Casa de Campo Resort & Villas, a Caribbean golfing

Paradise

With 63 holes of championship golf, Casa de Campo is home to three Pete Dye-designed courses, led by the iconic and recently renovated Teeth of the Dog – consistently ranked among the world's top 100 and widely regarded as the Caribbean's finest layout.

Teeth of the Dog is the course that defines Casa de Campo and is the reason many golfers make the trip.

First opened in 1971, and fully renovated in 2025, it's a breathtaking blend of drama, beauty and strategic challenge.

Dye famously said he designed only 11 holes and 'God created the rest', referring to the seven spectacular holes that cling to the rocky Caribbean shoreline. These 'Heaven Seven' are the soul of the course, with jagged coral, crashing waves and greens seemingly floating above the sea.

Standout holes, of which there are many, include the par-3 5th, played over coral rock to a green framed by surf; the long, exposed par-3 7th, and the stirring par-4 8th, where a demanding approach plays to an elevated green with an ocean backdrop.

Moving inland, holes 1-4 and 9-14 wind through coral-rock terrain, featuring Dye's signature pot bunkers and waste areas.

Dye Fore

The par-5 11th offers a scoring chance before the course returns to the coastline for a thrilling run from 15 to 17, with the exacting par-4 18th providing a memorable inland finish. Fresh from a year-long closure in 2025, Teeth of the Dog has been meticulously renovated by PGA Tour star-turned-architect Jerry Pate. Reopened in December, the course now plays firmer, faster and closer to Dye's original vision.

Teeth of The Dog

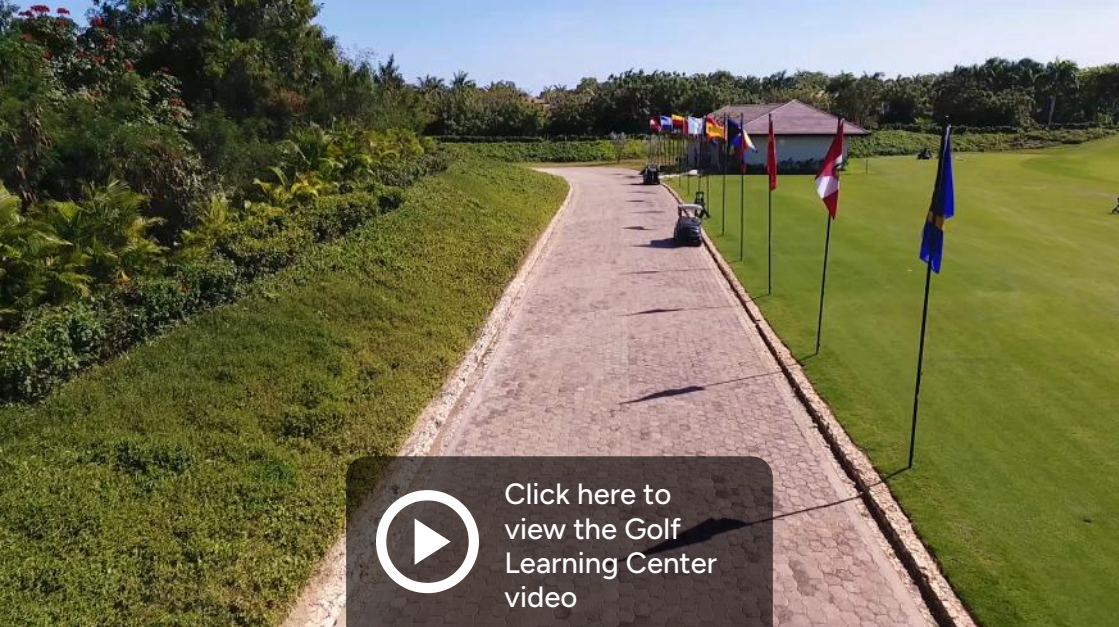

All 18 greens have been restored or expanded, 127 bunkers sharpened, 70 tee boxes rebuilt, drainage enhanced, turf refined and new buggy paths added – all while preserving the course's character and elevating its status as the Caribbean's No.1 course.

Complementing Teeth of the Dog, Dye Fore delivers 27 holes of big, dramatic golf perched above the Chavón River, with cliff-edge fairways, vast elevation changes and unforgettable par-3s across ravines.

The Links

The 18-hole Links Course offers a more subtle, strategic test over rolling fairways, with tall Bahia grass, pot bunkers and contour-driven shot-making – ideal for a relaxed round or fine-tuning your game before tackling Dye Fore and Teeth of the Dog.
