National President 2026
JCI India

Message from National President

The month of May has been filled with positivity, action, and wonderful progress across JCI India. It is truly encouraging to witness the commitment and teamwork shown by members and leaders at every level. I would like to specially congratulate the National Vice Presidents who have become officially positive and are leading their areas with dedication and consistency. Their efforts and leadership are truly appreciable.

It is also exciting to see many zones successfully conducting their Mid-Year Conferences with great enthusiasm and active participation. These conferences are creating strong opportunities for learning, bonding, motivation, and sharing of ideas among members.

One of the major highlights of this month has been the celebration of National Training Day with the inspiring theme "Lead • Connect • Evolve." Across the country, trainers and organizations came together to create impact through learning and development programs. Congratulations to everyone who contributed to making this initiative meaningful and successful.

I am also happy to note the excellent response towards projects like Need Blood Call Jaycee, along with many impactful Sustainable Sipping Projects and Sustainable Solution Projects across different zones and local organizations. Kudos to all those who are actively serving the community through these meaningful initiatives and creating positive change in society.

As we move ahead, let us now get ready with excitement for the upcoming ASPAC Conference next month. It will be another wonderful platform for learning, networking, friendship, and proudly representing the spirit of JCI India at the international level.

Thank you to every member for your continuous efforts, involvement, and dedication. Let us continue to lead with purpose, connect with people, and evolve through action while creating greater impact together.

Chairman's Message Challenge Editorial Board

"Creativity grows when ideas are shared, and impact grows when actions are celebrated."

CHALLENGE Magazine keeps getting bigger, better, and more meaningful because of the amazing support from members all across JCI India. Every edition is filled with inspiring projects, creative ideas, achievements, trainings, and memorable moments that truly reflect the strength and spirit of our organisation. Seeing members actively contribute their content with so much passion and involvement is really exciting and motivating.

What makes CHALLENGE special is the people behind it. From contributors to writers to supporters, every effort adds life to these pages. A special thanks to all our sponsors for continuously supporting this journey and believing in the vision of CHALLENGE Magazine over the years. Your support helps us reach more members and make every edition more impactful than the previous one.

warmly invite all Jaycees to continue sharing your meaningful projects, innovative ideas, achievements, and inspiring stories in the upcoming editions as well. Let us continue to celebrate action, inspire one another, and showcase the incredible work happening across JCI India. Because every project has a purpose, every effort creates impact, and every story deserves to be shared.

Message From Secretary General

Greetings to the JCI India Family,

It is wonderful to see CHALLENGE Magazine continuing its journey successfully with every edition becoming more informative, creative, and inspiring. The efforts taken by Chairman JCI Sen Rohit Kumar Lodha with his Editorial Board Team and the active contributions from members across the nation truly deserve appreciation.

This magazine beautifully showcases the achievements, projects, trainings, and impactful activities happening throughout JCI India. It is encouraging to see members sharing their ideas, stories, and experiences through this vibrant platform.

My heartfelt congratulations to the entire team behind CHALLENGE Magazine for your consistent efforts and dedication. Keep up the good work and continue inspiring members through your creativity and commitment.

Wishing CHALLENGE Magazine many more successful editions ahead.

JCI European Conference 2026

A Journey of Leadership, Learning & Global Connections

2026 European Conference
Málaga - Spain JCI

The JCI European Conference 2026 has been an extraordinary platform bringing together young leaders, entrepreneurs, change makers, and professionals from across the world under one roof. From impactful training sessions and inspiring keynote addresses to cultural celebrations and international networking, every moment of the conference reflected the true spirit of JCI — Leadership through Service, Collaboration, and Global Friendship. One of the most memorable highlights was the vibrant European Village, where cultures, traditions, music, and flavors from different nations came together to create an unforgettable global experience. The conference also provided incredible opportunities to exchange ideas, build international partnerships, and learn from diverse perspectives.

Proud and honored to represent India as a Chief Delegate at this prestigious global gathering, carrying the spirit, values, and energy of JCI India onto the international stage. It was also a proud opportunity to promote India's bid for the JCI World Congress 2028. The enthusiasm and excitement shown by European delegates to attend the conference and explore the incredible culture, hospitality, diversity, and experiences India has to offer was truly overwhelming and inspiring.

2026 European Conference

Málaga - Spain JCI

A proud moment for India as four delegates represented the nation at the conference — JCI President Kaveen Kumar Kumaravel, Tushar Tayal, Emeline Singhal, and myself. Their active participation, encouragement, and support in promoting India and strengthening international relations were highly appreciated by delegates across the conference. JCI President Kaveen Kumar Kumaravel continues to be a true role model and a source of inspiration for aspiring leaders through his vision, humility, dedication, and impactful leadership on the global stage.

Beyond the sessions and events, the conference stands as a reminder that JCI is more than an organization; it is a global movement empowering young people to create positive change in their communities and beyond.

Grateful for the learning, friendships, and unforgettable memories created during this inspiring journey. Looking forward to strengthening global connections and welcoming the world to India.

VISUALISING THE DREAMS OF JCI

The Junior Chamber International (JCI) plays a transformative role in shaping today's youth into responsible individuals and dynamic leaders of tomorrow. Guided by the powerful theme "Lead, Connect, Evolve," JCI creates a platform where young people are empowered to discover their potential and translate it into meaningful action for society.

To lead is the first step in personal growth. JCI provides opportunities for youth to take initiative through projects, community programs, and organisational roles, even from the start by PD of a GB. By stepping into leadership positions, members develop confidence, decision-making skills, and a sense of accountability. These experiences prepare them to lead not only within JCI but also in their professional and social environments.

Equally important is the ability to connect. JCI fosters a strong network of like-minded individuals across local, national, and international levels. Through collaboration, partnerships, and cultural exchange, members gain broader perspectives and learn the value of teamwork and mutual respect. These connections often evolve into lifelong relationships and professional opportunities.

The journey culminates in the ability to Evolve. Continuous learning, training programs, and real-world experiences help members refine their skills and adapt to changing challenges. JCI encourages self-improvement, ethical leadership, and a commitment to creating positive change in society.

In essence, JCI nurtures youth to become proactive citizens who contribute meaningfully to their communities. By embracing leadership, building connections, and striving for constant evolution, JCI members are well-equipped to seize any opportunity and lead with purpose, integrity, and vision.

Within Junior Chamber International (JCI), transformation rarely comes from one big moment—it is the result of many small opportunities and subtle changes that gradually shape a person into a confident and capable leader.

At first, even a simple task—like introducing a speaker, coordinating a meeting, or participating in a discussion—may seem minor. However, these small roles push individuals slightly out of their comfort zones. A hesitant member who once avoided speaking may begin by saying a few words, then progress to leading sessions, and eventually addressing large audiences. This steady exposure builds confidence in a natural and lasting way.

Similarly, opportunities such as organizing a local event or managing a small project teach responsibility and accountability. Members learn how to plan, communicate, and solve problems in real time. Mistakes made along the way become valuable lessons rather than failures, fostering resilience and a growth mindset. My own story is like this: in 2009, I didn't attend my LO Installation only because my LO leaders assigned me a task of introducing the chief guest, and that too simply reading the written script. In 2014, I became the LO president and 2020 National President, the most coveted position in JCI India. My dear friends, that's JCI, it transforms you into your better personality.

Networking is another subtle yet powerful factor. Casual conversations, team collaborations, and interactions with experienced leaders gradually expand one's perspective. Over time, these connections inspire new ideas, open doors to opportunities, and instil a sense of belonging and purpose. I can proudly say that in the whole country, I have connections for any reason, that's the gift from JCI.

What makes JCI unique is that it provides a safe environment to experiment, fail, learn, and improve continuously. Each small experience adds a layer of skill, confidence, and awareness. When combined, these layers create a profound transformation—turning an ordinary individual into a proactive citizen and an effective leader.

Thus, it is not the size of the opportunity in JCI that matters, but the willingness to embrace it. Small steps, taken consistently, lead to extraordinary personal growth.

So dear leaders, get involved in JCI activities, and you will be a better version of yourself tomorrow.

I appreciate the efforts taken by my good friend Rohit Kumar Lodha in visualising the dreams of JCI.

With Love

SELF Improvement IS NOT SELF-PRESSURE

7 Uncommon Techniques for Sustainable Growth

JCI Sen. Dr. S. SARAVANAKUMAR
National Trainer - JCI India

In today's hyperconnected world, self-improvement has become an ever-present pursuit. From motivational reels to productivity blueprints, we are constantly urged to do more, achieve more, and become more—faster than ever before. Yet, beneath this enthusiasm lies a subtle but serious concern: self-improvement is increasingly being mistaken for self-pressure.

We wake up earlier, stretch our schedules longer, and chase ambitious goals relentlessly. But in this rush, a fundamental question often goes unasked:

Are we truly growing, or are we merely staying busy?

True self-improvement is not about relentless acceleration; it is about meaningful progression. It is a steady, conscious, and sustainable journey of becoming better—without losing balance, clarity, or purpose.

1. The 1% Integrity Rule

Choose one simple daily promise—reading two pages, walking for ten minutes, or writing a single paragraph and honour it without exception. Self-trust is the foundation of personal growth, and small consistent actions build lasting confidence.

2. Outcome Fasting

For a defined period, detach from results and focus only on effort quality. This reduces anxiety and strengthens long-term excellence.

3. The Reverse Role Model Technique

Observe behaviors you wish to avoid and identify their root causes. Avoiding negative habits can accelerate growth significantly.

4. Time-Boxed Imperfection

Allocate fixed time slots for tasks and stop when time ends. This builds momentum and reduces perfectionism.

5. The Energy Audit

Track your energy patterns and align tasks accordingly. Managing energy is more effective than managing time.

6. The Weekly Personal Board Meeting

Review your week with one win, one lesson, and one improvement. Reflection converts experience into wisdom.

7. Service-Driven Self-Improvement

Link your growth to a larger purpose. When others benefit from your improvement, motivation becomes sustainable.

A Final Thought for JCI Members

Self-improvement is not a race or performance. It is a disciplined commitment to becoming better each day. When we improve consciously, we build not just careers, but character, leadership, and impact.

DON'T OFFER PROBLEMS A CHAIR

"You can't stop problems from coming but don't offer a chair and allow it to be part of your life"

In the rhythm of human life, problems are inevitable. They arrive like uninvited guests—sometimes quietly, sometimes with thunderous force. The scriptures remind us that “DHUKHA” (sorrow) is part of the cycle of existence, just as joy is. To live is to encounter both. Yet the wisdom of the ancients lies not in denying sorrow, but in refusing to give it permanence.

When a guest arrives, we have a choice: to welcome them, to seat them, to let them linger. Problems, too, seek this hospitality. They knock at the door of our mind, asking for a chair, a place at the table. If we allow them to sit, they begin to shape our thoughts, our moods, our very identity. Worry becomes a companion; fear becomes a resident.

But the sages taught detachment—“VAIRAGYA”. To see the problem, acknowledge it, but not embrace it. To learn from its presence, but not let it define the household of the heart. Just as clouds pass across the sky without staining its vastness, problems too can pass if we do not hold them.

The Bhagavad Gita speaks of equanimity: “SAMATVAM YOGA UCYATE”—balance is yoga. Problems will come, but balance teaches us not to offer them a chair. Instead, we stand firm in awareness, in faith, in the knowledge that all is transient.

This is not denial, but discipline. It is the art of refusing to let temporary troubles become permanent tenants. Problems may enter, but they need not stay. The home of peace, the sanctum of the soul, remains untouched when we choose not to offer them a chair.

Nobody Starts in a Garage Anymore

The garage story was always partly myth. Hewlett and Packard had Stanford professors behind them, a functioning electronics industry around them, and military contracts that gave them early revenue. The garage was real. The isolation wasn't.

What's changed is that the actual frontier has moved so deep into technical complexity that you can't fake proximity to it. The most dangerous new companies aren't coming from people who had a clever idea in the shower. They're coming from researchers who spent eight years inside a lab understanding something that nobody outside that lab understands. Their advantage isn't hustle. It's depth that took a decade to accumulate. There's a studio model emerging quietly in London, Toronto, and Berlin — small teams incubating four or five companies simultaneously, sharing infrastructure and the cost of early failure. It looks nothing like the romantic founder story. It's more like a small, weird factory. And it's producing some of the most interesting companies being built right now. The garage wasn't the point anyway. The point was two people who knew something specific, cared about it obsessively, and had nowhere else to put that energy. That part hasn't changed. The address has.

Ground Floor Thinking

Your First Customers Might Be the Worst Thing That Happens to You

Some startups do everything right and still fail, good product, real customers, actual revenue, and then, somewhere around year three, growth just stops. No obvious reason. No big mistake anyone can point to. Here's what actually happened. The people who found the product first weren't really the target customers. They were the patient ones - happy to figure things out, okay with a few rough edges, willing to give the benefit of the doubt. The team loved them. Built everything around their feedback. Improved every little thing they asked for. The problem?

Those early fans were nothing like the average buyer. The average buyer doesn't read instructions. Doesn't experiment. Wants it to work the first time or they're gone. By the time the startup realizes this, they've spent two years perfecting a product for a small, forgiving group of people — when the real market is a much larger, far less patient crowd they never really understood. This isn't about building a bad product. The product was good. The mistake was simpler, they listened to the wrong people. Early users can tell you why your product matters. They can't always tell you who it's really for. Those two things sound similar, they're not. Mixing them up is how a startup builds something genuinely useful — and still runs out of road. The fix isn't to ignore your first customers. It's to hear what they're telling you without assuming they represent everyone who comes after them.

BLOOD
DONOR

JUNE

DEAR JAYCEES,

This 14 June, let us unite for humanity.

Every drop of blood has the power to bring a smile back, a family together and a life back to hope.

Blood cannot be manufactured.
It can only be donated.

Let every Local Organisation become a center of hope.

Let every donor become a lifesaver.

Let every unit of blood become a blessing for someone fighting for life.

Together, let us make JCI India
a National Symbol of Humanity.

JCOM BUSINESS GROWTH PLATFORM FOR JCI MEMBERS

WHAT IS JCOM?

JCOM is the official business area program of JCI India created exclusively for JCI members. It provides a structured platform where members can build business relationships, exchange opportunities, learn from experienced professionals, and support each other's growth through collaboration and networking. JCOM focuses on creating meaningful business connections while also helping members improve their professional skills and business visibility.

WHO CAN JOIN?

JCOM is open to every JCI member who is interested in business growth, professional development, and networking. Entrepreneurs, business owners, consultants, startup founders, professionals, and freelancers can all benefit from the opportunities and learning platform that JCOM offers.

BENEFITS OF JOINING JCOM

JCOM provides members with opportunities to build strong business networks, increase professional visibility through trusted connections. It also offers a platform for Connections and collaboration with entrepreneurs and professionals across India. Members benefit from both personal and professional growth while becoming part of a supportive business community within JCI India.

JOIN JCOM

JCOM continues to create opportunities for members to connect, collaborate, learn, and grow together through structured business meetings and professional engagement. For membership and participation details, members may contact their JCOM Coach, JCOM Table Chairman, Zone Chairman, or the National JCOM Team and Local President.

JCOM MONTHLY MEETING FORMAT

Week 1 – Growth Plan & Growth Call Meet

This meeting is focused on business networking. Members share their business requirements, exchange references, and help one another with meaningful business connections. The objective is to create opportunities for growth through active member interaction and collaboration.

Week 2 – Solution Board Meet

In this meeting, members present real business challenges they are facing in their professional journey. Fellow members and the Solution Board provide practical suggestions, ideas, and solutions based on their experience and expertise. The session encourages collective learning and business improvement.

Week 3 – Learning Meet

The Learning Meet is designed to enhance the business knowledge and professional skills of members. Sessions are conducted by industry experts, trainers, consultants, and business leaders on topics such as marketing, sales, finance, leadership, technology, and business development. These meetings help members stay updated and continuously improve their capabilities.

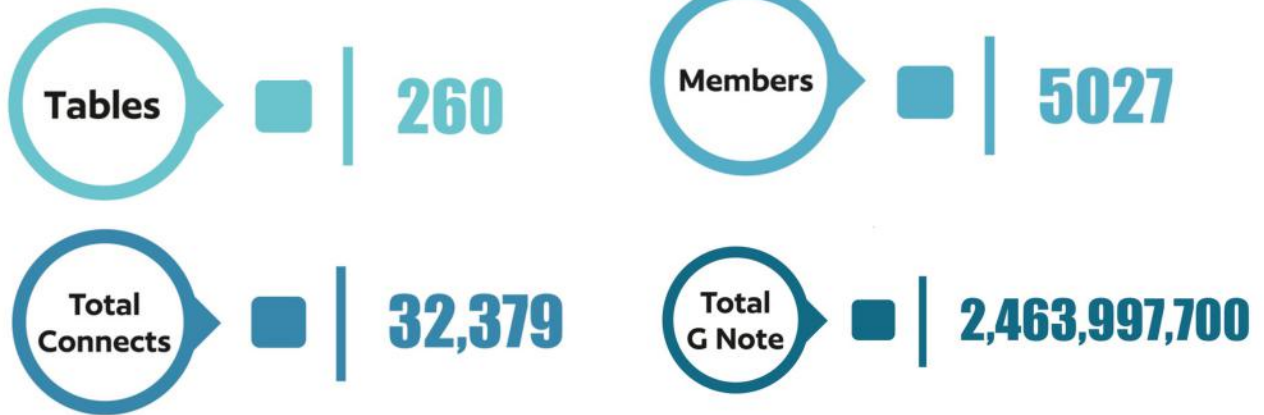

Week 4 – Cross Business Meet

Cross Business Meets are conducted jointly with other JCOM Tables to create wider networking and collaboration opportunities. These meetings help members connect with professionals from different regions, exchange referrals, explore partnerships, and expand their business reach.
