PAVIE AND LUANG PRABANG - In 1887, the city of Luang Prabang was under siege by Chinese and Tai bandits. Auguste Pavie, the French vice-consul, heroically rescued the ailing local ruler, Oun Kham, by ferrying him to safety in Bangkok. This act of bravery not only saved the king but also solidified Pavie's influence and trust in the region, paving the way for French colonial expansion in Laos.
