What does the writing on the wall say--

“Change is inevitable”?

Or is it a more cryptic message such as “Rosebud”?

The answer lies with you...

first friday

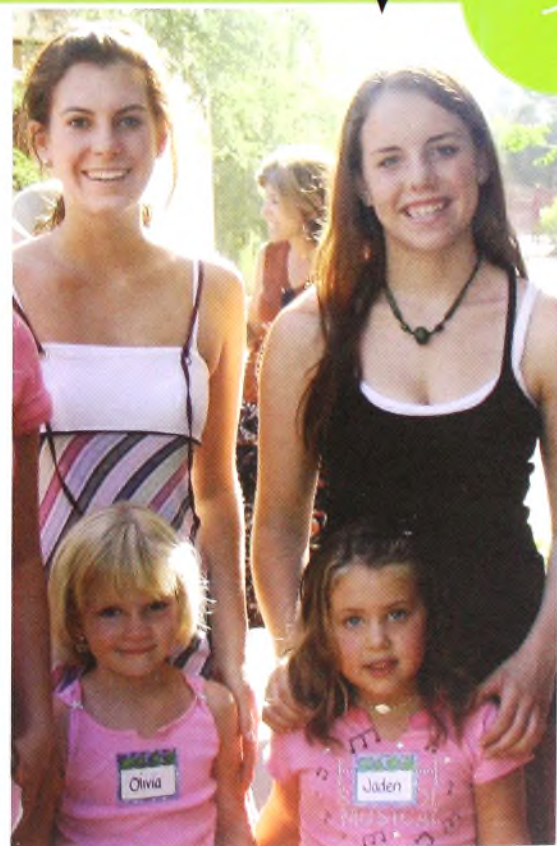

First Friday is the synthesis of old friends, new faces, and unsure expectations for the upcoming year. But to the seniors, it is something more; it is the realization of one of the first long-awaited senior traditions: walking into the gym with the kindergarteners. It is a heartwarming reminder of our close-knit community when the oldest and the youngest students are greeted by the rest of the school.

Middle School is the threshold. Ready to break out of the warm cocoon of Lower School, but not quite prepared to cross the big Bridge, Middle-schoolers figure out who they are and who they want to be. Schedules, lockers, sports, student government, and electives all make their first appearances, as Middle-schoolers adjust their definitions of “normal,” “familiar,” and “cool.” Free to make more choices and demand more independence, yet still supported by the comfort and safety of authority, PCDS Middle-schoolers step confidently in the direction of their dreams.

though we have only known you for two short years, you have captured our hearts. in the classroom, you are graceful and passionate, constantly encouraging us to grow and immerse ourselves in a world of words, wit, and wisdom. you gained our trust, and so we plunged into the works of updike, didion, and eggars just because you encouraged us to. we know we can relate to you, because you are only a few years our senior, yet we look up to you so much. we can come to you with both pop culture references and serious problems. what other teacher would get pedicures with two of her students? what other teacher would embarrass herself in a demonstration of "sardine sleeping arrangements" at skool at the pool? what other teacher would effectively reference 'the lion king', equating herself with a semi-psychotic baboon, while introducing a senior speech? american writer william arthur ward once noted, "the mediocre teacher tells. the good teacher explains. the superior teacher demonstrates. but, the great teacher inspires." you, Ms. G, have inspired us. as dale evans sang, "happy trails to you, until we meet again..." this yearbook is for you.

During our daily adventures through academia, the devoted faculty is an intelligent and omnipresent backdrop to our lives at PCDS. Whether they are leading classes, holding court at various clubs, coaching teams, or helping advisees, the teachers are always there for us. They are the supportive backbone to our student body. The enormous amount of time and effort the teachers put into their jobs, both on- and off-campus, will always be appreciated.

construction

PCDS lower-schoolers will have big windows, open spaces, and super-chic architecture in their new home.

Through that familiar chain-link fence, we see progress in the new Lower School.

Construction has become a way of life here at PCDS over the last few years. We have a new Upper School, a new Middle School, and a new auditorium. Now joining the rest of our stunning new facilities is a new Lower School. This year, we have watched in anticipation from behind the familiar chain-link fences as older buildings were torn down, groundwork laid, and new structures erected. The PCDS face-lift is charging on!

the writing on the wall

This year, more than any other, our work in Lower School has been about building. Since last spring, we have watched with anticipation and amazement as fantastic new facilities for the Lower School grew from the ground up. Foundations, frameworks, and walls originated from a vision and a lot of hard work.

24

It is a metaphor for what we do with children.

Teaching is always about building; we build strong, positive relationships with our students as they develop and strengthen academic skills in reading, writing, and mathematics. We provide the framework for students to be creative and expressive in the arts, music, and foreign languages; their activities in PE build strong bodies and good sportsmanship. We help build their character by teaching them to be respectful, resourceful, responsible, and resilient.

Our writing on the walls can say:

"From foundations, frameworks, and walls..."

*Look what we can build together!
We are the architects of our lives!"*

Anne DeFilippis takes a ride on a mini tricycle.

Lower School is at it to have fun. Throughout the year, kindergarten kids idolize fifth-grade "Big Kids" as they themselves grow up from September to September. Along their journey, students enjoy many fun-filled activities designed just for them. Even after school ends, youngsters find fun in playing games and even doing homework in Evening Eagles. There is always a reason to look forward to school!

lower school academics

For many, the learning experience of PCDS starts at the lower school. Students start off on their adventure with not only geography, reading, and arithmetic but also physical education, music, and art in an integrated curriculum. They also learn concepts of respect, sharing, and consideration. Visitors from the upper school and middle school often pass by the lower school classrooms and catch a glimpse of the younger students hunched over their desks, working hard on their shiny laptops; other times students are reading quietly or learning how to write a letter but they all just can't wait for recess...

While there may be an age difference between students, parents, and teachers, the PCDS community remembers to come together and share their memories. During recess, lower school students happily play with their friends from other classes and grades. Teachers sit back in the shade and chat as they watch their students laugh and run. Finally, parents wait near the entrance to pick up their children. The lower school community continues to work together to bring rewarding experiences and a fruitful education to PCDS students.

I used to work as a therapist. I counseled children aged three through eighteen and had lots of conversations with my older students about tattoos. I reminded them that if they had gotten a tattoo ten years prior it might have been of Barney or Big Bird - something they might not have been thrilled about as they got older. Who's to say that what they would choose at 17 might still inspire them at 30?

Don't make any choices now that close doors...

Here's the point: Don't make any choices now that close doors for you later. It is a time for trying things on, pursuing options, looking at all the possibilities, meeting people, going places, and being open to what life holds for you. Don't "tattoo" yourself into something that might not fit later, there are just too many great choices you don't even know about yet.

5th graders experience a three day trip to Astrocamp in Idyllwild, California. Astrocamp provides a science program in which students actively work on topics in astronomy, space technology, meteorology, geology and physics. Through small group, hands-on activities, students have the opportunity to gain a more personal connection to the natural world and learn responsible actions in order to sustain it.

This trip gives our sixth graders the opportunity to improve their critical thinking and problem solving skills. In addition, there area chance to build new friendships and to work on team activities

The PCDS Middle School abounds with activity. Out on the sports field or inside Burch Hall, PCDS middle-schoolers are very busy! Through electives and Flex Fridays, middle-schoolers get the opportunity to design their own extracurricular experience. As they move from year to year, middle school activities bridge the gap between old and new. This year, seventh- and eighth-graders started a new tradition with the first annual Middle School fall play. Students of all grade levels continue to enjoy such outlets as sports, cultural day, student council, community service, and class trips. Students don't have time to be bored, because there's always something interesting to do!

Middle Schoolers seem mesmerized by the rainbow colors.

78

From the infamous Magazine Project in fifth grade to the intimidating research paper in eighth, academics define and shape the Middle School. Here, teachers are helpful mentors and trusted confidantes, classes are engaging and interesting, and homework is challenging but manageable. In some classrooms, friends giggle through group assignments, while in others, students present projects to a class or quietly work through a test. Young academics sail from classroom to classroom, listening and learning the essential skills that will serve them well as they more on through Upper School, college, and beyond.

music

Middle School music is a time for exploration. PCDS fifth-graders venture from the comforts of Lower School sing-a-longs to the responsibilities and symphonic rewards of instrumental music with strings and band. Sixth graders have even more choices, joining choir or jazz ensemble. Throughout middle school, students work hard in classes, rehearsals, and concerts, sharing music with their parents, teachers, and peers. Learning melody and soul from such talented faculty members as Mr. Rowe, Ms. Fleming, and Mrs. Schertenlieb, middle schoolers will carry the gift of music with them for years and years to come.

trips

The seventh grade class trip to Joshua Tree National Park in California has two main goals. The first is to create class unity and cohesion. The second is to teach skills such as risk taking, self-confidence and improve self-esteem. Students participate in activities designed to meet these goals from Boojum Institute for Experiential Education. Class trips are designed to provide an opportunity for students to make friends and become more united as a seventh grade class.

The eighth graders spent five days exploring educational opportunities as well as discovering new friends at the Catalina Island Environmental Leadership camp in California. Whether hiking or snorkeling, working in a laboratory or sharing new discoveries the students developed an ability to observe the environment and to realize that ecology and nature are intimately linked with many other disciplines, including social sciences, literature, math, and art. Not only does the camp provide a valuable educational program in oceanography, but it also gives the eighth graders an opportunity to get to know their classmates and teachers.

community service

If I can stop one heart from breaking,
I shall not live in vain.
If I can ease one life the aching,
Or cool one pain,
Or help one fainting robin
Unto his nest again,
I shall not live in vain.

Chavez Factoid:
Chavez knows your deepest secrets, and they make him

from pcds with love . . .

Another turning point, a fork stuck in the road...
Time grabs you by the wrist, directs you where to go...
So make the best of this test, and don't ask why...
It's not a question but a lesson learned in time...
It's something unpredictable, but in the end it's right...
I hope you had the time of your life.
So take the photographs and still frames in your mind...
Hang it on a shelf in good health and good time...
Tatoos of memories and dead skin on trial...
For what it's worth it was worth all the while.
It's something unpredictable, but in the end it's right...
I hope you had the time of your life.
—Green Day

I've heard it said that people come into our lives for a reason
Bringing something we must learn...
And we are led to those who help us most to grow if we let them
And we help them in return...
Well, I don't know if I believe that's true...
But I know I'm who I am today because I knew you...
Like a comet pulled from orbit as it passes a sun...
Like a stream that meets a boulder halfway through the wood...
Who can say if I've been changed for the better?
But because I knew you I have been changed for good.
It well may be that we will never meet again in this lifetime...
So let me say before we part...
So much of me is made of what I learned from you...
You'll be with me like a handprint on my heart...
And now whatever way our stories end...
I know you have re-written mine by being my friend...
Like a ship blown from its mooring by a wind off the sea...
Like a seed dropped by a skybird in a distant wood...
Who can say if I've been changed for the better?
But because I knew you...
I have been changed for good.

“Senior Lifers” are members of the Senior Class of 2007 who have been attending Phoenix Country Day School since Kindergarten. Some, however, have even attended PCDS since Pre-Kindergarten.

senior time warps...

ANGIE BAUER: Now a full-fledged fashionista, Angie spends her days frolicking through the city, basking in the glow of storefront windows all along New York's posh 5th avenue, and clothing the homeless in 'haute couture. SCOTT BIXBY: Scott follows his dreams of being a writer to New York City, where he eventually casts his pen aside for his true calling: the stage. You can now see him as a dancing horse in Seabiscuit the Musical, which opens this week.

LEXIE BOHNERT: While enjoying good conversation—and an even better Chai latte—with the Dalai Lama, Lexie was suddenly struck by the winds of inspiration! These magical gusts whisked her into a yoga frenzy, enabling her to forge a new form of the ancient craft for all Yoginis to enjoy.

CARLY BREY: Carly is the darling of the LPGA circuit. She and her caddy Nick Pappas can be spotted on the course with matching bows in their ponytails.

ROSS BRIDGEMAN: Ross, already a smash hit on both the Christian and secular acoustic rock scenes, is starring in Seabiscuit with Scott, his trusty steed. A man about town, Ross also plays his accordion on street-corners with his monkey, Giuseppe. Yes he does have a cult following, no he is not comfortable talking about it.

CLARE BURNHAM: Clare is a fiery businesswoman. She is the most feared in the boardroom and the most sought after at holiday parties.

BEAU BURROWS: After Disc Jockeying in some of the hottest clubs in Japan, Beau felt like something was still missing from his life. Therefore, to get back in touch with "Beau," he traveled back to Kansas to connect with his farming roots. His major exports include cornstarch and yams.

AARON CHASSE: Chavez has a lot of cats and owns a puppet theatre for pre-schoolers. He also runs most of the world's major corporations and nations from his basement.

REBECCA CIANCI: Rebecca works quietly towards eliminating world hunger. She has single-handedly improved the lives of millions of men, women, and children throughout the world. She is married to Maddox Jolie.

HAL COHEN: By dressing his children in chain mail and eliciting the envy of elementary school students everywhere, Hal launches a fad no one saw coming with his own line of armor accessories.

BEN COOK: After retrieving his boss's 17th cup of coffee in 35 minutes, Ben has an epiphany: he threw out the coffee, quit his job, and now owns a very successful bakery in Queens.

MAT COWLIN: Mat, possibly the most organized human being on the planet, is living it up in LA as executive assistant to the CEO of Universal Studios. He and his starlet wife are always in the know with celebrity gossip, yet remain under the radar of Hollywood tabloids themselves.

MICHAEL CRANE: Mike is the Imperial Ninja of Canada. It's a long story.

BETSI CROW: Betsi has replaced Donald Trump as the biggest real estate mogul in the world. Her net worth is approximately 34.8 trillion dollars. Her extensive property list includes: a beach house in California, a penthouse in New York, Holland, and her estate in Phoenix.

ALEX DEBEUS: Sometime in October of 2010, Alex traded in his mountain bike for a BMX he soon deemed "the most epic mount ever." He then took the competitive BMX circuit by force. This year he took home his sixth X-Games title and rewarded himself with a trip to Disneyland and a Dew.

SANDEEP DHADVAI: Sandeep has started a very lucrative business as a craftsman of magic carpets. Using his leet skills, Sandeep is able to charm these ordinary footpads with the ability of flight. These beauties cost around $100,000—they come in aquamarine, periwinkle and midnight black.

MEGAN DONOVAN: Megan followed her dream of marrying "for love" and having three handsome children, until her 75-year-old husband kicked the bucket and left his multimillion-dollar fortune to his dog. Now working as a child psychologist, Megan has met the man of her dreams and is incredibly happy.

JAMIE ENGELMAN: One day on the double black diamond slope, Jamie skied off on her own to explore the unknown territories of her beloved Vail. She fell in love with the carefree life of a family of deer she met on her adventures and has been living off the land ever since.

NICK FARRIER: Nick was discovered to be the new Avatar and is currently traveling the world trying to master all four elements. Evil, beware.

AARON FAZEL: Now running for re-election to a fourth consecutive term as Arizona State Mine Inspector, Aaron is putting the mine back in mine.

SAMSON GAO: Bridging the gap between Chinese and American comedy, Samson is a bright new upstart on the stand-up scene. He recently performed to a sold-out crowd at the Palace, and has two movie roles lined up where we will star alongside Angelina Jolie and Bill Murray.

NICK GENTA: Nick is the first ever combination of male supermodel and operatic tenor. An experience for all the senses, Nick enjoys his status as an international playboy with a lovely falsetto.

ALEXIS GLASSCOCK: Lady Alexis, as you peasants already know, is our all-knowing ruler. She is the most benevolent and just leader we have ever known and has used her supreme omnipotence to wipe out crime, poverty, and all of the useless colors in the rainbow from our society.

Long live pink! Long live Alexis! DANIA GOLD: Daredevil Dania Gold has attempted every high-risk stunt there is on earth. Her most recent escapades, however, will never top when she skydived blindfolded into an erupting volcano while solving a Rubik's cube in less than 20 seconds and teaching a Chinese orphan English; simply incredible.

GREER GOSNELL: With a flurry of rad pyrotechnics in Bolivia last night, singing sensation Greer Gosnell was able to finish up the South American leg of her international tour. Tired from the stresses of life on the road, she has returned to her hometown of Phoenix, and can be heard belting the national anthem with fierce emotion at every Suns game.

ANNIE GOULD: Weighing in at over 300 lbs, and having less than 2% body fat, Annie is the only woman ever to be allowed to compete in both the Ms. and Mr. Universe competitions. He workout infomercials can be seen on TV at 2am on Sundays.

ALI GRACE: Ali went missing when the Phoenix Suns were sold to Twin Falls, Idaho. She left behind 4 children, a couple cats, and her 247 Juicy outfits.

JOHN GUENTHER: While touring the Swedish countryside with friends, John was suddenly struck down by a speeding motorcade of jovial sunshine girls. Extremely sorry for having caused him harm, the girls brought Guenther to meet pop-legend Gunther, who passed on the ways of the Tooty Fruity Summer Lovin' to the fortunate tourist.

SHAMEER HALEPOTA: Shameer is currently working for various undercover operations for the CIA. Due to the sensitive nature of these issues we cannot say much except for the fact that he was last spotted patrolling the hood around 4 months ago.

CARSTEN HAMANN: While hiking in the Amazon, Carsten discovered a new type of jungle vine. Before he could so much as give it his name, the vine snatched Carsten up and swallowed him whole. Unfortunately for him it was the carnivorous type of jungle vine.

KYLIE HUCKLEBERRY: After graduating Magna Super Special Cum Laude from her college of choice, Kylie gets five master's degrees and a PhD while coaching YMCA basketball on the side. Dr. Huck now wields the Hammer of Grammar over PCDS freshman and coaches varsity track.

ALEXA ITKIN: Alexa is a famous portrait artist who has graced her canvases with the likes of the Pope, Oprah and Mrs. Thompson.

LIZZY JEANS: Lizzy is completing her internship at Seattle Grace Hospital. She is dating an attending neurosurgeon with really good hair. Oh wait, that's someone else. MOLLY KEARNS: After a volatile love affair in 2006, Molly and American Government have finally tied the knot. She is now a lobbyist in DC for the National Association for the Advancement of Bovine Creatures. Her followers lovingly call her Moo.

MICHAEL KRUMWEIDE: Mike, with the help of his avocado-powered time machine, was able to travel back in time, replace Vanilla Ice, and change the face of rap as we know it. Can you say, Mike, Mike Baby? ROARKE LACEY: Roarke currently resides outside of Santa Monica, keeping tabs on the local underground music scene to find the next "big thing." On the side he dabbles in ballroom dancing and amateur sandcastle competitions.

ASHER LANDAY: Asher is a successful producer in Hollywood. His sets run like cruise ships, and he is dating a super-model. His most recent film is his own movie adaptation of the ID novel The Company.

BLAKE LEWKOWITZ: Blake, Harvard degree and buff bod in tow, is a trophy husband. He lives here in the Valley and his children attend PCDS. Life is pretty good.

JAY LUNDEEN: After working a crummy desk job, for a couple years, Jay has climbed the ladder of one of New York's most prestigious investment banks. His staff still catches him occasionally playing Pokemon under his desk in his corner office.

KATIE LUPICA: Turning a cold shoulder to the music world that she once loved, Katie uncovered a new passion in her life when she was picked randomly out of the audience at a circus to attempt a stunt that would later become her obsession—tight-rope walking.

PHILIP MATOS: Phil, still on an administrative high after serving as student body president in 2007, decided to try his luck at the presidential campaign in 2016. However, after being beaten out by Alexis Glascock, Phil retired to a simpler life back home. Phil still remains politically active and has just become president of his Guild on World of Warcraft, beating out such contenders as Invisiblekid and Krathnor.

BEN MCCRAE: Ben, while flying down the highway with his motorcycle gang (The Lightening Emoss), suddenly found himself surrounded by trash. Utterly appalled at the sad state of our environment, and remembering the happy feeling that he had in his high school AP Environmental Science class, Ben convinced his fellow Hogsters to ditch the gasoline bikes and ride something a little more eco-friendly—mountain bikes.

THAIS MORAES: Thais runs an all-ages, safe rave out in the middle of the Mohave Deser. Complete with strobe light and techno music, this is something for the whole family to enjoy. No neon, no enthusiasm, no service.

JARED NEUFER: Jared, after a successful career in bioengineering, spends his retirement in the comforts of his very own Eating Room, in which he finally conquers his metabolism and reaches his goal of weighing 600 pounds. He then cures his obesity with the fruits of his own groundbreaking research.

CAROLINE PERRY: Caroline, Imperial Ninjita of Canada, is a beloved math teacher and choir director at a small public high school. Her Math Olympiads team fulfills students' PE requirements and enjoys more participation than any sports team.

ALEX PHILLIPS: After five years of business school and seven years working in finance, Alex is really bored. In his spare time he develops a new form of Guitar Hero psychotherapy and cures procrastination.

LAURA REAHARD: A year out college, with her Mount Holyoke degree in hand, Laura moves to Greenwich Village. She dyes her hair green, sells her BMW, and opens a wildly successful tattoo/tea parlor. She was recently featured in a Village Voice article for bringing class and style back to the West Side.

GARREN ROSE: After winning several Golden Globes for his hit movies, Garren moved to Switzerland in a fit of inspiration in order to escape the phoniness of Hollywood. He has now opened up a clock shop and spends his long hours watching Jeopardy and yelling at the television screen.

SARA ROSENZWEIG: You can see Sara this month on your Wheaties box for her awe-inspiring season of professional Women's Lacrosse. Scoring up to 20 points per game with many other assists and feats that seem to defy gravity, Sara is #1.

ANDRU ROYSDEN: Andru—proud father to daughters Hope, Chastity, Prudence, Faith, Heather, and Candy—is a stay at home dad. His incredible knack for parenting has landed him slots on daytime television shows such as Dr. Phil and the Tyra Banks Show.

MAX SCHWIMMER: After legally changing his name to Max "The Soul Mensch" Stuart, Max is this generation's greatest saxophone talent. When not playing to sold out international venues on tour, he is living fast and loose in the Big Easy.

ABBY SEADLER: Abby discovers an eighth continent, roughly the size of Europe, inhabited by Commie Aliens. By virtue of her inevitable likeability, she wrests power from the natives with a smile and a hair flip. Now Grand Pooba of the land she has deemed Abigascar, Abby finally has time to finish her book, Just Friends.

RICK SELLING: Rick is now living easy off of the royalties of the "Rick Chant." The chant was able to reach fan bases around the world with its touching lyrics and catchy beat, making its cult following comparable to that of The Macarena.

SHEBANI SHAH: Shebani "Moonflower" Shah spends her time hiding out in Oz Park in Chicago with her PETA clan, spray paint can in hand, ready to pounce on unsuspecting fur coats. Later, in the throes of her resulting guilt, she opens a dry-cleaning service just down the street behind her partners' backs.

BEN SHANKEN: Ben is a virtuoso clarinetist for the London Philharmonic. Everyone joyfully screams "SHANKEN" after each riveting cadenza, when each woman in the audience throws a pair of opera glasses at him.

AMANDA SMITH: Amanda is a revolutionary living off the grid at an undisclosed location somewhere in the midst of upper Appalachia. She is able to provide fully for herself and for her followers by cultivating such crops as hemp and bamboo. Her political biweekly lectures and crochet class schedules may be seen online.

RACHEL SMITH: Rachel lives in the City and hosts her own talk show, following her early success in skit comedy. Last month, Suri Cruise jumped up and down on Rachel's couch declaring her love for puppeteer and world leader Aaron Chasse.

JESIKA STREIT: Jes finally tires of the Valley of the Sun and returns to her hometown in Alaska. She recently wrote a book chronicling her years at PCDS and ASU called What They're Like Down There.

JAKE SWOKOWSKI: Jake fuses his passions of food art and humor with his pizzeria, Comic Slice. Each piece of pizza, ordered at least a day in advance, chronicles an exciting slice of random strangers' lives in such creative toppings as Special K, chocolate chips, fried rice, and cotton candy on a bed of delicious Wisconsin cheddar.

LIZZIE THOMPSON: Elizabeth Thompson—proud mother to daughters Hope, Chastity, Prudence, Faith, Heather and Candy—is the CEO of Microsoft Inc. She is able to bring home the bacon and make it look darn good too.

LAUREN WALLACE: When not dictating the current global fashion crazes, Princess Lauren, founder of the House of Wallacé, spends her time playing polo and attending costume parties with her husband, Prince Harry of Wales.

DANIELLE WEINBERG: Danielle has shed her carefree smiley façade and unleashed her inner Tyra Banks-worthy ferocity. Her success story of starting her own business and launching it to the forefront of American society is the subject of a recent children's book.

SANDY WEISS: Sandy is a ballet teacher and devoted mother of two darling little girls. Few are aware of her nefarious super-villain alter-ego: Armagezzma.

Dear PCDS, past, present and future,

I can't express in words how much you have all meant to me. Know only that without you, I would not be the person I am today. Thank you, amazing class of 2007, for nine great years together. I never imagined that we would grow so close. Thank you, Mom, Dad, Michael, Mamamac, Papa, and Lucy. Your unconditional love is the greatest gift of all. Thank you, Kevin, Hannah, Michael, Lizzy, Anne, Daniel, Ally, Sophie, Lauren, Steph, Katie, Alexis, Clare, Caytlin, Jessi, and Kyle. You have laughed with me in the best of times and cried with me in the worst. Finally, thank you, Schert, Ms. Ellis, Mrs. Smith, Dr. Carter, Dr. Allison, Ms. Cone, Mrs. Thomas, and all my teachers. From you, I learned about life and found support when I most needed it. I feel truly privileged to have walked among everyone in this community. My most fervent wish for all of you is that you will find what makes you happy and pursue it with all your heart and with all your mind. Cherish the love you found here, and don't forget to pass it on.

All my love, Caroline

mathematics

"I wish I were your derivative so I could lie tangent to your curves." This may not be the exact phrase heard in math classrooms at PCDS, but PCDS students are immersed in math every day. From Algebra and Geometry to Calculus and Statistics, there are always more mathematical adventures to be had.

humanities

Humanities in the Upper School are the combination of History and English classes. We read major historical and contemporary works by many different authors. We learn of battles, people, and places of importance in history of many different cultures. In discussion with our teachers and peers, we make connections and we refine our skills. Building a strong foundation with Dr. Allison and Mr. Mirzaie freshman year, and finally choosing electives like Shakespeare and VietNam senior year, there is always more to learn!

Mr. Coon ponders his existence as his senior English students get ready to start class.

As Edwin Powell Hubble once stated, "Equipped with his five senses, man explores the universe around him and calls the adventure Science." This is true about PCDS. Every day students hear lectures, digest macromolecules (which they can name proudly), feel the natural world, see with an expanded vision for science, and smell the sinks of the biology room. From explosive chemistry and enzymatic biology to a propelling physics program, environmental know-how, and exciting new independent studies, the PCDS Upper School is bursting with scientific flare.

mathematics

Albert Einstein once said, "Pure mathematics is, in its way, the poetry of logical ideas." Math is taken very seriously at PCDS. From competitions such as "Math League Press" to classes such as Calculus ABBC or Statistics, students partake in many activities to enhance thier knowledge of the (in Einstein's words) logical poetry PCDS provides.

visual arts

FADE IN:

A red, yellow and blue sports car streaks across the frame. We see ROSE behind the wheel smiling broadly as he veers near the cliff. This will be no ordinary ride.

In a photomontage, we see Rose as Captain Hook, James Bond, and Paul Bunyan. We HEAR the sounds of character being developed and plot thickening.

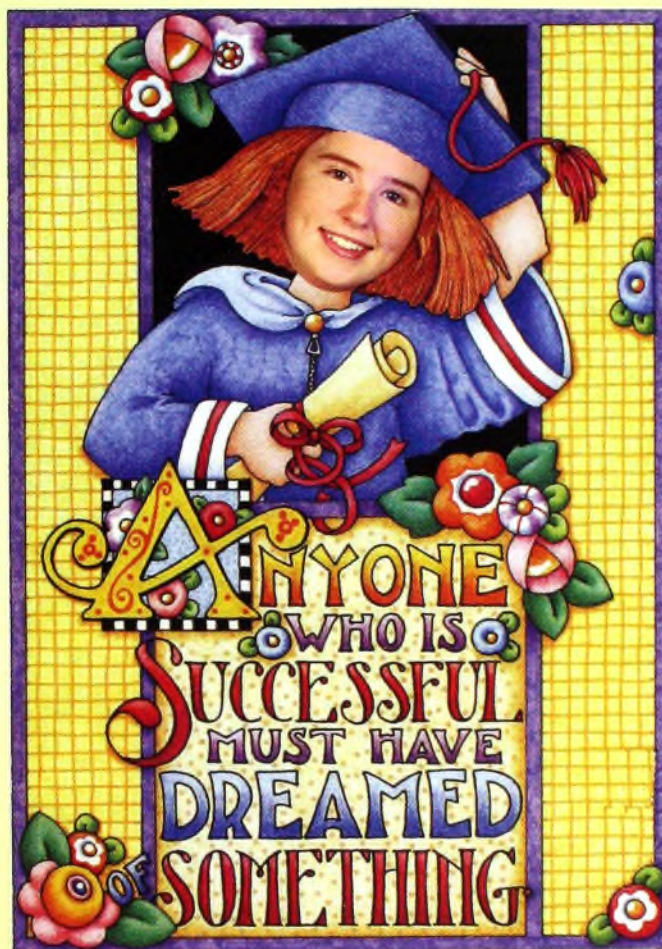

The story progresses all too quickly as ROSE evolves into a young man.

in memory of tom wielunski

If someone who tells lies is a liar, what do you call someone who tells the truth? Riddles like these delighted Tom Wielunski, and he never missed the opportunity to provide a moment's entertainment in one of his classes by posing such a question. Sometimes his riddles were mathematical and sometimes philosophical; sometimes he would furnish the answer and sometimes not. It didn't really matter; he simply enjoyed stretching the limits of his mind and that of his students. And all of us who knew him were his students, because he was blessed not only with a stockpile of personal knowledge, but also with the ability to stimulate others to think for themselves.

I realized recently how many people Mr. Wielunski had touched during his far-too-brief tenure here at PCDS. I was astounded by the number of upper-schoolers that day who said, "i never really got to know Mr. Wielunski as well as i would have liked, but there was this one conversation. . ." So know, Mr. Wielunski, that you will be missed for your jokes, your smiles, your infectious laugh, and your extraordinary gifts for teaching and understanding, but most of all, you will be missed for the warmth, compassion, and the joy you spread everywhere you went. Yours was a life well-lived, and the limits of our gratitude rapidly approach ∞ .

—Caroline Perry, Class of 2007

Those who knew Tom Wielunski could not help being touched by the lessons he taught us. As a master teacher, Tom was an inspiration to his colleagues and a role model of lifelong learning for his students. Tom loved math, and his greatest joy was showing kids how intriguing math could be. We commonly heard him ask questions such as:

- "Did you know that $1+1$ does not equal 2?"
- "How about a game of sticks?"
- "How can we ever walk out the door if we first have to go halfway?"

His questions fostered the kind of intellectual curiosity that motivated his students to learn and explore more.

Beyond being an excellent teacher, Tom Wielunski was a wonderful human being. He was a devoted friend and colleague—compassionate, fair, sincere, and patient.

Tom gave us many gifts. Our gifts in return are to remember his kind words, mathematical insights, funny stories, and caring advice—and to treat others the way he treated each of us.

acknowledgements

I am proud of this book. The production of a yearbook is an arduous task and I have frequently reminded myself of B.G. Jett's quote, "If the word quit is part of your vocabulary, then the word finish is likely not." When you have a Saturday of yearbook-making ahead of you, there are times when you want to drop everything and quit. However, if I had done that, I would not be able to present this beautiful thing to you. Several tremendous people have stuck by my side along the way... I would first like to thank my advisor, Mr. Reese. Without him, this yearbook would not exist. He is responsible for everything technical and keeping our whole staff focused along the way. His great attitude and witty sense of humor have helped to keep the attitude of the staff upbeat and motivate the younger members to dig in and keep working. I would like to thank my fellow editors: Abby Seadler (Photo,) Katie Lupica (Text,) Jamie Engelman (Production help in the beginning) Natalie and Nicole Swinford (Clubs,) Mat Tibi and Mat Cowlin (Random, Jared Neuffer (Copy,) Laura Reahard and Stephanie Germaine (Assistant Editors,) and Danni Lin (Layout.) I would next like to send my regards to every one who helped write text and take photos (Ayten Salahi, Nick Farrier, Richie and Janie Zitomer, Nick Genta, Lizzie Thompson, Sandy Weiss, Will French, Sophie Carter-Kahn, Amy Waitkus Ivy Epstein, Deepa Rao, Kylie Huckleberry, and Izzie Carter-Kahn.) John Guenther, one of my dearest friends, thank you for digging in at the last minute (when we needed the most help!) and helping us out with bagels and random page-making.

I obviously must thank Mrs. Thompson, Ms. Olson, Mrs. Thommen, and Mr. Campbell for referring me to various faculty members who could be of assistance and answering various questions about pictures and student activities. The majority of our sports photos can be credited to Nancy Crase (owner of Crase Photo) with a huge thank-you! Thanks to the entire faculty who were patient in letting us take pictures during their classes and providing us with additional photos. Thank you to Joan Risley and Debra Kolbet (Communications) and Andy Surber and Andy McKean (Educational Technology) for help with photos. I also would like to acknowledge every one who helped us match names to faces for captioning-purposes.

Thanks to the coaches and club advisors for their patience and diligence in getting their club and team photos taken. Thank you to Thais Moraes for designing a funky cover and Annie Gould for a cute title page. Thanks to patient and supportive parents for all of their help, especially those who provided us with photos and their children (to work on this yearbook!) In conclusion, thank you to patient people everywhere! It has been my deepest pleasure to serve as your editor for the 2006-2007 yearbook. Please keep the mentioned people in mind as you flip through these pages...

Enjoy!

Sincerely,
Clare Burnham

The Phoenician, Volume XLIII, was produced by the yearbook staff Phoenix Country Day School in Paradise Valley, AZ, and was printed by Taylor Publishing Company in Dallas, TX.

The account was serviced by representative Susan Fearnside and customer service adviser Jessica Youngpeter. The theme, WRITING ON THE WALL, was developed by Editor Clare Burnham and the editorial staff in August. The cover was designed by the yearbook staff and incorporated a quarter-bind concept with mylar and matte black vinyl. The logo was designed by Thais Moraes, a senior student.

The book's 256 pages are printed on Enamel 100 pound paper stock. All body copy was set in 12 pt. GenesisT Roman. Headlines were set in 48 point Felpoint and page numbers were set in 24 point Snowwrite. Layouts were submitted to the plant in Adobe PDF format on CD. The Phoenician was produced using Adobe® InDesign® 2 and Adobe® Photoshop® 7, on Apple® Macintosh® G4 computers with 1.25 GB RAM and 80 GB hard drives and a Epson Perfection 3200 Photo scanner. Digital photos were taken with 3- and 4-megapixel digital cameras. 900 copies of the book were made available to students.
