Whether you are looking for your first supported motorcycle tour or your next major expedition, this is where the planning begins.

GlobeBusters Built From Experience

2002

Kevin and Julia break the Guinness World Record for the fastest circumnavigation of the world by motorcycle, riding two-up on one bike.

2004

Kevin and Julia ride the Trans Americas again, this time at a slower pace, researching the route and preparing for what would become the first ever GlobeBusters expedition.

2006 onwards

GlobeBusters begins expanding into new regions of the world, offering riders more destinations and a growing choice of supported motorcycle journeys.

Early 2000s

Kevin and Julia begin taking on major long-distance motorcycle journeys, building the real-world experience that would later shape GlobeBusters.

2003

Kevin and Julia break another Guinness World Record, this time for the fastest ride through the Trans Americas by motorcycle, again riding two-up.

2005

GlobeBusters runs its first major expedition: the Trans Americas, Alaska to Argentina. Taking over 19 weeks and covering more than 22,000 miles, it remains the longest assisted motorcycle expedition ever undertaken and set the standard for others to follow. The expedition was also featured globally on the National Geographic Adventure Channel as a six-part TV series, "The Ride: Alaska to Patagonia."

The Next Generation

GlobeBusters is now entering its next chapter, with Rhys Lawrey-Sanders carrying the story forward.

Rhys became the youngest person to circumnavigate the world by motorcycle, riding solo through more than 71 countries and covering over 56,000 miles. Along the way, he also earned a Guinness World Record for the most consecutive capital cities visited by motorcycle.

That experience gave Rhys a deep understanding of what long-distance motorcycle travel really takes: planning, patience, problem solving, and the ability to keep moving when the road changes.

Now leading the way, Rhys and his wife Annie are building on the foundations created by Kevin and Julia, bringing fresh energy to GlobeBusters while keeping the experience, professionalism and expedition mindset the company was built on.

This is not a new direction.
It is the next chapter.

2011 – 2019

GlobeBusters runs multiple expeditions and tours across Africa, continues operating the Trans Americas every second year, and runs London to Beijing in the alternate years. During this period, GlobeBusters also organises two round-the-world motorcycle expeditions.

2010

The GlobeBusters portfolio expands again with the first ever London to Beijing Expedition. This journey was also filmed as a six-part TV series, "The Ride: London to Beijing," which is available to watch on Amazon Prime.

2022 onwards

After COVID put travel on pause, GlobeBusters returns to the road, running the Africa expedition in 2022, the most recent Trans Americas in 2023, Coast to Coast Canada in 2025 and bringing back the Silk Road journey with the Bangkok to Britain Expedition in 2026.

The GlobeBusters Magic

“ A ride to the End of the World with the best in the business. Well researched routes that both challenge and delight, hand picked accommodation in great locations and in depth knowledge to ensure you never miss a point of interest or fuel stop.

A tour manager with real world experience gave great confidence and excellent insight.

A most brilliant adventure. ”

Nick: Patagonia, London to Beijing, Iceland, Canada, South Africa, Morocco Tours

I was in the Army for 15 years, a helicopter pilot on the North Sea and later an airline pilot, so my expectations from an adventure motorcycle tour company are high.

There's a reason why 3 of the 5 motorcycle tours I've done have been with GlobeBusters. They are consistently outstanding in their administration, route planning and client management.

We are more a Band of Brothers ” than customers.

Chris: Trans Canada, Trans Am, Morocco Tours

“ You're not herded around in a convoy, but free to ride at your own pace and properly experience the country.

It felt like a group of friends exploring together, but when needed the GlobeBusters team were extremely professional and efficient. ”

Rob: Morocco Tour

“ Although I usually prefer to travel solo, for destinations that are more challenging or less practical alone, I choose GlobeBusters.

Of all the tour companies I've travelled with over the years, only GlobeBusters consistently delivers the very best service, routes, and atmosphere. Everything is professionally managed, allowing you to fully focus on enjoying the ride. ”

Robert: London to Beijing, Southern Africa, Thailand Tours

“ This was my 4th trip with GlobeBusters - Trans-Canada this time, with Kevin leading and Dom in support.

This trip was just like the other three - well-planned, well organised, well-led and supported and a hoot from beginning to end.

Roll on the next one... ”
