to speake \ plead / in your behalf ~~Kendall has none~~ and many other arguments which I could produce): Kendall has none. How easy a thing then were it for you to procure this priviledge; if you would but putt your burgesses in minde & they write \ their mind & / an opportunity? Nay, I am confident, the thing is so reasonable that none would gaine say it. and \ if / this were effected you needed not fear to \ the / disgust the gentlemen of the other side ~~the countrye by~~ calling them over to your Quarter Sessions. For them it would bee both beyond theire and your Judges power for to alter the Assises. A thing I suppose which may be attempted when the Countess is ~~gone~~ \ dead. / And ergo

[I.280]

I thinke it will very much behove you to labour this business while she is alive. And the sooner the better; for you need not doubt of her utmost assistance who has hitherto preserved these \ priviledges / unto you; entertained your judges att her owne propper charge, and honoured the towne with her residence there above other places. However, I would have (before the next session of the Court of Parliament) to putt your Burgesses in minde of this matter, that they may move in it as they see opportunity; & thinke there will be a very fitt occasion when a Bill is preferr'd in order to settling your schoole on the collige; in which Bill the other may bee inserted as well as not.

{The schole setled on Q. Coll. Oxon.}
And now when my hand is in, I will reminde of an other business \ in / order to the advanceing of your schoole & towne; and that is [the] librarye. Cosan Brathwate has promissed his assistance & I make no question of Sir Richard Sandfords. I pray you therefore gett us halfe a dusen trees cutt downe in readyness and brought to the schoole that they may bee in season, & whensoever I come into the north wee will try to doe somthing in that affaire.
I pray you be pleased to send mee the names of those feofees who resigned up the schoole into our hands. And pardon those over slights (if there bee any) which my \ too / great affection to Apleby has [319] Undated, but the reply is dated 2 October 1673.

[320] 'Secret seal', used in private correspondence. The 'sigillum commune' was the common seal.
[321] The writer is possibly referring to the fable of the dog carrying a bone, who, seeing his reflection in the water, dropped the bone in hope of picking up another one.
[322] Precedent.

caused; for assure your selfe there is none more ready to doe the towne service, or an man related unto it, much more your \ selfe / than ~~he who is~~ S[r]
Your ~~humble servant~~ \ most /dutyfull Nephew & serv[ant]
My kinde l[ove] & d[uty] to my Aunt; my love to good Cosan Deb; my service to M.B. & honest Mr Jacson; but my letter to – your selfe alone. ~~Do not show it to any~~.

[I.278B]

[2. John Thwaites to Thomas Machell. 2 October 1673.]

For Mr Thomas Machell, Fellow of Queene, Oxon these

[I.278A][323]

Dear Cozen
It may seeme very strange to you, that I returne you noe better answear of your letter, the reason truely is I never received your paper of directions till this day; soe that in this short time could give you nothinge but an imperfect accompt; as for the immunities of our toune I have not fully completed itt, but God willing, this next terme, my man will be at London, and by him you shall receive your impresse of our common seale, & your seale appointed for the schoole, togither with an exact account of our \ first / charter & priviledges. All your friends & relations are in good health, and desire kindly to be remembered to you, and soe doth
Yor affectionate Uncle
Jo. Thwaites
Appleby 2[nd] October 1673.

[I.297][324]

[3. From Richard Blome. 27 February 1674.][325]

To the Maior, Aldermen and other the Majestrates of Appleby
Sirs
I have spent some time in the preparing for the presse a booke of heraldry entituled, Guillim's Display of Heraldry.[326] Manifestinge a more easie accesse to the knowledge thereof then hath beene published by any, through the benefitt of Method, being interlaced with variety of History, suitable to the severall subjects; which said booke for its excellency hath past the presse four times and is speedily to be reprinted with great variety of usefull addicons, as well of coat armour as a treatise of the Nobility and Gentry, as to their priviledges and dignityes, with chapters of each degree, which are illustrated with apt and proper sculptures to represent the same. And for the further compleatinge the said worke (by giveinge as many examples of bearings as possible), it is my desire (in a chapter relateinge to Comerce) to treat of the cittyes and cheife townes corporate in England, as to their imunityes, customes, privilidges, government, coat armour and Majestrates, with other things of remarke, fitt to be taken notice of (especially of such cittyes and townes coporate whose majestrates are benefactors to the said work, as diverse already have beene.) And well knowing that soe chargeable an undertakeinge cannott be soe well performed by a single person as by a publiq' encurragement, I am the rather induced to present these lines to your consideracons, tenderinge my service for the recording to posterity such remarkes as aforesaid are appropriate to your Corporacon, together with the names of the present majestrates, for which the charges (which by computacon cannott be lesse than 40s) will be only required downe, and 30s more upon the delivery of one of the said bookes, [323] I.278B is the address page (15cm by 19½cm) of a letter to Machell from John Thwaites.

[324] The letter on this page is not a copy.
[325] Richard Blome (bap. 1635? d. 1705), was a heraldic painter and publisher who was among the first to use the advance subscription method to finance his publishing schemes, as will be observed in this correspondence. See S. Mendyk, 'Blome, Richard cartographer and bookseller.' ODNB.
[326] John Guillim (1550-1621), Herald. The inscription is dated 1610 but Guillim's Display of Heraldrie was published in 1611. It contained 283 folio pages and more than 500 woodcuts of shields illustrating the arms of named families and early 17th century office-holders: Thomas Woodcock, 'Guillim, John (1550-1621)'. ODNB.

which will be worth as much, without you will most liberally contribute unto me; and upon your notice given me thereof in due time, your comands shall readily be observed by.
Your most humble servant
Ric. Blome
Feb. 27, 1674.
Lodginge at Mr Rudds at the corner of Lincolnes Inn Fields near Clare Markett

[I.281]

[4. John Thwaites to Thomas Machell. 2 August 1675.]

Dear Cosen[327]
These I hope will finde you in good health, the continuance whereof is most heartily wished. I should ere this (in behalf of this burrough) have given you the trouble of what is here incerted, but terme occasions and my lait sicknes have enforced the delay. This corporacon (who returne you many thankes for your kindnes) is by their continued low condition obliterated in history, and if you can be instrumentall to putt fire to the ashes of antiquity you will exceedingly oblige us. Wee may speake ourselves not inferiur \ almost / to the ancientest corporacon in England.
Our comon Seale are the three lyons passant (Yorke five)*.
King Henry the First Grannts his Charter to the Burgesses of this place, for our liberties and free customes Tam integre, plenarie, & honorifice sicut cives urbis de Eboraco nunc habent et possident.[328]
King John confirmes this, and soe all the kings of England successively, to be free from the potestation[329] of Toll ~~in~~ all England \ over / præter-quam è in civitat London nisi forte cives Eboraci quietantias inde habent per libertates suas in civitate London.[330]

It appears by Records that die martis in festo Sancti Stephani martyris anno Inquisitionis Millesimo trecentesimo octogesimo octavo†,[331] the towne was burnd by the Scotts, at which time itt pased to the king twenty markes per annum at 2^{d} a burgage; and that itt was soe destroyed thereby, that of that rentt upon several Inquisicons found & returnd, there remaines to the king onely xxvj^{s} viij^{d}[332] which has been since that time and is now paied, and so itt continues‡.
If you thinke itt convenient, give my humble duty & service to the Reverend Father the Bishop of Lincolne,[333] and if you please acquaint him that though I was unjustly aspeisd by two gentlemen aldermen of this place (the one is dead, the other never gave any a good word) about the ten pounds he deposited into my hand as a free gift towards the buildinge of a house for conveinency of the markett, which never tooke effect, and thereupon I paied itt \ over / to the towne, which continued in their hands till now, and I have now imployed itt towards the building of a house which stands upon six pillars, and will be finished within this three weekes‡.
I would not willingly lye under a blemish which I doe in noe wise deserve. I do assure \ you / itt has been a very great trouble to me, and I doe value my reputation at a greater rate then the purchase of ten pounds. All yor frends at Crakanthorpp are well, your Aunt & Deborah present their kind respect & service to you; soe doth
Your very affectionat uncle
Jo. Thwaites
App 2nd August 1675.

[327] Letter written by John Thwaites.
[328] 'For our liberties and free customs, as entirely, fully and honourably as the citizens of York now have and possess them.'
[329] Potestation: 'power, authorisation'. OED.
[330] 'To be immune from the imposition of toll all England over, except in the city of London, apart from citizens of York who have exemptions on account of their liberties in the city of London.'
[331] 'It appears by records that on a Tuesday on the feast of St Stephen Martyr in the year of the Inquisition 1388, 11. Richard 2., the town was burned by the Scots.'
[332] 26s 8d.
[333] When Thomas Barlow was consecrated bishop of Lincoln on 27 June, 1675, Machell was then an Oxford fellow; he was presented to the living of Kirkbythore in 1677: A. Winchester, 'Machell, Thomas (bap. 1647, d. 1698), antiquary'. ODNB. For Barlow, see Part 1, Ch.20, Orton.

[Machell's Notes: I.281]
{Out of these I have made my description of Appleby, which must be sent to Bloome.}
*~~I thinke 6M~~. {York \ Arms / vi lyons on a Cross Gules, 5 lyons passant gardant Or.}
†XI Richard 2. [1388].
‡{hanc vastavit funditus Guilielmus Rex Scotorum 1176 / 22. Henry 2.}[334]
⸸{In July 1675 the new market house finished.}

[I.282]

[5. Letter from an umknown writer concerning Thomas Barlow, bishop of Lincoln. Transcribed (with addenda) by Machell.][335]

My Lord takes it kindly that you have imploy'd his money \ & / he has more books for you.
I have spoke a great deal of Good to him concerneing your towne. Moved him (being now a member of Parliament) to procure the settlement of the Hospital upon you as att Carlile (when the Act is made for the Schoole); & in order thereto I am to draw him \ a / note of what I thinke fitt to be ~~pleaded for it~~ \ urged for it. / I have allso mov'd him to consider of lending you out of our treasuryes 500[li] upon use as you proposed & sufficient security for 6 or 7 years, & he tells me moreover that as soon as he is settled well in his Bishoprik & begins to grow rich he will give 100 [li] to the towne.[336] I wish all this may hold, but however, you see how willing I am to serve the corporation and promote their intrest if it layd in my power. Who am [blank].

But then writes that Mr Machell has given a very good assurance of his Lordships favor & good intentions.

[Machell's Notes: I.282 & I.283]
[I.282]
A Bill that the Schoole of Appleby may be settled as to its presentation upon Queens College. Se Norleeach Mr. M.A.[337] That the Assises may be holden att Appleby as they have bin \ of old / and att noe other place. If we make the Judges visitors upon default of the College – thus: And for as much as the Judges of Assise are in some cases to be visitors of the Schoole of Appleby, it is desired that the session of the Justices to take Assises in the county of Westm'land to be holden in time of peace & of truce in the Towne of Appleby and none other place, in the same \ as it hath bin used and accustomed / except it be necessary, in case of plauge nor the like pestilentious disease, to have it pro ista vice[338] otherwise.
Query [1]: Carlile obteined the same favour \ 14 Henry 6. Cap. 3 / upon the sole account that [it] had bin so used and accustomed formerly. And the Assises have bin kept [at] Appleby ever since King Johns time & before (except once) or twice
2. Because it will be for the good of the schoole.
3. Of the towne, which was ever loyall, and suffered abundantly, not onely in the Tyranny of Oliver & late civil Warrs, but formerly by the Scotts, there being …[339]
[I.283]
Appleby was formerly cauled a city &c. {Appleby then burned to the ground!} It was formerly a very great place but brought to decay by Incursions of the Scotts who burned it down ~~3ce~~ \ 2.[340] / And as to its Government, that it was governed by a Maior \ & Aldermen / when London was under the Jurisdiction of a Balive.

---

[334] 'William, King of the Scots, completely destroyed this town.' This margin text is in Machell's hand.
[335] Marked on the reverse (I.284), 'For Mr Thomas Machell Fellow of Queens College Oxon. Post p[ai]d to London Appleby 3d.' Machell used this letter-cover to make rough notes on burgages.
[336] Thomas Barlow was born at Long-Gill, Orton, in 1608/9; he attended Appleby Grammar School before matriculating at Queen's College, Oxford, as a servitor in 1625; he became bishop of Lincoln in 1675: J. Spurr, 'Barlow, Thomas (1608/9–1691), bishop of Lincoln'. ODNB. According to John Curwen, Barlow gave the school £100 in books and £100 in money': John F Curwen, 'Parishes (East Ward): St Lawrence, Appleby', in The Later Records Relating to North Westmorland Or the Barony of Appleby, CWAAS Record Series 8 (Kendal, 1932), 45-72.
[337] A search for 'Norleach' found various Oxford graduates named 'Norleigh' but no actual 'Norleach'.
[338] 'For that time.'
[339] The page has perished here; a whole line appears to be missing.
[340] The correction is in different ink and possibly in a different hand.

[I.291]

{Sessions of Assises} to be holden at Appleby.
Touching the difference betwixt Appleby and Kendal about Quarter Sessions, viz. in which place they ought to be kept, 1675*.

[§1.] I doe not certainly know \ know not anything / whence Quarter Sessions should take their measures (as to the place where they are to be kept {because in this pointe the Act is silent} except from the Generall Sessions of Assise & custome of the countrey. \ If it be so as to the former / there is an Act of Parliament (Anno 6^0 Richard 2nd [1382-83]) which confirmes the Assises to the County-Towne in every Shire & expresseth those to be County-Townes where the County Courts are & have bin kept; upon which statute it was particularly inacted (anno 14^0 Henry 6 [1435-36] \ Cap.30 /) that the Assises for Cumberland should be holden in time of Peace & of Truce in the City of Carlile and none other place in the county of Cumberland as had bin accustomed of old;[341] which is noe new Grant but a confirmation of the former to that place in particular, which before was comprised in the Generall Act \ occasioned (as it should seeme) from som other towne / usurping their priviledge†.
And that:
§2. Appleby (is now \ the County Towne of Westm'land / which no man will question & \ neither is it to be douted that it was so of old. Westm'land has bin of old the County Towne; for in John Bromptons Cronicle (who writ before the Conquest) the whole county tooke name from it & was called Applebyshire; as Cumberland likewise was called Carluel-Shire‡.[342] And as for Session Assises it planely appeares that – as now – so also of old they were held at Appleby; of which I can produce several instances in Edward the 1st time & before dateing was used.
For first it appears out of a writeing sans date penes Mr Blenkinsop, that Ranulphus de Langheton with Alicia his wife who was daughter & heir of Thomas↓ son of Patricius {see Culwens pedigree de Workinton in Cumberland} had suite of clame Coram Justitiarijs Domini Regis Apud Appleby with Thomas de Hellebeck, which they released to Thomas & his heires. His testibus Domino Willielmo de Bampton tunc vicomite Westmarie, Domino Roberto de Askeby, Domino Johanne de Morevile, Domino Richardo de Sulleby, Thoma de Musgrau‖ tunc Senescallo Westmarie, Willielmo de Warthecop, Johanne de Burton, Hugo Carpenter, Richardo fillio Beatrice, Willielmo de Sowreby & alijs. (This may be seen amongst Mr Blenkinsops writeings s.d.)¶.

§3. e allso I finde in the 4th of King John [1202-03], an[343]

[Machell's Notes: I.291]
*{Memorandum: I sent this in better order to Sir P.M. & ordered it to be registered att Appleby where it may be seen. Memorandum: to give Sir Phillip & Uncle Thwaites notice of the Act Repld.}
†{Master of Rolls in Bucks doe it: inform[an]t. J. Machel de Wendover; this note aded since. Addition to this out of my collection MS VI sub tit brevia Regis 4. Ed. 3. [1330-31] No. 56, Kendal. \ Ordinatio facta per regem et concilium suum Anno 9. Edward 1. de Turno vic[ario] ibidem tenendo pro bono pacis ibidem vacanter, to which is annexed, observari non potuit quia adversat Magna Carta.[344]/ {Note that after this it was ordered by Act

[341] MS: 'as had bin used accustomed of old.'
[342] 'John Brompton's Chronicle covers the arrival in England of St Augustine of Canterbury until 1199, together with a collection of Latin versions of the Anglo-Saxon law codes known as the Quadripartitus. The chronicle was once commonly called John Brompton's Chronicle but is often described as 'The Fitzhugh Chronicle', since the arms of William, 4th Lord Fitzhugh (1425-1452), are emblazoned on it, probably to identify him as the first owner. Thereafter it was in the hands of John Brompton (fl. 1436-c.1464), Abbot of Jervaulx, and possibly Richard, Duke of Gloucester (d. 1485). John Leland (d. 1552) seems to have seen the volume in Jervaulx Abbey in the 1530s or early 1540s, but it was recorded by the historian John Bale (1495-1563) as being in the hands of Peter Osborn (d. 1592) Keeper of the Privy Purse to Edward VI. from whom it passed to Matthew Parker (1504-1575) a former master of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.' See https://www.corpus.cam.ac.uk/articles/parker-web.
[343] MS: 'I finde in the 4th ~~yeare~~ of ~~Richard~~ King John an …' Section 3 continues on the next page.
[344] 'Addition to this out of my collection MS VI, subtitled Summary of the 4th year of King Edward III, no. 56 Kendal: Order by King and his council, 9. Ed. I, concerning a sheriff's court to be held there for the sake of peace there – but needlessly; to which is annexed: 'it could not be observed because it was contrary to Magna Carta.'

of Parliament that the judges might sit where they pleasd, being imposed upon by towns. And now their servants are bribed.}
‡{And take in here §3 &c.}
‖{May be for Idonea de Veteripont or Lab [urne]. Speed].}
¶{§4. must follow here.}
{At a confirmation of Meburne to Shap Abby by King Edward 1, anno ejus 22 [1293-94], inter alias is witnesse Thoma filio Johannis tunc Vicecomite de Appleby. MS Part V. p. 13. This I sent not but it either shows that Westmorland did yet retane the […]}[345]

[I.292]

~~But~~ \ §3. / There happened some differences in Henry the 3rds time betwixt Robert de Veteriponte Lord of the Honour of Appleby & Barron of Westm'land & William de Lancaster Baron of Kendall (who it seems by being Lord of another, and, as he ~~thought~~ \ judged / district Barony, thought him selfe exempt from doeing suite ~~& service~~ in the court of Appleby). But a finall aggreement was made betwixt them (dat apud Appleby in Quindenis Sancti Hillarij Anno Regni Regis Henrici fil Regis Johannis XI0) [1227][346] wherein the said William de Lancaster, Baron of Kendall, was obliged and bounde to doe suite in the County Court of Robert de Veteripont, by himselfe or his Stuart.[347] This is to be seen in the Countiss of Penbrooke Booke of Evidences (vide Robert de Veteripont), & in the aggrement there is mention made of Richard Ducket, one of the Justices (the highest evidence that I have met with concerning that family in the county of Westmorland for their pedigree sayes that Richard Ducket who lived in the reign of Richard the 2nd & marryed Margerie daughter & heir of Sir William Winsore of Grarig was the first who settled himself in Westm'land).

§4. Att Appleby also the Assises were kept about St Lucies Day, Anno 7^0 Edward II [13 December 1313]. John de Valibus, William de Saham, John de Methringham & Mr Thomas de Sudington Itinerant Justices. And it seems to me (before this of 6^0 Johannis [1204-05]) that the Barrons of Exchequer had either detained or required somthing from Lord Robert de Veteripont in reference to Kendal (which probably was in the Kings hand then by reason of the nonage of Helwisia, daughter & heir of William, son of Gilbert de Lancaster, lineally discended from Ivo de Talboys Earle of Anjou, to whom William the Conqueror gave that Barony) as not conteined in the first general gifte of the Barony of Westmorland.

{Whereupon King John takeing the matter into consideration isued out this special Mandamus:
Rex Baronibus de Scaccario &c. Sciatis quod dedimus delecto et fideli nostro* de Veteriponte Westm'land ad se sustentandum in servitio nostro: et ideo vobis mandamus quod nihil ab eo exinde exigatis, de preterito tempore nec de futuro. Teste G. filio Petri &c. – apud London xiiij Aprilis.}[348]

[Machell's Notes: I.292)
*(Mr Petty renders fidelita[tem] subj[ectam.)

[I.293]

Assises to be holden Appleby
Sec. 1. Reass MS V. in folio p.69 m[emorandum] calld to be added

§4. Likewise in the 20 of Edward [1291-92] 1 halfe Kirkby Stephan was pleaded to be part of the manner of Appleby \ before the Kings Justices sitting there / in a reply in answer to a plea of Devo\r/gill wife to John Baliol; Mergery de Ferrax, Countiss of Derby; Ellen, wife of Allen de la [345] The next line of text is obscured by the binding.

[346] 'Dated at Appleby in the fifteen days of St Hilary in the 11th year of King Henry son of King John' [1226-27].
[347] Stuart = Steward.
[348] 'The King to his Barons concerning the Treasury etc. Know ye that we have given to our beloved and loyal Robert de Veteriponte the land of Westmorland for his maintenance in our service. And therefore, we command you that you exact nothing thence from him. Neither from time past nor in the future. Witness: G. son of Peter etc. At London 14 April.'

Zouch; Elizabeth, wife of Alexander Comyn, Earle of Browham, who were sisters of Thomas, son & heire of Alane, son & heir of Ellen, sister & heire of William, son & heire of Richard, brother & heire of Hugh, who they say was seised thereof in his demaine as of fee & by right, in the time of peace in the reigne of King Henry: great-grandfather of King Edward the 1st. To which it was replyed, that it was held by a grant from King John: This is in the Countisse Booke of Evidences, or else amongst Mr Blenkinsops writeings.

§5. Allso: mention of the Assises kept att Appleby 28 of Edward 1 [1299-1300] in membranula de Slegil penes Mr Blenkinsop.[349] This I have observed from Antiquitye: yett it make noe question \ is not to be doubted / but the 'Sises were sometimes removed from Appleby when the towne lay waste or desolate by war or pestilence. {è. Blenkinsop ut puto} Soe (in the 23. of Edward 1. [1294-95]) {query} the Assises were kept at Emotte Bridge. {Query} And the market itself in 1598 was removed to Gilshaughlin but returned agane when the Plague was over; as appears from a stone sett up by Reginald Bainbridge then schoolmaster of Appleby*. \ And tho for that time they were kept {at Emote, I finde them agane att Appleby 29. of Ed. 3d [1355-56]} / But I never red nor heard of the Sessions off Assise being holden att Kendall excepting once (in their owne memory) through a distrainst which my Lord Clifford had taken against Appleby† & that was more than he could justifie so that they (as appeares by the Act mentioned in the beginning of this paper)}‡. So that the next year, & ever since, they \ were & / have bin constantly \ still / kept att Appleby⸸. And I thinke you have custome to plead on your sides for the Quarter Sessions also, which were never att Kendall (that I could hear of) except by adjournment from the Towne of Appleby‖.

[Machell's Notes: I.293]

*In 1598, 128 dyed of the visitation[350] in the B[orough] of Appelby, twixt August 1t & March 25 & Lordship of Scattergate, Colby, Colby Leathes. \ è Registri Appelby ab 1582; per W.S. /[351]

†Leon[ard] Smith says so.

‡{But see an Act repealing the former General Act.}

⸸{There is an Act since which impowers the Judges. See it referd to in the great Statute Booke. This since added.}

‖{I have [thought] on the like occasion they might be at Kendal.}[352]

[I.285]

Of the Ancient Corporation of Appleby in Westmorland [353]

{Antiq. of Apalby}

Appleby (anciently Aballaba) was a Citty in the time the Romans, & the chiefe Towne in Westm'land (as it ~~remains~~ \ continues {to this day} still) att & before the Norman Conquest; insomuch that the county tooke name from it & was sometimes called the County of Appileby.

It is traditionally reported concerning this place, that it was under the jurisdiction of a major, when London was only governed by a Bailiffe: which how true it is I shall not ~~concerne myselfe~~ \ dispute / but the beginning of the majoralty of London (formerly governed by a Portgrieve)[354] is commonly reccond from the first year of Richard the First [1189-90]. And Appleby had a charter ~~from~~ \ granted by King / Henry the First (who was son to the Conqueror) of very great priviledges[355] confirmed by King John & all the Kings of England successively. It continued a place of great account till 1176 (the

[349] 'In a Slegil parchment in the custody of Mr Blenkinsop.'

[350] Visitation of the plague.

[351] MS.3.55 contains the same information.

[352] The MS here contains a memorandum relating to other concerns, Viz. 'Mem[orandum] Dug[dale] say Ing & chaple. Horse Shap.'

[353] The narrative is a transcription of part of a paper given by John Blome c. June 1675, though not in Blome's hand (see Blome's letter, MS. I.297). Neither is it obviously Machell's but when the original narrative stops mid-sentence, it becomes part of Machell's own transcription, which begins on I.285. The margin comments and corrections throughout are Machell's.

[354] Portgerefa/portreeve: originally, the governor or chief officer of a town or borough, after the Norman Conquest, a person equivalent in rank and office to a town mayor. Also, an officer subordinate to a mayor; a bailiff. OED.

[355] 'Of very great priviledges' has been circled.

22 of Henry 2) att which time it was utterly destroyed by incursion of the Scotts under William their king, as appears from a stone in the scho\o/le garden house.[356] And it should seem then that in regard of its loyalty & sufferings this King took \ som / compassion upon it, & (in all probability) builded* their church dedicate to St Lawrence.

[Coat of Arms]
Gules 3 passant Lions gardant in pale crowned Or: a salamander within a coronett, a dragon Gules: nec ferro nec igni fuimus.[357]

{Its common seale}
And for their armes gave them his owne ~~coate~~ with an honorary distinction, for their common seal is 3 crowned lyons passant gardant in pale with this inscription: SIGILLUM: COMMVNITATIS: BURGII: DE: APPILBY.[358] And on the reverse St Lawrence on the gridiron, kept down by force & burning in the flames; from which ariseth a flag or standard with 3 lyons (as before) and this device: HIC: IACAT: LAVRENTIVS: IN: CRATICVLA: POSITVS,[359] to show it resist'd even unto fire. Now this King Henry the 2. was the first (as all antiquaries aggree) who bare for his Arms 3 lyons†. & therefore it must needs \ be looked upon as a very / ~~fine~~ great honour to the place & an undoubted signe ~~or token~~ of its \ great / loyalty (a quality for which it now is & ever was famous) that he should signalise it with his owne Coat distinguished only by an honourable accession of 3 crowns.[360] And tho Mr Cambden (whose footesteps Speed followes.)[361]

[Machell's Notes: I.285 & I.286][362]

[I.285]
*{Re-Builded: false in Guillim.}
[I.286]
Mr R. N. layd out for Guill[im] Display of Heraldry: 2 li 15s 0d. & is to pay when he receives the \ 2 / volumes, 2 li 5s more.[363]
{Price of Printing} The printing of the 2 papers comes to 40s.
J. Fetherston att the Lyon in Egham next doore to the Rose? The 2nd of the left hand as you goe into Egham.
†The armes being 3 lyons has respect to their courage & loyalty. The reverse onely to the Saint of the church whose name it beareth.

[I.287]
This is a transcript of Mr Bloomes Paper, taken 19. 8th. 1675, but the \ original / was made 2 monets before.[364]

---

[356] An addition caret is placed here, but no insertion made.
[357] 'nec ferro nec igni fuimus': 'We were vanquished neither by iron nor by flame.' Iron has a significance here because of the iron on which the patron saint was tortured to death. Usually, the phrase is translated as 'neither by the sword nor by flame'.
[358] Seal of the community of the town of Appleby.
[359] 'Craticula': 'grid-iron'. 'Here lies St Laurence placed on a grid-iron.'
[360] The same information occurs on MS.I.287-288. Viz.'{! The common seale} and for their Armes gave them his owne ~~Coate~~ with an honorary ~~distinction~~ \ accession of ~~added unto it~~ 3 crowns or coronets / for their comon seale is 3 crown'd lyons passant gardant in pale, with this inscription: Sigillum Communitatis Burgii de Apilby. And on the reverse, St Lawrence of the gridiron kept down by force & burning in the flames from which [blank] arriseth a flag or standard, with 3 lyons as before, on the device this: hic jacet Lawrentius in Craticua positus ~~show it resisted even unto fire~~ (to which the whole atchievement ~~doth very much~~ allude ~~as tis~~ born ~~att this day~~) Now this ~~King~~ Henry 2nd was the first king as att \ most / antiquaries aggre, who bare for his Arms III Lyons & ergo it must needs be \ looked upon as / very great honour unto that place; and ~~undoubted~~ \ a certane / signe or ~~token of~~ its ~~loyalty~~ \ fidelity / (a quality for which it now is and ever was famouse) that he should signallise it with his owne ~~Coate~~ \ armes /distinguished only by an honourable ~~addition~~ \ accession /of 3 crownes \ or coronets. /'
[361] This particular narrative stops here; MS.I.287 repeats it, and MS.I.288 continues it.
[362] These notes (on the reverse of I.285) refer to Blome's Paper (I.287), plus book-buying and printing costs.
[363] John Guillim (c. 1565-7 May 1621) was an antiquarian and officer of arms at the College of Arms in London. He is best remembered for his monumental work on heraldry, A Display of Heraldry, first published in London in 1610.
[364] Written in Machell's hand.

Of the Ancient Corporation of Appleby in Westmorland {! called the Hon[our] of Appleby}
Their Arm's are Gules, 3 crown'd lyons passant gardant Or; the crest in a coronett: a salamander proper; the ~~supporters~~: 2 draggons Gules; the motto: nec ferro nec igni.
{D. Mr Th[365] x The Honour of Appleby in carta 1^0 Johannis Concessa Robert de Veteriponte.}

Appleby (anciently Abalaba) was a city in the time of the Romans* and the chiefe towne in Westm'land (as it still remaineth) att & before the Norman Conquest in so much that the county tooke name from it & was sometimes called the County of Appilby†. It is traditionally reported concerning this place that it was under the jurisdiction of a maior when London was only governed by a Baliffe, which how true it is I shall not determin, but the begining of the maioralty of London (formerly governed by a portgrave), is commonly only reckoned from the 1st ~~year~~ of \ King / Richard the 1. [1189-90]. And Appleby had a charter from King Henry 1‡ (who was sonne to the Conqueror) of very great priviledges confirmd by King John, as is yet to be seen, & all the Kings of England successively: And this seemes to give credit to ancient tradition concerning Appleby, that Yorkes first charter ~~that~~ was granted unto them the same day with Appleby, but Yorkes in the fore noone, Applebys in the after noone. And as for Yorke (I have this account out of an old Visitation⸸ penes Viduam Smith prope ecclesis St Dustani in Fleet street, London.)[366] ? Henry 2. in his charter confirmeth all former grants made to that ~~place~~ city as well in the time of King Henry 1 that was son to William the Conqueror, as all the time before. It continued a place of great account till 1176 (the 22 of Henry 2d) att which time it was utterly destroyed by the incursion of the Scotts under William their King, as appears from a ston in the schoole garden-house. And it should seem then, in Richard, of its loyalty and sufferings this king tooke compassion upon it and (in all probability) \ re / builded their church dedicated to St Lawrence.

[Machell's Notes: I.287]
*Stephanus è libro Provinciarum. Urbes: Britanniae Insulae)[367]
†{è carta penes Thomas Sandford de Askam Armig. et Antiquis quibusdam monachorum libris sc. Brompton.}[368]
‡Sic, Joh Thw. Armiger; nunc prætor ejusdem et confirmatur e libro MS penes commitassam apud Appleby.[369]
⸸ Memorandum: to consult whether it was not in Flow[er's] Visitation de Mr Campion.[370] {Or a Visitation in 1634.}

[I.288]

And tho Mr Camden (whose footsteps Speed followeth)* tells us out of William of Newburg[h] that William King of Scotts tooke this place (and Brough) by a sudden surprise, a little before he himself was taken prisoner att Alnwick in \ the County of / Northumberland, which is very true;[371] yett they are all mistaken in this, that these 2 places were not recovered till King Johns time. For 'tis certain the Scotts (after the Country had got themselves into ~~an~~ \ battle / array) were beaten back & their king taken prisoner; and 'tis ~~certane allso~~ \ as certane / that tho King John ~~did~~ bestowed them \ the foresed / \ Sc. the castles / on Robert de Veteripont for his good service {wherein he calls it the Honour of Appleby}, yett he recovered them not from the Scotts (~~for~~ \ but / they came into his hands) propter transgressionem factam per Hugonem de Morevillâ (by reason of the forfaiture of Hugh de Morvil, a great man in those parts, and the same ~~if I mistake not~~ \ if I be not much mistaken / that \ who / killed

[365] John Thwaites, Mayor of Appleby, 1674: http://www.applebytown.org.uk/
[366] 'Papers of Widow Smith: near the church of St Dunstan, Fleet Street, London.'
[367] Stephanus of Byzantium, de Urbibus (6th century; 1st published, Venice, 1502).
[368] 'From a charter in the possession of Sir Thomas Sandford of Askham, as from certain ancient monastic books.'
[369] 'Thus, John Thwaites [?] now mayor of the same [Appleby] and it is confirmed from a manuscript book in the possession of the Countess Clifford at Appleby.'
[370] William Flower was an Officer of Arms in the reigns of Henry VIII, Edward VI, Mary I and Elizabeth I. He rose to the rank of Norroy King of Arms in 1562, and served until his death in 1588. See J. Day, 'Flower, William (1497/8-1588), herald'. ODNB.
[371] See Camden, Britannia, tr. Holland (1637), 761. William the Lion, King of Scotland, was captured at Alnwick in 1174, after invading England and laying waste to the north. See also, David A. Carpenter, The Struggle for Mastery: Britain, 1066-1284, (Oxford, 2003), 225.

Thomas a Beckett), as was given in upon Inquisition† taken att Yorke, Die Iovis proximo post mediam quadragessimæ, anno Regni Regis Eduardi 3^{0}.[372] And notwithstanding this fatall overthrow

[Machell's Notes: I.288]

*{Speed sayes som thinke Richard the 1st after he came from the Holy War.}[373]
†{occurit in castra de Scipton in Co. Ebor.}[374]

[I.289]

So much of the towne ~~was~~ \ did still / continued until the time ~~reigne~~ of King Richard the Second (who began \ his reign / in 1377) that it payd to the ~~king~~ \ Crown / in fee farme rent XX markes per ~~annum~~ yearly att 2d a burgage, which amounts to 2200 burgages, besides other houses. But in 1388 die Martis in Festo St^{i} Stephani Martyris[375] (which was about the XI \ year of the reigne /of Richard 2 [1382]) it was burnd by the Scotts* & so dismally wasted that (upon severall inquisitions found & returned) there remained only of that rent to the king ii marks per annum[376] so that 9 parts in 10 were utterly destroy'd.

But notwithstanding this great devastation that was never repared \ to this day / it doth still retaine its ancient priviledges which are ~~in every respect~~ \ still / the same with \ city of / Yorke, as appears from the ~~confrtion~~ \ Charter of King / Henry 3† in whose time here was an Exchequer \ kept / ~~commonly~~ called \ by the name of / Scaccarium de Appilby‡.[377]

And King Johns charter (which I have seene) wherein is expressed and firmely commanded that "The Burgers of Appilby shall have & enjoy all the libertys & free customes which his Burgers of Yorke have, well & peaceably, freely & quietly, fully, wholly & honourably" (with a prohibition that none shall attempt to disturb them thereof) & allso that they shall be free from toll stallage, pontage & lestage, all England over, praeterquam in civitate London,[378] which exception doth ~~very much~~ \ highly / confirme & strethen their priviledges ~~to them.~~.

{The present state of Apalby}

The Corporation consists att present of a Maior and 2 Balives; a Court of Aldermen: XII in number; a Recorder; Common-Councill \ with a sword bearer / & Sergiant att Mace ~~with~~ & other \ officers / attendants. And if the Towne were able to bear it, might be in omnibus sicut Eboracum:[379] excercising the same priviledges which the city of Yorke [has] in everything according to Charter,[380] & if any would know what these priviledges are more particularly I refer him to Yorke where he may possibly mete

[Machell's Notes: I.289]

*{penes Joh. Thw. majorem de Appleby}
†{charteri penes major}[381]

---

[372] 'Taken at York on the Thursday next after the middle of the forty days [of Lent] in the third year of the reign of King Edward.'
[373] 'Some think Richard 1 [granted these arms of three lions] after he came from the Holy War.' This sentence appears at the beginning of MS.I.288.
[374] 'It is housed in Skipton Castle, County of York.'
[375] 'On the feast-day of St Stephen the Martyr, 26 December.'
[376] MS: 'It was (b) ~~burn'd downe &~~ \ burnd by the Scotts & so dismally /wasted ~~by the Scotts~~ \ ~~wasted~~ / ~~that of~~ that ~~rent~~ (upon severall inquisitions found & returned) there remained \ only of that rent / to the king ~~only~~ ii marks per annum.'
[377] The Latin word 'scaccarium' means 'chessboard'. A chequered cloth covering a table was used for making up and marking the King's accounts, using counters. Thus, the Court of Exchequer, or Curia Scaccarii, derived its name: Black's Law Dictionary Online.
[378] 'Except in the city of London.'
[379] 'In all matters, just like York.'
[380] MS: 'And if the towne were able to bear it, might ~~take the services~~ \ be in omnibiis sicut Eborum excer. the same / priviledges, which the city of Yorke in everything, according to ~~their~~ charter, ~~which has bin confirm'd by all the succeeding kings of England~~.'
[381] 'Charter in the custody of the mayor.'

‡Sc. anno 35 of Henry 3 ut è chartis et MS penes commitissam cum apud Appleby castrum.}[382]
⸸{And pursuant to this I have an account of a tried case with Egemont: see my Cartae Antiquae}[383]
Query, annon thereto: if Yorke injoy any such priviledges.

[I.290]

with \ more / satisfaction. In the mean time take these, which ~~are now~~ \ follow and are at this time / in practise att Appleby. viz.:
They have power to arrest for any summe without limitation.
To elect & send II burgesses to Parliament.
To acknowledge Statute Merchant before the Maior.
To take Toll both in fairs & marketts.
To sease fellons goods, felones de se, waifs, strayes, forfaitures & escheats; all which do belong to the Maior for the time being, who takes place of the Judges of Assise as the Lord Maior of Yorke is wont to doe.
Their Aldermen are som of them Gentlemen of the Country for the greater & honour & credit of the Towne; who in time of their maioralty have their proprætors or deputyes there.

The present Major & Aldermen are these:
John Thwaites Esq., now Maior of Appleby
1. Lancelott Machell of Crakenthorp Esq., who was the first Maior after the Kings returne, & tore in pieces Olivers Charter in open court before he would accept of that office which he had declyn'd all Olivers time.
2. Richard Brathwate of Warcop Esq. & Justice of Peace, who contended with the Judges & tooke place of them, virtute chartæ.[384]
3. Robert Hilton of Morton[385] Esq., Justice of Peace.
4. Edward Musgrave of Askby Esq., Justice of Peace.
5. Thomas Warcop of Colby, Gentleman.
6. John Routledge of [blank], Gentleman.
7. Alderman Smyth, Senior }
8. Alderman Smyth, Junior }
9. Alderman Harrison } {All of Appleby}
10. Alderman Lowson }
11. Alderman Robinson }
12. Alderman Atkinson }

Appleby was very eminent for its loyalty in the late Civil Warrs, and most of the Aldermen (excepting those whome Oliver Cromwell obtruded upon them) suffered many imprisonments dureing his tyrannie, & so likewise did most of the gentry round about; for it is the glorie of the County of Westm'land that there was not one person of quality in it* who tooke up Arms against his King and Country: 2 or 3 […].[386]

[Machell's Notes: I.290]

*{Against the King} {Lord Wharton, Sir Henry Bellingham, Con[el] Crackenthorp.}[387]

[I.204-205]

[Appleby Corporation
1. Loyal Address to Charles II made July 1681
2. to James II, made amid dispute, May 1688)]

[382] 'See the charters and manuscript in the custody of the Countess of Cumberland [Lady Anne Clifford] at Appleby Castle.'
[383] 'See my ancient Charters'.
[384] 'By virtue of the charter.'
[385] Murton.
[386] Text here has perished.
[387] 'Colonel': see I.276 A-B.

[1A.] [Draft text of Appleby Corporation's Loyal Address to Charles II, 1681][388]

[I.206]

[1B.] Address to King Charles 2 [July 1681]

[I.204-05]

To the Kings most excellent Majesty
We your Majesties most loyal and obedient subjects, the Mayor. (Baillives) Aldermen, Common Council, and Commonalty of your ancient Corporation and Borough of Appleby in the County of Westmorland (never yet tainted with the least disloyalty; being very well satisfied with your Majesty's reasons for dissolving your two last Parliaments)* do hold ourselves bound in duty and allegiance to present Your Majesty with our most humble thanks for your most endearing and gracious promises renewed unto your people in your late Declaration, that it is in your Royal resolution to have frequent Parliaments, and that you will use your utmost endeavours to extirpate Popery, to redress all the grievances of your loyal Subjects, and in all things to govern according to the Statutes and Laws of this Kingdom.
For which your Majesty's most princely assurance we do think ourselves bound in all the ties of duty and gratitude humbly to tender at your Majesty's feet our lives and fortunes in defence of Your Majestys most sacred Person, Crown and Dignity, against all your enemies which do or shall endeavour to subvert the established government, and the Religion of the Church of England, the most Apost[ol]ical in all the world, which your Majesty has so long piously and carefully preserved, now declared your gracious resolution of defending the same, as it is established by the Laws of this Nation.
We therefore most humbly beg of Your Majesty that you would vouchsafe a gracious acceptance of this our most humble and sincere acknowledgement, and this voluntary offering of our unfeigned[389] affection and loyalty, humbly beseeching Almighty God that He would be pleased to continue His blessings and mercies to you, and not only give the head of Solomon but the sword of Gideon, that you may ever be victorious over this and your enemies, and that {sceptre of these Kingdoms of Your Majesty may for ever be swayed by Your Sacred Majesty and lawful successors, which is the hearty prayer of Your Majesty's most dutiful and obedient Subjects.}

[Machell's Note: I.204]
*This [that is, the text in round brackets] not inserted.

[I.203A]

[1C.] [Machell's letter criticising a draft of the Loyal Address to Charles II, 1681][390]

{Dear Uncle I had no more paper but I hope you will accept this private token of my […] to you if in town.}[391]
Sir,
Whosoever undertook to correct your coppy has not made it much better, for that clause which is added in the end of it (to omit the misspelling of the word scepter, which you had writt right but two lines before) is too formall to be sent to the king from so many wise heades as may be supposed in the Corporation; for you may observe that it is taken out of the forme of prayer used by most ministers before sermon.
Consider too if the \ wholl / whorld were not better than the Christian world? And if it were not proper in this Adress to the King, to put in the Baliffs after the Maior & ~~before the~~ Aldermen? For how little soever they be now sett by, they were formerly provosts and of great account, answering (I conceive)

[388] This is a copy in Machell's hand. It begins as a fair copy but deteriorates into his usual script. From the alterations and the correspondence below, it is clear that Machell was involved in the drafting of the 'Loyal Address'. Michael Mullett considers that 'ardent Anglicanism characterised Appleby's Corporation in 1681', creating fertile ground for an emerging alliance between the Church of England and Toryism. Mullett sees the Loyal Address here as the work of Hugh and Thomas Machell, and bishop of Carlisle, Thomas Smith. See Mullett Patronage, Power and Politics in Appleby…1649-1689, 84.
[389] MS: 'unfain~~d~~ed'
[390] The reverse [I.203B] contains the heading, 'These for Mr Thwaites att Apelby'.
[391] This scribbled note (placed at the top of the letter) is badly blotted.

to the sheriffs of Cityes. Allso before Burrows whether Corporation may not be inserted? Burn this paper & use your own judgement & discretion in its value.

[I.227]

[3.] [Appleby Corporation's Dispute with James II]

King James 2.
Isueing out a Quo Warranto[392] against the town of Apelby amongst other Corporations: they not wiling to dispute a title with the King (tho they had received their charter from himself \ but / two years afore when they resigned their old charters to him) resolved with themselves to returne him it agane in the latter end of May 1688 and accordingly sent it with a resignation upon Whit Munday in the said year,[393] to be delivered by Mr Master Musgrave, then maior of the town.[394]

[I.207]

The Appleby Election, 1679[395]

{ad Burg de Appelby}
The Great Canvas at Apelby for Burgesses – twix Mr Jo. Tufton & Sir Jo. Lowther[396]

These 10 pages following conteine an account of the management of the Burgess of Apelby in the canvas twixt Tufton & Lowther which they had for electing Burgesses to serve in Parliament about 1678 de anno, querie, being the original papers.[397]
The Honorable John Tufton \ Esq. / would have had 2 Tuftons. Sir John Lowther opposed it and tryed for one Burgess and carried it by the falsefying of one Henry Whinfell of Battlebergh who had promissed his vote for 2 Tuftons; & when that whole street was so divided that they stood in an equall ballance & Henry Whinfells was the casting vote which should carry them all, he ~~voted~~ gave it for Lowther, which quite broke the neck of that canvas.
From hence may be extracted an account of the state of that Corporation & ancient Burrow at the time of this election; what Burgers there were; what fee farme was payed; who had an undoubted right to vote; who had not; and whose right was disputed.

[I.208][398]

[Key]

Qu.	Query
R.	Reason of the query
T.	Tufton
L.	Lowther

[392] 'By what authority' [do you hold these rights]?
[393] 4 June.
[394] This event took place during the political and religious difficulties of the last year of the reign of James II, when James sought to ensure that Catholics and Dissenters were represented in town corporations. The paragraph here refers to Appleby Corporation's written response under the common seal, dated 4 June 1688, to a writ of quo warranto in which the Corporation surrendered its charter again, asking only that the existing corporate body should remain in office. Confusion reigned after James II reversed his policies and it was found that neither of Appleby's surrenders of charter (1685 and 1688) had been properly registered. For Appleby Corporation at the end of James II's reign, see Mullett, Patronage, Power and Politics in Appleby…1649-1689, 102-04.
[395] This whole section should be read in tandem with Michael Mullett's chapter on 'Appleby Parliamentary elections 1679-81', in *Patronage, Power and Politics in Appleby…1649-16*89, 77-81.
[396] This is the only text written on MS I.226; it has been utilised as a title.
[397] This election took place in early 1679. Appleby returned two members to parliament. When Sir John Lowther III understood that the Tuftons planned to put up both Members, his response was, 'I do all I can to hinder that'. The Tufton candidate was Richard Tufton, the Lowther candidate was Anthony Lowther: https://www.historyofparliamentonline.org/volume/1660-1690/constituencies/appleby.
[398] The following reads like a poll book.

The Names of the Streetes

Howgate
Howgate Foote
Battlebergh
Brig Street
Burrowgate or High Street
Downgate or Low Street
Skattergate
High Crossor}
Shaw-Wiend}
Midle-Wiende or Nansons W.
Low Cross Wiend or School Winde
School Lane
To Cald Kell
Bondgate and therein

[I.209]

2

Skattergaite

John Bainbrigg L
Lancelot Robinson L Q.
Edw. Wilson L
Edw. Richardson L
William Wilson L
Richard Linge L Q.
Tho: Calvert L
William Murton L
{Query}[399] John Waugh O
{Query} Tho: Richardson T

Appleby

Christo. Blenkarne L
Willim Johnson L
Tho: Stewardson T
Mr Robinson L
Jo. Blenkarne T
Willim Richardson T
Robt Dover L
Mr Robt Harrison T/L[?]
George Dent L
Jo: Nevinson L
Robt Yoward L
John Mounsey L
Tho: Richardson L
Hugh Harryson L
Q. Jo. Todd O
John Nanson T
Q. Harbert Salkeld T
Tho: Warriner L
John Richardson L
Q. Willim Bolton T
Charles Boulton L
Daniell Bainbrigg L
Q. Henry Richardson L
Willim Mounsey L
Tho: Warriner L
John Darby T
Mr Thwaites L
Michaell Ogton L
Mich. Atkinson T
Willim Guy L
Mr Major T
William Huthart L
Q. Edw: Guy ~~L~~ T
Tho: Harryson L
Tho: Milner T
Joseph Dent L
Jo: Porter L
Q. Jo: Blaimire Junior & Senior 2
Willim Smith T
Jo: Armestronge T
Tho: Browne T
Henry Sanderson T
Edmund Lowson T
Christofer Jakes L
John Linge L
Leo: Smith L Query

Batle Burrough

Philip Maichell T
Jo: Cheise
Jo: Raisbeck
Henry Whinfeild
Q. Cleme[n]t Moresby
Mr Lowson
Q. Tho: Hilton
Leo: Emerson
Richard Lambe

[399] Some numbers in the margin are obscured by the binding.

Jo: Maichell
Robt Dunn

{Master, Usher, Vicar}
Memorandum: Miners [blank] Aldermen [blank]
Husband & relicts. H[ono]rable John Tufton Esq.

[I.211]

3

Tufton

Mr Maior
Edw: Guy
Tho: Miller
Willim Smith
Jo. Armestrong
Tho: Browne
Henry Sanderson
Edm: Lowson
Tho: Stewardson
Jo: Blenkarne
Willim Richardson

Hugh Sympson Query
Jo: Blaymire senior) Query Jo: Blaymire junior) Query
Jo: Nanson
Herbert Salkeld Query
Jo: Darby
\ Wm Bolton /
Mr Burhannan, Mr Usher
Mr Jackson
Michael Atkinson

Burertaine

Mr Thomas Hilton X
Michael Oggden
Jo: Bainbrigg
Jo: Warkeman

Jo: Tall
Jo: Rose
Robt Smith

Battleburro

Mr Jo: Lowson
Mr Phillip Machell
Mr Robt Machell. Query.
Mr Jo: Machell

Richard Lambe
Clem: Morressby. Query. X

Jo: Tufton Esq.
James Bellingham Esq.
Lanc: Machell Esq.

Scattergait

Willim Wilson X
Tho: Richardson
Jo: Waugh Query X

Lowther

Mr Jo: Thwaites
Willim Guy
Tho: Warriner
Willm Mounsey.)
Hen. Richardson.) Queries
Dan. Bainbrigg)
Charles Bolton)

Battleburrow

John Cheesebrough)
Jo: Raisebeck)

Henry Whinfell) Not Sure
Leo: Emerson)

Scattergait

William Murton
Tho: Calvert
Rich.: Lynge Query
Willin Wilson
Edw: Wilson
Edw: Richardson
Wm Atkinson
Jo: Jon

[I.212]

A rental with names of Burgesses.[400]

[I.213]

4

Bridg Streat left-hand row: Bridg Streat

1 Chappell 2d)
3 Burgages 6d) Mr Atkinson	T
1 Burgage 2d Will Huddart	L
2 Burgages 4d Edward Guy	T

Burrowgate

1 Burgage of the Chantry 2d John Crow a min[or]	??
1 Burgage in the Chant 2d Peter Rowlandson	ab.
1 Burgage 2 Tho: Harrison	L
1 Burgage 2 John Scot	ab.
1 Burgage 2 The Miller	T
1 Burgage of H. J. Tufton Esq. 2d Joseph Dent	L
{?}1 Burgage of W. Williams 2d John Porter[401]	{?}

1½ Burgages 1d ob, by right of his wife deceased, in tenure of J. Bleamire Elder his son being at age	T
(Here one misplaced: see in Dungate formerly belonging to J. Rose)
1½ Burgages 1d Will Smyth merc[e]r	T
1 Burgage of 2d of the Chantry in the tenure of John Armstrong	T
1 Burgage 2d of \ the Honorable /John Tufton Esq. in the tenure of Tho: Browne	T
1 Burgage 2d of the Chantrey in the tenure of Henry Sanderson	T
{Memorandum Ed. Lowson}
1 Burgage 2d of the Chantrey: Christopher Jakes	L
Burgages of the church 9d Hospitall
Diverse Burgages 14d Leonard Smyth	L
Many Burgages 4s & 8d in the castle parke in the tenure of the Honorable J. Tufton Esq. ab

Down ~~Street~~ Geate

1 Burgage in the Chantry 8 Will Johnson	L

In Shaw Weinde

1 Burgage 2d Christopher Blenkarn	L
1 Burgage 2d Margaret Hodgson ~~by leave~~ of John Warreman of Burrells	T

[400] Upside-down at the base of the otherwise blank I.212.
[401] A line of text below this one has been erased.

1 Burgage 2d The Corner House anciently called Goldring\ton/ Hall in the tenure of Thomas Langton's widow

Down Burrow ~~Street~~ Geate
1 Burgage of Thomas Stuartsons and one of Sir Richard Sandfords
Of both: 3d in the tenure of Thomas Stuartsons T
{0} 3 Burgages 7d Dorathy Smyth
1 Burgage of the Chantrey 2d Thomas Robinson L
1 Burgage 2d John Blenkarn T

[I.214]
1 Burgage. Church land 2d Will Richardson T
Severall Burgages 6d of the Chantrey in the tenure of John Atkinson Esq.: minor
1. Burgage of the Chantrey &
2 of the Honorable J. Tufton Esq. 9d Rob: Dover L
1 Burgage 1: the Baliffs Garth 1 Burgage called Bellmans Garth
1 Burgage Chantrey 2d Robert Harrison L
1 Burgage 2d George Dent L
1 Burgage 2d John Nevinson L
1 Burgage 2d Thomas Carleton 18 aet)
1 Burge 2d in tenura ejusdem[402]) T? a minor

Midle Weende
1 Burgage (the Corner House) 2d Rob: Yaward L
{?} 1 Burgage: the Corner House at the low end of the Midle Weinde 2d Lancelott Robinson T~~?~~ ab[sent]
1 Burgage as also
3 more, belonging to Hugh Symson & {2^{d} ob Rob. Dover, & Mr Hilton the rest /} T?
2 of the Chantrey belonging to Mr Hilton in the tenure (6^{d}) of John Nanson T
1 Burgage 1d John Nanson [Blank]
Severall Burgages,
& one called Barblett Garth 1s in the tenure of Julian Bolton, wife of William B
& late wife of William Warriner, in right of ~~Will~~. Tho. Warriner, her son d'ab \ absent / L

1 Burgage 1d holden by Widow Willson in right of Sam Green æt 18 L Min[or] under the head scholler Sam Greene, 19 ætat. T?
1 Burgage 2 in the tenure of J. Mounsey L
1 Burgage 2d (purchased out of Warriners) J. Richardsons L

{? Down Burrowgate}
{?} 1 Burgage 4d in the tenure of Charles Bolton. L?
Daniel Bainbridge L?
1 Burgage 4 in tenure of Will Mounsey L?
Henry Richardson jure uxoris L?
1 Burgage 4d in tenure of Tho: Warriner L?
John Machell. T? vide alibi[403]
1 Burgage 10d Porch improvement in the market place in the tenure of John Darby
{1 Burgage*: One improvement called Smyths-House (rent 1s) for all
{1 other Burgage: Pitchman Croft
{1 Burgage: church land: Mr J. Thwaites L

[402] 'Under the same tenure'.
[403] 'See elsewhere.'

{This most false & contrary to former rentalls*: J. Thwaites}

Down Gate

1 Burgage of the Chantry John Atkinson Esq, maior	supra
{?} {O} 1 Burgage 2d late of James Thwaites, called Bellmans Garth
1 Burgage 1d Hugh Harrison	L
1 other 1d tenura ejusdem[404]

[I.215]

5

1 Burgage 5d in tenure L Thomas Carleton 19 æt supra
An Improvement \ 4d / in the tenure of Jn Todd	T?
\ Memorandum / One burgage held by John Tod & T. Carleton of Frank Rose	?
1 Burgage 1d ob. of the Corner House formerly belonging to John Rose lately to John B\l/amire, now to Hen: Sanderson	supra
1 Burgage \ 2d / of the Countess of Arundells, now in the tenure of Herbert Salkeld	T
1Burgage 2d in the tenure of Will Bolton	T
1 Burgage 1d at the Wath; Thom: Richardson.	?L
(5 Burgages calld School-house Close
(1 Burgage of the Chantrey
(1 Burgage belonging to Wederall Abbey
(Rent 9d in the tenure Mr Jackson school-master	T?
1 Burgage of the Honorable John
Tufton Esq. called Pear-Tree Garth 1d Mr Jackson the school-master or Mr Usher	T?

Bridge Streat, the other Row

1 Burgage 2d in tenure Michael Ogden	? L
1 Burgage 2d in tenure Michael Atkinson	T
1 Burgage 4d in tenure Hugh Darby	T?
John Hodgson	T?
1 Burgage 1d in tenure Hugh Harrison	supra
1 Burgage 1d in tenure Will Guy	L
1 Burgage 1d in tenure of John Cheesebrough	vide infra

Battleburrough

(1 Burgage: church: land of St Nicholas
(2 Improvements &c.
(1 other improvement lying on the back side
(2 Burgages called the Lady Garth, belonging to the church of St Michael (Rent 2s 1d all in tenure of Mr John Lowson	T
I Burgage 2d late of John Atkinsons now in tenure Clem Moresby	T
1 Burgage & 2 more 6 Mr Hilton	?
(2 Burgages formerly in the tenure of Mary Hutchinson, now of George Hilton (and allso for certain improvements 1s 4
(1 other improvement 2d in tenure Georg: Hilton	supra
1 Burgage chantrey 2d Henry Whinfell	T
2 Burgages of Robert Cheesebrough 3d in tenure John Raisbeck	T
2 Burgages of Miles Hartleyes
Landes 3d John Cheesebrough	T

[I.216]

2 Burgages in the tenure of Barbara Machell
1 Burg ~~both~~ at Howgate Foote (both 8d) in tenure John Machell	T

[404] 'Of the same tenure.'

1 Improvement holdon by the town, ~~now~~ 17d in the tenure of Edm: Lowson T
2 Improvements belonging to the town called the Back House & Barne in the tenure of Clem: Moresby 6[d] supra
1. Burgage Chantrey land 2d in tenure Isab. Hobson
1 Burgage 2d in tenure of Mr George Hilton supra
1 Burgage 3d in tenure Leonard Emmerson T?
1 Burgage 1d \ late / in tenure of Ralph Willson now \ of Robt Machell / {R.M.}
2 Burgages 4d in tenure Edmond Lowson supra

Howgate Foote
1. Burgage of the Lady Arundells belonging to the House of Correction. O 2d? in the tenure of Robert Dunn
(1 Burgage of the Lady Arundells
(1 Burgage of the Countiss of Pembrookes
(1 other Burgage
(1 of the Chantery
(1 of the Church of St Michaells
(4 Burgages more of the Chantery
(2 Burgages at Howgatefoote
0 (1 Burg over against the bridge and called Appletre-Garth: 1s 9 in the tenure of Tho: Lambs wid[ow]
0 1 Burgage at Howgatefoote 2d Tho: Bousfield Absent
1 Burgage at Howgate Foote called St Johns Croft 2d Richard Lamb T
{1 St Johns Croft if a chaple}[405]

Skattergate
1 Burgage (Tansey Garth) 2d Bainbridge L
2 Burgages 3d in tenure Tho: Robinson supra L
2 Burgages 3 in tenure John Darby supra
1 Burgage 3 in tenure Edward Willson L?
1 Burgage 2 in tenure Edw. Ritchinson L
1 Burgage of Miles Hartleyes land and one improvement 3 in tenure Tho: Willson dead. Ed. Willson ut supra
1 Burgage 2d in tenure W. Willson L

[I.217]

6

2 Burgages of John Harrisons 1d in tenure Rich: Ling L
1 Burgage & 1 other call'd Cleasbyes Garth 4d in the tenure of Mr John Thwaites supra
(1 Burgage of the Chantrey; another Burgage &
(1 improvement called the Barne 8d now in the tenure of Tho: Calvert L
Another improvement calld the Work House 2d the said Tho: Calvert supra
(1 Burgage 2d in tenure William Murton L
(1 other in the tenure of the said William
(1 Burgage called the Fidler Garth,
(& one improvement adjoyning 3d to the tenure of John Waugh T
3 Burgages 6d in tenure John Darby supra
(1 improvement of Mr Hiltons
(1 Burgage of Lord Whartons
(1 other of Mr Whartons 6d all in tenure of Tho: Robinson supra
2 Burgages, one of Mr Fallowfieldes
& the other of the chantrey 2d in tenure of Rob: Dover* *supra

[405] Written in pencil in Machell's hand.

1 Burgage of Church land 1d Tho: Carleton supra
1 Burgage 3d Tho: Richardson ~~supra~~ T

{About 157}[406]

[I.219]

7

For the Honorable Mr Tufton[407]

Scattergate
Query: ~~Scattergate~~ \ Will / Willson. R. because a lease only Query: John Waugh – Jo: Warkeman[408]
Tho: Richardson
The Honourable John Tufton Esq.

Burrow Streat & Dungate
Query: Lancelot Machell Esq.
Tho: Stewardson
John Blenkarne
Will Richardson
John Nanson
Herbert Salkeld
Query: Will Bolton. R. in right of his wife – oppose to him Henry Richardson
John Darby
Michael Atkinson
Mr Maior
Edw: Guy
Tho: Milner
John Bleamire Senior ½)
John Bleamire Junior ½) burgge
Will Smyth
John Armstrong
Tho: Browne
Henry Sanderson
Edm. Lowson
Query: John Tod: R. a lease for 99.[409] But enquire of John Nanson for an other Burgage.

Batle-Burrow
Mr Phillip Machell
John Cheesebrooke
John Raisbeck
Hen: Whinfield
Query: Clem: Moresby. R. They say a lease, but he showes a deede.
Mr Lowson
Query: Thomas Hilton. R. a lease (Item for Broade Close).
Leonard Emmerson
Richard Lambe
Mr John Machell
Query: ~~Rob: Dun~~ \ Mr Robert Machell. / R. putt in by the justices at pleasure.
Mr Jackson
Mr Usher

406  added in pencil.
407 MS deleted: '{~~Minors, Aldermen, Bellg. tenement lease~~}'
408 This name is written in a different hand and ink.
409 99 years.

Mr Buchanon – R. A. payes no rent: but his gleab adjoynes to Burgages and that whereon the school-house standes was sold-of by one of the vicars of Appleby.

[I.220]

Minors at yeares of discretion
Bian Darby
Thomas Carleton
~~Sam Greene~~ R. Mr Hilton of Ormside voted under age for knights \ [Blank] Wilson, Mr Jacksons man /
Lancelot Robinson

Aldermen haveing noe Landes in Town
Tho: Warcop – R. has free rents as a Mean Lord.)
Mr Musgrave) According to Yorke.
Memorandum: Mr Bellingham clames \ som[410] / of these Burgages by lease for 200 yeares (almost - expired) a great number on both sides – sc. If wee may guess by this rentall:

On Mr Tuftons 10
On Mr Lowthers 17

Doubtfull

Out of the catalogue on the other side these that follow are looked upon as doubtfull:
In Scattergate
1. Will Wilson, holding (they say) only by lease
2. John Waugh, holding (they say) in tenant right

Burrough-Gate & Dungate
3. Lancelott Machell Esq. holding parcel of a Burgage. He is allso Alderman, and (however) may be opposed to Mr Will Atkinson, who holdes a like parcell [...]
4. Will Bolton, who holdes a Burgage in right of his wife.
5. John Tod, who holdes by lease of 99 \ years. / But enquire of John Nanson for another Burgage.
6. Clem: Moresby, who they say holdes by lease, but showes a deede.
7. Tho: Hilton, who holdes by lease, but has a Burgage in his sonns name.
10. Thre, under 21 yeares. But of good discretion, & such have bin allowd; as Ciprian Hilton.
11. The vicar of Appelby, whose gleabe is adjoining to Burgages & whose predecessor sold-off that Burgage where the school-house is built.

[I.220A][411]

Mr Bellinghams rental for Appelbye Scattergaite & Bongaite

T Countess of Penbrooke
Mr Robt Hilton
T Robt Maichell
L William Johnson
T John Armestrange
L Robt Dover
L Mr Jo: Thwaites
L Mr Leo: Smith
Mr Alderman Smith deceased
Ab John Scott
L George Dent
l Mr Robt Harrington
L Tho: Richardson
L John Nenenson
T Tho: Carrleton

[410] Inserted in pencil in another hand.
[411] Scrap page, originally unattached to the rest of the volume but inserted and numbered by a modern archivist.

L John Mouncey
L Robt Yeward
Robt Emerson deceased
L Edmund Waryner
Ab Petter Rowlandson
Widdow Wilson
T Willm ~~Will~~ Boulton
T John Darbye
Mis Lowther
L Edward Wilson

[I.220B][412]

L Alderman Robinson
Robt Emerson
T Mr Robt. Lowson
Leo: Tomson
T Hen: Whinfell
Mr Geo: Helton
L Willm Murton
L Hugh Harison
T Micheel Attkinson
T John Nanson
Mr John Crow
L Edward Guy
L Michell Ogdon
L Tho: Browne
Tho: Lambe
Hospetall
T: 10
L: 17

[I.221]

8

For Mr Lowther

Scattergate
John Bainbridge
Query: Lancelot Robinson – R. never possesed
Edw: Will~~l~~son
Edw: Richardson
Will: Will~~l~~son
{Query} Richard Ling – no deedes yett seal'd
Tho: Calvert
Will: Murton

Burrow-Gate
Christopher Blenkarne
Will: Johnson
Mr Robinson
Robert Dover
Mr Robert Harrison – George Dent
John Nevinson
Rob: Yoward
John Mounsey
John Richardson: query. If 2?

[412] The reverse of I.220A.

Hugh Harrison
Tho: Warriner
{Query} John Richarson
Charles Bolton
Daniel Bainbridge
{Query} Henry Richardson – R. by right of his wife. Oppose to Will Bolton
Will: Mounsey
Tho: Warriner ~~L~~{~~Query~~}
Mr Th\w/aites
Michael Ogden
Will: Guy
Will: Huddard
Tho: Harrison
Joseph Dent
Query: John Porter R. The right in her first husbands heire. Ergo no vote
Christopher Jakes
{Query} John Ling – an estate lett for 99 yeares & sold by the lesses to Ling for ever (Leonard Smyth
({Query both} Mr Dalton R. the estate is either in Mr Dalton or Smyth. Ergo not both

Battle-burrough
Supposed to be unanimous
{Query} Will: Atkinson R. he has parcell of a Burgage

[I.222]

For Mr Lamplugh
A scale
23. H6. Cap.15
Burgesses resident abideing & fre elected by Burg &c.
If any returned but so elected forfeit to the king 40^{li} to the Burgesses wrongd or him that sues after 3 m[arkes] 40^{li} by the maior.

[I.223]

9

Assenters to the Vote

Lancelot Machell Esq.
Phillip Machell
Clem: Morresby – query in John Lowson
in Thomas Hilton
Richard Lambe
John Machell
Mr John Atkinson: maior
Edw: Guy
Michal Oggden – dubious
Tho: Miller
Jo: Bleamyres Senior
Jo: Bleamyres Junior
Wm Smith
Jo: Armstrong
Tho: Browne
Henr: Sanderson
Edw: Lowson
Wm Wilson
Tho: Richardson
Jo: Banbrigg – dubious

Jo: Waugh
Jo: Warkman
Jo: Stewardson
Jo Blenkard
Wm Richardson
Hugh Simson
Mr ~~Robt Harrison~~ – a turncoat[413]
Jo: Todd
Herbert Salkeld
Jo: Darbye
Mr James Buchanan
Michl Atkinson
Jo: Nanson
Jo: Roase
Robt Smith
Jo. Tufton Esq.
James Bellingham Esq.[414]

1. Query whether a young man at 14 yeares of age may be accounted inter probos et legales homines?[415]
2. Query whether a minor, under the age of 14 (or 21) may give a vote by his gardian?
3. Query whether the husband may not vote ~~by the curtesie of England~~ in right of his wife?
4. Query whether a Burgage being divided into parcells, give a right of voteing to the severall proprietors of those parcells? Affirmed per Mr Fletcher, Mr Lamplugh.[416]
5. Whether the Aldermen, and those that are enfranchised, may vote as Burgesses? Neg[ative.][417]
6. Query: of what force custom in these cases may be?
7. Query: who is to vote for these Burgages which as leased out by the town?
8. Query: whether the head scholler being Lord of one Burgage (and about 18 yeares of age) may give his vote?

Jo: Hodson)
Robert Machell)
Ric: Robinson) Thes m[en] is to bee enquird o[f] how […][418]
Jo: Hobson)
Lanclot Robison)

[I.224A]

Assenters

Laur Matchell
Phil Match[ell]
Cle: Mores[by]
Mr Jo. Lowson
Tho: Hilton
Rich: Lamb
Jo: Machell
Jo: Atkinson
Ed: Guy
Mich: Ogden
Tho: Miller
Jo: Bleamire
Jo: Bleemire
William Smith
Jo: Armstrong
Tho: Bro[w]n
Tho: Sanderson
Ed. Lowson

[413] Written in an unformed hand: see final paragraph of this page.
[414] These two names appear separately further down the page.
[415] 'Among honest and lawful men.'
[416] 'Affirmation' is written in different ink from the query.
[417] 'Negative' is written in different ink from that of the query.
[418] Much of the page foot has perished. The names and comments here have been written in the same unformed hand as the word 'turncoat', above.

Wm Wilson
Tho: Richardson
Jo: Bainbrigg
Jo: Waugh
Jo: Warkem[an]
Tho: Stuard
Jo: Blenkarne
Wm Richardson
Hugh Simpson
Jo. Tod
Herb. Salkeld
Jo. Darbye
~~M~~ Jamis Buch[anon]

Mich: Atkinson
Jo: Nanson
Jo: Rose
Rob: Simson
John Tufton
James Bellingham
Rob: Machell
Rich: Robinson
Jo: Hobson
Lancelot Robinson
Jo: Shot
Maister Saw house [Sowerby House]

[I.224B]

Dissenters

{?} Jo. Cheesbrugh
{?} Jo. Raisebeck
{?} Hen. Whinfield
Leo. Emerson
Wm Guy
Mt Thwaits
Tho: Norman
Will. Mownsey
Hen. Dickinson – query
Danyel Bambrig
Char: Burtun
Jo: Richison
Hugh Harison
Tho: Ritchardson
Jo. Mounsey
Ro. Yoward
Jo. Nevinson
Geordge Dent
Ro. Dover – query

Mr Tho. Robinson
Christo: Blenkerne
Will. Murton
Tho: Calvert
Ritch. Ling
Will. Wilson
Edward Wilson
Edward Ritchardson
William Johnson
Mr Leonard Smith
Jo. Ling
Jo. Porter – query
Christopher Jaikes
Jois[e]ph Dent
Tho: Harison
Will: Hudert
Mr William Atkinson
John Jon – query

[I.225]

10

[I.225B]

Jo Bainbrig
Edw. Richardson
Edw. Wilson
Wm Wilson
Tho. Calvert
Wm Murton

[I.225A]

[Letter to the mayor of Appleby from Sir John Dalston, excusing himself from assisting at the Appleby Election)]

Apleby

Mr Major
Though I should be very willing to serve your Cuporacion[419] to my power, yet in concern's of this Nature I thinke it most proper for your Recorder to be assistant to yew herein Wednesday next, which is the day appointed for the election of the Knights in Cumberland, & I shall want both my servants & horses if I were disposd to come that day, but as I am no way concernd (saving my respects & kindness to your selfe and brethren) being a friend & wellwisher of my Cozen Lowthers, I shall therefore beg yours & your Brethrens excuse that then you cannot be attended by

[419] Corporation.

Sir
Yors to serve yew. J Dalston.

G.
[Gentry Families: Names; Land Holdings; Obligations]

[I.347]

[Sandford]
Sandfords. Lords of Sandford xij Ed. 1. [1283-84]. Vipont grant the Bosc and turbarie to William the son of Robert de Sandford. Kitland Forrest belonged to the Viponts then, & was called Forresta de Kidland.}

{Helton, Romanfel, Copmanbeck}
In a dead with boundary sans date wherein Thomas de Hellerton gives his halfe of the manner of Helton Bacon to his cosan Andre de Hellerton, Romanfell is called Rutmanfel. Copland Beck is called Copmanbeck, where the same boundary testifies there was an Hospitale deinde: in Creskeld et sic descendit usque hospitalem apud Cupmanbeck.[420] There is a tradition that one of the kings of the Scots was ~~take~~ taken \ here / by one Copland or rather Copman, near to the bridge whence the water tooke that nam*.

{Barwise, Heltum; Mauchael}
To that deed these are witnesses. Hiis Test[ibus].[421] Dominus Robert de Sowleby; Henry de Staneley; Thomas de Derewenwater, militibus. Ricardo de Barewise {forsan a Barwise Hall}; Johan de Heltum; Johanne Mauchael; Christopher Tempelman (note a sirname)[422] cum alijs.

Figure 1.1.12. 'The seale is about as big as a groat.' I.347

Of a browne sort of wax something inclineing to green here and there, the seale is about as big as a groat.

{Musgrave, Lowther, Harklay, Rosgil, Strickland, Machele, Sandford}
In a confirmation of Robert de Clifford, bearing date Anno Regis Edward xij°, Richardo de Musgrave & heredibus in perpetuum,[423] hiis testibus Michaeli de Harcla, Matheo de Rosgill, Hugone de Lowthre, Thomæ de Strikland militibus, Thomæ de Warthecop, Will de Helton. Thome Machele, Joh de Colby et alys. Date apud Burghohm \ a / Anno 1 regni regis &c.
I finde that the Sandfords were lords of Sandford in the time of Robert de Veteriponte ~~where~~ and Robert de Veteripont made an agreement with William the son of Robert de Sand ford & his heires, the Cow pasture (vaccaria) of Espland & 60 acres of arable ground adjoyning, in the forrest of Kidland. And on the other hand, William Sandford released unto the said Vipont all his clame he had in bosco et turbaria de Sandford. Salvis sibi et hominibus suis rationabilibus Estourijs &c.[424]

[420] 'Thence, to Creskeld, and so it descends as far as the hospital at Cupmanbeck.'
[421] 'With these being witnesses.'
[422] Machell was interested in this name because of the history of the Knights Templar in Temple Sowerby.
[423] 'Inheritance in perpetuity.'
[424] 'William Sandford released unto the said Vipont all his claim he had in wood and peat from Sandford, reserving to himself and his men the right to take moderate estovers etc.' [Estover: an allowance made to a person or an estate, often of wood.]

[Machell's Notes: I.347]
*Inq[uisition]. \ I read / Ro[bert] de Hilt[on].[425]

[I.348]

[Clifford]
The Seal Cliffords Armes with which this circumscribed Sigillum Roberti de Clifford.
{3} A grant of Roger de Clifford dom Westm'land: dat apud Castrum de Apleby 9º die mensis[426] apud anno Regni King Edward 2.[427] post Conquest tricesimo quinto.[428] The said Clifford armes, with a draggon couchant for crest; tale Or; and on each side a dragon to fill up the void which the scutchion leaves in the ring by way of sup[port] with this inscription: Sigillum Rogeri de Clifford.

{Sandford} Roger de Clifford grants & confirmes to Thomas \ de / Sandford & Isabel his wife & heredibus communam turbariæ in omnibus moris et turbarrijs nostris in Sandford;[429] paying their wonted rent; yett save that his tenants of what sort soever & their successors shall pay to the Cliffords every yere ~~for every~~ pro qualibet plaustrata turbarum et tericidiorum per ipsos in quadam turbaria nostra vocata Sand\e/ford\s/ myre \ capienda / shall pay one halfpenny,[430] as they were wont to doe.

{Vescy, Clifford, Threlkeld}
The 29 of March 1461. 1. Edward 4.
Margaret Bromflet, daughter and sole heire of Henry Lord Bromflet Baron Vessey & her ancestors. She was wife & widdow of John Lord Clifford who was slane att Tauton Field.[431] She was who brought the title of Baron Vesey to the Cliffords. She married afterward to Sir Lancelot Threlkeld, Knight.

{Colby}
It is writt (in Castris apud Crackenthorp penes L. Machel, armg.) not Coltby nor Coldby, nor Colby as now, butt Collibie, quasi locus super Collem scitus.[432]

{Barwyse family, Askeby, Brampton Family}
Barwyse. I \ allwayes / take the Barwises to be originally descended from Barwise Hall in the Parish of Apleby; & have since found a deed in confirmation of my conject[ure] (penes Sandford, Ask[eby]) of an house & lands in Great Askeby, by John de Berewiss, son of John de Berewyse de Apleby (for it seems \ it / was not onely accounted in the parish but Towne ther) to William the sonn of Simon de Brampton dat. apud Ebor ij idus Maij,[433] 27 Edward 1. [1299].

[425] This note is blotted.
[426] '9th day of the month'.
[427] The 35th year after the Conquest was 1101 and therefore the first or second year of Henry 1. 'Edward' might have been a slip of the pen.
[428] 35 years after the Conquest.
[429] 'And Isabel his wife and their heirs common turf rights in all our moors and and peatlands in Sandford.'
[430] 'For every wagonload of turfs and peat to be taken for themselves in a certain turbary called Sandford's mire, shall pay one halfpenny.'
[431] The Battle of Towton (Tadcaster, York, 29 March 1461). The presence of over 100,000 fighting men and c.28,000 deaths makes Towton the largest, bloodiest battle fought in England. Contemporaries regarded it as the climax of the enmity between the Houses of York and Lancaster - each of which had its rival kings – and symbolic of the prosperous south and the rapacious north. The battle's scale, and the fact that its outcome saw one dynasty removed from the throne and another elevated in its stead, makes Towton of the greatest importance. https://content.historicengland.org.uk/content/docs/battlefields/towton.pdf. See I.252.
[432] 'Like a place situated above a hill.'
[433] 'Ides of May.'

Hugh de Colleby was impowerd by William de Corbrig & John de Berewys to give possession of the manner of Berewys to Mr Thomas de Berewys (forsan ejus fil.)[434] 1343 (16^0 Edward 3). Sir Thomas de Berewise in carta ejus penes Blenkinsop:[435] 17 Edward 3. [1343-44].

[I.303]

Alane de Berwis & John de B. s.d. Sclegill cart

I allways imagined the Burwises to have originally descended from Barwyse Hall in this parish and was somw[hat] confirmed in my opinion from the evidences of the Machells de Crakenthorpe, theire near neighbours, but now am fully satisfyed from some writeing \ in the custodye / of the Blenkinsops, out of which I picked a more particular acount.

Alanus de Berwys gave to his sone Alane all his lands &c. in Slegil, to him & his heires of his lawfull wife begott, paying to him & his heirs 1d rent pro omi serv &c.[436] & do my forane service as much as belongs thereunto: s.d. His Test. D^{ns} Roberto de Askeby, Johane de Moriville, Rob. de Strickland, militibus; Thomas de Musegrave, vic. Westmorland; Gilberto de Slegil; Sen. Westmorland; William de Newby; Hew de Tylle; Hugh the son of Adam de Sowreby.

~~The one of these I doubt not~~ \ Alane the father / was he that built Barwise Chaple about the 1st yere of Thomas, Bishop of Carlile \ anno primo pontificatus / who was in the time of Pope Alexander; which Allane did supplicate the said pope to have lieu to build a chaple at Barwise upon his owne ground and have a chaplins peculiarly unto it, because he was far from the mother church, especially that partly by reason thereof & partly by inundation of the waters he was much hindered in winter time from receiving the benefits of divine service.[437] Anno etiam 1^0 Pontif Alexandri ⌖ pD (7)[438] The pope gives him very good words, caleing him dilectus filius nobilis:[439] viz. Alanus de Berwise, which was confirmed by the said bishop Salva indemnitate matris Ecclesiae,[440] & provided allso that the presbiter, who for the time to come should serve in that chapple, should ~~take an oth of fidelity~~ juramentum fidelitatis vicario matris Ecclesi sine om[n]i dificultate presenti: Dat apud lae[441] Rose 7^0 martii pontificatis nostri anno primo.[442]

Sir Thomas de Molton, Lord of Gillsland, sold to T. de Lowther junioris the custody of one oxgang of land cum pertinentijs in Drybeck in Westmorland, then in his hands by reason of the under aige of Thomas de Berewys, son & heir of Eustachis de Berewys, who held the same a him cum pertinentijs and with the marriage of Thomas, son of Eustachi[s]. He had 2 brothers: John [blank] witness inter alias Richard de Denton 5^0 Edward 1. Se more in Slegil Morla[n]d.

The last that I \ have / mett with of this family is Sir Thomas de Berwise, {I take this T. to be son or grandson of Eustachis} and his mother, then a widow, was called Johanna. And if I mistake not this Sir Thomas had a daughter called Katherine who was to be marryed to Roger Beauchamp, son & heir of T. Beauchamp of Laysingby.[443] They sent out a family very early to Slegil in Westmorland, where I have discovered them to have continued for 5 generations. This Sir Thomas was in the 17. Edward 3. Barwyse is a mannor & Barwys Raw belongs unto, & so I thinke doth Drybeck, for this family had to doe there and they had lands allso in the village of Caberg in Kirby Stephan parish.

Old Alanes seale who gave land in Slegil to Alane his son was a flore de lice.

William de Corbrig & Johan de Berewyse make Hugh de Colleby their attorney to give possession to

---

[434] 'Perhaps his son.'
[435] 'In his deed in the possession of Blenkinsop.'
[436] 'For all services etc.'
[437] See this passage repeated in N&BI, 336, with no reference to Machell.
[438] 'In the same year as the first year of Pope Alexander.' Thomas de Vipont was bishop of Carlisle, 1255-56; (he was Carlisle's 7th bishop if Paulinus of Leeds (who declined the bishopric) is included) This was in the pontificate of Alexander IV (reigned 1254-61). The symbol '⌖pD', which follows the name of the pope, is possibly a short form of 'Capud': head. For Carlisle's bishops, see David Weston, Carlisle Cathedral History, (Carlisle, 2000), 142.
[439] 'Beloved noble son.'
[440] 'Without injury to the rights of the mother church.'
[441] Unclear word.
[442] 'Should take an oath of loyalty to the vicar of the mother church, without any difficulty being presented. Dated at Rose, 7 March in the first year of our pope.'
[443] Lazonby, Cumberland.

John de Berewyse of the mannor of Barewise, 1343 i.e. 17. Edward 3. Compare with the other broth[er].

[I.262C]

Figure 1.1.13. Coat of arms drawn on a small scrap of paper. I.262C.

[I.263]

The lineal descent of the Dakres. Barons*

1. Ralph Dacres marryd Margaret the daughter and one of the co-heires of Thomas Malton of Gillesland; which Thomas was brother & heire to Ralph Malton. And by the said Margaret he had Isue:

1. Hugh Dacres.

2. Hugh Dacres son & heire of Ralph marryed [blank] and had Isue: 1. William Dacres.

3. William Dacres son & heire of Hugh maryed [blank] and had Isue: Thomas Lord Dacres of Gillesland.

4. Thomas Lord Dacres of Gillesland son of William marryed Phillippa daughter of Ralph Nevill Earle of Westmorland whose armes were [blank] and then had Isue: 1. Humfrey of whome hereafter.

2. Johan who was marryed to Thomas Lord Clifford of Apleby in Westm'land who had diverse children by him as may be seen in their pedegrees.

5. Humfrey Dacres Knight Ro[t][444] Parliament. 12. Edward 4. [1472-73]. He tooke to wife Mabel Parr and had Isue: Thomas.

6. Thomas Lord Dacre of Gilseland marryed Elizabeth daughter and heire of Robert Baron of Graystock by which means he came to those lands of Grastokes which they held in Westm'land of Dufton &c. He stole her out of Broham \ Castle where [she] lett herselfe downe out of a window to him, being then a ward {!?}

7. William Lord Dacres of Gilseland marryed Elizabeth daughter of George Talbot – Lord Talbott 4th Earle of Shrewsbury – and had issue:

1. Thomas of whome hereafter.

2. Ann. Who was 2nd wife to Henry 2nd Earle of Cumberland. By whome she had Isue {as in their pedigree}.

8. Thomas Lord Daker of Gilesland; maryed Elizabeth Leybourne, daughter of Francis Leyborne (and afterwards wife to Thomas Duke of Norfolke.)

And by her he had Isue:

Ann who was marryed to Philip Earle of Arundell.

Elizabeth who was marryed to William Lord Howard.

Machell's Notes: I.263]

*{To be referd ad Dufton vel Orton.}

[444] 'Roll.'

[I.264]

The Line of the Beauchamps, Earles of Warwick*

1. William Beauchamp had to wife [blank] and by her had Isue: William.
2. William son and heire of William Beauchamp Baron of Aelmeley and Hamstape was the 12. Earle of Warwick, Shrieve of Worcestershire by inheritance Chamberlin of Ex\c/hey & Lord of Kerthing by his wife. He marryed Maud daughter & one of the coheires of John Fitz Geoffrey Lord of Kerthing & Chief Justice of England whose younger sister Isabell was maryed to the [blank] de Veteriponte Lord of Westm'land & hereditary shireue of the said county. And by this Maud he had Isue: Guy.
3. Guy Beauchamp son & heire of William 12. Earle of Warwick was the 13th Earle of the said place marryed Alice, daughter of Ralph de Toney & sister & heire of Robert Lord Toney Baron of Flemsted. By whome he had Isue: Thomas.
4. Thomas de Beauchamp son & heire of Guy was the 14th Earle of Warwick and tooke to wife Katherine daughter of Roger Mortimer Earle of March who was created the 1st Earle of the Marches of Wales in the 2. yere of Edward 3d [1328-29]. And by her he had Isue: Maud, who was marryed to Roger de Clifford Lord of Westm'land &c.†

[Machell's Notes: I.264]

*{To be referrd}
†{The armes of the Beauchampes of Warwicke were Gules, a fess between 6 crosscrosletts Or}
See a fair pedigre of Beauchamps Earles of Warwick in Dugdal of Warwickshire, p. [blank] vide in Indice.[445]

[I.265]

The Lyne of the Nevills, Earles of Westmorland*

1. Robert Nevill Lord of Raby tooke to wife Mary who was daughter & heire of Ralphe Nevill Lord of Midleham; in whose right he allso became Lord of Midleham and had Isue by her: Ralfe de Nevill.[446]
2. Ralfe son & heire of Robert was Lord of Raby and Midleham and marryed Euphamia who was the daughter of John Lord Clavering by whome he had Isue, a son called Ralfe.
3. Ralfe son & heire of Ralfe was Lord of Raby and Midleham & tooke to wife Alice who was the daughter of Hugh Lord of Andeley, by whome he had Isue John.
4. John Nevill Lord of Raby & Midleham was son & heire to Ralfe. He tooke to wife Maud Pearcy (which Maud was daughter to Henry Pearcy the Elder by Idonea de Clifford who was the daughter of Robert Lord Clifford by Maud de Clare.) And they had Isue:
1. Ralfe of whomme in the next place
2. Euphamia who was marryed to Robert de Clifford, Lord of the Honour of Appeby and Baron of Westm'land, but he dyed without Isue†.

[Machell's Notes: I.265]

*{To be referrd ad Warcop}
†See more about the Nevills in my MS of Armes (marke Part V.)

[I.171]

Thomas Taylboys of Hurworth, his seale: had Westlaton[447] by deed of Alice Blount the daughter of Warrin de Wassington, 5. Richard 2nd, which I thinke came to the \ Wil. / Threlk[eld] of Mel. \ Esq. / about the 16. of Henry 6. who conveyd them to Rookeby of Northum[berland] Esq.

[I.307]

[Roos] {There were Rooses att Barwyse 12. Henry 7. \ 1497. / One Thomas Roos had a dispensation to marry Elizabeth Blenkensop, his cosan in the 4th degree; and they had Isue Thomas to whome she granted lands in her widowhead 15. Henry 7. [1499-1500] unto this Thomas*. They had Isue Thomas who maryed Ann. [blank] & dyed about the 35. of Henry 8. [1543-44], leaveing Hugh Machell executor†.

[445] 'See in the Index.'
[446] MS: '1. Robert Nevill \ Lord of Raby, tooke to wife Mary who was daughter & heire of Ralphe ~~Lord~~ Nevill \ Lord / of Midleham in whose right he allso became Lord ~~Nevill~~ of Midleham; and had Isue by her: Ralfe \ de / Nevill.'
[447] Westlaton or Westluton.

[Machell's Notes: I.307]
*Memorandum – to insert this in Blenkinsops pedegree.
†{about that time also T. Roose, nuper de Berwise – see the Cart. 1bidem.}

[Seals]

[I.187]

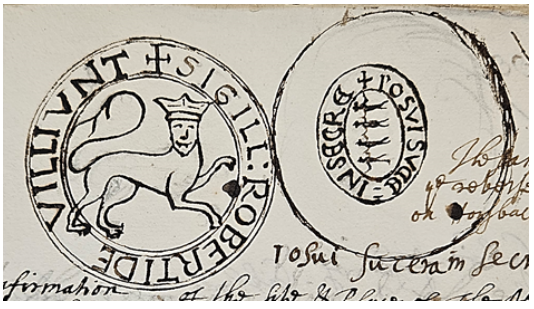

Figure 1.1.14. Seal of Robert de Veteriponte. I.187.

The same on reverse of Robert on horseback
To sui suceram in secre + (to)[448]
This seale is att a confirmation of the site & place of the Abby de Hepp i.e. Shap Abby, with the appurtenances which were contained in the writeings of Thomas the sonn of Gospatricius & Thomas the son of Thomas his son. By Robert de Veteriponte.[449] Dated att Cliburne 13^0 Johannis [1211-12]. Teste Willielmos de Thrimeby et alijs et Johanne de Harclay.[450]

Knipe Antiq. Gnype
Gnype, called Hog Gnype. There were men who tooke sirnames thence: Sc. de Gniype, & de Hog-Gnype in Cartis S.D. penes Mr Blenkinsop.

Mauchael
Alexander Mauchael witness att a deed of Thomas the sonn of Henry de Radem (sea Redman) of 2 oxgangs.[451]

Appleby to Hepp Abby, viz. those 2 which Norman his brother had of John de Veteriponte & gave with his body to Hepp Abby – ibi etiam[452] Alane de Berwyse.

Briton de Eppleby, alias Appleby
Thomas son of Gospatritius sealed with a Lyon whose tayle was clapped betwixt his leggs & up againe about his ribbs.
Michael de Duftonia, Will fil Gunnild de Bothelun.
Rose. dated 1287 15. Ed. 1. Rand: Episc.
I have seen King Edwards grant for the appropriation of Warcop church to Shap Abby by Robert de Clifford, patrone 35 ejus Regni Contra Statute de Mortman: amongst Blenkinsop.

---

[448] Machell has made a transcription error. The legend actually reads, 'IN SECRE + TO SUI SUCC:' i.e. 'In secreto sui succ.' and translates as, 'his and his successors' private seal'.
[449] See the reference to this seal in R.S. Ferguson, A History of Westmorland (London, 1894), 99. In a footnote, Ferguson remarks, 'The counter seal, as given by Machell, is curious. It is apparently a classical gem, on which are four dancing figures. Legend: POSVI SVCE* IN. SECRE*. Posui sutelam in secreto – "I have placed a device on my privy seal."'.
[450] For another early Veteripont seal see MS.IV.31.
[451] MS: 'Alexander Mauchael, witness att a deed of Thomas the sonn of Henry de Radem (~~forsan Red\e/man~~ sea Redman [~~sed~~] ~~quod male ne habet brevit nimis scripsi~~) of 2 oxgangs.'
[452] 'There too.'

[Machell's Notes: I.187]

Vide Spelmans Villare Anglicum, for Townes names all England over; whence you may finde the original of most sirnames.[453]

[I.188]

Shap

Gilbert, the son of Gilbert de Culwenne Knight released clame of som tenement ~~in Shapp~~ to the Abbot &c. 34 Ed. 3 [1360-61] and sealed with a frett & chief charged with a cressent.[454]

Culwen

This I take to be the same with Curwen & descended from Gospatricius.

Apleby

Note, the lyons on Appleby seale are like those upon the trappings of Ed. I. Horse, whether crowned or noe: Querie*?

Redman or Radin: Thomas the son of Henry de Redman gave, granted and confirmed those 2 oxgangs of land which Norman his brother had of John de Veteriponte: witness Alan de Berewys, Alex Mauchaell and or Mauchel & Alijs†.

Machell's Notes: I.188]

*Noe, they are not crownd there.
†{Barwise a family}

[I.261]

[Seals of the Veteriponte and Machell families]

*The 1. is the seale of Maud de Veteriponte att her deed of [blank] to her son Robert.
2. Of Ivo de Veteripont att his confirmation of his mothers deed.
3. is the seal of Robert de Veteripont, the first \ of that name / shereue hereditary of Westmorland att his [blank]
4. The seal of William Mauchael of Crakenthorp, more ancient than any of the other; att his enfeoff co[n]f[er]ment of Mr Adam de Kirkby Thore for his life in the Lordship of Crakenthorp.
5. The seal of Idonea de Veteripont att her deed of the manner of Sandbeck in her widowhood, to the monkes of Roch in Yorkshire.
And the other is the impression of her Privy Seal upon the reverse of the same wax.

[Machell's Notes: I.261]

*{These must be referrd}

Figure 1.1.15. Two of a group of seals of the Veteriponte and Machell families. I.261.

[453] Henry Spelman, Villare Anglicum: or a view of the townes of England (London, 1656).
[454] See Parish of Shap, Part 1, Ch.22. I.311.

[I.188]

Ecclesiastical Seals

Buly
It seeme that the bishop of Carlile resided of old att Buly Castle for I finde several ~~confirmations with~~ evidences dated from thence.
1. Confirmation of the churches of Hep & Bampton by Thomas Bishop of Carlisle dated apud bellum locum dominica proxima ante natuitatem beatæ Mariæ virginis. 1256.[455] A very fine oval seale 2 inches broad with a bishop in his miter & ro \a/bes, the right hand erect with 2 finger up, the left holding a ~~miter~~ \ crosier / and writt about thus:
SIGILLUM THOME DEI GRACIA KARLEOLENSIS EP.[456]
Sylvester apud Bellum locum \ 1209 / 1244.[457]

? ! {Priory of Carlile}
The seale of the Priory of Carlile is to be seen amongst church writeings 47. Hen. 3. [1262-63]. Cust[ody] F. Blenkinsop.

{Kirkby Thore parsonage}
I thinke ~~it~~ \ Kirkby Thore / either was appropriated to Shap Abby in Henry 8. time by Henry Lord Clifford immediately before the dissolution, or in the agitation then. It was appropriated upon condition that the Abby should pay 12s to the poore per annum, otherwise to forfeit; they makeing allso sufficent provision for the Cure. 1535, the Prior \ Rich[ard] Elenwood Prior, / haveing the benefit during his life.

{Shap Abby}
28. of Henry 8. [1536-37] he granted a confirmation of Shapp Abby (as under rate or value as appears by his coppy of permission and allowances). Penes Fra[n]ces Blenkinsop Gen. apud Brough.

[I.585A]

Memorandum: That the seals of Roger (I suppose Whelpdale*) Bishop of Carlisle or William Bishop of Carlisle \ The / Priory of Carlisle & Abbey of Shappe, are in the Evidence Chest at Crackenthorpe in a green draw box.

[Machell's Notes: I.585A]

*It may be Whelpdales Seale, for he was Bishop in 1419 & was succeed by William Barrow 1423 – who – before he Got a Seale of his own right make use of Rogers.
See the seal T. de Veteripont, Episc. of Carlisle – in a Seale Box in ala[baster] made.[458]

[I.192]

[Scutage, Escuage][459]
{pro explicatione}[460] Ad Intellectionem Termini Scutagij sive Escuage.[461]
Hollished Temp An. 1221 \ Escuag Reg. 6 / The noble granted King Henry 3. of every Kings fee 2 markes silver, p.203, 4, 60. {p.213 a. figure. 20.}

Henry 3. Anno. 1231.[462] Mat[thew] Paris[463] relates that on the 27 of January the king held a Parliament at Westminster (where the Nobles spiritual & temporal were assembled) & demanded [455] 'Dated at (Bellum Locum, Beautiful Place, Buly) on the Sunday immediately before the nativity of the blessed Virgin Mary, [21 Sept.] 1256'.

[456] MS: SIGILL THOME DEEI GRACIA KARLEEOLENSIS EEP': Seal of Thomas, by the Grace of God, bishop of Carlisle.'
[457] Silvester de Everdon was bishop of Carlisle from 1247 to 1254, in which year he was killed in a fall. The 2nd bishop of Carlisle was Bernard [1204-1214]. Weston, Carlisle Cathedral History, 142.
[458] 'Alabaster' is an editorial suggestion for the shortened word 'ala'.
[459] For scutage and escuage: see the English Glossary.
[460] 'For explanation.'
[461] 'To an understanding of the term Scutage or Escuage.'
[462] MS: 'Henry 3 ~~p. 213, 4, 2~~ anno. 1231.'
[463] Matthew Paris (c.1200-1259) was an historian and Benedictine monk whose historical works include the Chronica Majora, a universal history from the creation to 1259. See Henry R. Luard (ed.), Monachi Sancti escuage of all those who held any Baronyes of him, i.e. forren knights fee 40 shillings or 3 markes. And the Archbishop of Canterbury (as they say) stood against the king in this demand, maintaneing that the clergie ought not to be subject unto the judgement of laymen since this escuage was granted in the parts beyond the seas without their consent. Whereupon the matter as touching the Bishops was deferd till the Quindeen of Easter,[464] allbeit that the laity and other of the spirualty did consent to the Kings will. He had allso a great escuage granted for the mariage of his sister, the emperess 1241. {p.229 a. f.50.}

\ P.230 H. 50ti, anno 1242. Reg. p. 233. / Escuage gathered throughout the realm {toward bearing the kings charges in France.}[465]

Att another sitting which was begun 3 weekes after Candlemas anno 1244, Reg. Hen. 3[l] 28. they agreed {p.332. b. fig. 30}* to give the King escuage to run towards the marriage of his eldest daughter, of every knights fe'e holden of the king, 20 shillings, to be payd at 2 terms, the one halfe at Easter, the other at Michaelmas.

Att another session of Parliament, ~~holden~~ \ begun / at Westminster on Friday following the feast of Simon & Jude[466] in the 44. of the reigne of Henry 3. [1259-60] {p.262, a, fig.10}. In this parliament was granted the king a tax cal'd scutagium or escuage, i.e. 40 shillings out of every knights fe'e throughout England, the which extended to a great sum of money. For as diverse writers do agree, there were in England at that time in possesion of the Spiritualty & Temporalty above 40 thousand knights fe'es, but almost halfe of them were in spiritual mens hands.

In the Qiendene of Easter,[467] Parliament \ began to / sat at London. In which all the Estate being assembled it was agreed {p.248 a. f.40} that a 10th part of all the revenues belonging to the Church for 3 years space should be given the king towards journey into the Holy Land, & that escuage should be levyed for that year after 3 markes of every knights fe'e. And the king on the other hand promisid faithfully to maintain & keep the Magna-Carta.

[Machell's Notes: I.192]

*{30? scutage, how it granted; question: when.}

[I.193]

[Wardship]

Taken out of a Roll penes Mr Blenkinsop apud Brough: which I take to have bin in reference to a Bill of Chauncery exhibited against Lord Clifford.

Thomas Blenkinsop fuit seisitus de manerio de Helbeck cum pertinentijs in Dominico suo ut de foedo, & sic seisitus manerium tenuit de Henrico Clifford per servitiu[m] militare, viz. per homagium fidelitatem et scutagium*, Sc[ilicet] quando scutagium currit ad quadraginta solidos, 40s quando ad decem, 10s & quando ad plus, plus, quando ad minus, minus, et per reditum sex solidorum ad cornagium Henrici Clifford ad festa pasche et St Michaelis Archiangeli. annuatim solvendum; de quibus quidem servicijs idem Henricus fuit seisitus per manus dicti Thomae Blenkinsop [patris] ut per manus veri tenentis sui, viz. de Homagio et fidelitate et de foedo et jure, et dicto scutagio et reditu in Domenico suo ut de foedo tempore pacis tempore dicti regis modo (Sc[ilicet] Henry 7.) capiendo inde exple[e]s et valere &c.[468]

Albani: Chronica Majora, seven vols (London, 1872-83), Vol. 3 (1876), 200. See also, S. Lloyd & R. Reader, 'Paris, Matthew (c. 1200-1259)'. ODNB.

[464] Here, a line of ink points the reader to a continuation of this topic at the bottom of the page.

[465] This margin comment is almost obscured by the binding.

[466] 28 October.

[467] Quindene: the fourteenth day after a festival (this being the fifteenth day when counted inclusively, following ancient Roman practice); hence the period of fifteen days beginning with the day of a festival. OED.

[468] 'Thomas Blenkinsop was seised of the manor of Helbeck with its appurtenances in his Demesne as by fee, and being thus seised he held the manor from Henry Clifford through military service, viz. through homage, fealty and scutage, that is, when the scutage ran to forty shillings, 40s, when to ten shillings, 10s, and when to more, more, and when to less, less; also through rent of six shillings for the cornage of Henry Clifford at the Note this & what followeth on the other side the page (but that for certaine) was taken out of a Roll penes Mr Blenkinsop apud Brough: which I take to have bin in reference to a Bill of Chauncery exhibited against Lord Clifford for demanding the Wardship of the Gentery of this County, and the difference began in the family of the Blenkinsops of Hellbeck. It is therefore added in the clause of each manner, – minus justè; et sine titulo nisi per usurpationem tituli Domini Regis (vid. p.184).[469] But Lord Clifford (as I remember myself to have red) got the better of them, & his ancestours had the Wardship of the Gentry of this County till it was taken of by Act of Parliament (all England over), Sc. Tem. Car. 1. \ a long roll penes Mr Blenkinsop. /

This following evidence may peradventure relate to the said busines. In Bawtre Box (ni fallor)[470] apud Skipton \ MS. /
Pardonatio Henrico Clifford militi alias dicto Henrico Clifford, Domino Clifford Westmorland & Vessy; alias dicto, Henrico Clifford vicecom[iti] Westmorland alias dicto Henry Clifforth militi; alias dicto Henrico Clifford Dom[ino] Clifford militi; alias dicto, Henrico Clifford Dom[ino] Clifford filio Joh[annis] Clifford nuper Dom[ini] Clifford defuncti; fil[ij] Thomae Clifford nuper Dom[ini] de Clifford militis similiter defuncti &c. omnimodas offensas &c. Pardonavimus etiam et relax[avimus] omnimodas cattalla felmu' {felonia forsan}[471] &c. et insuper omnes intrusiones &c. Act[ionem] etiam Wardae & Maritag[ij] Thomæ fil[ie] et here[dis] Thomæ Blenkinsop armiger[i] defuncti; Ac ~~etiam war[dae] & maritag[ij]~~ quorumcumq[ue] fatuorum naturalium &c. custodie nostre pertinent: et ulterius perdonamus &c. omni[m]odas [pen]as fines &c. Proviso quod non extendat ad 7 recognitiones per quas idem Henr. recognovit se debere nobis spetingentas libras anno 17^0 irrotulatas; \ nec ad 7 septas obli[ga]tiones / nec non ad 4^r alias recognitiones per quas idem Hen[ry] et alie persone 27 Aprilis velut recognoverunt se debere nobis mille & trescentas marcas prout &c. quandocunq[ue] acciderint &c. 1^0 Janij, 21. Henry 7. [1505-06] Rot. 1.[472]

[I.194]

[Cornage]

Some Lands held of the King in Capite, paying Cornage, 19 Hen. VIII[473]

{An account by inquisition of L.H. of land held of the king in capite[474] by knights service paying cornage}

---

feasts of Easter and of St Michael Archangel, to be paid annually; the same Henry was, indeed, seised of these services through the hands of the said Thomas Blenkinsop [father] as through the hands of a true tenant, viz.of Homage and fealty both by fee and by right, and by the said scutage and rent in his Demesne as by fee in time of peace lately in the time of the said king (that is, Henry 7.) by taking thence the profits and value etc.'

469 'With little justification; and without title except through usurpation of the title of the Lord King.'

470 'Unless I am mistaken.'

471 The Latin here is corrupt and Machell's suggestion is a plausible one. The original words were probably 'omnimodas cattalorum felonias'.

472 'Remission to Henry Clifford, Knight, otherwise known as Henry Clifford Lord Clifford of Westmerland & Vessy, otherwise known as Henry Clifford Earl of Westmerland, otherwise known as Henry Clifforth, Knight, otherwise known as Henry Clifford Lord Clifford, Knight, otherwise known as Henry Clifford Lord Clifford son of John Clifford Lord Clifford lately deceased, son of Thomas Clifford Lord Clifford, Knight, likewise lately deceased, etc. [We have remitted] all manner of offences etc. – also have we remitted and discharged all manner of felonies of cattle etc, and, moreover, all trespasses etc. Also legal action for the guardianship and marriage portion of the daughter and heir of Thomas, the late Lord Thomas Blenkynsop Esquire, and the guardianship and marriage portion of whatever natural children etc. belong to our custody: And further we remit etc. all manner of penalties, fines etc. Provided that it extend not to 7 acknowledgements of debts, through which the same Henry acknowledged that he owed us seventy pounds, entered in the 17th year, nor to 7 protected bonds, nor to four other acknowledgements, through which the same Henry and other persons on the 27th April similarly acknowledged that they owe us one thousand three hundred marks, proportionately as etc. whenever they fall due etc.'1st January 21. Henry 7. Roll 1.

473 The MS margin contains: 'Of Dem[esnes] held of the king in capite, by paying cornage to the king…An account by inquisition of L.H. anno 19., of land held of the king in capete by knights service paying cornage'.

474 'held in chief.'

	Manner & Demane in Lordship	Owner	Yearly Value	Kings Cornage Rent payd at Pasce & Michaelmas	Payd to	Quo Titulo[475]	Faciendo sectam clor[476] dom regis apud castrum de Apleby mense in mensem[477]
	~~Bampton~~: ~~Knip~~	~~Thomas Blenk J S~~ \ Christopher Culwen J. S. /	£40 per annum	& 10d	Sir Henry Clifford	Ignoto titulo[478]
Quo titulo	Bampton* Cundal	Jo: Cliborne ob 4[0].[479]	20 marcs J.S.	0: 15 & 3	Sir Henry Clifford	Ignoto
	Bampton: Patrik						Mense in mensem
Paid to whom ~~forsan~~	Brampton:	John Lancaster Ob 10. Ed. 4.[480]	Jo S. val. £4	0: 8: 6	Lord Clifford sine 1	Per usurpatione[481]
	Brow \urg /ham:	John Burgh Obijt X[0] J. S.	V: X marcs & [...]	0: 12: 6 /12	Henry Lord Clifford	Iniuste St. Per usurpatione
	{Cabergh:}||	Pet. Roos obijt 8. July	H. 7. 15/ £8 0d J. S.	0: 7: 8	Henry Lord Clifford	Ignoto titulo
	Cabergh}	John Mawchel Ob. 1. Ed. 4[482]	Joh. S. val. £X	0: 6: 10	Henry Lord Clifford, toke red[ditus]	Hom[agium] rel[evium]. sine titulo[483]
	Clifton	T. Wybergh Will. S	[£]20	0: 17: 4	Henry Lord Clifford	Minus iuste sine titulo	Per usurp. titulo regis
	Colby: and infra	T. Warc[op] \ and infra. / Obijt 18 Ed. 4 T[484].	His S. val. 10[li]	0: 6: 10	Henry Lord Clifford, toke red[ditas]	Hom. rel. sine titulo
	Helbeck†	T.B[lenkinsop] & T. his son	40[li]	0: 6: 0	Henry Lord Clifford	Ignoto titulo	reddit
	Newbiging	Jo. Crak[enthorpe] Ob. 6. Ed. 4[485]	J. S. 5[li]	0: 1: 8	Henry Lord Clifford cepit	red hom Rel. sine titulo[486]	Nec non per
	Overton‡ Dem:	Humfry Lord Daker Obij. 6[0]	£X[li]: 0	0: 12: 6	& Tho. Lord Daker	At 18 had the estate.	servicium ad
	Overton Dem: with ½ Watby	T. Beauchamp Obijt X Ed. 4	£ X	0: ~~12~~ \ 11/: 1	Sir Henry Clifford	Tit. ignot. TB. S.	faciendam sectam
	Smardale:	Reginald Warcop Ob. 8[0] S. Ed	Val. £4[li]	0: 10: 0	Henry Lord Clifford cepit	Red. Hom. rel. sine titulo	cori[487] dicti domini regis
Owner	Wateby↓ d[emesne] it went with ½ Overton to T. Beauchamp vid. supra

[475] 'With what title.'
[476] The meaning seems to be 'of court' but the form of the word used is unclear.
[477] 'Mense in mensem': Every month.
[478] 'Unknown title.'
[479] 'Died in the 4th year of Henry VIII' [1512-13].
[480] 'Died 1470-71.'
[481] 'By usurping.'
[482] 'Died 1461-62.'
[483] 'Homage, feudal relief without title.'
[484] 'Died 1478-79.'
[485] 'Died 1466-67.'
[486] 'Rent: Homage, Feudal relief, without title.'
[487] The meaning seems to be 'of court' but the form of the word used is unclear.

~~owner value~~	Yanworth¶	Lancelot Threlkeld Ob. 3. Rich. 3[489] Sr L. S.	40 marcs	0: 8: 8	Henry Lord Clifford	Sine titulo per usurpation	com[itatu] W. de mense in mensem apud castrum Regis de Apleby[488]
	Housidribeck	Lord Dacre T. S.	Above £5[li]	0: 9: 2	Lord Clifford cepit	Reditus Hom. & releurium sine titulo

[Machell's Notes: I.194]

The manner: Bampton K[n]ipe, Bampton Cu[n]dale, Bampton Pat[rick]., Browham, Bra[m]pton, Caber, Caber,[490] Clifton, Colby, Helbeck, Newbigin, Overton, […],[491] Smardale, Wateby.

*Bampton, Bampton Knipe: to Christopher Culwen & Sir Thomas, his son.[492]

Christopher Culwen per Brampton Patrik tenetur per serviciu[m] militare, sc[ilicet] per homagiu[m] fidelitatem et scutagiu[m], si quando scutagiu[m] ad quadraginta \...../ solidos 40s quand[o] ad plus plus quando ad is ['is' repeated] (sicut cetera omnia) et per reditum 14s 4d pro cornagio ad dom[inum] Clifford as fest[a] pasch[ae] et S[anc]t[i] Mich[aelis] Archangel[i] annuatim solv[endum] Knipe Patrik eodem modo (rent 17d) tenebatur ab eodem.[493]

†7 Helbeck to T.B.

‡Overton: ½ of Overton to P. Lord Dacres; ½ to Thomas Beauchamp. {N[ote] Yong Lord Daker freed at yeres because he held elsewhere of the King so he had not marriage of him but onely his land till he came at yeres}.

⸸Watby, Neatby: ½ to Thomas Beauchamp; ½ to [blank]

‖Caber: Peter Roos; Thomas his son.

¶Yanewath was held by Sir Lancelot Threlkeld de Johe Barone de Graystock per servicum militare; viz. per homagium &c. et reditum 8s & 8d ad cornagium Joh annis et Johannes Baron de Gaystock tenuit odem manerium per consimilia servicia de Henrico Domino de Clifford.[494]

{T.W. four year old when his father dyed}

Note: that these Lordships are held by Knights Service yet not of the King in Capite.

[I.195]

L

William de Morville 8 John / Jo[n] Macael John

N.

O.

Robert fil Olf. 8 J[ohn] Joha de Ormeshead vicecom West. 9. Joh / Will fil. Simonis

P.

Peter de Rosgil 9 J[ohn] Joh de Prasto: 9 Joh / Alun Princerna, 9 Joh.

[I.196]

Peterus de Rosgill: J[ohn] 9.

R.

Rob Dns de Sulebi: J[ohn] 9, Gerardius seviensus i.e. sergiant J.G. Will. filius Simonis

---

[489] 'Died 1485.'

[488] 'Also, through service of paying suit of court of the said lord king in the county of Westmorland from month to month. At the King's royal castle of Appleby.'

[490] Caber and Caber are bracketed together.

[491] Here is an illegible scored-through place name.

[492] For 'scutage', see the English Glossary.

[493] 'Christopher Culwen holds the tenancy of Bampton Patrik by military service, namely, by homage, fealty and scutage, the scutage amounting to forty ... shillings 40s sometimes more, more when … (just as everything else) and by a rent of 14s 4d for cornage, to be paid annually to Lord Clifford at the feasts of Easter and of St Michael the Archangel. He held the tenancy of Knipe Patrik in the same fashion (rent 17d).'

[494] 'Yanwath was held from John, Lord Greystoke, by knight's service, viz. by faithful homage etc. and 8s 0d rent and 8d cornage; John Lord Greystoke held that same manor by similar services from Henry Lord Clifford.'

T.
John Taleboys: 9 Joh {Arable 4d acre, 1. Ed. 1. [1272-73] ann Medow} dovecot: 2s per an. Ed. I. Value of

W.
Matild or Maud, the daughter of Torphin de Wateby, sold al her \ demesne & other / inheritance in Westmorland, 300 markes to Robert de Veteripont, by consent & assent of her free tenants; which lands she held of him 8^0 Joh. [1206-07]. Willielmus de Wiginton (forsan pro Winton) 8. J. William de Withinton 9. Joh / Thom Fil. Tho. / de Withrington, Galfrid de Wateby[495]

Y. [blank]

[I.202]

Vipount.

Apleby: The Best Gen[ealogy] I am able to Draw, both from the Evidences of the Countess of Pembroke and Mr Dugdalls Baronagium, is thus:

			De Veteriponte from a Lordship of that name in Normandy
Dugdalls Baronage		1. Ivo de Veteriponte benefactor to the Abby of Chieney in France 1185: fuit Dom[inus] de Curvavilla[496]		= Alberia	2. Robert de Veteriponte (ejus mentio ni fallor 1073. i.e. 7^0 Will. Conq.) fuit cobenefactor cum fratre Ivo[ne] Abb[atiae] de Chien, 1185.[497] a. = Matilda filia et cohere[s] de Hugonis de Morevilla […] de Kirkoswald [...][502]	= Maria quae fuit mater Ivonis Junioris[498]
? (a) Carta[e] Commitissae Pembroke ostendunt nomina filiarum et coheredum Hugonis fuisse \ Ada[m] / Matilda[m] marit[atam] Willielmo de Veteriponte. Dugdal, autem ostend[it] eam fuisse Adam: et Johan[nam] quae fuit marit[ata] Richard Gernan et sic MS Cumb:[499]	Ivo de Veteriponte Dominus de Curvavilla = Isabella Domina de Feritate Barnardi	1. Ivo de Veteriponte, qui confirmavit donationem patrui*[500]	2. Robert de Veteriponte qui vixit†	3. Williamus de Veteri-pont qui dici[tur] Xt ni fallor[501]
(b) Nota quod in Rotulis Antiquis Castrum de Bowes fuit infra confinia Westmariæ vid[e] cartas et liberat[a] 5.		1. Ivo de Veteriponte‡ Robert de Veteriponte filius Dom[ini] Ivonis, 11. Hen.	2 Robert de Veteriponte, 1^{us} Dom[inus] de Westmorland qui inter alia custodiam habuit	= Idonea, daughter and heir of John de Buley, Lord of the [495] The end of this line is obscured by the binding.

[496] 'He was Lord of Curavilla.'
[497] 'Robert de Veteriponte ([there is] mention of him, if I be not mistaken, in 1073 i.e. 7th year of William the Conqueror) was co-benefactor with his brother Ivo of the Abbey of Chien, 1185.'
[498] 'Maria, who was the mother of Ivo the younger.'
[499] 'Deeds of the Countess of Pembroke show the names of Hugo's daughters and co-heirs to have been \ Ada / Matilda, married to William de Veteriponte. Dugdal, however, shows that this was Ada: also Johanna, who was married to Richard Gernam, and so the Cumberland MS [have it].'
[500] 'Ivo de Veteriponte, who confirmed his uncle's grant.'
[501] 'William de Veteripont, who is known as Christopher, unless I am mistaken [?]'
[502] 'Matilda, daughter and co-heir of Hugo de Moreville [...] of Kirkoswald [...]'

Joh[annis] membr[anam] 9.[503]	3. [1226-27] è cartis vel Blenc. vel de Sandford habui [504]	castri de Bowes in Com[itatu] West[mariae]. 5[0] Johan[nis][505]	hon[our] of Tickhill in Yorkshire
	1. John de Veteriponte Baron de Appelby et Westmorland ejusque loci vicecomes hæreditarius [506]	= Sibella, filia Willielmi Com[itis] Ferrars, 12. Ed. 1. [1283-84] Esch[eat] N. 17.[507]	2. Christiana de Veteriponte	= Thomas, son of Will, son of Ralph Baron of Graystock in Cumb.
	Robert de Veteriponte	= Isabella FitsPeter			{There were other Viponts at Alston More: se Musgrave ped. & a monument in Edenhall church}
	1. Isabella de Veteriponte	2. Idonea alias Ivetta

{See more of the name de Veteriponte pag. 107 partis V[æ]}[508]

[Bishop Nicolson's Notes: I.202][509]

*C. et patris 1236 i.e. 20. Henry 3.
†C. 1107 i.e. 8[0] Hen.1.
‡This cannot be right unless wee suppose Ivo de Veteriponte to have liv'd 120 years:

1236
1107
0129

[Machell's Notes: I.202 & 202A][510]

[I.202]
[Ewbank]
{See more of the name de Veteriponte pag. 107 partis V.}
E stem de Iewbanck capt i.e. e stem Hiltonorum, de Hilton castro in Episcop. Dunelm[511] penes Robertum Hilton de Morton. In Ewbankes pedegre (in the parish of Brough) that family is said to be extinct in a daughter & sole heire of Sir Alexander Iewbanke, who was maryed to Robert de Veteriponte; but I finde nothing of this in the evidences belonging to that family, ergo I doubt of the truth thereof of it. How cann it otherwise happen to bee except this Iewbanke was his second wife. He dyed about the 29. H.3. [1244-45]. This Ewbankes pedigree (of [which] I speake) is taken out of the famous ped. of Hilton de Hilton Castle.
[I.202A]
N.B., I suppose the anulets in ther seale to [be] placed on the manch as a frity[512] upon his marrying the Lady daughter Clifford = whose husband descended by the mother side, of the Viponts whose armes were anulets 1. r. Because none of his success[ion] bore thus.

[503] 'Note that in the ancient rolls the castle of Bowes was within the bounds of Westm'land, see the charters and writs of 5th [year of] John, membrane 9.'
[504] 'Robert de Veteriponte son of Lord Ivo, 11. Henry 3. [1226-27]. I had it from the deeds either of Blenkinsop or of Sandford.'
[505] 'Robert de Veteriponte, first Lord of Westmorland who among other things had the custody of the castle of Bowes in the County of Westmorland, 5th [year] of John.'
[506] 'John de Veteriponte Baron of Appelby and Westmorland and hereditary sheriff of that place.'
[507] ' = Sibella, daughter of William Earl Ferrars, 12. Ed. I. [1283-84] Escheat N. 17.'
[508] 'p.107, the 5th part'. [See MS. V: 3, 6, 509, 521-24; See also Dugdale Baronage, from 348.]
[509] In Bishop Nicolson's hand.
[510] I.202B is a scrap-page containing an unfinished plan.
[511] 'From the pedigree of Ewbank taken from the pedigree of the Hiltons of Hilton Castle in the Bishoprick of Durham.'
[512] Fretty.

2. l. I observe somthing like this in the armes of ~~Hilton~~ Musgrave; see a deed of conveyance of Hartclay Laces in Crakanthorp. See also Blencowes Grant of Armes.

[I.230]

[General Notes:]

{Carta Donationis advocatiæ Ecclesiarum St Michael et St Laurence, Monasterium Beatiæ Mariæ Eboraci.}[513]
William the Conqueror gave the county of Cumberland to William Meschiens, & I doe believe Westm'land to; whith the Honour of Apelby; for that I finde the said William Meschenes \ calling it his castle of Apelby / sealed here in the 20 year of Will. reigne [1085-1086]; & his Chaplaine Parson of the 2 churches.

{!!!} See MS Part 5, p. 27, where Johanna de Veteripont calls Tho. the son of Thomas, Dominus meus.[514] Query if not her husband (of the family of the Cullewens).

Memorandum: to subtract out of the following relations the eminent acts of the eminent men – & query if not also matches.

[I.332]

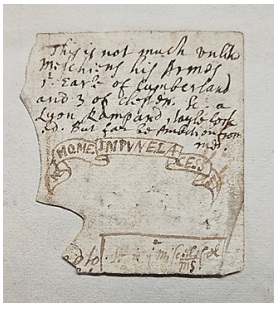

Figure 1.1.16. 'This is not much unlike Meschiens, his armes'. I.332.

This is not much unlike Meschiens, his armes, 1st Earle of Cumberland and 3 of Chester: Sc. a lyon rampard, tayle forked. But far be ambition from me.
NE MO. ME. IMPVNE. LA CESS IT [515]
{Se in the Miscell. Fol. MS}

[I.183B]

H.

[Appleby Castle]

{Description of the Tower and Castle}
{Of all these that are called Romane the most compleat & largest, which implies that Apleby was stil the chief place, whoever built the quandragular & equilateral.}
[Tower]
It is a very fair & ellegant Building, ascending to the top by [blank] stayers, each whereof is at least 9 inches, one with an other, so that by that we may compute it to be in hight beneath the batements [blank] And the batlements are high & dented, with a turrett or watch tower at every corner, as in the figure doth more planely appear. It is in breth 20 on each side so that the whole roomes are on one [513] 'The charter of the donation of the advowson of the churches of St. M. and St L. belonging to the monastery of T.V.M. at York.'

[514] 'My Lord.'
[515] Nemo me impune lacessit: 'No one provokes me with impunity'. It is possible that Machell actually wrote, 'lacesset': the future tense, which changes the motto to, 'No one will provoke me with impunity'.

floore.[516] But formerly – viz.[517] the Lady An[ne] Clifford, Countess of Cumb'land & Baroness Westm'land, repared the same building a wall through the midle thereof for a stak of chimnies, in each rome, making 2 – there was but one roome on a flore and noe chimney. But certanely if they had made the chimneys in one corner & noe wall in the midle, it would have bin the finest pile in England. But it is alledged that the distance twixt wall & wall was soe great, that without great wast & destruction they could not otherwise have gott timber for it. In the lowest roome on the south side, upon the wall, is this inscription, which showes the repareing of it; and many can remember since a gray mayor of Mr Machell of Crakenthorp &c.[518]

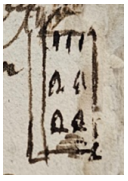

Figure 1.1.17. Appleby Castle. Tower. I.183B.

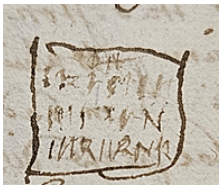

Figure 1.1.18. Inscription in Appleby Castle Tower. I.183B.

And under that wall, not exactly in the midle but towards West side rather, was a deep draw well to supply the Tower in case of ~~a erose~~ seige or takeing the Castle over which it is pitty that there was not an Arch. I read that this Tower was very much impared in [blank] time by reason of the negligence of the Prior of Carlisle, in whose custody [blank] was then as a Ward; which is brought amongst many other thing in the Inquisition. And afterward quite uncovered, no thing remaneing; a mere carkase or case of stones, till repared by the said Lady Ann. \ It was repared by the Earl of Thanet by the dir[ection] T.M. 1684.[519] /

[Castle]
The Castle is opposite to the Tower, stand[ing] East of from it, there being a large Court betwixt them and formerly a wall & ditch, but now {in 1685-1686} the wall is made levell \ & the ditch filled up / yet soe as the vestigia thereof \ still / remane. In the Castle we remark the Chaple, Hall, Dineing roome & Barron ch[amber].

[I.230]

July 18 1688.
I numbered in the tower from the top of the pinackle to doore at the stare foote, CXXV111 steps, each of them being above ½ a foote; de quo quaere?[520] Ergo it is [blank] high.

[516] A scored-through phrase here appears to read, '~~& 1. Few store is~~', but the words are difficult to decipher.
[517] An unclear word here appears to be, 'that'.
[518] Lancelot Machell had a mare ridden up the stairs of Appleby Castle tower. For another reference to this feat, see II.514, above.
[519] In different ink: a later comment.
[520] 'Query, from what?'

Apleby Castle was so great an honour ~~that~~ [blank] Clifford, one of the Barons in Parliament, subscribed himselfe at a letter from the P[arliament] to the Pope by no other title but Castellanus de Appelby. See Blo[u]nt[521] in verbum who refers to Cortgraves Dictionary, verbo castellan de q.[522] Send to Dr M[ill].

[I.302]

John, Lord Clifford, 11th Shireve Hereditarie & Lord of this place, builded here {about 1418} \ as appear from writs (fine) almost consumed,[523] / a strong and fortificall gatehouse of stone, all arched overhead, wherein were carved his armes ~~of Clifford &~~ Vipont & Clifford, together with his wives, the armes of the Piercyes, \ vide (a). /

"And also this John Lord Clifford did build that fine gatehouse there, so his sonn, Thomas, Lord Clifford, did build a great part of said Castle of Apleby in Westmorland, which stands Eastward as the Hall, the Chapple and great Chamber (or Dineing Roome) which were then fallne into great decay; though it had bin a castle of note ever since William the Conquerurs time and before." è Record Family Vipont & Clifford L.2, p.390.

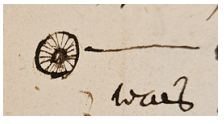

Figure 1.1.19. Sketch placed alongside the words, 'which strong and fortificall worke'. 1.302.

Which Strong and Fortificall worke and Building was all defaced and broken downe, with some of the walls of the said Castle, in 1648, in the time of our \ late / civill wars in this Kingdome of England.

The Armes in the chaple window were placed ther by Robert, Lord Clifford, the great commander, son of John: viz. of the \Viponts / Cliffords, and allso Dacres Armes, which were his wives, impaled with the Cliffords. And the Armes of his then new borne grandchild, after Henry Lord Clifford, which was Clifford & Bromflett, Lord Vescy, quartered together, with a fess of 3 bends on the topp of it; and att the low end of the said window is this inscription:

This chapple was built by Thomas Lord Clifford Anno Domini One Thousand: 400: 54 which was the yere before he was slane, & allso in which his grandchild was borne. It was pull'd down & the Castle altered by Thomas, Lord Tufton, Earl of Thanet, about 1688. / {vide hoc lib. Bowes.}[524]

Figure 1.1.20. Margin sketch: 'antiq of Castles'. I.302.

[521] In 1656, Thomas Blount published the largest English dictionary up to that date, Glossographia.
[522] This is probably James Howell's, A French and English Dictionary composed by Mr Randle Cotgrave with another in English and French (London, 1673). See under 'CHA': 'Chastelain: A Lord Castellain.'
[523] Eaten by decay etc.
[524] 'See here the Book of Bowes.'

In the Hall window East are sett up by him the armes of his father & mother impaled, and allso his & his wives, together with the Viponts by them selves.
And though Apleby Castle was built before William the Conquerers time, for the Great Tower called Caesars Tower was undoubtedly built by the Romanes when they were masters of Great Britan*; yett the greatest part of the building of the chapple was often defaced and broken downe in the warrs betwen England & Scotland, and much hurt was don thereto by the Scotts in the severall reigns of Richard 2 and Henry 4. After which, in Henry 6 dayes, this Thomas, Lord Clifford, builded the greatest part of it as it now stands, being after the fashion of those times. But (by records and evidences which are yet remaneing) the Barons chamber in it was built long before, which in Henry the 3rds time, & Edward 1., is called the Knights Chamber, & some time the Barons Chamber in the records†, p.434.

[Machell's Notes: I.302]

*{Vide Agricola, part 1t page 16.[525] MS de extructione castellorum Xti 84.[526] Virius? Lupus builded Bowes with many other places, Anno Xt 197.[527] Se allso p.27. 15. antiq. of Castles.}
†All Barons were Knights but not vice versa: T.M.

[Appleby Castle Notes]

[I.325][528]

In the time of Henry, Lord Clifford the Shepherd,[529] Westm'land was given (by reason of his attainture by Act of Parliament) by King Edward 4. to his brother Richard, Duke of Glocester, who was after King of England, but \ this Castle nor / none of the two other inhabited by him. He was slane in batle 22 of August 1485.

To Apleby Castle belongs Rent Cornage 29l 6s 8d.[530] and there are fre[e] tenants which hold Tenements of the Castle by a service called Blanche Ferme, who pay viiili 3s {?} at the usuall termes. 19. Edward 3.[531]

There are 40 acres of land on the north side of Whinfel Forrest calle le Blaunch Landes. Whinhowne & Barrinhowne, with five messuages with land and medow belonging to them, called Le Wood Side, in the said 3rd part of the same Forrest, extended at 5 marcs per annum in all Isues. Maud Beauchamp Inq. 4. Henry 4.[532]

The Castle and Man'r of Apleby conteines in itself
514 acres of land
200 acres of medow
20 acres of wood
1000 acres of pasture
1 water mill

[525] 'See Tacitus, Agricola Part 1, p.16.'
[526] 'See Agricola, part 1, p.16. MS concerning the construction of castles, AD 84.'
[527] 1697. An altar at Bowes has the inscription, 'To the goddess Fortune. Virius Lupus, imperial propraetorian legate, restored this bath-house, burnt by the violence of fire, for the First Cohort of Thracians; Valerius Fronto, cavalry prefect of the Cavalry Regiment of Vettonians, had charge of the work.' Virius Lupus was governor a.d. 197-c. 202. See https://romaninscriptionsofbritain.org.
[528] Also numbered p.40.
[529] See I.254 (Generation 8 of the Cliffords), below.
[530] £29 6s 8d.
[531] Blanch fermes or White farms, where the rent was paid in silver and not in cattle: see Giles Jacob, A New Law Dictionary, BL. However, Dictionaries of the Scots language online, define blanche ferme as, 'a small or nominal quit-rent paid in money or otherwise'.
[532] 'Inquisition of 4. of Henry IV.' [1402-03].

and diverse villages belonging to the said C[astle] & m[anor] as: Langton, Winton, Meburn, Kirkbystephen, Mallerstang therein conteined, and diverse rents & services of fre[e] ten[an]t belonging to them: vid. in Cat. Inq. 10 Henry 5 [1422].
It was given in upon path in an inquisition taken att ~~Appleby~~ Brougham after the death of Thomas ~~Lord~~ Clifford, Knight 34 Henry 6 [1455-56] that the 2 burgages which he had in Apleby were held of the king in fre[e] burgage by fealty and the rent of 4d per annum.

[I.337]

Apleby: Caesars Tower, from all part of the country by the graene & colour of the stone; a well in the midst. & roofe invers'd. A round trench & round walls about.}

[I.231][533]

Apleby Castle: Whose Seat[534]

[Morvill]

This Castle, together with Brough which of old has belonged unto it, \ provd by the gift of St Michael & St Lau[rence] unto 1. Meschiens, 2. Morvill, / seems formerly to have bin the seat of the Morvills, for I finde in an inquisition taken at Yorke in the 3rd yere of Edward I. [1274-75] by vertue of a writ from the said king directed concerneing the seisin of Roberti de Veteriponte to whome King John gave the said Castles, that they came into the hand of the said King ~~propter~~ \ per / transgressionem factam per Hugonem de Morevilla*.[535] This Hugh I take to be one of those Knights or Lords who killd Thomas à Becket in the time of Henry 2. father of King Richard & King John: But what this particular transgression was, which occasion the forfature, is not there mention[ed].[536] The death I suppose of Thomas a Becket†. The Morvills have bin a florishing family of old in this county of Westm'land, and many of that name lived in repute att severall places \ after the time of this treason committed / as att Brampton, Walter de Morvill, who sold his freehold estate to R. de Veteriponte and ~~removed~~ elsewhere ~~and his son after him had~~ s[ans] d[ate]. But what they were akin to Hew de Morvil I do not know; nor is materiall (that family being soe long since extinct).[537] Onely you may note that Maud, the daughter of Hugh Morvill of Kirkoswald, was mother to Robert de Veteriponte & Ivo his brother‡, which peradventure was some helpe to procureing this estate after the forfaiture and haveing it settled upon Robert de Veteripont.

If the Morvils be truly a Westm'land family, I mean if they tooke that sirname from thence, I know noe towne which comes soe near to it as Moreton[538] in Westm'land, for if you change the Saxon termination into the Latin – tun into vill – Moreville and Moretun will be the same: de Morevill is the same whereof Marton ⸸.

[Machell's Notes: I.231]

*{devenit in manus domini Henrici Regis senioris i.e. H. 2. Sic dicti quia Henricus filius sicut coronari fecit ipso vivente. See cart. antique Machellorum gen[ealogiam] Regum.}[539]
†See allso my MS VI. 57.[540]

---

[533] Machell placed the sketch of Appleby Castle on I.57, but the description begins on I.231.
[534] Comparison with N&B1 267-291 demonstrates their (often unacknowledged) debt to the fruits of Machell's research.
[535] 'Through the transgression committed by Hugh de Morville.'
[536] MS: 'This Hugh I take to be one of those ~~who was the death of~~ \ Knights or Lords who killd / Thomas à Becket \ in the time of Henry 2. father of King ~~John~~ Richard & King John: / But what this particular transgression was, which occasion the forfature, is ~~am yett to learne~~ \ not there mention.'
[537] MS: 'But what they were akin to Hew de Morvil I cannot tell \ do not know; / nor is {materiall} (~~at this time~~, ~~since~~ that family ~~is~~ \being / soe long ~~since agoe~~ \ since / extinct) ~~very much materiall~~.'
[538] Murton.
[539] 'It came into the hands of Lord Henry the King, senior, i.e. H.2. so called because his son Henry made as if to be crowned while he himself was living. See the genealogy of kings in the Machell family archives.'
[540] MS.VI.57 is a page copied from John Denton's History of Cumberland, which relates a tale (told by a monk) regarding Ada, the mother of Sir Hugh Morvill, 'that in th'old age of her husband she grew enamoured of one Lyolph, a young Gentleman that served her husband…' Another reference to Thomas Becket and his nemesis, Hugh de Morville, appears on VI.211.

‡{c. de Hac dubitatur in genealogia præcedenti Vipontiorum.}[541]
⸸{sed hoc paru[m]}[542]

[Further Notes on the Morvills]

[I.183B]

{The Inhabitants [and] other things remarkeable}
The first that I meet with, whose seat this was, is one [blank] de Morvill, who upon some fault (but which that was I know not) did forfeit the same. This Morvill is an ancient name, but long since extinct […][543]

[I.230]

See more of the Morvills & of Hugh in particular in the Barony of Brough in Cumberland & the pedigree, MS Part 1, p.22.
Of the Morvills: See a gen[ealogy] MS VI p.143. Hugh. Rich. Rob. vic Westmorland ibid 116. Et alia Genealogia p.56. See in Bampton parish hoc libro Patricius, Son of Thomas, Lord of the manner of Hep, conveys to John de Morevilla &c. – all his lands at Knype. s.d. for 4 iron arrows at St Laurence faire, at Apleby.[544]

[I.231]

{Morvill of Cheshire: or; 3 bores heads; couped Azur. MS Φ penes Mr Sheldon de [blank] in com Warwick sed dub an ead[em] f?}[545]

[I.231]

{Vipont}

After the extirpation of the Morvils, this castle became the seat of the Viponts (which family continued for 5 generations), being first bestowed upon Robert de Veteriponte, together with the shirievalty of Westmorlandand all the tenants of the Honour of Apleby & Brough, which were to bee sibi intendentes tanquam balivo,[546] i.e. to do service to him as to their Shireve. But this was only quamdiu placuerit: during the good will and pleasure of the King; yet I finde the same confirmed ~~u~~to him \ & his heirs afterwards / upon his marriage with that noble lady Idonea de Buly, together with the rents and services of all the Kings tenents in Westm'land who did \ not / hold of the Crowne in capite, Anno Reg. Joh[n] 5^0 [1203-04], the words of which grant \ being in Latin / are to this effect:

Iohannes Dei Gratia Rex &c. John, by the Grace of God, King of England &c., Lord of Ireland, Duke of Normandy, & Earle of Anjoie: to all Archbishops, Bishops, Abbots and Earles, Barons, Judges, Shireues, Provosts, Ministers, and to all Balifes and other his faithfull subjects, sendeth greating. Know yee that wee have given and by this our present charter doe confirme unto our well beloved Robert de Veteriponte.

[I.233]

1st Generation Apleby Castle

{1. Robert de Veteriponte: his Honour, dig[nity] & preferments*}
Robert de Veteriponte the first of that name; who was Lord of the Honour of Apleby & Burgh, Baron of Westmorland & High Shireve by inheritance, was a man of very great parts & imployments for he was Shireve of 11 severall countyes \ in England / besides this of Westm'land, in the reigne of, as [541] 'Doubt is cast on this in the preceding genealogy of the Viponts.'

[542] 'But this argument is too weak.'
[543] Some of this margin comment has perished.
[544] See also I.609: Long Marton Parish.
[545] 'But I doubt whether this is the same family.' Ralf Sheldon (1623-84) of Weston in Warwickshire was a Royalist and antiquary who compiled a folio manuscript: 'Catalogue of the nobility of England since the Norman Conquest according to theire severall Creations by every particular King'. See 'Catalogue of the nobility of England', GBR/0012/MS Add.8138. Cambridge University Library. https://archivesearch.lib.cam.ac.uk/repositories/2/resources/7499. See also, Ruth Scurr, John Aubrey: My Own Life (London, 2015), xix.
[546] 'Who were to look to him as to a bailiff.'

appears è magno rotulo pipae:[547] viz. of Buckingam, Bedford, Nottingham and Darbyscire in the 8. & 9. of King John [1206-08]; Cumberland 11 ejusdem; Wiltescyre & Devonscire 12; Buckingam, Bedford, Everwick (i.e. Warwick) Scyre,[548] Devonscyre, Wiltescyre 13 ejusdem; Wiltescyre 14 & 15 ejusdem; Buckingam & Bedfordscyre 17 ejusdem.[549] He was allso High Shireve at Cane in Normandy, as appears by this ~~special mandamus of King John~~ evidence in the tower (Cart. et libertat. de Anno 5^0 John [1203-04] membranis $7^{a.}$) Robertus de Veteriponte habet literas patentes omnibus de vicecomitatu […][550] directas quod sint eidem Roberto intendentes, tanquam vicecomiti et Balivo suo.[551]

And he was att last imployd as judge of Assise and satt in Commission att York Anno 3. Henry 3. October, St Andrew Apostle [1218],[552] together with Martin de Paterhull, clerke, & others, whence may take notices that in those times the clergie were judges (in recept scaccarij).[553] And he was tam marte quam mercurio peritus,[554] for in the 5th of King John the said king comited to his charge the custody of Winsor Castle; in the 6., the towne and castle of Salisburie; and had the custody of the kings owne nece comited unto him: 16. of King John and the 17. of King John [1214-16]. The Castle of Carlile by vertue of speciall mandamus to Radulphus de la Ferte then Constable of Carlile, date from Darelington 7 January†. And that so brave a man may not be aspersed with so horrid an act as the murther of a prince of royal blood (which some cronologers would fix upon him) I mean of Arthur Earle of Briton; I would have the reader take notice that tho this Robert was a great favorite of King Johns who procured that murther; yett Ralph de Diceto an eminent author and Dean of St Pauls, does possitively declare that it was don by Peter Maule {Petrus de Malo lacu} squire to King John, on whome he bestowed by way of reward the Barony of Mulgrane.[555]

{2. His Descent}
This Robert de Veteripont descended of a noble family of Normandy in Fraunce, who were Lords of Curuavill, being younger brother to Sir Ivo de Veteriponte. And \ then / were sons of William de Veteripont (which William or his father or his father came in with the Conquerour) & Matilda, daughter & cho[sen] heire of Hugh de Morevilla of Kirkuswald in Cumberland & of the Honour of Kaisbrugh in Yorkeshire, whose other daughter was Ada, wife to {Thomas Muleton and after to ~~Rich~~ Lucy}

[Machell's Notes: I.233]

*{N.B. Guillaum\e/ de Vepont is one in the catalogue of noblemen, lords & gentlemen that came in with the Conqueror.}
†He was allso governour of Bowes Castle in Yorkshire and one of those tooke the † in the Holy Land.

[547] 'From a great pipe-roll.'
[548] Everwick is one of the ancient names of York: see F.W. Moorman, The Place-Names of the West Riding of Yorkshire, Thoresby Society (Leeds, 1910), i.
[549] Ejusdem: 'of the same.'
[550] Here, an unclear Latin word has not been transcribed.
[551] 'Robert de Veteripont has letters patent directed to all concerning the shrievalty […] that they should be obedient to the same Robert in all matters, just as to a sheriff and his bailiff.'
[552] The Feast of St Andrew the Apostle is celebrated on 30 November (just after the beginning of Henry III's regnal year).
[553] 'In the accounts of the Treasury.'
[554] 'He was as skilled in war as in business.'
[555] Prince Arthur died in c.1203. Ralph de Diceto (d.1199/1200), chronicler, ecclesiastic and dean of St Paul's from 1180, was the author of two well-regarded chronicles: the Abbreviationes Chronicorum (world history to 1147) and the Ymagines historiarum. The latter begins with the knighting of the future Henry II in 1149, and though the chronicle continues to 1202, it has been argued that Diceto died either in 1199 or 1200, and that the section dealing with events after the coronation of King John (on 27 May 1199) is the work of a continuator. Diceto's chronicles were first printed in 1652, in the Historiae Anglicanae scriptores X of Roger Twysden and John Selden. See J. Mason, 'Diceto, Ralph de (d. 1199/1200)'. ODNB.

[I.234]

{3. His Armes}
{He was contemporary with King John but when borne it seems that Meborne was her inheritance, for she had the dysposeing of that on widowhood ½ a ploughland whereof she gave to Christian, her daughter & her husband, when Christian was sister […][556]
His armes then as appears by his Seale, were a lyon passant} with a coronet upon his head ~~as is here expressed~~ and his brother Sir Ivos was a lyon passant but without a crowne. So that I suppose the ancient armes of the Viponts were a lyon passant, and that the coronet was added upon the advancement and promotion of Robert de Veteripont to his honours and dignityes for he had not onely those places and posesions I have hitherto spoke of but his brothers allso \ which were the Castle of Mou[n]sorrel / by reason of his sideing with King Johns enemyes as appear from this evidence: E. Tur London[557] Rotulo Clauso Anno 1[0] Regis H.3 [1216-17] membrane 19.

> Rex Vicecomiti Lece: salutem. Precipimus tibi quod plenam sei[sin]a[m] here[ditariam] facias Roberto de Veteriponte de omnibus terris quae fuerunt Ivonis de Veteriponte fratris sui in Baliva tua, quae est cum inimicis nostris, quas ei concessimus quam diu nobis placuerit.[558]

From all which it may appear that tho Robert was the younger brother, yett he was become the better gentleman, and therefore might bear the better armes. But for more satisfaction I will present you with both their seales as they came to my hands in ancient evidences now in the possession of Mr Blenkinsop, and relate to Shap Abby, the 1st where of is Ivos & the 2nd Roberts.[559]

Howbe it, tho this was there bearing then, yet not long after (by what occasion I know not) their armes wer changed, for I finde, that ~~Robert~~ \ John / son of this Robert, bore annulets. And the coat which is now owned by his posterity descended from him bear for their Coat \ is this, viz. / in a field Gules, 6 annulets Or.

Figure 1.1.21. 'In a field Gules, 6 annulets Or'. I.234.

[I.235]

{4. His wife; her Armes; her descent & indowment}[560]
John de Bulye Lord of the Honour of Great Tickhil in Yorkeshire, which John was son & heire of Richard de Bulye, Lord of ~~Tgh~~Tickill & founder & Patrone of the Abby att Roch and priory of Blith in those parts, by Cicely, daughter and heir of William Bussy, son of William Bussy, from the affinity of which 2 names arrises the mistake of Idoneas name being Bulye alias Bussy. Whereas nothing is more evident than they are 2 distinct familyes. And for Bulye I am apt to believ that sirname arose from Buly Castle in Westmorland, for that I finde this family had lands &c. in Appleby in the 20 \ yeer / of William the Conqueror [1085-1086]. And Buly Castle is in the same parish.[561]

---

[556] The rest of this sentence is obscured by the binding.
[557] The following has been removed from the body text, MS: '~~Claus 17 Johs mem XI Rex dedit Roberto de Veteriponte~~ …~~Leceshire~~'.
[558] 'The king to his Sheriff greetings: 'We have enjoined upon you that you give full hereditary possession to Robert de Veteripont of all the lands which were of Ivo de Veteripont his brother in your bailiwick, which is with our enemies, which we have granted to him for as long as shall please us.'
[559] Here follows a gap of 7½cm (presumably for the seals).
[560] MS: '~~Robert de Veteripont tooke to wife Idonea, daughter and heir of~~', has been removed from the body text.
[561] MS: '~~By this Idonea de Buly he had the Honour and mannour of Tikill in Yorkshire with other greate possesions~~', has been removed from the body text.

1. Robert de Veteripont married Idonea de Bulye, who brought unto him the Honour of Tickill in Yorkshire, with other great possesions, and they gave a yearly rente of 10s or a colt of that price to the Abby of Bega the Virgin in Cumberland, payable on St Lawrence Day.

{Her Armes}
2. She was daughter & heir of John de Bulye, Lord of the Honour &c. ut super.
The seale of ~~John~~ \ Rich[ard] / de Buly, whence the Armes of Bulyes is taken, is in this manner:

Figure 1.1.22. 'Richard de Buly … Gules, a primrose, Or, pierced of the field.' 1.235.

And there armes being in colours are blazon'd thus: viz. Gules, a primrose, Or, pierced of the field.

{His death; his wifes death}
Robert dyed about the 12. of Henry 3[d] [1227-28] and was buried in the Midle Temple in Flet Street, London, to the brethren whereof he gave his moity of the manner of Wycum, now Wickham in Buckingam Shire. & Idonea his widow about 7 years after, \ in / the 19[th] yere of the said King Henry, and was buried att Rupe ~~alias~~ \ now / Roch Abby in Yorkshire – which her grandfather founded, to which place allso she gave much land. He was 24 yeres shireue of Westmorland \ and dyed 12. Henry 3[d] [1227-28]. / She dyed the 19. of Henry 3. [1234-35], injoying the land of Westm'land.

The[y] had Isue
1. John, of whome in the next §
2. Christian, who was marryed to Thomas, the son of \ William the son of Ralph Fitz Ralphe / {their Isue} Baron of Graystock in the county of Cumberland, whose armes were barres of 6, Argent & Azure, 3 chaplets of roses Gules.

[I.236]

2. Gener[ation]

{His Honour & Dignity}
1. John de Veteriponte, son & heire to Robert de Veteriponte & Idonea, his wife, was the 2 Lord of the Honour of Apleby, Baron of Westm'land, & shireue by inheritance; but not of the Castle, honour and manner of Tickill, for that his father and mother in their lifetime had passed that away by fine to Alice, Countiss of Ewe in the 6 yere of the reign of Henry, son of King John [1221-1222]. Except 6 Knights fees & a halfe \ viz. / which they formerly held of the said Countiss and her heires forever doeing therefore one knights service (i.e. forrane service of one knight onely) and noe more*.

Figure 1.1.23. Seal of John de Veteripont. IV.31.

(ad 1.) It seems to me that he was borne in Apleby Castle and brought up there, for those 2 oxgangs of land in Apleby which he gives to Norman \ de / Redman ar expressed to be the same that Sibilla nutrix tenuit,[562] which Sibil his nurse lately injoyed, to which deed \ s.d. / amongst others John Mauchael is a witness. And those lands as we shall show hereafter were in Bongate ~~in Apleby~~ which shows planely that then they were all one and generally called by the name of Apleby. And I do not dout that Appleby Castle was for the most part the place of residence, not only to the Viponts but the Cliffords after them; for Brough, which is the next principal house, we finde ab initio[563] governd by a Constable, which Appleby was never, exept when by forfature it belongd to the king.[564]

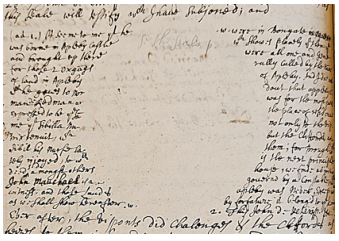

Figure 1.1.24. Space for the Veteripont seal, containing the pencilled words, 'Se the seale'. I.236.

{His Armes}
2. This John de Veteripont bore for his Armes, [blank] annulets, as this seale will testify, which I have subjoined,[565] and ever after, the Viponts did chalenges & the Cliffords as heires to them in succeeding aiges quartered in their Coate.[566] In a field, Gules, 6 annuletts, Or, as before is expressed.

{His Wife. Tur. L. Esc: 12. Ed. 1. n^0 17}
3. He marryed Sibilla, daughter to (Williamo Comiti de Ferrarijs) William, Earle Ferrars, afterwards, as is thought by some, Earle allso of Derby, whose armes were Argent 6 horse-shoes Sable[567] (porc. Or) {to have bin buryed in Shap abby in Westmorland, to which he and his father were great benefactors.}
4. He dyed about the 26. of Henry 3^d [1241-42], very yong as is thought, and lived 12 or 14 yeres Lord of Westm'land. His wife Sibilla marryed afterwards to Francis de Bohune, Lord of Midhurst in Sussex who founded Cowdry House there.

They had Isue:
5. Robert de Veteriponte of whome in the next §.

[Machell's Notes: I.236]
*{Viz. Malteby, Sandbeck, Kimberworth, Scauseby, Faldam, Standford upon Sore, Peverelthorp, Brodesworth and Torlakeston.}

[I.237]

3. Vipont

{His Honour & Descent}

[562] 'Sibilla, his nurse, held.'
[563] 'From the beginning'.
[564] MS: '{~~This John was the patrone of the Viponts of the Rectory of K ... as by the Deed of Adam, son of Waldeue. Reg. MS part 5, fol.19~~}' has been removed from the body text.
[565] See the Figure above: the shape meant for the seal but left blank.
[566] MS: '2. This John de Veteriponte &c. – 2. Ever after, the Viponts did chalenges & the Cliffords as heires to them in succeeding aiges quartered in their Coate.'
[567] MS: 'Earle allso of Derby, ~~which Sibil after the death of her~~ whose armes were argent 6 horse-shoes sable.'

Robert de Veteripont, son & heire of John de Veteripont & Sibilla, his wife, was 3[d] Lord of the Honour of Apleby, Baron of Westm'land & hereditary Shireve of the same. But being left very young by reason of his fathers so early death, he was a long time Ward to the King, and in the custody of the Prior of Carlile, who tho a man of a Religiouse Order, yett it should seme had not overmuch honesty \ in this affair / for he ~~sufered~~ \ permitted / very great waistes to be made in his ~~wods~~ estate, suffering his houses not only at Appleby, as has bin said, but att other places allso, which hereafter shall be showne to goe to decay, his game destroyd and woods cutt downe, as was made manifest upon inquisition. This Robert de Veteripont, after he came to full yeres was one of those who sided with Montfort, Earl of Leicester \ & Humph. de Bohun / with other Lords & Barons against King Henry 3[d], who being assembled together answered unanimously for themselves and their followers that they would to their lives end keep the provisoes to which they were bound by oath, and defend the same because the[y] were published and confirmed both for the benefit of King and Kingdome. Upon which account his estate became afterwards forfeit. His armes as before*.

{His wife; her dignity; descent and armes}
He tooke to wife Isabella Fits-Peter, 2[nd] sister and afterwards one of the coheires of Richard Fits Peter, son of John Fits Peter, alias Fits-Geofray, Baron of Barkhamsteed[568] & Chief Justice of England, whome I take to be son of G. Fil. P. with whose name, after the king, the first grant of Westm'land to the Viponts doth begin†. And from his \ son / they tooke the sirname of Fits Geofray, as they did from himselfe the name of Fits Peter,[569] because the name of his father was Peter; and the sirnames of Fits-William & Fitz-Herbert \ & others the like / have first bin begun upon the like account. The armes of this family will best appear from the seale of Richard Fitz John (or the son of John) as it is extant in Baron Hatons booke of seales, which is annexed to a writeing dated the 9 Edward 1.[570] Whence they beare for their armes Quarterly Or & Gules a border varrey, Azure & Argent.

Figure 1.1.25. Seal of Richard Fitz John. I.237.

{His death: he dyed &c. & left behind him}
Robert de Veteripont dyed about the 49[th] of Henry 3. [1264-65], haveing received his death wound at one of the batles, either of Lewis in Sussex, or Evesham in Worcestershire; and after his death King Henry sesed upon all his lands, but in the 50th year of his reigne restored them agane unto his children. When his wife dyed is not knowne, but likely before him. 23 yere Lord of Westm'land.

[Machell's Notes: I.237]
*{This Robert being the second patrone of K: of this family, endowed the chaple of Milburne, or rather provide a chaplaine for it, by iiii markes per annum out of his cornage rents – ~~to Shap Ab~~ given to Shap Abby: see my MS; part. 5, pag. 45.}
†{G. F. P. was Earl of Essex, Lord Luggersal Castle & L[ord] Chief Justice of England, who was made Earl of Essex in right of his wife at the coronation of King John. To him Jon was son. Isabel grandchilde.}

[568] MS: 'Fits-Geofray ~~who was son of Geofray~~ Baron of Barkhamsteed.'
[569] MS: 'as they did from his~~m~~ ~~father~~ \ selfe / the name of Fits Peter.'
[570] Christopher Hatton, 1st Baron Hatton (1605-1670) was a royalist and politician. A noted antiquary, he was a founder of the Royal Society in 1663. In the 1640s, with William Dugdale and others, he compiled a Book of Seals, a volume of 529 medieval charters, of which 240 are reproduced in facsimile. A modern edition, Sir Christopher Hatton's Book of Seals, was edited by Lewis C. Loyd and Doris M. Stenton (Oxford,1950). For Dugdale and Hatton's work on seals, see L.J. Whatley (ed.), A Companion to Seals in the Middle Ages (Leiden, Boston, 2019), 148.

[I.238]

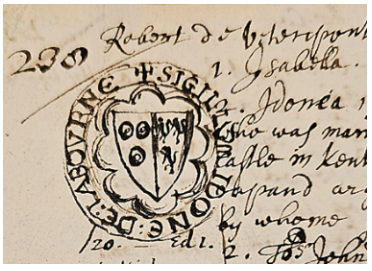

Figure 1.1.26. Veteripont Seal. I.238.

Robert de Veteripont, by Sibilla his wife, had Isue: 2 daughters,[571]
1. Isabella, of whome in the next §.
2. Idonea, sometimes called Ivetta in ancient writeings \ as Maud ~~for~~ Matilda / yett the same, who was married:

1. To Roger de Labourne, Baron of Labourn Castle in Kent, whose Armes were Azure 6 lyoncells rampand Argent \ 3 2 / lingued membred & armed Gules, by whome she had Isue: John, who dyed an infant.
2. To Sir John de Crumwell* who outlived her, but had noe Isue by her†.

{Her Honour, Descent and Welth}
1. Isabell de Veteriponte was the elder daughter and coheire to Robert de Veteriponte by Sibilla his wife, and was restored together with her sister to their fathers inheritance about the 50th yere of King Henry 3 [1266-67] at which time she was not much above 10 yeres old and her sister younger by 6 or 7 yeres; so that by reason of their nonage the king had them in wardship and committed them to the custody of 2 great men: Roger de Clifford & Roger de Labourne, who marryed them after they came to yeres to their owne sons & heires. The Isabell being the elder daughter in the partition of their lands in Westm'land had Apleby Castle with the office of shireve; which office was executed by her gardian Roger de Clifford; and the other had the Castles of Brough & Mallerstang with the land adjacente which were mannaged ~~by the care of~~ Rodger de Labourne; and it was allso ordered that the rent in generall should be collected by the respective Balives and carryed by them to the Exchequer of Apleby where they should be distributed by equall proportions. This was about the 52 yere of Henry 3 [1267-68]. But in the 4 yere of Edward the 1st [1275-76] was a more particular partition out of which I will onely take notice of the names of those who are mentioned in the knights fees because the estate was united agane not very long after and I hope will not be thought alltogether impertinent because it may be a step to the discovery of some ancient familes and distinguish them from others of a later date; and forr methods sake I shall digest them into an Alphabetical order.

In Isabells Partition
Simon de Anvoy
Robert de Askeby
Robert de Bakun & Alis de Helton[572]
John de Bayliol
Thomas de Buett
Henry de Boyvill
John de Coupland
Radulph de Cundale
Henry de Engayne
Thomas de Ellerton

[571] MS. I.237: '{His Isue} They had Isue: 2 daughters onely: 1. Isabel borne 1234 and was when her father died of the aige of \ X / ii; 2. Ivetta borne 1262'. This has been removed from the body text.
[572] MS: 'Robert de Bakun & Alis de Helton … Robert de Bakun & Alis de.'

Robert de la Firrtre
John de Goldri[n]gton
Adam de Haverington
Michael de Hardclay
Alan de Kaberga
John Mauchaell
Thomas de Murton
William Moreton
Margaret Roos

[Machell's Notes: I.238]

*His armes were Argent, a chiefe Gul. Over all a bend Azure. He had a son, by a former wife, called Richard, but none by Idonea.
†She lived for the most part att Brough and Pendragon Castles, which were then in their prime, and she dyed in the 8. of Ed. 3. [1334-35] and was buryed as is thought at Shap Abby in Westmorland, by whose decease her lands in Westmorland descended and came to her sisters heire & grandchild, which was Robert, Lord Clifford of Westmorland. Note that it seems as yet the Viponts bare but 3 [annulets.][573] Note allso that in the woman's seale, her armes hold the first place. She was borne 1262, 45. or 6. Henry . and dyed 1333 or \ the 7. / 8. Ed. 3. bein 73 old.

[I.239]

In Idoneas partition these*
William de Suleby
John de Staffol
Hugo de Soureby
Walter de Tillia
Luca Talleboys
Thomas de Corewen
Robert de Engleys
William de Graystock
Hugo de Hastings
Thomas de Hellebeck
Galrid. Fil. Henrici
Richard de Musegrave
Tenentes Terrarum Re
Reginaldi de Maundermander
Henry de Reddinger
Richard de Sandford
John de Vesa & Robert de la Vale
Richard de Warcop

And now to returne to our business agane
Isabell Vipont the elder sister, was about 14 or 15 yeres of aige married to Roger de Clifford of whome wee shall speake more att large hereafter; which husband she outlived and which is rare for a woman to performe. She satt in court and managed the office of Shireve in person when she was a widow, being present att tryalls upon life and death. And here wee will lieve her till wee have occasion to mention her agane amongst the Cliffords, the next noble family that have placed themselves here†.

Of the Cliffords[574]

[Ist Generation]
{Roger de Clifford}
{1. His Honour, dignity, preferment & Inheritance, acts and monuments}

[573] Machell drew the symbol of an annulet from the coate of arms.
[574] N&B1 reproduces Machell's Clifford family history in the same format, using similar wording, see 274-90.

The 1st of the name of Clifford that came \ to / be seated here was Roger de Clifford sirnamed The Younger by reason of his father who[575] was Roger also, being co[n]temporary with him; for he outlived his son 5 yeres. Both he and his father were chief commanders for 20 yeres together in the warrs of England, Ireland and France in the reignes of King Henry 3 & Edward 1. & yett Roger the Younger lived not about 48 yeres, being slane in the Ile of Anglesey \ in Wales in the Kings service aganst the Welsh / so that you may se by this he was a man of early parts being trusted with such command att or about 28 yeres of aige. His paternall inheritance was the mannour of Temedbury, which is part in Worcestershire part in Herefordshire, but his estate was fairly augmented by the donation of King Henry the 3rd who gave to this Roger the Younger March 8. Anno ejus reg. 48. [1264] 100 marcs in land cum pertinentijs in the Vale of Munmoth by the service of one Knights foe; the former whereof continued in his name & family till the reigne of Queen Elizabeth, att which time it was sold by Henry Lord Clifford, Earl of Cumberland. But the other was restord agane to the Crowne in exchange for Skipton Castle as hereafter shall be shown. But the gratest advancement \ of estate / and Honour ~~came to him and his heires~~ was brought unto him by the marriage of his wife ~~whose~~ I mean the Honour of Appleby, Barony of Westmorland and hereditary shirevewick &c. And \ with / many fair possesions and lands which continued in the heires male 326 yeres exce[p]t some interuptions by Attainder in Blood occasiond through greatness and turbulency of state, which notwithstanding was never so hanous but it did admit of a restauration and became more formd,

[Machell's Notes: I.239]

*{See p. 33 of my Collections.}

†{There was one Willielmus de Veteriponte, Anglice Veipont: A Scottish Baron, and of those who sore to se the performance of Covenant of Peace kept on the Scottish side with King Henry 3, and was one of those who together with the king put to their seales. Anno 1244.}

[I.240]

and (as members in the body) became more firme for being disjointed. For by this means it hapned that all former grants were confirmed and established by Act of Parliament on the Cliffords of Westm'land and their heires forever. This Roger was hee who built the greatest part of Browham castle in Westm'land, which is now a princely house as most castles in England. Over the inner door of which castle he has placed this inscription in a [blank] character: 'This mad[e] Roger': which some would have to be understood not so much of his rasing the castle as of the castles raiseing of him; alludeing to the great avancement of fortune which came unto him by the marriage of his wife, this castle being part of her inheritance; which interpretation I shall not reject but should more have applauded it if ~~had~~ the letters had bin writt upon Apleby Castle which is the Capitale Messuagium[576] to which Browham Castle doth peculiarly belong. And truly I am of opinion that it was not very habitable and fitt for reception before thus augmented and inlarged by Lord Clifford. For in King John grant wee hear nothing of it being then included inter pertinentia.[577] And the first notice I mete with that was taken of it was in the time [blank] de Veteripont dureing whose wardship it went much to decay. So that till Roger de Clifford it may rather seem to have bin a castle of defence than of habitation; which Roger built a great part thereof and the greatest tower save that called the Pagans which was built by the Romanes: lib. 2 p.47.

{2. His Descent}

This Roger de Clifford descended from a noble family of the Cliffords of Clifford C[astle] in Hereford Shire, from which castle they had that sirname. And the castle (built by William Fitz Osborne Earl of Hereford but afterward possessed by the Tonyes) had its name from being placed upon a rock or cliffe nearby a ford upon the river Wy; and thence it was called Cliff Forde-Castle.[578] It appeares by ancient writeing and pedegrees that before the comeing to Clifford Castle ther sirname was Pons and that they were of Norman extraction. For this Roger descended of a second son of Walter de Clifford, son of Walter de Clifford (and Margaret de Tony his wife by whom he had [575] MS: 'whose'.

[576] The chief house on an estate; the mansion-house of a manor.
[577] 'Among the appurtenances.'
[578] MS: 'and thence it was called Cliff~~ord~~ Forde-Castle.'

Clifford Castle) which Walter (the first that assumed the sirname of Clifford) was son to Richard Fitz Punt, son of William, Earl of Argues in Normandy, second son of Richard Duke of Normandy sirnamed Ponz.[579]

[Machell's Notes: I.240]

{Gat of Tailleurs Cron of Normandy; Osmond \ Seig. / du Pont came in with the Conqueror and so did [blank]. And Cifford mentiond in Battle Abby.[580] I finde Drogo filius Ponzten in Wiltescire. Domesdaie Book. Item. Walter[us] Ponz in Oxenfordscire.}

[I.241]

And now*

{*This may be red too.}

Walter de Clifford, Clifford of Clifford Castle, was father to the fair but unfortunate Rosamond, whose grave stone I have seen att Godstow in Oxfordshire, to which place her father became a benefactor after her decease. And from her descended (by King Henry 2.) the family of the Longspees, Earl of Salisburie, whose grandson Will came to be marryed unto Maud daughter & sole heir of Walter de Clifford, which Walter was grandchild to Walter the first: father of Rosamond; and they had a daughter only whose name was Margarett, so that this match putt a period to both those families in the direct line.[581] Howbeit, there remaned of the Cliffords who were collaterall and younger brothers, for Richard, 2nd son unto Walter \ de Clifford / by Marg\rett / Tony, rased a florishing family of the Cliffords de Frampton in the Cou[n]tye of Glocester who possessed their lands there for 15 or 16 generations till they came to a daughter and heir whose name was Mary; and she dyed without Isue. And Roger de Clifford, 2nd son of Walter, son of Walter the 1st by Sibilla daughter and heir of Robert de Ewias Lord and Baron of Ewias in the County of Hereford, raised this other family \ of which I am treating / whose descent I shall ~~follow~~ \ trace / in my following discourse. But I shall note as concerneing there Armes that all the Cliffords hitherto spoken bare chequi Or & Azure, a bend Gules, which Coat is different from the Cliffords of Westmorland. An before I proceed you must allso \ and now for the clearer proofe of his descent from Cliffords ~~Castle~~ of Clifford, I shall / ~~so~~ present you with this account concerning his ancestours ~~marages~~, which is briefly as followeth.[582]

1. Walter de Clifford, 1st Lord Clifford of Clifford Castle by right of his wife, bare for his Armes[583] a shield chequie Or & Azure, a bend Gules. Hee marryed Margarett, daughter of Ralph de Tony Lord of Clifford Castle whose armes were Argent, a maunch Gules. The[y] had J. Walt? \ Richard, of whome the Cliffords of Frampton, a florishing family there for 15 generations; & Rosamond whome / {Longspes Earl of Salisburie, whose armes were Azure 6 lyonsells Or, rampant.}

2. Walter de Clifford, 2nd of Clifford Castle, bare the same Armes with h. f. He marryed Agnes, daughter and heir of Roger de Cundy Lord of Covenby & Gletham, whose Armes were Argent, a fess between 3 martlett Gules.[584] And amongst other children they had Walter the eldest & Rodger, their second son†.

---

[579] This is followed by, MS: 'And ~~this Walter de Clifford of Clifford Castle had Ros & Richard~~', now removed from the body text.

[580] The Chronicles of Normandie, supposedly written by William Tailleur, were included in John Hooker's edition of ['Holinshed's] Chronicles … first collected and published by Raphaell Holinshed, William Harrison, and others: now newlie augmented and continued (with manifold matters of singular note and worthie memorie) to the yeare 1586. by John Hooker aliàs Vowell Gent and others. With convenient tables at the end of these volumes (London, 1587). See in this work, 'The politike Conquest of William the first', page 2, which lists 'The Catalog of such Noble men, Lords, and Gentle|men of name, as came into this land with William the Conquerour', of whom Osmond Seigneur du Pont was one; Clifford's name appears on p.4, in 'The roll of Battell abbeie'.

[581] MS: '~~And Margarett being marryed to Henry de Lacy Earle Lincoln~~' has been removed from the body text.

[582] This passage has been difficult to transcribe with complete accuracy.

[583] A small roundel image follows here.

[584] Martlet: heraldic swallow, see the English Glossary.

3. Roger, 2nd son of Walter second Lord Clifford bare the armes of his father and tooke to his first wife Sibilla daughter & heire of Robert de Ewias, Lord and Baron of Ewias Castle in Herefordshire (and widow to the Lord Robert Tregos), who bare Argent, a fess Gules, between 3 stares of 6 points Sable; by whome he had Isue Roger de Clifford the younger, first Clifford of Westmorland, of whome hereafter; and after her decease he tooke to wife the Countess of Lorane, whose armes were Gules a fess Argent betwen cross billets \ Or / 3 & 2, 3 & 2. But what Isue he had by her or whether he had any is not the subject of my enquirie for I must haisten to Roger de Clifford, 1st Clifford of Westm'land.

{His Armes}
4. Which Roger de Clifford bare for his Armes on a shield chequie Or and Azure, a fess Gules, which is an alteration from the Coat of his father and all his ancestours who insteed of a fess bare a bend. But noe way disgracefull, for the fesse is properly Cingulum Honoris, the girdle of honour, and therefor may seem to have bin placed here upon some good account.

[Machell's Notes: I.241]

*{Here I might bring in Rosamond and her family better and omit it as befor.}
†{Which Walter \ the last h[eir] male / Lady of Cantresdif, Inquis[ition] 56. Henry 3. [1271-72] whose armes were Azure a lyon rampant in amongst cross crosletts of the 2nd and had Isue: Maud, marryed to William Longspe, Earl of Salisburie, whose Armes were Azure 6 lyonsells rampant Or; who was great grandchild to Rosamond Clifford the fair but unfortunate, by King Henry 2. Which Rosamond was daughter of the 1st Walter, Lord of Clifford Castle.}

[I.242]

{His wife: her Honour, Welth and Acts and Armes}
He tooke for wife Isabell de Veteripont, elder daughter and one of the coheirs of Robert de Veteripont, Lord of the Honour of Apleby, Baron of Westmorland and High Sherive of Westmorland, when she was about 14 or 15 yeres old; till which time she was Ward to his father by the free gif of King Henry 3. as a compensation of his worthy service; which Lady Isabell had the Honour of Apleby with the other titles and Honours by birth right, the younger sister onely shareing in the estate; and thence it was that dureing her minority the Office of Shireve was performed by Roger de Clifford, her husbands father, by her husband dureing his life time and by her selfe in person when she was a widow, as before has bin said. She was borne in 1254, about the 38. of King Henry the 3. and bare for her Armes the Coate of her father which is 6 annulets.[585]

{His and her death}
This Roger de Clifford dyed in the Kings service against the Welch as has bin said, 1282/3,[586] in the 11. of Edward 1. and was buried [blank]. And Isabell being then but 29 yeres of aige, yett lived a widow for 8 yeres after, and dyed in the 37th of her aige \ puto 20. Edward 1. [1291-92], / being buried as is supposed in the Abby of Shapp or Apleby Church, the Abby being within 6 miles of Appeby. And Appleby the most eminent place of \ her / inheritance & chief seat of her ancestours who together with her selfe were great benefactors to the said Abby.

{His and her Isue}
They had Isue: Robert of whome in the next § {Temp. Edward 1. Edward 2.}

2. Generation
{His Descent, Honour, Dignity, Preferment & acts}
Robert \ Clifford of Appelby / son & heire of Roger de Clifford & Isabel his wife, was borne in the yere 1274[587] about Easter; and that was in the 2nd yere of King Edward the first, being about 9 yeres old att his fathers death.

[585] Machell has written 'o' meaning 'annulets'.
[586] MS. '128.'
[587] The number '7' has been written over the number '2' to change 1274 to 1224.

{Acts}
He was Lord of the Honour of Apleby, Baron of Westmorland & High Sherieue by inheritance derived from his mother Isabell de Veteripont \ & Lord of the Honour of Skipton. / He was the greatest man of all this family, being of a most martiall and heroique spirit.

{Hollinshead}[588]
When he was about 20 and 3 yeres old – anno Edward 1. 25. [1296-97] he was made the Kings captane & keeper of the Marches in the North towards Scottland; and in the 24 or 25 of his aige he made an inroad into Scotland with a party of horse;

{Stows Cron.}[589]
and hee allso did diverse other times dureing the reigne of Edward 1. and was in particular sumonsed to come with his horse and armes unto Carliol against the Scotts 26. of September: anno ejusdem 26. [1297-98] teste rege apud Stayne Way;[590] in which service against the Scotts he att last lost his life. He was one of the 4 guardians appoynted by King Edward the 1st upon his death bed for Edward his son & successor, and was Justice of the Kings forrest on the north side Trent.

[I.243]

He was made Lord Admirall of England in the 1st yere of Edward 2. [1307-08], and Lord March allso about the same time. And in respect of his good and laudable service had the Honour of Skipton Castle in Craven in Yorkeshire with ~~the lands about & services thereto belonging~~ \ 100 li land / bestowed upon him; which 1st grant was for his life only in the 3. of Edward 2. [1309-10]; But was after confirmed to him and his heires for ever partly as favour and partly in ex change for certane lands in the Vale of Monmouth with the Towne & wood of Hodenake; The revertion being in the Crowne; which deed was dated att Notingha[m] the 1st of August in the 4th of his reigne [1310], & confirmed agane the 7th of Sep. in the same yere; Which lands of Monmoth were given to his father, Lord Roger de Clifford by King Edward 1. And hence it appears that Apleby Castle with theire other seats in Westmorland belonged to Cliffords before Scipton Castle, this Robert Clifford being the 1st that injoyed i[t]; & in his posterity it remanes to this day, being not only confirmed by these grants but by Act of Parliament. And is here to be noted that tho Skipton Castle had formerly bin the seat of the Earls of Albemarle till bestowed[591] upon him by King Edward the 2. Yett it owes all its ornaments to him; of whome it may be said as it was of Nero {?} concerning Roome: Invenit ~~mar mori~~ \ later /itium reliquitt Marmoriam.[592] He found a ruinous heap, but left it the most ellegant & beatifull pile att that time in England. I mean of its bigness for it conteines but 2 acres of ground. He had allso other lands conferd upon him, as Duglas in Scotland: and here in England, Alanby and Skelton by the rebellious forfaiture of Christofer de Seaton, son of John and Armina his wife.[593]

---

[588] Holinshed's Chronicles (1577, and later editions), often referred to as just 'Holinshed', is a large collaborative work describing England, Scotland, Ireland and their histories from their first inhabitation to the mid-16th century. In 1548 the London printer and bookseller Reyner (or Reginald) Wolfe decided to produce a universal history and cosmography (i.e. description and mapping) of the world. After Wolfe's death in 1573, his assistant Raphael Holinshed took over the project, involved more writers and restrained its scope to the British Isles. The Chronicles were first published in 1577 in a two-volume folio edition, illustrated with numerous woodcuts. After Holinshed's death in 1580, Abraham Fleming published the significantly expanded and revised second edition of 1587 in a larger folio format, this time without illustrations. See BL online. See also Machell's Notes: I.240, above.

[589] John Stow (152[5?]-1605), The chronicles of England from Brute unto this present yeare of Christ (1580).

[590] 'The king bearing witness [i.e. to his service] at the Steyne Way.'

[591] MS: 'bestwooed'.

[592] Machell was in error here; it was said of Augustus with regard to Rome, 'lateritium invenit, marmoream reliquit': he found it brick, and he left it marble. (See Suetonius, Lives of the Cæsars, Augustus, XXVIII, 3.)

[593] Sir Christopher Seton (c.1278-1306) landowner, was said to be twenty-one when he inherited his father's Yorkshire lands as well as property in Cumberland, where (c.1305), he married Christian Bruce, a daughter of Robert (VI) de Brus, earl of Carrick (1243-1304); Robert I was her brother. Caught up in the Scottish cause, Seton was captured by the English at Loch Doon Castle and executed by Edward I in 1306; Christian kept sacred Seton's sacrifice as late as 1324, when she founded a chapel in Dumfries to his memory. See F. Watson, 'Bruce, Christian (d.1356), noblewoman'. ODNB.

{His Armes}
He bare for his armes quarterly, as son & heire to his mother an heiress, Cliffords & Viponts. The 3 as the 2nd, and 4th as the first.

{His Wife; her Honour, Welth and Armes}
His wife was Maud de Clare, daughter of Thomas de Clare, Stuard of the Forrest of Essex, whose son dyed without Isue so that she became one of his coheres. And Thomas her father was younger brother of Gilbert de Clare, Earl of Glocester and Hereford, whose wife was Johan de Acres 1st of the daughters of King Edward the 1st, by whome he had a son named Gilbert, Earl of Glocester & Hereford slane in Sotland att the same time with Robert de Clifford, her Lord and Husband.
She had much land of in heritance in Ireland, being daughter to Maurice, Lord Justice of that nation, by Emilia Longspe, daughter of the Earle of Sarum, which Earle descended from Rosamond Clifford, as has bin said. She bare for her armes, Or, 3 cheveronells Gules.

[I.244]

{His & Her Death}
This Lord Robert de Clifford was slane att the great battle of Bannoxburne or Striveling in Scottland 24. of June 1314 bein Sunday (which was about the 7. or 8. of Edward 2.) aetates suiæ 40, and his dead body together with the body of Gilbert Earl of Glocester, his wives cosan German,[594] sent to King Edward 2. att Barwickt and were interred as is supposed, att the abby of Shap; but that place being demolished in Henry 8 dayes,we have noe monuments or certainty thereof.
The Lady Maud his wife out lived her husband & marryed agane about 4 yeres after to one Robert de Wells and dyed in the 1st of King Edward 3. one M thre C 20 & 7.[595]

& the Isue she had by Lord Robert de Clifford, were:
1. Roger de Clifford*, borne the 2nd of February 1292, who succeeded his father in his Lands and Honours \ being 6. High Sherive[596] / but was attainted of Treason 15 yere of King Edward 2. [1321-22], for adhereing to Thomas Earl of Lancaster; and was restored agane to his lands & Honours the 1 yere of King Edward the 3rd. but injoyed them not much above a mothe till he dyed unmarried \ and was buried as is supposed at Shap Abby / so that the Land & Honour descended and came to Robert de Clifford of whome in the next section.
2. Robert de Clifford of whome in the next section.
3. Idonea de Clifford, their onely daughter, who was married to Henry, Lord Piercy, and by him had Isue that Henry Lo[rd] Piercy who maryed Mary, daughter of He[n]ry Plataginet, Duke of Lancastre, and had Isue by her Henry Lord Piercy, first Earle of Northumberland, whose armes were quarterly 1. Or a lyon rampant Azure; 2. Gules 3 fishes Argent; the 3rd as the 2nd & 4. as the first: the first quarter whereof is the paternall Coate of the Piercyes: the 2. I take as to be Lucies, assumed by an heiress.

3rd Generation: Temp. Edward 1. Edward 2. Edward 3.
{His Descent, Honour, Acts & Armes}
Robert, 2 son of Robert by Maud de Clare was heire to his brother, and so by consequence Lord of the Honour of Apleby &c. He was ~~Borne about the 1 of Edward 2.~~ Baron of Westmorland and the 7th hereditary Shireue of the same. And third Lord of this family of the Honour of Skipton. He was borne on Friday, being All Saints Day, mensis November, 1305, being the 33. of Edward I.[597] And was Lord of the Honour of Apleby &c. Anno 1[0] Edward 3. 1327. He had great addition to his estate, about 1333, which hapned by the death of his great aunt Idonea de Veteripont, whome, as wee have said, was 1st marryed to Roger de Labourne;

[594] First cousin.
[595] 1327.
[596] The MS here contains an indistinct interlineated number which appears to claim that Roger de Clifford was '6 High Sherive.' See Machell's List of High Sheriffs, VI.592.
[597] MS: 'He was ~~Borne about about the 1. of Edward 2.~~ Baron of Westmorland and the 7th hereditary Shireue of the same. And third Lord of this family of the Honour of Skipton. He was borne ~~about one yere of Ed. 2.~~ on Friday, being All Saints Day, mens November, 1305, being the 33. of Edward I.'

and after that to John de Cromwell; but dyed without Isue after she had survived her father about 70 yeres, by reason of which the estate of the Viponts formerly divided, now became entire, and has so continued to this very day, February 9, 1675.

[Machell's Notes: I.244]

*{In Catalogo Marescallorum Angliae occurrit Roger de Clifford anno 1^0 Ed. 2. pat parte 1 membrane 19: è MS in 4^0, penes Mr Sheldon sic notatum.[598]
He had some base children by a mean woman calld Julian of the Bower, for whome he built a little house hard by Whinfel and calld it after her, the ~~lower~~ foundation of which is still to be seen. He was a martial man & of bold courage; for being ingaged in war against King Edward 2^{nd}, he caused a pursuivant which came to serve a writt of him from the said King, to eat the wax of seale in the Barons chamber at Apleby Castle.
{Alibi autem in eodem libro scribitur Rex commisit Roberto Clifford officium marescali (falso ni fallor). 1^0 Ed. 2.}[599]

[I.245]

After the death of his aunt, he tooke possesion of all the castles of the Viponts, his ancestours: viz, of Apleby, Brough, Pendraggon and Browham, which wer all of them honoured with the presence and reception of Edward Balioli, King of Scotland, in 1333, who \ came to visit /stayd here some time and tooke his divertion \ by hunting / amongst the gentery of this county of Westm'land. {See Hollingshead, who cites Southwell for his coming into Westm'land.} One monument whereof doth to this day remane in Whinfell called the Hart Horne Tree \ where he hunted a stagg to death &c. / ~~where up~~ on some extraordinary occurance, the dogg & bucks head were both naled up, as elsewhere shall be said, and some of the Hornes is yett planely to be seen*.

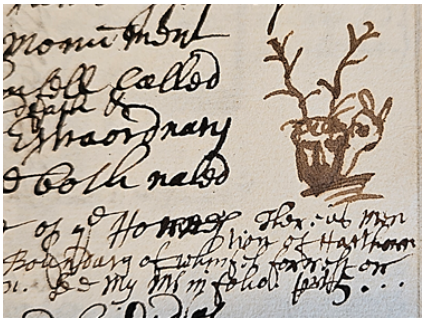

Figure 1.1.27. Margin sketch relating to animal heads hung on the Hart Horne Tree, Whinfell. I.245.

He livd for the most part a country life and builded (as is thought) some part of Skipton Castle in Craven. He accompanyed the Earle of Warwick and other Lords with an army into Scotland, which is all the relation I have mett with of him as to mertiall affaires. His armes were Clifford & Vipont quartered.

{His Wife, her Honour, Welth, Acts and Armes}†
Hee tooke to wife Isabella de Berkley, the onely daughter of Maurice, Lord Barkley, of Barkley Castle in the county of Glocester, and had for her portion (that you may se the moderation of those times, 1000^{li} & 50 marks, with a gowne of Cloth Brunoly {i.e. browne} scarlett & a furred cap with the best minever.[600] And for the Honour {?} of the said bride, her brother & sister & Lord Barkley and [598] Here Machell has provided a symbol. 'In the Catalogue of the Marshalls of England occurs Roger de Clifford, in the 1st year of King Ed. 2., patents, part 1, membrane 19 – from a manuscript in a quarto in the possession of Mr Sheldon, marked thus.' For Ralf Sheldon, see above, I.231.

[599] 'Elsewhere, however, in the same book it is written that the king entrusted to Robert Clifford the office of Marshall, but wrongly, unless I am mistaken. First of Edward II.' [1307-08]
[600] Minever: a kind of fur, now always plain white, used especially as a lining and trimming for ceremonial costumes and formerly in the making of certain kinds of hat. OED.

his laydy were attired in the like apparel, & the bride sadle cost 5^{li} at London. And all the lands of Skipton, with a great part of his lands in Westmorland, were ~~settl~~ enfeofed upon for her life time, the greatest joynture that ever was made to any lady matched into this family. Her armes were checkey Azure & Gules a cheveron Azure.[601]

{His and her death}
He dyed the 20th of May, being Ascention Day, 18. Edward 3. 1344, æatis suæ 30 or there abouts & possesed his estate 17 yeres‡ \ and was buried as is supposed att Shap Abby. / She out lived her husband & marryed agane about 2 yeres after his decease to Sir Thomas Musgrave, Knight, whome she left surviveing, Monday 25. of July Anno Edward 3. 36. \ being St James Day 1362. /

And the Isue which Lord Robert de Clifford left by her were
1. Robert de Clifford⸸ born 18. of November 1330, and was marryed in his fathers life time att 13 yeres of aige to Euphaemia, one of the daughters of Ralph Nevill, Lord of Midlam Castle in Yorkeshire and sister to Ralph, the first of that family that was created Earl of Westm'land‖, whose armes were Gule a saltier Argent charged in fess with a crescent[602] Sable. But he dyed about the 32 yere of his aige in France as is supposed (for after 16 yeres of aige he spent most of his time in the wars there) and left no Isue by her. {She was his cosan German}[603] She afterwards marryed to Sir Walter Hazlerton, & dyed the 18. of Richard 2.[604]

[Machell's Notes: I.245]
*{Ther is mention of Harthorn Sike in a boundary of Whinfel Forrest or the Warren. See my MS in folio part 5.}[605]
†{Mr Smith Record of Lord Barklay family: MS pen ipse.}
‡{He was sheriff in the 20: by Mr Sheldon MS.}
⸸{8 Shireve Her[editary] He had 12^{li} 14^{s} 8^{d} ob of Christopher Seatons lands, given by King Edward for his laudable service. Dated at Lanercost 15. October Reg. 34.}[606]
‖{Se an evidence about this espousal MS X capt e cartis apud Skipton anno Edward 3. Franc 4^{0} L[ib] penes Mr Sheldon.}

[I.246]

{Her[editary] Shireve}[607]
2. Roger Clifford, of whome in the next §. & 9[th] sherieve by inheritance after the death of his brother, was borne 8. of King Edward 3. 1333. He was counted to be one of wisest and gallantest men of all the Cliffords of his race, keeping him selfe fre from troubles in those trublesome times of latter end of King Edward 3., of whome he obteined 2 weekly markets and 2 fares for Kirkby Stephan: 1 before he was Lord. He was often in the wars, both in France & Scotland, & in that remarkable sea voyace when the Earl of Arundell went with a great army to aid & assist the Duke of Britanny against the French king.

3. Thomas, writt in records Sir Thomas de Clifford, who was cotemporary with his brother Roger, Lord Clifford and Thomas, his son, to whome he made over those lands which he held of his brother in the Lordship of Brough, for terme o yeres April the 7 in the 6. yere of King Richard 2nd, and his seale was the Cliffords armes with a mullet charged upon the fess. And about it was this inscription: SIGILLUM: THOME DE CLIFORD, with 2 florishes like the granes of a tree from the top of the shield to the inner line of the utmost circumference. He marryed and from him descended Richard de Clifford, bishop of Worcester and London, with his 2 brothers, Robert & William, who were all his grandchildren. And from him allso by a lineall descent, George Clifford Esquire, who was of the

[601] MS: 'checkey azure & gules / ~~gules a fess betwee~~n a cheveron Azure.'
[602] Here, Machell has drawn a crescent shape.
[603] First cousin.
[604] 1394-95.
[605] Machell introduced the hart horn tree in his Introductory chapter, see 2.476.
[606] 1360.
[607] 9th hereditary sheriff.

Green Wax office in 1652,[608] son of the elder brother of Sir Nicol Clifford, whose sole daughter, Frances, was married to Sir Edward Ascough of Southley in Lincolnshire.

4. Generation {Temp: Edward 3. & Richard 2.}

{His Descent, Honour, Acts and Armes}

Roger de Clifford, 2nd son of Lord Robert de Clifford and Isabell de Barkley, was by decease of his brother, Lord of the Honour of Apleby, Baron of Westmorland & 9 shierieve by inheritance; and Lord allso of the Honour of Skipton. He was borne in 8 of King Edward 3. 1333, and was accounted by persons of knowledge who \ have /redd concerneing him to be one of the wisest men of his time or family; a great evidence whereof [I] have, in his secureing himself from \ danger / distruction in those trublesome times of King Edward 3. about the latter end of the said kings reigne*. He was allso a person

[Machell's Notes I.246]

{Learned Antiq.: I have seen a pardon to Roger de Clifford de Westmorland, 15. Richard 2. which begins thus: Rex Dei Gratia Omnibus Balivis &c. salute. Sciatis quod ob reverentiam Dei, & ad specialem requisitam Annæ Reginæ Angliae, & consideratione &c. Pardon. MS penes Mr Sheldon.}[609] of much gallantry and valour, being often in the warrs both in France & Scottland, in particular in that remarkable sea voyage of the Earle of Arundell, when he transported a great army of soljers to aid and assist the Duke of Britany against the forces of the French king. He was publiq' spirited and a lover of building, for he tooke great care to repare his castles, the ancient seats of his noble progenitors. His seale was in this manner, as here expressed. I have seen a larger with a bend, with 3 draggons, 1. a crest and 2. as sup[o] \r/t\ers./

[I.247]

Figure 1.1.28. Seal of Roger de Clifford. 1.247.

{His Wife, her Honour, Acts and Armes}

Hee tooke to wife, Matilda or Maud Beauchamp, daughter of Thomas Earle of Warwick by Katherine his wife, who was daughter to Roger Mortimer 1st Earle of March, whose father and mother lye buried in Warwick Church in a fare tombe. And this match of his, amongst other their children is expressed by the Coate impaled in a glass window there. His being as ab[ove].

{Her Armes}

And hers Gules, a fess between 6 cross crosslets Or.

---

[608] Green Wax Office: An estreat was a copy of a court record for use in the enforcement of a fine, or forfeiture of a recognisance. Estreats were delivered by the Sheriffs to the Exchequer under a seal made in green wax, to be levied in the counties: Giles Jacob, A New Law Dictionary, GR.

[609] 'The King by Grace of God to all his Bailiffs etc. Greeting. Know ye that through reverence for God and at the special request of Anne Queen of England, after deliberation etc. Pardon. Evidence in the possession of Mr Sheldon.' [Anne, queen of England, was Anne of Bohemia (1366 – 1394), the first wife of Richard II.]

{Their Death}
He dyed the 13 day of July, anno 13. Richard 2. 1391, which was just 100 yeres after the death of his great grandmother, Isabel de Veteripont, ætatis suae 57, when he had been 28 yeres Lord of Westm'land and had seen a grandchild. He was buryed, as is thought, in Shap Abby. Matilda his wife dyed on Ash Wednesday 4. Henry 4. anno 1403, haveing lived his widow about 12 yeres.

{Their Isue}
And the Isue they left were
1. Thomas, of whome hereafter.
2. William de Clifford, who marryed Ann, one of the daughters and coheres of Thomas, Lord Bardelfe, whose armes were [blank]
He was [blank] and dyed the 6. yere of Henry 5th, and his office was sued out by John, Lord Clifford, Knight of the Garter, his brother son & heire att law, for he had noe Isue, neither his wife.
3. Margaret de Clifford, who was marryed to \ Sir / John Me\l/kon whose armes were [blank]

[Machell's Notes: I.247]
*{Mon[seigneur] Roger de Clifford, Seignur de Westm'land. Carta apud Skipton 2. Richard 2^0. Sciphtona in carta s.d. Karletun.}[610]

5. Generation
{Descent, Honour, Acts and Armes}
Thomas, son and heir of Roger de Clifford & Maud Beauchamp his wife, was borne in 1365. He was about 36 yeres old at the death of his father upon which he became Lord of the Honour of Alpleby, Baron of Westmorland and 10th hereditarie Shirieve of the same; and allso Lord of the Honour of Skipton. He was a great courtier & much in favour with Richard the 2nd. He was thrice summoned to Parliament and is frequently stiled in records and evidences – Thomas, Lord Clifford of Westmorland, and was certanely a valiant and brave man tho something extravagant. He went with Thomas of Woodstock, Duke of Glocester, into the country of Spruce in Germany,[611] against the infidells and barbarouse people, where he lost his life*.

[Machell's Notes: I.247]
*{Andrew Phebians Theatre of Honour.}[612]

[I.248]
His wife was \ Elizabeth / Ross* eldest daughter of Thomas Lord Ross of Hamlake Castle in Yorkeshire, the match being made by their parents when they were little children. He was not above 8 yeres of aige then, but it \ must / be supposed that the consummation was nott till 8 yeres after or thereabouts. Her armes are Gules 3 water budgetts Sable \ I have seen a sele with this quarter writ about: S. William de Ros de Hamlake; another without quarters: Thomae de Roos Domine de Hamlake.}

[610] 'Monseigneur Roger de Clifford, Overlord of Westmorland. Document at Skipton, 2nd year of Richard 2. [1378-79]. "Sciphtona", in an undated document at Karletun.'
[611] Prussia, also known as Pruysse, Pruys, Spruse, Spruys, see Tamarah Kohanski, C. David Benson (Eds) The Book of John Mandeville (Michigan, 2007), Indexed Glossary of proper names.
[612] André Fevine, The theater of honour and knight-hood, or, A compendious chronicle and historie of the whole Christian world: containing the originall of all monarchies, kingdomes, and estates, with their emperours, kings, princes, and governours; …The first institution of armes, emblazons, kings, heralds, and pursuivants of armes (Paris, 1620; London, 1623).

Figure 1.1.29. Clifford Arms. I.248.

{There Death}
He was slayne att Spruce in Germany the 4th of October, 1393: 15th yere of Richard the 2nd [1391-92], in which yere her father dyed allso, in the city of Paphos in the Isle of Cyprus, as he was returneing from the Holy Land†; D. fuit 2 yeres 9 months.[613] She outlived her husband about 31 yeres, remaneing a widow, and dyed upon the 26th of March, anno 2^0 Henry 6. 1424, 2 yeres after she had buried her son John, Lord Clifford.

They had Isue as follows:
1. John, of whom hereafter.
2. Maud, so named after her grandmother. She was marryed as second wife to Richard Plantaginet Earl of Cambridge, who bore the crowne armes within a bord[er] Argent charged with an orle of lyonsells rampant Gules. Which Richard was beheaded att Southampton, anno X? 3^0 Hen 2.[614] And left no Isue by her. But by his former wife, Anne Mortimer, he had Isue Richard Plantaginet Duke of Yorke, which Richard was father to King Edward the 4th. \ And Isabel maryed to Henry, Lord Bourchier E[arl]of Essex. / This Maud lived to a very great aige.

Generation 6 of the Cliffords
{His Descent, Honour, Acts & Arms}
John, son & heire of Thomas Lord Clifford by Elizabeth his wife, was borne in 1391[615] and was ward to the king when but 2 yeres of aige, by reason of the untimely death of Thomas his father; whence he became Lord of the Honour of Apleby &c., 11th hereditary Shireue of Westmorland and Lord of the Honour of Skipton. He was a great man and highly favoured (by reason of his valour and good experience in ma[r]tiall affares) of King Henry 5th by whome he was made Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, and honour not hitherto conferd on any his ancestours; and was allso intrusted with great command in his warrs with France. For it appeares upon record that he was one of the first in that expedition; and was bound by Articles twixt the said king and him to carry over a number of men att armes in the same[616] Host: 13 knights, 47 esquires, 150 archers, the 3d of whome on foot & the [613] 'Died. [he was there for] 2 years 9 months.' John Stow, Chronicles of England, 516.

[614] Richard Plantagenet, earl of Cambridge, was beheaded on 5 August 1415 for initiating the 'Southampton Plot' to dethrone Henry V. See G. Harriss, 'Richard [Richard of Conisbrough], earl of Cambridge (1385-1415). ODNB. Machell correctly assessed the date of the earl's death as during the 3rd year of the monarch, but appears to have written '2', not '5', although Machell's handwriting often appears confusing.
[615] MS: '13~~88~~ \ 91 /'.
[616] The following scored-through word is illegible.

rest on horse. {To my Lord was allowed 4s per day; to the knights 2s; to the squires 1; to the other 6d} {His seale; at the rec. is an oval sine roundel in it Clifford quart[ering] Vip[ont] quartering Ros: 1 and a helmet with 3 draggons: 1 as crest, 2 as supporters.}

[Machell's Notes: I.248]

*{His Wife: Ross, Ros or Roos}
†{Stow.}[617]

[I.249]

King Henry 5th att the coronation of his wife Queen Katherine, who was daughter to Charles the 6th of France, was pleased to honour him with the office of Butler att that solemnity*. Nor was he onely mindefull of public affaires abroade, but of private allso, in his owne houses, for this was hee who built the strong & artificall gatehouse att Apleby Castle, as hath bin said. And who allso repared his Castle att Craven. Tho he lived but 12 yeres (and most of them inploid in war) possesour of those his lands & honours.

{His Wife; Descent, Honour, Wealth & Armes}
This John Lord Clifford tooke to wife Elizabeth Piercy, onely daughter to Henry Lord Piercy sirnamed Hotspur, by Elizabeth Mortimer his wife; which Elizabeth Mortimer was daughter of Edmund Mortimer 3rd Earle of March of that family by Philippa Plantaginet, who was sole daughter & heire to Lyonell, Duke of Clarence. The armes of the Piercyes are quarterly the 1. Or a lyon rampant Azure, the 2. Gules 3 luces Argent &c.

John Lord Clifford was slane att the Siege of Meaux, in France, by the quarrell (or nutt) of a crossbow, the 10th day of March in the 10th & last yere of King Henry 5th being of the aige of 32 or thereabouts – Anno Domini 1422. His wife maryed agane about 4 yeres after his death, to Ralph Nevil, 2nd Earl of Westmorland, and had by him one son onely, which was John Lord Nevil who dyed before he came to be ~~Lord~~ \ Earle / of Westm'land, being slane att Towton Battle in Yorkshire.[618] She dyed 16. of October 1436 which was the 15. of Henry 6. and was buried att Stanthrop in the Bishoprick of Durham, near Raby Castle, where some of the Nevil Earles of Wesmerland doe lye interred.

{Their Isue}
The Isue which she had by John, Lord Clifford, were ut sequitur
1. Thomas de Clifford, de quo infra.
2. Henry, who dyed without Isue.
3. Mary, who was marryed to Sir Phillip Wentworth Knight, of whome is descended the Lord Wentworth, the Earle of Strafford and Earle of Cleveland.
The Wentworths Armes are [blank]

Generation 7 of the Cliffords
Thomas, son & heire of Thomas \ John / Lord Clifford, was borne on Monday next after the Feast of the Annuntiation, Anno 2. Henry 5. 1415. And when he was not much above 7 yeres old, through the death of his father who was slane, he became Lord of the Honour of Apleby & Skipton &c. and 12 hereditary shireve of Westm'land†. But was Ward 13 yeres

[Machell's Notes: I.249]

*{See Speed.}
†{Compare with the Roll of Sheriffs.}

[617] John Stow, Chronicles of England, 516: 'The same yeare (1394) Lorde T. de Ros, as he returned forth of the Holy Lande, in the Citie of Paphos in the Ile of Cipres, through intemperauncie of the ayre departed this life there.'
[618] The Battle of Towton (1461) formed a major turning point in the Wars of the Roses: the Yorkists decisively beat the Lancastrians but with enormous loss of life. See Stow's Chronicles of England, 747. See also, I.348, above.

[I.250]

by reason of his minority. It is evident by Holenshed & Stowe & other Chronicles and other records, that this Thomas Lord Clifford did brave service as a Chiefe Commander in the warrs of France att the Assault of Pointeres, where he & his men, being it was snow, to prevent discovory clothed themselves in whyte, & by that meanes surprised the towne \ in or / about the yere 1438, which he strongly defended in 1440, being the 18. Henry 6. against the assaults of the French king, who indeavoured to retake it.[619] He was allso an eminent commander in the civill warrs of that aige in England, with much courage and activeness tooke part with King Henry 6th against Richard Plantaginett, Duke of Yorke, in which warrs allso ~~thi~~ his yong son John was a leading man & commander for 2 or thre yere together dureing his fathers life, whereupon Thomas was called old Lord Clifford tho he was not \ above / fortye when ~~both~~ he ~~and his son~~ was slane. Neither was \ he / only busied in the warrs, but att home allso, for he toke great care of repareing his houses and in particular of Apleby Castle, his chief of mantion house, as has thence bene declared. His armes were [blank]

{His Wife}
He had to wife Johanna the daughter of Thomas Lord Dacre \ of Gilsland / by Philippa his wife; which Philippa was daughter [of] Ralph de Nevill, Earle of Westm'land by his first wife. The Article[s] of Marriage wer drawne the 1st day of August in the 2nd yere of King Henry 6. [1424], att which time they were both children; for this Thomas, Lord Clifford, could not bee above X yeres old when his mother concluded this marriage for him, which was after consummated. Her Armes were Gules 3 escallops Argent.

{Their Death}
She dyed it is certane before her husband, and as it is reported, but a little before he happened to be slane in the Battle of St Albanes in Hartfordshire where he dyed fighting on his sovoranes behalfe together with his \ uncle / Henry Piercy 2nd Earle of Northumberland, the 22 of May 1455*. And they were buried in the Abby church (with a great many other persons of quality) 48 in all; above 500 slane of King Henrys party, 600 of Yorke†, whose monuments were standing within remembrance. He lived 19 yeres possesor of his lands, and was slane in the 40th yere of his aige. And lef[t] Isue behinde him, 9 children: 4 sones & 5 daughter, viz.
1. John Clifford borne 8 April 13. Henry 6. 1435, de quo infra.
2. Roger who marryed [blank] sister & heir to one of Courtneys in the county of Devon, & whose armes were [blank] and had Isue: 1. Son butt within 2 or 3 descents the family.

[Machell's Notes: I.250]
*{~~Compare this with the death of John Lord Clifford. They cannot both be true; se the next generation.~~}
†Speed, Henry 6: 63-64.[620]

[I.251]

The family was extinct in daughters and heires.
3. Robert who maryed one of the Barkleys, who was then widow to one Alderman Joscielin of the City of London, by whome he had Isue, and from them did lineally descend George Clifford of Lincolneshire, who maryed Ursula Digby. He dyed in in one thousand \ forsan 400 / 600, 30, 9*, lieveing behinde a daughter and heir who[se] name was Ursula. This Robert was he that had his hands soe deep in Henry 7ths time in the business concerning Perken Warbeck.[621]

[619] This was the town of Pontoise which changed hands several times during the Hundred Years' War. Because the winter of 1436-37 was very frosty, on 14 February 1437, the English were able to retake the town when a company of them 'camouflaged themselves in white bed-sheets so that they could creep across the outlying snow and frozen town moats without being seen. Others disguised themselves as peasants coming up to market.' The English finally lost Pontoise during a later siege (1442). See Juliet Barker, Conquest: The English Kingdom of France 1417-50 (Cambridge Mass., 2012), Chapters 17 & 19.
[620] See Speed, History of Great Britaine, 667.
[621] Perkin Warbeck was a pretender to the English throne (he claimed to be Richard of York, one of the two 'princes in the tower'). He was hanged on 23 November 1499. See Rachel Goble, 'The Execution of Perkin Warbeck', History Today, vol. 49, 11 (November, 1999).

4. Thomas who was a brave man; he dyed {circa 1496}[622] an olde man in Henry the 7ths reigne, beareing many offices, but dyed without Isue.
5. Elizabeth who was their eldest daughter and in deed their first childe. She was twice married ~~before 12 yeres old~~ 1. To one Plompton in Skipton Castle when she was but 6 or 7 yeres old, and his armes were [blank]. But he dying before she was 12 yeres of aige, she was marryed to his second brother, by a dispensation from the \ Pope / which was dated in the time of King Henry the 7th & still to bee seen in Skipton Castle. Neither may this seem a strange thing in those times of popery in which it was usuall to grant dispensations for greater offences.
6. Maud the second daughter, who was maryed to Sir Thomas Harrington, knight, whose armes are [blank], and, after his death, to Sir Edward Dudley, knight, to both which husbands she ~~brought forth~~ \ had / Isue.
7. Ann the third daughter, who was marryed first to Sir Richard Tempest Knight, whose armes [blank]. And after that to Sir Richard Conyers Knight, whose armes were [blank]. and she had Isue to both these husbands.
8. Johan the 4th daughter, was maryed to Richard Musgrave of Hartley Castle in this County, whose armes and pedigree you may see [blank]. And hence is descended Sir Phillip Musgrave of the same place, liveing now.
9. Margaret the daughter who was marryed to [blank] Carre of Lincolnshire, whence the Carres now there are descended, who bear for their armes [blank].

[Machell's Notes: I.251]

*{Query: If this be not the same of whom is mention in Speed VII. (~~Noe, he lived in 1496.~~) Henry 8.35 [1543-44].}

[First and Second Battles of St Albans]

[I.252B]

It was in the 1st batle of St Albans {that} the Earle of Northumberland and Lord Clifford were killd, the king shot into the neck with an arrow, about 5000 of his men put to sword, of which 48 were buryed in St Albans. This hapend in the latter end of May 1454:[623] Henry 6 §63, 64, sc. 22, vide supra.[624]
In 1458 Regni 36. the king was met by his great Lords at London to contrive a settlement & peace in the nation*. But they brought amongst them great store of followers: The Earl of Salisbury, 500; Earle of Warwick, 600; the Duke of Excester & Sommerset, 800; the Earle of Northumberland, the Lords Egremond & Clifford, 15000. This was the fashion of that swording aige. {§68} This Lord Clifford was son to the former slain at St Albans. And was one of the chiefe leaders of the Queens army (the King being then prisoner) {Decem. 1460 the last, Reg. 39.} together with Lord Nevil & Lord Rosse and in effect all the northern nobility. At Wakefield batle where the Duke \ of Yorke / amongst many nobles was slain with his young son, the Earle of Rutland, who fell in flight by the hands of Lord

[Machell's Notes: I.252B]

*{Somthing of this parliament in a pamphlet for which manifactur penes Mr Mil vel}[625]

[I.252A]

Clifford, in part of revenge, for the Earles father had slain his. A deed which worthily blemished the author; but who can promise anything temperate of himselfe in the heat of ~~war~~ marshal fury? Chiefly where twas resolved not to leave any branch of York line standing, for So One Maketh This Lord to Speak. §39*.
The second batle of St Albans in which Henry appeard against & was overthrown by the Queene happnd on Shrove Tuesday, the 17. of February, 1461. Reg. 39. But Edward, Earle of Marsh, son & heire to the Duke of Yorke, obteining at a batle at Mortimer Cross on Candlemas Day, eadem anno, haisted to London, & by favour of the citizens, was crowned King (Edward IIII). 4^0 natis ætat 20th.

[622] 1496 = 11/12 Henry VII.
[623] 22 May 1455.
[624] 'See above.'
[625] The last word is obscured by the binding.

And on the 12 of March sett out for the north to fight against Henry whom he had depos[ed] & whose army was led by the Duke of Sommersett, Earle of North[umberland] and the Lord Clifford, whose fathers were slain in the 1st batle of St Albans. Edward IIII – §4 & 5. 8vi.: Clifford character. He was slain with an hedless arrow which pieced his throat – §6 – on Palm Sunday Eve, March 28. & on the 29. the batle was ended in a plain field twixt Towton & Saxton {With the loss on both sides of 35001 lives – §7. 8. 9. – & King Henry vanquished. Lord Clifford was slain betwixt Castleford & Ferrybriggs.}[626]

[Machell's Notes: I.252A]

Graftons Chron.*[627]

[I.252]

Generation 8 of the Cliffords

John son & heire of Thomas Lord Clifford by Johanna the daughter of Thomas Lord Daker, was borne as is sayd on the 8th of Aprill in the 13 yere of Henry 6. annoque domini 1435;[628] and being att the death of his father 20 yeres & 23 wekes, he became warde to the king for halfe a yere & 3 weekes*; and was heire to his father of his lands & honours, being Lord of the Honour of Apleby &c. and 13 hereditary Shireue of Westmorland.

He was a commander in the civ~~a~~i/l warrs dureing his minority, on the side and in the behalf of King Henry 6. \ 9 yeres in his fathers lifetime / and so he continued only 5 yeres, 8 months and 7 dayes in possession of his \ paternal / estate. Most of the time was imployed in the ~~good service~~ warrs which were then very hott between the House of Yorke & Lancaster, in which indeed he did kill Edmund Plantaginett, Earle of Rutland \ in the Battle of Sandall Castle near unto Wakefield,[629] / but he was no child as some writer would have him, but able to beare armes, being 16 or 17 yeres of aige. And this John, Lord Clifford, was not much more when he 1st commanded: on the contrary part \ and thought himself able to incounter any man. / And that he was arrived to that maturity is evident from this: that he was next child \ that his mother had by Richard, Duke of Yorke / to King Edward 4. And that King was then 18 yeres of aige. And for the sma~~le~~ distance betwixt her children, se Austin Vincent in his Booke of Nobillity (pag. 622),[630] where he writes of them all being 12 in number. He was att the 2nd Battle of St Albans, where King Henry 6. was brought into his tent \ 17 of February / and mett his wife there, with his sonne Prince Edward, to his exceeding great joy†. But it lasted not long for on the 8 or 9 & twentieth of March following, 1461.[631] being Palm Sunday and the eve thereof, was the great battle fought (between Towton & Saxton in Yorkshire) where the Kings party was quite overthrowne and this Lord John slane thereat (near Ferrybriggs & Castleton \ twixt Ferrybriggs & Castleford[632] / by the River Aire) where he was fyereing[633] a passage and (haveing putt of his gorgett[634] a little before, either through pane or heat) he was shott into the throat with a headless arrow.[635] And it is remarkable [626] Another reference to great losses at the Battle of Towton, see I.348, above.

[627] Richard Grafton (c. 1511-1573): Grafton's Chronicle: or, History of England; To Which is Added His Table of the Bailiffs, Sherrifs, and Mayors, of the City of London, From the Year 1189 to 1558, Inclusive (1563). Nicolson and Burn devoted part of one page to Grafton's account of the killing: N&BI, 284.
[628] 'And in the year of the Lord 1435.'
[629] Sandal Castle: site of the battle of Wakefield, 30 December 1460.
[630] Augustine Vincent (c.1584-1626), A discoverie of errours in the first edition of the Catalogue of Nobility published by Raphe Brooke, York Herald, from 1619 untill this present yeare, 1622: at the end whereof, is annexed a review of a later edition, by him stolne into the world, 1621 (London, 1622). Much of Machell's commentary on the Cliffords, including this note on Augustine Vincent, was copied by Nicolson and Burn (N&BI, 284), after which it found its way into many other publications, including notes by William Wordsworth in The Poetical Works of William Wordsworth Vol. 2 (New York, 1859 edn); for example, see 'Song at the Feast of Brougham Castle', 402-03.
[631] MS: '~~anno 1441 forsan~~ 1461'.
[632] Nicolson and Burn chose the latter, see N&BI, 284.
[633] Fyering: making a large fire to serve as a beacon or signal. OED.
[634] Gorget: a piece of armour for the throat. OED.
[635] Yet another reference to the atrocities of the Battle of Towton, see I.348, I.252A.

that he, his father, grandfather and great grandfather all dyed in the wars, the 2 former beyond the seas and 2 latter at home. His armes were [blank].

And his wife was Margarett Bromflett, by birth Baroness Vessy‡, and the first who brought that title to the Cliffords, which ~~they~~ \ is /now enjoyed by Lady Ann Clifford, Baroness Vessy her direct ancestor. She was daughter & sole heire to Henry Bromflett by Elionor, daughter of Lord Henry Fitz Hugh. Her paternall coate was this: In a shield or, a plane cross Sable. {Apud cartam Will. filij Domini Eustachij de Vescy, Anno R[egni] R[egis] H[enrici] filij Johannes 24^0.}[636]

[Machell's Notes: I.252]

*{He lived 6 years after his father so that the relation of the death here of [blank] must belong to his father.}
†{Speed (Henry VI. 6.4) says [he][637] was slain at St Albans in 1454 towards the end of May. De hoc q. with Henry being Earl of Northumberland this must be his father; for he was but 20 years of Aige then.[638]
‡{The sirname, de Veci, is ancient for Robert 9. de Veci. Ten in Northamptonshire: Domesdaie Booke.}

[I.253]

And her father was created Baron of Vessy by King Henry 6. in the 27 yere of his reigne [1448-1449], or rather indeed restored thereunto, for he had title thereunto by right of his mother Margaret, daughter & co-heire[639] of Sir Edward St John, who maried Anastace, one of the daughters & coheires of William Aston, knight, which William was son of Gilbert who was cosan and heir of William Lord Vessy of Alnwick.

{Her Arms} Her paternall coate was this: In a shield or, a plane cross Sable.
{Apud cartam Will. filij Domini Eustachij de Vescy, Anno R[egni] R[egis] H[enrici] filij Johannes 24^0.}[640] {Anno autem ejusdem Regis 32^0 occurit sigillum, cujus diam \ etrum / linea marginalis ostendit; cui hic cricumscriptione in circulo.}[641] Sc.

+ SIGILLUM WILELMI DE WESCY, and the reverse, SECRETE + SIGILLI}

Figure 1.1.30. Reverse of Seal: 'This Seale is of Red wax'. I.253.

[636] [I.252-53]. 'In a document of William, son of Lord Eustace of Vescy. In the 24th year of the reign of King Henry, son of John.'
[637] An editorian substitution for an illegible word.
[638] In the MS, these notes have been scored through.
[639] MS: 'choh.'
[640] 'In a document of William, son of Lord Eustace of Vescy. In the 24th year of the reign of King Henry, son of John.'
[641] 'Moreover, in the 32nd year of the same king a seal is found, the diameter of which is shown by a marginal line; here is an inscription written around in a circle viz. Seal of William de Wescy, and the reverse of a private seal. This seal is of red wax.'

{Antecessoris Domini Henrici Domini Vescy fundatores fuere prioratus de Ferrybie. Haec omnia e MS Sheldon sic not[atum] in folio. Cat pt. è saculo coriareo inquisit[ionum] apud Skipton Castrum in com. York. Super clypeum autem sic notatur.}[642]

{Theire Death}
She outlived her husband, John Lord Clifford, 32 yeres, for he was slane ~~the 22 of May 1455 in~~ \ 28 of March 1461 – Palme Sunday – upon the battle / Towton Battle;[643] and she marryed afterwards to Sir Lancelott Threlkeld, whose armes were Gules a maunch Argent*. By which Sir Lancelott she had severall children, and one of their daughters, whose name was Ann, was marryed in this County of Westm'land to Sir John Lowther of Lowther Hall†, whence this Sir John Lowther now liveing is sprung. Sir Lancelot proved a very kind husband during her life, and helped to conceale her two former children which she had by Lord Clifford from the rage and fury of King Edward 4th and the House of Yorke, to which their father, her former husband and grandfather also had bin very active and mortall enemyes. And this Lady Vessy dyed in Yorkshire att her owne house of Lonsbrough 12 day of April 1493, whose monument the[re] remane to this day in that church. And her husband Lord Clifford was buryed also in the same \ County / tho in different manner; for the which Henry Piercy Earle of Northumberland his Cosan German, and many other Knights & Gentlemen of qualitye to the number of 4 or 5000 persons were interred in a pitt by the river Ayre,[644] near to the place where the battle was fought \ slane in all on both sides 35001 / where a chaple (now quite decayed) was built, and did some time remane their monument.[645]

The Isue which John, Lord Clifford, had with Margaret his wife were as followeth:
1. Henry, who was borne in the yere of Our Lord 1454, of whom infra.
2. Richard, who together with his brother Henry was concealed by his mother during her widowhood, and after her remarriage. But for the more security she thought fit to convey him over the seas, where dyed young in the Low Countryes without any Isue.
3. Elizabeth their sister, who was marryed to Sir Robert Aske, whose armes were: Azure, 4 […] in fess Ag., and from them are descended the now Askes of Yorkshire, & Lord Fairfax of Denton in the same County.

[Machell's Notes: I.253]

*And I have see a seale with a curtalled manch charged with annulets as here followeth.

Figure 1.1.31. 'Seale of Sir William de Threlkeld' c.1341-42. I.253.

[642] 'The ancestors of Lord Henry Lord Vescy were founders of the the priory of Ferriby. All this from the manuscript of Sheldon, marked thus [here there is a symbol] in the folio. In a part of a catalogue [?] from a leather bag of Inquisitions at Skipton Castle in the county of York.' There follows a sketch of two shields; one has a mark above it, as Machell has shown. For Ralf Sheldon (1623-84), see above, I.231.
[643] The battle of Towton was fought on 29 March 1461. See references above, especially I.348.
[644] MS: 'to the number \ ~~above 5000, Speed, 600 Yorkists 48 buryed in St Chan~~ / of 4 or 5000 persons were interred in a pitt by the river Ayre.'
[645] The presence of over 100,000 men and c.28,000 deaths makes Towton the largest and bloodiest battle ever fought in England. See https://content.historicengland.org.uk/content/docs/battlefields/towton.pdf.

{This was a seale of Sir William de Threlkeld, who sold burgages to Sir Robert de Clifford, Lord of Westmorland, in Apleby, 15. of King Edward 3.}[646]
†Tis Hugh in Lowther ped[igree] which should be An[n] there, but her name is other.

Generation 9 of the Cliffords

Henry, son & heire of John Lord Clifford and Margaret his wife was born as is said in the yere of Our Lord, 1454, and was 7 yeres old or thereabouts at the death of his father. But was deprived [I.254] lands honoured during the space of 24 yeres, from the 1st yere of Edward the 4th to the 1st \ or 2nd / of Henry the 7. which was 2 Kings reignes; att which time he lived as a shepherd in Yorkshire and Cumberland sometimes about [blank] {Melmerby forsan} and some time upon Thrillcot, his father-in-laws estate, and some times upon the borders of Scottland. For all this while he with the rest of his posterity (if he should have any) were attainted of treason* by Act of Parliament; and not onely so but in danger of death or att least imprisonment if he had bin taken, which was the reason of his obscure retirement. But when Henry 7. obteined his ~~was restored to the~~ crowne, the good services of his ancestours were called to remembrance, and he was restored by Act of Parliament to his blood & honour, with all his Baronyes, Castles &c.†

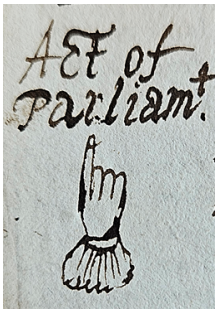

Figure 1.1.32. Example of Machell's frequent use of a pointing hand as a nota bene. I.254.

Which Act of Parliament {Anno 2^0 Hen. 7. 1486} was the principle ground of the Lady Ann Cliffords title to the same, in those sutes her good mother was pleased to manage in her behalf against her uncle \ Frances / Lord Clifford Earle of Cumberland, which lands of inheritance she now doth injoy.
And henceforward (anno 1486) he became Lord of the Honour of Apleby, Baron of Westm'land and the 14th hereditary Shireue of the same; Lord also of the Honour of Skipton, and Baron of Vessy. Til ~~after~~ which time he was not able to write ~~any thing att all~~. But after he came to his Lands & Honours, he learned to write his name, & that was all. Howbeit, he delighted much in astronomie & contemplation of the course of the stars, which he was somewhat inured to by his shepherds life; and builded very much of Bardon Tower in Yorkeshire where he had a repository of mathematicall instruments for the practise of astronomie; the specalitie of which we cannot suppose him to be master of by reason of his obscure & illiterate education.[647] But tho his residence was here for the most part, yet he tooke care also of the repares of his other castles mightily decayed for want of inhabitants during his retirement & disinheritance. He was about 1 & 30 yeres old when he came to estate, which [646] [1341-1342] For the Threlkeld arms see CFH, 338-39.

[647] Henry Summerson provides a more measured narrative: '… there is no evidence, later stories to the contrary notwithstanding, that the seven-year-old Henry Clifford was ever pursued by vengeful Yorkists, and the legend of the Shepherd Lord first recounted by Edward Hall in the mid-sixteenth century—telling of the young fugitive brought up among remote sheepfolds, so that he never learned to read, while his younger brother Richard was smuggled overseas, where he died—hardly stands up to scrutiny. Henry Clifford was later to be not just literate but even bookish, owning volumes on law and medicine, and developing a taste for astronomy and alchemy, while his brother is recorded in England as late as 1499. It may be that the Clifford heir thought it prudent to keep a low profile, but the fact that in 1466 Henry Harlington of Craven could bequeath him a sword and a silver bowl suggests that even then he stood in no perceptible danger … on 16 March 1472 Edward IV granted him a formal pardon.' H. Summerson, 'Clifford, Henry, tenth Baron Clifford (1454-1523)'. ODNB.

he injoyed about 37 yeres. And by reason of his mother being an heiress there came by an acession of the Bromfletts to his owne coate so that he bore [blank]

{His Wives}
He was twice marryed: 1. to Ann, daughter of Sir John St John of Blestotso, which wife of his was Cosan Germane by the halfe blood to King Henry 7th, for her father was \ halfe / brother to Margaret, Countess of Richmond and Darby, who was mother to the said King Henry, upon which account \ partly / tis thought his lands and Honours

[Machell's Notes: I.254]
*{1. Edward IIII in November 1461 whereby King Henry Quene Margaret & Prince Edward their son. The Dukes of Exester and Sommersett, & the Earle of Devonshire with 140 more were disherited and attainted.} †He was called to Parlament as a Pere of the Relme in which tis said that he behaved himself nobly and wisely and like a good English man. But otherwise he came seldom at London or Court.}

[I.255]
were restored. She was a piouse and devout woman, and lived for the most part a country life, which is very commendable in persons of Quality; and departed this life the 21. yere of Henry 7.[648] and was buryed in Skipton Church vault, havein bin his wife 21 yeres, and mother of severall children by him, of whome hereafter.[649]

{Her Armes} Her paternal coate was Argent a chief sudented Gules, charged with 2 mullets Or.

{His 2nd wife; Her Arms}
He was marryed the 2nd time to Mrs Florrence Pudsey, whose armes wer Vert a chevron between 3 mullets Or. And she also had severall children by him but outlived him and marryed afterwards Richard Grey, one of the young sons of Thomas, the 1st Lord Marquiss of Dorset, which was of that family, whome she outlived also haveing no Isue by him; and dyed very old in Leicestershire amongst her friends in Queen Elizabeths time and was buryed amongst her ancestours there.
And her former husband, who was Henry Lord Clifford of Westmorland, dyed the 20th of Aprill the 15 yere of Henry 8. 1523, ætatis suae 70. And was either buryed at the Abby of Shap in Westm'land or the Abby of Bolton, which is in Craven in the county of Yorke; for that he desired in his last Will and Testament, but in which place he was layd is not certanely knowne. The Isue which he had ~~was as followeth~~ by his 2 wives besides those by lowes,[650] in her former wives life time,[651] which were a great grief to her, were as followeth, viz.

{His Isue; 1493}[652]
By his 1st wife Ann St John
1. Henry, borne 1593,[653] who livd to injoy his fathers Estate and Honour, of whome hereafter.
2. Thomas (who is writ Sir Thomas), who marryed one Lucie, who was the daughter of Sir Anthony Browne, knight, whose armes were [blank]. But he & she both dyed without Isue. He had many places as of Trust conferrd upon him by King Henry 8. and was the governour of Barwick castle.
3. Mabill, the eldest daughter, who was marryed to William Fits William, Earle of Southampton, whose armes were [blank], by whome he had 2 sonns who livd to be men but dyed without Isue; and Antony Browne, his mothers halfe brother by the mothers side \ became / his heires, who was father to the 1st Vicount Montacute. And this William & Mable were the reparers of that part of the House of Cowdry in Sussex, where there armes are placed.

---

[648] 1506.
[649] MS following: '~~The 2nd time he was marryed to Mrs Florence Pudsey, by whome he had 2 or 3 sons who dyed very young, and one daughter also, whose name was Dorathie, & she was marryed to Sir Hugh Lowther of Lowther~~.'
[650] 'Lowes': perhaps 'lovers', derived from 'A burning or passionate feeling, esp. of love.', e.g. in 1603: "The raging low, the feirce and flaming fyre That dois my breist and body al combure". See 'Lowe'. OED.
[651] His former wife's lifetime? His former wives' lifetimes?
[652] '1493' is written in pencil in another hand.
[653] But see below: 'Generation 10 of the Cliffords'.

[I.256]

4. Elianore, who was maryed to [blank] Markenfield.
5. Ann, who was marryed to Robert Medcalfe, from whome the family of the Medcalfes still in being, have descended.
6. Johan, who was marryed to Sir Ralph Bowes, whence the Boweses in Yorkshire.
7. Margaret, marryed to Cudberd, and heire of Sir Edward Ratclif of Conington in Northumberland {They had Derwent Water setled upon the marriage, & her portion was 500li.}

And by Florrence, his 2nd wife he had
1. Two or three sonns, who all of them dyed whilst they were very young.
2. Dorathie, who was marryed to Sir Hugh Lowther of Lowther in Westmorland, whose father Sir Hugh was he who marryed Ann Threlkeld, daughter to Sir Lancelott Threlkeld, by the Lady Vescy, Lord Cliffords widow, so that this Dorathy & her husband were Cosan Germans by the halfe blood. The Lowthers Arme may be elsewhere*.

Generation 10th of the Cliffords

Henry, son and heire of Henry Lord Clifford of Westm'land and Ann St John his wife, was borne in 1593†, being about 30 yeres of aige when his father dyed, so that he was immediately thereupon possesed of his father lands & Honour, being Lord of the Honour of Apleby, Baron of Westm'land & 15th hereditary Shireve of the same; Lord allso of the Honour of Skipton & Baron Vescy, to all which titles and honours was superadded the Earledome of Cumberland & Order of the Garter. For about 2 years and 3 mo[n]ths after his fathers death he was created Earle of Cumberland by King Henry 8. in the pallace of Bridwell, London, June 18 1525, regni ejus 17^0. And Knight of the Garter in the 28 or 29 yere of the said kings reigne, being the 2nd of this family of the Cliffords that obteined that great honour. He was allso made by the same king (for there was a great amity betwixt them, both by reason of their affinity in blood being \ ½ / Cosans Germans once removed{?} & allso by reason of their education being brought up tog[eth]er when the said king was Duke of Yorke) the Lord President of North parts of England, & many times Lord Warden of the Marshes (Sir Thomas Wharton being his deputy and Hugh Machell of Crakenthorpe Esquire an assistant to him, by vertue of a speciall order under the said kings seales and signe manually) And he was imployed in all the armyes

[Machell's Notes: I.256]

*See my ped[egree] MS. It calls him onely Esquire son of Sir John, son of Hugh Lowther, so that Hugh was his grandfather but neither called Knight nor Esquire.
†{Henry 1, Earle of Cumberland. That is the 36. of Elizabeth [1593-1594]: this is impossible – it sure must be 1497 \ 1493 /?}[654] sent into Scotland in the said Kings reigne, and evidently behaved him selfe noblely and valiantly. But the greatest instance of that Kings favour towards him was the willingness he expressed to have his niece marryed, who was Elionor Branden youngest daughter of his \ youngest / sister the Duchess of Suffolk, to the eldest son of this Henry Lord Clifford. And against their comeing into the north after the accomplishment of the marriage he causd the great \ gallery att / Castle of Skipton & the 8 Square Tower att the end thereof to [be] built from the ground in 3 moneths space, with a passage into the Castle through the Great Gallery for the more magnificent & commodious reception of his son and daughter-in-law. Which still remanes but the Castle was demolished in the Civill Warrs, anno Dom 1649, in the moneth of December, & in January following. He was one of the most eminent Lords in his time for nobleness, gallantry & courtship, through which he wasted some of his estate, and he bore for his armes [blank]

[I.257]

[654] This is more correct, as Henry Clifford lived from c.1493 to 1542: see R. Hoyle, 'Clifford, Henry, first earl of Cumberland'. ODNB. [Machell must surely be forgiven the errors to which we are all prone when copying from old documents.]

{His wives}
{1. Wife}
He was twice marryed, first of all with Margaret Talbott, who was eldest daughter of George, Earle of Shrowesbury, the 4th of that family; whose armes were [blank]. But she dyed very young, within 2 or 3 yeares after their marriage, and left no Isue.
{2. Wife}
His 2nd wife was Margarett Piercy 1st childe and onely daughter of Henry Piercy 5th Earle of Northumberland whose armes were the same with those of her ancestours mentioned before. She had for her portion all those lands in Craven which are called Piercyes foe. Her mother was Katherine daughter and one of the coheires of Robert Spencer Knight by Elianore his wife; which Elianore was daughter & Tenth coheire to Edmond Beuford Duke of Sommersett, so that this Margaret Piercy his wife was lineally descended from John of Gaunt Duke of Lancastre & consequently from King Edward 3.

{Their Death}
She dyed 2 yeres after her husband, for he departed this life att Skipton Castle the 2 & 20th of Aprill 1542, in the 34. yere of King Henry 8. And the yere of his aige 49, haveing bin possesor of his lands of inheritance \ about / 19 yeres; and was buried amongst some of his ancestours in Cliffords vault there. And Margaret, his wife, dyed allso att Skipton as it is supposed \ in / 1544, haveing lived for the most part a country life tho without her husband and was buryed by him in the same va\u/lt.

The Isue which they had were ut sequitur:
1. Henry Clifford \ Knight / natus in anno 1517 de quo infra*.
2. Ingeram, who toke to wife Ann, the daughter & sole heire of Sir Henry Ratclif Knight, whose armes were Argent a bend ingraled Sable, & had Isue 2 daughters only who dyed in their youth so that his nephew George Earle of Cumberland became his heire.
3. Katherine their eldest daughter who was 1. Married to John, Lord Scroope of Bolton Castle in the County of Yorke, whose armes were Azure a bend Or, by whome she had Isue. 2. To Sir Richard Cholmeley

[Machell's Notes: I.257]

*{He is called Sir Henry Clifford K., & Henry Clifford Kt in several leases & grants of his before his father was made Earle: Sc. II. Henry 8. 13. of Henry 8. in Bawtry Box at Skipton.}

[I.258]

whose armes were [blank]. And by him she had issue allso: Sir Hugh Cholmeley and Sir Henry his brother who were both liveing in 1652 being in the 3d descent from this Lady Katherine.
4. The Lady Maud their 2nd daughter who was marryed to Sir John Conyers eldest son to Lord Conyers of Hornby Castle in the county of Yorke. And his armes were Azure a manch Or, with a file of 3 lambeauxes by reason of his fathers being liveing. And by this Sir John Conyers she had diverse children.
5. The Lady Elizabeth who was marryed to Sir Christopher Medcalfe of [blank] Knight (whose armes were Argent, 3 calves passant Sable) and by him she had Isue diverse children from whome the now Medcalfes, & \ severall / other families of note are descended.
6. The Lady Jane who was marryed to Sir John Hudleston of [blank] Knight (whose armes were [blank]), and by him &c.

Generation XI of the Cliffords {Henry 2 Earle of Cumberland}
Henry Lord Clifford son & heire to Henry Earle of Cumberland by Margaret Piercy his wife was borne in the year 1570* six years afore the death of his grandfather the Shepherd & Astrologer, who is said to have foretold that his name should be extinct in.[655]
He was made Knight of the Bath at the Coronation of Queen Ann of Bullen in one thousand 533, ætatis suae 16. And when he was about 5 & 20, by the death of his father he became possessor of his Lands & Honours being 2nd Earle of Cumberland &c., and the 15th hereditary shireue & Baron of Westmorland. Before he began to retire himselfe and take delight in a countorye life he wasted some [655] After the full-stop, the line is blank.

part of his ancient estates, and amongst other places sold that remarkable mannour of Temedbury, formerly mentioned, which was given in Henry 3rds times by Walter, Lord Clifford the 2nd Lord Clifford of Clifford Castle and Agnes de Condy his wife to their youngest son Roger de Clifford & Sibilla his wife, and so from them to Roger de Clifford their only son who marryed with Vipont and was the first of the Cliffords of Westmorland; so that from that time to this it had continued in theire name and Isue male for the space of 326 years. He was so far spent in a consumption after he had passed the 30th yere of his aige, that he was \ once / given over for a dead man, but by chafeing and cordials brought to life agane;[656]

[Machell's Notes: I.258]

*{This cannot be tem Eliz; he could not be borne & dye in the same yere.}
{1517}[657]

[I.259]

and in his weekness he was nourished for a moneth together by the milke \ which / he sucked from a womans breast; & 3 or 4 months after with asses milek, which before the yere was over restored him to his former health so that he became a strong able man for many yeres after. He was much adicted to the practise of alkimy & there is a place in the great tower att Broham in the top thereof which I suppose has bin a laboratority and in all probabilty made by him; he was a lover of bookes & learneing & had a fine collection both of manuscripts and other choyce books which was the only thing that reclamed him in his later days, and made him delight in liveing at home.

As his father was, so was he allso 2 times maryed:
1. To the Lady Elianore Brandon her Grace as has bin hinted; which Lady Elianore was yongest daughter to Charles Brandon, Duke of Suffolke, by his wife Mary who was the French Queen; which marryage was solemnised in 1537, he being then about 19 yeres old and his father living*.
This Lady Margarett† bore for her armes barry of Argent and Gules, a lyon rampand Or, with a crowne florre upon his hed, per pale of the field. And by her he had Isue (but not to inherit) of whome hereafter.
2. He was marryed, after his miracolous recovery, to the Lady Ann who was yongest daughter of William Lord Dacre of Gilsland and Grastock both in Cumberland: and her mother was the Lady Elizabeth Talbot daughter to George 4th Earle of Shrewsburye. And they were marryed in Kirkouswold Castle (which florished then) about the latter end of King Edward 6. 1552. Her armes were Gules, 3 escallops Argent, and she allso had Isue by her husband, some whereof came to inherit.

{Dyed}
She out lived her husband, for he dyed att Browham Castle in Westmorland in the yere 1570, January 8, being about the aige of 53 yeres and was buried in the vault of Skipton in Craven with his \ 1st / wife & Ancestours. And she dyed att Skipton 11 yeres after, 1581, ætatis suæ 48. & was buried by her husband, leving this note of good huswife behinde her; that she never came att London in all her life time but imployed her selfe wholy with domestiq affaires; and from that I thinke the word House wife comes.

The Isue which Henry 2nd Earle of Cumberland and Baron of Westmorland & Vescy had by his wives were as followeth.

By his 1st wife[658]
1. Severall sonns who all dyed in their infancy.
2. The Lady Margaret, borne in Browham Castle 1540, who was maryed to Henry Stanley Lord Strange in the Chaple of Whitehall, King Phillip & Queen Mary both being present 7^{0} February 1555 ætatis suæ 15; which Henry was afterwards Earle of Darby and Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter, & had Isue by her:

[656] The rest of this sentence is obscured by the binding.
[657] '1517' has been written in another hand: The 2nd earl of Cumberland lived from 1517 to 1570.
[658] MS: '… 1st wife ~~the Lady Margaret~~'.

[Machell's Notes: I.259]

*{This highborn princess was grandchild to King Henry 7. nece to King Henry 8. Cosan German to Edward 6., Queen Mary & Queen Elizabeth, & to James the 5th, king of Scotland, & cosan German 2ce removed to the Earle of Cumberland, her husband by the blood of the St Johns.}

†{dyed at Brougham Castle in 1547 & was buried in the vault at Skipton in Craven.}

[I.260]

[1.] Ferdinand and William, successively Earles of Darby, & that loyall subject James Earle of Darby who was beheaded at Bolton in Lancashire by those traiterous rebells, 1651 was son of this William & grandchilde to the Lady Margaret Clifford. His armes are Argent, a bend Azure charged with 3 buckes heads cabashed Or.[659]

2. Henry, Lord Clifford when he was but 2 or 3 yeres old dyed an infant & was buried in the vault at Skipton.

3. Charles their 2nd son who dyed allso an infant and was buried by his brother.

By his 2nd wife which was Ann Dakers.

1. The Lady Frances Clifford borne in Skipton Castle 1555 who was marryed to Philip Lord Wharton (whose armes are else where) & had severall children by him. She dyed att Wharton Hall 1542,[660] & was buried in Kirkbystephan church.

2. The Lady Mary Clifford who was born in Skipton Castle 1556, dyed about 2 or 3 yeres of aige & was buryed in Appleby church in \ this County of / Westm'land.

3. The Lady Elianore Clifford born at Skipton Castle in 1557 who dyed a made about 14 or 15 yeres of aige and was buryed att Appleby.

4. George, Lord Clifford born at Browham Castle 8 of August 1558 who came after to be Earle of Cumberland, de quo supra.[661]

5. Frances Clifford born in Skipton Castle the 13 of October 1559 who was knighted very young by Queen Elizabeth and made Knight of the Bath by King James att Whitehall when his 2nd son Charles (after King of the Land) was made Duke of Yorke, being January 4. 1605 as the yere begins on New Yeres Day. & within 2 moneths after (by the death of his brother without Isue male) he became allso Earle of Cumberland being the 4 of the name & family of the Cliffords that bore the title of Earle of Cumberland & allso the last.

Whist he was but Sir Frances in 1589 he tooke to wife Mrs Grissell Hughes daughter of Mr Thomas Hughes of Uxbridge in Midlesex and widow to Edward Nevill Lord and Baron of Abergeveny; whose armes by her father were Sable a lyon rampant regard[ant] Argent, of whome he begott ~~one~~ \ 2 / sons & 3 daughters:

1. George who dyed an infant

2. Henry who lived to be 5th Earle of Cumberland and last heir male of the norther[n] Cliffords*.

3. Margarett maryed young to Sir Thomas Wentworth who was afterwarde allso created Earle of Strafford, that worthy man who was beheaded on Tower Hill London 1641. Which King Charles 1

---

[659] The Parliamentarian forces in Bolton comprised a small army which, until the armies of Prince Rupert and Lord Derby arrived, had been besieging Lathom House, home to Lord Derby. The Parliamentarians withdrew into Bolton which had been undefended for almost a year, its defences badly maintained. After two attempts, the Royalist forces successfully stormed the town – sacking, raping and looting with ferocity, supposedly because the defenders had hanged a captured Royalist officer on the city walls 'as an Irish papist'. Estimates of the dead ranged from 2,000 out of the 3,000 Parliamentarian soldiers, to around 1,200 to 1,500, both Royalist and Parliamentarian. The earl of Derby's animosity towards the defenders was personal; the Parliamentarian garrison had been engaged in shooting at his wife and children, and many members of the garrison were known to him. As a result, Derby not only took the lead in hand-to-hand fighting in the streets, but also was said to have killed a Parliamentarian Captain in cold blood. Derby was executed in Bolton in 1651, primarily on the charge of treason against Parliament rather than the murder of the captain, although he denied the charge at his trial. See Tristan A.R. Griffin, 'Culture, Conflict, and Northern English Fortification in the British Civil Wars, Circa 1638-1652', Cambridge PhD Thesis (24 September 2020), 232-38. See also David Casserly, Massacre, The Storming of Bolton (Stroud, 2010).

[660] A pencilled addition in another hand reads '1592'.

[661] This comment provides a clear indication that Machell's papers were not necessarily placed by William Nicolson in the order in which Machell had written them, and, as a consequence, were wrongly numbered; in the MS, the section on George Howard occurs below (not above) this page (see I.269).

was so very sorry for.[662] His armes were [blank]. But he had no issue by her; but by a 2nd wife he became father of the now Earle Strafford.
4. Frances who was maryed to Sir Gervis Clifton of Hadsok in Notinghamshire by whome she had Isue: Clifford, Clifton and others.

[Machell's Notes: I.260]

*{For tho he had 5 children: 3 sonns & 2 daughters, by the Lady Fra[n]ces Cicil, his wife – who was daughter of Robert Cecill, Earle of Salisbury – & Lord Hugh Frasur (whose armes were Argent, 5 barulits[663] Azure; \ on / 3 of which 6 escutchions Sable charged with as many lyons rampant of the 1st), yet they all dyed young excepting ~~Frances~~ Elizabeth, who was marryed to Richard Boyle, Earle of Cork in Ireland.} {Boyle Earle of Cork, bears parted per bend imbattled, Argent and Gules.}

[I.269]

Generation XII of the Cliffords

{George, 3d Earle of Cumberland}

George Lord Clifford son & heire of Henry the second Earle of Cumberland by Ann Daker his wife was borne in Browham Castle the 8t day of August 1558 in the same chamber which his father dyed in the 8 of January 1570. anno incipiente die 10 January.[664] So that he was Earle of Cumberland &c. befor he arrived att 12 yeres of aige but ward to the queen dureing his minority, whose wardship she bestowed on the Earle of Bedford, whose daughter he marryed. He was sometime att Oxford, under the tuition of Dr John Whitgift, who came to be afterw\ard/ Archbishop of Canterbury, & here he obteined some knowledge in the Arts, and especially in Mathematiqs, which did not onely incline him thereto, butt rendered him more fitt for marittime imployment, in which \ he / was excellent; for he undertooke 11 or 12 expeditions ~~to the West Indies & coastes thereabouts~~ in the reigne of Queen Elizabeth, his first putting out being in the yere of our Lord 1587 with a designe against 1t. the Duke of Perma; the 2nd. against the Spanish Armador in 1588; the 3. against the Isles of Tercernes[665] & Azorres, wher[e] he tooke the towne Fyall,[666] being dangerously wounded in the assault; and his others as well as these were all performed with great valour and success attending the mete butt over tedious for me to relate, there being a manuscript in quarto of them in the possesion of his daughter & heire the Countess of Penbroke. I shall onely add, therefore, that his last expedition was to St John de Portarica, whence he won the towne and returned victorious into England agane in 1598, about the beginning of the moneth of October.[667] He was a man of great quickness of witt, activity of body and affable disposition, and in high favour with both his soveraignes under whome he lived.

For Queen Elizabeth made him Knight of the Garter and he was her champion in all the tilteing from the 31. yere of said queens reigne till the day that both she and that noble exercise departed from amongst us. & in that hee excelled all the Nobles of his time, for he was so much addicted to tilting, bo\w/leing, horse courseing, shooting and such like active (but expensive) exercises, that these recreations, next to his sea voyages, many of which were sustaned and managed att his owne proper cost, were the great occasion of his selling of lands and he, tis said, to have consumed more than [662] Strafford's biographer would concur. 'Thomas Wentworth, Earl of Strafford, played the roles of honest patriot: the defender of the subjects' liberties; conscientious office-holder; autocratic governor; potential favourite; leading minister in search of personal advancement and profit; and, finally, the allegedly 'evil councillor', sacrificed to atone for Charles I's misguided policies, who after defending himself with great courage and skill against his enemies stoically faced the inevitable …The end of Strafford's life, in spite of the many roles he played, had a greater consistency than many of his enemies or later critics were prepared to admit.' R. Asch, 'Wentworth, Thomas, first earl of Strafford (1593-1641), lord lieutenant of Ireland'. ODNB.

[663] 'Barrulet or barrelet or bracelet: diminutive of the bar of which it is a fourth: a twentieth part of the field.' Glossary of British Heraldry, 47.
[664] 'The year beginning the 1 of January 1570.'
[665] Terceira: an island; part of the Azores.
[666] Faial (known to the English as Fayal), in the central group of Azores.
[667] San Juan in Puerto Rico. San Juan underwent attacks from the English, led by Sir Francis Drake in 1595 and by George Clifford, earl of Cumberland, in 1598. Clifford landed troops after laying siege to the city of El Morro; but a few months later, he abandoned the siege when his troops began to suffer from gastric fever, just before the Spanish fleet arrived to retake San Juan. See Lisa Pierce Flores, The History of Puerto Rico (Santa Barbara, 2010), 46.

anyone of his ancestours beside. The armour which he wore (all sett with preciouse stones) is yett to be seen in Appleby Castle & will there remane a monument of him for after aiges to see & admire. His wife was the Lady Margarett Russell youngest daughter of Frances Earle of Bedford by Margarett, his wife, which Margaret her mother was daughter of Sir John St John Baron St John of Blentshow in Bedfordshire. They were marryed in St Mary Overyes church ætatis suæ 17 in Southwarke, near London, upon the 14 of June 1547 & at the same time in the same place her husbands sister the Lady Frances Clifford was married allso to Philip Lord Wharton; Queen Elizabeth being there in person. She bore the armes of the Russells, which are Argent, a lyon rampant Gule, on a chiefe Sable 3 escallops Argent.

[I.270]

{Their Death}
She out lived her husband and remained a widow X yeres & 7 moneths; for he dyed 13 day of October 1605 att the Savoy in London; and there he declared that tho by will he had order his estate to Fra[n]cis, his brother, yett he was perswaded it would come to his daughter, & so it did. His bowells were buried in the Savoy chapple, but his body was brought to the vault at Skipton to rest with his ancestour, whither allso afterwards his brother Fra[n]ces, his body was brought, who inherited his Honour; and tis observable that when Henry Clifford son of Frances and last Earle of Cumberland & hereditary male of the Clifford[s] was brough[t] hither allso, yet he filled up the va\cancy/ there being but just roome remaneing for him in that vault called Clifford.

And she dyed att Browham Castle in this county of Westm'land in the same chamber her husband was borne, on Fryday the 24 of May 1616; so that she lived a widow X yeres; and her bowells were buried att the parish church there but her body was brought to St Laurence in Apleby the 11 of July and there inter with \ great / pompe and state befitting so great and so good a Lady; where her stately monument remanes to this day, of which see more in the said church of Appleby.

The Isue which they had were:
1. Frances Lord Clifford who was borne att Skipton and dying there about 5 yeres of aige was buried in the vault amongst his ancestours, 1589.
2. Robert Clifford after Lord Clifford who was borne & dyed in Northall House in the county of Hartford \ 1591*. /
3. Their onely daughter the Lady Ann Clifford borne att Skipton Castle 13 of January, being Friday, in 1590, the yeare begining on New Years Day; so that her birth day is now the same with our commemoration of King Charles the Martyr. But of her more hereafter, being the last of this family.

[Machell's Notes: I.270]

*{In the letter bag of Inquisitions at Skipton Castle there is a letter importing the much lamented death of the hopefull Lord Clifford in June 1591. The most noble Earle George (his father) being then in his travailes \ Tho: Hilton / MS in folio xx^{xx} penes Mr Sheldon.}

[I.271]

She dyed att Browham Castle in Westm'land on Wednesday before Easter, being the 22 of March 1675/6, about 6 a clock at night. And was buryed att Apleby in her owne vault [blank] 1676. Where she wisely provided herselfe a monument of black & white marble with the armes of all her ancestours. Conde tibi tumulum nec fide hæredis amori.[668]

[668] 'Build a memorial for yourself; trust not in the love of your heir.' See a similar cynical sentiment in William Camden, Remaines of a Greater Worke, concerning Brittaine, but especially England and the Inhabitants thereof (London, 1605), 54. 'In the cloyster of New College Oxford, this following is written with a coale, for one Woodgate, who bequeathed 200 pound to one who would not bestow a plate for his memoriall: "Heus peripatetice; Conde tibi tumulum nec fide hæredis amori; Epitaphiumque, compara; Mortuus est, nec emit libris hæc verba ducentis."' ['"Ho there, passer-by! Build a memorial for yourself; trust not in the love of your heir." And compare, as an epitaph: "He is dead: words he did not buy with money from the man who composed them."']

[I.272]

N.B. There were 6 sonns & 3 daughters, grand children to the Countess of Penbroke by Margaret \ Sackvill / her daughter, maryed to John Tufton, Earle of Thanet. And but one childe born by the Lady Elizabeth, wife of James Compton, Earle of Northampton.

The Isue of the Lady Margaret		The Isue of the Lady Isabell
Nicholas, Earle of Thanet ob. s.p.	Richard Earle of Thanet	Alathea Compton, married to Sir [blank] Hungerford; she died without Isue ere she came to age so that a portion was never made of her grandmothers estate, given to her and her cosan, John Tufton.
John Tufton Esq. to whom the Countess of Pembroke conveyd her estate by will & had it confirmed by her mother; he was after Earle of Thanet and dyed at Skipton, April the 27, 1680 at 3 in the afternoon; was put in his hearse by Mr Thomas Machell, Chaplin to the King, Mr Gabetis, \ Sheriff, / & others, 13 May, 3 in the morning, and buryed with his ancestours at Raneham in Kent on Tuesday August 18. {Chaplin to the King}[669]	Sackvill Thomas George ob. s.p.

[Death of the Countess of Pembroke]
The most noble, virtuous & religiouse Lady Ann Countess \ Douager / of Penbroke, Dorset & Montgomery, daughter & sole heire to the late Right Honourable George Clifford Earle of Cumberland; Baroness Clifford of Westmorland & Vescy; Lady of the Honor of Skipton in Craven; & High Sherifess by inheritance of the county of Westmorland ~~Ann Countess of Penbroke~~ dyd at Brougham Castle in Westm'land March 22, haveing attein'd to the full age of 86 years the 30 January before, & was interr'd in St Lawrence Church Apleby the 14 of April 1676. She was twice married.
1. Richard Sackvill Earle of Dorsett, 25 of February 1609. His armes were quarterly Or & Gules,[670] a bend bar[ry] Argent Azure, & had Isue by her and he dyed 28 March 1624.
2. She was maryed to Philip Herbert Earle of Penbroke & Montgomery who dyed the 23 January 1650.

{1[t] Isue by Rich.}
i. Lady Margaret Sackvil daughter & coheire married to John Tufton, Earle of Thanet 21 of April 1629,[671] & by her had 9 children; Sable within a bend an eagle disp[layed] Argent. {Margaret, Countess of Thanet dyed 1676 in August & was buried about the 19[th] ejusdem.[672]}

ii. Isabel Sackvil m. 5 of July 1647 to James Compton Earle of Northampton and had Isue: 1 son that died yong. Sable a lyon passant gard[ant] Or; 6 betwen, 3 Sco. helmets Argent.[673]

[I.274]

The Countiss of Penbrooke Resolution upon what terms she might be brought to agree with her tenants concerneing their fines[674]

[669] Thomas Machell was chaplain in ordinary to Charles II, as he claimed many times in his notes. See, for example, III.82.
[670] MS: 1. ' ~~The Lady Ann Clifford marryed to~~ Richard Sackvill, Earle of Dorsett, 25 of February 1609. He bore for his armes were quarterly Or & Gules.'
[671] Originally '1639', the '3' then crossed out and replaced with '2'.
[672] 'Of the same' date.
[673] The last phrase is obscured by the binding.
[674] This title is in Machell's hand; the rest of the text is in another hand.

"That on gard consideration and counsel I may be brought to take of my tenants 16 or 14 pennay fine. And there upon I will continue to them theire ancient customs of all my noble ancestors that is to say my deare father and mother, my grandfather and grandmother, my greate grandfather, who was first Earle of Cumberland, and his father Henery, Lord Clifford of Westmorland and theire predeceseors, the Viponts that were Lords of Westmorland, my noble ancestors from whome I am lineally discended of this right lyne and undoubted heire to the sayd Lords of Westmorland.
Provided alwaies that they will clame nothing ~~of~~ by vertue of King James his award made the 14th of March in 1617 as the yeares begin the first of January, nor by the decree in Chanceree for the confirming of the sayd award, nor any assurance by conveyences that was made by my uncle Francis Earle of Cumberland or his sonne Henry Earle of Cumberland to that effect and purpose.
Provided that this 16 or 14 yeares fine shall not preiudice the fines already due to me uppon the death and allination of every remnant of myne in Westmorland."[675]

I.

The 2 churches: St Laurence & St Michael, of which now particularly with there respective parishes[676]

[I.296]

1. Appleby Parish: properly called the Parish of St Lawrence in Appleby

[I.183B]

{1. St Laurence, so called from the saint to which tis dedicated, is a spacious church with 2 Iles, one each side the Body quite through both the Body and Quire, and a very handsome Tower with 5 bells. The greatest which was St Law. 6. was take to be recast, but became the least bye it. The windows have 6, but were broke in the church but repaned, yet some thing remane which I shal take notice of. To this church belongs \ a castle / [and] villages. And in it are 3 manner house or seats of nobility & gentry.}

[III.53]

[Brief Notes]
{It was a Ch[urch] temp. Conq.
Long,[677] belfray 6, body 25, Quier 12 ½, broad 18. 2 rows of pillars consisting of 4 pillars & 2 pillasters & 5 arches; the Quire [consists of] 1 pillar & 2 arches on each side. Font. Organ.[678]
Mon[uments]. Vestery. Vault.

[I.296]

{Foundation}
This church (as is supposed) was ~~founded or~~ rebuilt by King Henry the 2nd, about the 24 year of his reigne.

---

[675] As a Clifford/Thanet supporter, Machell forbore to criticise Lady Anne, but there is another side to this story, which relates to the abject poverty of some of the Clifford tenants during her lifetime. In 1616, at the end of Lady Anne's inheritance-feud with Earl Francis Clifford, James I awarded Earl Francis the Clifford lands on condition that he paid Lady Anne £17,000, taken from the income of his northern estates. This caused hardship to the Earl and his tenants. Even after Lady Anne inherited the Clifford lands, there were tenant disputes. When she demanded six years of rent arrears, those who could not pay had their beasts distrained. Additionally, fines were raised to eight times the rents. The tenants pleaded poverty, leading to court cases which Lady Anne won. She wrote in her diary, '… by that means, I altered the tenure of this land which was the principal thing I was at in my suites of law with my Westmerland tenants.' Reproduced from Margaret Gowling, The Story of Brough-under-Stainmore (Stainmore, 2011), 79-80; see also John Breay, The Light in the Dales (Norwich, 1996), 149, 160. As Breay remarks, 'At the heart of the problem was the fall in the value of money. The tenants paid ancient rents fixed in the time of Henry II; and periodically they paid dropping fines on the change of tenants, and general fines on the death of the lord. As the value of money fell, lords demanded higher fines.' Light in the Dales, 1.
[676] This heading has been removed from MS.II.183B.
[677] 'Length of.'
[678] For Machell's description of this organ, see his list of building achievements in Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.538.

{Dedication}
It was dedicated to St Lawrence (that fyerye martyr) as a fatal omen of the great damage this towne sustained 1176,[679] in the 22. of Henry 2, being att that time Burned downe to the ground, upon a Scottish invasion under William, their king*.

{Patronage}
The patronage ~~of this church~~ was formerly in the Abby of St Maryes without the walls att Yorke, and given by the Abbot thereof &c. to the Bishop of Carlile (as appears out of an Evidence penes ~~Mr Machel apud~~ \ Lancelotum Machel de / Crackenthorpe) \ Arm /. in whose jurisdiction it remains att this day†.

{Chanteries}

In this church were several chanteryes; as the chantery of St Marye, to which Mr Warcop of Colby was a benefactor tempore Henry 7. (vide cart Machellor apud Crakenthorp);[680] St Nichol[as]; St Michael‡.

[Machell's Notes: I.296]

*{It was so calld in Erle Ran[ulf] Meschens. ex inscription super Lapide apud scholar.}[681]
†{vid. cart Henry 6. vol. 7?}
‡vide Lib. MS foli. part 3.[682]

[I.307]

{St Nichols Cant. 4. Henry 7. [1488-89]}
There was a chantry in St Lawrences Church in honour of St Nicol[as] the Confessor, to which Reginaldus Warcopp presented one Hen[ry] Smyth chaplayn, 4. Henry 7. [1488-89]. This I believe was that porch which was called in later times Warcops Quire*.

{St. Marye Cant. 1442. 21. Henry 6.}
There was a Chantry of St Mary which Sir Richard Garnet,[683] vicar of St Lawrence & chantry priest of the same, granted to Sir Leonard Langhorn, with yerely stipend of 7 marks sturl~~e~~ing, & he was allso to teach schole, having the advantage thereof without interruption with the orchard & all the fruits of it, & hay to feed an horse durante vita, except Sir Leonard gott better promotio†.[684] The Abbot of the Monastery of St Mary near & without the wall of York being the true & undoubted patrones of the vicarage of St Laurence in Apleby, presented Richard Garnett, who was admitted by Roger Bishop of Carlile 1507‡.

There was Cantaria Beatæ Mariæ Virginis,[685] founded \ formerly / by Thomas Goldrington & others his Ancestour ~~&~~ \ in / the church of St Laurence; ad celebranda et divina ministranda ad altaræ Beatæ Mariæ pro majore Baluijs et communitate, & pro animabus antecessorum cantariæ prædictæ fundatorum, & omnium fidelium Defunctorum & ejusdem Cant[ariæ] Benefactorum.[686]

{1515. 9. Henry 8.}
There was also in St Laurence Church the Chantery of St Michael.

---

[679] MS: '~~and~~ {No, se Cumb.} \ It was / dedicated to St Lawrence (that fyerye martyr) ~~in allusion to~~ \ as a fatal omen of / the great damage this towne sustained ~~by fire~~ 1176.'
[680] 'See a deed of Machells at Crackenthorpe.'
[681] 'It was so called in Erle Ranulf Meschines' [time], 'as is shown by an inscription on a stone at the School.'
[682] 'See folio MS book, Part 3.'
[683] Sir = Reverend.
[684] Latin: 'preferment'; 'advantage'.
[685] 'Chantry of the Blessed Virgin Mary.'
[686] 'To celebrate and administer the holy offices at the altar of the Blessed Mary, for the mayor, Bailiffs and community, and for the souls of his ancestors, the founders of the aforesaid chantry, and all the faithful departed and the benefactors of the same chantry.'

[Machell's Notes: I.307]
*{See a grant of this & St Maryes with ment[ion] of founder inter r. cartas Machellorum W. de Crak. Circ. 9[0] Henry 8. [1517-18]}[687]
†Witness, Master Heugh Machell & alijs, iii Henry 8 [1511-12]; {7. H. 8. [1515-16]} {q: an sic dict[um] a fundatore an ab officio?}[688]
‡Memorandum: they had it of Ralp[h] Meschenes, 1[t] Earle of Cumberland {Sc. MSS Cumb.}

[I.296]

{Chapples}
And severall chapples: sc. one att Barwise,[689] an other at the Castle, and a 3[rd] att the hospitall, of which we shal speak more att large in their respective places.

[St Lawrence]

Repaire}[690]
This church being much in decay, was magnificently repared att the sole cost & charge of the Lady Ann Clifford ~~Countiss of Cumberland~~ Countisse Dowager of Dorsett, Penbroke and Montgomerie, who tooke downe all the timber & the walls of most part of the Quire (where a vestery was heretofore) & rebuilt it without one, according to direction of her Stuart, Mr Vincent, of whome she had a \ very / great opinion for \ his / skill in Architecture (as may be seen by his monument att Brough).[691]
But he had none att all \ as appears by his workes. /

{Warcop Quire}
There was allso a quire on the back side of the pulpett, which projected towards the towne. This belonged to the Warcops of Colby and the Colebyes their ancestours and in digging up the pavement & demollishing of the walls they found severall allabaster & plaster figures curiously gilded, hid there, I suppose, upon the extirpation of Poperie,[692] som of [which] I saw when I was a childe, & some I believe are yet to be seen at Colby Hall.[693]

[I.295]

{Armes & Monuments}
Upon this repare the foresaid quire (in lew of which the Warcopps had allotted a piew in the chancel & a buryeing place on your right in the end of the south side Ile of the Chancell, just as you enter in at the Quire dore) was quite taken away, & the vesterie allso, which was (as is usuall) on the north side the Chancell; And much \ painted / glass with many coates of armes was broken & destroyed; but what remanes is as followeth*.

{Windows Armes} è Dugdal.

These in the E. Quire Windowe
{South Wing East End … Machel}[694]
1. Or a lyon rampant Ar[gent]: Earle Pearcy.
2. Gules a cross Argent: Nevil, Earle of Westmorland.
3. Azure powdered floralice[695] Or a lyon rampant of the 2[nd]. Beaumout.
4. Quarterly 1 Ar[gent] semé of floredelice Or; 2 l[yon]s Gules 3 lyons passant Or: i.e. France & England.

---

687 'In the Machell of Crackenthorpe deeds circa 1518.'
688 'Query, whether it was prescribed by the founder or went with the office?'
689 Barwise Hall.
690 MS: '{Repaire ~~Armes of monuments~~}'
691 For Gabriel Vincent, see Part 1, Ch.6, Brough, I.424.
692 MS: '~~of whome there were fine allabaster monuments found curiously gilded with gilt~~ and in digging up the pavement & demollishing of the walls they found severall allablaster & plaster figures curiously gilded, hid there, I suppose, upon the extirpation of Poperie.'
693 MS.I.296: 'Som of [them]'. MS.I.295: 'I saw when I was a childe, & some I believe are yet to be seen at Colby Hall'.
694 Written faintly in pencil. The fifth word is much faded.
695 Fleurs de lys.

A.P. in severall places of the w[indow] for Ann Penbroke Reparatrix Ecclesiæ.[696]
Benson? A name in the glasse yet standing in the Quire.

In the North Ile window and the Body[697]
5. Machel impaleing Thorburrow item single olim.[698]
6. 7. Readmanes and Musgraves armes: Azure 6[699]

Here were allso the Machells armes att large but were stolne out of the window by an ignorant fellow \ ~~of the name of Main &~~ / ~~related to the family~~ and caryed to London†. And is to be note that it was customarie of old for those who were benefactors to any church to have the armes sett up in the windows (which were not \ to be / de defaced by any man ‡.) And that this family were soe, may in some measure be gather from this piece of glass, translated probablely from the place were the armes stood (which was in the farest window in the body of the church on the north side) to the window next the new monument for the Lady Ann Clifford, Counttiss of ~~Robt~~ \ Penbrooke/ &c. wherein is this inscription: De &c. Sc. de Crackenthorpe fieri fecerit.[700]
{Machels Armes have about the doggs necks 2 stroke of oringe colour for the coller, which Dugdal has omitted: mat. Preston⸸.}

Monuments
3. Margaret, daughter of [blank] Russel Earle of Bed[ford] – a large tome with the figure of her body ~~&~~ laying at lenth (& large inscriptions with armes, which Mr \ Dugdal / hath taken) which he hath omitted.[701]
4. The Lady Ann Cliffords monument (not taken by Dugdall) which stands above a vault made on purpose for a burying place to her posterity†.
1. A figure \ of a woman / which lyes along under an arch on the right hand the Communion Table or Aultur, beyond the monument of the Lady Margaret Cliford. In Machells Quire now as wa [blank][702]
2. A broad \ grave / stone writt about which I cannot read. It now lyes in Warcops burying place.

[Machell's Notes: I.295]
*See my oblong booke of Miscellanies, & Dugdall, who visited that church, but has oversene[703] the horsehead coate, which is \ in / my Miscellanies.
†Testament Will Yewbanke et alijs.
‡See Leighs Accidence of Armorie pag.133.)
⸸{By an order of Thomas, Earle of Lancasters: order, temp. Edward 1. Earle Marishal of England. Insert the rule as a caution & direction for the future.} Vide Leigh.[704]

[I.328B][705]

[A Fragment]

Under this marble buryd lye*
(If fame can buryed bee)
The good old Mali-Catuli
The floores of chevalrie.[706]

[696] 'Repairer of the church.'
[697] Nave.
[698] 'Once.'
[699] Annulets.
[700] '... of Crackenthorpe caused this to be made.'
[701] The sense of this comment is probably, 'and large inscriptions with arms, which I have taken [but] Dugdale hath omitted.'
[702] Incomplete sentence, written in pencil.
[703] Overlooked.
[704] Gerard Leigh, The Accedence of Armorie (London, 1563).
[705] A torn sheet of notes.
[706] See N&B1, 344.

Figure 1.1.33: 'The Good old Mali-Catuli'. 1.328B.

So much for the church, to what belongs as parcells of the parish.

Appleby with Scattergate, which is part of it; Hoff alias Over Hoff,[707] distant ½ a mile; Burrells, ½ a mile; Colby above a mile; Barwise Row about a mile; Colby Leath, about a mile; Drybeck, about a mile.
Manners:
1. of Appleby
2. of Barwise
3. of Colby
4. of Hoff
5. Drybeck?

[Machell's Notes: I.295]
*{Monuments: These [3 & 4] must be drawn att large.}

[III.53]

[Parish Boundary]
It is bounded on the N. \ & East / with St Michaels, Appelby, commonly called Bongate Parish; on the S.E. & S. with Ormside & Ashby; on the west with ~~Orton~~ Crosby Ravensworth; and \ part of Morland an[d] on / the ~~west &~~ norwest with \ the remaining part of / Morland Parish.

The Perambulation
Beginning at the foote of Sweetmilk sike where it runneth into Eaden near Buly Castle & Crakanthorpe Hall \ opposite / a place belonging to the said Hall called Parklands Head. Thence eastward up the River Eden to a place called Hellyeats, where Stainmore-Gill Sike comes into Eden opposite to the rock called Clint-Skar in the south field which belongs to Appelby Castle \ where it leaves Bondgate Parish & adjoynes upon Ormside. Thence S. west up the said sike {cloven stone N. from here} to an \ little / hamlet in Ormside Parish, called the Heeghts; {The Hights} thence directly to Rutterforce. Thence S. up Rutter Beck to \ Scalebeck Fote ~~near~~ / an house called Howslacks (where it leves Ormside and borders upon Ashby) thence S. up Scale Beck aforesaid till you come at Halligil Wood*. Thence \ S. / ~~up a runlett or rill of water~~ \ up the said beck / by the edge of Highfield \ inclusively / to the intack-wall near Gathorn-Hall \ where Ashby & Crosby Parish meet, & Lankakes.[708] Thence west up the said wall \ crossing Kendall highway / to a little hamblet in Crosby Parish called Banke Head \ ~~Dale~~†? / Thence N.W. (& by W.) by the Banke End wall to Lankakes-House near the Countiss Mount, & so on the said wall till you com at Meaburn Edge; thence W. down the Edge-Wall till you com at Maulds-Meaburn. Thence N. by a stone wall along the side of the moore‡ to a pasture called Intack; thence N.W. by a ring wall on the outside of the moore till you com an hamlet called Drivivers⊥. Thence N.W. by Kings Meaburn ring-dike till you com at Teas-Close-Head; \ thence / N. downe the outside of Teas-Close wall to Buly Castle; thence \ N. / by Sweet Milke Sike till ~~the river~~ \ it enters / Eden where we began.

[707] MS: 'Hoff ~~Barwis Row Colby~~ alias Over Hoff.'
[708] MS: 'intack-wall near Gathorn-Hall \ where Ashby \ is / ~~into~~ {~~Gathorn Hall~~ & Crosby Parish meet, & Lancakes.}'

[Machell's Notes: III.53]

*Halligil Wood – foxes alwayes.
†Query of Barhouse farmer.
‡Q. of this, for the more I thinke belongs Meaburn. Q. of other moors. Q. where Morland endes.
⸸{A q[u]arry} {Query, where Morland enters?}

[III.54]

[Addition to the perambulation by Thomas Dobison of Drivivers]
Thence up Scale-Beck to Bousfildes grounds joyning on to T. Bousfield, Gathorn demaine; thence W. by the ringwall of the said grounds till you com to Dribeck Common \ at Bousfield Yeat; / thence ~~W.by a~~ S. down Bousfields wall, till you com at the roade ~~harding on~~ twixt Dribeck & Kendal; thence \ N. / crossing the way down Harding-Pasture wall to Harding-Neuke \ Side / where Maulds / Meaburn lordship in the parish of Crosby Ravensworth comes in; thence [Blank]*
{Thence Spabanke \ to a stone / a little above the head of Great Briggell, where Dribeck & Meaburn Commons meet.}[709]
{Neuk of Swinegill}
From the Marke-stones \ upon the more / where Colby, Dribeck, Mauds Meaburn & Kings Meaburn meet. Thence N.W.
Mr Dobson has som tent[ament]s. Lord Dakers {Mr Warcop; Rob. Speding.}

[Machell's Notes: III.54]

*{Thus far Thomas Dobison of Drivivers. Will Burry of Drivivers? Rob. Smith of Raw?}

[III.55]

{Gentlemens Houses}
Castle, Goldrington Hall, Colby Leath, Colby Tower, Barwise Hall, Buly Castle [and] Parke, Barhouse Hall, Rutter Demaine –a bad house, thatched.

{Manners}
There are in this parish Lordships or Manners. 1. Appelby-Burrow; 2. The Castle; 3. Hoff & Dribeck; 4. Colby.

1. The Burrow of Appelby are generally freeburgers, and the Mayor of the Towne keeps Court & Barron, at which \ not only / the freemen answers, but the freeburgers also, & doe Suit & Service. But the Burgers choose parli[a]ment men; the Common Council, ~~who are always freeburgers~~, choose the mayor with the consent of the Court of Aldermen. (The Mayor chooses all his officers.)

2. The Castle is the Capital Messuage of Westm'land. There [are] some ten[eme]nts in Scattergate, which is called a Lordship in the Register of Apleby, Anno 1598, for som lands they hold in the fields of Appeby Castle. Burrell S.W. a Castel, 1 mile – xiv fam[ilies]: all customary tenants. \ Burrowgate & the Wiends: l. xxiv fam. Scattergate: xxv. And others in Bongate parish? /

3. 35. Elizabeth, 10 March [1592-93] a ~~lease~~ \ pattent / from Queen Elizabeth under ~~a Broad Lease~~ \ the seal of the Exchequer / of the herbage & hay ground of Hoff Lun \ Wood / called therein Bosc de Hoffe Lyme or Hoflyme Wood. {This is the dom[ane]; no house.} Parcell of the manner of Hof & Dribeck, parcel of the lands & possessions of Leonard Dacre Esq., de alta proditione attincti existentis &c.[710] Lett to Thomas Yaire, Miles Yair & Ann Yair & their assignes for the terme of the lifes \ surrenders or forfaitures / of every one of them successively, for which they paid a fine of vj^{li} xiii^{s} iiij^{d}.[711] The year rent of \ lxvi^{s} viii^{d}: / sexagint sex solid' et octo denar'[712] ~~with an heriot~~ at the [709] This margin comment is partly obscured and partly scored through.

[710] '… attainted for High Treason &c.' Leonard Dacre (born c.1533) was attainted in 1570, but fled to Scotland, and then to Flanders, where he died in 1573. The reasons for his fall from grace are given by Henry Summerson in 'Dacre, Leonard (d. 1573), rebel'. ODNB.
[711] £6 13s 4d.
[712] 66s 8d.

Annunciation[713] & Michaelmas, by equal por[tions]. And after the decease of each of them who dyed tenant thereof, paying 30^{s} (of his moneys) nomine herietti:[714] \ penes dictum Willielmum Smith.[715] /

In Hoff \ & Raw / \ 3 miles ½ / about X familyes, all customary†; & Dribeck is of the like Tenure.
33. Elizabeth, 12 July [1591] lett to Richard Southaite Gentleman by pattent, the woods, underwoods & trees growing in Hoff lunn wood in the manner of Hoff / & Drybeck in 4 several ~~Hoff~~ copses: sc.
Greenbanke Coppice or Hag. Of 20 acres.
Hougil Copice or Hag, 20 acres.
Bradland Banke, 30 acres.
Foddering Land Hag, 12 acres.
{Leased] from the Feast of the Annunciation before the date thereof for 21 years for 40^{s} per annum at Michaelmas and Annunciation. And this [deed] being in the hand of Francis Sou[erby][716] Esq. By good & lawful means ½ of it was granted by indenture from him, bearing date 26. September 3^{0} Jacobi [1605] to Thomas Yaire of Dribeck, yeoman, for the remander,[717] with 1 part in 3 of fierboot[718] to be rendered jointly betwixt them: penes Will. Smith de Apelby cler. pocciatem.[719]
Indented manner. It is agreed upon by consent of both parties, that the yearly rent of 3^{s} going out of the said grounds to the vicar of Appelby for tythes on the same shall be equally paid by the partyes to this indenture.}

{Nether Hof near Colby, W. I mile. 2 demanes freehold: Mr Bradley, Mr Dobson. High Field in Dribeck libertyes iiii fam[ilies] Customary.}

{Rutter demane and IV familys in High & Low Rutter \ 1 mile ½ S. ab Ecclesia / all customary [tenants] to Williams} All Williams tenants pay an Heriot, Sc. the best Laid,[720] Good, otherwise none. The present lady thereof is a young daughter of Will William of Johnby Hall in Cumberland given by her father and purchased by him.

4. Colby: \ a little / [over] 1 mile W. ab Ecclesia;[721] xxv \ iii / familyes, most of them freeholds – The Bishop has tenements there which pay 3. 6. 8^{d} Rent. {90^{li} per annum}.
Colby Leathes: a single farm-house of the Dean & Chapter and an out-house. Barhouse-Hall: Sir John Sudwicks. Before to one Rose who forfeited by steeling a chalice ab Ecclesia. Sir John Boyer purchased it of Sudwick.[722]

[Machell's Notes: III.55; III.56; III.59]

†{At the S. end of Hof bridge is a place called Duglassing[723] where they was a battle with Scotch & English ~~abe~~ when Appelby was burned. Sculls and boanes of dead men have bin found near the bridge in the memory of man, & they talke of a chaple hereabouts.}
[III.56]
From the Intack near Gaythorn Hall
Q. to compleat the bounder.

[713] Saturday 25 March.
[714] 'As a heriot.'
[715] 'In the possession of the said William Smith.'
[716] MS: 'Sou'; the shortened word is unclear.
[717] A word here is obscured by the binding.
[718] 'Fierboot', 'Firebote', 'Fyrbot': firewood, especially that which a tenant is entitled to take from a landlord's estate for fuel; (hence) the right or privilege of a tenant to take such wood; also housebote, haybote. OED.
[719] [The deed] 'in custody of William Smith of Appleby: Town Clerk.'
[720] This word has been altered, thus making the transcription questionable.
[721] 'Church of St Lawrence.'
[722] 'In the reigns of Henry VII and Henry VIII, [Berwise Hall] belonged to Sir Thomas Roos Esq. a descendant of whom forfeited it by stealing a silver chalice out of the church. Sir John Sudwick sold it to Sir John Baker, whose widow sold it to Reginald Dobson of Dufton, from whom it descended to the Metcalfes of Bellerby in Yorkshire.' J. Hodgson, A Topographical and Historical Description of Westmoreland (London, 1810), 81.
[723] 'Douglas Ing'.

Will. Burry of Drivivers }
Rob. Smith of Raw } bo[u]nd[er]?
& Crosby Ravens[724] }

In Dugdale visit.
Prosspect of Ap. & Cast.
Arms in and about C[astle].
Ar. in & about in hospital.
Ar. in & about the church.
Query if he drew the monuments, else I must.

If Addison have not the N.W. Castle, I must draw it and the cross.
[III.59][725]
Bongate the Bounder
Q. of Cambula.[726]

[2]

[St Michael's]
Of the Parish [and Bounds] of Bongate[727]

[I.342A] [728]

The parish of Bongate is anciently calld St Michaels in Appilby because the church stands in Bondgate, a part of that Town. There is given to the Bindeing out of poor Apprentices by Lancelot Machell of Crackenthorpe Esq. ~~of the Tow~~ devised in the Great Settlement of his Estate, XX, to be paid out of his tythes of Crackenthorpe*.

[Machell's Notes: I.342A & I.339]
*Mem[orandum] a Charity at Kendal of John Machell, sheriff of London which if paid ought to be remembered, & if not paid, ought to [be] looked for; the [charity] descends from him being of good fortunes in Bucks & Sussex.
[I.339] The boundarys. See my paper and examen J. Hill.

[I.305]

St Michaels
To St Michaels church in Apleby are belonging these places following: 1st, Bongate; \ 2. Battlebar[row], which are / parts of Apleby and called vici de Apleby i.e. streets of Apleby; 3. Crakinthorp; 4. Hilton & 5. Murton; 6. Langton; & 7. Brakenbar.

[III.61]

{1} The parish of Bongate (otherwise called St Michaels Apelby) is a vicaridge,[729] valued in the first fruits office at 20li 17s 9½d.[730] And is in the gift of the Bishop of Carleol ~~for the time being~~.[731]

[724] The word having been overwritten, it is unclear whether Machell wrote Ravensworth or Ravensbeck.
[725] This page appears to be an outer wrapper of a set of notes now subsumed into the text of Volume III.
[726] Cambula or Camlann is associated with King Arthur's last battle, the story of which was told by Geoffrey of Monmouth in his pseudo-historical chronicle Historia Regum Britanniae (c.1136). Though Geoffrey placed Camlann on the Camel in Cornwall, some insist that the battle was fought at Camboglanna (Castlesteads) on Hadrian's Wall. See Andrew Breeze, British Battles 493-937: Mount Badon to Brunanburh (London, 2020), 13-24.
[727] This title has been removed from MS.III.61.
[728] MS: A small scrap-page containing a short draft of the Bongate parish description, also written elsewhere.
[729] 'A vicar is a clergyman who has the charge of cure of a parish where the tithes have been appropriated. During the middle ages, when churches were appropriated to monasteries, vicars were employed to perform the duties of the rector and received the 'vicarial' or 'small' tithes for their maintenance. After the dissolution of the monasteries 'rectorial' tithes of impropriate rectories were commonly granted to laymen.' CCED, Glossary.
[730] The Court of First Fruits and Tenths was established in 1540 to collect moneys from clerical benefices that previously had been sent to Rome. First fruits were the first year's profits owed by a new holder of a benefice; tenths were 10 percent of the annual income, due each year: https://www.britannica.com/topic/Court-of-Augmentations.
[731] MS I.342A contains similar text: 'It is a vicaridge Rated in the First Fruites office at [Blank] and is in the Donation of the Bishop of Carlile.'

The present incumbent is Barnaby Symson M.A. & somtime Fellow of Queens College in Oxon, being son & successor to Mr Robert Symson the elder (not only in this, but also in Ormside & Longmarton parishes) who liv'd to be a ve[n]rable old man & a great example of conjugal love, as having lived above 50 years in a maryed estate without the least difference betwixt him & his wife.[732] There is a charity of 20[li] for bindeing poore ~~boys~~ apprentices, left unto Crakanthorp within this parish, by the late, valiant & truly loyal Lancelot Machell Esq., Lord of that \ Town / & Lieutenant of horse to the two Countyes of Westmorland & Cumberland.

[Of the Bounds of the parish of Bongate][733]
{W.} This parish is confin'd on the west with St Laurence, Apelby, and the Lordships of Bolton in Morland parish whose bankes are washed (excepting where it hath alter'd its course) with the great River Eden[734] which Camden calls Nobilis Ituna,[735] Sc. from the foote of Cowpland Beck unto the foote of Old Troutbeck steed,[736] where it hath formerly runn into Eden.[737]

{N.} Thence, on the north, with Kirkbythore parish, being divided from it by the said Old Beck-Steed & som part of Troutbeck till you ascend to Kirkbythore-Bridge.

{N.E.}Thence on the north & north-east side it is environ'd with Long Marton Parish & distinguished from it \ either by the ring-hedge of Brampton Lordship or / the great Romane-Way ~~commonly~~ called The Street, ~~the~~ Kings-Street & High-Stree[t], which runneth S.E. from Kirkbythore-bridge to Barron Cross (where it brancheth to Apleby) & so on, to \ a place hard by / Storrow-Close Nooke; thence, by a settle[738] (extending eastwards in a bowline) to Bongate Field Dike at Bon-Roodes Head, and by the said dike {i.e. hedge} to Crundale \ or Curndale / Head, descending northwards. Thence, by the midle of Crundale Bottom (a ~~famous~~ \ curious / foote race near unto Apleby) to Langton Tarne Sike. Thence, by the said sike (which runneth N.W.) to a place call'd Espland \ Stockbrigg at Espland is in the way twix Ap[pleby]. & D[ufton] near Brampton Hall / where it looseth it selfe in Troutbeck aforesaid (which beareth the name of Burthet Beck there), which changeing its name almost at every place it comes at & here call'd Burthet*.

[Machell's Notes III.61]

*{The reason why I adhere to name of Troutbeck generally for this river is because it hath many particular names from the several places it runns by or thorow (as Brampton), & so can not be fixed for any one of them.}

[III.63]

{N.E.} Thence it is bounded on the N.E.* agane with the parish of Dufton, & divided from it by Troutbeck (or Burthet) to Hikupdale Head, near which place it springs. Thence, by a streight line extending eastwards to the high-way or street which leadeth from Dufton to a place called Birkdale in

[732] Another draft of this material (MS I.339) but crossed through, gives: '{Rate; patrons} Bongate is a vicaridge rated in the first fruits office at [blank] and is in the disposal of [blank] {Incumbent}The present incumbent is Barnaby Symson M.A. & sometime fellow of Queens College in Oxford, who succed his father; both in this, & ~~\ the recovrye / Ormside of Ormside~~ & Long Merton Parsonage which use all the incumbents that have bin ~~there~~ \ in their / since the Restoration of King Charles II.'

[733] A note (MS. I.342) not reproduced in the body text, reads, '{Bondgate Parish} Up Grange Beck to the spring head at Green Castle. Thence in streight line to Troutbeckhead, & so on till Moseburn com into Troutbeck to it, divideing us from K. in Long Marton Parish. From thence to Troutbeck foot from Dufton P[ike]. Thence up Teas to far Crakenthorp which divides up from Tine Head in Astan Moore in Com. Thence up the river to Tease Head. Thence to Blenkarne Dale Head where Blenkarnebeck springs. Newb[y] – From Cradundale to Cowgen Head. Thence down that sill to Cunnigarth Head. Thence down Blackh…s dike.'

[734] Written in upper case in the original.

[735] See Camden, Britannnia: 1. 'That notable river Eden, which Ptolemee called Ituna' (760); 2. 'Ituna. That notable river which wandreth through Westmorland', 776.

[736] Former bed of the beck.

[737] Another version (III.65) gives, '{W. 4.} This parish is confin'd on the west with St Laurence, Apelby & som part of the parish of Morland whose bankes are washed with the great river Eden (which Camden \ called / called the Nobilis Ituna) from Cowpland-Beck-Foote to the foote of old Troutbeck thence where it hath formerly runn into Eden {excepting where its course has but altred.}'

[738] Settle: a flat ledge or wall foot; see also within this chapter at III.67.

the said parish \ of Dufton. / Thence, by the said way (running still eastwards) to the High-Wath of Mase Beck. Thence, by Mase-Beck (descending S.E.) to a place called Broad-Mea {i.e. a piece of ground so called, being a plane benty green compass'd with heath} near the low wath of Mase-Beck, where {?!} Rummakirk[739] Parish (in the county of York) commeth in & conjoyneth on the east side of it ~~saveing onely~~ \ which / divided by a direct mathematical line (which extending southwards) from Bread-Mea Foote[740] to the bought or bending of Mickle Fell, & so up that fell to an hurrock[741] \ of stone / (which they call a carrock) on the very \ end of it†.[742] From whence 'tis confined with the parish of Warcop on the south–east & south, & distinguished from it by a streight line thurrow Philip Read Moss; from the said hurrock (S.W.?) on Mickle fell End to another hurrock upon Lile Fell;[743] whence agane to C[hr]isty-Gill Head, & so down the bottom of Christy-Gill to the very foote of it. Thence, by a streight line (ascending westwards) over Swindale-Beck to Swindale Fauldes‡, & thence agane westward to an hurruck of stones on the top of Roman-Fell. Whence, descending (by a streight line) unto the head of Wastergill-Sike, & thence by that sike to a place call'd Spell-Banke, where it divides into 2 streams, & so ~~by~~ \ at / the right streame (or channel of it, when \ it / doth not runn) down Low-Gill-Banke to a place called Storth; and thence by Storth Sike to Breadmire Sike, whence down Breadmire Sike

[Machell's Notes: III.63]

*{Towan sayes N.W. Troutbeck springest at Hikuphead & runs west to Keiscliff; thence behinde Brampton; thence to Marton & so to Kirkbythore all along from E. to W.}
†{Query} {!} {So. Jo[hn] Hill & Thomas Sanderson agree, but Nic[holas] Harrison talks of Birk-Sike-Head whence wee are to ascend by a line S.E. to the carruck on Mickle Fell; and they, on the contrary, that Birk-Sike-Head is far in Yorkshire & that Sir William Bowes has an house & lead mines on this side of it, ergo q[uery]?}
‡{General note: Mem. at Bolton in Machells court rolls.}[744]

[III.69]

which runns by the skirts of Humphrey Head, takeing it in till it falls into Dowbeck & so down by Dowbeck till George Gill Tong*, where it runns into Kelds-Well Sike & thence descending by Keldswell Sike to Cowpland Beck Bridge, & so to the foot of Cowpland Beck, where wee first began.[745]

[Machell's Notes: III.69]

*{Tüng: a similitudine extremitatis ejusdem inter fauceses duorum fluviorum.}[746]

[I.337]

[This version of the Bounds starting from the east, was made by John Hill]
It is bounded on the east with Rummakirk, from which tis divided by Brikesike from the head ~~down~~ of it to a[747] hurruck of stones south east on the top of Mickle-Fell End*. \ So, from the parish of Warcop / in streight line […][748] on the south E. with the parish of Warcop, {in streight line} SW to another hurrock of stones {in straight line} from the hurruck of stone on Mickel-Fell to another upon Little fell by a streight line through Phillip Read Moss. Thence \ S.W. / to Cissy Gill Head by a [739] Romaldkirk, near Barnard Castle.

[740] Broad Mease. The place-names 'bread' and 'broad' are used interchangeably in this bounder narrative; both derive from the old Saxon 'breiðr', meaning 'broad'. See Westmorland Place-Names.
[741] 'Carrock': from the Old Welsh 'carrec': a rock; otherwise, a cairn on a hill marking the way or boundary.
[742] MS: '… on the very \ end of it / Top of Mickle Fell End'; Machell sometimes used pecked underscoring when considering the removal of text.
[743] MS: 'from whence 'tis confined with the parish of Warcop on the south-~~east & south: Sc. from the hurruck of stone on Mickle Fell End, by a special line through Philip Read Moss~~ east & south, & distinguished from it by a streight line thurrow Philip Read Moss; from the said hurrock (S.W.?) on Mickle fell End to another hurrock upon Lile Fell.' Lile = little.
[744] This appears to be written in another hand.
[745] MS: 'whence down ~~by~~ Breadmire \ Sike / which runns by the Skortes (which runns by the skirts of Humphrey Head ~~&~~ taketh it in \ takeing it in / till it falls into Dowbeck & so (down) by Dowbeck till George Gill Tong, where it ~~enters~~ \ runns into / Kelds-Well \ Sike / & thence (descending) by Keldswell Sike to Cowpland Beck Bridge, & so to the foot of Cowpland Beck, where wee first began, ~~by which \ it / is divided from Warcop~~.'
[746] 'So called from its resemblance to a tongue in the angle of the fork of two river channels.'
[747] Here there is a small sketch within the line of text.
[748] MS: 'in streght line {a streight line}'. This is followed by two illegible words.

streight line. Thence down the bottom of the Gill to ~~the foote of~~ \ Sissy Gill. / Thence \ westward / ascending by a streight \ line / over Swindale Beck to Swindale faulds. Thence westward ~~over~~ to an hurrock of stones on the top of Roman Fell – & thence descending in a streight line to Waster-Gill \ Sike / Head – ~~where the Sike \ so calld / springs~~. Thence down Wastergill-Sike – to ~~Humphrey Head~~ to Spel-Banke, where it divides into 2 streames. Thence down the right hand streame \ or sample of it which doth not run allwayes / down Lowgill Banke to \ a pasture calld / Storth. Thence down Storth-Sike, to Breadmire Sike; thence down Breadmire Sike to Humphrey Head \ Hill, / takeing it in till it runn into Dowbecksike; thence down Dowbeck, to Gorge Gill-Tonge End where it enters Keldswell-Sike; thence down that sike to Cowpland Beck Bridge; thence down Cowpland Beck ~~brig~~ to Eaden \ the river Eden being divid ~~all along from Warcop~~ / by \ these meet […][749] land markes all along from the parish of Warcop. / Thence on the west tis bound with St Lawrence Apleby & part of Morland, from which tis divided by the river Eden (from Cowpland Beck Foote) to the foote of old Troutbeck†. Thence on the north, with Kirkbythore parish from which tis divided from Troutbeck Foote to Kirkbythore brig by old Troutbeck Steed on N. and nor-east, with Murton parish or by the Street (or hedge)[750]

[Machell's Notes: I.337]

*{At Mical Fell mines,[751] a white raven builded as white as milke: Jo[hn] Hill}

†{This for Nicholas Harrison}

[I.338]

S.E. on Roman Way to Baron Cross where the sayd way brancheth out to Apelby, which divides from the Lordship of Brampton in Longmarton parish*. Thence directly up the foresaid streat to Borrowdale Nooke at a smal distance from it. Thence \ eastward / to Bongate Field Dikes at Bororoades Heade by a settle in a crooked line. Thence north to Crundale Head, by the said ~~thence~~ \ hedge. / Then down the midle of Crundale Bottom (which discribes an S.) to Langton Tarn Sike Troutbeck, at the foote of Flay Brigg. Thence from Dufton parish \ which lyes N. of it / by Troutbeck upwards to the spring-head at Hikeup ~~Dale~~ \ Head. / Thence to \ an hurrock of stones on / Watch-Hill by a direct line. Thence to Mase-Beck Head by a direct line. Thence eastward down Mase-Beck till it com into Swath-Beck. Then down Swath-Beck to Birke Sike \ Foote thence to the / head where wee began†.

Thence down the Sand sike which runneth northwest ~~to a place calld~~ till it looseth it selfe in Troutbeck aforesaid at a place called Espland, where it beares the name of Burthet Beck.

{N.E.}

On the north east \ it is invironed / with the parish & lordship of Dufton (from which it is divided from Espland aforesaid by Troutbeck (or Burthet) following it all along up the river to Hikeup Dalehead, near which place it springs‡. Thence eastward in a streight line to the highway, which ~~goes~~ headeth from (the town of) Dufton to \ a place calld B. in the said parish. / Thence \ by the said way which you follow eastwards / (down that ~~street~~ highway) eastwards to the High Wath of Masebeck. Thence \ to the / S.E. & by Masebeck descending S.E. /down the said ~~beck~~ \ river / to a place calld Broad Mea near the Low Wath of Masebeck {not a boggy but a rushy benty place}, divideing it all a long \ N.E. / from \ the parish of / Dufton ~~parish aforesaid~~.

{E.}

On the east with Rummakirk in Yorke\shire / being divided from it by a streight line \ southwards / from Broad Mea Foote, up the midle of it to the bought \ or bending / of Mickle Fell. Thence by a streight line to the hurrock of stones on the top of Mickel Fell, where wee began: John Hill.

[Machell's Notes: I.338]

*{Marcton parish surely never grass grew.}

†Query If it touch upon Midleton. Qu. of John Hill: How twixt Bongate and Brampton.[752]

‡{It springs in Dufton parish near Narrow Gate.}

---

[749] Two interlineated and superimposed words here have not been transcribed.

[750] MS: 'Troutbeck Foote: {On the north} Thence on the north, with Kirkby \ thore parish / & ~~Murton parish~~ from which tis divided from Troutbeck Foote to Kirkby thore brig by old Troutbeck Steed \ on N. and nor-east / with ~~or rather S. east~~ Murton parish or by the ~~thence eastwards up~~ the Street (or hedge).'

[751] This could easily be read as 'Meal' Fell, see I.341.

[752] Machell's source was John Hill of 'The How' between Bongate and Brampton, Westmorland.

[Further versions of the Bounds]

[III.65]

Thence {N.} on the North with Kirkbythore parish from which 'tis divided by the old Beck-Steed & som part of Troutbeck, till you com at Kirkbythore Bridge where it meeteth with Long Marton parish \ & / from which tis divided on the N. & N.E. by the great Romane-Way (commonly called \ Hagh Street antiently / Kings Street & High-Street) till you com at a place\ from Kirkbythore Bridge to Baron / called Baron Cross on this side Apleby; & so directly to Storray Close Nooke {whence it branches to Apleby} which is near there unto, the foresaid way running all this while directly S.E. from Kirkbythore Bridge & divide in the Lordship of C. & B.,

[III.67]

by the latter of which it is yet hem'd in & divided from it with a certain \ crooked / settle extending eastwards from Storrow-Close-Nooke to Bongate Field Dike at Bon-roodes Head & by the said dike to Crundale Head, descending northwards. Thence by the midle of Crundale Bottom (a famous foote race near unto Apleby) to Langton Tarne Sike; thence by the said sike which runneth N.W. to a place calld Espland, where it enters Troutbeck {called here also Burthet Beck} which divideth it (hence) on the northeast from the parish & Lordship of Dufton to Hicupdale Head (near which place it springeth from the parish of Dufton, called here also Burthet Beck, & where the parish of Dufton comes in & and adjoynes, by which it is bordered on the north-east & from which tis divided by \ the river / Troutbeck (or Burthet \ Beck /) following it all along up the river to Hicupdale Head near which place it springs. Thence by a streight line extending eastwards to the highway which leadeth from Dufton to a place calld Birkdale in the said parish; thence by the said way running still eastwards to the High-Wath of Mase-Beck; thence by Mase-Beck descending S.E. to a place \ swang / calld Broad Mea* which is near unto the Low-Wath of Masebeck where (it toucheth on) Rumakirkirk parish (in the county of York)† & enjoyneth unto it on the E. side thereof, being onely divided by a straight mathematical line extending S. wards \ or may be S.E. / from Broadmea Foote up the midle of the bought or bending of Mickle Fell & so to an hurrock or carrack of stones on the very top of Mickle Fell End.[753]

Machell's Notes: III.67

*{Broad Mea, a piece of green benty ground compassd with ling, which is so calld.}[754]
†{Rumakirk parish in the county of Yorkeshire comes in at its border upon the N. side.}

[I.307]

{Bongate Church}

St Michaels is called Bongate in Apleby[755] 18. Henry 8. [1526-27] in the Record of the Mau[c]h[ell] de Crak[enthorp.] And in St Michaels in Apleby was the Chantery \ late / of William English, but anciently founded;[756] both which, with the other of St Mary, were given by way of augmentation to Sir Leonard Longhorn,[757] chaplain, for teaching the Grammar Schoole att Apleby: Anno Dom. 1515, 9. Henry 8. Witness: Henry Salkeld, tunc majore;[758] Richard Garnett, Vicario; Rowlando Machell & Hugone Machel; Edmundo Machell; Johe Hilton, et alijs.

[I.507]

{Machellorum familia Scholæ Appelbiensi Benefactor perpetua assidua continua.[759]
Mr Ja[mes] rechard.

[753] MS. I.310 also references Crundale: 'At Crundale Bottome … is a place very commodious & frequently used for running of races, either on foot or with little horses. I thinke it is in the parish & lordship of Bongate? {Sed Quaere}'.
[754] See also MS. III.63; I.338.
[755] MS: '{St Michaels} it is called Bongate in Apleby.'
[756] N&BI refers to a lease of a garden granted in '7. Edward 4.' (1467-68), 'by Sir James Harrington (patron) and John Winton, chaplain of the chantry of Sir William Englys, knight.' The lease was found in the 'town chest of Appleby.' N&B1, 342.
[757] Langhorn.
[758] 'Then mayor.'
[759] 'The Machell family was a perpetual and constant and continuing benefactor of Appleby School.'

L.M.[760] Esq., a duly [appointed] benefactor to Apelby school concilio et auxilio.}[761]

[I.308]

[Arms and Monuments]

The armes of the Mauchells de Crakanthorpe were formerly in diverse parts of Bongate Church, viz. in the east window att large and in the little window next to the quire under which the Heltons have now theire seat, but they were taken downe and lost at the repareing of the said church, either by the neglegence or knavery, which more to be suspected, of the ~~bribe~~ glasier who was bribed by one that envied the antiquity of that ancient family. This was don in my time & I could if I had a mind give a more particular account concerneing it. There are no coates of armes now remaneing except the Cliffords \ which are / in that little south quire next to the pulpit in the east window thereof & some upon the timber, now much defaced; but as near as I am able to conjecture they are as followeth, viz. Argent a ~~f~~ Gules.[762] Argent a fess S[able][763] 6 anuletts the colours decayed, but I take them to be Musgraves; Sable, the charge defaced, which I take to be Machells, for they are the most ancient ~~gentry~~ inhabitants of this parish.

There \ are / no monuments observable in the church excepting one which is the figure of a woman laying long upon a through stone under a little arch on the north side of the church, and above it within the arch is an eschuction[764] parted per pale: in the 1st 6 anuletts, in the 2nd 3 water budgetts, which I take to be Musgraves & Rosses Armes, and that monument to have bin erected there in memorie of some of the Rosses who were matched into the family of the Musgraves who resided some time at Morton in this parish, which was heretofore a Lordship of theirs but afterwards sold unto the Hiltons. There is allso in quire near to the Altar a large marble through of a blewrish colour, but without any inscription, under which the ancestours of the Machells of Crackenthorpe doe lye interred & were never ambitious of a fairer monument.

[I.309]

‘Tumulo Pompeius Nullo’: Martial vide.[765]

[Machell’s Notes: I.349]

I finde a warrant for a tree out of Morland wood to Mr Fetherston, Vicar, towards the repareing of the seats in the Dean and Chapter quire. Bering date 1605. Subscribed by Barn. Rob.; Edw. Maplet; W. Men; Richard Sibson. Directed to Adam Trigge, keeper of their woods att Mooreland.

There were in that quire the east window the Machell arms att large, and agane in the body of the Church in the first northside window next to the quire over the place where Mr Hilton sits, taken away when the church was glasen’d and repared; I forbear to speake by whome or how, to prevent descention.[766]

---

[760] Lancelot Machell, Thomas Machell’s father.

[761] Concilio et auxilio: ‘with his advice and assistance.’

[762] In this sentence the consonant ‘f’ [fess?] has been scored through.

[763] The last letter is faint; it could be ‘S’, ‘I’ or ‘g’.

[764] Escutcheon.

[765] ‘Pompey had no tomb.’ See Martial, EPIG. XC. Epigrammata contraria: the 2 Epigrams made on Licinus a basely born but wealthy barber of Rome, who had a marble tomb:
‘Marmoreo tumulo Licinus jacet, at Cato parvo. Pompeius nullo: credimus esse Deos?’ Translates as:
‘Licinus in Marble, Cato in a small Tomb lies. Pompey in none: can we there be Gods surmise?’
Another Distich answers that the Gods reward worthy Men with fame and felicity.
‘Saxa premunt Licinum, vehit alte Fama Catonem. Pompeium titulis: Cedimus esse Deos.’ Translates as:
‘Stones press down Licinus, Fame Cato high doth mount. Titles raise Pompey: Gods there be we count.’
Machell’s allusion is to Gnaeus Pompeius Magnus (Pompey the Great), who was defeated in civil war by Julius Caesar and murdered in Egypt in 48 B.C. Pompey’s head was severed (it was later burned in a funeral pyre by one of his freedmen) and his body thrown into the sea. No tomb for him, therefore, although he had been one of the leading Roman generals and statesmen of the late Republic. In the context, Machell is evidently declaring that it is no shame for the Crackenthorpe Machells to have a plain, uninscribed tomb when Pompey the Great had none.

[766] ‘Dissension.’

Familia de Colleby: John de Colby test. apud cart Berwis (penes Blenkinsop)}
Hugh de Colleby 1343 circa. 16° Ed. 3; 17° Ed. 3
Familia de Heltun: Thomas He\t/on, de Hel \t/on Coronator 33. Henry 6. [1454-55]

The Fryeredge
I finde in the evidence chest of the Machells of Crakenthorp {In a bill of} the fests[767] of Guy Nelsons forth bringing: s. d. but I suppose in the time of Henry 8. for there is mencon of Ambrose Machells wife. Amongst other things – as to sex priefes[768] ij^{s} iij^{d}; for proveing of the testament, 3^{s} 4^{d}; making it, iiij^{d}.

Memorandum to the Prior of Freers for Fraternyte: 1^{d}
Item for Nottgyld x^{d} ob[769] for one pare of shoes shoyngs:[770] iiii^{d}.

{Apelby: the Baliffes principl men even in the time of Henry 8. – major Bal. et com. anno ejus 9^{0}, see Cart. Machell} de Famili Machaellorum.

[I.305]

Chaples; Hamletts.

[Chapels]
At Crakenthorpe up the top of the hill, which was standing till of late years – an other I suppose in the way betwixt Coupland Beck Bridge & Bongate Head if you goe the direct way by the old hedge steed; for on the left hand is a square platte imcompassed with stones, formerly a wall but now lay rudely in a continued rainge, & in the midle thereof an oblonge which I take to be the ruines of the chaple & the square in which it stand the chapple yard. Peradventure the Towne extended hither, ~~for~~ \ but / there are noe houses nor villages nor hamletts nearare to it now than Bongate Head, & that I thinke is ½ a mile distant. But certane it is that the High Street in Bongate which leads toward Coupland Bridge has comed very near as far as the moore where the little sike runns. Follow all that lane till you come att steep descent where it contracts itself on a sudden as far and wide, and the pavement of street very faire to be discovered by the whole bredth of the lane. & the lands which lay on either side by their ridges & hedge steeds contribute very much to the confirmation of the same. Howbeit there are now houses built a thwart at the head of Bongate, and a fold walled in which beyond all dispute has not bin so formerly, and the barne & wall were both reared in my time.
I thinke there was allso a parochiall chapple formerly att Murton,[771] for in the levelling their garden platte there severall sculles and mens bones were found, as I have bin long since informed.

[III.72A]

[Short Notes on families and tenancies in Bongate, Howgate Foot and Battle-brow.]

Crackenthorp. N.W. ab Ecclesia 1 mile.
Bongate. Langton E. ¾. Now III customary and one of them has freehold there also. 1 house of the Lords calld Salkeld Tenement in 1684. Entered by a writ of possession in the right of R.B.

Batterburgh. Kirkber E. ¾ at[772] Court. 2^{s} stirrup rent. Now Burton & Thanet.

Battleburrow, N. ¼, consists of XII familyes and is all burgage land. And most of them have Customary Estates out of the Liberties of the Burrow, held of Appelby Castle.
A religious house – Lady Well. St Nicholas.

Bongate near the Vic[arage] ~~a place tenements calld by the name of Paradice~~. It consists of about XXIV \ 29 by my own observation / besides the vicarage. All customary tenants excepting II

[767] 'Fest': 'putting out cattle, sheep etc. to graze at a fixed price per head.' Or, 'bind to an agreement or contract.' See Wright, English Dialect Dictionary, 2, 339.
[768] Possibly from 'pree, prieve, priefe': to prove. Thus, 'six proofs [convincements]': See Wright, English Dialect Dictionary, 4, 610.
[769] 10½d. See the English Glossary.
[770] 'Shoeings.' Middle English: shoyng(es). 'Shoes (collectively).' OED.
[771] Morton.
[772] The short word following is obscured.

freeholders who have also tenant right, & bought them selves free of Mr Robert Hilton. Ten[an]t Holds of the Dean & Chapter i.e. calld Paradice of Mr George Hilton of Bondgate Town Head.

Robert Dover \ next house / a freehold, has a priviledge at the Castle mill to grind first after the mill is clear; otherwise he may stop the miln eye;[773] & for this he is to keep the fier in and be ready to let the miller in to light a candle any time of the night.

Howgate Foote, N. from the church at North End of Bongate, about IV \ or VI / familyes, 1 of which is customary estate, the other burgages, one of which is called St Johns Croft.[774]

[III.73]

Bongate – hath 2 or 3 streets now remaneing {of which there are only 2 or 3 freeholds, Sc. the vicar[age] & 2 more that purchased their freedom,[775] lately of [blank]}.[776] For it is built in manner of a T and conteineth in it about XXX f[amilies], Sc. from N. to S. 20, from E. to West 10.
Howgate Foote is in this parish, lying ~~as Crack~~ \ N. / from the church ⅛ of a mile, conteining about V or VI familyes\ is so called from the / {Howness or Hollowness of the yeat or street, one of which is a Customary Estate belonging to Ap[pleby] Castle as a parte of the manner of Bongate; the other are members.}[777] \ The house at the Bridge End / being a member of the Burrow of Appleby.

And so likewise is Battle-brow – so calld perhaps from som notable skirmish with Scotts when they used to make their inroads ~~hither~~.[778] And the common at the N.W. end of the said street being called Jock Green may very well seem to confirm the same. This conteineth in it about XII f[amilies] \ in Rasebeck / the chief houses of which are the highest & lowest on the western row. The one belonging to Mr Philip Machell \ late Alderman of Appelby / descended from the Machells of Crak[enthorpe] Hall, whose ancestor was the famous H.M. \ of Cr. / in K. H. the 8th time \ of whome more there. / The other to Mr George Hilton \ one of the feofees / of Lankashire, a 2nd brother of the Hiltons of Murton, which house was builded out of the ruines of an old Frieredge behind the opposite row of houses where the grounds adjacent still cary that name; & it seems to have had it dedication to the Virgin Mary, because there is a well spring out of those grounds with a fluent current called Lady Well, which runneth down the back \ side / of the hous[e]s on the eastern row, & serves them with water as it has served the friers formerly, & might be of use to the whole street; & a row of houses as far as Howgate if there were occasion, with a little labour, where all along there has bin formerly ancient burgages, it lying in Gards, every one of which is a Burgage.

[III.74]

{Midle Row}
The Midle Row (where Mr Lowsons house is the chief) is but an improvement lately made, which takes away the spaciousness of it \ that street / & so likewise does the barne & improvement before Machells house; but if these were removed & a line drawn by the frieridge barne to Howgate Foote, & good houses builded, ~~it would~~ \ & likewise from Machels houses to Mr Hiltons, & a banke of stone straight from thence by the water to the House of Corection & so on, with houses in a streight line to Howgate Foote, which is all the extent of the Beast Market, it would make a noble street indeed, and be bravely watered with the said spring and River Eden, & might be convenient for a manufacture. Had Sir John Lowther instead of a facture house at Lowther, made buildings here in order to a trade, the only thing which the town stands in need of, he had so obliged them as to have deserved an eternal acknowledgement to himself & posterity; & it is a worke may beseam a noble-man, when any shal take so much \ pitty / upon it as to ~~restore this ancient burrow~~ \ lend theyre hand to lift up this ancient burrow agane, which has laid grovelling so long upon the ground.

---

[773] Mill-eye: the opening which conveys meal from the millstones to the meal-bin. OED.
[774] The information is repeated in the margin.
[775] Freeholds.
[776] See III.72A: Robert Halton.
[777] That is, ‘of the Borough’.
[778] Tales of skirmishes with the Scots are often repeated, e.g. I.173; 1.304; I.346-47.

[III.74]

{St Nicholas}
Next to Jock Green on the East side there lyes a large tract of ground which belonged of old to a little hospital bearing that name. It stood where the farme house standeth now opposite to the vennel call'd Nansens Wiend where only the river runns betwixt them, & hath stepping stones for convenience of passage, & to joyn it \ as it / were to the Market town, when the water is low.[779] Here was ~~great store~~ \ floore /of flags discovered in [blank], cut diamond square. It was anciently a hospital for IIII leapers.

[Machell's Notes: III.74]
{Erming Street, see Dugdale, Warwickshire, p.6, col.2. Q. A Strat in Eremo.}[780]

[III.75]

Who were the 1[t] founders of it I know not, onely Robert de Veteripont confirmed to the Abby of Shap. By the state of the ground \ & tho a distinct thing now of it selfe / it should seeme to have belonged to the Lordship of Crackenthorp, & to have bin taken of the demanes which hemms it in on the N. & E. side from the river by springs in a mire by Hangman Close,[781] which is now the utmost extent of limit of this Lordship of Crakanthorp, at the Lain End which comes from Battlebrough & seems to have terminate[d] an ancient street there. It is calld Hangmans Close \ thought to have taken that unpleasing name / either from som of the Machells of Crakenthorp having bin sheriffs (tho I finde no such thing) & granting this dureing their shrivalty to his executioner; or from having Furcas[782] amongst their priviledges, which were very great, as shal be shewn. And as I remember, if my childish apprehension deceived me not then, I have seen the stumbps of a pare of gallows within this close, or the little hillocks whereon they have stood.

[I.120A]

Murton

\ N. / E. 1mile ½, consistes of about \ xxiii / families, ~~most of them~~ \ 13 or 14 of which freeholds, som few arbitrary, the rest farmers. A chaple; formerly a good mannerhouse the seat of the Hiltons, but part of the demaine lands there were lately sold to Lawrence Fletcher of Strickland. A well runs into the house.

[Hilton/Helton]

Hilton: E. 1 m ½ [from Langton], and ½ a mile destant from Murton, consistes the like number of houses; most of them are freehold estates lately sold to them by Mr Thomas Hilton of Murton.[783] XII freeholds, the rest customary.

[I.305]

I finde Thomas Helton de Burton & Thomas Hilton de Hilton both witneses att a deed in the 1[st] of Elizabeth, so that by this it should seem the Murton family was then peculiarly called Hiltons of Hilton. And I suppose they had no other place then but Helton at which they dwelt on and whereupon they were called Heltons of Helton, tho they had butt ½ of the lordship; for I read of one William Musgrave de Moreton: 21. Elizabeth [1578-79], at which time allso there were Sir Simon of Edenhall & Mr Ingaram of Plompton. I finde T. Hilton of Hilton Gent, & George Hilton son & heir apparent of Thomas, bound in bond for performance of articles of agreement (29 April, 17. of King James [1619]).[784]

---

[779] A margin comment (MS I.339) provides, {'& [wood at] St Nicholas, which is supposed to be a piece of ground take[n] of[f] from this Lordship & given in nature to a piouse and religiouse use. The maintenance of Leaper[s] by som of the Machells of the other piece of the said Lordship was given of by Halth le Machel & Eve his wife to the Priory of Carlile in the f[oundation] Charter.'}
[780] 'A street in the wilderness', from the Latin and Greek, 'eremus.'
[781] MS: 'which hemms it in on the N. & E. side from the river by ~~the cource of~~ a little sike ~~which comes into Eden ad St Nicholas Dub Foote &~~ springs in a mire by Hangman Close …'
[782] 'Fork-shaped gallows', from Latin, 'furca'.
[783] MS.I.310: a note remarks, '{Morton} See towards the beginning of this booke a relation of the place & family of Hiltons, \ it was sold in 1696 by Mr George Hilton the younger to Sir John Lowther of L., except som mortgaiged to foe to Lawyer Fletcher /.'
[784] A note remarks, 'Arms & Matches of Hilton se in Kirkby Thore, a loose paper?'

[I.120A]

There is a manner house ~~in~~ \ much / demolished, which belongs to him. There is a smelt mil & corn miln. One halfe of this town belong'd to Mr Ciprian Hilton of Burton & Ormside, who sold them free; & II freeholds more at Hilton called Hilton Dykes. ½ a mile E. from the town a chaple whose walls are yet standing. \ A quarter of a m[ile] beyond the chaple / the hamblet of Brekinber,[785] S. from Hilton ½ ,& E. from the[re] 1m. and ¼. VI [families.] & Holmes Close, 1 house, freehold.

[III.91]

Figure 1.1.34. Hilton. 'Over the arched gate of the court'. III.91.

a. Over the wash-house dooer opposite to the Gate, Hilton Single, in a bordure with 2 saltiers only, with T. on one side of it & H. on the other, and these figures [blank] 16*.
b. This is waterd from Through cot well.
c. Under the table of an old window into the kitchen are 2 antic[786] faces. And above the 1ᵗ light an ape & a rabbit combatant or rather toying (being no great warriours) with their fore feet.
d. Over the hall chimney, this coate is drawn.[787]

Figure 1.1.35. Hilton. 'Over the hall chimney'. III.91.

At Viccarhight, on the S. West side of Gastal -Tarn above Murton Peat Moss, 2 miles N. from the Hall, are knout berrys[788] which grow upon an herb and are knotted like a bramble but yallow when ripe at Maudlin time – 22 July.[789]

[Machell's Notes: III.91]

*{a. By Mr Robert Hilton, who maryed Hilton of Hilton Castle in Episc. Dunelm;[790] b. Thomas Hilton, father of the said Robert.}

[I.306]

{Langton}

Langton is a mannor, the moyity or ½ whereof was passed to Roger de Clifford & his heires amongst other things, 2. Edward 2. [1308-09] by John de Crumbwell & Idonea his wife. And in the 8. yere of [785] Brackenber.

[786] 'Antique.'
[787] The text up to this point overwrites identical text, written lightly in pencil (Machell's field-notes).
[788] Knoutberry: variant of knotberry; a local name of the Cloudberry, Rubus Chamæmorus. OED.
[789] Maudlin is Magdalen. 22 July is St Mary Magdalene's feast-day.
[790] 'Bishopric of Durham.'

Edward 2. [1314-15] upon the death of Robert de Clifford we have this account concerneing it, ex inquisition capt. apud Appleby est ibidem capitale &c.[791]

There is there a manner house (it seems no great one) et valet per annum 6d.	0: 0: 6
40 acres of demane land quam que libet ac. valet per annum 4d & sum è	0:14: 4
14 acres of meadow, 6d per acre per annum et sum est	0: 7: 0
20 oxgangs of land quam que lib[et] valet per annum 2s et sum est	2: 0: 0
5 messuages of Cotterells burned quorum que libet valet per annum 6d, sum est	0: 2: 6
1 water mill & valet per annum 20s	1: 0: 0
a fulling mill allso, let at 6s per annum
	Li. s. d.
Dem and Tot. Dub?	iiii iii iiii[792]

summa est 5: 14: 0
19. Edward 3. [1345-46]

The Barony of Westm'land belongs to Apleby Castle. Certaine tenements in Apleby, Langton, Kings Meburne &c. belongs to the same Barony.

{Langton* 1. Edward 3. [1327-28]}
I finde by inquisition taken att Brough May 6th Anno 1. Edward 3. [1327] by the o\a/th of Robert de Newbiging, William de Helton, Thomas Mauchaell &c. as followeth:

Dicunt &c. They say their is a sute or cituation of a certane manner burn'd by the Scotts and it is worth nothing yerely for want of tenents & by reason of the destruction of the Scotts. And there are there:

30 acres of demane land, which lye untilled for want of tenents and by ~~reason of the~~ destruction of Scotts, the herbage whereof is worth yerely 18d	0: 1: 6
30 oxgangs of land which lye untilled for the cause aforesaid the herbage whereof worth per annum	0:15: 6
16 acres of demane medow and it is worth yerely 3s & noe more for the \ too / great abundance of medow, and pasture in those parts	0: 3: 0
4 cotages which yield ~~per annum~~ yerely	0: 2: 0
1 water mill
The pleas & perquisites of the court of Apleby and Langton are worth yerely 4s	0: 4: 0

It seems by this that the Court was kept att Apleby, & chief manner in the Barony. N.B. That medow was cheap in this part of the country, not because it was bad, but because of its superabundance.[793] And that this was terrible inroade of the Scotts, for the proofs of which see Meburne Regis.[794]

[Machell's notes: I.306]

*{The Armes of Langtun see in Mr Knight's letters to me.}

[I.341]

Lancton was a Lordship, J. Hill says, of it selfe, forfeited in Dakers Rebellion which they calld D. Read {Dacre Read or Road} according to the Bordure Expression, when they made an inroad – the owner of Wrights house they say was hang'd on his own dooer post, & many more of them. It was (I thinke) in time of Queen Elizabeth {circa 1570}.[795] They marched up as far as Hall more by Whinfell Side, but there, upon what occasion I know not, were all dispersed & never cross'd Eden.

[791] 'From the inquisition [post mortem] taken at the Capital [mansion] at Appleby.'
[792] £4 3s 4d.
[793] In the margin Machell has written, 'Memorandum Queens Coll. in Oxon founded about this time against devastation of our country.' [Written partly in Latin.]
[794] King's Meaburn.
[795] 'Dacre's Raid', took place in 1569. See Richard S. Ferguson, A History of Cumberland (London, 1890), 249-50; and see above, III.55.

[I.343]

Brampton

This lordship may seem to have bin \ formerly / in the Machells about the con \ of Crakenthorp /{circa Conquest} for that the meadow in the west end of this Lordshipp, by the skurtes of Whelp Castle, the river Troutbeck being only betwixt them, & which was part of Brampton in maine, is calld Machells-Ing to this very day; which now belongs to Kirkbythore Hall, by a match of the Whartons; with one the daughter & heir, Lancaster, Lord of this manner – in which name it continued till [blank]

[I.346]

& I read in Hollinshed \ ad Cowpland Beck bridge* / David, king of Scots haveing spoyled as far as that place with (40) or 3 score thousand fighting men, was taken in the field sore wounded (for he fought very valiantly) and carryed away prisoner by a Northumberland Esq. & attended only with 8 of his servants to his own Castle 30 miles from the place where the batle was fought†. His name was John Copland, who refused to deliver his royal prisner to Queen Philippa, King Edward 3. being then in France besiegeing Callis, returneing to her this determinate \ peremptory / answer – that he would not deliver his said prisoner David King of Scots to any person liveing, man or woman, except only to the King of England, his Sovereigne Lord & Master. But after haveing waited on the king at Callis, he delivered him up by the Kings order. And \ from the King Ed. / received for his pains £500 sterling of yearly rent to him & his heires forever; & was allso made Esq. of his body. 15000 men killd on both [sides].

This batle was fought on Saturday next after the feast of St Michael in 1346‡. But this I give not much credit to, because {in truthe in deed without date, it is writ Capmanbeck; forsan taine ab hominem capiendo.} But this must be a fancy, except it was som former King of Scots, for the deed's sans date and dateing was used long before the time of King Edward 3.

[Machell's Notes: I.346]

*Nevil Cross batle but that was nere Durham.

†{Cowplin in Northumberland: 1. Glendale Ward, lat[itude]: 55; 35 l[ongitude]; 1.31 West; that and no more, in England.}

‡{In Hollinshed: Ed. 5. pag. 376: a.10. 20. 6 [?]}

[I.309]

Crakanthorp in Bongate in Apleby

In manerio de Crakanthorp, arbores sunt fructum proferentes, non solum insitivae manus industria, sed etiam ipsius humi natura in Sylvis Sc. et locis istius modi in cultis.[796] {Cheryes in the chaple woods & a sort of apple} {This gave name to the family of Crackenthorpes: vide Newbigging parish. Crackenthorpe – in the Saxon tongue, Cracken – signifyes nuts, & Thorpe a town or village – i locus corrillarum […][797] a place of nutt trees, which grow in great plenty throughout this lordship. And as Westmorland in generall may be termed the Gardine of Eden, so this part is the Garden of Nutts.[798] Such an expression wee meet with Capitulum 6. 11.[799] See Streets Reconsiler Epist. Ad loc[800]

[796] 'In the manor of Crackenthorpe there are fruit-bearing trees planted not only by the labour of a gardener's hand, but also by the nature of the soil itself, in the woods, that is, and in wild places of that kind.'

[797] Two illegible words have been struck through here. 'Coryletum' means a copse of hazel trees. Corylus Avellane is the Latin name for the common hazel.

[798] There are other meanings; e.g. '… named from some rookery there; crake to this day amongst the country people is used to signify a rook or crow,' N&B1, 344; and, 'Krakr, a crow, and Thorp, a hamlet', see Bellasis, 'Machell of Crackenthorp', 416.

[799] A 'capitulum' is a short passage or reading from the Bible. OED. Machell is referring to 'The Song of Solomon, 6:11' (AVB): 'I went down into the garden of nuts to see the fruits of the valley, and to see whether the vine flourished, and the pomegranates budded.' A note elsewhere (MS. I.335) also remarks on Crackenthorpe's fertile soil: 'Crakanthorp aboundes with fine herbs for the pot'.

[800] The rest of this margin comment has perished. 'Streets Reconsiler Epist.' is at present unknown to this editor.

[III.83]

Manner de Crakenthorp

{Villa nuctifera, locus corillarum. The Town & distance}

About 1m. & ½ N.W. from the parish church lyeth Crakenthorp,[801] a village consisting of \ about / 30 families whereof 3 are freholdes, the rest arbitrary to Crakenthorpe Hall which lyeth at the high end of the towne at the W. side of it.

[I.330]

Here was born Thomas Machell sometimes fellow of Queens College in Oxford; afterwards rector of Kirkbythore; Chaplain in ordinary to King Charles the 2, and after 7 years absence in the countrey, elected fellow, with[out] his privicy[802] or seekeing after, of the Philosophick Society in Oxford.[803]

[III.77]

~~Norwest from~~ \ Under / the Chappel \ a little norwest / at the distance of ½ a quarter of a mile stands the Town of Crakenthorp,[804] which takes its name from Craken (signifying nutts) & Thorp (a village): both Saxon words; as much as to say the Town of Nutts from the plenty of nut trees, or Hassells, which grow there abouts on the bankes of Eden. It hath been larger than now it is \ by now about XXXIII, of which 2 freeholds* under the Lord of Crakenthorp, the rest arbitrary; / diverse houses on the S. side of it being long since demolished; and there ar som vestigia \ remaneing / of 2 Little Hamlets: one at Brockam Banke; so called from being infested with badgers in the time of old, & I my selfe have seen one killd there ~~of later dayes~~ in the old workes or holes, since I can remember. And another at [blank] where the foundations are fair to be seen and where this stone was taken up by me – and several Handmills,[805] such as the Romans, in the River Eden, where a pleasure boate rideth, which belongs to this Hall and Nature here hathe sported herselfe.

[Machell's Notes: III.77]

*Freholds? 2 Freholds: Sc. Dobson, Shepherd.

[III.78]

Nature indeed hath sported herselfe here in this place* and wants but the industry of a Little Art to make a most delightfull seat. Here vines which hardly could be destroyed (& som of them were transplanted hence to Appelby Castle, Ormside Hall & other places)† used have bin found; it being near within a bowshot of this ancient Romane fortification.[806] Before which agane ~~near~~ \ towards / Kirkbythore is a prætertura, square fort, or watch-tower called Maden Harbour, from the same occasion I doe suppose, that Maden Castle on the top of Stanemore & Maden Way from K. to the Picts Wall have taken there names‡. By the \ N.E. / sides of this camp & fort comes the Great Romane Cassway called Kings Street, leading from Appleby to Kendal \ N.W. / on the left hand of which these urnes found \ in a place formerly calld Machells Banke / &c. But now, by exchange it belongs to the house at the Bridge End, which was given by Halth de [Machell] and confirmd \ how long after I know not / by H. Morvil. The water then ran in a channel calld Old Troutbeck Stead ~~it was made out~~ \ and so continued, till of later years that one William Dobson, haveing lands on both side the river, cut the channel straighter for ganeing of ground and by his own convenience, as was made out by the jurey of Crakenthorp & Kirkbythore, summond on purpose to decide a controversie about the tythe corne, & ~~by consent~~ it was determind [blank]

[Machell's Notes: III.78]

*{ad marginal n[ote] on the other side.}[807]

[801] On MS.III.72A, Crackenthorpe is said to be 1 mile from the parish church.

[802] 'Privacy' or 'privity' is the state of being privy to some act. OED. Here, Machell impresses upon his readers that he did not actively seek his fellowship of the Society.

[803] See also III.89.

[804] MS: 'the \ Hall / Town of Crakenthorp.'

[805] Recorded also on MS.I.310A: 'And there was allso a Roman milstone, such as they used for their hand-mills, which followed their camps, which milstone was found hereabouts.'

[806] Below this text the MS shows an outline sketch plan of a fort measuring 2cm x 1cm.

[807] See III.77, above.

†{Speedy-moor, Speedy-Inge. From rideing out their coursers here,[808] the latter of which has give name to som tenants of mean account who seem to have been tenants of it. Despething or Speding.}
‡{Query the reason here.}
{Camp; Warren; Mier; Quarry.}

[III.76][809]

The Lordship of Crackanthorp extends itselfe hence[810] being the East point of it, to old Troutbeck foote \ in the west / where the common & dow[n]field of Kirkbythore meet, being above 3 miles, and the River Eden runns all along in divers meanders on the \ W. / side of it, divideing it (by it[s] ancient Course) from other Lordships the fishing of which* hath bin (all along) clam'd & injoyed \ by the Lords of Crackenthorp / except in the Libertyes of the Mayor of Appleby.

[Roger Head]
On the High mor† High Demanes [near] the ~~River~~ Eden is a woody hill called Roger ~~Heaved~~ Head‡; anciently writ Roger He\a/ved from Heaveing up, as your moales doe the Earth into Heapes or Hills; so Rogers Heaved is Roger Hill; now corruptly & by abbreviation calld Roger Head – the only memorial which time hath left us here in this place of the famous & Honorable Roger Machell – Vicechancellor of England, Lord Keeper of the Broad Seal to King Richard the I^{t}. – who was drown at Messana &c.

[Machell's Notes: III.76]

*The fishing of Eden.
†On the moore by the High House is an ancient fortification which I know [not] whether it should refer to this or Bramton.
‡Roger Head because the B. are not well understood: ergo in Both.
{Roger heaved see Wulfsheeved in Blo[u]nt.[811] Bunesheaved. Huesheved – Morvil Hill.}[812]

[III.85]

whom Hoveden (not without admiration, for he writes it in a different character) calls Malus Catulus, & tells us he was Vice-Chancellor of England in King Richard the First time &c.[813]

[VI.221]

[Nobility]{Roger Machell: Vice Chancellor of England}
But here (I presume) we must take the word Nobles[814] in a large sense, for ~~as~~ Thanes & Barons in those antient times that were near the Saxons; and not in that strictness of acceptation which is used now a days for the Greatest Nobles; for we do not pretend to \ have had / any such in this \ antient / family, unless Roger Machel (virtute officis) as being Lord Keeper of the Broad Seal and Vice Chancellor of England

[VI.223][815]

may be counted ~~one~~ \ as such; / who, though he was shipwrackt farr from this place (at Messana in Sisily) yet his name can never be drown'd in oblivion, or wash'd away \ quite out of remembrance / so long as Roger-hev ed remaineth.[816]

Now this Roger-Heved is the top of a pleasant and woody hill in the demaines of this Lordship of Crakenthorp, ~~as you goe~~ \ on your way / from thence unto Apalby, about as far beyond the chapel (when it was standing) as that chapel was distant from the Hall, having \ had / a most delightful prospe\c/t both of woods & waters, & of diverse churches, castles & towers which lye round about. \ and / it is now vulgarly cald Roger Head, quasi locus Rogeri capitalis, quo summè delectari solebat.[817]

[808] 'Courser': 'a large powerful horse, ridden in battle, in a tournament etc. A charger'. OED.
[809] A margin comment on MS.III.75 provides very similar information.
[810] That is, from Hangman's Close: see Bondgate Parish: III.75.
[811] Thomas Blount, Glossographia.
[812] This note appears on I.339.
[813] Machell references Roger of Hoveden (or Howden), Chronica Magistri Rogeri de Houedene (written c.1169). For Roger Howden's career and writing, see D. Corner, 'Howden [Hoveden], Roger of (d. 1201/2), chronicler.' ODNB.
[814] Underlined in red ink and distinct from other underscoring.
[815] Also numbered p.31.
[816] A similar comment is written in the margin of the MS, here.
[817] 'As the principal place of Roger, in which he was accustomed to take greatest pleasure.'

But it was heretofore writ Roger Heved from the Saxon word Hovet, importing that summity {of} or top of a thing. And it was usual for persons of note in antient times to give names to such places.

{Hews Heaved vulgo Hews Seat, Morvills Hill}
Thus Hugh de Morvil, Lord of Westm'land, gave name (as tis thought) to an hill upon Stanemore near which Eden springs, call'd Hews Heved, & corrupt, Hews Seat; Orme, to Ormeside \ heved / – a little hill by the side of Eden whereon the church stands, which gives name to the parish & manner of Ormshead; Humphrey Matchael (a benefactor with Halth le Malchael to the priory of Carlile) to an hill nott \ far / from there calld Humphrey Head {for I never found any besides of the name.}[818]

[III.85]

{Ermit Holme}[819]
Below this agane at the head of the poole is a meadow called Ermin Holme, I suppose corruptlye for Hermit Holme, the chaplain somtime officiateing here, ~~being~~ possibly [a] hermit and delighting to walke in this solitary place, which was much larger than it is now in the memory \ of man. / For upon a difference twixt Mr Cristopher Lowther of Leathes & Lancelot Machell of Crakenthorp Esq., it was given in evidence by the old men, som of which are yet alive, that the great gray stone which lyeth now on the other side, layd in their time on this side the water, & so the farmers of Colby Leathes were constrained to keep within their ring dike, and to secure themselves with their fences at their own peril, as they were formerly wont to doe.[820]

[III.85]

At the high end of Ermit Holme is the hedge of St Nicholas, a little sike which runns downe before it, which springs in a mire within this Lordship where the wild ducks are wont for build. & at beyond that agane in the very nib or east end of the lordship and this high demane, is a place which is called Hangman Close. And here, following the Romane Way W., it leades quite st[raight] to this fortification at a place calld White Burwens ~~E~~. & d*. But the outworkes for certane run to Crakenthorpe.

[Machell's Notes: III.85]

*[Dufton]. If not in Brampton?

[I.72]

[Hangman Close]
There is a place {not far from Apleby} within the Lib[erty] of the Machell of Crackenthorp, which they call Hang-man Close, where some say a pair of gallows stood; & there are 2 little hills supposed to be the places where the posts were fixed, which they show to this day. The place seems to have had its name from being bestowed for some certaine time as a reward to the executioner, but whether this Lordship had an extraordnary prerogative (for it is an ancient one) or whether some of the Machells had bin Shirif, and upon that account might mintaine an executioner (haveing no aut[h]ority) I dar not determin but than (my thinkes) it is some thing odd that the gallow should [be] placed in his owne domain if he was only [s]hireive.

[I.74][821]

For amongst the writings at Crackenthorpe H[all] I finde that Hugh Machell of Crakenthorpe Esq. was appointed an assistant to Sir Thomas W\harton, / Knight, deputed warden of the West Marshes of [818] This margin comment has been superimposed in ink over another written in pencil which contains: 'Umphrey dedit […] tenure of […] Dugdall Monasticon'. Another comment echoes the first. MS: 'And of old Umfry Heved & this Roger Machel (since whose sad fate I have not found another ~~of that name~~ \ so […] this family / to that Roger Heved which is here described.'

[819] A truncated passage (MS.III.76) reads, 'Ermin, either from Ermitas or from Hermit; the priest perhaps had an hermitage.' The rest is obscured by the binding.

[820] See MS.III.77 for a variant, which reads: 'Ermin Holme, which lyes betwixt the chaple wood & \ the wood of / St Nicholas wood by the side of the river, might takes it name from his using to walke & retire himselfe there. It was once much more spaciouse than it is now, for ancient men, upon a varience which the farme of Leathes gave in evidence since I can remember, that the great stone which lyeth now on the other side \ of the river / la\a/yd in their time on Ermin Holm banke.' Machell also noted (MS.I.89): 'Ermin, either from ermites or … \ from hermit; the priest perhaps led an hermit. /'

[821] A margin entry on this page of the MS lists such items as: houses of gentry, chapels, bridges, woods etc. with spaces left for numbers, but the spaces are blank.

Scotland (June 28, 29. H.8. [1537-38]) by a speciall warrant under the said Kings Signett and Signe Manual, and the ten[ants] of that Lordship ever did and doe yett hold their estates (amongst other conditions) by military \ (if I may say) / or as it is commonly called there, by Border Service. But now in Westm'land they live in more securitye, so that those tennantes who heretofore held their lands at a deare rate (the Hassard of Ciues)[822] doe now live in saifty and eat their bread in piece and quietness \ in a peacefull land. / However it be, there is nothing more hatefull to them \ at this day / nor ~~nothing~~ noe man in the world they sett less by, than a ~~Scott~~ lowland Scott; whome they looke upon both as trecherous and cowardly, 2 \ sordid vices / which they mortally abhor. But of this more in the next particular.[823]

[III.86]

Thence to the Cap[ital.][824] &c., to Maden Hol[d], to the urnes opposite to which ~~was~~ in Eden at a place call Chapledub, was the altar found at Fig. [blank]*

[Machell's Notes: I.86]

*But then: memo. to bring in the hamlets &c. at Crakenthorp Town.

[III.76]

{Chappel}

And at the foote of the said Dub, on the top of an hill called Chapple Hill, are the Ruines of Saint Giles, his Chaple, which belongd to this Lordship.[825] & where a well springeth on the south side of it. Here I suppose the priest that served in the times of popery lead an Hermits call life […],[826] whence Ermin Holme, a place near adjoyneing – vel ut supra. C.[827]

[I.335]

[Crackenthorpe Hall]

In the parish of Bongate or St Michael in Apelby at Crakanthorp is a very compleat piece of architecture \ ~~the best in this country for~~ / \ which exceeds all this country for vigor[828] / cald Crakenthorp Hall, raisd upon the old foundation but somewhat shorter than formerly, which is the seate of the ancient family of Machell of Crakenthorp {who have bin writt Esqrs} descended, as is more than probable from writeings \ I / have seene, continued tradition & other conjectures, from Whelp of Whelp Castle;[829] a great man at the Conquest but an opposer, as tis thought, of the Conqueror \ for the Castle was ruined about this time / whence his true descendants \ at least the Chiefe / seated at Crakenthorp were caled by him Mali Catuli & that each which was left at C[rakenthorp] left their name wholy & were denominated after the to[wn].

[I.330]

The Hall was repared but made somewhat shorter than before by Hugh Machell Esq. by the directions of Thomas Machell his brother anno domini 1685 to whom this Distich[830] is directed:

> Aspirante Deo, domus haec catulina antiqua resurgit,
> Sumptibus Hugonis ingenioque tuo.[831]

[822] 'The Hassard of Ciues [Cives]': 'The hazard of citizens.'
[823] The page goes on to describe the inhabitants of Westmorland, see below.
[824] 'Capital Messuage': the chief house on an estate; the mansion-house of a manor.
[825] 'are the Ruines of S~~rat~~ \t/ Giles, his Chaple, which belongd to this ~~wel~~l Lordship.'
[826] Two interlineated worda are unreadable here; the first begins '&' but the second word is illegible.
[827] 'Vel ut supra': 'just as above'. MS.III.84-85 provides similar information: '… a banke of wood, on the top of which stood somtime the Chaple of Crakenthorpe, the place being still called the Chapple Garth; and a wall adjoyneing the Chaple well, which Chaple was dedicated, as I have heard, to St Giles – a Relick.'
[828] The word, 'vigor' [?] is unclear.
[829] A note (MS.I.341), remarks: '{An ancient name: test. apud carta Thomae fil Galfr Mal. Cat.}' i.e. 'Witnessd in a charter of Thomas son of Galfrid Mali Catuli.'
[830] Latin: 'a couplet'.
[831] 'God's favour sees this ancient house arise; through Hugh, its owner's wealth and expertise.' MS.III.77 repeats this narrative: '{The Hall} {has bin often times built but repared of late at the cost of H.M. Esq. {by the direction of his Brother Thomas rector of K. to whom this Distick was afterwards dedicated: Aspirante Deo, Domus haec Antiqua \ Catulina / resurgit sumptibus Hugonis ing[eni]oque Tuo.}'

[There is] an oval stone in the Court in memory of Roger Machell ViceC. of England & Keeper of the Great Seale.[832] H.M. Roger.[833]

[III.77]

{Villa de Crakenthorp}
This is the manner house where Court Baron is kept, and – as the Learned in the Law doe thinke from freeing Blood wite[834] – a Court Leet also. They have weaf & stray.}
The Hall is a dilicate uniforme building with 2 cupilooes,[835] one for pleasure, the other made for a stack of chimneys exactly like it. It is pleasant, seated upon a woody banke of the River Eden overlooking the parke & other farer meadows on the S. & West side & having in view 2 or 3 castles. There is a descent on the back side of it ~~¼~~ \ half / of a mile to the Chaple dub.

[I.335B]

Figure 1.1.36. Crackenthorpe Hall. I.335B.

[III.83]

It is a ~~no dilicate~~ \ noble / pile of building, \ exactly uniforme / \ & of such a surpriseing symetree that it seemeth greater by far than it is, / faceing to the N. (as most of the principal seates doe), having a pedament \ in the front of it ~~the Hall doer & standeth~~ \ & 2 speres (or cupiloos on either side / at the top of the house, the one ~~for pleasure, the~~ \ being designed for pleasure only, the other ~~for uniformity's sake~~ for a stack of chimneys, ~~which cometh though of stone,~~ but ~~made so exactly~~ \ so truly / like ~~one another~~ \ ~~unto it,~~ / ~~that~~ you can \ scarce / descerne ~~it~~ the one from the other, which, standing on either side of the pedament, ~~in the midle of which you enter the Hall~~ are very gracefull as you enter the house.' {Armes} ~~There 2 courtes before it, and a way leads by them into the town from the town to the kitchen flanking the house,~~ wherein wee meet with these coates ~~relateing to the family~~ \ armes / !!![836]

[832] See N&B1, 345.
[833] 'Son of Roger'; a margin note here lists Machell names: '{Roger M. Catulis, Halthe Machel; John; Hugh Machel & Guy.}
[834] Bloodwite: '1. A fine payable for the offence of shedding blood; 2. a legal action for this offence; 3. the offence itself; 4. the right of levying the fine; 5. the privilege of exemption from it.' OED.
[835] A cupola is a 'diminutive dome rising above a roof; a dome-like lantern or skylight; in practical architecture, the ceiling of a dome'. OED.
[836] This passage has experienced much deletion and interlineation. Thomas Machell was the architect of his brother Hugh's new pedimented front at Crackenthorpe Hall in 1685, one of the first attempts to introduce classical architecture into Cumberland and Westmorland. Reference to the pediment dates this page to 1685 or afterwards. In 1686-88 Machell worked at Appleby Castle for Lord Thanet, probably on the classical east range. For Machell as architect, see Lionel Cresswell, 'Crackenthorpe: its Manor, Hall and the Machell Family', CW2, 33 (1933), 113-32, at 123-25.

[III.65]

[Notes on Art at Crackenthorpe Hall]
{Besides rarity, the stack of chimneys at Crackenthorpe and sliding casements and footed principles; besides the contrivance of the house, which by the shutting of a door or two is all made private, and by opening, public.}

[I.335B]

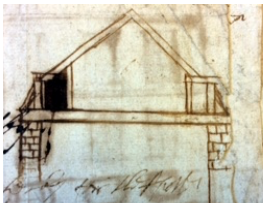

Figure 1.1.37. 'old timber footed … to make the garrets'. I.335A.

Art: a dillicate house in which shutting casements and the \ old / timber footed to such advantage as to make the garrets. {Of yards & feete?}[837]

[1.332]

{Situation}
~~The hall is a dillicate~~ But nothing commendeth this mansion more than its situation which is on a plane at the foote of ~~one~~ \ a / hill ~~& upon the top of a very high banke~~ \ on the S. of it / from which agane you have a descent down \ on the west side / down a steep banke (all coverd with wood) to the River Eden an beyond that a great plane or meadow to Buly Castle which stands in a wood. It hath 2 courtes before it, and a way which flanketh them from the town to the kitchen & other offices, so that none can com to the house upon \ any / occasion but they \ will / see the front & beauty of it \ & if the[y] be stranger or persons of q[uality, they] may enter in at the great gate. / On the back side southwards, where you have the prospect of Apleby Castle & Colby Hall, ~~you~~ there is a descent of about a 4^{r} of a mile in length to the River Eden, where there is a deep poole (or dub as they call them) of the like length, which carryeth a pleasure boate upon it, having on one hand a spacious meadow, and on the other a brave banke of wood \ and a noble plane called the Parke / {on the right hand where you may have a parrock[838] course (with the greyhoundes & hare to the Chaple wood whenever they please) and pleasure with the g[reyhounds] & hare.}[839]

[I.229]

In the Lordship of Crakanthorp are great store of ground – arable & medow – with much underwood upon the Bankes of Eden, and very rich Ground. The Towne, I thinke, was a great part demolish[ed] by the Scotts when Apleby, Lancton & Brough sufferd so by them. Upon the More is a Romane campe.

[I.330]

There are 2 altars with other monuments of antique in the east end of it; one found about the area of Whelp Castle at Kirkbythore, the other in Eden at Ellerkar in the Lordship of Crakanthorpe. Also, Lyons & Urnes near Kirkythore Bridge.

[II.449]

{Privilege of the Lordship of Crakenthorp}
The Machells of Crakenthorpe are sup[posed] to have had the priv[ilege] to execute malefactors and offenders in their owne Lordship, for all the far end of their pasture called the High-Ground is a place where gallows are thought to have stood & tis called by the name of Hang-Man Close, may-be because twas granted to som common executioner for performing that office. The Lord of this manner

[837] This scrap page also contains a title: 'Ad Parochiam de Kirkbythore & Bondgate in Apelby'.
[838] Parrock: 'an enclosed area of ground; a small field or paddock, especially one close to a farmhouse'. OED.
[839] Another, partly perished, description (MS.III.77), reads, '{The Hall … built but repared of late at the cost of H [...] Esq. / is a dilicate uniforme building with 2 cupilooe, one for pleasure, the other ~~made~~ of a stack of chimneys exactly like it. It is pleasant, seated ~~up~~on along Brock-ham Woody banke of the River Eden overlooking the parke & … fairer meadows on the S. & west side & having in […] 2 or 3 castles. There is a descent on the back side of it \ of a / ¼ of a mile to the chaple}.'

has such priviledges as are \ rare / to be found (in puto) in England againe, for on May the 8th, at which time there grass is very forward, he may putt as many cattle as he has \ pleases / a minde: his owne or others, into meadow ground called Elleker near Kirkby Thore from the forsaid time till after all which it yealds a good cropp of excellent hay which is some argument that those parts are so barren as former writers have ~~first supposed~~ \ represented / ~~and after related them really to be.~~ It is free also from severall rents, which others thereabouts are subject to, for it payes nothing de certo but quit rent to the king. ~~Ratio put because of~~ the […][840]

[Machell's Notes: II.449]

Query: An liceat cujlibet corporationi gladium præt[ores] habere pro libitu?[841]
N[ote] Sir W. Sanderson.[842]

[I.341]

A notable privilidge of the Lords. In Ellerkar, a diner & dogs dinner all[for] holding the yeat open & hatt off.

[III.87]

[The Midle Demaine and Roman Camps]

The midle demaine \ which chiefly bears that name / is as a gardine of very choyce herbs which nature hath planted by the water-sides, and is clad with ashes as the other with oake. There is a place calld Brockeholme: it & Brocholme Wood from brocks or badger frequenting these places, as my selfe has seen som; ~~And upon the cam~~ above which woods are the foundations of an hamlet of houses. And a greater than that, a little below upon the common \ on the West side / of Creakber Hill where many hand milstones have bin found; amongst other rubbish I observed one \ hewn / stone which beareth this figure [blank].[843]

This Creakebur, seems to have bin formerly clad with trees, & called so from the creakes or crows frequenting there, at the N. end of which is a vast Romane campe. And at a little distance from it is a prætentura, guardhouse or watch tower calld Maden Hold, where the Romanes seem to have pitched there tents when the[y] 1t came down into this part of Britan against Gallacum.

Close by these Rampiers on the E. side of them runns the Great Romane Way, which heads through Kirkbythore to Carleol; and about the midle of the long-lane, on the W. side of it, in a place which was formerly calld Maechells Banke but now belongs[844] to the Bridge End tenement, was a nest of urnes found.

This Tenement is in the Lordship of Crakenthorp and was given of it by Halth le Malchael and Eve his wife to the Priory of Carlile at the foundation of it, and so came to the Bishop of Carleol who is now Lord thereof under the Lord of the Manner of Crakenthorp to whom \ his tenants are obligd / ~~they~~ to doe him Hom[age]. & S[uit].

[I.547]

[Urns]

There were 3 of these urnes, whereof this is the least, which stood contiguouse or near adjoyning one to another in triangular form in such a Repository, as I have heard of for [blank].[845] They were hid in a circular hole or pitt, in clay […][846] 6 foote in circumference & about 3 in depth, the sides whereof were perpendicular; & herein they were covered up & left with ashes & burned boanes to within a foote of the surface of the ground, the remainder being closed up with earth.[847] In the 2 greater were

---

[840] 2cm of crossed-through text are unreadable from this point. See MS.III.81, which adds, 'In this Ellerkar the Lords of Crakenthorp have a notable priviledge. And the Bishop's Tenant is obliged to doe this homage of service.'

[841] 'Query whether it be allowed to any corporation to have a praetor's sword at will?'

[842] Written in different ink and in what appears to be a shaky hand.

[843] Space for an illustration has been left here, but it is empty.

[844] MS: 'belonks'.

[845] MS: '~~There were 3 of these, which stood triangular~~ There were 3 of these urnes where of this is the least, which stood contiguouse or near adjoyning one to another \ in triangular form. / In such a Repository, as I ~~never yet~~ \ have / heard of for [blank].' See Part 3. Chapter 3., 'Roman Antiquities', VI.200 passim.

[846] Some crossed-through words are illegible here.

[847] MS: 'They were \ hid / in a \ circular / hole or pitt, ~~2 foote in diameter~~ in clay 6 foote in circumference & about 3 in depth, the \ sides / whereof ~~sides~~ \ were / perpendicular ~~& made of clay~~ \ ~~composed~~ / & herein they ashes & boanes \ butt / in the lesser black ashes onely. I have a piece \ great parte / of one of the great ones with its depositum now laying by me, & the little one \ ~~who figure I have here described~~ which here is described / was sent to Oxford by Mr Tod to [blank]

[III.51]

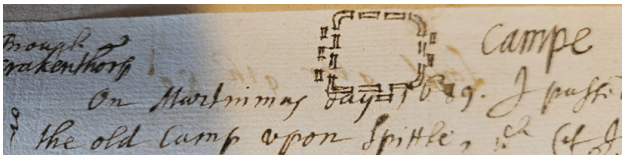

Figure 1.1.38. Sketch of Roman Fort. III.51.

Ad Brough

On Martinmas Day, 1689, I passed through the old camp upon Spittle, which (if I mistake not) was 16 score passes in diameter \ ab oriente in occasum[848] / of which to the mount with stanes opposite to the Rear Cross, 13 score and 14; but I accounted from the midle of the bulworkes. \ When I was a little beyond the camp and over the sike / I saw some stones on the highway Honey Comb*. And there is a sort of pretententura a mile distant from it, which they call Maden Castle, which is in breadth about 40 passes from the midle of the ruinous walls but it is much longer the other way. It has bin certanely a worke of Romans, for at the enterance which lookes towards Brough I discovered the walls to have bin 3 yards thick & strongly semented with lime some ~~gravel &~~ brick & mixture of gravel.

The same day I passed through an other camp of the same forme on Crakenthorpe Moore, 16 score passes ab. or. ad. Oc.[849]

[Machell's Notes III.51]

*{On this side blew-grass are diverse pebbles on the Highway, which are a blew-marble, som of them veined, others speckled with white; and there is a rock of it at this end of the hill \ where the sike runns / which gives hopes {of large ones if they were sought for.}

[I.327]

The Camp in the Lordship of Crakanthorp[850]

69 to the 1st entrance from the ditch whereof the bulwark is 10 {Sc}
20 the 1st entrance {17 – 0}
45 to the next
20 the 2nd entrance {16 – 10}
45 to the next
20 the 3 entrance & a holl in the mouth of it
55 to the nex
16 the 4th entrance
50 to the ditch
74 to the 1st
20 the 1st entrance toward Kirkby Ch[urch]
66 to the sike
13 the Sike way
8 score the bold side ditch

A sc[ore] to the; 4 sc[ore] & 3
To the 1t apparent entrance 8 score & 3
The entrance 23 without gard were covered up \ & left / with ashes & burned boanes to within a foote of the surface of the ground: The remainder being closed up with earth.'

[848] 'From the east to the west.'

[849] 'From the east to the west.'

[850] From this point, the entries are written faintly in pencil.

To the next wher som sople[851] 4 score
Entrance 20 {19 score & 4}
Thence 4 score & 18
To the way 5 score & 10, in all to the 1st (13) score.
1 entrance garded 20 21 score
To the 2nd 50 5
2 enter 20 there to the[852]

[Machell's Notes: I.327 & I.238]

[I.327] {Bongate, Apelby; see more of Bongate sub titulo Apleby}
[I.328] Memorandum: the Urnes found in Machels Bank in 1684.[853]

[I.330]

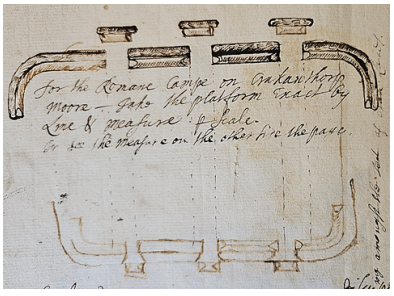

Figure 1.1.39. Roman Camp at Crackenthorpe. I.330.

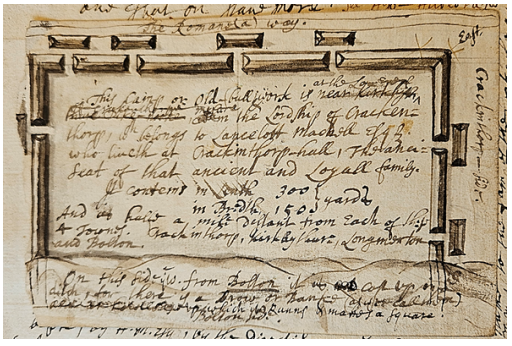

Figure 1.1.40. Roman Camp at Crackenthorpe 'I have seen this Romane Campe since and have drawn it out elsewhere. This doth onely express halfe of the campe and is rudely done.' I.330. [854]

{The Romane Way East: Crackinthorp Side Bolton Side}
This camp or old bulliwork is ~~near Kirkbythore, Dike Nooke~~ \ at the low end of Crakenthorpe \ infore[855] / & within the Lordship of Crackenthorp, which belongs to Lancelott Machell Esq. who liveth at Crackinthorp-Hall, the ancient seat of that Ancient and Loyall family.[856] It conteins in lenth 300, in bredth 150, yards, and is halfe a mile distant from each of these 4 Townes: Crackinthorp, Kirkbythore, Longmarton and Bolton. On this side, the west from Bolton it is cast up in a ditch, up which it runns & makes a square.[857]

[851] 'Sople' or sowple: 'Of a soft or yielding consistency; not rigid or hard.' OED.
[852] 6cm of text here are too faint to read, although '3 \ s / x' can be discerned.
[853] See N&B1, 351-52.
[854] This small sheet, pasted onto the page, lifts up to reveal this text on its reverse.
[855] 'Infore': variant of 'afore'. OED.
[856] As Lancelot Machell was still living, the drawing and text can be dated to before October 1681.
[857] MS: 'On this side, the west from Bolton it is ~~not~~ cast up in a ditch, ~~for there is a brow or banke (as wee call them~~) up which it runns & makes a square.'

[Machell's Notes: I.330]
For the Romane Camp on Crakanthorp Moore – take the platform exact by line & measure per scale. Or see the measure on the other side the page.[858]
See in Edmunds Caesars Commentaryes[859] a description of the Roman campes which may be corrected by this; and that on Stanemore. See also Hildebrand[860] and Rosinus[861] out of which it is taken.

[I.331]

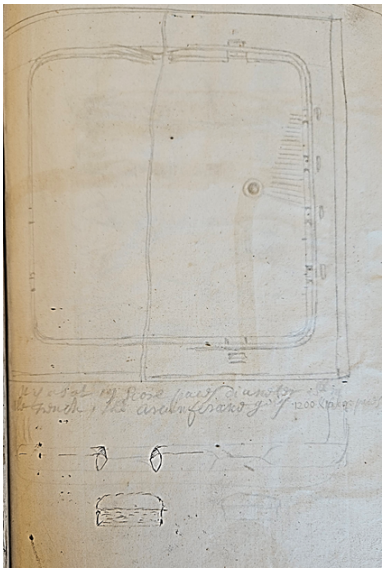

Figure 1.1.41. Faint pencil plan of the Roman fort at Crackenthorpe. I.331.

It is about 17[862] score paces diameter within the trench; the circumference is 1200 & 16 score paces.

[Descent of the Machells of Crackenthorpe]

[I.553C]
Ad Crakanthorp: A once famous family which yeilded 5 Consuls upon Record, one of which was an excellent Oratour in the Minority of Tullius Cicero, concerneing whom he speake thus in his [blank] Confidentius Loquor – quod Q. Catulus – see preface to the Chart. Antiq.[863]

[III.81]
The Succession of the Lordship[864]
The seniory or royalty of this Lordship has always belonged to the Machells of Crackenthorp, for anything I can finde to the contrary, there being no evidence when or how they came thither first, nor any record of any other family ever enjoying the same before them. Som, indeed, hav conjectured of late (& I was once of the same opinion) that it might have belonged to the family of Crakenthorps, who without difficultie tooke their names from hence. But now (doctiorem me dies reddidit)[865] I know other things; for one William Mauchael writ in \ the / Latine of those ancient dayes, Willelmus Malus [858] There is no 'measure' on the other side of this page.

[859] Clement Edmonds, Commentaries of Julius Caesar (1677).
[860] Friedrich Hildebrand, Antiquitates Romanae: in compendium contractae, et juxta ordinem alphabeti dispositae, bono juventutis (1st edn, 1647).
[861] Johan Rosinus, Antiquitatum Romanarum Corpus Absolutissimum (Basel, 1583).
[862] The pencil marks are very faint. The number could equally be read as '19'.
[863] See I.759.
[864] For analysis of the Machell pedigree and history, see Bellasis, 'Machell of Crackenthorpe', 416-67.
[865] 'The day has made me better informed.'

Catulus gave by deed without date (but in the same character the Doomesday Booke) to Alexander de Crakenthorp \ his brother afterwards called Alex / iiii oxgangs*.
Their hous stood almost in the midle of the W. side row (onely distinguished from other houses by an ancient huen-stone doer of roll worke like unto a church [&] like unto which were found frames in the walls pasd dow[n] at Crackenthorpe Hall); and is now calld Hills House; not from scituation tho it stands upon the rise of [a]n hill, but from the inhabitant & owner of it.
So carry them on till Elizabeths time that they lef C[rackenthorpe].

[Machell's Notes: III.81]

*Deeds without date is a certain evidence that they were made long after the Domesday Survey. Deeds were generally dated till Henry 3[d] reign.[866]

[III.82]

Thus, having attend[ed] them out of the Lordship, I return to the rock out of which they were huen and they need not thinke it any disparage to derive themselves from such a family and soe long agoe; many persons of the greatest account contenting themselves with meaner originals.

The Family of the Machells which I have found to be sometimes writ Mauchel, Maechael, Malchien & so in ancient Latin: Mali-Catulus

{Ration nom}[867] The greatest men of note whom I met with of this name and family* are[868]
1. Halthe Machel, who with ever &[869]
2. ~~John~~ \ William / Machel, the raiser of Alex his brother.
3. \ Roger Machell / who maryed Beaucha[m]p and brought an accession to the estate.
Jo. Machell, the 1[t] Esquire of the family, who whether made so by Collero SS[870] or from his father being a knight, I have (as I finde it) undetermined. Only this is certane, that he was a benefactor to ? & that all his successor till this day has been writ Esq.†.
Guy & Hugh, the warriers.
Henry, Doctor of Laws – Phil.
Lancelot & John his brother: the soljer.
Hugh, the builder.
& the last & the least[871] Thomas, the contriver \ rector of Kirkbythore, / who was somtime fellow of Queens College \ in Oxon, / afterwards of the Philosophie Society & Chaplain in ordinary to King Charles II.[872]

[Machell's Notes: III.82]

*{Take these in the history of succession according to their years wherein they lived.}
†{Inf. W. Waughs apud Culgath Sep. 10 1689} Sir Richard Musgrave told Mr W. Waugh of Culgath \ a well read G[entleman] / that he had met with several Knights of the Machells of Crakenthorp; and I have bin told by Mr W. Blen[kinsop] when wee were young that he had seen in his fathers study an MS booke of Northern Familiyes \ Gentlemen, / & mention therein of 4 or 5 Knights of this family.

[III.88]

The M[achells] of Crakenthorp tis said are descend[ed] from Whelp of Whelp Castle before the Conquest, and were calld Mali Catuli,[873] Mauchaels & Malchiens, q[e] malu' hostibus (normannis forsitar) intulerunt:[874] Sc. from their stout opposition. Sicq' Malum Marium Catulum dixisse [866] This interjection is in an entirely different hand; see below, III.89.

[867] 'Reason for the name.'
[868] See also III.88-89, below.
[869] The rest of this sentence is obscured by the binding. MS.I.336 contains the following margin comment: '{The ancient noble & warlike family of M[achell] has these brave men Halthe Mal who …}'
[870] The phrase appears to read, 'collero [spelling of cholera in the 1700s], in the strict sense'. If this is the case, the meaning is unclear.
[871] The rest of this sentence is obscured by the binding.
[872] MS: '& Chaplain in ordinary to King Charles II. ~~Yet may mentioned for contriveing the fabric of it~~'.
[873] Mali Catuli: the name means 'bad dogs' (or puppies).
[874] 'The bad being a name given by enemies (Normans perhaps).'

putemus.[875] And ergo they always reteined that sirname as their greatest glory: Bene e facere et male audire regium est.[876] However, they so managed their business at the least by capitulation as to reteine the Lordship of Crakenthorp with ample priviledge: edat non per drengagium, sed per nobile cornagis servicium sicut ipsi normannu,[877] a tract of which Liberty may yet be seen in several grants of the Machel of Crakanthorp (who could not give that which they had not ~~injoy~~ to their friends & relations); in particular, one of Will[iam] Machel to his brother Alex[an]der (whom he suffered to take the sirname of Crakenthorp for distinctions sake, reteineing the ancient name to him selfe) where he gives him some demaine lands with this ample priviledge: adeo[878] &c.

[III.89]

The Descent of the Manner

This manner has bin in the name of the Machels beyond all record, so that tis not known when or how they came by it. Their oldest evidences are without date \ & if so not exceeding old[879] / and all I can say concerneing them is that som of them are in the very same character with Doomsday Booke \ which was writ in the time of William the Conqueror. / ~~And~~ it is a mistake (which I was once guilty of my selfe) that Crakanthorp once belonged to the Crakanthorps, for[880]

[I.330]

{The Town gave name to the family of the Crakanthorps who are descended from the Machels here, as appears from writeing amongst the tent. of Crak. Lands.}

[III.89]

The chief men of note in this ancient family that I have mett with are:
This Halth le Machell, of who above, who lyes interd, as I suppose, in the priory there.
Roger Machael – dom' custos magni Angliæ sigilli &c.[881] – whose monument is to be sought at Messana in Sicily.
William Machell, who gave diverse lands in the ~~forest of~~ demane to Alexander, his brother, who first assumed the sirname of Crakenthorp for distinctions sake – for [on my] shewing the deed to Sir William Dugdal, he sayd it appeard by his stile and seal, both, that he had bin a very great man in his time.[882]
\ Jo[hn] Machel Capitalis Dom. Feodi[883] – tho that maryed Beauchamp / John Machell Esq., who with Catherine his [wife] were so great benefactor to [Blank] at Karlile[884] that they[885] ingaged to pray for him &c. as for [blank] and there wee may thinke he was buried in their church and chaple.
Hugh of the Marshes[886] / & Guy, his brother.
Lancelot Machell Esq. lately disceasd,[887] who improved the estate &c.
& Hugh Machel Esq., the present owner of it \ Crakenthorp Hall / who new modelld the house & made it much better, than before by the direction of Thomas, his brother, Rector of Kirkbythore, sometimes Fellow of Q[ueens College] in Oxford, & Chaplain in Ordinary to King Charles 2, and now Fellow of the Philosophic Society in Oxon.

[I.309]

The Armes of the Machells

The regester of Carlile gave this information anno 1674*: that he had seen an express from Queen Elizabeth to search the houses of the Machells of Crakenthorpe & Blenkinsops of Helbeck for popeish

[875] 'And so we may think that Marius said Bad Dog.'
[876] 'To do good and be evil spoken of, is kingly.' Also found in sermons of the time, such as Forty Sermons Upon Several Occasions by Anthony Tuckney (1676), 471.
[877] 'Not through drengage but through the noble service of cornage, just as the Normans themselves did.'
[878] 'To such an extent that […]' [as in the deed].
[879] This interlineation is in another hand; see above, III.81.
[880] Here the sentence originally ended in a blank space but continued in the margin of MS.I.330.
[881] 'Lord, Keeper of the Great Seal of England.'
[882] Digitisation of a deed 'of Willielmus Malus Catulus to Alexander his brother', at CAC(C), DCHA/11/3/1 (2R, 2V, Jpg).
[883] 'Lord of a chief fee.'
[884] A religious house? Machell neglects to give us its name.
[885] The clergy/monks.
[886] Marches.
[887] Thomas Machell's father, who died on 6 October 1681.

reliq[uaries]. N[ote] that I suppose the Machels were rendered suspitious upon the account of their match with the Blenkinsops who were then papists.[888] Item: that Phillip Machel was Doctor Decretorum.[889]

Att Crakenthorp Hall I tooke notice of the Armes upon [a] wooden shield:
Machel ~~impaled~~ i.e. Sable 3 grey hounds coloured Orang collerd Or. For the crest a stags head erased proper, tired Or.
Item impal[ed]
Wharton
4. Pickering
5. Crakenthorp
6. Thornburrow
7. Richmont
\ Machell /
8. Barwise
9. Fallowfield
10. Lancaster
11. Sandford
2. Blenkinsop
3. Barkar
13. John Machell, shireve of London
14. Sir James Maliverer[890] of [blank] in Yorkshire.

Anciently: canis \ indicus / malæ satis feriatæ naturæ, colore albus, erectus clypeo nigro in positus. Cum quo optime quadrat in scriptio hæc nemo me impune lacesset: suntque Arma furienti normanno satis congrua. Pro Crista Hyacinthus suae lilium. Hæc ad Willielmum Malum Catulum sive Mauchael. {È carta Willielmi Mali Catuli ubi Sigill e sigillo He[…] et Tho. Mali Catuli.[891]
Modern: Sable 3 greyhounds courant in pale Argent collerd Or†. Proved from the windows in Appleby & Bongate Church‡ as I judge (tho Mr Dugdal has putt them in his visit to Westmorland without collers & drawne them so from the glass window in Appleby church where they impale Thornburrow, calleing them Maliverers Armes) which may be disproved from the Marriage Contract (in Cista[892] evidence pen[e]s Mr Machell de Crakanthorp, temp. Richard 2, and soe they are drawne in a Booke \ of Armes / in 4^{0}.[893] intituled The Visitation of Cumberland pro Westmorland & Cumberland. Sc. Sable 3 greyhounds coura[n]t in pale Argent. Collerd Or. (Sed vide etiam sigillum Richardi Machel tempore Elizabeth apud Chartam de wardo Hugonis nepotis sui, ut ibi se habet.)⸸[894]

[I.310]

[888] During Machell's lifetime a list of local confirmations by the Catholic Bishop John Layburn (August 1687), mentions five people named Machell in Witherslack: Agnes, Jane, two Lancelots and Margaret. See Lance Thwaytes, 'Catholics of the Seventeenth Century in the Barony of Kendal', in Marie B. Rowlands (ed.), English Catholics of Parish and Town 1558-1788 (London, 1999), Appendix 4, 209. Confirmations were carried out by Bishop Leyburn on 25, 28 and 29 August 1687. See also p.186, which relates to poll-tax payers in 1695: 'The names of Holm, Jackson, Machell, Summer, Tunstall and Wharton suggest they may have been customary tenants or tradesmen rather than the poor or labourers.'
[889] 'Doctor of Canon Law.'
[890] Mauleverer.
[891] 'Anciently, a dog (drawn in ink) of bad character, quite idle, coloured white, upright and placed upon a black shield, perfectly quartered; with this inscription: "Nobody shall provoke me with impunity." And there are arms quite concordant with a raging Norman. In front of the crest, a hyacinth as its fleur de lys. From a document of William Malus Catulus where there is a seal. From the seal of H… and of Thomas Malus Catulus.'
[892] 'In a chest.'
[893] Quarto.
[894] 'But see also the seal of Richard Machell at the time of Elizabeth in the charter concerning the ward of Hugo, Richard's nephew. As it appears there.'

[Machell's Notes: I.309 & I.310]

*{? Mr Pattison}
†{They are I believe without collars Or. Barnabyes seale.[895] Query of Johis & Richards.}
‡{È sigillo Hen[896] et Tho. Mali Catuli.}
[I.310]
⸸{Sir William called a Chaple of Heralds and corrected this mistake in his visitation from the original, & others also which I shewd him.}

[I.332]

Figure 1.1.42. Three greyhounds courant. I.332.

[Machell's Notes: I.332]

Desire my old friend Mr Logans or any graver in Oxford to bestow finish my stroakes upon this plate as I have corrected it, & take away the grossness of the hinderleg. Vet it altogether according to [blank].[897]

[I.643]

[Crackenthorp Descent]

1. Alexander 2 son of Radulfus de Crakanthorp, maryed [blank] whose Armes were [blank] and had Isue ~~Will~~.1. William: 2. Alan, who had Isue Walter. 3. Richard who had Isue Richard

2. William, son of Alexander de Cracantorp marryed [blank] whose Armes were [blank] and had Isue 1. William; 2. Gilbert; 3. Robert.
Gilbert de Crakintorp held of his father William 4 Acres of Land in Brockholm with other Land paying to his father & heredibus suis Radicem Gingibris at Xmas.[898] This shows that they came from William the Mauchal father […].[899] For those 4 acres in Long Brockholm, amongst other lands, were were given ~~to Alexander, grandfather of this Gilbert~~ By William Malus Catulus Lord of ~~Cras~~ Caracantorp: to Alexander His Brother, which Alexander was grandfather to this Gilbert & father of William. With him wer cotemporaris William de Warthecop, Thomas de Newbigging, Hugo de Bellocampo, Richard de Berewys (the 1ᵗ Times I have mett with that name) & Richard de Bertford. ~~This Gib. m~~. Then Gilbert de Quitteby Vicecom Westm'land. But Gilbert Quit his clame afterwards to William his brother. Witness, Sir Michael de Harcla, Sir Robert de Yawenwyth, Galfrid de Milkanthorp, Joh. de Helton, Johe Maachel;[900] and had Isue.

[895] Barnaby Machell.
[896] The page has perished here.
[897] The text on the rest of the page has been cut off.
[898] See CAC(C), DCHA/11/3/1/11V Jpg. On the reverse of the deed is written (in Machell's hand): 'William Son of Alexander … gives 4 acres of land in Long Brockholme to Gilbert his son, paying a race of ginger to him &c.'
[899] There is one illegible word here.
[900] A pecked line appears here, possibly as a reminder that more information was needed.

3.{1275} William, son of William, confirms to said gift of his father to Gilbert \ his brother. / This was I sup[pose] in the same yere. Witness allso Ad[am], the son of Paisn[901] de Morton. His seale was something like a floredeluce, but with severall flourishers. This William in \ anno / 1277 {20. Edward 1.} farmed the Lands which were given by his father ~~&~~ of his brother Gilbert for 12 yeres. Witness, Sir Michael de Harcla tunc Vicecom, Richard de Berewys, Johanne Mauchael, John de Helton.[902] Robert, who had \ a / release fin[e] with his brother of the gift of his father. Witness Thomas Mauchael & Joh the son of Adam de Kirkbythore. Sir Henry Hartley gave all his land in Crakanthorpe to Robert & Emme his wife. T[estament] Thomas de Musegrave tunc Vicecom. Thomas Mauchel John de Colleby, Hugo de Ormessheved. His seale being a plane crosse with a martlet in dexter point.

(2. William) 3. Richard – 138.[903]
Galfrid de Crakanthorp maryed the daughter of Mallbranche de Crakanthorp & had Isue Ellen & Agnes de Crakanthorp who passed their Lands to Walter, son of Walter de Mebrune 7. Edward. (Gilbert de Kirkinton, Vicecom.)

[I.644]

1. Alexander de Crakanthorp was 2 brother of William Mauchael de Crakanthorp by whose gift he had severall lands with great priviledges in Crakanthorp granted an[d] confirmed unto him; and amongst the rest 4 Acres in Longe Brockholme which I mention for a notes sake hereafter to be taken. He tooke his name from the name of the Towne for distinctions sake: his elder brother being called William, Dom[inus] de Crakanthorp, & sometime William Machel de Crakanthorp, sub midl Dom.[904] But Alexander his brother & their posterity were called de Crakanthorp without any addition of title or sirname; for the title belonged only to the Lord & the sirname contin[u]ed to him & his posterity as the other o[f] Crakanthorp did to Alexander & his.
He marryed & had Isue:
1. William.
2. Alayn, who marryed & had Isue: Walter,
3. Richard, who marryed and had Isue: Richard.

Generation 2.
William son of Alexander marryed and had Isue
1. William.
2. Gilbert* who marryed Ellen the daughter of [blank] and had Isue John who afterwards intaled his lands upon his ~~nephew~~ cosan[905] Richard, the second son of \ his / \ uncle / William his \ fathers / brother, & for defect of Isue upon ~~his nephew~~ Robert the elder (or 1[t]) son of William & for defect of Isue from him upon William son of William son of Alexander, who was elder, which was their father & his uncle.
3. William son of William son of Alexander de Crakanthorp vixit in 1275 and then sealed with some thing like a floredelice, as the Mauchels (at least the younger brothers) were wont to doe. But in 1308 I finde his seale to be a Crossbow, bent in an Ovel kinde of seale as before you have it drawne. He maryed & had
1. Robert 1308.
2. Richard upon whome he intaled his Estate in defect of Isue by Robert 1308.
4. Robert, son of William de Crakenthorp marryed Emma the daughter of Robert de Newbigging (for Crakanthorps Lands were infeofed upon him & reinfeofed upon Robert Crakenthorp & Emma his [901] Or possibly, 'Payn'.

[902] These scored-through phrases then follow: '~~William witness 1298; 2 Will 1.~~' [903] This date possibly represents, 3. Richard II (1379-80].
[904] 'Sub midle Dom': 'under the middle lord.' 'The great barons, holding large territories under the crown … frequently granted out of their great manors, smaller manors to be held of themselves … In imitation of this, the inferior lords made similar sub grants, the process being repeated downward ad infitum… The mesne or middle lords were the immediate superiors of the terre-tenant, or him who occupied the land.' See H. Broom, E. Hadley, W. Wait, Commentaries on the Laws of England Vol. 1 (Albany, New York, 1875), 529.
[905] 'Cosan' has been superimposed over 'nephew'.

wife: 10. Edward 2. 1317). He sealed allso with a crossbow. Thus, Robert gott Hartclas lands in Crakenthorp, 1341.[906]

[Machell's Notes: I.644]

*N.B. This Gilbert de Crakanthorpe had of his father 4 Acres of Land in Long Brockholm, for which he was to pay to him & his heires 1 race of Ginger: which shoes planely they descended from Alexander the Brother of William Mauchael; who am[ongst] other lands gave 4 Acres in Long Brockhol[m] to him & his heires.

[I.645]

John Crakanthorp de Newbigging non comparant in Curia:[907] 15. Edward 4. [1475-76], Johannes Crakanthorp de Newbigging – 1. Henry 7. [1485-86], Johannes Crakanthorp \ de Newbigging / Armigeri non comparant in Curia, John Mauchel Armigeri &c. ad Henric. 8.

Thus, having presented you with an extract of this family […],[908] I shall in the next place \ […] et Tutta[909] / proceed to [a] more particular account of it, showing you the sucession of every Lord with his wife, Isue, & their Armes. But before I proceed, take a view of thes matches which I have mett with but cannot make out.

[Machell's Notes: I.645]

Method of the Sucession Relation:

1. The man, with an historical relation of him.
2. His marriage, his wifes father & mothers relation of her.
3. Their Isue, referring the 1ˢᵗ butt setting the rest downe in order with their matches.
4. Their matches.

These are the Isue of John Machel & Elizabeth his wife, Their Armes are presented in the following pages. You may doe the father and mother at large; the other in little.

Escutcheons

38 will compleat to my brother Hugh with his. They haveing:

Barwyse:	ut autem[910] in Ilekirk church
Pickering:	painted att Crakanthorp, ex infor [blank]
Crakanthorp:	I am much mistaken if I saw not an evidence wherein the fre land in Crakanthorp was return'd in dower.
Lancaster:	}
Fallowfield:	} who either united with the Machells or the Machells with them

The N[ame] Pik may be a mistake upon the account of the kindred was contracted by marrying with Blenkinsops; for Pick maryed one of the 5 sisters & Machel another.

[I.646]

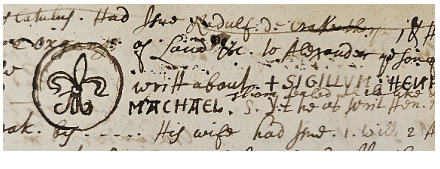

Figure 1.1.43. Seal sketch. I.646.

1. Galfrid Malus Catullus had Isue Rudulfus de Crakanthorp; & Henry {& Thomas} {Humfrey} who confirme 2 oxgangs of Land &c. to Alexander the son of Ralfe; & Hen. Seale[911] writt about + SIGILLVM HENRICI was thus: MACHAEL. S. \ Thomas sealed with the like & proper inscription / S. Yet he as writ Hen. Mal Cal.

[906] At the page foot is written: 'John 20 [the number '16' has been written above '20']. Rich[ard] 2.'
[907] 'They do not compare in the Court.'
[908] Two words have been obscured by the binding.
[909] 'and all.'
[910] 'As, moreover.'
[911] See the figure above.

2. Rad[ulphus] de Crakanthorp by [blank] his wife had Isue: 1. William; 2. Alexander \ de Crakanthorp; / 3. Mar {with Margerie Kirkbythore}[912]

3. William, the son of Ralfe gave those 2 Lands with others after the death of his mother with great priviledges to his brother Alexander otherwise called Alexander de Crakanthorpe, who was the begin[ning] of that family which till of late yeres injoyed the same Lands which are known to this day by the meets & bounds specifyed in the deed. This William lived before the reigne of King John [1199-1216]. \ He marryed Margaret & had Isue John \ dom de / (Lord of) Crakanthorp, et dom feo[dom].

4. John Mauchael was witness to a deed of Adam de Kirkbythore to Robert de Veteripont of the Advousans of the Church Anno 6. John [1204-05]. He was marryed to one Beatrix. 1298. & had Isue: Thomas & Walter de Crakanthorp vel Robert de Bedeford of Crakanthorp.
{Beatrix d[aughter] either of Simon son of Rogeri valoris de Crakenthorp vel Rob. de Bedeford of Crakenthorp with Wharton.}

5. Thomas son & heire of John marryed Emme the daughter of Gilbert de Querton, whose joynture was a messuage in Cracanthorpe which Margerie, his grandmother Held, together with a messuage & the Tenements at Kirkouswald. They had Isue ~~Thomas~~ Mr Walter & Thomas.[913]

6. {With Beauchamps} Walter son & heire of Thomas, during his fathers life marryed Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas de Bellocampo ~~of Lasingby~~, who conveyed all his Lands & Tenements in Kirkoswald & Lasingby dureing the life of T.M. his father to Thomas Beauchamp his father in law. The[y] Had Isue John. \ One of the Beauchamps came to be Earle of Warwick in time & bore for his Armes [blank] /

7. John son & heire of Walter Mauchel lett some lands to John Mauchael, put[o] his uncle,[914] for Terme of Yeres [in] 1293. i.e. 20. Edward I. He was Lord of the foe in 1290. Query? whether he did not mar[ry] Idonea de Berrford (or Maud) the daughter of Michael Carpenter by Matilda ~~the daughter of Comynes)~~ He had Isue Thomas who held of his father Carpenters lands, paying a Rose rent.[915]

8. Thomas Mauchel Lord of the foe of Crakanthorp. In his time \ tho the 1ᵗ[time][916] / I finde it exp[r]essed that John fil Agnetis held a messuage in Crakanthorp per Curialitate in Anglia.[917] Quaere de hoc?[918] Thomas the 1ᵗ was contemporary with Robert de Crakanthorp.

John 1. marry Beatrix the daughter of Roger Barkar, & Beatrix afterwards marryed to Robert de Bedford, whose widow she became. He was stild in […] confirm & quit claim, Dominus de [912] A margin-note here contains, 'John, 22 H [perished] A[lex]ander 3. H. Thomas H. 8. T. were pledges for […]', but most of the note has perished.

[913] The rest of this sentence has perished.
[914] 'Perhaps his uncle.'
[915] A symbolic payment, like a peppercorn rent. 'In Worcester Cathedral Library there are thirty-four documents which include at least a mention of a rose rent. These documents appear to have three things in common: they are all from the 13th and 14th centuries, they all specify a rose as a rent payment and they all deal with ownership of land and property. Other things vary, such as the amount of land, the kind of land, whether agricultural land or inhabited buildings, whether it is in Worcester itself or merely fairly local. There seems to be no particular type of transaction to which a rose rent applied. The parties concerned can be male or female, individuals or groups, and the arrangement can be purely business or involve inter-familial relationships. The idea of a single rose being used in this way was obviously an acceptable convention at that time.' See https://worcestercathedrallibrary.wordpress.com/2019/08/21/the-game-of-the-rose/#_ftn1.
[916] Editorian substitution: a word has perished here.
[917] 'By the English Court.' In the MS, 'John fil Agnetis held a messuage in Crakanthorp per Curialitate in Anglia', appears twice on this page (I.646).
[918] 'Uncertainty about this.'

Crakanthorpp & capitalis dominus ejusdem foedi.[919] I thinke she had Lands of inheritance in Lasingby, for in her widow[hood] she bestowed all her Lands, Tenements there.[920]

Machel with Barkar per fess imbattled Or and Azure 3 martletts counter charged. Sir John Barkar of Grimston Hall in Trimlay in Suffolke Esq. was created Baron March 17. Anno 10. Jacobi 1612. I thinke the seale is a mole.[921]

Figure 1.1.44. 'Machel with Barkar' I.646.

[I.646B]

Gilbert had Isue.
John marryed Elen daughter of [blank] and had Isue John, who intaled his Land upon Richard the son of William de Crakanthorp, or in defect of heires to Robert son of William: And if he dye without heires to William son of William son of Alexander. Test[ament] John Mauchell & Adam de Kirkbythore & Robert de Newbiggin (Thomas de Hellebeck tunc Vicecom).

[I.646A]

Rad[ulphus] had Isue
1. William de quo infra.
2. Alexander, unde Crakanthorp family who had Isue William.
3. Barnard who marryed & had Isue Richard de Crakanthorp, who lived in Henry 3^{ds} time [1216-72].
William marryed Margarie daughter of Adam de Kirkbythore for he made his Land over to him durante vita as Tho[mas] did to Thomas Beauchamp when he maryed his daughter. His Armes were a pale very smale ut è sigillo.[922]
1. John, witness to a deed of Adam de Kirkbythore &c. 6^{0} Johannis [1204-05].
2. Alexander, qui vixit 31. Henry 3. [1246-47].
3. Thomas, who with Alexander Mauchael I find suretyes or pledges for the good Aggmnt[923] (accord to determination) of Richard the son of Bernard de Crakanthorp, & William the son of Alexander de Crakanthorp, but it is sans date.
{John} The seale of Richard is the same with that of Henry & [blank] Machaell except at the fote where it is split.[924]
Thomas father of Walter had allso Lands & Tenements in Kistlyfe [Blank] Meerton by Emma his wife, after wife …[925]

[III.79]

{Raritys at Crakanthorp}

[In Nature]
A ma[gpie] that imitates the voyce of an olde woman & a young childe; the \ barkeing / of a little curr; the mewing & sphuting[926] of a cat so exactly if that being at the doore or out of sight, it can not be

[919] 'Lord of Crackenthorpe and tenant in chief of the same fee.'
[920] One line of text has perished here.
[921] A further line has perished.
[922] 'As from the seal.'
[923] Presumably, 'agreement.'
[924] There is a tiny sketch of the split here, 1cm x ½cm.
[925] As the next sentence has been sheered off, 'Emma' was possibly afterwards the wife of another. The name, 'Walter de Rawe' [or Raven] is just visible.
[926] Possibly, 'spitting', as in 'to bespew or bespit'. OED.

discovered to be a counterrfait & makes such an my[st]eriouse medley amongst them as is exceeding surpriseing; & lookes like witchcraft to those that know it not.

[Thomas Walker]
Here was ~~old man~~ liveing\ one Walker / not many yeares agoe, of 100[927] years of age; an expert smith who shoed King James the 1[t] his read cow. He went up to London on foot about a law-suit after he was 100 years of age, and would goe into the Lords wood & carry away ~~good~~ hansom young ashes upon his back: which in regard of his old age & the rarity of such admirable strength[928] …worked at by the Lord of the Manner.

[I.342]

Amongst things \ in antiquity which are / extraordinary I thinke fit to mention an old cuple in this Towne, who made betwixt them 221. The man, whose name was Thomas Walker, livd to 112 years of age and went on foote; and the woman, 109.

[I.507]

[Machell Family]
Fid[es].[929] The prodigious activity & \ strength / of the late Lancelot Machell of Crakanthorp Esq. & John, his brother {!} (whose son now liveing at A[r]dee in Ireland is not inferiour to his father)[930] who exceeded all merit in feats of their time ~~in strength and~~ \ in feats of Armes / Activity \ & Strength of Body. & having a Courage suitable thereto, / may well be recounted amongst the extraordinary effects of Nature; And the said John has a son now liveing at A[r]dee in Ireland whom that Kingdom doth boast of ~~for~~ \ there, for the like undertakeing \ exployts / as his father was there.

[I.547]

H.M.[931] a person of little stature but of great gallantry; of which I shal give you 2 pregnant proofe. The one was his conduct \ & courage at Brough / upon Mr T. Esqs offering to send a challenge by him unto his \ aged / father – upon which he tooke him through hands himself & beat[932] him to his owne satisfaction.
The other was by Martin church, where being challenged by his cosan W.S.[933] whose sword he hapned to break in the combat, he therewith threw away his own, ran in […] struck him […] heales, & […] him that […] which he would not aske.[934] This was on Tuesday the 23 Feb.!!! 1687/8. The day before my Lord Preston returned.[935]

[III.79]

[In] Art
2 great Romane Wayes meet in this place, one heading by to Carlile &c. into Scotland, the other coming from towards Newcastle & ending here. And the Castra Catulin[936] or Whelp Castle has bin a vast & stupendous building, as appears by the stone, which are now diged up from the sinkes only which carrye of[f] the water & som being in length* & \ some / brick walls of a whol yard brod, which the inhabitants have somtime discovered, & as the shattered bricks here & there with tiles &c. were som sort of testimony. But iam seges est ubi domus erat.[937]

---

[927] A line over '100' suggests that he was older, as the text on the following page proves.
[928] Blots obscure the next few words, most of which have been scored through.
[929] An abbreviation, possibly of the Latin 'fides.' For the Romans, 'fides' was essential to the character of a man of public affairs, and a fundamental part of all social and political business. It meant 'reliability', was always reciprocal and mutual, and implied privileges and responsibilities on both sides.
[930] For both John Machells of Ardee, see Bernard Burke. A Genealogical and Heraldic History of the Landed Gentry of Great Britain & Ireland, Online edn, Vol. 2, 52.
[931] Hugh Machell.
[932] MS: 'beat~~en~~.' The term, 'took him through hands', is still a Cumbrian dialect term for a thrashing.
[933] William Sanderson.
[934] Sadly, much of this exploit has been obscured by the binding. Having read the previous passage, the reader might enjoy filling in the gaps.
[935] 'Lord Preston': Richard Graham, first Viscount Preston (1648-1695), politician and Jacobite conspirator, was the eldest son of Sir George Graham, second baronet of Netherby. Preston was made Lord Lieutenant of Cumberland and Westmorland in 1687. See J. Callow, 'Graham, Richard, first Viscount Preston'. ODNB.
[936] MS: '~~Castra Catululin~~… Castra Catulin.'
[937] 'And now there is a crop where a house once was.'

[Machell's Notes: III.79]

*See my letter to Mill.[938]
Sewlby: Q. of Mr Hall, what remarke priviledges: 20^{s} & a purse.[939]
Letherwite &c.[940]
Q. Where Cliburn & Browham parish meet & how divided in Whinf[ell].

[Further Notes, largely concerning rarities]

I.340

Crakenthorp Hall – the camp there on Speedymore & Maden Hold. The Roman Way that divides the 2 L[ordship]s, & the outworkes of an old fortess at the White Burwens near a place cald Castrig[941] where milestones found in Brampton.
{Cumberland, in Kirkland p[arish], Culgaith. Last in the hands of one Vaughan, sold to the tenants free.}

[I.366]

In Art
Hic locus ~~St Magi speculum~~ est Catuli ~~speculum~~ spatium \ Zystum[942] / capetale Rogero.[943] Hic steterit Catuli Regia celsa senis.[944]

[I.337]

The outworkes of a fort calld White Burwens Hill, Merton – some urnes found – Romane Camp & Maden Hold.
For Crakenthorp Hall altars 2 lyons.
{Cupilo; Boate}
{Chantrey}[945] {Doubts}

And in nature
The soyle: gardine of Eden;[946] air healthful; exam[ine] old W.L. & J. &c.[947]
{Vines at Crakenthorp}

[III. 79]

Maiden hare, juneper berries, scurvy gras, bleaberyes.
Glo\o/bes, harts e\a/se, ladys mantl, wilde-time, burd ecence, buckthorne, buck hornes, old oake trees underground.

[I. 336]

[Rarities in Nature and Art: Environs of Appleby]

[Springs, Wells, Rivers, Tarns]

[Springs]
In Sowerby: severall spring[s] {As Turle well, Strand well, Denny well {Denny Well from Dian[a] or Dennis …}[948] But only 2 rema[r]keable: Sc. Lucyes Well by Acorn Banke, which they say is good for [938] See the chapter on 'Roman Antiquities'.

[939] MS: 'purese'.
[940] 'Letherwite': 'any of various fines relating to sexual relations and marriage; especially a fine payable by a male serf to his lord for having illicit sexual relations with a female serf; also, such fines collectively'. OED.
[941] Castrigg, in the parish of Long Marton.
[942] Xystus (17th century: zystus). To the ancient Greeks, the xystus was a long, covered portico or court used for athletic exercises; to the ancient Romans it was an open colonnade or walk planted with trees, used for recreation and conversation. OED.
[943] 'This place is the colonnade of Catulus, chief court for Roger.'
[944] 'Here will have stood the lofty realm of old Catulus'. For the significance of this quotation from Ovid, see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.558.
[945] This word is an insecure transcription, as the text has been both blotted and obscured by a line below it.
[946] See also: MS. III.65, 'Herbs &c. The Garden of Eden.'
[947] Presumably, these names represent two of Machell's informants.
[948] The rest of this phrase is obscured by the binding.

sore eyes, & Aspeth Well in Aspers Close, on the S. west of Sowerby, which runns into Eden, to which in somer people resort to drinke for pleasure.

[Wells: Medical Cures]
Those at Browham calld Helly Wells once as they say, remd[949] breaste milke.
One at Dufton beyond the Pike which in 24 hores turns moss into stone.
Another ther is on the Chaple Hill calld Chaple Well, which hath sometime allso bin counted medicinal. I suppose it is dedecated, as the chaple was, to St Giles.[950] {This [chapel] has bin endowed as al other chaples anciently were; for in the deed of [blank] to [blank] of lands in Ellerker he sayes: proxim[e] terrae capel[lae] de Crakenthorp.[951] It was standing at least but \ newly/ demolished in Queen Elizabeths time}*.
M[achells] Well – good in feavours with vinegar as T.M. by experience – Marble Spar for sore eyes.
Crackenthorpe: C[ommon] P[ump] at the Hall, in digging of which a mixture lump of brass ore was found†, from which sort of minneral the water perhaps receaves its vertue. It cured Mrs E.M., the lady of the man[or];[952] of a great B[oil] which she had bin troubld with for 14 years – she drinkeing thereof in somer morneings, 3 dayes together in a week or a forth night for 3 somers \ successively / teste se ipsa[953] yet liveing.

[Machell's Notes: I.336]

*Se. Court Rolls.
†Copper, for brass is a mixture of c[opper] & t[in].
Iter[954] in the late Rebels wars,[955] the Kings party &c. Query of Vale Thwates – gave a defeat to [blank][956]

[I.340]

Tarnes [and Springs] in the demanes of Crakenthorp.[957]
This \ p[arish] all over / is intersperced with many rivulets which chase one another {strive to outrun one or another, which haisten swiftly} into the Great Channell of the no[b]le Eden & there intermix themselves with her waters. As also many curiouse Springs, the chief of which are:

1. St Giles, his well, which springs on the south side of an high hill at Crakenthorp in the demaine calld Chappel Hill, just by the edge of the chapleyard, which was called St Giles. Tis a dillicate water,[958] & hath not only as tis supposed serv'd for baptiseing their children*, but medicinal uses, being approvedly good to stop a Lax & heale soare leggs; belike St Giles left his cruches here in the possession of som old hermit who lived ~~some time~~ in and so gave name to the Hermitholm which is near to this place. To which wee may add:

2. The common pump at Crakenthorp Hall {in drying of which a lump of brass ore was taken up as big your head} because it wrought a miraculous cure upon Elizabeth Machell ~~now liveing~~ the lady of the manner &c. The pump at Crakenthorp – ab effectu[959] – extraord[inary] in nature.[960]

[949] Removed? Remedied?
[950] The Chapel of St Giles (named after Aegidius or Giles the Hermit) is in Crackenthorpe township.
[951] 'Land very near to the chapel of Crackenthorpe.'
[952] Elizabeth Whelpdale married Lancelot Machell of Crackenthorpe at Penrith on 30 November 1643; she therefore became 'lady of the manor' and was the mother of Thomas, the antiquary. See C. Roy Hudleston, 'Thomas Machell, his wife and children and his Whelpdale stepchildren', CW2, 70 (1970), 110-45, at 111.
[953] 'Witness, she herself.'
[954] 'Here.'
[955] The Civil War.
[956] Transcribed as seen; meaning unclear.
[957] This heading has been moved here from MS.I.341
[958] MS: 'St Giles, his well, which springs on the south side of an high hill at Crakenthorp ~~called the Sark Bankes by the~~ \ in the demaine / calld Chappel Hill, just by the edge of the chapleyard, which was called St Giles ~~in the tis~~. Tis a dillicate water ~~as hath bin accounted~~.'
[959] 'From the effect.'
[960] In the MS this last sentence is numbered '6'.

3. Lady Well in the Fryaridge groundes at Apelby, & which has bin so calld (as I suppose) from the Priory. Here dedicate to St Mary and might easily water, as it semeth to have don formerly, every house on that side.[961] \ & [on] the other side also is a conduit pipe / where it runs off the street calld Batlebur (the \ old / Blato Burgum Antoninus speakes of; a member of the Corporation of Apleby).[962]
4. Pike Well which waters the manner house at Murton, coming into \ Murton Hall / by a long divided channel.

[Machell's Notes: I.340]

*{Washing away spiritual impurityes by Baptism but corpo[ris] after by immersion or lotion.}[963]
A place called Plaster Scar over against Winderwath, which is very good plaster for makeing floores. Generous - & Apelby – iron which distroyd the far woods.

[III.80]

{ad Ellercar}
{Noster Martinus Lister clarisimus – in tractate de Cochleis; p.146, Cap.1.}[964]
Titulo XXIX. describit musculum Latum testâ admodum tenui, ex fusco vir[id]i descentem, interdum rufessentem. Cuj latitudo ad duas uncias, longitudo ad tres uncias et dimidium. Id genus maximum quem unquam vidit.
Ex his vero inquit ipsis musculis plurimos invenimus in fossis paludis Pottery Carr dictæ juxta Doncaster quibus longitudo fere 5 uncialis, latitudo paulum supra duas uncias et dimidium.
{vitæ, vel aculi Echinorum \ 11:50 / dicti, vel corallium}
Musculorum aliarumve cochlearum testæ si in acri lixivio coquuntur earum exteriores et decolores membrana separari possunt. Et 3a membranula margaritarum splendorem habet et accom[m]odatiss[ima] est ad medicamenta quæ vis[965] in quibus requiruntur vela.[966]

[I.336]

[Other Rarities in Nature]

[Fish]
Hawes Water eales as bigg as a mans thigh.{Infor. J. Wiber from Browham Castle, farmers.}[967]
The pike fish & golden trout in Tease pikedale.
U[l]sewater trouts and eales. 1 trout that was 7 quarter long taken 12 yeares since a[t] Powley Stanke, which ran away with the speare \ as big as an[968] pike / called a Lister twice 12 score ere she came to the shore: infor. eodem.[969]

[III.41]

Langton Tarne, replennishd with eale, tench & troute.

---

[961] MS: 'Here dedicate to St Mary and / ~~has formerly watered~~ as \ might easily water / as it semeth to have don formerly, / every house on that side ~~where it runs of~~ \ the side'.
[962] As this passage is closely written, much scored-through and highly interlineated, the transcription given here is somewhat loose.
[963] 'Baptism by lotion': 'Danaeus: "Baptism signifies not only immersion, but also lotion and ablution; and not only are they baptized who are wholly dipped in water, but they that are tinged or whetted with water."' See Enoch Pond, Treatise on Christian Baptism (Boston, 1833), 26.
[964] 'Our most illustrious Martin Lister, De Cochleis [On Landsnails]' (London, 1685), and, Exercitatio anatomica de Cochleis, maxime terrestribus & limacibus (London, 1694).)
[965] MS: 'quae vit'.
[966] 'Under Heading XXIX he describes a broad mussel with a fairly thin shell, shading from a dark green colour, sometimes becoming reddish. Its breadth [is] approaching two inches, its length towards three and a half inches. This type is the largest that he ever saw. But he says that in the ditches of the marsh called Pottery Carr near Doncaster we find a great many of these very mussels, whose length measures almost five inches and breadth a little over two and a half inches. {For their way of life, either the spines, as they are called, of urchins, or coral.} If the shells of mussels or of other snails are cooked in caustic lye, their outsides and discoloured parts can be separated from the membrane. And a third little membrane has the lustre of pearls and is very useful for various medical treatments in which plasters are required.'
[967] Informant.
[968] A word here is illegible.
[969] 'The same informant.'

[II.464] [970]

A \ Mr Burbeck of Hornby / was in league with a Yorkeshire woman, who was very unwilling to come into Westm'land by reason that she had bin ~~told or att least supposed that they~~ \ informed it was a barren unfruitful countrey & / had no fish; whereupon, a day or 2 After […][971] \ Esq. Machell / sent his man over with an whole horse load of his \ own / takeing; and then she was satisfied that there were some, whence so many were brought. {Non Tanti.}[972]

[I.340]

[Birds]

Eagles or rather vultures – bread in Hikeupdale Skar, black in colour, their pulti[973] haveing larger limbes than the o[l]d eagle that was kept at Queens College.

[I.341]

In Bongate St Nicholas Wood, sparrow hawk nests.[974] In the bogg at the bottom of Thornbur[975] Hill, wild ducks build; as also at Spittlemire in the demane or high groundes at Crakenthorp. Herinsew[976] nests in the other end & q[uery] of ospreys[977] – cranes in Flakebrege. Wild duck at Spittle. Eagles.[978]

[Beasts]

Martes in Flakebridge

[I.229]

[Minerals]

(Remarkes)

1. In the Lordship of Bongate is a qaurrie of he[w]n ston[e], for the bankes of Eaden are a reed[979] rock here; but besides the Church there is no place remarkeable and there is \ not now / any manor [house].

[I.340]

[2.] Allso blew stone like Irish slate, which make very \ good hoanes[980] / under ground. There are very rich mines, in the fell & mountanes, of lead & coale – but little sought after – especially in a place calld Scordell – concerneing which Gillmans wife, alijs Mother Shipton, as has bin said, deliverd this rime when she passed over that beck which run due [blank]

[I.342]

{She put her finger ith Beck}

Is in this Scordell
Has riches more than tong can tell.
They that awn'd to open Dunfell sneck
May shovell out ther silver in a peck.[981]

---

[970] This passage from MS.II.464 has been placed here, as Machell suggested: {'Prefix this to Crakenthorp, benef. of the lordship.'}

[971] 2cm of illegible text are crossed through here.

[972] 'Not so many.'

[973] A reference to the young of these birds, 'pulti' being derived from either 'puler' (17th century), 'a young bird, a fledgling'; or 'pult'/ 'pulter': 'an edible fowl: (collectively) poultry'. OED.

[974] MS. 'Sparrow hawks' is repeated elsewhere on this page.

[975] Thornbarrow.

[976] 'Herons': derived from Old French heronçeau. Other former names were heronshaw and hernshaw.

[977] MS. Repeated: 'Hernisews in Flakebrige wood as – of ospreys.'

[978] In the MS, this paragraph also contains a quotation, 'Up weel Spink & Draw well Sparke'. For the source of this reference, see Machell's Preface (II.469).

[979] Red sandstone.

[980] Sharpening stone.

[981] MS: 'Is in \ this / Scordal, ~~Arre~~ \ Has / riches more than tong can tell. ~~But~~ They that awn'd to open Dunfell sneck May shovell \ out ther silver in a / ~~soldett … a~~ peck'. MS. I.340 contains the words, 'Skordell Has riches more Than tongue can tell.' This reference is to the Yorkshire prophetess and soothsayer, Mother Shipton (Ursula Southeil c. 1488-1561). 'She had made her debut in print in the 1640s, but this appears to be the first indication that her legend was already being grafted onto landmarks in specific communities and woven into the fabric of their parochial lore.' Extracted from Adam Fox, 'Vernacular culture and popular customs in early modern England: evidence from Thomas Machell's Westmorland', Cultural and Social History, vol. 9, 3 (2012), 329-347, at 336.

[3.] Stone at Murton and Bongate, but none at Crakenthorp; what built that house being fetch from far
[I.341]

Murton Fells – and others
Rarityes: There are a sort of blewish thin stones, like unto the Irish slate, & I am perswaded of the same vertue, but have experimentally found them to be good for sharping of rasors; no way inferiur to the Irish hoane. There are allso a sort of cristall stone, but very flakey. The same I suppose which those that are found in Muscovia and Saxony, called by the names of specularis, selenites, alumen, scaiblæ: usefull in medicine, which they render in English, the specular stone.

[I.340]

Murto[n] Pike – 2 miles high – is mad[e] of a pyrm[982] in the front of that gra[n]d ridge of mountane which resemble the Alpes.

[I.339]

{The Soyle}
The soyle is here (as in most other places) of diverse sortes, but generally claiy, and is very fertil, especially by the bankes of the River Eden & places adjacent, which are impregnated & inspirited with it. It produceth good corne, cattle & sheepe, these on the mountanes, those in the bottom & more champeon ground.[983] It is also adorned with wood in some partes,[984] but very rare, the most being as \ at / Crakenthorp* which is famous for ash & the strongest grad[e] oake in the Kingdom of England. For a smale nale being but entered into it can hardly be pulled out agane, & if the quantity did but answer the quality & were nearer the sea, no timber could be like it for ships.[985] Perhaps it may derive its strenth from the nature of the soyle being a strong clay.

[Flora]
Here \ are / also in the same wood, which I never saw elsewhere, wilde cherry trees; also rasp berry & wine berryes in the bankes [ab]out Troutbeck, naturally growing†. {~~But before~~ & here I must also observe unto a rarity in Nature which shows the benignity of the soyle & \ comfortable / tempertor of the air. He had in his floore gardene about – the present rector has had in his garden \ at Shrovetide / since he came to this place, double gillyflores, in their full blossom, ~~at shovetime~~ and here I cannot but take notice a rarity in nature which showes the benignity of the air & ~~fertility~~ of soyle. The present rector ~~hath~~ had in his floore garden not many years since, double gilliflowers in ful blossom at Shrovetide.}[986]

[Machell's Notes: I.339]

*(Query. Where Flakebrig?)
†{Query. If not in Murton parish.}

[I.70]

Crakenthorpe furne & woods: demoll.

[I.341]

At Crakenthorp, which is very remarkeable for its verdure and greenness, being a springy place, ~~are all manner~~ \ is great / [store] of dillicate physicall[987] herbes, the demanes & wods being as a garden.

[982] Pyramid?
[983] Variant of Champion (Champagne) country: level, open land or fields. See John Morrill (ed.), The Oxford Illustrated History of Tudor and Stuart Britain (Oxford, 2000), 2.
[984] MS: Written in pencil in large letters at right angles to the main text: '{In nature trees […] buck [t]hornes, hazels.}'
[985] MS: 'if the quantity did but answer the q. ~~it would be the best fetch~~ & were nearer the sea, no timber could be like it for ships.'
[986] This comment refers to the rectory at Kirkby Thore, see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.537.
[987] Medicinal.

~~Birdse~~ Mellilot,[988] addertong,[989] epithimus,[990] golden globes[991] & Birds Een[992] – concerneing which see a Rem in Kirkbythore.[993]

[Fruit]
Rasp-berryes & hindberryes at a place calld Scalehowses in Murton Demaine, & bleaberryes at Meal Fell, a pasture thereto also belonging. Wineberryes at the south corner of Flakebrig Wood {formerly a parke replennishd with deere} in a place called the Springhead, by the beckside.
Allso cherry trees, which grow wild & bear fruit in the Chaplewood near Roger Head.

[I.339]

I shal conclude with ~~an~~ \ this / observation ~~(if it be not common & \ rather / a thing over general to the whol county that peculiar~~.) \ of rarityes in nature / which is rather generall {to these} throughout the whol countrey, then peculiar & proper to this one parish \ place alone /: that here are such floores growing in our medows, commons and wasts, as in the south partes are \ ~~most~~ highly / esteemd of ~~as raritye~~s, sc. go[l]den globes & pansey, or hartsease as they are som where calld, to which I must ad, that delicate bunchd pinck colourd flooer calld the Pink.'

[I.310]

Accidents

{Bongate}
In 1675 att a place called Dowcoate Flat by Bongate was an ashtree removed of about 3 yards under bowes[994] & 8 inches diameter; i.e. 2 foote in circumference) with a parcel of earth therewith 12 yards square[995] & 3 yards deepe, after a wonderfull manner as seemed to some; for it was caryed upright in the earth & slid downe an hill over some Eller (i.e. Alder) copses or bushes; and there being a plane at the bottome of the hillside about 16 yards in breadth, it continued its course over this plane into the River, there being a great flood then, [and stopped] 10 yards within the bankes of the Eden, where it stood & stands still erect, save only that it inclines a little westward. The winde was high that night but blew contrary, that is to say against the hill \ which made the thing more wonderful to som / which might be a meanes to keep it upright. And there were some showers of raine but noe great ones, neither any water course near the place where this tree stood; onely so much water as rann of the lands downe along a furrow,[996] and that is all the \ naturall / reason can be give for this accident; but a man dyed that night, whose name was Kiplin, that lived upon Stanemoore & was reputed a conjure[r],[997] to whose translation[998] it was chiefly imputed by the credulous multitude. {I give the story to rase admiration then the reason to solve the phenomenon} but indeed shows a natural reason for it, & solves the phenominon, for the root being brought down by force of the warter & descent of the hill, the contrary wind kept it upright & kept it from falling.

---

[988] Melilot: sweet clover.
[989] Adder's tongue fern.
[990] Epithymum is the 'dodder', 'the common name of the genus Cuscuta, family Convolvulaceæ, comprising slender leafless plants, like masses of twining threads, parasitic on flax, clover, thyme, furze, and other plants. OED. It was used as a herbal remedy, e.g. for 'melancholic passion': 'Take Epithymum one ounce and a halfe, Azure stone, Agaricus, of each one quar|ter of an ounce, Diagridion one drag. 20 Cloves, this being beaten together and tempered, you are twice a wéeke to give thereof … To moisten the drie braines in this Melancholia … take the flowers of Borage, of Buglosse, Thymus, Epithymus, of each a like quantitie, séeth this together, and wash the head therewith.' See Christof Wirsung, The general practise of physicke conteyning all inward and outward parts of the body, with all the accidents and infirmities that are incident vnto them, euen from the crowne of the head to the sole of the foote: also by what meanes (with the help of God) they may be remedied (London, 1605), 'The twelfth Chapter. The Braines, and all that concerneth them,' 133.
[991] Globeflower.
[992] Bird's Eye speedwell.
[993] 'Rem' here might stand for (Latin) 'matter or material', but equally it could be a contraction of the word, 'remarkable'. Machell treats 'bird een' more fully in Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin, I.566.
[994] Boughs.
[995] MS: Machell drew a square shape here.
[996] Drainage channel.
[997] 'One who practises conjuration; one who conjures spirits and pretends to perform miracles by their aid; a wizard'. OED.
[998] Death.

[I.328A]

Appleby St Michaels ad Crakanthorp
Action of a whirlwind on waters, March 14 1685/6
Thomas Soulby informed me of a strange accident which hapned by a winde att the head of Ellerker, over\a/gainst Stega Lands yeat; when he & others were makeing hay there, all the water in Eaden from side to side was taken up in the winde by a whirlepuft,[999] the bredth of an house, so that he fairly discovered the channel & stones in the bottom without any water. This was about 14 years since.[1000]

[III.75]

{Ad Burton Lordship about 15 years agoe}
Anthony Stephenson found a man – in the last great frost & snow save one – in a gill above Brampton & Hilton call'd Grena-Gill, lying & moaning in the snow, who gave this account concerneing himself. That he came from Durham to the Nether Pit on Stanemore to see som of his acquaintance ~~who were~~ working there; and thence intending for High Ubanke he miss'd his way (or was missed for) a \ whol / weeke together twixt Sunday & Sunday, never resting, eating nor sleeping \ all the while / nor knowing whether it was night or day all that time but that \ there / ~~were~~ was something like a black dog sometimes running before him. His leggs were so perished in the cold that they ~~perished by it & were both~~ cut of just under the knee about 3 monthes after.

[I.340]

{Anything extraord[inary] in Art or Nature}

A monstrous birth about Friday 15 February 1686/7.}[1001]

[III.75]

{A milston caryed over Wharton Park wall without injury.}

[I.339]

[Extraordinary Things of Antiquity]
{Amongst these ancient things of antiquity which are extraordinarie I thinke fit to mention an ingeniouse old woman who lived in this town til she was 120 years old. Her names were Sanderson whom in a byname they called Cowsonsy – a compound old word which signifyes unhorned but lucky and signifyes a good lucky cow that wante shed her hornes.[1002]

[I.341]

Below the ca[mp] & nearer Kirkbythore at a place calld Machells Banke near the High Street on the left hand as you goe to K. there were urnes found in this Lordship with ashes in them &c: see one in amongst my paper sent to the Repository at Oxford by Mr Tod, & query farther of T. Long & his son.[1003]

[Other General Notes]

[I.262b]

The Lordship of Burrells.
Lordship of Skattergate.
Soulfield p[art] of the dem[ain] belong[ing] to Apleby Castle in the Lordship of Bong[ate].
Langton Field p[ar]cell of the dem[ain].
Land belonging to Apleby Castle.
Lordship of Wood Side.
In 1628 tis said that the forge in the demain lands of Browham had there been lately built.
The long warren of Lancton.

[999] Whirl-puff: puff or gust of wind such as raises dust in a whirl or eddy; also a whirlwind. OED.
[1000] MS.1.340 refers to these phenomena in a short note: 'a tree which ran down into Eden; a thunder shower in Brampton.'
[1001] This number could equally well read '18'.
[1002] The word 'wante' is unclear. More material on Cow Sonsy occurs in the Parishes of Kirkby Thore and Newbiggin (I.538-546).
[1003] See Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities.

[II.369A]

The other side adjoyneing the Lyde of Bolton Fields &c. To be calld & known by the name of Rowland Close, scituate lying and being within the Lordship, Township & Territories of Crakinthroppe aforesaid: And lying & being within the Spedings of Thone Side, and the water of Eden on thother side adjoyneing unto the side of.[1004]

[1004] The text ends here.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 2]

[Parish of Askham]

[I.356]

For this see my notes of Ascome parish. Tis writ Ascome S.D.[1] in the Catalogue of Shireves, MS of Westm'land in General, sc. Part V.[2]

[I.359][3]

Askam

[The Church]

The church is dedicated to St Peter*, as appears out of Haltons Register.[4] In it there is not any thing remarkable save in Sandford quire, which is on the south side the church behind the pulpit.[5]

Sandford Quire

In it are 2 fair throughs:[6] one huen stone, covered with huen stone above 4 cubits long & 2 & ½ broad,[7] under which is interred Thomas Sandford; this is next to the south window. He died durante vita Patris.[8] The other near the pulpit is almost as large every way, and covered with a fair marble of a brownish colour mixed with blew & some white vanes. \ Under is burrid Long John Sandford / {who was yonger brother of the said Thomas, buried on St John day,[9] 44 yeres since R. English buried in St Peters at Ashby.}[10] It was diged up out of water at the east end of church, at a place called Holly Well, because it descends by steps as into a well, and {Ita[11]} is the place wher they fetch their water wherewith they Baptise: An no question formerly in time of popery, whence they had their water \ on / which they had made holly water in this same place.

The parish[ioners] of Askam were used on Easter Day in the afterenoon to sing hyms and the parishioners of Lowther on the other side the water, there being a brave Ecco to contend with them†.[12]

There are besides in this quire severall grave stones, 2 whereof are somewhat remarkable.
That next the pulpit which is older, haveing a sort of † rose upon it[13] and on the right side a pair of sheres, the best sort of sisers no doubt in old time.

---

[1] 'Sine die': without date.
[2] The List of sheriffs (VI.583-95) contains no reference to Askham, but see Machell's Introduction to Westmorland: I.49, 93, 95, 123; II.487 (reference to a charter SD), 492, 505, for other references.
[3] I.359-367 are also numbered 1-9.
[4] Bishop Halton's Register: John de Halton was bishop of Carlisle, 1292-1324, see CAS(C), DRC1/1. See also, The Register of John de Halton, 2 vols, CWAAS Record Series II (Kendal, 1913).
[5] Askham Church was rebuilt in 1832-33 by Robert Smirke (architect of Lowther Castle) on the plan of the medieval church, incorporating some of its features: Hyde & Pevsner, 121-22.
[6] 'Throughs' are flat gravestones. OED.
[7] Cubit: an ancient measure of length derived from the forearm; varying at different times and places, but usually about 18-22 inches. OED.
[8] He died 'in his father's lifetime.'
[9] St John the Evangelist: 27 December.
[10] Thomas died 27 September 1630, and John who succeeded him was buried on 28 December in the same year. See Frederick W. Ragg, 'Helton Flechan, Askham and Sandford of Askham', CW2, 21 (1921), 174-233, at 198.
[11] 'Thus.'
[12] The River Lowther runs between Askham and Lowther in a deep gulley; hence the echo.
[13] A rose-headed cross.

The other, a cross rose in planer worke; on the right side a booke & a pair of sheres \ under it /more rudely cut, as the whole worke indeed is; on the left side an escutshon and under neath A.S. for Ann Sandford. One Bridget Sandford being lately buried there, B.S. for Brigget Sandford is ingraved thereupon.

In the East window was this Coat of Armes:

Figure 1.2.1. East Window, Askham Church. I.359.

{This was taken out of the quire upon the comeing up of the Scots in the Civil Wars,[14] & placed in the west wind[ow] of the Hall[15] for preservation.} {Note that antlers the Bores heads are Or.}[16]

There is upon the timber in the body of the church: E.D., E. D.; T.S., T.S.[17] which stand for Edward Dudley & Thomas Sandford, whos as it should seem have given timber to the reparation of the church.

[14] MS: 'Walls'.

[15] Askham Hall, then seat of the Sandford family. Although much of the material on Askham is devoted to the Sandfords, Machell fails to mention a contemporaneous MS bound into his own research (see MS.VI.540-69), written by Edmund Sandford c.1675. This work was later edited by R.S. Ferguson and published as, A Cursory Relation of All the Antiquities and Familyes in Cumberland, CWAAS Tract Series 4 (Kendal, 1890).

[16] The 16th-century Sandford of Askham arms are described as, 'Per chevron Sable and Ermine two boars' heads couped Or.' During the reign of Edward II, Robert de Sandford bore 'Ermine on a chief indented Sable three boars' heads couped Or.' See CFH, 294, but see also I.361, where the boars' heads are 'tusked'.

[17] These are the duplicated initials of Edward Dudley & Thomas Sandford. Nicolson and Burn add the date 1593 after the initials, viz. 'The church is a small old building, with two little bells. Upon the timber in the body of the church, are the letters ED, TS, 1593; for Edmund Dudley and Thomas Sandford who probably gave timber for the repair thereof. And upon one of the coupling beams are the letters JB, supposed to mark the timber contributed by John Bradley of Knipe.' N&B1, 422. The Dudleys/Suttons (Barons Dudley) were connected by marriage (in 1512) to the Threlkelds of Yanwath. It is this branch of the Dudley family and its connection with the Sandfords with which Machell is concerned. Richard Dudley (d. Temple Sowerby 1593) married Dorothy, daughter of Edmund Sandford of Askham. His son and heir, Edmund Dudley, was therefore Thomas Sandford's first cousin. Edmund Dudley died c.1614. See W. Jackson, 'The Dudleys of Yanwath', CW1, 9 (1888), 318-32.

I finde in Edward the 1ᵗ time? there was a chantry founded here by the Askams, Lords and Patrons of this place; maybe this quire is it; my evidence is out of Haltons Register.[18] Robertus filius Henrici Henry. Almanac for 1674. 24‡.[19]

[Machell's Notes: I.359]

*{They bore rushes on St Peters day.}
†(Note this should be extra ecclesiam.)[20]
‡{This is Aska[m]}

[I.360]

In the southwest corner, the Sandfords of Helton bury, which now are degen[erated] into country people but without controversy of same fam[ily]. Under the south window is an arch over a gravestone, upon which is this inscription:

+ WILLS: DE S ANTONE

{In the quire, in digging a grave lately was found a stone coffin, and the covering being a broad through stone, this inscription:

+ IHES DEC CLAWORGH: i.e. Johannes de Claworgh.}

[Vicarage]
The vicaridge house was built by \ Lancelot Hutchinson / there being over the door this inscription:

PAX HUIC DOMVI
LHM.[21]

He is the present incumbent. The impropriation belongs to the Sandfords of Askam, who are allso patrons in 1362. It was a Rectory, a test […][22]

[Villages and Lordships]

Villages. 2: Askham, Helton with halfe of Helton Dale.[23]

Lordships. 3: [1.] Askam 2. Hilton, 3. Sattera Parke.
3. Askham, formerly belonging to the Swinburnes, now to the Sandfords.[24]

Q? I have it. Castlesteed in Yeanwath Wood in Barton. X
Q? I have it. A place in Yeanworth Wood called Maudlin Chapple, & a Well called Mag[dalen] or Holly Well.

4. There is 1 millne at Askham, a duble one.
5. A chaple in Askham Hal*.
6. Rarities: the marble quarryes beneath the church, and pearles found of the bigness of a pea in horse mussels which are in Lowther river.

[18] Bishop Halton's Register, see above.
[19] 'Robert the son of Henry; see my Almanac for 1674, page 24.'
[20] Note, this entry should be among those related to the outside of the church.
[21] 'Peace be to this house'.
[22] Names here, but obscured by the binding, appear to be of those who acted, 'as witness the deeds'. In 1680 the Sandford family sold the tithes to Sir John Lowther, see John F. Curwen, The Castles and Fortified Towers Of Cumberland Westmorland and Lancashire North-of-the-Sands, CWAAS Extra Series 13 (Kendal, 1913), 239.
[23] The word 'Winder' appears here in the margin, but it is very faint.
[24] MS: 'Askham, formerly belonging to the Swinburnes, now to the Sandfords. ~~There is a fortification near Askham Hall~~.'

7. Manner houses ~~onely~~ \ 1. / Askam,[25] to which there is one demane and one demane at Hilton, where there is a place called Hall-Steeds.[26] There has bin allso a chaple, as appears from a place called Chaple Yeat.

[Machell's Notes: I.360]

*Sed non dum vidi.[27]
{N[ote]} At Helton Tithebarn End is a stone seat where he who comes there is to stay till all the rest come up to him, where they confer about their affairs and so part home. It is looked upon as a great piece of rudness not to performe this cerimony.
Askham Hall. Idonea dates from Helton as I s[uppose].[28]

[I.361]

Over the gate of the gatehouse.
Over the great gate.[29]

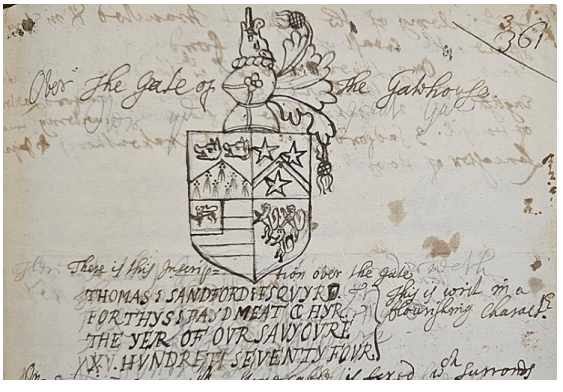

Figure 1.2.2. Askham Hall, gate inscription. I.361.

There is this inscription over the gate; this is writ in a flourishing character

THOMAS | SANDFORD | ESQVYRE.
FOR THYS | PAYD MEAT CC HYR.
THE YER OF OVR SAVYOVRE
X.V. HVNDRET SEVENTY FOVR[30]

On 2 pins upon which a stone cable is fixed which surrounds the arch of the gate; on the one TS; on the other AS, for Thomas Sandford and Ann Sandford his wife.

In the chapple, the East window has 2 lights. In the first is ~~St Simon, I thinke, with our saviour in his hand~~ \ the Trinity; / in the 2nd is the Virgin Mary with Our Saviour. On the wall above the[se] are 2 escutchions in stone.

[25] Askham Hall was enlarged by Thomas Standford in 1574: Curwen, Castles and Fortified Towers, 347-49.
[26] MS: 'to which there ~~are~~ \ is / ~~2 demanes and~~ one \ dem[ane] / and one demane at Hilton, where there is a place called Hall-Steeds.'
[27] 'But I have not yet seen it.'
[28] The last word in this sentence is partially obscured by the binding.
[29] The second phrase is in blue pencil; it was probably written on the spot.
[30] This has been inked over an originally pencilled version.

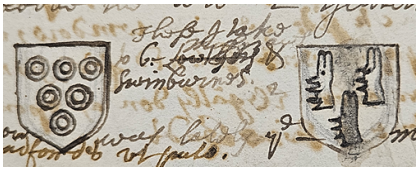

Figure 1.2.3. Askham Hall Chapel, East Window. I.361.

These I take to be ~~Lowthers~~ \ Musgraves / & Swinburnes. This pale must be taken away
In the first window was lately the Musgraves arms impaled by the Sandfords ut puto.[31]

In the Hall

In the East window the midle light is this coat, viz. quarterly: 1. Parted per cheveron Sable & Ermin. 2. Bores heads couped Argent! Tusked Or. \ The paternal coat of the Sandfords. / The 2nd Sable 3 lyons rampand Argent caud[32] inflexed Argent. By the name of English. The 3d, as the 2nd; the 4th as the 5th; the creast[33] on a wreath \ Azure & Sable. / On a close side helmet a borehead couped erect Or tusked Argent gor~~ge~~ \e/d with a falchion of the same.

In plasterworke Southside wall: 3 escutchions

The 1. quarterly of 8.
1. The paternall coate of the Sandfords
2. English
3. ~~Lancaster~~ Crakenthorpe, with a floredelise for distinction
4. Lancaster
5. English
6. Sandford
7. Lancaster
8. Crakenthorpe.

The 2nd quarterly of 4.
1. Sandford
2. English
3. ~~Lane~~ Crakenthorpe
4. Lancaster

The 4th is impaled
The 1t is Sandford quartering English, Crakenthorpe & Lancaster the 2nd Hutton of Hutton John quartering Barwise

[I.362]

The sealing of the Hall is branched & in every space the crest of the Sandfords. On a livery cubbord which stands in a lodging roome above the parlour are 4 coats: 1t. Sandford quartering English; the 2: Crakenthorpe with floredelies quartering Lancaster of Howgil; 3. Sandford by it selfe; 4. Crakenthorpe[34] impaleing Lancaster of Howgill.

[31] '…impaled by the Sandfords, I think.'
[32] Tails.
[33] Crest.
[34] Followed here by a tiny fleur de lys sketch.

The kitchen back door

Figure 1.2.4. Kitchen doorway stone, Askham Hall. I.363.

This stone stands att jaume of the low end doore as you goe the back way into the kitchen*.

[Chapel]
There is allso on the Chaple, above the East window, which I should have taken notise of before, 2 scutchions – one on each side the litle window – which tho very rude, yet I suppose were intended for Swineburnes, which are \ else / where more elegantly don; as upon their Seale in Edward 3. time: 3 Swine heads. The same coats allso have bin upon the Cross which stood in the midle of the Towne, one upon one side and the other upon the other, thus.

Figure 1.2.5. Coats of arms on Askham Cross. I.362.

[Dining Room]
There is allso upon a mullion on one of the windows of the gatehouse dineing roome – On a scutch. a lyon rampant (maybe) alluding to the Englishes, who tho in their coat they bear 3, yet in their Seale Ancient they bare onely a single lyon rampant

[Stable Door]
There is H.M. in a roundel above the stable door, which was don by one Humphery Musgrave related to this house

[Machell's Notes: I.362]

*The family of the Sandfords. Concerneing it Mr Edmund Sandford informes me that one T. Rud of Sandforth has many writeings concerning the Sandfords.[35] by their match with Musgraves as you may see in the pedegree; from whome to this day it is called Humphrey Stable.

[I.363]

[35] Edmund was a common name among the Sandfords but presumably this was Edmund Sandford the antiquary, see fn. 15, above.

[Sandford Deeds]

5º Richard 2d [1381-82]. Edmundus de Sandford make a conveyance of all his lands & tenements with appurt[enances] in the villages of Heton Flechan, Ascum et alibi in com. Westmerland Kt.d.[36] ut puto post marritagium.[37] {William s[on] of Sir Edmund & Idonea.}

8. Richard 2nd [1384-85]. Idonea, formerly the wife of Ed~~ward~~\mund/ Sandford, Knight, makes Adam de Crosby & Thomas de Barton for attorneys ad recipiendum serviciam nomine ~~meo~~ \ suo / et nomine Will[ielmi] de Sandford filij et heredis praedicti. Edmundi, Anno regni Richardi, regis Angiae et Franciæ octavo.[38]

9º Henry 4. [1407-08]. William de Hoton in foresta & William de Bolton doe quit clame to William de Sandford Chivalier, totum, usquæ aliquam in hab. potestatem in manerio de Ascome cum molendino ejusdem. Et omnibus alis terris & ten[ementis]. In conveyance dated eodem anno Alan Kirkbride releases to them ½ man[or] & village of Heton Flechan quæ / {fuit Sir Thomae Lengleys}.[39]

10. Henry 4. [1408-09]. Idonea Ughtreth, nuper uxor Thomae Ughtreth, militis.[40] Bound in a bond of 200 for performance of indenture to William Sandford, Knight. {Sir William marr[ied] Margaret.} ~~16.~~ \ 13. / Henry 4th [1411-12]. The manner of Ascome is info\e/fed upon William Sandford, Knight, & Margaret his wife, & their heirs by William de Woodside, capel; Thomas Jackson, & Adam Bro[wha]n. (John Lengleys filius et heres Domini Robert Lengleys, 1399.)[41]

[Will] of Idonea Ougthred

2. Henry 5th 1414. The~~r~~ will then dated; her executors being Robert Brut, armiger, who married Johane, her daughter; & Johan Sandford, filius Sandford, brother of Sir William {Sir William Sandford, son of Idonea; John, son Idonea} \ upon / which will she lyes this imposition:

> …Item onoravi Dominum Willielmum Sandford, filium meum et ipse onoret filios suos et filios filiorum, ut exhibeat et exhibeant presbiteram Idoneum celebrandum in ecclesia de Ascome in perpetuum pro animabus benefactorum nostrorum et omnium fidelium defunctorum sub poena benedictionis meæ vel maledictionis.[42] Apud Cranestie in Com. Northampton.

---

[36] 'And elsewhere in the county of Westmorland.' 'Ktd' is an insecure transcription because the second letter is blotted. Machell used similar letter groups (see a reference to Yanwath in Part 1, Ch.5, Barton, I.734) such as KαT, an abbreviation of the Greek adverb, κα/τω, meaning 'below', or, 'in the lower part'. In this instance, the probable context (the Bottom of Westmorland) is consistent with a reference to 'below', but the Greek abbreviation is unclear and appears to be carelessly written.

[37] 'After the marriage, I think.'

[38] 'Attorneys to receive service in his name and in the name of William de Sandford, son and heir of the aforesaid Edmund, in the eighth year of the reign of Richard, King of England and France.'

[39] 'William de Sandford, Chivalier, in its entirety, as far as he has any authority in the manor of Askham along with its mill. And all other lands and tenements. In conveyance dated the same year Alan Kirkbride releases to them … which was of Sir Thomas Lengleys.'

[40] 'Recent wife of Thomas Ughtreth, knight.'

[41] 'John Lengleys, son and heir of Lord Robert Lengleys, 1399.'

[42] 'Item. I have done honour to Lord William Sandford, my son; and he himself should do honour to his own sons and the sons of his sons. And he should ensure and they should ensure their forbear Idonea is commemorated in the church of Askham in perpetuity for the sake of the souls of our benefactors and all the faithful dead. Under the penalty of my blessing or malediction.'

This was made about the 2nd of Henry 5th [1414-15]. There is a shedule of her Estate in Westm'land, which I hold wo[r]th inserting.[43] Viz.

> MS. "I Dame Edone Sandforth ... (it seems it was made before she marryed Ugtred) ... maketh her remembrance": 'of all my landys in Westm'land the wyche ys myn heritage; That is to say the tone halfe off the towne off Helton Flechne wych the p\a/tenance; That is to say Helton Dall with the Skewegh. Item Land in Carholand; Item Land in Butterwyke; Item the manner of Knype; Item Satrow Parke wyth the browne more;[44] Item the depeynge; Item the Court yard with the Rod-banke and the Schaype Cott;* halfe the mylne of Helton; Item Stockthwaite and

[Machell's Notes: I.363]

*{is an hamlet.}

[I.364]

> Wyth wath; Item 2 acrs of Land in the Whale that lyeth by the beke; Item a Barwayne at Helton towne head. And these parcells above sayd is myne anerytance be my Lord my father, the which my Lady my graname gauffe my fder and to hys hayres; Item I have in Ascome 8 oxgangs of Land and halfe the mylne Cong~~ing~~ynd[45] to the same the wych my Lord my father purchassd of Syr Hew off Lowther and gayffe it to me; Item stockyng the manner and the Lands and the Towne of Ascome, the wych that my Lord my husband and I p\a/chesed* that cost us viij hondreth marks and 50, of the wyche my therd as I had in Syr Thomas Ughtred dayes†. And fore these landes of Ascome the chyld suld be ward gyff the law: will I 'and for noe' nother lands that myne is'‡.

{William, brother of Sir Edmund}

5. Henry 5th [1417-18]. Mention of William de Sandford who paid rent to Idonea, widow of Thomas Ughthred, Chevalier, for a farme holden pro termino annorum⸸.[46]

6. Harry 5. [1418-19]. She was a widow to Ougthred, anno 1420 \ 8. Henry 5. / She made an other will, where in she gives her body to be buried in the church of St Peter Leye and her best habit by name – the principle, which was a mantle||. To Idonea Sandford¶ her best black bed with the appurten[ances]; to the mother of Robert Brette, all her gounes & curtles; to Johane her daughter unam peciam argenti sine cooperculo.[47] If Idonea Sandford dye, provided allwayes that Idonea outlive me. To Idonea all my chifts & juells. I will allso that Robert Sandford, my heir, shall have those 8 oxgangs of land & halfe the milne in Ascome, which my father bought

[Machell's Notes: I.364]

*(Sir Edmund & Idonea purchased Ascome of Syr Robert Swyneborne.)
†(It seems this was made after the death of Sir Thomas, her 2nd husband, after which she reassumed the surname of Sandford & used both promiscuously as in the will she is called Utghtred.)
‡It seemes his father was not lyable to wardship for anything which he had.
⸸This William I take to be \ the younger / brother of Sir Edmund, put him downe so with [blank] insteed of lines.
||(NB) {that daughter of Lady Idonea. Idonea and Johane. Robert Sandford my heir and filius Will. Befor she calls him not son and yet had a son called John.}
¶(I suppose eldest daughter.)

[43] See an exact copy in N&B1, 424-25.
[44] This word is blotted, making the transcription unsafe.
[45] Probably 'conjoined'.
[46] 'For a term of years.'
[47] 'A silver object without a cover.'

[I.365]

{Robert obliged to found a chaple} of Hug de Lowther, upon condition that he shall found one chapple; ad celebrandum missam pro anima patris mei et antecessorum meorum[48] in the chaple of St Mary de Ascome, and if he found one, a certane distribution of 10^{s} pro anima patris prædicti Roberti & antecessorum suorum.[49]
But if he will not doe soe, yet the forsaid oxgangs &c. shall be sold & said denarios inde receptæ ponant ad usum interiendum unum capellam et ad faciende um distributionem supra dictas.[50]
Executors: John Pykwell; John Yorke, chaplain vicar ecclesia S[anc]ti Pet[rus]; John Macel; Robert le Superviser.

9. Henry 5th [1421-22] Robert Sandford is seised of all lands, tenements, rents & reversions & services left by Lady Ugtrich with the appurtenances in the county of Westmorland. Witness inter alios Johane Sandford & William Barton. This John was his brother or uncle.

3. Elizabeth. 1560. Elizabeth Sandforth of Graystoke, in which she onely mentions her ~~sister~~ daughter, Dorath Dudley & Thomas Sandford Esq. whome she makes her executor. I take it to be \ Askham / purchased about the 46th of Edward 3^{d} [1372-73], by Sir Edmund.

Sandford; Idonea: the matches of Sandforth è pedigree
1. Ed\mund / younger brother to William married Idonea, daughter & heir to Sir Thomas English, Knight, which Thomas was son of Robert English, who was son of John, Lord of Little Askeby. And Idonea daughter & one of the heirs of John (~~Lord~~) \ Lord / Morvil, Lords de Hilton & Askam. This Edmund was knighted after or upon his marriage.

[2.] Sir William Sandford, Knight, son & heir of Sir Edmund [and] Margaret 13. Henry 4. [1411-12].

{Sandford, English, with Thornburg}
3. Robert Sandford, son & heir of William & heir to Idonea \ yet liveing / 8. Henry 5. [1420-21]. Ut a testamento patet:[51] marryed Elizabeth Thornburg vixit Robert,[52] 38. of Henry 6. [1459-60].

{With Musgraves & English}[53] {S. Sandford & English with Musgrave}
4. Thomas Sandford, son & heir to Robert, marryed Margaret, daughter to Musgrave.

{S[andford] & Eng. with Cu[rwen]}
5. William Sandford, son & heir to Thomas, marryed Mabell, daughter to Sir Christopher Curwen, Knight.

[I.366]

6.[54] Edmund, son & heir to William, marryed Elizabeth Warcop, daughter to Warcop of Smardale, who bares 3 covered cups Argent with a crescent of the same for distinction.

7. ~~Edmund~~ \ Thomas / Sandford, son & heir to ~~Will~~ \ Ed. / married Grace, daughter to Ambrose Crakenthorpe de Howgil. She had 2 sisters: Margaret and Ciscel. Ambrose was brother to Anthony

[48] 'One chapel to celebrate mass for the soul of my father and of my ancestors.'
[49] '… for the soul of my father the aforesaid Robert and of his ancestors.'
[50] '… and they shall place the said profit of the sale, to the use of founding a chapel, and to making the distribution, as stated above.'
[51] 'As he makes clear from his testament.'
[52] 'Married Robert'.
[53] The rest of this margin comment has perished.
[54] Originally placed after 9, but with a ring around it, probably to show that it was a misplaced afterthought.

Crakenthorp ~~who dyed~~ sonne of [blank] Crakenthorp & [blank] Lancaster, whence they quarter the coate of the Lancaster de Howgill, who dyed without Isue & left the estate to his 3 nieces. The 3[d] brother had Howgill by gif of his mother*.

8. Thomas son & heir to Thomas Beareing married Ann, eldest daughter of Cuthbert Hutton of Hutton John & had Isue Thomas†.

9. Thomas Sandford‡ son & heir to Thomas, married Martha the daughter of John Witherington Knight, who bears quarterly Argent & Gules a bend Sable on the 1[t] & 4. He had Isue Thomas, John, Edmund. Thomas dyed young. Edmund never marryed. But John, the 2, succeded in the estate. 4 sisters: Anne dyed a nun. Elizabeth maryed to Thomas Hilton de Murton Great. Martha, Margaret & Dor[athy] dyed unmarryed.

10. John marryed Mary, the onely daughter of Edward English of Eglinby de Carlile Esq. His Isue, Mary dyed an infant. Thomas, a Captain for the King ~~the~~ Charles the 1[t] in 48. Duke Hambletons was the 1[t] protestant of the family. And ensigne in Carlile to Sir Philip Musgrave, the governers company in King Charles 2 times. He married Elizabeth, the \ eld[est] / daughter of William Orpher de Plumbland Hall (Esq.) alias dict[55] High Close, and had Isue 1. William, 2. John, a merchant, Thomas, dyed a youth. ~~4. Bridget~~ d[yed]an infant. Mary & Elizabeth, twins, living. \ Bridget /. Mat[ilda], d[yed] an infant. Ephraim⸸.

[Machell's Notes: I.366]

*{Hence Sandford. Query English with Lancaster & Crakenthorp. It should be Crakenthorp & Lan.}
†{Hutton. Query: a fess between 3 cushons Argent tasseld Or.} Q[uery] 1. his mone.[56] 2. English. 3. Lancaster. 4. Crackenthorp.
‡{Thomas Sandford of Askam Esq. dyed the 17 of February 1676 & was buryed the 19[th] in Askam church.}
⸸{Or ples Sable a † with a mullet in Dexter port.}[57]
The Thwates matched with the Sandford: se their armes.

[I.367]

A Note of Sir Edmond Sandford

Alice, the onely daughter & heir of Gilbert Lord Sandford, Lord Chamberlain of the Queen Elizabeth and Lord of Hormead in Hartfordshire, was wife unto Robert de Vere, Earl of Oxford, her son & all Earles of Oxford* ever since stiled Lord Sandford. She dyed at Cawfield 9. of September in the 6[th] yeere of Edward 2[nd], anno domini 1612†. Gundred, the daughter of William the ~~of Will the~~ 2[nd] Earl of Warren & Surrey, was wife unto Roger, Earl of Warwick, after whose death she was remarried to William of Lancaster, Barron of Kendal, a virago of a manly currage who cast the garrison of King Stephen out of the Castle of Warwick & delivered it to Henry Duke of Normandy, the son of Maud the Empress, in the year of our Lord 1252‡. Sockbridge & Howgill both Lancasters and younger brothers of the Lords of Kendall⸸. Thomas Sandford of Askham, great grandchild of Sir William Sandford, the 1. Lord Wharton, and Reynold Carnaby of Northumberland marryed 3 sisters of Warcop, de Warcop tower in Westm'land, chevalier‖. The now Duke of Newcastle, the late Lord Witherington's grandmother, were coheir of Sir Reynold Carnaby, and their posterity have his lands to this day. So as the Duke of Bowzar[58] (& Newcastle) stand in the 4[th] degree in Consanguinity, the Lord Wharton, Lord Witherington and Thomas Sandford of Askam Esq. stand in the 5[th] degree to my [55] 'Also known as.'

[56] Unclear word.
[57] The rest of this comment has perished.
[58] 'Bolsover'. In 1621 William Cavendish (1592-1676), was created Earl of Newcastle upon Tyne and Baron Cavendish of Bolsover. He succeeded his mother as ninth Baron Ogle in 1629. A noted royalist, he fought in the Civil Wars. He became Marquess of Newcastle upon Tyne in 1643 and was elevated to the dukedom of Newcastle upon Tyne in 1665. See Newcastle, Dukes of, Encyclopædia Britannica, 11th edn, Vol. 19 (Cambridge, 1911), 470.

Trees[59] illustrious Lord Dukes grace, who therefore allwayes gives a singular respect to Mr Sandford of Askam, who is allso descended on the femal side from Lanc. Lord of Kendall. The creast is sometimes placed in crownes which in former times the servant of this family used to wear in their bleue liveries. De hi[…] quere.[60]

[I.368]

These blew coates used to serve up the boore head with a song on Xt Xmas.[61]

[Machell's Notes: I.367, 368A]

*{This is from a place so calld; nothing to this family.}
†Note: this is inconsistent, for she could never live 300 yers.[62]
‡{? This may be put (if true) in Lancasters pedigree.}
⸸{Of which, query.}.
‖(De hoc dubito,[63] for it is of Smardale in the pedigree which was drawne by Lord Whartons \ Stuart / se this in Whartons pedigre)

[I.368A]

It should seem of the pedigree that the estate came not from the Swinburne but English.
Q. Whether Morvill was Lord? Nisi villæ et manner[ij].[64]

[I.368B]

Matches of the Sandfords of Ascome[65]

Sandford de Askham Esq	Morvil daughter de Helton & Askham	English of Litle Askby
Sandford &	Thomas, dominus Morvil	Joh. English
Sandford &	Idonea, filia Johanis de Morevil	Rob. English of Litle Askby
Sandford &	Sir Thomas English
Edmund Sandforth, younger brother to William	Idonea English, daughter & heir of Sir Thomas

[59] Unclear word.
[60] 'Uncertain about this.' The text has perished here, at the page foot.
[61] The Sandford arms contain boars' heads: see I.159 above, and see CFH, 294. The remark is reminiscent of part of Walter Scott's poem, Marmion. '…Then was brought in the lusty brawn / By old blue-coated serving-man / Then the grim boar's head frown'd on high / Crested with bays and rosemary.' Sir Walter Scott, Marmion, A Tale of Flodden Field (Edinburgh and London, 1808).
[62] Indeed! The sixth year of Edward II was 1312-1313. Perhaps Machell read 1312 as 1612.
[63] 'I am doubtful about this.'
[64] 'Nisi': unless; if not. Machell appears to query whether Morville was a titled lord or was merely lord of the town and manor.
[65] This title has been moved from MS.I.368A.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 3]

[Parish of Asby]

[I.353][1]

Askeby Parish [Notes]

There belongs to the parish church of Askeby
Askby Winderwath, Askby Coatsforth, Asby Little.

I should have thought that it had taken its denomination from Ashes, it being a place where that sort of wood might formerly abound \ and only now groweth / but I dare not verify such conjecture since I find frequently writt in old evidences not Ashby (as now they write it) but Askeby.

{Magna Askeby} {Catellus Anglicus}
Exchambit terras in ~~veldri~~ \ Magna / Askeby, cum Willielmo filio Willielmi Anglici. s.d. (apud Crak[enthorpe]) vel Askham potius.[2]
Askeby Magna is called Askeby Vetus in an Evidence s.d. (penès Sandford).[3]

{Little Askeby manner; English; Sandford}
Little Askeby is a manner & belong'd formerly to the Englishes; for I finde a deed wherein John, the son of Rob Lengleyiss[4] makes over to Henry de Sandford parson of Croseby Garret his manner of Little Askeby, dated att Sandford 34. of Edward 3. [1360-61]*.

Family of Askebyes
Robert de Askeby 27. Henry 3. [1242-43] è cart antiq. penes Com[t] vel Blenkinsop.[5] Family of Askebyes.†

[Machell's Notes: I.353]

*(May be there were som Sandfords at Sandford then. Sed vide in Askham parish.[6] Wheyther seated there.) Hæ è Ca[r]tis penes Sandford de Askham.[7] Se more of Askeby Super in Apleby St Lawrence sub tit Berewyse family.[8] Sed. 0.[9]
†{!} Query: For a Bounder - gleebe - tythe in kind & prescriptions. For more qu? in the following page, where you meet with this make an q[uery] of Mr Musgrave. What Branch he is – what matches & pedigree. See more over leafe where there is the present state of the parish.
See – also – in my V. Booke of Collections, the Several Inquisitions – where you may learne by whom the Lordships were held of old.

[1] Also numbered p.5.
[2] 'Roger son of William Catullus exchanged lands in Great Askeby with William son of William English. Undated (at Crakenthorp) or rather Askham.'
[3] 'In an evidence without date in the custody of Mr Sandford.'
[4] This unclear word has been altered but undoubtedly refers to the family of L'Engleys or English of Highhead, members of which were connected to the Sandfords of Askham: see CFH, 204.
[5] 'From an ancient charter in the possession of the Countess or Blenkinsop.'
[6] 'But see in Askham Parish.' Part 1, Ch.2, Askham, details coats of arms and inscriptions related to the Sandford family.
[7] 'These from deeds in the possession of Sandford of Askham.'
[8] 'See more of Asby above in my section on Appleby St Lawrence under the heading Berewyse [Barwis] family'. See Part 1, Ch.1, Town and Parishes of Appleby, I.231, I.303, III.55.
[9] 'But [found] nothing'.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 4]

[Parish of Bampton]

[I.369][1]

To Bampton Church doe belong Bampton-Cundale and I thinke part of Smardale & Wasdale if they doe not rather belong to Shap parish.[2] I finde one of the name of Bampton (but without a par[ish]) in a deed sans date, whose family I suppose were seated here then and had their name from the place.

Deeds

Christopher Culwen dyed seised of the manner of Bampton Knipe as of fee in his said manner, held of the King[3] in Capite[4] by Knights Service and the rent of [blank] & 10d per Annum for Cornage to the King at the usuall termes. Servicium faciendum sec[u]tum ad com[item] ded[it] dom[ino] Reg[i]. &c. Which Christofer dyed the 6th of Aprill 14. Henry 7. [1498-99]. To whome his son \ Sir / Thomas succeded. 'Et valet per annum 40li. Et quod Henricus Clifford, miles, asserendo predictum manerium de eo teneri per servicium militare recepit redit et servicium manerij prædicti de prædicto Thoma Culwen filio, sed quo titulo ad tunc ignorabant.'[5]

{John Chapman. Roger Chapman}
8. Ed. 2. [1314-15] John, son of Roger Chapman, exchanged Totum de Tene[me]ntum suum et terram cum pertinentiis in villa de Louth[er] qual with Hugo de Lowther & Margaret, his wife, pro toto tenement[o] terris et prato in Bampton Cundalle vocat[um] le Wrindland.[6] That messuage 7 acres of Land & 3 acres of medow sold to Henry s[on] of Simon. 39. Ed. [2.] [1365-66].

Bampton Cundale. Bampton Patrick.
Knipe Antiently & till the 12. of Henry 7. [1496-97] (à Sandford) dub[ito] tamen An non Gnype antiquis et hic a me falc Script[us].[7]

---

[1] Also numbered p.7.
[2] The church was appropriated to the Abbey of Shap about the year 1170, confirmed to the abbey by Robert de Chauncey, Bishop of Carlisle, in 1263, and by Bishop Ralph de Irton and the Prior and Convent of Carlisle in 1287. The abbot and monks of Shap were to serve the church as hitherto, with two or three of their canons, one of whom was to be presented to the Bishop as vicar, another to be responsible in temporals. They were also to maintain a secular chaplain to hear confessions, etc. John F. Curwen, The Later Records Relating to North Westmorland or the Barony of Appleby, CWAAS Record Series 8 (Kendal, 1932), 245-55.
[3] MS: 'Kink'.
[4] 'By the head'. Tenure in capite [in chief] was an ancient feudal tenure whereby a man held lands of the king immediately. It was of two sorts, the one, principal and general, or of the king as the source of all tenure; the other, special and subaltern, or of a particular subject: https://dictionary.thelaw.com/capite/.
[5] 'And it is worth 40li per year. Also he renders that which Henry Clifford, knight, received, claiming that the aforesaid manor is held of him through knight's service, and also that the service of the aforesaid manor is held of the aforesaid Thomas Culwen, son; but by what title till then they did not know.'
[6] 'John, son of Roger Chapman, exchanged all his tenement and land with its appurtenances in the village of Louther with Hugo de Lowther & Margaret, his wife, in equal exchange for the whole tenement, lands and meadowland in Bampton Cundalle, called le Wrindland.'
[7] 'Knipe Antiently & till the 12. of Henry 7. (See Sandford records). I doubt however whether this were not Gnype to the ancients, but here written by me as found.'

{Curwen}
Sir Christofer Curwen, Knight; Ed[ward] Curwen Esq., witness at a deed of S[ale] of one T[enement] in Bampton Skowes,[8] sold to Sir Xt,[9] dated at Thornthwate 1. H. 6. [1422-23].

{Beauchamp of Knype s.d. Morvil}
Patritius the Son of Thomas who was Lord of the Manner of Hepp now Shap: conveyd by a Deede s.d. to John de Morvilla & his heires &c. all his Lands att Knype (Kýnpē) which belongd to Roger de Bellocampus cum omnibus pertinentijs & with all his land on both sides the water of Lowther belonging to the said village excepting the mill 'cum secta sua. Rendendo Inde Annuatim, S$^{c.}$[10] &c. IIII sagittas ferri infra nundinas St Laurentij de Apleby apud manerium meum de Heppe pro omnibus servicijs, salvo forinsæco.'[11]
+ Sigillum Patritii Filii. Thomæ – writ about[12] (penes Mr Sandford}.[13]

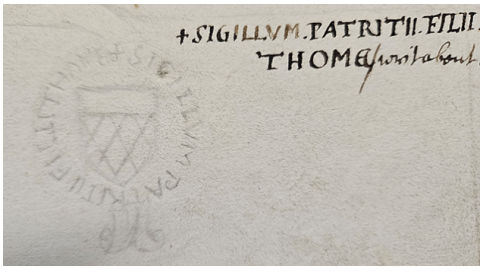

Figure 1.4.1. Pencil drawing. 'SIGILLUM PATRITII FILII'. I.369.

[I.370][14]

[Name of the Parish]

This parish takes its name from the Town of Bampton where the church stands, & worthy remarkd for the birth of Mr Richard Jackson, born near the church at the North Side of it; who was sometime Usher, after Schoolmaster here; whence he remov'd to the free school of Kendal: & from thence for his great ~~renown~~ \ fame / in teaching, was the 1^{t} master chosen to Apleby by Queens College in Oxford after the ellection was confer'd on the College: & the sallary high\ly/ Augmented by many worthy & noble Benefactors once Scollars there. He lyes Buried at Apleby at the East end of the church: ubi vide plura.[15]

[8] Skews.
[9] Sir Christopher Curwen.
[10] Assessments: taxes.
[11] 'Roger de Bellocampus, with all appurtenances & with all his land on both sides the water of Lowther belonging to the said village, excepting the mill with its approach way. Rendering thence annually S$^{c.}$ &c. IIII arrows of iron within the market-days of St Laurentius of Apleby at my manor of Heppe in return for all services, excepting foreign [service].'
[12] + Seal of Patritius, son of Thomas, written about it.
[13] 'The deed is in the possession of Mr Sandford.'
[14] Also numbered p.30.
[15] 'And here see more.' For Richard Jackson see Lionel Budden, 'Some Notes on the History of Appleby Grammar School', CW2 39 (1939), 227-61, at 240-1, 261. Jackson was headmaster at Appleby, 1671-1686.

[Machell's Notes: I.370]
A.D. 1693, T. Burneyates, the Oxford Carrier,[16] brought from thence a~~n~~ ~~g~~ muscle with a large pearle in it to Archdeacon Nicholson, which he tooke up there out of the river. Test[ament] W. Nich[olson].[17]

[I.370A]

{Dr Mills Letter}[18]

[Letter from Thomas Machell to Dr John Mill, 20 September 1686.]

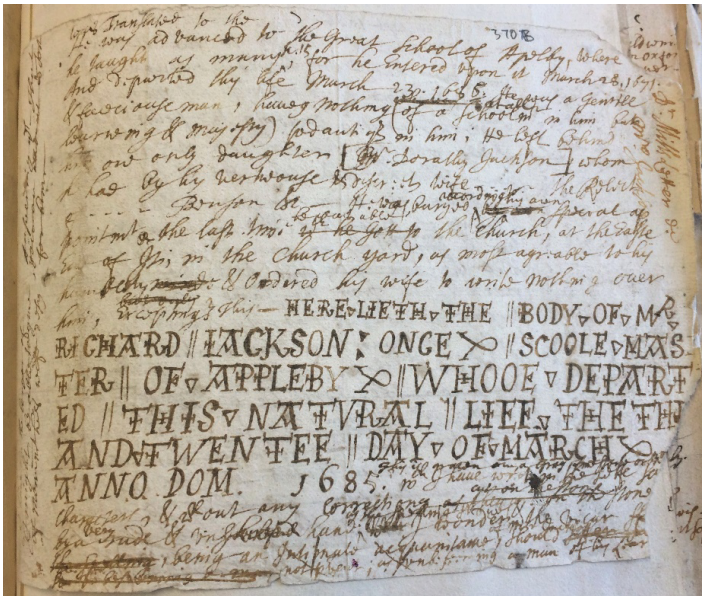

Figure 1.4.2. Thomas Machell to Dr John Mill, St Edmund Hall, Oxford, 20 September 1686. I.370A.

20 Sept. 1686.
{I have bin the longer of answering yours that I might be able to give you an account what sort of monument his wife desi[re]s for him.}
Sir
I have so much regard to the memory of Mr Jackson, that I will not discourage you from your grateful designe of erecting his monument. In order whereunto, leaveing the polite description to yourselfe who can best performe it; I shal only acquaint you – That he was the Son of one Thomas Jackson, a Substancial man once, in the parish of Bampton & County of Westmorland; who, haveing a Soale more large than his purse \ fortunes, / his Son was reduced to such necessity that ~~the same Mr, who~~ he [16] For Burnyeats, see Machell's correspondence with Dr John Mill in Part 1, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities.

[17] A later addition in different ink. The river is probably the River Lowther at Bampton; mussels were found downstream at Askham: see 1.360. Note that Machell wrote William Nicolson's name as 'Nicholson' twice.
[18] Machell's copy of a letter sent to Dr Mill, Principal of St Edmund Hall Oxford, concerning Richard Jackson.

seemes to have gleaned his Greek & Latin from the Same Sharpe Instructer that Persius, his crow & parret learnd theres.[19]

His fathers 1[t] wife was your own near relation, but he was Son of the 4[th] & last \ wife; / Borne at an house in Bampton Grange on the north side of the church within heareing of the min[ister];[20] & was educated first under one Mr Atkinson; afterwards under old Mr Wilkinson, both of them ~~ministers~~ \ Vicars / and Schoolmasters there; To the latter of which he became Usher, & after his dicease, succeded ~~him~~ as schoolmaster ~~at Bampton free school~~, for about 14 years.
Hence he removed to the Free School of Kendal, where he taught 15 years; & Thence for the Eminence of his learneing \ & modesty, / which was taken notice of in the most famouse university, [I.370B][21]
he \was translated to the / was advanced to the Great School of Apelby, where he taught as many \ Sc. 15 [years] / for he entered upon it March 28, 1671, and departed this life March 23 1685.[22]
He was a Gentill & faeciouse[23] man, having nothing \ ~~which was~~ at all / (of a schoolmaster in him but learneing & majesty) pedantique in him. He left behind him one only daughter (Mistress Dorathy Jackson) whom he had, by his verteouse & discreet wife [blank], the relict of [blank] Benson Esq.

He was buryed \ according / ~~by~~ \ to his / own special appointment the last time ~~when he Gett to~~ \ he was able / the church, at the easte end of it; in the church yard, as most agreable to his ~~humble~~ humblety ~~minde~~. & ordered his wife to write nothing over him \ ~~but only~~ / excepting this:

> HERE LIETH THE BODY OF MR RICHARD || JACKSON: ONCE || SCOOLE MASTER || OF APPLEBY || WHOOE DEPARTED || THIS NATURAL || LIEF THE THREE AND TWENTEE || DAY OF MARCH ANNO DOM. 1685.

This is graven on a Gray lime stone or [through][24] which I have writt in the selfe sa[me] characters, & without any corrections as they are on the stone; \ cut on the stone by a \ very / rude & unskilled hand; \ as the spelling shows; / & I wonder the Vicar, being an intimate acquaintance of Mr Jackson, should not prevent [it] as unbeseeming a man of his Learning.[25]

---

[19] The reference is probably to the Roman satirist Persius, who was widely read in the 17th century, see Shadi Bartsch, Persius, A Study in Food, Philosophy, and The Figural (Chicago, 2015). Machell was clearly thinking of the prologue to Persius's satires:

> What teaches the parrot to squawk: 'Hello!'
> And urges the magpie to try human speech?
> It's that master of arts, and dispenser of skills,
> Hunger, expert at trying out sounds nature denies.
> For if there's the gleam of a hope of crafty gain,
> You'll hear crow-poets and magpie-poetesses
> Singing in praise of Pegaseian nectar.

Here, Persius is saying that, as a lowly, plain-talking speaker of truths, he has learnt his craft by necessity through hunger, i.e. singing for his supper. His skills come from wily, native cunning, like an animal that mimics human speech for food. So, the quotation appears to fit Thomas Jackson's son well.

[20] MS: 'Borne at an house \ in Bampton Grange ~~it within heareing of \ the church~~ / on the north side ~~of It~~ of the church within heareing of the min.'

[21] The reverse of I.370A.

[22] MS '168~~6~~5.'

[23] 'Facetious'. Of style, manners, etc.: polished, elegant, agreeable [now obsolete]. OED.

[24] Editorial suggestion; the word has perished.

[25] MS: '& / I wonder the Vicar f[perished] ~~the spelling~~, being an intimate acquaintance \ of Mr Jackson, / should ~~suffer Jackson so unbeseeming a man~~ not prevent; as unbeseeming a man of his Lear'.

{If you do resolve to make him a monument, there is one Inconvenience that I must acquaint you with; It is like to be exposssd, as he \ him[self] / was, to Stormes & Tempests, & pass the Censure &c. for it must be on the outside the church.}[26]

[26] Dr Mill, principal of St Edmund Hall, Oxford, showed interest in Richard Jackson because Mill was born in Hardendale in Shap Parish, the son of Thomas Mill (born c.1617-19, died c.1707), a weaver. When the family moved to High Knipe in Bampton parish, Mill was educated at Bampton School. See S. Handley, 'Mill, John (1644/5–1707), Church of England clergyman and college head'. ODNB.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 5]

[I.743]

Collections \ for / Barton Parish in the Westward

[I.654, I.654A]

[Machell's Draft Plan and Queries relating to Barton]
1. Distance.
2. Description– what sort of Building – whence stone, slate &c.
3. Armes \ &c / in it.[1]
4. Scite – How wooded? – How watered? Trees fish fowle.
Other rarityes; how descent.
5. The Names of places & Things remarq.: dem[esne] – field – com[mon].
6. The Descent.
7. The Pedegree.

Query – distance of the church from Penrith Church, Askham, Browham, Clifton, Lowther, Gresmere, Bampton, Kendal. & their bear[ing] also from the chappels of Martindale & Patterdale.

Barton Church standeth from Penrith Church – S by W – 3 miles.
Browham Church alis Ninechurch – W. 5 miles.
Clifton Church – N.W – 3 miles.
Lowther Church & Askham \ Church / N.N.W. 3 miles.
Bampton Church. N. – 4 miles.
Kendal Church – N. by N. – 18 miles.
Gresmere Church in Kendal – N.E. – 16 miles.
{ex inform [Blank] Pearson Medicinae Profess. et Tho. Webstar, Senescal Curiae de Barton.}[2]

Martindale Chapel in this parish – N. by E. 5 miles.}
Patterdayle Chapel infra Barton – E. by N. 9 miles.} I take them both to lye in one line. TM.[3]

! ! ! Where – Lowther drowneth/looseth it selfe in Emote.

N.B. So many families of which free [blank] the rest arbitrary all holding of [blank] Hall being the manner house – which [I must] describe; to which they doe pay.

{See the Bounder in Gressmer paper, more correct.}

[I.688]

A Free School in the high road from Penrith (I thinke ¾ W. ab Ecclesia, built as appeareth by these fig[ures] over the doer in 1649 – {query: if notes; q. my visit.}

Sth East from the church about a bow shot is a good stone house with a court before it; which doth belong to Theodore Sisson: a Ratable freehold.[4]
Above that Southwards ½ a mile from the church, is ~~Houses~~ a place calld Celron[5] {Celron in Low Winder} which only hath 2 \ in / dwelling Houses. And yet somwhat higher a mile from the Church, stands the Hamlets of Winder – Both so calld because of their high & windy location; which are distinguished by High & Low becase tho both stand very High – High Winder is in the more lofty place

[1] Machell originally ordered point 4 before point 3, but then placed an arrow between them to redress the error.
[2] 'Information given by […] Pearson, Professor of Medicine, and Thomas Webster, Steward of the Manor of Barton.'
[3] Text refers to Martindale and Patterdale chapels.
[4] The 'good stone house' is Kirkbarrow (formerly called Barton Kirk). The Sissons sold it to Simpson of Carleton Hall, Penrith, c.1759: AWL, 272.
[5] Celleron.

[Barton Parish]

[I.661]

[Barony]
Barton is vulgarly called a Barony, & so it is writ in their Court Rolls* wherein are first called Tenentes manerijs de Barton Infra Baroniam de Barton:[6] 2. Tenentes ~~infra~~ manerijs de Martindale et Fusedale infra Baroniam praedicta.[7] 3. Tenentes manerijs de Patterdale et forestæ de Grisdale infra Baroniam praedicta,[8] and there are 3 Juries, & a grand Inquest, when they keep their Courtes, which are both Leet & Baron†. Yet I am not satisfyed whether it be not called so only from Baron Dakers holding these m[anors] under him? Hoever, the present Lord thereof, the Earle of Sussex. takes waif & stray[9] in al the said Libertyes, excepting in private Lords demaines.[10]

[Machell's Notes: I.661]

*{a T. Webster Senesc.}[11]
†{?}

[I.662]

{Extent}
This parish extends it selfe in length from the place where Emote & Lowther meet, which is ~~at~~ the NE. point, to the Top of Cammerton Builds[12] in Kirkston in the S.W. to the number of 13 or 14 miles; all along by the Bankes of Emote, the Great Lake of Ulswater & several rills which power themselves until they feed that great Body – And one halfe of the Parish is replennishd with wood to the great admiration of the beholder; the other with rugged and rocky mountaines to the jaless[13] astonishment of the beholder, where the people [in a] very large sense live, as it were, in another world, being (but for the water that invites men up in summertime) a desert & unfrequented place (I had almost call'd it an inaccessible place) and therefore abounding with Foxes & Wild Cats (near as big as they are); with Badgers & Martes; Goates & Great Staggs – as hereafter shal be sheone; And yet even here has bin produced men of prodigious parts & prety.[14]

{Division} {Constablewick}
The parish is divided for the better \ execution of civil affairs / into 5 or 6 Constablewicks – Sc. 1. Emote-bridge. 2. Yanwath. 3. Sockbridge with Tyrrel, Thorp & Celron & (part of Mr Davis's) High Winder.[15] 4.

---

[6] 'Tenants of the Manor of Barton within the Barony of Barton.'
[7] '2. Tenants of the Manor of Martindale and Fusedale within the aforesaid Barony.' Here, a margin comment notes, 'a fusil spindle'. The word is from Old French 'fusel', ultimately from Latin fūsus: spindle; in heraldry the heraldic lozenge originally represented by a spindle covered with tow for spinning. Presumably, Machell was referring to the meaning of the place-name, 'Fusedale'.
[8] '3. Tenants of the manor of Patterdale and Forest of Grisdale within the aforesaid Barony.'
[9] See the English Glossary.
[10] This is repeated, with the addition of a question mark, on MS.I.669: '{?} Barton is said to be a Barony, de quo quære? and so by consequence to have VIII? manners as members of it – However tis \ for / certane \ affirmed / that my Lord of Sussex takes waife & stray all over the Barony excepting in Private Lords Demaines.'
[11] The end of the line is obscured by the binding but the translation is probably, 'as said by Thomas Webster, steward'.
[12] Camerton Bields.
[13] Presumably, 'jealous'.
[14] MS: '& sever Rills, which \ power ~~into it &~~ themselves, ~~until It~~ / feed that great Body – ~~which has excellent Gravels near to the Shoare~~ \ And / One halfe ~~there~~ of the Parish ~~whereof~~ is replennishd with wood to the great ~~satisfaction~~ \ admiration of the beholder / the other \ with rugged and Rocky /mountaines to the jaless astonishment \ of the beholder / where the people \ who are of a very large ~~in a wilderness desert~~ sense / live as it were ~~divided from~~ in another world ~~the rest of mankind in another world and are generally of a large sense in an~~ being (but for the water that invites ~~people up~~ \ men up / in summertime) \ a~~n~~ desert & / unfrequented place. ~~Part of the country. I had almost call'd it an inaccessible place.~~ and therefore abounding with \ foxes & / wild cats near as big as they are) \ with / Badgers, ~~& goates~~ \ & / Martes; Goates & Great Staggs – as hereafter shal be sheone; ~~yet it hath produced more~~ \ And / yet even here has bin produced men of Incredible\ prodigious / parts & prety.' Because much of this passage has been altered and struck through, the transcription is occasionally imprecise.
[15] MS: 'The parish is divided for~~ Civil Government~~ \ the better / execution of ~~National Laws~~ \ Civil affairs / into \ 5 or / 6 Constablewicks – Sc. 1. ~~Yanwath~~ Emote-bridge. 2. Yanwath. 3. Sockbridge with ~~its hamlets of~~ Tyrrel Thorp & {Celron & (part of Mr Davis's)} ~~and~~ High Winder. ~~& Celliron~~;'

High Barton, which \ also / includes ~~Barton &~~ Powley. 5. Martindale. 6. Hartsop & Patterdale. And conteineth in it 6 or 7 manners.

{Manners}
{Sc. Manner 1. Yanewath Manner. 2. Sockbridge Manner (which are in the parish but not in the Barony) 3. Barton Manner. 4. Martindale Manner. 5. Hartsop Manner. 6. Patterdale; query 7. of Winder.}

And into these Manners.
1. Barton alias High Barton, not for distinction from any other ~~part~~ towne \ or place of that name with / in the parish, but only because it stands above (or Higher than) the church ~~or~~ more up the water*, & Extends it self, ~~as far by land as the rill calld~~ westward as far by land as the Rill called Swarthbeck which divides it from Martindale; and by water it continueth in it from the church to [Blank].[16] I can not say properly (tho the name importes \ as much / it) that there is such a Towne ~~there~~ within the manner \ as Barton; / nor indeed anything like \ to a town or / a village \ in it / excepting Pooley; all

[Machell's Notes: I.662]

*(Jo: Patteson).
If High Barton be not all above Pooley, Low Barton well beneath it? Query: if any part of the manners of Barton below the church.

[I.664]

the Rest being straggling[17] Houses, and therefore you may with justly reason wonder why this manner is called Barton, & how \ it / cometh to give name to the church, to a parke near Pooley \ calld Barton Parke, / and to [the] whol parish – of which I shal briefly give thus Conjecture*.

[Machell's Notes: I.664]

*{See on the account. See on the other side.}

[I.670]

For we have moreover at the East End ~~of it~~ \ thereof / where the water\ Rill / run\neth / out out of the Ditches ~~in a little rill~~ a Nab of Ulswater call'd the, Hau-Bar – which ~~showes~~ \ bespeakes / It the scite of the Manner House or Hall as wee call them. And the parke near adjacent \ on the S. Side of it* / confirmes the same \ this conjecture / and seems to have bin contiguouse to it; tho now divided by a Close or 2, & the Highway to Martendale.[18]

{ratio nominis}[19]
And this may help to finde out the reason why this parke & parish is called Barton – namely from the word Bar; which signifyes a strong Gate or Entrance with \ a / Ditche and drawbridge; as the great gates at Yorke are all called Barrs; and so the houses near this Strong Barr (though scattered and dispersd \ abroad / here & there) might be called Bar-town – query: opidum ad Barram[20] {which the Greekes well express by the word ἔπαυλις i.e. ad ~~in Greeke~~[21] ad atrium}[22] \ for our English word Town, / the Towne or Village near the Hall Barr.

[Barton Church]

Thus Haveing found out – formd o[u]r reasons for the name of the parish \ of Barr-Towne {or Barton} / let us goe to the Church – which is \ a very / large, but Low Building, haveing a Square plane Batled Steple ~~short & thick~~ with 2 Bells ~~in it~~ \ therein / in the midle of the Ile & 2 Rowes of Pillers on ~~the In Side~~ \ either Side of the Body] / which is in Length from the W. End to the Arch of the quier, about 27 yards, & \ the [16] MS: 'Swarthbeck which partes \ divides / it from Martindale; ~~and up~~ \ and / [~~up the lake as far as Patterdale~~ \ by water. and continueth It from the church to [Blank].'

[17] MS: 'Strangling.'
[18] The following sentence (not transcribed), written in smaller handwriting in different ink, appears to be an addition, but a blot covers most of the text. It begins with the words, 'out of which.'
[19] 'Reason for the place-name.'
[20] 'Town at the bar.'
[21] There is an illegible scored-through word here.
[22] 'Which the Greeks well express by the word steading or courtyard.'

inside / The Quire ~~it~~ 7.[23]

	Body	Quire
length	27	7
breadth	14	6

In all, XXXIV, & Broad in the Body about 14, \ in / The Quire 6 – at the North Side of the great quier is a porch which belongeth, ~~now to the Lowthers of~~ to Sockbridge \ hall / ~~but formerly to the~~ the Lancasters there / which was built I doubt not by one of \ the Lancasters / of that name who who builded the Tower & Hall at Sockbridge,[24] there being the very same sort of window in that & in this.[25]

[Machell's Notes I.670]

*(being the Chiefe part of the Demane?)

[I.660]

{1. The Patrone}
The Patrone of this Parish is Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge Baronet – who injoyes ⅔ of the wool & lamb[26] and Easter Boke[27] in Hartsop, Sockbridge, Yeanwath & Bridge and hath the tyth corne of Sockbridge also*. Mr Dawes of Barton Kirk has ⅔ of Wooll and Lamb & Easter Reckonings in the part calld High Barton, which was purchased (with the House & Lands called Barton Kirk) by Dr Dawes of one of the Hudsons. Mr Davyes of Winder[28] has ⅔ of the Martindale Wool, Lamb & Easter Booke. The Vicar the Rest [Blank] † has 2 partes of the wooll & Lamb & Easter Boke; & the Reader ~~of~~ at a chappel[29] which they have there, has the other 3rd part for which he payes as an acknowledgement to the Vicar of Barton 4li per Annum; all which deductions do prick very sore on the parsons side‡.[30]

Rate
Barton is a Vicaridge Rated in the First Fruits Office at 11li:1s: 0. Payeth Tenths to the King 1li: 2s: 1qa,[31] and to the Bishop for Procurations & Synnodals [blank]. It ~~is said at first to have bin~~ \ was / appropriated to the Prior & Convent of St James de Carta, in the Diocess of Yorke,[32] in 1318 – by Grant of John Halton Bishop of Carleol⸸; But the Impropriation is ~~in several persons~~ \ in Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge Baronet, & Mr ~~Tho~~ Daws of Barton Kirk I thinke.[33] / And the Vicary it selfe is parted into 3 several Cantons \ if [I] may so call them / whereof the Incumbent has onely one third, if he have so much; ~~the Remainder being in laymens hands~~. I speake not only of Wool & Lamb &c. but even of the Easter Booke it selfe; which pricketh sore on the parsons side.

[The Church]
{The Church ~~as I~~ is dedicated to St Michael the Archangel, a low but Large Building haveing 2 rows of pillars in the body of it; and 2 Iles or allyes extending to the flankes of the Chancel, & lookeing into it under 2 or 3

[23] This passage is difficult to read as the ink has bled heavily from the reverse side of the page.
[24] A margin comment, partly perished, gives similar information: '{and who may seem to have had a great hand in building or repairing the …}'
[25] Some of this passage, particularly the margin comment, has perished.
[26] MS: 'The Patrone: The Patrone of this Parish is Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge Baronet – The Patrone is Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge; ~~whose father Sir Christopher who~~ Injoyes ⅔ of the wool & lamb'. A stray note on MS I.665 also refers to this: '+ who were also \ joynt / Patrones. presenting by Turnes: But now the Patronage is wholly & solely in Sir John Lowther – who also injoyes ~~some repar~~ ⅔ of the wool & Lamb & Easter Booke, in [blank]'.
[27] Easter Book: see the English Glossary.
[28] Winder Hall. See CAS(C), D/Hud/7/4 for Davies and Thomas Dawes of Barton Kirk (1730s).
[29] Martindale Old Church.
[30] MS.I.381 contains a later note on the patron: 'The church is St Michael as they say. Sir John of Sockbridge now sole patron. but formerly belonged to Daws \ de Barton Kirke / in his course \ or turne / as (joynt) impropriators \ with him.'
[31] 1¼ d. Tenths amounted to £1 2s 1¼ d. For the meaning of 'First Fruits and Tenths', see the English Glossary.
[32] In Warter, E. Yorks.
[33] Lancelot Dawes lived at Barton Kirk, now Kirkbarrow, on the main Penrith-Pooley Bridge road: see Hyde & Pevsner, 145. Rev. Dr Lancelot Dawes (1580-1654) MA, DD: Queen's College Oxon; vicar of Barton 1608-54; rector of Asby 1618-54; prebendary of Carlisle Cathedral 1619-54; canon 1619-54). CCED; see also Weston, Carlisle Cathedral History, 145. Dawes was also co-founder of Barton Grammar School, with Gerard Langbaine, and Provost of Queen's College, Oxford. See A. Bickley & S. Wright, 'Dawes, Lancelot, Church of England clergyman'. ODNB.

arches – And in the midle betwixt the body & Quier \ Chancel / is a fair Stone Tower but with low flat Batlements, \ on the outside / & uncomly Arches on the inside: but for which it might be easily converted into…[34]

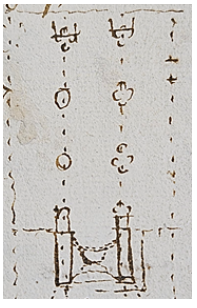

Figure 1.5.1. Margin sketch plan of Barton Church (1.) with tower and interior arches. I.660.

[Machell's Notes: I.660]

*{?}
†{?}
‡{Consider if this may not better be referrd to the Account of the several Townships.}
⸸è Registo Halton penes Episcopum.[35]

[I.379]

Barton Kirk Without: [The Porch]
1. Over the porch. a coate which I take to be 3 bucks heads cab.[36] This I take to be the Bartons, who in all probability were formerly Lords of Barton, whence they tooke the Srname de Barton*.

[Machell's Notes: I.379]

*But query, for I finde they belong to Hartsop-hall, which is in the S. West point of this parish {6[0] Stephen 1141. 1151.}[37]

[I.671A]

This porch has an E. window, the same worke which Sockbridge had over the church porch, which is an addition but very ancient. On a through before the church porch

ANO DOMINI 1615 ON
THE XVII DAY OF JVLY WAS THE BODY OF
STEVEN SISSON OF CEL
RON BURYED HERE[38]

[34] Approximately three words at the page foot are illegible.
[35] 'See Halton's Register in the custody of the bishop.' MS.I.654A contains more on this source: 'See the Appropriation by John Bishop of Karliol to the Priory & Convent of the monastery St James de Wartera in the Diocess of Yorke for keeping poore Travaillers out of all nations & the loss then sustaind by the Scotch invasion provided they allow a 3r part to a Vicar. AD 1318. They have a pension out of Clifton Church Askham. Haltons K. Reg. 17, 212, 224. 29 also.'
[36] 'Caboched/cabossed': trunked; no part of neck visible, Smith, Place-Names, 67.
[37] King Stephen's 6th regnal year was 1140-41.
[38] 'Celleron'. Members of the Sisson family appear to have put down roots in Westmorland when Cuthbert Sisson (d.1609) bought Kirkbarrow from Lord and Lady Arundel in 1583, see CFH, 308-09, but there is no mention of Steven Sisson in this entry, nor in Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes, which lists Sisson inscriptions at Barton from 1758-1860, see 97.

[I.671]

Arms & Monuments[39]

The Coates of Armes, ~~which I met with~~ in and about the church are these –

1. Over the porch, which has bin added since the church ~~in stone~~ was builded, but is very Ancient

[I.673]

Over the Portch, on the outside in stone

Figure 1.5.2. 'Over the Portch on the outside in Stone'. I.673.

[I.671]

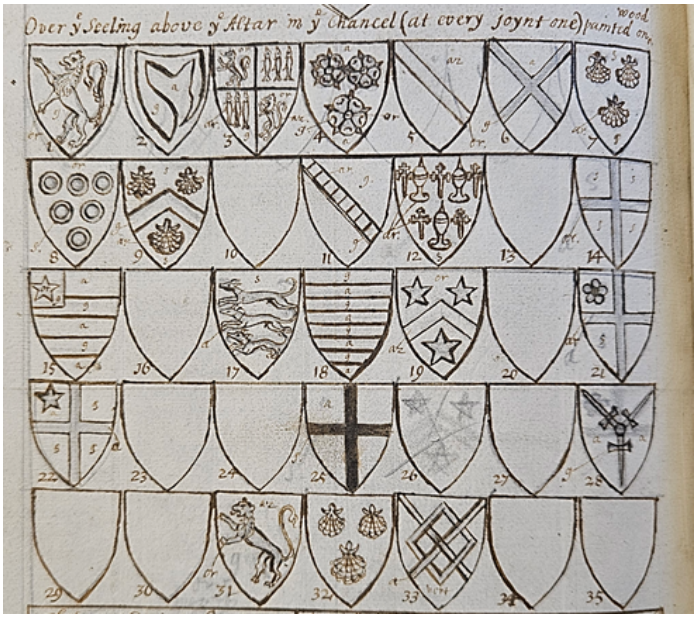

Figure 1.5.3. Chancel Ceiling, Barton Church. 1.671.

[39] The text on Barton Church, below, is a 'fair copy' made by Machell after working on two other drafts (I.379-I.381), which he then scored through. In essence, these drafts are almost the same as the 'fair copy', so have not been transcribed, apart from information relating to the porch (I.379).

Over the Altar upon the sieling of it –
[Second row, second from left] Piercy. Earle of Northumberland quartering Lucy.

[I.671A]

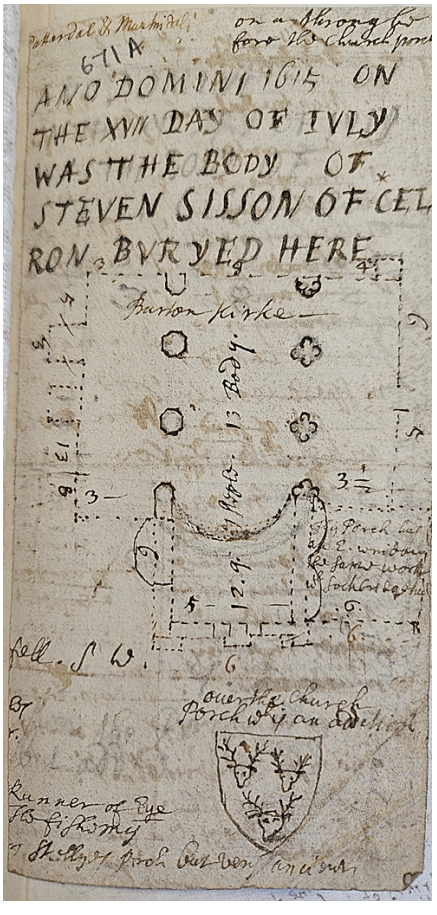

Figure 1.5.4. A measured plan of Barton Church (2.), with the west end at the top, the east end at the foot and the steeple in the centre. I. 671A.

[Machell's Notes: I.671B]
Qu. of Mr Fletcher for a Greek epitaph which was som time in Barton Kirk of Dr Daws.[40]

[I.673]
Over the Seeling above the Altar in the Chancel (at every joynt one) painted on wood.

Those on the right hand (or north side of the quier) are not here in their right scituation; for they stand on the seeling with their bases downwards & their chiefs erected towards the ridge. Those in the midle are in their right position & stand upon the ridge from E. to W., as in the most noble & most honourable place. Those on the left hand (or south-side of the quier) are designedly misplaced here also, for they stand on the seeling with their points downwards toward the wall, and their heads erected towa\rds / the ridge.

[40] Lancelot Dawes: see below. MS.I.668 also refers to a 'Qu[ery] of Lawyer Fletcher for Greek Epit.'

a: The single Coate may import that som of the [blank] to whom it belonged builded the Portch; which lookes very ancient, tho it be an additional \ piece of building / as appears by the casmes betwixt it and the church. The other may seem to be plac'd on the seeling for Ornament Sake, som of them being the Armes of such familyes as had lands in the Parish: & the rest of Nobility & Gentrie related unto them, or much honoured by them; who might perhaps also contribute somewhat to the finishing of it. And I have marked them out with figures, in lineal order, for the Readers advantage; without any regard to dignity or hon[ou]r.

1. Earle of Arundel	8. Lowther	19. Crakenthorp
2. Threlkeld	9.	21. Moresby
3. Piercy E. of Northumberland	11.	22. Orpheur
Quartering Lucy.	12.	25.
4.	14.	28.
5.	15. Lancaster	31.
6.	17. Machel	32. Lord Daker*
7. Strickland	18.	33. Salkeld

The rest quite lost & many of \ the others / defaced.[41]

[Machell's Notes: I.693A]

*{Penes J. Tho. p.48. p.32.}
Lord Daker of the North – quarterly. 1. 9. 3 escallops Argent. 2 chequie Or & Gules.
Lord Daker of the South – beares Azure 6 Lyons Rampant with cauds inflexed Argent.
P.32 at – Lib. oblong. Armor[ial] penes Mr Jo. Thwates de Apleby.[42]
[P.]44. Lord Scayles bears Gules 6 Escallops Argent 3.2.1.

[I.674]

Inscriptions on gravestones within the Chancel

[1] HERE lyes the Body of Mary Dudley daughter / to Christopher Dudley Esq*. and to Agnes / Dudley his wife; who dyed of the Age of 2 years / and was interred October. 28. 1629†.

A Chronograme
Under this stone although her Body lyes –
Yet doth Her Soule sore-up above the Skies.

[2] In the midle near the Altar steps. {All in Capitals.}
HERE lyeth the Body of / Lancelot Daws M[aste]r of Arts / Eldest son of Lancelot / Daws Doctor in Divinity: / Who was maryed to / Mary Whelpdale daughter to Mr William / Whelpdale of Penrith,[43] / & was here interr'd the 9th /day of May in the 35th year / of his Age. / 1653.[44]

[3] On the other Side of the Quier. {All in Capitals.}
Here lyeth the Body of Daniel / the son of Daniel Fleming / of Skerwoth in the County / of Cumberland Gent. who / dyed the 23 of January / 1657. being in age about 37 years.

[4] Upon a Brass plate, on the North Side of the East-window. {In large Italian.}

Hic jacet Francisca Daws filia / Thomae Flecher de Strickland Armigeri / natu maxima, perquam charissima quidem / Et perdilecta Uxor Lanceloti Daws de / Barton-Kirke Generosi. Quae huic mundo / Spe multò melioris, vicessimo tertio Februarij valedixit; Año / Etatis suæ XXIII. Annoque Domini 1673.[45]

[41] Much of the information on this page also exists in draft form: see MS.I.725E.
[42] [Machell's] 'Oblong book. Armorial in the custody of John Thwates of Appleby.'
[43] William Whelpdale, 1576-1652. See Michael A. Mullett, A New History of Penrith III: Penrith in the Stuart Century 1603-1714 (Carlisle, 2018), 27, 31, 144.
[44] William Nicolson recorded the same data during his visit to Barton church in 1703, Nicolson, Misc. Accts, 124.
[45] 'Here lies Frances Dawes, daughter of Thomas Fletcher of Strickland Esquire; she was his eldest daughter and exceeding dear to him, / and beloved wife of Lancelot Daws of Barton Kirke, gentleman; who bade farewell to this

Under this Stone (Reader) Interr'd doth lye beauty, & vertue's true Epitomy.
At her appearance the Noone-Sun
blush'd and Shrunke-in, 'cause quite out don.
In her Concenter'd did all graces dwell
God pluck'd my Rose that he might take a smel‡
Ile say noe more: But weeping wish I may
Soone with thy dear Chaste ashes com to Lay.

Sic efflevit maritus.[46]
Phineas Briggs – Eborac. Sculps.[47]

[Machell's Notes: I.674]
*Dudley: A lib. Armorial oblong p.102. penes Mr Thwates de Appelby.[48]
†{It should be all in capital letters like of first word. These stroakes /// shew the length of each line.}
‡This expression in reference to God I do not approve of; It seems too irreverent; might it not better be apply'd to death thus – Death pluck'd my Rose onely to take a smell.

[I.675]

Arms & Monumental Inscriptions at Barton Church

Figure 1.5.5. Arms at Barton Church. I. 675.

1. The first is Lancasters Arms inversed ex incuria opificis.[49] They are cut in stone on the Southside of the West-End window; & opposite to them on the other side of it, is an Inscription of close-written characters, which I cannot well reade but guess it to be 'Johes Lancaster'.[50] world in the hope of a far better one, in the year of her age 23, and in the year of Our Lord 1673.' For Thomas Strickland, lawyer, see I.678.

[46] 'Thus wept her husband'.
[47] 'Phineas Briggs, York, sculpted this.'
[48] 'From an oversized armorial book in the possession of Mr Thwates of Appleby.' MS.I.742 gives the Dudley coat of arms and its source: '{Lord Dudley beares. Argent a Lyon Rampant with his Caud reflexed Vert langued & armed Gules. L. Arm. Pene J. Th. p.63.}'
[49] 'Inversed due to the carelessness of the painter.'
[50] See also I.381.

2. The Second is Lancasters Arms on a Grave-Stone which lyes near the Pulpit on the Southside of the Body of the Church. There is in the midle of the saide Stone a Cross floorye[51] or Rose and on the left side the fashon of Sword; much like unto that which I have described in Ormside-Church and therefore purposely omitt it here.[52] It hath also had an Inscription about it, in large Text Letters, but so much worne out that I can not read them.

3. The third is Stapleton impaleing a defaced coate.

4. The Fourth is Lancaster. They are both placed together towards the East end of the South-Ile, or Alley, under the Springer at the East-end of the old flat Arch which lookes into the Chancel: opposite to which in the midle of it lyeth a Gravestone with a fillet of Brass inscribed as followeth: Here lyeth William Lancaster. Son of Xtofer. On whose soul Jesu have mercy.[53]

5. The Fifth is Lancaster, placed bewixt 2 other blanke Scutchions, just at the Capital of that Demi-octagonal Pillaster or Column which adjoyneth the East-end-wall of the Chancel & supporteth the later but more lofty Arch of Lancasters Quier.

6, 7. The Sixth & Seventh are Lancasters agane, under each Springer of the old flat Arch on the S Side the Chancel, & at the E. end of the S[ou]th Ile; which has bin divided into 2 quiers, in the lower of which, now belonging to Winder, is a monument or chest of white Stone: haveing on the West-end of it –

8. W.D., for William Davyes,[54] who was buryed here in 1674.[55]

[I.379]

Lancasters Quire
In the sealeing over the Aultar are Severall C[oats] of Arms[56] many whereof are defaced, but those that appeare are as followeth:

In the midle close to the window at the joynt, an Escutchion Argent with 3 Roses in [pile][57] Gules. Seeded Or. [That] which is to the North Side is 4^{rly}: 1. Or, a Lyon rampant Az[ure] ~~or Vert~~. 2. Gules 3 fishes salient, i.e. palewise Argent. This I take to be Piercy Earl of Northumberland quartering Lucy.[58] The 3^{d} is Argent a Manch Gules \ Threlkeld. / On the South the quarter is lost. The 2nd Argent a saltier Gules. 3^{d} Sable 3 Escallops in pale Argent (Strikland?).

On the 2nd rale. in the centere – Gules a Bend gobonated Argent and Gules. 2. [Blank] 3. Sable ~~a salt[ier]~~ [chevron][59] Gules betwen 3 Escal[lops] Argent. 4th. Or 6 Annulets Sable \ Lowther. / South side. 1. Sable 2 cups betwene 3 [daggers][60] Argent.

[Machell's Notes: I.379]

*But query, for I finde they belong to Hartsop-hall, which is in the S. West point of this parish.[61]

[51] Fleury.
[52] See I.646B, 648, 649.
[53] No dates are given, but Nicolson and Burn contend that this William Lancaster was the father of Lancelot Lancaster, fl. 33 Henry VIII [1541-42]. See N&BI, 401, 405. 'On whose soul Jesu have mercy', is thought to have been a particularly Roman Catholic phrase at this time: see Michael Mullett, A New History of Penrith II: Penrith under the Tudors (Carlisle, 2017), 42-3.
[54] MS: 'Stone: with {Haveing on the West-end of it. W. D. for} 8. W.D., for William Davyes,'
[55] See N&BI, 405.
[56] MS: '~~On the n. side is Lanc. quire~~. In the sealeing over the Aultar are Severall C[oats] of Arms.'
[57] Here, Machell has drawn an inverted triangle.
[58] MS: 'this I take to be ~~be Dudley and Browham~~ {Piercy Earl of Northumberland, quartering Lucy.'}
[59] This is represented in the MS by an inverted V.
[60] Here, Machell has drawn a dagger.
[61] In the margin here, is a date: {6^{0} Stephen 1141.1151.}

[I.380]

5th & 6th gone.
8. On the 3d Rale. The centere Barre of 8 Gules & Argent. N[orth] 1. 2. 3 gon. On the south – 1. Or a \ [chevron][62] / between 3 mullets ~~Sable~~ vel.[63] Azure \ Crak[enthorpe] / 2. [Blank] 3. Sable a † with a cinquefoyle in dexter part Argent.

9. On the 4th rale (the cent[re]?) Argent a † Sable. N[ote] 1. f. from it [Blank]. 2. 3: gon. fret.[64] Sth side 1. gon. 2. [Blank] 3. Argent? 3 daggers Gules \ Stapleton. /

10. On the 5 rale are remaineing 4 Escutchions but I can make nothing of them.

11. Note Lancasters quire & Ile. On the North Side the Chancell & Church. Upon the piller next the East wall 3 Escutchions and upon that in the midle ~~whereof~~ \ the other / 2 are blanke. Upon a demis octagonal column are 3 Escut[ch]ions, 2 of them Blanke as at fig. the 15. – above the Altar. But on the 3rd is Lancasters armes.

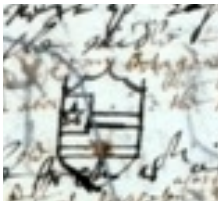

Figure 1.5.6. Lancaster Arms. I.380.

12. Under the \ old / Arch which is at the Low End of the Quire \ nearer the Screen & directly opposed the Lancasters quier on the S. side / are 2 Escutchions. The 1t is Stapleton \ as at f:28* / Impaleing a blanke or defaced Coat; & the Second is Lancaster as before. These 2 are at the \ E[ast] / springer of the great old Arch, which as it seemeth had bin Lancasters quier before the other was added to it.

Figure 1.5.7. Coats of arms, low end of the quire. I.380.

The 1t is Stapleton, peradventure impaleing Lancaster. The 2 is Lancaster. viz. Argent 2 Barrs with a ~~quarter~~ \ ca[n]ton / Gules charged with a mullet Or.

13. On a through in the Ile opposite to the great Arch in text Letters:

Here lyeth \ William Lancaster son of / Xtofer on whose Soule Jesu have mercy.[65]

[62] This is represented in the MS by an inverted V.
[63] 'or'.
[64] Here, Machell has drawn a fret symbol.
[65] See no.4, above.

Figure 1.5.8. Sketch of the 'through' at number 13. I.380.

South Quire.

14. At each end the Arch, Lancasters Arms. In it is a Tombe or Through of whyte Stone, lately erected for Mr William Davyes of Winder, son to one of the Doctors \ Daws / Daughters and one \ Will / Davyes – upon the West End thereof.[66]

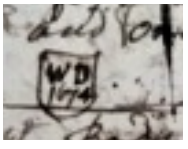

Figure 1.5.9. Barton Church: 'W.D. 1674'. I.380.

15. On the South Side, in the Body near to the pulpit a grave stone with crosse rose. Lancasters Armes on the right & a great Sword on the left side therof as sword & shield: and something about that stone in old great text but so defaced that I cannot read it.[67]

[Machell's Notes: I.380]

*N.B. 28. The Lancasters Armes being upon the pillers & other partes of the Church doe seeme to bespeak them the builders of it {or at the least noble Benefactor in the alteration and repareing of it.}

[I.381]

16. In the west window stone worke, on the Right side (1[t] south) Lancasters Armes inversed – on the other side the name of [Blank] in close {characters?}[68] which I cannot read: maybe John Lancaster.[69]

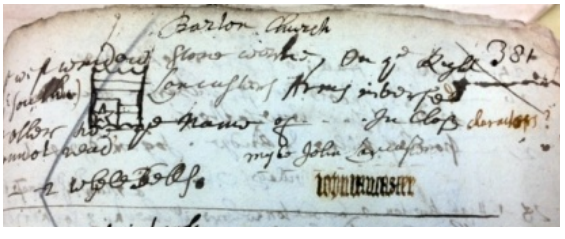

Figure 1.5.10. Small sketches: 'Maybe John Lancaster'. I.381.

[I.373][70]

16. of King James, Lancelot Lancaster of Sockbridge Esq. TB. Vixit 16. of Jac [1618-1619]. He maryed Frances Tankard eldest d[aughter] to T. Tankard de [Blank] in Yorkshire; Sister to Eliz. Blenk[insop] & had no Isue so that the Estate came to Xter Lancaster of Creaktrees Justice of Peace, his brothers son, who tooke to wife Eliz. the d[aughter] of Tho. Tankard Son of Thomas T. by whome he had noe Isue male but severall daughters.

1. Frances m[arried] to Sir Xtoper Lowther Baronett de St Bees & Whitehaven. who payd the other sisters portions & had the Estate. & Hartsop allso.

---

[66] There follows a shield with 'WD 1674' written upon it.
[67] MS: 'that it cannot be read it.'
[68] 'Characters' is written in the margin in different ink, with a question mark after it, suggesting a later correction.
[69] See also I.675.
[70] Also paginated p.9.

2. Eliz. m[arried] to William Hoton de Penrith & Gale.
3. Barbarie m[arried] to One Davyes of Winder
4. Mary m. to [Blank] Hymor de [Blank] Cumberland.

[I.381]

{[Roger de] Lancaster, Emoth}
I find one Lancaster de Emoth*. 6. Edward 4^{t} [1466-1467] – Roger de Lancaster – Brother to Willielmus, last Baron of Kendal by the halfe Blood; for he stiles him his brother in his grant to the Monks of Furness, being a witness thereto. [He] held the manner of Barton in Com. Westmerland by the gift of William his brother, and also of Patterdale in Com. West'. He was Sherif of Lancashire ~~from~~ \ in / the 49. of Henry 3. [1264-1265], and in the 3rd of Edward I. [1274-1275], obteined of that King a Confirmation of Rydale†, \ the which forrest / which is set downe by Meetes & Boundes as also of the whole purparty of Amelsale (nunc forsan Ambleside) & Loughbriggs, (now Loughrig.) with common of pasture betwixt [blank] & Gressemere, with all his cattle - which before that was granted unto him by Margaret de Brus & ~~excellent~~ one of the daughters & coheires of Peter de Brus, & Helewise de Lancaster, eldest \ of the 3 sisters / sister of William de Lancaster \ Barron of Kendal / the 3. of that name ~~Barons of K.~~ who dyed without Isue; Which Hellewise was widow of Rob. de Ros of Warke‡. This Roger ~~had Isue~~ maryed Philippa, \ the / eldest daughter and one of the coheires of Hugh de Bolebeck of [blank] in Com. Northumberland. Dyed in the 19. Edward 1. [1290-1291] leaveing Isue – John, who was summond in the 22. of Edward 1. [1293-1294] (amongst diverse other persons of note) to attend at Portsmouth on the 1^{t} of September, well provided with horse & armes, &

[Machell's Notes: I.373]
*(Sandford. Cartis de Askam) e Baronagio Angliae, p.423.[71]
†{forsan de Rydal, see Rot Pipe Cart. 3. Edwardi m. 11}
‡{Query} Tamen if this Roger was not a Bastard Brother of this said Will – see in Monast. Angl. Vol. 1, p.708.[72] thence to sael with his Majesty into France. In the 25. of the said Kings reign [1296-1297] he was concernd in that expedition against the Scots, being of the Retinue of Brian Fitz Alane of Bedale in the County of Yorke; And agane in the 34. As likewise in the 3. 4. & 8. of Edward 2. [1309-1311; 1314-1315], in the 11th of whose reigne he was imploy'd in guarding the Marches of Scotland [1317-1318]. And haveing bin summond to Parliament from the 25. of Edward 1. to the 3. of Edward 2. inclusively [1296-1310], he departed this life in the VIII yeare of King Edward 3. [1334-1335]; then seised of the Manner of Rydale and diverse other Lordships in the County of Westmorland: as also in the Countyes of Northumberland & Essex, leaveing Richard, the Son of Richard de ~~Pair~~ Plaiz his next heire, then XII yeares of age*.

[I.374]

[Machell's Notes: I.374 & I.381]
[I.374]
*Haec omnia e Dugdalli Baronagio,[73] to which Sir Dan. Fleming has added this note: Vide – Lib E. folio 34. a. Db. 2. 9 – which are Bookes in his Study which I must see.[74]
[I.381]
17. 2 whele bells.[75]
18. Barton Vicaridge.
Vic[arage] house. It is a new house lately built by Dr Daws. & over the doore is this inscription: LD {i.e. Lancelot Daws} NON MIHI SED SVCCESSORIBVS.[76] 1637.
Mr Harrison, vicar? Enquire.
19. The church is St Michael as they say. Sir John of Sockbridge now sole patron. but formerly belonged to Daws \ de Barton Kirke / in his course \ or turne / as (joynt) impropriators \ with him.[77]

[71] William Dugdale, Baronage (see Abbreviations).
[72] William Dugdale, Monasticon (see Abbreviations).
[73] 'All of these things from Dugdales Baronage.'
[74] Daniel Fleming and Machell, both antiquaries, corresponded over methods and sources considered suitable to expedite Machell's History; Machell borrowed books from the older man. See 'Letter from Sir Daniel Fleming. 9 February 1693/94', Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, II.145. See also Editor's Introduction.
[75] The bells were operated by a wheel over which the bell-rope ran.
[76] 'Not to me but unto my successors.'
[77] Machell's numbering system continues on I.381 below.

[I.676]

So much may suffice of Barton Church; which, if wee looke into the Rock from whence it was huen I thinke wee may finde it on Barton Fell, where there is a Quarry of Good hewing-stone, & exceeding white, & easy to be transmitted from thence to the circumjacent partes of the Parish, being West from the Church about 2 miles{near to which place is a tarne called Grisdale, wherein there are Troutes the fishing of which belongs to one Mou[n]sey, a Tenant here.} & there [is] Limestone all over the Lordship.

Haveing don with the church it remanes that wee speake of other place in the manner of Barton

[Vicarage House]

~~About~~ 200 yards \ W. / from the Church, \ a little inclineing towards the N. / stands the Vicaridge House, an Handsom new Building with a portch at the Enterance, and a Study above \ over / it. Erected by Dr Lancelot Daws of Barton, as by this Inscription over the Dooer –

L.D.
NON MIHI SED
SUCCESSORIBUS
1637[78]

[Barton Kirk. Lancelot Daws. Michael Hudson]

And a little beyond (in the same Beareing) is a large (but irregular) Hall-like house calld Barton Kirk (from its vicinity to the Church & Vicaridge) which was builded also (as I conjecture) by the said Lancelot Daws; Borne in this Parish, educated at Queens College in Oxford where he was fellow, and afterward tooke his D[rs] degree at [blank] in Scotland.[79] He was a Learned & Ingenious person; as appears by several \ Bookes / which He publishd Sc.* and left a Plentiful Estate behinde Him; which is much to be wondered at, considering that he was only born to a smal Tenement, and for a long time had no more but this Vicaridge, of about 50[li] per Annum to live upon; out of which he educate a great many children, preferd 6 daughters to considerable fortunes giveing each 400[li] apiece, & several Portions of 60[li] to his poore Relations: which yet I thinke he could never have don had not providence advanced him afterwards to be Rector of Ashby,[80] where he also builded the greatest part of the Parsonage house; & in the End to be a Prebendary of the Church of Carlile.[81] He was alwayes hospitable to Schollars & Strangers, but made his own children live near[82] & frugally. This estate he purchased

[Machell's Notes: I.676]

*'?'[83]

[I.678]

(amongst many more* of other persons) from one of the Hudsons; & it was the birth place of Michael Hudson Master of Arts, sometimes fellow of Queens College in Oxford†; & Chaplaine & Convoy in the Northern Parts to King Charles the 1[st] in the late Civil wars, on whom he attended in his march to Hull; & there by misfortune being taken Prisner, was cast in to the mote & Barbarously murthererd: For whilst he attempted to save his life by swimming to the shore, & put forth his hand to catch hold of the weeds which grew about it, a Butcherly Soljer cut ~~of his~~ \ it of with a / swo\r/d; and then He tacking about agane, & puting forthe the other hand, had that cut of likewise; after all which, he threw himselfe upon his back and swiming in water & blood to the shore with his ~~formost~~ \ head formost as the manner is, / had his braines beaten out with the But of a Musket‡.

---

[78] 'Lancelot Dawes, not to me but unto my successors, 1637'.

[79] See Nicolson & Burn for a similar paragraph: N&B1, 405-06.

[80] Asby: Dawes was rector there from c.1617 but in 1647 (during the Civil War), when accused of simony and forced by the (puritan) Committee for Plundered Ministers to choose between the vicarage of Barton and the rectory of Asby, he chose Barton. See 'Dawes, Lancelot (1579/80–1655)'. ODNB.

[81] Carlisle Cathedral.

[82] 'Near': 'Niggardly, stingy, mean'. OED.

[83] Lancelot Dawes's publications include, Gods Mercies and Jerusalems Miseries (1609) with an epistle, dated 27 June, dedicated to Henry Robinson, bishop of Carlisle; and, Sermons Preached upon Severall Occasions (1653). For these volumes and Dawes's biography, see 'Dawes, Lancelot (1579/80-1655)'. ODNB.

This House (with all the Estates that were purchased by Dr Daws) is now the Inheritance of Thomas Daws, a Schollar at Appelby, whose Pedegre followeth.

				Lancelot Daws of Barton Kirk. Dr in Divinity	=	Amy the daughter of Mr Fairfax, Rector of Cald-beck in Cumberland
1. Lancelot Daws M[r] of Arts, whose monumented inscription is in Barton Church quire, see before fig. [Blank]		=	Mary, the d. of Mr Whelpdale of Penrith; remaryed to Tho. Fletcher of Strickland, Barister at Law	2. William Daws of Barton Kirk maryed –	=	Margaret the d. of [blank] Mawson of Penrith in Cumberland
Tho. of Craketrees in West-morland	William of Timparon Cumb-erland			1. Lancelot Dawes of Barton Kirk, the eldest son of William, maryed Thomas Daws aet [blank]	=	Frances the daughter of T. Fletcher of Little Stricland, Barister at Law; being a co-heiress
Lancelot Daws

[Machell's Notes: I.678]
*{Creak Trees? Ashby Grange? Regil. Something in Penrith.}[84]
†The College Bokes.
‡Public fame.[85]

[I.373]

{Places [in Barton Parish]}

To Barton church doe belong Barton, Bridge aliis Yeamond Bridge \ or Emont or Emote or Emoth / Hartsop, Lowinder, Martindale, Patterdale, Powley, Sokbridge, & Yeanwath.

[I.381]

[Lordships]
There are 3 Lordships with manner houses. Sokbridge. Yaneworth. Powly Hall. Hartsop Hall*.
20. Sockbridge the Ancient Seat of the Lancasters now extinct tho there remaine some of the name. It now belongs to Sir John Lowther junior,[86] who married with a Lancaster?[87] William Lancaster of Sockbridge can give an account of them. Hartsop allso \ being / in Patterdal[e] belongd to them & now to the Lowthers. Lowther has some \ Tenements / in Low Barton.

[84] His biographers report that Dawes 'also bought land in the nearby parish of Crosby Ravensworth, including Regill Grange and half the demesne in the manor of Regill.' 'Dawes, Lancelot (1579/80-1655)'. ODNB. See also I.377 below.
[85] Michael Hudson (1605–1648), born in Penrith [? See Machell, I.678] was a Church of England clergyman and royalist agent. He attended Queen's College, Oxford, as 'a poor child' in 1622, BA 1626, MA 1629, fellow 1630 (alongside another Westmerian, the logician, Christopher Airay). While a fellow, Hudson seems have tutored Prince Charles. After receiving various livings, Hudson joined the royalists after the battle of Edgehill, then moved to Oxford to be with the king. By royal order he was granted the degree of DD in 1643, becoming one of the king's chaplains. The king 'usually called him his plain-dealing chaplain, because he told him his mind, when others would or durst not' (Wood, Ath. Oxon., 3.233). In 1645 he was ejected from one of his livings for non-residency. His subsequent career as an agent for Charles I was full of danger: he was imprisoned, escaped (allegedly in disguise) and raised troops to fight for the king in Lincolnshire. Parliamentarians besieged him at Woodcroft Castle, Peterborough, fighting him through the house and out on to the roof. 'Although the details of Hudson's actual death in the moat on 6 June 1648 owe more to later royalist hagiography than historical truth, his fanatical generosity in support of his king is not to be underestimated.' See N. Cranfield, 'Hudson, Michael (1605-1648), Church of England clergyman and royalist agent'. ODNB. Note that Hudson died near Peterborough, not Hull.
[86] 1655-1700.
[87] The Lancaster male line failed in 1640; Machell queried whether Sir John Lowther's wife was a Lancaster. See AWL, 182.

21. Yaneworth, formerly to the Dudleys: quite Extinct. \ Anciently to the Yanewoth. (Sandford W[estmorland) / that Daughter whose mon[ument] I have spoke of; and sold by her father to Sir John Lowther of Lowther now Lord thereof. There are 2 demane: the High & the Low.
Two[88] Villages: 1. Yaneworth where the Hall: the other ~~the~~ Bridge. \ Commonly called Emont Bridge. / Near the Bridge are these 2 famous Antiquities, viz. Maybrough & Arthurs-Castle. {Se §31.}[89]

22. Powley Hall \ in High Barton / belongs to Lord Dakers. To him \ allso / belongs High Barton, Powley, Martindale, & Patturdale.[90]

23. In High Barton is Trostermont† \ some call it Crostormont.[91] / Here was borne Dr Hudson at the house which now belongs to Lancelot Daws which together with the impropriation was bought of the Hudsones‡. Dr Langbane, borne at More-End in High Barton near Powley⸸.

24. Martindale – Dr Daws borne there: a chaple there.[92]

[Machell's Notes: I.381]

*(& forsan Barton Hall: X query)[93]
†{Trostermont in High Barton: a round hill tre[n]ched. Said to be the Castle of Trostermont, one of the[94] alias Crostamont. Note.}
‡q.? {The vicar has ⅓.}
⸸(Dr Airay in Low Barton?)(…)[95] at a place called Seller.[96]
{A free school in High Barton, vid. §26.}

[I.382]

25. Hartsop Hall; to Sir John de Sokbridge.
26. 1 Free schoole in High Barton founded by Dr Langbane: Dr Airy & Daws benefactors.[97]
27. Powley Milne & Bridge. Sogbridge Mill.[98]

Villages & Hamlets
28. 1. High Barton., 2. Low Barton where the Church. \ a manner, the demane [and] Powley; / 3. Sockbridge. 4. Yeaneworth. 5. Eamont. 6. Winder a village. 7. Hartsop Lordship, Martindale Lordship, Patterdale a Lordship.

29. Barton is a Barony \ puto scriptis Sandford?[99] / Powley Dem. is the chief demayne as the Dem. of Barton. To it belongs \ High B[arton] & Low Barton. / The Manner of Hartsop. Manner of Martindale. Manner of Patterdale. Yeamount, Sokbridge & Yaneworth are in the parish, not in the Barony*.

---

[88] MS: '2'.
[89] 'See paragraph 31', has been added to the margin.
[90] MS: 'To him \ allso / belongs High Barton, Powley, Martindale, & ~~part of~~ Patturdale. ~~Some of them belonging to Bar. Lowther & som~~ to ~~Arundell~~.' A deleted note on Lowther and Arundel, property owners in High Barton.
[91] It is now Cross Dormont.
[92] Because the page foot has perished, the bottom line cannot be transcribed.
[93] This section has a cross and underlining in different ink. Perhaps Machell was able to answer his own question.
[94] The text here has perished.
[95] This phrase is blotted, but appears to be KIT. Machell used similar letter groups (see a reference to Yanwath on I.734 in this chapter) such as KαT, an abbreviation of the Greek adverb, κα/τω, meaning 'below' or 'in the lower part'. In this instance, the context (Low Barton) is consistent with a reference to 'below', but the Greek abbreviation is unclear and appears to be carelessly written.
[96] Celleron.
[97] For a similar note, see I.377, I.688.
[98] Sockbridge.
[99] 'Perhaps in Sandford's writings?' Machell's contemporary, Edmund Sandford, wrote, 'A Cursory Relation of all the Antiquities and Familyes in Cumb'land', c. 1675. The MS is contained within Machell's Volume 6. It has been published as: Edmund Sandford, A Cursory Relation of All the Antiquities and Familyes in Cumberland, CWAAS Tract Series 4 (Kendal, 1890).

30. In High Barton a parke now disp[arked]. Barton Church appropriate to the Prior & Convent of St James de Carta Ebor Dioces. 1318. Given by \ the grant / John Halton wh[en] Bishop of Carlile, ut è registrario suo Apud Rose penes ep[iscopum].[100]
Barton vic[arage] as cler-value in the Kings booke. 11^{li}: 1: 0: \ 10^{th} / 1: 2: 1: q^{a}.[101]

The parish of Barton, December 22 1674.

[Machell's Notes: I.382]

*Informatione John Patteson.[102]

[I.377]

[Eminent Men]

1. Eminent men hath this parish produced: \ all contemporaries / sc. Gerard Langbane,[103] Dr of Divinity Provost of Queens College in Oxford & whose books & reputation to this day bespeake him a man of Universal Learneing: who was maryed to ~~Widow Potter~~ \ Elizabeth widdow to Dr Potter his predicessor, / & had Isue Gerhard \ Langbane / placed somewhere in Oxfordshire*. He Lyes buried in Queens College Oxon – whose monument gives ~~you~~ this fairther[104] account concerneing him: \ of him: /
Dr in Divinity in Scotland – Vicar of Barton Kirk in Westmorland†.

2. The other was Lancelot Dawes, Vicar of Barton, parson of Ashby Kirk in Westmorland \ and Prebendary of Carlile / where lyes buryed,[105] – haveing left a plentiful Estate \ behinde him betwixt 2 & 300 li p.a. / ~~of his owne acquireing to his deseendants~~ {He bought Barton Kirk, Creaktrees, an estate in Penrith, Askby Grange, Rig}, which is much to be admired considering that he was \ only / borne ~~but~~ to 13 or 14 per annum & for Long time had but that Vicaridge of about 50^{li} & \ educated & / brought up & preferrd 6 daughters \ very gentieley, / to each of which he gave to the value of 400 li besides several portions to his poore relation[s] of about 60 li apiece. \ He was very generous & hospitable to strangers, & charitable to the poore: but made his own children live near & sparingly.[106] /

3. Dr Airay, who was Principle of Edmond Hall in Oxford \ born at Low-Winder in an House which is over the Sike and west from the Hall[107] – which is a Good Tenement held now under Davis‡.

4. Michael Hudson, fellow of Queens College, & Chaplain & Convoy in the northern partes to King Charles 1 in the \ late / Civil warrs; who being taken at or near {unto} Hull (as I have heard) was cast into a mote, where he swam for his Life, & comeing to the Banke, the Hand ~~which~~ \ he / put forth \ to catch hold on som thing / to save his life was cut off by a soljer; after which he Tackd abo[u]t agane, & putting out his other hand ~~had~~ \ he / ~~that~~ cutt off \ that / allso; Then throwing himselfe upon his Back, he swam in \ blood & watter / his blood, & when he greaw faint, comeing to shore, had his brains beaten out with a musket but. And they hedged a Bloody Sacrifice of the Rebells cruelty, & remaines a Example of Fidelity & Loyalty to all posterity.[108] He was Born at Barton Kirk, that Estate being purchased from the Hudsons by Dr Dawes.[109]

---

[100] 'John Halton when Bishop of Carlisle, as evidenced in his registry at Rose in the possession of the bishop.'
[101] MS notes on I.715C provide, 'High Barton: a manor W. ab Ecclesia. a sort of Dale extending from the church to Martindale from which tis divided by Swarthbeck which runns into Ulswater over against. excepting Pooley is a member of it which is a pretty com'[illeg.]
[102] 'From the evidence of John Patteson.'
[103] Gerard Langbaine D.D. (1608-1657), son of William Langbaine; Fellow and later Provost of Queen's College, Oxford; co-founder of Barton Grammar School.
[104] Originally 'farther account', but an 'i' added later in different ink.
[105] Lancelot Dawes 1580-1653/4. See above, and see CFH, 85.
[106] Repeated text, see I.676, above.
[107] Adam Airay, B.D. Principal of St Edmund Hall, Oxford, 9 Mar. 1630/1 until his death, 16 Dec. 1658. See H.E. Salter and Mary D. Lobel (eds), 'St. Edmund Hall', in A History of the County of Oxford: Volume 3, The University of Oxford, (London, 1954), 319-35, British History online.
[108] Repeated text, see I.678, above.
[109] The line below this, at the page foot, has perished

{Also Fellows of Queens College in Oxford: L. Smith, Law[rence] Smith,[110] Will Lancaster,[111] [Blank] Teasdal.}[112]

[Machell's Notes: I.377]

*Of? {Baldwin near Oxford et quer.}[113]
†{? Send for a draft of his picture & monument}
‡Witnesses Jam[es] Dobson of Wether-melock. King of Patterdale.[114] Christopher Lancaster of Hartsop.

[I.679] [115]

Other places of less note in this Lordship, and yet not to be passed by in silence, haveing given birth to learned men are:
Pot Howskil – Launcelot Smith, Fellow[116] – which were called [of] late Potshowskil.[117]
Bower banke – which is a good House at the E. End of Pooley, & in a manner ajoyneing to it Lawrence Smith, who sold it to his Brother Will the Keeper of Martindale.
Moore End near Pooley – W. ab Ecclesia ½ a mile Dr Langbane where Langbanes yet.[118]
Winder – in manner of W[inder] Dr Adam Airay Principal of Edmund Hall in Oxford; whose father is said to have com out of Kentmere in the Barony of Kendal.

[I.687][119]

[Barton School]
[Results of an Enquiry, returned to Thomas Machell in 1673]

Westmorland Barton
For Mr Richard Jackson Schoolmaster of Appleby.
These p. p. p. with hand.

[I. 680][120]

The present estate of the free schoole of Barton in Westmorland, in order to an enquiry beareing date from Oxon, August 16th 1673.

Enquiry First: Who Founders?
Replied: The Reverend Gerrard Langbaine D.D. Provost of Queens Colledge in Oxon, & the Reverend Lancelott Dawes D.D. Fellow of Queens Colledge in Oxon.

[110] Laurence Smith, servitor at Queen's College, Oxford, from1660; BA 1665; MA 1668; rector of Knights Enham, Hants, 1675-1708. Leonard Smith of Appleby, matriculated 1674 aged 18; BA 1678-79; MA 1681; vicar of Newbold-Pacey Warwickshire (in the gift of Queen's College), 1689, OAD. See also CCED.
[111] William Lancaster of Sockbridge, matriculated 'pauper' Queen's College, 1670, aged 20; BA 1674-75; MA 1678; BD 1690; DD 1692; provost of Queen's College 1704-17; vice-chancellor 1705-09; originally 'a little petty schoolmaster in Westmorland'; vicar of Oakley Bucks 1682; vicar of St Martin-in-the-Fields 1692; archdeacon of Middlesex 1705; died 1716-17. OAD.
[112] Five Teasdells/Teasdalls, from Cumberland (1) and Westmorland (4), matriculated at Queen's College between 1596 and 1685. John Teasdell: BA 1602, became vicar of Appleby (1611) and Lowther (1613). Lancelot Teasdell of Sockbridge MA 1684, became rector of South Weston Oxon (1691) and of Distington Cumberland (1692). William Teasdall of Stockbridge, son of Christopher, matriculated in 1685 aged 16; BA 1690; MA 1693-94. Robert Teasdell of Westmorland matriculated in 1615 aged 17; BA 1617. William Teasdell of Cumberland matriculated in 1572. OAD.
[113] 'And query this.'
[114] John Mounsey of Patterdale Hall, see I.714, below.
[115] The contents of this page were written in pencil; they are now too faint to be read easily.
[116] Lancelot Smith, servitor of Queen's College, matriculated 1655; BA 1659; MA 1652, OAD.
[117] Pots house gill: a field in the Parish of Barton: Westmorland Place-Names. Nicolson & Burn refer to this place as 'Pothowscale': N&BI, 407.
[118] Another MS reference (I.677), gives 'At Moore End. West ab Ecclesia ½ a mile Dr Langbane born.'
[119] The page contains a scrap of paper pasted onto it, containing the address of Richard Jackson, who sent Machell the material on Barton, below.
[120] The results of the Inquiry were written in another hand.

2. When Founded?
Replied: In the year of Our Lord God 1649.[121]

3. How Endowed?
Replied: With twenty pounds per Annum which was given as followeth; viz. the said Gerrard Langbaine gave the sume of five pounds and fiveteen shillings \ yearly / out of an estate purchased at Culgaith & the interest of sicety \ fifty[122] / four pounds more unto the said schoole. The said Lancelott Dawes gave twenty shillings to be pay'd out of his part of the tythes of Barton \ yearly / & the interest ariseing from thirty pounds of money. The Reverend Adam Airey D.D, Fellow of Queens Colledge in Oxon, gave the interest of one hundred pounds of money to the use aforesaid; and the Parishioners of Barton gave the interest of thirty pounds for ever, collected among them before the Schoole house was built.

4. What School-master? & succession of masters?
Replied: John Martin A.B. of Queens Colledge in Oxon, first after the foundation of the said Schoole, whom Thomas Preston A.B. of St Johns Colledge in Cambridge did succeed; William Lancaster his successor; & Christopher Mickleston, the immediate predecessour of William Airey present School-Master there.[123]

5. What Exhibitions?
Replied: Noe exhibitions in either University.

6. What Governours, Patrons & Visitors?
Replied: Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge Baronet; Sir John Lowther of Lowther Baronet; Daniell Fleeming of Ridale Esqr; John Harrison present Vicar of Barton; William Dawes senior; Theodorus Sisson; William Smith senior of Bowerbanke; George Mounsey senior; Thomas Winter, gentleman; William Smith of Potshouscale; William Sisson of Crostormount, & William Smith of Brow yeomen, Parishioners of Barton aforesaid.

9. What Libraries?
Replied: Noe libraries therein, or in any town thereto adjoyneing.

Barton June 30th 1676.

[I.682]

The Foundation of Barton School & electing of Supervisors and Governors[124]
{After the Endowment there was also provision for supervisours in these word[s].}[125]
Whereas the Parishioners of Barton have agreed & consented together for the building & erecting of a publick Schoole at Barton: & for that such Foundation cannot subsist & continue without Order & Government to be observ'd in & about the same; It is therefore thought fitt, that for the use of the Parishioners in generall, & for the avoyding of such inconveniences as might happen to arise by the different opinion of a multitude, & for the better ordering and governing of the said schoole: That the seven men herein nam'd & appointed, & their Heirs successively be & remaine as Supervisors & Governors of the Schoole. That is to say, Mr Lancelott Dawes, Mr Francis Sisson, Mr William Davis, Steven Mounsey, William Smith, Lancelott Smith & William Langbane*. & whatsoever they the said seven men, or the Major part, shall conclude & agree upon touching & concerning the benifitt & advantage of the said schoole, the same to be observ'd for good & binding for all others. And forasmuch as diverse well-dispos'd persons

[121] A note in the MS (I.715A) gives: 'Barton: There is a free school, in the high road from Penrith to Pouley, W. ab Ecclesia ¾, founded by [blank] and build, as appears by these figure writ over the door in – 1649.' Another reference, but scored through (MSI.715C), gives, '~~a School free (ab Ecclesia W. ab Ecclesia) ¾ of a mile~~.'
[122] 'Fifty', in another hand.
[123] William Lancaster taught in Barton between 1668 and 1670; William Airey was licensed on 15 November 1672; he taught in Barton until 1691. CCED. Christopher Mickleston (presumably teaching there, c. 1671) has not been found in the bishop's register for that period.
[124] The main text on this page is the copy of a deed and is in a hand other than Machell's.
[125] In Machell's hand, written in pencil.

whose hearts God hath stirr'd up towards the setting forward of so necessary & pious a work, have allready to the good Example of others, out of their Christian care for the Education & Instruction of Youth

[Machell's Notes: I.682]

*{Fo[u]nders & Benefactors} {And to these have been added since I know not, I suppose in a complement.}

[I.683]

in Religion & Learning, chearfully & charitably contributed to that use of the said school. It is thought fitt that the Names of all those who have given any thing to the same, together with the sume or gift so given, to be carefully Recorded & Registered in the Schoole-Book as Authors & Benefactors to the said schoole that the Memory of those who have so generally deserv'd well may not be rak'd up in the Ashes of Oblivion for whom Posterity may have cause to give God thanks.

The Names of all such as have given & contributed to the Use of the Schoole of Barton together with the Sume or Gift so given.

Imprimis. Lancelott Dawes D.D. & Vicar of Barton, gave twenty shillings per annum to be pay'd by his heires out of the Tithes of Barton-Kirke yearly for ever. And also, five & twenty pound in money: the use whereof to be imploy'd to the said School for ever.
Item. Gerard Langbaine D.D. & Provost of Queens Colledge in Oxford gave thirty pound: the use whereof to be & remaine to the use of the said schoole for ever. Also, the said Dr Langbaine purchas'd a Farme at Culgaith in Cumberland at the value of 20^{li} per annum, ten pound whereof to bind two Apprentises within Barton Parish; the rest to the use of the foresaid schoole of Barton for ever; paying the Lords yearly Rent for the Farme at Culgaith.

[I.684]

Item. given by C. Airay to the schoole of Barton the sume of a hundred pound, the use whereof to go to the schoole for ever. Whereof allowd to Peter Burnyeats for the Carriage the Sume of three pound & for other expenses six shilling six pence; the Rest being in the Hands of the Men whose Names follow. viz.

William Smith of Winder	63 06 00}
Francis Sisson	12 00 00}	0: 7: 6. not accounted for
Lancelott Smith of Pottshowskell	11 00 00}
Humphrey Langbane	10 00 00}

Others contributed to the building of the schoole (& the overplus to be employ'd to the use thereof) besides their Labour in Leading, Wood, & Stones & other materials

Mr Wm Davis	5. 0.0.	Stephen Sisson	2. 0.0.	Edw. Winder	0.13.4.
Mr Franc. Sisson	4.0.0.	Tho. Mark	1.10.0.	Edw. Hodge'son	1. 0.0.
Mr Humph.Wharton	3.0.0.	Wm Harrison of Ellerbeck	5^{li}.	Lancelot Airay	1.10.0.
William Smith	3.6.8.	Wm Dawson	2. 0.0.	Lancelot Prudday[126]	1. 0.0.
Lancelot Smith	3.0.0.	Edw. Browne	1 .0.0.	Jo. Smith	0. 6.8.
Mr Tho. Mounsey	2.0.0.	Tho. Mounsey	1.10 0.	Edw. Rukin	0. 5.0.
Stephen Mounsey	3.0.0.	Jane Richardson	1 .0.0	Rowland Guddall	0. 5.0.
Wm Harrison [perished]		Edw. Lancaster	0. 6.8.	Lanc. Lancaster	0.13.4.
Wm [perished]		Wm Bird [perished]		Wm Nicolson	0. 6.8.
The sume is	[£]46. 6.[127]

[I.660]

[The Perambulation of Barton Parish]

Bounder

Note. This Parish is Bounded on the East with Browham & Clifton \ & Lowther / being divide from them by the River Lowder, on the SE with Askham & Barton, on the S. with \ part of / Kendal and ~~Winder mer~~ \ Gresmere parishes, / on the W. with Crosthwate \ & Graystock / parish in \ the County of / Cumberland, on [126] A letter 'e' here appears to have been changed into 'a'.

[127] Of the two illegible amounts, one sum given could be 10 shillings.

the North-west & N – with ~~the Parishes of~~ Graystock & Penrith \ in the said county* / ~~being~~ divided from them by Glenkeün-Beck, Ulswater, & Emote, the perambulation being as followeth – Sc.

{Perambulation}
The tract of ground which belongs to this church.
Beginning over against the Church in the midle of Emote, & thence descending N^wd^ to Skirsgill well, near Yeanwath hall, where \ the Barony of / Graystock ends &\ the Parish of / Penrith begins†; Thence ~~this~~ downe the midle of the said River till Lowder discharge it selfe

[Machell's Notes: I.660]

*{? Q. of Daker.}
†(Query of Daker, where it begins & ends.)

[I.661]

to the head or Runner of Eymote, all the East Side or halfe of Ulswater being accounted in the manner of Barton; But the fishing is in som \ of the / Tenants who pay quit rent for it. Thus, it is now; but (if a man may speake what is rational) it seemeth to me that the side of Ulswater which lyes contiguouse to the manner of Martindale has belong'd to it; but both these being in the same Lords possession, & the Court kept in Barton, it has thence bin reckoned within Barton manner.

[I.655A]

Via & media quibus ad Terminum perducitur[128]

{Terminus a quo} {Terminus ad quem}[129]

Beginning over against the Church in the midle of Emonte and descending thence N.E. till you com at the place where Lowther Beck runnes into Emot where Browham begins.[130] Thenceforward S. up the River Lowther till you com at the Bridge, where Clifton enters. Thence S.W. up Lowther Beck till you com at Yanwath wood head \ a little / beneath Lowther mill. Thence westward (up by the Hedge of Yanwath Demaine till you com at a Grassing which is in Ascom demaine called Pow-dun*.[131] Thence W. up by the wall of Sockbridge Demaine to a close in High Winder called Holl-Gill.[132] Thence directly west by a wall to the Towne of High Winder – Thence S. West~~ward~~ over the fell in a direct line to Cloven Steane on a Browside called Seat-head. Thence S.W. in a streight line to ~~wh~~ an heap of stones called White Rayes. Thence S.W. by a streight line \ lineally/ to \ an heap of stones on / Hewskill-howes. Thence \ directly / S.W. to the Top of Whiteston Moore.[133] Thence S.W. (by a streight line) to a Raise of stones called Lambert-Lad. Thence – S. West (by a streight line) to Sandford Steak wher Askam ends & Barton begins in the point from Barton Kirke? Thence S.W. \ to / a place calld White-Raise. Thence S.W. by a st\r/eight line to Camerton Bield where Barton leaves of as Kendal comes in†.[134] Thence Westward by a streight line to Jack-brigg \ where Kendal leaves, & Wind'mer. / Thence W. by a direct line to a strait place between 2 dales‡ called the Threshward. Thence N.W. to \ Camerton Bield on / the top of Kirkston \ where Gresmere comes in. /

[128] 'The way and means by which it reaches the end.'
[129] 'The Starting Point … The End Point'. Three or four words are illegible here; they could read: '& measurement [?] miles', but the page here has perished.
[130] MS: 'Beginning anenst the church at Emot Side; \ over against the Church in the midle of Emonte / and \ descending / thence N.E. till \ you com at the place where / Lowther Beck runnes into Emot. Where Browham begins.'
[131] MS: 'Thence westward (up by the ~~wall of Askham till~~ \ Hedge of / Yanwath Demaine till you com at a Grassing ~~called Pow-dun~~ which is in Ascom demaine called Pow-dun.'
[132] MS: 'Thence \ W. / up by the wall ~~inclose~~ of Sockbridge Demaine to \ a close ~~called~~ / ~~Hollgill~~ in High Winder – called Holl-Gill.'
[133] A line of text here has been thoroughly crossed through and is therefore unclear.
[134] MS: 'where Barton leaves of \ as ~~Winder~~ Kendal comes in / ~~at the [blank] point from B[arton Kirk]~~ {Query where other parishes com in.}'

Thence Westwards along the Height (as heaven water \ deales /) to / Dove Cragg;[135] Thence W. (as Heaven water deales) to \ ~~Sinke~~/ Glencove. Thence W. by a streight line \ as heaven water deales to Greatrig Head on / the Top of Fairfield. Thence N.W. by a streight line to the head of ~~Gr~~ Grisedale Tarn.[136] Thence N. in a direct line to an heap of stones on Erward Tove or Edward Dove \ where Crosthwate p[arish] \ in Cumberland / enters at the [blank] point. Thence as Heaven Water deales to the top of \ a / Broad Crag ~~top~~ called Elvellin⸸.

[Machell's Notes: I.655A]

{Marking of sheep. Scot[tish] – keeling of sheep. Keela ome – is Read lead or Rud – Keela vert is Black lead –}[137]
A Carne of Stones (in Scotch) is an he\a/p of stones for a memorial.
{Dr Balfour a physitian in Edenburrow, an antiquarian;[138] by Mr William Duglas; lawyer at the bar of […][139]
*{Thereof in Scotland Powdan and Powdonnet.}
†{Query where other parishes com in.}
‡{Sc. Ha[r]tsop & Troutbeck in Windermer}
⸸{Mr Mounsey} {Query of X. Lancaster of Hartsop to Ulswater Head.}[140]

Figure 1.5.11. Text written in several different directions and text crossed through. I.655B.

[I.655B]

{till you com below Wethermelock over against the foot of Ranyas which runneth on the E. Side of it, where the Parish of Daker runs in*.}[141] Thence N. (as Heaven water divides) to Whitston Edge. So on by the same direction to the Lower End of Sticks-Moss. Thence N. (by a streight line) to the head of Glennkeu\n/-Beck† \ where Grastock parish begins to joyn of it. / Thence E. down the Beck into the very midle of Ulswater. Thence agane down the midle of Ulswater & thence down the midle of the said Lake and the River of Emote which runs out of it till you com at the place where you began and where Daker ~~endeth~~ & Penrith adjoyne.

[Machell's Notes: I.655B]

*By Mr Dobson & Th[omas] Atkinson his shepherd, called the Prince of Shepherds by Mr Lancaster of Hartsop.
†{? sayes there is gle[n] Co in the higlands.}

[135] Machell used braces here to show that the information in the last paragraph had been provided by his informant, Mounsey.
[136] A line below this one has been heavily scored through.
[137] In the left-hand margin, written at right-angles to the page. Keel, or ruddle, is red ochre, used especially for marking sheep; it is also the name of the mark thus made; red keel is ruddle, black keel is plumbago: Dictionaries of the Scots Language Online.
[138] Probably Dr Andrew Balfour (1630-94): physician; collector of botanical samples; experimenter in science and medicine; prominent member of Edinburgh's learned society; private museum, gallery and library owner; a founder of the Royal College of Physicians of Edinburgh in 1681. See Royal Society of Physicians of Edinburgh, https://www.rcpe.ac.uk/heritage/college-history/andrew-balfour.
[139] The rest of this margin comment is obscured by the binding
[140] It appears that Machell needed to enquire further (of Christopher Lancaster).
[141] Top L.H. margin: the page is damaged; it has been repaired in the past.

[I.664]

[Pooley]

{Manerium de Barton. Lord Sussex.}

The village of Pooley at the foot of Ulswater, which is the chief place in the Manner of Barton, taketh its name from being scituate nearer to that great poole and doth but consist of [blank] families.[142] [It] seemeth to be of Late Erection; whether \ the / people \ at first / haveing flocked thither either for promoteing the fishing trade or perhaps for vendeing them: for (by Tradition) it formerly has bin a Little Market, there yet remaneing a fair \ stone/ cross in it \ with stepps or seats all round about it, / with the Dakers armes at the top of which on west side of the [cross] are Dakers Arms. Sc. 3 escallops (and those too have relation to fishing) on the S.W. side of it; which Cross was lately put in \ to / repare by the \ now / Earle of Sussex (descended from Dakers on the mothers side,) \ the Lord of the Manner and of most \ part / of the parish; / as by[143] these Letter[s] cutt on the fan (or Weather Cock as they commonly call it) \ upon the Top of it / may more fully appear:

THOMAS EARLE OF SUSSEX MAY. 2. 1679.[144]

Figure 1.5.12. Sketch of the Dacre Arms on Barton Cross. I.664.

This place \ then / lying at the foote of the lake & head of the river which is called Emot from its isuing here out of the mote,[145] might be very proper for the said Imployments either of fishing or vending \ of fish / &[146] might occasion a concorse of people & to have taken the name of Pooley from its vicinity to that great poole or lake whereon it standeth ~~or from~~ now*.

And another Reason {!!!} of this part of the manner being more frequented \ & so groweing populous / may be from its nearness to the Manner House, whose \ great / estate here \ laid / calls upon to adorne the Countrey. I do not mean that \ pittiful / cott which they call Pooley-Hall \ at the E. End of it, / where they keep their Courtes; a Scandal to the noble Lord who ownes it,[147] the manner being in reallyty the worst ~~house I saw~~ \ in the Town, / whose walls are clay & whose cover, Thatch – But that on [blank][148]

[Machell's Notes: I.664]

*{Consequences: som number of house more than at first.}

[I.663]

The village of Pooley* at the foote of Ulse-water \ which is the chief place in the manner of Barton[149] / taketh its name from being scituate near that Great poole \ or lake / And is a very sweet situation; haveing,

[142] MS: 'The village of Pooley \ ~~which is scituate~~ at the foot of Ulswater / which is the chief place in the Manner of Barton, taketh its name from being scituate ~~on the~~ nearer to that great poole, and doth but consist of [blank] families.'
[143] In the margin of the MS: {'which with the'}.
[144] See N&BI, 411.
[145] MS: 'and It is calld This place \ then / lying at the foote of the lake & head of the River which is called Emot from its isuing here out of the mote'.
[146] Here, a blot covers two words.
[147] MS: '~~which is~~ a scandal to that \ the / noble Lord who ownes it.'
[148] The narrative stops abruptly here.
[149] For an earlier draft see I.664.

besides its native Imbellishments of wood & water, a great accession of Borrowed Beauty from Dunmallard Hillin the County of Cumberland:[150] to which it is adjoynd by a \ Stone / Bridge,[151] where formerly was but a Stanke and a plake;[152] ~~which~~ serveing at once both for passage and fishing; and this was placed above the \ Stone / Bridge, not in the manner of a Diagonal (as the new one below) but like ~~the~~ 2 radij \ of a Circle / or Limbes of a Triangle \ tending to / meeting in the Center after this manner, \ /[153] as the remaneing Stones doe yet testify. And it tooke the name of Stanke: a stando from stanching, staying or stoping the water & makeing it stand, so that of old there was a place here calld Pooley Stanke‡. ~~The~~ But the Village it self seemeth to be of Later Erection, the people at first flocking together; either for promoteing the fishing trade or perhaps for vending them.

[Machell's Notes: I.663]

{Pooley gave name to a family.}
*{Sold free 6 or 7 years since by my Lord of Sussexs. i.e. from services & arbitrary fines, to a peppercorn. But Eller Beck, Woodside, above Pooley, was ancient free-hold. Query: if any part of the manors of Barton below the church.}[154]
⸸{Query: what more.}
‡{The proprietors of the New Stanke are – Mr Hudelston of Hutton John in Cumberland; Will Smith of Bower banke, now keeper of Martindale.}
{Beneath Pooley, i.e. Ab Ecclesia, families 11 or 12. In Pooley, families 16 or 17. Above Pooley families 15.}

[I.661]

In Pooley [blank] above Pooley 13 families ~~and~~ they are all lately (except 2 or 3 not of ability) purchased into a sort of freedom & for which they pay~~e~~d 30 years rent to the now Earle of Sussex, for which they are exempt from al Service except Suit of Court, paying only their old rent to their Lord & a Pepercorne in the name; which saves them (being in the nature of Tenancy) from serving in the County Court.
{This water affords – Chars, Skellyes,[155] Troutes, Gray troutes a yard long and as much about Perch, which they call Bass, Eales but not large, for the channel is Stone and Gravel.[156]
The Duck and Mallards build & bread: Lough ducks, \ black / Scaroes[157] & \ gray / Cormorands, Teales & widgeons do frequent.

[Machell's Notes: I.661]

(The story of Lord Whartons at Onbur in Bucks not far from Wickam.)[158]

[150] Dunmallard or Dunmallet, see 1.666.
[151] See N&BI, 411.
[152] Plank.
[153] Here, Machell has drawn two lines.
[154] This margin comment is partly obscured by the binding.
[155] 'Skelly': The freshwater herring. OED.
[156] See a similar list in N&BI, 407.
[157] 'Black scaroes'. Possibly the European Shag, known in Orkney and Shetland as the Scarfie. It is part of the cormorant family. See M. Cocker and R. Mabey, Birds Britannica (London, 2005), 38.
[158] Thomas Wharton (1648-1715), 1st marquess of Wharton, was a son of the puritan Philip 4th Baron Wharton. An MP for seventeen years (1679-96), Thomas Wharton used his first years as MP to encourage Whig opposition to James II's government. Before the Glorious Revolution he was in close contact with army officers, including his brother Captain Henry Wharton, who were conspiring against James. He spent his early life at Upper Winchendon, a Wharton estate in Buckinghamshire, continuing to live there even after inheriting manors in Buckinghamshire, Yorkshire, Cumberland and Westmorland. Machell, a staunch Tory and defender of the Church of England, was not a fan of the Whartons (see Editor's Introduction) so, here, he was probably referring to Thomas Wharton's scandalous youth. Before his first marriage (1673), Wharton was challenged to a duel by a disappointed rival … and lost. In June 1682, Wharton, his brother Henry and some friends were entertained at Bray House in Great Barrington, Gloucestershire. One night, 'after several hours of drinking, the group broke into St Mary's parish church where they rang the bells, cut the bell ropes, broke the cover of the font and the desk of the pulpit, and ripped the church Bible. Then, as the actions (to paraphrase Wharton's later apology) grew worse in the execution than they had been in the design, the revellers relieved themselves in the church. They might have contrived other enormities if the clangour of the bells had not brought out an unamused crowd of villagers who chased them back to Bray House.' J. Kent Clark, 'Wharton, Thomas, first marquess of Wharton, first marquess of Malmesbury, and first marquess of Catherlough (1648-1715), politician'. ODNB.

[I.666][159]

[Dunmallet]

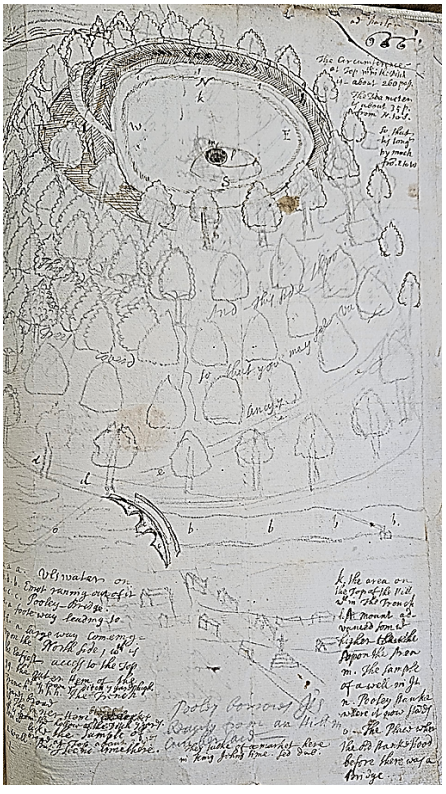

Figure 1.5.13. Dunmallet, Pooley, 'Bridge' and Machell's notes. I.666.

The circumference at Top within the Ditch is about 260 passes. The diameter is about 35 p[asses] from N. to S. so that 'tis longer by much from E. to W.
[Left] This side Thick with Trees coverd. [Right] And – This side thin so that you may see vacencyes.

[Key to the Plan]

aaa. Ulswater on [which Dunmallet stands.]
bbb. Emot running out of it.
ccc. Pooley-Bridge.
e. foote way leading to
ff. a large way comeing upon the North Side, which is the easyest access to the Top.
gg. the Outer Hem of the Trench \ which is from the ditch 7 yards high. /
hhh. The Trench 6 yards broad.
iii. The Inner Hem, which is from the hollow of the Ditch 7 yards;[160] joyned like the sample of a wall \ broad at Top about 3 yards. / But I see no lime there.
k. The area on the Top of the Hill within the Trench.
l. A mount advanced somewhat higher than the S. upon the Area.
m. The Sample of a well in it.
n. Pooley Stanke where it now stands.
o. The Place where the old Stanke stood before there was a Bridge.

[159] Most of the sketch of Dunmallet is in pencil: only the hill's top ditch and the bridge have been inked.
[160] MS: 'The Inner Hem \ ~~broad it~~ / ~~which looks~~ which is from the hollow of the Ditch 7 yards.'

Pooley borrows its beauty from an hill in Cumberland – They talke of a market here in King Johns time, sed dub.[161]

{Trostermont}[162]

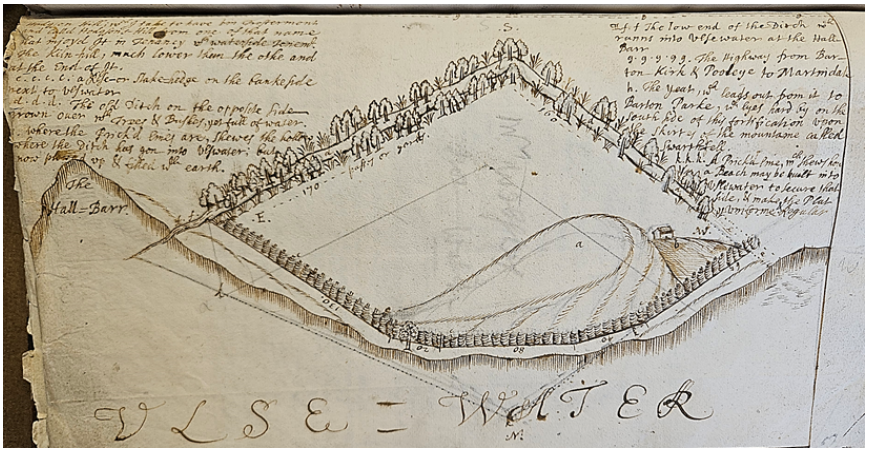

Figure 1.5.14. Sketch of Trostermount, now called Hodgson's Hill, Pooley. I.692.

[I.690]

Bearing ancient and Noble fortifications \ a sight of which I here present you / called Trostermont, or Tristermount; ~~from Tristra~~ {where I could wish a fair manor house, if not rather ~~on~~ bearing upon Dunmallet, tho out of the County. If there be water (as there formerly seemes to have bin) by the sample of a well on the very top of it, I know a great difficulty may be opposd that it is inaccesab[le]; but that might be helpd by a Skew walke or passage, which would make it at once both delightfull & Easy. \ There being / however most excellent gravel, Tristermont may be restored with about as much facility – the ditches thereof being mostly open & yet filled with water – and might be reduced to a Regular ~~near it~~ Platforme by build[ing] a beach[163] into Ulswater where the pricked [line] standeth.}[164]

[I.692][165]

Hodgson Hill, which I take to have bin Trostermont and calld Hodgsons-Hill from one of that name that injoyd it in Tenancy with Waterside Tenement.[166]
The Kiln-hill, much lower than the othe[r] and at the End of it.

c.c.c.c.	A Rise – or Stake-hedge on the bankeside next to Ulswater.
d.d.d.d.	The old Ditch on the opposite Side – grown over with Trees & Bushes, yet full of water.
e.e.	where the prick'd lines are, shewes the hollow where the ditch has gon into Ulswater; but now plowed up & filled with earth.

[161] 'But I doubt it.'
[162] Named Trostermosit or Triestmont on 17th-century maps, and also Hodgson's Hill: OS Map Grid Reference, NY46402332. There are earthwork remains. Gale Bay Moat, Barton, has been described as a probable fortified manor house; a moated site is mentioned in a 14th-century marriage settlement by Sir W. Strickland on his son Thomas. The site is also extant on Machell's plan, above. It consists of a triangular area of five acres with its base on the lake facing NW and its two sides isolated from the mainland by an obtuse angled ditch, 10 yds wide and 894 yds long, with the ends entering the lake: http://www.gatehouse-gazetteer.info/English%20sites/4653.html
[163] MS: Beech: see I.692.
[164] See note k. on the plan above.
[165] Compass points and the measurements in paces are given at the corners; in the centre of the sketch there is a pencilled comment, 'Mr Websters not wa' [the rest is illeg.] Thomas Webster, a steward at Barton Manor Court, was one of Machell's informants.
[166] Waterside Tenement is a farm, now called Waterside House. It is about half a mile south of Hodgson's Hill. See Ordnance Survey 1st edn (1859-1863) Westmorland, sheet VII.

f.f. The low end of the Ditch which runns into Ulsewater at the Hall-Barr.
g.g.g.g.g. The Highway from Barton Kirke & Pooleye to Martindale.
h. The yeat,[167] which leads out from it to Barton Parke, which lyes hard by on the South Side of this fortification upon the skirtes of the mountaine called Swarth-Fell.
k.k.k. A Prick'd line, which shews how a Beach may be built into Ulsewater to secure that Side, & make the Plat uniforme \ & / Regular.

[I.715C]

I could recommend this place to my Lord \ for antiquityes sake / to Build a Manor House upon;[168] or ~~any where~~ \ som other / near to the church \ & / fronting Eastwards, for so it would have a dilicate prospect of that woody vale on the Bankes of Emote. But if there be water, as there seemeth ~~to~~ have bin a well, on the Top of Dun Mallard, tho out of the Lordship – That! with a skew walke …[169]

[I.690]

This Tristermount is thought to have taken its denom[ination] from Tristra – one of King Arthurs Knights ~~as is believed~~, and therefore the rather, because the Round Table – of which order he was – \ is / in this parish – concerneing which I shal speake more fully in ~~it proper place~~ the Manor of Yanewath. Yet this place I confess[170] is now commonly /calld Hodaston Hill. & \ there is / a Tenement near ~~it calld~~ \ thereunto / which bears the name of Tristermont.[171] But the Reason of both may \ seem to / be this: that Tristermont was the 1st Tenement erected thereabout, ~~which might take its~~ \ & tooke that / name from its vicinity to this fortification. And Waterside-Tenement being perhaps \ at first / a part \ or parcel / of it (as tis onely now divided ~~at present~~ \ from it / with a ~~thin~~ slender rise Hedge;[172] or however \ being / a New Improvement[173] by the water side\ and near thereunto, / this hill might be called Hodgsons Hill \ in after Times / from som of that name being owner of it; and the first built House \ might still / retaine the old name of Tristermont tho the Hill had lost it. And this diserves the \ greater / regard, because it is thought to have that name.

But to put the question quite [out] of dout: There is no likelyhood that such a ~~single~~ \ smal / Tenement should be rema[r]ked by all Geographers as Tristermont we alwayes finde is; there must be som mount extraordinary in it & there is no Hill of Note hereaboutes excepting this, which might bear \ challenge / that name ~~or give this denomination~~ as haveing ~~som~~ \ any / resemblance \ & likeness / of a Mount \ or fort. And that which makes it more Remarquable is it[s] scituation on the Banke of Ulswater & its fortification on the other side of it; ~~as you may see in the platform~~ \ into which the water might be / easily rased, as it certanely was with the old Stanke at Stanke, which stood a good[174] above. Nor is this all.

[I.691]

For our English word Town \ certanely / cometh ~~from~~ \ of / the Saxon word Tuwne \ (& so the lawmen yet pronounce it) / which signifyes an Hedge; \ quae in principio sepibus pro muris uterentur;[175] / and was not anciently taken when (as now \ it is /) in a strict sense for a Number of Houses standing together in neighbour row, but for any improvements ~~enclosed~~ with Houses built on them, being in the Liberty of a Manor or Lordship \ Township; / for what is How-Town (hard by in Martindale) but 2 or 3 Houses with inclosures about them? Thus, in Ireland, if they build ~~a farme~~ \ but an / House, with necessaryes \ to it / at a Countrey farme,[176] they call it a Towne: as Garyes Towne, Machels Towne \ & many others / near to Ardale Sc.

[167] Gate: see the English Glossary.
[168] Machell was referring to the earl of Sussex, lord of Barton.
[169] The end of the sentence is obscured by the binding.
[170] MS: 'Yet this place ~~is commonly, I must confess~~ \ I ~~must~~ confess'.
[171] MS: '~~Is called Tristermout by reason of the former objection may probably be that waterside tenement wherein his mount stand might first be taken up by one Hodgson having layd in common & at large before~~.'
[172] 'Rise' is a dialect word for underwood, brushwood or thorns: Joseph Wright, The English Dialect Dictionary (London, 1898-1905), 5, 126; see Machell MS.I.692.
[173] Newly enclosed land.
[174] Words here have perished.
[175] 'which in earliest times they used as fences in place of walls.'
[176] 'Necessaryes': things that are indispensable, essential or requisite [as, in this case, farmbuildings etc.]. OED.

[I.693A][177]

Now the Reasons why I conclude this place to be Trostermount (for so the Countrey peple call it, & not Crostermou[n]t as writt in the maps) are these that follow –

1. Because there [is] no other mount to be found hereaboutes; nor near to the Tenement calld by that name excepting this onely.
2. Because this is nex adjoyneing to the House & Tenement which is calld Trostermount, being only divided by a stick hedge. & is no more but a single Cott – not worth the notice of a Geographer.
3. Because this Waterside Tenement may be ergo supposed, either to have formerly layd in common at the side of \ the water adjoyneing / this Tenement calld Trostermount \ and gave the name to it, / or to have bin part & parcell of it; being till this day only divide by a \ slender / Rise[178] dike.
4. This may seeme to have bin the Site of the Hall or manor house till let in Tenancy; from the water adjoyneing called Hall barr & from its vicinity to Barton Parke which is still the chief parcell of the Demaine.
6.[179] \ & why / this Bar might give name [to] Hall Bar: a Landing Place, Creeke or Nib of water att the Hall gates – so Barr is so used in the city of Yorke B. where their principal strong and great gates are all called Barrs as Bowder Bar &c.}

Why might not Barton be so called ~~so~~ of old quasi opidum ad Barram, \ as the Heralds speake; / as much as to say the Towne near the Barr, before Pooley was builded & tooke its name from \ the scituation at the poole.[180] /

[I.671B]

T. Webster, Senescallus Curiae,[181] informes me that there were at Tristermount 3 Tenements anciently, Sc. {?} Nether Tristermont (? where the Mount Standeth): Farther Tristermont, a little above, and Crookedike Tenement adjoyneing to them, which were injoy'd by Customary Tenants belonging to Graystock Castle in Cumberland, till they were exchangd for other tenaments in the Barony of Graystock which did belong to the Lord of this manor. And upon that reason, the Rents, which the said \ 3 Tenements / pay to the Lord of Barton, are calld by the name of Arundell Rents, because they formerly did appertaine to the Earle of Arundel, whose Armes are Gules, a lyon rampant and with caud[182] inflexed Or; which you may see amongst the Armes over the Altar in Barton Church at Fig. 1.[183]

[I.696][184]

Winder

There are 2 Winders, the High \ of which in Sockbridge / and the Low \ Winder / ~~both which~~ \ of which in this place. They both / may seem to have bin one manner; but now they are so divided an Parcelld into other Lordships where they answer Court doing Suit & Service, that there ~~now~~ remaneth but 5 or 6 familyes ~~one~~ \ 2 / of which ~~is a~~ \ are / ratable freholds, in that which wee call the Manner of Winder (commonly Low-Winder,) where the Hall standeth. It is a pretty good dwelling House, ~~but far from any regularity~~; S. from the church about a Mile ~~distance~~; & the few \ Customary / Tenants it hath are all of 'em arbitrary. Adam Airay, Doctor in Divinity & Principal of Edmund Hall in Oxford, who built the Tower there, & the Great house over against the Angel; was born at a Tenement over the Sike, standing West from the Hall. about a Stonecast.[185]

[177] This page consists of a scrap piece pasted onto a larger page; it contains text running in four directions and intertwined.
[178] MS: 'Rese.'
[179] Point 5 does not appear.
[180] A further phrase in the MS appears to be 'being scituated at the Poole of […]': the last word is illegible because it is squashed between two lines of text going in opposite directions.
[181] Steward of Barton manor court.
[182] Tail.
[183] See I.671-73, above.
[184] I.693B contains rough sketches, scored through.
[185] An earlier MS note [I.655B] provides similar information.

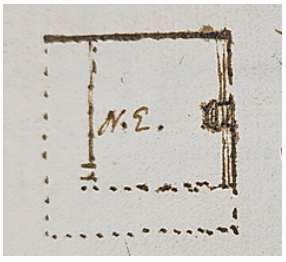

Figure 1.5.15. Sketch Plan of Winder Hall. I.696.

It came to the Davises (as I am told) by purchase (not long agoe) from \ one of / the Stricklands \ whose Armes wee finde placed over the Altar at Fig. 7.[186] / which purchase was made by Mr John Davis, a Master of Art's & som times Schoolmaster of the free Grammer School of Blenkow in Cumberland; {who [blank] Lancelot new builded the house as appears by these Letters above the Hall doer –

LAVS DEO
L.D. AD. 1612.
{? = to Lancaster}

whose descendants are marshalld in the following Pedegree. And now it belongs to Mr John Davyes whose pedigree followeth.

Mr John Davyes
William Davyes of Winder = [Blank] d. of Dr Dawes of Barton Kirk
William Davyes of Winder Obijt 1674 = Elianore d. of Christopher Teasdale of Knipe-hall
[1] William, infans [2] Annas, infans 1689

c. Mr Dobson Steward of Sockbridge[187]

{This place I doubt not, but as it gave name to, so it might belong to a family of the Winders – one of which I finde witness at a Deed Anno 4^0 ~~years in the time of Ed.~~ Richard 2. [1380-1381] of John de Dufton, Chaplain to Eleanore, relict of William de Wibergh, & by the name of Gilbert de Windergh.[188]

[Machell's Notes: I.696]
{In High Winder} q[uery] {115 families vix credo.}[189]
{There are 3 houses in Winder at a place calld Celron; which do Suit and Service at Sockbridge Hall.}

[I.715C]

Low Winder: a manor \ ab Ecclesia S. 1 mile / V or VI families of which 2 are Rateable freeholds. The rest Arbitrary to Mr Will. Davis of Low-Winder Hall, who has a demane belonging unto it.[190] It came to the Davise's, by purchase made from the Stricklands as tis say'd by Mr John Davis a Master of Arts & Schoolmaster of Blenkow.

[186] An identical note has been written in pencil beneath this information and also in the margin. For Figure 7, see I.673, above.
[187] 'With Mr Dobson, keeper of the pedigree.'
[188] The last line of this sentence is obscured by the binding.
[189] 'There are 115 families in High Winder: I scarcely believe it.'
[190] See also I.696.

[I.698]

Martindale {Val Sancti Martini}[191]

{Chappel south-west ab Ecclesia}[192]

Figure 1.5.16. Sketch of Martindale Chapel; its dimensions in paces: l[ength] 22, b[readth] 6, and its bell. I.698.

The manner of Martindale, which semeth so called either from the plenty of Martes that were in it or from an old chaple they have in that place dedicate to St Martyn;[193] which standeth S.W. from the Parish church about 5 \ miles.[194] / {It differs little from a Barne but in the Seates, a Bell hanging at the W. End of it, & a Standing Stone instead of a Font, upon which they place a Bason of water when they Christen their children.} It is a Low and old fashond Building with one bell in it – \ & hath neither a Porch, Ile, nor Piller / simplicitas formae antiquitatis.[195] Nota.

[The Chapel Reader. Narrative I.][196]
~~And here~~ There \ is / little remarquable in or about it, but a neat chappel yard; which by the peculiar care & Industry of one old gentleman \ Sir Richard[197] / the Reader, is kept as clean & neat as a bowling-green; in which particular he is so very \ extreamly / curiouse, that he will not suffer a mole to cast in it but setting all other occasions appart \ aside / he will watch & kill her with his own hand: & if his Cow (which doth sometimes g\r/aze there) leaveing any excrements \ unseamly thing / behinde her, he will take care to remove it him selfe with al possible diligence. And it is his practice every Monday, by times in the morneing, to goe round about the chaple-yard with an hammer in his hand; & if he spies a Stone or a Slate out of due course, or faln down by accident, he will presently mend it; In so much, that the people have not bin troubled with any repares in that stormy place (though they owne the ~~expenses~~ \ charge / to belong to themselves) in \ the compass of 50 or / 60 years ~~compass~~. Heu Pietas! Heu Prisca Fides![198] Within the limits of myne owne memory, all Readers in chappels were called Sirs, and of old have bin writ so, as whence I suppose such of the Laity as received the Noble Order of Knight \ hood / being called Sirs too, [191] The valley of St Martin.

[192] Machell is describing Martindale Old Church at the foot of Howe Grain, which was rebuilt c. 1633 (Hyde & Pevsner, 513), south-west of the hause. At the top of the hause stands Martindale New Chapel (St Peter's), built 1880-2: Hyde & Pevsner, 512.
[193] MS: '~~N. West from the church a Court [?] miles lyeth~~. The manner of Martindale, which semeth so called, either from the plenty of Martes that ~~are~~ were In In it; or from an old chaple they have in that manner \ place / dedicate to St Martyn.' St Martin (316/336-8 November 397), was the third bishop of Tours. Feast Day (Martinmas) 11 November.
[194] From the parish church of Barton.
[195] 'The simplicity of an ancient form.'
[196] A note relating to the reader on MS.I.699 reads, '{The Reader} He hath a Little house and a Garth belonging it with a stipend of about 6li per annum, laid upon the tenements.'
[197] Richard Birkett, curate of Martindale, 1633-99; see his tombstone in Martindale Churchyard, 'He dyed on the 25th of December in the 95th year of his age anno Domini 1699.' Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 2, 1232.
[198] 'Alas devotion! Alas old-fashioned faith!'

[William Nicolson's Note]

{An additional Note of Bishop Nicolson}

{for Since I can remember there was no't a Reader in any Chappel but was called Sire of old. there were …}[199]

[I.700]

for distinctions sake had Knight writ after them, which had bin superfluous if the Title of Sir ~~were~~ \ had bin / peculiar \ as it seemeth to be now / to them alone. {Here understand me, in English only; for in Latine the word Dominus being proper to a Lord Knight & Gentleman, the word Miles, or Eques, is added for distinctions sake. & to very good purpose.}

But now this Sir Richard is the only Knight-Templar, if I may so call him, that retaines the old stile; \ which / being in other places much \ laid aside and / grown out of use.

{Indowment: Richard Birket the Reader ætat. circiter 74.[200] A great benefactor.}

The ancient Stipend which belong'd to this chappel was XX nobles yearly,[201] out of which Sir Richard has thriven so well that in my Lord Bishop Ranebowes time[202] he was able and willing to give to this Chaple as an Augmentation of the Readers Sallary 100[li] ~~which is well secured~~. And hereupon he got the chappel and for the performance of parochial rights as Chrisening & Burying;[203] the mother Church still receiveing the foes as if they continued to performe them there; and for this Ease which he has procurd them, they gave \ him / allso a little smal fee (of I know not what) \ upon these occasions / besides the Vicars dues & dutyes. ~~And~~ The Chaplaine here is alwayes put in by the Viccars appointment or approbation. {And they may afford him a good reward, for while they buryed their dead at Barton, every Tenant com that would; man & wife, had 3d a piece for attending the Corps, payd in hand at the church stile: which was a great charge to the poorer sorte.}[204]

Figure 1.5.17. Martindale Chapel Plan. I.655B.

[199] This is a margin comment titled, 'An additional note by Bishop Nicolson'. Nicolson clearly intended his interpolation to extend Machell's text, which has a pencilled note below it (still in Machell's hand), which reads, 'But was called Sir – and of old [blank].' Part of Machell's text above the interpolation has been given a pricked line to show dissatisfaction with it, suggesting that Nicolson intended his interpolation to clarify Machell's statement.

[200] 'Aged about 74' when he gave the endowment. According to Birkett's will, the £100 was given by a deed dated 1682: see Richard Birkett 1699, CAC(C), PROB/1699/WX6.

[201] £6 13s 4d.

[202] Edward Rainbow: bishop of Carlisle from 1664 until his death in 1684: Weston, Carlisle Cathedral History, 142.

[203] In 1682, Richard Birkett petitioned Bishop Rainbow for the enclosure and consecration of Martindale churchyard; in 1683, another petition requested right of burial. See CAC(C), DRC5.5, a Petition and Instrument of Consecration. The first mention of this church, which was even then an established landmark, is in a deed of gift from William de Lancaster to his half brother Roger de Lancaster of the Forest of Martindale that can be dated between 1220 and 1247: DLons.L5/1/BR/12. Box 451. See also F.W. Ragg, 'de Lancaster', *CW2,*10 (1910), 395-494, at 436-37. It has been assumed that Richard Birkett rebuilt the chapel in 1633, the year in which the Baptism Register for Martindale was also begun; but Machell writes of repair rather than rebuilding, which suggests that the chapel might have been rebuilt before Birkett's induction. There is no mention of the rebuilding in the inscription on Birkett's tomb in the graveyard; neither did Birkett mention rebuilding it when he built a wall at his own expense to enclose the Martindale churchyard before applying to the Bishop (see above) for the consecration of the churchyard and the right of burial there. Birkett highlighted the building of a wall in his petition to the Bishop, who referred to it in his reply (and had even ascertained its dimensions): CAC(C), DRC 5/5. Act Book 1682-92. If Birkett highlighted the building of the churchyard wall, how much more would he have made of rebuilding the chapel? This information owes much to the late Jane Penman's research for her book, A History of the Martindale Churches: their Pastors and their Flocks (forthcoming).

[204] 'Charge': the meaning here relates to importance or weight, as in 'having a charge of money about me'. OED.

[I.655B]

[The Chapel Reader. Narrative II.]
Martindale Chaple:[205] and old Chaple, remarkable only for the neat keeping of the ch[apel] & chapel yard the heredat[206] of which is to be given to the present Reader; whom they call Sir Richard according to the ancient Stile of the Northern Countrey, who till of late all wayes gave to their Chaplanes & Reader the Title of Sir fixed to their names. But he is now the onely Knight Templar (I may so call them) that is left in the Countrey still reteneing that Title.[207] He is so neat \ & curiouse / ~~about the chaple In & chapl yard~~, that will suffer a slate to fall downe but he putts up with his owne hands; & every Monday in the morning, he goes round ~~& round the chaple yard~~; \ the walls /~~&~~ with an Hammer in his hand & if \ he findes / a stone\ ~~be~~ / out of place or falne \ down / by accident; he mends it himself, \ which is deemd [his] own[208] in so much that the People have not been troubled with any repare. /
If a mole cast in it, he never cieses to watch and attendes till she be taken; & if his cow which grasses som times in the Chaple yard, doe dung therein, he perfectly minde to sweep it away. Hie has served the place [blank] years; and tho his salary, all things considered be by X X [blank][209] – he is growne so rich of it as to be a considerable benefactor [to] the ~~sed~~ Chaple & those that shall succeed him ~~in it;~~ \ there, / having got it consecrated for buriing &c. to with[in] a yard of the chappel walls, for the ease of the people, & left for ever 6^{li} as an augmentation of the sallary for the comfort of the succeding Readers: & the mother church is no way damaged, for the people are bound to pay their full dues for burial &c. as the[y] did.

Machell's Notes: I..655b & I.656]
{*By Mr Dobson & Tho. Atkinson his shepherd, called the prince of shepherds by Mr Lancaster of Hartsop.}
{? sayes there is gle[n] Co in the higlands}[210]
{1 koyn is most on a corner stone.}[211]

[I.704]

[The Chapel Reader. Narrative III.]
The Readers Sallary
He hath a little House by & a Garth or Yard belonging unto it; & 4 dayes mowing which is meeted out – that is to say
In Corneholme 1.[212]
In Wholl Acre 1.
In the Rigg 1.
In Hall-How 1. {ergo an Hall}![213]
All which, with a Rentcharge of eighteen pence got \ of / every Tenement of 10^{sh} Rent; & so proportionably out of other Houses, amountes to XX nobles per Annum.[214]

[I.710]

The Descent of the Manner[215]
This Martindale was of late years in the Hands of Sir Thomas Sandford of Howgil, who had a lease of it from [blank]

[I.671B]

!!! Martindale – in 4 quarters[216]

---

[205] Below the heading is a struck-through plan of Martindale chapel.
[206] 'Heredat', an abbreviated form of 'hereditat': 'he inherits'; in this case, the bishop's grant to Birkett to minister at the chapel.
[207] Knights Templar: see Part 1, Ch.14, Kirkby Thore, I.482-83, I.485.
[208] Problematical interlineation here makes 'deemd' and 'own' unsafe as transcriptions.
[209] See Narrative III: 20 Nobles.
[210] Margin near top LH: very damaged.
[211] Written in the top RH margin.
[212] 1 day.
[213] The potential site of a manor house.
[214] Noble: An English gold coin first minted by Edward III, usually valued at 6s. 8d. (half a mark). OED.
[215] A crossed-through note (MS.I.715A) gives, '~~Martindale – query if a manner. The Earle of Sussex~~'
[216] MS.I.671B. Rough notes here are as follows: '1. Howgrane where the chaple at the foot of which by Ulswater Side is an Hamlet of about 9 or 10 famili[e]s called in Speed Cronicle the City of Sandwike. With the 2nd 4^{r}. 3. At a Ground,

[I.700]

Martindale is divided into 4 Quarters:

1. Howgrane, in which {the Chappel standeth and wherein Dr Dawes was borne, at a little Tenement called Maud-Slack \ West a Capella / now sold to the Lancasters: He was wontt in his childe hood, to goe unto the hill against which his \ house / standeth & cast ~~little~~ stones downe the chimney into the pot, with several other roguesh tricks; an unhappy boy – but made a good man.[217] {¾ N.W.}
And [Howgrane] hat[h] [blank] families in it, most of them being of the same Tenure with the Tenants of Barton. But the purchase was hard on their sides because before that they payed but only a 2d fine within the forrest & a 4 penny fine in all other parts of the manner; & yet the purchase was at 30 years rent.[218]

{2. Sandwike, at the foote of Howgrane, and by Ulswaterside \ N.W. a Capella ¾; / an Hamlet consisting of about X families, which they will needs say is calld in Speeds Cron, the City of Sandwike; but, there is no place here for a City to stand on.

{3. The 3rd is a Grane[219] which runs South out of Sandwike & is called Bowerdale[220] from at west ½ mile.}

[I.699]

4. The fowerth is Fusedale \ N. a Capella 1 mile / which runns up Southwards by Fusedale-beck to the spring-head S.E. from the Chapel 1 mile ½.

[1.700]

I cannot finde any vestigia of a manner house; \ unless Hall-how may direct me to one at the Dale head / the keeper house ~~forresters~~ being the best, which doth belong to the Earle of Sussex. But there were Gentlemen of the name of Martindale to whom this Coate of Armes did belong[221] \ at Fig. 1. / ~~But the c~~ as likewise of the name of Browne as by this Coate \ at Figure 2. / & the names stil remane &c.[222] But the Chief Estate which I can finde did belong to the~~m~~ \ Brownes / here, in this Place. A Tenement of about 10li per Annum called Thrang-Cragg S.W. from the Chapel ¼ of a mile. But they were forresters also & ergo possibly might be Gentlemen, transplanted hither upon that occasion from som other place. Perhaps from Matterdale, for to them this Coat of Arms did belong.[223]

S. out of Sandwik called Bowerdale strike S. wardes up to […] 4. Fusedale which ~~joynes~~ runns \ up / by Fusedale Beck S. which springs […] ~~Swarth beck~~. E. a Capella […].' I.699-700 contains the finished version.

[217] MS I.699 reiterates: '1. – made a Good man.'

[218] MS: 'But the purchase was hard on their sides ~~as~~ because, \ before that / they payed but \ only / a 2d fine within the forrest, & a 4 penny fine in \ all other / parts of the manor ~~without it~~; & yet the~~y~~ ~~payd~~\urchase was at / 30 y rent.'

[219] Grane: 'An offshoot, branch; an arm (of a cross)': Dictionaries of the Scots Language, Online.

[220] Boredale.

[221] The Martindale arms are quartered by Musgrave on a shield carved above the entrance to Johnby Hall, dated 1583, with the names William Musgrave and (his wife) Isabel Martendal. See CFH, 222.

[222] These figures are somewhat obscured by the binding; see below.

[223] Christopher Browne of Matterdale was buried there in 1677. His arms, Argent three bars Gules over all a bend Azure, see CFH, 42. Machell mentions James Browne of Martindale: a captain in Oliver Cromwell's army (I.630, Brougham). This family's part in the Civil War is described in gossipy terms by James Clarke in A Survey of the Lakes of Cumberland, Westmorland, and Lancashire (Penrith, 1787), 36-37: 'At How-Town was born James Brown, who, being obliged to fly his country for deer stealing, entered the army under Cromwell, and was by him soon advanced to the rank of captain: He made himself very acceptable to the Usurper, by taking prisoner Sir Timothy Featherstonhaugh at the battle of Worcester. The same Brown had a brother named Richard, whose son James likewise served under Cromwell. Richard, however, being loyal, that he might prevent any others of his sons from entering the service of the parliament, sold How-Town, and purchased a customary tenement at Knott, in the manor of Water-Millock.' The book is described as mixture 'of hearsay and legend … allowing Clarke to expound his often-fanciful theories on their authenticity and their origins.' See https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/sites/default/files/westmorland_case_study.pdf, Appendix 1B. If there were two Roundhead family members named James Browne, the family position of the James Browne under discussion on I.630 (Brougham) is not made clear.

Figure 1.5.18. Coats of Arms: Martindale family and Browne of Matterdale. Margin of I.700.

[Machell's Notes: I.700

{Note. 6 bridges repared by themselves.}

[I.654A]

[Martindale Forest]

In the forrest of Martindale there are Tenants bound to assist the Lord in hunting & turne the read Deere on the Tops of the mountains into the forests; whom they call strones,[224] & have for their paines xiii[d] every iiij in drinke &c.[225] They appear upon summons; & if they doe not, they are fineable for it at the Court Baron.

[I.698]

{The Tenants payed a rent of 2s per annum for meal to feed their Lords dogs wherewith they hunted & killed their marts.}

[I.699]

The forrest is bounded about with walls; and is well replennished with ~~a~~ large ~~sort of~~ Read-dear, as also with Goates; & there are ~~also~~ in it Brocks, Martes, & Wildecats, which yield Sport to the Hunters; but none to the Shepherds.

There is a place in the midle Bannerdale called Lords Seat (a chair of stone on the Top an Hill) S. by West 2 miles from the Chappel. And hear they say the Lords usd to sitt & see their greyhounds course the read Deere.

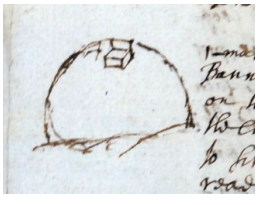

Figure 1.5.19. Lord's Seat, Bannerdale. I.699.

[224] Strones: Nicolson and Burn and the OED derive the meaning of this word entirely from Machell; i.e. 'In Martindale Forest, Westmorland, one of the tenants bound to assist the lord in hunting and turning back deer to the forest'. OED, and see N&BI (410-11), which quotes Machell almost verbatim. This meaning might have sprung from its Scottish form: 'a strone (also stron) is a headland or promontory, especially one that ends a range or ridge of hills, a snub of land'; as in, 'Bold Tushilaw, o'er strone and steep, Pursues the roe and dusky deer.' Dictionaries of the Scots Language. Online.

[225] The numbers appear to be XIII, and iiij (13 and 4), but in N&BI the numbers given are 8 and 4. See N&BI, 411. Machell's representation of 'X 'resembles 'V'; perhaps he made a hurried correction.

[I.704]

The Tenants of Martindale tho Customary were at a fine certaine before their purchase.[226] For those in the forrest were only lyable to a Two penny fine – i.e. for every penny \ rent / they payed 2d, & those which were out of the precincts of it payed a fowerpenny fine And they \ generally / payed ~~moreover~~ a certain rent of 2s per Annum which was called meal silver, for feeding the Dogs which their Lords usd to keep to kill their marts withal.

[I.671B]

[Martindale: Rarities in Nature]

[1. The Great Thunder Shower]

The great Thunder Shower 2 or 3 Briggs & a Barne […][227] foundation & all at Sandwike*.[228]
{This till of late (& all Sussex's Estate puto} was in the Crown. i. Sir Thom. Sandford of Howgill Castle had a Lease for Lives of it, jurae uxoris.[229]

[I.699]

*Yet this ~~wee must grant~~ \ must be granted – / That it is no so great as it has bin formerly, for the great Thunder Shower in [Sandwick] ~~besides 2 or 3 bridges~~ demolished a Barne 12 yardes long which stood in this place, & swept away the very foundation of it with 2 or 3 Bridges of Considerable Strength north from hence about ½ a mile.

{At Hellin-Hag by the side Ulswater is an hollow place in the rock like a pott, which (for the most part) hath water in it.[230] It is about a yard in diameter, and as much in depth↓; at the head of which[231] springs Bowerdale Beck W. from the Chappel about a mile.}

[2. Juniper]

On the Top of Pless Fell[232] 3 miles West from the Chaple & said to be in the Libertyes of Martindale, Juniper groweth – And underneath it on Patterdaleside are IX or X familyes, arbitrary Tenants to the E. of Sussex – q[uery] which chaple they use to Bury at &c.

[I.704]

[3. Tarns and wild fowl]

In Martindale there are diverse Tarnes: as Angle Tarne, where Gravyes,[233] Sheldrakes and Seamaws[234] breed; ~~upon whose young ones~~ the Eagles in sommer do frequently prey \ upon the young Seamaws / haveing little or no regard to the old ones. {The like in Ulswater.} Another Tarne on the Top of \ Great / Dod‡ which hath no fish in it but is a refreshment to the wild beasts & is a refuge for wild foole.
There is also great store of Green and Gray plovers & mooregame in it:[235] & ~~also~~ Fieldfairs at the time of the year. But there is scarce a Tree to be seen or heard of in it, unless it be a little Shrub Ewe which growes here

---

[226] 'Before their purchase of the freehold.'
[227] Several words here are obscured by the binding, but note the information on I.699.
[228] The two asterisks in these passeages were placed by Machell to join information placed on two separate pages, each relating to the effects of the thunder-storm at Sandwick.
[229] 'In the right of his wife.'
[230] Kailpot Crags?
[231] At the head of Boredale.
[232] Place Fell.
[233] Discussion of birds at Windermere in N&B1 (185), is as follows: 'Waterfowl in great plenty resort to this lake, especially in winter, such as Wild Swans, Wild Geese, Duck, Mallard, Teal, Widgeons, Didappers, Gravyes (which are larger than ducks, and build in hollow trees)...' This text has been taken from Machell, II.340. Regarding 'gravy', the following quotation is helpful: 'The Goosander is still called the ' Gravel-duck ' ('or gravy'…) on the shores of the English Solway. I believe that the name refers to the fact that this species often rests on scars of gravel in the bed of the estuary when the tide is out. It may include some further reference to the species obtaining trout in well-shingled pools in preference to a muddy bottom. At all events the Goosander is often called a Gravel-duck.' See H.A. Macpherson, A Vertebrate Fauna of Lakeland: including Cumberland and Westmorland with Lancashire North of the Sands (Edinburgh, 1892), 306.
[234] 'Seamew'. In the 17th century: 'sea-maw'. OED.
[235] In Martindale.

and there; & Juniper on the Top of Pless-fell W. from the Chappel 1 mile and ½; & som little plantations \ of ashes (or sicamoore trees) / about their dwellings.

{Quarries of Slate}
There is in Pless Fell \ al[ia]s Place Fell / W. from the Chappel about 2 miles ~~indifferent blew slate~~ indifferent good Slate of black blewrish colour ~~which by reason of Ulswater~~ \ by the side of Ulswater which by reason thereof / may be easily brought \ down / into the Countrey. The like ~~is also~~ at Brockcrag; but not so good neither so accessable (for the Countrey), because they Ly farther of from Ulswater \ Sc. a 2 mile and of / ~~are nearer the Chaple side being s.w. from it about 1 mile~~ \ S.W. from the chappel / yet may the[y] be of good use to the neighbourhood.

[I.699]

And at Banerdale within this forrest S.W. from the chappel 1 mile & ½, is a mine of [blank] discovered 9 inch thick; & I my selfe saw in Creüka-beck Wath in the way to Hartsop a veine of Lead-Spar, but in what Lordship I have not yet learned†.

[Machell's Notes I.699 & I.704]

[I.699]
†{? Q[uery] where it stands: what part}
[I.704]
‡{Many round topd fells of that name which are craggy, not picked like others: ergo Explane it.}

[I.706]

Patterdale {Vallis Sancti Patricij}

[Patterdale Chapel]

{St Patric's Well in the Demaine of Pat.}
The manner of Patterdale, Taketh Its name from the Chaple there, ~~dedicated~~ at the High end of Ulswater S.W. from the Church about 8 miles; which I take to be dedicated to St Patrick;[236] and therefore the Rather because There is (in the Highway to Penrith N. from the Chaple about 2 Bow Shots, and halfe as much from Patterdale Hall) a Curiouse Spring Covered ~~over~~ with a broad blew-Slate, and calld by the name of St Patrick's Well.

{Patterdale Chapel description}
This chappel being remote from the church; the weather sometimes very Tempestuous {& water unpassable at P[atterdale] S[pring]} \ may seem to have had Parochial rights from the very beginning. It hath little more of Elegance in it[237] than Martindale Chappel, save only \ a / porch ~~and a little~~ on the S. Side of it, & a little ~~outshut~~ quier \ shuttinge out / on the north ~~side of it~~; which apperteineth to Patterdale Hall and may seeme to bespeake the old proprietors \ possessors of that estate / if not founders \ of; / yet at the least the chiefe benefactours to \ this / ancient fabric.

{The Ew. Tree}
The Antiquity of which may in som part appear from an old Ewe-Tree (now much in decay) whose body extendeth almost to 4 fathem, & whose branches reacheth, in the diameter [blank]

[236] According to T.H.B. Graham and W.G. Collingwood, it is doubtful whether St Patrick was the true patron of some dedications in Carlisle diocese. Patterdale was more probably the 'dale of [a man named] Patrick [or Patraic]' [possibly of 10th century Norse-Irish descent], whence the dedication of the chapel and well. The dedication has also been attributed to St Swithun. T.H.B. Graham and W.G. Collingwood, 'Patron Saints of the Diocese of Carlisle', CW2, 25 (1925), 1-27 at 12, 15.
[237] MS: '{But hath little more in it} It hath little more of Elegance In It…'

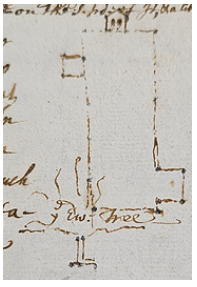

Figure 1.5.20. Sketch of Patterdale Chapel and yew tree. I.706.

{Cross}
But there is nothing else of Remarqe \ in or / about it save onely the fragments of an old cross, curiously-carved.

[I.725C]

Figure 1.5.21. Patterdale Chapel Plan. I.725C.

[Body of the chapel measures] 7 [paces N. to S.] 18 [E. to W.] 5.
[In the quire] Patterdale Hall [seats].
A Beam end with these figures, 1663. There has bin a Beautiful Cross in this place; as appears by a piece[238] which is neatly carved yet standing up; and another part of it lying in the Chaple.
Martindale chaple is yett a very ancient building as appears by an Ewe Tree at the west end of it now much in decay, whose body is near upon 4 fathom \ about. / And the Branches extend to 22 passes; which will make the Diameter of at lest 66 (a vast circumference for a Tree to spread) which stands at the S.E. corner of it.

{The Endowment}
What the ancient endowment of this chapel was, I can not learn; but it hath (now) belonging unto it a Piece of Glebe \ land / with ~~the~~ \ a / Third part of the Wool & Lamb & Easter booke in Patterdale onely, amounting in all to about 18^{li} per annum, for which he payes as an acknowledgement (and to Indemnify the mother church) 4^{li} per annum to the Vicar of Barton for the Time being; who is oblieged to preach at this chappel 4 Times a year. And they have a Sallary of 5^{li} per annum \ besides quarteridge[239] / payd by the neighbourhood out of a School Stock ~~besides quarteridge~~ to any one who shal be imploy'd as a School-master \ there; / which the reader also injoyeth \ himself, according to Canon[240] as an augmentation of his S[alary] / if he be in health & willing to Teach*.

[Machell's Notes: I.706]
About 60 families of which 3 are free but under rate. This must be in the whole.}
*{Richard Grisdale now master, the reader being sick.}[241]

[238] MS: 'Pieces'.
[239] Quarterage: payment made quarterly: a contribution, tax, or other charge paid by a person every quarter. OED.
[240] 'According to Canon Law': the 151 canons of the Church of England, 1604-1606. See https://www.anglican.net/doctrines/1604-canon-law/
[241] In the Commonwealth Survey of 1657, Peter Birkett, ordained in 1623, is listed as the reader at Patterdale; he held the living until his death in 1671/2. Nightingale suggests that he might have been related to Martindale's Richard Birkett, who is listed as reader at Patterdale in 1691. See Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 2, 1230; CCED.

[Manor of Patterdale]

[I.708]

There are 2 Manners within the precinct of the Chaple: Sc. - 1. Patterdale 2. Hartsop.

[Wild Cats]
In this manner are Great Store of wilde catts; almost of the bigness & colour of a fox but Branded ~~and stroked over with~~ here and there with Blak Strokes a thwart their Bodyes; for the Skin's of which if kild in Season; i.e. they have xii[d] a piece: and as much for their heads, which is payd by the Churchwardens.

[I.707]

It seems the Hunting of the wilde cat was looked upon in former ages as a noble Sporte; for John the Brother of William Lord Ros* who was Constituted by King Edward 3. in the 10[th] his Reigne [1336-1337], Admirall of the Seas from the River Thames Northwards, amongst other Libertyes Granted unto by the said King – had that of Hunting the Fox, Woofe, Hare & Cat through out the Kings Forrest of Northamptonshire†.[242]

[Machell's Notes: I.707]

*(Baron of Hamlake – T.M. puto)[243]
†Note: ergo – wolves then – No wonder wee have \ so many / places called from Cats.

[I.708]

[Martes][244]
They have also in their craggy mountaines great store of Martes which are Excellent furr; (also Badgers and Foxes more than enough){Not to mention foxes}[245] al these Creatures being fatall enemyes to their Ews and Lambs – And it is believed that they \ have / had formerly wilde Bores in this Dale and partes adjacent, from the names of ~~several~~ places taken from Swine: as Grisedale & Stibarrow*, the latter of which is a monstrous strong Rock in this Lordship on the West Side of Ulswater; & in the way to Barton & Penrith – where there is a Strait passage about 2 yards broad, haveing an High hanging-rock on the one side, which threatens passengers to fall upon them \ but above all a Lowther or / Lancaster, if you give credit to Gillimans prophecy.[246] & on the other a deep & steep precipice into Ulswater, which plums in that place (as the people tell me) ful 60 yards. Here a few men may defend the passage against a great army; which the neighbourhood did in 48 {in the late Civil} – for they Mortessed \ boared/ a hole through a \ an oake / tree which stood upon the Brinke of the ~~Uls~~water, & drive a Bar through it into the Rock on the other side.[247] & so posted themselves that they diverted the who[le] Scottish Army from coming amongst them, and turned them off into Bampton Parish where they had a sore Skirmish as shal be declared in due time & place.

And here there hapned 2 very strange Accidents. one of which ~~was~~ \ is / that a Scotch pedler \ 8 / year agoe in the Sommer time {now 1689. St James};[248] he, resting himselfe with his pack upon his Shoulders, and lying & lokeing upon the fish which were sporting (see p.712)[249]

[Machell's Notes: I.708]

*{Stybarrow.}

[I.712]

themselves in the water below; haveing reached too far, was through the weight of his pack behinde him cast down headlong into the \ deep / water, & yet scap'd with life.

---

[242] MS following, in pencil and scored through: '~~But Gillimans prophecy as they will tell you [illeg.] above all a Lowther & Lancaster if that will give credit to Gillimans prophecy~~.' I.708 contains the corrected text.
[243] 'Perhaps. [Signed by] Thomas Machell.'
[244] See the English Glossary.
[245] This comment is almost certainly in William Nicolson's hand.
[246] See I.340 [Appleby] 'Gillimans wife, aliis Mother Shipton, as has bin said, deliverd this rime when she passed over that beck.'
[247] They bored a hole through an oak tree on one side of the road, and through it they drove a [metal] bar into the rock opposite.
[248] St James's Day: 25 July.
[249] The 'ing' ending and bracketed instruction are written in a hand resembling William Nicolson's. Further instruction (II.712) urges the reader to '{Turn back to p.708.}' These pages are brought together in this edition.

The other was in the Late Sharp Winter that one John Dobson (son of James Dobson of Wethermelock), who for that reason has \ caused the Countrey to / repare the way since) fell in \ (~~here~~) / on horse back; \ And whilst /a neighbour (who was there with him & saw him sinke) was lamenting the loss, saying 'alas I shal never see him more!' he popt up \ agane / by the side of the Rock; and getting \ hold / of som shrubs that grew there, he unexpectedly answer'd him ~~agane~~; \ thence / 'yes, thou may com to see mee agane, but will never see my horse agane.' Yet the \ Horse also, / after he came from the bottom \ of the water, / swam to a shallow part of the shore, & so (with Gods help) they were both preserved*.[250]

{Ulswater: Ile of Cherry Holm}
~~And~~ Som part of this water \ (Sc. the W. Side) is said to be / also in the Manor of Patterdale, together with an Ile called Cherry Holme near the head of it; which was so named from a Cherry Tree (in the memory of man) growing therein; being a place of deligh[t] & pleasure, to which they goe with their fishing Boates. And here, at the very head of the Lake; where the River I, comes into the Mote, (whence I take it, the \ stream / below which Isues out ~~of it~~ \ at the foote of Ulswater / is called Imote) are taken at Michaelmas (but out of season) great store of noble & prodigiouse Troutes called Gray-Troutes, as read and as large as an ordnary Salmon: nay som has bin taken a full yard long and as much in circumference†, which tho they swim all over the water, yet I refer them to this place especially, because they are mostly taken here. I have also seen & eaten of them.

[Machell's Notes: I.712]

*From his fathers and his own mouth.
†Mr John Mounsey who tooke them.

[I.714]

{Patterdale Hall}

{And hardby this place on the West Side of the abode a Bowshot here of[f] ~~the poole~~ Ulswater and about a bowshot}[251] North from the Chappel, yet a little inclineing to the west, stands Patterdale-Hall, & fronteth towards it. A pretty tite house, \ considering these partes / with a Court & Orchard; and little Terras walke at the doer where you enter the House, ascending to it by 5 or 6 steps. On the West Side of it is nothing \ else / but vast ~~great~~ Rocks & Mountaine, 2 of the Greatest in the North of England (Crosfell & Skidda only excepted) being in this manner†. But those that are adjoyneing this House (especially that \ near / Mosedale beck which lookes like a delicate piece of Arras,[252] & has a walke in the midle of it) – are prettily covered over with wood, in which amongst other sortes of Birds, the Sparrow-hawke delighteth ~~for~~ to bread \ dwell build;[253] / But the Opposit Side is a verry craggy and amazeing prospect; & yet even there (i.e. upon Pless-fell) doth your Juniper grow.

But the principal things I thought worth my notice at Patterdale-Hall were 2 Escutchions over the doer in the 2 Angles of the Lintal Stone – And a pretty rustick sort of Pavement in the Hall floore, made of the Sherds and fragments of Slates pitched on Edge; which, as I doe not dislike it within-doors, for a common roome; so I highly commend It for an Outer court; to those that shal have occasion to use It‡.[254]

[250] MS: '& so (with Gods help) they ~~both escaped~~ \ were both / ~~saved.~~ (b) preserved. {~~Propheey~~}.'
[251] Represented in the MS by a small sketch of a bow.
[252] 'Arras': a rich tapestry fabric originating in Artois, France, in which figures and scenes are woven in colours; also, cloth of arras. OED.
[253] Three alternatives are given here.
[254] MS.I.715A gives a scored-through draft of this paragraph, but with a different emphasis. Viz. 'But the principal things I though[t] worth my notice at Patterdale Hall, was 2 Escutchons over the doer in the 2 Angles of the Lintal Stone, and a pretty rustic sort of pavement in the Hall floore, made of the Sherds & fragments of Slates, pitched downe or ad vale by Edge, which looke well here but would better becom an outer Court.' See the Figure on I.715B, below.

Figure 1.5.22. Two escutcheons on the lintel over the door at Patterdale Hall. I.714.

[Mounsey Family]
A great part of this Hall was \ of / or Beautified by Mr John Mou[n]sey in 1677,[255] whom they commonly call King a Patter dale, being \ the most jolly / a free princely man in this part of the Countrey, who lives as it were in another world, and hath no man near him greater than himselfe.

[Machell's Notes: I.714]
*Bring in Sparrow Hawkes when you speake of the wood about the House – & there mention also the bonny Rock with a walk about the midle of it.[256]
†{Catstee-Cam; Elvel–in & Edward Dove.}
‡{George Scot & John Robinson of Troutbeck in the Barony of Kendall did the worke for 6d or 8d a day.}
{Were there viii, ix or x families.}

[I.715A]

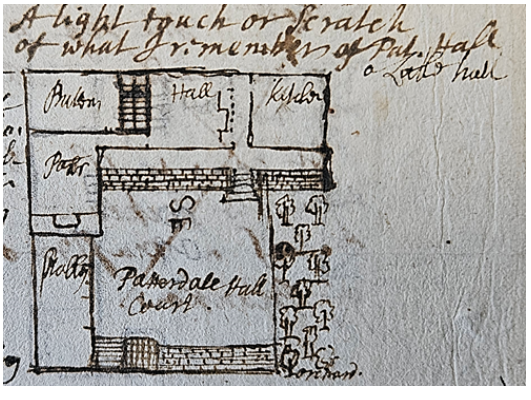

Figure 1.5.23. 'A light touch or scratch of what I remember of Patterdale Hall: a Little hall'. I.715A.

[Mounsey Descent]

1. Thomas Heir of Crosdormont now sold. 2. George Mousey of ~~Crosdormont~~ = Joan Collin of Tongham near Gilford in Surrey a Tenant Right Stuart at Graystock to Ann Countis of Arundel
|
Cudbert now of Stainton; Franc; Thom; Will; George; John King in Patterdale = Dorathy Harrison of Glencoyne
|
1. John, an attorney; 2. George; 3. William; 4. Thomas; 5. Jonathan; Mary = John Watson of Grised[ale]; Cath. = Jo. Harrison of Bleawth; Joan mar. to Jo. Threlkeld of Nelhouse in Pat.; Dor[athy]

[255] For more on John Mounsey's inheritance, see I.176, below. See also, W.P. Morris, Records of Patterdale, Historical and Descriptive (Kendal, 1903).
[256] A note, placed originally on MS.I.713.

[I.715B]

Figure 1.5.24. Patterdale Hall Floor slates. 'These do very well – for an Hall flooer, But would be better for a Co[urt]' I.715B.[257]

[I.716]

The Pedegree of the Mou[n]seys of Patterdale is as followeth. – begineth at the*.

1. Thomas Mousey heir of Trostermont who sold it away			2. George Mounsey Stuart at Graystocke to the Countess of Arundell		=	Joan Collin of Tengham near Gilford in Surrey
				I
6. Cuthbert now of Stainton	5. Francis	4. Thomas	3. William	2. George	*1. John Mousey, now living aet 60	=	Dorothy Harrison of Glenkëun
	5. Jonathan	4. Thomas	3. William	2. George	1. John an Attorney at Penrith		Mary = to Wilson of Grisedal	Katherine = to Harrison of Bleawth	Joan = to Threlkeld of Nelhouse	Dor[othy]

{Glen ridden falsely writt in the map: Glenk roden}
In the manner of Patterdale N. from the Hall about [blank] is a little Gill called Glen ridden from the Scottish word glen, which signifies \ a Gill or Hollow, / and Ridden – the name of the River which rises at Catstee and runns thence Eastwards with a swift & quick stream into Ulswater. It hath som wood growing about it & amongst the rest som Shrubs of Ewes*; and [though] the place be but of smal compass it conteineth in it about 20 families, one of which is a freehold, Sc. Cuthbert Mou[n]sey. The rest are customary, but ~~all at fine certaine~~ purchased to a fowerpenny fine† of Mr Richard Threlkeld of Patterdale & Thomas his son; excepting only 5 or 6 \ of them / who still remane arbitrary ~~to Mr Mousey~~.[258]

These and the rest of Tenants [are] in the manner of Patterdale & doe all Suit & Service at Patterdale Hall to Mr John Mou[n]sey the present Lord, whom wee may call \ properly enough / Johanes de Montibus from the place he lives in (Except for VIII or IX on the East side of Ulswater;[259] 5 which \ do / belong to my Lord of Sussex \ and / are perhaps in \ verge of / Patterdale, ~~together with those in Grisdale but not in the manner~~ but not strictly now in the manner because they do Suit {& Service at Pooley; for the division betwixt this & Martindale is upon Plass-fel as heaven water deales; so that these Tenants are in Patterdale manner but answer for themselves at the manner of Barton, as being Tenants to my Lord of Sussex.)}[260]
The Estate of [John Mounsey's] Ancestours was at Tristermont in the Lordship of Barton, which was sold by his unkle Thomas Mounsey, brother to [Blank]{who was the heir of it;[261] And George the 2nd Brother of [257] Machell would have preferred to see the tiles in an outer court: see I.714 and I.715A.

[258] 'Arbitrary': see the English Glossary.
[259] MS: '(~~for these~~ \ for / VIII or IX on the East side of Ulswater.'
[260] Because it moves to and fro between body text and margin, and has several interlineations and crossings through, the narrative here has been rearranged to make best sense of the material.
[261] MS: 'The ~~Paternal~~ Estate \ of his Ancestoars / ~~which he was borne to~~, was \ at / Tristermont in the Lordship of Barton \ which was sold by his unkle Thomas Mousey ~~the elder~~ brother to {who was the heir of it.'

Thomas, being Steward at Graystock \ to Ann Countess of Arundell, / left so much behinde him when he dyed, that Joan his widdow purchased this Lordship of Patterdale for John her son in his minority of one Mr Thomas Threlkeld, Lord of Patterdale, in whose name & Family it had continued (as is believed) many hundreds of years;[262] yet I finde no Coat of Armes in the Hall or Chappel of Patterdale relateing to them. But they may seem to be descended of the Threlkelds of Yanewath.[263]

[Machell's Notes: I.716]

*{Query of M[ano]r. How it stands – & if ruf Rock […]}[264]
†{how – 4[d] or?}
{In Kiple-Cove, Read-Tarne & Glenridden: only Trouts}
{William de Lanc[aster] de Kendal gave Patterdale to Roger de Lancaster and Margaret de Ross gave him Ridal. temp. Ed. 1. out of Fleming Pedegree in Dugdale.}

[I.717]

{Glenkeun}
Near to Glenridden V[ale] lyeth Glen keun a little further to the North; as much as to say a glen in a corner, Keun, Coyn or Corner being one & the same. There is a Beck ~~in the head of this~~ call'd by this name, which springs at the very head of this dale, & runneth thence Eastwards into Ulswater (and this is 2 miles N. from the chappel) att the foote of which are 2 or 3 familyes which live in Westmorland i.e. on this Side the River, \ Glenkeun which parteth the Countyes / & so pay all dues and dutyes to Westmorland; yet doe they Suit and Service to Graystock, haveing lands on both sides; for which they pay an Arbitrary fine (& the best good they have in the name of an Heriot) \ to Graystock Castle. / ~~at the times accustomed~~ Yet for their houses & Lands on this Side, they being adjoyneing to the manner of Patterdale may ~~be supposed to have bin~~ seam to have bin bought-of from thence; and by the vicinity of their other Lands annexed to Graystock, which now through Custom is rendered [blank].[265]

[I.718]

Grisedale in Paterdale
Near Patterdale Chappel, at the W. end of it lyeth a little hollow or Gill, which they call Grisedale which (as has bin said) is calld in the Court[266] by Name of a Forrest; thoug[h] a very smal one, for there are but 9 or 10 familyes in it, of the same Tenure with the rest of the Tenants which belong to Barton: {& may seem to be parcel of the manner of Patterdale.} The word Grice or Grise is yet in use amongst northern People to signify swine; & it may well seem to have taken its name from being frequented with the wilde Boares, which are Beasts of the Forrest: {& perhaps there have bin deer \ also / for there is a place in it calld Glemara Park.}

[Eagles]

{Of Eagle Crag in Patterdale}
In the very head of this dale is a Rocky mountaine which they call Eagle-Crag because the Eagles are wont to nest; near unto which there is a lead mine.
About the year 1679, one Christopher Dawes, 24 years of age, spying an Eagle in the bottom of this Dale which was feeding on a sheep; and either for want of aer to waft her, or by haveing filld her belly too full, was not able to rise: he struck freely at her with his fell-staff {a sort of pike staff 2 yards long, with a pike of Iron in the End to stick in the ground & secure you from falling when you go up or down a mountain} & broake her wing; upon which she betooke herselfe \ for shelter / to a great stone, and thence made her Salleys as she saw occasion, wounding him in the leggs with her Tallons, & beating him briskely with her [262] See CFH, 234.

[263] MS: 'that Joan his widdow purchased this Lordship for John her son in his minority, of one Mr} ~~But in his minority his mother Jane Mounsey purchased for him this~~ Lordship of Patterdale: of one Mr \ Thomas / Threlkeld \ Lord of Patterdale / in whose name & Family It had continued (as is believed) many hundreds of years; yet I finde no Coat of Armes in the Hall or Chappel, \ of Patterdale / relateing to them ~~or Any other family that livd in these partes~~.' William Threlkeld's marriage to Isabel Hastings brought estates at Yanwath, Crosby Ravensworth, Tebay and Roundthwaite into the family. In 1341, William Threlkeld bore … a maunch … in chief six annulets. In 1344 he sealed a charter with a shield displaying … three maunches (CAC(C)/ DLons/Early Deeds/T22). When sheriff of Cumberland, William's Arms were given as Ermine a maunch Gules. See CFH, 339.
[264] Four words follow, but the ink is too faint to allow their accurate transcription.
[265] The text stops abruptly here; no text on surrounding pages continues it.
[266] Court Rolls.

wings. But at last when he had no other shifts,[267] he fel down upon her with his whol body; & tooke her alive.

{Deepdale}
And higher up; Sc. 1 mile S. from the chappel is a place called Deepdale, from the lowness of the scituation, in which are 10 families of Arbitrary Tenants, who also pay their best beastes as an Heriot; & though they be not within the manor, yet they hold of the Lord of Graystock in the County of Cumberland. & 2 miles further S. \ from hence / in an huge Rock which is called Ling-Cove, & stands west from Hartsop about a mile, are large Eagles bred. This place is thought to have bin formerly a manner of itselfe; for there is a Demane, a place call'd the Parke, and another place in it call'd the Hall \ Green / where it is supposed the mannerhouse stood, \ which is / S. from the chaple about 1 mile.

{Of taking another eagle, 1669}[268]
In 1669, one William Thomas of Deepdale Bridge End, being but a youth of 17 years old, Encountor an Eagle on the like occasion, but shee it seemeth was not able to flye by reason her feathers were moulted[269] & spent by {hatching: see p.724.}[270]

[I.724]

{See above p.718; account of taking an Eagle)[271]
hatching her Young ones, for it was about midsomer tide. He chased her several times round a stone; and at last tooke her by falling upon her, but not without som loss of blood.

[I.718]

Mr Mounsey, to whom she was brought alive; & who kept her a week and kild her afterwards by running a penknife into her heart; and gave the Coat of her to Thomas Smyth a Newcastle merchant, for 3^{lb} of Tobacco.

[I.724A]

Figure 1.5.25. An eagle displayed: inked on the left, pencilled on the right. I.724A.[272]

[267] 'Shift': available means of effecting an end. Often in phrase, (to have) no other shift. OED.
[268] This heading is written in another hand.
[269] MS: 'mouted'.
[270] The margin heading and note are in another hand (probably William Nicolson's), but the narrative throughout is in Machell's hand.
[271] Written in two different hands.
[272] The eagle 'displayed' is reminiscent of medieval heraldic eagles, well known to Machell.

A sort \ of / eagle called an Iron \ or Earn or Erne[273] / here; in Scotland a Naron, being of a Blackish brown Colour.[274] From the point of one wing to the other – 6 foot 4 inches. From the End of the Becke to the point of the Tale, 3 foot 4 inches.[275]
~~I know not that this belongs to p.723~~.[276]

Hartsop

[I.655b]

[Machell's Initial Notes]
The Hall under a High Banke of wood. Hartsop Wood.
~~Low~~ Nether Hartsop Beck ½ a mile N.E. is the chief hed of Emot & springs ~~as I~~ near Jackbrige in this Lordship. No brig now. Bruder Water 4 miles every way.
Hartsop. A Mart ciesed a wether on the Top of Lingy-Crag\ adjoyning/ an high mou[n]tane, which sat upon his neck, till the wether ran down to Bro\w/n heath in the bottom\ or field/ and there killd him – being ½ a mile.

[I.720]

{In Hartsop – about XXIX freeholds lately purchased of Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge Baronet.[277] & about XI or XII Customary Tenants who pay fine Arbitrary, and for their Heriots the best Sheep they have; as the other did before their purchase; inf. Mr Dobson. Sure he means of all that appear at H[artsop]}
{?}[278]

Manor of Hartsop
In the head of this Dale lyes the manner of Hartsop, which is divided into Nether Hartsop, consisting of about 15[279] familys (near unto which, up in the mountaine at a place calld Jack-Bridge, \ where there is no Bridge now / springs the Chief and Principal head of Ulswater); & Upper Hartsop which is an Hamlet of about 5 families at the South Side, but East Side of Broader-Water,[280] which is a Lake about a quarter of a mile in diameter, & as long as broad, spring at [blank], and thence coming downe by Hartsop Hall in a smal rill which because in this place it extendeth it selfe into a large compass \ Sc. 1 quarter every way / is call'd Broader Water, wherein are Gray-trouts†, Chars &c. as you have in Ulswater, into which (haveing joyned with the Rill that comes ~~down~~ from Nether Hartsop a little below the Village or Town and takeing in several other Becks or Brookes)[281] it runns \ near Patterdale chaple / 2 miles below; and in this course twixt the head of Hartsop & the head of Ulswater, 5 stroane[282] bridges were driven down by the thunder shower.}

{Hartsop hall, a little black ruinous house} [Narrative 1.]
Upon this lake is kept a fishing boate both for profit & pleasure; which belongeth the farmers of Hartsop Hall, which is the \ manor house of this Lordship. / It is a little low ~~dwelling house~~ \ blackish building on the W. Side of the Head of Broader Water, S. from the chaple about 2 miles and \ S.W. / from the Parish Church of Barton 10 miles ~~S.W.~~. {It stands ½ S.W. from Nether Hartsop.} It fronteth Eastward (if it may be said to have any front) towards Upper Hartsop; & standeth under a lofty Banke of wood on the west side, which [273] Interpolation in another hand.

[274] In Scotland: erne; herne, eyrn (e, eirn-, airne) an eagle (Dictionaries of the Scots Language, Online). In England: earn, ærn, arn(e); also, ern, eerne, eren, erne. OED.
[275] 'Or Earn or Erne': this addition might have been written by William Nicolson or a contemporary.
[276] In another hand, possibly Bishop Nicolson's.
[277] MS.I.715A contains this note: 'Sir John of Sockbridge his 34. Ten. sold free'.
[278] That is, to do suit there.
[279] The number appears to have been added later, supplanting a line of text which has been almost completely erased.
[280] Brothers Water.
[281] MS: 'and takeing in Several Other Becks or Brookes … in haveing taken into it many other brookes'
[282] '5 stroane bridges.' 'Strone' means, to urinate; a gush or spurt of any liquid: Dictionaries of the Scots Language Online. Perhaps Machell meant 'strong' or 'stone'. Elsewhere, he described the bridges as being 'of considerable strength.' Viz. '… for the great Thunder Shower … demolished a Barne 12 yardes long which stood in this place, & swept away the very foundation of it with 2 or 3 Bridges of Considerable Strength north from hence about ½ a mile.' (See I.699). Elsewhere, he tended to distinguish between wooden and stone bridges.

hides a great part of a Rugged fell that over tops it. But there is little \ ~~either~~ / in or about it which may bespeake it a Gentlemans Seate – excepting only – these Badges of Honour,[283]

[I.722]

~~From~~ the latter ~~of the which~~ if it be not the Crest of their \ Coat of / armes, may have relation to the Family of Dakers, whose Armes are 3 Escallops. But the other is certainely the Armes of the family which belong'd to this place; for they are quartered with the Lancasters of Sockbridge at Sockbridge Hall, tho with som little difference, for \ only / there, upon every one of the Staggs heads, is placed a Mound Royal.[284] \ But / here is one also (but that \ if it may be called one, for / they looke liker unto Bezants in this plasterworke charged with Crosses) in the fess point.[285] And what is more strange, in that on the porch at Barton church (which is the oldest there \ by much /) is none mound at all.\ But only 3 Staggs or Hartes heads cabbosed.[286] / However I conclude from this beareing (for want of better Instructions at present) that the family which was seated hear, & transplanted hence to a better Soyle at Sockbridge Hall, was called by the \ Sir / name of Hart-sop*. At the Court Barron which is holden here appear (besides the Tenants of Hartsop) VII Customary Tenants from the Town of A\m/bleside in the Barony of Kendal, & XII from Troutbeck; which I take to be purchased by the owners of Hartsop out of those manors, and in after ages to be fixd to this place through Custom & Curtesy.

[Machell's Notes: I.722]

*{Sed tamen qu.?}[287]

[I.725A][288]

[Hartsop Hall. Narrative 2.]
Hartsop Hall is a little old black building \ under a very high banke of wood called The Parke? / Nothing rema[r]kable in it \ to bespeake it a Gentlemans / but this Coat of Armes, & good Beames & Joystes over the parlour! It fronts E. \ ward / and stands at the upper End of Brother Water[289] at the S. End on the W. Side. There is a place like an oven, but with a little Ledge or Seat, lik[e] a Bedhead, which they [say] was used to hide the Papist Preast!!! if not upon som other occasion.

Figure 1.5.26. Hartsop Hall sketches. I.725A.

[283] See a coat of arms on I.725A, below.
[284] Mound Royal: an orb surrounded by a cross (Smith, Place-Names, 229).
[285] Bezant: gold coin struck at Byzantium or Constantinople similar to the Roman solidus; varying in value between the English sovereign, half-sovereign or less; current in England until superseded by the noble, a coin of Edward III. OED.
[286] 'Cabossed': borne (as the head of a stag or bull) full-faced; cut off behind the ears to show no part of the neck. OED.
[287] 'But, on the other hand, query?' 'Nothing definite appears to be known about this family.' AWL, 150-51.
[288] In the margin: two sketch plans of Hartsop Hall; coat of arms on the closet partition; plaster work in the parte loft.
[289] See reference to Broader Water (I.720).

[Key]
a. Hall.
b. Melldoers[290]
c. Chamber
d. Stable
e.f. Butterys
g. Parlour closset h. Parlour.
In the Parlour
In Plaster on the closet Partition. The Same was lately in Glass in the Hall window.

Figure 1.5.27. Hartsop Hall Ground Plan. I.725A.

[I.726]

In the Demaine which belongs to this House, Lead Oare has bin gotten; and in diging for it a sort of mineral of the colour brick.[291] {There are also blew slates extraordnary fine, 3 feet long & 2 broad; which bear water well, in Upperdale S.E. from the chappel about 3 miles; & in Netherdale in the same beareing 2 miles from the chaple; which may be transmitted into the Countrey by boats down Ulswater.} It is preety well wooded considering the place, and amongst other Trees affordes good Store of small sh\r/ubby Ewe, which with due care, would grow up to Trees.
A mile south from Hartsop hall is a place called Aisdale, or Haisdal; from Hais-water*, a Tarne that affordes Troutes, Skellyes & Eales. And in Angletarne Between Hartsop & Martindale† are 2 little hills whear Sea-maws, ducks and other such fowle \ are wont / to build & bread.

[Machell's Notes. I.726]

*{Hawswater in Hawsdale?}
†(query: in which?

[I.725A]

[Upper Hartsop]
At a little distance \ & / the breadth of a medow, lyes Upper Hartsop – of about V familes – in the road from these partes / to Kendal; and Nether Hartsop; consisting of [blank], which both together make [blank], lyes in another grane of fells at the foot of Great Dod? coming in betwixt them.

[I.726]

[Marts]
They have great Store of Marts hereabouts, som of which are very perniciouse, not only to their Lambs but old Sheep too; for not long agoe ~~there was~~ one of them seised on a Good Strong-Weather,[292] leaping unto his neck on the Top of a mountaine \ which is / on the East Side of Nether-Hartsop called Lingy-Crag; & Stooke so fast with its tallents upon him that though he bounced, ran, down the Skar, \ which is ½ a mile high, / yet he never lost his hold; and \ when / he came at a place in the bottom which is called Brown-Leath, there he killd the Weather outright; which is very much for such a small creature to do – yet these unlucky vermin do bring sua commoda secum;[293] for the[y] get large prices \ 6 shillings a piece / for the skins ~~of them~~ .[294]

[290] 'Mel being an old word which signifies between; so the passage betwixt two doors is called Meldoors': N&B1, 545. See 'mell passage' in William Rollinson, Dictionary of Cumbrian Dialect, Tradition and Folklore (Otley, 1997), 107.
[291] MS: 'and \ in diging for It / a sort of mineral in digging for It of the Colour brick.'
[292] Wether: castrated male sheep.
[293] 'They bring their advantages with them.'
[294] MS.I.725A contains another version: 'This place affo[r]ds great Store of \ Clean / Martes; which are Excellent firr, the skines being worth for the most part 6^{s} a piece: But they are a fatal foe to their Lames; yea their larger sheep are obnexiouseto them; for being a very nimble Creature & haveing long clawes, the[y] leap pon the neck \ back / \ shoulder/ of the[m]; & keep their hold till have woryed them; of which there hapned a notable instance [blank] here in this place.' See also Patterdale (I.708).

Of Ulswater & Imote

{The course of Emote or Eyemote}
The head of Emote must be fetched from the Highest or Greatest Spring; and that is at Kirkston Fell* in the Manor of Hartsop, which divides the countyes of Westm'land & Cumberland.
Thence it runns ~~into Broder Water~~ on the East Side of Hartsop hall into a lough called Broader Water. being called Hartsop beck till it comes there, and agane afterwards; haveing received Haiswater into \ it / a little below Hartsop, it carryes the name of Hartsop beck till out of the Lordship†. Others say it springs at Jack Brig, and is called Hartsop Beck till out of the Lordship; that it meets with Deepdale-beck, which comes E. into it from Glencone, & so carryes the name of Deepdale beck till it comes to Goldrel brigg near Patterdale Chappel‡ where Grisedale Beck comes in from the W.; & hence it is called by the name of I (or e as \ wee / commonly use to pronounce it here in these partes) from the streightness of it here; as the River X on which Excester stands is so calld from the figurlet which it hath of that letter.

[Machell's Notes: I.726]

*dub? {?}[295]
†{Query: where the other Hartsop beck comes in by Haiswater; which is said to be the great current & to spring at Jack Brigg?}
‡{?}

[I.727]

Thence N.W. to Sockbridge \ & / so on to Yane[wath] & Bridge, which 2 Lordships wee shall now discourse of, as thence by Brow[ha]m Castle, Nine Churrch & Horneby where it looseth it selfe in the noble River Eden.

[Machell's Notes I.727]

Memorandum to mend the map according to this [following] discription of Ulswater.

[I.728]

Hartsop, Ulswater & Imot
And this is the first fixed name that it hath. Thence it runns Northwards for a Quarter of a mile into the Great lake which is now called Ulswater – perhaps from one Ulfe in the Time of the Saxons: but anciently seems to have bin calld Imote, i.e. the lake of the River I; & the water \ stream / which runneth from \ the foote / of it is called Imote Water to this very day. I know I might deduce from e Lacu,[296] \ as / much as to say, out of the mote; e: Latine signifying out. But it \ is / unbeseeming to make a hotchpotch of English & Latine, ~~for~~ to finde the original of an English ~~River~~ name.

{House Holm}
Hence it runneth (though it cannot but ~~by the effects~~ be seen ~~for~~ to run, being much more like a Sea than a River) to Pooley-Stanke: first of all northwards 1 mile & ½ or nearupon 2 miles till you com at a place where Glenkeun-beck \ run[s] by Bro / ~~Uls~~water, which partes the 2 Countyes of W[estmorland] & C[umberland], ~~&~~ comes in from the west & is just over against the Iland which is called House-holme, \ which is the 3 Iland in this water, / because there has bin an House upon it, as there is likely to be agane; for the Honourable Charles Howard Esquire, has leas'd (or purchased it as I have heard, for the Tythe of Daker or \ rather / the arrears) of my Lord of Sussex, & intend to build and make it a place of delight & pleasure ~~tho it be in Westmorland~~ which without that agreement he could not have don because it is on Westm'land Side.[297]

[295] 'Doubtful.'
[296] 'Out of the lake'.
[297] This appears to be a reference to Charles Howard (1630-1713) the fourth son in the family of nine sons and three daughters of Henry Frederick Howard, fifteenth earl of Arundel (1608-1652). Charles Howard earned a reputation as a gifted garden designer, as Machell's comment on House Holm possibly becoming a place of 'delight and pleasure' under his care, suggests. For Howard's protracted claim to the Greystoke estates against his older brother Henry, sixth duke of Norfolk, see M. Hunter, 'Howard, Charles (1630-1713), landowner and natural philosopher'. ODNB.

{But in this course there are 3 Ilands}[298]
1. Cherry Holm,[299] so calld from a Cherry Tree grown in it; distant from the high end of Ulswater \ a mile & ¼ or above / & being on the East Side of Ulswater must belong without doubt to the Lord of M[artindale.]

2. Wall holme over against Stibarrow: so called from a wall it has had about it,[300] som of which is yet to be seen; distant from Cherryholm about 2 Bowshots and \ from the head a mile and ¼ and somwhat more. / This belongs to the Lord of Patterdal, being on the West Side, & near to His Manner.

3. Is House Holm[301] ~~as above~~ – near the East Side & so belonging to my Lord Sussex but now in possession of Mr Howard, Lord of Graystock. This is distant from the High End \ of Ulswater / 1 mile & ½ or maybe 2 miles; and from Wall Holme ¼ of a mile.

From hence the water turnes in a Bow above 2 miles* to \ a / Crag near How-Town. Thence (directly N.W.)† to Dunmallard, 3 miles in length & in breadth about 1 mile – for cert[ain] 950 yards. Thence on the East of Dunmallard, & West of Pooley.

[Machell's Notes: I.728]

*{?}
†{query, if not N.E}

[I.729]

Thence to [a] River which comes out of [blank] called Emote at the foote & head of it, & from Pooley till it is lost in Eden. It runneth Nor west to the manner of S\t/ockbridge; \ commonly Sock / & so on to Yeanwath & Bridge (which 2 Lordships I am next to treat of as the only remaneing partes of this Parish) \ & under Emote Bridge; / And thence by Browham Castle, Nine Church & ~~Yeawat~~ Horneby, where it looseth it selfe in the noble River Eden, haveing divide the 2 sister Countyes from Glenkeun-beck all along to this place. But before I proceed to S\t/ockbridge & Yeanwath, one word or 2 of the fowle & fish which Ulswater affordes.

[I.728]

{It affordes fowle of diverse sortes; as wilde ducks, wild geese somtimes, cormorants which are black, and also several sortes of fish; as Skellyes which are shaped like Herring; Pearch or Bass? Eales, \ Charrs / Troutes, and amongst them the most noble fish cald the Gray-Trout, as big as a Salmon. & there has bin, somtime, Salmons here. But they will not thrive, for in a short time they spend themselves & grow poore and loosey.[302] The fishing of it is in the \ som of the / Neighbourhood on either side for which the pay a certaine Rent to the Earle of Sussex as Lord of Barton &c. – And Mr Howard \ of Graystock / as Lord of the Lands on the other Side.'}

[298] MS: 'In which course it hems in 3 ilands. But in this course there are 3 Ilands.'
[299] 'Holm' has been superimposed over 'Iland'.
[300] MS: '2. The Second is – Sc. near the E. Wall-Holme 2. Wall holme \ over against Stiburrow / so called from a wall it has had about it,'
[301] House Holm is now known as Norfolk Island, named after the Duke of Norfolk.
[302] Lousy: covered in lice.

[II.438]

The forme of the lake called Ulse-water

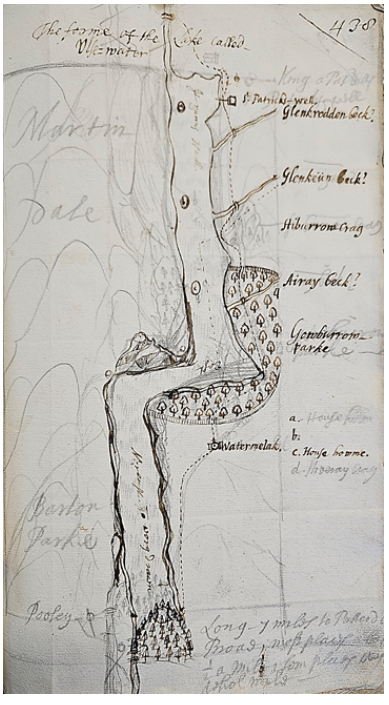

Figure 1.5.28. 'The forme of the lake called Ulse-water.' II.438.

[On the left]	[On the Right]	[Islands]
Martindale	King o Patterdales	a. House holm
Barton Parke	St Patricks well	b. [Blank]
Pooley	Glenkrodden beck?	c. House howme
	Glenkeün beck?	d. Stiveray Crag
	Stibarrow Crag	Watermelak
	Airay beck?
	Gowbarrow parke

Long 7 miles to Patterdale; Broad most places about ½ a mile; som places a whol mile
It runs North, East, North-east – ergo wrongly drawn.[303]

[I.725D]

[Sockbridge]

Tis sayd the whole parish \ excepting Patterdale / belongd to the Lancasters of Sockbridge – And that they had free Chase from Emot brig to the Top of Kirkstone fell S.W. \ 14 miles. / And that Martindale & High Barton were given to a younger brother*.

[303] The map contains other errors, which the reader will note.

{Descent}
This was \ purchased / in Reversion after the death \ of Christopher Dudley Esq.[304] / and his wife, by old Sir John Lowther of Lowther, the Rich Arbitray to the present Sir John of Lowther.[305] So the Brigg allso; where is one freehold Mr Rowl. Burrow \ Rector of Browhum & Clifton, /[306] lately purchased.

[Lordship Notes]
There are 3 Vill. in this Lordship – Sc. Sockbridge Thorp & Tyrrell. And High Winder, IV fam[ilies], som of which appere \ at Sockbridge and are free. /
1. Sockbridge – W. from the Hall about a bowshot conteineth in it ~~about~~ XII familes; ~~wher~~ all sold free by the now Sir John Lowther when he came ~~first~~ to years; and so all the other Tenants in the Lordship, & at Hartsop also. The old Rent remaneing. Courts Baron &c. All rateable. Lofthouse – Will[iam] Lancasters an \ ancient freehold at the high End. /
2. Thorp – west ab aula and beyond Sockbridge about the same dist[ance] that Sock[bridge is] from the Hall. IV fam[ilies], all free &c.
3. Tirrell \ is a place wel stor'd with Limestone, which supplieth Penrith / lyes ab aula [blank] & hath about XI [families.]
4. Lancelot of Lancaster = 1. Francis = to Sir Christian Lowther, father […][307] with whom he had Sockbridge, Hartsop & Weatby.[308]
{Lancaster, Fellow of Q[ueens] C[ollege] borne at a house at West Row.}[309]

[Machell's Notes: I.735D]

*de quo qu[aere.]

[I.730]

[Manor of] Sockbridge[310]
The manor of Sockbridge conteineth now in it ~~a~~ the village of Sockbridge; ~~which is almost a Square~~; W. from the church, & conteineth in it about XII families \ all Customary & Heriotable Tenants / ~~who not long agoe had~~ \ till of late that they / purchas'd their freedom of Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge Hall, which is East from Hence about a Bowshot. And here at the very corner house of the West Row, at the South End of it, was Mr William Lancaster borne, somtimes Schoolmaster of Barton Kirk & now fellow of Queens College in Oxford. I take the ancient name of this place to be Stockbrige; so calld from a \ wooden / Bridge ~~that place~~ \ hereabouts, though / there be none now.

{The village of Tyrell, The Hamlet of Thorp, & som part of High Winder!}
2. The Village of Tirell, which lyeth a little South E. from Sockbridge & extendeth almost to the outer gate of Sockbridge Hall, conteineth in it about 10 familyes; \ all purchased free at the same with Yanewath, / & standeth mostly upon a limeston, as all the Rest of this Manner doth: But here it is got in such aboundance & so very fine, that they com as far as Penrith for it; ~~and are~~ \ which Town is supply'd / for the most part supplyed from hence. This Town may seem to have given name to the worthy and ancient family of Tyrill~~s~~ in the Countyes of Oxford & Buckingham: one of which \ name / had the misfortune by [blank][311] which I am the rather induced to believe, because \ I / finde not another Town of that name in England, and am well assured it gave name to a family – Henricus de {Tirill, being witness amongst other neighbouring Gentlemen at a Deed without date. But Sir Radulf[us] de Notyngham, then Sherif of Westmorland, was witness with him, by which perhaps the date may be found – In which Deed one Gilbert de Engayne de Clifton Grants to [304] Christopher Dudley, the last male heir of the Dudleys: 1607-1660. See CFH, 97.

[305] Sold in 1654: N&B1, 413. 'Arbitray': 'arbiter'; in law, relating to, or dependent on, the discretion of an arbitrator, or other legally-recognized authority. OED.
[306] Rowland Burrow or Borrow was rector of Brougham (1661-1708) amd Clifton (1668-1708). CCED.
[307] A word has perished here.
[308] The MS is too damaged to transcribe accurately here, but contains: 'Eliz = [perished] Hutton 3 Barbery to [perished] Davis of Winder in the B… = Margareta'; see I.373 for another version of this information.
[309] In the left-hand margin. The text here is either faded, damaged or lost.
[310] There is a small square sketch of the Sockbridge area deep within the top left margin of this page.
[311] One whole line is left blank here.

Tho. Niger of Kaliel & that his wife[312] ½ a carucate, which is 7 oxgangs[313] of Land, in Clifton, free from Suit of Court, moulter & pannage,[314] paying therefore the rent ad nat.}[315]

3. Thorp is a little Hamlet ~~of a bout IV families West from Sockbridge~~ \ which / lyes as much \ farther / west beyond Sockbridge as Sockbridge is west beyon the Hall. There are at least 70 places in England which beare ~~the~~ that name; & it signifyeth \ in the Saxon Language / a Towne or Village; thoug[h] this indeed be but a smal one, ~~consisting~~ for it hath only 4 houses in it; but they are all lately purchased free of Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge ut supra.[316]

4. High Winder, another Hamlett of IV familyes, som of which \ onely / appear at Sockbridge ~~Court~~; but are ~~also sold~~ free as the rest. 3 belong to the Lord of Barton and som I thinke to Winder-hall. There is one Airay a freehold here*.

[Machell's Notes: I.730]

*Query: if the Doctors Family.
{query: Hall Hew or Hewafter –}

[I.732]

Sockbridge Hall is the manor house; which standeth North from the River Emot about a Bowshot & as much E. from the Village of Sockbridge – It is not so large nor standeth so well as Yanewath Hall doth; \ for [it] fronteth S. / a little, inclineing to the W. It is scituate upon a descent, in so much that you goe downe 3 descents in the very Court ere you enter the Hall.[317] Yet there is a rare[318] fir tree growing without the Court Wall which renders it somwhat more gracefull.[319] – But if ever this be made a Stately house indede – they must build front to the river of Emote; carry the way in a streight line by the end of the house; and turne the Courtes and as far as the outer gate into Gardines & Orchards. But as it is now, the house is builded with a Little Quadrangle in the midst of it,[320] which as you enter through a smale passage you have the Hall doer opposite to you, over which is a slender old Tower haveing upon it these Coates of Armes. –

On the Seeling in Plasterworke, in the Old Dineing Roome at Sockbridge
Lancaster quartering the heiress of Hartsop Impaleth this quarterly Coat as followeth

1. A cheveron charged with 3 anuletts, between 3 escallops. Tankard.[321]
2. A cheveron charged with 3 floredelices.[322]

[Machell's Notes: I.733]

? q. of Mich. Hudson fel[low] of Queens – if not of this par[ish][323]

[312] Names here are unclear.
[313] Oxgang: unit of land an ox could plough in a ploughing season.
[314] Payment for swine; access to wood nuts.
[315] 'Ad nat' = ad naturam: according to the natural terms at which produce was sold.
[316] As stated above.
[317] Other relevant notes are as follows: MS, I.725D: 'Sockbridge Hall, within a bowshot of Emote, not so large as Yanewath but built with a smale quadrangle, which on the inside is Garreted, all but the side where you enter, and hath a Little Tower opposite to the enterance; where you goe into the Hall. It fronts S. a little declineing to the W. with 3 descents in the Court.'
[318] The word here is indistinct.
[319] MS: \'Yet there is a […] fir tree / Trees growing without the Court Wall which renders it somwhat more gracefull.'
[320] MS: '{But as it is now the house is builded with a} It is builded with a Little Quadrangle in the midst of it,'.
[321] Tankard arms.
[322] A note (MS.I.725) offers further data: 'In the old dineing Roome in 2 panes of Plaster work – 1. Lancaster quartering (? Hartsop as I take it) with a florished MaT & Crist a Lyon Couchant with Tayle turned up betwixt his legs. 2. in another Lancaster with Lyon in Canton.'
[323] See I.678.

[I.733][324]

Figure 1.5.29. Small piece of paper affixed to the page.
'On the Seeling in Plasterworke, in the old dineing Roome at Sockbridge'. I.733.

[I.725D]

a. In Plaster worke upon the Partition in the \ New / Dineing Roome

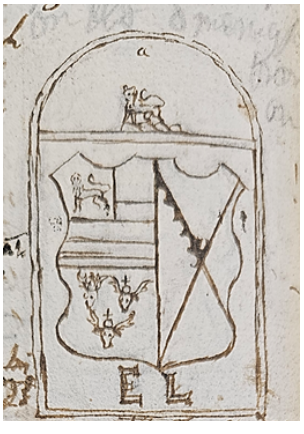

Figure 1.5.30. Plaster work on the partition of the new dining room at Sockbridge Hall. I.725D.

2. [Arms]over the Tower Dooer very ancient (Lancaster impaleing Singleton)

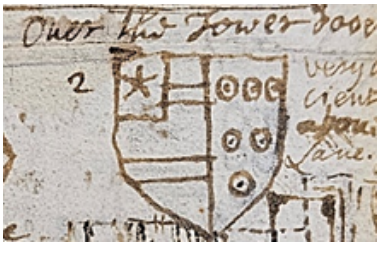

Figure 1.5.31. 'Arms over the Tower Door'. I.725D.

The same in a little window in a quarry[325] in the dineing roome, where the Mullet and an[nulets] are Or; the rest, blanke.

[324] The scored-through sentences in the margins of this page of notes have not been transcribed.
[325] Here Machell has drawn a small diamond shape.

[Plan of Sockbridge Hall]

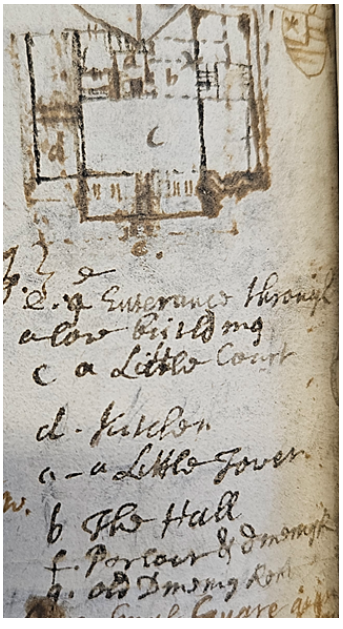

Figure 1.5.32. Plan of Sockbridge Hall. I.725D.

[Key]
e. The Enterance through a low building
c. a Little Court
d. Kitchen
a. a Little Court
b. The Hall
f. Parlour & dineing room
g. Old Dineing Rom

Figure 1.5.33. On the 'Great Hall window', Sockbridge Hall. I.725D.

On a Smal Square quire in the Great Hall window:
1. Lancaster Argent q[uartered]*
2. Argent [&] Gules; 3 stags heads with a globe & cross; betwixt them a Mound Royal.[326] Hornes Gules.
3. As second &c.
The Impale Argent a saltire ingraled – which is inscribed on a Noble window of 7 great lights and 14 little ones &c. The like work in the church. The same agane in the Dineing room.

[326] Royal Orb.

[Machell's Notes: I.725D]

*query whether a Mullet.

[I.725C]

{Sockbridge in Barton Parish}
On a great Beam in Sockbridge Hall

Figure 1.5.34. Coats of Arms on a 'great Beam' in Sockbridge Hall.[327] I.725C.

{f m. Ex Incuria opificis. inversa capita}[328]

[I.734]

Yanewath

The Manner of Yaneworth conteineth in it 2 Pretty Villages, Sc. Yanewath \ & Bridge / which seem so called from their several passages over Imote, of which there are 4 within the compass of this Parish:[329] Sc. Yean Stanke, Yane Stock Brigge, Yane Wath, & Yeane Stäne-Brigg. i.e. one Stanke, one Stockbridge, one Wath, and one Stone bridge; whence these Several Townes Received Several names: Sc. – Pooley Stanke – Stockbridge or Sockbridge; Yanwath or Yane Wath, & Brigg or Bridge, which is so called, KαT,[330] because it is the most eminent passage over this River; for which Reason it is called The Bridge.

{Ab Ecclesia}

[327] The exclamation mark was placed on the third coat because it is upside down, see f.n. below.
[328] 'From the carelessness of the artist, the heads are upside down.'
[329] MS: 'which seem~~eth~~ so called from ~~a wath or forde there Over the water; for it Seemeth formerly, there are 4 passages over Imot which in the Compass of~~ \ from their several passages over Imote of which there are 4 within the compass of this / Parish.'
[330] KαT: Kα/T[ω]. In several places in the MS, Machell follows the phrase 'Barony of Westm'land' with the letters KαT. The vowel is clearly written as the Greek letter alpha. This suggests that all the letters are meant to be read in the Greek (not the Roman) alphabet and that the word is abbreviated from the Greek adverb κα/τω meaning 'below'. Classical Greek authors sometimes used this word in a geographical connection to mean 'lower' or 'south'. It is likely that Machell's meaning is similar and that this is a way of referring to the 'Bottom' of Westmorland. See its use in Machell's Preface, I.148, I.44C.

1. Yanewath is a pretty smal village of about 12 families; all Customary Tenants pay in fine arbitrary*, & doing Suit at Service of Court at Yeanwath-hall, which standeth at the North End of the Town a little on the West Side of it, on a High banke by the River of Imote, opposite to which the chief entrance standeth somewhat inconvenient, for it affords no access to the \ house, / which, ~~if you~~ if the owner desire to have at the best advantage, it might be don by turneing the front to the west side where the Orchard plat is, & carrying the way streight from the wath up ~~from~~ to the Town by the great gates, which ~~if it were mine I should chose to place there~~ \ should be there placed / opposite to the unbuilded ~~of the Court as now~~ \ side[331] as it now / standeth. There is an old Chaple over the gate to which ~~there is an ancient Round fortification at the wood end~~ to which you ascend by a pair of Stairs out \ of / the Court side, in which they have not observed to place the Altar Eastwards but rather contrary. It hath not any Coates of Armes in it. But in the House are these that follow.

[Machell's Notes: I.734]

*{? and if heriotable}

[I.736]

Arms in Yanewath Hall

In the Hall Outshot window

Figure 1.5.35. In Yanwath Hall 'Outshot window'. I.736.

2. Clifford quartering Vessey quartered.[332]
3. Clifford with a fild of 3 Lamb[el].[333]

In the plasterwork over the dineing-room chimney

Figure 1.5.36. 'In Plasterwork over the Dineing-Room chimney.' I.736.

[331] Machell has drawn a small square to the right of 'side'.
[332] The next word is illegible.
[333] Written in faded pencil but probably 'lambel' (label): a narrow band across the shield from which three short bands protrude at right angles (see Figure 3 on I.736); see A.C. Fox-Davies, A Complete Guide to Heraldry (New York, 1978), 154.

In plasterwork over the ceiling.

Figure 1.5.37. In plasterwork over the ceiling. I.736.

[I.737]

Yanewath hall is a Tower-house, pleasantly scituated upon the very Banke of Emote, on the S. East side of it; but so near the precipice that there \ is count'd / no handsom access unto the House. It is built with 3 sides of a Quadrangle, hath a delicate prospect when you are at it, and hath the grace of a little Castle when you are distant from it. Over the Gate as you enter are the Remaines of a little chapple, where the Screen is yet standing; And there is one very Beautiful Tower at the South Corner with Turrets & Batlements very graceful to behold.
The Town standeth as I remember N. & S. at little distance above the Hall, & hath about 12 familyes in it {XII fam}.

{The Plateforme of Yanewath-Hall. 1689}

[Key]
a. The Entrance.
bb. The Mel-dooers or passage through towards the Towne.
c. The Kitchen
d. The Hall
e. [Blank]
f. The Dineing-Roome up above Stairs.
ggg. Offices.
h. The Platforme of a wall representing a Tower as you enter on the front.
i. The place where the Chapel standeth over the gate I[t] lookes S.W.
kkk. Stables &c.

Figure 1.5.38. Annotated plan of Yanwath Hall. I.737.

[I.725D]

{Yanewath arbitrary} {Parochia Literatorum}[334]
There is a Place at the End of Yan-wath wood where it joynes upon Askam, about a mile S. from the Hall, calld Castle-Steeds; where Trenches & Bulworkes doe yet appear. And East from thence ¼ of mile by the water side, the foundation appears of an old ruin'd chaple called Magdalen Chapel, as old Mrs Sanford sayeth.[335] XI or XII fam[ilies] purchased from [blank].[336]

[I.738]

There is an ancient Round-fortification called Castle Steeds at Yanewath Wood End, S. from the Hall about 1 \ mile / and near the New-bridge which Sir John Lowther of Lowther builded in [blank] for his own convenience to conjoyn the 2 manners. The Antiquity of it may appear from old Oakes, Elms & Crabtrees which grow on the Rampires and ~~have~~ other wood which has coverd it over, in so much that I labourd through many difficultyes before I could gane this platforme of it.

[I.738A]

Castle-Steades in Yanewath-wood

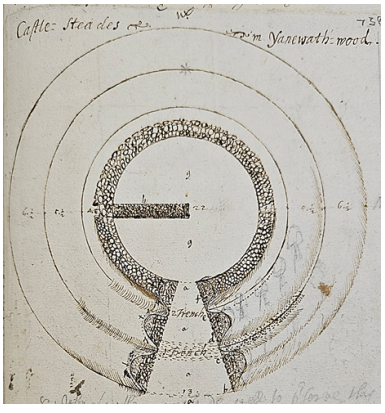

Figure 1.5.39. Castlesteads at Yanwath Wood. I.738A.

[Key]
(a.a.a.a.) The Enterance on the E. Side haveing a Ridge of Stones on either side like a foundation.
(b.) The first Burworke; which is from the rise of the plane to the Crist 7. Passes from the Crist down to the bottom of the ditch 5. From c. to d. the 1st ditch.
(d.) The second Bulworke, which is from the bottom of the ditch to the Crist, 7 Passes or Yardes. From e. to f. the second ditch.
(f.) The 3rd Burlworke with a Ring of Stone like a foundation \ on / it.
(g.g.) The Area being in diameter 22 \ p[asses] / and somwhat hollow.
(h.) A Ridge of Stones, like \ as of / a foundation wall to suppor[t] the Timber*.

Machell's Notes: I.738A]

*{Memorandum: To measure it agane – because I have counted the 1t Trench to 13 Score & 13 passes; which if true it must be oblong. The Best way will be to measure from the Center & over the Bulworks, noting the distance twixt the place of Remarke – as before.}
{N.B. All the Bulworkes seem heaps of stones; tho none appear so but the inmost; the rest being covered with a Green Swarth or Earth for the most part. It is all grown over with \ old / Oakes, Ashes, Aum, Crabtrees & Thorns.}
{Sir John Lowther might doe well to preserve this monument of Antiquity, as makeing it into a Somerhouse or place of Pleasure.}

---

[334] 'Parish of educated men.'
[335] Machell appears to have placed an 's' at the end of 'Mr', but see I.740, where he claims that 'old Mr Sandford of Askam hall' gave him the information 'by tradition'.
[336] MS: '~~In Yanewath there are~~ XI or XII fam. ~~all Customary & Herriotable, till most of them were of late~~ purchased from'

[I.740]

Sir John Lowther of Lowther to whom this Lordship of Yanewath belongeth,[337] & opposite to whose \ ~~Lord~~ / House this fort standeth, might make it a delicate place of pleasure without altering the ancient figure of it; by cutting a vist[a], & planting a walke of Trees from hence to Lowther-hall, and makeing it into Arboures & walkes, with a wall about, as to him shal seam meet: for the soyle is so fertill, & withal so warme by the wood round about it, that I should \ not / dispare of planting a \ little / vineyard here, neither of eateing of the fruits of the vineyard if it were managed to the best advantage by a skilful hand.

{Quarries of very white heweing stone[338]

And there are great encouragements to it, He haveing 2 quarryes of curious white stone which will endure the tooles of the mason, just hard at hand; The one at Hews Crag ~~which is~~ by the water \ side / over against Clifton Church ~~and Hall~~; the other upon the Common of Yanewath and near Lowther bridge: & there is Limestone enough in the Lordship – almost in any place. However, Tirrel is not far remote.

East from this Fort a ¼ of a mile by the water side \ River of Lowther /are the foundations of an old Ruined Chappel; which was calld St Magdalens as I am informed*. Which is all I have to observe in this place.

[Machell's Notes: I.740]

*Old Mr Sandford of Askam Hall by Trad[ition].

[I.194]

Yanewith was held by Sir Lancelot Threlkeld de Johe Baron de Graystock per servicio militare. Viz, per homagium &c. et reditum 8s & 8d per cornagium Johanis; et Johannes Baron de Graystock tenuit idem manerium per confamilia servicia de Henrico Domino de Clifford.[339]

{Bridge or Brigg?}

2. The other Village which belongs to this Lordship is called The Bridge, & by som, Yanewath bridge {?} the reason of which I have given you before.[340] It lyeth E. from the church \ of Barton / and consisteth of about XII familyes all ~~Arbitrary~~ \ Customary / Tenants to Yanewath Hall \ at a fine arbitrary / excepting one; which is Mr Rowland Burrow of Browham, Rector there and of Clifton parish: who \ lately / purchased his \ Tenement / free & has built ~~thereupon~~ a very good house \ upon it in 1687, ~~haveing~~ / with curiouse gardine and orchards about it.[341]

All this village have a Privilege of Turbary upon Barton Fell,[342] for which the[y pay] 2^{d} an House.

There are near this Village (that I may not say – contiguouse to it) 2 ancient & noble fortifications, both of them Round but of different figures.

Maybrough Castle & Round Table[343]

{Maybrough Castle*}

The One, is at the West Side of the Towne – called May-brough-Castle; which has but one enterance like an [337] C.1654, by purchase from Christopher Dudley (1607-1660), the last male heir of the Dudleys: see N&B1, 413.

[338] This is written in ink over a pencilled comment: 'Convenience of quarryes'.

[339] 'Yanwath was holden by Sir L. Threlkeld from John, B. of Greystoke through military service; Viz through homage etc. and a rent of 8/8d through cornage of John. And John B. of Greystoke held the same manor through family services from Henry Lord Clifford.'

[340] See I.734, above.

[341] The house is Mansion House, which has 1686 on the lintel: see Hyde & Pevsner, 711. Near to the text, Machell wrote in pencil, 'The Draught': i.e. space for an intended sketch of the house.

[342] For turbary, see the English Glossary.

[343] The heading has been moved from MS.I.654A.' For Dugdale, see Machell's notes: I.742.

horse shoe on the East Side of it, consisting of one single rampiere of Stones {pibles} heaped up together & grown over with wood: young ashes mostly; out of which (Camden tells us)[344] Penrith Castle was builded.[345]

[I.742]

{King Arthurs C. King Arthurs O Table}
The other at the South end of the Village called \ by som / King Arthurs Castle; But (by som) K. Arthurs Table; ~~where a Parliament sat in~~. The rema[r]kable thing I finde of it upon Record – is that a Parliament sat in this place.[346]

[Machell's Notes: I.742]
*Maybrough Castle – See my Miscell[any] p.236; also MS. Folio part [Blank]. {Also, Mr Dugdalls Visit[ation.}

[I.375][347]
These are by Emote Bridge in the parish of Barton. The Round Table standeth NW[348] from the Chappel of Browham. And Maybrough Castle alijs King Arthurs N.W. from it.

[I.378]
Arthur Castle alias the round Table is upon a Level, mounted above the high banke of Lowther. The entrances are N. & S., & opposite to the S[outh] Entrance about 10 sc[ore] distance is an other rotundo made of pebles about 4 passes in bredth, in hight 1 or 2, which has an Entrance or Space just opposite to the Entrance of the round T[able]. But noe egres. The Diamiter of the circle within the rim is about 4 sc[ore] & 10 of my ordnary walking pases, so that the circumference must be about 14 sc[ore] yards within rim.[349] The enterance of the round table is in Breth about 5 or 6 pases. The old man sayd it was a justing place[350] in King Arthurs Time*.

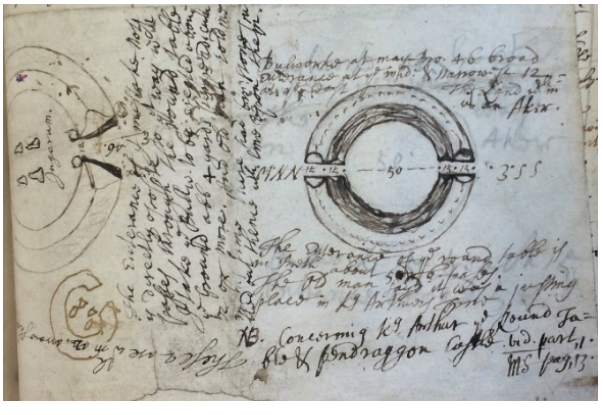

Figure 1.5.40. Machell's sketches of Maybrough and 'Arthur[']s] Castle alias the round Table'. I.737.

[344] See Camden, Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 776: 'Not farre from the confluence of Eimot and Loder, where is seene that round trench of earth, which the countrey people tearme 'Arthur's Table', stands Penrith, which is … commonly called Perith: a little towne, and of indifferent trade, fortified on the west side with a castle of the Kings, which in the reigne of King Henry the sixth was repaired out of the ruines of a Romane fort thereby called Maburg…'
[345] MS: 'The One, is at the ~~South~~ West Side of the Towne – called May-brough-Castle which has but one enterance \ like an horse shoe / like an Horse Shoe ~~and~~ \ on the East Side of it consisting of / one single rampiere of Stones {pibles} heaped up \ together / & grown over with wood \ young ashes mostly / ~~The other of~~ \ Out of which (Camden Tells us), Penrith Castle was builded.'
[346] See Machell's Preface, I.34 and II.479, for more on King Arthur and his round table.
[347] This highly damaged page has been partially restored.
[348] Unclear. Machell made alterations to his original direction marker.
[349] A line of text below this one has perished.
[350] 'Jousting place.'

[Maybrough]
The enterance if I mistake not is directly oposite to that way which passes through the round table. I take the Bullw[ork] to be erected above the ground abb[out] 4 yards perpendicular or more. And old man told me in his time there had bin stone pulled out thence with lime upon them. These 2 are within an arrow shot. Bulworke at May-Bro. 46 Broad enterance at the inside, & narrowest 12 at the least. The Land within is an Aker.

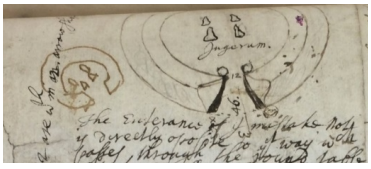

Figure 1.5.41. Maybrough. Sketches of four standing stones. The larger circle contains the Latin word 'Iugerum'. I.375.[351]

[Machell's Notes: I.376]
*N.B. Concerning King Arthur the Round Table & Pendraggon Castle: vid. part 1. MS pag.13.[352]

[Rarities in Nature at Yanwath]

[I.654A]

N[ote] The river which is now called Emot is call'd Aqua de Amoth. in Carta Bricij de Penrith qua dat locum vocat. Sain Wilfry Holme, Abbi et Monact. de Holm Coltram: è Registro de Holm.[353]
There grow upon the Bankes of this river about Yanewath &c. Barberryes naturally; great Eales in Ulswater; as in Haus-water. Rasps naturally on the Banks of Ulswater. Cullenbines[354] on the Bankes of Lowther in Yeanwath wood.

[I.671A]

[General notes and Informants' reponse to queries]

{Runner of Eye. The fisheing […][355] skellyes, perch. […]}[356]

[I.671B]

Eagles often prey in somer at Angle tern upon young Seamaws.[357]

[I.715C]

{In Graisdale Loudore also cop[per].}

[I.654A & I.654B] [358]

In the W. Ward – Desiderata or farther Query?
The Descents of Hartsop Patterdale Barton Yean[wath] &c. – Mr Dobson.

[351] 'Iugerum': Roman measurement of 28,800 square feet – just over half an acre.
[352] MS I.382 contains Machell's note: 'Memorandum. The stones at Shap; the stones at Sandford.'
[353] A citation of the register of Holm Cultram as proof of Eamont's being called (in Latin) 'the Water of Amoth'. 'About 1250 [the monks of Holm Cultram] received from Bricius of Penrith the land and pasture of St. Wilfrid's Holm at Bramwray on the Eamont,' See Francis Grainger and W.D. Collingwood (eds), 'Records: The Abbey in the thirteenth century', Register and Records of Holm Cultram, CWAAS Record Series 7 (Kendal, 1929), 126-36.
[354] Columbines.
[355] Words here are obscured by the binding.
[356] This and other notes are partly covered by the binding.
[357] Other rough notes include fragments at the right-hand side of the page but obscured by the binding at the end of each line. MS: 'Swarth beck, springs at Leade … and runs 1[t] N. then N.W. into … against Wethermelock. {springs of bow[shot] a capel[la]} {Howgrane … Added 4 … holme 1 … The Value of… In the f … the store of … St Martin… is One R… The most… Chaple (…) with a single … yard, w … If a mo … cow dung …'
[358] I.654A is a scrap page measuring 12cm x 19cm. I.654B was originally part of the same page but at some point it was cut in half. Much text has perished or is illegible.

[I.657B][359]

Qu. Antiq.

1. Quiete ab omnibus servicijs et a seculari servicio et demanda.[360]

2. Si praedictus A. vel heredes sui forefecerint verbo vel opere q[uo]d non sit Blodwita[361] et convicti fuerint dabunt sex denarios et emendabunt cuj forefecerint, et si sit Blodwita et convicti fuerint dabunt xij denarios et emendabunt cuj forefecerint.[362]

3. Faciendo (tamen) forinsecum servitium – (q.?!!!) quantum pertinet duas Bovatas Terræ.[363]

[I.725B][364]

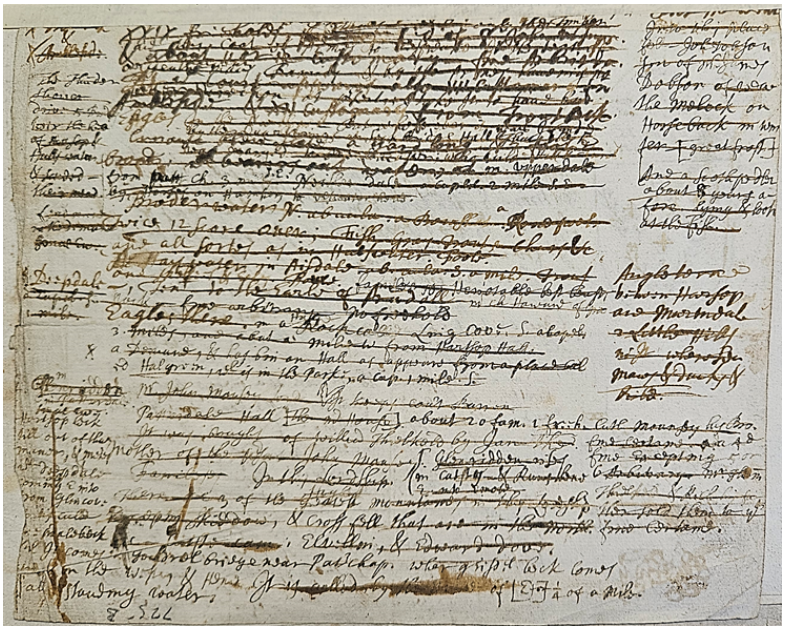

Figure 1.5.42. Page of notes on Hartsop and Patterdale, written up elsewhere and then scored through. I.725B.

[I.725C]

{Yanwath Bridge. Hartsop. Low-Winder. Martindale. Patterdale. Powley. Sockbridge. Yanwath. See the Easter Bookes; query of Halls.}

[359] Latin passage in another hand, apart from the last few words.

[360] 'Free from all services, both from secular services and charges.'

[361] Bloodwit: a fine for drawing blood.

[362] 'If the aforesaid A. or his heirs are guilty in word or deed of that which is not Bloodwit, and have been convicted, they shall pay six denarii and shall make reparation to he whom they have injured, and if it is Bloodwit, and they have been convicted, they shall pay 12 denarii and shall make reparation to him whom they have injured.'

[363] 'By doing foreign service' [the text then changes to Machell's hand, using exclamation and question marks] 'query, as much as relates to two bovates of land.'

[364] A page of notes on Hartsop and Patterdale, written up elsewhere and then crossed through here, as in the illustration. For Machell's Hartsop queries see I.725H.

{Queryes}[365]
Dr Dawes – Epitaph – Greeke – Lawyer Fletcher[366]
How many places in Barton Parish are called Manners in Lord Sussex Court Rolls}
& whether Sockbridge & Yanewath be in the Barony? If it be one? No. } Mr Thomas Webster
Query also how they & wee came to Kirkoswald & Lazonby. }
Prospect of Pooley under Dunmallard.
Som of that ore, which William Smith found? – Jane Jackson.
Whether the Armes in the small Sq[uare] quarry in the great hall window {Sockbridge} be with a Mullet or Lyon. Answer – a Martlet.[367]

[I.725D][368]

{! Hews Cragg very white E. ab Ecclesia 1m. over aganst Clifton! Yanewath Moore fine white Gravel Stone & hewing ston ¾ East ab Ecclesia near Lowther berg Round Table & Castlesteeds & Maybrough. Yan-wath wood large with Oakes}[369]
{Martindale 2 miles a Cap[ella]. Pless indifferent slate […]}[370] Query: of eagles there.
Dr Dawes borne in Martindale \ at Maud Slack a little tenement now sold to the Lancasters /, where many yet, an unhappy boy but made a good man.[371]
A Capella put in by the vicars approb[ation] by Sir John of Sockbridge. The sallary: about £6 per annum laid upon the tenement an house & garth; Dr Richard Birket the present reader.
Martindale, a forrest of red deare & wilde goates – Lord Sussexes.
Brook Crag, a course blew slate ab Ecclesia 4 miles brought with cartes, from Cap[ella] north-east a mile.
Place Fell by Ulswater side, better blew slate, a Capella 2 miles west.
The chief place of the Br. was Thrang-Cragg, from the chappl ¼ S.W. 10li but for […][372]

[I.725F][373]

Further Queries in Barton Parish
1. How it standeth & at what distance from Penrith \ S. by W. – 3 miles / Browham: \ W. 5: /Clifton: \ N.W.3 / Lowther: \ N.W, – 3 / Askham: \ N.W. 3. / Bampton: \ N. 4. / Kendal: N. by N. 18 {right} Gresmere N.E. 15[374] & ~~their beareings~~ from Martindale \ N. by E. 5 from / ~~&~~ Patterdale chaples. E. by N. 9.

2. N.B. How the fishes in the Coat of Arms standeth {palewise – & are Argent in Gules}
\ The Greek Epitaph!! /[375]

3. If Barton be a Barony? {Court Leet & Baron, Stile a Barony in ancient Court Rowles.
1 Manner de Barton infra Baronia de Barton.[376] Manners de Martindale et Fusedale infra Bar. praedict.[377]
There were 3 Tenements – Sc. – Trostermont \ neither and further / Crookedike adjoyneing to them.
Customary Tenants formerly belonging to Graystock – & the Rents are calld Arrundel rents exchanged for other lands in Cumberland in Graystock Barony.[378]

---

[365] Queries: some for Machell himself; others for his informants.
[366] Thomas Fletcher of Little Strickland, see I.678.
[367] A fragment in the bottom right corner here, appears to contain the words, 'row... w... black … shun 2 ordnary cuts.'
[368] All the text on this page of the MS has been scored through.
[369] Top r-h margin.
[370] In the left-hand margin and crossed through; there is more text but it is scored through and damaged.
[371] 'Unhappy' in the sense that he caused 'trouble or mischief', or was 'naughty'. OED.
[372] The last word is indistinct.
[373] Almost all of the text on this page of the MS has been crossed through.
[374] Unclear number, crossed through.
[375] Machell needed help with the translation, see I.671B; see also I.725C, where Machell suggests asking Dr Dawes and Lawyer Fletcher (Thomas Fletcher of Little Strickland).
[376] 'Within the Barony of Barton.'
[377] 'Within the aforesaid barony.'
[378] The term 'Arundel rents' refers to rents collected by the earls of Arundel and their successors. Dynastic marriages had resulted not only in an accumulation of titles, but also of land and property, including the manor of Greystoke in Cumberland. For example, Henry F. Howard (1608-52) was fifteenth earl of Arundel, fifth earl of Surrey, and second earl of Norfolk. His father was Thomas Howard (1585-1646), fourteenth earl of Arundel; his mother was Lady Aletheia Talbot (died 1654), a goddaughter of Elizabeth I. See J. Elzinga 'Howard, Philip [St Philip Howard], thirteenth earl of What Lordships held under it & how? \ Who takes wafe & stray / & their descents of the manners & ped[igrees] of the owners.

Which bookes publishd by Dawes; Langbane?

4. Where lead & copper-ore be in Grisdale at the West En[d] of Patterdale chaple – if any houses \ X[379] / in it & to what Lordship it belongs? To Patterdale but the Tenements are L. Sussex.

? 5. Whethe[r] a Cave in Glencoue, or any other part of the Parish. Or at Edward Doue.
{Manner de Patterdale which (the forrest of Grisdale) \ payes a free rent / – a lead mine in Eagle Crag – the Tenement Lord Sussex. Glemera Parke there about X. 3 Juries, & a Grand jury.}

? 6. Who has the Tythe-Corne of the parish. Query of William Smith. Who the ⅔ of wool Lamb & Easter b[ook] – in the other partes of Patterdale besides Hartsop.

\ Winder hall / ~~How far~~ Barton Parish borders on Daker – a loco ad locum,[380] & if Daker & Skelton be not in the Barony of Graystock?
{From Rampsbeck on the east side of Wethermelack – till you com at Daker beck-foot, where it enter Emote which parish of Daker is not in the Barony of Daker.}

Barton Kirk was the late Lanc[elot] Dawes. The only son or childe of this father – If the Dr did not purchase something at Asby Grange & Regill, & what?
{No.[381] Will. Thom[linson] at Creaktrees – which now belongs them.}

To whom the rest of High Winder– to Mr Davis. Aray a freehold?
besides Celron are Tenants? – 3 Tenants to Sussex.

[I.725G][382]

A view of Winder Hall, The descent of it – Davis pedegre from W. Jo? Davis: Master of Arts & Schoolmaster.

{William Davis = Elleanor. daughter of Christopher Teasdale of Knipe
|
Will. infans Annas infans}[383]

Martindale
How Long Sir Richard has served in Martindale {50?} & disc[ription] of the Descents of Manners.
Was Martindale 4^{d} fine only, 4^{d}, & the forresters 2^{d} fine onely, 2^{d}, before the purchase: – or were 4 & 2 times the rent? – x^{s}
Will Smiths are. {Yes}

{! In Hellin Hag N. a Sandwike ½ a mile a Hollow place in the rock with water in it resembling a pot or head about a yard diameter – and as much deep.}
{Martindale Tenants payd also a Rent of about 20^{s} per Annum meal – to feed his dogs for killing the Marts.}

How far & in what beareing does Maud-Slack where Dr Dawes was borne lye from Martindale Chappel? – {west ¼ of mile.}

How lyes Sandwike from the Chapel?
{N.W. a Capella ½ a mile & more}

Arundel (1557-1595), magnate and alleged traitor'; and G. Goodwin & J. Peacey, 'Howard, Henry Frederick, fifteenth earl of Arundel, fifth earl of Surrey, and second earl of Norfolk (1608-1652), nobleman.' ODNB.
[379] X (10) added later.
[380] In places.
[381] This is followed by an unclear interlined word.
[382] Much of this page has been scored through.
[383] All text in this paragraph has been lightly scored through.

How Bowerdale – {W. a Capella – ½ a mile}
How Fusedale – {N. fr[om] Capella – 1 mile.}

By what Statute is 1^{s} per head paid for wilde cats; & who payes it!
Whether James Dobson did not mend the way at Stybarrow upon his sons[384] falling into the water? Don by the Countrey upon complaint.

{! a place called Lords Seate on the Top of ~~a~~n \ little / Hill in the midle of Bannerdale; with a ~~Seat or~~ Chair of Stone called Lords Seat – a Capella S. by W. 2 miles – Here they say the lord usd to sit & see their Greyhounds Course the Read dear.}

Patterdale
Is there any cave about Kiple-Cove? How lies it & Read Tarne from Patterdale Hall? & are they in the manner?
How far is Catstye?

Is the 4^{d} fine in Glenridden only fower pence; or 4 Times the rent?
{It is 4 times the rent.}

If XII families in it, or all Patterdale?
Is it Lingcove or or Glincoue where Eagles build.
{! Before Martindale Chapel was consecrated every Tenant – man & wife had 3^{d} a piece paid at Chapel Stile for their paines.}

[I.725H]

Hartsop
{Twixt Patterdale and Martindale as heaven water deales.}
{Place Fell Tenements which are in Patterdale Manner – but answer for themselves at Barton being Tenants to my Lord of Sussex.}
{?} How many familyes in Nether Hartsop / Upper Hartsop.
Are there Gray-Troutes & Charrs in Broader-water?
Does Kirkston fell in Hartsop divide Westm'land & Cumberland?

Yanewath families?
Are they Heriotable – no. Fine cert[ain] or Arbitrary? yes.
Is it called Yanewathbridge or Emotbridge?
Writ? Yamonbrigg – Every house payes 2^{d} for Turbary on Barton fell. to the Lord of Barton.

Sockbridge
Was not Will. Lancaster schoolmaster at Barton? Yes.
{?} Whether the Armes in the Smal Square quarry in the Great hall-window be with a mullet or lyon?
My inke hornes.[385]

{N.B.} How Lord Dakers came to Kirkoswald & Lazenby, & how the Tenements are sold?
{Was forfeited by \ Leonard / [Dacre][386] by Attorney to the Crown in Queen Elizabeths Time – Granted by Lease to Sir George Dalston in dower with his daughter upon the death of R[387]Dakers 10. of K. 1.[388] The …

[384] MS: 'soons'.
[385] Possibly used when making drawings at Sockbridge Hall?
[386] A word here is obscured by the binding.
[387] The rest of this word is obscured by the binding. It could refer to Randal Dacre, who died without issue in 1634. His tombstone at Greystoke is inscribed, 'Randal Dacre Esq. sonne & hyre to Francis Dacre Esquire, deceased, being the youngest son of the last Lord William Dacre, deceased, being the last hyre male of that lyne; which said Randal dyed at London …' See Burke's Genealogical History of the Dormant, Abeyant, Forfeited and Extinct Peerages of the British Empire (London, 1866), 153.
[388] Charles I.

Line. Francis Leonard [Lord] of (Herst-Monceux) the[389] as heir general. & The Earle of Sussex his son.[390]}
Mr Tho [blank] has a ped[igree] & Lawyer Dalston has a booked case of it.
Tenement Sold ~~free~~ in 77 or 78 to a pepercorne fine West'land & 1[d] Cumberland – remaneing a Customary Estates – with grant of woods, green hews & Heriots – due only from a widow only for which she injoy […][391]

[389] This word is partially obscured by the binding.
[390] Francis Lord Dacre (died 1662) had a son, Thomas, who married Lady Anne Fitzroy, natural daughter of Charles II and Barbara, Duchess of Cleveland. Thomas was created earl of Sussex in 1674. As Lord of the Bedchamber to Charles II, he quickly ran through his inheritance and was obliged to sell Herst-Monceaux: Arthur Collins, A Supplement to the Four Volumes of the Peerage of England (London, 1750), 500.
[391] The rest of the sentence is obscured by the binding.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 6]

[Parish of Brough under Stainmore]

[Machell's Initial Notes]

[I.389]

{Extent paroch.}
Burgh is ~~a parish~~ of a very large extent by reason of its libertyes upon the great fells or wastes, and is supposed to be 3 score miles in circumference following the bo[u]nders.[1]

[I.438]

For the bounds of the Parish of Brough joyneing on Mickleton in Yorkshire see Ryleys Pl. Parl page 658.[2]

[I.389]

{Descrip[tion] Church} The church, to which were appendant 2 chaples, both gon to decay.[3]

{Villages appertaneing & what observable in them}
And to this church doth belong –
1. Castle Brough otherwise called Church Brough, and Anciently Over Brough.
2. Markett Brough, anciently Under Brough.[4]
3. Hellebeck.
4. Oxenthwate. Here is a fine quarry att an hamlett in Stanemore called Oxenthwate, which is supposed the stone which built both the Church and Castle wer fetched and there are Cole pitts which yeald the best Coale in all Europe.[5]
5. Eywbanke or Iubanke.
6. Stanemore, a kinde of ~~a~~ dale where the houses stand remote one from an other.
7. Sowerby juxta Burgh.

{Number of Lordships; of which in particular}
The Lordships in this parish are \ Brough, Ewbanke, Hellebeck, Sowerby, Stanemore. /

1. Brough, to which belongs both the vills of that name.

[I.393]

[Church; Chapels]

[St Michael, Brough]

The Steeple[6] at Brough Church was built the 4. or 5th of Henry 8. [1512-14], and the stone led from the

[1] MS.III.384 contains another draft. Viz. 'Brough is a Large Parish & therefore the greater by reason of its extraordinary extent upon the fell; it reach from ~~in~~ [blank] in the east to [blank] in the West [blank] mile and from [blank] in the north to [blank] in the South [blank] miles the whole circumference is supposed to be about 3 miles. There are in it these Lordship:1. Upper Brough, which belongs to [blank] 2. Underbrough, which belongs [blank] 3. Helbeck, which belongs to [blank] 4. Stanemore, which belongs to [blank].'
[2] William Ryley the elder [Lancaster Herald] and William Ryley the younger, Placita Parliamentaria Or Pleadings in Parliament, with Judgments thereon in the Reign of Edward the First and Edward the Second … Containing … Statutes, Ordinances, Provisions, Inhibitions, Forms of Writs on several occasions, Prohibitions, Proclamations, with the Confirmation of Magna Charta and Charta de Foresta. As also of some other Records taken out of the Tower of London which prove the Homage anciently due to the Kings of England from Scotland, and the Establishment of Ireland under the Laws of England (London, 1661).
[3] MS: 'The church is to which belongs \ were appendant / 2 chaples both gon to decay.'
[4] See N&B1, 577.
[5] MS: This passage on Oxenthwaite can be found upside down on MS.I.389, headed 'Barton Parish' but used instead for notes on Brough. MS III.384 contains a precis: 'Oxenthwate, an Hamlett where the quarryes is, whence the stones of the Castle & Church were brought.'
[6] I.e. the tower.

Quarell[7] By Thomas Fudergil, William Jackson junior, Thomas Jackson & William Rud, who were bound to Thomas Blenkinsop Esq. in 10li for performance of that & other Articles relateing to the Steple which Thomas gave allso in his will 1522, iiij marks with lime & other necessaries to the building of an Ile from the end of Our Ladye's Ile unto the revestry.

{Lights: 3 – Lady, Rood, St Michael light}
He caused that window wherein the Blenkinsops Armes now are consisting of 3 lights to be made, where he ordered that a closset should be made before St James. So that it seemes Brough Church had its greatest ornaments about this time There was a singing schoole of Our Ladye's Chaple at Brough at this time allso, & a master that taught.
The north Ile was called Our Lady Ile, or Lady Porch, & the little Quire where the Blenkinsops sat was called the Clousett, wher stood an Aulter to the Virgin Mary in time of superstition & popery.[8]
{The Tower was demolished & the timber sold by Thomas, Earle of Thanet, in 1685 or 1686? when he was repareing Ap[pleby.}

[I.423]

In St Michael att Brough.[9]
(i.e.) 1. the Quire: 2. the Church.
In both. 1. Windows 2. Monastij.
Note. Take 1^{t}. East window. 2. The right-hand side. 3. The left: i.e. south.

In the East window which has 3 lights.
The 1^{t} Virgin Mary; the 2nd the Crucifix; the 3^{d} as I suppose the other Mary. Above the Cruxifix has bin the Armes of Cliffords, a part of the check[10] rem[ains] yett. And writ underneath all in text letters.[11]

> Orate pro a[n]ima Magistri Thomae Ryge quondam vicarii istius Ecclesie et pro animabus parentum benefactor[um] p[a]rochianorum \ suorum / ac omnium fidelium defunctorum quorarum animas prope. Deus an[no] D[omi]n[i] M: CCCC XXIIII[12]

In the window next south side 3 lights:
In the 1. att the Top an Escutcheon Azure with the hands & feet of Our Saviour saltier wise \ Argent / and a hart in fess po[i]nt Gules. They are the 5 Vulnera,[13] in honour of which the pap[ists] keep a festival. In the midle of the said ligh[t] are the Lady Mary with a crowne on her head in blew robe under which some little children ~~praying to~~ \ kneeling before / St Michael and underneath a scrowle from St M. in text: Ora pro nobis St Michael.[14] St Michael is pictured with green wings, a scarlett robe above a white one, as St Mary has allso, and a pair of scales in his right hand; in one scale a catt or a [7] Quarry.

[8] See N&B1: 'Adjoining to which Ile, from the east end thereof towards the vestry was a little quire called the closet', 572.
[9] Machell began with the east window in the chancel and continued south, west and north. See N&BI, 572-73, where, in a description of the church windows, it was noted that Machell had 'a peculiar taste that way [and] took a particular account of so much as there was remaining thereof, about the year 1675.'
[10] 'Chequy': a method of partition of a field on a coat of arms: A.C. Fox-Davies, A Complete guide to Heraldry (New York, 1978), 98.
[11] 'Text letters'/ 'Textura'. One of a group of typefaces first used in the earliest printed books, distinguished by narrow, angular letters and a strong vertical emphasis; also, the manuscript hand on which these typefaces were based. OED.
[12] 'Pray for the soul of Master Thomas Ryge former vicar of this Church; and for the souls of his predecessors, the benefactors and parishioners, and all the faithful dead. Let God be with their souls. 1424.' This date is problematic, as on I.171 (see below) Machell referred to Rigg as alive in 1522. If he had died in the 16th century, then Machell has omitted a numeral: 'C'. In 1703, William Nicolson saw the inscription as, 'Orate pro Anima Magistri Thomæ Ryge quondam Benefactor et parochianorum suorum ac omnium', but did not continue further (See Nicolson, Misc. Accts, 48), leaving Nicolson and Burn to remark that the date was illegible 'in Bishop Nicolson's time': N&B1, 569.
[13] 'Wounds'.
[14] 'Pray for us St Michael'.

Lyon. Underneath in a Roundell the Resurrection of Xt.
In the midle the Virgin Mary praying in the same Robes with the former & yallow haire, with St Michael as I suppose from his roobes behind her \ with hand erect desjoyned / but that there are no wings; & above her head Our Saviour with a globe in his left hand, butt all much defaced. Something there has bin both under and above uniforme to the other, but are broke & gon.
~~In~~ the 3d. In the midle a Bishop with a Booke in his right hand, a crosier cross in his left. a read cope with golden edge under which blew fringed read & green & under that white. Above his head is an escutcheon with all the instruments of our Saviours persicution, & under neath in a Roundell, Queens College Armes.[15] And upon a sc[r]owle wrapt about the round ~~wreath~~ \ rodd: / Meus Jhe \ est / amor.[16] & the same Inscription \ under though[17] both windows. /[18]

In the 2nd South window \ over the doore / are 2 lights. In the first Virgin Mary \ Virgo Deifera[19] / with our Saviour in her right arme & a sceptre in the left hand. Underneath, this Coat of Armes, Argent a † Sable*; and on a scrowle wrapt about a Rod in [a roundel][20] Karl. Karlil[21] repeated above a T.
In the next St George; what was beneath is go[n] but above is an R, answering the T for Thomas Rige. Underneath both, the same inscription compleat as before.

On the 3d, St Edward the Confessor in the 1t. Nothing on the next. Above both, T.B. Underneath it nothing but the fragments of the same inscription, as above.[22]

[Machell's Notes: I.423]

*q. if Ryggs.

[I.424]

There is besides in this quire on the N. side thereof, a fair through with a Brode marble stone neither pollished nor inscribed where a vaulte has bin sup[posed].
On the south side the Aultar a strait marble stone thus inscribed.

> Here lyes Mr | Gabriel Vin | cent Stuart | to the R[ight] H[onourable] Ann Clifford | Countiss Dow | ager of Pen | Brooke Dorsett | and Montgomery | and Chief | Director of all | Her buildings in the North | who dyed [in] The Romane | Tower of | Brough Castle | Like a good | Xtian the |12th of February | 1665. 1666. | Lookeing for | the Second Comeing of | Our Saviour | Jesus Xt*.[23]

[15] Here follows a 1½ cm square sketch of the arms. Queen's College, Oxford, had the advowson, with rectorial rights to much of the parish. See Margaret E. Gowling, The Story of Brough-under-Stainmore (Kirkby Stephen, 2011), 44, 100. Robert de Eglesfield, founder of Queen's College, served as an MP for Cumberland in 1328, but at some point he decided to take holy orders. On 28 March 1331, the year in which we first find Eglesfield as a king's clerk, Edward III decided to present him to the first void benefice in the king's gift worth over 20 marks; accordingly, in July 1332, he was admitted to the rectory of Brough, said at the time of his resignation in 1344 to be worth £53 16s. 7d. p.a. Only an acolyte when admitted to Brough, Eglesfield was ordained deacon in December 1332 and priest in February 1333, in each case by the bishop of Carlisle. Remaining in royal service, Eglesfield did not reside in Brough. See J. Kaye, 'Eglesfield [Egilsfeld], Robert [Robert de Eglesfeld] (c. 1295-1349), founder of Queen's College, Oxford'. ODNB.
[16] 'My Jesus is love.'
[17] Transcribed as seen.
[18] Some words in this interlineation are unclear. William Nicolson described Eaglesfield's arms, which he saw in a quire window near the image of St Michael, as 'Three Spread Eagles, Gules, in a Field (as I take it) Argent,' Misc. Accts, 47.
[19] 'Virgin, God bearer [Mother of God].'
[20] Here Machell used a circle symbol.
[21] 'Karl Karlil' refers to bishops of Carlisle, see N&B1, 572.
[22] Some of the text at the page foot has perished.
[23] See Machell on Appleby (I.296), where he denigrates Vincent's work on the church of St Lawrence: '[Lady Anne Clifford] had a \ very / great opinion for \ his / skill in Architecture (as may be seen by his monument att Brough). But he had none att all as appears by his works.'

In Blenkinsop Quire

1. Above the 5 vulnera (In the Little E. window – Father Son & Holy Ghost ut opposite stand Mary.)
2. ~~In~~ the N. window \ has / 3 lights. In the 1[t] Virgin Mary ~~above which~~ or rather St Catherine tho she be crowned for she has in her left hand a Catherine wheale; her hair yallow, her Out robe white, her Inner yallow floored.[24] Above, the Arms of the Blenkinsops quartered.[25] 1. Vert frette Argent, which I take to be Salkeld; the 2[nd] Vass[26] de Vallibus. Argent a Bend boerd Counter Compone[27] Or & Gule.[28] 3[d]. Helbeck, Gule 6 Annuletts Or within a border ingraled Argent (which I take to be Vipont). In the next a Bishop in white with a Cross crosier; above ~~which~~ Blenkinsops armes \ i.e. / Argent a fess between 3 garbes Sable. On the fess a Cres[cent] for descent of the ~~1[t] or~~ 2 house. In the third a maiden saint all in wite powderd with flooredelys. Pinion'd about her Armes. Over the brest.[29]

In the Body of the Church

The 1[t] south window i.e. the upper window in dimond squares, IHS, i.e. Iesus Hom[inum] Sal[vator], in yallow Letters \ all over.[30] / In the underneath has bin 2 saints in either light & some inscription under them but all defaced \ & obliterated & broken. / Betwixt this and the next window is a monument in the wall with a through comeing oute, the supporting side being hansome cutworke.[31] It is reported to be maide for One Brunskill who lived on

[Machell's Notes: I.424]

*Memorandum: writ in Capital Letters.

[I.425]

Stanemore in the remotest part of the parish and \ had / a great many cattle. One time it hapned that his bull fell a bellowing, which in that Country they call cruneing. Whereupon he said to one of his neighbours, hearest thow not how Loude this Bull crewnes; if they should all crewne together {!} might they not be heard from B[rough] hither? He answerd ~~this~~ yess. Well then said Brunskill. I'le make them all crewne together; & he sowld them all; \ & / with the prise whereof he bought 4 bells now in Brough Church* the greatest of which is 15 or 1600 weight.[32]

In the great ally near to the reading deske is a gravestone, and upon a piece of brass ~~with~~ this inscription in text.

> Hic jacet Thom B\l/enkinsop armiger de Helbeck et Katarina uxor ejusdem q[i] q[id].[33] Thms obijt X[0] die julij anno domini MLL[0] LXXIIII[0] quorum animabus pepercit Deus[34]

[24] Flowered.
[25] Here Machell drew a small sketch of the arms' shape.
[26] Two letters superimposed here make the word unclear, but it probably refers to the family of Vaux.
[27] Counter-Compony: a border, bend, etc., which is composed of two rows of checkers of alternate tinctures: https://heraldry.celticradio.net/history.php?id=4.
[28] Here Machell drew a small sketch of checkers.
[29] When William Nicolson visited in 1703, he noted that though the Quire was 'in a position quite unbecoming', there were 'two large and handsome seats' at its entrance: one erected by Thomas Gabetis (died 1694); the other by the vicar, Christopher Harrison, who had placed it there in 1682. As Machell did not comment on these seats, it would seem that he visited the church before 1682. See Misc Accts, 47-48.
[30] A Christogram popularised by St Bernardino of Siena in the 15th century. He and his followers often showed IHS on a background of rays of the burning sun. See Don C. Skemer, Binding Words: Textual Amulets in the Middle Ages (State College, 2006), 115.
[31] The next [short] word is blotted.
[32] See this tale repeated in N&BI, 571.
[33] The meaning of the shortened word is unclear but might be 'quoque', meaning 'also'. In 1703, William Nicolson rendered this part of the inscription simply as 'uxor ejusdem Thome': 'wife of the same Thomas': see Nicolson, Misc. Accts, 48.
[34] 'Here lies Thomas Blenkinsop, squire, of Helbeck and Katharine wife of the same Thomas, who died 10th day of July in the year of the Lord 1674, on whose souls God has had mercy.' Quoted in Edward Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes I (Kendal, 1888), 128.

Vereor ne abusive (nisi sit MLL. LXXXIIIJ) for they have not bin so long there.[35]

The Reading Deske there (which is a very hansome one with a canopie over it) was given by one Cuthbert Bucle Lord Major of London†. He was borne upon Stanemore in this Parish and founded a schoole there endoweing it with about 10^{li} per Annum \ & another in Brough, ni fallor[36] – Mr Harreson.[37] / He was a Benefactor to Queens College in Oxon ni fallor; vid. Stows Cron.[38] His name is upon the deske thus: by Cuthbert Buckle. Anno domini 1576‡.

2. – In the 2 S. window 2 Lights. In the 1^{t} St Peter {?} & under him the Virgin Mary \ & / ~~and~~ a boy praying ~~with~~ with scrowle from his mou[t]h: mater dei.[39] & under them both: Sancta Maria ora pro nobis.[40] In the next light Our Saviour sitting a chare. All up and down JHS.

3. \ In the 3^{d} which is beyond the pulpit. 3 lights. / In the 1^{t} light. St John. Underneath, St Michael in white with yallow edgeing & yallow wings; in the one s\c/ale a child; in the other a dragon or Devel. In the next, Virgin Mary with Xt in one hand & septer in the other, in white; under, a monke prayeing with this scrowle: fili dei miserere mei.[41]
In the 3^{d} St Xtfer under which somthing defaced. Under itt writt Orate pro a[n]i[m]a D[om]ini Thome Rud Qui istam fenestram fieri fecit↓.[42]

4. – In the fourth south window, all Saints their picture & names & scaleing ladders from the 7 sacriments.

[Machell's Notes: I.425]

*Memorandum: I have an account of the steple building & Bells makeing – q. here they agre?
†(Note, vide Johe. de Vorags A\u/rea Legend.)[43]
‡If this was not the same with the Buckels J.M. of Wender marryed with.
↓{Thomas Rud, they say, was vicar here.}

[I.426]

In the 5th Sth window 2 Lights – In the 1^{t} St John Baptist; In the nex[t,] St John Evangelist with dragon in cup.[44] Under the Baptist, STE JOHE \ i.e. St Johanne. / Above them in a little part of the window Virgin Mary sitting on a throne.
In the 2 lesser lights on each side, the 1^{t}. HIS, the 2nd, M[ary].

In the 6. nothing.
{Ult 6} In the steeple window St John with the cup, & in a little vacancy, Musgraves armes.

Take this range 1t.
5.[45] – In the west end window a great R for Rigge.

[35] 'I am concerned that this is incorrect. (unless it be MLL. LXXXIIII).' Machell's initial reading of the text seems to suggest 'MLL^{0} = millesimo' and 'LXXIIII = septuagesimo quarto': 1074. This could also be read (loosely) as 1274. Machell then corrects the date to 1084 or 1284, but this is equally problematic because the Bellasis transcription of the date (copying Nicolson, Misc. Accts, 48) is 1674. Clearly, something is missing from the inscription.
[36] 'Unless I am mistaken.' The Free Grammar School in Brough was founded as a chapel by John Brunskill and Thomas Blenkinsop in 1506, see I.393 and I.431; see also N&B1, 573-75.
[37] Machell's informant was Christopher Harrison, vicar of Brough, 1664-95. CCED.
[38] In 1591, 'Mr Alderman Buckle' of London presented a copy of the King's Bible to Queen's College, Oxford, 'though membership of the college is not thereby inferred.' See J.R. Magrath, The Queen's College, 2 vols (Oxford, 1921), Vol. 2: 258, 266-69.
[39] 'Mother of God.'
[40] 'Saint Mary, pray for us.'
[41] 'Son of God have mercy on me.'
[42] 'Pray for the soul of Lord Thomas Rud who had this window made.'
[43] Jacobus de Voragine (c.1230-1298), Legenda Aurea (The Golden Legend): 13th-century book on the lives of the major saints. The first dated editon was published in Barcelona in 1494.
[44] In a chalice.
[45] MS: 'Ult 5'.

On the North Isle.
4. – The 1ᵗ window toward the west end, 2 Lights. In the first a saint defaced; in the second, with Inscription, St John Cryzostem.[46] He has a furr about his neck, a read cope with […][47] sep.[48] upon a blew vesture. Up & down, IHS & M in distinct panes.

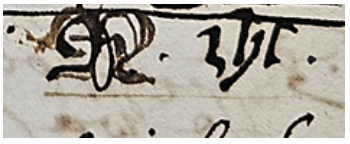

Figure 1.6.1. 'IHS & M'. I.426.

3. – The 2nd window 2 Lights. In the 1ᵗ these Lett[ers] in text: Petere may \ be / St Peters picture. In the second, St John of Beverlay in text underneath his picture.[49] \ Here & there / ~~He~~ sparsim[50] M and IHS.
2. The 3d. 2 lights. In the 1ᵗ the Angel Gabriel saluteing the Virgin who has bin placed in the next light; from his mouth a scrowle inscribed, Ave gracia plena dominus tecum.[51] In the next has bin the Virgin Mary, the Holy Ghost ascending, and Xt with a cross descend[ing], the picture quite defaced. But the scrowle, confusedly changed, leaves this inscription – e~~x~~ce fiat mⁱ scdm vʳtm tuu {i.e. ecce fiat mihi secundum voluntatem tuum ...}.[52] Above all in the interspace an escutcheon Or, with a hammer & pair of pincers Sable.
1. In the 4th. 3 lights, the 1ᵗ St John Baptist. 2nd has bin (ut puto)[53] the Virgin Mary with a ball in her hand and underneath a little crucifix. In the 3d St John with the Cupp. In the 2 greater vacancyes, the 1ᵗ. Argent, the cross over which the spear & spunge saltierwise betwixt 2 whips saltierwise on the right & 3 dyce in 3 angle with 3 nales Sable, the rest Or. The other Argent Crowne of Thorne staves & money Or. Sparsim JHS. M.[54]

In the Vicarage House[55]
{Robert Eglefield}
On each side the Gate right hand IHS, & under that T.R. for Thomas Ryge, who built it and the wall on the other side, M. In the parlour the College Arms[56] & an Eagle with this Le[m]ma[57] – nosce te ipsum.[58] St Ellens picture with a chaple & crosses. In the hall, Bishop Rob. Armes impaled to Carlile.[59] 1. Carlile. 2. Azure a pike bendwise Argent on a fess of the 2nd a red rose between 2 roundlets Gules; eagles in severall parts.[60]

---

[46] Lived AD 347-407. Archbishop of Constantinople.
[47] See the Eastern Orthodox cross in Figure 1.6.1, beneath.
[48] As St John Chrysostom died on 14 September 407, 'sep' could represent a shortened form of 'sepultus est': 'he was buried'. In the Eastern Orthodox Church the feast days of St John Chrysostom are 14 September, 13 November and 27 January; the 'sep.' here might also refer to this saint's September death and feast day.
[49] St John of Beverley d. 721, was bishop of Hexham, then of York. https://beverleyminster.org.uk/saint-john-of-beverley/.
[50] 'Here and there.' Machell provided the translation as an interlineation.
[51] 'Hail Mary full of Grace; the Lord is with thee.'
[52] 'Lo, be it unto me according to thy will.'
[53] 'As I think.'
[54] 'Here and there, JHS. M.'
[55] When William Nicolson visited the house in 1703, he described it as, 'still low, moist and smoaky', Nicolson, Misc. Accts, 48.
[56] Queen's College, Oxford, see below.
[57] 'Lemma': motto appended to a picture. OED.
[58] 'Know thyself.'
[59] Henry Robinson, bishop of Carlisle, 1598-1616.
[60] The text has perished at this point but Nicolson & Burn continue it as, 'being the arms of Eglesfield', N&B1, 573. This agrees with Machell's margin comment, 'Robert Eglefield' [plus two illegible words] on I.426, above. William Nicolson described Eaglesfield's arms (in a quire window near the image of St Michael) as 'Three Spread Eagles, Gules, in a Field (as I take it) Argent,' Nicolson, Misc.Accts, 47.

[I.171]

Vicar of Brough

John de Marton	3^{0} Rich.2	[1379-80][61]
Joh Hugon Vic. perpet.	3^{0} Henry 5	[1415-16]
John Pennener	2^{0} Hen.6	[1423-24]
Thom. Rud	25. H.6	[1446-47]
Rood	2 Ed.4	[1462-63]
Thom. Rigg 1522	4^{0} H. 8	1532[62]
John Conyers ~~Rector~~ Parson	14. H.8	[1522-23]
Mr Tompson V[icar]	H.8	1536[63]

[I.389]

The famous R[obert]. E[aglesfield] Chaplaine to Q[ueen] Philippa cousine[64] of King Edward 3. who was founder of Queens College in Oxford, was once Rector there.[65]

[I.422]

[Notes on Tithes]

{Brough. See more sub Tit. Apleby} Ad Rectoriam[66]

This Account was sent up to Queens College at Oxon By Mr Hexteter[67] as I take it Mr Richardsons predicessor 1623 concerning the Tythes.[68] Sc. In kinde all the wooll Lamb Corne and 4^{li}: 13^{s}: 5^{d} per Annum by an ancient prescription for the corne of Helbeck and hay of All Stanemore. About the same time wool was sold as I remember for 8^{s} a stone: And Tythe Lambes for 2^{s} 6^{d} a peece. {Tell Mr Harrison of this.}[69]

This paper is now in Dr Haltons custody: Provost of Queenes. April 26. 1678.[70]

---

[61] Also recorded by John F Curwen, 'Parishes (East Ward): St Michael, Brough', The Later Records Relating to North Westmorland or the Barony of Appleby. CWAAS Record Series 8 (Kendal, 1932), 94-109.

[62] Henry VIII's 4th regnal year was 1512-13.

[63] Robert Thompson, incumbent from 1535: see John F Curwen, 'Parishes (East Ward): St Michael, Brough', Later Records, 94-109.

[64] Philippa of Hainault, wife of Edward III, was also his second cousin.

[65] Robert Eaglesfield founded Queen's College, Oxford, in 1341; he was rector of Brough from 1332 to 1344. He did not live in Brough, though he visited the hospital of St Nicholas, Carlisle, in 1335: J. Kaye, Eglesfield [Egilsfeld], Robert [Robert de Eglesfeld] (c. 1295-1349). ODNB.

[66] 'Concerning the Rectory.'

[67] David Hechstetter BD was vicar of Brough from 1611 until 1623. CCED. He matriculated at Queen's College, Oxford, in 1594; BA. 1596-97, see OAD. The family came to Cumberland as mining consultants from Augsburg: W.G. Collingwood, Elizabethan Keswick: Extracts from the Original Account Books, 1564-1577, of the German Miners in the Archives of Augsburg, CWAAS Tract Series 8 (Kendal, 1912), 120-25.

[68] William Richardson was rector of Brough from 1623 until his death in 1664. The Commonwealth Survey of 1657 relates the following: 'That the right of presentation to the church is in the Provost and Fellows of Queen's College, Oxford. That Mr. William Richardson is present incumbent there and hath for his maintenance the glebe land which is worth £10 by the year and the tithes of calves with all other small tithes and dues within the parish of Brough which are worth £16 by the year. That all the rest of the tithes within the said parish do appertain to the said College and are worth £60 by the year.' See www.british-history.ac.uk/n-westmorland-records/vol8/pp94-109.

[69] Christopher Harrison MA was vicar of Brough from 1664 until his death in 1695, having been previously preacher at Crosby on Eden. CCED. He was admitted servitor at Queen's College, Oxford, in 1649, BA 1651, MA 1653-54, fellow 1654, incorporated at Cambridge 1658: see OAD. See also Bishop's Register: CAC(C), DRC1/4/245: Institution of Christopher Harrison to Brough.

[70] Timothy Halton, (bap. 1633, d. 1704), was the second son of Miles Halton (1599-1652) of Greenthwaite Hall, high sheriff of Cumberland, and his wife, Dorothy (1608-1697), daughter of William Wybergh. He was baptised at Greystoke in 1633, educated at Blencow Grammar School, and in 1649 entered Queen's College, Oxford, where his tutor was Thomas Smith, later bishop of Carlisle. He was a friend of Joseph Williamson (1633-1701), later Secretary of State, and Thomas Lamplugh (1615-1691), later archbishop of York. Halton was elected provost of Queen's College on 7 April 1677. See A. Hegarty, 'Halton, Timothy (bap. 1633, d. 1704), college head'. ODNB.

[I.185]

[Chapel: Further Brough]
There was a chaple att Brough in Henry 3. time as I take it, for Sir Michael Harcla is witness. And it should seem to have bin founded by Thomas de Musgrave (as appears from these words if they may denote any more than patronage)
Thom. fil Thomae Musgrave salutem. Sciatis me &c. dedisse. Deo et beat[e] Mar[iae] Virg[inis] & capellæ meæ de Burgo sub Stanemor, & Dom[ino] Will[iamo] de Askaby capellano et successoribus suis ibidem. Deo servientibus quos ego et Heredes mei ad predictam capellam presentare voluerimus om[n]es terras prata &c. subscripta.[71]

The Late Chapple was founded by Thomas Blenkinsop Esq., who gave the ground, & John Brunskale, who built the same, as appears [in] the licence of Will. Bishop of Carlile for erecting of the same, dated 1496, 19 June.

[I.393]

It was founded intentionally 1493, 7. Henry 7. by Thomas Blenkinsop Esq., who gave the Tenement whereon it stands, called Gib Garth, to John Brunskale upon condition that he should build a Chaple there att his owne proper cost & an Hospice or harbour with 2 Bedes in it for Strangers (or pilgrims) and other poore people and maintane and repare the same for ever, paying to him & his heires 2^{d} rent at Pentcost yerely; and upon defalt of repareing & mantaineing the said Chaple, Harbour & Beds, as before specifyed, that the Tenement should revert to Thomas and his heires as formerly. It was build to the honour of the Blessed Virgin & St Gabriel the Archangel, & consequently dedicated to them allso, as is apparent from the foresaid writeing.[72]

[I.413]

{St Marys Chaple at Brough founded}
\ T.B. Esq. / He gave a tenement in Brough called Gibgarth to John Brunskale, upon condition that he should build thereupon a chaple in Hon[our] of the Blessed Virgin Mary & St Gabriel the Archangel: reseveing to him selfe & heirs 2^{d} rent at Penticost if demanded ~~upon~~, and allso that he should build an hospitum with 2 Bedds in the same to harbour strangers & other poore people, \ all / which were to be kept in repare {!!! !!!} by Brunskale & his heires; otherwise to revert to him & his heirs: dated 1493. Regnald & Robert Warghethecop Esqs witnesses inter alios. 7. Henry 7. [1491-92] vixit 17. Henry 7. [1501-02]. {He dyed about 1. Henry 8.} [1509-10].

[Machell's Notes: I.185]

[Further notes on the Chantry Chapel, above]
And there was a little hospitall allso, which was built for poore travaliers relief, because of the Storme Tempest &c. which were so frequent upon Stanemore, & they who putt to their helping handes & were pen[itent] were to have 4 dayes pardon. The chapple allso was built in consideration of the church being so remote from the Through Road Towne, that priest might be &c.
9. Ed. 4. [1469-70]. T. Mauchel – Thomas Lancaster came then about? (at least was then) \ to / att Brampton.

[I.390]

Burgh Subtus Stanesmore [Lordship and Castle][73]

{Lordship of Brough: wat villages in it; what the demane & manner house?} {who inhabitants?}

[71] 'Thomas son of Thomas Musgrave. Greetings. Let it be known that I etc. have given to God and the blessed Virgin Mary and my chapel of Brough-under-Stanemor & to Lord William of Askaby, chaplain, and his successors there, servants of God (whom I and my heirs have willed to present to the aforesaid chapel) all the lands, meadows etc. listed below.'
[72] Presumably the writing referred to was the deed of gift of Gibgarth; for evidence relating to the history of this chapel, see Gowling, Brough-under-Stainmore, 70-71; Gowling quotes 1506 as the date of its endowment by John Brunskill as a 'separate institution [from St Michael's Church] …connected with the holy well of St Winifred.'
[73] 'Brough is commonly expressed by the description of Brough under Stanemore, to distinguish it from the same name, of which there are many', N&B1, 577.

{8. Edward 2. [1314-15] est ibidem unum castrum &c.}[74]
There is there One Castle, with[in] the precinct of the trenches whose Herbage valet per annum, vj^{s} viii^{d}. ~~Cl~~ iiij \ xx /[75] Acres of demane land, 22 whereof at the least are each of them worth per Annum 9^{d}, & they amount to vj^{li}, xiij^{s}, iiij^{d}.[76] {?} lx Acres of medow, Each whereof valet per Annum xij^{d} per Acre, et est Summa lx^{s}. 2 Parkes whose Herbage cum Omnibus &c.[77] valet per Annum Cls;[78] Allso free Tenents who pay by the yere X^{s}; and Other free Tenents who pay per Annum 17^{s} 2^{d}.

There are allso 20 Oxgangs of Land worth 4^{s} per annum an Oxgang, and they amount to iiij^{li}. And x Tofts Cotterell[79] which are yerely worth 6^{d} per Toft, & summa est 5^{s}; And One Bakehouse which is worth with the measureing of the corne of the village 40^{s}. And One watermill burned & valet per Annum vj^{li}, xiij^{s}, iiij^{d}. Allso the Constableship is worth per Annum 40^{s}. Allso the profitts of the faires are worth per Annum x^{s}. There are Allso there 52 inferiour Burgages, 24 Tofts & one halfe; And they Are Burned, Each whereof valet per Annum xij^{d}. & they amount to 24^{s} 6^{d}.

Allso there are there upon Stanemore, Vaccaries which are Burnt, each whereof, with the middow ajoyning, valet per annum 10^{s}, and they Amount to C^{s} (so that there wer 10 vaccaries). Allso Alane de Cabergh Nicholas de Musgrave & Geofray de Tesedale Hold there 4 closes of new improvement & red[dit] per Annum Cxv^{s}, ~~&~~ q$^{a.}$[80]

{Agistamentum}[81]
And the Adjoyst[82] there is valet per Annum xi^{s}.
The pleas & perq[uisites] of the Court:[83] xiij^{s} iiij^{d}.
Summat[im] Totalis: xlix^{li} xviij^{s} iiij^{d} q^{a}. utrum de tot[ali] & demidi dubitat? [84]

ex ead[em] escæt cap Apud Ap 8. Edward 2. [1314-15]: in Tur London[85]

Sowerby Juxta Burgh[86]
Ibidem unum Capitale messuagium &c. There is there one Manner-House, which is worth by the yere: 0: 1: 0

xx/v[87] Acres of Land de Demane worth per Annum viii^{d}[88] an Acre & summa est	2:13: 4
xvi Acres of ~~dem~~. medow, worth in the yere per Acre, 18^{d} and summa est	1: 4: 0
2 Free Tennents who pay per Annum	0: 0: 7
xvj Oxgangs of Land quar quel valet per Annum 5^{s}.[89]	4: 0: 0
x messuages Cotterell, each whereof valet per Annum xij^{d} & summa est	10:10: 0

[74] Inquisition Post Mortem, Robert de Clifford, 8. Ed. 2. 1314-1315. 'There is there one castle etc.'
[75] This number represents four score = 80.
[76] £6 13s 4d.
[77] 'With all its appurtenances.' Another reference to parks in MS I.262B, provides, 'A place called Brough Parke of the dem[ain] lands belonging to Brough Castle, 1637, p.212. L[iber] 3.' For evidence of deer parks (including Brough Park) in Brough Parish, see Haydn Charlesworth, 'The medieval Parks of Brough-under-Stainmore', CW3, 18 (2018), 169-90.
[78] '150s.'
[79] Tofts Coterell: Homesteads and lands of cottagers. OED.
[80] 115s ¼d.
[81] Grazing.
[82] Agistment?
[83] Manor Court.
[84] In sum total, £49 18s 4¼d. It is uncertain whether this refers to the whole or the half.
[85] From an eschaetor's survey of Brough Parish taken in 8 Edward II (1314-1315), now in the Tower of London.
[86] Sowerby near Brough.
[87] The arithmetic only works if the sum represents 80 acres at 8d per acre (= £2 13s 4d) but the numbering suggests 25 acres. However, the price of viii per acre is unclear.
[88] Partly crossed-through numeral.
[89] 'Worth each year per annum.'

1 water mill, worth per Annum 2: 0: 0
And there is there 1 vaccarie worth per Annum 1: 6: 8
Summa est: xi^{li}, xv^{s}, vij^{d}

Ex Eodem Escheato? sed utrum de toto an de demid[io] Dubit[o].[90]

[I.389]

Brough Castle

And the Castle is the manner house, which (as Apleby) has bin a seat of The Morvills, after of the Viponts and in particular of Idonea de Labourne, 2 daughter of Robert de Vipont, to whose portion it fell, and that time is said to have bin in its prime. But after was governed for the most part by a Constable which Constablewik in [blank] time, was vallued upon inquisition att 40s. And one del Stanes had the place of old under the Cliffords. But in the yere [blank] it was passed to T.B.[91] de Helbeck Esq. \ & his heires / as way of lease for 500 yeres, so that it was never very much inhabited by these noble familyes which were owners of till of late that it was rebuilded by the Lady Ann Clifford, last of that name, who repared this & all her other Castles and lived in them all by courses; by that means distributing her benefitts and spending Her money with a great equality in all part of the country. And least it should falle to Ruine Agane, and the Glory thereof be quite Extinguished, I have presented you with a draught and plattforme.[92] But Quod nitet interius nulla Tabella [infert].[93]

[I.392]

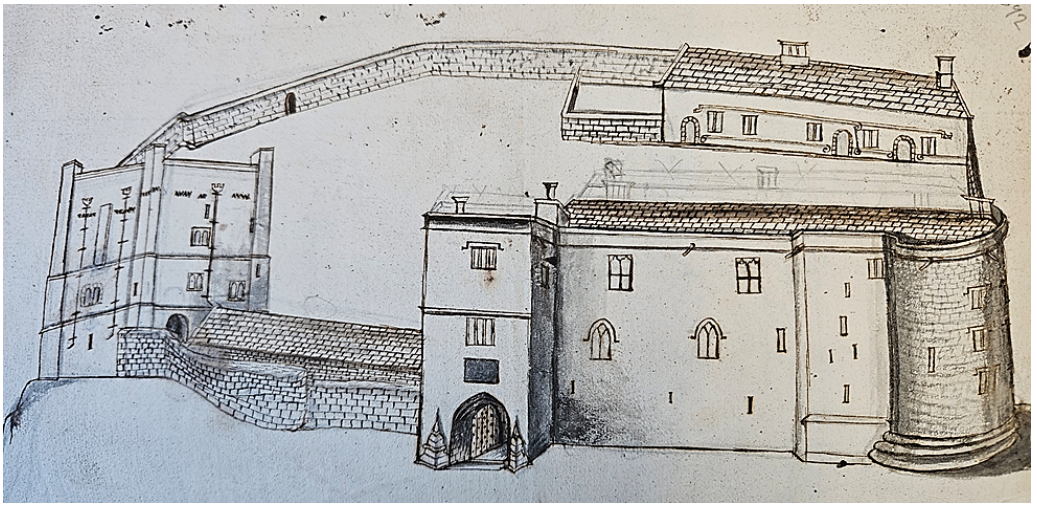

Figure 1.6.2. Elevation of Brough Castle. 1.392.

[90] 'But whether this concerns the whole or the half I am not sure.'
[91] Thomas Blenkinsop.
[92] For Machell's elevation and plan, see I.392, 392A.
[93] ''What shines within no picture can represent.'

[I.392A]

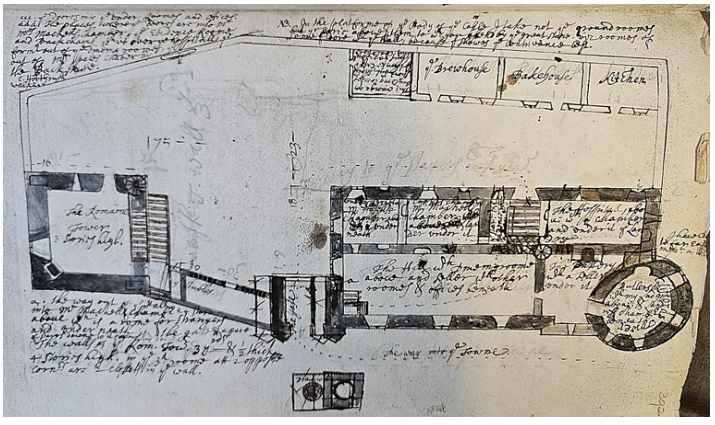

Figure 1.6.3. Plan of Brough Castle. 1.392A.

[Key to Machell's Plan of Brough Castle]

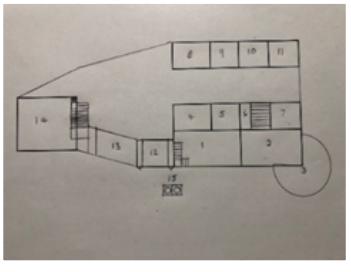

Figure 1.6.4. Key to Machell's Plan of Brough Castle (above).

[1.] The Hall with Dineing roome above and seller with other roomes & offices beneath.
[2.] The Buttery with a seller under it.
[3.] Cliffords Tower: Butlers ch[amber] with my Ladyes above & Landress chamber beneath.
[4.] Undersecre[tary] Mr \ W. / Hasells chamber abo[ve] with one underneath.
[5.] Cookes chamber (Mrs Machells ~~with a~~ chamber) ~~above~~) & larder under it.
[6.] The stare & Evidence room[94] above.
[7.] The Hospitall above with a chamber, and under it the Lau[n]drye.[95]
[8.] This range of Building comes short, but should, I think, extend thus far without this coale hole.
[9.] The Brewhouse.
[10.] Bakehouse.
[11.] Kitchen.
[12.] The Gate.
[13.] The Stables.
[14.] The Roman Tower, 3 storyes high 16 yards.[96]
[15.] Draw-well.

[94] The archive and strong room of the castle.
[95] There is a virtually illegible sentence in the margin here.
[96] 16 yards square.

The Romaine Tower, 3 Stories high a: The way out of the Hall into Mr Machells Chamber è a stare,[97] above which is a rome for strangers, and underneath is the gate & a pare of stares downe to it from his doore.
[b.] The walls of the Roman Tower 3 yards & ½ thick, 4 stories high. In the 3^{d} roome att 2 opposite corners are 2 clossets in the wall.
ccc: The doores into the under roomes and offices.
ddd: The places where the doores are into Mr Machells Chamber, the evidence roome and Back chamber which is over the hospitall, the former out of the dineing roome, which out of Mrs Pates chamber by the Back stare.[98]
e. Hobthrush Walke.

[Machell's Notes: I.392A]

'About the T. Wall 3 Yards'; 'The Way to the Mayors Aula.'[99]
N.B. In the platform of the body of the Castle I take not the ground rooms but the storie above them, to which you ascend by the great stare, viz. rooms of same floore with the hall, because that showes the contrivance best.

[I.394]

The Castle within the walls cannot be extended, by reason that the cost bestowed thereupon exceeds the profit*.
There was then a Garden without the Castle, the Herbage whereof was extended to 1^{s}[100] per Annum†. In the 13. yere of Henry 8th 1521, the Ancient Castle of Brough under Stanemore was by a causualty sett on fire 2 yeres befor the death of Henry Lord Clifford, surnamed the shepherd, a little while after he had kept a great X^{t}mas there, so as nothing was left but the bare walls.[101] And so it lay, till built agane by the Lady Ann Clifford, Countiss D[owager] of Dorsett &c. [who] built it agane on the Old Foundation, so as she lodged 3 nights together ther, i.e. 16, 17, 18 of September, 1660: 1^{t} night in Cliffords or the Round Tower, the Other 2 in \ Tower called the / the Romanes.

[Machell's Notes: I.394]

*{1. Edward 3.} (N. It seemes they were all putt in repare then.)
†This should be Browham.

[I.395]

The outworkes are square, 7 s[core] & 10 passes in lenth, 5 sc. in bredth, measureing upon the top of the workes. Some other at the south end.
The court is about 91 passes in lenth. Considering allso the thickness of the walls = whereof the maine castle take up in lenth 28 p.; the stables 30; one side of Tower 16; Twixt the stable end an Tower wall 14 p.; the distance twixt stable end next Castle & the Castle about 8. {add 2}

Castle	28	}
Gate	5[102]	}
Stable	30	}94*
To the Tower	14	}†
Tower	16	}

The Bredth of Court from the Inside of the Court wall to the Outside of the gate, 41. Thus, from the outmost part of foreside the gate to corner of the Castle 18; from thence to the wall 23‡.

[97] In Lady Anne Clifford's accounts of 1665, Henry Machell (uncle to Thomas) is described as steward of Lady Anne's house and gentleman of her horse: see Jessica Malay (ed.), Anne Clifford's Autobiographical Writing, 1590-1676 (Manchester, 2018), 226.
[98] Frances Pate was Lady Anne Clifford's senior gentlewoman. She was left £50 in Lady Anne's will. Another gentlewoman attendant was Susan Machell (sister to Thomas). See Malay, Lady Anne Clifford's Autobiographical Writings, 227.
[99] Written in pencil.
[100] The numeral '1' is partially obscured by a line.
[101] Machell was referencing Henry Clifford, born c.1454, whose youthful history was the stuff of novels. See Part 1, Ch.1, Town and Parishes of Appleby, I.254 (Generation 8 of the Cliffords).
[102] The numeral '5' has been superimposed on another numeral.

The tower walls are 3 yards thick. 4 sc[ore] & 15 steps up to the leads.
Walls thick in the round tower aboute 2 yard & ½.

[Windows: Coats of Arms]

Helbeck
Azure on a cheveron Argent 33 foyls Sable between 3 woulfes head Chiped Or.
Wife: Rayner of Lincolnshire, Ermin on a chief Azure. 2 starrs of 6 points Or.
Has 2nd Ewbanke coats Sable, 3 cheveronells in bass brased Or. On a Chief 3 harts. Crest a draggon head Or on a crownett Gules langed \ of the 2nd G[ules]. /
1. Blenkinsop Impaleing [blank], writ underneath Thomas Blenkinsop [blank] and Margaret, his wife, 158[blank]
In the midle higher Light, Blenkinsop quartering as at the church[103] Blenkinsop & Salkeld, 1586. ~~The House~~ Over the gate, 1588; over the great roome chimney H.- B. 1589.[104]

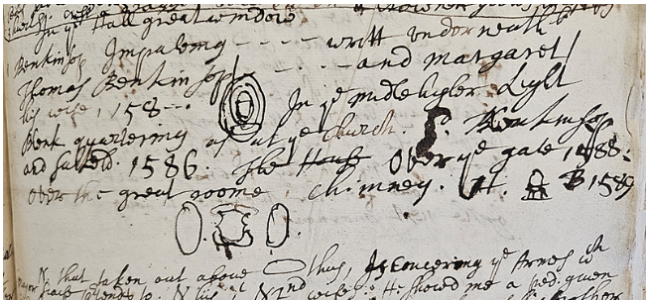

Figure 1.6.5. Sketches. I.395.

Note. That taken out above thus,[105] is concerning the arms which Major Scaife pretends to, & his 1t & 2nd wifes. He showd me a pedigree given in by his Brother of Winton last Visitation to Dugdale, Norroy,[106] as far as his brothers could remember, 4 or 5 generations. And he noted upon't that Mr Dugdale said the Scaifes had bin Gentlemen for 5 or 600 yeres {query a D[omi]no Dugdall}. That the[y] payd 25s fees to the said Sir Thomas Dugdale. The[n] he payd 26d for that Extract. Now I have heard on the contrary: that Mr Dugdall declared that he never ~~knew~~ \ heard / of a Gentleman of that name, & dismissed Major with a check, for he had that command under Oliver Cromwell in that Horrid rebellion & Civil War.[107]

[Machell's Notes: I.395]

*I tooke the whole to be but 91.[108]
†Rest no more; it is in a Direct Line.
‡Observe all this in drawing the platform over agane.

[103] The next word is blotted.
[104] There follows a roughly sketched coat of arms.
[105] See the small sketch in the figure above.
[106] William Dugdale was Norroy, King of Arms.
[107] On 13 July 1680, the Justices of Westmorland sent a letter to the Lord Chancellor protesting against the appointment of Arthur Skaife as a Justice. They remarked that Skaife 'was extraordinarily active in arms against the Crown, was a purchaser of Crown lands, and is a very different kidney from the gentlemen who have been put out.' A draft of this letter is excerpted in J.A. Bennett and R. Ward (eds), The Manuscripts of S.H. le Fleming Esq. of Rydal Hall (London, 1890), 169, with an accompanying note stating that, after the receipt of the letter, Skaife was 'turned out'. For more on Major Arthur Scaife and the Civil War, see Gowling, Brough-under-Stainmore, 67, 76-7.
[108] The sum in the table totals 93.

[I.396]

When the great Breach in Cæsars Tower ther[109] was made up by the Countiss of Penbroke, the Lady Ann Clifford, 16 [blank][110] in the highest story about 3 foote & ½ from the floore, (Sc. Brest high) was a whole ~~discovered~~ to be seen exactly in the midle betwixt the out & inside of the wall, about 9 inches diameter & plastered smoth within with lyme & sand and this was supposed by the workmen to have gon all along the sides of Tower from corner to corner. But of what use it was they could not conjecture; may be it was for to whisper & give notice from the opposite corner (in which there are clossets) of the approach of an enemie. But there were none in the Turrets or any other place that \ the workmen could discover. T. Yare one of the carpenter[s].[111]

Figure 1.6.6. Margin sketch. Impression of the old roof of the Roman Tower at Brough Castle. 1.396.

And they say allso that old Roofe had not bin made neither flat nor Ridged, but with a gutter quite contrarie way, & appeared & doth still appeare from the table of stone to cast of the water from the walls to the Roofe (i.e. to receive water in case of a siege?).[112]

[Hobthrush Walk]

There is a place calld Hobth\ r /osh Hole, in the Court Wall of the Castle, Noreast & not far from the Tower, so named they say from a spirit that used to walke there, concerning which they relate many [109] Machell probably meant the 'Roman Tower' at Brough. 'Caesar's Tower' is at Appleby.

[110] Lady Anne Clifford had the castle restored during 1659-62. See Gowling, Brough-under-Stainmore, 70.

[111] T. Yare was Machell's informant.

[112] The received view is that a roof of this form was installed by Lady Anne Clifford, but Machell's text and the structural evidence together show that the succession of roofs was as follows: 1. c.1130s: steeply pitched with central ridge well down below the parapets, with built-in roof-crease (which can only be original). 2. Later Middle Ages: replaced by a central-valley roof, as shown by the 12 corbels on North and South, which can only have carried wall-purlins carrying the tops of rafters descending to the valley. This is the 'olde roof', as described to Machell after the event by Lady Anne's workman (or others reporting their former findings) of which he identified traces, and of which - clearly intrigued - he added a reconstruction drawing in the margin of his MS (I.396, above). 3. April-September 1660 (for this date see Malay, Lady Anne Clifford's Autobiographical Writings, 152-53): a wholly new roof, very low-pitched, installed at higher level, allowing for a new floor (a fourth level; third floor) to be added underneath it but still within and below the parapets. New windows were cut through the East and West walls to light it, and access to it hacked through from the original newel. The interpretation offered by the on-site interpretation (visited 5 May 2023); the published guidebook: Henry Summerson, English Heritage Guides: Brougham and Brough Castles (London, 1999); and website (accessed 9th May 2023), appears, therefore, to be incorrect. However, Machell's view that the reason for the 'olde' roof's form was to collect water is unfounded – any form of roof can be designed to do this. The 'table of stone', which he would have seen within the newly re-roofed building and partly obscured, must refer to the original tabling of the 1130s. I thank Dr Edward Impey FSA FRHistS, Master and Director General Emeritus, Royal Armouries', for sending this summary of his research, after visiting the site on 5 May 2023 (ed.).

stories, & this amongst the rest, That wen the people, who had corne in fields ready to be Inded,[113] if you brought a gift to this Hobthrosh walke, the[y] would be sure without further trouble to have it all in their barn by the next morning.

[I.427]

Ad Brough

The Old Charter of Brough[114]
Sent to the Earle of Thanet by Thomas Machell Rector of Kirkbythore, 24 Feb. 1684

{Carta R. Ed. VI}
Edwardus Sextus dei gratia Anglie Francie et Hybernie rex fidei defensor et in terra eclesie Anglicane et Hybernie supremum caput. Omnibus ad quos presentes littere pervenerint, salutem.
Inspeximus Litteras patentes domini E- nuper regis Anglie progenitoris nostri factas in hec verba, Edwardus dei gratia rex Anglie dominus Hybernie et dux Aquitanie, archepiscopis episcopis abbatibus prioribus comitibus barronibus justiciariis vicecomitibus prepositis Ministris et omnibus Balivis et fidelibus suis, salutem, Sciatis nos de gracia nostra speciali concessisse et hac carta nostra confirmasse dilecto et fideli nostro Roberto de Clifford quod ipse et heredes sui imperpetuum habeant unum mercatum singulis septimanis per diem Jovis apud Manerum suum de Burgh subtus Staynmore in Comitatu Westmerl' et unam feriam ibidem per quatuor dies duraturam, videlicet per duos dies prox' ante festum sancti Matthei Apostoli et in eodem festo sancti Matthei, et per unum diem prox' sequentem, Nisi mercatum illud et feria illa sint ad nocumentum vicinorum mercatorum et vicinarum feriarum, Quare volumus et firmiter precepimus pro nobis et Heredibus nostris quod predictus Robertus et Heredes sui imperpetuum habeant predicta mercatum et feriam apud Manerum suum predictum cum omnibus libertatibus et liberis consuetudinibus ad hujusmodi mercatum et feriam pertinentibus, Nisi mercatum illud et feria illa sint ad nocumentum vicinorum mercatorum et vicinarum feriarum sicut predictum est. Hiis testibus venerabilibus patribus H. Lincoln Episcopo Cancellario nostro: R. Episcopo Sarumi, Johanne de Elcham, comite Cornub., fratre nostro Carissimo: Rogero de mortuo Mari, Comite Marchie. Willo de Monte Acuto: Olivero de Ingham, Hugone de Turpliton seneschallo Hospitii nostri et alijs. Dat per manum nostram apud Northampton secondo die Augusti Anno regni nostri quarto. INSPEXIMUS etiam litteras patentes domini R. nuper regis Anglie progenitoris nostri de confirmatione facta in hec verba. Richardus dei gratia Rex anglie et Francie et Dominus Hybernie omnibus ad quos presentes littere pervenerint salutem, INSPEXIMUS quandam cartam domini H. fil Regis Johannis quondam Regis Anglie progenitoris nostri factam in hec verba. Henricus dei gratia, Rex Anglie dominus Hybernie Dux Normanie, Aquitanie et Comes Anjou. Archepiscopis Episcopis Abatibus prioribus Comitibus Baronibus Justiciariis vicomitibus prepositis ministris et omnibus Balivis et fidelibus suis, salutem Sciatis nos concessisse et hac carta nostra confirmasse dilecto et fideli nostro Reginaldo fil Petri quod ipse et Heredes sui imperpetuum habeant liberam Warrennam in omnibus dominicis terris suis Manerii sui de Wyghton. Dum tamen terre ille non sint infra metas Foreste nostre Ita quod nullus intret terras illas ad fugandam in eis vel ad aliquid capiendum quod ad Warrennam pertineat, sine licentia et voluntate ipsius Reginaldi vel Heredum suorum super forisfacturam nostram decem librarum. Concessimus etiam eidem Reginaldo quod ipse et Heredes sui imperpetuum habeant apud predictum Manerium suum de Wyghton unum ~~mercat~~ mercatum singulis septimanis per diem Jovis, Nisi mercatum illud sit ad nocumentum vicinorum mercatorum. Quare volumus et firmiter precipimus pro nobis et Heredibus nostris quod predictus [113] Brought in.

[114] See William Whellan, The History and Topography of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmoreland (Pontefract, 1860), 730, which refers to Edward VI confirming the grant made by Edward III in 1330, hence the transcript of the Inspeximus Charter of Edward VI (26 February 1549) seen here. See also W. Douglas Simpson, 'Brough-under-Stainmore: The Castle and the Church', CW2, 46 (1946), 222-83, where Simpson notes (228) that details of the 1330 charter are to be found in the Calendar of Charter Rolls Vol. IV, 186, and that there is evidence for the market's earlier existence, as appears from a bond registered on 1 August 1281, citing the Calendar of Ancient Deeds, Vol. IV, 26 No. A6332. [For charter rolls see British History online.)

Reginaldus et Heredes sui imperpetuum habeant liberam Warrennam in omnibus dominicis terris suis Manerii sui de Wyghton Dum tamen terre ille non sint infra metas Foreste nostre

[I.429]

Ita quod nullus intret terras illas ad fugandum in eis vel ad aliquid capiendum quod ad Warrennam pertoneat sine licentia et voluntate ipsius Reginaldi vel heredum suorum super forisfacturam nostram decem librarum, et quod habeant ibidem unum Mercatum singulis septimanis per diem Jovis, Nisi Mercatum illud sit ad nocumentum vicinorum mercatorum sicut predictum est. Hiis Testibus venerabile patre Waltero Eborum Archepisco: Magistro W. de Kilkenny Archidiacano Coventr: Radulpho fil Nicolai Johanne de Lexington, Roberto de Muscegros, Roberto Walerand: Radulpho de Wanney: Willo de Chaenny et alijs. Data per manum nostram apud Shyreburn Septimo die Januarij anno regni nostri Vicessimo sexto. Nos autem concessiones confirmacionem voluntatem et preceptum prædicta et omnia et singula in Carta predicta contenta rata habentes, et grata et pro nobis et Heredibus nostris quantum in nobis est, dilecto et fideli nostro Stephano Leserop[…] Chivaler fil Richardi Leserop[…] Chivaler, et Militente uxori ejus, Ac dilecto Armigero nostro Thome Brounsfete et Margarete uxori ejus nunc tenentibus Manerij predicti tenore presentium concedimus et confirmamus, prout carta predicta rationabiliter testatur, et prout prestatus Reginaldus et Heredes sui ac alij tenentes Manerij predicti hujusmodi Warrennam et mercatum hactenus racionabiliter habere et tenere consueverunt. In cujus rei testimonium has litteras nostras fieri fecimus patentes. Teste me ipso apud Westmonasterium octavo die Novembris Anno Regni nostri quarto decimo. Nos autem Cartas et litteras predictas ac omnia et singula in eiusdem contenta rata habentes et grata, ea pro nobis et Heredibus nostris quantum in nobis est acceptamus et approbamus ac Carissimo consanguineo nostro Henrico Clifford Comiti Cumbr' ut consanguineo et proximo heredi predictorum Roberti de Clifford et Thome Brounfleete nunc tenentibus predictorum Manneriorum de Burgh et Wyghton et Heredibus suis tenore presentium ratificamus et confirmamus prout Carte et littere predicte in se racionabiliter testantur: et prout idem comes et Heredes sui tenentes Maneriorum predictorum hujusmodi libertates, et liberas Consuetudines hactenus racionabiliter habere et tenere consueverunt In Cujus rei testimonium has litteras nostras fieri fecimus patentes Teste meipso apud Westm' vicessimo sexto die Februarij Anno regni nostri tertio

W. Ermysted
Exam per nos
W Ermysted }
Willus Brytyn } Eticas[115]

[115] 'Edward VI by grace of God king of England, France and Ireland, defender of the faith, and supreme head of the English and Irish church. To all to whom this present letter shall come, greetings.
We have consulted patent letters of the Lord Edward, lately king of England and our forbear, which read as follows: Edward by grace of God king of England lord of Ireland and commander of Aquitania, to the archbishops, bishops, abbots, priors, earls, barons, justices, sheriffs, royal officials and to all bailiffs and their subjects, greetings. Know that we, through our special grace, have granted and by this charter of ours have confirmed to our beloved subject Robert de Clifford that he himself and his heirs in perpetuity may have a market every week on a Thursday at his manor of Brough under Stainmore in the County of Westmorland and a festival in the same place of four days duration, that is, for the two days immediately before the feast of Saint Matthew the Apostle and at that same feast of Saint Matthew, and for one day immediately following, unless that same market and that festival be to the detriment of neighbouring merchants and neighbouring festivals; wherefore we wish and we have issued firm instructions on behalf of ourselves and our heirs that the aforesaid Robert and his heirs may have in perpetuity the aforesaid market and festival at his manor aforesaid with all liberties and free customs pertaining to a market and festival of this kind, unless that market and that festival be to the detriment of neighbouring merchants and neighbouring festivals, as has been said previously.
With these witnesses: the venerable fathers H. Bishop of Lincoln our Chancellor; R. Bishop of Salisbury; John de Elcham, the earl of Cornub, our most dear brother; Roger of the Dead Sea, the Earl of Marchis, Will[?] de Mount Acutum; Oliver of Ingham; Hugo of Turpliton steward of our Hospital; and others; dated by our hand at Northampton on the second day of August in the fourth year of our reign. We have consulted also for confirmation patent letters of Lord Richard lately King of England our forbear, which read as follows: Richard by grace of God king of England and of France and Lord of Ireland, to all to whom these letters shall come, greetings: we have consulted a certain charter of Lord Henry son of John former king of England our forbear, which reads as follows: Henry, by grace of God king of England lord of Ireland commander of Normania, Aquitania and earl of Anjou to the Archbishops Bishops Abbots Priors Earls Barons Justices Sheriffs royal officials and to all Bailiffs and their subjects, greetings. Know that we have granted and by this our charter have confirmed to our beloved subject Reginald son of Peter that he himself and his heirs may have in perpetuity free warrening in all his demesne lands of his manor of Wyghton, as long as those lands be not within the boundaries of our Forest in such a way that no one may enter those lands to hunt in them or to catch anything that pertains to warrening without the licence and will of Reginald himself or of his heirs on penalty to us of ten pounds. We have granted also to the same Reginald that he himself and his heirs may have in perpetuity at his aforesaid manor of Wyghton a market every week on a Thursday, unless that market be to the detriment of neighbouring merchants. Wherefore we wish and we have issued firm instructions on behalf of ourselves and our heirs that the aforesaid Reginald and his heirs may have in perpetuity free warrening in his demesne lands of his manor of Wyghton and a market every week on a Thursday, unless that market be to the detriment of neighbouring merchants. Wherefore we wish and we have issued firm instructions on behalf of ourselves and our heirs that the aforesaid Reginald and his heirs may have in perpetuity free warrening in all his demesne lands of his manor of Wyghton as long as those lands be not within the boundaries of our Forest in such a way that no one may enter those lands to hunt in them or to catch anything that may pertain to warrening without the licence and will of Reginald himself or of his heirs on penalty to us of ten pounds, and that they may hold there a Market every week on a Thursday, unless that Market be to the detriment of neighbouring merchants as has been said before. With these witnesses: the venerable father Walter Archbishop of York, Master W. de Kilkenny Archdeacon of Coventry, Radulph son of Nicolas, John of Lexington, Robert of Muscegros, Robert Walerand, Radulph of Wanney, Will? de Chaenny and others. Dated by our hand at Shyreburn on the seventh day of January in the twenty sixth year of our reign. Moreover, we have granted and confirmed, by the meaning of the present document, the grants, confirmation, will and instructions aforesaid, holding as ratified and acknowledged the contents in the aforesaid Charter, all and singly, both on behalf of ourselves and our heirs, as far as in us lies, to our beloved subject Stephanus Leserop[…] Chivaler son of Richard Leserop[…] Chivaler and of Milicent his wife, and to our beloved Squire Thomas Brounfsete and Margaret his wife, now tenants of the aforesaid manor, just as the aforesaid charter duly records, and just as the lessee Reginald and his heirs and other tenants of the aforesaid manor have been accustomed hitherto to have and to hold warrening and a market of this kind. In testimony of which matter we have caused these letters of ours to be patent. Witnessed by myself at Westminster on the eighth day of November in the fourteenth year of our reign. Moreover, holding as ratified and acknowledged the Charters and aforesaid letters, and the contents of the same all and singly, we accept and approve them on behalf of ourselves and our heirs, as far as in us lies, and to our dearest relative Henry Clifford earl of Cumbria, as the relative and immediate heir of the aforesaid Robert de Clifford and Thomas Brounfleete, who now occupy the aforesaid Manors of Brough and Wygchton, and to his heirs, we ratify and confirm [them] by the meaning of the present document just as the aforesaid Charters and Letters in themselves duly record; and just as the same earl and his heirs who occupy the aforesaid manors have been accustomed hitherto duly to have and to hold the liberties and free customs of this kind. As testimony of which matter we have caused these letters of ours to be made patent. Witnessed by myself at Westminster on the twenty sixth day of February in the third year of our reign.'

Figure 1.6.7. Copy of Brough Charter Seal. I.429.

[IV.33]

{Castletowne}
At the Bridge End next to Market Brough near the way which leads you into the wath there is a little spaw[116] well, about 1 foot and a ½ diameter, which hath formerly been much frequented and resorted unto. It will, with a little gale putt there into,[117] turne into the colour of clarrett wine which the river-water which runns within a yard of it or thereabouts will in no wise performe. \ The top stone of the well is that I suppose att the next house back doore. / There is the like att Pendraggon Castle about the same distance from the River Eden on the left hand as you go to Pendragon over the Bridge.

[III.103]

Figure 1.6.8. 'Brough Spaw Well at the N. side of the E. end of the bridge as you goe to the Church Town.' III.103.

[IV.33]

{Brough Town Bridge}
Upon Brough T[own] Bridge on the side towards the mill and castle are 2 Coates of Arms, which are Here sett downe and underneath these figures, […][118]

[Carle-Steayne]
The Market-place goes from the Bridge up to a Little Cross, a little on this side whereof as you goe up the Towne towards Stanemore is a great coble stone supposed to be 100 st[ones] weight, which they calle the Carle-Steayne for this reason because (as they say) there was a great lusty fellow who undertoke to carry that about the street upon condition it might be made free as far as he went with it: and haveing carried it about that part on both sides beyond the Bridge, and comeing up with it thus far on the right hand row, it burst him there, whereupon they tell me the houses so far on that side are free and the other not. Sed de Hoc q. plura?[119]

Opposite to the † on the right hand as you goe for Stanemore on the Back Side of the House, is a little ro\u/nd well covered over with a milstone, up at the eye of which the[y] take their water and this is [116] The word 'spawe' is a variant of 'spa': a medicinal or mineral spring or well. OED.

[117] 'Gale' is the bog-myrtle, Myrica Gale, also called sweet gale. Gale-beer can be made from twigs of sweet-gale. OED.
[118] Here are placed two blank shields.
[119] 'But enquire more into this.'

called St Marys or St Winifrids, and many have com'd on pilgramage in time of Popery, and the Vicar of Brough had a Diploma from the pope to receive the oblations of all pilgrims there. This may be true, for Mr Har.[120] sayes he has seen the Diploma, & I have seen a writeing wherein is declared that a Chapple and Hospitall for pilgrims was founded there by Mr Blenkinsop of Helbeck and one Brunskale, the former whereof gave Land and the other building.

[I.548]

{Brough} Moss akin to Buckshorne – maden hair at Gill Brigg in Brough {an Amulet: against the heart burn.}

[I.392A]

[Lordships]

The manner or demane of Helbeck

A Great Part of Brough (under re[n]tel) belongd to the Blenkinsops: 16. Elizabeth [1273-74]; viz. 20 Burgages held by Ann, Countiss of Cumberland, as of her ~~demane~~ \ manner /of Brough by fealty & yerely rent iiij^{d} in fre sockage, & 5 Messuages. C. acres of land; 3 Acres of medow; 40 Acres of pasture with the appurtenances specially belonging to & usuall enjoyd with the said messuages, with certane Lands in E[a]st Stanemore Held of the Crowne in fre sockage, worth per Annum 26^{s} 8^{d}.
The Manner or demane of Helbeck cum pertinentijs[121] and one Messuage or Tenement & 4 Acres of land; 10 Acres of medow, 20 Acres of pasture in East Stanemore. Held of the Countiss of Cumberland by the service of 1 Knights fee & 6^{s} rent to the said Countiss for Cornage*.

[Machell's Notes: I.392A]

*{N[ote] This is strange, when Tenent de Rege per seviture militare[122] were not included in the grant. Allso the Corne mill of Helbeck; 29 messuages; 30 gardens; 300 Acres of medow; 200 of pasture; 40 of more.[123] May be he means Orton.

[I.184]

The Boundary of the Lordship of Helbeck
As it was rid by Thomas Blenkinsop Esq., 19 day of August, 22. of King James, 1624, as I have seen it subscribed to by 11 witnesses there present. Beginning at Christcroftgate by Salmon House.
From Christcroftgate (which is at Brough towne end towards Helbeck) adjoyneing to Salmons House. Thence following the street to Lowgillgate adjoyneing to the streat from Lowgillgate to Whittbeck to an hedge leading through Nettlepott, an soe following to an hurrock {a little heap for a boundary} of stones upon Yornatt How Head. From thence to an hurrok of stones betwixt Yornatt How Head lineally leading to a place called the White Stones, from thence to an hurrok upon the old street {which goes to New Castle from Warcop & other places} crossing the winderigg, and so to the high end of Johnson Skar. From thence to an hurrock of stones upon Little Turplacks {a green hill so called} & so to the Hare Cragg. From thence lineally to a crooked seale in the Force Beck. From the crooked seale to a place called the Hirds House upon the east side of Cunnepott-beck.[124] And from thence lineally to a place called the Dry Sykes; and so to Swindall Head. From thence following to Brough Bridge as it is marked forth with walls, hedges and other fences, and so returneing to the place of beginning called Christ Croft.
In the presence of us {Knight; gentlemen} Edward Osbaldeston, Henry Machell, Edward Warcop, Francis Osbaldeston, Will Blenkinsop, Thomas Nicolson, Thomas Nicolson Junior, Thomas Waistall, John Cragg, Will Johnson, Michael Waistall, Arthur Collinge.

Compertum eft per quandam Iquisitionem captam apud Kirkby in [blank] in Westmorland 18 die maij anno R.R. Henri 7^{i} 19^{0}.[125]

[120] Christopher Harrison, vicar of Brough.
[121] With all its appurtenances.
[122] 'Tenants of the king by military service.'
[123] 'Of moorland.'
[124] Connypot, meaning 'rabbit pit'. See Westmorland Place-Names: Brough.
[125] 'It was found in a certain Inquisition taken at Kirkby in Westmorland, in the 19th year of the reign of Henry VII, 18 May [1504].'

Coram Edwardo Redemayne et Willielmo Hudeston Armigeris, commissionarijs ejusdem Domini Regis, virtute litterarum patentium ad inquirandum pro dicto Domino Rege de diversis articulis in eadem Commissione contentis et specificat[is] aliter ejsdem commissionarijs in hac parte directis, & eadem inquisitione consuet[e] ac in favore \vel Commissione / domini Regis rato nutis per sacramentu[m] duodecim &c.[126]

Quod Thomas Blenkinsop was seised as of his demane as of foe of & in the manner of Helbeck with the appurtenances in the county of Westmorland & dyed seised thereof; & that he held the said manner of our Lord the King in capite by knights service & per the rent of 6 shillings per annum ad cornagium dicti Domini Regis, at the termes of paise & Michael the archangel yerely to be payed;[2] and allso by service ad faciendam sectam ad com[itatum] dicti domini Regis com' Westmorland de mense [in] mensem at the Kings Castle in Apleby in the County aforesaid yearly to be held.[127] And that the foresaid manner with the partinences is worth by the yere beside \ above / reprises £40. And that Henry Lord Clifford had & rec[e]iv[e]d all the Increase and p[r]ofit of the said manner during the minority of T. but by what title they knew not. & that he received the profits of the marriage of Thomas the son, by usurpation of our Lord the King &c. This was appealed in Chancery & the right of Lord Clifford ma[in]taned: se the same roll.

[I.394]

In the Lordship of Helbeck were 22 tenents: Rent fin[e] 19^{li}:12: ix.,[128] beside moulter farme not fineable;[129] boone dayes of mowing & shereing with boone coles, beside rent on Helbeck fells for Common there by one William Rud of Sandford, for which he payed 20 yeres rent for a fine. These all belonged to the Blenkinsops of Helbeck, till sold by [blank].

In the Lordship of Brough were 25 tenents fineable rent: 11^{li}: 5: 10,[130] beside multer farme not fineable, Boone shereing, Boone Coales.[131] These allso belonged to the Blenkinsops de Hellbeck, and the Totall of the Boone days shereing by the tennants of Brough & Helbeck, 53. The Total of the Boone dayes mowing due by Helbeck tennants & one of Brough, 21. The Totall of the Boone Coles due by the tennants of both places \ loads /41.

[I.171]

[Notes on Helbeck]
There was iron got in Helbeck intak, and a forge att Brecanber, both in the demane of Hellebeck.

Tomgillbeck hill att Swindale (in which \ lead & coles) / in Helbeck Lordship. This is Swindaell Beck in Under Brough. Comes out of Tarne Close in Helbeck Lordship upon the fells beyond Helbeck Hall, N.N.E. The other springs in Allgill in the Lordship of B. f. Mr Blenk[insop.]

{Regill in Crosby Ravensworth; Slegil in Morland; Ellergil in Gaisegil; Tybay; Raisegill}

There were \ 2 / allabaster pictures \ well cutt / \ painted / \ & gilded / found in the garden of John Water the elder, being the next \ dwelling / house but one to Brough Towne end toward Helbeck, which as [126] 'In the presence of Edward Redemayne and William Hudeston, Esquires, commissioners of the same Lord King, by virtue of letters patent to make enquiry on behalf of the said Lord King concerning various articles contained and specified in the same Commission, addressed to the same commissioners in this part, and in the usual manner surely willed by the same inquisition in the favour of or by commission of the lord King, under oath 12 etc.'

[127] '... and allso by service of paying suit at the court of the said lord King [in the] county of Westmorland from month to month at the Kings Castle in Apelby ...'
[128] £19 12s 9d finable rent.
[129] Moulter or multure was the payment of a fraction of grain ground, to the lord of the mill or the miller. The proportion exacted was higher for those farmers within the lands of an estate on which there was an obligation to grind corn at a certain mill than for those who came voluntarily from without its jurisdiction: Dictionaries of the Scots language, Online.
[130] £11 5s 10d.
[131] For the meaning of boons and boon days, see the English Glossary.

now, Geofray Aiskells, Sadler. 1. was a Crusifix; the other St Michael goreing the divell; 3. Ascention & Resurrection; 4. The Sokeges[132] visitation of Christ in the manger.

What other Lordships in Brough Parish

{Sowerby}
Upon the sale of Sowerby[133] (the deed[134] of which hath bin in my hands & is now by my means by the gift of Mr Frances Blenkinsop, in the Hands of the Honourable Lady Ann Clifford, Countiss of Penbroke) Dominus Robert Clifford was oblieged and granted the same by his writeing to Sir Thomas de Hellebeck, Knigh[t], reasonable sustinance dureing his life, viz. for him selfe cum uno Armigero et \ tribus equis / et 3'bus Garcionibus: [with] one Squire \ & 3 horses / & 3 Groomes (nisi potius boyes.)[135] But in the deed of saile it is onely expressed cum 3'bus equis.[136]) And allso with 2 robes & 2 cell[ata] befitting a knight, to [be] payd yerely{?}[137] for the performance of which on Lord Roberts behalf, his manner of Winton was lyable to distraint. And this pention comes under the notion of a foefarme*.[138]

[Machell's Notes: I.394]

*N.B. Compare with this the notes out of the deed in Blenkinsops pedigree.
{29 messuagia ac medietas of a watermill[139] in Coatsflat, with certane S[blank]

[I.396]

Ewbanke Hall
Ewbanke or Iewbanke[140] Hall, att a place upon Stanemore called Ewbanke, was formerly the seat of & gave name to a family so called, some of the name yett remaneing but in no great repute, being but as countrymen. The estate was sold to the Cliffords & now remanes in the possession of the Countess of Penbroke who was Daughter & sole heire of George \ Clifford / Earl of Cumberland. The Ewbankes Arms you may se blason above on the other side the lease. The Countiss was wont to say that the 1^{t} of That family came in with the Conqueror.

[I.399]

[Scots Jurisdiction]

It cannot be that Westmorland and Cumberland were under the Scotch jurisdiction in the Conquerors time*. For William the Conqueror \ King of England, Duke of Normandy / founded the Nunery near Croglin which belongs now to the Grahams of Nunery, in the 2 yeare of his reigne†[141] with freedome of Toll all England Over, and that they might have all liberties and Bloodwites in like manner, sayes the Charter: As is granted to Our monastery of Westminster: & with free warrant for Court Leats and Baron‡. Of Our free good will and grant as may it thinke or Eye may it see or pen may it write.[142]

---

[132] Sophoi: Greek word meaning wise men (sages). See Part 1, Ch.20, Orton, I.640.
[133] Brough Sowerby.
[134] MS: 'dead'.
[135] 'Or rather, boys.'
[136] 'With 3 horses.'
[137] The sallet (also called celata) was a combat helmet: Arthur Fox-Davies, A Complete Guide to Heraldry (New York, 1978), 312, 314.
[138] Fee-farm: see the English Glossary.
[139] 29 messuages and half of a watermill.
[140] Written by Machell as 'Iewbanke' or 'Jewbanke'.
[141] This is the Convent of Benedictine Nuns at Armathwaite, Cumberland. Like others of his time, Machell incorrectly traced the foundation of the nunnery to an early date, but it noe appears that, following the depradations of Scottish raids, the nuns 'reinvented' the date of their founding charter to 1189, see f.n. below.
[142] This charter is now recognised as a forgery, even though it was confirmed in 1480 by Letters Patent of Edward IV. By this so-called charter, William Rufus was supposed to give the nuns land near the nunnery, comprising 216 acres in the forest of Inglewood on the north of Tarnwadelyn [close to High Hesket, Cumberland]; common of pasture throughout the forest; sufficient wood for their buildings; an annual rent of 40s. from the king's tenements in Carlisle; and freedom from toll throughout the whole of England. But the earliest notice of the nunnery's existence can only be dated to c.1200 in a charter of Roger de Beauchamp to the priory of St. Bees, where it is stated that the land he gave to that monastery was near the land of the nuns of 'Ainstapillith' [Ainstable]. After the nunnery had suffered heavy losses during the Scottish wars, Edward II granted them pasture for their cattle in Inglewood Forest. In 1331 they were excused the payment of £10 due to

[Machell's Notes. I.399]

*{Yes; in 1072 i.e. the 7. William the Conqueror he gave Cumberland to Malcolm king of Scots}[143]
†I fear it is a mistake for William Rufus.

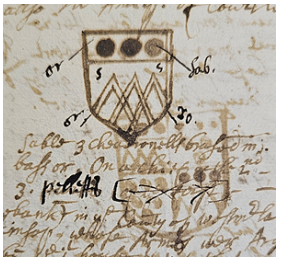

Figure 1.6.9. Court Leet and Baron Arms. I.399.

‡Note hence also the Antiquity of Court Leat & Baron: Sable 3 chevronells brased in the bass Or on a chief of the 2nd 3 pelletts.

[I.403][144]

Audi[145]
Quæ de sepulturâ dextræ manûs et Gladij Regis Scotorum, Eugenij filij Aidani, in Morâ Lapidea (i.e. Stanemoor) habet J. Fordun in Scoto Chron lib. 3. cap. 33. Nam ut in futurum Regni Gentes ipso Defensore, licet mortuo, nunquam careant, Ligijs majoribus sub fide juratâ præcipiendo Testamento constituit, quòd, ad eorum firmam de cetero Tutelam, in extremis ad Austrum Regni finibus, eo defuncto, dextram statim ab humero decisam, ac signo leonis bellico decoratam, habentem manu gladium, sepelirent. Hujusmodi tamen Regiæ manus Sepulturam Eugenio Regi Congalli filio, non isti, Chronica quædam adscripsit. Arbitrio Lectoris, an isti debeat adscribi, an alteri potius, relinquatur.[146]

[III.93][147]

Burgh subtur Stanesmore

These are the boundes of Stainmoore[148]
First it begins at the cheife of Hernehill, & from thence to Backstonefell & soe to HughSete Morvyll and from thence to Ferrerwith-sike and soe to the white stone of Esegill & from thence to Aygill poole & soe to the Rere-crosse & from thence to Yelissike Head & soe over to Soutergillhead & from the Crown because their lands and rents had been greatly destroyed by the wars. The total ruination of the nunnery and its need to recoup its losses appears to have been the reason for the forged charter. See 'Houses of Benedictine Nuns: The Nunnery of Armathwaite', in J. Wilson (ed.) A History of the County of Cumberland: Volume 2, Victoria County History (London, 1905), 189-192.

[143] The interlineation and marginalia, written in different ink from the rest of the page, are clearly additional.

[144] This page has been completed in a clear and regular hand which is almost certainly William Nicolson's.

[145] Beginning with 'listen', Bishop Nicolson's note may be translated as, 'J. Fordun in his Scoti Chronicon Book 3, Chapter 33, has some material about the burial of the right hand and sword of the King of Scots (Eugenius son of Aidan) in the Moor of Stone i.e. Stanemore. For, so that the future races of the realm need never lack him as defender, though he now be dead, he so decided (the greater part of his liege subjects' loyalty being sworn to him in writing) that further to confirm his custody of them in the far south of his realm, that they should bury his right arm, at once after his death, in the ground, and his warlike seal [or standard] of a lion, with his sword in his hand. However, another chronicle ascribes this to Eugenius son of King Congall, not to him: let it be left to the judgment of the reader whether it should be ascribed to him or rather to the other.' See William F. Skene (ed.), John of Fordun's Chronicle of the Scottish Nation, tr. Felix James Henry Skene (Edinburgh, 1872), Book 3, Chapter 3, 110-12.

[146] MS: From 'habet J. Fordun' to 'relinquatur' is underscored.

[147] This text on 'the boundes of Stanemore' is written in another hand.

[148] There are two texts with the same meaning on this page; both relate to the Bounds. The first is written in Latin (not transcribed); the second is written in English and transcribed above. III.93-III.97 is written in a hand that is not Machell's; its use of 'Ff' to signify 'F' has not been adopted here.

thence to Caldfell-howe & soe goeinge up by Philipp Sike unto the ~~said~~ end[149] towards the west of Mickil-fell & from thence to the end towards the north of Litle Fell, from thence to the cheife of West Swindale, and soe discendinge to the bounder of Helton &c.

[III.95]

The bounder of Stainmoore ridd by the R[ight] Honourable Thomas, Earle of Thanett Island, &c. in his owne person, the 11th and 12th dayes of September in the 36th yeare of our soveraigne Lord Charles the Second, &c. Anno Domini 1684.

1. Beginning at Winton Brigg Stones.
2. From thence up the sike near the southend of Winton Mill to Fletchers Close Nooke.
3. From thence up Whingill Beck to Whingill Head.
4. From thence along a little wall called Winton (Ringdike) to Stainbank-Head.
5. From thence to a grey stone neare the east end of Coatgarth House.
6. From thence alonge Langrigg Skarr to a gray stone within Hartley Yate.
7. From thence to Raven Scarr.
8. From thence up Hernegill Beck to Hernegill Side.
9. Thence to a great stone on Low Grayrigg.
10. Thence to a great stone on High Grayrigg.
11. Thence (up the north end of Greenside) by the Mayor Potts.
12. From thence to an hurrock of stones on Bassen Fell Side.
13. From thence to a meare stone on the southside of the nine-standers.[150]
14. From thence to an hurrock of stones an the midle of Benty Bats.
15. From thence to an hurrock of stones at the south end of Benty Bats.
16. From thence (directly east) to the two becks meetinge in Whitsundale.
17. Thence to a little tarne called Brownber-Tarne.
18. From thence directly to Hugh Seate Nabb.

[III.96]

19. From thence to Cocklake Rigg.
20. From thence to Tackland Tarn.
21. From thence to Yard Loupe.
22. From thence to Drygill-Head.
23. From thence to two Graystones on Taylor rigg.
24. From thence to the white stone in Easgill.
25. From thence over Blacksike Brigg to Aygill Poole Foote.
26. From thence to a gray stone in Whartgill Head.
27. From thence to a white stone in White Bancke.
28. From thence to Reare crosse.
29. From thence to Beldhow Hill.
30. From thence to Risebrigg-Sike.
31. From thence to Mickledod.
32. From thence to great ragged stone where Blackbeck and Bowder beck meete.
33. From thence to the eastend of Pined Hill.
34. From thence to the head of Potters Reede.
35. From thence to the foote of Brordstone-Greene.
36. From thence to a great stone at the eastend of Dowcragg.
37. From thence to a great cloven stone in the Bowght of Dowcragg.
38. From thence to the head of Rowton Sike.
39. From thence downe Rowton Sike to the foote thereof.
40. From thence to an hurrock of stones at the east end of Lee Fell.

[III.97]

41. From thence to the foote of Mastersike where it meets with Forcebeck.

[149] Here are two star symbols, signifying a gap in the text.
[150] 'Nine Standards'. See S. Walker, Nine Standards: Ancient Cairns or Modern Folly? (Kirkby Stephen, 2008).

42. Thence all alonge up Mastersike to an hurrock of stones in the Bowght[151] of Mikle Fell.
43. From thence to the head of Birksike.
44. From thence downe Birksike all alonge till it meete with Mazebeck.
45. From thence up Mazebeck till it meete with Swarthbeck.
46. From thence to an hurrock of stones on Arneside rake.
47. From thence to an hurrock of stones at the north end of Litle Fell.
48. From thence to the head of Cicygill Sike.[152]
49. From thence downe Cicygill Sike to the head of West Swindale.
50. From thence downe Swindale Beck to Swindale Foote neare Hilton Towne End. […][153]

[I.401]

{Spitle}[154]
At Spitill on Stainmore is the fragment of a Cross, by us called Rere Cross; by the Scotts Rei Cross[155] (as one would say the Kings Crosse) \ or rather a Lapis Nulliaris,[156] and there is another in the street above Bowes / and another, at Spittle house in the same street, which Hector Boetius (a Scottish writer)[157] recordeth to have bin a mere stone betwixt England and Scottland – But certaine the man was too kinde to his Country – for wee never read that ~~Scotts~~ Malcolme King of Scotts (in whose time, according to Boetius it should have bin erected) had any ~~thing~~ \ part / of Westmorland much less the whole; nor indeed, if wee come too particulars (tho it be said that he had Cumberland) shall wee easily finde that he had any more than 12 villages there.[158] My reason is, because when he had an Advantage of King William Rufus att Chester in the west, the English fleet being scattered & ~~destroyed~~ \ shaken / by a violent Tempest, & the Army destroyed by Hunger & cold, yett he demanded no more upon Articles of Peace than those 12 villages which he formerly held of the Conqueror in Cumberland; & I thinke he would ask no less than he had title too). \ There is a place in Cumberland, I thinke at Plumpton, called The 12 Townes Rent.[159] /

[IV.34]

[Oxenflat]
Colepits in Brough parish 6 m[iles]? from the Towne, a fine quarrie whence the stones of the Castle.

---

[151] A 'bought' is a sheep or cattle fold: Joseph Wright, The English Dialect Dictionary (London, 1898-1905), 1, 355.
[152] Cicygill? Possibly Strice Gill, Skirrygill, Siss Gill in Musgrave: See Smith, Place-Names 2, 74, 359.
[153] A set of initials, which are difficult to decipher, has been placed here.
[154] Spital.
[155] See John Speed, The Historie of Great Britain Under the Conquests of the Romans, Saxons, Danes and Normans (2nd edn, 1623), 9, 442: 'But Malcolme wisely considering the current of warre, and that the occasion thereof was not for his owne subjects, but for a sort of forraine fugitives, beganne to thinke,that the wrongs there in done to another hee could hardly brooke himselfe, and sent therefore to William, proffers of peace; whereunto lastly the English King inclined, and hostages delivered upon further Conferences, what time (as I take it) upon Stane-more, not far from an homely hostilerie called the Spittle, a Stone-Crosse (on the one side of whose shaft stood the picture and armes of the King of England, and on the other the Image and armes of the King and Kingdome of Scotland, upon that occasion called the Roi-crolle) was erected, to shew the Limits of either Kingdome; some ruines of which Meere-marke are yet appearing; for King William, granting Cumberland unto Malcolme, to hold the same from him, conditionally that the Scots should not attempt anything preiudiciall to the Crowne of England, (for which King Malcolme did him homage, saith Hector Boetius the Scottish writer).'
[156] 'A Stone of No Importance.'
[157] Hector Boethius wrote Scotorum historiae a prima gentis origine libri xvii (Paris, 1527): see N. Royan, 'Boece [Boethius], Hector (c. 1465-1536), historian and college head'. ODNB.
[158] MS: '(tho it be said that he had Cumberland) ~~any more than 12 smale villages~~ shall wee easily finde that he had any more than 12 villages there tho it be said that he had Cumberland) ~~any more than 12 smale villages~~ shall wee easily finde that he had any more than 12 villages there more than 12 villages there'. See the Chronicle of Hector Boethius, translated into Scots: William Stewart, A Buik of the Croniclis of Scotland or a metrical version of the History of Hector Boece II (London, 1858), 501: '…peax this time was maid, Northumberland with Ingland suld remane, and Cumbria and Westmurland agane to King Malcolme tha suld again restoir.'
[159] See Machell's Preface, I.42, in which he remarks, 'London or Oxon Lib. – p.5b. Ypodigma Neustriæ by Walsingham, concerning 12 Towne in Cumberland granted to the Scot, query an 12 et nihil amplius.' ['Whether 12 and no more.']

[IV.73]

{Oxenflat herewith the quarry}
In Stanemore dale are 3 or 4 Houses called Oxsenflat formerly, as is \ probable / supposd Oxenthwate; which place gave name to a family whereof the last as I suppose, whose name was John, haveing no Isue gave to Thomas Derby son of Thomas Derby \ Parson of Browham / 4 messuages & 20 acres of land in Brou[gham] anno 50. Richard 2. [1381-82].

[I.401]

[Antiquities in Brough Parish]

Below Rerecross Crosse upon the High way stood a little fort of the Romans built square,[160] which att this day is called Maiden Castle; but wherefore or upon what occasion I am utterly ignorant.\ Yet it may be Roy-Cross, not from this occasion, but rather from an ancient tradition of a combat here betwixt 2 Kings, or one at lest, with another Champion whose name was Rothinger, whom Westmer King of this countrey, slew – whence this: Here King Westmere sloe King Rothinger. /
\ Or rather it was reard as a meare stone, (for to that end it serves betwixt the 2 Countreys – & thence calld rere Cross either because in the riere of Westm'land – or because it was rered upon that account. /

A Brough (in times past called Brachium) the VI cohort of the Ne\r/vians lay in Garrison. And not long since the Statue of Aurelius Commodus the emperour was digged up,[161] which statue of his may then seem to be erected when he priseing himselfe more than a man, proceed so far in folly that he commanded himselfe to be called the Romane Hercules, son of Jupiter, for he was portraied in the Habit of Hercules, with his right hand Armed, Holding a Clubb: & this hath appeared by a mangled inscription found lying under the same statue: Speed of the West Rideing of Yorkshire.
{Not[e] that Speed take this all out of Camden & placeing it after Maiden Castle, one would thinke it were Brough under Stanemore. But it is by Bainbridge[162] in Richmondshire. §7.}[163]

Figure 1.6.10. Maiden Castle. 1.401.

[Machell's Notes: I.401]
{Not one of the IIII Great Roman ways, see Blounts Nomo Lexicon, sub. tit. Watling St.}[164]
{Some more of this way in my notes for Ogleby.}[165]

[160] Machell drew the shape of a square here.
[161] Lucius Aelius Aurelius Commodus, 161-192. Roman Emperor 177-192.
[162] MS: 'Bant bridge'.
[163] As Machell notes, this is taken from Camden on Richmondshire: see Britannia tr. Holland (1637), 728D-E.
[164] Thomas Blount, Nomo-Lexikon, A Law-dictionary and Glossary: Interpreting Such Difficult and Obscure Words and Terms, as are Found Either in Our Common Or Statute, Ancient Or Modern, Laws. With References to the Several Statutes, Records, Registers, Charters, Ancient Deeds, Manuscripts, and Law-books, Wherein the Words and Terms are Used (1670).
[165] John Ogilby was the king's cosmographer from 1671. His publication of Britannia … an illustration of the kingdom of England and dominion of Wales: by a geographical and historical description of the principal roads thereof (1675), was chiefly a road atlas based on contemporary and collaborative research. It was followed by Mr Ogilby's tables of his measur'd roads … with other remarks … to which is added, A true account of the {Roman Campe: Here King Westmer slow the king Rothingar see MS, part 1t. When after aiges begin to consider how our young prodigal Gentlemen by coming up to London & playing the foole there destroy their estate: they will rather thinke that the ancestors erected this as a ne plus ultra to eldest sons, who except they be sober ou[gh]t never to travil beyond this.}

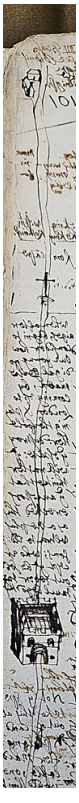
[I.436A][166]



Of Maiden Castle upon Stanemore

The Transverse from S. to N. within the Bulworkes to the 1[t] Throne trench 10[sc] by 10 [paces]. The Diameter 35 & thence to the opposite Bulworke 35. Note: The Throne is situate in a super eminent place.

Of Hills & Enterances

2 fair enterances & hills equidistant on the west side; 2 fair ones and one supposed on the south side with Hills before them. 2 fair Enterances And Hills apparent on the North; one sup[posed] on the east side the Highway.

Note: This Campe should seeme to have bin made before the Roman settlement in this Ile, to witt in time of their wars: And the Roman Way being made after they came to a settlement was brought through it, by which means there were breaches made, and it became somewhat defaced as appears att this day.

The North Side Diment[ions]

From the turn[167] to the 1[t] enterance 3 score [paces] the enterance 12. Thence to the 2 enterance, 50, the enterance 9. Thence to the Great Breach through which passes the Roman way (called the Street) 3 score & 4.

Thence to the Way it selfe 18. But nothing of an Hill except that little hollow by the way side may be thought to have bin one. Thence a Thwart the Roman Way 20 [paces]. Thence to the Turne, 3 sc[ore paces] – where now is a Breach. In all [blank] The turne is 12 [paces across.]

The Left Hand or West Side

To the 1[t] ent. 3 score; The ent. 12. Thence to the 2[nd] entr – 5[sc] – 10; The ent. 12. Thence to the Turne 30. In all [blank]. The Turne it selfe [blank]

The South Side from West to East

Thence to a Breach where no Hill appears 16. Yet there is something like the vestigia of one near the Corner. The Breach it selfe 6. Thence to the open place where the way comes through 23. Thence to the way 9 – The Way it selfe 18. Thence to the 1[t] ent. 24 – The Ent. 12. Thence to the 2[nd] ent. 3 sc – 15 – The Ent. 12. Thence To the Turne 30. In all [blank]. The Turne it selfe 30. Thence the Right hand or East side where I began …}[168] Thence markets and fairs, &c. collected in his survey (1676). Britannia marked the first major advance in cartography in England since the Tudor period. It was republished in 1698. See C. Withers, 'Ogilby, John (1600-1676), publisher and geographer'. ODNB. See also the Editor's Introduction.

{Thus to the 1. enter 3 score – 12. The ent. 12. To the 2[nd] 3sc. 12 (over against which [is] the mount) the enterance 12 &c. as before.}

Figure 1.6.11. Route over Stainmore. 1.401.

[166] On MS.I.384, a note reads, '2 Hils & Entrace Equi-dist on the left 2 fair one upon the south from S to N. To the 1[t] throne trench 10 sc[ore] & 10 [paces] the circum 35 there to the bulw. 35. From S to North 40. from right to left 80. Bulwork broad 7.'

[167] Here Machell has traced a curve with his pen.

[168] Two words here, at the page foot, are very unclear.

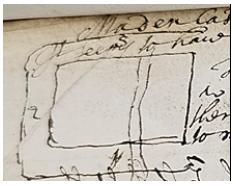

Figure 1.6.12. Margin sketch plan of Maiden Castle. I.436A.

{Maiden Castle is somewhat oblong. From north to south, diam. 40 [paces]. From east to west, 50; the bases of the Bulworke in breth, 7. It seems to have had a wall or trench, \ at a little distance / on all sides except the west where is deep descent. The Way seem to have bin carried about it on the E. side. to N. There is an Heep of stones about 12 sc. north from the Castle in the Highway, supposed a Berry.[169] And there is another beyond the Spittle in Yorkshire. This Spittle, now an alehouse, belonged formerly to Marrik Abby,[170] which is at the foot of Swadell.[171] Capt. Danby has a record out of Doomsday Booke of the bounds of Yorkshire.}

[I.436B]

Maden Castle (upon Stanemore). An oblong,[172] from east to west 50 passes; from N. To S. 40. The Basses of the fort in Breth 7. The Hight – about 3 (?)

The Campe

It has this forme, and the dimentions as followeth.

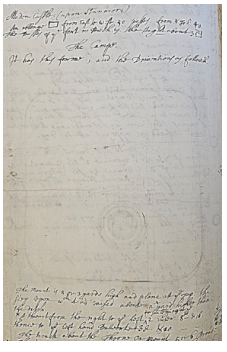

Figure I.6.13. Faint lines of a pencilled plan of Maiden Castle. I.436B.

The Mount is 2 or 3 yards high and plane att the top*. The step upon which it is raised aboute ½ a yard higher than the ditch. The trench about the Throne or Mount, 5 or 6 broade. The ½ yard pace upon which it is raised, in bredth 5 or 6†; the Mount 13 or 14 Diam[eter]. From the throne trench to the † ten.

From S. to North the Right ha[n]d or Easterly Bulworke is thus: to the 1^{t} entr. 5 sc. 10, the entrance 12‡. To the next entr. 3 sc. & 7. the entrance, 12. To the 3^{d} entrance 3 sc. & 6, the entrance 12. Thence to the Turne 40. And the turne it selfe twenty.

---

[169] A barrow. OED. A fortified enclosure: https://historicengland.org.uk/listing/the-list/, e.g. Berry Castle (Somerset), Berry Ring Hill Fort (Staffordshire).

[170] Marrick Abbey, former priory of Benedictine nuns, Swaledale.

[171] Swadell = Swaledale. 'The spittle ... was a charitable institution, and belonged to Marryke Abbey in Yorkshire; and after the dissolution the tenants applied it to the purpose of an inn. But since the turnpike was made it is become useless in that respect, as there is no need for the traveller to halt between Brough and Bowes; for whereas it took up six hours in travelling thirteen miles, the same can now be performed with more ease in an hour and a half.' N&B I, 578.

[172] Here Machell drew a rectangle, ½ cm x ¼cm.

[Machell's Notes: I.436B]
*A thwart from the right to the left \ to same begining at the / 2 Enter[ance] 8 score – &16 [paces] thence to the left hand Bulworke 3 sc. & 10.
†This I take [to] be the diam[eter] from E. to west.
‡Note a mistake here, stand in a rectangle.
Note, The Antiforts or hills which are copped, are about 12 [paces] in diam[eter] answering to the enterances from which they are distant about 12 or 13. The b[ases of the] bulworkes in bredth 9 with a little wing […] entrance, but […][173]
{N.B. On the S. 2 hills. On the left-hand \ west / 2. On the right i.e. E. [blank]}

[I.431]

The Two Scholes in the Parish of Brough[174]

There are two Free-schooles in the Parish of Brough in the County of Westm'land: the one in the towne called Market-Brough and the other in \ the / forrest of Stanemore.

[Brough Free School]
That in the towne of Brough was founded by John Brunskals of the same place. He by the assistance succour & ayde of Thomas Blenkinsop Esq. and other benefactours \ (which Thomas gave a tenement) / about the year 1506 founded an Oratory or chappell dedicated to our Lady St Mary the mother of Christ, and to St Gabriel the Archangell w[h]o by the sufferance of our Lord God did shew many faire and diverse miracles as a chart under the hands & seales of Roger Bishop of Carlisle,[175] and Richard the Abbot of Shapp dos expresse and affirme.[176] Two priests were founded to sing & to pray in the said chappell for evermore for the soules of all the benefactours of the said chappell that were departed from the world & for the welfare of them that were alive. The one of the said priests, was to teach Grammar, the other to instruct children willing to le\a/rne songs freely without any sallary from them. The foundation of this chappell was assented into & confirm'd ~~by~~ both \ by / the Bishop of Carlisle and the Archbishop of Yorke, and yet afterward opposed by the minister of Brough; who conceived himselfe much prejudiced thereby, and particularly in respect of the oblations which were given from him to the said chappell; whereupon he sett up the crosse & light\ed / up candles in the chancell at midtime of the day, caused the bells to be rung, and cursed with bell book & candle all those that should ~~give any~~ receive any oblations of ~~those that~~ \ such as / resorted to the said chappell or should give any encouragement unto the same.[177] Brunskales the founder \ informes & / complaines at York ag[ainst] the Minster. \ ~~One~~ / Mr Rasebeke obtaines a sharp citation against him, ~~censureing~~ \ styleing / him ~~as~~ hominem perditum & sufflatum diabolico veneno[178] for opposeing soe good a worke; notwithstanding which Mr Rasebeke appeales ad sedem Apostolicam,[179] and an agreement

[Machell's Notes: I.431]
{See my notes. Tis there in 1493. T.B. Esq.[180] prearticled with John Brunskale Anno 7^0 Henry 7. [1491-92] for the building of St Marys chapel, T.B. Esq. gave a Tenement in Brough call'd Gibgarth to John Brunskale: upon Condition that he should build thereupon a Chaple in Honour of ~~TM~~ the Blessed Virgin Mary, & St Gabriel the Archangel; reserving to himselfe & his heires 2d Rent, payable at Penticost if demanded: And allso that he should build an hospitium with 2 beds in the same, for harbourings strangers & other poore people. And that they [173] This sentence has partly perished.

[174] Body text on this page was written by Machell's informant, Richard Jackson; interlineations are Machell's.
[175] Roger Leyburn, bishop of Carlisle, 1503-1508: see David W. V. Weston, Carlisle Cathedral History (Carlisle, 2000), 142.
[176] See N&BI, 574, for a partial transcription of this information.
[177] This was the ceremony of excommunication.
[178] Translated in N&BI, as: 'an abandoned wretch and inflated with diabolical venom' (574).
[179] Translated in N&BI, as: 'to the Pope' (574); literally: 'to the Apostolic Chair'.
[180] Thomas Blenkinsop.

should be kept in repare by the said Brunskale & his heires forever […][181] revert to him & his heires.[182] Dated 1493. 7^0 Henry 7. In pursuance of which […][183]

[I.432]

\ was / made betwixt the founder & him by a composition of twenty shillings yearly to be paid to Mr Raisbeke and his successors, the ministers of Brough. Thus, then the chappell it continued till the time of the Dissolution of Abbeys and Chanterys under Henry 8^{th}. ~~Ask which t~~ And the priest then that taught to sing being removed \ & his office taken away; / the other that taught Grammar was thought fitt to remaine as master of a \ free / schoole and by Commissioners Sir Walter Mildmay[184] & Robert Keybury Esq. order was taken, and maintenances provided & settled for this purpose. Soe that there is now a salary of 7^{li} 11^{s} 4^{d} paid yerly to the Master of the School by the Kings auditours, they receiveing all the rents & revenews which formerly belongd unto it as a chappell – and \ which was / given unto it by its founders and benefactours.

This is all the Endowment which at present it hath,[185] saveing only a convenient ~~house~~ dwelling house and a garden, which was given by Mr John Beck, one of the scholars of it. But it was formerly very bountifully endowed by severall noble & Generous benefactors as the Erles of Cumberland \ Henry & Thomas / Edward Musgrave Esq~~uire~~, of Hartley \ Esq. & / William Musgrave the son of Richard of Brough – Thomas Blenkinsop Esquire, Hugh Newton & severall others, w[h]o gave lands in Brough, and Stanemore, & Morton, & Yanewath & Mekil-Strickland,[186] & Bampton & Cundale & Mekil Ashby, all in Westmorland, and in Penrith in Cumberland, and West Laton in Yorkshir, & Bernards-Castle in Yorkshire, the Bishoprick of Durham.
There are no exhibitions at all belonging to it, nor any libraries, but only some few bookes given of late ~~by~~, which are not very considerable. The governours of it when a chappell was here: Abbot of Shapp & his successours, and since it is supposed that power is in the King – Severall ~~you~~ \ well / learned masters there have been of it. At the time of the foundation of the chappell the two chaplains wer Robert Hutchinson & William Chapman – Mr Daniel Exhetter. John Benson.[187] Since the Dissolution John Beck,[188] and after him another of that name, and Mr Thomas Wilson &c.[189] It has been formerly in good repute, tho now by reason of licensing ~~repp~~ \ a M[aste]r unlearnd & / unfit for it, gone into disrespect & decay.[190]

[I.433]

This information I had from Mr Christopher Harrison vicar of Brough under Stainmoor.[191]
Richard Jackson.[192]

[181] Words here have perished.
[182] Translated in N&BI, as: 'the land to revert to the said Thomas and his heirs.' See 574.
[183] Words here have perished but in N&B1 they are given as, 'He, the said John Brunskill, founded an oratory or chapel'. See 574.
[184] Sir Walter Mildmay (1520/21-1589) was an administrator and founder of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. See L. Ford, 'Mildmay, Sir Walter'. ODNB.
[185] MS: '~~Et the endowment of this schoole is~~ This is all the Endowment which at present it hath.'
[186] Great Strickland. 'Mekil, mikil, meckle mickle' = Great or large in size, bulk, or stature; also designating a particular place, building, etc. (now only in place names). OED.
[187] The names of Exhetter and Benson were added in Machell's hand.
[188] Curwen referred to a 'John Boke' 'Grammar school and Incumbent', in the Valor Ecclesiasticus of 26 Henry VIII, 1535. See Later Records, 94-109.
[189] Thomas Wilson (deacon) was curate and schoolmaster at Brough School from 1664-67. CCED.
[190] Between 1681 and 1692 five successive schoolmasters taught at Brough school. CCED.
[191] This sentence has been written in an entirely different hand from the rest of the passage on Brough Free School. Christopher Harrison was vicar of Brough under Stainmore from 1664 until his death in 1695; before 1664 he had been a preacher at Crosby-on-Eden. CCED.
[192] Machell's informant, a schoolmaster at Appleby Grammar School, 1671-84. CCED.

[I.433B]

The 2nd Schole in the Parish of Brough [Stainmore]

[I.434][193]

Sir Cuthbert Buckle Knight (late Lord Major of the Citty of London) in his Last Will and Testament dated the 28th day of June 1594*, gave one Annuity of 8li per Annum to be issueing and payable out of the Estate at Spitle (which then was his) for and towards the maintenance of a School-Master to be imployed to instruct children on Stainemoore to Read Write Cypher and cast account; he was borne on Stainemoore and got his Learneing near or about the place where the school now is.[194]

The schoolhouse was builded about the year 1607 at the charge of the neighbors & inhabitants of Stainemoore. And they paid six pounds for 3 Roods of ground for the school to be builded on,[195] and for the schollers libertie,[196] and gathered other money amongst them for a standing stock for maintaining it, so that the building & upholding ever since was at theire charge save that when it was last repaired – id est Anno 1673 – the Right Honourable the Countess of Pembroke gave 3li towards the same. There has beene no other benefactors so far as I know.

Mr Robert Bovell was the first schoolmaster for he began in 1608 and continued till about 1652. Mr William Waller succeeded him and continued about 6 years or thereabouts.[197] And ~~my self~~ \ Thomas Wastell / entered in 1659 and continued since which is about 17 yeares.[198]

I finde other two schoolmasters mentioned which received 14li of the Annuitie; but I suppose they were before the schoole was builded, and had it out of the Arreare which was recovered in the Chancery Suit. There Names, Cuthbert Aiskell, & Edward Waller.

The Executrix & Supervisors appointed by the said Sir Cuthbert used all the meanes they could to prevent the sallary and utterly to defeat Stainemoore of the benefit of the said Sir Cuthberts Will, which caused a great Chancery Suit, and was recovered by Decre[e] there in Easter term in the 43. of Elizabeth [1601], before the Honourable Sir Thomas Egerton Knight, Lord Keeper of the Great Seale of England ~~And~~ \ in[199] / the High Court of Chancery.[200]

[Machell's Notes: I.434]

*1593. Sir Cuthbert Buckle, Vintoner; son to Christopher Buckle of Brough in Westmorland.
Lord Maior for part of the year & Sir Richard Martin, goldsmith, the rest.
Mudy Chron Successe p.606.[201]
Hereby hee seemeth to have dyed Lord Maior in 1693.[202]

[I.399]

[Brough: Families and Descents]

[Ewbank]

1. Thomas \ de / Iewbanke (lord of Iewbank) in the County of Westm'land, marryed the daughter of Sir John Blenkinsop; whose Armes wer Argent \ a frete between / 3 garbes banded Sable (This I take to be the 1t house & not that of Hellebeck) and they had Isue.

[1.] Sir John de Iewbanke, Knight

[193] Apart from the title and interlineation in Machell's hand, the text on this page was written by Thomas Waistell, schoolmaster at Stainmore School from 1671 until at least 1689. CCED. Machell added Waistell's name in an interlineation, to explain Waistell's use of 'my self'.

[194] Cuthbert Buckle, born Stainmore, was Lord Mayor of London in 1593, dying in 1594 during his mayoral year: Vanessa Harding, The Dead and the Living in Paris and London 1500-1670 (Cambridge, 2002), 209, 252.

[195] 3 roods = ¾ of an acre.

[196] The children's play ground.

[197] William Waller was recorded in 1670 as schoolmaster of Kirkby Stephen Free Grammar School: CAC(C), DRC5/3 (Correction Court Act Book).

[198] The dating suggests that Waistell sent his report to Machell circa 1676.

[199] This word is in Machell's hand.

[200] Sir Thomas Egerton (1540-1617) Lord Chancellor, became first Viscount Brackley. See J. Baker, 'Egerton, Thomas, first viscount Brackley. ODNB. Waistell's hand ends here. Buckle's executrix (his wife, Elizabeth) and son contested his will unsuccessfully. See CAC(K), WDD/11, title deeds and other papers relating to Stainmore Free School (from 1601).

[201] Anthony Munday (bap. 1560, d. 1633), A Briefe Chronicle of the Successe of Times, from the Creation of the World to this Instant (1611).

[202] '1693' is clearly an error. He died in 1594.

2. Sir John de Iewbanke Super Stanesmore in Westm'land, Knight, marryed Julian, the daughter of Thomas Lowther, Knight, whose Armes were Or 6 annulets Sable, and they had Isue:

1. Robert de Quo Infra[203]
2. John
3. Thomas
4. Mary
5. Ann

3. Robert \ de / Iewbanke Esq, marryd Jane the daughter of John Musgrave Esq. whose Armes were Azure 6 Annuletts Or; and they had Isue:

1. Sir Richard de quo infra
2. A[n]thony
3. Margaret
4. Jane

4. Sir Richard de Iewbanke Knight: married Isabell the daughter of Sir Thomas Curwen, Knight, whose Armes were Azure a chiefe Or, over all a lyon rampant Argent gutte Gules, and they had Isue 3 sonns.

5. Thomas de Iewbanke Esq. marryed Margaret the daughter of Sir John Huton, whose Armes were Argent Barry of 6 Argent & Gules on a Canton Sable, a † Argent. And they had Isue:

1. Leonard
2. Henry
3. Ralphe

6. Leonard de Iewbanke Esq.marryed the daughter of Thomas [H]untershells Esq. who bore for his Armes [blank] and they had Isue:

1. John
2. William

John de Iewbanke

[I.400]

7. John de Iewbanke Esq. married the daughter of Alexander Mashings Esq. ~~and had Issue~~ whose Armes were Gules, 3 [?] Azure, Argent & Gules[204] and they had Isue:

1. Sr Alexander
2. [Blank]

8. Sir Alexander de Iewbanke[205] Knight, marryed the daughter of Sir Hugh Balioff (pro Balioll forsan) of Barnard Castle, whose Armes were Gules a saltier Argent, over all 2 swords in pale hilted Or. and they had Isue:

1. Daughter and sole Heire.

9. [Blank] the daughter and sole Heire of Sir Alexander Iewbanke, Knight, was marryed to Robert Lord Vipont. Lord of Westmorland, whose Armes were Gules 6 annuletts Or. And they had Isue: 2 daughters and Heires*.

Figure 1.6.14. Arms of Sir Alexander Ewbank. I.400.

[203] 'Robert, of whom below.'
[204] Machell drew a tiny sketch of the coat, which appears to show an inescutchion within a bordure.
[205] Name repeated in interlineation above.

Figure 1.6.15. Arms of Vipont and Ewbank. I.400.

[Hilton]
Sir Alexander Hilton Knight marryed one of the daughter & heirs of Robert Lord Vipont. ultimo Edward 3. 1377. And had Isue Sir William*. This was Hilton of Hilton Castle in Bishoprick, whose Armes were Argent 2 barrs Azure, sed de Hoc q?[206]
{Hilton of Hilton Castle: pedigree of 29 or 30 Generations + before the Conquest. Mary maryed to Robert.}
{Sir Robert Hilton Knight had Isue William and Robert†. William Hilton Esq. at the Conquest marryed Benedict, the daughter & Sole Heir of Germaine Tyson, who bore Vert 3 Lyonsells rampant Argent crowned coller & Lined Or in […][207] foysted[208] CC.[209] Robert 2nd Son of Sir Robert marryed the daughter & heir of Richard Bacon Esq. in Westmorland & so it tooke the name of Hilton Bacon‡.}

Dalton of Yorkshire, Azure, a Lyon rampant ~~reg~~ gardant Argent langued armed & membred Gules, married Dorathy, the daughter of William Hilton Esq.

Horseley of Horseley married Elianore an other of the daughters, and his Armes were Argent 3 Horse heads errased Argent. Bridled Sable.

Richard Conyers \ Esq / beares Azure a manch Or. He was Lord of Harden.

N.B. Sir William Hilton of Hilton, Knight, 22. of Richard 2. [1398-99], marryed Jane the daughter & sole Heire of Robert Stappleton Esq.⸸, whose Armes were Argent a Lyon Rampant Sable langued membred and Armed Gules. And they had Isue Sir Robert, Jane & Margarett. This Jane might allso have quartered her mother Coat, who was daughter & heire of [blank] Redware Esq. and bore for his Armes 3 dagges meeting with their pumells in fess and pointing to the angles of the scutchion Gules. And the foresaid Sir William Hilton was son of Sir Alexander who marryed with one of the Heiresses of the Viponts, whence he may allso Quarter Vipont.

[Machell's Notes: I.400]
*{? vide Robert Vipont in Apleby.} I cannot finde (by their evidences) that any of the Viponts matched with this Heiress of the Iewbankes, nor can it be, except Robert the last was 2c[210] maryed, 29. Henry 3. [1444-45]. & here are proven 8 generations upwards.[211] N.B. I doubt of this. Therefore, for the confirmation or disproofe, se the last Heire male of the Viponts de Apleby Castle. Se Hilton pedigre penes of Robertum de Morton for the date of this pedigree, which cleare somthing as to this doubt.}
†This cannot be, for Robert had but 2 daughters wee read, betwixt whome the whole barony of Westm'land was divided.
‡In another hand late writ & very improbable.
⸸If this be the Stapleton of Edenall as I thinke it is, se a pedigree of them for X or XI generations.
Sir Ralph Lumley bore Argent a chevron Gules between 3 martlets Vert.

[206] 'But check this'. See CFH, Hilton, 158-59.
[207] The next two words are unclear; they appear to be '3 ange'.
[208] 'foysted': inserted.
[209] Counter-charged?
[210] Twice.
[211] MS: '& Here are proven Her 8. Gen. upwards.'

[I.402]

{Hellebeck}
Thomas de Hellebeck	Temp. John [1199-1216].
{wido fil Thomae \ de Hellebeck, /	3.[212] Johanis Reg. [1201-1202]
{Ds wido de Hellebeck	Temp. Johan
{Robert de Hellebeck	Temp. John \ 11. Henry 3. / [1226-1227]
{Robert de &c.	23. (27?) Henry 3.
{Thomas de Hellebeck	26. Henry 3. [1241-1242]
{Thomas de Hellebeck miles	36. Henry 3. [1251-1252]
Thomas de Hellebeck	14. Edward 1. [1285-1286]

Collected out of MS Booke of evidence (penes Commitissam – Cumb[erlan]d as I remember).[213] ~~Robert de Hellebeck~~ The\re/ were of the name remaneing, 19. Edward 1. [1290-1291], for then I finde one Simon de Hellebeck a Tenant in Brough to Idonea de Labourne. 1 of the Daughters & coheirs of Veteripont.

[I.405]

In order to a Pedigree of the Helbeck

1. Thomas de Helbeck, son of Thomas de Helbeck; he was Lord of Helbeck and gave some parcell there to Edmund his son & Isabel de Shikeburne, but this Edmund was not his Heire. This was in the time of Sir Michael de Hardclay. In a bord[ure].[214]
2. Thomas son of Thomas de Helebeck, married Avicia, the daughter of Adam de Hennecaster & Isolda his wife as should seem from the said Isolds ~~giving~~ releaseing her clame to 1 messuage and 2 Oxgangs of Land in little Strikland.

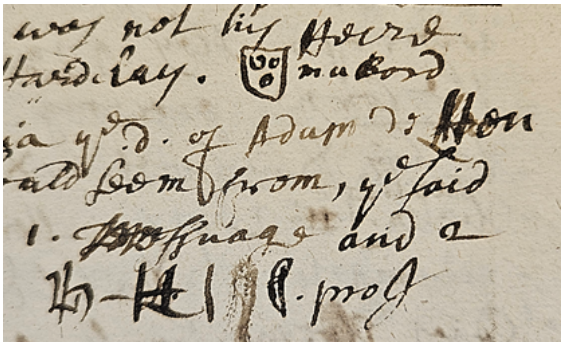

Figure 1.6.16. Symbols relating to the marriage of Thomas de Helebeck to Avicia. I.405.

3. Isabel Shikeburns lease 28. Edward 3. [1354-1355] H. J. Dom. Thoma de Hellebeck, Henry de Warthecop, Gulfride de Tesdale, Henrico fil Hamundi, Henry de Melmorby.
4. Thomas de Hellebeck married Avice & had with her by inheritance Lands in little Strikland, Overton & Silokwater, to all which Rich[ard] de Musgrave quitts clame. H. J. Dominus Michael de Harcla, Johe de Rossegill, Thomas de Derwentwater militibus; Roberto de Morvil tunc vicecom Westmorland, Adam de Haverington {Harington}, John de [blank], Sir ~~Thomas~~ de Hellebeck.

[212] A blot occurs before the numeral '3'. If 3. John, the regnal year would be 1201-02.
[213] 'From out of a book of evidences belonging to the Countess of Cumberland, as I remember.'
[214] Here there is a sketch of a coat of arms less than 1cm square, containing three annulets.

5.[215] Thomas de Hellebeck, the son of Hammon held Lands in Richmondshire & Westmorland by a Knights service; Thorp pro quarta parte militis & Hellebeck & Suarrabi et Hascam quæ est excambium pro Burd per idem servitium iisdem terris pertinens.[216] This is ancient.
6. Sir Thomas de Helebeck had a daughter caled Alice married to Robert, eldest son of Sir Richard son of Henry de Suleby when he was under aige; and Sir Edward settled upon his sonn all his land att Apleby, his demane. Rent Homage & services.
7. Adam de ~~Hellebeck~~ a wit[ness] at Slegil sd. Thomas son of Thomas, gave to his daughter Margaret, Hoton Super Wyske.
8. Sir Thomas had a sister named Dionysija, married to [blank] de Nubigin, & she had a brother called Robert, & they had a daughter (ut puto) named Isabel, married to Patritrit de Castle Car\r/ock of whome they gave Nubigin Rasebeck Keld ~~with~~ \ also / Cowflat with ½ the fulling mill.
Sir Thomas de Helebeck & Alan de ~~Helleb~~ Clerke (? 29. Edward 1.) 1302.
(27. ut put) Henry 3[d] [1242-1243], witnesses to Agnes de Lancasters comp. Radulfus de Notingam, Vice Comite Westmorland. Robert de Askeby, John de Morevill, William de Derwentwater. Dominus Willielmus de Goldrington, William de Warthecop, Roberto de Renegil.

[I.406]

{Brantun}
11. of Henry 3. [1226-1227]. Thomas de Musgrave & Isabel his wife aggrement with William de Morvill, about Morvils grindeing at their mil of Brampton ~~for their tenure of an oxgang of land late of Walter de Morvill~~ who confessed that he ought to grinde there. Whereupon they granted to the said William \ multuram Bladi / free moulter of all the Corne growing upon 14 Oxgangs of land in Brampton to him & his heires. S. X. Bov[atæ] quæ fuerunt Richardi Tanlibon (or Tanliaton \ Tanliston /!). 2 q.f. Walteri Morevil, I½ q.f. Thome de Branton. Paying to T[homas], Isabel & heirs yerely for the multer aforesaid duas eskepas multuræ Auene, et 2 eskepas siliginis*;[217] ½ at Pase,[218] the other att Michaelmas. To them or the Heires of Isabel, Domini Richard de Danecurt, Robert de Verter[i] ponte fil[ij] Domini Ivon[is] de Verteriponte, Walter de Strikland, Robert de Hellebeck†.

It seems by this that the Musgraves married an Heiress from B., whose name was Isa[bel] forsan Brampton; and probably Richard Talibon an other whose daughter was probably married to Walter Morvil, father of William, by whome had XII Oxgangs of Land.

{Fothorg\ill/}
I finde that Henry Clifford Junior Knight, Son & Heir apparent of Henry Clifford Knight \ then / was Lord Clifford, gave to one Rowland de Fothergill his servant, a yerely rent or Annuity triginta et 3[a] solidorum 4 denariorum Sterlingorum 4[0] Henry 8. [1512-13].[219] This may show the begin[ning] of Fothergill.

{Warcop of Colby}
Sir Thomas Wharton bore a plane maunch. 22. Henry 8. [1530-31].
T. Warcop of Colby & Barnaby his son & heire apparent 33. Henry the 8. [1541-42] charged with T. B. de Hellebeck, 1 Tenement in Sandford and a parcell of land & medow in Ellerker apud Crakenthorp, of the yearly rent of 3s 4d. for a tenement in Colby.

[Machell's Notes: I.406]
*{Maybe Scepps: as Squire from Esqr. Q. quotiens}[220]

[215] MS: This passage begins with a scored-through phrase which is partially illegible, thus not transcribed,
[216] 'Thorp for a fourth part of a knight & Hellebeck & Suarrabi and Hascam, which is in exchange for Burd, for the same service pertaining to the same lands.'
[217] '10 bovates which were of Richard Taleboyes […], 2 of Walter Morevil, 2 of Thomas de Branton, paying to Thomas, Isabel and heirs yearly for the multur aforesaid, 2 skepps of […] multur, and 2 skepps of winter wheat: half at Easter, the other at Michaelmas.'
[218] Easter.
[219] 'Triginta Solidum et 3' = 33 gold coins of the Roman empire [originally worth about 25 denarii each, or, later, one shilling each] and 4 denarii sterling.'
[220] 'Query, how often?'

†Note: Ivo de Veteripont lived here then. May be a son ~~Robert~~, or John de Veteripont. sed de hoc dub????[221]
I thinke Lord Dakers has & had ½ of the mill called Coatflat in Overton in Henry 4 time & maybe ½ of the manner of Orton?
{NB} Where Homages is due, the Land is holden by Knights service. Coke upon Littleton. 5 Chap. de Sockage. Grand Sergeanty is \ not / Knights service but no tenure in sockage. I must either read Coke upon Littleton before I write, or have beside me Cowells Interpreter.[222]

[I.407]

Witnesses at the Deeds of the Blenkinsops de Hellebeck
Thomas deed to Will. D°[223] Michael de Hartla, D^no^ Roberto de Musegrave, Johane de Helton, Roberto de Loncaster*, Richardo de Musegrave, Henrico de Warthecop.
Isolda de Heneca[s]ter. Test. Michaele de Hartla,[224] Williamo de Strikeland, Johan\e/ de Rossegille, militibus. Roberto de Morvile, Richard de Musegrave, Johane de Helton, Henry de Wardecopp, Johe de Cracanthorp, Willielmo de Eadem,[225] Adam de Derwentwater, Adam de Haverington.
Isabel de Slikeburne in the 28. Edward 1. [1299-1300] Let to farme to Robert, the son of Thomas de Hellebeck 2 Oxgangs of land in Hellebeck, paying to her & her Heires 9s per annum. Witness Sir Thomas de Hellebeck.
Lanhetons Quit clame to Thomas de Hellebeck. H. T.[226] D° Willielmo de Bampton Vic. Westmorland, D° Robert de Askeby, D° Johane de Morevil, D^no^ Richard de Suleby, Thoma de Musgrave tunc Senescallo Westmariæ,[227] William de Warthecop, Johe de Burton, Hugo Carpenter, Richardo filio Beatrice,[228] William de Soureby.
Robert Franceyes gift of 2 oxgangs in Ascome. H. T. Rad[ulphus] de Notingam Clerico vic. Westmarie. John de Askeby, John de Renegil, Grekborio de Wale.
To the \ Marriage / Agreement twixt the son of Sir Richard Sal[keld] & the daughter of Sir Thomas Hell[beck] D^no^ Willielmo de Dakir, Johane de Morvill, Thoma de Musgrave tunc vicecomite Westmarie,[229] Henrico de Sandlay, Willielmo de Wartcop, Willielmo de Soureby
Thomas, son of Thomas de Hellebeck, gave Hoton Super Wyske to Margaret, his daughter (a man[or]) It seemes his father married one Agnes to whome he found de dote[230] 5 marcs (a great joyture!) out of the said manner.[231]
Donisya Newbigin. H.T.[232] Willielmo filio Herm […][233] tunc vicecom Westmerie, Thoma fil Gospatritij, Thorfin filio Roberti, Roberto fratre ipsius Donisyæ, Roberto filio Petri de Sulleby, Henric de Cundale, Roberto de Raysegil, Johe de Morvilla, Gilberta de Engayn, Johane Taleboys, Herm le Nair, Hugone Ulfe, Yvone le Mercer – s.d. HT. D^ns^ Michaele de Harla & Johane de Rossegill m[iliti]bus. Johane de Helton, Richard de Wartecop, Henrico de Wartecop, Alano de Keldelyth, Roberto filio Thomas de ~~Regd~~ Raydal. D° Roberto de Askeby, D° Thomas de Hellebeck, Thoma de Musgrave tunc vicecom. Westmerie, Alexander de Newby, Simon de Dufton, Thoma de Goldrington, William de Daekyr in Closeclif, Thoma Templeman, Ada filia William, filij Araldi de Barton. s.d. the [221] 'Sed de hoc dub.' 'But of this I am doubtful.'

[222] Edward Coke, The First Part of the Institutes of the Lawes of England. Or, a Commentarie upon Littleton, Not the Name of a Lawyer Onely, but of the Law it selfe (London, 1628). Often referred to as Coke upon Littleton, it is a commentary on Thomas Littleton's treatise on land tenure. John Cowell, The Interpreter: Or Booke Containing the Signification of Words: Wherein is Set Forth the True Meaning of All, or the Most Part of Such Words and Termes, as are Mentioned in the Law Writers, or Statutes of This Victorious and Renowned Kingdom, Requiring Any Exposition or Interpretation. A Work not Onely Profitable, but Necessary for Such as Desire Throughly to be Instructed in the Knowledge of Our Laws, Statutes, and Other Antiquities (1607).
[223] Domino: Sir.
[224] Variant of Harcla.
[225] 'William of the same place.'
[226] 'With these witnesses.'
[227] 'Then Sheriff of Westmorland.'
[228] 'Richard son of Beatrice.'
[229] 'Then Sheriff of Westmorland.'
[230] 'For dowry.'
[231] Sarcasm here: 'Big Deal!'
[232] Witnesses.
[233] Following the word 'Herm,' Machell has written, '(form)The stroke is onely to show the name.' Machell has underscored 'Herm' but no other stroke is visible.

Daughter of the wife of Robert Fossatoris de Laissinbij.
Anno 1302. A French deed of Robert de Cliffor[d].

[Machell's Notes: I.407]

*{Note. Lon.}

[I.408]

{29. Edward 1. [1300-01]}. H.Test. Sir Michael de Hartclay, Sir Thomas de Hellebeck, Sir Robert de Engleys, Sir Robert de Askeby chevaliers, John de Helton, Henric de Warthcop, Gilberto de Querton, Nicolas de Musegrois, Thoma Bouchet de Souleby.

Pedigree of Helbeks
{Hammon, Thomas; Sir Thomas*}
Thomas, father Sir Thomas he passed the Lordship to Richard Blenkinsop & Isabel so that nec ego nec heredes mei,[234] so that it should be in theirs not his h[eir].
1. Hammon: he had Isue Thomas
2. Thomas de Hellebeck son of Hammon married as I guess from Rulos Surrender the daughter of Rulo.[235] He had Lands both in Richmondshire and Westmorland. Torp per quartam partem militis,[236] & Hellebeck and Suarrebij[237] & Hasc'um[238] which was an exchange for Buro[239] by the same service belonging to those lands. He had Isue Sir Thomas de Hellebeck.[240]
3. Thomas, son of Thomas de Hellebeck, afterwards Sir Thomas. He marryed Avicia, daughter of Adam de Henecastre & Isolda his wife, and bore for his Armes 3 Annulets within a Bordure ingraled; vixit 1302, 29. Edward I. And had by her Lands \ 1 messuage & 2 oxgangs / in Little Strikland, Overton & \ in / Sillock Water {or Wath} to all which Richard de Musgrave Quits Clame. Teste interali' D° Michael de Hardcla.
He had \ 3 / sons Thomas and ~~Willia~~ \ Edmund† / {All} and ~~3~~ 4 daughter: Alice an Isabell \ & Margaret & Agnes ut puto. Edmund, the 2nd son, was marryed [to] Isabel de Slikeburne \ a widow 1326. March. / And had some lands in viledges granted by his father in the Lordship of Hellebeck, who had Isue Edmund.[241]
Alice was married to Robert, eldest son of Sir Richard, son of Henry de Suleby, befor he was at aige, haveing as I conceive, for her portion 110 markes. Upon which marriage Sir Richard de Suleby settled all his demane Lands ~~tenants~~ \ Rents Homage / & Services there unto belonging, which he had in Apleby. Isabell the 2nd daughter was married to Patritius de Castlekarock & had her dowry Lands at Sunbigin, Rasebeck, Keldelith, & Coatflat, with ½ of that fulling mill. 3. Margaret had for her portion the mannor & Lordship of Hoton Super Wyske (? in Yorkshire) intaled upon her heires males, otherwise to revert upon him & his h[eir].
4. Thomas, eldest son of Sir Thomas, married Isabel daughter of [blank] & had Isue Isabell as I suppose, for Thomas makes over his whole estate to Richard \ de / B[lenkinsop] & Isabel his wife.

[Machell's Notes: I.408]

*{Memorandum. To preface with those Hellebecks I finde witnesses in my long booke. But the first I finde mentioned \ there enterd in this parish / in the evidences \ ~~ad finem~~ sup[ra]? / is Hammon.}
†Write the Isue as the other is writ.
{26. Edward 1. [1297-1298]. Sir Thomas de Hellebeck sold Sowerby to Sir Robert Clifford for 115 marcs. The said Sir Robert being oblieged to give to Sir Thomas 2 of his Knights Robes every yere durante vita, & in time of war with the Scots; to carry him with him. And in time of peace ~~Secum tenere~~ dictum Dominu[m] Thomam ad

234 'Neither do I nor my heirs': deed of resignation.
235 This sentence has been transcribed as seen.
236 'Torp by a quarter of a knight's fee.'
237 Sowerby.
238 Askham.
239 Brough.
240 Here, Machell has written an unclear phrase, which appears to be 'v.II'.
241 Here, Machell wrote the numeral '6' in the margin.

omnes adventus suos secum tenere cum tribus equis ubicunque fuerit. D[ic]tus Dominus Robertus in Anglia secum tenere forfect[um] ~~in C~~ C.li.[242]

[I.409]

4. ~~Thomas of Hamon~~ \ by his first wife[243] & / had allso (by a 2nd wife* as it should seem \ may he had / but this wife / Dyonisija, married to [blank] de Newbigin and an other allso whose name was Robert \ vixit XI. Henry 1. [1110-11]. / He farm'd a messuage & 4 oxgangs in Hellebeck \ (of his nece) / Isab. Slekb.
Alane, 3 son of Sir Thomas, was a Clerke & had for his maintenance to him & his heires 1 messuage & 4 oxgangs of Land given by the said Sir Thomas in the vil. & Lordship of Hellebeck. He lived till the 5. Edward 3. [1331-32]; he had Isue, a son called Allan, vixit 1349: 23. Edward 3.†.
Agnes, 4 daughter as I suppose, was married to William de Lancaster, and recoverd all her lands in Strickland in Kendall of T. Hel. & Isabel his wife, for defalt of her porti[on] which in her widowhood she surrendered to them for a ~~yerely exhibitio~~ \ annuity / of 5s dureing life, about the 27. Henry 3. [1242-43].

5. Isabel, daughter & heir as is supposed of Thomas de Hellebeck son of Sir Thomas, marryed to Richard \ de / Blenkansop, upon whome and his wife the whole mannor of Helebeck with all its appurtenances was settled & to their Heires after them, jure hereditario.[244] Excepting the lands & Tenements held by Isabel de Slicburne & Edm[und] her son, and one messuage in the possession of William the son of Hugo, of the yerely rent of 10s, which Alan de Hellebeck payed for the 4 oxgangs of land which he holds in the said manor.[245] The seale is 3 Annuletts, & a file of 3 lamb[el][246] (which shoes his father liveing) about which is writ a mix character: SIGILLVM THOME DE HELLEBEC. But I cannot certanely say that ther is any border ingraled.
{26. Ed. 1. [1297-1298]}[247] {Sir Thom de Hellebeck who sold Sowerby to Rob Cliff[ord] father dead ut puto.}[248]

Figure 1.6.17. Sigillum Thomas de Helbeck, 26. Ed. 1. [1297-98]. I.409.

[Notes on] Pedigree of the Blenkinsops of Hellebeck[249]

{Robert, Richard & Isabel} The Storie
It is reported that Richard Blenkinsop who married Issabel was one time ~~walking~~ \ rideing that way / with his greyhound / ~~with~~ \ following h sliped away there from & rann into an house in ~~Hellebeck~~ \

[242] 'And in time of peace, the said Lord Thomas in all his appearances to keep his men with him, along with three horses, wherever he was. The said Lord Robert kept with him in England a forfeiture of £100.'
[243] He had Isabel 'by his first wife.'
[244] 'According to the law of inheritance.'
[245] The word 'manor' replaces Machell's illegible word.
[246] Lambel = Label: a charge consisting of a narrow band across the upper part of the shield, having three (or sometimes five) short downward projections with a rectangular or dovetailed outline, most often borne as a temporary mark of cadency distinguishing the arms of an eldest son during the lifetime of his father. OED.
[247] Nov.1297-Nov.1298.
[248] In the MS, all the margin comments on this page occur twice.
[249] See I.405-408 and I.409-18.

Brough / whither he following found the dogg laying his head upon the young gentlewomans lap & the makeing much of it. upon this he fell in love with her and at last marryed her. This is ~~constantly~~ \ frequently / reported to this very day.

1. Richard de Blenksop tooke to wife Isabell the daughter of Thomas de Hellebeck & Isabell his wife; I finde them marryed Anno 1^0 Edward 1^t. [1272-1273]. He lived in the 10. ~~Ed~~ Edward 2. [1316-1317]. He was Coroner of Westmorland Anno 1320, i.e. 13. Edward 2. vixerat 18. Edward 2. P[uto] et 20.[250] Vixerant una cum Isabel Sclikburne[251] Anno 1326, i.e. 1. Edward 3. R.B. Dom de Hellebeck, 2. Edward 3.[252] He had Isue. Isabel was Lady de Hellebeck (vidua) 5. Edward 3. Ergo her Husband dyed then abouts.[253] Richard Blenkinsop Coronator Westmariæ 19. Edward 2. [1325-26].

2. {Thomas & Ellen}
{dilecto Vallerio (seu Valletto) nostro R.B.}[254]
Thomas de Blen~~k~~\c/ansc/op. 5. Edward 3. [1331-1332]. T.B. 1349: 23. Edward 3. There was one Robert de Blenkinsop whome I take to be brother (or rather uncle) to this Thomas (maybe his father's elder Brother for those Blenkinsops of Hellebeck bear a crissant for difference) to which Robert Ed. King of Scots (i.e. a Baliol) gave all the Lands & tenements of Ughtartyre,[255] with all the Appurtenances to the value of 20 marks per Annum: which Lands came into the hands of the said King Edward by the for-fature of Sir John Saniclere,[256] a latte Enemy & Rebbell to the said King‡. Dat apud villa S^{ti} Johanes de Perth ~~King~~ 27. Septe. Anno Reg 7^0 13. Edward 3. i.e. 1339.[257]

[Machell's Notes: I.409]

*{whose name Agnes de Skrevyn; vide}
†{The writ formerly had 40. Edward 3d.} [1366-1367]
‡If so be, this were not Crowne lands or previously[258] bestowed.

[I.439]

Brough parish vid. pedigree of Helbeck

Carta pro marcat & ferijas Apud Burgh subtus Stanemore per Edward 3. Aug. 2. reg. ejus 4^0

Edwardus dei Gratia Rex Angliae Dominus hiberniae et Dux Aquitannie, Archiepisc. Episcop. Abatibus, prioribus, Comitibus Baronibus Justiciarijs, vice-comitibus prepositis ministris et omnibus Balivis, & fidelibus suis salutem: Sciatis nos de ~~de~~ gratia nostra ~~nostra~~ speciali conscessisse et hach Carta nostra confirmasse dilecto o fideli nostro Roberto de Cliford, quod ipse & hereded sui imperpetuum habeant vanum marcatum singulis septuimaris per diem Jovis, Aput manum suum de Brough subtus Stainmore in Comitate Westmorland, & unam feriam ibidem par quattuor Dies Duratur. viz. par duos dies proximos Antefessum ~~habeant unum mercatum singulis~~ Sancti Matheij Appostuli, & qui in eodem festo Sancti Matttheij & par unum diem proximum, Nisi marcatum illud & feria illa sint ad nocumentum vicinorum Mercatorum & vicinarum Feriarum &c. His Testibus Henry Lincoln episc. Cancellario nostro, R Episcopo Sar. &c. – et alijs. Datum per manum nostrum apud Northampton 2^{d0} die Augusti; Anno Reg. nostri $4^{0.}$ Confirmd By King Edward 6. – Queen Elizabeth regni. Ejus 44. 21 Decembris.[259]

[250] 'He was alive in 18. and, I think, 20. Edward II (1324-1327).'
[251] 'They were alive at the same time as Isabel Sclikburne.'
[252] 'R.B. was Lord of Helbeck in 2. Edward III (1328-1329).'
[253] 'Isabel was Lady of Helbeck, widow in 5. Edward III (1331-1332); therefore, her husband died around then.'
[254] 'To our dear Vallerio (or Valletto) R.B.' 'Richard Blenkinsop'. Presumably this is a quotation from Machell's source.
[255] Possibly, 'Auchtertyre'.
[256] Sinclair.
[257] [Document] 'dated at St John's town of Perth, 27 September 1339 (13 Edward III).'
[258] 'Previously' replaces a word obscured by the binding.
[259] 'The King to Robert Clifford. A weekly market on Thursdays in his manor of Brough-under-Stanemore; and one fair there, lasting four days, namely the two days nearest the Feast of St Matthew the Apostle (21 September), the feast day itself, and the day immediately after it; unless that market and fair should damage

[I.410][260]

Figure 1.6.18. Arms, top-left margin. I.410.

{Ellen de}
T. \ de / B. de Johanna, filia Ada[m] Geteman totam placeam suam in Burg: 14. Edward 3.[261] He was at full yeres 'un[i]t[at]e no[vi]ssime',[262] which I suppose is the 19. Edward 3. [1345-1346]; as appears from his Lett of Attorney for possessions de Heleb[eck]. {He had office Thomas de Blenkinsop. Will. Capellanus.}[263] He had at the same Lett of Attorney, 6 Annulets within a bordure ingraled and writt about thus: S. THOME DE BLENCANSOP, 24. Edward 3. [1350-51]. 28. Ejusdem. 29. Edward 3. [1355-1356] all his Lands [&] Tenements in Hellebeck, Overton, Souleby and Brampton were given to Him by Joh[n] Raynald Vicar of Burgh & William de la Ferm', Chaplane, to hold for his life, paying to them \ & their Heires / yerely 12d. Thomas fil Richard de Blenkinsop: 32. Edward 3. in Burgh.[264] His wife was Ellen vid. Thomas, 41. Edward 3. [1367-1368].[265] \ She had 30s by compotus[266] for jointure per Annum out of the Demane. /

{Thomas & Katherine}
3. Thomas Blenkinsop, son of Thomas, had all the Lands & Tenements which were infeoffed upon ~~Them~~ \ The Vic[ar] and Chap[lane] of Brough / By T.B., his father, by a deed dated 43. Edward 3. [1369-1370] to him and Katherine, his wife. \ He had a brother? William, a Chaplane in 9. Rich. 2.[267] / This Thomas de Blenkansopp had the office of Constable of Brough Castle granted to him & his heires in the 4. of King Richard 2. [1380-1381] for the space of 600 yeres, with all its appurtenances, easments & commodityes. By Roger de Clifford, Lord of Westmorland, as appeares by his deed or charter dated at his Castle of Brough, Sunday before the feast of St James the Apostle, Anno K. Richard 2[t] quarto[268] from which date the lease tooke its force. T.B. 8. Richard 2. T.B. 12. 18.[269]

other such nearby; etc. Witnesses: Henry, Bishop of Lincoln; our Chancellor; R, Bishop of Sarum etc.' This is a calendared version of the two market charters of Brough (1330-31). The full Latin text was sent to Lord Thanet in 1684/5 and is to be found on I.427-9, above. See 'Charter for Market and Fair, 2. August 4. Edward III (1330-1331).'

[260] MS: '{~~This I sup. was his wife her seale}~~' A small coat of arms has been scored-through here.

[261] 'T. de B. had from Johanna daughter of Ada[m] Geteman all her place in Burgh, 14. Edward III (1340-1341).' 'Ada' is unclear.

[262] ''Newly in agreement'. The supposition is that Machell copied these two words verbatim from the document.

[263] Capellanus: chaplain.

[264] 'Thomas the son of Richard de Blenkinsop [is found in a deed of] 32 Edward III in Burgh.'

[265] Widow of Thomas.

[266] Compotus: a calculation, a reckoning; an account; a record of accounts. OED.

[267] 1385-1386. MS (omitted): ~~there was One William Blenkinsop \ 9 Richard 2 / of whome I have taken notice, which might be brother to Will to this Thomas~~.'

[268] 'Sunday before 25 July 1380 (the 4th year of King Richard).'

[269] 'Thomas Blenkinsop was alive in 8, 12 and 18 of Richard II: 1384-1395.'

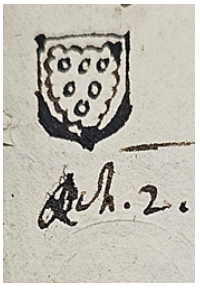

Figure 1.6.19. Blenkinsop: Thomas and Katherine's Arms. I.410.

In the 19. of Richard 2. [1395-1396], the said Thomas de Blenkinsop de Hellebeck ~~infeofed~~ possessed his son William, and Maud the daughter of Richard de Salkeld in diverse Lands & Tenements in the village of Overton. His son, Robert de Blenkinsop & Richard Talbot de Burgh bein attorney, 19. Richard 2.

{1. William 2. Robert 3. Isabell 4. Richard. All lived 3. Henry 5. [1415-1416]}
{5. Margaret, who lived 12. Henry 6. [1433-1434]}
{6. Catherine married to Robert de Langton son of Mr Gulfrid de Langton, who had Lands & mannors in Yorkshire, Richmondshire} \ & Bishoprig about the 9. Richard 2. [1385-1386].
Thomas the father of William bore for His Armes: 6 Anulets within a Bord[ure] ingraled.

Figure 1.6.20. Haverington Arms. I.410.

It should seem that he marryed a daughter much about this time whose name was Isabel to Sir ~~Will~~ \ Nicolas de / Haverington Knight; for he & his wife were possesed of Lands and Tenements in Hellebeck, till the[y] released the same, Anno Richard 2^{d} 13^{0} [1389-1390], upon Consideration of a Bond of 100 marks \ portion puto,[270] / 40 whereof were received, as appears by his \ re/lease on Friday next before the feast of \ the Nativity / St John Baptist, 14. Richard 2. [24 June 1390], Haveringtons sea[l] thereto annexed as a frett of 6 with a file of 3 Lamb[els] and writ abot[271] S NICHOLAI DE HAVERINTON. I suppose He lived at Farleton (or Ffarlton) in Lonesdall. for bothe the writeing are dated there.

{William & Maud 19. Richard 2. [1395-1396]}
4. William son of Thomas ~~Blen~~ de Hellebeck married Matilda, daughter of Richard de Salkeld, and had settled there upon him \ by his father / the 20^{th} part of his whol demane in the village of Overton, [I.411] with one place in the same village caled Rasegillhall, with lands, medows and closes adjacent. 16 Tenements being of T[enure] ad voluntatem[272] reserveing the Mill & mouter.[273] Dated 19. Richard 2. They had also Anno 8^{0} Henrici 4. [1406-07] severall lands Tenements in the Lordship of Hellebeck with Housebote & Haybote, i.e. wood allowd for moderate reparation of their Houses & ~~Harness as~~ carts & the like: as doth more particularly appear from a deed of that date. They were marryed durante vita patris, whom I finde yet living 2. Henry 4.[274] [I also find] Thomas Blenkinsop Esq. William his heire & Robert – 3^{d} Henry 5. [1415-16]. This the 1^{t} time that I finde him writt Squ[i]re.

[270] 'For a portion, perhaps'.
[271] The MS then contains an inscription which has been scored through and repeated.
[272] 'Tenure at will.'
[273] Multure.
[274] 'They were married during his father's lifetime, whom I find yet living, 1400-1401.'

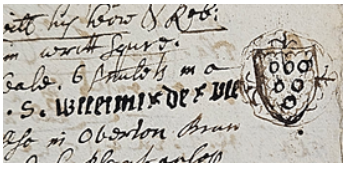

Figure 1.6.21. Arms of William de Blenkinshop. 1.411.

William de Blenkansop bore allso on his seale 6 Annulets in a Bordure ingrald and the circumscription, S. WILELMI ˣ DE ˣ BLENKENCOP ˣ 3^{0} Henry 5. [1415-1416]. He had Lands allso in Overton, Branton, Musgrave & Apleby. ibid. I meet with one John Blenkansop pentioner in the Abby of Shap presented by that fraternity for Holy Orders to John Bishop of Carlile. 1426. Henry 6. 4^{0}.[275] The words are: vestre diocesie clericum & presentem Exhibitorem.[276]
{Henry 5}
It seemes that he had a Brother also, whose name was ~~Thomas~~ \ Richard / who had for his maintenance 3 messuages, 3 Oxgangs of Land in Sunbigging durante vita; which were to revert to John de Preston Justice of P[eace] \ one of the Kings Justices / & John de Preston of Warcop. (Justiarius domi[n]i Regis[277] to which Joh. of Warcop to other quitted his clame. 6. Henry 5. [1418-1419]). He had allso all the Burgages with woods wastes of Roger Bowett of Brough, 2. Henry 6. [1422-1423], which were granted to William Blenkinsop, elder Brother of Richard & heirs male in reversion by John Preston of Warcop: & upon default of his heirs males, to Richard & his heirs male forever? 12. Henry 6. [1433-34]*.
T.B. 36. Henry 6. [1457-58] {?}†.
Richard letts his lands which he had of the g[ift] of their father \ Thomas / in Brough Orton Brampton & Crakenthorp, for the life of Richard. 23. Henry 6. [1444-1445].

An Abstract of the family of Blenkinsop
{1. Edward 1.} [1272-1273].
1. Richard (to whome Robert is sup[posed] brother) married Isabel de Hellebeck. Daug[h]ter & heir of Thomas: by whome he had Isue Thomas de Blenkinsop.

{5. Edward 3.} [1331-1322].
2. Thomas son & heir of Richard married Ellen de [blank] By whome he had Isue Thomas de Blenkinsop, & William, who was a Chaplane. Walter?

{43. Edward 3.} [1369-1370].
3. Thomas \ de / son & heir of Thomas \ Sc. he is writ Esq. 3^{0} Henry 5. [1415-16]. He was Constable of Brough & married Katherine [blank] By whome he had Isue. 1. William. 2. Robert. 3. Isabel. 4. Richard. & 5. Margaret.[278]

{19. Richard 2.} [1395-1396].
4. William son & heir of Thomas. married Matilda, daughter of Richard de Salkeld & had Isue: Thomas & ~~William~~ Richard.[279]

{25. Henry 6} [1446-1447].
5. Thomas \ Esq. / son & heir of William \ Blenkinsop Esq. / farmed of his father (25. Henry 6.) the [275] William Barrow was bishop of Carlisle from 1423 to 1429. The other possible contenders are John Ross (or de Rosse), bishop from 1325 to 1332, and John Kirby, bishop from 1332 to 1352, these particular bishops living a century earlier than Machell's MS suggests. See Bishops of Carlisle 1292-1556, British History online.

[276] 'Clerk of your Diocese and present appearer.'
[277] 'Justice of the Lord King'.
[278] MS: 'He ~~maryed Katherine~~ was Constable of Brough & married Katherine [blank] By whome he had Isue. 1 William 2 Robert 3 Isabel 4 Richard & 5 Margaret. ~~& Thomas Called Thom Blenkinsop senior wife Katherine~~.'
[279] In the margin of the MS at this point is: '{vixerat 28. Henry …}' but the page has perished.

manner place & manor of Helbeck for terme of life. rent 10 m^{rcs} {per Annum} ~~I suppose he marrye about that time but with whome I know not.~~ He is the 1^{t} that tooke name of Blenkinsop without de annexed: & tis observable that in same writeing[280] William the father is writ, de, & Thomas the son without it. But both writ Esqs. it is 1^{t} too in English.[281] He had Isue, Thomas. He ~~I thinke~~ it was that had lands at Kirby Super Wiske 40^{s} rent: his wife estate there.[282]

[Machell's Notes I.411]

*N[ote:] this Richard was son of William and Matilda his wife \ 5. Henry 6. [1426-1427]. / Whether if this an other Generation.

†If this was T., father of William, he must 106 yeres old.

[I.412][283]

5. Thomas Blenkinsop de Helbeck (the 1^{t} time I finde it so writ) was possessed of the manner of Raysegil hall with the demane &c., with Lands & Tenements in the village of Overton & village of Tebay &c. which he passed to William Birbeck, vicar of Overton, & Rch. Warton, Chap[lane]. 33. Henry 6. [1454-1455]. Howbeit I finde him a witness 25. ejusdem. And William Blenkinsop Esq. lett to farme unto Thomas Blenkinsop Esq., his son, 25. Henry 6. [1446-47], His mannerplace of Helbeck with many lands & closes thereto belonging for time of his life: yealding & paying to the said William yerely \ for the mannor &c. / X marces. {N.B.} This T. Blenkinsop Esq. (for now I observe de to be left out) had Lands & Tenements in Kirkeby Superwyske of 40^{s} rent, 36. Henry 6. [1457-1458].[284]

{Edward 4} i.e. 2. Edward 4. [1462-1463].
The manner of Raysegill hall & the demane with all their lands Overton & Tebay were infeofed upon Thomas de Hellebeck and Katherine his wife by the Donation of William Birkbeck vicar of Overton & Rowland Warton, chaplane to them & their heirs forever. 33. Henry 6. [1454-1455]. This I take to be son & Heir of Thomas.

{5.} T.B. son of William forsan lived at ~~Stillington~~ \ de Hellebeck / in Yorkeshire, vixit 8. Edward 4th. [1468-1469]. Hence collect. T.B. senior – Brother to William – married with Katherine ~~his wife~~ & had Isue William, upon whome after the death of his father and mother the Lands at Slegil* in the Hamlett of Newby were setled for his life, after which the[y] were to revert to T.B. Blenkinsop junior, Cosan to T.B. aforesaid: & in case he dyed without heir that then they should remane to Catherine and her he[i]re lawfully begot in per[pe]tu[ity]. This T.B. Senior seeme to have had the desposal of his nephew, for I finde to him bound Richard Salkeld de Colby & Rowland Vaus Esq. in 100^{li}, for performance of Mar[riage] Covenants between T.B. Junior and Margaret, the daughter of the said Richard Salkeld.

{6.} T.B. Esq., son of ~~Will~~ \ Thomas maryed Katherine (Curwen or Leigh may be)†. & had Isue[285] 1. Thomas. 2. William, who ~~lived~~ with him & his mother, were infeofed in Lands in Slegill a[nd] Hamlett of Nuby for their lives successively, yet so that after the decease of William it was to revert upon Tom B. junior, co[n]sanguineo et Heredi dicti Thomæ?[286] son & heir of the said Thomas \ the / senior; and in case he dyed without Heirs that it should come to ~~Marg~~ Katherine & the heir of her Body lawfully begot. Dated 10. Edward 4. [1470-1471]. It seemes all this while, old Thomas was living, haveing some lands in Helbeck, Brough &c. remaning in his hand. 25 Henry 6. [1446-1447].[287]

---

[280] Four interlineated words are difficult to read here; they have been omitted.
[281] Machell placed an asterisk here but there is nothing in the margin to indicate a note or further comment.
[282] The page has perished here.
[283] Text on I.412 provides another version of I.411, as does most of I.413.
[284] The following crossed-through sentence, '~~He had a son ut put. Thomas B Esq, witness with him 1461~~', has been omitted.
[285] MS: '& had Isue & Had Isue'.
[286] 'The blood-relative and heir of the said Thomas.'
[287] MS: 'It seemes all this while old Thomas was living, haveing some lands in Helbeck, Brough & remaning in his hand ~~& William lived at Rasegil & Let the Demane & much of Helbeck to T. His son~~ 25 Henry 6.' See below (I.413).

{7.} T.B. junior, son of T.B. senior & grandchild to T.M. ~~Catherine~~ \ Margaret / daughter of Richard Salkeld de Corby, with Richard & Rowland Vaux Esquire were bound in a Bon[d] of 100 li to performe the covenants 19. Edward 4. [1479-1480]. And

[Machell's Notes: I:412]

*{Memorandum: X Acres of Land […][288]
†He was senior in respect of his altery[289] \ both lived at Hellebeck; howbeit old Thomas was alive / for they are poss[ess]ors in trust for his son.

[I.413]

the next yere following I find T.B. of Helbeck Esq. gives to Thomas B. the son of Thomas Blenkinsop his son, & Margaret his wife, daughter of Richard Salkeld, some lands he had still reserved & kept in his owne hands, part in Hellebeck & Brough part in Sandford: viz. 13 Acres of med[ow] with all his Lands, Tenements & Rents with their appurtenances in Murton. Bolton, Asbycotysforth, Asby Winderwath & Ormshed. 1 yerely rent of iij^{s} & 4^{d} issueing out of a Tenement in Colby &c. – X Ac. pat. in. C. 10. Edward 4. [1470-1471].

6. Thomas Blenkinsop \ Esq. / son & heir of Thomas married Katherine the daughter of [blank] and upon it had Raysegil hal with its appurtenances 33. Henry 6. [1454-1455]. He had Isue Thomas {? John} and William, whome he infeofed Land in Slegil for his life of the decease of his father & mother, the revertion being in Thomas, ~~his son~~ Consang. et heres dicti Thomæ.[290] They are both witnesses, 1461. i.e. 2. Edward 4. by the name of \ Thomas / Senior & Thomas Junior.

{9 Edward 4. 1469}
7. Thomas son & heir of Thomas Blenkinsop Esquire marryed Margaret, daughter of Richard Salkeld de Corby \ 9. Edward 4. [1469-1470] / vid. sup. (7)[291] and had Isue.
He married Margaret, daughter of Richard Salkeld of Corby & Tryarmaine; whose other daughter Katherine was 1^{t} marry to Sir [blank] Curwen, & afterward to Richard Ducket Esq. They had Isue Thomas Blenkinsop & ~~Margaret~~ \ Cristibel / Blenkinsop who was married to Robert Helton of Helton. & John (ut puto) who is one of the Donors in the infeofment of 1 Tenement in Hilton; 4 in Dufton; 1 in Bongate with Hodgeclose; a rent of 4^{s} per Annum out of a burgage in Apleby pos[sess]ed by Joan Lowson widow of Edmund: to the said Robert de Helton & Christobel his wife: & their heires legetimate. There is John allso a witness & J. a son*, 8. Henry 8. [1516-1517]. John Hilton, whome I take to be father of This Robert, received C^{li} in part of a greater payment of Margaret Blenkinsop viduæ, 8. Henry 8.

7. Margaret had Isue by Thomas as appears by her will 1522.
1. Thomas. 2. Gorge. Annuity of 40s. 3. [& 4.] John & Gabriel designed for the university. 5. Christobel married to Robert Hilton. All her sheep & 2 kine. 6. Ann, Portion 100 marc \ 2k. / 7. Esabel. All seem to be marryed but Ann.

8. Thomas married Elayne forsan Leigh; for John Leigh with others was made feofe in trust by him. They had Isue – from Margaret: William / 1. Thomas. 2. Bar[bara] 3. Dorathy.[292]

[Machell's Notes: I.413]

*1. must be put where the father, & other with the son.

[I.414]

{Thomas Blenkinsop & Margaret Salkeld: 9. Edward 4. [1460-1470]}
Thomas Blenkinsop, son & heir of Thomas Blenkinsop Esq. \ sirnamed Junior / in his fathers &

[288] Followed by five illegible letters.
[289] The word 'altery' is unclear, but the sense of the word is 'of age'.
[290] 'Kinsman and heir of the said Thomas.'
[291] 'See above, 7.'
[292] Two scored-through dates, '~~1396-1460~~', appear here, at the page foot.

Grandfathers life time marryed Margaret daughter of Richard Salkeld de Corby about 9. Edward 4th. [1469-1470]. I take her to have bin an Haress probably both to Salkeld & Vaux, for Rowland Vaux Esq. stands bound with Richard Salkeld in a bond of 100li to Thomas Blenkinsop senior in relation to the marriage of Margaret Salkeld to Thomas Blenkinsop junior. And the Blenkinsops quartering the Vauxes coat with whome I find not they had any match, & Rowland Vaux being conserned in this Marriage makes me believe that Salkeld had marryed his daughter & heir whose daughter & cho-h[293] this Blenkinsop marryed; and ergo the rather because I finde in the widowhood of Margaret: she & her sister, dame Katherine Culwen then wife of Richard Ducket Esq., had Sir Thomas Daker Lord of Daker & of Graystock bound in a Bond of 100li for sufferance of their peaceable entrance occupation & injoyment of all and every parcel of the Lands & Tenements of the moiety of Trevermane & Morthuate[294] in Cumberland; dated 13 of May Anno 2. Henry 8. [1510].

{St Maryes Chappel}
This Thomas prearticled with John Brunskale Anno 7. Henry 7. [1491-1492] for the building of St Maryes Chaple as before, and left his wife Margaret a widow about the beginning of Henry 8., his son being underage in the Custody I thinke of Lord Daker, for he clamed money for his marriage as appears from the Condition of the foresaid Bond. They had Isue
1. Thomas of whome in the next section.
2. George \ ~~afterwards a Priest~~ / to whome his mother left out [of] her owne lands or Brugh Close an annuity of 40s, & 4 m[arks] his Brother left him per annum. \ He came to be priest & to this Sir John & his Brothers T.B. the eldest gave 4m. a pece annuity. /
3. John [&] 4. Gabriel \ mort. 1581 / \ Thomas gave 40s annuity / Both designed if docill[295] for the university.
5. Christbell married to Robert Helton de He[l]ton, whose portion was above 100 m[arks] beside several tenements as before: ~~her mothers whole stock of sheep with 2 cowes & their calves at herd.~~
6. Ann who had 100 marcs by will for her marriage. \ She was married [to] Christopher son of John Crakenthorp of Newbiggin & had 100m. in land Joynture with the revertion of the whole estate intaled upon the heires male: which was 40 mar[ks] per Annum in Westmorland & Cumberland, Anno 1523. 14. Henry 8. /
7. Esabel or Isabel: who I thinke was married.[296]

Thomas sirnamed Junior dyed as is said about the 1t of Henry 8. [1509-1510]. Margaret his widow: 1522: i.e. 13. of Henry 8.

{Thomas Blenkinsop & Ellen}
Thomas Blenkinsop Esq. son of Thomas sirnamed Junior did very much prosecute that particular Intrest, tooke Care about the repare of the church of Brough, the building of the steeple &c. {19. Henry 7. [1503-1504]}. But in the 16. Henry 8. [1524-1525] was imploy in the Kings warrs against the Duke of Albany and set forward 19. of October in the said yere; leaving all his land, \ as well those which he had by his mother as paternall Estate / of all which he was then possessed, to his wife & \ Sir / Thomas Rigg Vicar of Brough, till such time as his heire came to Aige, to be imployed for marriage of his other children and payment of debts. John Leigh, Gawen Eglesfield & others being feofees seised of his Lands for performance of his will, most of which was writ with his owne hand very legible & schollerlike. He tooke to wife Ellen daughter of [blank] ~~forsan~~ Leigh about 2. Henry 8. [1510-1511]. [297]

[293] Co-heir.
[294] Triermain and Moorthwaite.
[295] Apt to be taught; ready and willing to receive instruction; teachable. OED.
[296] There follows a note relating to the Crackenthorps: {'Crakenthorp Henry who had Isue Xtopher Ann Frances &? John Crakenthorp who had Isue Xtopher Ann Frances & John?'} [297] In the left-hand margin, running at right angles to the page at this point are two seals with comments: {'At her will'} {'At her sonn's \ 1t / will'}.

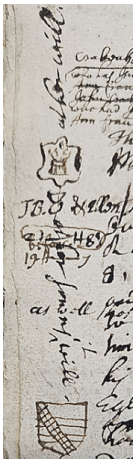

Figure 1.6.22. Seals: 1.'Used by Thomas Junior's widow at her will'; 2.'Used at her sonn's will'. I.414.[298]

[I.415]

In recompense of his good & Laudable service to Henry Earl of Cumberland Lord of Westmorland, Skipton & Vescy & Gardian of the west marshes[299] of England towards Skotland, he was gratifyed at the Donation of the said Earl Henry with the Custody wardship & marriage of William Skarbu\r/gh,[300] son & heir of Richard S[karburgh] gent. of Gloseburn in Yorkshire. 17. Henry 8. [1525-1526] T.B. Esq. payd 10^{li} per Annum to Sir William Bastoign in the County of Bedford Knight out of Little Corby & Warwyckbriggs in the right of dame Elizabeth, his wife*. He lived to make an other will Anno 1536 at Newcastle and if he dyed there as is supposed, he was buried in the Austin Fryers {X}[301] within a clorsett[302] before the rood {27. Henry 8. [1535-36].} It seemes his wife and some of his children dyed before him. \ He was under shireve of Westmorland and actual Constable of B C[303] XXI. Henry 8. [1529-1530]. / He had

1. Thomas son & heire of whome in the next section.
2. Barn\ab/as as I suppose – who dyed in his minority.
3. [Blank] f. Agnes: who was marryed to John Wharton, whose daughter Agnes Wharton was then about to be marryed with [blank] son & heir of Robert Helton son of Richard Helton, to whome he gave towards her marriage XX^{li}.
4. Dorathy married to –
5. Richard Blenkinsop, a servant the right Honourable Henry Earl of Cumberland. 32. Henry 8. [1540-1541].

{T.B. & Magdalen Musgrave, 24. Henry 8.} [1532-1533]

9. Thomas Blenkinsop the younger, as appear by Articles twixt T.B. the Elder Esq. & Sir Edward Musgrave, was marryed to Magdalene youngest daughter of Sir Edward Musgrave of Hartley†, betwixt 24 of November & the Feast of the Translation of St Thomas the apostle, 24. Henry 8. [1532];[304] haveing settled upon him 20 marks per annum to them & their heires for ever in consideration of 100^{li} portion. And that in case of His fathers marriage, that young couple should live

[298] Note the wheatsheaf.
[299] The western marches of the borderlands.
[300] The centre of this word is blotted.
[301] A large cross: a sign used by Machell to mean, 'wrong' or 'check this'.
[302] Closet: 'a private chapel, or reserved area of a church, for the use of a lord, monarch, etc.; (also) a private pew. Now obsolete'. OED.
[303] Brough Castle.
[304] The feast of St Thomas the Apostle was originally celebrated on 21 December.

either at Corby or Helbeck pro ut melius videret expedire.[305] He gave 26^{s} 8^{d} towards the building of the Bridge att Brough: whence it is that his Armes are placed there upon, together with the Cliffords att whose cost I suppose it was compleated in ~~whole or in part~~ 1558; This gift being made by will in 1545 upon his goeing to serve the Kings majesty against the Scots. He was possesed of Raisbeck \ in the Lordship or parish of Orto[n] / & in case he should dye in that Expedition left his Brother Richard Blenkinsop, his 2 uncles \ George & / John ~~and George~~ priest, together with his cosan Sir Richard Leigh priest, in trust to take up the rents there of which were 13^{li} or thereabout which were to be imployed to the best advantage towards the profit & use of all his smale Children daughters, for as many of them as came to yeres. He gave to his sister Dorothy 3^{li} \ 11s / 8d[306] to be payd at her setting up house when her father in law dyes. & to Anne Helton (forsan Agnes daughter of Wharto[n]) when she setts up house at Barton,[307] 40s. \ He had Isue /

1. Thomas whose wardship he desired might be purchased by his good Lord Harry Earl of Cumberland & Grace his wife, from [whom] he feard not to meet with favour.[308]

[Machell's Notes: I.415]

*Might not this Elizabeth be a 3^{d} sister of Salk[eld]? {She was dead 24. Henry 8. [1532-1533]}
†{è obligat;[309] she was liveing 13. of Elizabeth [1570-1571]}

[I.416]

Thomas had issue {his wife dyed before him.}

1. Thomas, a child when his father went to wars & therefore he desired that his good Lord Henry Earl of Cumberland & Grace his wife would purc\h/ase his wardship into their Hands.
2. John: Illegitimate, to whom he lef all his lands in Traddallmane with yerely 40^{s}. Mathew, stuard to Lord Wharton. \ Charles a servant to the Countiss of Cumberland. /

{2. Charles son to whome his father gave an annuity of 10^{li}. 3. & youngest Mathew. 5 marks per Annum.}

~~3~~. He had many smale daughters – 5.
3. [Blank] marryed to William Farrand of Carleton \ hall / near Skipton Esq., whose armes are [blank]
4. Margaret to Hugh Machel of Crakenthorpe Esq., about 18. of Elizabeth [1575-1576].
5. [Blank] To Thomas Bellingham of Gathorne near ~~Warcop~~ \ Askby / Esq.
6. [Blank] To John Eglanby[310] of Carlile in Cumberland Esq. whose armes are [blank]
7. [blank] the youngest to Lancelot Pickering of Crosby Esq.

{~~10. Eliz. Vixit, mortuus est 11. Eliz […]~~ obijt. 4 maij 13. Elizabethae 1571. Thomas junior was then 34.}[311]

They were all under aige in 1576 \ 18. Eliz. / & the father was dead then. I finde Pickerings acquit[tance] 4. Quene Elizabeth for part of portion: 1562. Each of them, portions 100^{li}. Inde dub? 40 forsan.[312]

{Thomas & Margerie 2^{0} and 3^{0} Philip et Marie [1553-1556]}[313]

10. Thomas son of Thomas Blenkinsop Esq. marryed in the time of his father (who notwithstanding his former will made upon his goeing against the Scotts returned agane in saifety) with Margarie one of the daughters of William Wykecliffe ~~Esq.~~ of Wykeliffe in the County of Yorke Esq., in the 1 & 3^{d} of Philip & Mary, haveing settled upon them for terme of their lives & to their heires after them \ beside the revertion of p[ortion] / an estate of the clear yearly value of 13.vj^{s} 8^{d} ~~besides the revertion of~~. By Thomas Blenkinsop the Elder, whereof all the lands which he had in Corby ~~should~~ \ were to /

[305] 'Whichever was more convenient.'
[306] Unsafe transcription; '11s' is an unclear interlineation: the rest is clear.
[307] Barton or Burton: 'u' and 'a' are written very similarly in Machell's text.
[308] The next sentence begins 'Mary d.' but the text here, at the foot of the page, has perished; some margin comment is also illegible.
[309] 'By an agreement.'
[310] Aglionby.
[311] '~~10. Elizabeth lived; she was dead by 1571, aged 11.~~'
[312] 'I doubt this; 40 shillings perhaps.'
[313] The reign of Philip and Mary lasted from 1554 to 1558.

be parcel or part and that whilest the[y] lived in the house with him they were only to receive 10^{li} per Annum, the residue of the foresaid Estate remaneing to Thomas their father in consideration of their Boording with him* ~~upon Consideration of~~, which Articles of marriage, William Wikelife Esq. did pay to the said Thomas Blenkinsop Esq. 200^{li}. The land he setled upon them were his whole part & proportion of the castle or Manner of Corby with the appertinences in the County of Cumberland, and all his lands Tenements & hereditaments whatsoever with their appertinences in Corby aforesaid, and in Warwykebrigs Cal\w/d-cotes[314] & Cald\w/cote Bankes, Eglanby, & Murthwate, excep ½ the fishing of Corby upon the River Eden, & 3 parts of ½ the watermill of Corby divided into 4: and allso all & singular Burgages, messuages, Lands & tenements in the City of Carlile in the County of Cumberland aforesaid, 2. & 3. Philip et Mariæ [1555-1556].

Figure 1.6.23. Seal of Thomas Blenkinsop. I.416.

John Leigh of Isham Cumberland. Tho. Rookeby of Mortham \ com / York Esq. expounders of Articles & all doubts arriseing in the said covenants.
His Isue [Version 1]
1. Thomas whome tis sayd dyed an infant.
2. Henry of whome in the next section.
4 daughters. to whome he allotted for portion 66^{li} 13^{s} 4^{d}.
5. Fraunces his son. 10^{li} annuity except his mother then with child should bring forth a son, & if so either was to have 6: 13: 4 Annuity durante vita.[315]
6 [Blank] a daughter. She was to have 66:13: 4 as the rest of her sisters had. è Testa. – 15. Elizabeth.[316]

[Machell's Notes: I.416]

*{Thomas dyed about ~~Anno 15~~ 16. Elizabeth [1573-1574].} {Margarie was alive 41. Elizabeth [1598-1599].}

[I.417]

The Isues of Thomas & Margery [Version 2]
1. Thomas who tis said dyed an Infant.
2. Henry, of whome in the next section.
3. Fraunces to whom was left an annuity of 10^{li} per Annum.
4. Barbary married to Mr Robert Ward of Bows in the County of Yorke whose Armes were ~~were~~ Vert a Crosse flore Or charged with a crescent Gules, for distinct[ion].
5. Katherine married to John Warcop of Warcop \ T[ower] / County of Westmorland Esq. whose Armes you have elsewhere.
6. Magdalen} ~~mar~~ \ dyed / unmarryed att a great Aige.
7. Joan }
8. Elizabeth, who dyed ~~very young~~\ unmarryed / livd in 12. of King James [1614-1615] then 27 yeres of aige.

[314] Caldcoats.
[315] 'Annuity during his lifetime.'
[316] 'From his will 15. Elizabeth' [1572-1573].

{Henry Blenkinsop & Elizabeth Tankard}
11. Henry Blenkinsop de ~~Blenkinsop~~, sonn & heire of T.B. Esq & Margarie his wife being under aige was a ward \ in custody of Sir Simon Musgrave / and there was payd for the fine of his marriage 40^{li} ~~sterl[ing]~~ for the payment of \ 10^{li} / whereof Sir Simon Musgrave of Edenall Knight, Ingeram of Plumpton & William of Moreton were bound in bond 21. Elizabeth [1583-1584]. He marryed Elizabeth the daughter of Thomas Tankard of Burrowbrigg in the County of York, Esqr. haveing with her 500^{li} portion, upon which agrement all the paternall Estate of the Blenkinsops were intaled upon the heires males forever. \ And 46li per annum Joynture upon her for life. / This was don in the 26. of Elizabeth [1583-1584] about which time they were marryed. He sold his part of Corby with other his land in Cumberland to the Lord William Howard and others joyned with him for 770^{li}, Anno 3^{0} Jacobi [1605-1606] {He dyed 18 January 1613 – 47. Jacob.} Lancelot Lancaster of Sokbridge marryed Frances Tankard who was Eldest daughter of Thomas Tankard and sister to Elizabeth Blenkinsop. The Tankards Armes are Argent a cheveron between 3 escallops Gules charged with 3 annulets Or.

There Issue[317]
~~1. Thomas~~
1. Katherine. who dyed unmarried at a great aige.
2. Dorathie a nunne att Lis\b/on in Portigall.
[3.] Jane. married to One \ T. / Bird of Colby in Westmorland.
4. Thomas son & heir of whom in the next section.
5. Fraunces. who was never married and is now liveing.
6. Elizabeth. who dyed in Yorkeshire unmarried.
7. Margarie married to Rober Cawell of Bought in Lancashire, Gent.
12. Thomas son & heir of Henry Blenkinsop Esq. and Elizabeth his wife was under Aige when his father dyed, and by that means became ward to the Countiss of Cumberland: for whose composition was payd 200 m^{rcs}. He was a very hansome & proper Old Gentleman att the writeing hereof. He was marryed On Midsomer day 1618 to Ann Osbaldeston, daughter of Sir Edward Osbaldeston Knight of Osbaldeston in the County of Lancaster. whose Armes were Argent a mascle[318] between 3 annuletts Sable. And that Her portion was 600 li & her jointure 60li per Annum with the whole Estate in revertion upon the heires male. This Thomas passed away all the lands in Orton & Slegill to The Tenants & others.
Their Isue
1. Frances [blank] of whom hereafter.
2. Henry. who dyed an infant.
3. Mary. who dyed about 20 yeres of Aige.
4. Elizabeth who dyed about 16.
5. Thomas, an ingeniouse Gentleman for any sort of mechaniks.
6. John who dyed an infant.
7. Henry who dyed an infant.

[I.418]

8. Ann. unmarryed.
9. Dorathie. –
10. Katherine. –
13. Frances Blenkinsop. son and Heire of Thomas Blenkinsop Esquire and Ann his wife, is now liveing with his father but not as yett marryed.

As to my Conjecture of quartering Vaux
16. Edward 2. [1322-1323], Rowland de Waus[319] son & heir of Robert de Waus of the coun\ty/ of Carlile; which Rowland was of Tryarmane, had to wife Johanna [blank] which Rowland of Tryarmane gave to Rowland de Waus son of Randulph de Waus of the County of Somsett for the Terme of his [317] This is the first occasion on which the spelling of the word 'issue' is as we would expect. Probably Machell's note-writing style encouraged him to abbreviate the word to 'isue', elsewhere.

[318] A blot covers the symbol placed here, which is possibly a mascle.
[319] Circled in the MS.

life, all his part of his lands & Tenement at Pury and Fod[d]ingdon, besides Babecary in the County of Som[er]sett,[320] paying to \ rendering / Rowland de Waus de Tryarman & Johanna his wife h. ex. ass. 6li. Ster[ling] yerely, for 5 yeres. and rendering after 5 yeres expired to Rowland & Johanna &c. 10li ster[ling] Annuatim att Purij. & sic quandam Johannam his wife.[321]
28. Edward 3. [1354-55]. Rowland de Vaus gave to Rowland \ and / his son the Manner of Torcrossoke; which manner was conveyed by Richard de Richmond to Sir Andrew de Harcla Earl of Carlile. Anno 1322. (15. Edward 2.) witness to Harcla Richard de Denton Knight? (& later allso) Thomas de Neuby (sed com. Cumb. ni fallor \ dat / Carlile).[322]

43. Edward 3. [1369-70], Tryarmane Enfeofd for life upon Johanna, Rel[ict] Rch. de Vaux for life. Then to come unto John de Vaus son of Rowland the Brother of Rich. & his heires.

50 Edward 3. Ranulph de Dacre, don. de Westm'land releaseth all clame of the manner of Kirkoswald to Johan, widow of Rich. de Vaux.
{12. Hen. 6. Rowland Waux Armigerer lett land in William Holme dated at Carlil.}

Figure 1.6.24. Vaux Seal. I.418.

The Coats of the Blenkinsop Matches, some whereof tho possably Authentique enough[h], I can not prove by evidence.
1. R.B. & Isabell Hellebeck The Coat ported per pale. i) Blenkinsop. the 2nd Gules, 6 annulets within a bordure ingraled Or.
2. T.B. with Margaret Salkeld: The 1t Blenkinsop. the 2nd Vert a frett of 8 Argent.
3. T.B. with Katherine Vaux: The 1t Blenkinsop. 2nd Argent a Bend checquer Or & Gules by her name of Vaux. But this I doubt of, rather supposeing that [Blank] Salkeld who was marryed to [Blank] Blenkinsop was daughter & co-heir[323] of Richard Salkeld by [Blank] His wife; which wife was daughter & heir to Rowland Vaux. For Thomas her son was the first that I meet with who bare the Armes quartered as they are in the window of the Quire in Brough church, placed there by his appointment.
4. T.B. & Katherine Wharton: The 1t Blenkinsop – 2nd Sable a maunch Azure.[324]
5. T.B & Ellen Leigh. The 1t Blenkinsop – 2nd Argent 2 barrs Azure over which a bend counter compone Or & Gules.
6. T.B. & Magdalen Musgrave. 1t Blenkinsop 2. Musgrave.
7. T.B. with Margarie Wikelif. The 1t Blenkinsop, 2. Argent a chevron between 3 crosscrosslets Gules.

[320] The medieval manors of Pury (later, Perry) and Foddington lie in the parish of Babcary, Somerset: see Victoria County History – Somerset, Vol. 10, Babcary, 101-21.
[321] 'Annually at Pury & thus for as long as Johanna, his wife…'
[322] 'But unless I am mistaken, County Cumberland, date Carlisle.'
[323] MS: 'choree'.
[324] The word is represented by 'az'; rest of it is obscured by the binding.

8. Henry Blenkinsop with Elizabeth Tankard. 1[t] Blenkinsop, 2. Argent a chevron between 3 escalops Gules charged with 3 \ annulets Or. /
9. T.B. with Ann Osbaldeston: 1[t] Blenkinsop, 2[d] Argent a lozenge[325] between 3 hartes Sable proper.

[I.431A][326]

[Further notes on Heraldry]

{These Broughs I doubt had nought to do here}[327]
Hic jacent Johanes de Brough armigeri & Katerina uxor ejus, qui Johanes obijt x[0] die mensis Januarij Anno millesimo CCCC[o] xij[o] quorum animabus propiciet Deus Amen.
Hic jacet Willielmus Burgh, filius et heres Johanis Burgh qui obijt qua[r]to die Novembris Anno Domini [M]CCCC xlij; et Matilda uxor eius que obijt xij[0] die mensis November Anno Domini [M]CCCC XXXII; et Willielmus Burgh Armiger filius et heres praedicti Willielmi qui obijt ultimo die mensis December Anno Domini M[0] CCCC lxij[0] et Elena uxor ipsius Willielmi filij Willielmi praedicti qui obijt xx[0] die mensis Junij, Anno Domini Millesimo CCCC xliij[0] quo[rum] animabus propiciet Omnipotens Deus.[328] The 'n' a saltier chargd with 5 swa[n]s, a fess ingralld.[329]

[I.438A][330]

And in Poland, they have their Castelians Captaines or governours of cityes, of whom there be there 87 which are under their respective Palatin:[331] Casimir king of Poland being Elected to the crown Anno 1645, did by a Dispensation from the Pope marry the Relict of his Brother & predecessor, Ladislaus a French Lady, p.28.[332] & Sobieski he made his Grand Marshal.[333]
Casimirs Resignation Speech – I would say more, but I am hindred through want of memory, & that tenderness of my heart which suffereth me not to speake fa[r]ther to you but with Tears.
Oathes: The Polander tho pap[ist] put this clause in the End of their oath of confederacy for preservation of the King & Kingdoms 'I will truly & sincerely observe this &c. in brotherly unity, without any mental reservation or hope to be dispensed therefrom. So help me God.'
Sable, the name of some sort of sword in Poland. General Sobieski going[334] to incounter the Turkes marched with his drawn s[word].[335]
Will de Ireby tunc de Westmorland Tho: fil Thome, Henrico de Su[leb]y

[325] Machell drew a lozenge symbol here.
[326] Small scrap page. On its reverse (I.431B) are three rough sketches of coats of arms and the text: 'Ad Brough sed non subsaxeto; Ingraled twixt 6 floredeluces as first. 3 as second 4; Over the porch now Sir John Lawsons; These I think are in Ca …rig Church.'
[327] Written at right angles to the rest of the text.
[328] 'Here lie John de Brough Esq, and Katerina his wife, which John died 10th day of January in the year 1412. God shall have mercy on their souls Amen. Here lies William Burgh, son and heir if John Burgh, who died the 4th day of November 1442; and Matilda his wife who died the 12th day of Novermber 1432; and William Burgh Esq. son and heir of the aforesaid William, who died the last day of December 1462; and Elena the wife of the same William, son of the aforesaid William, who died the 20th day of June 1443. Almighty God shall have mercy on their souls.'
[329] Written at the foot of a damaged scrap of paper, this final sentence is very unclear.
[330] Small scrap page, 9½cm x 12cm, torn from an address sheet of a letter. On the reverse is part of an address, 'For Thomas Machell of Kirkby Thore', with a note in Machell's hand, 'In his hand &c. ibidem 98.'
[331] Here, Machell referred to his source, 'p.20 of Sanderbey Redde vinus marriage.' but the letters are blotted and unclear.
[332] John II Casimir Vasa, 1609-1672, was king of Poland and grand duke of Lithuania from 1648 until his abdication in 1668, after which he lived in France, where he joined the Jesuit order. See Daniel Stone, The Polish-Lithuanian State, 1386-1795 (Washington, 2014), Chapter 10.
[333] John III Sobieski, a war hero who was eulogised by William Wordsworth in 'Siege of Vienna Raised by John Sobieski', was elected king of Poland and grand duke of Lithuania in1674. He died in 1696. See 'Catholic Encyclopedia', https://www.newadvent.org/cathen/14061c.htm.
[334] MS: 'being.'
[335] See n.348: on Sobieski.

[I.438B][336]
Forinsecum servicium quantum pertinent ad illam medietatem. Hijs Testibus Tho. filio […][337] tunc Vic. Karliol William de Ireby, tunc de Westmaria; Thoma filio Thome. Henrico de Soulby; Rogero de Bellocampo; Roberto de Hellebeck; Johe de Ormesheved; Willo filio Simonis; Simone parsona de Burgha; Simone Brithon; Johe filio Johanes de Helton; Alano filio Richardi Leingth\w/m. et alijs. Hujus Origo extat in Libro Pergam' – in camera cartam' de castro de Apelby.[338]

Note: There were 2 Robert de Veteriponts – 1ᵗ sheriff Anno 10. Regis Johis. [1208-1209]. This must be either – in the time of King John – for the 1ᵗ Robert lived till the 12. Henry 3. [1227-1228] then John [de Veteripont] to the 26. [1241-1242]. Then Robert to the 49. [1264-1265] e ult[imo] Veteripont – or in the time of Henry 3rd.

[Accidents and Calamities[339] in Brough Parish]

[III.75]

Bondgate[340]
Anthony Stephenson & his wife found a man in the last great snow save one in a gill above Burton & Hilton {in Burton Lordship about 15 years ago} calld Greena Gill, lying & moaning in the snow; who gave this account concerneing him selfe. That he came from Durham to the Nether pit on Stanemore to see som of his acq[uaintance] working there: & thence intending for High Ubanke he missd his way or was misled for a \ whole week / together \ twixt Sunday & Sunday / never resting eating nor sleeping \ all the while; / nor knowing whether it was night or day all that time but that \ there / was something like a black dog sometimes running befor him. His legs were so perishd with the cold that they wer ~~both~~ cut of just under the knee about 3 monthes after.

{A millston carried over Wharton Park wall without injureing it}

[III.105]

[A breech of a gun in the throat of Cuthbert Comston]
(On the 18. of March 1688) Cuthbert Comston of Brough Sowerby, a blacksmith by traide, ætatis circa 50,[341] having a swelling like a boyle on the knot of his t\h/roat, {?} came to Dr Ubancke of Market Brough, January 3. 1688, to desire his advice; who, trying with an instrument, found that there was a piece of iron in it, and at length after much search & inscission in that desperate place, discovered it to be the britch[342] of a gun for evulsion of which he put a peg through the britch skrew hole to prevent its regression[343] & then contrived the instrument, which I call a levator from the use he made of it, to thrust betwixt the gula [and] \ aspera astena or wind-pipe / & bretch the notches on the end, being to secure the said gula, thropleˢ[344] artery from retireing backwards whilst he made an inscission on the left side, cutting 2 fixfaxes[345] & several other vessels & veines, & cut so far into the

[336] Scrap page, 9cm x 14cm. 'Extracted from a deed relating to foreign service, with witnesses: Thomas, son of John the present Sheriff of Carlisle, William de Ireby then of Westmorland, Thomas son of Thomas, Roger de Bellocampo, Robert de Hellebeck, John de Ormesheved, William son of Simon, Simon the parson of Brough, Simon Brithon, John son of John de Helton, Alan son of Richrd Leingtham, and others: From a Book in the charter room at Appleby Castle.'
[337] A blot obscures two words here.
[338] 'Foreign service as much as applies to that half. Witnesses as follows … The original of this exists in a book pargum in the document room of Appleby Castle.'
[339] For this phrase, see 'Method' in Machell's Preface: I.42A, I.154, I.127, II.533.
[340] The title is 'Bondgate', but the event occurred on Stainmore.
[341] 'About 50 years old.'
[342] Breech.
[343] MS: 'of \ a / gun, for ~~extracting~~\ vulsion / ~~of which~~ he ~~to good~~ put a peg through the britch skrew hole to prevent its regression.'
[344] 'Gula': gullet, thropple or thrapple = windpipe. OED.
[345] MS: 'being ~~to prevent being~~ to secure the said gula \ thropleˢ artery / from ~~slipping &~~ retireing backwards whilst he made an inscission on the left side, cutting ~~the~~ \ 2 / fixfaxes.' 'Fixfax': the thick tendon in the neck (usually of cattle or sheep). OED.

esophagus that both meat & drinke were emitted at it, {? Creed barly}[346] which were brought away by the ciringe[347] in dressing.

[III.106]

{Then taken out}[348]
An[d] on the 18 March he got it out in the presence: Rich.Wastall and his daughter; Richard Burton & his wife & 2 sons; Robert Nicholson; Michael Hodgson, and severall others of Brough.

{A fillet of lead protrude[d] every day farther & farther}
And several persons of good credit & quality saw the small end of the britch while it was in \ his throat / & stook out like a boane: sc. Mr Fox \ Mr Harrison / Mr Ferdinando Hudleston of Peckwel in Yorkshire, Mr Gal[frid] Hay of Brough Castle & Mr Pale of Brough, Mr Hugh Row {43 years practice} & severall others.

{14 weekes fed of a Ciringe}
And that which is more to be wondered at, the patient had this distemper on him & knew \ not / what it was nor how he came to it, from ~~Easter~~ \ the / Tuesday before Whitsuntide. Only by the cure the occasion was discovered; for in shooting at an hare, which it seems he had kild for they found blood & garbage, he was beaten backward, his right struck out or rather in, & the gun britch lost, which he knew nothing of till the doctor found it. It had passed in this interval round about his neck beyond the veterbra & so under the left ear, till it fixed upon his throat [see Figure below].

a. The figure of the gun-britch in its full proportion, weighing ijss & half a drachm {2 ounces ½; ½ a drachm.}[349]
b. A levator made of wood by Dr Ubanke, being \ somewhat / convex ~~& hollow~~ on the bacside of it & concave or hollow on the foreside with 7 or 8 nicks at the end.

[III.107]

Figure 1.6.25. 'Gun britch' and 'levator'. III.107.

[Additional Material attached to Brough Parish]

[I.397]

A Relation of a Spirit which appeared last X^tmas in Langedale parish of Stainthrop[350] near Barnard Castle in the Bishoprik of Durham, 1674.[351]

[346] 'Creed barly': as in 'to cree wheat or Barly &c., to boil it soft (1691)', thus, soft barley emitted from the oesophagus. The sceptical reader might wish to take 'creed barly', with its question mark, to mean 'belief, barely'. For both meanings, see OED.
[347] Syringe.
[348] This margin heading appears on III.105.
[349] 'Drachm' a Greek coin; also, 'a weight approximately equivalent to that of the Greek coin: in Apothecaries' weight = 60 grains, or ⅛ of an ounce, in Avoirdupois weight = 27⅓ grains or 1/16 of an ounce'. OED.
[350] MS: 'Stanithrop'.
[351] According to Henry Mayhew's conversations with nineteenth-century street-sellers of chap-book literature, people, particularly women, greatly enjoyed seduction and murder stories: see Barry Reay, Popular Cultures in England, 1550-1750 (London and New York, 1998), 51-52. For the popularity of sex and courtship in chap-books of the 17th century, see Margaret Spufford, Small Books and Pleasant Histories: Popular Fiction and its Readership in seventeenth-century England (Cambridge, 1981), 156-93. There are many modern studies of late-17th-century ghost stories; see, for example, Jo Bath and John Newton, 'Sensible Proof of Spirits: Ghost Belief during the Later 17th Century', Folklore 117, 1 (2006), 1-14.

It was the Appartition of one (Francis) whose maden name was Ripton. She marryed a young man whose ~~name~~ was \ called / William Sidgeswick in the Langedale \ aforesaid / and by him had 2 or 3 children whome he left very young to the care & custody of Frances his wife when he dyed, upon her resolveing & promising not to marry any more, His estate att that time personall & reall being vallued att the rate of 500^{li}, which he did not question but she would imploy to the best advantage of herself and children.

Howbeit she marryed some time after to the son of Captane Cutbert Appleby the chief man of that dale, and dyed before any settlement was made upon \ those / her children by her first husband, haveing allso left hid under a spar or ribb of the house, 20^{li} tyed up in a nightcap with a taylours messure, which \ she / hid and kept private from her 2nd husband in her life time, to help her children with, in case he should not take sufficient care & make competent provision for them.

Butt after she was dead it seeme he tooke butt verry little notice of her smale chil[dren] but ~~compacted with his father so as to~~ deprived them of all rather than increase and augment their fortunes. Whereupon his late wife appeared unto one Dawson, formerly a servant of hers in her 1^{t} husbands times, & bid him not be afraid, for she was such an one and would not harme him, butt told him that ~~her husband was not kind to~~ she had hid so much money in the place aforesad, with the other circumstances I have related, & bid him acquaint her brother Ripton of it, or take it himselfe, and se that it was imployed for the advantage of her children.

But the man it seemes, metting with her husband first,[352] told him the storyes, and [when] Ripton went to seek for the money, it was gon; and Thomas Sigeswick, her 1^{t} husbands brother, comeing there accidentally, saw the measure laying upon the parlour, which made suspect His brother Appleby had seised on it, which proved very true; for the spirit appeared to the man agane and told him whatt her husband had don but bid tell him that if he would not restore it ~~& take more care of~~ she would make him have hott keeping of it, & if he ~~did not tell him~~ \ should not tell her husband / she would te\a/re him in pieces \ as smale as flesh to pott. / And he thereupon forewarned her husband, who was allso often times frightend from that time forward with flashes of fire about his house and elsewhere; yett he kept his hold and would not confess nor part with the money.

[I.398]

For in this manner they continued till Christmas that he went to feast att his father house. And att night he ~~refused to~~ disclared that he would not goe home upon any termes to his owne house; which his father wondered att & having[353] heard of these flying storyes & observing his sonns timerouseness, sayd unto him, 'Certanely, son you have don som mischief or other, in wronging your late wife or \ her / children, that make [you] so afraid; what is it?' But the other denyed. ~~In the mean time~~ & the Spirit appared that same night to Dawson agane, and told him that he who was her husband was with others att cards in his fathers house. and they wanted light, but she would give them light enough; and so left him & went to her husbands house wher the children were by the fier and she stayd some time & bid them nott be affraid.

All this while the company continued carding, & att 12 a clock they parted and went to bed; his son refuseing, as I said before, to goe to his house tho near att hand: \ which his father wondered att &c. / And there was a woman who had a young childe in bed in the house, who by her childes frowardness was awaked out of sleep, & saw a great light pass by her window 3 times. one after another. with some intermission; & the 3^{d} time shone so clear upon them that saw both her child & selfe in bed. Whereupon, being sore frighted she knocked – but that would not awake the house. Therefore, she arose and gott them up as speedily as she could; but in the mean time, the barn which was near to the house was sett on fire which they endeavoured to quench butt in vane, for it kindled att one part whist they were att an other, and lastly the house was fyered allso and burned, stick & stower,[354] little or nothing being saved that was in it – and it was the finest house in all the dale.

[352] MS: '1st'.
[353] MS: 'have'.

The next day she appeard to the foresaid {Dawson} agane, for they were growne familiar, and told him she had fired the house, but that now they would meet upon such a day & take care for settlements upon her children. After which she hoped she would rest & truble them noe more, which was don accordly, and all things have bin very quiet since.

[354] 'Stick and stower': all the parts or materials of a thing, especially a building or other structure, the whole of a thing; also used adverbially: totally, completely'. OED.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 7]

[Parish of Brougham]

[I.440]

The Lordship or Manner of Browham – antique Burgham – was of old but one Entire Manner but became div[id]ed in to severall parcells Sc. in the time of King John or Henry 3rd.
1. Into 2 equall partes. By Gilbert de Burgham, who gave halfe of the village of Burgham \ cum pertinentijs &c. in molendino et alijs / {Advocatus ecclesiæ},[1] to his Lord – Robert de Veteriponte – of whom he held it in Drengagio~~m~~, that the other halfe might be free from that service.[2]

[I.441][3]

[Manors and Demesnes]

Thomas Brouham Esq. was possessed of Browham in the 41. of Elizabeth [1598-1599].
Note there are 2 Demanes and manners of Brouham. 1. of The Hall in Browham Towne; the other of the Castle, but noe more. \ Mr / James Bird ~~has~~ late bought of Tennants and added much Land to \ his owne tenement, well walled about / which he calls a demane.[4]

Est ibidem unum castra' &c. {8. Edward 2.} [1314-1315]

There is there one Castle with \ xx / viii Acres of Land[5] worth per Annum 4d an acre.[6]
And the same doth amount	2:13:4
4 Acres of Medow \ 24. in the 19. Edward 3. [1345] / 12[d] per Acre worth by the yere	2: 0:0
There are noe messuages there, but onely 3 Coterell.
(For Do. Robert non fuit Dom vilae)*[7] & each of the Cotterells valet per Annum 1s.	0: 3:0
1 watermil & valet per Annum 20s.	1: 0:0
1 Parke Inclosed, whose herbage is worth per Annum	5: 0:0†
And the Herbage without the parke (cum Agistamento et alijs proficijs in Bosco de Quinfel)[8] is worth by the yere	19:13:4
1. Turbarye, & valet per Annum 4s.	0: 4:0
Allso the pleas and perquisites of the Court valet per Annum	0: 13:4‡
Summa est	18:17:0⊥
1. Edward 3.[9] [1327-28].
\ xx / viij[10] & 18 acres of Arable Land (Acr. xd per Annum) et summa est	7: 8:0
\ xx / iiij[11] acres \ & xiiij / of demane-medow (Acre 1s per Annum), et summa est	4:14:0
2 Free Tenements in Drengage (in drengagio) et valet per Annum &c.	0: 3:0
placita et proficua Curiæ valent per Annum	1: 0:0!

[Machell's Notes: I.441]

*{Lord Robert è Lord of the village.}

[1] 'With its appurtenances etc. in the mill {with the advowson of the church}.'
[2] For drengage, see below.
[3] Also numbered p.11.
[4] Note that 'Mr' appears to have been added later to James Bird's name: he was not considered worthy of the title, 'Esq.'. In MS.I.480, 'The demesne walled' appears in the margin.
[5] 8 score = 160.
[6] For a history of Brougham Castle, see James Simpson, 'Brougham Castle', CWI , 1 (1870), 60-70.
[7] '(For Lord Robert was not lord of the vill)'.
[8] 'With agistment and other profits in the wood of Whinfell'.
[9] MS: '1. Edward 3 ~~Thus seemes to have bin putt in repare, for It is not extended for this reason: custos qui ponitur &c.~~'
[10] 8 score.
[11] 4 score.

†(Note it belongs immediately to Brougham but Brouham to Apleby.)
‡Note hence that by Court here at Kings Meburne &c. is meant (I suppose) Court Baron.
⸸N.B. ut tot. And demid. dub.[12]

[1.442A]

Another Filed[13]

		s	d
Vacationis[14] Tempore 1679:	Thomas Machell Clericus con[tra] Michaelem Robinson et Gulielmus Jackson.
	Pro confec[t]ione Remissionis Judicis a quo et cetera cum eadem per post	02	9
Term Michaelmas 1679	Pro feodo procuratoris	05	00
	Pro Citac[i]one et cetera cum eadem per post	01	07
	Pro Procuratorio et exhibic[i]o[ne] eiusd[em]	02	10
	Pro Cer[at]o accito Citac[i]onis et p[er] con [silium]	01	6
	Pro Confecione articuloru[m] et admission[e] eorum	03	6
	Pro Copijs eorundem et imposic[i]one Regi	02	6
	Pro Feodis Advocati et procuratoris	15	00
Term Hilary 1679	Pro Citac[i]one pro parte	01	03
	Pro Cer[at]o accito et p[er]con[silium]	01	6
	Pro Juramento d[omin]orum Robinson et Jackson	01	02
	Pro copia eoru[ndem] consens[a]	01	00
	Pro tri[bu]s comput[is] con[tra] testes	01	03
	Pro tri[bu]s per post	03	03
	sum[m]a 02	19	1[15]

Johan Tessadale,[16] widow, seisd in her demaine as of fee of & in 4 messuages 100 Acres of Land in Browham in the county of Westm'land & of the 3 part of the said Town & manner of Browam, gave it by deed, Henry VI. [1422-1461] to Henry Bird & Johan his wife, daughter of the said Johan who had Isue John who had Isue William Temp. Henry 8. [1509-1547].[17]

[12] N.B. 'As the total and a half? I'm not sure.'
[13] This set of figures is in a different hand.
[14] 'Belonging to an old vaccary.'
[15] With thanks to Richard Brockington for assistance with some of the legal terms used in this invoice, the translation is as follows:

For completion of the judges written grant by whom etc., with the same, as follows		02	9
For the Procurators fee		05	00
For summons etc. with the same, as follows		01	07
For the Procurator and his maintenance		02	10
For sealed citation of summons and per counsel		01	6
For completion of articles and their admission		03	6
For copies of the same and lodging them with the King		02	6
For the fees of the Advocate and Procurator		15	00
For summons on behalf of the party		01	03
For sealed citation of summons and per counsel		01	06
For the oath of Masters Robinson and Jackson		01	02
For an agreed copy of the same		01	00
For three accounts against witnesses		01	03
For three as follows		03	03
Total	02	19	01

[16] Joan Teasdale: see AWL, 32.
[17] This paragraph is in Machell's hand.

[Drengage relating to Brougham]

[I.440]

{Drenges & drughes were Lord & Freehold restored to their estates after the Norman Conquest[18] ~~upon their~~ doing som sort of Drudgery for them. T.M. For this, take 1[t.] Sir Edward Cookes note below and then this whol account.}

Now the service of Drengage (Latine: Drengagium vel servitium Drengarij) was a kinde of vassalage; yet not ignoble (as Spelman observes from this expression in Domesday - Tit. Lestresc. Roger Pictaviens. Neuton: 'Hujus manerij aliam Terram xv homines quos Drenches vocabant pro xv manerijs tenebant.'[19] Whence, sayes hee, The Drengi, Drenges or Drenches, were 'genere vassalorum non ignobilium, cum singuli qui in Doomesday nominantur singula possiderent maneria.'[20]
But if there had not bin somthing of trouble \ inconvenience / in this sort of Tenure, it is not likely that Gilbert de Burgham, would have purchased off at so dear a Rate as halfe of the Manner. Ergo quaere?[21]

Yett it is to be noted concerning this service that 'eorum omnes eorumve Antecessores, qui è Drengorum classe erant, vel per Drengagium tenuere, sua incoluisse patrimonia ante adventum Normannorum.' Spelman.[22]
For the Drengi, sayes an ancient MS, were Tenentes in Capite – such as at the coming of the Conqueror, being put out of their Estates, were afterward upon complaint unto him, restored thereunto; for that they being before Owners thereof, were neither in Auxilio nor Consilio against him, of which number was Shar\ne/burn of Norfolk.[23]

Sir Edward Cooke Upon Littleton: fol. 5[th] b., sayes Dreuchs are 'fre Tenants of a manner;'[24] misprinted doubtless for Drenches (the Typographical error is very obviouse, for in ancient Charters they made no difference twixt n & u), ut in Cartis Machellorum.[25] And I doe not doubt but they were freeholdes, yett there is something more than so in it; somthing ~~service~~ \ of Drudgery / which seems the reason why one part of this manner \ was / given for the liberty and freedom of the other.

And wee have a sleight instance \ here of / in one Gamilbere, who was bound by this service to shooe the Kings Horse: 'In Cukeney manebat quidam homo qui vocabatur Gamilbere et fuit verus Dreynghe ante Conquestum, tenuit duas Carucatas terræ de Domino rege in Capite pro tali servicio de ferrando

[18] Drengage was the tenure or service of a dreng. A dreng was a free tenant (specially) in ancient Northumbria, holding by a tenure older than the Norman Conquest, the nature of which was partly military, partly servile. See Maitland, 'Northumbrian Tenures' in English Historical Review. V., 632. OED. Ferguson observed that a mere trace of Drengage is to be found in Cumberland, two tenants only, but it existed in Durham and Northumberland. See R.S. Ferguson, A History of Westmorland (London, 1905), 94.
[19] 'In this manor 15 men whom they called Drenches held other land -15 manors, in fact.'
[20] 'A type of vassal, but not ignoble, since individuals who are named in Domesday possessed individual manors.' Though Machell references Sir Henry Spelman and Sir Edward Coke on Littleton in these passages, the explanation he gives of drengage and its examples may be found almost verbatim in Thomas Blount [1618-1679], Nomo-Lexikon: A Law-Dictionary, Interpreting Such Difficult and Obscure Words and Terms, As are Found Either in Our Common or Statute, Ancient or Modern, Laws. With References to the Several Statutes, Records, Registers, Law-Books, Charters, Ancient Deeds, And Manuscripts, Wherein the Words are Used (London,1670). Blount quotes from Spelman, Dugdale and Coke on Littleton in this text, see DR-DU.
[21] 'Check, therefore.'
[22] 'Yett it is to be noted concerning this service that all of them or their ancestors who belonged to the Drenge class or who held their tenements through Drengage had cultivated their patrimony before the advent of the Normans.' See Henry Spelman, Glossarium Archaiologicum (1687; 1st edn, 1626, completed by William Dugdale, 1664), 184. Machell writes 'eorum', while Spelman writes 'eos'.
[23] For this period in the history of the Sharnburn Family, see 'Historia Familiæ de Sharnburn', The English Works of Sir Henry Spelman (2nd edn, London, 1727), 189-90.
[24] See Thomas Coventry, A Readable Edition of Coke upon Littleton (London, 1830), Ch.IX, Section 73.
[25] 'As in the Machell charters.'

Palefredum Dom. Regis super quatuor pedes de Cluario Dom. Regis quotiescunque ad Manerium suum de Mansfield jacuerit, & si inclaudet[26] Palefridum Domini Regis, dabit ei Palefridum quatuor Mercarum.'[27] Mon. Angl.[28] 2 2se fol. 598 a. {?}[29]

[I.442]

[Brougham Castle]

Roger de Clifford, 9 hereditary shireve of Westmorland, built the greatest part of Browham Castle* next to the East, wherein his Owne Armes & his wives cutt in stone are joyned together. His wife allso – who was Maud Beacham daughter of Thomas Earl of Warwicke – in time of her widowhood built and repard much about this Castle, for it was her Joynture†. She lived much here & made Mauds Poole which retaines her name to this very day.[30]

The Scotts had don so much mischief in these parts about in the time of King Richard 2 or before‡, that this brave Castle of Browham and demane thereto belonging was given by Jurors who were Gentlemen of Great Quality and Trust (as William de Threlkeld Knight, William de Wherton, Thomas de Warthecop de ~~Lamersett~~ Lambersete, John Mauchael, John de Lancaster de Brampton, John de Helton de Burton & alijs), to be worth nothing \ per Annum / att all; {whereas formerly Cs. per Annum}[31] because, say they, it lyeth alltogether wast by reason of the distruction of the country by the Scotts: and that the whole profitt of the Castle and manner aforesaid is not sufficient for the Reparations and saife keeping of the said Castle for that present yere, which was the 4. of Henry the 4. [1402-1403], the Inquisition being taken att Apleby November '37, upon the Death of Matilda Beauchamp,[32] who was sometime wife to \ Lord / Roger Clifford.

[Machell's Notes: I.442]

*{Brougham Castle see more in Apleby.}
†p.293. L.D.
‡(vide Speed de Hoc)[33]

[II.480]

[Notes on Roman Antiquities]

Pleasantly situate on the Bankes of Emote after it has received Lowther to convey it away to the River Eden.

[26] This should be 'inclandet', but Blount's Dictionary gives 'inclaudet'.
[27] 'In Cukeney there lived a certain man who was called Gamilbere and was a true Dreynghe before the Conquest; he held two carucates of land from the Lord King in Chief for such service, for shoeing the palfrey of the Lord King, all four feet, at the forge of the Lord King whenever he lay at his manor of Mansfield, and if he should lame the palfrey of the Lord King, he would give him a palfrey worth four marks.'
[28] William Dugdale, Monasticon: see Abbreviations.
[29] Machell has questioned the citation but it is correct according to Blount's Nomo-Lexikon, 'Sir Edward Coke, on Littl[eton] fol 5. b. sayes, Dreuchs are Free-Tenants of a Mannor: misprinted doubtless for Drenches. In Cukeney manebat quidam homo, qui vocabatur Gamilbere … & si inclaudet Palefridum Domini Regis, dabit ei Palefridum quatuor Mercarum.' Mon. Angl. 2. p. fol. 598.a.
[30] MS. I.394 contains another short reference to Brougham Castle gardens: 'There was then a Garden without the Castle, the Herbage whereof was extended to 1s per Annum. This should be Browham.'
[31] 'formerly [worth] 100 shillings per annum'.
[32] Matilda also known as Maud. She died in 4. Henry IV [1402-03]. See N&B1, 280.
[33] 'See Speed on this'. John Speed, The Historie of Great Britain Under the Conquests of the Romans, Saxons, Danes and Normans (2nd edn, 1623): 'The Scots entring about that time with fire, and sword into Cumberland and Westmorland, and the forrest of Inglewood, drove away much Cattle, slew the Inhabitants, rifled the booths and houses of Perith in the Faire time, killing and taking many, and driving away the rest.' See 732 (15).

At this Castle of Browham the River of Low[ther] & Emot meet. A little above which, near Browham, it continues betwixt the bridges of Emote and Lowther the distance of a Quarter of a mile. \ Near Clifton Cross* / are great heapes of stones which I thinke have bin Sepulcares used by the Romanes.[34]

{Brovonacum: whether ever at Browham or at Lowther}
~~If I be not mistaken~~ The Roman way passes from hence to Browham, formerly Brovonacum which has bin very large as as the rubbish plow'd up all from thence ~~up~~ to the Castle & so along ~~where~~ the Demaine. For they digged up the stone wherewith the wall was maide att any place where they had occasion, & there […][35] they found these 2 \ famouse / monuments which are sett in the wall; there was allso \ found as I was informed / a large white stone ~~which was~~ writ ~~upon~~ from End to End but unluckily \ [un]happily / Broake by a careless ~~masson~~ \ waller / {?} who to further his worke, beat it all into pieces ~~with his hamer~~.'

[Machell's Notes: II.480]
*Se Dugdale de Warwickshire C.1. Knight Low.[36]
{Berryes[37] – Clifton.}
{The figure digd up who by his shymar or roabe seems to be a p[riest] or a bishop: Coles Dict.}[38]

[I.445]
That stone which was found near to Browham Castle and is erected in the fence walls of the Demain resembles Julius Crispus,[39] son of Constantine (called the Great) by Minervina, ~~who was~~ his concubine*.[40] ~~yet~~ He is said to have bin baptised \ at Rome / with his father Constantine, & made Cesar by him, concerneing whose \ Baptism / Sabellicus relate (~~who is~~ an historian of great \ approv'd / ingenuity)[41] that the glorious font, ~~which was~~ errected ~~at Rome~~ for that purpose, continue there in being till his time.
His father afterwards put him to death, \ the reason whereof was not made known / & this peradventure might have bin his monument; for a large long white stone, all ingraven with Letters, was digged up in the same place with it; which while som \ admirers / were ~~admireingly~~ gazeing upon it, was dashed all in pieces by the rude hand of an unlettered waller, who, consulting only his owne private gane, ~~hath Robbed the public of so great a treasure~~ \ in haistning his worke / hath brought such a Loss upon the public, \ these especially that delight in Antiquities / as may be lamented, but never can be repared agane.

[Machell's Notes: I.445]
*{See Speed p. 260, §7. 261 §18. as may better appear by this Inscription, stampd upon his coyne when his father was pleased to create him Cæsar; supposed to be at the same time, that they were both Baptised at Rome, in that stately font which Sabellicus speakes \ as / said to be erected for that very purpose, & which was remaneing in Rome till his time.}

[34] This is a precis of the passage in the MS, as many interlineations and crossings-through have been found difficult to analyse.
[35] '& there' has been scored through and an illegible interlineation substituted.
[36] William Dugdale Warwickshire.
[37] Tumuli.
[38] Shymar: 'a short vest, formerly a bishop's long robe.' See Elisha Coles, An English Dictionary, explaining the difficult terms that are used in divinity, husbandry, physick, phylosophy, law, navigation, mathematicks, and other arts and sciences … (London,1684), SIG-SIN. See Part 3, Ch.3, Roman Antiquities, VI.267, for more on this figure.
[39] MS: 'Resemblance of Julius Crispus.'
[40] MS.IV.81, also contains this passage. It is entitled, 'Antiquityes found on Browham Castle Demane'.
[41] Marcus Antonius Coccius Sabellicus (1436–1506) was a Venetian historian known for his universal history, Enneades sive Rhapsodia historiarum (1498).

[Nine-Church][42]

[I.441]

To Nine-Church doth belong Browham, Browham Castle, Hornby Hall, Moorehouses, Woodside.

[I.442]

The parish church now standing and lately Repaired (or rather Rebuilt) by the Countisse of Penbrooke, is called Nine Church. Concerning which name there are severall conjectures*.[43] But the most probable is from Ninianus†, to which saint there are several churches \ & chapels / dedicated in Scotland ~~which tho in Latin~~ but called in their tongue St Ringing,[44] in Latin Ninianus, as Mr Bruce, Curate of Pamber in Hantshire and a Scotchman, inform's me‡.[45] The Town was depopulate \ & demolished after the Countiss of Penbrooke dyed, / by James Bird of Browham an attorney at Law (who bought the Tenements) about 1679⸸.[46]

[Machell's Notes: I.442]

*See my Note de Westm'land in Generall to Oglebyes Queries. Note. d.[47]
†Vide ibidem[48] \ and my little booke of Westm'land.
‡{???} {St Ninian: 1ᵗ Bishop of Galloway è Spotswood.}[49]
⸸Q. of E. Sleddall; see the pedigree.

[II.479][50]

Nine Church: [the name]

I was of opinion that Nine Church took its name of St Ninian, and to that effect sent a letter to Archdeacon Musgrave, afterwards Dean of Carlile,[51] desireing him to enquire of his friend, one Mr Savage,[52] sometime parson there, what he could say of it. And received an answer dated from Edenall December 15, 1673, in these words:

ad altera[m] Itunæ ripa[am].[53]
Your apprehension of Nine Church is right, for not onely his name, Sc.

---

[42] St Ninian's Church, Brougham.
[43] When attempting to ascertain the age of the first Ninekirks chapel, Canon Bouch had a similar difficulty. 'No instance of a medieval use of the name Ninekirks has so far been found. Its first known occurrence is in an entry in the episcopal register of 1583, noting the appointment of an incumbent to "the rectory of Browgham alias Ninekyrkes". The first known attempt to explain the name is found in Thomas Machell's manuscripts, volume I, 442: "The parish church . . . called Nine Church concerning which name there are several conjectures—see my note. d. Westmorland in general to Oglesby's queries. But the most probable is from Ninianus to which saint there are several churches dedicated in Scotland." Unfortunately, the note under reference has not yet been found (all who have had the joy and the exasperation of toiling through the six wonderful but ill-arranged and usually almost, and sometimes wholly, illegible volumes, will sympathise), but its substance seems to be given in the following entry in the Hill MSS. (v. 3), which must suffice for the time being: "Machell when speaking of Ninechurch says it had that name from St Ninian, a Scotch Saint, according to tradition or from that church being eight times demolished and rebuilt the nineth time." C.M.L. Bouch, 'Ninekirks Brougham' CW2, 50 (1950), 80-81. That even the incomparable Canon Bouch missed the passage is not at all surprising.
[44] St Ringan.
[45] Andrew Bruce, priested 1674, curate of Pamber, diocese of Winchester, 1667-1717. CCED.
[46] MS: '1670 9'. See I.630 for a plan of Brougham before the demolition.
[47] For Machell's collaboration with the cartographer, John Ogilby, for the purpose of creating a questionnaire to send out to informants, see the Editor's Introduction.
[48] 'See the same source as above.'
[49] John Spottiswood (Spotswood), The History of the Church of Scotland: beginning the year of our Lord 203, and continued to the end of the reign of King James VI. (1655).
[50] Much text on this page has been overwritten and is very difficult to read accurately.
[51] Thomas Musgrave, Archdeacon of Carlisle, 1669; Dean in 1684; died in 1686. CCED.
[52] Arthur Savage, ordained Deacon at Rose Castle, 1637; Rector of Brougham, 1643 to 1662. Also, second prebendary Carlisle Cathedral and Rector of Caldbeck from 1665 until his death in 1701. CCED.
[53] 'On the other bank of the Eden.' The church stands in a bend in the River Eamont, close to its confluence with the River Eden.

[II.480]

De Ninianus, but his picture also, was seen by Mr Savage on the partition betwixt the chancel & body of the Church, who refers you to the Aurea Legenda,[54] for an account concerneing that same*.

[II.479]

{Cl did he so vix credo}[55]

Non procul a Nine Church a Hypogeum Mirificum magno labore excavatum vidimus, ubi Gygantem nescioquem habitasse somriaru[n]t accolæ. Januaque dehinc ferrea ad Carleolu' translata fuisse asserunt par e Camd[en] p.150.

Bona e[t] de gygantibus digressio p.248.

Huc annect[ere] mereor etiam Pagan[a] magna ossa apud Orton reperta, et oblong[um] illud mon[umentum]{P?} In Perith church yard inclaruisse comprobant Romanorum num[m]i pavime[n]ta ~~tessillata~~, et marmora inscripta subinde effossa quæ cum in ignaros inciderint, non minimo antiquitatis damno com[m]inuta perieru[n]t. sed de Kirkbythore:

{cl} Inscriptiones etiam saepius effodiuntur quas tamen nobis invidet rusticorum imperitia. de Silcester, 135.

Dicit se vallu[m] militare juxta Comibleton in suthria Bensbury vocatu[m] forma orbicular[i] constructum vidisse, 155. Monumentu[m] Saxonicum ut creditur.[56]

[II.480]

[Machell's Notes I.480 & I.518]

*{This was before the church was pulld down & rebuilt by A.P.}[57]

[I.518] Qu. in the Registry at Carlile; whether it be the church or chapel at Browham which is dedicated St Wilfridd.[58]

[I.442B]

{The Foundation of Browham Chappell}

An agreement of the Spiritual part and Temporal part for the great ease of the parson of Browham & the parishoners* – That from thenceforth all manner of Sacraments of the church shall be administered at the chappell of Browham except Burial and on X^{t}mas Day in the morning – song & mass, & then after to goe to the Church to the high-mass & offering – & so 3 day mass at the Church. & 2 of the last at the Church with mattens, & so on.

~~On~~ Easter Day in the morning, mattens with Resurrection, & one soling[59] mass for servants & old aged persons, & sick p[ersons]; all the Residue to goe to Church[60] to the high-mass, & so mass on the [54] Jacobus de Voragine (Archbishop of Genoa), compiled the Legenda Aurea (The Golden Legend), which detailed the lives of the Saints). Published in 1470, it was translated by William Caxton (1st edn, 1483). For a modern edition, see F.S. Ellis ed. (Edinburgh, 1900, 1922, 1931). St Ninian is not found in Caxton's edition, but, as early publications on the lives of the saints had very similar titles, Savage might have been referring to a volume by John of Tynmouth (d. 1290?) and Wynkyn de Worde (d. 1534?), Nova legenda Anglie. Sanctilogium Angliae, Walliae, Scotiae, et Hiberniae (1515), 29. See an updated Latin edition: Nova legenda Anglie (Vol.II): as collected by John of Tynemouth, John Capgrave (1393-1464, Wynkyn de Worde and Carl Horstmann (Oxford, 1901): chapter entitled, 'De Sancto Niniano Episcipo et Confessore', 218-24.

---

[55] '{That he did so I scarcely believe.}'

[56] 'Not far from Nine Church, we saw an amazing Hypogeum, carved out with great labour, where the inhabitants fancied that some giant or other had lived. And its iron door, they claim, was moved from there to Carlisle. The same in Camd[en] p.150. Also, a good digression on giants at p.248. I ought to connect with this as well the huge bones from Pagan times found at Orton, and that long monument in Penrith church yard. Roman coins testify that it was famous,[as do] tessellated floors and marble inscriptions excavated there which, since they fell into the hands of the ignorant, have been broken and destroyed even though the damage done by time was minimal. But of Kirkbythore: Inscriptions are quite often dug up which, however, the ignorance of the country folk keeps from us: 'Of Silcester', 135. He says that he saw a military wall near Comibleton in Suthria, called Bensbury, constructed with a circular design, 155. A Saxon monument, so it is believed.'

[57] Anne, Countess of Pembroke: Lady Anne Clifford.

[58] This sentence is in Machell's hand.

[59] Mass of Consolation.

[60] The parish church.

Monday at the Church; Tuesday & Wednesday at the chapel. At the X Days 2 dayes procession at the chapel & 2 at the Church. At Whit Sunday [&] on Munday, mass at the Church; on Tuesday & Wednesday at the chapel. On Sundayes & every principle feast & double feast – mass at the Church. All single holidays – mass at the ch[urch] with mattens & eveing-song. Mass on the week-dayes at the chapel when parson or his chaplain is disposd except Wednesday & Fridayes in Lent; & then at the Church.
The parson shal finde 2 sureties afore St Wilfrey[61] on his own proper costs, as appeares by a Composition registred in a Port[io]n[er]s[62] booke; for the which services Thomas Reading Lord of the manner of Browham gave & Granted unto the chapel of Browham & the Parson of the church & his successors – one Tenement as it lyes at the west end of Browham with the Garthes above the chapel within the precincts of the wall & no farther; with the woods & the wasts & all the commodityes within belonging; with one acre of Land Arable on the south side as the plow head goes & no farther, upon condition that the parson & all his successors perform &c. Or else to Revert. These being witnesses:
William Engane & Maud his wife; William Hill Chaplain; Thomas Briton, parson of the church of Caldbeck; Thomas Mercer, chaplain; John Weston, chaplain, William Hornby, Henry Sheeling de Browham, Stephen Meyburne chaplain, Thomas Whinfel chaplain, Henry Kirkby chaplain, Parson of Marton; John May, vic. of Morland; Edward Shelly, parson of Browham; Richard Tyndall; John Tyndall; Simon Hawell; William Haywell, with many others then present.

[Machell's Notes: I.442B, I.444A, I.447]

*{Memorandum that Mr Bird sayes he has the original.}
[I.444A] Q. of Christopher Bartons wife of Dokera,[63] whose maiden name was Casades. What Mr Bird had of her about Armes.
[I.447] & there is a place by the Chapel near the waterside called Hell Dungeon, which I should see – being informed thereof p[er] Du[d]ley Walker, Curate of Troutbeck.[64]

[Hornby]

[I.442]

{Names. Hornby}
I finde William de Hornby witness att a Deed att Crakanthorp Hall which concernes the Crakanthorpes 49. Edward 3. 1375.

[I.447]

I suppose Hornby Hall may have ~~bin~~ formerly belongd to a family of that sirname; for I finde William de Hornby Executor amongst others, to William de Sandford 49. Edward 3. [1375-1376] (è Cart. apud Askam).[65] \ It contin[u]ed in the name of Birkbeck till about 1695, that Katerick made an end of it by gameing & foolery.[66]

[61] St Wilfrid's day (12 October).
[62] A portioner: person who receives a share; in the Christian Church, the term relates to any one of two or more incumbents sharing the duties and revenues of a benefice. OED.
[63] Dockray.
[64] Dudley Walker: curate at Troutbeck, 1663-1701; curate at Grasmere, 1701-1712, Chester Diocese, CCED.
[65] 'In a deed at Askham.'
[66] Machell was correct in describing Catterick Birkbeck (bap. 1668) in this manner. He failed to obtain his deceased wife's fortune, lost money to a cardsharp, and continually involved himself in lawsuits. He borrowed money from Thomas Benson, a Penrith Quaker, assigning Hornby to him as security, and finally sold Hornby to Thomas Dalston of Penrith, who had been his guardian during his minority. By 1699 he was in the Fleet Prison, where he seems to have passed most of the rest of his life. His will was made in 1722, and proved in 1733. See Robert Birkbeck, The Birkbecks of Westmorland and their Descendants (London, 1900), 27-29.

[I.448]

Hornby is an Hall, the seat of the Birbecks: a worthy & ancient family of which was Mr Simon Birbeck, minister of Fawcet, a Learned man who writ diverse Bookes – one of which was dedicated to his kind nephew, Lancelot Machel of Crakanthorp Esq.[67]
In the House is much curiouse carvd work, especially the Chimney piece in the Dineing Roome*.[68]

[Machell's Notes: I.448]

*è lib. Pock[et][69].
{Quaere: of Procter Bir[beck] for. the Pat[ent] of A[rms] Test. E.M.}

[I.444A][70]

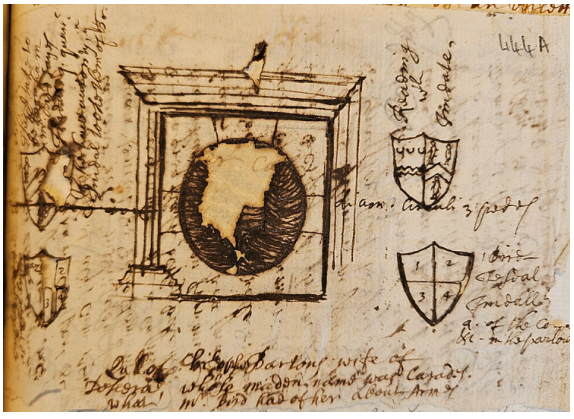

Figure 1.7.1. Chimney piece in the dining room at Hornby Hall. I.444A.

[I.443]

Figure 1.7.2. Matches. I.443.

Cosan Birbeck of Horneby has matched 11[families] as 1ˢᵗ Birbeck. {with:}[71]

[67] Simon Birbeck or Birckbek (1583/4-1656), of Hornby in Lancashire, was a student at Queen's College, Oxford, from 1600 (MA 1607; BD 1616). He remained at Queen's College as a fellow and was ordained, after which he became a noted preacher and disputant. In 1617 he was made vicar of Gilling and the chapel of Forcet in Yorkshire, through his patron: his kinsman, Humphrey Wharton. His work, The Protestant's Evidence (1634), argued the historical continuity of contemporary Church of England doctrine. See R. Bayne & R. Armstrong, 'Birckbek, Simon, Church of England clergyman and religious controversialist.' ODNB.
[68] See the illustration on I.444A.
[69] 'From my pocket book.'
[70] The reverse of this page [I.444B] contains Latin text concerning 'Gilbertus de Burgham'. As it is incomplete and much damaged (the ink from the illustration on I.444A having leaked into it) it has not been transcribed.
[71] 'Cousin Birbeck of Hornby has matched eleven [families] as first Birbeck [impaled] with'

1. Clifford, base born[72]
2. Salkeld, de Rosgill
3. Denton, de Cardew; haveing 3 martlets in chi[ef]
4. Sandford de [Blank]
5. Wharton de Kirkbythore
6. Lancaster de Sockbridge
7. Lancaster de Brampton Westmorland
8. Lancaster de Bra[mpton]: cohearre in[73] puto dub.[74]
9. Labourne de [blank] Com. Lancastriensi, whose armes are an escutcheon Ermin (3.2/3.2) with a Border S[able] charged 6 Owles Argent 3 in chief two in ~~fesse~~ fess, & 1 in bass.
10. Poole de Peak in Com. Darb[y] whose armes are in a field Azure a Chever[on] betwixt, 3 (D^{ts})[75] Cressents Or.
11. Caterig[76] de Caterig brig. Com. Ebor: a co-heiress, with whome he had the estate.

[I.441]

[Whinfell Forest]

Memorandum: That I heard it credibly affirmd by Persons of Quality that the Bretheren in Whinfell forrest[77] wer of such huge bulke that two gentlemen on Horseback might have rid, one of one side and the other of the other side, well mounted, & held up their switches, the topps whereof could not be diserned by either of them on the other side the tree (7 or 8 fath.).

There was an other tree lately blowne downe, to wit in the memorye of most men now liveing, which was hollow within & decayed on it one side, so that there was a very fare enterance into the stump where 9 men on their horse bakes ~~stood~~ were all at once; where 2 \ were / men of good Credit and Quality, viz. Sir Thomas Wharton, whome I heard relate it, and Sir Philip Musgrave: both of them grave and juditiouse persons.[78]

[I.442]

At Whinfel are 600 Acres of wood in Herbage and sale of underwood worth per Annum 7^{li} 3^{s} 7^{d}.

[On Trees]

[I.448]

In the History of the West Indies there is mention made of a Tree whose trunk or Body was 87 f. about; which is 29 foote Diameter.[79] And Mr Smyth in his Improvement of England, London \16/73,[80] is of opinion that there have bin trees as great in England; haveing heard of an Oake fell'd in Hantshire about 1664 conteineing in timber & wood 50 load*; of an Arme of an Oake not far from Horsham in Sussex \ where one of my name & family lives &c. / blown downe by winds in 64, conteineing 13 Loade of wood & Timber; And on the 26 June eadem Anno[81] in the Forrest of Ales-

[72] A tiny sketch of a coat of arms has been placed here.
[73] A tiny sketch of a coat of arms has been placed here.
[74] 'But I think doubtful.'
[75] Symbol unknown to this editor, perhaps meaning 'decrescent' (crescent pointing to the right).
[76] Catterick.
[77] Brethren: large trees in Whinfell forest. See II.483.
[78] Machell cross-references this information in MS I.448: '{Whinfell Forest.} There was a tree blown down in hollow of which 8 or 9 Gentlemen on their horse-back were all att once: see – elsewhere.'
[79] Gonzalo Fernandez De Oviedo y Valdes (known as Oviedo), La Natural hystoria de las Indias (The Natural History of the West Indies) (1526-35), printed in English (1555-56). See a translation by Sterling A. Stoudemire (University of North Carolina Press, Chapel Hill, 1959).
[80] John Smith (or Smyth), England's improvement revived; plainly discovering the several ways of improving all sorts of waste and barren ground and of enriching all earths, with the natural quality of all lands; and the several weeds and plants which naturally thrive therein observed &c.; together with the manner of planting all sorts of timber trees and underwoods, experienced in 30 years' practice. 6 vols (London, 1670).
[81] 'In the same year.'

Hoult, he measur'd an oake then standing 36 f. compass at 5 f. distance above the ground, the Diameter whereof is 12 foote.

[I.447]

Cesars Tower at Apleby had formerly bin built with very Good Timber, but when the Late Countess of Penbroke (Last of the Cliffor[d]s) went about to Repare it, shee could not finde Timber sufficient for Dormers, & ergo was forced to build ~~in~~ a wall in the very midle of those most spacious Rooms, with 2 stacks of chimneys {which bespeaks Mr Vincent – her Stuart & chief sur[veyor] of her buildings. / & she intitled him upon his grave stone in the parish of Brough.} A very ignorant & unfaithful man who could not take time to sea[r]ch an se to Joynt his timber therein, which meas[ured] short.[82] Howbeit I have bin informd that

[Machell's Notes: I.447 & I.548]

*(q: How much a Loade?) {As much as 5 or 6 horses can draw – F. Godson; but write to know it.}
[I.548] Browham: Lang Lowpe. Hartshorn: great oake.

[I.448]

Ferdinando Hudleston of Millum Esq;[83] had 2 Trees in that ~~said~~ Lordship, in each of which was 32 yards of Timber in Lenth; which Trees they say grew upon the Top of an Hill. Such as these might have serv'd Mr Vincents Turne, & saved a Good house. But the Greatest in bredth that wee have had lately was in Whinfeild.[84]

Mr Smyth is of opinion that som of our oakes have stood from the 1ˢᵗ Creation of the world; and that many ~~of them~~ \ for certain / have ~~certainly~~ continued from the next sommer or spring after the Deluge – for which he gives his Reasons, from p.77 (which is in the latter end of his III Booke or chapter) beginning thus: It is my opinion that there are Oakes – to the 80th page at the words – Many more proofes &c.*. He thinkes those Fir-Trees \ found in the ground / in Lancashire & Shropshire (because none grow there) to have bin left at the General Deluge. Blown down when the earth was \ molifyed, or / soften'd by that strong winde, Gen[esis] 8. V[erse] 11; when the tem[pest] left blowing & waters fell, they sanke in the mud. So the See by its Tides cast sand & cover'd them. Ibid. This may be applyd to the great oakes found. But it may be solved without going so far {for why might [not] firrs grow naturaly there as well as in Scotland? Or have bin planted as they are with us now at B. K. H. &c. & grow over with moss & c[ommon] earth &c.}
{But Evelin talks of firs in Cumberland},[85] ~~and this is~~ \ in confirmation of which may be added that there is a place there / {a place call Old Fir Banke}[86] \ not unlikely upon that occasion.' & I myself ~~have~~ found fir vessels of great antiquity; and bigger than wine pipes in a well \ at K[irkby Thore] in W[estmorland], where they served insteed of the wall on the / inside thereof.}

[Machell's Notes: I.448]

*Which if thought necessary (as it is pleasant) may be tran-scrib'd.[87]
There are stones pitched on Browham Common. Draw them out, & see what I have said in Shap.
– All the Countiss \ monumental / Pillar[88] – & many other remarques of Antiquity. See my pocket Book & vide the stones.

[82] For Machell's poor opinion of Vincent as an architect, see Part 1, Ch.1, Town and parishes of Appleby, I.296; see also Part 1, Ch.6, Brough, I.424.
[83] Ferdinando Hudleston (1577-c.1645) of Millom, Knight of the Shire for Cumberland, 1623-24. CFH, 171.
[84] Whinfell.
[85] John Evelyn, Sylva, or a Discourse of Forest Trees (1664), Book 2, Ch.3, Section 12.
[86] This place is in Westmorland (i.e. Firbank and Firbank fell), unless the reference is to Firtlefeild in Egremont, Cumberland: see Westmorland Place-Names.
[87] Machell's citation of pages in John Smith's England's Improvement Revived (London, 1670), Vol.3, 77-80, is entirely accurate; he was clearly familiar with the book in question.
[88] That is, all the faces of the pillar.

[I.445]

Bird of Browham

[Pedigree: Notes]
Imma: iuxor [blank] daughter of James Bird of the Hill & Pinfold, Browne Cot & Hair's Tenement, & 2 Tenements at Moore Houses which were afterwards John Pattesons, whose son Thomas sold it to Ja[blank].[89]

[I.447][90]
Bird of Browham has gott a large pedegree entered in Dugdal; beginning at Henry Bird – who had Isue William \ Bird / of Little Croglin in Cumberland &c. out of an old parchment pedigree wherein there are matches but noe farther place of Aboade mention'd till you come to [blank][91]

[I.628]

[Pedigree]{Secretum}[92]

James Bird	= Dorathy. The 3rd daughter of John Sanderson of Penrith, Tanner.
Immanuel Bird of the House next to the Pinfold house on the left hand as you goe to Penrith*.	= maryed a daughter & choheir of one James Bird of The Pinfold, who [b]ought also The Hill House, the cottage which Browne farm'd, and Huers Tenement & 2 Tenements at Moore Houses, all which he purchased & gave to his daughters – Sc. Bird & Patteson†. But what the other had I am not informed.	The other 2 daughters were maryed, to Pattison, and another to Bradley of Knipe.
Thomas Bird of the next house to the Pinfold; a small cottage with a rood of Land belonging to it, which was all the Estate he left to his son⸸.

I have no account of his descent & parentage or place of his Birth, but that he was a Lucky Bird & began his fortunes in the world \ [la]boris abilis[93]/ with three hen chickens‡.
And this being the original of Mr James Bird. Query whether three hen chickens had not bin a more proper Coate for him than 3 demi Lyons. But that he is a Bird of Prey; He had the Confidence to boast of the Antiquity of his family to old Sir John Lowther, a wise & sober Gentleman (~~& the great advancer of the Lowthers Estate~~) affirmeing to him that there were Birds at Browham ever since the [89] See I.628 for more on James Bird. He was lawyer and, later, steward to Lady Anne Clifford, purchasing her third part of Brougham Hall and manor after her death in 1676, thus becoming the first person to hold the entirety of the building since the medieval de Brougham family. Mark Thomas, A History of Brougham Hall and High Head Castle (Chichester, 1992), 10-14.

[90] Also numbered p.12.
[91] See Dugdale's pedigree of Bird of Brougham in Joseph Foster (ed.), Pedigrees Recorded at the Heralds' Visitations of the Counties of Cumberland and Westmorland made by Richard St. George, Norroy, King of Arms in 1615, and by William Dugdale, Norroy, King of Arms in 1666 (Carlisle & Kendal, 1891), 11. In this pedigree, the Birds emerged from Little Croglin, but from c.1295 the head of the family lived in Perith (Penrith). Birds first appeared in Brougham in the 17th of Henry VI. [1438-39]. These details were taken by Dugdale from a family 'vellum' detailing the Bird descent. According to Dugdale, proof, in the form of original records, was only available to him from the date 1587.
[92] 'In secret'. The pedigree is drawn out on a sketch of a fruit tree.
[93] 'Capable of work.'

Conquest; to which Sir John gravely replyd, 'Yes, I believe it, an longer too; yea, ever since Adam' – meaning of featherd fowl.[94]
{1691}? Sept. circa 20. James, the eldest son & heire of James, hangd for cutting his wifes throat in Kinsington Fides near London.[95]

[Machell's Notes: I.628 and IV.125]

*Query what it was worth.
†{Ed. Sled[dal] May 6. 1688.} {The other 2 daughters were maryed to Pattison and to Mr Bradley of Knipe.}[96]
‡{Teste Thomas Meason of Moorhouses, per Ed. Sled[dal].}[97]
⸸Witness Immanuels \ 2 / sisters, now poore widdows in the Hospital of Appleby: per Edward Sled[dal].
IV.125. [Note on the Threlkeld descent in Cumberland with this addendum]
{Mem[orandum]. I gave this Note to James Bird of Browham an Attorney, who entered it into his Booke of Evidences. But never mentioned from whome he had it. Tulit alter ho[no]res. It was when he first kept court at Apelby Castle for the Earle of Thanet.}[98]

[Editorial Addition][99]
'The Speech of James Bird, Gent. Who was Executed at TYBURN, on Friday the 18th Day of September, 1691. for the willful Murther of his Wife Elizabeth Bird.'

'Mr. Sheriff.
I Know it hath been expected by this Company, that I should give some particular Account to the World of this Fact for which I dye: It is from God alone from whom I must expect a Pardon, and God only knows how far I am concern'd in it; so I shall not trouble my self with any Publick Declaration of the matter here, but this far I take my self obliged to let the World know, That it hath been Deposed by Mr. Willis, That my Father should desire me to get my Wife made away; but I do protest, solemnly, and as ever I hope for Salvation in and through Christ's Merits, That my Parents were no ways concerned in it; nay, so far were they from knowing of it, that they did not know that I was Married to her, till I was carried before the Justice of Peace.

It hath been also urged by several, That my Father's Severity had caused it, but those are altogether false Suggestions, for my Father hath been always a Kind and very Indulgent Father to me. Another thing is, That my Father had made away, or given his Estate from me; but that is not true, for I saw his Will, after he had Information given him of my Marriage, and I found that he had given his Estate to me, leaving but very small Portions to the rest.

[94] MS: 'Yes, I believe there have bin Birds there \ it an longer ~~than so,~~ too; yea / yes ever since Adam, meaning of featherd fowl.'
[95] Added in pencil.
[96] MS: 'The other 2 daughters were maryed to Pattison; and another to \ Mr / Bradley of Knipe.}'
[97] 'Witness: Thomas Meason of Moorhouses through Ed. Sled[dall].'
[98] 'Tulit alter ho[no]res': 'Another took the credit'. Machell is quoting from Suetonius' Life of Virgil, Ch.1. The story went that Virgil had composed some lines in praise of Augustus and placed them by night over the gate to the emperor's palace. Augustus enquired who the author was but Virgil was too modest to speak up and an inferior poet, Bathyllus, claimed them and was handsomely rewarded. Provoked, Virgil wrote the verses again on another part of the palace and below them the lines: 'Hos versiculos feci, tulit alter honores' – 'I wrote these verses, another took the credit.' He then wrote the beginning of another line but left it incomplete. Augustus asked Bathyllus to fill in the gap but he proved unequal to the task, and eventually Virgil completed it, in lines that were an indictment of the dishonest Bathyllus. See William Nicolson's references to Bird as agent to Sir John Lowther of Sockbridge in 1704: Misc. Accts, 124.
[99] The speech of James Bird, gent Who was executed at Tyburn, on Friday the 18th day of September, 1691. for the willful murther of his wife Elizabeth Bird (London, 1691). The speech has been added to the body text because of Machell's very clear interest in the iniquities of the Bird family.

Mr. Sheriff, I shall not make any Reflections upon any Magistrate; I pray God that they may not deserve any.
As for the Witnesses that swore against me, particularly, as to what Mr. Holdernes swore, I have so much Charity for him, as to believe that he did see such a Man walk up and down the Field in the Grass; and I must say, That they deposed nothing, as to that, but what was really true, And I must do Justice also to the Constable and my Father, that as I am a dying-man, the Crevat was the same that I was taken in, and there was not any Art or Skill used, (I dare say it upon my Salvation) to take out any Blood that was in it.

Mr. Sheriff, I shall not Reflect upon the Judges of the Court, though perhaps they were a little hard; and as to any one else that was accessary to the Murther, I know of none: But Mr. Sheriff, Let not any one seek Vengeance, elsewhere, but let my Blood satisfie for it: And let the Queen and the Judges be satisfied in what I have said, as I hope they will; and that is all that I have to say, Mr. Sheriff, as to this matter, only I desire the Prayers of all good Christians.
And Mr. Sheriff, If any thing be made publick concerning me, I desire that you would do me Justice in it.
Then he Prayed again for himself, and immediately after he was turned off.'[100]

[I.630]

Browham demolished

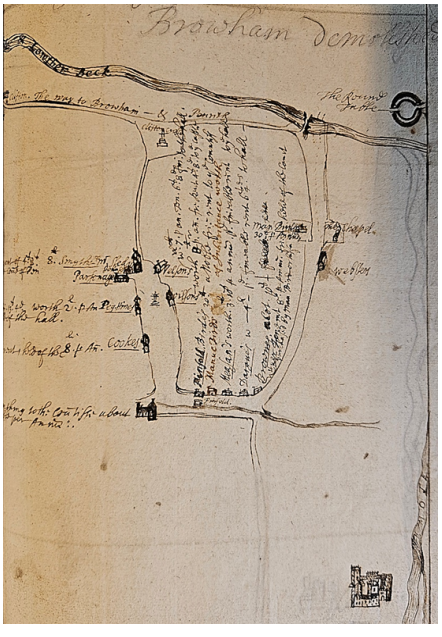

Figure 1.7.3. 'Browham demolished'. I.630.

{The Title – Because this Town is now demolish'd, I have taken occasion to draw an Imaginary Platform of it; partly by memory & partly by the best of information which could be gott of one who formerly lived in the place: these Tenements – all purchasd off about 14 or 15 yeares since in 2 or 3 years time by J. Bird. The houses demolished one after another & turn'd into walls, by which he is made a great improvement but is becom like a pelican or an owle in the desert}*.[101]

[100] Printed for W. Humphries (London, 1691), see Text Creation Partnership Online.

I have taken occasion to draw a Plan of this Town though not worthy notice but for it being lately demolished.

[Key]
1. Mr Birds House. 30li per Annum.
2. Brownes about 10s [and] Huer Tenement 8li per Annum freehold of the Court; purchasd by Mr Bird or his family.
3. Dargue's w[orth] 4li paid fineable rent 6¼ d to Hall.
4. Measan's worth 3li 10s per Annum paid fineable rent to the Hall.
5. [Im]manuel Birds. Of Inheritance worth [blank]
6. Pinfold [house near] Birds. 20li – a noble free rent to the Countiss Penbrooke.
7. The Pinfold.
8. [House paying] something to the Countiss about a noble per Annum.
9. Cooks [paid] free rent held of the C[ountess]. Worth 8li per Annum.
10. Peg Hines. Worth 2li per Annum – rent fine 13s 4d – held of the Hall.
11. Parsonage.
12. Smythes or Mr Sleddalls. Worth 8li per Annum – free rent of 4s 8d held of the Countiss of Penbrook.
13. Nelsons – worth 7li per Annum; Tenement is of 6s 8d fineable rent to the Hall.
14. Wilsons. Worth 8li per Annum – free rent 4s 8d to the Castle.

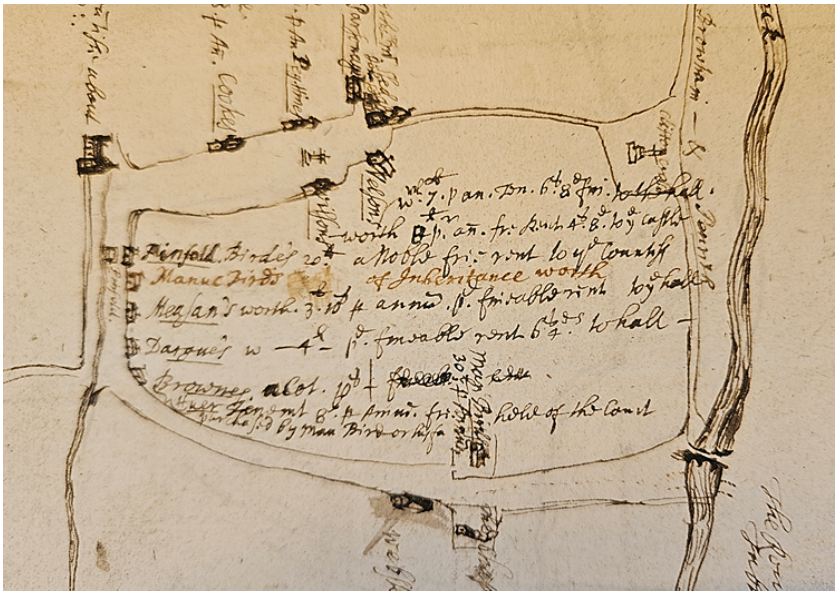

Figure 1.7.4. 'Browham demolished', detail. I.630.

N.B. – All the free Rents were paid to Browham Castle, & all the fineable to the Hall, before the Countess of Pembroke purchased it. The Hill House held one Acre Tenant right rent; all the rest free [101] Psalm 102.6. 'I am like a pelican of the wilderness: I am like an owl of the desert.' Verse 8 reads, 'Mine enemies reproach me all the day; and they that are mad against me are sworn against me.' (AVB). Machell was not a fan of Mr Bird…

hold, paying a Rent to the Countiss of about a Mark per Annum†. The Hall ~~bought by Mr~~ house & other Tenement, were wo[r]th 50^{li} per Annum but 500^{li} debt upon them, which J.B. tooke upon himselfe with all the Land paying out to his father for life, 10^{li} per Annum‡.
One Hodge[102] of Browham Hall had 2 daughters Co-heires, one maryed to Browham, the other to Hodgson, from whom it was bought by one Wright, a farmer at the Castle houses & manager of [the] foarge. Alexander his son sold it to James Brown of Martendale, Capt[ain] for Ol[iver] who …[103]

[Machell's Notes: I.630]
*{This Account taken from Mr Ed. Sled[dal] (an inhabitant som time there) Nov. 26. 1686. The Hill House consisted of an chamber, a fore house,[104] meldoers,[105] &c. & a Bire.}
†For a farther inform. about the rents see Court Rolls.
‡{The Hall. Ex inform. Mr Ed. Sleddal, Nov. 26. 1686.}

[102] The word is blotted.
[103] The rest of the page has perished. For James Browne of Martindale (possible son of Richard Browne of Thrangcragge) see Richard Browne's will: CCA(C)PROB/1630/WX18, and see I.700 (Barton).
[104] A 'fore-house' is an outer apartment by which a house is entered; in Scotland, the but of a but-and-ben. See Dictionaries of the Scots Language, Online.
[105] The 'mell-door' or 'amell-door' (amell = between) in a Cumberland or Westmorland farmhouse is the space or passage between the inner and outer doors. The word 'mell', in the sense of a boundary, is commonly used in these counties: see Robert Ferguson, The Northmen in Cumberland and Westmoreland (London and Carlisle, 1856), 167. 'Mellom' means 'between' in Norwegian.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 8]

[Parish of Cliburn]

[I.449][1]

[Machell's Initial Notes]

To Cliburne Church Belong: 1. Cliburne; 2. Winderwath, & maybe Whinfell Parke if not rather to Ninechurch. Aske Gilmore?[2]
The family of the C[l]ibornes: Robert de Cliburne, testis [a]pud cart. d. 1320.[3]
The Town is divided into 2 parts. one called Cliburne Talboyes. the other? Enquire of Thomas Moore.
[III.113]
A chaple \ once / at Winderwath on the S.W. side of the Hall.[4]
[III.117]
{Intelligent Informers}
Thomas Moore, Richard Dalton, William Lambert

———————

[III.117]

[Parish of Cliburn]

[Name]
Cliburne may seeme to \ take its name from the brooke that runes by it under a cliff or rock whereon the towne stands.[5] Query, Aquae ad Clivem,[6] though the water now beareth the name of Leeth & formerly Lowth from its lowness there.[7]

{Value}
Cliburne is a little Rectory in the donation of the patron, bishop of Carliol, which is rated in the First li

Fruits Office	9: 1: 4.
& payeth xth yearly unto the king	0: 16: 1¼
And to the sayd bishop for Procurat[or] & Synodal	0: 3: 0

[The River Leith]
The water Lowth runs on the w. end of the towne. Now calleth Leeth.[8] It springs near ~~Strickland~~ \ Shap & runns downe by ~~Guruns~~, ~~Keld~~, Thrimby \ Grange / Chapel where great store of craw fish[9] […] {Above Thrimby Grange, the best craw fish and most plent[iful]} [to] Great Strickland Mill near Hackthorp end; so, twixt Melkinthorpe & Great Strickland Hall – commonly calld Melk[inthorpe]

---

[1] Also numbered p.13.
[2] Recent notes on the manor's history describe it thus: 'The manor of Cliburn comprised two divisions: Cliburn Talebois and Cliburn Hervey, named after their owners; subsequently held as one manor by the Cliburn family from the 15th century until sold (1654). Manor and demesne were bought from Edward Lee by Sir John Lowther 1667 and descended in that family. The detached portion at Winderwath was a separate estate, passing from the Cliffords to Thomas Braithwaite before 1612, then passing to the Wyvill family before 1658 until they sold it in 1787 to Hasells of Dalemain.' https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/township/cliburn.
[3] 'Robert de Cliburne was witness to a deed dated 1320.'
[4] 'Medieval chapel at Winderwath, recorded 1343.' https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/township/cliburn.
[5] MS: 'Cliburne may seeme to \ take its name from the rock or clif at the south-east thereof / over the stream or burne which runeth under it. to take its name from the brooke that runes by it' [followed by 1½cm illegible, scored-through text] 'under a cliff or rock whereon the towne stands.' There is an almost illegible margin comment beside this text. MS: 'Q. Clif bur cour … Cliburne}' [followed by 4cm, also illegible, scored through.]
[6] 'Query, once [called] Clivis.'
[7] Nicholson and Burn derive the name from Cleburn or Cleyburn: a brook running through a course of clay. N&B1, 457.
[8] MS: 'The water Lowth runs on the w. ~~side of~~ \ end of it / the towne. ~~The river Leith~~. Now called Leith.'
[9] Crawfish: crayfish. 'Middle English, craveys. 1500s, crafyshe. 1500s, craues, craves, cravish. 1600s, crawfish. 1700s, cra-fish'. OED. 9cm of illegible text following this word has been omitted.

Hall – Cliburne, Gilshaulin,[10] Cliburne Mil, where Livernit receives it. ~~Its bigger than Shap where you meet it.~~

{Divis[ion]}
It is onely 1 Constablewick, which consistes of 2 Lordships: Sc. Cliburn & Winderwath.
Cliburne is divided into Cliburn Harvy – which is the freeholders – and Cliburne Talboys – the Hall & tenants.
Davy Dicks Divel.[11]
{John Cooper W., Jo Bolton W., Will Warton W., Richard Moore W.,
Isaak Meekes, Thomas Lambert, Thomas Browne, under W.
Edward Worceman & Thomas Dalton under W.}
All under the Earl and som allso of the Hall. Thomas Brown under tenant.

[III.113]

		s.	d.
Both partes pay Nowtgel[d].[12]	Talb[ois]	12	4
	Har[vy]	8	10

{Church}

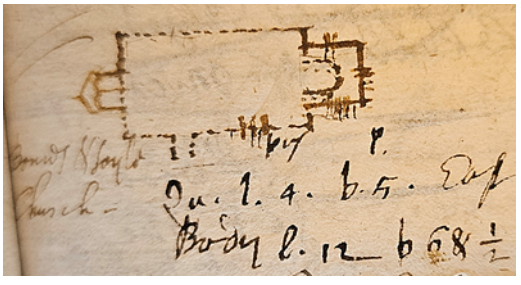

Figure 1.8.1. Cliburn church plan. III.117.

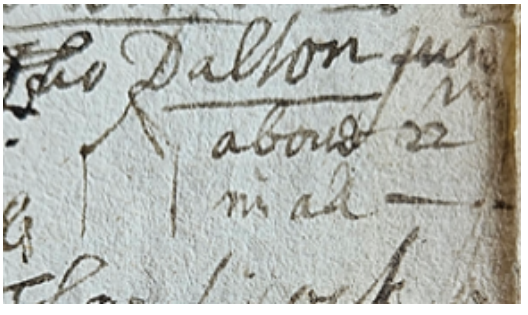

Figure 1.8.2. Sketch of the gable end of Cliburn church. III.117.

Quire: length 4, breadth 5 p[aces], East end window twix 4 & 5 inches broad, in height 39 inches.
Body: length 12, breadth 6 & ½ [paces]. A semi-circ[ular] plane arch betwixt, & no pillars. 2 bells.
Above 22 [paces] in all.[13]

[10] Gilshaughlin.
[11] Richard Dalton, one of Machell's informants: see III.119, below.
[12] This is written over 'Oxgeld'. Both mean a rent-payment in cattle; a tax levied on cattle. OED.
[13] In the MS, this sentence is placed alongside a tiny drawing of a gable end.

{Incumbents}
{Mr May – a Prebend;[14] Mr Fleming;[15] Mr Tully, Prebend of York;[16] Mr Ardrowe, Prebend;[17] Mr Fenwick;[18] Mr Spooner;[19] Mr Shepherd.[20]}

The parsonage house stands adjoyneing the churchyard on the N. side the churchyard at 20 yards distance; an old house but a pleasant situation on the banke of Leeth.

St Michel's Die Thankes. There feast was on [St] Michael Day.[21]

[III.117]

{Towne; Fam[ilies]}
The towne is extended from N. to S., & conteineth in (with the outhouses upon the Ling) about 42 familyes ~~in Cliburn & Cliburn Ling~~.

[Cliburn Hall]

Figure 1.8.3. Plan of Cliburn Hall. Margin. III.117.

III.115

Cliburne Hall was rebuilded or rather augmented with a piece of new building, as is clearly visible to the eye, by Mr Richard Cliburne, the owner thereof, in 1577; of which this inscription in golden letters imbossed upon a stone, & the coates of armes above the Hall dooer, not graved but only shadowed with painteing, doe remain as a monument.

[14] William Meye (Mey) MA, rector Cliburn 1587; Prebendary Carlisle Cathedral: canon of second canonry (1595-1625) and treasurer, 1610; died 1626. CCED.
[15] Richard Fleming MA, rector Cliburn 1626; died 1639. CCED.
[16] Timothy Tullie: ordained 1638; rector of Cliburn 1639; rector of Middleton-in-Teasdale 1660; prebendary of York Minster (Givindale); died 1700. CCED. During the interregnum Timothy Tullie conformed to the puritan religion of the Commonwealth, becoming a sequestration commissioner for Cumberland in August 1656. Nightingale, Ejected of 1662, 1, 173-75.
[17] John Ardrey BA, rector Cliburn, 1664-73. CCED.
[18] John (or William) Fenwick, rector Cliburn, 1673-87. CCED.
[19] Nathaniel Spooner MA, rector Cliburn, 1687-89. CCED.
[20] Richard Shepherd, rector Cliburn, 1689-1739. CCED. A close friend of Thomas Machell, he was an executor of Machell's will, see R.S. Ferguson, 'Wills relating to the Dean and Chapter Library at Carlisle. Wills of Rev. T. Machell, Bishops Smith and Nicolson, and Joseph Nicolson', CW1, 4 (1880), 1-12, at 4. The epitaph to Shepherd in the chancel at Cliburn is as follows: 'H.S.E. [Hic Sepultus Est] Reverendus Vir Richardus Shepherd, Hujus Parochiæ Per Annos 50 Rector, Parvuli scilicet Gregis Pastor fidelis, vigilans, Veræ Religionis cultor assiduus, Qui primævæ Pietatis, Probitatis, Charitatis, Præclarum Exemplum Posteris Relinquens. Obiit 11° Oct. A.D. 1739, Æt[ate] 86'. Edward Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes I (Kendal, 1888), 174.Translated as, 'Here lies buried the Reverend Richard Shepherd, Rector of this Parish for 50 years, faithful and vigilant Pastor albeit of only a little flock, an earnest promoter of true religion, who died leaving to posterity an outstanding example of antique piety, probity, and charity, on 11th October A.D. 1739, aged 86'.
[21] 29 September.

Rychard. Clebūr. thus. they. did. me. Cawle.
who. in. my. time. bealded. this. haule.
The. year. of. Our. Lord. God. who. list.
For. to. neam. 1577.
R. d. mayson.[22]

And in the 2 Angles of the Lintal over the doore, are the quartered coates single: Sc. 1. The paternal '~~opposite~~ on ~~the~~\ your / right hand.', and 2. Cross on the left.[23]

Figure 1.8.4. Arms over a door at Cliburn Hall. III.115.

Succession of proprietors.
Tim[othy] (son of Edm[ond] son of Thom[as]) sold it to Mr Colli[ng]wood, a Bishoprick Gentleman,[24] who sold it to Mr Roger Soray,[25] who yet lives at Broughton Tower in Cumberland; a part soljer, who exchanged it with Mr Ed. Lee of Broughton for Broughton Tower; which Lee mortgaged it to old Sir John Lowther of Lowther, whose grandchilde now injoys it.[26]

[Cliburn Parish]

4 Lords, Sc. John Lowther, Lord of the Manner; Earle. 2 tenants by tenant right & all the freehold[ers] \ appearing there to / answer at Woodside court.

[III.113]

It seems by the Lord[ship] & all the freehold[er]s appearing at Woodside that they hold of the forrest of Oglebird.

[III.117]

Cliburne Harvy
[The freeholders of Cliburne Harvy] were ten[an]ts to the Warcops & bought themselves free of one of the Warcops, being the freeholders above mentioned. These answer at Woodside & al the rest of the freeholders, even the Lord himselfe (by which it appears to be part of the Forest of Whinfell).

Added: Midtowne Tenements, freehold 10 acres bought by Mr Edm. Cliburne of John Warton. Som sold of agre. Hugh Licock \ or Hughs Tenement / sold by the same, and same property \ both 20 / by Common.[27]

[22] But see 'Rychard Clebūr thus they me cawl Wch in my tyme hath bealded ys hall, the yeare of owre lorde God who lyst for to neam 1567. R.D. Mayson', in Francis Haswell, 'Cliburn Hall', CW2, 12 (1912), 126-30, at 127. See also N&B1, in which the inscription is said to have been copied from the inscription over the hall doorway at Newbiggin, 460; and see Michael Taylor, 'On some of the Manorial Halls of Westmorland', CW1, 2, (1876), 251-59, at 256. Machell's version differs, particularly in the date and the word 'list', which could equally well be read as 'left'.
[23] Above the panel are the initials R.C. and a cartouche of the arms of Cliburn quartering Kirkbride, referring to the marriage of Robert Cliburn with Emma, daughter of George Kirkbride of Kirkbride, in 1507: Haswell, 'Cliburn Hall', 126-27.
[24] I.e. a gentleman from the Durham diocese. Until 1882, the diocese stretched from the Tweed to the Tees (Northumberland and County Durham), plus Alston in Cumberland. Before 1837, Crayke in Yorkshire also belonged to it: Durham University, https://libguides.durham.ac.uk/asc-churches-and-religion/bishops
[25] Sawrey.
[26] See this information in greater detail in Haswell, 'Cliburn Hall', 128-30.
[27] This has been a difficult passage to unwrap; readers might wish to arrange it differently.

An Lycocks lands, bought free of the B[irbecks] of Hornb[y] & now sold freeholds parcells. {Thomas Lycock a freehold which was ne[…][28] but purchasd of Birbeck.}

Item: Winderwath. 1 Hall. Gilshauglin. one farme house belonging Mr Dalston, sold of the demaine. Where Appelby Market was somtime kept: Sc. in the year [blank] som of the Clib[urnes] or Wha[rco]ps or perhaps of the Fal[lowfields] being then Maior of the town and the P[lague] rageing therein.[29]

[III.1I8]

B[ounds] {Compare & X}[30]

[Bounder. Version 1.]
E. & S. \ & W. / bounder with Morland. On the north [with] a part of Lowther, Clifton & Browham. Beginning ~~under the church~~ \ where Browham parish joynes / at Entery Nab a little above the wath into Whinfell.
Thence westwards up the Entery Sike to Peetmoore shaw \ Peatmoreshaw. /
Thence norwest on the outside of Whinfell Wall to Parke-yate.
Then N.W. by the ~~same~~ wall to Meburn-Moss-Neuke*.
Thence S. by the outside of the said \ moss / to Brighill † \ a cross cut in the ground / and thence W. by a casten ditch to a place \ on the midle called Yeake-Tree Hill.
Thence W. by the same ditch to Sandwath Cross at Menkinthorp Field Neuk \ where Clifton parish ~~comes in~~ & Lowther parish & Cliburne meets. / Thence ~~eastward~~ \ S. / down Sandwath Sike to Cliburne Crooks.
Thence \ E. / downe the water of Leath to \ the / foote of Gilshaughlin \ at Pilgrim Sike Foote. /
Thence S. up […][31] \ Pilgrim Sike to the head of Mickle-Gill. /
Thence S. up the said sike to Edmond Steemsons at Woodside.
Thence S. up the said sike \ where Morland parish comes in / to a place called the † in the Streat betwixt Morland & Strickland Magna.
Thence S. […][32] \ up the highway which leads to Nuby / to Addison Closes.
Thence E. downe Melay-Sike to a bur trey bush[33] in Greengill Sike \ set for a bounder. /
Thence E. cross the church way from Strickland to Morland to a great \ stone calld / the Greystone in Heening.
Thence N. by a wall till you com at Walker well.
Thence N. by \ an / earthen hedge to Abey-yeat.
Thence N. the said hedge to a yeat \ at the S. / south side of Leath-water which is commonly called / Jack Gap.
Thence E. downe Leathwater to Cliburne Mil and \ so / to Livernit.
Thence N.E. downe \ the river / Livernit to the Entery Nab where wee began.[34]
But note, at Jud-Crooke, close on Bolton side, the water is in this parish. & Readpot Close on this side with som other lands adjoyneing is claimed by Bolton in Morland parish. Note also that the manner of Winderwath by its known meets & boundes (though cut-of by Whinfel) is in this parish.[35]

[28] A word here is unclear.
[29] See N&BI, 460. For Machell's other references to Appleby market's temporary removal to Gilshaughlin in 1598, see I.293 and II.481. See also Henry Barnes, 'Visitations of the Plague in Cumberland and Westmorland', CW1, 11 (1891), 158-86, at 175-77.
[30] Two bounders presented here were offered by Thomas Moore and Davy Dick, alias Richard Dalton.
[31] 11cm of text here is illegible.
[32] 3cm of text here is illegible.
[33] Elder-tree: burtre, burt-tree, burtree, bourtre, boretree, bortery. 1700s to 1800s Scottish: bourtree, bourtree bush. OED.
[34] MS: 'Thence N.E. downe \ the river / Livernit to the Entery Nab ~~Robinson Foote on which which are on chaume side of the water but Bal of~~ where wee began.' The binding is close to the text here, making it difficult to decipher the words. Version II (III.119 above) is more legible.
[35] See III.120 and I.449 for similar information.

[Bounder Informants]
{Thomas Moore 71. A rider in [the] Cliburne[s] time. & the E[arl of] Thanet who gave him 2s. And Davy Dick 67 ætatis.}

[III.119]

[Bounder. Version 2.]
Cliburne is bounded on the E., S. & W. with Morland parish, & on the North with som part of Lowther, Clifton & Browham, the perambulation being on this wise:
1ˡ you begin at the Entery Nab, a little above the wath into Whinfell, where Browham parish adjoynes on the North side.
Thence you goe westwards up the Entery Sike to Peatmoreshaw.
Thence N. west on the outside of Whinfel Parke wall, to \ a gate called / Parkeyeate.
Thence N.W. by the said wall to […][36] Meaburn Moss Neuke by the township of Meaburne, which is so called from being farmed.
Thence southwards, by the outside of the said Moss, to a cross which is only cut in the ground, called Brighilcross.
Thence westwards by a casten dike till you com at a place on the midle of the ling called Yeaketree-Hill.
Thence W. by the said dike (or ditch) to another cross cut in the ground, called Sandwath Cross where the parishes of Cliburne, Lowther & Clifton meet altogether at Melkinthorp Field Neüke (& q. of Browham).
Thence southwards, down Sandwath Sike to Cliburne Creüks.
Thence eastwards down the water of Leath (alias Cliburne-Beck) to the foote of Gilshaugeleing {alias Gilshelvering from a Rubish shelvering Skar}[37] where Pilgrim Sike cometh into it.
Thence southwards up Pilgrim Sike to the head of Mickle Gill, & so on to Steemsons House at the Woodside, where Morland parish adjoynes.
Thence southwards up the said sike, to a place which is called the Cross in the Streat, which is between Great Strickland & Morland.
Thence southwards up the highway which leads ~~eth to~~ \ towards / Nuby, to Addison-Closes.
Thence eastwards, down Melay-Sike to a Burtree bush in Green-Gill-Sike.
Thence eastwards, cross the church way from Strickland to Morland, to a great stone called The Grey Steane in Heening.
Thence northwest, by a stone-wall, to Walker-Well.
Thence northwards, by an earthen hedge, to Akay-yeat.
Thence N. by the said hedge, to yeat or gate at the side of Leethwater, which tis commonly called Jack Gap.
Thence eastwards, down the water of Leeth, to Cliburn Mil where it taketh Livennet.
Thence N.E. taken the river Livennet to the Entery Nab where you began.

{Attested by Thomas Moore ætatis 71, who rid this bounder both heretofore in the time of the Cliburnes; as also of late, with Thomas, Earle of Thanet, who gave him 2s.}[38]
{Attested also by Richard Dalton, commonly called Davy-Dick, ætatis 67.}

[III.120]

But note here that Jud-Crooke Close (on Bolton side the water) is in this parish; and Read-Pot Close on this side Livennet, with some other lands adjoyneing unto it, are claimed by Bolton in Morland parish.
But that which is most to be wondered at, is the upper end of Whinfel Forrest \ which is said to be in the parish of Browham & / intercepteth this, ~~pr~~ and cutting through, as it were in the midle, so that Winderwath, tho it be in the parish, is ~~quite~~ out of the bounder, being nowhere contiguous or adjoyneing to Cliburne. But the boundes of the forrest \ which runns thro 2 parishes / & the greatness of the Lords & owners of it, who were patrones of Browham, may seeme to have ~~caused this altera \~~ [36] 4cm of scored-through text is illegible here.

[37] See Westmorland Place-Names, Cliburn, which includes the seventeenth-century name 'Gillshaflinge': 'Gil' = ravine; and 'Shauchling or Shaflinge': 'infirm in gait', related to Scots dialect, 'shauchle'.
[38] '2s' is indistinct.

~~made great strange~~ / made this strange alteration \ innovacon, / & drawn the whol forrest into that parish wherein they had the greatest interest, & custom now hath confirm'd it unto them. So that – Here wee must note that the manner of Winderwath, by known meets & boundes (though cut-of by Whinfell) is in this parish.

[III.117]

{Curosityes of Art or Nature}

[II.460]

{! Cliburn Ling}
Cliburne Ling – a fine plane moore where theres a horse course, formerly so famous that when they would commend a good horse, indeed they usually say, Hees as good an horse as ever ran oe're Cleberne Ling.[39]

[III.113][40]

A horse course on the Clib[urn] Ling – 2 miles long Turnstoope.[41]
As Go[o]d as ere ran, 'ore Cliburne Ling.

Trougil[42]
A Shaw* a little S, from the church, is said to have bin haunted with faries; & Davy Dick[43] sayes he has heard them battle al the night ooer; where there is a place also, call'd Guy Gurlin Haw,[44] a cave which will hold 20 horse, and another almost as big, where they say were iron doers.
{And they tell a story of one of the Lamberts, that when he was plowing near to that place, he heard something cry: I ha broken my peele;[45] & finding a peel ly[ing] in the furrow†, he naled [it] together & threw it down agane where he found it. And when his plow brought him, he returnd to the same place agane [and] he found it was gon, & a great loaf of bread layen in its place, as a gratuity for this frie[n]d[ly] office, which I leave to the relaters &c. my op[inion].}

There is an irregular rume, sort of anear unto Whinfell, wherein som foundations of wall do appear – a mile E. from the church[46] […] which stands upon an hilly nab which is almost compassed, except the N. side, with the water of Leath.

Cleane & foule Martes on Burke Rean[47] ¼ [mile] from the church by Leath Side.
Great store of read stone all over the parish.
Blew & white clay, excellent, at Common Holme ab Ecclesia ¼ west. The tenants: arbitrary.

Clib[urn]-Shaw by the mil – a small warren planted by Davy Dick[48] – & there 3 hillocks of stones and earth {which some call Coves}, 2 on the right hand of the highway which leads from hence to Apleby, & one on the left.[49]

---

[39] MS: 'they would commend a good horse \ indeed / they usually ~~say doe it proverbially thus~~ \ say / hees \ as good an / ~~the best~~ horse \ as / ~~that~~ ever run oe're Cleberne Ling.'
[40] This page has been altered and added to several times; it displays a minimum of three changes of ink.
[41] 'Turn-stoop': the turning post or pillar in a horse race; from 'stoop': a post or pillar. OED.
[42] Trough Gill.
[43] Richard Dalton, one of Machell's informants: see III.119.
[44] Perhaps this was in the deep valley of Gilshaughlin Gill.
[45] Peele: a shovel or shovel-shaped implement. OED.
[46] MS: 'There is ~~one~~ an irregular rume, \ sort of a near unto Whinfell / wherein som found of wall do appear a mile E. from the church ~~near Whinfel by Lord Seat~~' [followed by 2cm of illegible scored-through text].
[47] Birkrane or le Birkgilly Birkrane, see Westmorland Place-Names.
[48] Because rabbits are not native to Britain (they were introduced by the Normans) they were initially badly adapted to the climate, so artificial warrens or 'pillow moulds' of dry, drained soil were made and enclosed to keep out predators, see Jeremy R. Robinson and Kevin Grice, 'Cunswick Hall: An archaeological and historical survey of a Lakeland manor', CW3, 18 (2018), 149-68, at 153-56, particularly Figure 6, an illustration of a medieval warren from Queen Mary's Psalter [BL, Royal MS, 2B, VII].
[49] 'Cove' or 'couve': in Old English, an inner chamber, bed-chamber, cell. OED. The MS repeats this sentence, but it is crossed through.

Ann, wife of William Warton, now living, had 3 children at birth, daughters, 12 years agoe.

[Machell's Notes: III.113]

*{May 13. 90. Shaw? as Peatmoss-Shaw, Cliburne Shaw. Hanging Shaw?}[50]
†(Query? What said of it.)
7 yards a perch.[51]

[50] Shaw: a thicket, a small wood, copse or grove. OED.
[51] Official measurement (2022) gives a perch as 5½ yards or 16½ feet or ¼ of a surveyor's chain.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 9]

[Parish of Clifton]

[III.121]

[Machell's Initial Notes]

The parish of Clifton taketh its name from the town or village where the church standeth, which is seated ~~up~~ at the high end thereof, & the end of an hill at the N.W. end of it.

{Intelligent Informers: Schoolmaster, Gentlemen, Shep[herd]}

Clifton is a little Rectory in the gift of the bishop of Carleol for the time being, valued in the First Fruits Office at: 8: 3:4
which payeth tenths every year to the king: 0:16:4
And procurations &c. to the bishop: [blank][1]
There are some prescriptions for [blank][2] in this parish; the rest is payable to the church in kinde.

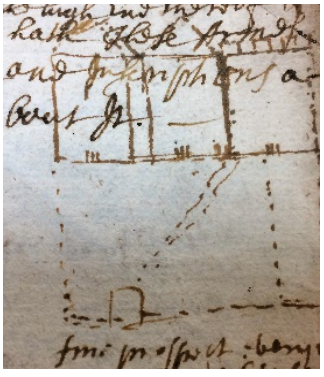

Figure 1.9.1. Sketch plan of Clifton Parsonage House. III.121.

{Parsonage house – a little mean building yet much betered by Mr Burrow – at the N.W. corner within 10 yards puto.}[3]
{Fine prospect every way for wood & fields at the N. west corner of the church yard.}
{Highway only twixt the outer C[ourt] & church yard.}
{Note. A Roman monument.}

{Clifton Manner. Bounds & Soyle}
Begin in the midle \ of Lowther Beck / over against the \ west end of / the church, thence northwards till you come at the foote of a close called Broadwath.[4] Thence N.E. to the Close Neuke. Thence S. up the ~~said dike of~~ \ Broadwath Dicke / to Midle Close, formerly call'd Lowther Brig Close. Then S. by Midle Close Dike to Clifton Cross. Thence E. up Howrig Lonen to Howrig Yeat. Thence E. to the 3 great steanes upon Gledhill at Green Sikes. Thence E. to the passage over the fosse at Cliburn Race Foote called Sandwath. Thence S.W. up the said sike to Gilbrow. Thence agane S.W. up the sike to

[1] In 1535 Synodals were valued at 3s, Procurations 2s. 8d: see John F. Curwen, The Later Records Relating to North Westmorland or the Barony of Appleby, CWAAS Record Series 8 (Kendal, 1932), 296-301.
[2] Prescriptions for grain (£7), hay (5s), lamb and wool (13s 4d): see Curwen, Later Records, 296-301.
[3] Roland (or Rowland) Burrow (or Borrow) was rector, 1668-1707. CCED.
[4] MS also gives, 'Beg[in] in Lowther Beck, directly W. from the church. Thence N. down the river.'

Trainsat[5] Head at {Hackthorpe Field Nooke (not to the Moss)}. Thence N.W.by a gill & row of stones to Scotclose Neuke. Th[ence] N.W. by Clifton Field Dike to Skelling. Th[ence] N.W. between Skelling & the Wings following Lowther Dike till you com at Lowther Beck ~~over against~~ above ~~the~~ a great Skar on Yearwith Side called Clifton Fitts near Clifton Well.
Testament: Thomas Boake & Henry [Penrith] […].[6]

{Divis[ion]}
It is but one constablewick, together with Clifton Dikes. One manner and one parish.
1. How many, & who ancient freeholds?

{Church & School}
Church Body. Length 13; Breadth 5.
Quire. Length 10; Breadth 4.
With a quire added to the N. side: long 8, breadth 4 […][7] having a long & low arch betwixt them which belongs to the Hall.
Rale & ballaster & som good wanscot, som with ballasters about them.
Sc. Wibers in the Body.[8] The Rectors & Bird in the quire.[9]

{Hath these armes and inscriptions about it}
Armes: Engane; Fallowfield,[10] but one esc[allop][11] which is yellow in a black [Blank]

{Hall}[12]
The Hall is a tower \ house N.W. ab Ecclesia about a stone cast, with 2 additional pieces of building fronting with their gables to the church front.[13] Farther of from the Tower is an ancient ~~table of~~ stone above the high~~est~~ window \ cut by hand / with letters defaced, \ which formerly had an inscription upon it / & 2 Geniis, one on either side of them. There are only in it 2 Escutcheons of Iron on[14] the hall doer; another on the starecase doer of the Tower in which the r[in]g hangs for ~~turne~~ lifting up the Latch or Sneck; and there are cut the Enganes Armes, Sc. 6 cross-crosslets[15] & a fess Indented is stamped on it but not cut through like the rest, which may seeme to import that som of the Enganes built the tower or at least the 2 part of the house.
In the Dineroome, in a Piece of old wainscot over the chimney, som Anticks & birds carved in friese,[16] & amongst them Enganes Armes.

[5] Known as Trainford Brow. Tranthwayt, 1378. Tranthwaite, 1733. A crane-haunted clearing. See Westmorland Place-Names.
[6] Some text in this sentence has perished; for the full names of Machell's informants relating to the bounder see III.129.
[7] A word here has perished.
[8] The family of Wybergh. For their origin and connection with the Engaines of Clifton Hall, see CFH, 375-6.
[9] Bird family (1683): see Edward Bellasis, Westmorland Church Notes I (Kendal, 1888), 176. On visiting the church in 1703, William Nicolson commented, '… (the present Incumbent) Mr Burrow … has made one good Seat for his own family, and allow'd Mr Bird (tho he has no Estate in this parish) to erect another for the occasional use of his.' See Misc. Accts, 68.
[10] A shortened word here is very faint.
[11] A word has perished here, but it appears that one of the escallops was missing, See III.123, below.
[12] This is preceded by another margin heading: '{Town. Fam[ilies]}', which is blank.
[13] MS: 'The Hall is a tower \ house N.W. ab Ecclesia about a stone cast, with 2 additional pieces of building ~~fronting~~ with \ their / gables, & in that which is ~~more remarke~~ \ to the church front.'
[14] MS: 'on on'.
[15] Machell has here drawn an image of cross crosslets fitchées.
[16] Anticke: a grotesque or fantastic ornamental representation of a person, animal, or thing; decorative painting or sculpture consisting of the interweaving of human and animal forms with flowers and foliage. OED.

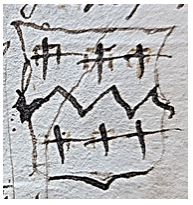

Figure 1.9.2. Engayne Arms (1). III.121.

{Curiosity}
{Marble rock in High Or, S.W. ¼ of, & then 9 W. […]}[17]
{Limestone in the fields next to land the S.W. ab Ecclesia – ½ m.}
{Rare Huen stone N.W. ab Ecclesia, ½ a q. over against Hews Crag; also, gri[n]de stones very large, & grane stone flags & slate of a white thread […][18] all by Lowther Bankes.}
{Wild cats & brockes in the rocks by the water.}[19]

[Further Notes]

[III.155]

{Ratio Nominis}[20]
The parish of Clifton taketh its name from the towne of Clifton where the church standeth, and that, from the cliffs or rocks near adjoyneing upon the bankes of the River Lowther \ q. oppidum ad clivem[21] / for there are 2 of principal note: ~~for~~ the one is of marble out of which doth isue 6 or 7 springs, which are impregnated with medicinal qualityes, and ~~yet~~ \ are / yet commended for cureing several sortes of diseases; the other is of curiouse white huwing stone of a very great \ fine / the like of which I have [not] seen in any other part of this country \ except the Heights in Ormside Parish 3 miles from Appelby / 3m. distant ab Ecclesia.

{Ecclesia}
The church standeth at the head of the towne, at the N. end thereof, and hath very Little in or about it, which may deserve our observation but that it is well seated within, \ the altar railed / and the rafters ~~are~~ \ all of them / cupled at top, one into another, which is rare in these parts.[22] Yet wee may not pass by these armes and monuments.
The parsonage house joynes the church yard at the N. East corner; a small pauper building but suteable to the preferment.[23]

{Divisio. Speciatim cum observ[atione].[24] So many free; rents arbitrary; all tenants to Clifton Hall.

[III.156]

{Clifton Hall}
All the tenants did formerly belong to Clifton Hall, which standeth at the N. end of the towne on the west side thereof & near to the church. This anciently belong'd to the Engaynes[25] and came to the [17] The rest of this sentence has been obscured by the binding.

[18] Some text here has been obscured by the binding.
[19] Brocks: badgers. Compare with the extended text on III.130 See the similarity in N&BI, 414: 'Clifton is said to have been so called from two very remarkable cliffs above which it stands … one, of hard stone like marble, about half a mile south-west from the church; and the other, of a fine free stone, about half a mile west from the church, and is called Cat-Scar, from a number of wild cats frequenting that place formerly.'
[20] 'Reason for the name.'
[21] 'The town by the cliff.'
[22] MS: 'which is ~~unusual~~ \ ~~very~~ rare / in these parts ~~this part of the nation~~.'
[23] MS: 'The parsonage house joynes the church yard \ at the N. East corner, / a small pauper building but ~~large~~ \ suteable / enough for \ to / the preferment.'
[24] 'Especially with due observance.'
[25] MS: 'It anciently belonged to This anciently belong'd to the Engaynes'. For the origin of the Engaynes/Engaines in Burgh by Sands, Cumberland, see CFH, 102-03.

Wibers by marriage of one Elleanore Engane, whose armes are both in the house & church. In Registro de Holm inter cartas de Edenhall, I finde mention of Gilbert, son of Robert de Engayne de Cliftonâ;[26] Whose seat it hath bin, & how descended from family to family.

[Curiosity]
June 11: I found in Lowther Wood by the rivers side, to my admiration, very fair blew collimbines in great abundance,[27] the natural product of the soyle; and was informed that there were great plenty \ both / of blew & white one, by banke sides of the said river in the Lordship of Clifton, & there are blew ones, as I saw myself, on the other side in Yanwath Wood.
Memorandum: There are in Yeanewath Lordship, on the bankes of Emote near to the Hall \ and likewise at Skirsgill / great plenty of barberryes which grow there naturally in the woods;[28] & so there are raspes on the bankes of Huls Water,[29] as they informed me at Skirsgill. Temp. supra. dicto.[30]

[III.122][31]

[B. Draft Narrative.] Of Clifton Parish

{Ratio nominis}[32]
The parish of Clifton taketh its name from the town or village wherein the church standeth[33] \ at the N. end thereof, / which is but a little inellegant building on the outside, yet \ ~~pretty~~ / very neat & well seated within, having rale & ballasters before the altar.[34]

{1.} Church

Long	Body	13	In all: XXIII [paces]
	Quier	10
Broad	Body	V
	Quier	IV

The porch or quier on the N. is long VIII; broad 4. A tympanum with 2 little bells.}

{2. Patrone}
And on the north \ side / behind a long arch, is a quier or porch which belongs Clifton Hall,[35] whose first proprietours may seem to have bin the founders of the church[36] \ al /though the patronage be (at this time) in the bishop of Carlisle.

[3.] The things remarkeable in and about it are these \ before yo[u] / that follow

[III.123]

[i.] The Chancel
In Clifton chancel are 3 little windows in the E. end, in the 1[t] whereof is the picture of a woman with a dejected countenance and hands a crossd, \ having yellow hare, blew coat & white mantle with \ golden yellow bace, / under which \ is / this coate of armes and inscription upon it.[37] The field Gules. The Charge Or. The Inscription: Helynor Ingayne.

[26] 'In the Register of Holm [Cultram] among the Edenhall deeds, I find mention of Gilbert, son of Robert de Engayne of Clifton.'
[27] Columbine plants are also known as Aquilegia.
[28] The berries of the Berberis Vulgaris.
[29] Ullswater.
[30] 'At the abovesaid time'.
[31] MS. III.157 and III.158 contain short notes relating to Clifton: '{A good method}'; '{Clifton Dugdal. Clewrth Hall.}'
[32] 'Reason for the name.'
[33] Virtually illegible text [11cm] has been scored through here.
[34] Virtually illegible text [10cm] has been scored through here.
[35] Virtually illegible text [7cm] has been scored through here.
[36] MS: 'of it of the church.'
[37] MS 'above it \ upon it. /'

vid. Fig. 1.

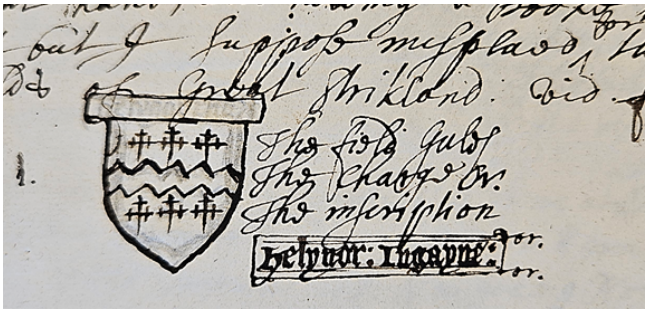

Figure 1.9.3. 'Helynor Ingayne'. III.123.

In the 2 or midle window a crucifix much defaced.
In the 3[d] a boy or man leaneing his cheek upon his right hand and holding a booke in the left \ read coat, yellow mantle / and above that but I suppose misplaced \ for it should be underneath, / the armes of the Fallowfields of Great Strikland: The field, Sab[le]. The charge, Or. Vid. of 2.

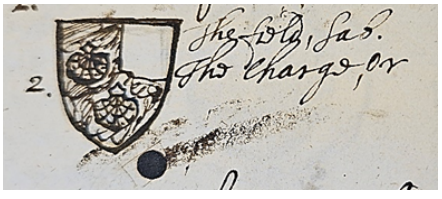

Figure 1.9.4. Fallowfield of Great Strickland Arms. III.123.

[ii.] [Stones]
[Fig.] There is a round stone layes loose in the quire, which is supposed to have bin the top of the cross; And a piece of \ it / sett up at the east end of the church in the yard, supposed to be the neck \ & body; / that head having the same sort of letters upon it. I can read one side the round stone these words: hic iacet Nicolas; but nothing on the other: vid. Fig. 3.[38]

Figure 1.9.5. 'vid. Fig. 3'. III.123.

If the neck doe not answer the body of the cross, it has bin a piece of an old grave stone*.

[Through Stones]
There is also a through stone with a cross upon it an[d] a chalice on one side thereof; & something else now obliterated on the opposite side on the north side Communion Table.

[38] C.M.L. Bouch refers to the loss of this crosshead in 'The Church and Churchwardens accounts of Clifton, Westmorland', CW2, 49 (1949), 156-65, at 161.

On a through stone before the quire doore is in[39] great Roman character: J. Svton Bachelor of Arts. of the Aige of 21. Dyd the 4. of May 1619.[40]
In the church yard on the north side the chancel is a little slaite through stone with a crosse flowry and a sword on the left side thereof.

[Machell's Notes: III.123]

*Query: If the church be dedicated to St Nicholas, & if so note that the burying places of the martyrs were used of old for their assembley, and hither they brought their children to be baptized. {These places and areas they called martyria}. Episcopalia of H. Compton, Bishop of London: Letter to his Clergy 1686. Letter 1.[41]

[III.122]

{iii. Dedication to St Nicholas}
The last [thing remarkable] may seem to be the head of the cross which sometimes stood in the church yard till men grew so zealous \ that I may not say furiouse / against ancient rites that they thought they could not follow their \ right /j[udgment] unless they first of all take up the cross in a litteral sense. The inscription which you see here upon it is HIC JACET NICOLAS,[42] from whence I collect the church may be dedicated unto St Nicolas, tho I dare not affirme that Holy Marty[r] was buryed here, notwithstanding wee read that the martyria or burying places of the Holy Martyrs were used of old for their public assemblyes and thither their children were wont to be brought, that they might be baptiz'd*; which was the original of many churches, where the word martyrium doth signify not only martyrdome but a church or temple dedicated to martyrs. Altar impersitum cinenbus martyris †[43] Enough to ground my conjecture upon.

And these are all the things remarkeable in Clifton church, save onely in Weber's[44] Quire and the Church quire there is a great text M writ {in read},[45] here and there single by itselfe, which has bin don when the church was plastered; in the painteing there being also branches in red in both places but drawn by a rude and unskilfull hand. \ I doe suppose it stands for Mary, in commemoration of the Blessed Virgin. /

Figure 1.9.6. The letter 'M' in Clifton Church. III.123.

[Machell's Notes: III.122]

Episcopalia* \ Honourable viz. / Henrici Compton Episcop[i] Lond[inii], quibusdam epistolis clero Dictatis episcop[ali], edit[a] Londini 1686.[46]
The 'Episcopalia' of Henry Compton Bishop of London, in certain letters written to the bishops clergy, published at London 1686.
†Digest e Dict. Gouldmanie.[47]

[39] MS: 'a'.
[40] This is quoted in Bellasis I, 182: 'J. Sutton, Bachelor of Arts, d. ye 4 of May 1619.'
[41] Henry Compton (1621/2-1713), Episcopalia, or, Letters of the Right Reverend Father in God, Henry, Lord Bishop of London, to the clergy of his diocess (London, 1686). This is a collected edition of the letters and addresses of Henry Compton, bishop of London. See Andrew Coleby, 'Henry (1631/2-1713), bishop of London'. ODNB.
[42] Here lies Nicolas.
[43] 'These places and areas they call martyria.'
[44] Wybergh.
[45] MS: '{in read} ... ~~in red~~.'
[46] 'Episcopalia of H. Compton, Bishop of London: Letter to his Clergy 1686. Letter 1.'
[47] Francis Gouldman, A copious dictionary in three parts: I. the English before the Latin; II. the Latin before the English; III. the proper names of persons, places, and other things necessary to the understanding of historians and poets (London, 1664).

{Mr Dugdall also visited this church, 1664: Sc. his booke (ergo in the Heralds College, London) whether he have anything that I have omitted.}

[III.122]

{4. Parsonage House}

At the N.W. point of the \ Quier or / Chancell (at about 12 yards distant \ from it / ~~or little more~~) stands the Parsonage house: a smal timber building which hath little more but its large and fair prospect to commend it unto us; yet has of late bin somewhat improved by Mr Burrow, the present rector.

{Value and dues out of it}	li. s. d.
This parsonage is rated in in the First Fruits office at	8: 3:4
and payeth yearly, tenths to the king	0:16:4

And to the bishop for procurations and for synodals.[48]

[III.124]

[5. The Manner and Descent; Engayne]

Williamus Wiberge maryed Eleanore, daughter & heir of Gilbert de Engayne de Clifton, Edward 3.[49]
Engham de Clifton bore for his coate these armes, 9[0] Richard 2. [1385-1386].
È sigillo apud cartam penes T. Sandford \ de Ask[ham] /Arm[iger].[50]

Figure 1.9.7. 'Seal on a deed in the possession of T. Sandford'. III.124.

[III.125]

Afterwards, som debates ariseing concerneing the bounder on Lowther side, twixt Richard Lowther of Lowther Esq. & Thomas Wibergh of Clifton Esq., it was agreed by mutual indentures betwixt the said partes made 15th April {5[0] Elizabeth 1563} and mutually signed & seald to each other; whereof I have seen Mr Lowthers part, with his hand \ name / subscribd, & this seal appendant to it, wherein it was agreed betwixt them:

Figure 1.9.8. Seal of Richard Lowther. III.125.

1. That whereas the 2 Lordships adjoyne at \ a place which is called / Tramfits, they shall there be markd by a cross made & graven in the earth, called Tramfit Cross; and in goeing northwards from [48] See above, III.121.

[49] For a brief overview of the descent, see the Cumbria County History Trust: 'Manor of Clifton given by Sir Hugh de Morville to Gilbert Engaine in reign of Henry II; carried by marriage of Eleanor daughter of Gilbert Engaine to William de Wybergh of St Bees 1365; descended in Wybergh family until c.1920.' https://www.cumbriacountyhistory.org.uk/township/clifton.
[50] 'From the seal of the deed in the possession of T. Sandford, Askham, Esq.'

the said Tramfits Cross unto the north part of Neither Skellands,[51] where the said Lordships are, & shal be divided by one old ancient Rayne.[52] And from the north part of the saide Nether Skellands (following the said Rayne between the said Nether Skelland and Clifton Field towards the west unto the foote of Overskellands; and from thence following the hedge betwixt) lieveing Eshelay Moore, unto Buckholm*,[53] & so lineally N. by the hedge of Buckholm as the same is now staked, hedged & geathered unto a double ditch, set & made above Cattcrag†, to be fenced by the ~~owners of~~ Lowthers forever. And further covenant & agree together for themselves, their heires, Executors and assignes, that each of them in their own Lordships will permit & suffer so much of the Moore as layd then unclosed to lye so forever, and not to inclose any part of the Moore, waists or Common of Lowther or Clifton, but that it shall lye as free common of pasture for the beastes & cattle of the Inhabitants of both,[54] the Townes & Lordships as well of Clifton as of Lowther from henceforth for evermore, without let, interuption or disturbance of either party &c. {to which indenture} they interchangeably subscribed their names & affixed their seales.

{Yawenwith, Tirell}
A deed whereby Gilb. Engaỳne de Clifton does grant to one Thomas Niger de Kalo, & Christian his wife \ & to their heires / (which I suppose ergo the daughter of Gilbert) ½ a carucate of lands, which is 4 oxgangs, free from suit of court moulter & pannage,[55] paying the rent dues R[a]dulf de Notyngham, tunc vicecom Westm'landie‡; Domino Thoma de Hellebeck; Domino Roberto de Haskeby; Domino Johe de Morvill; Domino Roberto de Yawenwith; Odardo de Bruham; Henrico de Tirell et alijs.

{12. Edward 2.} [1318-19]}
Robert de Askeby & Margaret his wife gave to Gilbert son of Richard Engayne of Clifton a toft & croft & all their land there, to be held for terme of the life of Margaret De Askeby, their daughter. Rent: a rose, on the nativity of St John Baptist[56] \ ! / T.[57] Domino Hugone de Lowther; Domino Jo. De Rosgil, militibus; Hen. De Warthcop; Gilberto Engayne of Clifton. \ Teste G. Eng. De Clifton, ergo not the same. /

[Machell's Notes: [III.125]

*{?}
†{A crag in Yea[n]wath Wood so called from wild cats frequenting it in former times.}
‡{? Date}

[III.128]

Anno 8[0] Edward 2. [1314-1315]
A fine & recovery in crastine Sancti Martini apud Westmorland,[58] at Westminster between Gilbert Engaỳne, quer[entis],[59] & Richard de Wethermelock, vicar of the church of Arturet – de forc[iamentum],[60] concerneing the manner of Clifton with the appurtenances excepting vj messuages & 120 acres of land in the same manner, by which it is settled upon the said Gilbert for term of life; afterwards to Gilbert his son & Joan his wife & their isue, for want of which \ to the right heir of Gilbert, / Gilbert Engayne does grant the remainder of a moietie of the manner of Clifton to Will Engayne, his brother (as I understand it) after the death of Gilbert, their father. Tis a French deed, sans [51] 'Skelland': land on the shelving terrain (old Norsk). There is a Skelland Pond in the parish of Lowther, see Westmorland Place-Names.

[52] A rain[e] or reyne: a strip of land, a ridge; a division between fields or between strips of land in a field. OED.
[53] Buckholme Wood, Lowther, see Smith, Place-Names 2, 184.
[54] MS: '~~of both~~ of both …'
[55] For carucate and oxgang, moulter and pannage, see the English Glossary.
[56] Rose-Rent: a rent of a rose on the Feast of the Nativity of John the Baptist: 24 June.
[57] Witnesses.
[58] 'On the day after the Feast of St Martin' [11 Nov.]; therefore the event occurred on 12 Nov.
[59] Plaintiff.
[60] Deforce: a legal term, meaning to withhold (property, especially land) by force or violence, as from the rightful owner. See Giles Jacob, A New Law Dictionary (London, 2nd edn, 1732), DE. It appears, therefore, that Richard of Wethermelock was in unlawful possession.

date, but attested by Sir Thomas du Stirkland, Sir Hugo du Lowther, chevaleres; John Fils Robert du Stirkland, ~~Sir Hugo du Lowther~~: ergo this is about Edward 2.

{Temp. Edward 2. vel. 3.}
A settlement made of ~~the~~ \ his whol / village of Clyftone by Gilbert, the son of Gilbert de Engayne.

{Gilbert de Engayne
|
William Gilbert, fil. Gilbert = Joan
|
Henry de Engayne = Joan d. of Robert Lowther of Halton in Northumbria}

[III.129]

{6. The Boundes of the parish: The Perambulation}
Clifton is hem'd in on the \ N. & / E. with the parish of Browham, on the south with Lowther, and on the west with Yanewath in Barton parish.
1. Begin in the very midle of Lowther Beck over against the W. end of the church near to Cat-Skar on this side of the water & Hug[h]s Crag on the other.
Thence N. \ wards / down the midle of the beck till you com at \ the foote of a large / ~~a~~ close below Lowder \ Bridge / and over against the Round Table in Yamont: being call'd the Breadwath.
Thence N.E. to the said Close-Nooke, and thence southwards up Breadwath-Dike till you com at a close formerly called Lowther-Brig-Close but now Midle-Close*.
Thence southwards by Midle-Close-Dike to {Clifton Cross} where Clifton & Browham & the bridge-lonens meet.
Thence eastwards up Howrig-Lonen to Howrig-Yeat, & so on to the 3 great steans upon Glead-Hill at a place call'd Grene-dikes.
Thence agane eastwards to a passage over a little sike at Cliburne Ling Foote, & near the Race Post call'd Sand Wath.
Thence S-West up the said sike to Gillbrow, & so on \ (still up the said / sike) to Hackthop-Field-Neuk at Trainfat-Head†. Thence N. west by a gill & row of stones to Scot-Close-Neuk.
Thence westward, by Clifton-Field Dike to Skellins.[61]
Thence N. west ~~betwixt~~ (between the said Skellins and a place called The Wings (gallicè Le-Wings)[62] by Lowther-Dicke, following the \ hedge / till it adjoynes the River of Lowther above a great skar on Yeanwath Side called Clifton-Fitts; & near to another on Clifton Side call'd the Hee-Skar i.e. High Skar.
Thence into the midle of the River Lowther & so down the river till you com at the place where we began‡.

[Machell's Notes: III.129]

*Query: if it cross not the way a Capel[la] a pont.[63]
†{q. why not to the †?}
‡This perambulation given in by old Thomas Boake æt. 90, and He[n]ry Penrith, his son in law. This they give it in now, but an ancient Bounder (in a deed sans date) caryes it farther on Lowther Side "versus campum de Hackthorpe usq[ue] Tramfit Cross"[64] & a later agreement twix Richard Lowther of Lowther Esq. & Thomas Wiberge of Clifton Esq. {which beareth date the 15th April 5[0] Elizabeth [1563] confirmes the sames & fixe the boundes for succeeding ages in these following words.}[65]

[61] Skellands.
[62] 'In French, Le-Wings.'
[63] There is a note written here, in pencil in another hand, which translates 'a Capella a pont' to 'from the chapel to the bridge'.
[64] 'Towards Hackthorpe Plain as far as Tramfit Cross.'
[65] See the bounder in Latin, below.

[III.128]

[Bounder, 15 April 1563.]
To Henry, his son and Johan his wife (the daughter of Robert Lowther of Halton in com[itatu] Northumbrie) & the isue of their bodyes lawfull to be begotten; for want of which, to Reverte to him & his right heires. Hijs testibus: Joha[nn]e Berwic; Joha[nn]e de Harryngton; Joh[ann]e, filio Roberti de Str [Blank] Joh[ann]e de Bradley et alijs, wherein is this Bounder per has scillicet divisas. C.[66]
Incipiend[o] apud pedem de Bradwathe v[er]sus Croseholme
Sequend[o] metas inter Browham et Clyftone ex parte australi usqu[e] ad viam apud Browham Bank End
Et sic sequend[o] dictam viam usqu[e] ad tres magnas lapides apud Graydike Greyndikks (on Clifton Moore)
Et sic a dict[o] Greyndikks sequendam dictam viam ex parte australi usqu[e] ad Sandwath (at Cliburn Ling End)
Et deinde sequendo [quenda]m torrentem qui currit ex parte occidental[i] inter territoriam de Melkanthrope et Cliftone-more usq[ue] Thornegat, Newnhowe
Et sic sequendo dictum torrentem versus campum […][67] de Hackthorpe usq[ue] Transit Crose
Et a dict[o] Transits C. ad Borialem partem de Nether Skellands
Et sic sequend[o] metas inter Nether Skellands et campum de Clyftione ex parte occidentali usq[ue] ad pedem de Over Skellands
Et deinde linealiter sequend[o] metas inter Lewings et Eshele moram distendend[o] in aquam de Lowther
Et sic per medium dicta[e] [a]quae usqu[ue] ad pedem de Bradwathe prædict[o] Habend[o] &c.[68]

{7. The Division}
The division into Manners, Townes & Hamlets of Clifton, & 2 other improvements or rowes of houses dispersd here & there upon \ the hedges or ditches of the More, whence they are called Clifton Dikes and are divided into the 2 partes, the High & Low Dike.

[III.130]

[Clifton]
Clifton is a considerable village of XXV familyes or thereabouts. It lyes on east side of the River Lowther. It taketh it name from those rocks or cliffs near unto and above where it standeth quasi villa ad Cliburn, that is to say, the Town by the Cliff,[69] there being 2 very remarkable cliffs, one of marble, out of which there springeth 7 medicinal wells that will [cause] vomit, and purge by urine, especially if you drink freely of them; & will cure sore eyes, ulcers & scabbs.[70]

[66] 'By these dividing points. To wit …'
[67] Latin text (3cm) has been crossed through here.
[68] 'Beginning at the foot of Bradwathe towards Croseholm, following the boundary-marks between Browham and Clifton on the south as far as the road at Browham Bank End. And so following the said road as far as three great stones ... at Greendykes. And so from the said Greendykes following the said road on the south side as far as Sandwath (at Cliburn Ling End). Thence following [a certain] torrent that runs from the west between the lands of Melkinthorpe and Clifton Moor as far as Thornegat, Newnhowe. And so, following the said torrent towards Hackthorpe Field as far as Tramfit Cross. And from the said Tramfit Cross to the north part of Nether Skellands, and so following the boundary-marks between Nether Skellands and Clifton Field on the west, as far as the foot of Over Skellands. Thence in a straight line following the boundary-marks between Lewings and Eshele Moor, extending to the Water of Lowther. And so along the centre of the said water to the foot of Bradwathe aforesaid. To have & to hold etc.'
[69] An almost identical paragraph on this page is as follows: MS 'The parish conteines but one Lordship in it ~~of Clifton which conteineth in it about 25 families~~ \ being /… Clifton is a village on the East side of the River Lowther, which takes its name from the rocks \ or cliffs / above which it stands quasi villa ad Cliburn…'
[70] See N&BI, 420: 'Dr Todd makes mention of a fountain near the bank of the river Lowther in this parish, of christilline limpid water, strongly impregnated with steel, nitre and vitriol, which was of great benefit to persons afflicted with ulcers and fore eyes, and scorbutic complaints.' Dr Todd was Hugh Todd, archdeacon of Carlisle Diocese, see Part 3, Ch.2, Correspondence, from I.481.

{Marble & medicinal waters S.W. ab Ecclesia ¼ of a mile}
1. A slender spring or current of light water, good for the eyes.
2. & 3. Have the greatest current, the one being smooth the other ruff.
4. A little slow rust spring & the 5. much like it.
6. A murmuring spring which coms down the rocks & is smooth like the second, but much sweeter water.
7. is the sweetest of all, & a quick spring, being emitting where the Skar is faln in. This standeth paralel to the S.E. end of the town of Clifton, \ a ¼ m. S. W. from the church / and of a more which is called High Skar, where now there lyeth a large piece of marble, big enough for a \ through or / gravestone & wherein there groweth great store of liverwort & maden haire \ with which the limestone that lyeth above in the town fields[71] {S.W. about ab Ecclesia about ½ a mile} may seem to impregnate ~~the water with their several vertues~~ the veines of water which breath and blead out of this \ ~~very~~ / rock.

{White hewing stone, grindstones, flag & slates N.W ab Ecclesia ½ q.}
The other cliff is of excellent good hewing stone,[72] som of it being extraordinary white, & the rest here & there struck with a dash of pale read or blew, but all of it hath a very fine \ great / grane and will rise in \ large / stones. There are also in it both slates & flags of a whiteish read colour; so sound & fine withal that they get the best & largest of them ~~flags~~ to make grindstones ~~of~~ which are thought the \ best in the / North of England. And this standeth also on the bankes of Lowther, \ but / paralel to the N.W. \ end / of the Town of Clifton, and is called Catt-Skar, from being formerly frequented with wilde kats. And this I take to have bin the mother of the Church & Hall, so I doe not doubt but one ~~or both~~ of these ~~famous~~ cliffs has bin the Godmother of the village of Clifton, and gave name unto it.

This town extendeth itselfe from S.E. to Norwest, which end being the higher hathe the Church & Rectory & Hall placed there at a very small distance one from another; for the Hall standeth N.W. from the church about 100 yards as I take it, there being but the breadth of an highway betwixt the church yard & the Hall fould \ outer court. /[73]

Long	Body	13	Passes
	Quire	10	in all XXIII[74]
Broad	Body	5
	Quier	14

{There is also a quier on the N. side behind a long porch which belongs to the Hall & is l[ength] 8; broad circa 4.}
The situation is pleasant enough, were it not for a little descent from the church to the gate, for it ~~hath~~ stands on[75] a large prospect of wood & fair fields on every side. {And there are 2 trees, the one sickamore, the other a walnut of \ incredible / bigness, which shewes the benignity of the soile, and if groves & walkes might be made here…[76]
The Rectory or Rectors house is a little mean ~~forest worke~~ building, but much bettered by the present

[71] Similar MS references on this page have been removed from this edition, e.g. MS: '{There groweth on it plenty of liverwort and madenhare}' 'Limestone in the field S.W. ab ecclesia ½ a mile.'
[72] MS: 'The other cliff is of excellent \ good hewing / ~~hewing~~ stone, ~~fit for hewing~~ & ~~walling~~.'
[73] MS: 'This town extendeth itselfe \ ~~standeth on a riseing banke~~ / ~~in length~~ from S.E. to Norwest, which end being the higher hathe the Church & Rectory & Hall placed there, at a very small distance one from another; for the Hall standeth N.W. from the church about 100 yards, as I take it, ~~The church is obscure on the outside, but pretty neat & well seated within, have ingrale and ballasters before the altar.~~ there being but the breadth of an highway betwixt the church yard & the Hall fould \ outer court.'
[74] This information occurs in the margin.
[75] MS: 'on on'.
[76] Machell's horticultural ideas have been obscured by the binding here, but see Sir John Lowther's land at Yanwath, where Machell envisaged the changes he could make to the grounds in Part 1, Ch.5, Barton: Yanwath, I.740.

incumbent, Mr Rowland Burrow. It stands from the N.W. point of the Quier about 10 or 12 yardes, & hath a large & pleasant prospect.

[III.131]

{Manner House}
Clifton Hall which is the ancient manner house, [is] pleasantly seated were it not for a sort of descent down to the house. It standeth on an hill fronting S. East towards the church, and hath a fair [blank][77] It \ consists of a Tower & 2 other buildings, which front with their gables towards the church / & has bin builded at 3 several times: the Tower first, the midle building next, & the outmost the last. And tho they talke much of the ancient ~~court~~ house \ of Elianore Engaynes – which was made of spiles[78] / {by which they mean sheathes daubed with morter ~~or clay betwixt~~,[79] whence there are no vestigia of the foundations}~~very~~ \ which, as they say, stood / in Coat Garth on the same side but at the contrary end of the town where there yet is the fashion of an old fish pond fed with a spring;[80] which place is parcel of the old demane of lands – Yet I am persuaded that the tower was builded by som of the Engaynes before her time; being induced thereto by an iron scutch[eon].[81] \ And the same arms agane / carved in wood upon a piece of old wainscot friese which was lately over the dineing roome chimney in the said tower but now is removed; the figures of which you shall have by & by.

[III.133]

The second part may seem to be built by som of the Engaynes,[82] because there is an iron scutchon like to the other, in which the latch \ ring / of the out doer hangeth, \ having the armes of Engayne upon it, / tho I grant it might be translated hither from som other part ~~of the house~~.

Figure 1.9.9. Engayne Arms (2). III.133

The 3rd, which is builded in the same forme, may seem erected by som of the Wibers because it is newest; tho there is not any part of the house which hath the armes of Wiber upon it.[83] But there are several blanke escutchions above the little loope window intended for arms, and a very ancient Roman inscription placed above them. At each end of it is a Romane genius.[84] But alas! The letters are so much decayed \ eaten out by the teeth of time / that though they appear pretty fair at a distance \

[77] MS: 'Clifton Hall, which is the ancient manner house, pleasantly seated, ~~but~~ \ were it not / for a sort of descent ~~unto it~~ \ down to the house. It standeth on /~~on the top~~ an hill, ~~which yields a large prospect of well wooded fields all round about~~ \ fronting S. East towards the church and hath a fair,' The sentence stops abruptly here but the information continues on the next line.
[78] 'Spile' (northern dialect and Scottish): a splinter, chip, or narrow strip, of wood; a spill. OED.
[79] 'Sheath': to cover (a ship, a door, roof, etc.) with a sheathing of material e.g. '1627 … casing the hull [of a ship] under water with tar, and haire, close covered over with thin boards fast nailed to the hull'. OED.
[80] MS: '…an old fish pond ~~which hath a good spring running into it~~ \ fed with a spring /.'
[81] MS: 'Yet I am persuaded that the tower was builded by som of the Engaynes before her time ~~or else by he[r]selfe before her marriage~~ being induced thereto by an iron scutch ~~with the armes of England~~ \ ~~affixed to the latch of the stair foot doer / upon the doore latch as you goe up the stairs into enter the Hall & the old tower. And by Englands armes~~.'
[82] MS: 'The second part \ ~~also of whose~~ \ ~~end of~~ / ~~gabel stands to the front~~ / may seem to be built by som of the Engaynes.'
[83] MS: 'The 3, \ which is builded in the same forme / may seem ~~erected thereof~~ \ erected by som of the Wibers because it is newest; / tho there is not any part of the house which hath the ~~Wibers~~ armes ~~upon it~~ of Wiber upon it.'
[84] MS: 'But there are several blanke escutchions above the highest window thereof; \ little loope window intended for arms / and a very ancient Roman inscription placed above them; ~~and~~ at each end of it \ is / a Romane genius ~~as this figure sheweth~~.'

I found them like painted letters; for yet could / not discover so much as one word \ when / I got a ladder and \ had / taken the paines to climbe up myself and came nearer unto them.[85]

[III.33A][86]

Figure 1.9.10. Inscription frame 'upon the gable end of Clifton Hall'. III.133A.

[Machell's Notes: III.133A and III.133B]

Make these duble.[87]

[III.133B] Mount it up to the inner corner.[88]

[III.131]

[Clifton Dykes]

Clifton Dikes, which is divided into the High-Dikes: being a row of stragling houses in the dikeside, extending S. from the sike at Clifton Town End towards Lowther Hall & consisting of \ about / 9 familyes; and Clifton Low-Dikes, which are built on an hedge beginning at the foresaid sike & turning eastwards & then northwards & the N. West by Howrig Street, wherein are conteined XII or XIII. And all these, except Remye's tenement and some ancient freeholds, were purchased free of the late Sir John Lowther of Lowther, Baronet, at 50 years purchase rent. But \ were customary tenants at an arbitrary fine / before they were mortgaged to the said Sir John \ & did suit & service / to Clifton Hall. {And 2 corner houses in the skirts of the Lordship: Sc. 1. Browhow at Cliburn Brig End? 2. Howcasl, now demolished, instead of which is an house calld Stub Close.}

[III.137]

{Clifton-High-Dikes}

The 2. place in this Parish & Lordship is Clifton-High-Dikes, which beginneth at the S.E. end of the village of Clifton where there is a sike that crosseth the streat and extendeth southwards by the dike side towards Lowther Hall, conteineing [in] it about 9 families of stragling houses.

{Clifton Lowdykes}

The 3. is calld Clifton-Low-Dikes, which beginneth at the same ~~end~~ \ place / beyond the said sike but extendeth eastwards & then twines about towards the north until it comes into Howrig Lonen \ Streat; / in which[89] there are xii or xiii families dispersd here & there.

{? The Moore Houses}

Lastly there are 2 little houses, set as it were for clames & bounders in the skirts of the parish: one cald Brown-Howe, near to Sandwath at Cliburn Ling End which is mentioned in the perambulation; and the other, How Karle which is lately demolished and instead thereof is an house newly builded, which is called Stub-Close.

---

[85] Machell also wrote (MS.III.133B), 'This is upon that gable end of Clifton Hall under the little loop window opp. the front side opposite to the church. The letter[s] appear pretty faire at a distance, but when I got a ladder & I climed up to it, I could read nothing.'

[86] Scrap page, 9½cm x19cm.

[87] Written in pencil below the centre of the sketch.

[88] A pencilled note.

[89] In Clifton Low-Dikes,

{The Tenure}
And all these familyes together with the tenants of Clifton, whether free or customary – the latter of which are called Natives in their ancient writeings (of which the reason shal be given elsewhere) – ought sute & service to Clifton Hall and payd several bouns, one of which was to goe to St Bees with man & horse to fetch salt from thence or other necessarys, once every year; for which most of them would compound with the balif for halfe a crowne when he went to warne them, which would be som time in deep of winter. But som would rathe[r] choose to goe, and then they had 12d \ apiece /of the Lord[90] and bread & chease when they returned. Henry Penrith (who with his father-in-law, an ancient man)[91] gave this account, was the last that went \ upon that occasion / & carried salt from St Bees to Lowther at the command of the late Sir John Lowther; who presently, after falling in suit with the customary tenants abou[t] a fine upon the death of Mr Thomas Wiber who had mortgaged them to him many years before & never redeemed them, sold them all free \ excepting one Remy / for 50 years purchase: that is ~~to say~~ 50 times double their \ ancient / Rent, which Rent still remanes to the Lord in being*.[92]

[Machell's Notes: III.137 and III.139]

*{?}
[III.139][93] Add here the bounders
~~Ancient freehold~~
~~Q. de … Brough Bolton. Testis Briget Teasdale sold it & built the Hall. Her weight~~
~~Thomas = Katherine Wilson~~
~~Ch. Sets Bolton to~~
~~at the Dor Helton wid~~
~~70 his aut Geoffrey = Isabel Pattrickson~~
{Dor = Helton miles}

[III.135]

[Christopher Airay]
And these are all the things that I know of in the village of Clifton that deserve observation excepting only that it was the birth place of my worthy kinsman, Mr Christopher Airey,[94] sometimes fellow of Queens College in Oxford. And in his youth (whilst Taberder there) the ingeniouse author of ~~the~~ Fasciculus Logicorum, whence he removed to be parson or vicar of Lemmington in Hampshire, where he maryed & had several children, both sons & daughters \ whereof John / the eldest of which, was brought by me \ ~~at my own cost~~ / in Queens College ~~being my kinsman for his and my grandmother on the mother side being 2 sisters of the name of Smyth~~ \ for my mothers sake, being related unto her, she and his father being sisters children.[95]

[90] MS: 'of the lord ~~of the lord~~.'
[91] Henry Penrith's father-in-law was Thomas Boake, described by Machell as aged 90: see above, III.121.
[92] According to Graham Fairclough's analysis, 'Twice married and twice widowed, the right of inheritance remained firmly in [Elianor Engayne's] hands until at her death it passed to her son by her first marriage (in 1364) to William Wybergh, then of St. Bees. His heirs held the Hall until late in the nineteenth century … The manor, however, with the exception only of the Hall and its demesne, was mortgaged in the middle of the seventeenth century by Thomas Wybergh to Sir John Lowther in exchange for a series of loans of money amounting by 1654 to £846 10sh … [The] Wybergh … family were apparently in a difficult financial situation (perhaps worsened by the Civil War, in which Wybergh's Royalist sympathies caused him to be … fined as a delinquent) for most of the seventeenth century: perhaps until 1706, when an agreement between the grandsons of Sir John Lowther and Thomas Wybergh finally settled the long dispute over ownership of the manor in Lowther's favour, in exchange for a "gift" of £400 to Wybergh.' Extracted from Graham Fairclough, 'Clifton Hall Cumbria. Excavations 1977-79', CW2, 80 (1980), 45-68, at 46.
[93] Scrap page, 26cm x 17cm. The scored-through text has been written roughly in pencil.
[94] MS: '…village of Clifton ~~Takes its name from the town of Clifton where the church stands~~ \ that deserve observation excepting only that it was the birth place of my worthy kinsman / ~~In this towne was born~~ Mr Christopher Airay…'
[95] Christopher Airay (c.1600-1670), Fasciculus praeceptorum logicorum: in gratiam juventutis academicae compositus & typis donates, published anonymously in 1628 (2nd edn, Oxford, 1633): see also John Stephens, 'Airay, Christopher'. ODNB.

Christopher Airay = Elizabeth Smyth of Browham
|
Christopher = Ann, maryed to Jo. Harisō.[96]
|
John.

John Sledall Gent = Jane, sister to Elizabeth Smith
|
Tho. Ob. s. p. Roger. Edward.
Lancelot Machell of Crakenthorp Esq. = Elizabeth, d. of Thomas Sledal & Jane Smyth, his wife
|
Hugh. Thomas. Lancelot.
Machell de Crakenthorp

[C. Evidences: Deeds and Pedigrees]

[III.139]

Extractes è Cartis Wi~~rg~~\ber/iorum de Clifton in Westmorland[97]

[III.140][98]

Locorum Cartorum Virorum[99]

Out of my manuscript folio concerneing the heraldry of W[estmorland] & C[umberland]

{33. Edward 3.}
One Thomas Dengayne, dominus de Blaterwick in festo Santi Dustani, Anno 33. Edward 3.[100] sealed with a fess between cross-crosslets fitchées, 4 of which were above the fess, 3. 2. & 1 beneath it*.

[Machell's Notes: III.140]

*MS T.M. p.113.

[III.141][101]

{21. Edward 3.} [1347-1348]
Gilbert, son of Gilbert Engayne, grants to Henry, his son, and Joan, the daughter of Robert de Lowther de Halton, & the heires of their bodyes viii messuages xiii oxgangs* of land, with the appurtenances, in the village of Clifton, which the said John de Lowther held for 6 years next ensuing, paying to him a rose rent on St John Baptists Day &c. Ĉ[102] Johe de Berwis, Johe de Haverington, John fil Rob. De Stirkland, Jo. de Bradeli, Rob. Buteler et alijs.

{31. Edward 3.} [1357-1358]
Gilbertus fil Gilberti Dengayne grants to Lord Roger [Clifford] Lord of Westmorland, by indenture the services of John Richardson, [Blank] Grymkyll, John Grymky'll de Clifton, Gilbert Johnson, [96] Harrison? The letters of the shortened word are unclear.

[97] 'Extracts from the Deeds of the Wyberghs of Clifton in Westmorland.'
[98] It is helpful to read this and the following pages on manorial descents and property inheritance alongside N&BI, 416-19; Nicolson and Burn plundered Machell's information (as they admit in N&B1, 416: 'Several of these instruments were copied by Mr. Machel from the evidences at Clifton Hall'). They then added the fruits of their own research because, as Machell lamented (MS. III.147), 'Here 84 years ev[idences] are wanting.'
[99] This page, the previous page, and others to III.149, originally contained a running-heading, spread across the top of each page, viz. 'locorum, cartorum, virorum' [of the place, of the deeds, of the men]. It has been retained here, but deleted elsewhere.
[100] The feast of St Dunstan, 19 May 1359.
[101] Scrap page, 26cm x 17cm.
[102] Witnesses.

Rytorson[103] de Clifton, & John Storaur cum eorum corporibus et eorum sequelis {ergo Natiur}[104] for the lifetime of the said \ Lord / Roger & to the heires of the said Roger for the lifetime of the said Gilbert if the said Lord Roger dye before him. Ĉ. Thoma de Clifford, Tho de Sandeford, Hugone de la Waur, Will. de Corbrig, Henrico de Mallerstang et allijs.[105]

[Machell's Notes: III.141]

*{N.B. 2 oxgangs to a tenement.}

[III.143][106]

{38. Edward 3.} [1364-1365]
Die lune proxima ante festum Santi Marci Evangeliste,[107] William Engayne gives to William* de Wybergh, one moite of the manner of Clifton &c. which he had by the grant of Gilbert his brother for his life time to have & hold the same dureing the life of the said Gilbert. Ĉ. Domino Thoma de Stirkeland; Domino Will. de Thrilkeld militibus; Henrico de Thrilkeld tunc. Vic. West.;[108] Thoma de Sandford et alijs.

On the feast of the invention of the Holy Cross†,[109] Gilbert Engayne releaseth & quitteth‡ clame to William de Wybergh his heires & assignes, all his right & clame in ½ of the Manner of Clifton with its appurtenances &c., which William his brother had by his gift for the terme of the life of the said ~~Will~~ Gilbert. He grants also to the said William, omnes bondos et nativos ~~suos~~ meos \ bondage men / et eorum sequel[as],[110] sayeth he as well by his owne propart as of the propart of the said William, S. test. sed sigilest appeus.[111]

Die lune proxima ante Dominicam in Ramis Palmarum,[112] Gilbert the son of Gilbert Dengayne of Clifton in the County of Westmorland gives to William Wibergh an Elianore his wife and to their heires & assignes, one yearly rent of 24li sterling⸸ out of all his Lands & Tenements in the village of Clifton & in any appurtinences whatsoever thereto belonging in equal portions one halve at Pentecost, the other at St Martins in the winter.[113] To hold the same forever with power of distress for arrears. Ĉ Will. de Threlkeld; Thoma de Stirkeland, militibus; Henrico de Threlkeld, tunc Vice. West.; Tho de Blenkinsop; Thoma de Sandford; Robert de Ormesheved; Wilo de Crakinthorp; Wilo de Warthcop; Willo de Horneby; Thoma de Eterby p'sona ecclæ de Burgham.[114]

[Machell's Notes: III.143]

*William {?} de Wybergh
†{?}
‡{?}
⸸{q. the rent of Clifton.}

[III.144]

The Pedegree of the Wibers of Clifton, extracted out of their ancient evidences. T.M.*

William Wybergh, the 1ˢᵗ of this family, maryed = Elianore, the d. & heiress of Gilbert de Engayne of Clifton

[103] Unclear word.
[104] 'Both in their own bodies and those that belonged to them; therefore, Natives.' This was the service of drengage: see English the Glossary.
[105] See W.R. Whatton, 'On the Ancient Tenure called Drengage', The Gentleman's Magazine, July 1821, 30-34, who quotes these deeds (using N&B as his source) at 32-33.
[106] Scrap page, 26cm x 17cm.
[107] 'On the Monday before the festival of St Mark the Evangelist.' (The festival was on 25 April).
[108] 'Then Sheriff of Westmorland.'
[109] On the legend of its discovery by St Helena, mother of the Emperor Constantine, in c.327: see Alban Butler (1711-73), The Lives of the Saints (London, 1866) Vol. 5: 'May'. The feast day was held on 3 May.
[110] 'All my bondmen with all belonging to them.'
[111] 'No witnesses, but the deed is sealed.'
[112] 'On the Monday before Palm Sunday.'
[113] 11 November.
[114] 'Parson of Brougham Church.'

She seemeth to have bin remaryed to: = Thomas Lowther of Askom. It seems by this she maryed agane to Thomas Lowther of Askom.

|

Thomas Wybergh of Clifton Esq., 17. Edward 4. [1477-78]

|

Thomas Wybergh Leonard Wybergh (Chaplains)

William Wybergh, son + heire apparent of Thomas Wiber Esq. maryed (17. Ed. 4.) = Margaret, the daughter of John Wharton Esq. of Kirkby Thor

[Machell's Notes: III.144]

*q. if they came out of Kentmere?

[III.145]

{39. Edward 3. [1365-1366]}
Gilbert fitz[115] Gilbert Engane obliges himselfe in 20 levers[116] of silver to Richard the son of Richard, fits Stephen (forsan Stephenson of Clifton) to which a white seal with a coat of armes but not discerneable.

{Gilbert D'engayne de Cli[fton]

|

William Wybergh = Elianore Engayne}

{40. Edward 3 3^0 Maij [1366]} {Natives}
Gilbert D'engayne gives to William Wybergh and Elianore his wife & the heires of them lawfully begotten, his whol halfe of halfe of the manner of Clifton in Dominico & in Servicio eum servivijs liberorum Tenentium et cum nativis et eorum sequelis ad dictum meietatem medietatis prædicti maner' pertinentis, and with 7 messuages and 14 oxgangs or bovates of l[and] with their appertinences. Ĉ. Domino Jac. de Pykering milite; Henrico de Threlkeld, &c.[117]

{40. Edward 3.} [17. October 1366]}
Ad fest. Sancti Laurence[118] a French deed importing that Gilbert Dengayne gave to William Wybergh the 4th part of the manner of Clifton, and the 4th part of the miln at Clifton &c. for the terme of the life of the said Gilbert.

{47. Edward 3.} [1373]
At the feast of St Martin in winter,[119] a French deed importing that Adam de Corry tooke to farme of William de Wybergh & Elianore his wife, their manner of Clifton for vii years.

{4. Richard 2. [1380-81] Natives}
John de Dufton, Chaplain, gave to Elianore, who was the wife of William de Wybergh & Thomas de Lowther ~~cartae desiderantur spatium 87 annor[um]~~ of Ascome[120] his man[or] of Clifton cum Redittibus et servicijs liberorum; & nativis* et eorum sectis et sequellis & with the miln, with meadows woods etc. which he had of the gift of the foresaid Elianore to have all the foresaid, to their [115] Fitz: Anglo-Norman word for 'son' in patronymic designations, in which it was followed by the name of a parent in the uninflected genitive. Some of these survive as surnames, e.g. Fitzherbert, Fitzwilliam. OED.

[116] From Livre: any of a number of coins or units of account used in France from the 8th-18th centuries. OED.
[117] 'Gilbert Dengayne gives to William Wybergh & Elianore his wife, & the heirs of them lawfully begotten, his whol halfe of halfe of the ma[nor] of Clifton in Demesne service with the service of the free tenants, and with the natives in their followings that belong to the said half of the half of the aforesaid manor, and with the mes[suages] and 14 oxgangs or Bovates of L[and] with their appertinences. Witnesses: Lord James of Pykering, Knight, Henry of Threlkeld etc.'
[118] MS: 'Ad fest. Sancti Laurence ~~Ad fest. Sancti Laurence~~.' At the feast of St Lawrence. [10 August].
[119] 11 November.
[120] Nicolson and Burn agree that in 1380-81 Elianore was a widow, having been married twice: N&BI, 417.

heirs & assignes of le cap. Lord of the fee etc. with general warranty to the said Elian[ore] & Thomas, their Heires and assignes for ever. T[estibus] d[omi]no Gilb[er]to de Culwen milite, Hugone de Salkeld, Joh[ann]e de Bradeley, Gilb[er]to de Wyndergh, Henrico Watson, etc.[121]

[Machell's Notes: III.145]

*{Natives. {~~1, 22, 14, 9 38~~} {18, 14 [?] 36}

[III.147]

Engaynes seale de Clifton apud carte penes Thomas Sandford de Askam.[122]
{14. Richard 2. Oct. 4. [1390]}
William Engayne[123] gives to William Ferrour[124] of Clifton all his lands & tenements, meadow, wood, pasture &c. in the village of Clifton, to have & to hold of &c. forever, with general warranty. Ĉ. Domino William de Threlkeld; Domino Xtho de Moraceby: militibus alijs, with the same seale as the first.

{14. Richard 2. 6. October [1390]}
Thomas de Lowthre de Ascume releaseth to William Ferrour of Clifton all his right &c. – which he had &c. – in all lands & tenements &c. which the foresaid William had of the gift & feofment of William Engayne in the village of Clifton &c.

{17. Edward 4. 14. of May [1477] Dryngage acre}[125]
Edward Wherton, Rector of Merton,[126] & William Marshall, Chaplane, gave to William Wiburgh, son & heire apparent of Thomas Wybergh of Clifton, Esq. and to Margaret his wife, the daughter of John Wherton of Kirkby Thore Esquire, 2 tenements in Clifton with lands & meadows adjoyneing to them in the tenure of Thomas Raper at \ our / will, with their appertenences. One acre of land in Clifton called Dryngage acre {!} with its appurtenences, & one parcel of demane land in Clifton called Over Scalebergh &c.; All which were lately had of the gift of Thomas Wybergh. To have & to hold. And the foresaid tenements, lands &c. to the foresaid W. Wybergh & Margaret his wife & the children lawfully begot betwixt them; and for defect thereof to remaine to the foresaid T. Wiber & his heires forever. Ĉ. Lancelot Threlkeld milite; T. Wherton armiger &c.

{15. Henry VII} [1499-1500][127]
T. Wybergh armiger in an obligation to stand to an award about som lands in Clifton controverted by Lord Dakers.

[Machell's Notes: III.147]

	~~8~~
~~H. 4~~	~~14~~
~~H. 5~~	~~9~~
~~H. 6~~	~~36~~
	~~17~~
This should not be crossed out.

Here 84 years ev[idences] are wanting.

[121] '~~The deeds are missing for a period of 87 years~~ of Ascome his man[or] of Clifton with rents and services of the free tenants; & with the natives and their suits of court and followings & with the miln, with meadows woods etc. which he had of the gift of the foresaid Elianore to have all the foresaid, to their heirs & assignes of le cap. Lord of the fee etc. with general warranty to the said Elian[ore] & Thomas, their Heires and assignes for ever. Witnesses Lord Gilbert of Culwen, Knight, Hugo of Salkeld, John of Bradeley, Gilbert of Wyndergh, Henry Watson, etc.'
[122] 'Engayne seal of Clifton on a deed in the possession of Thomas Sandford of Askham.'
[123] Uncle of Elianore, see also N&BI, 418.
[124] Second husband of Elianore, see also N&BI, 418.
[125] 'Drengage Acre'.
[126] Edward Wharton, rector of Long Marton.
[127] 1499-1500. A line of illegible scored-through text (5cm) follows here.

{Edward 5. Richard. Desideratum.}[128]

[III.148]

{Wybergh}	William Wybergh \ Esq. / son of William Wybergh of Clifton Esq.: 2^0 Henry VIII	= Margaret [Blank]
	|
	John Wybergh, son & heir of William: 5. Henry VIII
	|
{? Jeffry Wiber}	Thomas Wibergh, son & heire of John and cosan & heire of William: anno 5^0 Henrici VIII. Tooke tow.[129] He is writ ~~esq~~ gentleman 25. Henry VIII, but Esquire afterwards: Sc. 37. of Henry VIII, 4. of Edward VI & the 1^t of Queen Mary, & anno dom. 1558.	= Elizabeth the daughter of Jeffray Lancaster of Melkynthorp, gentleman {He is writ sometimes Wyberght, sometimes Wybergh: Sc. a. 37. Henry VIII!}

[III.149]

{4^0 Maij 2. Henry VIII} [1510]
Thomas Wybergh, Leonard Wybergh, chaplains, and John Vaux, Gentleman, release clame to William Wyberght, son of William Wyberght of Clifton in the county of Westmorland Esq., for terme of life in 3 tenements in Clifton.

{15 Maij 5. Henry VIII} [1513]

William Wybergh of Clifton Esq.	= Margaret
|
John Wybergh & William {3 more}	6. H. 8.
|
Thomas Wybergh, s. & h. of John & c. & heire of William[130]	= Elizabeth Lancaster of Melkynthorp

A covenant of marriage between William Wyberght of Clifton Esq. and Geffrey Lancaster of Melkynthorpe, gentleman.[131] That Thomas Wybergh, cosan & heire of William Wybergh and son & heire of John Wyberght, son & heire of the foresaid William Wyberght, shall wede Elizabeth Lancaster, daughter of the said Jeffray – X^{li} portion.

{March 25. 8. Henry VIII [1534]}
An award ~~betwixt~~ of the right honourable Henry Earle of Cumberland betwixt Sir John Lowther, Knight, & Thomas Wibergh, Gentleman; that he should keep his inclosed groundes, any pretences of Sir John Lowther notwithstanding.

{1. January, 37. Henry VIII. [1546]. Thomas Wyber Esq.}
Thomas Wyber~~gh~~ of Clifton in the county of Westmorland Esq., lets a lease of all the High Close to Roger Lancaster of Clyfton, Gent. And Edmond Smith, yeo[man].

{14. Feb. in anno 4. Edward VI. [1550]. Thomas Wyber Esq.}
Henry, E[arl] of Cumberland (whose seale appendant is a draggons head issuing out of a coronet, as is [128] Desired, because there is a gap in the evidences.

[129] 'Tooke tow' is joined with a curved line to the word 'gentleman' in the adjacent column.
[130] The descent is placed in a margin.
[131] Before this sentence there is 2cm of scored-through illegible text.

yet used) exchangeth 2 roodes of land in the High Close with Thomas Wyber of Clifton Esq., for 3 rood of waistland on the sou[th] part of Clifton.

{13. Feb. 1^0 Marie. [1554]}
Thomas Fallowfield de Magna Strykland,[132] armig[er], et Edward Fallowfield, fil[ius] et heres gener[osus] ten[ura] et fir[ma] oblig[ati].[133] Thomæ Wyber de Clifton, armiger; et Edward Birbeck de Horneby Esq. in 200 marces to keep them harmless from an other bond.

{14. December 1558. Thomas Wyber}
Thomas Wyber of Clifton Esq. letteth Brownhow to John Cowper for certain years.

[III.150]

An addition to the pedigree by the information of old Thomas Boake ætat. 90.[134]

Thomas Wyber = Matilda (daughter of Jo. Irton) whose unckle Mr Irton* of Isell gave her a portion.
|
1. Thomas Wyber (of Clifton Hall) = daughter of [blank] Salkeld
2. William — Ann W.
3. Redman — Katherine: wife of Captaine Nysbut, a Scot
4. John
5. Anthony

|
1. Thomas Wiber, an attorney at law = Mary, the daughter of Lancelot Symson of Penrith, an attorney at law by [blank] d. & h. of Musgrave of Musgrave Hall in Penrith aforesaid
2. Readman — Isabel
3. William — Elizabeth
|
1. Thomas Wiber ætat. 4^r ann. 1689
2. Mary

[Machell's Notes: III.150]
*Argent a fess Sable & in chief 3 martlets Gules.
Barrs of 6 Or & Sable upon the second and last bar. 3 mullets of the first. Lib. Arm. Penes J.T. p.21. But in my booke, which I got of old Fawcet, it is Barrs of 6, Or & Sable. There are mullets of the 1^t upon the second & 4^{th} bar, which difference mayhap by blazoning at large thus: he beareth bars of 6, Or & Sable; 3 mullets of the 1^t. But in Mr Knight booke, which I most incline to because the armes there quarter Engaine & ergo certainly belong to this family, namely:

[132] Great Strickland.
[133] 'Thomas Fallowfield of Great Strickland, Squire, and Edward Fallowfield his son and heir, Gentleman, bound by an agreement on their holding and estate.'
[134] This pedigree contains additions (in round brackets), taken from a pedigree: MS.III.153, which has not been transposed because it is identical to this one, apart from the additions.

Figure 1.9.11. Wybergh Pedigree. III.150.

Figure 1.9.12. 'In Mr Knight booke … the armes there quarter Engaine & ergo certainly belong to this family' III.150.

[III.153]

{8. The descent of manner} {See Inquisition temp. Edward 3. [1327-1377].}
I am to enquire whether there was not a family here of the name of Clifton befor Engayne came; which family seems to have held in drengage & to have passed off some certane lands to be free of \ from / that slavery, ~~for~~ which tho the Wibers came to injoy by purchase or otherwise in \ after / ages; yet the name stil continued; for in the settlement upon the marriage of ~~the marriage of~~ Thomas Wiber of Clifton Esq. & Margaret, the daughter of John Wharton Esq., Lord of the manner of K[irkby Thore] there is mention made \ amongst other things / of one acre of land in \ the Lordship of / Clifton calld Drengage Acre {ex inf. autograph penes Thomas Wiber, dat 14. May, 17. Edward 4. [1477].}[135]

[III.154]

So much concerneing the parish of Clifton, which is but one constablewick, having 2 constables belonging there: one out of Clifton & another out of Clifton Dikes.

[135] Ex autograph in the custody of Thomas Wybergh, dated 14 May Edward IV [1477].

[Machell's Notes: III.154]

Query of whom descended Geffry Wiber, the attorney at law?[136]

{Brownhow at Cliburn Ring; Gilbrow at Melkinthorp Town End ~~and~~ Sub Close (How Carle\s/, formerly a dwelling).}

{Cat Skar is in Clifton outer the […][137] and a little lower on the […] side is Hews Crag.[138] The other Hee Close Skar}

{~~Brow hal~~: Roll – Hodgson – Tabot H. sold it.}[139]

[136] See pedigree, III.148.

[137] The text here has perished.

[138] Hughs Crag: see III.129, 'Perambulation', above.

[139] A short paragraph below this one gives the following, 'Court Ga[r]th where [3 words illegible] at S. corner of the Town – a pond near it.' The words (placed at the foot of the page) are very faint.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 10]

[Parish of Crosby Garrett]

[III.166B]

Crosby Garret

Figure 1.10.1. Directions from Crosby Garrett Church. III.166B.

[Machell's Initial Notes]

Schoole.
So called from the place where the church standeth &c.
Soyle in general.
Manner of tythe.
Glebe.
Val[ue] of land.
It is bounded on the N. with [Blank].
Little Musgrave a part of this parish which cannot com to the church, but there [is] another parish.[1]
N.B. A close at the W. e[nd] of the glebe belonging to Great Musgrave ~~to on~~ the other side of Eden, called Step Ends does belong \ pays / to this parish of Garrat.

[I.453][2]

To Crosby Garrett church belongs Crosby Garrett, Little Musgrave &c. I should have thought that it had bin Called Garrett from the Hill on which the Church stands: but I finde it in old evidences Crosby Gerrard. Query? whether the church be not dedicated to some Saint of that name.[3]

[III.166A]

Crosby consists of about 40 families: freeholds III, some by indenture at 8^{d} fine, the rest arbitrary \ and 3 stragling houses. / has had a demaine – as appears by the groundes calld the Maines {as Brough Manes, Sowerby Manes, Kaber Manes} west ~~side~~ end of the church. But no Hall ever heard of. They talke of the Crosbyes having bin anciently Lords of the place. But tis certaine the Musgraves have long injoyd it by the armes on the Quier. It now belong to John Davison of Blakestone in Bishop,[4] Esq., who had a mariage by Mary, daughter & heir of Sir Richard Musgrave, eldest son of Sir Philip, who purchased it before of his father. Court Barron \ in / any house of the lordship –has weifs, strays & boons &c.[5] [1] Crosby Garrett parish comprises the townships of Crosby Garrett and Little Musgrave, but they are separated [thereby forming a 'detached parish'] by the intervening chapelry of Soulby. See Samuel Lewis, A Topographical Dictionary of England comprising the several counties, cities, boroughs, corporate and market towns, parishes, and townships … 7th Edn (London, 1848), 734.

---

[2] Also numbered p.14.
[3] See N&BI, 530, for textual similarities.
[4] Bishopric of Durham.
[5] For the meaning of the terms 'waif and stray', and 'boons', see the English Glossary.

[III.166B]

The Perambulation

Crosby Garret is bounded on the north & east with Kirkby Stephen parish, on the S. with Raveonstondale parish, and on the W. with Orton, Little Ashby & Warcop parishes.
Beginning at Waterhouses, thence \ S.E. / down the highway (which leads from Ashby to Kirkby through Soulby cow pasture) to Crosby mill; Thence S. up Smardale beck to Smardale stone-bridge, where Russendale[6] parish comes in, joyning to this and Kirkby Stephan. Thence W. (up a little runlet or rill of water called Scale beck) to a rock calld Cowlin stone alias C\r/oblinstones. Thence S.W. through Hufell mire, streight over to the beginning of moss to old dike-steed.[7] Thence S. west by the said dike \ steed / till you com at Raset Sike*. Thence W. down the said sike till you come at Blew Tarne[8] alias Sunbiging Tarne, a ¼ of which is due to this lordship – Thence N. \ where Orton found ~~in~~ & Asby com in by a streight line to Keldhead where Ceüke Beck springs. Thence N.E. down the ~~Keld Beck~~ said beck to Waterhouses where wee began.

And note as above:
{Divisions I} There are 2 Lordships in this parish: Sc. Crosby & Little Musgrave.
In Crosby is the church & a school in it, part being set of[f] by that purpose by Dr Potter, bishop of Carleol.[9] It seems calld Crosby from an high cross at a place calld Langcross, 3 twelve score [paces] E. from the church in Kirkby way.[10]
The church dedicated to St Andrew is a pretty stone building but without a steeple, on the top of an high mount or hill.[11]

{Church}[12]
{Body 13, quire 10: Long.
Body 10. Qu. 6: Brod.
neat low but substantial pillars.
Arch[es] betwixt, 3 circular.[13]
Musgraves Armes in stone, old – west End of the quire.}[14]
{James Scaife.}[15]

[Machell's Notes, III.166B]

*{Note here that Crosby clames Raset Pike &c.}
{Succession & family of Musgrave.}
{How many freeholds in W[arcop] & quote Lord Whartons tenements.}[16]
An account of Stean Rase.
Query of Marshalls priviledge in Kirkby [Stephen] and the L[…][17] stone in the church.

[6] Ravenstonedale.
[7] MS: 'streight over to the ~~old dike~~ \ ~~end of~~ beginning of / moss to old dike-steed.'
[8] Blea Tarn.
[9] Barnabas Potter, bishop of Carlisle from 1629 to 1642: David Weston, Carlisle Cathedral History (Carlisle, 2000), 142.
[10] The road to Kirkby Stephen.
[11] The church is indeed on top of a steep hill. It has a small 13th-century tower (an enclosed belfry) corbelled out over a middle buttress: see Hyde & Pevsner, 307.
[12] Information relating to the church is written in pencil and obscured by the right-hand margin.
[13] The text here has perished in a fold of the paper, but see below.
[14] This last phrase is placed near the binding and is partly illegible.
[15] Machell's Informant.
[16] This note is written at right-angles to the page: some unclear words have been omitted.
[17] Unclear word.

[III.166A][18]

[The Church]

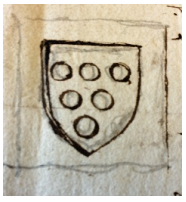

Figure 1.10.2. Musgrave Arms. III.166A.

At the N. end, on the side of the Town.
The Church \ is / dedicated to St Andrew (on which day their feast was kept).[19] It is a pretty \ tite / building on the top of a very high hill or mount, ergo sometimes calld Crosby Hill, but in writeings Crosby Garret; perhaps upon the said occasion, the tops & highest rooms in houses being called garrets. There is no steeple, but 2 little bells hung in [blank]; a clock in the church; one row of pillars with 3 circular arches – the pillars low but thick & substanciall & well carved on the capitalls. It is long in the body: 13 passes, broad 10; the quier long, 10, & broad, six; the seates in the quier well wainscoted & the altar raled. At the east end of [it] on the outside above the window are Musgraves armes which looke almost as old as the church. It stands ~~east~~ \ W. / from \ K[irkby Stephen] 2 miles; from Apelby S.E. 6; from Brough S.W. 4 miles. / {Bea\c/on hill S.W. ½ mile ab Ecclesia.}

{The parsonage house is S. west just under the hill within a stone throw.

[Tithes]
{Hay money for corn tithe. Sad!}[20]
{Nout Geld & sergiant oates[21] by som; all but demane.}

[Chapel]
There has bin a chaple on this side the water directly west from Smeardale Hall[22] distant ½ a quarter, at a place called Chapple Well, which springs in the chaple [garth].[23] It will cuer ever[y] scab on man or horse. T.[24] The ruines of which [chapel] do yet appear \ about 1 yard high in som places: 17 long, 5 brod. The well springs on the S. side at 6 yards distance on the right hand the way to Smerdale. / But no houses near it, which makes me suppose it to have bin an hermitage. There are steps over to it from Smardale Hall.

[School]

The schoole is a little piece taken of \ the church / at the W. end of north Ile, & enclosed with good wainscot raile & ballister, which is rather an ornament to the church than otherwise; which was formerly don by the permission of Bishop Potter. The endowment, being 5^{li} 6s and 6d per annum, was [18] Scrap page, 37cm x 21cm, folded into the volume

[19] 30 November.
[20] A very poor exchange.
[21] Nout geld was a manorial rent, originally paid in cattle, but often commuted. Sergeant corn was a feudal levy paid in corn. OED. It was typically paid by all customary and freehold tenants: Michael Bush, The Pilgrims' Complaint: A Study of Popular Thought in the Early Tudor North (Abingdon, 2009). Nicolson and Burn refer to it as 'the serjeants oats or bailiff corn', N&B1, 292.
[22] Smardale Hall.
[23] MS: 'There has bin a chaple \ on this side the water directly west from / Smeardale Hall \ distant ½ a quarter ~~at the beckside within this lordship in~~ \ at a place called ~~Chapple Garth~~ / Chapple Well, which springs in the chaple.'
[24] Perhaps Testis, i.e. witness.

settled upon it by one Mr Fallowfield, Rector of Crosby,[25] and several others in the town & parish in manner following:[26]

[III.165]

To the School of Crosby Garret

Imprimis Anno Domini 1629.[27]
\ Given the / 12[0] April, by Richard Fallowfield, }
Parson of Crosby Garret 3[li] : use to goe to the maintenance of a schoolmaster there}	3. 0. 0.
and when there is no schoolmaster, to be given to the poore. }
The said 3[li] remaine to the said use for ever. }
Item by
{Henry Robinson to the same use	0. 6. 8.
Thomas Wilson	0. 13. 4.
James Skaife by an order to the same use	0. 10. 0.
Margaret, wife of James Richardson	0. 6. 8.
Margaret Skaife	0. 13. 4.
Thomas Johnson by order the same of	1. 0. 0.
Ed. Skaife	1. 0. 0.
John Skaife, parish clerke	0. 10. 0.
The overplus of the schoolhouse moneys by consent	0. 6. 3
Humphrey Bell	1. 0. 0.}

1648.
Given by John Symson of Sandford to the use of the school at Crosby-Garret and Warcop, 5s per annum, to be paid one year to Crosby and another to Warcop, due \ to be paid / every Candlemas out of the lands of Rob. Peart & Bartholmew Skaif of Sandford. And for want of a school at Crosby the said 5s to be payed to Warcop. And for want of a school at Warcop to be payed to Crosby Garret. The first year of the payment to Crosby was in the year of our Lord, 1648.

1662. April 26.
Given by [Blank] Richardson at his death to the use of the school, 2[li], & for repareing the wooden bridge in the way to Smerdale, 1[li].

1664. June 7.
Given by James Richardson, balif, by his last will & testament for keeping a school master for advanceing learneing, 2[li].

1667. April 8.
By Reginald Robinson in his last will &c. unto the schoolstock & poore of Crosby Garret, 10s: Sc. 5s to either.

1668.
Per John Skaife by his last will &c. to the school stock, for advanceing learneing, 1[li], & to Smerdale wood-bridge, 10s.
1668. February 6.
By the general consent of all the inhabitants of Crosby Garret (except James Bell, Thomas Taylor, Thomas Robinson of Pots & Henry Robinson) to the schoolstock of Crosby Garret for the advanceing of good learneing, 4[li] 4s,[28] which they received of George Richardson of Mazin-slack for his [25] Richard Fallowfield, rector of Crosby Garrett from 1595 to 1636. CCED.

[26] MS: 'which was formerly don by the permission of ~~Endowmt~~ Bishop Potter. The endowment, ~~whereof was settled~~ being ~~about~~ 5[li] 6s and 6 per annum, was was settled upon it by one Mr Fallowfield, Rector of Crosby, and several other in the town & parish in manner following.'
[27] Most of this table is reproduced in N&BI, 532.
[28] 4 guineas.

priviledge in the fell or common of Crosby Garret, and for a little parcel of ground for a garth beside his house. & it is the desire of the said inhabitants that the said summ be imployed for the maintenance of a schoolmaster at Crosby Garret for ever. 1676.

[III.166]

1676. July 6.
Given by Elizabeth Robinson, widow, & Reynald Robinson, administrators to the above said Henry Robinson to the schoolstock of Crosby Garret &c., 5s 4d, being the whol which the said Henry Robinson received & reserved of his part of the sum received of the said George Richardson &c. {See more & below.}

1682. April 17.
Given by Reynald Robinson (younger brother of the foresaid Henry) unto the schoolstock &c. by his last will &c., 10^{li}, & 10^{li} more \ the use thereof / to be distributed every Easter to the poore of the parish.

1683. April 17.
Given by ~~George Robertson~~ \ James Bell / by his last Will & Testament, 50s to the use of the schoolstock and 50s more to the poore.

1676.
William Robertson by his last Will & Testament 10. 0. 0.

1684.
Given by Thomas Bowland by his last Will & Testament &c., 40^{li} to the use of the teaching schoolmaster of Crosby Garret forever, and 40^{li} to the use of the poore.

Out of the Register Booke

The use of the whole stock now, at 6^{li} in the hundred, comes to	5^{li} 4s 0d.
To which add Sandford every other year	0. 5. 0

And they agree give him quarterage, 1s 6d per annum towards his table.
Which I mention at large as an honourable memorial of their pious intentions; & to \ be / a precedent of the like munificence for advancement of learneing in other places.

Schoolmaster: Richard Lademan,[29] who succeeded Edw. Cleseby, who succeeded Christopher Granger, 24 years master.[30]
Mr Dento[n], rector, succeeded ~~Musgrave~~ \ Edmond Maleveres[31] / who succeeded Fallowfield.

[III.163][32]

{Little Musgrave Lordship}

There is a \ little / demane belonging to it. They have built a little house on part of a purchased tenement, where they keep Court Barron and have weif & stray. Boones &c. accustomed.
They say that Little & Great Musgrave were both one lordship till Sir Phillip dyed – that he gave Little Musgrave & Soulby to his son, Sir Christopher.[33]

[29] Richard Laidman was licensed schoolmaster on 3 June 1691; Edward Cleasby was schoolmaster from 1678 to 1689. CCED.
[30] Christopher Grainger was schoolmaster at Crosby Garret from (at least) 1664 to 1675. CCED. CCED records for this school begin in 1664.
[31] Edmund Mauleverer (or Mauliverer) succeeded Richard Fallowfield in 1662 but resigned in 1663. Machell noted the appointment of Thomas Denton (1663-91) but failed to mention that Denton succeeded a parliamentary appointee, Christopher Jackson: see N&BI, 531; see also Bishops' Registers, CAC(C). DRC1/4: 'Maulverer's surrender of Crosby Garrett to Bishop Stern' (p.238), and 'Denton's admission and institution into the Rectory of Crosby Garrett, November 1663' (p.239); see also CCED.
[32] Great and Little Musgrave entries are both on this page.
[33] Sir Philip Musgrave, 2nd Baronet (1607-1678).

{There is a bottom sometimes standing with water that comes down from Bleatarne to Little Musgrave, where it is somewhat mossy, so might give name from the 1ˢ intack draining the moss. No Hall in memory. N. east from the church about 2 miles.}
There is a bridge between Little & Great Musgrave: Sc. at Great Musgrave.

{Families & Houses}
Families: 11 \ or 12 / families, of which freeholds, 1 freehold (besides the Lord), the rest arbitrary to Christopher Musgrave of Hartley Castle who hath also a little house here, 2 storyes high (covered only with straw), which was purchased lately by Sir Philip Musgrave. The lands perteineing serve for a demaine but where the old Hall & old demaine stood is not now known. {3 houses on the east side & 9 or 10 on the west.} And 3 stragling houses: Plulands,[34] Ulbanke,[35] Tuet Hil.[36]

[Things Remarkable]

[III.166A]

[Stone]
{Quarries of limestone which rise as large as a table. Cowling stone; rud huen.}[37]

[III.163]

[Fairy Beads]
[1.] Pitts of rud near Tuet Hill N.W. with fairy beads,[38] mostly read clay; & som blew & white clay in the mires under the blew.

[I.539]

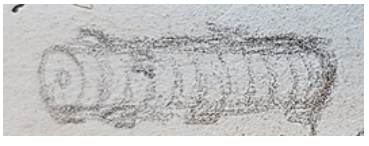

Figure 1.10.3. 'Fairy Beads'. I.539.

[2.] {The krest[39] of a Tobaco pipe stopper[40] and reserved for that use, which have knots like bristles of a Rudd snagged of, & therefore greatly resemble wood. But grow in small joyntes fixed one to another like an heap of cakes, ~~whence~~ which without much[41] force may [be] divided; & therefore th[ey] call em Fairy bedes.}

[III.163]

[Great Store]
Crosby Common feeds sheep in winter & fats them in sommer, & is such sound earth that they never rot on it.

---

[34] Plowlands.
[35] Hull Bank.
[36] Towfit Hill.
[37] See 'a rock calld Cowlin stone alias C\r/oblinstones.' III.166B.
[38] Fairy beads: the disc-shaped ring-like stem ossicles of fossil crinoids (encrinites). OED. 'The remains of encrinites are in some places so abundant as to form thick beds of limestone… and when these, hard as marble, are polished they present a most beautiful surface …The little joints of the stems are often found detached, with a hole through the centre; these are known as Fairy Beads, and as St Cuthbert's Beads; and when strung together were used as a rosary': William and Robert Chambers (eds), Chambers's Information for the People, 5th Edn, Vol. 1. (London and Edinburgh, 1874), Geology, 28.
[39] The word is indistinct. It is possibly a variant of 'crest', the head, summit, or top of anything. OED. But query this (as Machell often remarked).
[40] Machell is probably referring to a pipe tamper. The first recorded examples were made in the 17th century. Although wood and bone examples are common, 'It would be surprising if, apart from the materials mentioned, almost anything that could be cut, moulded or generally fashioned had not at some time or another been made into tobacco stoppers that now lie neglected, their purpose unknown.' Roger Fresco-Corbu, 'Stoppers for the Pipe Smoker', Country Life, 8 June 1961, 1343-45.
[41] MS. 'must'.

{Great store of crawfish (!) in Crosby mil beck near the mill. & more plenty in Ceüke beck.

[Birds]
Bitterns that build in the bog called Sods, W. of the town.
Sparrow hawks build in Milflat wood S.E. 1 mile.}
Wild duck build in Sunbigines Tarn, Smerdale Gill.
Morecocks on Crosby Fell.

{About 20 years [ago], Lancelot Lancaster sayes that he was [asked] by a neighbour to shoote a strange bird which was feeding on a dead horse in Sods Close, which ~~he broke~~ beat all the doggs off from the horse. He broke his wing with shot, but could not take hold on him till he pressed his wing down with the but of his gun – and so tooke him up & tyed up his bill. He was as bigg as a goose \ & much like one / but his beake was like a bitterns in shape, only thicker & shorter – of the colour of a goose bill.[42] His neck was as long as a goose neck but as thick as a mans leg, being extended with the carion that he had devoured. The colour of his neck & body \ & tale / was white, his wings very black. His legs coulered & webd like a goose. {John Wilson, living, took it for an eagle and calld him to kill it.}[43] {Memorandum that Thomas Hutchinson of Little Musgrave killd an osprey of[f] the Quire of Great Musgrave. It had one foot with the talons like an hawk; the other webbd; above 50 years since.}

[III.164][44]

The same men, Hutchinson & Wilson, saw a white raven, as white as milke, which they could not believe to be one, tho he[45] had the shape, but yet his crookeing as he flew convincd them – 20 years since.

[III.166A]

[Bones]
{A little flat at Hen-Fell yate on the right hand as you go to Kendal, S.W. ab Ecclesia. Bones found in it \ about 4 yards about / Eadem temp. Richard Granger.[46] \ & west from this ¼, Raset Pike,[47] clamed here bones as many as filld his breches to Eden Hall by Sir Philips man.[48] Michael Scots made Apr'an string.}[49]
{A man in Crosby calld Lancelot has 24 fingers & toes compleat & perfect. The redundance is in the little toes.}[50]

[42] MS: '… but his beake was like a bitterns \ in shape only / ~~but~~ thicker & shorter & ~~yallow like~~ \ of the colour of /a goose bil.'
[43] Perhaps (noting the next sentence) this was an osprey.
[44] MS.III.165 contains the following struck-through numbers: {7.84, 5.82, 6.83, 7.84, 8.87, 9.88, 9.76, 1.27, 2.9.8, 3.62}.
[45] MS: 'the'.
[46] 'At the same time': informant: Richard Granger.
[47] Rayseat.
[48] A complicated margin-note, which could perhaps read: 'Bones found in it at the same time [as] bones found west from this a quarter [of a mile at] Raset Pike, as many as filled his breeches, [and taken] to Edenhall by Sir Philips man: ex inf. Richard Granger'.
[49] 'Michael Scots made Apr'an string.' This is difficult; some readers will understand the meaning of it, but this editor does not. Was Machell referring to 'a prang', i.e. a forked tool like a hay-fork (see OED) to carry the bones? Alternatively, was the string from around the knees of someone's breeches used to carry the bones to Edenhall? Many thanks to Haydn Charlesworth for the last (highly imaginative) theory.
[50] 'Redundancy': superfluity, excess; abundance. OED.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 11]

[Parish of Crosby Ravensworth]

[I.457]

Crosby Raven
{See a description inter quaeres}[1]

[Machell's Initial Notes]

{Parts of Crosby}
To Crosby Ravensworth Church belong Crosby Ravensworth \ with / Banke and Row, Birbeck Fells, \ Salter Ing houses / Maulds Meaburne, & Regill.

The Church is dedicated to St Lawrence (Mr Sanderson)[2] – & the impropriation was purchased by the Bellinghams of Gathorn in the time of Henry 8. or Edward 6. But Sir Philip Musgrave of Musgrave & Hartley has the presentation to the vicaridge. On the east this parish is the parish of Askby, west Shap, north Morland, south Oreton.

The name
Robert de Crosby conveys land in Gasegill Field lyeing betwixt the Rivilett of Hellergil & Southepoll; this in the time of Richard de Blenkinsop who lived Anno 1. Edward 1. [1272-1273].

Lordships 1. Regill \ & Regill Grange / [2.] Mauds Meaburne. [3.] Crosseby.

{Meabourn} {Thornburrow family}
I finde one Rowland Thorburrow de Meaborne Esq. But whether it be of Meaborne \ Kings, / or if soe whether of this which is Mauds M. or of Kings Meaburn \ in Morland parish / [I] have not yett determined; neither in what Kings Reigne have I sett downe in my notes except Temp. Richard 2. [1377-1399]. Circa forsan 9. ejus Regni, sed q.? if the Act for esquires was made so soon.[3]

1. {Regill}
Reagill was anciently writt Renegill & gave name to a family. Robert de Renegil, 27. Henry 3. [1242-1243] {test. è cart. Antiq.}[4] Regill with the g\r/ainge belonged formerly to Shapp Abby; & now since the desolution, to the Whartons ~~Barrons~~ of Wharton Hall, Barons of this kingdome.

2. Mauds Meaburne, belongs now to the Lowthers.[5] Dr Addison \ borne there. /

3. Crosseby Ravensworth, Banke & Row, which \ are / parts of the same Lordship, belong[ed] formerly to the Pickerings (there is a parke there). Afterwards to the Lowthers of Lowther, & old Sir John bestowed it in Dower with his Daughter to Mr Dodsworth of Yorkeshire; & he dyeing lately Anno [blank][6] gave it to one Baly the son of Mr Baly of Penrith, a practitioner in physick who lived att Penrith & was commonly called Dr Baly; which Baly was his servant; & behaved himself so well that tis ~~master~~ thought he could not bestow it better.

[1] 'See a description among the queries.'
[2] Machell's informant. For confusion relating to the dedication of the church see N&B1, 495.
[3] 'Around his 9th year [1385-86]. But query if the Act for 'Esq' [as style] was made so soon.'
[4] 'Witness: an ancient deed.'
[5] In 1587 the Lowthers tried to build a Court House on Meaburn Green, but the tenants, led by one Bess Fletcher, pulled it down and attacked the builders. J.T Relph, Chronicles of Crosby Ravensworth (Crosby Ravensworth, 1992), 25.
[6] Sir John Lowther lived from 1605 to 1675.

[I.458]

No chapels.

In this parish are these villages – 1. Crosby Ravenswath; 2. Maulds Meaburne 3. Gilse, a little village. 4. Oddendale, a dale. 5. Harberwen, an Hamlet of 9 or 10 houses. 6. Wickerslacke, an Hamlet of 8 or 9. 7. Regill, a little village, whereto Grainge [is] the demaisne. 8. Drivevers[7] – an hamlet of 4 or 5 – & Gathorn Hall belonging to the Bellingham[s] – Mr John Lowther maryed the Heiress – & Craketrees, a single house freehold of 40^{li} per annum, which ~~as I remember~~ belonged to Lancaster. Mrs Lancaster a widow lived upon it in the time of King James [1603-1625], her eldest son then liveing upon an estate which he had at Sockbridge; by whome I suppose it was sold to Dr Dawes, & so was Regil-Grainge much about the same time by Mr Thomas Wharton, who or whose ancestour had it of the House of Wharton.

{The Rectory}
There is 5^{li} 10. 8^{d} paid since the sale of the kings foe[8] farme Rents by James Bellingham of Leavins Esq. out of the Rectory of Crosby Ravensworth: è Lit. à M^{ro} Jacson de Schol. Apelbiæ: Dat. May 12. 77.[9] {?} q. What foe farme Rents.

[III.171][10]

I.
Crosby Ravens.

Crosby is a vicaridge in the diocese of Carleol rated in the First Fruits Office at 7. 13. 4., payeth tenths 15^{s} 4^{d} & for procurations & synodals [blank][11]

{1.} Parish Bounder

{East}*
It is bounded on the east with the parish of St Laurence Apelby, ~~from which tis divide~~ beginning at Seat Hill and thence proceeding to Gathorne groundes \ in a direct line / till you com at the wall calld Harding; thence by hedges and walls till you com at a Sike which runns by Gathorn Hall {½ a mile below it} where Asby parish begins; so up the sike till you com at Gathorn-Ash-Trees; thence up the moore in a streight line to the 2 standing stones; thence up Ashgate to an hill called Lingy-Low, & so to Scar-Top, a little S.E. from Pickering Close†. On the south it is bounded with Orton parish beg[inn]ing at the Scar-Top aforesaid & so directly westward by the S[c]arr Top as heaven water divides till you com at the 4 or 5 great stones which are a little westward from Bousfield hamlet. Thence by a direct line over the more, to Sprotkeld ~~House~~; thence (following the way directly over the moore) to \ an house called / Higher \ or Over / Scales {one house so called}. Thence downe the lane to Birkbeck and so up the water of Birkbeck till you com at an hamlet called Scoutgreen inclusively‡. So up to the force, an from the force by the wall to Gibson-Hill; thence directly over the fell to the Cloven-Stone on the top of Stakely & thence directly \ westward / over the moss & through the midle of Demmingfield Close \ called Demming Dubs / to the other sike; thence up the said sike till ~~Kendall road~~ \ the road twixt Shap & Kendall / cross the said sike {where Shap parish begins.}

{West}
On the west \ it is bounded / with the parish of Shap from the said sike, following the said road down toward Shap to a place called Broken Cross; thence directly northwards to Wastell Beck; thence down

[7] Dryevers.
[8] Fee Farm: see the English Glossary.
[9] 'Taken from a letter from Mr Jackson of Appleby School, dated 12 May 1677.'
[10] Also numbered p.1. Pages III.171 to III.178 are slightly smaller than most pages in this volume (29cm long as distinct from 30cm; 18cm wide, as distinct from 19cm), suggesting that they once formed one of Machell's 'little books'. Their marginalia are too close to the binding to read clearly.
[11] Synodals 4s and Procurations 2s 8d (totalling 6s 8d): 'Valor Ecclesiasticus', 1535; see John F. Curwen, Later Records Relating to North Westmorland or the Barony of Appleby, CWAAS Record Series 8 (Kendal, 1932), 302-24.

the said beck to Wastel Foot, where it enters Birkbeck; thence by a way to the house calld Beck Head within this said parish; thence along the wall belonging

[Machell's Notes: III.171]

*?
†{Clerke Birkbeck sayes they goe beyond the bounds of.}
‡{Memorandum: the foote of Birkbeck fell is in the parish of Orton, though in Crosby Lordship.}
{~~Sprot, hare, fary-stones, freeholds, course of river Livennet head~~, fairy stones}
{Crosby. Patrone Sir Philip Musgrave, sayes Dug[dale's] booke, but query? if not a mistake (for I take Mr Belingham) for Crosby Hall}.

[III.172]

to the grounds of the said house and div[id]eing them from Gaud busk grounds till you com at an highway called Galloway Gate (which heads from Regil towards Kendal);[12] so northwards by the said way till you com at Annawell* in the parish of Shap. Thence \ agane / on the said way till you come at ~~a sike about 6 score yards of called~~ Fawmer Skar; thence directly north to Newintake-house \ inclusively; / thence by the walls about the grounds of the said house inclusively till you com at Sand pot ~~by~~ \ at / the starting stone of Stricklandhead Rase; so ~~directly~~ downe the said Rase till you \ com / to Castlehows house at Regil-Skar; thence westward ~~by a wall~~ on the road twix Apelby & Shap till you com to Trainrig-Beck; thence down the said beck till you com at a stone on the more with a † upon it where the Lordships of Regill, Newby, Shap & Little Strickland do all meet together.

[North]
It is bounded on the north by Morland parish from the said † by &c.†[13] to Kiveriggs Stone; thence eastward on an hill Dowpin-Side, by a long row of stones \ directly after / to Lile-Intack at Threeplands; thence by the wall of the N. side of the Lile-Intack, to Threepland-Gill-Sicke; thence down the said sike to Lowend-Well; thence eastward by an hedge till you com at Regil-Mask; & so on by the same hedge down Regil-Mask (to page 177).[14]

Machell's Notes: III.171]

*{The[y] say is calld from an old woman calld Annas who was drowned [in] it, which is said to eb & flow.}
†(?)

[III.177][15]

inclusively till you com at Lowmore; thence from the Dike-nooke directly east by the way \ which leads from Maske-end / to High Whitbur \ till you com at Livennit; / thence ~~from High Whitbur~~ down Livennit to the foote of Lile-beck – Thence up Lile-beck to Crabstack-grassing. Thence by an Hedge on the N. Side of Crabstack-grassing till you com at an Highway (which leads from Kings-Meaburn to Dryvivers yeat). And so up the said way till you com at Seat-hill where wee began*.

[2. The Church]

{Body 31; Quier 13}
This church lyes S.W. from \ the town of / Appelby at iiij miles distance.
The church &c. \ dedicated to St Leon\ard /, is white huen stone / & is a fair building with a tall steeple or tower, having 3 good bells & a clock in it. The body of the church is in length about 31 yards \ broad 15,[16] / with 2 iles & 2 small pillars & 4 pillasters on either side; & resemble a † by 2 other arches riseing off pilasters[17] afore the quier doer, which opens the view into the 2 iles. The Quire is about 13 yards long.

[12] Galloway Stone: The name suggests a link with Scottish drovers and might have been be a marker for droves crossing Crosby Ravensworth fell, heading south. See Peter Roebuck, 'Cattle-droving through Cumbria after the Union: the Stances on the Musgrave Estate, 1707-12', CW3, 12 (2012), 143-58, at 143-44.
[13] Here, a 6cm gap suggests a blank space to be filled in later.
[14] This page reference appears to be in Bishop Nicolson's hand.
[15] Also numbered p.3.
[16] The numeral '5' has been superimposed over another numeral, possibly '3'.
[17] MS: 'pillallaster.'

In the East window are these Coates of Armes
1. Parted per pale: 1. Argent a saltier \ manch[18] / Gules; 2. Ermine a chiefe & frette Gules; which I take to be Threlkeld & Thornburrow.
2. Parted per pale: 1. Defaced, 2. Thornburrow ut supra.[19]
3. In a small quarry lately put in – Bellinghams arms \ of Gathorne Hall / (now also of Levins \ who are ~~now~~ the patrones & impropriators in right of that house) / Sc. Argent, 3 bugles Sable tipd Or, lined Gules.

Figure 1.11.1. Crosby Ravensworth Church. East Window. III.177.

On the north side of the quier under an arch betwixt the Lords quier & it, is a fair through erected of Hewn stone on the sides, with Escutchions upon it but no arms \ at all; / & a large gray ma[r]ble on the top 3 yards long & a yard & quarter broad, \ which seems to be the founders.

The church yard is very spaciouse & level \ conteineing about 2 acres & / sett about with trees; & there are 2 stone coffins \ in it / which ~~appears out of the ground~~ \ peepe above / ground, one on the N. & the other on the South side, \ which hath bin the fashion of burying here. / {2 crosses in it, one of them opposite to the quier and the other east from it near the low end of the church yard. And talke of another; from which multiplicity of † it might take its name, Crosby.} And a fryery adjoyneing the N. side of the church yard.[20]

[Machell's Notes: III.177]
*[Informants] Mr William Wilkinson; Lanc. Thwaites.[21]
{Out of the Haltons & Kirkbyes Register, p.141: I finde anno year 1311 Pontificatus,[22] that John Abbot of Whitby and his convent had then obt[ained] the parish church of Crosby Ravensworth to their own proper use & would thereby[23] intruede into the chu[rch] & manner of Oreton & the houses and close of the Prior and Convent of Coningsheaved & the great & smal tithes thereto belonging.}[24]

[III.178]

[3.] {The division into manners}

There is in this parish 4 constablewicks: 1. Crosby Ravensworth; 2. Maulds Meaburn; 3. Banke & Raw; 4. Birkbeck Fell; yet but 3 entire Lordships.

[18] 'Manch' has been written directly above 'saltier' in different ink.
[19] See the Latin Glossary.
[20] 'There is a tradition of a friary having adjoined the eastern end of the churchyard, and there appears to be remembrance of it in the names, Monksgarth, Monks-barn, and Monks-bridge', C.J. Gordon, 'Crosby Ravensworth Church', CW2, 8 (1908), 203-33, at 207.
[21] These two men gave Machell the bounder information. William Wilkinson was vicar of Crosby Ravensworth, 1685-1708. CCED. In 1696, he joined the anti-Jacobite 'Association' for the protection of William III: Curwen, Later Records, 302-24.
[22] 'In the pontificate of' [following word illegible]. The pope in 1311 was Clement V.
[23] This word is unclear; 'thereby' approximates to the meaning.
[24] The monks of the abbeys of Whitby and Conishead argued over the appropriation of Crosby Ravensworth church by the Abbot and Convent of Whitby. In June 1311, a tithe dispute relating to Orton, claimed by the said abbot in right of the abbey's impropriation of that church, was agreed with the prior of Conishead. The Bishop of Carlisle then absolved the prior of Conishead from the sentences of excommunication and interdict which he had incurred. See the Register of Bp. Halton, CAC(C), DRC/1/1, 141. See also, Curwen, Later Records, 302-24.

Lordships or manners: Sc. Crosby, Mauds-Meaburn \ or Mauldis / & Regil, \ & 2 small hamlets / adjoyneing to them as if the former had bin members of it & belonging to it […][25] Bank and Raw*.

Crosby, where the church stands, is a considerable village \ of itselfe, pleasantly standing in a woody gill, / haveing the church, a free school & the manner house. In it a stone bridge & 2 milnes. The school is a neat little handsom new building at[26] the E. end of the church yard, 2 storyes high &c.

The Manner house \ Hall / is a fair Tower house \ overshadowed with Trees / ~~The enterance~~ [It] had formerly a mote round about it & it is hard by the church. In the Tower where you enter are 2 fair windows \ one above the other, / ~~with neat work about them, and this~~ \ of no vulgar workmanship.[27] / Ballasters at the Top insteed of Battlements, and Coate of Armes above the arched dooer†.
And at the turneing end of a Rolle which runns above the Arch over the dooer are these letters ingravd \ ~~but / lately cutt in the old~~ worke: ID FD, for John Dodsworth & Frances Dodsworth, who repared the said Tower & cut these letters in the old worke, which by the coate seems to have bin erected long since by some of the Pickerings.
In the upper room is an Impaled Coate of Lowther with Fleming: Sc. Or, 6 anulets Sable Gules, a fret Argent, with their ~~propr~~ \ mantles & / crists, and in a scrowle under neath \ are these figure denoteing the year / 1617 {when that glass was placed there & perhaps that new building added, 1617.}

Figure 1.11.2. Crosby Ravensworth. Manor House Arms. III.178.

This house is said to be haunted with a spirit which is onely discovered by ~~its operations~~ \ the effects of it, / as knocking at dooers & opening them, opening the casements, displaceing of trenchers; which it one time did: laying them in thres triangular wise al over the flooer. Mrs Dodsworth, the present lady thereof, affirmes that it tooke her on\c/e by the finger when she was in \ her / bed. But no harme is don by it, nor was it ever visible to any but to one Mary Mather, about 60 years since, who (go back to page 173)[28]

[Machell's Notes: III.178]

*Gentlemens houses?
†Courts le[e]t & bar[on]?

[III.173]

is sayed to have seen it in the shape of a man. And the \ first / beginning of this disturbance was said to be occasioned thus. There came a young gentleman that clamed the estate, & laying there al night, his clothes were found in his chamber next morning but his body was gon.[29] And it was supposed that he was murthered, being never seen more. And there is this probability in it; that when Mr Gabettas

[25] Several words here are obscured by the binding.
[26] As this word is blotted, the transcription is approximate.
[27] This passage is repeated, with added information, in N&B1, 499.
[28] This note is in Bishop Nicolson's hand.
[29] MS: 'There came a young gentleman that ~~layd~~ clamed ~~to~~ the estate \ & laying there al night / ~~and~~ his clothes were found \ in his chamber next morning / but his body was gon.'

sub sherife of Westmorland[30] farmed[31] the house & filled up the mote afore the court dooer about 25[32] years since, the bones of a man was \ were / found in the banke, which being so near to the church yard, it cannot be thought that a man who dyed his own natural death should be buryed there.

Other hamlets belonging this Lordship are:
Gilce,[33] about 7 houses \ 1 mile S. from the church. /
Olendale alias Odendale[34] \ 1 mile S.W. / about 8 houses.
Harberwen 1mile W., 4 houses.
Blasterfield, a single house 1m. S.
Birkbeck-Fells, 20 houses, 2 miles & ½ S.W.
\ And / the Lodge – a single house 1 mile S. which \ the / last has bin formerly of the demaine, & well stord with deer. But now is sold of and a freehold estate of 120 li. per annum. {Blacklocks} There is black game in it.

{[4.] Raritye}

In the grounds belonging to the Hall, Sc. Bowlands, an hare was shot \ som few years ago / which ~~had~~ gave milke at 3 pups, one in her bag, downed,[35] & 2 knitt;[36] which Lanc. Thwates, a young man now living & an excellent rural poet, disbelieving, was convinced of the possibility of it by killing one himselfe 12 years agoe on a Whitsunday Eve at \ a place / Milbanke

[III.174]

(with a Grahame), which gave milke at 2 pups, had 2 downed over which movd and were quick, & 3 that were knit like little \ young / mice.[37]

[5.] And other remarquable?

The river Livennet springs in this Lordship at Crosby Gill Head \ about / 1 mile and ½ S. from the church at a place calld Blackdub, where King Charles 2 ~~got his din~~ \ sat down & dined / when he brought in the Scots ~~about~~ \ 16 /51 and dra[n]ke of that water.[38] It hides itselfe here & appears agane at 40 yards distance; thence it runns to Crosby \ where a stone bridge calld Monke bridge.[39] / Thence to Mauds Meaburn near to the Hall. ~~Of Cap. Lowther~~ Thence by Kings Meaburn \ where / a wood bridge. ~~Thence~~ \ Thence by Wood Head to / to Cliburn Mile, where a wooden [...][40] Thence into Eden by Julian Bore[41] in the forrest of Whinfell.

[30] Thomas Gabetis. See the 'Catalogue of Sheriffs', in Machell's Preface, VI.595.
[31] Leased.
[32] The second numeral is blotted.
[33] Gilts. Originally this name would have appeared to be 'the Gills' – 'the ravines', and to have referred to the usable land below the exposed limestone between Crosby Gill and Ravens Gill or to Ravens Gill itself. But the later forms seem to indicate a manorial name: Gillses etc., from the surname Gills; this would account for the adaptations to Gilce, Gilts, which have been influenced by dialect. A gilt or gilse is a 'young sow'. See Westmorland Place-Names.
[34] Oddendale.
[35] Downed: covered with fur.
[36] Knit: having been conceived. OED.
[37] European brown hares are able to develop a second pregnancy while the previous litter is not yet delivered. 'This super-conception increases their reproductive success.' Source: 'Superconception: European brown hares, while pregnant with one litter, can start a new pregnancy', Science Daily, 22 September, 2010.
[38] The monument, carved by Thomas Bland of Reagill, is on Crosby Ravensworth Fell. On it is inscribed (in upper-case): 'Here at Black Dub the source of the Livennet King Charles the II regaled his army and drank of the water on his march from Scotland August 8 1651'.
[39] Monk Bridge, over the Lyvennett, to the north of the Vicarage: see Curwen, Later Records, 302-24.
[40] This word is partly obscured by the binding; presumably Machell was referring to another wooden bridge.
[41] Bower.

[6. Freeholds]

Freeholds: about 41, & most of them ancient yet doubtless purchasd.
Mr Robert Scaife of Blasterfield.
In Crosby: The Vicar; Lanc. Iön: under val.; James Fayrer; Tho. Lamb; Ed. Lamb; James Lamb obijt; James Wilkinson; Henry Dent; Will Thwaites pater; Lanc. Thwaites & Lanc. Thwaites of Holm Yeat; John Wilkinson; William Addison; John Iőn.

[Machell's Notes: III.174]
{A coyn of Richard found when I was there in the street: Feb 23 1688/9.}[42]

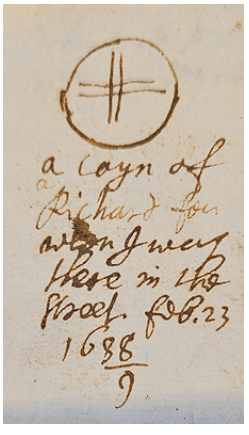

Figure 1.11.3. 'A coyn of Richard found … in the street. Feb. 23 1688/9'. III.174.

{? Query if there be not a campe or something like one in Youe-Close in Crosby demaine.}[43]
An uping stone called […][44]

[III.175][45]

Thomas Fa\y/rer; John Robinson; ~~Robert Scaife of Blasterfield~~.

About 20 in Birkbeck fels: {old all ~~purchased~~}

In Odendale: John Thwaites; Richard Iőn; Tho. Gibson; Tho. Dixon; Tho. Atkinson; Anthony Atkinson; John Rig: under val.

In Herberwen: Anthony Smith; Ed. Atkinson; James Kitchen; Lanc. Haton.

In Dalebankes: James Langhorn; Will Fa\y/rer; the heiress of Slakes.

[42] 'There' i.e. Crosby Ravensworth.
[43] Ewe Close: '… an ancient rectangular embanked enclosure and settlement site (certainly in use during the Roman period) on the course of the Roman road', Westmorland Place-Names. MS.III.176 repeats Machell's query about the camp.
[44] Scored-through text measuring 3cm is illegible here.
[45] Also numbered p.6.

[7.] The descent of the manner}

Lancelot Pickering*, son of Thomas, sold \ the Lodge†, being 120 li. per annum, to Mr Wilson / of Dallin Tower, who gave it in marriage with his daughter to Curwen Ralisons father.[46] And \ who repared the tower estates before he sold the manner to Sir John Lowther of Lowther about 44 years ago, who gave it [in] mariage with his daughter, Frances Lowther, to Mr John Dodsworth. He was a younger son of the Dodsworths of / Watless in Yorkshire, 4 miles from Richmont, who had isue: John, & Frances who dyed young.
And John the elder being an Oxford scholar went from there to the Ins of Court & afterwards dyed at Watless, leaveing this ~~whol~~ estate to Mr Frances Bayly \ 2 / son of Dr Baly of Penrith, sometime his servitor, & steward afterwards: \ a noble gift of a master to a servant. / Which Frances maryed one Mrs Mary Purl\e/y,[47] a Lincolnshire gentlewoman, by whom \ he had isue: / Margaret Baly, the now heiress thereof. The said Mary, her mother, was remaryed to \ one / Mr Robert Dodsworth, a Lincolnshire gentleman and ministers son, who holds \ it now / in the right of his wife, & has isue with her: George, John \ Rob. Obijt / Charles & James, twins.

[Machell's Notes: III.175]

*He maryed a Londoner.
†{Query of lodge.}
{A medicinal well near Sales in Birbeck Fell for sore eyes, scurvy &c., & seems to com of an iron mine. Slate, limestone & freestone all over.}

[III.176]

II

Mauds Meaburn [Notes]

½ mile N.E. the Hall is the manner of Meaburn Hall, a parke replenished with deer.[48]
{Lowther armes in glas?}
Captain Lowther brought pheasant into this country but has lost them all.
His tenements are generally freeholds, in number about 50 or 60.
And here was Dr Adison born, Dean of Lichfield. {Dr Adison born at Mauds Meaburn Hill.}[49]
{Here are coals within a bowshot; quarryes of white freestone, slate.}

{Descent}
It was purchased by \ Gleed[50] Sir John Lowther / in 8 tenements as they say, which make the demanes; and there was one Fletcher, next neighbour to the Hall, who built himselfe a fine house, part of which stands yet in the court, calld Fletchers Hall; who broke himselfe by it, & so sold his estate to the said Sir John. From him it descended to old Sir John \ the rich /and by him given to his 2nd son, Mr Richard Lowther, the now owner of it, who maryed Barbary, daughter of Mr Pricket of Rissel Castle in Yorkshire, by whom he had isue: 1. Richard, 2. Mary, 3. Frances: ob. s.p.[51] 2. Robert, Christopher, Mary.

[46] Robert Rawlinson, father of Curwen, see below.
[47] See N&B1, 499.
[48] This information is at the foot of III.175, but more properly belongs to III.176.
[49] Lancelot Addison (1632-1703), born at Maulds Meaburn; son of Lancelot Addison, 'a minister of God's word'. Matriculated at Queen's College Oxford 1650-51; BA 1654-55; MA 1657; DD 1675; prebendary of Salisbury 1678; dean of Lichfield 1683, OAD.
[50] Having a cast in one or both eyes; squint-eyed. The word can be transferred to character: to gang gleed: to go wrong. OED. Sir John Lowther had a reputation for being grasping in business dealings, see C. Phillips, 'Lowther, Sir John, of Lowther, first baronet (1605-1675), landowner and local politician'. ODNB. During the reign of James I, dissension was particularly strong between the Lowthers and their tenants in Crosby Ravensworth, 'the lords claiming an absolute estate in the tenements and the tenants insisting on [their] inheritance according to the custom of the manor. After various litigations [the] lords and their tenants came to a compromise.' See N&B1, 501, which quotes the terms of agreement.
[51] All three of whom died without issue.

{~~Crosby~~: acres by estimation onely, Mr Bellingham, patrone & impropriator?}
{A freehold ¼ west ab Ecclesia. A demolished chaple at Crake-Trees \ in the Lordship of / [Blank] Dr Dawes bought of Christopher Lancaster, Justice of the Peace: s.p.? Or by him of Pickering. 30. H.8. [1538-1539]. Q. It a freehold}

[III.174]

An up[p]ing stone called my Ladyes Moat,[52] {in Meaburn Lordship} erected by Anne, Countess of Pembroke 30 years since, where she could see 3 of her own castles. Here was a parke at Crosby Gill, ~~replenished~~ with deer belong to Crosby Hall – but now to Mr Curwen Rallison.[53]

[III.176]

III

[Reagill Notes]

{1mile N.} Regill is a manner where a ruind chaple, as by the names of Chappelgards & Chaplela[n]ds. It belongs to my Lord Wharton, where they have long bin Lords. One Mr Thomas Wharton sold ~~one ½ of~~ Regil Grange, which is supposed to be the manner house, & ½ of the demane, to Mr Lancelot Dawes, who had isue, William, who had isue, Lancelot, who had isue ~~she~~ by Fran[ces] daughter of Lawyer Fletcher & of Little Strickland, Thomas the heir & Lancelot. The other ½ sold to Gleed[54] Sir John Lowther and now it belongs to Meaburn Hall.
{Regil town is about ½ of a mile from the Hall or Regill Grange, and about a mile & ¼ from the church. Here was Mr Randal Sanderson born, who gave 6 score li.[55] & hereby erected a free-school for that Lordship.
{Freeholds} Mr Nicholas Thomlinson of Threeplands; Will. Wilkinson; Henry Wilkinson; Thomas White; Thomas Harrison.

{IIII}

Bank [Notes]

{12 score E., Banke \ 4 houses / is tenant right belonging to Gathorne Grange – the house of Mr Bellingham, which is in Asby Parish where they do Suit & Service. The Row at Brig End, E. 3.}[56]

[52] I.e. a mote, raised up for viewing or mounting.
[53] Curwen Rawlinson, see N&B1, 499-500.
[54] Second use of 'gleed'. See above.
[55] £120.
[56] The rest of this margin comment is obscured by the binding but appears to mention church lands. According to N&B1, Bank and Row belonged to the Threlkeld branch of the Pickerings but was sold to the Bellinghams of Over Levens, who sold it to Colonel James Grahame/Grahme: N&B1, 501-02.

Part 1. Barony of Westmorland

[Chapter 12]

Parish of Dufton

[I.461][1]

[Machell's Initial Notes]

To Dufton parish church belongs Dufton. Dufton gave name to a Family: Simon de Duftona. Cotemp. & testis cum Thomas de Helebeck & Thomas de Muse-grave Vicom. West. s.d. sed circa 36. Henry 3.[2]

Sir X[t]opher Clapham tooke a Lease of the Lordship of Dufton (Temp. Oliveri Tyran?)[3] for 99 yeares, wherein the clause of waste being omitted,[4] ~~& the~~ he cutt downe all the wood called Dufton Wood, and sold it as I have bin informed, for more than the whole purchase cost him \ whole estate was worth. /

The Lordship seemes to have belongd to the Grastocks Barons of Graystock, & from them to have passed to the Dakers of Kirkoswald in Cumberland {Gen. de Dacres vide Inter Clifford in Apelby}[5] by reason of an heiress of the Grastocks matched into that familye. See the Armes in the church & at Kirkoswald Castle over the Gates, where they are quartered.

[I.276A]

Remarke [that] in Dufton Lordshipp, Precincts of three Dioces: viz. Bishopprick,[6] Chester & Carlisle, and three Lordships and three Parishes doe meet at a place calld Cauldron Snout in Tees Water.

[III.162A]

[The Church]

Ad Dufton church:	The body – L[ength] circa 10. B[readth] 8.
	The quier – L[ength] circa 8½. B[readth] 7.
	Little bells.
	Stales.[7] 2 yards full + Hecks[8] least.[9]
	high-backs ½ yard.
	Pasturage – a yard.[10]
	Low pars[onage]18 yards & 12 broad.

Parsonage S.W. ab Ecclesia about 40? at the foote of the banke on which the church stands.

[Comments relating to the images on III.162A]
Arms at the] 1[st] corse next the screne [Top left] Azure Gules.
And another of this second three escallops. [Centre right]
A Recapit[ulatio]: I have shewne you that

[1] Also numbered p.17.
[2] 'Witness with Thomas de Helbeck and Thomas de Musgrave, Sheriff of Westmorland [in a deed] sans date but c.36 Henry III (1251-52).'
[3] 'In the time of the tyrant, Oliver [Cromwell]'. During the Commonwealth, 1649-1660, no regnal date was applied. However, Oliver Cromwell assumed the title of 'Lord Protector' in December 1653. He died in September 1658; his son Richard was proclaimed Protector the next day but resigned in May 1659.
[4] There appears to have been no explicit ban in the lease on 'wasting' the property.
[5] 'General information on the Dacres, see among the Cliffords in Appleby.'
[6] Diocese of Durham.
[7] 'Stales': stalls. Old English: stal; Middle English–1600s: stalle; 1500: stale. OED.
[8] 'Heck': the lower half of a door; also, an inner door. OED .
[9] Unclear word.
[10] 'Pasturage' looks like 'passage' at first sight, were it not for Machell's indication that the word is abbreviated. William Nicolson discussed a suit brought by the patron and others, relating to the rector's 20-year 'claim to some pasturage', see Nicolson, Misc. Accts, 48-49.

3. Gules a dolphin Argent
Gules 3 escallops Argent. H. Lancaster with Lyon
Sable a single escallop & HONI SOIT QUI MAL Y PENSE
On the […[Or an escutcheon, an hand holding a dolphin. […][11]

Figure 1.12.1. Arms at Dufton Church. III.162A.

[III.161]

Dufton Parish

One constablewick consisting of Dufton; one vil. calld Keescliff:[12] \ but one row of houses, / the tenants of which belong to Mr Burton of Brampton,[13] but answer in the court of Dufton; & 2 or 3 houses at a place cald Birkdale, all within this Parish & Lordship. One gentlemans house lately erected: Dufton Hall. A school.

[Dufton Town] {Spring}
Tis a well built town & indiffirently Regular, having a venell of water which comes in near to head of the towne \ where the new Hall standeth / & so runns down the street to the low end thereof, where the old Hall hath stood. & serves all the town with water runing just before their dooers. And there is this remarkable in it; that after the current comes down from the fell, it seems in the crofts to run against ~~banke~~ \ fall / contrary to nature; & yet the bankes which containe it on both sides, & the current it selfe, is there very shallow.

[Machell's Notes: III.161]
{These are fell bred & forrest like people, not halfe so civilisd as the rest.}
{Get the will.}
{There was never man rid through Keescliff but he broake his neck.}

[11] The page foot has perished here and the text is tiny. As a result, the transcription here is incomplete.
[12] Keisley.
[13] See Long Marton Parish.

[III.162A]

[Knock]
Knock stand E. & W. At the east end are iiij tenements thought to have bin Knock Gill Hall. The being the fashion of a ditch & ramp[art] about the ground whereon it stands. And the other lands which belongs to them extendeth themselves as far as Knotgill, and are yet calld the Demain Lands. There is also a place calld Chaple F[l]at, where it is said Knock Chaple stood, p[arish] D[ufton] ch[urch].

[III.159]

The Boundary of Dufton

This parish is bounded on the south west with the Lordship of Brampton in Marton parish (being divided from it with the River Troutbeck from Millelay Foot at Brampton Pows (where the 3 Lordships of Marton, Brampton & Dufton meet, and not far from the Parsonage house of Long Marton), ascending eastward up the said River till you com at Flakebrigg by Espland Foot which is in the way that leadeth twixt Dufton & the Burrow of Apleby & near Brampton Hall.
Thence on the S. & the south east with Flakebridge Wood \ in Bongate parish, / from which tis divided by the said River Troutbeck (called here Burthet-Beck)*, till you com at a place called Murton-Knows. \ It bordereth pon Morton Lordship. / Thence agane with ~~the Lordship of Murton~~ the said parish, \ being divided from it / by the said Troutbeck (\ which / is called here Keyseley Beck) \ until you ascend to / Hi-keup-head where the said river springs & thence agane with the ~~said~~ Lordship of ~~Dufton~~ \ Murton / till you com at Masebeck[14] at a place which is called Dobson Mea Foote,[15] \ being divided from it / by a streight line or band of stone which is called Hirds. Thence again by Masebeck aforesaid, descending eastwards to Swathbeck-foote, where it comes into Masebeck. Thence agane on the south easte with the great Parish and Lordship of Brough, being divided from it by the foresaid Masebeck to Birkesike Foote where it comes into Masebeck.[16] Thence agane on the south easte with the parish of Rumabald Kirk†, being divided by Masebeck to a place which is called Caldron Snout where 3 countyes, 3 bishopricks, 3 parishes & 3 Lordships meet‡. On the East & North easte it is bounded all along with Midleton parish ~~from Caldron~~, \ in the Bishoprick of Durham, / being divided from it by the River Teas, ascending northwards up the said river from Caldron Snout to \ the foot of / Crooke Burne ~~fel~~, where it runns into Teas ~~ther~~ \ where / 3 countyes meet \ together. / {Sc. Westmorland, Bishoprick, Northumberland.} Thence agane on the N.E. with a place calld Tine Head

Machell's Notes: III.159]

*{T\h/wait, q. Birch Thwaite}
†{Reinbaldi Ecclesia}[17]
‡{Sc. Westmorland, Yorkshire, Bishoprick, Carlile, York & Durham; Dufton in Westmorland, Rumakirk in [Blank],[18] Midleton in Bishoprick.}

[III.160]

in Alstan parish in the County of Cumberland (or Northumberland)*; being divided from by the Teas aforesaid, still ascending northwards till you com at the foot of a little rill called Fel Troutbeck, which is the very N. point of this parish.}
Hence on Nor'west it butts upon Milburn \ Chapel Fell / in K[irkby Thore] parish, being divided from it by ~~the rill calld~~ Fell-Troutbeck \ aforesaid / till you com a t a place called Moss Burne \ or Mose Burn / Foot, where it enters \ Lile-Tees / ~~Troutbeck~~. Thence agane on the N. West with the Lordship \ of Knock / in Marton parish, from which tis divided with the (River?) Mosburne, \ ascending westwards up the said River / till you com at a rock calld Overhurth; whence by a streight line \

[14] Maizebeck.
[15] Dobson Mere Foot.
[16] MS: 'Thence \ again / by Masebeck \ aforesaid / descending eastwards to ~~Trout b~~ to Swathbeck-foote, where \ it comes into / ~~enters~~ Masebeck. Thence agane on the south easte with the great parish and Lordship of Brough, being divided from it ~~with the river~~ \ by the foresaid / Masebeck \ ~~aforesaid~~ / to Birkesike Foote where it comes into Masebeck.'
[17] Romaldkirk: the church dedicated to St Rumwald or Romald. See Westmorland Place-Names. Machell suggested that the church might be dedicted to St Reinbald, an 11th-century German saint.
[18] Anciently in Yorkshire, now administered by County Durham.

ascending westward / to an harruck[19] of stones upon Knock Fell called Knock-aäld-man†. Thence by a streight line descending westward to ~~a place~~ Swindale-Beck-Head. Thence by Swindall beck descending westwards to Knock Gill. Thence agane ~~descending south-west~~ by Swindale Beck (which is here calld Knock beck) descending S.W. down the said Rill to Marton Park Head over against Dufton church. Thence on the west ~~which the Lo~~ it is bounded upon the Lordship of Marton in Marton parish, & divided from it by the said Swindale Beck (which is called here Marton-Parke-Beck) till you com at the place called Millelay-foot, where wee began.
March 22. 1686. Will. Atkinson.[20]

[Machell's Notes: III.160]

*{q. which?} Northumberland, sayes Towen.
†{This is denyed by Rob Thornton of Knock who [says] it is quite out of their Lordship. Swindale Beck sp[ringeth] here near Rundall Tarne,[21] & runeth westward \ downe the gill] / to behind Knock Town. Thence \ S.W. / down Knock Gill by Dufton church, so to Dufton mill and thence into Troutbeck at Milelow[22] Foote.}
{Query: of its bounds p[er] Towan.}

[III.161]

{Rarityes}

(Rarityes in nature)
Junipers at Flaskey; a pasture belonging to Dufton betwixt Dufton Pike and Knock Pike: it \ see in the mergin. /
In Dufton wood, at the point of Windy Banke Brow, builded an osprey which had eeles & troutes & other fish & rabits in the nest when I was a boy.[23]
{A forrest called Meldon, which is a great fell next Teasdall \ forrest / divided by Tease.[24]

[Wells]
