INTRODUCING A NEW PIECE COUNT!

100 PUZZLES

Perfect for Puzzle Chess

What is Puzzle Chess?

What is Puzzle Chess? Puzzle Chess is an exciting way to turn any puzzle into a head-to-head game. Race your opponent by taking turns connecting pieces until the puzzle is complete.

How to Play? Flip all the pieces face up and assemble the edge. Once the frame is completed, set a time limit for your game – how long is up to you – then players take turns placing pieces. After connecting a piece, each player must tap the timer to start their opponent's clock. Take turns until the final piece is placed. The player with the most time remaining on the clock wins!

Don't Have a Chess Clock? No problem. Visit our website for links to free timers or app options. You will also find additional tips and other variations to Puzzle Chess.

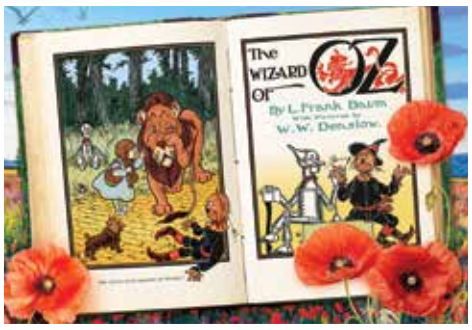

Don't Want to Compete? Of course, this puzzle can also be assembled the traditional way. It features larger pieces, which makes it perfect for puzzlers looking for easy-to-handle pieces or anyone looking for a speedy challenge.

CANADIAN CREATOR

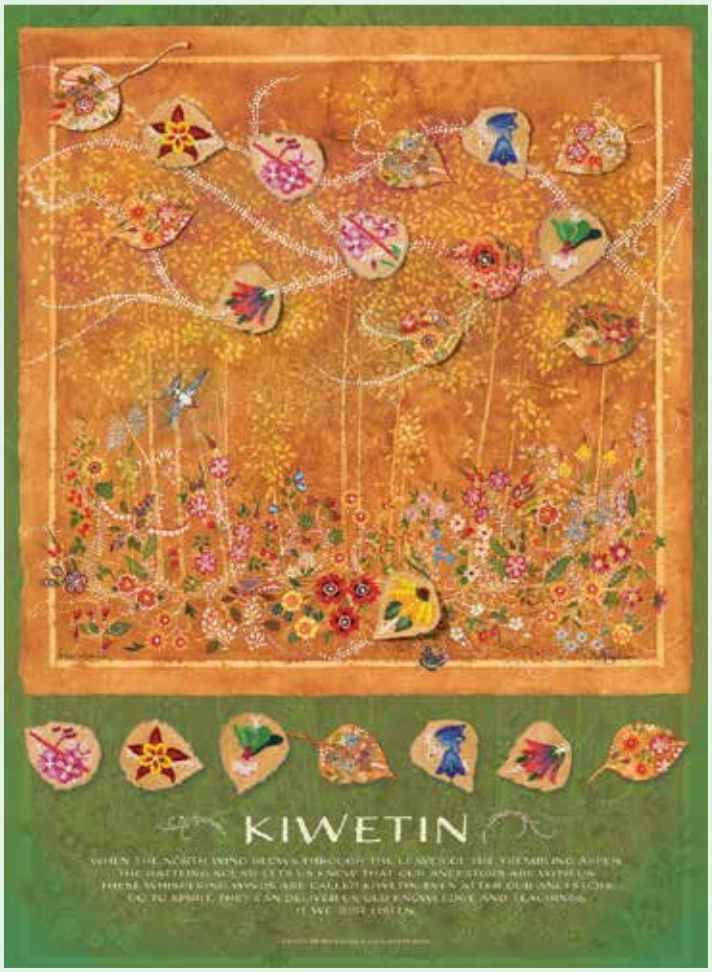

FEELING PARTRIOTIC?

WATCH FOR THE MAPLE LEAF TO FIND SOME FABULOUS ARTISTS WHO, BY BIRTH OR BY CHOICE, ARE HAPPY TO CALL CANADA HOME.

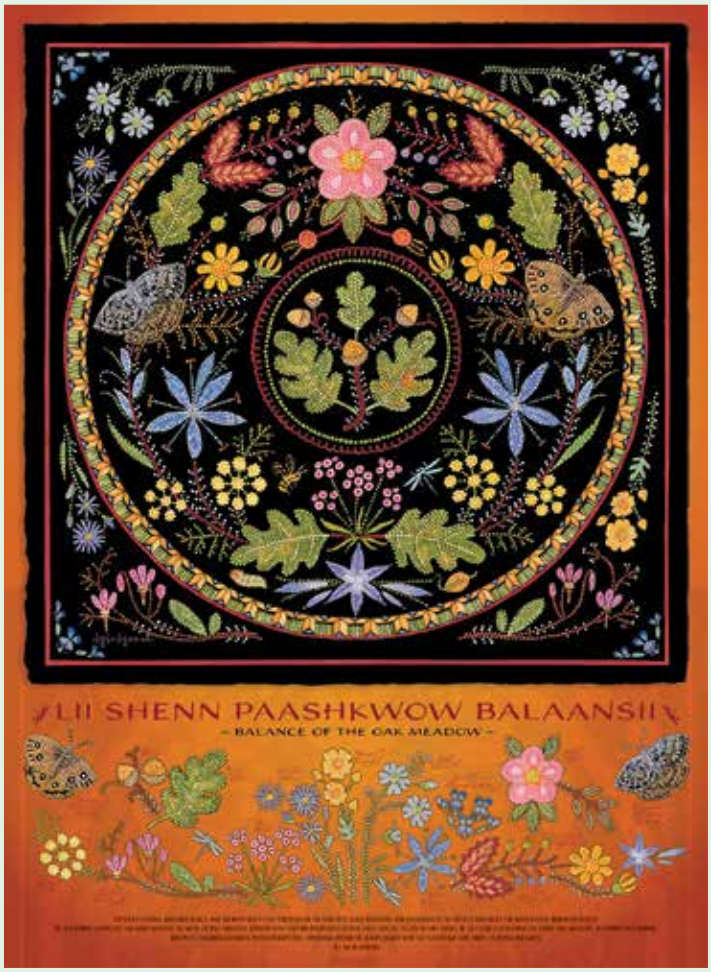

Kristi Bridgeman (painter) & Lisa Shepherd (beadwork), decendents of the Métis Flower Beadwork People, are co-creators of the beautiful image Kiwetin. What does Kiwetin mean? Written on the puzzle is, "When the north wind blows through the leaves of the trembling aspen, the rattling sound lets us know that our ancestors are with us. These whispering winds are called Kiwetin. Even after our ancestors go to Spirit, they can deliver us old knowledge and teachings if we just listen."

Kristi Bridgeman's a work is inspired by her Métis heritage and the natural world. Based on Vancouver Island, BC, she is known for her detailed mandalas, often featuring traditional Métis floral motifs. Lii Shen celebrates the delicate ecosystem of the Garry Oak meadow using Michif, a Metis language.

Floriography, or the Language of Flowers is a means of communication using flowers and bouquets. During the Victorian era, many guidebooks were published to help those involved in delicate courtship rituals parse their exchange of posies. While most of the nuances have fallen out of favor, we still choose red roses to symbolize passion, yellow roses for friendship and poppies for remembrance. To balance the old world look, contemporary leet-speak was used on the labelling, thus what was originally described as "looking for true friendship" becomes "Let's be besties!" - shorter and more fun.
