

Contents

Foreword by The Honourable Mrs Justice Jefford DBE	xv
Foreword by Michelle Rousell, Thomson Reuters	xvii
Acknowledgments	xxi
Table of Cases	xxiii
 Chapter 1 Introduction	 1
 PART I THE CONSTRUCTION ACT AND SCHEME	 3
Chapter 2 Adjudication Provisions	7
“At any time”: what does it mean?	7
The “great” section 108a debate – part 1	10
The “great” section 108A debate – part 2	13
Abolish section 106? I’m not so sure m’lud ...	16
What constitutes “surveying work” in the Construction Act 1996?	19
Let’s put section 105(2) of the Construction Act 1996 into Room 101!	22
Adjudication is “regarded as a blessing” and should be conferred on all industries	26
Court considers failure to complete standard form contract and section 106	29
Adjudication costs and the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 (part 1)	33
Adjudication costs and the Late Payment of Commercial Debts (Interest) Act 1998 (part 2)	37
Does the supply of concrete include “installation” as well as “delivery” for the purposes of the Construction Act 1996?	41
Is lawfulness of occupation relevant to the residential occupier test?	45
When is an adjudicator prevented from opening-up, revising and reviewing?	48
Court of Appeal upholds TCC on hybrid contract issue	53

Chapter 3 Payment Provisions	57
The “simplified” Construction Act 1996 payment provisions (part 1)	57
The “simplified” Construction Act 1996 payment provisions (part 2)	60
First 12 months of the new payment provisions	63
The importance of notices, the importance of notices and the importance of notices	66
Suggestion that email and financial documents are application for payment “defies common sense”	70
Harding v Paice and Springall – the Christmas special	74
“This is a classic case of one party making a bad bargain”	81
“Payment of any final sum ... is based on enforcement of the contractual bargain”	84
Are different minimum requirements for default payment and pay less notices a double standard or justified?	87
You don’t need to have served a pay less notice to set off in adjudication (apparently)	92
Getting your payment ducks in a row will avoid adjudication	96
Implications of the Court of Appeal’s decision in S&T v Grove Developments	99
The TCC applies S&T v Grove (with a twist)	104
Court of Appeal’s useful guidance on implying isolated payment provisions from the scheme	108
Waive goodbye to your payment application challenge	114

PART II ADJUDICATION PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE 117

Chapter 4 Drafting Adjudication Submissions	123
If I had more time, I would have written a shorter submission	123
It’s all about how you present your case before the adjudicator	125
What makes a good adjudication submission?	128
Chapter 5 Nominations and Appointments	135
Repeatedly appointing the same adjudicator	135
Nominating adjudicators in the wake of Eurocom v Siemens	137
Hedging your bets in adjudicator nomination doesn’t pay	141
Clarity is key when contract drafting and picking your ANB	144
The devil may be in the detail of adjudicator appointments	147
Chapter 6 Timetabling	151
So much to do, so little time (in adjudication)	151

Adjudicating 24/7	153
Take note of when your adjudication timetable starts	155
Chapter 7 Serial Adjudications	159
Serial adjudications: a blight on the adjudication landscape, or an inevitable consequence of the process?	159
Is serial adjudication like lingchi?	162
Chapter 8 Professional Negligence Disputes	165
Experts in adjudication when professional negligence claimed	165
Professional negligence and adjudication – an unsuitable match?	167
“It’s adjudication Jim, but not as we know it”	170
Chapter 9 Meetings and Site Visits	175
Meeting the adjudicator	175
No site visit, no breach of rules of natural justice	178
“Who are ya?” (or meetings with the adjudicator)	181
Chapter 10 Experts	185
Handy tips when giving expert evidence in adjudication	185
Chapter 11 Without Prejudice Material	191
Adjudicator can review without prejudice material	191
Chapter 12 Fees and Costs	193
Adjudicators’ decisions on fees	193
Reasonableness of adjudicator’s fees – a victory for common sense	196
Party costs in adjudication	198
Injunction in adjudication, where does that leave the adjudicator’s fees?	201
The reasonableness of the adjudicator’s fee	204
Adjudicator entitled to payment as no breach or lack of jurisdiction	207
Adjudicator’s time spent on multifaceted dispute was reasonable	211
Reminder that adjudicator’s appointment lapses if no decision	214
Lack of jurisdiction entitled adjudicator to resign	218
Chapter 13 Slips	223
Adjudicators have their reasons	223
Sometimes it is tough being an adjudicator	226
Slip resistance: the importance of correcting slips on time	228
Adjudicator failing to “exhaust his jurisdiction” and the slip rule	231
Reminder not to approbate and reprobate in adjudication	235
Consequential corrections are covered by adjudicator’s slip rule	238

Chapter 14	Stays of Proceedings	243
	TCC grants stay to enable FIDIC dispute board to proceed	243
Chapter 15	Withdrawal and Settlement Prior to the Decision	247
	To resign or not to resign: that is the question	247
	Decision day negotiations – it's never too late to settle	249
	Can a party withdraw from adjudication part way through and what are the implications?	251
Chapter 16	Multiparty Disputes	255
	Multi-party disputes post- Yuanda – are you confused too?	255
	The suitability of adjudication for multiparty disputes	258
Chapter 17	Confidentiality in Adjudication Proceedings	261
	Is there a duty of confidentiality in adjudication?	261
	The importance of confidentiality in adjudication	264
PART III	ENFORCEMENT AND PART 8	267
Chapter 18	Jurisdiction	273
	Do deficiencies matter?	273
	Ambiguity in the adjudicator's decision	276
	My jurisdiction was wider than I thought!	278
	The adjudicator's jurisdiction: when "substance and jurisdiction" overlap	280
	When should the adjudicator deliver his decision?	282
	One adjudicator's decision binds another adjudicator	284
	Stays of execution, approbation and reprobation, and the binding nature of an adjudicator's decision	287
	Waive goodbye to your jurisdictional challenge	289
	Setting the judicial cat amongst the adjudication pigeons	292
	An appeal or just reinforcing the adjudicator's decision?	296
	The tricky world of an adjudicator's jurisdiction	298
	A useful reminder that spurious jurisdictional challenges in adjudication will fail	301
	Harding v Paice and Springall – the prequel	304
	TCC considers the impact that paying an adjudicator's fees has on jurisdictional challenges	308
	A clear case of different disputes, as confirmed by the court of appeal	311
	Adjudication enforcement arguments "change with the seasons"	314
	Only the "plainest cases" will not be enforced, and this was not one of them!	318

Getting caught by the “catch all” wording in adjudication	322
The ostrich approach to dealing with adjudication	325
Don’t give a judge an excuse not to enforce you	328
Does Cannon v Primus mean an end to general jurisdictional reservations?	332
Are jurisdictional reservations flavour of the month?	337
Adjudicating on multiple adjudications	341
Broad meaning given to “dispute arising under the contract” in adjudication	344
Time isn’t on your side and resolving old disputes is never easy	349
Parties beware: ensure your jurisdictional challenge is clear and appropriate to avoid waiver	352
Reminder of applicable principles when substance and jurisdiction collide in adjudication	356
Scottish court reminds us that you must adjudicate first under NEC3	361
TCC provides reminder of the meaning of paragraph 9(2) of the Scheme	365
Sudlows v Global Switch part deux: a significant judgment or one that turns on its facts?	368
Limits on when you can adjudicate	372
Is Fiona Trust to be trusted to apply to adjudication?	376
Jurisdictional challenges: how often do they occur, and what can we learn from them?	380
Chapter 19 Breaches of Natural Justice and Bias	385
An adjudicator’s use of evidence and natural justice	385
Alleged breaches of the rules of natural justice	387
Bias comes in all shapes and forms	389
Phoning a friend in adjudication	391
Adjudication “torpedoed” by adjudicator’s frolic	393
What if ...? Could the adjudicator’s decision have been different?	395
Wednesbury unreasonableness test in adjudication	397
Whyte and Mackay v Blyth & Blyth : the case that keeps on giving	400
Read all about it: adjudicator commits serious breach of natural justice rules	403
Read all about it: adjudicator didn’t commit a serious breach of the rules of natural justice	406
An adjudicator dealing with all defences, or not	408
Adjudicator using own knowledge and experience, acceptable behaviour or a frolic?	411
Harding v Paice and Springall – Episode V: a case of no apparent bias	413
“Adjudication is not the wild west of dispute resolution”	419
Does the Supreme Court’s judgment in Halliburton v Chubb have any implications for adjudication?	424

TCC refuses to enforce adjudicator's decision due to material natural justice breach	431
TCC's useful reminder of limits of natural justice challenges to adjudicators' decisions	436
Adjudicator reaches decision in "procedurally unjust manner" so not enforced	439
Chapter 20 Fraud	443
Liar liar, pants on fire	443
Fraudulent misrepresentation in construction disputes	445
"Fraud unravels everything"	447
Chapter 21 Stays of Execution and Insolvency	451
Should I stay or should I pay now? Adjudication and insolvency	451
Partial stay as "claimant is now an SPV with no P"	454
Chapter 22 Severing Decisions	457
Severing an adjudicator's decision Cato -style	457
"All for one and one for all" when it comes to severing an adjudicator's decision	460
PART IV IRISH ADJUDICATION	465
Chapter 23 Irish Adjudication	469
Adjudication in Ireland is finally a reality	469
Ireland finally has its Macob moment	473
Can't simply "read across" UK case law into Irish adjudication enforcement	476
Ireland enforces another adjudicator's decision	481
RIP statutory "smash and grab" claims (in Ireland, at least)	484
Index	489